Veteran's aid

HOUSTON — Bargain hunters this weekend are getting a chance to pick up some choice items and help a Desert Storm veteran literally pick up the pieces of a shattered life. Antique Centers of Texas, a Houston-based firm, is selling items donated by former President Bush, Texas Rangers players Nolan Ryan and Jose Canseco and entertainers George Strait and Willie Nelson to help raise money for Navy Reserve Capt. John Engstrom and his family. A bank seized Engstrom's $240,000 worth of farm equipment and sold it during the 3½ months he was serving his country at war./15A

Reporter dies

KABUL, Afghanistan — Associated Press correspondent Sharon Herbaugh, a former Texas journalist who covered the Afghanistan war for four years, was killed with 14 other people Friday when their helicopter crashed in a mountain ravine in central Afghanistan. Herbaugh, 39, the AP bureau chief in Pakistan, and her Afghan translator Mohammed Rafi were working on a story about U.N. efforts to clear millions of land mines, an essential part of rebuilding the war-ravaged country./8A

Lottery winner

AUSTIN — A Houston woman who was recently laid off from her job as a restaurant cook has become Texas' latest lotto winner and picked up the first installment of her $8 million jackpot. "It was just unreal," Willie Mae Smith, 36, said as she recounted matching the winning numbers printed in a Houston newspaper against her lotto ticket. "I started crying. I was in shock."/6A

Hostage is free

LUCASVILLE, Ohio — Inmates barricaded inside a maximum-security prison released one of six hostages Friday after going on television live and demanding amnesty and religious rights for Muslims prisoners. An inmate who identified himself as Abdul spoke for 10 minutes on WBNS-TV while seated at a wooden table with the hostage and two negotiators let into a prison courtyard./14A

Jury exonerates Railey

Panel acquits ex-pastor in wife's attack

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press writer

SAN ANTONIO — The former minister of one of the nation's most prominent Methodist churches was acquitted Friday of trying to strangle his wife six years ago.

Walker Railey, 45, the once-powerful pastor of Dallas' First United Methodist Church had been expected to become a bishop in the denomination until his wife was attacked on April 21, 1987 and left for dead.

Peggy Railey, now 44, remains in a persistent vegetative state in a Tyler nursing home.

Her husband, who has since given up custody of the couple's two children, was the only suspect identified, but wasn't indicted until last year as police said they didn't have enough evidence. New techniques in analyzing mobile telephone calls were a key development allowing charges to be brought against Railey.

After 3½ weeks of testimony, jurors deliberated about 16 hours over three days before reaching a verdict.

"I feel relieved," Railey said. "I'll probably sleep tonight and I'm grateful for that. I feel great. I also feel sad because Peggy is where she is. It's a sad day for me."

Ted Nicolai, Mrs. Railey's brother, blamed the judicial system for the acquittal.

"I didn't have my hope overly high, primar-

Native Americans demonstrate age-old skills

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

Native American artisans held students' rapt attention Friday at the Fredda Turner Durham Children's Museum as they wove tales while demonstrating their skill in basketry and pottery.

"The students have been very enthralled with them," said Teddy Stickney, chairman of the archaeology committee for the museum and president of the Midland Archaeology Society. "They just sit there and listen to them. We've had no discipline problems."

Amid archaeological objects in the museum's "Adventures in Archaeology: Ancient People of the Permian Basin" exhibit, three New Mexico Native American artisans will demonstrate their specific craft from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today for the public much as they did Friday for area school children.

Jury in King trial to make report today

■ Judge tells jurors to be in court at 7 a.m. to make their announcement.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury deciding whether four policemen violated Rodney King's civil rights in his videotaped beating planned an announcement Saturday, an official said. Police went on a citywide tactical alert, and churches held all-night prayer vigils in a neighborhood hit hard by last year's riots.

It wasn't clear whether the federal jury would report a verdict or a deadlock.

Whatever the result, Mayor Tom Bradley said in a televised address to the city Friday night: "Let's all take a deep breath. Let's all keep cool. ... Keep the peace, because without it there can be no justice."

By day's end Friday, the jury had deliberated 40 hours over seven days. A

Capital murder trial debate to continue

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Jurors in the trial of a 21-year-old man accused of the slaying of a church secretary will continue deliberations today after an exhaustive attempt into Friday night.

Ten hours — less lunch and dinner — wasn't enough time for the seven-woman, five-man jury to decide the fate of Curtis Dean Purser, charged with the Nov. 13, 1991, capital murder of 28-year-old Brenda Branch at the Living Way Foursquare Church.

The jury was escorted to the Midland Hilton about 9:45 p.m. until deliberations resume today. Court officials said they believed a jury hasn't been sequestered in Midland County in more than

Serb forces are poised to take over Srebrenica

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serbs were poised Friday to overrun Srebrenica — symbol of Muslim misery, Serb advances and the world's inability to stop Bosnia's carnage.

French authorities said Serb forces had begun entering the town, but U.N. officials, who declined to be identified, said town officials were still negotiating a surrender.

The report by the French Foreign Ministry in Paris could not immediately be verified. The ministry did not say what it was based on.

Earlier Friday, as Serb forces moved to within a half-mile of Srebrenica, officials in the eastern Bosnian town were negotiating to save tens of thousands of desperate refugees and residents.

The U.N. Security Council met Friday night to consider a proposal to create a "safe haven" around Srebrenica to protect its inhabitants without necessarily evacuating them.

Pizza restaurant tries to squelch HIV rumor

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

A "destructive and groundless" rumor has driven the manager of Domino's Pizza stores in Midland and Odessa to "a fit of frustration."

"We thought if we kept quiet and said nothing, the rumor would go away, but it continues to spread," said Rick Reed, area supervisor for the three Domino's stores in Midland and the two in Odessa.

Reed said Domino's Pizza in Midland has lost about 15 percent of its business volume in the last three months because of a baseless rumor that an HIV-positive employee was putting body fluids on pizza being delivered to customers.

"We don't know where or how the rumor started. It has already hit a number of states, and appears to have started in Texas in the Abilene area about a year ago.

"We thought this rumor would eventually run its course but it is becoming more of a problem than anyone thought," Reed said. "You think if you just tell the truth everything will be all right, but it doesn't always work that way."

MC raises $2.5 million for endowment program

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

In less than a year, Midland College is approaching the half-way mark in raising funds for its endowment program.

MC President David Daniel announced Friday that 43 percent ($2.5 million) — of the $5.75 million goal — has been raised for the the Chaparral Circle Fund Endowment Program.

"Between now and 1997, which is the year of our 25th anniversary, we have a goal of raising $5.75 million," Daniel said. "For us to have raised 43 percent already — and to be at this state this early in the campaign — is just amazing."

Conceived and announced almost a year ago, the campaign has now hit its stride with some major contributions.

Daniel said the lead gift of $1 million came from the Abell-Hanger Foundation. Substantial gifts were also received from the Beal and O'Shaughnessy foundations. Other significant donations were made by individuals and memorials also are being accepted.

Daniel noted that the principal amount of the fund will never be spent. Instead, only the earned interest will be used to supplement the college's operating budget.

"The principal will never be invaded. The corpus will always be intact," Daniel said.

"We are very optimistic about this fund which will help us to continue offering quality education at Midland College," Daniel said. "With this kind of beginning, we have an excellent opportunity to exceed our goal."

"We are just delighted with the success we have had so far," said Spencer Beal, president of the Midland College Foundation.

"More than 18,000 Midlanders are effected in one way or another at Midland College, with 4,000 enrolled, continuing education courses, Kids' College, etc.," he said.

Beal said the college "has expanded tremendously since 1975. It has grown from 140,000 to over 450,000 square feet."

With the trend of state funding decreasing for institutions of higher education, Beal said Midlanders want to ensure that their college continues to flourish. "We want to maintain that quality even as we are losing state funds. With this endowment, we are trying to ebb the tide before it happens, so as not to lose that quality."

Beal said the interest garnered from the endowment will fund programs, scholarships or "whatever the need may be."

KING: Jurors are to make announcement this morning

state jury a year ago took 32 hours to acquit the same four officers of most assault charges in the King beating, verdicts that led to three days of deadly rioting.

Stanley Sheinbaum, a member of the city Police Commission, told The Associated Press he had been informed "there's going to be an announcement from the jury."

Asked if the jury would be returning a verdict, Sheinbaum said, "Is a hung jury a verdict?" Told that it was not, Sheinbaum would say only: "I assume it's going to be a result."

The jurors had gone back to the hotel where they are being sequestered at 4 p.m. The police tactical alert was declared at the same time, said Officer Francine Spada, a police spokeswoman. Officers on duty can't go home until the alert is canceled.

U.S. District Judge John G. Davies ordered the jurors to return to court Saturday at 7 a.m , 90 minutes earlier than usual, but gave no indication why he wanted them in so early.

A police department source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said all of the city's police officers have been told to report for duty at 6 a.m. Saturday.

On Friday night, the Police Academy alongside Dodger Stadium was transformed into a staging area for officers and scores of squad cars. At station houses, officers carrying bulletproof vests reported to duty, and lookouts were positioned on station roofs.

National Guard troops also have been standing by all week at armories.

In his brief address, Bradley added a stern message to his plea for peace: "To those who may be itching for an excuse to harm our neighbors, I have this warning: You will not get away with it, so don't even try."

Other community leaders also urged calm.

"Be cool," said the Rev. Cecil Murray of First AME Church in South Central Los Angeles, scene of some of the worst rioting last year.

Murray and others planned an all-night vigil at the church. He said people remained calm and smiling, "but the bottom lips tremble a little bit."

At True Vine Baptist Church in Lynwood near South Central, ministers Carl Washington and John Hopkins began calling congregation members to come to a night-long prayer vigil.

There were other signs of business as usual in the city Friday night. Teen-agers shot hoops on a South Central basketball court, concertgoers jammed Hollywood Bowl to see Paul McCartney and the parking lots at sports stadiums were packed with fans.

Harland Braun, an attorney for one of the four officers, said he couldn't comment on the jury's expected announcement because "I've been sworn to secrecy."

Braun, who represents Officer Theodore Briseno, speculated earlier that the jury was deadlocked. "I would love a hung jury," he said. "It's as good as an acquittal for the defense." Other defense lawyers said it was too soon to tell.

Near the federal courthouse, police showed their readiness during the afternoon when 40 officers in riot gear converged on a news conference that erupted into a shouting and pushing match involving a Ku Klux Klan leader and a black spectator.

PIZZA: Eatery plans to hold open house

(From 1A)

las, said the story was totally untrue and had no basis whatsoever.

"But even if it were true, medical authorities tell us there is no way an individual can contract AIDS from food, because the virus cannot live outside the body," she said.

Ms. Costello said the rumor is similar to an unfounded rumor that circulated several years ago about Proctor & Gamble. The giant corporation eventually spent millions trying to track the source of the rumor and finally was able to halt it with prosecutions. "I fear this may be Proctor & Gamble all over again," Ms. Costello said.

Reed said local stores had been receiving about 10 to 20 calls a week about the rumor and that employees were always having to explain to customers and friends that the rumor was untrue. "It is beginning to have an effect on employee morale," he said.

Domino's employs about 70 people in the Midland and Odessa stores.

"The fabrication may run its course in a year or two, but we can't wait that long. That's why we have gone public with the story," Ms. Costello said. "We have been trying to silently battle this ugly rumor, which plays on people's fears, but it has not been working."

She said the local stores are planning an open house to let customers come in and get acquainted with Domino's pizza.

"We are here to stay," said Reed, who has lived in Midland for three years and has been with the company for seven years. "And the sooner we get this unplesant business behind us and get on with business the better we will like it."

WEATHER WATCH

High to reach upper 70s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies and a high in the upper 70s with west winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low near 50.

Sunday should be sunny with a high in the mid-80s.

After an overnight low of 41, Friday's high reached 77, compared to the record high for that date of 96 set in 1937. The record low for that date is 27 set in 1947.

STATE

An upper-level low pressure system Friday pulled gulf air into Texas, with forecasters expecting a warming trend through the weekend.

Mostly sunny skies prevailed statewide as surface high pressure that provided mild temperatures and relatively dry air was sliding into the northwestern Gulf of Mexico.

The National Weather Service said winds were gusting to over 30 mph in Del Rio, prompting a wind advisory for Val Verde County.

High temperatures ranged from the 60s to 70s.

Increasing cloudiness and warmer temperatures were expected, with a slight chance of thunderstorms in the north and west, especially east of mountain regions, through Sunday.

In South Texas, mostly cloudy conditions were expected through this morning, with decreasing clouds this afternoon.

NATION

Thunderstorms pounded the central Atlantic Coast on Friday, bringing rivers and streams in some areas to high levels. Snow lingered near Lake Superior.

Storms raked areas near Washington, D.C., and at Townsville N.C., damaging roofs and mobile homes. No injuries were reported.

Thunderstorm winds caused damage in three central Pennsylvania towns — Mifflin, Mifflinburg and near Williamsport.

Recent heavy rains have brought many rivers and streams to high levels. Flood warnings, advisories and watches were scattered from the Atlantic Coast into the Mississippi Valley.

Snow and strong winds remained near Lake Superior.

Snowshowers extended from northern Illinois and southeast Iowa across Wisconsin into western Upper Michigan.

On Friday afternoon, rainshowers and thunderstorms extended from New York state across eastern North Carolina and over southeast Florida.

Rainshowers were scattered in Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky into southern Illinois. Rain also fell along the coast of Washington state.

The heaviest rainfall during the six hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT was 2.3 inches at Washington's Dulles airport. Three inches of snow fell at Marquette, Mich.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

MURDER: Judge sequesters jury

(From 1A)

30 years.

After eight days of testimony in Judge John Hyde's 238th District Court, jurors began the decision-making process Friday following closing arguments.

The prosecution maintains that Purser and a second man killed Ms. Branch during an attempted robbery, and have linked Purser to the crime with a confession and a hair found at the scene.

The defense has claimed that Purser was tricked into the confession and the second man acted alone.

The other man, Gearld Benjamin Kelly, 22, reached a plea agreement two months ago and is serving a life sentence.

During closing arguments, District Attorney Al Schorre compared the trial evidence to a puzzle a juror brought one day as a result of long discussions by the attorneys and judge outside the presence of the jury.

"Unless you're there when the puzzle's made you're not going to know all the pieces . . . you'd have to stand in that church on Nov. 13, 1991, to know exactly what happened," Schorre told jurors.

"We have enough pieces of that puzzle on the table to figure what it is," Schorre said.

Paul Williams, one of three defense attorneys, disagreed and pointed out physical evidence that linked Kelly to the crime, not Purser.

"Conclusion? Brenda Branch was murdered by Gearld Benjamin Kelly and by no one else," Williams said.

The only piece of physical evidence at the scene that linked Purser was a strand of hair, that closely but not positively matched the defendant's.

Williams said that individuals are not convicted for "evidence literally as thin as a single human hair."

Evidence to support a conviction includes: a taped confession, Purser's knowledge of the crime that only someone involved reportedly would know, the hair, Kelly's plea agreement that names Purser as a co-conspirator, and two statements — one each to a jailer and group of attorneys — made by Kelly that Purser was the lead assailant.

On the other side, evidence that backs an acquittal includes: allegations by Carol Purser, the mother of the defendant, that the confession was coerced; Ms. Purser's claim that she called her son at home during the time of the crime; a statement that Kelly made to an inmate that Purser was not involved; statements made by Purser before the confession that deny or lessen his involvement; and testimony made by Purser to a grand jury that claims he was harassed into the confession.

Purser did not testify at the trial; Kelly refused.

Assistant District Attorney Teresa Clingman had the last word before deliberations began. She called Purser a "brutal violent man" and not the lamb his mother described him as during testimony.

"Ladies and gentleman, this is the only lamb slaughter," she said holding up a picture of the victim.

If the jury reaches a conviction — whether capital murder or the lesser charge of murder — punishment is expected to be assessed by the jury next week.

Capital murder calls for either the death penalty or life in prison. A murder conviction is punishable by five to 99 years or life in prison.

OPD seeks man in robbery

Staff report

Odessa police are searching for a man involved in a felony robbery on April 10.

The man approached a 33-year-old, Kathleen R. Register, at the Moose Lodge at 2711 N. Dixie Blvd., knocked her to the ground, stole her purse and then drove away in her car. The vehicle — bearing Texas license number 184-SXJ — has not been recovered.

The suspect is a white male. A composite drawing has been made of the suspect. Anyone having information concerning the crime or the location of the stolen vehicle should call the Odessa Police Department Crimes Against Persons Section, Det. Cpl. V. Sikes, or Crime Stoppers at 333-TIPS.

Motorcycle rider suffers head injuries when he hits vehicle

Staff report

A 32-year-old man remained in critical condition at Memorial Hospial and Medical Center Friday night after he wrecked his motorcycle on Thursday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Robert Armstrong suffered head injuries after he turned his motorcycle into the path of another vehicle on County Road 118 at 6 p.m. Thursday, according to reports .

Armstrong, who was wearing a helmet, tried to pass a vehicle in front of him — driven by Bobby Fowler — when Fowler attempted to turn left onto County Road 1216. Fowler was not injured.

DEATHS

Jerald Bartley

Services for Jerald H. "Jerry" Bartley, 79, are set for noon today at St. Ann's Catholic Church in Midland. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Cemetery with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Bartley

Bartley, a Midland resident for 56 years, died Thursday at a local hospital.

He was born Nov. 25, 1913, in Springtown. He graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1937. He worked for the Texas University lands and U.S.G.S until 1941. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II and was an Amphibious Forces Ship Commander in the Pacific. He returned to Midland in 1946.

He had been an independent oil geologist in Midland for the past 40 years and was involved in many oil and gas discoveries. He was an active member of several professional and scientific organizations and was the recipient of many distinguished awards. He was active in S.I.P.E.S. (Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientists) and had served on the board of directors and as a diving coach for the YMCA.

He was respected in his profession as being an expert in satellite remote sensing and radiometrics, essential skills in oil and gas exploration.

He was the author of many papers on the Permian Basin and was often published in the A.A.P.G. (American Association of Petroleum Geologists). He was a frequent lecturer on petroleum geology of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico. He was an amateur radio operator and a member of the Midland Exchange Club.

He was a member of the Oblate Associates of Mary Immaculate, and St. Ann's Catholic Church.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Bernice "Lonnie" Bartley, in July 1991.

