THE PAMPA NEWS

PAMPA, TEXAS

May 17, 1995

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Evening!

LOCAL

PAMPA — A 22-year-old Pampa man was released from an Amarillo hospital today after being treated for injuries suffered in a one-vehicle rollover Tuesday night.

Michael Thomas Holt, 22, of Pampa, was released from Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo this morning after being treated for injuries suffered when his pickup rolled north of Pampa Tuesday night.

Department of Public Safety officers said Holt was northbound on Texas 70 almost 17 miles north of Pampa in Roberts County when his 1994 Chevrolet pickup truck swerved off the east side of the highway shortly before 9 p.m. Tuesday. The pickup then crossed the highway to the west side and then back to the east side of the road, officers said. The pickup rolled two and a quarter times, striking a five wire fence and coming to rest on its left side.

Holt was taken to Coronado Hospital in Pampa by Miami EMS ambulance, then by Medi-Vac to North-west Texas Hospital by helicopter, authorities said.

PAMPA — Students at Pampa Middle School will be having an Art Show from 6-8 p.m. Thursday.

The show will be held in the conference room, located on the north end of the building by the school cafeteria.

The show will contain three choices of each student's best work, including such selections as portraits, masks, stained glass, weaving and others.

Serving as judges will be members of the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

The public is invited to drop by and view the exhibits.

PAMPA — The Pampa High School choir will be presenting their annual Variety Show at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

Solos, duets, skits and each choir will be featured in a wide variety of music.

Admission price is $2.

PAMPA — Farm to Market Road 282 at U.S. Hwy. 60 in Pampa will be closed Thursday and Friday.

The closing is for Santa Fe Railway to complete maintenance work on the railroad crossing at FM 282.

PAMPA — Head Start registration for Baker Elementary School will be held Monday, May 22, at the school from 8:30-10:30 a.m. and 12:30-2:30 p.m.

Head Start is a preschool early childhood developmental program. To qualify, a child must be four years old on or before Sept. 1 and the family must meet income guidelines. Head Start also extends services to handicapped children.

To register children, parents or guardians must bring the child's birth certificate, income verification and up-to-date shot records.

PAMPA — Pampa Police Department is to be honored with a certificate of appreciation from Sen. Phil Gramm's office during Law Enforcement Appreciation Week.

Regional director Hans Klingler from Sen. Gramm's Amarillo office will recognize the department at 4:30 p.m. Friday in city commission chambers, third floor of City Hall.

Five other Panhandle police departments will also be recognized.

Storm brings 1.18 inch of moisture to Pampa

A line of severe thunderstorms rolled across the Texas Panhandle early this morning, dumping over an inch of rain in some spots and packing winds in excess of 50 miles per hour.

Heavy rain, high winds and pea-sized hail pounded Pampa for about half an hour beginning at 3:15 a.m.

Water filled the Hobart Street underpass by 3:30 a.m. The Pampa Police Department reported 2 to 3 inches of water had drained into parts of its basement office at City Hall.

The storm darkened a large section of western Pampa and knocked out the traffic signal at the intersection of Hobart and Kentucky Streets. Southwestern Public Service crews restored power by 5:54 a.m.

SPS manager Ernest Ramirez said 1027 customers were without power after lightning struck a utility pole cross arm at Price Road and Kentucky. Power was out for about 2 1/2 hours, he said.

The electrical outage also left the Sammon's Communications cable system in Pampa without power and out of service.

Pampa officially received 1.18 inches of rain, according to KGRQ-KOMX meteorologist Darrell Sehorn.

The thunderstorm activity developed in eastern New Mexico beginning at 10 p.m. Tuesday and then moved north-east. Most of the Panhandle was placed under a tornado watch at 1 a.m.

The National Weather Service office in Amarillo issued severe thunderstorm warnings for Gray, Carson, Randall and Armstrong Counties.

Armstrong County residents were warned to hurry for cover early today as the National Weather Service reported a tornado in the clouds over the Panhandle county southwest of Pampa.

Officials in Armstrong County seat of Claude said the tornado apparently never touched down as a severe thunderstorm came rolling through about 2:30 a.m. today.

"It was right over my house 15 miles southeast of Claude," said County Judge Hugh Reed. "I'm sure it was there. About the time the sheriff's office called, it got quiet and still. It just didn't touch the ground."

Heidi Davis with the county Extension office in Claude said she recorded an inch and a half of rain overnight at her home west of Claude.

"I heard some light hail," she said, "but I haven't seen any damage. There's no tree limbs down in town or anything."

Weather officials reported dime to golf ball sized hail between Canyon and Happy in Randall County as the storm moved through there earlier in the night.

Betty Treadwell in Groom said the sirens went off early this morning as the storm moved through that community.

"We had to go to the cellar," she said.

Glen Smith of Groom reported 1.20 inches of rain and no hail. Amarillo reported an official 0.64 of an inch of rain this morning.

Moran Shuman, Dean Wyatt and Donna Huff all agreed this morning that the storm dropped an inch and a half of rain at White Deer. Paulette Paul of White Deer said pea-sized hail struck her house about 3 a.m. today on the north side of White Deer.

Jody Bradford, Carson County Extension agent, reported today that Panhandle received about 0.80 of an inch of rain while south of Panhandle got about an inch and a half. About an inch fell between Amarillo and Panhandle.

Conway reported two and a half inches of rain. There was no report of damaging winds or hail.

School board sets Title VI fund hearing

Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the library of Pampa High School, 111 E. Harvester.

A public hearing will be held on Title VI, Innovative Education Program Strategies, formerly known as Chapter 2 block grant.

According to the board agenda book, the school administration is recommending Title VI funds for 1995-1996 be expended for support services, supplies/material, teacher training and needed equipment.

The administration is expected to recommend the district contract with Region XVI to provide bilingual/English as a Second Language services, technical assistance for ESEA Title I, Title VI Elementary and Secondary Education Act services, cooperative purchasing program, curriculum/staff development, gifted/talented services, Head Start services, management leadership training, media services, special education services, state compensatory technical assistance, and Title II math and science services.

Also for consideration are requests for waivers from Texas Education Agency for Wilson, Mann and Travis elementaries.

The waiver request from Wilson Elementary asks the agency to permit the school to allow it to eliminate the use of traditional report cards in kindergarten and first grades.

The waiver request from Horace Mann Elementary asks TEA to allow teachers to assign E, S, N or U grades in science and social studies for grades 1 and 2.

The waiver request from Travis Elementary asks TEA to allow teachers to assign S, N, or U grades in science and social studies for grades 1 and 2.

Another agenda item asks the board to consider an alternative accreditation plan for Pampa Learning Center.

Public comments will be heard at 7 p.m.

Memorial trees

Jack Nichols, with Your Lawn and Garden of Pampa, plants a sapling at the Caprock Apartments in Pampa. Eleven trees were planted at the complex by Nichols and B.J. Champion in memory of the children who died in the Oklahoma City, Okla., bombing April 19 of this year. Nichols said his children were the ones who came up with the idea of planting the trees in memorial. Janice Bellah, Caprock Apartment manager, suggested to Nichols that they plant them at the apartment complex.

Two teens who escaped boot camp face car theft charges after capture

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

CANADIAN - Two teenagers were to be returned to Miami and Canadian today to face car theft charges following their escape from the Hemphill County Juvenile Boot Camp and Detention Center in Canadian last night.

Les Brown, facility administrator at the boot camp, said today that two 14-year-olds broke out of the center about 10 p.m. Tuesday while a group of inmates were being moved within the compound.

Brown said local law enforcement authorities were notified and the detention center's staff was called in.

"We notified the sheriff's office, called in staff and went looking for them," Brown said.

The administrator said the duo were at the boot camp for non-violent crimes including car theft, multiple runaways and criminal mischief.

"We don't have violent criminals here," he said.

One of the two was captured about 6:30 a.m. today in Amarillo while the other eluded authorities for another hour and a half, officers said. The two were being held for Roberts and Hemphill County authorities by Amarillo police this morning.

Officers in Miami and Canadian were today investigating the reported theft of two cars in connection with the escape.

