HEDLEY SINGERS

Hedley singing class meets next Sunday, May 28 at the West Baptist Church as usual; singing to begin at 2:30. Let's all turn out and make this the best one yet. Everyone come and bring some one with you.

Mrs. E. R. Hooker and daughter, Bettye, and Mrs. Frank Simmons spent last Thursday and Friday in Turkey with Mrs. John Adamson. Mrs. Hooker and Bettye furnished accordion and saxophone music for a club meeting Thursday and a P. T. A. social Friday.

Mesdames John Adamson, A. V. Hendricks and Denver Powell of Turkey visited here Tuesday.

R. W. Ferrell of Vernon was an overnight guest in the Richmond Bowlin home Wednesday night.

O. E. S. Installation

The O. E. S. Chapter 143 will hold its installation of officers for the coming year Monday evening May 21, at 8 o'clock, at the Masonic hall. Both the outgoing and incoming Worthy Matrons request a full attendance at this meeting. It requires full cooperation of any organization to achieve success. So all come and start the new year with full attendance.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

May we give you six dollars?

NOT in cash, of course. We're speaking of its equivalent. But here is something for you to consider: Every year this newspaper brings you at least three outstanding novels in serial form. Purchased as books each would cost not less than $2, making a total expenditure of at least $6 per year. Like yourself, we could find plenty of uses for that $6. Some member of the family is always in need of a new pair of shoes or some other necessity. But at the same time your requirements for good reading material must be met. By accepting these three novels each year we feel you are treating yourself to real enjoyment, at the same time giving your purse a substantial boost. These novels are a source of constant pride to us. Every year we select them from the season's most outstanding best sellers, offered in serial form by a large newspaper syndicate organization. We'd like to feel that you—as a subscriber—always look forward to reading the coming installment in the next issue. It gives us a great satisfaction to know that here is another reason why our paper is popular in the home. You are invited to begin reading our novels now. These regular brief visits to fictionland will prove a delightful interlude from your work-a-day activities. And it will make us happy to know that you are getting enjoyment from them.

Senior Play Day

At 8:00 o'clock Saturday morning May 15, seventeen wide awake Seniors, Mrs. Cannon, Mr. Harmon and Mr. Kirkpatrick boarded the school bus en route to Dripping Springs. About 4:30 the darkness was pierced by the boom of a "blow out". We were not hungry when we arrived about 6:45 therefore we explored the spring and surrounding canyons before cooking our bacon and eggs. Everyone rushed through with his coffee and oranges in eager anticipation of what the morning held in store for him. After killing six snakes and climbing until we were practically exhausted, we again decided that we were hungry. Through smoke filled eyes we saw steaming plates of fried potatoes placed on the table with cheese, pickles, tomatoes, bread, iced tea and cake. We put our English 4 project into practice without the aid of a brief, debate. "Shall we swim or go to Amarillo." The judges rendered their decision, and to Amarillo we went. Fred Astaire's tapping and Ginger Rogers' singing in "Shall We Dance" prepared us for a homeward journey.

Highlights of our Seniors

As we near the close of our tenure in Hedley high school, we naturally reflect upon the qualities of our class members which make them outstanding. Our gleanings are these:
Jimmy Alewine, a resolute character who always kept his own council.
Theresa Bain, the one of us who could write and declaim.
Inell Biffe, who always smiled warmly, even during examinations.

Sue Beth Edwards, who with her elegant physique thrilled the audience as she stepped on the basketball court.
Beatrice Hansard, an independent character who could concede to the wishes and wills of others and yet make high grades.

Carmen Adamson, whose dark mystic eyes make us wonder how to fathom their depth.
Willis Thomas, who has the courage to carry his point.
Fred Wells, who can sing his thoughts even if he can't express them in a complex sentence.

Jackie Ransom, whose drawing penell paves his way to recognition.
Winfred McPherson, who really can shoot a goal from the center of the court.
Ues Holland can handle complex difficulties, even Latin phraseology.

Thelma Tate's congeniality helps in any situation.
Dorothy Land, our neatest seamstress and best cook.