Survivors include two sons, Steve Bartley of Woodland Park, Colo., and Bruce Bartley of Denver, Colo.; one daughter, Ann Bartley, of Springfield, Ore. and two brothers, Frank Bartley of Levelland and Gene Bartley of Littlefield.

Pallbearers are to be John Sherer, Davis Payne, David Holster, O.H. (Trey) Berry III, Richard Guenther and Barney C. McCasland Jr.

Honorary pallbearers are to be S.I.P.E.S. members and Exchange Club members.

Memorials may be sent to S.I.P.E.S. Foundation or a charity of choice.

Phillip Trowbridge

BROWNWOOD — Services for Phillip Trowbridge, 40, of Brownwood will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Davis-Morris Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Rueben Packer officiating. Burial will follow at Eastlawn Memorial Park with the Davis-Morris Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Trowbridge died Thursday following a brief illness.

He was born April 6, 1953, in Brownwood. He had been a general supervisor for the 3M Co.

He married Nelda Sue Watkins on Nov. 23, 1973, in Brownwood.

He had lived in Brownwood all his life, and he was a Baptist.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Billy Trowbridge and Cody Trowbridge, both of Brownwood; one daughter, Savanna Trowbridge of Brownwood; his parents, R.D. and Louise Trowbridge of Brownwood; one brother, Rocky Trowbridge of Brownwood; two sisters, Debbie Cox of Nolanville and Brenda Cude of Lampasas; and numerous nieces, nephews, cousins, aunts and uncles.

The family requests memorials be directed to the 3M Scholarship Fund.

William Fulton

Graveside services for William J. "Bill" Fulton of Midland will be at 4 p.m. Monday at Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Street Baptist Church officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Fulton died Wednesday at a local hospital.

He was born July 15, 1926, in Midland, where he was reared and educated. Following school, he joined the U.S. Navy and served as a pilot during World War II. He returned to West Texas following the war.

He had worked for Borden Milk Co., Snowhite Cleaners and L&L Chevron.

He was a member of the American Legion, Post 19.

Survivors include three sisters, Edna Seifert of Houston, Mildra Dearen of Sasakwa, Okla., and Frances Towery of Midland; and several nieces and nephews.

Reed Collins

Mass for Dr. Reed Collins of Midland will be recited at 10 a.m. today at St. Ann's Catholic Church with the Rev. Fred Narwaskas officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers are to be Dr. Richard Klempnauer, Ray Fleeman, Bill Chrane, Bob Bell, W.L. "Bill" Bell, Tom Brown and Dave Mrha.

Honorary pallbearers are to be Dr. J.C. Whitaker, Dr. William Hibbitts, Del Austin, Bob Koenig, Carl Koenig, Jim Davis, Jim Ameel, Doug Foster and Cal Lowery.

Ethel Waynick

Services for Mrs. Lloyd (Ethel) Waynick of Midland have been set for 2 p.m. today at Ellis Chapel with Dr. Russell Parchman, pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Juanita Hemness

Services for Juanita Hemness, a former longtime resident of Midland, are pending with Crosier-Pearson Funeral Home in Cleburne.

Hemness

Mrs. Hemness died Thursday in Phoenix, Ariz.

While in Midland, Mrs. Hemness was active in the American Legion.

Survivors include: two daughters, Karen Crouse of Midland and Mary Kaderlik of Phoenix; one sister, Maxine Day of Phoenix; one brother, D.C. Garner of Cleburne; four grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Correction

A report released from Midland Independent School District that indicated a .25 caliber weapon was brought to Burnet by a 9-year-old and confiscated on the playground was incorrect. The weapon was confiscated on the playground of Jane Long Elementary School after school hours.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

ACQUITS: Victim's brother faults judicial system

ily because the judge did not allow so much information," Nicolai said.

"Things that were clearly relevant . . . the fact that he would not talk to police . . . the fact that he would not cooperate . . . the fact that he took the Fifth . . . the fact that he tried to divorce Peggy and gave up custody of the children" were not told to the jury, he said.

"I blame that on our justice system, or the judge for not allowing that," Nicolai said.

The family has several legal issues pending against Railey, including a multimillion-dollar judgment won in a civil suit that concluded the former minister was responsible for the attack. Separation papers were also filed this week on behalf of Mrs. Railey.

"If it's up to me personally, I will continue to make Walker's life hell," said Nicolai, whose parents were not immediately available for comment.

Railey said his first order of business is to visit his two children, Ryan, 11, and Megan, 8. Railey surrendered custody of his children to John and Diane Yarrington of Little Rock, Ark.

Railey and his lead attorney, Doug Mulder, left the courtroom almost immediately after the verdict.

"I expected exoneration all along," Mulder said.

Seated in the courtroom at the time of the verdict were Railey's adopted parents, Knox and Adelene Oakley of Dallas. They attended every session of the four-week old trial.

"God's in his heaven. All is right with the world," Mrs. Oakley said as the verdict was read.

"I don't have anything to say," chief prosecutor Cecil Emerson said as he exited the courtroom through a back hallway. "The jury's decided and that's it."

Dallas County assistant district attorney Norm Kinne said he was angered by the decision.

"The man is an insult," Kinne said, adding that Railey's testimony during the trial was not sincere.

"Words like 'sermonet' pop into my head, words like 'rehearsed' pop into my head, words like a 'professional' pop into my head," Kinne said. "Sincere is not anywhere among them."

State District Judge Pat McDowell of Dallas said, "I think it was well tried on both sides. Proving somebody guilty beyond a reasonable doubt is difficult in any case."

Before the verdict was announced, as speculation grew that the jury might not be able to reach a verdict, Railey said, "If it comes out with a hung jury, I'll always have a black cloud of suspicion hanging over my head.

"I've had no life for six years."

But when the innocent verdict was announced, he said he feels as if he's starting his life anew.

Prosecutors tried to paint Railey as a coldblooded man who wanted to be free to pursue his love affair with his psychologist, Lucy Papillon.

Railey told police he spent the night of the attack researching books at Southern Methodist University and returned home to find his wife in convulsions.

T-Bird's Restaurant schedules benefit celebration

Staff report

A number of local charity organizations are expected to benefit from T-Birds Restaurant's first annual grand opening celebration, today from noon until 6 p.m.

Owner-operator Cherry Curry said events will be held on the three lots surrounding the restaurant, located at the corner of Front and Garfield.

Among the groups to benefit are the Midland High School drama and photojournalism departments, the DARE program, Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Crimewatch, National Rifle Association's Freddy Eagle program, American Red Cross, Casa de Amigos, West Texas AIDS Coalition, Boys and Girls Club of Midland and High Sky Childrens Ranch.

Booths will offer cotton candy, popcorn, pickles, drinks and helium balloons for sale. Autographed photos of 1950s personalities will also be sold and visitors can participate in jitterbug, twist, hula hoop and "How Many People Can You Stuff into a Volkswagen" contests for an entry fee.

There will also be a 1993 Thunderbird exhbition, antique auto show, square dancing exhibition, sand volleyball, an art exhibition and cameo appearances by Miss Tall City and Miss Odessa.

Another fund-raising event is "Dunk-A-Cop."

Live music will be provided by Midnight Stampede.

Ms. Curry said she has provided booths and change boxes to several of the organizations, who will man them and sell food or drink or balloons. "At the end of the day, they return the change box to me and keep 100 percent of the profits," she said. In addition, revenues from the different contests, "Dunk-a-Cop" and autographed pictures will be distributed to the various organizations.

She said she hopes to turn this anniversary celebration into an annual event benefiting local organizations.

Additional sponsors include Rogers Ford, Permian Distributing, Coca Cola, Diamond Developers-/Nochar Products, Kessler & Co., West Texas Welders Supply and Leisure Investments.

Midland, Martin scouts to meet for Camp-O-Ree

Staff report

Boy Scout troops from Midland and Martin counties will meet for competition and fellowship at the Chaparral District Camp-O-Ree from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the Eastman Ranch near Andrews.

"Camp-O-Rees are held periodically for troops to get together and compare their expertise at various scouting skills," said Stephen Castle, Chaparral District chairman and judging official for the event.

"Boy Scout troops are operated in the patrol method . . . the boys are broken up into patrols of about eight boys. Using the patrol method teaches teamwork, leadership and responsibility. Each patrol, rather than the troop, will compete on its own at the Camp-O-Ree."

Activities will include the basics of camping and Scoutcraft: firebuilding, first aid, campsite selection, nature study, knots and orienteering (map and compass). A scoutmaster's Dutch Oven Cobbler Contest (judged by the boys) with a campfire ceremony and awards presentation will close out the event. A chapel service is scheduled for troops staying over Sunday morning.

For additional information on the Boy Scouts, contact the Scout Service Center at 1101 W. Texas Ave., or call 570-7601.

FORCES: Town prepares to surrender

(From 1A)

The resolution approved Friday included no enforcement provisions, and served as little more than a threat.

The council would meet immediately to tighten sanctions on the Serbs sponsors in the Yugoslav republic of Serbia if Srebrenica falls, a Security Council ambassador said on condition of anonymity.

President Clinton said in Washington he was "outraged" over Serb refusal to negotiate peace, and the European Community's peace negotiator, Lord Owen, urged military intervention for the first time.

A senior Pentagon official said military planners were considering launching air strikes against Serbian artillery, but that any operation would have to have the support of Washington's European allies.

"I would not rule out any option except the option that I have never ruled in, which was the question of American ground troops," Clinton said.

Owen said U.N. warplanes should bomb roads and bridges to cut off the Bosnian Serbs' supplies from Yugoslavia.

"If they are hellbent on taking other towns, then we will have to meet this assault on Muslim towns with military action," Owen said.

Srebrenica's loss would be a heavy blow to Bosnian government morale and would put in question the fate of its two other eastern enclaves — Gorazde and Zepa, home to more than 100,000 refugees and residents.

Ham radio reports revealed the depth of desperation in Srebrenica.

"We have no help," according to one unidentified ham radio operator monitored in Tuzla. "The enemy uses all kinds of weapons."

Shelling by Serb artillery killed six people and wounded nine children and six adults Friday, the operator said.

"I would ask you in God's name to do whatever you can," said another ham radio operator, monitored in Sarajevo.

U.N. officials monitoring the situation from Sarajevo said Canadian army vehicles were ferrying those wounded in rocket attacks on Srebrenica to hospitals. They said sporadic shelling continued, with small-arms firefights in the hills around Srebrenica.

Srebrenica officials, in a statement broadcast by Sarajevo radio at midnight Friday, said the town had not surrendered. Ham radio operators in Srebrenica late Friday made no mention of Serb troops entering the town, which has been under siege for almost a year and is home to up to 60,000 residents and refugees.

Even so, officials believed it was only a matter of time before Srebrenica fell.

"Srebrenica is a lost city," said Murat Efendic, a member of Srebrenica's leadership based in Sarajevo, Bosnia's capital.

He pleaded with the United Nations to ensure the safe evacuation of civilians to Tuzla, 40 miles to the northwest.

Many people holed up in basements, but some refugees couldn't find shelter and were forced to stay in the streets, Agence France-Presse news agency reported.

Capturing Srebrenica would give Serbs control of almost the entire eastern part of Bosnia, which seceded from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia in February 1992. Serbs fighting the secession have seized about 70 percent of the country, and more than 134,000 people have been killed or are missing in the year-long war.

The Serbs have snubbed U.N. demands that they make peace with Bosnia's majority Muslims and Croats.

The United States had threatened to demand immediate imposition of new sanctions against Yugoslavia for its support of Bosnian Serbs if Srebrenica fell.

Gill Edwards, a geography teacher from Port Elizabeth in South Africa, discusses her country with Midland High School students Friday afternoon.

SKILLS: Event marks archaeology observance

(From 1A)

The demonstrations, sponsored by the Museum of the Southwest and the Midland Archaeology Society, are being held in observance of Texas Archaeology Awareness Week, which ends today.

The Midland demonstrations are the result of the museum and the local archaeology society's desire to educate, inform and entertain children as well as adults, Ms. Stickney said.

She said artisans giving demonstrations at the museum were recommended by the director of the Museum of New Mexico: weavers Pearl Sunrise, a Navajo, and Lydia Pesata, a Jicarilla Apache, and potter Juan Tafoya from San Ildefonso Pueblo.

"These Indian artisans are practicing the art that was handed down to them through generations of their heritage," Ms. Stickney said.

Pearl Sunrise has been honored by several New Mexico institutions, Ms. Stickney said, "for her artistic abilities" in weaving Navajo rugs.

Mrs. Pesata, who has 30 years experience in basket weaving, will display the crafting of baskets from willow and sumac branches. Mrs. Pesata, who learned the craft from her husband's grandmother, colors basket materials with natural dyes from plant materials. She will illustrate the three-wrap coil method and will show the bowl form and water basket. The water baskets are lined with pinon pitch.

"Lydia is recognized for her work in basketry from the Jicarilla Apache Reservation," Ms. Stickney said.

Tafoya has been involved in pottery making since he was able to gather clay and other materials. He learned to make the red and black San Ildefonso pottery from his mother, Mrs. Donico Tafoya, and has experimented with different ways of firing to achieve a two-tone effect. Also, he has used coral and turquoise in his pottery for another expression in his design of native pottery.

"Juan's been recognized by several of the art institutes in New Mexico as being one of the better potters in New Mexico," Ms. Stickney said.

This year marks the fifth year of the observance of Texas Archaeology Awareness Week.

The week is set aside, Ms. Stickney said, "to inform and educate the citizens of Texas of the importance of observing their historical and pre-historic culture resources.

"In Texas each year the historic and pre-historic sites that are destroyed and vandalized number over 1,000," Ms. Stickney said, pointing out that most of the damage is done through the public's "ignorance of the importance of saving these archaeological sites."

Unemployed restaurant cook wins $8 million jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston woman who was recently laid off from her job as a restaurant cook has become Texas' latest lotto winner and picked up the first installment of her $8 million jackpot.

"It was just unreal," Willie Mae Smith, 36, said as she recounted matching the winning numbers printed in a Houston newspaper against her lotto ticket. "I started crying. I was in shock."

The numbers from Wednesday's drawing were 1, 5, 13, 24, 35 and 36. Ms. Smith, who has purchased about five of the $1 tickets every week since the drawings began in November, said she usually carefully considers which numbers to choose.

"But Wednesday, I said, 'I'm going to pick some crazy numbers,' " she said. Ms. Smith didn't watch the televised lotto drawing Wednesday night but checked the newspaper the next day.

Helicopter crash kills AP correspondent, 14 others in Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Associated Press correspondent Sharon Herbaugh, a former Texas journalist who covered the Afghanistan war for four years, was killed with 14 other people Friday when their helicopter crashed in a mountain ravine in central Afghanistan.

Herbaugh, 39, the AP bureau chief in Pakistan, and her Afghan translator Mohammed Rafi were working on a story about U.N. efforts to clear millions of land mines, an essential part of rebuilding the war-ravaged country.

In addition to Rafi, the dead included another American, Natasha Singh, a freelance journalist from Oakland, Calif., and 12 other Afghans, including provincial officials.

The helicopter went down near a mountain village about 100 miles north of the capital, Kabul. Afghan sources said there had been no fighting in the area, and aid workers speculated the cause of the crash was engine failure.

Herbaugh traveled frequently to Afghanistan to report on the country's struggles. Before being transferred overseas, Herbaugh had worked almost six years in the AP's Houston bureau.

Her final dispatch was called "The Tragedy of Afghanistan," a look at the year of bloodshed since the fall of the Communist regime. It began with a description of children's laughter echoing through the rubble of Kabul.

She won an honorable mention citation from the Associated Press Managing Editors board for her coverage of the withdrawal of Soviet troops in 1989. The Texas Associated Press Managing Editors had honored her in 1985 as Texas AP Staffer of the Year.

"Word of Sharon's death stuns us all," said Louis D. Boccardi, AP president and chief executive officer.

"One of her editors once said, 'She's always looking for the next hurricane.' That search ended today in a field in Afghanistan but she leaves a legacy of brave, insightful work that helped us all understand a distant, bitter conflict."

Herbaugh was the first woman among 15 AP reporters and photographers killed in the line of duty since 1938.

The helicopter crashed outside the village of Pul-e-Khumri, said John Lane, director of the British charity organization whose workers found the wreckage and recovered the bodies.

The Soviet-made helicopter belonged to Syed Jaffar, governor of northern Baghlan province. It "vanished" shortly after takeoff en route to Yaram, about 30 miles away, said Lane, who works for the Hazardous Areas Life-Support Organization, also called the HALO Trust.

Herbaugh, born in Lamar, Colo., started work for the AP in Denver in January 1978 after graduating from Baylor University. She moved to Dallas in April 1979, transferred to Houston in August 1980 and began work on the International Desk in New York in March 1986.

She was posted to New Delhi, India, in August 1988, and promoted to news editor in February 1989. She became chief of bureau in Islamabad in February 1990.

During her Houston assignment, Herbaugh covered the complicated, multi-billion-dollar Texaco-Pennzoil trial and litigation involving the Howard Hughes will.

"She was an aggressive reporter who always had a thirst for more information and a thirst for more of the story," said Charles Hill, chief of bureau in Detroit who supervised Herbaugh as Houston correspondent and later as Texas assistant chief of bureau in Dallas in the early 1980s.

Herbaugh spent time in astronaut training and covered developments at the Johnson Space Center, including the 1986 Challenger disaster.

She also covered several executions when the state resumed capital punishment in 1982 and was a regular among the reporters covering Texas death row.

Herbaugh, who covered the 1988 Winter Olympics in Calgary, was one of the first women reporters to do routine locker room interviews with Houston's professional sports teams, recalled Texas sports editor Denne Freeman. It was a tough assignment because of hostile attitudes some players showed toward women reporters. "She never let it bother her; she never backed off," Freeman said.

Druglord's foes retaliate for bombing

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A group seeking to punish fugitive druglord Pablo Escobar torched three of his aides' ranches in retaliation for the bombing of a Bogota shopping center, police said Friday.

At least 11 people were killed Thursday by the 220-pound truck bomb, and more than 200 were wounded. Some reports placed the death toll as high as 15.

No one claimed responsibility, but President Cesar Gaviria blamed Escobar for the blast, which destroyed about 30 shops, restaurants and banks and led the government to decree longer prison terms for terrorist crimes.

"People Persecuted by Pablo Escobar," an underground paramilitary group known by its Spanish acronym, Pepes, hit back by burning the ranches overnight, police said.

Pepes, believed to be made up of former members of Escobar's Medellin cartel, began attacking the druglord's property and killing his aides in February, seven months after he escaped from his luxury jail outside Medellin.