Curtis Dalton with the Roberts County Sheriff's Department said today that a 1984 Oldsmobile was reported stolen in Canadian about the time the two escaped. It was recovered early this morning in Miami.

"The steer column was busted," he said. "They didn't have any keys."

Roberts County law enforcement officers said they were called shortly after 4 a.m. today with a report of a stolen 1988 Camaro.

"We put out a teletype on it," Dalton said, "and Pampa came back and said they had run the tag about 3:30."

Amarillo police department spokesman Lisa Cherry said a security guard in the 1400 block of Amarillo Blvd. East saw two youths in the Camaro shortly after 5 a.m. today parked in the parking lot of the J.O. Wyatt Clinic. The guard recognized the car as one that had been reported stolen in Miami, Cherry said. As the guard approached the car, two youths fled, heading north to a trailer park. The guard called police who brought a canine unit to the area.

Brown said one of the two youths was captured about 6:30 a.m. while the other eluded police until almost 8 a.m. today.

The pair were being held at noon today at the Potter-Randall County detention center south of Amarillo, Cherry said.

Dalton said the two would be returned to Roberts County today and charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle before being taken to Canadian to face similar charges in Hemphill County.

Police Chief Chuck Fleming will be a judge for the bike show and Chamber of Commerce Gold Coats will welcome riders from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

With good weather, over 100 bikes are expected.

Thornberry says water bill will be good for district

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers, ranchers, local governments, businesses and taxpayers in the 13th District will gain from Tuesday's passage of the Clean Water Act amendments, said U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry.

The House of Representatives approved H.R. 961 Tuesday evening by a vote of 240 to 185. Thornberry voted for the bill, saying it would continue to keep the nation's water resources clean, but will not allow federal bureaucrats to micromanage the way Americans use water.

Key parts of the bill affecting the 13th District include a comprehensive reform of the nation's wetlands policies and greater regulatory flexibility for municipal governments to manage and control storm water.

"Overall, Clean Water laws have worked well to protect the nation's water resources," Thornberry said. "But, as usual, the federal government has gone overboard in expanding the Clean Water Act to areas that were never intended. That's why farmers in the 13th District now risk having the government declare playa lakes on their property as untouchable wetlands, even if they are wet only a small part of the year."

"This silliness must stop, and the bill we passed Tuesday will help," Thornberry said. "Under this bill, a more stringent test will be used to make sure the government can only declare as wetlands those areas that are sensitive water resources needing protection."

Accidents

Pampa Police Department reported the following accidents in the 24-hour reporting period which ended at 7 a.m. today.

TUESDAY, May 15

3:30 p.m. — A Ford pickup was in collision with a 1993 Ford driven by Ocie Diana Kirkland, 29, 820 Beryl, at the intersection of West Kentucky and North Hobart. The accident report is not complete.

WEDNESDAY, May 16

3:15 a.m. — A 1995 Ford pickup driven by Johnny Lee Threadgill, 1804 Hamilton, struck a brick wall owned by Charles Hollaway, 1101 Gwendolen, at 2300 N. Hobart. Damage is estimated at $500.

Dingus said that urban dwellers are losing touch with their rural roots, and her rural background helps her find stories for the magazine. "You never know where you might learn a lesson," she said. "Growing up in Pampa fueled my history and folklore work." Dingus is a 1971 PHS honors graduate who lives in Austin. Her most recent work in Texas Monthly was a collection of 600 frequently used country sayings.

Texas girl dies on ride at Epcot

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — An autopsy was being conducted on a 4-year-old girl who died on a ride at Disney World's Epcot '95 amusement park.

Linda Elaine Baker of Galveston, Texas, was flown to Orlando Regional Medical Center after fainting on Body Wars, a bumpy, 4 1/2-minute ride that simulates a trip into the human body. She died Tuesday evening.

The cause of death was not immediately known.

Linda was wearing her seat belt and sitting next to her mother when she slumped in her seat, said sheriff's Deputy Carlos Espinosa.

A Disney employee monitoring the ride by closed-circuit camera stopped the ride and called paramedics, police said. Two nurses on the ride performed CPR.

Disney spokesman Rod Madden said he wasn't sure how quickly the paramedics responded, but "it certainly was quite rapid."

State officials shut down Tyler-based Christian medical program

FORT WORTH (AP) — Operators of a Tyler-based program that allowed Christians to share medical expenses has been temporarily shut down by the Texas Department of Insurance.

The state department got Judge Wendy Ingham Hunn to issue an emergency cease-and-desist order Tuesday to temporarily shut down the All Saints Program, saying the program amounts to an unauthorized insurance company.

Jack Prater, owner of the program, said the order infringes on program members' freedom of religion and will be appealed.

An Austin judge is expected to rule in a few weeks whether the program which has 5,000 members, including 3,000 in Texas, should be permanently closed.

The program, which has no link with Fort Worth's All Saints Episcopal Hospital, began in 1991 as a vehicle for its members to share medical expenses. Membership is open to Christians only.

Members are required to pay a monthly amount, similar to a premium, based on the number of people in the program, and the number and amount of medical claims filed that month by the group.

Prater and his wife, Patsy Prater, claim in advertisements in various Christian publications, that the All Saints Program is not an insurance plan and is less expensive for families than insurance.

"The program is based upon voluntary participation with individuals, more in the nature of a pledge like tithing," rather than a contract, said John Hamje, an Austin attorney representing the Praters.

The Insurance Department responded to a complaint by a former member of the program by concluding that the Praters were operating an insurance company without a license.

The law is clear. If it looks like insurance, acts like insurance and works like insurance, it's insurance, no matter what you call it," said Charles Cliett Jr., a state attorney.

A Comanche County couple's complaints triggered the state investigation.

Daylon and Paula Dunn complained that the Praters reversed their decision to cover Paula Dunn's maternity expenses after they found out that the baby would have a birth defect.

The Praters, who determine coverage for the plan's members, had already made two payments for Dunn's maternity expenses when the decision was reversed.

The Praters "were very sorry" to terminate the Duns' coverage but they discovered she was not eligible for the plan, Hamje said.

Hamje said the program is a fellowship for Christians and is protected by the First Amendment.

"All Christians are mandated to share the burden of other Christians," he said, comparing the program with a church building fund or a church offering.

State officials and Cliett allege that the Praters have withdrawn nearly $400,000 from the program in the past 2 1/2 years. Hamje said that money paid the Praters' salaries, their son's salary and administrative expenses.

CRP signup period begins

The signup period for Conservation Reserve Program extensions begins this week in Gray County.

Farmers and ranchers with Conservation Reserve Program contracts that expire Sept. 30 have the option to modify all or part of the CRP-1 to extend the expiration date for a period of one additional year at the same per acre payment rate.

Gray County Consolidated Farm Service Agency officials said the signup period runs through June 2. It applies only to contracts expiring in September.

There is also an early release option for producers with other

CRP contracts. This option allows CRP participants to release all or part of their acreage under CRP-1 before the expiration date without penalty, providing that an approved conservation plan is established through the NRCS office if the land is to be converted to crop production.

Rental payments will stop on the date early release is approved by the county committee and will be prorated for the period of the year prior to early release, county officials said.

The signup period for early release is also May 15 through June 2.

Senate panel finds cause Packwood harassed women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee today found "substantial cause" that Sen. Bob Packwood "may have abused his United States Senate Office" through alleged improper sexual misconduct toward more than a dozen women.

With its finding, the committee launched a formal inquiry that could include public hearings.

The committee also found that Packwood may have violated

Senate rules and possibly federal law by intentionally altering the contents of his private diaries after he knew the committee would want them.

The committee said that Packwood may have misused his Senate office in trying to procure jobs for his wife through lobbyists and businessmen who had a stake in legislation. At the time, the Packwoods were going through a divorce, and his wife's employment would have lowered his alimony payments.

The resolution details 18 instances of alleged sexual misconduct through a period roughly 1969 to 1990.

Packwood, emerging from a Senate Finance Committee hearing this morning, told reporters, "At last, I will have a chance to have a hearing."

His office issued a statement in which Packwood said:

"The committee has concluded the first phase of its investigation as Senate ethics rules require.