Stephen Milner, whose determined will and strong constitution made lasting speech honor for our school.

Lawrence Hannicutt, who has the strategy in debating of Julius Caesar.

Fred Watt, with his solemn humor and originality stimulate the laughs of our entire class.

Sybil Holland, the one of us who has gone to Austin to participate in the Interscholastic League work.

Glenn Milner, a cooperative member who always fits in at a needed time.

Clyde Laurence, whose fine personality was the envy of all of the lads.

Olen Plank, the able reporter who wrote the basketball news for the Hoot.

Opal Monroe, whose light hearted and fun loving spirit makes her the center of attraction.

Who's Who in 1937

Fred Watt, the mischievous youngster, is now a noted scientist and inventor who invented the revolving television.

Thelma Tate, perhaps you won't remember her by that name, but who is now Jean Harlow, is known to millions.

Beatrice Hansard, now Mrs. Ues Holland, does social work while her husband works out mathematical formulas.

Fred Wells, Willis Thomas and Lawrence Hannicutt are well remembered as the Big Three of the American Peace Movement.

Carmen Adamson, the timid little girl, has now done one great deed of daring. She is a great aviatrix.

In a few days, Opal Monroe will marry her eleventh husband. The lucky man is Jackie Ransom, a popular poet of the time.

Two of the most famous radio comedienne of the day are Sue Beth Edwards and Inell Biffe.

Winfred McPherson and his wife Theresa Bain, are now managing the White House.

Dorothy Land has become the most famous of clothing designer. Stephen Milner is Federal Coordinator of Industry in President McPherson's Cabinet.

The new president of the University of Chicago is Glenn Milner.

Probably you have read the new book "Minds in Conflict". This glorious book was written by Sybil Holland.

Perhaps you didn't know it, folks, but all of these famous people were members of the graduating class way back in 1937.

Honor Students of Senior Class Announced

The Valedictorian and Salutatorian of each class is chosen by averaging all the grades of each senior during his four years in high school. The Valedictorian for the senior class of 1937 is Theresa Bain, having an average of 92.28. The Salutatorian is Sybil Holland, with an average of 92.21. These students will receive their honors Friday night, May 28 at the commencement exercise of their graduating class.

Caviar Canape
1 can of caviar
1 egg
1 tablespoonful of lemon juice
1 tablespoonful of onion juice
Bread for toast according to the number to be served.
Spread the caviar on round piece of toast. Then spread on this the yolk of the egg which has been hard-boiled and run through a sieve. Season with the lemon and onion juice, although the latter is a matter of personal taste and should be used at the discretion of the individual. Trim the edges with the grated white of the egg and garnish with small piece of tomato.

GAS PRESSURE MAY CAUSE DISCOMFORT.

RIGHT SIDE BEST.
If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adierika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly. Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. The first dose of Adierika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

Many, Many Women Say Cardui Helped Them

By taking Cardui, thousands of women have found they can avoid much of the monthly suffering they used to endure. Cramping pains, nagging pains and jangled nerves can be relieved—either by Cardui or by a physician's treatment.

Besides easing certain pains, Cardui aids in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food. Cardui, with directions for home use by women, may be bought at the drug store. (Pronounced "Cardui.")

Silk Prints Lead the Style Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

JUST one dazzling, color-gloried silk print after another is what's happening in the fabric realm this season. The new prints are more fascinating than ever, and try to resist them and do you? You do not. The urge for another and another in your wardrobe ever keeps on keeping on.

To add to the excitement, couturier and dressmaker are devising ways of making up these silks that are so artful and fraught with such high-pressure novelty the world of fashion is being cast into new throes of enthusiasm every time a style parade of last-minute costumes is staged.

A favorite treatment is pleating and when you pleat printed silk you multiply the beauty and intensity of its coloring to a thrilling degree. The all-around pleated skirt is a favorite topic with designers who are styling the new gowns of silk print. Even if you are making your dress yourself it is a good idea to have the skirt pleated, and it is almost a certainty that you will be pleased with results. The charming dinner dress to the left in the picture is fashioned of a water color print silk crepe with separate jacket and pleated skirt.