Their motto has been "to make Escobar feel his own brand of terrorism in his own flesh."

On Friday, the area around the explosion site was cordoned off and a cleanup crew was sweeping and shoveling the debris.

The bombing was the 11th in a major Colombian city this year. In all, 60 people have been killed and more than 600 wounded.

After an emergency meeting with advisers late Thursday, Gaviria raised the mandatory prison term for a fatal terrorist attack from 40 years to 60 years. The term for non-fatal attacks rose from 30 years to 40 years.

Escobar, who declared war on the government in January, faces numerous charges in both Colombia and the United States ranging from drug trafficking to murder and terrorism.

He is believed to have ordered the assassinations of three presidential candidates and the bombing of a Colombian airliner in 1989 in which all 107 people aboard were killed.

A force of 1,600 police and soldiers has been on Escobar's trail since his escape. They have captured and killed many cartel members and forced others into surrendering.

Car bomb kills 2 Palestinians in West Bank

JERUSALEM (NYT) — Two Arabs were killed and eight Israeli soldiers and an Arab were slightly wounded Friday when a car bomb exploded at an Israeli roadside restaurant frequented by servicemen in the occupied West Bank.

The army said the car, which blew up near the settlement of Mehola in the Jordan Valley, had been rigged with explosives and cooking-gas canisters.

A caller to an international news agency said the Qassam military wing of Hamas, an Islamic militant group, had detonated the car. The bombing came as Israel prepared for the resumption of the Middle East peace talks in Washington next week.

Palestinian militants opposed to the talks have carried out attacks just prior to previous rounds of the negotiations.

The car exploded in a parking lot between two buses, one of which had been carrying soldiers. Most of the passengers were off the buses when the blast occurred and set the vehicles on fire.

One of the Arabs killed was identified as Marwan Aghani, 25, a restaurant employee. The second was apparently the driver of the car that blew up. He was not identified. The injured Arab was also a restaurant employee.

Yeltsin gets little political benefit despite billions in new aid

MOSCOW (AP) — Billions in new aid were no help to Boris Yeltsin's referendum campaign Friday, when factory managers jeered him in the Kremlin and his rebellious vice president refused to quit.

The Russian president did not even try to take credit for the announcement in Japan a day earlier that the seven richest industrial nations would give Russia $28.4 billion in aid and the United States would send an additional $1.8 billion.

The Group of Seven countries clearly intended the announcement to help Yeltsin win a nationwide vote of confidence on April 25. But presidential advisers are concerned that the appearance of relying on the West could hurt, rather than help.

Instead of crowing about the aid, Yeltsin was defensive.

"Russia has never rejected a helping hand," he told a hostile audience of nearly 5,000 state factory directors and business leaders in the Kremlin's cavernous Palace of Congresses.

"We, ourselves, are not holding out our palm (for charity). But it would be silly to reject help today," he said.

Many hard-pressed Russians are grateful for donations of food and medicine. Even those who are well off, such as newly rich entrepreneurs, welcome technological assistance and easier terms for trade.

But deep pride, reinforced by decades of Communist boasting about Soviet economic achievements, will make it difficult for Yeltsin to take advantage of the capitalist world's support in the days before the referendum.

The referendum will ask voters whether they have confidence in Yeltsin and approve of his economic policies, as well as whether they want new presidential and parliamentary elections. Yeltsin said this week he would step down if voters did not express confidence in him.

"The aid package was announced on the eve of the referendum. So people's attitude toward the assistance, which is clearly associated with ... reforms that do not yet work, will be reserved," economist Oleg Bogomolov told The Associated Press.

But Yeltsin got a strong vote of support Friday from the presidents of other former Soviet republics at a Commonwealth of Independent States summit meeting in Minsk, the Belarussian capital. They worry that if Yeltsin falls, he could be replaced by hard-line Russian nationalists intent on rebuilding the Soviet empire.

One of the most persistent critics of Yeltsin's economic policy has been Vice President Alexander Rutskoi, a former ally who is considered the strongest potential challenger to Yeltsin if new presidential elections are held.

On Thursday, Yeltsin stripped Rutskoi of authority over agricultural policy and cut back his Kremlin privileges in a clear effort to force his resignation.

Rutskoi fought back Friday in a speech to Russian lawmakers, saying he would not step down and urging a parliamentary investigation of waste, fraud and corruption in the Yeltsin administration.

The Supreme Soviet legislature ordered Rutksoi's 80-minute address to be carried live on national television, instantly pre-empting all scheduled programs. The lawmakers refused to allow a Yeltsin supporter to respond.

U.N. mission fails; Haitian army refuses plan to restore democracy

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A U.N. mission to restore democracy to Haiti ended in failure Friday, with army chiefs rejecting a U.S.-backed plan.

"We proposed a definitive solution of the Haitian crisis. Unfortunately, we did not get a positive answer," U.N. envoy Dante Caputo, an Argentine diplomat, told reporters at the airport at the end of four days of negotiations.

"The situation is complicated, but with will and a cooperative spirit, a solution can be found," he said.

Looking drawn, he then boarded a jetliner to New York.

An army source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the military remained open to a slower-paced, negotiated solution.

The source said Caputo came to Haiti accompanied by American threats to cut air traffic to Haiti and mobilize 5,000 U.N. peacekeepers unless the army high command stepped down and let ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide return within 60 days.

The source said army chiefs did not believe Washington would follow through on the threats or that Aristide would carry out a promised amnesty to leaders of the military coup which overthrew Aristide in September 1991.

Caputo said he would consult with the secretaries-general of the United Nations and the Organization of American States, which have sent more than 100 human rights observers to Haiti as a first step toward bringing back democracy.

The U.N. envoy has also been working closely with U.S. officials. The Clinton administration is eager for a foreign policy success and wants to mute criticism of Bill Clinton's about-face on a campaign pledge to liberalize asylum policies for Haitian refugees.

Clinton offers to trim $4 billion off jobs bill to prevent defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton offered to slash $4 billion from his $16.3 billion jobs bill Friday to get it past a GOP filibuster on Capitol Hill, but he got a quick rebuff from the top Senate Republican.

In a bid to avoid his first major legislative defeat, Clinton said his offer was designed to "achieve a significant portion of our original goals" in the face of united Republican opposition in the Senate.

"I make this recommendation reluctantly and regret the unwillingness of the minority to let the Senate act on the original legislation," he said in a letter to Democratic Senate leaders.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas dismissed the president's proposal as no compromise at all.

"It isn't a compromise when the president absolutely refuses to pay for his new spending programs," Dole said in a statement from Minneapolis.

Sen. Phil Gramm, at a Capitol Hill news conference, reiterated the GOP's position that any new spending should be paid for by cutting the budget elsewhere.

"Republicans are ready to work with the president to fund any part of his new spending bill that he is ready to pay for," said Gramm, R-Texas. "What we ask the president to do is to identify the parts of his bill that are so important that he is willing to cut existing programs that are lower in priority in order to fund these programs."

Clinton later said his long-term deficit-reduction program "more than covers the cost of this modest stimulus to create new jobs." He said the jobs package was designed to "fire not a shotgun but a rifle to try to take advantage of the economic recovery."

Clinton's latest offer would scrap about 25 percent of the money in his original package while reducing its job-creating potential by 18 percent. At the same time, he wedged in an extra $200 million for hiring police officers laid off during the recession, an apparent enticement to law-and-order Republicans.

Left untouched in Clinton's proposed compromise was money for road building, summer jobs for youth, childhood immunizations, AIDS treatment, wastewater treatment construction, hiring meat inspectors, assisting small businesses and unemployment compensation benefits.

Other projects would get 44 percent less than originally proposed, including: community development block grants, student loans, mass transit, summer schools and Head Start.

Clinton's cuts were accepted somewhat reluctantly by liberals among the Democrats on Capitol Hill.

"I accept it only because it's before me," said Rep. Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. "I don't think the White House should reduce its commitment to Americans . . . to try to please a bunch of renegades and support Bob Dole's presidential ambitions."

The Democratic leadership tried to use the offer to step up pressure on the Republicans.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said, "I hope that the Republicans will join us in this effort to provide jobs to American families and invest in our people. It is time to put aside the politics of obstruction and delay and pass a jobs bill for Americans."

Mitchell said he will meet Dole on Monday to resume their attempt to reach a compromise.

The Senate returns from its Easter recess next week and has scheduled a Tuesday vote on shutting off the GOP filibuster. Three previous attempts to end it failed as the chamber's 43 Republicans refused to budge.

Clinton planned to plug his scaled-back jobs bill Saturday in Pennsylvania, the home turf of Republican Sen. Arlen Specter, targeted by the White House as one possible convert. The president was scheduled to promote the jobs bill in an appearance at the Pittsburgh airport, which stands to gain money under the legislation.

Montgomery afternoon paper prints final edition

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The Alabama Journal, which won a 1988 Pulitzer Prize for its series on the state's infant mortality rate, published its final edition Friday.

The afternoon newspaper shut down because of declining readership. It will be incorporated into its sister morning paper, The Montgomery Advertiser, beginning Monday.

"It's like a death in the family," said former Journal copy editor Wanda Bush.

Afternoon publication of the Journal began in 1889. It was bought out by The Montgomery Advertiser in 1941 for $350,000.

The two papers combined and divided their staffs several times, with the final merger taking place in 1991 when The Journal's staff joined The Advertiser's.

The Journal won a Pulitzer five years ago for a series on the number of Alabama babies who died before their first birthday. When the Pulitzer was announced, Managing Editor Jim Tharpe described The Journal as a "scrappy little struggling afternoon newspaper."

Clinton presses Miyazawa for trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton pressed Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa on Friday to help ease a persistent trade imbalance by opening more Japanese markets to specific U.S. products. Clinton said the economic superpowers shouldn't "paper over" their differences.

In the first meeting between the two leaders — coinciding with a U.S. government report of a widening of the U.S.-Japan trade deficit — Clinton and Miyazawa agreed to come up with a joint plan over the next three months that would focus on specific ways to ease the trade imbalance.

But the meeting produced no specific commitments for market share for U.S. products, or new Japanese concessions.

And while Clinton pronounced the $115 billion stimulus package announced earlier this week by Tokyo a "very good first step," Miyazawa indicated his government was not prepared to go further at this time in stimulating domestic demand. Japan is in its worst recession in two decades.

Clinton called on Miyazawa to further open its markets to American autos, supercomputers, electronics and agricultural products.

"I'm concerned not only about how much we sell, but about what we sell," Clinton said. "Our companies that manufacture high-quality, high-wage goods are among the most competitive in the world ... Japan's markets must be more open."

A senior administration official said later that Clinton did not specifically request particular targets for particular products, knowing that they would be unacceptable to the Japanese leader.

However, Clinton did insist that ways be found to measure Japanese movement in opening its markets, the official said.

The U.S. side conceded that the Japanese flatly rejected suggestions that any goals or targets be set in specific industries, suggesting that this was a form of "managed trade."

Still, U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor said after the session that the fact that Miyazawa agreed to discuss specific industries when looking at ways to ease the trade imbalance was encouraging.

Miyazawa, in a joint news conference with Clinton after their three-hour session, said that Japan would try to increase access for American goods but that "this cannot be realized under managed trade nor under the threat of unilateralism."

"Let's not paper this over," Clinton said brusquely at the news conference. "There are still differences between the prime minister and me about what we should do."

"The simple fact is that it is harder to sell in Japan's market than in ours," the president added. "America is accepting the challenge of change, and so too must Japan."

For years, the United States has looked to Japan as its front line strategic partner in the Pacific for containing Soviet aggression. But, with the breakup of the Soviet empire, "the Cold War partnership between our two countries is outdated," Clinton said.

Miyazawa said he and Clinton had opened a personal relationship of mutual trust.

Speaking in English, Miyazawa said, "I am convinced that our new partnership can respond to the needs of a new era."

Clinton got off to a somewhat rocky start in his relations with Japan, when he made an offhand comment to Russian President Boris Yeltsin at their summit this month in Vancouver that Japanese negotiators say yes when they mean no.

Some Japanese were offended by the remark, but Miyazawa shrugged it off at an Oval Office photo session when Clinton was asked by a Japanese reporter to defend his comment.

Court upholds sentence for would-be rapist

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Supreme Court upheld a 25-year prison sentence for a would-be rapist whose victim grabbed his groin and wouldn't let go.

The court rejected 29-year-old Dwight Coverson's grounds for appeal, which focused on challenges to certain jurors and whether the jury should have heard his confession.

The court's opinion Thursday included some of the woman's graphic testimony during the trial three years ago.

She said she was in bed the night of Feb. 3, 1990, when she heard someone walk into the room. The intruder sat on top of her, threatening and cursing as she begged him not to harm her.

Then he took off his clothes and demanded oral sex. The woman, who is in her 50s, said she realized he wasn't armed, grabbed his penis, twisted and yanked — and held on with one hand. She then grabbed his testicles with the other hand as he hit her and bit her.

"He said, 'Please, please, you're killing me.' ... I said, 'Die, then,'" she testified. "He said, 'Woman, you got me suffering.' I said, 'Have you thought about how you were going to leave me suffering?'"

He tried to get her to call police, but she refused and, still holding on, got him to her porch, where he fell down. That gave her time to go back into the house and get a pistol. She fired two shots as he ran away, but she missed.

Sheriff's deputies found Coverson's name written inside a pair of pants he left in the woman's bedroom. They found Coverson at home, in bed, in severe pain.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your career goals must take precedence over everything except family life. Keeping your business commitments will help you develop an excellent reputation. Although you dislike sticking to a daily routine, it may be necessary from early summer to late fall. Your leadership potential receives new attention as winter approaches. Avoid being too blunt in business negotiations or you could lose a potential advantage. Early in 1994, be firm with those who oppose your efforts.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: quarterback Boomer Esiason, dancer Anna Marie Holmes, actress Olivia Hussey, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Far-reaching plans concerning family life or travel appear promising. Be willing to do plenty of talking and legwork to achieve full success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A flash of inspiration could lead you to take a project out of mothballs and become much richer for it. Your enthusiasm will captivate someone influential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Magical moments lie ahead for those with children or grandchildren. Make this a great day by skipping the local scene and heading out for new places. A change of environment is overdue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A great day for expanding your horizons. You may find a kindred soul who will challenge your alert mind. However, avoid talking politics with people who like to argue.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home entertainment offers unusual benefits now, and you are in the right mood to appreciate it. Someone from your past reappears. Playing Cupid can be fun if you are not too obvious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A financial project launched now will move ahead rapidly. Make sure any technical details have been taken care of. Socializing this evening could put you in touch with a delightful newcomer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concentrate on household tasks and creative projects already under way. Any in business for themselves should have plenty of options now. A limited partnership is one possibility.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A grand day for starting a special project. Put work before pleasure and do not attempt to mix the two. Romance flourishes in an atmosphere of trust.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Focus on setting new goals. Great strides can be made where your finances are concerned. Tend to loved one's needs without neglecting your own. Renew old acquaintances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find new interests and your perspective will change. You feel a powerful urge to make a fresh start. New alliances are favored. Appraise longtime connections and assess their current worth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are radiant and convincing, able to win over both VIPs and your peers. A secret agreement or vote of confidence gives you cause for celebration.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money-making ideas deserve top priority now. Refuse to listen to someone who is always pessimistic. A younger person wants to climb on your bandwagon.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are both gifted and tenacious! Their zest for life draws people like a magnet. However, their need for constant change sometimes makes it difficult for these Aries to form lasting relationships. An excellent, well-rounded education will help them find their niche in the world of science or law.

Chelsea Clinton attends ballet convention in Abilene

ABILENE — Chelsea Clinton attended classes Friday at a dance convention, but was not expected to perform in public, organizers said.

The daughter of President Clinton was with her friends from Ballet Arkansas from Little Rock, said organizer Susan King.

The Southwestern Regional Ballet Association Festival began Wednesday and runs through Sunday.

About 600 participants, ages 12 and up, are learning about jazz, ballet and modern dance at the convention. It drew dancers and other enthusiasts from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico.

"You can either perform and/or take class. She's (Chelsea) just taking class," said Ms. King. "We're sort of not really bugging her."

Ms. King was not informed of Chelsea's schedule, but believed the teen-ager planned to attend sessions through the weekend.

The president and Mrs. Clinton are not expected to attend.

LISBON, Portugal — Jeremy Irons says he's mesmerized by the beauty of the landscape near a proposed site of a toxic waste incinerator along the country's Atlantic Coast.

Irons

"Do everything in your power to keep the area unspoiled," Irons said Friday at a news conference organized by opponents of the incinerator.

The government wants to build the incinerator on the outskirts of Sines, a port town about 100 miles south of Lisbon. Residents fear toxic smoke will contaminate the region, home to fishing and diary industries.

"The globe is very finite and I spend a lot of time raising my children," Irons said. "I want the place where they're going to live to be bearable."

Irons is in Portugal filming "The House of Spirits." His co-stars, Meryl Streep, Vanessa Redgrave and Glenn Close, signed a petition protesting the incinerator.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Writer George Plimpton knows a thing or two about fireworks, so he signed on as a judge for a holiday competition in this resort city.

Plimpton's book "Fireworks: A History and Celebration" came out in 1984. He was an Army demolitions expert in World War II, clearing German mines off the beaches of Italy. And he helped organize the huge fireworks display in New York City for the 1976 bicentennial.

"Since I've written a book about it and am pretty much known for it — I'm the fireworks commissioner for the city of New York — it seems appropriate to have someone of this extraordinary stature come here," he said Thursday.

Plimpton will be one of five judges for the three-day contest beginning May 28. The competition will feature six fireworks companies from the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Matlin

BOSTON — Marlee Matlin will deliver the commencement address at Emerson College in sign language.

The deaf actress won an Academy Award for "Children of a Lesser God" and stars in the television series "Reasonable Doubts."

Jerry Lewis and James St. Clair, former special counsel to President Nixon and chairman of a commission that investigated Boston police, will receive honorary degrees at the commencement May 17, the school said Thursday.

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, Mich. — James Earl Jones is lending his famous voice to a video promoting a town near his childhood home.

Jones narrates an eight-minute video for Muskegon Heights.

"It's an image piece. A best foot forward," said city planning director Peter Sartorius.

The actor went to elementary school in the community of Dublin.

The video was funded by the city and several local corporations to be shown to groups interested in business and residential opportunities.

ROTHERAM, England — Singer-turned-actor Adam Faith was banned Friday from driving for 21 days and fined $1,200 for speeding.