Now I will have an opportunity to request an appearance before the committee to discuss the matter.

"Beyond that, these proceedings are confidential and it would be inappropriate for me to comment further at this time. I shall continue to cooperate with the committee."

In the past, Packwood has apologized for "terribly offensive" conduct toward women.

The document makes no final judgment or recommendation. Packwood, an Oregon Republican, has the right to respond.

Carthage school trustees suspend teacher after rabies exposure

CARTHAGE, Texas (AP) — School trustees have suspended a junior high science teacher with pay through the end of the school year for allowing his students to examine a sick bat that turned out to be rabid.

Meeting in executive session Tuesday night, the Carthage school board discussed the incident with science teacher Herman Reed Jr. before announcing the suspension in open session.

A woman who answered the telephone at Reed's home Tuesday night said he would not comment on the suspension.

Reed and dozens of students began undergoing a series of monthlong rabies inoculations last week because up to 200 students handled the bat, and at least one of the students kissed it, officials said.

Dr. Mike White of Tyler, a veterinarian for the Texas Department of Health, said he has been staying in close contact with the Carthage schools.

"I spoke to them today, and to this point, including the teacher, there are 80 who have taken it.

There's a possibility of one more student who hasn't really made up his mind of whether he wants to take it or not," White said Tuesday.

The school district is underwriting the expense of the inoculations. White estimated the cost at $650 per person, or a total of approximately $52,000.

White said after the initial dose, another shot of the vaccine is administered on day 3, day 7, day 14 and day 28.

The episode began on May 2, when a Carthage Junior High School seventh-grade student who found the bat showed it to school classmates and it ended up in the science classroom.

The bat died and the school nurse referred it to a local veterinarian, who sent it off to an approved laboratory in Houston, where the bat tested positive for rabies.

The vaccinations should ease the rabies scare, White said.

"There's always some risk with any vaccine because no vaccine is 100 percent effective. But there's never been a recorded case of a human coming down with rabies after going through the post-exposure rabies treatment," White said.

Alice Davis, also with the Department of Health office in Tyler, called it the largest mass rabies vaccination she has seen.

"It's very unusual to have more than a couple of incidents from exposure to a single animal," she said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Finding hope amid bomb's aftermath

There will be plenty of time to sift through evidence that is sketchy to determine what forces, trends and motives might have contributed to the vicious plot to blow up the Alfred P. Murrah federal building in Oklahoma City. The implications, if any, for future public policies, will also be discussed at length, with varying degrees of cogency.

For now, our main concern should be for the victims of this terrible deed. Those who were killed cannot be returned, and no mere expression of sympathy can afford sufficient consolation to their loved ones. Not even the rough semblance of justice our system provides can begin to compensate for this loss or offer explanations consonant with the occasion. The plaintive cry of those who lost friends or relatives - why? why? why? - might never be answered completely.

But one thing is clear. The primary responsibility for this outrageous and unconscionable act of terrorism lies with those who did it - with those who purchased the fertilizer and fuel oil, who acquired the truck, who applied what they had learned, from whatever sources, to combining these otherwise innocuous substances into a bomb with the most destructive possible power, who drove the truck to the sidewalk, who left it there knowing it would not only damage property but kill and maim hundreds of people.

There can be no apology or excuse for such a purposeful, vicious, heartless act of destruction. The perpetrators, all of them, should be tracked down and prosecuted, whoever they are and whatever their purported reasons. They will be held to judgment by their Maker, of course, but they should also be held accountable before the law.

Some people have expressed an especial anguish that preliminary investigation suggests that this was the work not of foreign terrorists but of native-born Americans. This initial reaction is understandable but might not aid understanding.

In every society can be found people with a twisted sense of - whatever - who are capable of such foul misdeeds. When they commit them, it is not "America is doing it to herself" or that this society has lost its innocence at last. Certain particular people have committed an abominable act. They are the guilty ones (assuming their guilt is, indeed, proven), not society at large.

If any good has come from this despicable, cowardly deed, it is embodied in the outpouring of love and material assistance that has flowed to the victims and to Oklahoma City. This is far from a perfect society, but it is in many ways a great and good society that is filled with and nurtures good people. The vicious amongst us, disturbing and frightening as they continue to be, are still but a tiny minority in a sea of essential decency.

"How did the class warfare situation go today, dear?"

Viewpoints

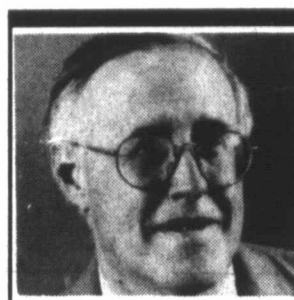

Abortion and Dr. Henry Foster

Cozy, establishment Republicans, outside and inside the U. S. Senate, may squirm uncontrollably whenever the word "abortion" enters the debate over whether to confirm Dr. Henry Foster as surgeon general. Too bad. Abortion is the core issue in the Foster controversy. Not the precise number of abortions he performed. Not the confusion he strewed in providing that number.

The question is abortion and why we supposedly need as surgeon general a man who, in person, has extinguished unborn life. A full-time, part-time or sometime abortionist should be considered unqualified to function as the nation's family doctor.

Is this a harsh and uncharitable thing to say as the Foster debate kicks off? Foster himself seems nice enough. His personal dignity far exceeds that of the last S.G., Joycelyn Elders - but, then, whose dignity wouldn't? An organization with which he is involved touts to teenagers the value of sexual abstinence. Far from liking abortion, he "abhors" it. Fair enough?

Actually not. Because the thing he abhors, he does - or anyway, used to do. He has acted contrary to the Hippocratic Oath and to ethical and moral tradition. He has done this - why? Because seven justices of the U. S. Supreme Court gave permission. That was all it took: a show of hands in a conference room; a written legal rationale; seven signatures. What was barbarous up to January, 1973, when Roe vs. Wade came down from on high, suddenly was fine, if not wonderful and heroic. Dr. Henry Foster is caught in the middle of it all - a physician not without moral scruples but unwilling to lean hard on those scruples in the face of Evolving Truth. It is proper to feel sorry for a man who found a brightly wrapped gift - the surgeon generalship - in his lap, only to put his ear to the box and hear a loud ticking sound. It would be anything but proper to make this man our country's chief medical spokesman.

Bad enough is a surgeon general, like Elders, who lends intellectual support to abortion. Far worse would be a surgeon general who, with his own hands, had performed abortions. If the tone-deaf Clinton White House wonders why there is so much dissonance over Foster, here is the reason. Pro-life people regard his hands as unclean.

Foster, to be sure, has his backers. Pro-choice Americans would be more embarrassed to have a phrenologist as surgeon general than an abortionist. These see Roe vs. Wade as determinative. Relax, everybody; this abortion thing is legal!

In fact, a lot of bad things are legal, such as hatred, envy, malice, lying, backstabbing and drinking the last cup of office coffee without making a fresh pot. This doesn't mean we want to encourage such activities.

With abortion, the matter is worse, because, up until Roe vs. Wade, society was more or less united on the proposition that unborn human life merited society's protection. The Hippocratic Oath, mentioned above, abjured abortion. Religious tradition condemned it. An older breed of feminist saw abortion as the kind of thing to which a man resorted after he got a poor girl in the family way. (Cf. Theodore Dreiser's An American Tragedy.)

Nor has society changed its view quite as radically as abortion righters would like us to think. A Roper Poll last year, done for Focus on the Family and the Family Research Council, said that 55 percent of Americans object either to all abortions or to many of them. The Clinton administration - as usual - has felt the elephant's tusk and decided what the whole beast looks like. Because everybody the Clintons know is prochoice, everybody is pro-choice, and isn't it wonderful?

Self-styled "moderates," especially in the GOP, would like to change the whole subject. Thus, Foster may attract some Republican support. But the subject can't be changed. It's as big a question as our society wrestles with. Republicans, who nominally control the Senate, can and should vote with clear consciences against Foster. Or if not - what are these people doing up there anyway?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, May 17, the 137th day of 1995. There are 228 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 17, 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its landmark "Brown versus Board of Education of Topeka" ruling which declared that racially segregated public schools were inherently unequal.