Another dressmaker treatment adding untold interest to print ensembles is the self-print lining. To achieve a maximum of practicality and wearability these coats with linings matched to the print of the frock are made reversible. You turn them inside out and vice versa. See the idea nicely worked out in the model centered in the group. The silk print is highly colorful and the monotone cloth of the coat repeats the background tone of the print.

Then there is this reigning vogue of the bolero. Dressmakers and designers are turning out the bolero frock of silk print in vast numbers. You'll love a print silk bolero frock. Flattering it will prove to be and practical. See the model to the right in this group. Here is a bolero frock of feather silk print. The dark grounds such as this with wide-spaced motif are especially smart and attractive and wearable. The bodice buttons to a high neckline. The bolero has peaked shoulders and elbow sleeves. Note the red silk chiffon handkerchief in the buttoned pocket of the bolero. The circular skirt of the dress has emphasized creases. The straw bonnet has flowers massed at the front. Which calls to mind another feature designers are emphasizing, that of having flowers somewhere in the picture that are related in color to the print of the silk. This may be a corsage, a gay posy cluster at the new low of a neckline or it may be a bouquet played up in conjunction with a vivid gypsy sash tied at the front.

One of the outstanding innovations in the realm of print silk costumes is the redingote fashioned of matching print, the small figured being smartest for day wear. This redingote, while it tops off the dress of self print to a dramatic climax, will prove one of your happiest possessions to be worn as a separate coat or wrap over the monotone crepe dress on cool spring days and later on serving admirably as a summer wrap worn with dainty lingerie frocks.

It is good style, too, to wear over your navy or crepe afternoon dress either a bolero of eye-impelling silk print or a hip-length jacket if you prefer. The latter should be slightly fitted to be up to the mode and they are especially smart when buttoned down the front.

The silk print idea enters into every phase of fashion this season. You are encouraged to wear gay print from the tip of your head down to your feet.

BLUE TAFFETA

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fancy turns to the southern-belle type of dress for evening wear. Here is a charming specimen of the quaint and picturesque type that is proving such a general favorite. It is made of silk taffeta in a delectable soft-toned medium blue. Young girls are showing a preference for sprightly taffeta and they love the way the little puff sleeves stand up in lively taffeta manner. Square necklines are much in evidence this season. This one is accented with rhinestone and enamel flower pins and there is a matching bracelet.

GLOVES TO MATCH YOUR SPRING SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Cloth gloves to match spring suits are the latest news from Paris. An extra piece of material, ordered when the suit is bought, can be made up in any size or style, short or with deep gauntlet cuffs. Square fingertips are another innovation. The finger may be stitched at sides and straight across the top, giving a casual, out-of-doors look, especially popular in gloves of doekin or chamois.

Half-finger gloves, which made their appearance last winter in the guise of lace mitts to go with gowns of the southern belle type, are now an established vogue. They are shown in pigskin and chamois for sports wear, and in suede for dress. The gloves extend as far as the finger-joint, revealing brightly polished nails. Very convenient when it comes to picking up a dropped coin, fitting a key or writing out a check. Polish in cardinal or burgundy may be worn to match or contrast with the gloves.

Further independence in glove fashions is exhibited in the unconventional treatment of seams along the back of the hand. These vary from two or three seams running across instead of up and down, to one crosswise seam with two short ones in the usual direction.

Tiny Watches Are Fitted to the Latest in Gloves

Small jeweled watches are being worn everywhere but on the wrist these days. Some of the new tailored suits with heavy cuffs have a small detachable watch encased over the left wrist.

Many of the new cigarette cases have small watches fitted on the outside, while purses and gloves that are fitted with watches have been shown for several months.

Is Overweight a Disease?

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

JUST as yellow fever, malaria, diabetes, pernicious anaemia and other "incurable" diseases have been conquered in recent years by our scientific research physicians, so also will obesity—overweight—be conquered within the next few years.

For, after all, obesity is really a disease—some deficiency somewhere in the body—just as with diabetes and pernicious anaemia.