Faith, 52, pleaded guilty to driving 110 mph — 50 mph over the speed limit — on a highway linking London with the north.

He was driving a sports car used in his British television series "Love Hurts" after making an appearance recently in Sheffield in north England.

"The court had no choice but to ban me," said Faith, who was charged under his real name, Terrance Nelhams-Wright.

"I went too fast and got caught. It is not a happy outcome and it will make me think twice in future," he told reporters outside the court.

Ohio inmates make televised demand

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Inmates barricaded inside a maximum-security prison released one of six hostages Friday after going on television live and demanding amnesty and religious rights for Muslims prisoners.

An inmate who identified himself as Abdul spoke for 10 minutes on WBNS-TV while seated at a wooden table with the hostage and two negotiators let into a prison courtyard.

After the inmate's statement and after hostage guard James A. Demons made a brief statement, Abdul walked toward a barricaded cellblock while Demons and the negotiators walked to freedom.

Demons, 26, a guard at the prison since 1990, was taken away by ambulance to a hospital, where he was listed as stable. Details on his health weren't immediately available.

Inmates had promised to release a hostage if given a chance to outline their demands on television. They still held five guards hostage in the siege that began with rioting on Sunday at Southern Ohio Correctional Facility.

Seven inmates and one guard have died in the rebellion.

Lyn Tolan, executive director of WBNS in Columbus, said the station made the broadcast available to major TV networks and several radio networks.

"We have been oppressed here at SOCF and threatened by Warden Arthur Tate with abusive force to take tuberculosis testing by injection which is forbidden" by Black Muslims, said Abdul. He gave his last name, but it couldn't be clearly heard.

The inmate asked that there "not be any imposition or any form of repercussions or reprisals against any inmate as a result of this current situation that you refer to as a riot."

Demons said in his statement before the camera that Muslim prisoners didn't kill seven inmates who have died since the siege began.

"Those boys was killed because they was snitches," Demons said.

Prison spokeswoman Sharron Kornegay wouldn't answer reporters' questions immediately after the broadcast.

The television appearance came a day after inmates were allowed to outline their demands in a 15-minute radio broadcast.

"We either negotiate this to our liking or they will kill us. We are prepared to die," an inmate who identified himself only as George said on that broadcast.

Abdul asked that prisoners be allowed to wear prayer caps, be given kosher meals and "would like to have our Islamic dress acknowledged."

The two negotiators said only that they would consider the requests.

Gay activists visit Clinton in Oval Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gay and lesbian activists who met with President Clinton in the Oval Office on Friday described him as friendly, supportive and firm in his commitment to fight discrimination.

They said he was behind them in their struggles, even if he doesn't attend next week's gay rights march, and expressed confidence he will be able to get the ban on gays in the military overturned.

"This meeting symbolized the entry of lesbian and gay people into the mainstream of American life, and it is the president of the United States who, through his moral leadership, permitted that to happen," said Tom Stoddard, executive director of the Campaign For Military Service, an ad-hoc group working to overturn the ban on gays in the military.

The meeting, which lasted about an hour, covered a wide range of issues, including gays in the military, proposed civil rights legislation to prevent discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, and AIDS.

Participants said the president said he still planned to issue an executive order on the ban on gays in the military by July 15. He also seemed generally supportive of the civil rights legislation, although he said he had not seen the specifics.

The gay advocates appeared willing to let Clinton off the hook about his plans to be in Boston next Sunday, when thousands are expected to march in a gay rights demonstration in Washington.

Clinton is scheduled to attend a Senate Democratic retreat in Virginia that weekend, and then deliver a speech to a meeting of the Newspaper Association of America in Boston on Sunday.

The activists said Clinton seemed interested in participating in the march in some way, possibly by a live hook-up from another location or by videotape. There was no indication from the White House that he would do that, however.

Earlier Friday, Clinton said that his decision to be out of town on the day of the march should not be viewed as a snub to the gay community.

"I mean no snub. But presidents usually don't participate in marches," he said at a news conference with Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa. He said his decision not to participate "has nothing to do with my commitment on the fundamental issue of being anti-discrimination."

The White House also denied rumors that both the meeting with Senate Democrats and the Boston speech had been set up to avoid the gay rights march.

The three-day convention actually is scheduled to get under way Monday morning, but Clinton's speech will be added as an unscheduled early event. The publishers in their invitation had asked him to speak on one of the regularly scheduled days, but "apparently his schedule precluded him from speaking on any other day but Sunday," said Palmedo.

Clinton, meanwhile, defended his record on gay rights.

"I have — I believe it's clear — taken a stronger position against discrimination than any of my predecessors," he said.

Business holds benefit sale for Desert Storm vet

By Terri Langford
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Bargain hunters this weekend are getting a chance to pick up some choice items and help a Desert Storm veteran literally pick up the pieces of a shattered life.

Antique Centers of Texas, a Houston-based firm, is selling items donated by former President Bush, Texas Rangers players Nolan Ryan and Jose Canseco and entertainers George Strait and Willie Nelson to help raise money for Navy Reserve Capt. John Engstrom and his family.

A bank seized Engstrom's $240,000 worth of farm equipment and sold it during the 3½ months he was serving his country at war.

"It's pretty unbelievable," said Engstrom, who is unemployed and lives with his family in a rented Austin home. "We feel like we've taken a couple of hits over the years. We feel like this is a chance to get us back on our feet."

The situation forced his wife, Lyndia, into a hospital with a nervous breakdown and cost the family their home, the rice farm and life savings.

Judy McCoy, an Antique Centers spokeswoman said when the firm learned of the Engstrom's plight from a Houston Chronicle story, the company felt it ought to pitch in for the "American patriot."

"They just wanted to help," she said.

Among the items for sale Saturday: a 1953 signed edition of James Michener's book "Sayonara," an inaugural edition of "The American Presidents," signed by George Bush, baseballs signed by Ryan and Canseco, several vintage cars and items autographed by Nelson, Strait and Clint Black and vacation packages.

"We just can't believe they've put this together," Engstrom said. "We're just thrilled to death. It's a real psychological boost."

Before Engstrom left for the Persian Gulf, he visited with First National Bank in Eagle Lake to tell them a family friend had agreed to sell some of the equipment, a piece at a time to make at least partial payments until his return, even though he didn't have to do so under a 1940 law.

According to pre-trial documents filed by the bank, First National places the blame on the family friend who brought the equipment to the auction. Engstrom counters that it does not make sense that a lender would allow materials it partially owns to be sold without its approval.

Engstrom said his payments to the bank were up to date and he thought the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act of 1940 — which bars creditors from imposing liens or foreclosure on active duty personnel — protected him from having to make payments during his stint in Desert Storm.

Then one day in mid-January 1991, Engstrom's wife returned home to find all of their equipment — combines, plows, tractors and grain planters — was gone.

"I think it was much harder on my family than me," Engstrom said. "They had to fight this war without any weapons."

Mrs. Engstrom later learned the bank sold the equipment at a bank auction for $80,000, a third of its assessed worth.

Without the farm equipment, there was no farm. And without the farm, the family's livelihood was gone. In July 1991, the Engstroms filed a multi-million dollar lawsuit against the bank. A court date has not been set in the case.

Despite the experience, Engstrom says he would gladly serve again. He remains a reserve officer.

"I'm very pleased and proud to be serving," said Engstrom, who will be attending the sale with his wife.

Agent pokes fun at leader's latest pledge

WACO (AP) — Federal officials, openly voicing disdain for doomsday cult leader David Koresh, Friday called the self-proclaimed messiah a liar and egomaniac whose behavior is like that of a cartoon character.

On the 48th day of Koresh's standoff with lawmen, FBI spokesman Bob Ricks used his daily news briefing to poke fun at the cult leader's fourth and latest pledge to give himself up, this time after writing a religious manuscript.

Ricks cited a litany of Koresh's broken surrender promises.

"It's like that 'Peanuts' cartoon — is Lucy going to pull that football out one more time?" Ricks asked.

"Is this just another lame excuse put out by Mr. Koresh to stall the proceedings? Based on his past track record, you would have to assume that's probably the case."

The FBI official said Koresh broke three promises to end the standoff that began Feb. 28, when heavily armed Branch Davidian cult members battled with Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents. Four agents died and 16 were wounded. Koresh claims six cult members also were killed.

Ricks said Koresh promised to surrender March 2, after a 58-minute radio broadcast of his beliefs. He promised on March 19 to give up as early as the next day or within a month. His lawyer reported March 31 — "in no uncertain terms" — that the standoff would end after the Passover holiday, Ricks said.

"After batting 0 for 3 — so far he's batting zero — maybe Mr. Koresh will finally tell the truth," Ricks said.

Negotiators talked with Koresh and his right-hand man, Steve Schneider, for several hours on Thursday and were told Koresh had finished 28 to 30 handwritten pages on the first of the biblical Seven Seals of Revelation, signs said to precede the end of the world.

Ricks said Koresh, a ninth-grade dropout, "does not write very well." Schneider still must edit Koresh's writings, and the work could drag on.

"I figure four to five months, tops," the agent quipped.

With Koresh and 95 followers remaining in their compound for nearly seven weeks, news coverage of the siege has waned.

Ricks said the lack of attention may upset Koresh, who is believed to monitor broadcasts of the FBI news briefings and asked negotiators for national magazines mentioning him.

"He is concerned that he is being made a spectacle of," Ricks said.

"His message is not getting out. If there is any reflection done by the American public, they (cult members) are viewed as oddballs — people who are on a mission without a cause in some ways," he said.

Ricks also said Koresh appears to care little for his followers.

"His ego is so large. If you look at the letters (Koresh has written), in none of those letters does he make mention of anyone else inside that compound. He's the only person that exists in his world," the agent said.

Ricks again declined to discuss possible actions authorities could take to force an end to the standoff. He said Koresh makes fun of questions about the cult's food supplies, and officials don't think the 17 children with Koresh are suffering.

But throughout Friday's half-hour briefing with reporters, the FBI agent's sometimes sarcastic remarks clearly were aimed at the cult leader.

"I want to send a signal to Mr. Koresh," Ricks said. "We do not necessarily fall for what you've done."

Senator files voucher bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Disadvantaged students could get public education money to attend private schools under a pilot program proposed by the chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

The measure by Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, is part of a package that he said would help improve education in public schools.

The other measures are meant to increase public school accountability while providing regulatory relief, including class-size requirements in the lower grades.

"Taken as a whole, these three bills provide a comprehensive approach to improving the quality of public education in Texas," Ratliff said. "They will allow parents to make informed choices about where to send their children to school, and they will require public schools to account for the quality of education provided at their campuses."

His pilot Public Education Scholarship Program would include at least 60 school districts, of the 1,048 in the state.

The program would allow "educationally disadvantaged" children — defined as those eligible to participate in the federal free and reduced-price lunch program — to attend private schools that accept the public education funds.

Private schools that choose to participate in the program would be required to report attendance to the state, and administer and publish results of state-mandated tests. They also could not refuse to admit students based on residence, race, national origin, ethnic background, physical or mental disability or academic achievement.

The private school would get 90 percent of local and state funds that would be spent on the student's education in public school. The school could not charge additional tuition to that student.

Education Committee staff said the standardized test requirement would help show whether school vouchers would, as supporters maintain, result in a system that better educates students. Backers say such a system would allow parents to choose the school best-suited to their child, and promote competition among public schools.

But the Texas Association of School Boards generally opposes school vouchers. Spokeswoman Nancy Cotton said public money should be used to improve public schools, especially when they are facing a tight state budget and growing enrollment.

"By taking the money and putting it into private schools, you're taking it away from institutions that need it and are trying to meet the needs of all kids," Ms. Cotton said.

Official denies abuse reports

HOUSTON (AP) — State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison on Friday denied published reports that she physically and verbally abused a former aide, required her to perform personal chores on state time and later thanked her for not going public.

Sharon Ammann, daughter of former Gov. John Connally, made the accusations in a copyright story published Friday in The Houston Post. Ms. Ammann worked for Mrs. Hutchison until October 1991, when she quit.

"I think it is very sad she would come forward and talk about something she thinks happened two years ago two weeks before the election," Mrs. Hutchison said Friday.

Mrs. Hutchison is among 24 people running in the May 1 special election to choose a successor to U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who is now treasury secretary.

Ms. Ammann has done some work for one of Mrs. Hutchison's opponents, U.S. Rep. Jack Fields, and Mrs. Hutchison called the timing of the comments a sad and desperate political move meant to bolster Fields' chances.

Ms. Ammann, 43, denied her comments were motivated by the upcoming election.

"I have absolutely nothing to gain by doing this," she told The Post. "There is no reason to make this up."

Ms. Ammann said Mrs. Hutchison struck her repeatedly with a binder in mid-1991 in anger because she was delayed looking up a phone number.

"I'm standing at the file cabinet and she is beating me with every single word that she says," Ms. Ammann said, saying she was hit eight to 10 times on the left shoulder.

"She hit me hard with every single word that she said," Ms. Ammann said. "Kay then turned around, walked back and slammed her door. I was horrified. I was humiliated. I was just stunned."

Faith, science compete to offer truths

By David Briggs
Associated Press Writer

Science and faith — each has its own ideas about creation, an eventual apocalypse and everything in between.

From medical ethics to the environment, society depends on the tension between science and faith, between what is possible and what is morally acceptable, to develop ethical limits on modern technology.

But in the past 400 years, even if the strife is not o'er, the battle has been won in the duel of competing worldviews by science, according to Bryan Appleyard, author of a new book which argues that scientific claims have taken on the status of absolute truth in the modern world.

In "Understanding the Present: Science and the Soul of Modern Man," a provocative best seller in England that was recently published in the United States by Doubleday, Appleyard warns that science has not only taken over the world, it has become "our faith and our age's unique signature.

"My conviction is equally simple: We must resist and now is the time to do so," Appleyard says.

The book by the secular British journalist comes out against a backdrop of some signs of a growing cooperation among the realms of faith and science.

Centers for the study of science and religion were established at prominent universities in the 1980s. An Ecumenical Roundtable for Science and Technology has been meeting yearly in the United States, and professional societies such as the American Psychiatric Association no longer dismiss religious beliefs as signs of emotional immaturity.

And though it was three-and-a-half centuries too late for Galileo, the Vatican last year proclaimed that the Roman Catholic Church erred in condemning the astronomer for holding that the Earth was not the center of the universe.

Kurt Richardson, assistant professor of Christian theology at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C., sees parallels between biblically based religion and science in that both believe human problems can be solved and both exhibit altruistic desires to improve the quality of life.

He rejects what he calls "a monster in the machine" view of technology in favor of increased cooperation to address the problems such as pollution and new dilemmas in medical ethics that come with the benefits of modern technology.

"It is time to improve the dialogue between theologians and scientists," he said. "We have presumed that there is hostility between science and religion, and it is a self-fulfilling prophecy."

The British science magazine Nature weighed in with a review calling "Understanding the Present" a "dangerous book."

But Appleyard said in a recent interview that science has become corrupted by its own success, and society is placed in danger when it elevates science above the realm of critical debate.

For example, he asks, can science alone be expected to solve environmental problems when it expresses no remorse over the pollution created by new technology in the first place.

In the field of medicine, Appleyard says, as society tries to control medical costs and provide care for all citizens, science is producing more and more expensive technology to serve fewer and fewer people.

In more difficult ethical areas, according to Appleyard, advances that make it possible to take tissue from living human beings to give to others raise ominous possibilities if unchecked by ethical safeguards.

"If we can experiment on handicapped children, we can save these people's lives" is the thinking advanced by some in the field, Appleyard said. "There has to be some balance the other way."

He calls on religious leaders and others to bring moral values into debates over how new technology should be applied in society.

There are some signs of vulnerability in the image of science as an all-powerful force, he says.

It may be, he says, that the great disease of our age for which technology has no answers — AIDS — may finally halt the ascent of science.

Appleyard recalled how he and some of his friends — many of whom were not observant — gravitated naturally toward an Anglican church to remember a friend who died of the disease.

"The only language somebody had for that service was religious," he said.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Conference planned

ODESSA — A state-wide, non-denominational Criminal Justice Ministry Conference will be held at Belmont Baptist Church, 806 N. Belmont St., April 23-24.

Conferences to be held will include those involved in the jail-/court ministry, voluntary chaplaincy, after-care ministry, family ministry, literacy missions ministry, MasterLife ministry, mentor ministry and juvenile ministry. Each will be led by a leader in that particular field.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. Friday and will conclude with lunch April 24. There is a $15 registration fee which includes meals and materials for all participants. Those wishing to register may do so by calling 1-332-0248.

The conference, sponsored by the Midland-Odessa-Pecos Valley Baptist Area, is designed to provide an opportunity for churches and individuals to become aware of the various areas of ministry opportunities that are available in the state, federal and country jail systems.

■ Church plans forum

The Unitarian Universalist Church will have a forum presented by Vena LeFevre entitled "Native American Influence on Anglo American Culture" at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

Ms. LeFevre is among the last members of the Lipan Apache, who were from the area south of Junction. Her father was a boxer in the early days and lived in Big Spring, where he was known as the Apache Kid. Ms. Lefevre will present her first-hand view of Native American life cycle, family structure, tribal organization, religion and ceremonies. She also will tell a few Indian stories.

Ms. LeFevre is a single parent of four. She served in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Navy during the Korean War and has worked at the Medical Center Hospital Radiology Department, Odessa.

She works for the Permian Basin Regional Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse and is responsible for assisting volunteers in forming new chapters of Drug Free Youth in Texas in nine counties.

The public is invited to attend. Sunday School is held during the forum followed by services at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Clare Petersburger. For more information call Bruce McPherson, 570-8118.

■ Church to host meeting

The North A & Tennessee Church of Christ will host a gospel meeting with Hardeman Nichols Sunday through Wednesday.

Clinton Davis will be the guest

Jerusalem gets new Biblical Zoo

By Arieh O'Sullivan
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — In an ordinary zoo, the hippopotamus is, well, a hippopotamus. At the Jerusalem Biblical Zoo, it's the "behemoth" that "eateth grass as an ox."

The citation, from Job 40:15, appears on the plaque at the hippo pond along with conventional zoological data, as befits a zoo whose emphasis is on animals mentioned in the Bible.

Jerusalem has just moved its latter-day Noah's Ark in a six-month piecemeal journey from cramped quarters among apartment blocks in the northern part of the city to a valley on the southern outskirts.

