POISON DRINK PARALYZES SCORES IN OKLAHOMA

Court Orders Tom Shook Transferred To Dallas County Jail For Safe Keeping

LETTERS WARN SHERIFF OF ESCAPE PLOT

Bralley Discounts Rumors Of Attempt to Free Former Chief

JUDGE SIGNS ORDER

Petition for Transfer Is Approved at Hearing Friday Morning

Upon the application of Sheriff W. G. Bralley, an order committing Tom Shook to the Dallas county jail for safe keeping was signed Friday morning by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court. Shook, former Electra police chief, is under sentence totaling 35 years for murder and robbery.

Mr. Bralley said Friday that he has not set the exact date for taking his prisoner from the Wichita county jail, but indicated that the transfer would be made at once Shook is awaiting the action of the higher courts on his two appeals.

Move Explained

The sheriff explained that such transfers are common among the counties of the state, the authorities often finding it wise to remove long-term prisoners from the immediate scene of the crime and conviction. There are five such prisoners in the Wichita county jail from other counties at the present time, he declared.

Mr. Bralley said he is constantly in receipt of warning letters telling him of plans to effect the escape of Shook. Among the information that has come to him is a story about an automobile being kept in readiness at all hours to take the prisoner out of the county, the officer said. The office has also received several warnings about plans to slip a gun into the jail.

"Naturally I don't put much stock in all that talk," Mr. Bralley said, "but a transfer costs no money and can easily be effected, so the move seemed a wise step to me and to the prosecuting attorneys. We can keep Shook in the Wichita county jail, so far as that is concerned. We have always had him under adequate guard, but it's good to get a man out of the same atmosphere and away from the same group of prisoners after a long stay in jail."

Escaped One Time

Shook and a number of other prisoners escaped from the Wichita county jail in August, 1928, after Frank Watkins, jailor, had been knocked in the head and locked inside a cell. Shook remained at liberty for a period of 13 months before his recapture in Tennessee last September.

Department of Justice To Ignore Communists

WASHINGTON, March 7. (US)—Yesterday's Communist demonstrations throughout the country will be ignored by the department of justice so far as any prosecution is concerned, it was made known today.

Unless there is evidence of specific damage to government property or injury to federal officers, the attorney general has no jurisdiction, it was stated. The department of justice prefers to take the view that all such demonstrations, exclusive of violence, are permissible under the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.

Hoover Says Worst of Last November Crash Effects to End in Sixty Days

WASHINGTON, March 7. (AP)—Careful study of prevailing business and employment conditions, made with the aid of governmental departments has convinced President Hoover that the worst effects of the stock market crash of last November on business activity and in reduction of employment will have passed over within 30 to 60 days.

Mr. Hoover believes a resumption of normal activity will be brought about by seasonal resumption of cut of door construction work and the expanded program of construction undertaken by railroads, public utilities and general business and private enterprise.

Surveys Cited

Surveys made by the commerce and labor departments have indicated that unemployment amounting to distress has been confined to 12 states, while in the remaining 36 states the conditions have been little at variance from those regularly encountered during the winter season.

The president also has concluded from the evidence before him that the low point of both business activity and employment was reached in the latter part of December and the early part of January and that the situation is much better now.

Business Responds

A third finding from the studies has been that the call made upon the business world last December by the president for maintenance of construction activities has been heartily responded to.

Contracts announced in the United States for January and February were 40 per cent greater than

GRUNDY PLANS NO APOLOGIES

Senator Defends Hiring of Tariff Expert

WASHINGTON, March 7. (AP)—Joining in a general debate centering about his employment of Warren F. Doane, of Philadelphia, to aid him in research work on the tariff, Senator Grundy, Republican, Pennsylvania, told the senate tonight he had no apologies whatever to make for the relationship or the manner in which his services are being performed."

The Pennsylvanian, an advocate of high protective duties whose tariff activities have been investigated by the senate lobby committee, asserted that if there were more men like Doane he could get he "certainly would want to have those men here."

The debate was started by Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, a member of the lobby committee, who discussed testimony before that commitee today by Doane.

Nicholson Believes Giant Room May Lead to Second Entrance to Caverns

CARLSBAD, N. M., March 7.—Crawling through a small crevice in the wall of our newly discovered tunnel we came into an immense room which we are calling the Hall of Phantoms. Huge rocks coated with a milk-white layer of limestone formation rose in the blackness before us like spectres tall and sinister. They are unusually distorted by erosion and cast euphuistic, forbidding-like shadows before us. Progress in the section is the more difficult and perilous than we have yet found.

Ages ago water dissolved the softer portions of the stones and huge boulders crumble beneath our weight. It was once an area inhabited by great bands of bats and the guano which is thousands of years old has turned to a soft brown flour-like powder. Shortly after we entered the room I jumped from the top of a tall rock to the floor which appeared to be of hard limestone, but which in reality was a pit filled with powdered bat guano and covered with a thin layer of limestone dust in which I sank neck deep.

Throughout the day we came upon other such pits and the dust we stirred made the air almost

GOVERNOR TO SIGN MEASURE IMMEDIATELY

Legislation Proposed by Independent Operators in Final Stage

SULPHUR TAX VOTED

Prison Construction Again Goes to Committee for Alterations

AUSTIN, March 7. (UP)—Texas independent oil men had achieved enactment of one plank in their legislative program late today when the house of representatives passed the pipe line bill.

The bill, already passed by the senate, needs only Gov. Dan Moody's signature to make it a law. The governor, known to favor oil legislation, probably will sign the bill Saturday.

The senate amended the $1 per ton sulphur tax bill, passed twice in the house, to 50 cents a ton. In lowering the levy rate, the senate duplicated action taken on the proposed tax in the fourth special session.

A senate proposal to tax general natural resources in the state was defeated by a vive voce vote. The tax was proposed by Sen. Joe Mosss of Greenville.

Earlier, the house refused to concur in senate amendments to a prison construction bill. Prison legislation again goes to a conference committee where it had languished throughout the last two sessions of the legislature.