On this date:

In 1792, the New York Stock Exchange was founded by brokers meeting under a tree located on what is now Wall Street.

In 1814, Norway's constitution was signed, providing for a limited monarchy.

In 1875, the first Kentucky Derby was run at Churchill Downs in Louisville. The winner was "Aristides."

In 1938, the radio quiz show "Information, Please!" made its debut on the NBC Blue Network.

In 1938, Congress passed the Vinson Naval Act, providing funds for a two-ocean navy.

A white professor takes on black crime

John J. Dilulio Jr. doesn't look like your average Princeton professor. This is no pipe-smoking, tweed-clad philosopher. Dilulio, young and burly, looks more like a cop. And, in fact, he comes from a family of cops.

This is a strength. For, in addition to his brilliance, Dilulio is armed with a street-level picture of the problems he addresses. An expert on crime, particularly black crime, Dilulio is too close to the flame to be accused of ivory towerism.

He lives just outside Philadelphia within three minutes of one of the highest-crime neighborhoods in America. He has written that "America does not have a crime problem; inner-city America does." And he is impatient with those who believe that treating black criminals harshly is somehow inimical to the interests of blacks in general.

Criminals, especially the pathological variety our family-less culture has been producing in the last generation or so, cannot be rehabilitated, reformed or saved, Dilulio believes. They are the bitter fruit of loveless, abusive unions of unsocialized people. Having received nothing, they are without human compassion. They kill and rape without mercy or remorse. They can only be incapacitated by prison.

And "black America's silent majority" - the majority of black Americans who are tax-paying, law-abiding, working citizens - deserve to be protected from these predators.

A black male teenager is 6.2 times more likely to be the victim of violent assault than a white teenager. In 1990, Dilulio reports, 42 percent of Pennsylvania's crimes occurred in Philadelphia, which contains only 14 percent of the state's population. And the majority of those crimes were committed in just a few neighborhoods. Nationally, 54 percent of black children worry a lot or some of the time about being attacked, and 27 percent of black children (vs. 5 percent of white) think it is likely that they will be shot.

Since inner-city residents cannot take the steps that white suburbanites have taken to "hard-target" their homes, workplaces and neighborhoods (fences, locks, security systems, private guards), they must rely on what Dilulio calls "the incredibly thin blue line." Most big-city police departments do not allocate police based on the crime concentration in given neighborhoods. Moreover, only a tiny fraction of the police force is actually engaged in street patrol. In New York City, only 6.5 percent of the force is on the streets.

In Washington, D.C., the police are not well represented in high-crime neighborhoods but are highly visible around government buildings and in more prosperous areas of town. Inner-city residents who fear crime thus cannot rely on having a cop around when they need one.

Dilulio would put more cops on the streets in the most dangerous neighborhoods (something President Clinton's much-touted "100,000 cops" would not have done). But first, he would reform the criminal justice system so that predatory criminals, adult and juvenile, would stay in jail for a very long time. After all, if you put more cops on the streets but fail to nail shut the revolving door of justice, you won't accomplish much.

Finally, Dilulio proves better than anyone in the public debate on crime that there is no inconsistency between being tough on criminals and looking at root causes. Many conservatives are dismissive of root causes talk because they think it amounts to justification for criminality.

It needn't, and in Dilulio's hands, it doesn't. The plain fact is that of the most vicious criminals we produce, nearly all come from the same kind of environments: no father, an incompetent, abusive and frequently drug-addicted mother, and a chaotic, violent neighborhood. If the existing child welfare laws were merely enforced properly, the children who are being abused and neglected at ages 2, 3 or 4 - who typically are sent back again and again after "interventions" by social workers - could be removed from their "homes" and either placed for adoption or put in group homes run by religious, inner-city residents. By that step, we would prevent an ongoing crime (the abuse of that child) as well as thwart the creation of one more rapacious criminal.

For Dilulio, this isn't just social science, it's his community - and it's ours too.

The 'Un-American' exposés in New York publications

I call on all the friends of Rush Limbaugh - talk-show host extraordinaire - to divert him from any contact whatsoever with a recent New York magazine. The magazine's management, with the utmost slyness, is attempting to hoodwink Limbaugh into helping the publication outsell its competition in the New York magazine market, namely the New Yorker, WWD and Yankee. His picture is included with those of a half-dozen other noted conservatives on the magazine's gaudy cover, under the screeching headline "The Un-Americans." Now, of course, the management hopes an indignant Limbaugh will protest to his 22 million listeners and, hesto presto, thousands of curiosity-seekers will buy the magazine. Rush must not fall for the bait!

The point of the article, written by Jacob Weisberg, is that Limbaugh, Newt Gingrich and other representatives of the conservative majority are in various ways responsible for the anarchists who lay plans to destroy the federal government and - who knows? - teach woodcrafts and taxidermy at Harvard. The Weisberg article's argumentation relies on various sophistries that undoubtedly will convince those New Yorkers who live in two-room studio apartments with their cats, summer in the arboreal wilds of Queens and take themselves to be "urban intellectuals." They will read with alarm and insight passages from Weisberg such as this: "A few months ago, a memo from GOP political consultant Frank Luntz advised Republicans to 'focus the general rhetorical attack on the Washington bureaucracy' because bureaucrats don't have friends." That's scary.

Incidentally, that passage appears on a page

dominated by an advertisement promising reasonably priced "breast reduction" by the ever-popular Dr. James J.

Reardon. Near Reardon's smiling and bespectacled head are gigantic pen-and-ink sketches of breasts: before (large and frightening) and after (not so frightening). The text is more straightforward than Weisberg's article: "If you experience discomfort in your back or shoulders caused by the weight of your breasts, or feel self-conscious about your breast size, you may want to consider a breast reduction."

Now, Weisberg is not a stupid fellow. Nor is he the stuffy professorial writer that this awkward piece makes him out to be. He has, however, been given a difficult task - namely, to out-yokel the New Yorker. That magazine's current issue connects the Republican party, Rush Limbaugh and my own gruesomely depicted America Spectator with obscure and violent groups in an essay that is absolutely sensational. After reading it, no New York City pinhead will ever again cross the Hudson River. Even New Jersey will be deemed "militia country." The dope-fetcher responsible for the piece, Adam Gopnik, traces car-bombers back deep into American history. Anyone who thought international terrorism was rooted in exotic Islam or Arabism is in error. Gopnik tells his credulous readers that the whole thing began in the American Wild West in the last century. Keep the kids away from those old John Wayne movies!

The fans of Clint Eastwood could be dangerous!

Actually, it is fair to terrorize the declining remnant of the New York intelligentsia in this way? While they gaze into their television sets, awaiting war-zone bulletins from Iowa or an impending invasion from the Idaho Militia, the fact is that their apartment buildings might be burning beneath them, ignited by a passing urban mob. Down below, the health-food emporium, the vegetarian book store, the Christian Science Reading Room might be being looted by a nocturnal civil-rights demonstration. Cities are still dangerous places. For God's sake, you can get mugged in New York City at midday. I know the muggers rarely speak of the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, but I am willing to bet hard currency that they are as unwilling to part with their weapons as the militiamen and their Republican allies. They might be even more critical of government and the arts.

When I read Weisberg's screed entangling Republicans with militiamen and Gopnik's far superior essay into sophistry and hysteria, frankly, I was amused. Intelligent observers know that the management of New York think not for a minute that any serious connection can be drawn between killers and Republicans, between anarchists and advocates of limited government. Even television's talking heads probably have some inkling that the current Danger On The Right stock story, linking Limbaugh with criminals, is a bit of a stretch. But the funny thing is that the rank-and-file liberal, so, called, absolutely swallows it. The liberals have become everything they claim to disapprove of. Calling fellow Americans "Un-American" was once the tactic of the reactionary bigot.

Everson

She has an older sister, Jenny, who is 21 and a younger brother Phillip, who is 16. Everson is an active member of Zion Lutheran Church and a senior at Pampa High School.

Throughout her high school career Everson participated in D-FY-IT, FCA and DECA. She is also a member of National Honors Society. She received the Outstanding English III award her junior year.