Time after time metabolism tests have been made of overweights (that is the rate at which the body processes work) and except in a very few thyroid or gland cases—perhaps 2 or 3 in every 100—the body processes in overweights were not working any slower than in those of normal weight.

Dr. G. Hetenyi, in German Archives of Clinical Medicine, thinks that there is something wrong with the collection and distribution of fat in the bodies of those who are overweight. He investigated the mobilization or gathering together of the fat at the depots or storage places in overweights and in normal individuals, when both types were eating insufficient food for their needs. He found that there was something wrong or different with the way fat was gathered and stored in the bodies of overweights.

Then he studied the way the fat and the normal individuals handled the blood rich in fat from food, and observed that the tissues of overweights have a great avidity—eagerness or desire—for fats that enter the blood stream. In other words as the blood rich in fat passed through the tissues of fat individuals, these tissues were "hungry" for fat and so a great amount of the fat in the blood was taken from the blood and stored in the fat tissues. On the other hand in those of normal weight, their tissues did not seem so hungry for fat and so the fat laden blood passed through without leaving much if any fat.

What an Investigator Learned.
Dr. Hetenyi also studied the relation between fever and fat mobilization from the deposits of fat, the action of dehydration (cutting down on liquids) on the fat in the blood, and finally the resorption into the blood of fat put under the skin by a hypodermic needle or syringe.

He found out that the increase in the blood fat (fat taken from the fat depots) was slight in overweights, was less than in those of normal weight. This means then that during an illness when there is an increase in the temperature of the body, the tissues of overweights did not give up as much as did those of normal weight.

And finally the blood in overweights did not take into itself as much of the fat that was placed in the body by the hypodermic needle as did the blood in those of normal weight. It practically left this extra fat stay where it was.

The conclusions drawn from the above experiments are that the mobilization or collection of fat from its storage depots—the skin, the liver, in and about the abdominal organs—is reduced in overweights, whereas their absorption of fat from the blood passing through their tissues is greatly increased.

In other words, fat individuals take more fat from the blood when fat is being eaten, and less from their depots when no fat is being eaten than do the tissues of those of normal weight.

Overweight—obesity—is therefore a disease of fat mobilization—the way fat is gathered and distributed. Now while this knowledge that their tissues are "different" in the way fat is handled in the body—whether the fat is due to eating starch or fat foods—may make overweights feel a little less responsible for their increased bulk, nevertheless there is no reason why they should not reduce their weight.

Gall Bladder Disorders.

It has been definitely proven that two of every three individuals have more or less disturbance in the gall bladder and yet the number of cases that actually require draining or removal of the gall bladder is very small.

Dr. R. F. Carter, New York City, in Annals of Surgery, says that during a period of four years in studying patients having disease of the gall bladder the medical and surgical clinic of the New York Post Graduate Hospital has gradually come to realize the importance of changes in the size and shape of the gall bladder. In patients with definite gall bladder symptoms—pain in the upper right abdomen, gas on the stomach, nausea, tenderness in abdomen—even when the X-ray showed no stones present and the gall bladder filled and emptied normally, real disease was found at operation.

to the Housewife

Butterscotch—Two cups brown sugar, four tablespoons molasses, four tablespoons water, two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons vinegar. Mix ingredients in sauce pan. Stir until it boils and cook until brittle when tested in cold water. Pour in greased pan. Cut into squares before cool.

Jelly Sauce—One glass jelly (cranberry, red currant, grape, etc.), quarter cup hot water, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour. Add hot water to jelly and let melt on stove. Heat butter in saucepan, add flour and gradually hot jelly liquid. Cook until smooth and serve hot over almost any pudding.

Stuffed Orange Salad—Allow one orange for each person to be served. Cut through the skin three-quarters of the way down in inch strips, being careful not to break the strips apart. Remove orange pulp and cut in neat dice. Combine with pineapple and grapefruit dice and fill orange shell with mixture. Drop a spoonful of heavy mayonnaise on top of each salad and garnish with a maraschino cherry. Another good mixture for stuffing the orange shells is a combination of orange sections, dates stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats. Mask with mayonnaise.