A senate executive committee on appointments met this afternoon to consider names submitted by Governor Moody. The names of H. L. Kokernot Jr., of Brewster county, as a member of the board of regents of the State Teachers college and Thomas Johnson, Collin county, as a member of the board of Texas Technological college were confirmed.

Church Clock Runs Wild in New York

NEW YORK, March 7. (AP)—Wall street speculators created a new game today and all because of the eccentricities of the clock on the spire of ancient Trinity church, a landmark in the financial district.

Hands had been removed from one dial, but on the north side they whirled about in rare abandon. Stopping after a dizzy whirl at 1 the hands again spun and halted at 12 then at 6.

Police stepped in and ordered the curious to move when the bettors began singing: "One will get 20 you can't name the next stop."

Pole Sitter Testifies He Spied on Husband

NEW YORK, March 7. (US)—A use for flagpole sitters has been found. Mrs. Ada Gordon, employed one to see what Mr. Gordon was doing.

John J. Marino was the man on the pole. He testified today in Mrs. Gordon's suit for divorce against John J. Gordon, a salesman, that on Feb. 19 he traced the husband to an apartment and climbed a pole where he could see Gordon smoking a cigaret on a couch with a beautiful young woman beside him. Justice Dike awarded her $10 a week alimony and $75 counsel fees, pending trial of the suit.

Youth Questioned On $45,000 Cotton Blaze

TROUP, Texas, March 7. (UP)—Police tonight were investigating the story of 16-year-old Olaf A. V. Smith who was held for questioning in connection with a $45,000 fire which destroyed the public cotton yards here last night. Young Smith said he stopped in the cotton yards to light a cigaret and that his match set fire to a small pile of lint. He said he thought he had extinguished the blaze with water and then started home.

Police Raiders Make Arrest, Seize Whisky

A police raid on a house on Holliday street Friday night netted one gallon of whisky and the arrest of one man who was lodged in the city jail for investigation Saturday.

The raiding party was composed of Plainclothes Officers F. E. Summers and A. L. Stubblefield and Motorcycle Officers J. H. Pogue and Homer Bentley. The officers stated they had been watching the place for some time.

Dallas Women Endorse Moody Prison Program

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—The Federated Council of Churchwomen of Dallas tonight adopted and telegraphed to Gov. Dan Moody endorsing his program of prison reform legislation and pledging him their support. "We pledge ourselves," the resolution said, "to elect a governor and legislature who will bring about a decent solution of this disgraceful situation."

Verdict In Jim Graham's Trial For Murder At Walters Expected Today

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., March 7.—The possibility that a verdict would be returned by Saturday morning in the case of Jim Graham, on trial for murder in connection with the slaying of Harry Adair, the convicted slayer of Graham's father, was seen tonight as arguments of attorneys neared their close.

The last witnesses for the defense were called to the stand Friday morning, testifying as to the good character of the defendant, and court was adjourned while the judge prepared his instructions for the jury. The charge was delivered by the judge at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

"The defendant and the deceased both had a perfect right to be where they were at the time of the fatal shooting," the judge charged the jury. "The defendant had the right to stand his ground and not be compelled in law to retreat if, as a reasonable man, he believed himself in danger or found himself assaulted. In such case, he would have the right to defend himself even to taking a life."

The judge charged the jury to return a verdict of guilty and assess a death penalty or to acquit the defendant, leaving no middle ground. The arguments began at completion of the charge and were still in progress at 9 o'clock Friday night with the expectation the case would reach the jury shortly.

Testimony given by Graham Thursday afternoon pointed out the defendant had noticed Adair fumbling under the bib of his overalls. Previous testimony had shown Adair was armed at the time and had a pistol thrust in the belt of trousers he wore beneath the overalls. Witnesses said Adair's hand was under his body as he lay dead and the pistol he carried was partially removed from under the belt.

Adair was tried and convicted of the slaying of J. D. Graham, father of the defendant in this case and a veteran Temple, Okla., peace officer, and was at liberty on an appeal bond at the time he was killed in a Temple barber shop.

The possibility of a verdict Friday night drew one of the largest crowds ever assembled at the courthouse here.

DEMS MAY BAR JIM FERGUSON

Committee Reported Ready To Take Action

AUSTIN, March 7. (UP)—Texas political affairs became more complicated tonight with an announcement from members of the Democratic state executive committee that former Gov. James E. Ferguson may be barred from the party primaries. Ferguson, impeached and ousted from office during his second term has announced his candidacy for governor.

The committee already has barred State Senator Tom Love and other candidates for state offices who bolted the Democratic party in 1928 to vote for Herbert Hoover for president. Members of the committee expressed confidence that the court would uphold the legality of the body's action.

When Love was barred, members of the committee also expressed intentions of disqualifying those who voted for George Peddy for U. S. senator and those who joined the "American" party formed by "Farmer Jim" Ferguson. Steve Pinckney, a member of the committee, said.

Ferguson was not here today. His wife, former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, refused to comment.

Officer Charged With Slaying Texas Woman

GALVESTON, Texas, March 7. (UP)—A formal charge of murder was filed against Texas Ranger John W. Adams, 52, today following the death of Marie Doherty, 27, who died from gunshot wounds received last night.

Adams, acting as special officer for the Galveston, Houston and Henderson railroad, surrendered at the woman's home after her body had been found on the front porch. He refused to make a statement, saying only that he had gone to a drug store to call an ambulance. Adams holds a Texas ranger commission.

Oil Man Held For Whitesboro Shooting

WHITESBORO, Texas, March 7. (UP)—Eldridge Price, Dallas oil man, was charged with assault to murder late today following the shooting of A. J. Coul at the home of Price's father-in-law, Coul, shot twice, was taken to a hospital at Sherman. Price refused to tell officers of the shooting.

STATESMAN DIES

MEXICO CITY, March 7. (US)—Dr. Cutberto Hidalgo, foreign minister in the cabinets of two presidents, died here today at the age of 58. Dr. Hidalgo served the state during the administrations of Carranza and Obregon.