Everson participated in choir three years and Concert Choir for one year. She was also a member of the golf team for three years. She was awarded Outstanding Golfer of the Year her junior year, and was on the First Team All-District her sophomore and junior years. Also during her junior year, Everson was chosen Who's Who in Sports.

Through DECA she is employed part-time at The Pampa News as a proof-runner. She also participated in the DECA District and State competitions in the Fashion Merchandising Promotion Plan event.

She was chosen as an alternate in the event for the National DECA competition.

Everson was nominated and elected Homecoming Queen for the 1994-95 school year. The senior class chose her as Most Beautiful for the Senior Personalities.

She plans to attend Amarillo College and major in radiation therapy or radiology.

Misty Scribner, Pampa Lions' Club Sweetheart for September, is the daughter of Billy and Cathy Scribner.

Scribner

She represented the Pampa Lions' Club in the Amarillo Tri-State Fair parade.

Scribner's activities and awards have included: serving as student body president of the Pampa High School Student Council; varsity basketball for two years; serving as captain of the basketball team her senior year; being awarded the Hustling Lady Harvester Award for the 1994-95 season; varsity soccer for three years; All-District Soccer team in her sophomore year; junior varsity cheerleader for one year and varsity cheerleader for two years; member of the Teen's Needing Teen's program; recognized in Who's Who of American High School Students for two consecutive years; elected "Most Talented Girl" of her senior class; and homecoming queen nominee.

Scribner also likes to tap dances, barrel race and water ski. Scribner will graduate in the top 25 percent of her class with an Advanced with Honors Diploma.

She plans to attend Texas Tech University and major in Pre-Optometry and would like to practice in Pampa.

Shanda Winton, the Pampa Lions' Club Sweetheart for November, is the daughter of Joe Winton. She has a sister, Ashley, who is nine years old and a brother, Miles, who is seven. Winton is a member of Zion Lutheran Church.

Winton

During high school, she participated in many organizations. In the past she was involved in volleyball, basketball, FCA, and Key Club. She recently was involved in Concert Choir, Show Choir, National Honor Society, and D-FY-IT. Winton is also a member of Student Council and is secretary of her class. She was selected to be a member of National Honors Society where she is secretary of this organization.

She has been in choir all four years of high school and has been a member of Show Choir and Concert Choir for two years.

During her junior and senior year Winton tried out for All-Region Choir and made ninth chair out of 84 Altos each year.

She also was selected All-Area Choir where she made ninth chair. Winton participated in Solo and Ensemble for four years and each time received a perfect score of one.

She was elected president of Concert Choir this year.

Winton was nominated for Homecoming Queen for the 1994-95 school year, and was also nominated and awarded Miss Harvester.

The Senior Class of 1995 chose Winton as "Best All-Around" in personalities.

Winton has been employed by Dyer's Bar-b-que as a hostess since June of 1994.

After graduation Winton plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock and major in music.

Tracy Bruton was chosen as the April Sweetheart by the Pampa Lions' Club.

Bruton

After graduation, she plans to attend Simmons University in Abilene and study music and business.

Bruton will graduate in May with Advanced with Honors diploma in the top 15 percent of her class from Pampa High School.

She works part-time at Kids Stuff and Footprints. Some of her activities have included: D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth In Texas); Latin Club; National Honor Society; Show Choir; concert choir vice-president; Fellowship of Christian Athletes; First Baptist Youth and Youth Choir; Trinity Fellowship Youth; T-N-T (Teens Needing Teens); Student Council; senior class representative; UIL competitions; volunteer for Department of Human Resources; and past member of PHS Golf Team and the Science Club.

Bruton's high school honors and awards include 1994 Baptist All-State Choir 1991-92 TMEA All-State Choir and Outstanding Junior Choir Student.

She is the daughter of Dan and Brenda Tucker and Jim and Linda Bruton. They have lived in Pampa for 18 years.

Ellen Depee was the October Sweetheart for the Pampa Lions' Club.

Depee

Depee's activities and honors during high school include: choir; Solo and ensemble contest for three years; voice lessons; church choir for two years; world history award during her sophomore year; and D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth In Texas).

Throughout high school she has maintained a GPA of 3.3 or above.

She is a member of the National Honors Society and is a peer tutor with handicapped and learning disabled high school students.

She plans to attend the University of North Texas in Dallas and major in pediatrics nursing and pursue masters degree.

She would like to pursue a career in pediatrics nursing in the Dallas/Fort Worth metroplex area.

Depee has one sister Sarah Depee, who teaches second grade in Fort Worth.

Her mother Jeanne Depee teaches third grade at Lamar Elementary in Pampa and her father Ralph Depee has a private practice of orthodontics in Pampa.

Readers Have Timely Advice For Tardy Friends and Guests

DEAR ABBY: You missed it in your answer to the woman who complained about the chronic lateness of her mother and younger sister.

People who are always late don't merely need to know how one feels about their lateness; they need help. A friend of ours who was always late was urged to get psychiatric help — which she did — and she became a completely different person. Not only did she change her ways, she became a very happy and outgoing individual.

Sometimes the chronically late need to obtain help, and they should be strenuously urged to do so.

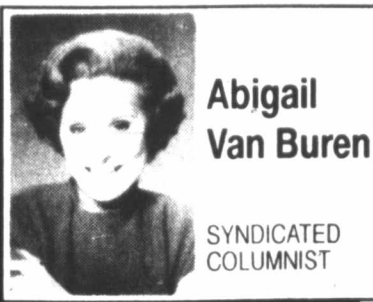

BARTLETT BURNS,
OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR MR. BURNS: You make an interesting point, and one worth considering. That letter must have touched a nerve, because it stimulated a ton of mail. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Had It in Cincinnati," whose mother was always late: Start the events without waiting for the late ones! I've done it. Or, tell them to come an hour and a half before you want them to show up. That also works.

But do not depend on them. And don't let them spoil your day. Only you are responsible for your own happiness.

AURELIE HOWARD,
BROOKINGS, ORE.

Abigail Van Buren
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: My reply to "Had It in Cincinnati" would have been to tell her mother and sister that a 6 p.m. celebration was actually an hour or so earlier. I have tried it, Abby, and it works!

LAURA IN SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years, when the stress was getting too much and I was late to every social event, my solution for my grown family was as follows:

I asked them not to tell me the actual time of the event, but to name a time somewhat earlier. I would still be late, but not as late as I would have been if they had told me the correct time.

Perhaps this will help the hosts to stay within their comfort zones — and the stressed-out victims will be able to relax a bit, too.

DOROTHY CALENDER,
SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law was the reverse. She would come an hour earlier than she was expected. Consequently, we started telling her to come to our home one hour later than we wanted her for dinner. That way we had time to get the table prepared and ourselves dressed. It worked — and my mother-in-law and I remained good friends.

MRS. C.G. LEVY, LAS VEGAS

DEAR ABBY: I had the same problem with my best friend. She would not just be one hour late; she would be three or four hours late. At first I got worried. Then I got angry. Now, if I want her here at 5 p.m., I tell her to show up at 2 o'clock sharp. It works like a charm. She's "on time" now — and I don't freak out!

RELAXED IN TEMPE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, had finally had it with my in-laws who were always late. I laid down a firm rule: Dinner is at 6 p.m. Those present eat; those who are tardy will have to fend for themselves. If we are eating dessert when they finally arrive, they have to scrounge around the kitchen and do the best they can, because I do not get up to wait on them any longer.

Surprisingly, they began to arrive on time! "Had It" needs to be firm. If guests can be rude enough to be habitually late, you can be aggressive enough to go on with your plans.

FEELING BETTER IN DALLAS

Horoscope

Thursday, May 18, 1995

In the year ahead, two secret desires you've been nurturing could now be fulfilled. Hold fast to your dreams, regardless of the circumstances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In involvements with peers today, do not discount your ability as the decision maker. Your conclusions will probably be based upon more realistic factors than those of your companions. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a strong possibility that you can acquire something you want through a source you seldom use. Go to this individual today before going to anybody else.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your assessments today are composed of equal parts logic and intuition, you'll be on target. If one of these factors is absent, your conclusions will be iffy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will have substantial resolve to draw upon today if conditions warrant. You can now take care of two complex matters that you've been reluctant to attempt.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This will be a good day to make a congenial effort to reciprocate if you have fallen behind on a social obligation to a friend. Balancing the account can be fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) With some prudent and practical adjustments today, you can rearrange your financial position to help you get more mileage from the dollars you spend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It might be necessary to take a firmer position on an issue you feel strongly about today. Do not be intimidated, even if there are more against you than with you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions continue to trend favorably for your material interests. Even though you might not see immediate results, they could be in the offing.