To Remove Threads—When basting sewing material, try placing the knots of the thread on the right side. They will be easier to pull out when the garment is finished.

Washing Table Silver—Much of the work of polishing table silver can be saved if the silver is placed in hot soapsuds immediately after being used and dried with a soft clean cloth.

Melting Chocolate—Chocolate is easy to burn, and for that reason should never be melted directly over a fire. Melt it in the oven or over a pan of hot water.

Boiling Old Potatoes—Old potatoes sometimes turn black during boiling. To prevent this add a squeeze of lemon juice to the water in which they are boiled.

Hanging Pictures—Is your picture hanging on a nail which keeps breaking the plaster and so falling out? Before you put the nail in next time, fill the hole with glue, the plaster will not crumble.

Left-Over Liver—Liver that is left over can be converted into an excellent sandwich filling if it is rubbed through a sieve, well seasoned, and moistened with a little lemon juice and melted butter.

Cleaning Wood-Work—To clean badly soiled wood, use a mixture consisting of one quart of hot water, three tablespoons of boiled linseed oil and one tablespoon of turpentine. Warm this and use while warm.

The Garden Murder Case

by S. S. VAN DINE

WNU Service

"For God's sake," Garden burst out, "it's up to you to find out the truth. I'm on the spot—what with my going out of the room with Woody yesterday, my failure to place his bet, then the mother's accusation, and that damned will of hers, and the medicine. You've got to find out who's guilty."

As he was talking the door bell had rung, and Heath came up the hallway.

Vance went to Garden and, putting a hand on the man's shoulder, urged him back into his chair. "Come, buck up," he said; "we'll need your help, and if you work up a case of jitters you'll be useless."

"But don't you see how deeply involved I am?" Garden protested weakly.

"You're not the only one involved," Vance returned calmly. He turned to Siefert. "I think, doctor, we should have a little chat. Possibly we can get the matter of your patient's death straightened out a bit. Suppose we go upstairs to the study, what?"

In the study Vance went directly to the point.

"Doctor, the time has come when we must be perfectly frank with each other. The usual conventional considerations of your profession must be temporarily put aside. I shall be altogether candid with you and trust that you can see your way to being equally candid with me."

Siefert, who had taken a chair near the door, looked at Vance a trifle uneasily.

"I regret that I do not understand what you mean," he said in his suave manner.

"I merely mean," replied Vance coolly, "that I am fully aware that it was you who sent me the anonymous telephone message Friday night."

Siefert raised his eyebrows slightly.

"Assuming, for the sake of argument," he said with deliberation, "that it was I who phoned you Friday night, what then?"

Vance watched the man with a faint smile.

"It might be, don't you know," he said, "that you were cognizant of the situation here, and that you had a suspicion—or let us say, a fear—that something tragic was impending."

Vance took out his cigar case and lighted a cigarette. "I fully understood the import of that message, doctor—as you intended. That is why I happened to be here yesterday afternoon. The significance of your reference to the Aeneid and the inclusion of the word 'equanimity' did not escape me. I must say, however, that your advice to investigate radio-active sodium was not entirely clear—although I think I now have a fairly lucid idea as to the implication. However, there were some deeper implications in your message, and this is the time, doctor, when we should face this thing together with complete honesty."

Siefert brought his eyes back to Vance in a long appraising glance, and then shifted them to the window again.

"Yes, I did send you that message. I realize that nothing can be gained now by not being frank with you. . . . The situation in this household has bothered me for a long time, and lately I've had a sense of imminent disaster."

"How long have you felt this premonition?" asked Vance.

"For the past three months, I should say. Although I have acted as the Gardens' physician for many years, it was not until last fall that Mrs. Garden's changing condition came to my notice. I thought little of it at first, but, as it grew worse and I found myself unable to diagnose it satisfactorily, a curious suspicion forced itself on me that the change was not entirely natural. I began coming here much more frequently than had been my custom, and during the last couple of months I had felt many subtle undercurrents in the various relationships of the household, which I had never sensed before. Of course, I knew that Floyd and Swift never got along particularly well—that there was some deep animosity and jealousy between them. I also knew the terms of Mrs. Garden's will."