Walk-Out of Stage Hands Fails To Halt Spring Style Festival Here

Women Push Pianos When Union Workers Protest Non-Union Musicians; 2,500 Attend Fashion Parade

A walk-out of union stage hands and spotlight operators failed Friday to interrupt the program of the Wichita Falls merchants and the Woman's Forum spring style festival, given before an audience of more than 2,500 spectators in the afternoon and evening.

The walk-out order, coming from the international stage hands organization in New York late Thursday, was first communicated to the directors of the performance Friday morning, Mrs. A. G. Holmes, chairman of the forum ways and means committee, declared. W. B. Ward, manager of the auditorium, with the help of a few non-union men, and the assistance of a committee of forum members, filled the vacancies and staged the show on schedule in spite of the short notice, she explained.

Dispute Over Musicians

The clash grew out of the employment of alleged non-union musicians to accompany the style show. Mike Muehlberger, head of the former Majestic orchestra, first wired his protest to the international musicians union at New York and the support of the stage hands organization was enlisted there.

Thursday evening, J. M. Ealy, business agent for the local stage hands union, received telegraphed instructions from Harry Dignam, representing the international organization, authorizing cooperation with the musicians local to the extent of a walk-out.

In explaining the position of the auditorium management, Mr. Ward said Friday night that he always rented the auditorium with the understanding that he would furnish the services of one union carpenter. Any other men needed, he explained.

Death Penalty Given In Denver Murder Case

DENVER, Colo., March 7. (UP)—William Moya, 32, was found guilty of first-degree murder by a district court jury today in the slaying of Joseph Zemp, aged Denver recluse.

Moya testified during the trial he knocked the aged man unconscious with a shoe last during an argument, and not knowing he was dead, buried him alive.

The verdict automatically carried the death penalty.

Four Persons Believed Trapped by Flames

DULUTH, Minn., March 7. (AP)—Four persons including two children, were believed to be trapped in a six-story downtown office building and rooming house tonight, when fire broke out in the second story and swept through the entire structure. Several other persons trapped in the building were carried to safety by firemen.

Fog Causes Flier To Leap in Parachute

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 7. (UP)—A dense fog that shrouded this area early today forced Lieut. J. A. Bulger, en route from Selfridge, Mich., to San Antonio, Texas, to take a thrilling parachute leap to escape from a tailspin his plane was thrown into, and caused three other planes to make forced landings.

BOY HIJACKERS FACING PRISON

Dallas Youths Are Meted Sentences

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—Their game of "gunman's bluff" ended, Raymond Snoga and Roscoe Hendrix, Dallas High school hijackers, today faced the more serious business of serving long penitentiary sentences.

Sentences against them aggregated at least 25 years each. Snoga was sentenced here to a total of 22 years, and Hendrix, 20. In addition they were given 5-year terms on a Fort Worth conviction.

The boys pleaded with the jury—They had no attorneys—to be lenient. But after the first jury returned sentences of seven years for Snoga and five for Hendrix, they decided to plead guilty on remaining charges.

It was considered possible the five-year Fort Worth sentence might be allowed to run concurrently, and Judge C. A. Pippin ruled the sentences assessed today on guilty pleas might run concurrently with the sentences on the case that was tried, so that their total terms on Dallas convictions amounted to 15 years.

Caught holding up employes of a Fort Worth drug store, the boys confessed to several other Fort Worth and Dallas robberies. In their possession was found a scrap book upon which was printed "gunman's bluff," and which contained newspaper clippings of the hold-ups they had participated in.

Former Chief Justice Resting Comfortably

WASHINGTON, March 7. (UP)—Former Chief Justice Taft was resting comfortably tonight, still sustaining the slight improvement that was noted in his condition during the day.

His physicians reported he had taken some nourishment. However, they emphasized the fact any changes in his condition are "almost negligible."

The noon bulletin said:

The former chief justice seems a little better. But the change in his condition from day to day is almost negligible."

Stock Exposition At Fort Worth Opens

FORT WORTH, March 7. (UP)—With thoroughbred horses prancing in the Tan-Bark arena of the Coliseum before a crowd of more than 5,000 persons, the Southwest Exposition and Fat Stock show opened here tonight. The show, the third largest in the country, will feature blooded livestock, horse shows and dairy prducts exhibitions. More than $250,000 has been spent to promote the 1930 event.

Indian Girl Induces Aged Tribe Woman to Murder Artist's Wife

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 7. (AP)—An Indian woman of the Seneca tribe was reported by police to have confessed she had induced a 66-year-old woman of her tribe to slay Mrs. Clothilde Marchand who was beaten with a hammer and chloroformed in her home last night.

Unrequited affection for the slain woman's husband, Henri Marchand artist sculptor of the Buffalo Museum of Science, and hatred of his wife caused Lillian Jimerson, 39 years old, to invoke the witchcraft of the Iroquois nation to accomplish the slaying through her aged ally, Mrs. Nancy Bowen, according to the confesison.

A 12-year-old son of the dead woman found his mother's body lying on the floor of their home, beneath an overturned radio console and a heavy lamp. There was evidence, a terrific struggle had occurred before repeated hammer blows struck her down.

Taken prisoner in her Indian reservation home by police today, Miss Jimerson revealed the hiding place of Mrs. Bowen. Both were brought to this city and after questioning by police Miss Jimerson admitted she had instigated the slaying by playing on the superstitions of her aged confederate. Mystic warnings from a Ouija board, that un-

'JAKE' IMBIBERS AFFLICTED BY QUEER MALADY

Federal Ban Placed Upon Ginger Shipments To Sooner City

DOCTORS PUZZLED

Victims First Experience Muscular Twitches, Then Paralysis

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 7. (UP)—Drinks of poison "jake," popular low-priced intoxicant, affected more than 300 persons here tonight with a mysterious malady that paralyzed the victims.