The new zoo cost $18 million and is four times larger, with spacious aviaries and 62 acres of natural habitats separated by moats, waterfalls and ponds filled with swans and flamingos. The keepers claim it equals the world's most modern zoos.

For the animals, it was like leaving a one-room apartment for a villa, said Gabi Eshkar, a zoo veterinarian: "Here, they all have space and grass and trees and they run around. It's a totally different world for them ... and for the visitors."

Not all the zoo's animals must be biblical, and only about one-tenth of them are. Some of the species, such as kangaroos, might have startled the biblical prophets.

But priority goes to animals that might have been natives of the Holy Land, Eshkar said. Thus there is an Asiatic lion, which "hath roared, who will not fear?" (Amos 3:8), rather than an African one, and a Syrian brown bear, probably like the one from which God saved King David (1st Samuel 17:37).

Moving was hard on some of the animals. Eshkar said the cheetahs went into temporary shock. The ibexes jumped the fence and have not been seen since.

Some glass aviary walls had to be whitewashed because birds kept crashing into them. Gardeners spent three years cultivating savanna grass, perhaps for the behemoth to eat as an ox, only to see it trampled by the lions.

Still, most of the animals have adapted to the new freedom. A month before the formal opening in April, a mother chimpanzee playfully wrestled with two babies while a male examined the climbing trees: a big improvement on the cement-floored, iron-barred cubicle the apes left behind.

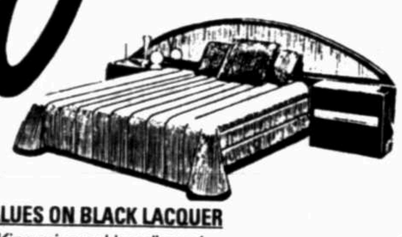

Matti, the three-ton hippo, now has enough space to entertain a mate. Tammy was wallowing happily at his side.

Boaz and Ruth, exquisite black panthers named for the biblical lovers of the Book of Ruth, paced their enclosure, growling at the occasional passer-by.

And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing ye shall receive.
Mathew 21:22

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart: and lean not unto thine own understanding.
Proverbs 3:5

Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.
Ephesians 5:20

For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.
II Timothy 1:7

A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance; but sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken.

Church should make buildings accessible

IRVING (AP) — Even if they are legally exempt, churches are morally responsible to make their buildings accessible to people with disabilities, a theology student told a United Methodist group.

"If my physical body cannot gain access to programs and people, then there is scarce chance that I will not feel that I, as a human person, have also been rejected," Helen R. Betenbaugh told the United Methodist Association of Physically Challenged Ministers.

Betenbaugh, who uses a wheelchair, is a student at Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, according to the United Methodist News Service.

WHO ARE THESE UNITARIANS?

They are people who think about their beliefs and then live those beliefs.

If you thought you had "to think alone and like it" you may find a happy church home within the Unitarian Universalist fellowship, in intellectual company with Emerson, Jefferson, Thoreau, Robert Goddard, Susan B. Anthony, and other Unitarian Thinkers, past and present.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

(From 1B)

speaker song leader. The theme selected for this series of lessons is "Following in the Steps of Jesus."

Hardeman is a former Midlander. He served the North A & Tennessee Church as pulpit minister from 1957 to 1964.

He is involved in full-time evangelism under the supervision of the Pleasant Grove Church of Christ, Dallas. He is a frequent speaker on college lectureships and has conducted gospel meeting in 45 states and several foreign countries.

Davis also is a former Midlander. He served the North A congregation as an associate minister from 1965-81. In addition to other current projects, he serves as an instructor at the Texas Singing School conducted each sumemr at Abilene.

The meeting will begin with a "Friend Day" Sunday during the 9:30 a.m. classes and 10:30 a.m. worship. A catered lunch will follow. Then, at 5 p.m. a special singing will be held followed by a 6 p.m. worship assembly. Sessions will begin Monday through Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

■ Women to have guest

Cathy Roberson, program coordinator for Citywide Community Services, will speak to the United Methodist Women of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., Tuesday.

The program, coordinated by Patricia Jeffcoat, will showcase the services to local indigent elderly and handicapped persons provided by this community agency.

Citywide Community Services provides ongoing cleaning services and yard work to elderly and handicapped persons unable to do this physical work. Citywide's chore-workers also provide radical deep-cleaning in homes where the health and well-being of the client are endangered.

The general meeting will begin at 9:45 a.m. in the library with refreshments and fellowship. Joy Circle will be hostess. At the close of the program, Dawn Circle will lead the group in worship.

The meeting is open to the public. A nursery will be provided.

■ Minister to speak

Dr. Don Whitaker of Longview is scheduled to speak in the Midland-Odessa area this month.

His schedule includes:

—11 a.m., Friday, Prime Time Praise "Live," KMLM-TV Channel 42;

—10 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 24, nutrition seminar at Holiday Inn Country Villa, 4300 W. Highway 80, Midland;

—6:30 p.m. April 25, Life Unlimited Christian Center, 4224 E. Loop 338, Odessa.

Since a conversion experience in 1975, Whitaker has been active in Christian ministry including a weekly program on the Trinity Broadcasting Network. He is the founder and director of Born Free Evangelistic Association.

Whitaker has taught microbiology at Texas Christian University and was a health physicist in the Nuclear Physics Department of General Dynamics, Fort Worth.

He also has a clinic in Longview and Placentia, Calif., and practices in Dallas.

An author, he recently revised a nutrition book he published in 1983 titled "The Divine Connection."

■ Workshop scheduled

The Sanctuary Choir of Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church, 303 E. Shandon, is sponsoring a Music Workshop today.

The workshop will culminate in a 2:30 p.m. musical presentation Sunday at the church. The workshop runs from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Lunch will be served from noon to 1 p.m.

Church directors and choirs are invited to participate. Donnell Hill of New Hope Baptist Church, Amarillo, will be the conductor.

Registration is $5 per participant.

■ Church plans revival

The Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis St., will hold a Spring Revival at 7 p.m. Sunday through Friday.

Elder Dan Schiffbauer, the church's new pastor, will be the featured speaker. He will speak on the relevance of the three angels' message of Revelation 14:6-12 to current times.

The revival will include congregational singing and special music each night.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call 684-4105 or 694-2746.

■ Church to celebrate

Kelview Heights Baptist Church celebrates the 32nd anniversary of the Rev. Frank Johnson's ministry to the church during the 9 and 11 a.m. services April 25.

Johnson has led the congregation through several building projects as well as through numerical church growth. The church building has changed from one room in 1961 to nearly a full block of buildings, housing Sunday schools, a gymnasium and a 5,000 square foot nursery.

Services April 25 will feature music by several of Kelview's singing groups as well as the large adult choir. Johnson will deliver an anniversary message.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Team plans Ultreya

ODESSA — A team from the Midland-Odessa Region, under the direction of the Diocesan Secretariat will be presenting a Regional Ultreya at St. Joseph's Hall here from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The Ultreya will consist of prayers, spiritual talks, Ultreya group sharing, hymns and motivational talks. The public is invited to attend especially all Cursillistas are invited to renew their commitment.

■ Church hosts lessons

The Westside Church of Christ, 4410 W. Illinois Ave., will host a series of lessons on "God's Plans for the '90s" beginning Sunday.

Special speaker will be Gary Montgomery.

Montgomery will speak at 9 and 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

An attended nursery will be provided for children ages 0-4. For more information and lesson topics call the church office, 694-3614.

■ Seminar scheduled

"Building Strong Ties With Small Children" is the topic of a four-week seminar to be presented by the Golf Course Road Church of Christ each Wednesday in May at 7 p.m. in the chapel.

Sue Conder, a counselor for the Midland Independent School District, will be the presenter. This series will provide Biblical guidelines and practical ideas for building strong relationships between parents and small children to build self-esteem and create an atmosphere for effective discipline.

Those with small children are invited to attend. Classes for children are to be held concurrently.

■ Youth Sunday planned

Trinity Presbyterian Church's Youth Sunday is planned for Sunday.

Services will be held at 8:15 and 10:55 a.m. This annual event incorporates the enthusiasm of junior and senior high students into a worship service.

The youth are in charge of everything that goes into the two worship services. This year's theme is "Lord, Make Me an Instrument of Thy Peace."

The sermon will be presented by Cara Hendrickson and Scott Lovejoy, Midland High School seniors, and Richard Whiles, a Lee High School senior. David Boes will do the Children's Moment.

Music and prayers will be provided by the youth.

The 8:15 a.m. Early Worship Service was added to the church's Sunday services Easter and will remain on the regular schedule. The public is invited to attend either the 8:15 or 10:55 a.m. worship service. Sunday School is at 9 a.m.

■ Hospice has program

Hospice of Midland is offering a Grief Recovery Program open to anyone in the community who has experienced loss.

That loss could be the death of someone close to them, the loss of a spouse through a divorce, the trauma of moving, the loss of a job or any other loss which has caused the individual to grieve.

Four sessions will meet Tuesdays in May at the Hospice House, 911 W. Texas Ave., from 7 to 9 p.m. Those wishing to attend are asked to call Thelma or Mark, 682-2974.

■ Revival scheduled

A revival is planned at Mt. Rose Baptist Church, 211 N. Tyler, April 18-23.

Services will be held at 7:30 p.m.

Speaking at the revival will be the Rev. Gregory Spencer, pastor of The Philadelphia Baptist Church, Fort Worth.

The revival is sponsored by the Rev. Mother Scott Williams of St. Ann Spiritual Church.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church plans trips

First Baptist Church has several trips planned including a Senior Adult Rally called the "Gathering of the Golden Eagles," which is set for May 3 at the Circle Six Ranch, Stanton.

The program will be directed by Glen Roenfeldt. The group consists of the singers and preachers who are retired and living in the Baptist Memorial Geriatric Center, San Angelo.

Cost is $5. Dr. Bill Thorn will speak as one of the Golden Eagles. Those attending are asked to bring something for the auction to raise funds for the new building as well as cookies and goodies for refreshment time. Refreshments and fellowship will be from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. The program begins at 9:30 a.m. and will conclude at 2:30 p.m.

Other trips coming up include the Herbert H. Reynolds Summer School for Retired Persons being held on the campus of Baylor University May 23-28. Cost is around $220. Those attending need to provide their own transportation and meals while traveling. The classes include computer science, Old and New Testament and fine art courses.

In addition, a Bible Study and baptist History Tour is planned for June 28-July 14. The cost is estimated to be $2,5000 to $3,000 per person, double occupancy. A $500 deposit is required at sign-up.

A Fall Tour is planned by the church for Oct. 4-15. Cost is around %1,600. A $200 deposit is required to hold a place. The tour will travel through, among other states, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine and New Hampshire. The second week will be the Bible Conference in Lancaster, Pa.

For more information on any of these trips call Charles Elliott, 682-7669.

■ Birth series planned

Childbirth with Preparation of Texas, Inc., has formed a new childbirth education series.

Childbirth within a Christian context will offer expectant couples the choice of incorporating scripture, prayer and Christian music into a basic childbirth preparation series. Information covered in the series includes: the labor and birth process, medication for labor, Cesarean birth, relaxation and breathing techniques, adjusting to parenthood and feeding baby.

The six-week series meets once a week for two hours. Class dates are set according to due dates and class size is limited so that more individual attention can be given to each couple. For more information call Mary Ellen Green at 694-1928 or the CWP Registrar at 685-3304.

■ Church gives support

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., will begin a support program to the single father entitled "SingleDads" at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

This new ministry is one of encouragement and support to the single, custodial fathers of Midland and their special needs and concerns.

"SingleDads" will be coordinated by Bill Smith, Bellview's Minister of Education, who is a single father.

All single fathers are invited to attend. For more information call 682-9474.

Also, the church has started a new series at 5:30 p.m. Sundays entitled "Parenting with Purpose."

■ Christians to march

West Texas Christians will gather to march in the streets proclaiming "Jesus is Lord" June 12.

Churches from all denominations are invited to become a part of the "International March for Jesus." To know more about the event call the March for Jesus number, 683-7055.

All participants will begin gathering at the parking lots across from the federal building downtown at 9:30 a.m. the march will begin at 10 a.m. June 12.

■ Church hosts groups

First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., is hosting "Breakthrough" groups from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

The groups include "Divorce Recovery," "Loss Through Death," "Supporting the Single Parent" and "Stress or Distress."

All are invited to attend. For more information call 682-1646.

HOUSTON — Former University of Florida athletic director Bill Carr became the athletic director at the University of Houston Friday just as the school started an investigation into alleged NCAA violations in its football program.

"Any athletic program will have its complications," Carr said. "That's just a blip on the screen. We'll have an opportunity to learn all of those details. It doesn't deter my enthusiasm."

Carr replaced Rudy Davalos, who resigned last Nov. 16 to become athletic director at the University of New Mexico. Assistant athletic director Billy McGillis has headed the department.

One of Carr's first duties will be to take charge of a probe into allegations by former players that football coach John Jenkins spliced pornographic material into training films and forced players to work beyond NCAA-sanctioned time limits.

Rebs cruise to 4-5A title

■ Midland Lee picks up district trophy while Rebel Eddie Hatch takes top medalist honors.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

Midland Lee made it a Rebel sweep in District 4-5A golf Friday by winning the boys championship by 12 strokes over Abilene Cooper at Green Tree Country Club.

The Lee girls won the 4-5A championship last Monday, giving the Rebels two berths at the Region I tournaments on April 30-May 1 in Lubbock. The Lee boys return to Region I play as a team for the first time since 1986 under coach Ronnie Stephens, and this was the first championship for Lee coach Bobby Dunn, who is in his second year as the Rebel golf coach.

Lee's team total after the fourth round was 1,256 while Cooper stood at 1,268. Lee actually added two strokes to its overall lead after last week's play.

In addition, Lee also topped the leader board in the medalist chase with senior Eddie Hatch ending the tour's four rounds with a 304 total, winning the individual title by six strokes over teammate Mitch Spence, who finished at 310.

"I didn't expect to win the title coming into district play, no, not at all," said Hatch, who had a safe 78 Friday to finish out his title. "You have to shoot some really low numbers to win in this district.

"I had a four-stroke lead coming into today's play, but I wasn't worried about the medalist race. I only started thinking about it the last couple of holes."

4-5A Top Five

Teams

1. Midland Lee	315-1256
2. Abilene Cooper	317-1268
3. San Angelo	321-1295
4. Odessa Permian	324-1297
5. Midland High	341-1301

Medalists

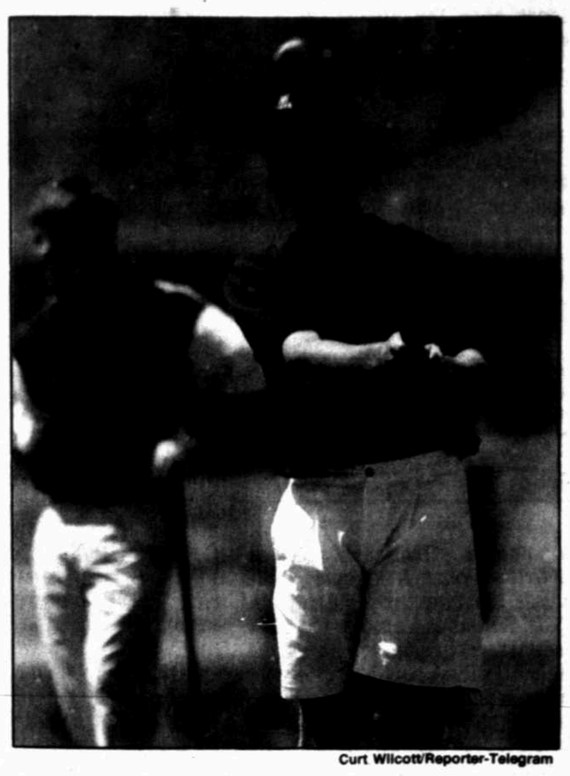

1. Eddie Hatch, Lee	78-304
2. Mitch Spence, Lee	78-310
3. (tie) Jeremiah Luttrell, MHS	81-311
Chad Wellhausen, Cooper	76-311
5. Travis Pruska, Cooper	78-314

Midland High, which was tied for second place with Cooper after two rounds, fell to a fifth-place tie overall with Abilene High, while San Angelo leaped from fifth to third and Odessa Permian remained in fourth.

The top two medalists also earn Region I berths, but that was not a factor with Hatch and Spence also on the Region I bound Rebel team. But the odd-man out became MHS' Jeremiah Luttrell, who ran into some really bad luck down the stretch.

Luttrell came into the last round only four strokes off the Hatch pace and needed to hold that second place finish to advance. Luttrell had a final round 81 to tie Cooper's Chad Wellhausen for third at 311. Since the Cooper team also earned a Region I berth by finishing second to Lee, Wellhausen still gets to go to the region meet. Luttrell is the only one of the four in the race who has to stay at home and that decision didn't come until the very last hole of the day.

Lee's Mills hopes for more grist

■ Tanisha Mills lead local hopefuls as District 4-5A track begins at Memorial Stadium.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

Midland Lee's Tanisha Mills, the only girl from the Tall City to ever wear the crown of a state champion, will be taking her last laps around the Memorial Stadium track today as District 4-5A's thinclads gather to decide who will be Region I bound in two weeks in Lubbock.

Mills is the defending Class 5A state champion in the 400 meters and the current 400-meter record holder in the district with a 55.91, recorded last year in Abilene.

However, Mills, who signed Wednesday to run for the Rice Owls, has tried it all this year, running on two sets of relays, the 100, 200 and 400 at various meets. She's also added the shot put to her credentials. Just where she will be used today is the mystery.