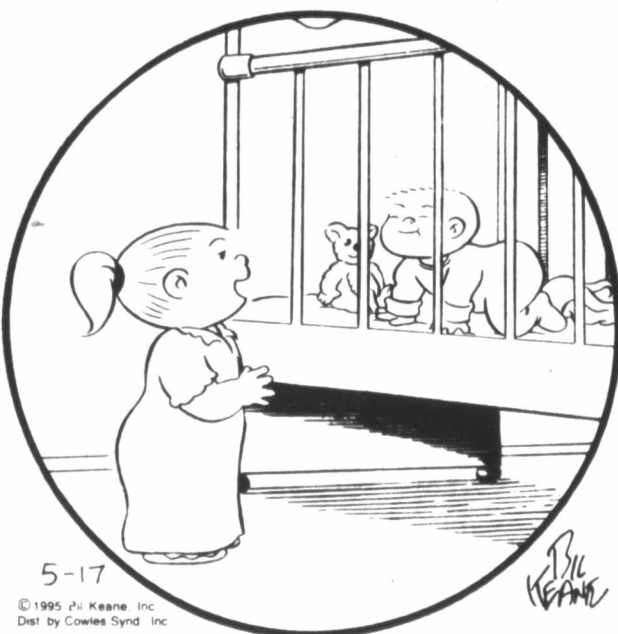

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Starting today, try to cultivate a relationship with someone you recently met whom you would like to know better. This association has possibilities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some secrets might be uncovered today that could allow you to further your personal ambitions very effectively without hurting anyone in the process.

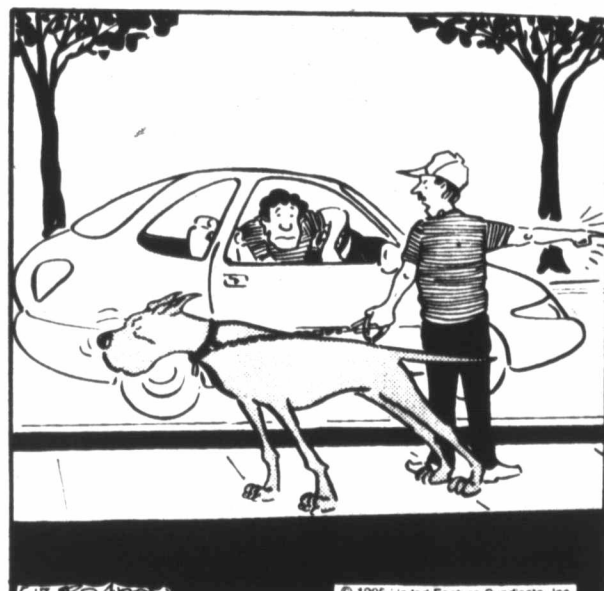

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Use your imagination today, as this could enable you to see opportunities where your peers see only problems. Your point of view will be the right one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might be in for a pleasant surprise when something that appeared extremely negative suddenly shifts gears to something quite opportune.

BASEBALL

PAMPA — The Harvester Baseball Banquet will be held Friday night, starting at 7 p.m. in the Starlight Room at the Coronado Inn.

Tickets are available at the high school athletic building on Wednesday from 2:30 until 4 and on Thursday from 8 to 9:30 and 2:30 until 4.

PAMPA — Three inside-the-park home runs helped Moose Lodge to a 22-12 win over Thomas Automotive.

Blake Helms, Ryan Zemanek and Zack Hood each hit the homers in the 9-10-year-old league game played last weekend. Helms had three hits, including a triple. Zemanek had two hits while Matthew Robben, Nicholas Story and Zack Hood also had hits.

Nick Knowles, Tommy Abernathy and Chris Arnold led Thomas in hitting.

Zemanek, the winning pitcher, struck out four and walked six. Zack Hucks, the losing pitcher, gave up six hits while striking out four and walking nine.

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — The Top O' Texas Basketball Team Camp will be held next month at McNeely Fieldhouse.

The camp, conducted by Pampa head basketball coach Robert Hale, will be divided into two sessions. The first session will be June 11-16 for 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th graders as of the 1995-96 school year. The second session will be June 18-23 for 3rd, 4th and 5th graders as of the 1995-96 school year.

Camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. the first week and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the second week.

Tuition for the camp will be $75 (a $35 deposit will be accepted). If campers haven't registered yet, they need to on May 18 from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the high school gymnasium. Registration may be conducted through the mail or in person to coach Hale.

DALLAS (AP) — Saying that with hard work anything can be achieved, guard Jason Kidd today became the first Dallas Maverick to win the NBA's Rookie of the Year award, tying Detroit forward Grant Hill in balloting.

Each player received 43 first-place votes out of a possible 105 from media members. The pair are the first co-winners of the award since Boston's Dave Cowens and Portland's Geoff Petrie shared it in 1970-71.

"My teammates are a big reason why I won this award," the 22-year-old Kidd said. "They are all part of this award. It feels great to win because I had set this as a personal goal on draft day. And it shows if you work hard, you can achieve anything."

Kidd started 79 games, averaged 11.7 points and led all NBA rookies by finishing among the league's top 10 in steals (1.91) and assists (7.7) per game. He also had four triple doubles, all within a three-week span in April.

He's the first Maverick to win any sort of a prestigious NBA award since Roy Tarpley was voted Sixth Man of the Year in 1988.

Mavericks coach Dick Motta said Kidd deserves the honor.

"He's got star written all over him," Motta said. "He works hard, he plays hurt, he's coachable, and he's a lot of fun to watch. Barring serious injury, he has a serious chance to be All-Pro."

Hill, the top overall vote-getter for the All-Star Game, had been the frontrunner for the award. He averaged 19.9 points, 6.4 rebounds and 5.0 assists in 70 games for Detroit, which finished eight games better than last season at 28-54.

The Mavericks could have drafted Hill in last summer's draft, but they instead chose Kidd.

Kidd had a slow start, but wound up the season with impressive numbers and dazzling play.

Rockets remain alive in playoffs

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX (AP) — The Houston Rockets have played in so many elimination games, they seem immune to the pressure.

"We're still alive, and there's got to be some things going on in their minds now," coach Rudy Tomjanovich said Tuesday night after the Rockets defeated the Phoenix Suns 103-97 in overtime of Game 5 to stay alive in the Western Conference semifinals. "We're coming after them."

The Rockets ran their record to 6-0 the last two years in playoff games in which a loss meant elimination, but the Suns still lead the best-of-7 series 3-2, with Game 6 in Houston on Thursday night.

Hakeem Olajuwon, who had 31 points and 16 rebounds, believes the Rockets can come all the way back in the series, the way they did after Utah took a 2-1 lead in the first round.

"The ball is back in our court. We have new life and new energy," Olajuwon said.

"It's a tough loss for us. They did what they had to do to find a way to win," Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said.

Olajuwon scored the final basket of regulation, a turnaround jumper from the lane, to tie it 92-92.

He scored again 23 seconds into overtime, but Charles Barkley tied it 94-94 for Phoenix with 3:43 to play. Robert Horry's 3-pointer gave the Rockets the lead for good with 3:12 to go, and Horry got a rebound basket with 2:01 left, putting Houston ahead 99-96.

"You've got to go out and play," said Horry, who had 11 points and 11 rebounds and did a good job covering Barkley, sometimes with help from Chucky Brown. "There's no time to sit back and relax like it's the regular season."

Kevin Johnson scored 28 points and Barkley had 17 points and 20 rebounds, but missed 11 straight shots in one stretch, including all seven in the second half and one of two in overtime.

"I think we took some shots we shouldn't have, and tried to make some passes we shouldn't have," Johnson said.