More than 250 persons were stricken today at their homes where they frantically sought advice from physicians who could promise them no relief. At least 50 more were in hospitals and clinics where experts attempted to diagnose the cases and determine whether the malady would be fatal.

No deaths had occurred although physicians reported many victims who had noted only slight muscular twitches early today were rapidly becoming paralyzed.

Drinking Blamed

All the victims told authorities the illness followed drinking of Jamaica ginger distributed by bootleggers and "bling pig" drug stores.

A federal ban was placed on shipments of Jamaica ginger from Kansas City and St. Louis warehouses late today. Authorities said the ban would exist until specialists are able to determine the cause of the affliction.

William Hartigan, chief of the United States food and drug station at Kansas City, placed Inspector T. Benjamin in charge of the investigation.

"Unless the malady is halted within 24 hours I shall send nationally known specialists to Oklahoma City," Hartigan said.

Deaths Expected

"The wholesale paralysis is the worst thing our department has ever experienced," Benjamin said. "Several deaths overnight would not surprise me."

Meanwhile, federal and city authorities tested samples of Jamaica

Senate Agrees to Buy Austin Courthouse

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—The senate today passed the bill appropriating $30,000 to pay Travis county for its courthouse and jail and canceling the lease to state property on which the buildings stand.

Both houses passed a bill during the fourth session to cancel the lease in consideration of the county's choice of two lots in the city of Austin as a site for its proposed new courthouse.

Plane With Bodies Of Arctic Fliers Lands

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 7. (AP)—The last flight of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland ended here today when Russian and American planes, escorting the bodies of the two aviators killed on the arctic coast of Siberia, circled over Fairbanks and landed in quick succession at the Alaska Airways field at 1:30 p. m. (5:30 p. m. C.S.T.)

PARLEY READY TO OPEN AGAIN

MacDonald Sees Pact by Mid-April

LONDON, March 7. (UP)—The five-power naval conference resumed its stride with all delegations present today, and Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald predicted an agreement would be reached by mid-April.

The prime minister told the press he originally calculated the conference would end before the British budget discussion begins in the house of commons April 14, and he still adhered to this belief.

The negotiations are going full speed ahead after a three-weeks' "rest" due to the French cabinet crises and the delegations have reached a complete understanding of each other's intentions, MacDonald said, adding powers could now concentrate on the necessary changes in figures to produce an agreement.

Two meetings were held today. The delegation heads, with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand representing France, held a two-hour session at St. James' palace and decided to meet again next Monday to review the work of the conference up to that time. MacDonald urged the others to submit at once a complete list of figures stating total tonnage demands as well as demands for each class of warship, saying progress would be impossible otherwise.

The committee of the whole agreed on the definition of ships exempt from limitation. Japan was authorized to keep two mine layers and five training ships in the exempt class, but the committee failed to agree on limitation of aircraft carriers or the French proposal to include special ships in the total tonnage allotted to each nation. The committee adjourned until Tuesday.

After the meeting the British spokesman discussed the favorable outlook for an extension of the holiday on battleship construction until 1936. He said this naturally would facilitate the scrapping program called for under the Washington treaty.

Nicholson Seeks Cave Entrance

stifling yet toward the center of the room we again found evidence of air currents.

During a rest period one of my men turned his flashlight upward and the dust we had stirred was floating majestically like a cloud far above our heads. We followed the current several hundred feet and discovered an immense opening in the far wall near the ceiling. We were awed by the apparent vastness of the room in which it opens. Enthused with possibilities of what it might contain and what it might lead to we began a dangerous climb up a sheer wall which crumbled in some places and slippery with wet flowstone in others. By catching hold on fragile formations and exerting all sorts of human fly tricks we reached a ledge some 30 feet high and barely wide enough for us to stand upon and where a slip or misstep would mean death on the jagged rocks in the blackness beneath us.

Upward from the ledge the wall became absolutely perpendicular and devoid of formations. Ranger Cal Miller who is with us artfully lassoed a stone another 20 feet above and we continued the ascension climbing hand over hand up the rope. Loose rocks and formations slipped and fell peppering our heads and bodies. A few more feet above us yawned the opening but overhanging rock made further climbing impossible and after exerting every effort we have concluded that only with the aid of scaffolding can we reach our mystery chamber so now we must wait until material necessary to the building of ladders can be brought in from the surface and carried over miles of underground trails. In the meantime we are basking with enthusiasm and prophesying as to what we may find in the big room above.

Children Protest Ban On Sidewalk Skating

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., March 7. (UP)—Frantic city officials went to their homes tonight mindful that a monster demonstration of "youth" has been called to meet on the city hall steps.

Today city officials were chained to their telephones answering hundreds of calls from angered children, voicing protests against an anti-roller skating ordinance. They were informed "youth" would meet on the city hall steps tomorrow noon.

The children were protesting an ordinance that became effective today which forbids skating within city limits, or any streets or sidewalks.

Texas Sheriff Shoots Negro Slayer When Posse Traps Black in Barn

HOUSTON, March 7. (AP)—After an armed posse had surrounded the barn where Lee Monroe, fugitive negro, was hiding this afternoon about 15 miles west of Richmond, officers broke down the door and the negro was shot and fatally wounded by Sheriff H. W. Collins.

Monroe was wanted for shooting and seriously wounding Deputy Sheriff J. B. Crawford of Fort Bend county Wednesday and also for two charges of murder in Louisiana.

The negro's jugular vein was severed with a discharge from a shotgun. Monroe was taken to Richmond where fruitless efforts were made to locate a physician. Finally a doctor was summoned from Rosenberg, but it was too late. Monroe died in the Fort Bend county jail.

According to witnesses, the shooting followed a gun play by the negro. When the barn door was thrown open, according to Deputy Sheriff Frank Bell, Monroe was seen grasping two pistols. Sheriff Collins shot with a shotgun.

Shortly before he died, the wounded negro requested that his shoes be removed. It was said that a tradition prevails among southern negroes that they should never die with their shoes on. The request was granted.