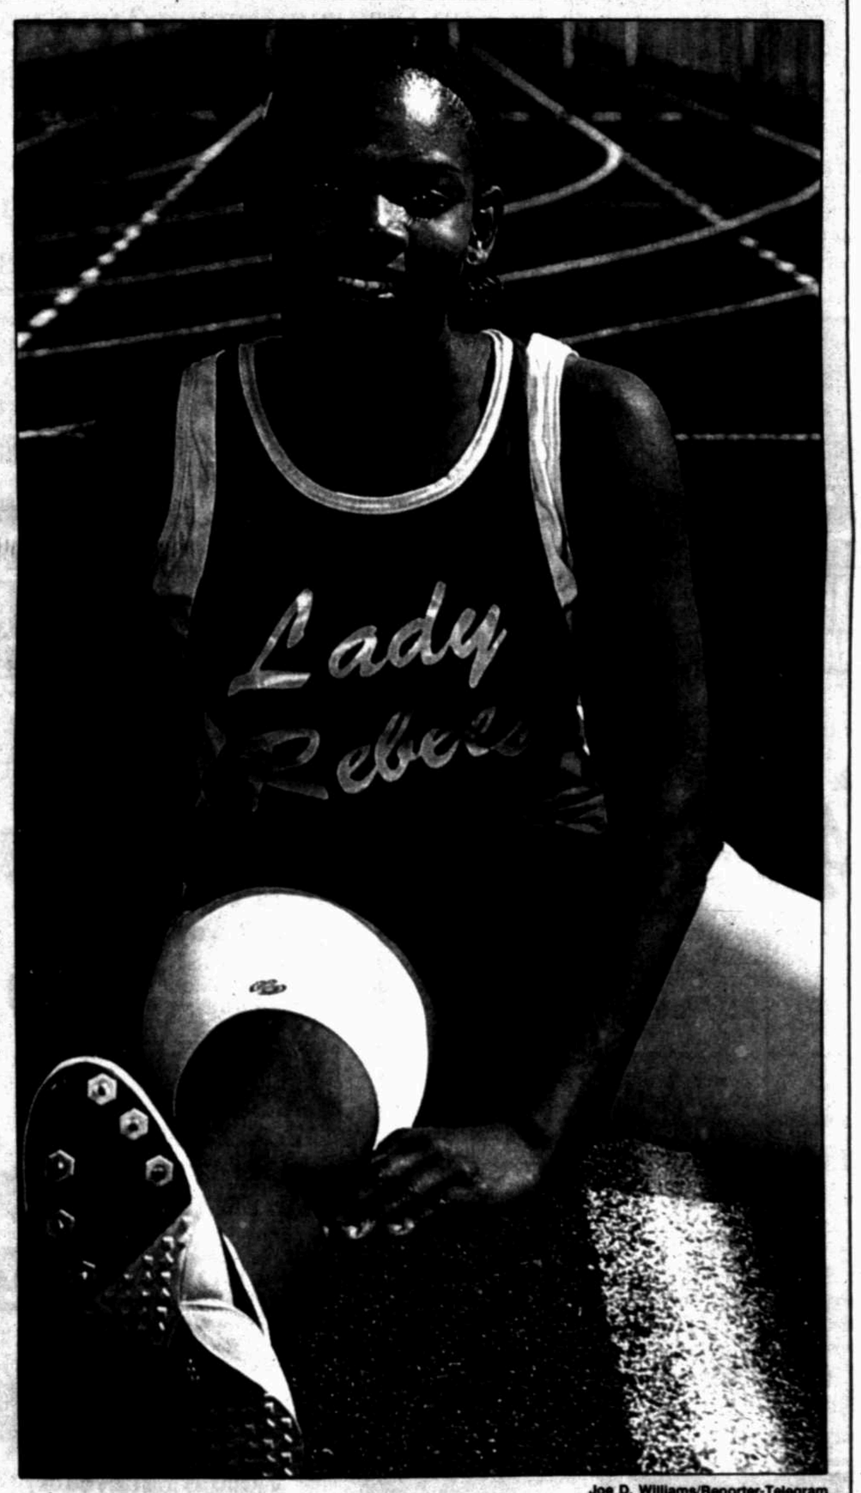

"I don't know where I will be put for the district meet, but I will be in the 400," Mills said. After all, that has been her state ticket.

The meet begins at 11 a.m. with some field event finals. Other field event finals are set for 1 p.m. and all running preliminaries begin at 1:30 p.m.

The run for Region I berths will begin with the 3200 at 3:30 p.m. The rest of the running finals begins with the sprint relay at 6:30 p.m. The top two in each event advance to the Region I meet.

The Lee boys also have two returning Region I qualifiers back from last year in Scott McLeod in the shot put and Tony Olivas in the

Grebeck shines in 7-2 win

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

When the subject of his sparkling defense is broached, Brian Grebeck just shrugs and says that's why they pay him.

But if Grebeck doesn't want to talk much about it, his teammates and coaches will.

The 5-7 shorstop helped get the Angels out of three innings by starting a trio of double plays as Midland defeated El Paso 7-2 Friday night at Angels Stadium.

Grebeck, in fact, was a part of all four twin killings Midland recorded. He was on the receiving end of a 2-6 DP in the second when El Paso's Ed Smith struck out and Diablos teammate Al Smith was caught stealing second on the third strike.

But it was the sparkling assist work

Rebel nine can record 20th win

By Bill Price
Staff writer

While Midland Lee can notch its 20th win of the 1993 high school baseball season today, the Rebels are surely thinking more about their chances at a District 4-5A championship.

Lee, 19-4 overall and in second place in district with a 7-2 mark, is one game behind Abilene Cooper (15-8, 8-1) and plays Cooper on the final day of the regular season next Saturday.

Today Cooper entertains Midland High at 2 p.m. in Abilene, while the Rebels will play host to Abilene High at 2 p.m. on Johnson Field. Today's other 4-

MHS duo leaps into finals

By Bill Petitt
Staff writer

When Midland High tennis coach Tom Heiting walked onto the Midland Lee courts Friday, his boys doubles team of sophomore Kevin McIlvain and senior Alan Neighbors looked like a pair of pups in the dog-eat-dog world of District 4-5A tennis.

By nightfall Heiting had a team just one win away from the regional tennis tournament April 30 in Lubbock.

McIlvain and Neighbors survived two tiebreak matches to advance into the finals of the District 4-5A tennis tournament being played at the Lee courts.

"They (McIlvain and Neighbors) have been learning all season long," Heiting said. "They have been in this situation before this season and they keep feeding off prior matches. Every match has been a build up to this point and both of them are playing very well right now."

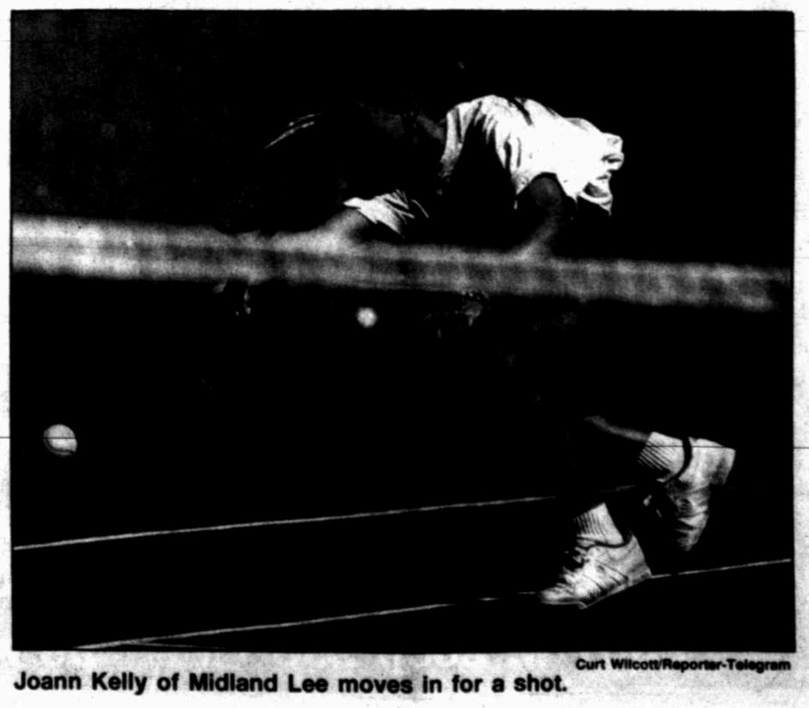

The Bulldog duo will face Andrew Cole and David Robertson of Abilene Cooper in the championship with the winners advancing into the regional tournament. The losers fall into the playback portion of the tournament for the second regional spot. It will mark a rematch of a week ago at the Abilene High Tournament, one that McIlvain and Neighbors won.

Lee's Matt Thompson advanced into the championship match against top seed Bradlee Holland of San Angelo while teammate David Starks remains alive for a regional berth, but will have to fight through the playback round to qualify for the regional tournament following a semifinal loss to Holland.

Abilene High and Cooper continued their domination of 4-5A girls play, sweeping into an all Cooper-AHS finals in singles and doubles play.

McIlvain and Neighbors needed one hour, 37 minutes to defeat Clay Trumble and Chris

Mavs win ninth game; Wilkins records No. 865

Associated Press

DALLAS — Dallas matched the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers with its ninth victory of the season Friday night as Derek Harper scored 11 points during a third-quarter run that lifted the Mavericks to a 99-86 victory over Denver.

The Mavericks, who improved their record to 9-68, have five games remaining to get another win and avoid sharing the NBA-worst record of 9-73. Their next game is at home tonight against the Sacramento Kings.

Jim Jackson finished with 20 points and Harper 17 as the Mavericks snapped a four-game losing streak with its most decisive victory of the season.

Cavaliers 113, Magic 110

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Lenny Wilkens became the second-winningest coach in NBA history as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Orlando Magic.

For Wilkens, 55, it was career coaching victory No. 865, moving him past Jack Ramsay into second place on the all-time list. Red Auerbach ranks first with his 938 victories as coach of the Boston Celtics.

Craig Ehlo led Cleveland with 24 points. Brad Daugherty, matched against Shaquille O'Neal, had 19 points and 10 rebounds, while O'Neal led the Magic with 24 points and 18 rebounds. Dennis Scott added 22 points.

Bulls 119, Bucks 105

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bulls pulled into a first-place tie with New York in the Eastern Conference when Michael Jordan scored 47 points in a victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Jordan now has scored at least 40 points 14 times this season and 135 times in his eight-year career for the Bulls, who matched the Knicks' 55-22 record when they lost 100-94 at Indiana.

Todd Day and Eric Murdock each scored 24 points.

■ NBA Roundup

Kings 100, Spurs 93

SAN ANTONIO — Lionel Simmons scored 12 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter, and the Sacramento Kings snapped a six-game losing streak.

The loss dropped the Spurs one game behind Portland in the race for fourth place in the Western Conference playoff race. The Trail Blazers won at Minnesota.

David Robinson led San Antonio with 19 points and 12 rebounds, while Sean Elliott scored 15 points. Rod Higgins had 19 for Sacramento, which snapped a 10-game losing streak at HemisFair Arena.

Duane Causwell scored 13 points as the Kings led 51-46 at halftime. An 11-1 run midway through the second period gave Sacramento its largest lead of the half, 43-32.

Hornets 127, Pistons 93

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Alonzo Mourning scored 19 of his 36 points in the third quarter and matched a season-high with 22 rebounds as Charlotte strengthened its hold on a playoff spot with a victory over Detroit.

The Hornets, losers of six of their eight previous games and seven of 10 games at home, traded baskets for the first three minutes, then took the lead for good with a 12-5 run. The victory gave Charlotte a 1½-game lead over the Pistons, who started the night tied for the eighth and final postseason berth.

Blazers 117, Timberwolves 109

MINNEAPOLIS — Cliff Robinson continued his torrid play with 26 points, including 10 in the pivotal third period, leading the Portland Trail Blazers to a victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Terry Porter also scored 26 points for the Blazers, who have won all eight of their games played in Minnesota.

Robinson, coming off a career-high 40-point performance in an overtime loss to Utah on Thursday night, finished with 89 points, 31 rebounds and 15 blocks in four games against the Timberwolves this season.

Pacers 100, Knicks 94

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana scored 100 points against the New York Knicks for the first time in four meetings this year and came away with their first win.

Indiana, led by Detlef Schrempf's 27 points, took over sole possession of eighth place in the Eastern Conference and knocked New York into a tie for first.

Rockets 100, Lakers 84

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Houston Rockets clinched the Midwest Division with a victory over the Los Angeles Lakers behind Hakeem Olajuwon's 29 points and 14 rebounds.

Kenny Smith added 18 points for the Rockets, who lead the San Antonio Spurs by five games with five to play. Houston's 4-0 series advantage over the Spurs guarantees a tiebreaker advantage.

BASEBALL: Urquidez out

(From 1C)

5A game sees Odessa High traveling to third-place San Angelo while Odessa Permian takes the day off.

The Rebels suffered a big blow this past week when top hitter and pitcher Julian Urquidez suffered a stress fracture in his foot. Still, Lee has plenty of hurlers in Jason Baker (4-1), Kirk Ulrich (6-1) and Alex Hale (3-1).

After Hale threw a complete game in the Rebs' 13-0 rout of OHS Tuesday, Baker and Ulrich are both fresh for today. Also, Brian Cordova (1-0), who has been used mostly as a reliver of late, is available.

The Rebels will likely face Eagle pitcher Charlie Martinez (0-0). Though he has no decisions, Martinez has the best ERA of AHS pitchers with a 5.83 mark in 12 district innings.

Through the first eight league games, Urquidez was Lee's best hitter with a .650 average. Of the Rebel players with more than 10 district at-bats, Hale is next in line at .444. He is followed by David Galvan (.417), Chris Connally (.381), Brian Graham (.375), Ulrich (.368) and Sean McIntosh (.370). Lee leads the district in hitting with a .386 team average.

FOR MHS, which is coming off a 14-2 loss to Permian Tuesday, today's starter could be either Tim Beard (0-1) or Mike Melzer (1-1). The Bulldogs will probably face Cougar pitching ace Jimmy Frush, who owns a 6-2 record for the season.

The Bulldogs are 7-11 overall and 3-5 in district, two games out of third place and the final playoff spot with four regular season games remaining.

A MHS loss and a San Angelo win over OHS would put the Bulldogs three games out of third with three to play, on the brink of elimination from postseason play.

A win for Cooper would clinch no worse than a tie for one of the three 4-5A playoff berths.

Chicago wins battle of Sox

Associated Press

BOSTON — Ellis Burks homered in his first at-bat back in Fenway Park and Ron Karkovice and Robin Ventura also connected into a strong tailwind Friday night, leading the Chicago White Sox over the Boston Red Sox 9-4.

Jack McDowell (3-0) became the first American League pitcher to win three games this season. He allowed four runs in seven innings and sent Boston to its first home loss of the year. He has won 10 straight April starts, a streak stretching back to 1991.

Indians 13, Blue Jays 1

CLEVELAND — Kenny Lofton hit two triples, a double and a single, scored four runs and stole a base, and the Cleveland Indians routed winless Jack Morris and the Toronto Blue Jays.

Thomas Howard, Albert Belle and Reggie Jefferson each hit home runs in support of Charles Nagy (1-2). He gave up one run in seven innings as the Indians stopped a three-game losing streak.

Morris (0-3), meanwhile, was tagged for eight earned runs on 11 hits in four innings.

■ AL Roundup

Tigers 5, Mariners 0

DETROIT — Cecil Fielder and Travis Fryman each drove in two runs and the Detroit Tigers went over .500 for the first time since 1991 with a victory over the Seattle Mariners.

The Tigers, 5-4, finished 1991 with an 84-78 record. But they got off to an 0-6 start in 1992 and never got closer than three games to break-even.

David Wells (2-0), signed by the Tigers on April 3 after being released by Toronto, made his second start and appearance for Detroit.

Orioles 4, Angels 1

BALTIMORE — Rick Sutcliffe and three Baltimore relievers cooled off the California Angels' hot bats.

Cal Ripken hit his first homer for the Orioles, who won a second straight game for the first time this season. California had won three in a row, scoring 31 runs in that span.

Sutcliffe (2-1) allowed seven hits, walked four and struck out three in 7 1-3 innings. Todd Frohwirth and Alan Mills each got one out in the eighth and Gregg Olson pitched the ninth for his third save.

Twins 4, Royals 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Shane Mack singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning, lifting the Minnesota Twins to a victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Mike Pagliarulo doubled with one out off reliever Rusty Meacham (0-1), who then walked pinch-hitter Randy Bush. After Chuck Knoblauch popped out, Mack grounded a 1-0 pitch past diving third baseman Phil Hiatt and Pagliarulo beat left fielder Kevin McReynolds' throw to the plate.

Yankees 5, Rangers 3

NEW YORK — In a game delayed by rain for more than 2½ hours, Jim Leyritz, former Midland Lee Rebel Randy Velarde and Pat Kelly hit solo home runs and the New York Yankees beat the Texas Rangers.

Play was stopped by rain for 91 minutes in the top of the fifth inning. There was another delay of 69 minutes in the bottom of the fifth. About 1,000 fans were left when the game ended at 12:57 a.m. EDT.

Astros drown Marlins, 9-3

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Jeff Bagwell had a bases-loaded triple, and Greg Swindell two hits and an RBI while winning for the first time at the Astrodome as Houston beat the Florida Marlins 9-3 Friday night.

Two-out singles by Swindell, Craig Biggio and Steve Finley loaded the bases for Bagwell in the fourth inning. His triple to the right-field corner gave Houston a 5-1 lead.

The Astros had a season-high 15 hits and the nine runs tied its best output.

Swindell (2-1), a free agent signee after pitching for Cincinnati last season, entered the game with an 0-1 career record in four Astrodome starts and a 3.09 ERA. He allowed 11 hits, struck out four and walked one in 7 2-3 innings.

Cubs 3, Phillies 1

CHICAGO — Mark Grace's two-run double keyed a three-run first inning, leading Mike Morgan and the Chicago Cubs to a victory that snapped Philadelphia's five-game winning streak.

The Cubs, who have handed the Phillies (8-2) both of their defeats, won consecutive games for the first time this season.

■ NL Roundup

Expos 3, Rockies 2

MONTREAL — Kent Bottenfield pitched well, and Delino DeShields and Larry Walker supplied the punch in returning to the lineup to lead the Montreal Expos to a victory over the Colorado Rockies.

DeShields homered and Walker had a two-run double. Walker was limited to pinch-hitting duties over the previous six games because of a pulled hamstring, and DeShields missed eight games with chicken pox.

Mets 3, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Eddie Murray and Howard Johnson homered off usually stingy Jose Rijo, and the New York Mets used their newfound power to beat the punchless Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds' fourth straight loss left them 2-8, their worst start since an identical mark in 1966. Once again, it was a lack of offense — they got just seven hits in 7 2-3 innings off Pete Schourek (1-1) and have just five extra-base hits in their last six games.

Padres 5, Cardinals 1

SAN DIEGO — Derek Bell had two homers and four RBIs, and Andy Benes allowed four hits in eight innings as the San Diego Padres won their first home game after four straight losses.

Bell, acquired in a spring-training trade that sent Darrin Jackson to Toronto, hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a bases-empty homer in the third.

Both homers came off Joe Magrane (0-1) and helped give Benes (2-1) another early lead. The Padres averaged an NL-low 2.82 runs in each of Benes' starts last year, but have scored three runs in the first inning of his last two.