Kenny Smith scored 21 points for the Rockets.

A.C. Green had a playoff career-high 20 rebounds to go with 11 points, and the Suns had a huge rebounding edge (68-49), but couldn't offset their 17 turnovers, which resulted in 19 points for the Rockets.

Both teams shot 38 percent, but the Rockets, with Smith hitting 5-of-11, had the edge with 10 3-pointers, double the Suns' total.

It was the Rockets' first playoff win in three games at the America West Arena, where they won both games during the season.

The Suns missed 13 of their first 17 shots in the fourth quarter and finished with 13 points in the period. But Dan Majerle hit a go-ahead 3-pointer with 2:42 left, giving the Suns a 91-90 lead.

Houston was in the throes of a seven-minute scoreless spell, but the Suns weren't able to capitalize because of Barkley's second terrible game in the last three.

Barkley was scoreless in the second half before making a free throw that gave the Suns a 92-90 lead with 17 seconds left. Olajuwon tied it with eight seconds left.

The Suns led 79-76 going into the fourth quarter, and had won 47-of-49 games in that situation.

But they scored just two points in 7:47 after Green's dunk gave them an 86-82 lead with 10:29 left.

Green had 11 rebounds in the first quarter.

After he got his ninth, Green passed to Barkley, who dunked to give the Suns a 16-11 lead with 4:06 to play. But referee Eddie F. Rush hit Barkley with a technical for hanging on the rim.

Smith made that one, then another when the Suns picked up their second delay-of-game call.

Olajuwon then made four baskets in 1:28, and the Rockets went ahead 21-20. They held the lead most of the second quarter, but Phoenix used a 9-2 run for a 51-49 halftime lead.

Bucks' Coffey sets school record in 1600-meter run

By L.D. STRATE

WHITE DEER — They say records are made to be broken and White Deer senior Duane Coffey certainly accomplished that task at the state track meet last weekend in Austin.

Coffey won the bronze medal (third place) at in the Class 1A 1600-meter run and set a new school record with a time of 4:31.93.

"Duane ran a real good race and had a very competitive time. In fact, his time would have won in 2A," said White Deer coach Tom Johnson.

Sabinal's Willie Garcia, a three-time state champion in both the 1600 and 3200, edged ahead of Lindsey's George Lutkenhaus and Coffey down the stretch.

"The pace was real slow until the last lap and that was probably not in Duane's favor. The conditions were bad as far as handle people go. It was very hot and humid and Duane just wasn't used to that type of weather," Johnson added.

Garcia was clocked at 4:31.11 while Lutkenhaus just ahead of Coffey at 4:31.45.

This was Coffey's second trip to the state meet. He finished fourth in the 1600 a year ago.

Coffey, an all-state basketball player, sprained an ankle during the regional tournament and missed three weeks of the track season.

"He got a late start and still performed very well," Johnson said. "I'm real proud of him."

Coffey qualified for the state meet by winning the regional title at Levelland. He won four other meets during the season.

Canadian netters turned in strong showing at state

CANADIAN — Canadian's Tisha Carr and Hilary Brown were grasping for the gold at this year's state tennis tournament, but the championship medals were just out of reach. They still wound up a respectable third in the girls' Class 2A doubles in Austin.

Canadian's Tisha Carr and Hilary Brown made a strong showing in this year's state tennis tournament, taking third place in girls' Class 2A doubles. And the best could still be to come since Carr is a junior and Brown only a sophomore.

Carr and Brown opened the tournament by outlasting highly-regarded Mandy Cole and Tameka Ethraim of Franklin, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, in a match that was delayed for almost an hour because of rain.

"Franklin had a real good team," said Canadian coach John Hiemstra. "They've been to state before and lost a close one. It was a long, close battle against them and it was the best match of the year for our girls. They played great."

In the semifinals against Mason's Chel Bearden and Erin Lumpkin, they had trouble finding their rhythm, Hiemstra said. The Mason pair won, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2.

"They missed some shots early and just kind of lost their confidence. I think the heat and humidity took some of the aggressiveness out of them. We won the second set, but just couldn't get the third one," Hiemstra added. "Third place in state, though, is still very good."

Bearden and Lumpkin were beaten by their own teammates, Courtney Grote and Kaye Lynn Schmidt, in the finals.

Grant sparks Magic win over Bulls

By WENDY E. LANE
AP Basketball Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — For the Orlando Magic to close out their series with the Bulls in Chicago, they will need all the poise they can muster. If anyone can give it to them, Horace Grant can.

The veteran's leadership is a principal reason Orlando has a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals and is in a position to win it Thursday.

Grant scored 24 points and had 11 rebounds Tuesday night in Orlando's 103-95 win and is averaging 20.4 points and 12 rebounds in the series. Again and again, he has picked up his young teammates when they were on the verge on falling apart.

"I think he has been their MVP," Michael Jordan said of his former teammate. "He gives them consistent play every game."

When the Magic got off to a dreadful start Tuesday night, Grant was the one hitting his shots, because Chicago's double teams on Shaquille O'Neal left him open.

And his maturity helped Orlando come back strong in the second half. The Magic controlled the tempo, beat the Bulls to loose balls and dominated the boards.

Grant was one of four Orlando starters to hit for 19 or more. O'Neal scored 15 of his 23 points in the second half and had 22 rebounds and five blocks. Dennis Scott scored 22 points and Anfernee Hardaway 19.

"It was a whole team effort," Grant said. "It's what we need to win a championship."

The Bulls, meanwhile, got 39 from Jordan and not much from anybody else. During the series, a good game for Jordan has usually meant a poor one for his teammates.

This time, Scottie Pippen added just 10 and Toni Kukoc had another one of his off nights, scoring five. B.J. Armstrong had 18.

Leading 78-70 at the end of the third quarter, Orlando stretched the lead to 11 early in the final period. Jordan scored six straight points to cut it to 89-83 with 4:56 to play, but Chicago went almost three minutes without a field goal after his layup with 3:25 remaining.

"Momentum just seemed to keep building their direction," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said, "and we just couldn't seem to stop the momentum once it got going."

Hardaway's jam over center Bill Wennington gave Orlando a 95-85 lead at the 3:02 mark and took the last bit of wind out of the Bulls. Chicago called timeout, and Hardaway bounced back to the Magic bench pumping his fist in celebration.

It was a big turnaround from the first half, when the Magic missed layups, put-backs and open jumpers. O'Neal even botched a dunk, bouncing the ball off the rim and sending it bounding past midcourt.

Orlando misfired on its first nine shots of the game, then started the second quarter 2-for-15. O'Neal and Nick Anderson struggled the most, with O'Neal hitting only two of 12 field goal attempts and Anderson going 0-for-6.

"That was the first time in a long time that I was off," O'Neal said. "I was trying to get to the line, and trying to get my game going and my free throws weren't falling. I was really off."

Roy Don Stephens of Pampa practices for the Pampa Partnership Tuesday at the Country Club. Stephens will team with former PHS golf star Corey Stone in the 2-man lowball tournament.

Courses in good shape for Pampa Partnership

PAMPA — The 1995 Pampa Partnership 2-Man Lowball Golf Tournament is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday and will again be played on two different courses.

The first round of the tournament will be played at Hidden Hills Golf Course and the second round will be played at the Pampa Country Club.

"Both courses are coming along real well. We could use a little more warm weather to get the bermuda grass growing, but everything's in good shape," said Pampa Country Club head professional Mickey Piersall.

The unusual format of using two courses for one weekend tournament seems to be popular with the golfers, Piersall said.

"A lot of local people seem to like playing both courses and we also have a lot of people from Amarillo, Borger, Canyon and other places playing in it. The tournament is a real good opportunity to show people both of the courses. It's a good promotional tool for Pampa," Piersall added.

Richard Lundy and Butch Turner of Borger are the defending champions.

The tournament is sponsored by The Pampa News to help benefit the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Retail Trade Committee.

Entry fee is $65 per person, which includes both courses and a buffet Saturday night at the Pampa Country Club.

The field is limited to the first 72 teams paid and players will be pre-zoned according to handicaps and past performances. Two flights will be formed out of each zone for Sunday's round.