HORSE MEAT

'Broomtail' Nags to Be Slaughtered for Food In Europe

WINNIPEG, March 7. (US)—A profitable commercial use has been found for the quarter-million wild and nondescript "broomtail" horses running the ranges in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

They are to be converted into horse meat for human consumption in Europe. None will be offered for sale in Canada or the United States.

A United States concern intends to set up a plant in Alberta, it was learned as the result of an order-in-council by the Canadian government providing for inspection of horse-killing plants.

ginger from drug stores and liquor taken in raids in an effort to determine the source of poison. Physicians took tests of spinal fluid but found nothing that would help them in aiding the patients, they reported.

The condition of the victims was pathetic. Most of them were men who live in the south part of the city where the oil field workers and laborers live. Many were youths, some of them holding responsible positions.

Victims Frightened

They were frightened. Physicians had told some of them they might not recover. They readily told their stories to authorities, describing when they drank the liquor and where it was obtained.

A reporter walked down the street in the section where most of the victims were living. Men, both young and old, hobbled about on canes, talking excitedly with their neighbors and begging advice.

The malady affected the feet of the victims first. They complained of muscular twitchings. Then their legs began to ache. Soon the paralysis had spread to their hands. Many could not raise their hands to their faces. Others were on their backs, unable to move.

"Jake" is easily obtained here. It is sold in small eight-ounce bottles at some drug stores for 50 cents. Some "joints" sell it for 25 cents a drink over the bar.

Dallas C.-C. Favors Rail Extensions

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—Directors of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution today favoring extension of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railway westward from Rotan and of the Wichita Valley railway from Spur to the Northwest.

Homer D. Wade, general manager of the Dallas chamber, said efforts were being made in West Texas to obtain rail extensions and the Dallas chamber wished to offer co-operation. He formerly was general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The M-K-T line to Rotan joins the main North-South line of that road at Waco, while the Wichita Valley line connects with the main line of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway at Wichita Falls.

Natalie Blair Bradley Files Divorce Suit

CHICAGO, March 7. (INS)—Natalie Blair Bradley, daughter of Henry Blair, millionaire head of the Chicago surface lines, has brought suit for divorce against Neil Bradley, according to a bill on file here today.

Their marriage 10 years ago culminated an unusual romance. Mrs. Bradley first met her husband when she was the wife of Harry Higginbotham, Chicago broker. Her young son, Blair, 12, found Bradley, then 17, as he was walking through their Trout Lake, Wis., estate. The boy brought Bradley home as a playmate.

The next year Mrs. Higginbotham obtained a divorce and in 1920 married Bradley, who was 16 years her junior.

Floods in France Do Additional Damage

PARIS, March 7. (UP)—The Garonne river, carrying its own and the Tarn's flood waters to the Atlantic, washed out a huge bridge at Lamaguistere and two smaller bridges at Feneyrols and Casals today, as the submerged regions to the east buried their dead and took stock of damage.

The chamber of deputies unanimously voted 100,000,000 francs flood relief to the stricken departments of southern France where the destruction was greatest. The cabinet added 50,000 francs out of its own pockets and Pope Pius XI also sent 50,000 francs to aid the sufferers at Montaban.

Three Men Missing After Oil Explosion

KEARNEY, N. J., March 7. (AP)—Three men were reported missing after an explosion and fire tonight on a Purol Oil company ocean-going tanker. One member of the crew escaped by jumping into the Passaic river.

Disch Threatens To Leave Texas U.

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—The University of Texas' seemingly ever-recurring athletic discord was discussed by the board of regents today, but what was said and what plans were contemplated to quiet the troubled waters were not divulged.

Members of the board said they had discussed the situation at length and would continue consideration of it tomorrow. The agitation came to the front recently when the athletic council failed to renew its contract with Fred Walker, head coach of the basket ball team.

Uncle Billy Disch, baseball mentor, and Clyde Littlefield, head football coach, had written the board that they believed it would be in the interest of harmony were Coach Walker's contract not renewed.

Today Disch, winner of 17 conference baseball championships for Texas, threatened to leave the institution at the expiration of his contract next June, if something were not done to bring about harmony within the athletic family.

Munitions Smugglers Indicted at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz., March 7. (UP)—Federal agents in El Paso tomorrow will seek to arrest several persons indicted here by the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to transport munitions into Mexico during the Escobar revolution, according to John C. Gung'l United States district attorney.

Although Gung'l would not disclose the number of warrants which are expected to be served in El Paso, he said most of the 25 indictments returned were for persons believed to be in the Texas city.

Leaders of the revolution last spring, including Jose Escobar and several Americans, are named in the indictments.

Thousands of Chicago Teachers Without Pay

CHICAGO, March 7. (US)—A deadlock between city council and the Silas H. Strawn citizens' committee was responsible today for the failure of 13,000 school teachers to receive their pay.

Several thousand civil service employes of the board of education also went without the money due them.

No checks were forthcoming in spite of the fact that more than $74,000,000 has been subscribed in the "Save Chicago" campaign.

Missouri Reformatory Put Under Quarantine

BOONVILLE, Mo., March 7 (UP)—For the third time in the past two years the state reformatory here was under quarantine following an outbreak of spinal meningitis. Six deaths have resulted from the three outbreaks, one being Louis Theilman, superintendent, who died several months ago.

SENATE VOTES CEMENT TARIFF

Coalition Meets Another Crushing Blow

WASHINGTON, March 7. (AP)—The coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents suffered another major reverse in the senate tariff contest today with the approval of a duty on cement, but they immediately countered with a demand for another ballot on the sugar increase.

Inferring that a "vote trading agreement" existed, the coalition coupled with this demand a request for another vote on cement. Both will be subjected to new roll calls.

Senator Nye, Republican Independent, North Dakota, moved the reconsideration of both duties after approval had been given by a vote of 45 to 37 to a proposal of Senator Kean, Republican, New Jersey, to place a levy of six cents per hundred pounds on cement, now on the free list. In January the coalition put cement back on the free list by a vote of 40 to 35.