Giants 1, Braves 0

SAN FRANCISCO — John Burkett outdueled John Smoltz by combining with Rod Beck on a six-hitter, and Kirt Manwaring drove in the game's only run as the surging San Francisco Giants beat the impotent Atlanta Braves.

Smoltz (1-2) also blanked 1-0 earlier this season by Chicago, was again victimized by an offense that has produced one or no runs in seven of 12 games.

TENNIS: Finals at 9 a.m. today

(From 1C)

Proctor 7-6, 3-6, 6-4. MHS rallied from a 5-2 deficit to force a tiebreaker, which it won 7-2. Tied 2-2 in the tiebreaker, McIlvain and Neighbors reeled off five straight points to take the first set 7-6 (7-2). Trumble and Proctor took a 2-0 lead in the second set before taking the set 6-3. The third set had McIlvain-Neighbors rallying from a 4-3 deficit to take the set 6-4.

In the semifinals, McIlvain and Neighbors met the team of Eric Hail and Graham Thurman of San Angelo. The Bulldog pair continued their come-from-behind antics, rallying from a 3-4 deficit in the first set to win 6-4. In the second set Hail and Thurman took a 5-2 lead after winning 11 of 12 points during one stretch in the match. McIlvain and Neighbors began their comeback to take a 6-5 lead in the second set. Hail and Thurman tied the second set at 6-6 after fighting off two match points, but McIlvain and Neighbors took control of the second set tiebreaker, winning 7-1.

Holland, the boys No. 1 singles seed, was a question mark coming into the tournament. Two weeks ago Holland suffered a sprained interior cruciate ligament in his right knee which sidelined him from last week's tournament and any practice. He shook the rust off early to beat David Conha of Odessa High 6-2, 6-0 and Lee's David Stark in the semifinal round.

"I am very pleased with the way I played against him (Starks)," Holland said. "When I began the day I was very tentative on the knee, trying to see what I could do on it. But after the first game of the first match I started playing better and against Starks I couldn't have asked for any more of myself, injured or not."

Starks suffered leg cramps in his second round match against Cole. Using his powerful serve to take a set lead, Starks began to cramp, forcing him away from his net play. After a 10-minute rest period following the second set Starks regained his first-set form to take a decisive 6-1 win in the third and final set.

In girls play, AHS senior Camille Prather made easy work of her opponents as she breezed into today's finals.

"I feel very good about the way I played today," said Prather, who signed to play for Abilene Christian next fall and was ranked 23rd in the state by the United States Tennis Association in girls 18 singles.

Prather allowed opponents just five games in four sets Friday.

"I've been in this position before (the finals) and she (Ashlee Abrigg) has not, so I feel that will give me an advantage in tomorrow's match," she said.

Abrigg, the tournament's second seed, defeated Breaan Bogan 6-0, 6-2 in the second round and Shae Hensley of Permian to advance into the finals.

In girls doubles action the top two seeds advanced into the finals. Top seed Mandy Peoples and Chelsea Gonzales of AHS will face Misty Meyer and Kathryn Scott of Cooper.

The finals begin at 9 a.m. at the Lee courts with the losers of the finals competing in the playback rule for the second spot in the 5A regional tournament, April 30-May 1 in Lubbock.

Here are the results of the District 4-5A Tennis Tournament being played at the Lee Courts, Friday (seedings in parathesis):

ANGELS: Brakebill, Forbes homer and the three front ends of the double plays that had people talking afterward.

(From 1C)

"People are going to see a lot more of that," said Midland second baseman P.J. Forbes, a not-so-shabby fielder himself. "Brian's got one of the best gloves I've seen. The way he plays, he pumps the other guys up and it just adds to how everybody else plays."

Of the four DPs in which Grebeck took part, it was the one in the Diablos' half of the eighth that established him as Midland's own version of Fred Patek, the 5-4 shortstop from the Kansas City Royals of the 1970s. True, Grebeck has three inches on Patek, but the two play their position with much the same grit and ability.

In the eighth, with El Paso's Duane Singleton at first, Jeff Cirillo hit a shot through the legs of Midland pitcher Jose Musset. Singleton was running on the pitch, and Grebeck was breaking towards second in anticipation of the Cirillo hit. Grebeck got to the ball perfectly, and even slightly overran second before stepping on the base and making the relay throw to first.

"We had changed up our coverage on the steal," Forbes said. "We saw that Cirillo couldn't get around on the fastball. It worked out perfectly."

Added manager Don Long: "The defense played really well, and it was highlighted by Brian's play at short. He had a great defensive ball game."

Offensively, third baseman Mark Brakebill hit his second home run of the year, a solo shot in the sixth, and Forbes had his fifth career homer, a two-run job in the first.

"They don't come very often," said Forbes, who had a double and two RBI to go with his long ball.

As for the pitching, with the two earned runs Midland pitchers yielded, the staff's season ERA is now at 2.52 through the first eight games, a number that barely registers on the Angels pitchers richter scale in comparison with season's past.

"With the people we have, we have the ability to have a good staff," Long said of his pitchers. "We have areas of opportunity that we need to improve, but overall we've done a really good job."

One deficient area for the Angels thus far has been in the stolen base category. When Orlando Palmeiro and Luis Raven stole second in Friday's game, it was only the second and third steals of the season. On that pace, Midland would steal just 51 bases as a team for the season.

GOLF: Cooper wins team 2nd

(From 1C)

"I felt Hatch was going to win the medalist title, so the race was really for second place," Spence said. "Jeremiah (Luttrell), Chad (Wellhausen) and I were tied going to the last hole and I had a birdie. That gave me second place."

Lee sophomore K.J. Sanchez aided the Rebel team win with a final round 77 and finished seventh in the medalist race with a 317. Juniors Matt Clements and Brian Jeffreys eached finished at 325. MHS' Will Gray had a good tour, finishing sixth overall with a 317. The top 10 medalist finishers comprise the 1993 All-District golf team.

Final round results from the District 4-5A golf tour played at Green Tree Country Club. Last round score and four-round total (if applies) listed:

UT hands Madrid, Rice loss

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Brooks Kieschnick pitched a four-hit shutout and went 2-for-4 with four RBIs Friday as Texas pounded Rice 10-0.

Kieschnick (11-2) struck out eight batters in his sixth complete game of the year while helping the Longhorns improve to 38-8 overall and 7-3 in the Southwest Conference. Rice dropped to 33-10 and 7-6.

Texas scored two runs in the first and another pair in the seventh off Owls' loser and former Midland High Bulldog James Madrid (8-2), who struck out a career-high 11 batters through 6⅓ innings.

The Longhorns then scored six runs in the ninth off Rice relievers Brent Binder and Jon Hillis.

Marcus Hendry went 3-for-5 for Texas.

Texas Tech 2, Grand Canyon 1

LUBBOCK — John Macatee struck out a career-high 11 batters and Brody Gregg drove home the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning as Texas Tech edged Grand Canyon.

Macatee allowed three hits and two walks in 10 innings. He improved to 6-3.

Gregg hit a single off loser Keith Dixon (1-4), driving in Jason Books with one out in the 10th.

Tech improved to 33-11, and Grand Canyon fell to 18-18.

Darrin Forster hit a solo homer in the fourth inning to put Grand Canyon on top 1-0.

20-something

Hoping to mine the same vein of popularity as Fox's "Melrose Place" with Heather Locklear, Andrew Shue and Courtney Thorne-Smith, producers are releasing a steady stream of movies about young singles.

Something lacking in 20-ish films

By Caryn James
N.Y. Times News Service

Bridget Fonda as a waitress in "Singles": "I'm 23. I think time is running out to do something bizarre."

Bridget Fonda as a waitress in "Bodies, Rest and Motion," when her lover says, "I'm the one": "I'm 28 years old. I've had lots of ones."

Bridget Fonda as a murderer in "Point of No Return": "Mommy!"

Ms. Fonda shouldn't have to carry the weight of her generation personally, but onscreen she is the definitive 20-something. And though "Point of No Return" is not a 20-something movie, "Mommy!" might be the unspoken rallying cry behind the slew of films about people in their 20s and early 30s.

Living in a twilight zone between Peter Panhood and adulthood, they don't want to grow up but don't want to be misfits, either. That's a dismal choice in life, but it has shaped a deft and entertaining genre of films, from last year's "Singles" to the current "Bodies, Rest and Motion" and "Watch It" to the forthcoming "The Night We Never Met."

A formula has already emerged.

First, give the characters low-level jobs and a large dose of professional lethargy. In "Bodies, Rest and Motion," the main characters are a waitress, a television salesman, a house painter and a boutique manager at a mall — a perfect record of career avoidance.

Next, let them swap romantic partners, as if the whole generation were one small town. In "Bodies," Nick (Tim Roth) used to live with Carol (Phoebe Cates) and now lives with Beth (Bridget Fonda), who is Carol's best friend. In "Watch It," a veterinarian has affairs with two men who happen to be cousins, adding an extra familial twist to the small-town rule.

Include at least one hopelessly juvenile male, like the Wall Street broker in "The Night We Never Met" who keeps his bachelor apartment so he and his friends can swill beer and belch loudly once a week.

And, finally, admit that you don't have a clue how to wrap things up. Add one contrived leap into maturity and romantic commitment, a supposedly happy ending.

This recipe doesn't guarantee a good 20-something movie, of course. There is a more fundamental principle behind that: the more a film strives to define its generation, the more it is doomed to fail. The fearful, tentative quality of these characters' lives is best captured in everyday details, not in philosophical dialogue.

The uneven "Bodies, Rest and Motion" is an almost perfect example of where the genre succeeds and fails. The film is a mix of wonderful acting, revealing gestures and bits of dialogue that suddenly become top-heavy and portentous, throwing the whole movie out of whack.

When Carol and Beth pass Nick back and forth, knowing perfectly well that he's no prize, their affairs reveal some-

Go western, young man

By Art Chapman
N.Y. Times News Service

Fans of the movie westerns have gone through so many disappointments lately, it's almost unfair to offer any further promise of the genre's revival.

After "Dances With Wolves" in 1990, there was a perceptible certainty in the marketplace that more would follow. It didn't happen.

Last year's "Unforgiven" created a surge, but that, too, has diminished. "Quigley Down Under" brought a similar, though lesser, promise a couple of years before. The movie, set in Australia, was a good adventure movie but Tom Selleck didn't prove to be the marquee draw the film needed for significant movie house receipts.

But it did do well on video.

And, it may be there, at the video store, where the western finds its final retreat.

Certainly the old westerns are enjoying a revival in videocassette. No longer does the avid fan have to sit restlessly through midnight TV showings that are cut to fill compressed timeslots and then sliced and diced by hordes of cheap commercials.

New movies that don't make it to the theaters can now go directly to video.

That's what we get this month when Hemdale Home Video releases "Wrangler," starring Jeff Fahey of "Lawnmower Man."

But there is a cautionary note. Movies that go directly to video are often marketed in that way because no one believes they have any chance of profit at the box office.

"Wrangler" is one of them.

It will likely show up on television, on cable or possibly in syndication. It is a mildly entertaining film, but fashioned as more of a movie-of-the-week than a feature film.

And in truth, it isn't really much of a western.

The story takes place in Australia somewhere around the turn of the century. It opens with a beautiful scene of horses running through the foam of turquoise water rushing on a pristine beach.

The herd belongs to the Richards family, owners of the huge Minnamurra Ranch.

But Jack Richards, the patriarch, is in deep debt. He is in danger of losing his beloved ranch and prize stallion.

His evil neighbor, Allenby, covets Richards' property and promises to take it by whatever means necessary.

Richards' daughter, Alice (Tushka Bergen), eventually has to carry the burden of her father's debt, and it is through clenched teeth that she promises to save the ranch. She counts on the Boys will be boys will be stars

By Yardena Arar
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — A little boy and a cop. A little boy and a runaway slave. A little boy and his brother. A little boy and a whale. A little boy and a superhero. Nine little boys and a mean old junkyard dog.

Girls may want to have fun, too, but in this year of the so-called family film, it's a little boy's world, as evidenced by a dozen or so major-studio films due out between now and the fall.

Certainly Macaulay Culkin's just-announced $8 million signing for "Getting Even With Dad" may put the "Home Alone" hero in a league of his own salarywise, but it also seems to represent the brass ring on a kiddie-star carousel that is whirling at warp speed.

"I think there is a tremendous moviegoing audience that wants to see themselves," said Henry Winkler, who directed "Cop and a Half," which topped the box-office charts in its opening weekend. The film, which co-stars Burt Reynolds, is about a latch-key youngster whose fantasy of being a police officer comes true when he becomes the sole eyewitness to a gangland murder.

"The kids love going to a movie that does not scare them out of their minds and that does not make them completely uncomfortable . . . like 'Cop and a Half.' They identify not only with the fantasy, but they also identify with having a very good time . . .

"My child tries to convince me to take him to see R movies, but then what happens when the lights go out, all the images from the R movie come back and scare him out of his brain. Kids want movies that take them on journeys and return them intact."

"Cop and a Half" is not the only recent film with a pint-sized hero. It barely beat out Disney's "The Adventures of Huck Finn," starring Elijah Wood ("Avalon," "Radio Flyer," "Forever Young"). (First-weekend grosses were about $6 million and $5 million each).

ON SCREEN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rating system for the films: 4 stars — Don't miss it; 3 stars — worth your while; 2 stars — Has it moments; 1 star — If you must

N.Y. Times News Service

THE ADVENTURES OF HUCK FINN: Kiddie version of the Mark Twain Mississippi classic, with the key kid miscast. Elijah Wood is too young, bland and moppety to convince as the rangy, peculiar-talking, adolescent adventurer. Courtney B. Vance is much better as Huck's river raftmate, the escaped slave Jim; he brings dignity to a potentially negative stereotype, and comes off fully human to boot. PG. Rating: 2 stars

ALADDIN: Another endlessly entertaining animated feature from Walt Disney, buoyed by Robin Williams' energetically inventive turn as the Genie who helps a poor street kid named Aladdin surmount the evil plotting of Jafar and win the love of the Sultan's daughter Jasmine. Dazzling color and breathtaking animation combine with nonstop laughs and spritely songs. G. Rating: 4 stars.

AMOS & ANDREW: Nicolas Cage gives another hilarious performance in this social comedy about racial prejudice. Samuel L. Jackson stars as a Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright mistaken for a burglar in his own home; Dabney Coleman stars as the inept, conniving lawman who turns the incident into a fiasco; Cage is the two-bit crook Coleman enlists to pretend to take Jackson hostage and turn the potential political embarrassment into political hay. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars

THE BODYGUARD: Whitney Houston is the body and Kevin Costner is the guard, and this is the curiously botched movie they've made together. A fabulously famous pop star (Houston) is being stalked by an unknown killer, and Costner is hired to protect her. Though it has its moments, the movie remains a disappointment, an inert piece of inadvertent kitsch. R. Rating 1 star

BORN YESTERDAY: Not a bad remake of the old Garson Kanin warhorse about a dumb blonde smartened up by a Washington intellectual, although it needs more laughs. Judy Holliday won an Oscar for her performance in the 1950 film, but Melanie Griffith's contemporary version is arguably richer — not as funny, but warmer, sexier and less of a caricature. PG. Rating: 3 stars

COP AND A HALF: Insultingly stupid story about a kid who witnesses a murder, but won't share his evidence with the police until they make him a cop-for-a-day. Burt Reynolds stars as the gruff, kid-hating cop assigned to take care of the youngster. High jinks ensue. PG. Rating: 1 star

THE CRUSH: A singularly crude attempt to cash in, yet again, on the killer-femme syndrome. This time, the Babe From Hell is 14-year-old Darian (Alicia Silverstone), who develops a mighty yen for Nick

Nicolas Cage tackles mainstream heroism

By Jodi LaMagna
Associated Press writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — He was almost Nicolas Faust. Or Nicolas Blue. And then he thought about Nicolas Mascalzone, which means "bad little boy" in Italian, something his great-great-aunt used to call him.

Instead, he's Nicolas Cage.

Born Nicolas Coppola, he changed his name at the beginning of his career to distinguish himself from his uncle, director Francis Ford Coppola.

"I think it was something that really had to do with my confidence in myself," he said. "It was important to me to be in some way independent of that — to know that I could be interesting without that name."

And certainly, he is. The 29-year-old actor has become wildly popular for his roles in such movies as "Moonstruck," "Wild at Heart," "Raising Arizona" and, more recently, "Honeymoon in Vegas" and "Amos and Andrew."

The name Cage was derived from two sources: his favorite comic book character and a superhero, Luke Cage Powerman, and composer John Cage.

"I was looking for a very simple, exotic name that would be unusual but that you could say in one syllable," he said.

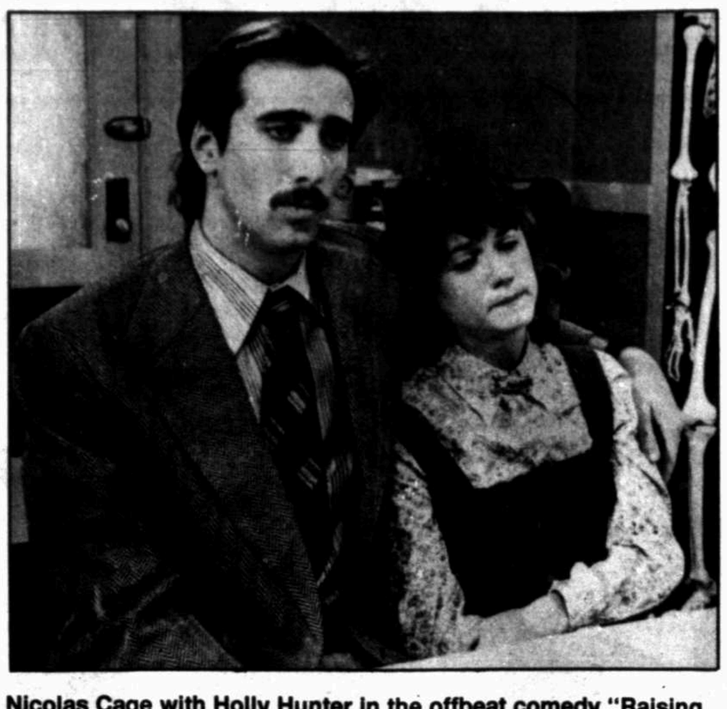

Cage is now filming "Guarding Tess" in Baltimore. He plays Doug Chesnick, a buttondown Secret Service agent assigned to protect a U.S. president's widow, played by Shirley MacLaine. The TriStar Pictures film tentatively is scheduled to be released by the end of the year.