Tee times at both courses are expected to be around 8 a.m. Saturday.

Tournament entry deadline is today at 6 p.m. To enter, call 669-5866 or 665-8431.

SWC tournament starts Thursday

DALLAS (AP) — Regular-season champ Texas Tech and three other Southwest Conference teams battle beginning on Thursday for an automatic spot in the 48-team NCAA baseball tournament.

The SWC holds its 18th and penultimate postseason baseball tournament at Pat Olsen Field in College Station. Play will continue through Saturday or Sunday, depending upon whether a seventh game is necessary to decide the champion.

Texas Tech is guided by 1995 Associated Press Coach of the Year Larry Hays and have six first team All-SWC players. The Red Raiders appear to be the favorite after winning the SWC regular-season crown for the first time in 28 years.

The victor in the SWC tourney gets the automatic bid for the conference, though, and the Red Raiders will have to get past Rice, Texas and Texas A&M.

Caffey resigns
at White Deer

WHITE DEER — Stan Caffey, head football coach and athletic director at White Deer, has resigned his positions to take the head coaching job at McCamey, Caffey said Tuesday.

In the past five years, Caffey posted a 27-22-1 record during stops at White Deer and Claude. The Bucks had won only two games in two years when Caffey took over at White Deer. Two years later, Caffey guided the Bucks to the district championship. Claude had lost 24 straight games when Caffey took over and led the Mustangs to a 4-6 mark. Before he left, Claude was ranked as high as No. 16 in the state.

"The panhandle was good too us, but this area is like home to me. I grew up around the Permian Oil Basin and I felt like this was a good opportunity for me," Caffey said.

Caffey was at White Deer for three years. "I really appreciated the hard work of my coaching staff at White Deer and the support of Mr. Kenneth Cox (principal) and Mr. Larry Johnston (superintendent)," he said.

Caffey will be looking to rebuild the program at McCamey.

Only two other teams in the Permian Basin — Odessa Permian and Wink — have won more games than McCamey in the 1980's, but since that period the Bulldogs have fielded mostly average teams. McCamey, a Class 2A school, was 1-9 in 1993 and 5-4 last season.

"In the last six years McCamey has lost its winning ways. I guess maybe that's why they were interested in me," Caffey said.

Caffey replaces McCamey head coach Mark Howard, who resigned.

Athletics pound White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Mark McGwire extended his hitting streak to a career-high 13 games, going 2-for-2 with a go-ahead home run Tuesday night as the Oakland Athletics beat the Chicago White Sox 7-1 in a game shortened to five innings.

Steve Ontiveras (3-1) allowed one run and three hits in five innings as Oakland won for the sixth time in seven games.

Jason Bere (0-2) was tagged for seven runs and eight hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Umpires called the game after a rain delay of 1 hour, 3 minutes in the top of the sixth.

1 Public Notice

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners Court of Gray County will accept proposals from Certified Public Accountants to conduct an independent audit of the county's various financial records for calendar year 1994. Sealed proposals will be received until 10:00 a.m. on June 1, 1995 in the County Judge's office, Gray County Courthouse, Pampa, Texas. The audit is to include the receipt and disbursement of all funds for each officeholder's office, if any. Examination of the accounting records should include such tests as to detect irregularities, falsification, or illegal acts, if any. Proposals shall set forth the standard hourly rates, estimated hours by rate classification and a maximum dollar amount for all services and materials to be billed. Ten copies of each report are required for the county. Payment to be made upon completion of all work and acceptance of the audit reports and opinion letter. The county reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive objections based on failure to comply with formalities and to allow correction of obvious or patent errors.

Prospect cloudy for major clean water rewrite legislation in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-passed rewrite of the nation's premier clean water law faces an uncertain future in the Senate where moderates are expected to balk at its rollback of wetlands protection and easing of pollution controls on industry.

The House passed the sweeping legislation by a 240-185 vote Tuesday after supporters argued the 1972 Clean Water Act is too costly to industry and local governments, gives too much power to federal bureaucrats and is unfair to property owners.

The bill was denounced by Democratic and Republican moderates, as well as the Clinton administration, as an extreme measure that would roll back two decades of water quality improvements. But it gained the support of a solid coalition of 195 Republicans and 45 Democrats, many of whom complained about the impact wetland protections are having on farmers and other landowners.

But Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee and the bill's chief sponsor, characterized opponents as "extreme environmentalists" and derided suggestions that water pollution would be increased.

"The people at the local level have a better understanding of their water quality affairs than self-important bureaucrats in Washington," Shuster insisted.

The legislation would revamp the federal government's protection of waterways from urban, industrial and farmland pollution, giving local officials a greater say in meeting water quality standards.

Rep. David Bonior of Michigan, the No. 2 Democrat in the House, said the changes "turn back the clock" in protecting lakes and streams from polluters and "fundamentally weaken one of the nation's most successful environmental laws."

Bonior said he expected a presidential veto if the bill should survive the Senate and noted the margin of victory — though substantial — was short of what would be needed to be veto-proof.

The bill was expected to have a tougher time in the Senate, where Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., chairman of the Environment Committee that would consider the bill, views it as far too extreme. Any comparable bill in the Senate also probably would face a Democratic filibuster.

Of all the House bill's provisions, the section on wetlands attracted the most controversy and most heated debate.

The bill would narrow the definition of a wetland, requiring that surface water be found on the land for 21 consecutive days before it can qualify for protection. The National Academy of Sciences in a report released recently said such a definition has no scientific basis and would leave many legitimate wetlands unprotected.

Prosecutors' genetic case very sound

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before being tested for DNA, the infamous bloody glove found on O.J. Simpson's estate was turned inside out. Now, the same might be said of the defense's case, according to legal analysts.

DNA tests showed that Ronald Goldman's blood was found on the lining of the leather glove discovered the morning after the killings, a scientist testified.

The genetic tests also suggested that another stain on the glove was a mixture of blood from Goldman and Nicole Brown Simpson, said California Department of Justice scientist Gary Sims.

Sims was the first witness to place both victims' DNA in blood evidence collected at Simpson's multimillion-dollar estate. He was to return to the stand today for a second day of testimony.

The state crime lab's analysis of blood on socks lying at the foot of Simpson's bed also confirmed a private lab's conclusion that the blood came from Ms. Simpson.

Legal analysts said Sims' testimony was an effective complement to last week's presentation by Robin Cotton, director of the Cellmark Diagnostics lab, who presented test results showing Simpson's blood in drops at the crime scene and Ms. Simpson's blood on the socks.

"The mountain of damning blood evidence linking Simpson to these crimes is getting higher every day," said UCLA law professor Peter Arenella.

Defense lawyers say Simpson was home alone when his ex-wife and her friend were knifed to death June 12 outside Ms. Simpson's condominium. They have suggested that police framed Simpson by planting his blood at the crime scene or on the socks in the lab.

In testimony designed to cast doubt on the claim that blood was planted, Sims noted that many of the drops on the socks were microscopic. He also said he saw no evidence of blood passing through one side of the sock to the other, as it might if blood were placed on it while the sock was lying flat.

Legal analysts said the back-to-back testimony by the DNA scientists has made the conspiracy theory less credible.

"When a conspiracy takes on so many facets, then it becomes less plausible," said Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley. "There are just too many people, too many complications, too many variations, too many opportunities for things to go wrong, too many people to keep their mouths shut."

Farm, ranch operators to be surveyed in June

AUSTIN — During the first two weeks in June, the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will be surveying farm and ranch operators to estimate the acreage of crops that Texas farmers have planted or intend to plant for harvest in 1995.

The survey will also be used to determine the midyear number of cattle and calves, hogs and pigs on hand and the quantity of grain stored on farms.

About 7,500 farmers and ranchers have been randomly selected to represent Texas agriculture.

"This means that information will not only represent the selected producer, but other farmers and ranchers who have similar operations," State Statistician Dennis Findley said. "To obtain an accurate picture of Texas agriculture, we depend on voluntary cooperation of farmers and ranchers. Information collected on this survey will be kept confidential and used only with other reports in setting state and national estimates."

Survey results will be published in late June.