"I am forced at this time to remark that none are so blind as those who will not see," Nye asserted. Although he voted on both occasions that sugar was under consideration for an increased tariff, the North Dakotan said he "thought" there was "some evidence of an agreement" this week when the coalition broke and an increased sugar duty carried.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, also raised the "trading" cry. He said he had been urged by oil men in his state to vote for an oil tariff and added:

"I will see every oil well in Kentucky closed before I join any unholy alliance in this body. Let those who are voting for the high tariffs in this bill go ahead and vote for the measure, too. Any other vote would be dishonest."

Thirty-six Republicans and nine Democrats voted for the cement duty today while 24 Democrats and 13 Republicans opposed it.

Narcotic Problems Exposed in Congress

WASHINGTON, March 7. (US)—The dope menace was attacked on two fronts in congress today.

Representative Porter, Republican of Pennsylvania, and a number of witnesses appeared before the house ways and means committee to plead for passage of the Porter bill creating an independent narcotics bureau as a means to curb the illicit narcotic traffic. The bill is endorsed by the treasury department.

Representative Sirovich, Democrat of New York, who also testified for the Porter bill, delivered a smashing blow at the international traffic in a speech on the floor of the house.

Paper Absolving Man In Death Row Sent Moody

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—A signed statement made by Scott F. Hyden, recently recaptured after an escape from the Huntsville prison where he was serving a 99-year sentence for robbery, in which he absolved E. V. Allen, under death penalty, of any connection with the robbery of a Carbon bank, has been forwarded to Gov. Dan Moody by Judge Elzo Been of Eastland Maury Hughes, attorney for Allen, said he was advised today.

One Killed, 31 Hurt In Georgia Train Wreck

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 7. (AP)—A special express section of the Northbound Seminole Limited of the Central of Georgia railway, speeding through murky weather early today crashed into the rear end of the first section of the train halted at Glen Alta, 25 miles south of here, killing a flagman and causing injury to 31 passengers.

O. C. White, of Phenix City, Ala., the flagman, was buried beneath the wreckage of the observation car of the first section of the train.

SOAP AND SALAD OIL

OFF-HAND, you might say there isn't much connection. But between White King Granulated Soap and the better brands of salad dressing there is a close relationship.... For both are made from the finest vegetable oils obtainable.

That's the reason for the kind consideration White King Granulated Soap shows for your sheerest silks and satins. And it also explains the prompt, uncompromising cleansing given greasy dishes, dust-heavy woolens, grimy floors and woodwork.... White King is pure. You can trust it to be gentle. You can rely on it to be effective.

Economy is prominent among White King's virtues too. It's condensed. A teaspoonful for the basin, a cupful for the washing machine—ample. Have you tried it? Sold by your grocer.

OH, YEAH?

Hubbies Spend More for Clothes Than Wives, Survey Shows

CHICAGO, March 7. (US)—Husbands have been all wrong in their idea that wives spend more than the men do on clothes.

At least that is the almost startling conclusion of Miss May Louise Cowles of the University of Chicago department of home economics, who made public today the results of a thorough investigation into how much is spent on clothes and who spends it in the American family.

At each income level, ranging from $813 to $2,750 a year, the husbands apparel costs about 10 per cent more than that of the wife. That is Miss Cowles' story and she is going to stick to it.

2,500 ATTEND STYLE SHOW

Stage Hands Quit After Disagreement

"I never dictate to the renters of the building about the employment of musicians or any other assistants," he declared. "If the union carpenter I employ does not work, I still am under contract to put on the show, and it is with that understanding that I personally undertook to get the extra help and direct the work myself Friday afternoon and night. Non-union orchestras have played here with the union stage hands without any protest before."

Groups Fail to Agree

The first protest from the local musicians organizations, made through Mr. Muehlberger and other members of the executive board, came to Mr. Ward and Mrs. Holmes after the employment of the non-union orchestra, it was explained. Conferences have been held at various times, but the two groups reached no agreement, Mrs. Holmes repeated. Emergency assistants manned the two spotlights. Mr. Ward took direct charge of the switch board and other mechanical devices, and the ladies themselves helped move pianos and other stage settings into place.

Newest fashions for both men and women were presented during the style show by the models, with musical and dance numbers distributed throughout the program. Attire ranging from early morning pajamas to the formal attire for evening wear was shown to the two audiences, the afternoon attendance being rather small and the night attendance comfortably filling the auditorium.

Six Prisoners Break Jail at Sweetwater

SWEETWATER, Texas, March 7. (UP)—Police here tonight were searching the countryside for six prisoners who escaped from the Nolan county jail early today. The six men, facing sentences for assault to murder, robbery and bootlegging, picked a lock on the jail door. Officers frustrated an attempted escape the same men made last Saturday night.

AUTO TRAILER KILLS GIRL, 9,

Child Dashes in Front of Car Near Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 7.—Mabel Kent, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Kent, who live about six miles east of here, was killed instantly about 6:15 o'clock this evening when she was struck by a trailer attached to an automobile driven by Hubert Wilson as she started across the road in front of her home.

The child's neck was broken, physicians said. A doctor was called immediately after the tragedy but she was dead when her body struck the ground. The body was taken in charge by the Gish Undertaking company here.

The child had just started across the road when she saw a car approaching from the east, witnesses said. She apparently did not notice Wilson's car coming from the opposite direction. After the other machine had passed, she stepped into the road directly in the path of Wilson's car. He swerved to avoid hitting her but the trailer of his car, which extended about six inches farther out than the body of the machine, caught her on the head and snapped her spine.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the First Baptist church here with Rev. H. W. Stigler, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the Frederick cemetery.

County Attorney P. V. Ruch, who conducted an investigation of the tragedy, stated the accident was unavoidable. Mr. Wilson stopped immediately after the trailer had struck the child and rendered all possible aid, having attempted to avoid striking her when she stepped into the road, Mr. Ruch said.