He's well-liked by his co-workers, and is described as a talented actor with a strong work ethic.

"When I first started ('Guarding Tess') with Nick, I was just knocked out by how good he is," director Hugh Wilson said. "And he's a terrific guy. You couldn't ask for an easier person to work with."

Cage's character in this movie is a departure from his past roles, a trait that attracted him to the part, Cage said.

"I think Doug Chesnick is about as straightforward as you can get," he said. "In some ways he embodies a classic hero essence, which I think is very appealing, and something I have avoided in the past, because I have opted to play more flawed kinds of characters in terms of their behavior and personality traits."

Nicolas Cage with Holly Hunter in the offbeat comedy "Raising Arizona."

Cage chose those roles because he wanted to go against what was in fashion. He laughs sheepishly. "Imperfections were out of fashion," he said. "They were not the kinds of things that people wanted to pay $7 to see. But in some sense of the word I think they were more honest."

Imperfect is one way to describe the characters he has played. Outrageous is another. From the amputee who falls for his brother's fiancee in "Moonstruck," to the ex-convict who steals a baby for his wife in "Raising Arizona," Cage has played some bizarre characters.

These roles allowed him an outlet for his energy, he said. "I suppose I was, at 17 when I started, full of a rebellious energy that I think is easy to attribute to that age — that sort of kinetic, wild energy. And I wanted to play characters that would allow me to express that energy."

On the set of "Guarding Tess," Cage is intense rather than wild; passionate rather than rebellious.

He leans forward when he speaks, illustrating his sentences with his hands. Then he leans back, arm draped across the back of the couch, the picture of relaxation and confidence.

Though Cage wanted to distinguish himself from his uncle, it was, in fact, Coppola who gave him his start. Cage's first feature film was Coppola's "Rumble Fish" in 1983.

Cage went on to gain critic's attention for his work as a psychotic hoodlum in "The Cotton Club," also directed by his uncle, in 1984.

Now he feels connected to a different kind of character. "I'm ready now to play a role like Doug Chesnick in my own life," he said. "Maybe it has to do with turning 29, about to be 30, and the responsibilities that come with a later age."

Cage would like to make an intense family drama, "something to do with human struggles that can, in some way, act as a medicine to people, where people can identify and relate and not feel alone," he said.

When asked about his own family, Cage carefully chooses his words, speaking of relationships fraught with tension and competitiveness.

"I grew up in a very tense household where there was arguing, and that kind of thing," he said of his childhood in Long Beach, Calif.

Cage, the youngest of three boys, was raised in a middle-class home.

"My mother was having some problems, so I didn't have much contact with her," Cage said. "I think I sort of created an imaginary playland, so to speak, which probably affected my decision to become an actor."

REVIEWS: Pacino showcase returns locally

(From 1D)

(Cary Elwes), the 28-year-old writer who just rented her parents' guest house. Of course, before you can say "Amy Fisher," Darian's spirited attentions turn psycho. Most of the movie is too lame to worry about. However, it wanders into ugly territory when it shows Darian all bruised and teary and yelling "Rape!" (guess who's accused?). There's simply something distasteful and unconscionable about how shamelessly filmmaker Alan Shapiro co-opts the sad, familiar sight of a weepy victim and turns it inside-out. Given what she's got to work with, Silverstone is reasonably convincing as the nymphet temptress. Elwes, alas, is much less so as the obscure (as in, dim) object of her desire. R. Rating: 1 star

THE CRYING GAME: Irish director Neil Jordan has crafted the most surprising and humane film of the year out of the unlikely building blocks of death, loss, blind hate and aching loneliness. Stephen Rea plays an unwisely compassionate, Irish Republican Army terrorist who's drawn to the girlfriend (Jaye Davidson) of a black British soldier his cell kidnapped. The political becomes profoundly personal as the mismatched couple discovers one another's secrets. R. Rating: 4 stars

FOREVER YOUNG: Mel Gibson is at his most matinee-idol adorable as a daredevil test pilot who, in 1939, demands to be a guinea pig in a top-secret cryogenics experiment. He's supposed to be in deep freeze for a year; instead, our sleeping beauty wakes up 50 years later — in a brave new world of answering machines, Thighmasters and fatherless kids (Elijah Wood) with plucky moms (Jamie Lee Curtis). PG. Rating: 2 stars.

GROUNDHOG DAY: Bill Murray's ever-funny unpolished glibness carries this comedy about a jerk weatherman who is forced to live one day — Groundhog Day — over and over, and the hilarious ways in which he deals with his bizarre situation. Andie MacDowell and Chris Elliott co-star. PG. Rating: 3 stars

INDECENT PROPOSAL: The latest date-night debate movie from the "Fatal Attraction" people runs out of steam halfway through, but it's pretty provocative up to then. Robert Redford's amoral financier offers Demi Moore and Woody Harrelson's financially stressed married couple $1 million for a night with her. So far, so sleazy, but after the dirty deal is consummated, the drama collapses into a cowardly, conventional romantic triangle. R. Rating: 2 and a half stars

LORENZO'S OIL: Both emotionally overblown and wonkily scientific, this true story about a determined couple's search for a treatment for their son's incurable illness is trying but ultimately uplifting. Susan Sarandon is a fierce, self-sacrificing mama mammal; Nick Nolte is as stoic as circumstances, and a very silly Italian accent, allow. PG-13. Rating: 2 stars

SCENT OF A WOMAN: For folks who like acting simply for the sake of acting, Al Pacino does a whale of a job here. He plays a blind, retired military man who takes his unwitting teenage housesitter (Chris O'Donnell in a performance as understated as Pacino's is grandiose) on a breakneck tour of New York's fading glamor. Until a real copout of an ending, the movie manages to be unfailingly charming in its examination of two disparate souls who befriend one another simply because they need the companionship. R. Rating: 3 stars

TEENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES III: More of the same, only more confusing. Writer-/director Stuart Gillard, thinking he'll go artsy on us and make a reptilian "Yojimbo," slapped together this muddle concerning time travel, 17th-century Japan, corrupt gunrunners, social rebellion and bonding with kids. PG-13. Rating: 1 and a half stars

THE SANDLOT: Slackly written and poorly directed reverie over how baseball brings a group of disparate boys together in the summer of '62. Kids may enjoy some of the high jinks, but parents will have to really love their progeny to sit through this. PG. Rating: 2 stars

UNFORGIVEN: Clint Eastwood's finest achievement is an unflinching examination of the price paid for violence and other dysfunctions of the American character. Finally giving a soul and a fate to his Man With No Name, the director plays a decrepit ex-gunslinger out to earn one last bounty. R. Rating: 4 stars

Ratings for children are by the Motion Picture Association of America: (G) general audiences; (PG) parental guidance suggested as some material may not be suitable for children; (PG-13) special guidance for children under age 13 as some material may be inappropriate for youngsters; (R) restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no children under 17 admitted; (NR) not rated by the MPAA.

BOYS: Trend evident in upcoming releases

(From 1D)

Further down on the list was "Jack the Bear," starring Danny DeVito as a single dad.

"The Sandlot," a kid's-eye tribute to the 1960s set on a baseball diamond featuring a cast of unknowns, opened early this month. Opening later this spring is Columbia's "Lost in Yonkers," an eccentric family story told from the viewpoint of two boys written by Neil Simon.

Looking ahead to summer, Arnold Schwarzenegger teams with newcomer Austin O'Brien in Columbia's "The Last Action Hero." The studio's lineup also features "Josh and S.A.M.," about two brothers fleeing an unhappy home life.

John Hughes' "Dennis the Menace" introduces Mason Gamble in the title role for Warner Bros. A buzz is already going for "Free Willy," starring Jason James Richter as a kid who befriends a whale in an aquatic park.

Steven Spielberg's adaptation of Michael Crichton's "Jurassic Park" (Universal) features "Radio Flyer" co-star Joseph Mazzello as a resourceful youngster in a dinosaur theme park gone amok.

For 20th Century Fox, Wil Horneff plays Karen Allen's computer whiz son in "Ghost in the Machine," and Thomas Ian Nicholas plays a 12-year-old who is drafted by the Chicago Cubs when his healing broken arm develops a 100-mph fastball in "Rookie of the Year."

The pace continues through fall, with Paramount's "Searching for Bobby Fischer," about a 7-year-old chess prodigy, and Fox's "The Good Son," which teams Culkin and Wood in a good-seed, bad-seed tale that allows Culkin to display his darker side.

"It's definitely a boom time," said casting director Michael Katcher, whose credits include the TV series "The Wonder Years" and "Cop and a Half."

"It's all kids. They all want the same kids. These kids range anywhere from 8 to 12. That's what everyone wants, and they want awkward kids. They don't want cute TV sitcom kids, they want the awkward kids. ... They're trying to find that kid that is 40 years old."

There are a couple of movies with strong roles for little girls — "The Secret Garden," "Life With Mikey" and "Father Hood" — but the kid in kiddie movies more often stands for little boy.

"It's heartbreaking, but little girls — unless they're tomboys — don't seem to be that interesting to people," said casting director Shari Rhodes, who checked out thousands of boys across the country for "The Sandlot."

Judy Savage, whose Savage Agency in Hollywood represents about 200 child actors, said that of her 27 clients who did pilots for the 1991-92 TV season, only nine were girls.

"That same season, I had 26 kids that did films. Seven were little girls," said Savage (no relation to actor Fred Savage).

"It's always been this way. For some reason, Hollywood has always been interested in that prepubescent boy. ... For the public, it's not as interesting to see prepubescent girls as prepubescent boys."

The Culkin-"Home Alone" phenomenon is perceived as being partly responsible for the boom in boy movies.

"It just seems that with that first 'Home Alone' with Macaulay, the dam erupted with a movie that kids enjoyed and their parents enjoyed, and it was just phenomenal," Rhodes said.

"He was just so cute. If you watched him real closely, there wasn't much real strong acting involved there, there was just a lot of cute stuff and it worked."

The bull market for movies with kids has not gone unnoticed by the surprisingly savvy mothers of child actors.

"Movies for children are making more money at the box office," said Aurora Vitar, mother of "The Sandlot" star Mike Vitar. "We've noticed a lot of roles for children aged 5 to 13."

Marie Tom, mother of twin 15-year-old actors David and Nicholle and 17-year-old Emmy-nominated soap opera star Heather, said that over the years she has also noticed the preponderance of boys' roles.

"There's a lot more auditions for David than for Nicholle, who's the same age," she said.

The child-star boom is not just a local phenomenon. "I'm representing more kids from out of town than ever before," said Ruth Hansen, head of the children's department at Gold/Marshak Associates talent agency.

Casting directors now routinely fax scenes to kids, who perform them on video and are thus auditioned without ever having to leave their hometowns. Savage said parents who do bring their thespian offspring to Los Angeles frequently just come for several months during pilot season.

WEST: 'McLintock!' sparks showdown help of her two suitors, businessman Ben Creed (Fahey) and drover Jack Donaghue (Steven Vidler).

(From 1D)

It's not a particularly new storyline, but the problem with "Wrangler" is not in the predictability of the story, but in its pacing. When it speeds through the action parts it does so with unrelenting velocity. When it dwells on the romance, it slows to a painful crawl.

By the time the end arrives, the filmmakers have to rush everything together for a slapdash conclusion.

They attempt to justify their erratic ending with the same horse herd racing over much of the same country we saw in the beginning.

It looks very much like the beginning and the end of this film were shot in one take. The rest was pretty much fill-in-the-blank.

Thankfully, "Wrangler" is not the only new offering this month at the video store.

MPI Home Video has announced that it's releasing John Wayne's "McLintock!"

Wayne fans already know this 1963 film has been virtually impossible to get hold of. It is one of several movies still owned by Batjac Productions, a Wayne family venture that has jealously guarded the films and released them sparingly.

The last Batjac property shown to the public was "Hondo," released to television several years ago in 3-D.

In "McLintock!," Wayne stars as G.W. McLintock, a cattle baron, banker and leading citizen of the town named after him. He's the cock of the walk, so to speak, until his wife returns home from the East.

Played by Maureen O'Hara, Katherine McLintock is certain her husband has been unfaithful, and she declares war on him and all he owns.

It is a funny film that highlights the Wayne-O'Hara relationship that made so many of Wayne's films enjoyable.

Michael Wayne, who produced the film, says his full-length producer's cut has been digitally remastered for stereo sound and the original negative has been carefully restored, re-edited for the television screen, and color-corrected.

"McLintock!" is considered one of the top 10 unreleased-to-video films by collectors and retailers. Wayne fans have been clamoring for it for years.

Warner Home Video is also releasing a number of older westerns.

Among them:

"The Hanging Tree" starring Gary Cooper, Karl Malden and George C. Scott in his first film role.

"Man in the Wilderness" starring Richard Harris and directed by John Huston.

"Sergeant Rutledge" starring Woody Strode and Jeffrey Hunter. It was directed by John Ford.

"Zandy's Bride" starring Gene Hackman, Liv Ullman, Harry Dean Stanton and Sam Bottoms.

Unquestionably, the best of the bunch is "Sergeant Rutledge." Strode plays a black cavalry officer on trial for rape and murder.

If you're looking for a little more lighthearted fare, Warner is also releasing five new double-episode volumes of the popular TV western series "Maverick."

The set is due out in June.

Dennis Hopper and Wesley Snipes star in "Boiling Point," a '50s-style noir thriller that opened Friday.

Hopper, Snipes can't bring thriller to boil

By Bob Strauss
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Warner Bros. is promoting "Boiling Point" as another dumb, Wesley Snipes action picture a la "Passenger 57." In reality, James B. Harris's film noir thriller, adapted from a novel by Gerald Petievich ("To Live and Die in L.A."), is a low-key study of characters in crisis.

Warner probably has the right idea. Though brilliantly acted, especially by Dennis Hopper as a just-paroled con man desperate to make a killing, there's something listless and slightly less than three-dimensional about the whole, existential exercise. The classic noirs of the '40s and '50s combined taut suspense with complex psychology; here, everybody's needs are pretty obvious and the plot, while interesting, never really grabs your guts.

Snipes is treasury agent Mercer, whose partner is killed in a botched counterfeiting sting. He has a week before a punishment transfer to Newark, N.J., to track down Hopper's Red and his feckless young hit man, Viggo Mortensen's Ronnie. Red has exactly the same amount of time to pay a presentence, $50,000 debt to the mob.

Everyone's got woman trouble; ex-wives aren't really interested in Mercer's nor Red's problems, and both men are seeing the same cheery prostitute (Lolita Davidovich). A gallery of colorful character actors — Dan Hedaya, Seymour Cassel, Jonathan Banks — breathe extra life into into adequately written roles.

Hollywood locations lend an appropriate air of posh seediness and the swing score (Red likes to ballroom dance at the Palace) connects it all to high noir fatalism.

A little more excitement, though, would have brought the point of the whole thing to boil.

Macaulay Culkin grabs $8 million for next movie

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Macaulay Culkin, whose base salary for "Home Alone 2" was reportedly $4.5 million, is getting a 75 percent raise for his next starring role.

Culkin will be paid $8 million for MGM's "Getting Even With Dad," a studio spokeswoman confirmed Monday. Culkin will star as a youngster named Timmy who blackmails his ex-con father into shaping up. The film, being directed by Howard Deutsch, is set to begin production in July with a target release date of spring or summer 1994.

Culkin, 12, is said to be making in the $5 million range for the movie he currently is filming, "The Good Son." His salary for "Home Alone," which became the third highest grossing film of all time, was reportedly $100,000.

However, he is believed to be taking home smaller paychecks for two other recent projects: "The Nutcracker," in which he dances, and "The Pagemaster," a live-action and animation adventure in which he plays a fearful boy who develops self-confidence in a fantasy world of literature.

20s: Movies find truth in small touches

thing serious about the characters' low expectations in life.

But using Newton's first law of motion to describe this pattern is unbearably pretentious; the film's title comes from the principle that a body at rest or in motion will remain that way, and it's the first clue that the film is straining to define a generation.

As Sid, the house painter who instantly falls in love with Beth, Eric Stoltz has to grapple with the worst lines. "Hey, Beth, leave it behind," he tells her.

"Leave what behind?" she says.

"Unhappiness."

Is he for real?

The deepest scenes are smaller and sneakier. Ms. Fonda wakes up after spending the night with this strange house painter, sits on the edge of her bed and gives a tiny shudder. Her face and body suggest everything going on in her mind. She can't believe what she did; her life is out of control; she simply wants to run. At such moments she reflects the confusion of a generation adrift.

"Watch It" is an unpretentious comedy that takes a different approach to the generational issue; its plot depends on arrested development. Three men who were college friends now share a house and still play a game of elaborate practical jokes in which the joker reveals himself by yelling, "Watch it!" The men are way too old for this (and though ages are never mentioned, the 30-something actors probably look even older than they're meant to).

But the game of watch it is a clever narrative trick, making viewers doubt whether anything that happens is serious or real. When John (Peter Gallagher) learns that the woman he loves is engaged to his cousin, the audience is poised for someone to yell, "Watch it!" and admit it is just a bad joke. All of life might be one big joke in this film — a premise that matches the goofing attitudes of the 20-something characters.

The leaps to maturity are never so convincing. Toward the end, when one character says to the most adolescent guy, "I'm a woman. If you ever become a man, why don't you look me up?," it's as if she hit him upside the head and suddenly knocked some adulthood into him.

The credibility of a 20-something movie has nothing to do with the ages of the writers or directors — some are in their 20s, some aren't, and who's which seems beside the point. What matters is that directors and viewers enjoy the texture of these half-grown lives without condescension.

And above all, when watching a 20-something movie, forget that you ever saw "The Big Chill." This generation hasn't ever warmed up; they're not nearly ready to chill out.

KENT KWIK
Convenience Stores

Why Kent Oil Company?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik Convenience Stores) is a West Texas- based company, thirty five years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

★Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
★Intensive new hire training
★Paid vacations
★Structured continual management training
★Sick pay program
★Flexible scheduling
★Tuition reimbursement program
★Full and part time hours available
★Special incentive programs for all employees
★Work close to home
★Affiliation with Odessa 66 credit union
★Profit-sharing and retirement program

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. Most of our current Store Managers, middle and upper management, started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give KENT OIL your consideration. Please apply Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at:

3314 N. Loop 250, Midland

Pre-employment drug test required. EOE