Siefert paused with a frown.

"As I say, it has been only recently that I have felt something deeper and more significant in all this interplay of temperaments; and this feeling grew to such proportions that I actually feared a violent climax of some kind—especially as Floyd told me only a few days ago that his cousin intended to stake his entire remaining funds on Equanimity in the big race yesterday. So overpowering was my feeling in regard to the whole situation here that I decided to do something about it, if I could manage it without divulging any professional confidences. But you saw through my subterfuge."

Vance nodded. "I appreciate your scruples in the matter, doctor. I only regret that I was unable to forestall these tragedies. That, as it happened, was beyond human power." Vance looked up quickly.

"By the by, doctor, did you have any definite suspicions when you phoned me Friday night?"

Siefert shook his head with emphasis. "No. Frankly, I was baffled. I merely felt that some sort of explosion was imminent."

Vance smoked a while in silence. "And now, doctor, will you be so good as to give us the full details about this morning?"

Siefert drew himself up in his chair.

"There's practically nothing to add to the information I gave you over the phone. Miss Beeton called me a little after eight o'clock and informed me that Mrs. Garden had died some time during the night. She asked for instructions, and I told her that I would come at once. I was here half an hour or so later. I could find no determinable cause for Mrs. Garden's death, and assumed it might have been her heart until Miss Beeton called my attention to the fact that the bottle of medicine sent by the druggist was empty."

"By the by, doctor, what was the prescription you made out for your patient last night?"

"A simple barbitol solution."

"And I believe you told me on the telephone that there was sufficient barbitol in the prescription to have caused death."

"Yes," Doctor Siefert nodded. "If taken at one time."

"And Mrs. Garden's death was consistent with barbitol poisoning?"

"There was nothing to contradict such a conclusion," Siefert answered.

"I saw that she was dead," answered. "And there was nothing to indicate any other cause."

"When did the nurse discover the empty bottle?"

"Not until after she had phoned me, I believe."

Vance, smoking lazily, was watching Siefert from under speculative eyelids.

"Tell me something of Mrs. Garden's illness, doctor, and why radio-active sodium should have suggested itself to you."

Siefert brought his eyes sharply back to Vance.

"I was afraid you would ask that. But this is no time for squeamishness. I must trust wholly to your discretion. As I've already said, I don't know the exact nature of Mrs. Garden's ailment. The symptoms have been very much like those accompanying radium poisoning. But I have never prescribed any of the radium preparations for her—I am, in fact, profoundly skeptical of their efficacy."

He cleared his throat before continuing.

"One evening while reading the reports of the researches made in California on radioactive sodium, or what might be called artificial radium, which has been heralded as a possible medium of cure for cancer, I suddenly realized that Professor Garden himself was actively interested in this particular line of research and had done some very creditable work in the field. The realization was purely a matter of association, and I gave it little thought at first. But the idea persisted, and before long some very unpleasant possibilities began to force themselves upon me."

Again the doctor paused, a troubled look on his face.

"About two months ago I suggested to Doctor Garden that, if it were at all feasible, he put Miss Beeton on his wife's case. I had already come to the conclusion that Mrs. Garden required more constant attention and supervision than I could afford her, and Miss Beeton, who is a registered nurse, had, for the past year or so, been working with Doctor Garden in his laboratory—in fact, it was I who had sent her in when he mentioned his need of a laboratory assistant. I was particularly anxious to have her take Mrs. Garden's case, rather than some other nurse, for I felt that from her observations some helpful suggestions might result."

"And have Miss Beeton's subsequent observations been helpful to you, doctor?" asked Vance.

"No, I can't say that they have," Siefert admitted, "despite the fact that Doctor Garden still availed himself of her services occasionally in the laboratory, thereby giving her an added opportunity of keeping an eye on the entire situation."

Vance was studying the tip of his cigarette. Presently he asked: "Has the nurse's presence in the house resulted in any information regarding the general situation here?"