WOMEN BATTLE

Four Fight With Fists For Rights to Only One Man

A feminine battle, in which four women warred over one young man, ended Friday afternoon in the filing of assault and battery charges against the victors. The vanquished, cherishing black eyes, appealed to L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, with their story. The attack took place on the streets after a dance, they declared, where the youngest of the number quite innocently made eyes at another's fiance. The engaged girl and her mother, incensed, followed the flirtatious one and her feminine companion out of the dance hall and settled the matter on the street corner with their fists.

any like total ever observed in the season.

The total for the year promises to be higher and larger than 1929 the president understands, while the undertakings of important business concerns to maintain wage rates are being continued.

Lower Interest

The government's statisticians have estimated that the actual number of persons unemployed at the present time in the United States is only between one-third and one-half of those unemployed during the 1921-1922 period of business depression.

Measures taken in conjunction with the federal reserve board to bring about lower interest rates have been very effective, the president considers, though it is true that mortgage funds have not been made so freely available as other funds. However, he understands that insurance companies have been freed in greater degree during recent weeks from the burden of lending on policies and that this with other factors is likely to bring about a greater supply of cash for residential construction and like purposes.

President Hoover expressed these views today at the regular Friday press conference with newspaper correspondents.

STATE SUES REFINERS HERE

Wichita Companies Named In Gas Tax Plea

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—Assistant Attorney General Rice M. Tilley, today filed suit against the Coastal Petroleum company of Houston for gas taxes claimed due the state and penalties aggregating $100,000. A receivership hearing was set for March 15, and pending it an injunction was issued enjoining the company from disposing of any of its assets, except in the due course of business.

Similar suits were filed against the Pioneer Refining company and the Orient Gas company, both of Wichita Falls, the first for $11,300 and the other for $100,000.

COMPANIES HERE DENY SUIT JUSTIFIED

Officials of both the Wichita Falls companies named in tax suits at Austin Friday evening denied their liability to the taxes and penalties sought.

L. J. Beauregard, secretary and treasurer of the Pioneer Refining company, sued for $11,300 gasoline taxes, declared that state inspectors had looked over the company's books and declared them in the clear at the end of February. He added that he had heard nothing of the suit and that so far as he knew the claims would be contested. A protest against a $200 assessment is already pending, the officer declared.

W. J. Davis, head of the Orient Gas company, also expressed surprise at the suit. He said that the company might be a few days delinquent in the monthly taxes, but that the books had been officially cleared in January. Any taxes and penalties that might be due would equal not one-twentieth of the $100,000 sought, he asserted.

HOMES BLAMED FOR CRIMINALS

Kansas City's Hard-Boiled Chief Gives Views

By MERRILL E. COMPTON

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 7. (UP)—If American cities are to be without crime, the method to handle the situation is to have a policeman in every home where there are growing boys and girls.

That was the arresting comment made today by John L. Miles, chief of police of this western Missouri metropolis, who after serving less than a year has some definite ideas regarding crime and policemen.

"Let me station a police officer at the front door of every home in Kansas City, where there are growing boys and girls," he said, "and there will be no crime problem.

"The conditions we deal with at police headquarters are created in a large part by the best American homes."

Miles said crime problems originate with "idle, spoiled, indulged, undisciplined boys and girls in our homes."

Kansas City, Chief Miles said, was a town of lawlessness, not a city of gangsters.

Miles never walked a "beat" in his life nor was he ever a police officer until he accepted the appointment from Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri and the Kansas City police board. However, he believes policemen should be handled like soldiers and his term in office has been marked by frequent differences between himself and veteran officers.

A major during the world war and before that Jackson county sheriff, politicians and police regarded his ability to cope with crime problems with skepticism when he took office here March 9, last year.

Before midsummer he had closed 196 saloons, and had almost doubled this number before fall. The situation became tense when soft drink manufacturing companies and other companies selling to these concerns complained to city officials and to the police board regarding loss of business.

The board stood adamant regarding reprimanding Miles and backed his actions as they had earlier when he dismissed officers and patrolmen, charging them with failure to enforce the law.

Political leaders and patrolmen, embittered by Miles' stern disciplinary rules which they compared to those used by Gen. Smedley Butler while he was police chief of Philadelphia, scored their first victory in January when Miles' secretary was demoted. They charged he was usurping authority of police officers.

Magazine Editors Deny Conspiracy

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 7. (UP)—Roy D. Weems and Charles J. Brill, co-editors of Southwest Wilds and Waters, outdoors publication, denied today they had ever asked the game and fish commission to assist in financing their magazine.

They also denied emphatically Harris' charge they had entered into a so-called "conspiracy aiming at the law governing the commission."

"This is a malicious untruth," the magazine editors said, "for we never have asked the commission to assist us in financing the magazine."

Weems is a former game warden under the commission, having retired last April. Brill is one of the founders of the Izaak Walton league in Oklahoma and was active in passage of the law creating a game and fish commission in 1926.

Ship Officer Changes Steamers in Mid-Ocean to Return to Stricken Kin

NEW YORK, March 7. (AP)—After a daring transfer in midocean during a bitter wind and a heavy sea, Chief Engineer Battam of the steamship Cranford was en route to New York aboard the United States liner America today to rejoin his family in New Orleans where they were seriously burned in a ship fire.

The transfer was effected by Chief Officer Harry Manning of the America, who commanded the lifeboat in much the same manner as he did a year ago when he rescued the crew of 32 from the disabled Italian freighter, Florida, during a gale off the Virginia Capes.

The story of the transfer was told by Capt. George S. Fried in radio messages to the United States as follows:

"5 p. m. 300 miles south of Cape Race—All in readiness for transfer of Chief Engineer Battam of S. S. Cranford, bound Havre and Antwerp, whose wife probably fatally burned, son unaccounted for and daughter slightly burned in S. S. Scantic fire, New Orleans. Expect to sight Cranford any moment. Chief Officer Harry Manning and crew of 11 will man lifeboat No. 1 when ships brought into position for transfer. America to maneuver to windward to protect lifeboat. Weather cold, good visibility, heavy swell."