"Nothing that I had not already known. In fact, her observations have merely substantiated my own conclusions. It's quite possible, too, that she herself may unwittingly have augmented the animosity between young Garden and Swift, for she has intimated to me once or twice a very strong suspicion that she is personally interested in Floyd Garden."

Vance looked up with augmented interest.

"What, specifically, has given you that impression, doctor?"

"Nothing specific," Siefert told him. "I have, however, observed them together on several occasions, and my impression was that some sentiment existed there. Nothing that I can put my finger on, though. But one night when I was walking up Riverside drive I happened to see them together in the park—undoubtedly a stroll together."

The nurse appeared at the door at that moment to announce the arrival of the medical examiner, and Vance asked her to bring Doctor Doremus up to the study.

"I might suggest," said Siefert quickly, "that, with your consent, it would be possible to have the medical examiner accept my verdict of death due to an accidental overdose of barbitol and avoid the additional unpleasantness of an autopsy."

"Oh, quite," Vance nodded. "That was my intention." He turned to the district attorney. "All things considered, Markham," he said, "I think that might be best."

Markham nodded in reluctant acquiescence as Doremus was led into the room by Miss Beeton. After a brief interchange of explanations and comments Doremus readily agreed to Markham's suggestion.

Doctor Siefert rose and looked hesitantly at Vance. "You will not need me further, I trust."

"Not at the moment, doctor," Vance rose also and bowed formally. "We may, however, communicate with you later. . . . And, Miss Beeton, please sit down."

The girl came forward and seated herself in the nearest chair, as the men went down the passageway.

"I don't mean to trouble you unduly, Miss Beeton," said Vance; "but we should like to have a first-hand account of the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Garden."

"I wish there was something definite I could tell you," the nurse replied readily in a business-like manner, "but all I know is that when I arose this morning, a little after seven, Mrs. Garden seemed to be sleeping quietly. After dressing I went to the dining-room and had my breakfast; and then I took a tray in to Mrs. Garden. She always had tea and toast at eight o'clock. It wasn't until I had drawn up the shades and closed the windows, that I realized something was wrong. I spoke to her and she didn't answer me; and when I tried to rouse her I got no response. I saw then that she was dead. I called Doctor Siefert at once, and he came over as quickly as he could."

"You sleep, I believe, in Mrs. Garden's room?"

The nurse inclined her head. "Yes. You see, Mrs. Garden frequently needed some small service in the night."

"Had she required your attention at any time during the night?"

"No. The injection Doctor Siefert gave her before he left her seemed to have quieted her and she was sleeping peacefully when I went out."

"You went out last night? . . . What time did you leave the house?" asked Vance.

"About nine o'clock. Mr. Floyd Garden suggested it, assuring me that he would be here and that he thought I needed a little rest."

"Had you no professional qualms about leaving a sick patient at such a time?"

"Ordinarily I might have had," the girl returned resentfully; "but Mrs. Garden had never shown me any consideration. She was the most selfish person I ever knew. Anyway, I explained to Mr. Floyd Garden about giving his mother a teaspoonful of the medicine if she should wake up and show any signs of restlessness. And then I went out into the park."

"At what time did you return, Miss Beeton?"

"It must have been about eleven," she told him.

"Mrs. Garden was asleep when you came in?"

The girl turned her eyes to Vance before answering.

"I—I thought—she was asleep," she said hesitantly. "Her color was all right. But perhaps—even then—"

"Yes, yes. I know," Vance put in quickly. "By the by, did you notice anything changed—anything, let us say, out of place—in the room, on your return?"

The nurse shook her head slowly.

"No. Everything seemed the same to me. The windows and shades were just as I had left them, and—wait, there was something. The glass I had left on the night-table with drinking water was empty. I refilled it before going to bed."

Vance looked up quickly. "And the bottle of medicine?"

"I didn't particularly notice that; but it must have been just as I had left it, for I remember a fleeting sense of relief because Mrs. Garden hadn't needed a dose of medicine."

The SUPREME COURT AND HOW IT WORKS

The Need for an Umpire
By ROBERT MERRILL

THE men who in 1787 drafted the Constitution of the United States had two great advantages in establishing a government that sought to assure personal liberty.

In the first place, they had vivid personal recollections of the despotism of King George III. In the second place, they knew from bitter experience the weakness of the first government which they had set up to take the place of the repudiated king.

Having renounced a one-man government that was unjust because too strong, they had suffered under another—established by the Articles of Confederation—equally unjust because it was too weak. Their problem was to frame a constitution under which the people of each state should be protected against any attempt of federal officials to become tyrants, while at the same time making it impossible for the several states to cripple or hamper the central government.

Thus it came about that the very people who had actually suffered both from too much government and from too little were best fitted to find the safety-point half way between.

Some Early Weaknesses.

Illustrations of the despotism which they feared are effectively recited in the Declaration of Independence. Among the many despotic acts there charged may be found, for example, that "he has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers."

On the other hand, among the many weaknesses which made the Articles of Confederation a failure, the following is a typical illustration: During the Revolutionary war, vessels of war, called privateers, had been fitted out by citizens of the several colonies and sent out to prey upon British commerce. A British sloop, the Active, had been seized by citizens of Connecticut who were bringing her into port as prize when an American privateer, the Convention, which had been fitted out in Pennsylvania, captured the Active and claimed the prize money which belonged to the men from Connecticut.

A Pennsylvania court decided the case in favor of the home claimants and awarded them the greater part of the prize money, but, upon appeal to a court which the feeble Articles of Confederation had set up, the rights of the Connecticut claimants were properly recognized and the judgment of the Pennsylvania court was reversed.

Decision Not Backed.

Then, to their dismay, the victorious Connecticut men discovered that the order of the court was not worth the paper it was written on, because Pennsylvania refused to recognize or enforce it and the central government was without power to enforce the order of its own court. Conferences followed between a committee of congress and the general assembly of Pennsylvania; but nothing was accomplished.

As soon, however, as the Constitution of the United States was adopted, federal courts were set up, with the Supreme court of the United States at their head; and the federal government was given power to enforce their decrees. Accordingly, after having waited years for such an outcome, the men from Connecticut were able to bring suit in a United States district court to enforce the order formerly made in their favor but subsequently disregarded.

The district court granted partial but not complete relief; but, upon appeal, the Supreme court of the United States finally did complete justice among the parties.

Court Stands on Own Feet.

With such experiences immediately behind them the framers of the Constitution were naturally careful to make rules to prevent their recurrence. It was obviously insufficient, however, merely to make the rules; it was essential that there should be a judicial umpire to interpret and apply them. Accordingly the Constitution safeguarded the judicial power of the United States by vesting it "in one Supreme court."

With our form of government the Supreme court cannot be abolished by the congress or by the President any more than the congress or the President can be abolished by the court. Remembering that the King of Great Britain had made Judges here "dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries," the framers were careful to provide that "the judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at stated Times, receive for their Services, a Compensation which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office."

While, therefore, the men of 1787 were not super-men they were people whose actual experiences made them think of many safeguards of liberty which otherwise might have been overlooked.

NOTICE

Free Terpesone Demonstrations each week day for the balance of May from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Terpesone is a system of inhalation of an atmosphere created in my office. Terpesone is pinene outside—a powerful germicide, a healing agent and blood purifier. Absolutely harmless, and pleasantly respirable. Terpesone attacks the cause of the trouble and is not a palliative.

24 years of constant use prove this visible, dry, cool vapor to be effective in all chronic respiratory (breathing) trouble, such as hay fever and sinusitis and blood pressure.

No medicine. No chiropractic school teacher medicine of any kind.

Office is in residence two blocks off city on South 7th Street.

Notice to Chicken Owners

There is a city ordinance prohibiting chickens running at large. There have been several complaints made that the neighbor's chickens are destroying flower beds and gardens. Those who have chickens will please keep them on their own premises.

By order of the City Council

Warning

Some complaints have been made about stock running loose in Rowe cemetery. It is a violation of the herd law for stock to run loose in any public place, and all violators will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.