"5:15 p. m.—Cranford sighted 4.37. Crew donned life preservers. Boat swung out from island deck starboard. Temperature 32, bitter wind.

"5:22 p. m.—Ships 500 yards apart, at standstill. Boat lowered. Pitch starts."

The concluding message read:

"Alongside S. S. Cranford. Lowered No. 1 boat. Chief Officer Manning in charge with 11 men. Went alongside and took off Chief Engineer Batam about 6 p. m. Hoisted boat and proceeded. Weather clear, heavy swell."

The America is due in New York Sunday.

Armor Plated Rum Runner Captured

CLEVELAND, March 7. (UP)—One man was seriously wounded and a second arrested when coast guardsmen overhauled a rum running tug loaded with 1,000 cases of Canadian whisky and 1,500 cases of beer, after firing on it with rifles and a one-pounder today.

The tug, an armor-plated craft, was overtaken half way between Lorain and Cleveland by a large coast guard cutter commanded by Captain J. T. Hagelove.

The wounded man gave his name as Fred Hentrie, of Detroit. The other man gave his name as Joe Hanna and was lodged in Lorain City jail.

Captain Hagelove said the rum boat refused to stop after two shots were fired across its bow from the one pounders. He ordered his men to use rifles.

YOUNG G. O. P. OF TEXAS TO FORM

Bullington and Ball Discuss Plans

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—Plans for statewide organization of the Young Republican League of Texas, launched recently by Thomas E. Ball, secretary of the Dallas county executive committee, were discussed today at a conference between Ball and Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, state vice chairman.

Organization work will be carried on in every county in the state through present county organizations, Bullington said.

R. B. Creager of Brownsville, national committeeman, and Eugene Nolte of Seguin, state chairman, also at the conference, discussed a successor to the late Leonard Withington as committee secretary, but said that it probably would be a month before a successor was selected.

With Gill's departure, the Fort Worth club slipped from a 7 to a tulead to allow Wichita Falls to ride into a 10 to 9 triumph.

Woman Gets New Trial On 'Life for Pint' Term

LANSING, Mich., March 7. (AP)—Etta Mae Miller, the first woman to be sentenced under Michigan's former life for liquor law, was granted a new trial by the state supreme court today. Her conviction for selling two pints of moonshine liquor was set aside because of errors in her lower court trial. Mrs. Miller's case attracted nationwide attention when she was given a sentence of life imprisonment under the old criminal code, which made the penalty mandatory for four liquor offenses.

BEING A BABY NO SOFT JOB

Group Agrees Infants Have Tough Time of It

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

CHICAGO, March 7. (UP)—A baby has a pretty tough time of it, a distinguished but sympathetic group of child specialists decided here tonight in a convention at which not a single baby was present.

The business of being a baby is a very complicated one, indeed, so extremely involved that few babies likely would take much interest in their problems, even if explained to them, speakers at the Middle West conference on the emotional life of the child concurred.

All babies, it seems, have whirling about in their fuzzy top-knots many multi-syllabled emotions, heredities, repressions, distortions and a pair of first-rate fears.

Fortunately for himself, the baby seldom realizes what a strange little contraption he is. He makes funny noises and he does funny things and he often cries, but it isn't his fault. It's because the job of being a baby is such a difficult task.

Ancestors perhaps are the worst handicap babies have to face, said Dr. Abraham Myerson, professor of neurology at Tufts college. Ancestors as a rule must be regarded as a necessary evil, Doctor Myerson indicated, and babies therefore never should be held responsible for them.

"The ancestors of the child must be studied before his emotional makeup can be determined," said Doctor Myerson. "Children receiving the same sort of treatment often differ. The difference must be laid to different hereditary influences, and a special method of dealing with each child must be evolved by the parents."

Thus little Mary's aversion to taking a bath really is not that at all, but simply a heredity reaction to her great grandmother Agatha having fallen into the goldfish pond once and almost drowning. Likewise little Bobby's liking for pulling wings off of flies probably is not such a serious vice after all. His grandfather Hiram may have been an entomologist.

"We know both in animals and in man strong emotions tend to decrease the digestive secretions," said Dr. Anton J. Carlson of Chicago university. "Experiments show some emotions, such as anger, fear and particularly anxiety, abolish hunger."

So the baby who wouldn't take his bottle and who thereby dismayed his mother, probably was so anxious about his inability to get his left foot into his mouth he forgot all about being hungry.

Father and Sons Plagued in Jail By Former Wives

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 7. (UP—Three men, a father and two young sons, paced their cell in the county jail here today and hoped no more of their alleged former wives would come to torment them.

The father is William Cates, 68. The boys are Richard, 22, and Howard, 17. The father and elder son say they live in Illinois. Howard said his home was Junction City, Colo.

The three are charged with violation of the Mann act by allegedly kidnaping and transporting Margaret Berk from St. Joseph, Mich., to Oklahoma and back to Michigan, where they finally abandoned her. On the trip Richard Cates allegedly married her, she being the third wife federal officers charge he took and deserted. His father allegedly has married and deserted seven women. Five have called at the jail to see him, while all three of Richard's alleged brides paid him a visit.

Chickasha Woman to Seek State Office

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 7. (UP)—Mrs. Lizzie West, Chickasha, said today she would soon resign her position with the vital statistics bureau of the state health department to become a Democratic candidate for charities and corrections commissioner.

Mrs. West said she would make her formal announcement later this month. She has been connected with the state health department for a number of months and was senate postmistress at the last state legislative session.

Other charities and correction commissioner candidates are Mrs. Grace Campbell, Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Mable Bassett, president commissioners.

DRUG MEN ASK LAW CHANGES

Anti-Chain and Narcotic Legislation Urged

FORT WORTH, March 7. (AP)—Chain store competition and the alleged unfairness of the present state law concerning the revocation of druggist's certificates for violation of the narcotic laws were the subjects acted upon by resolutions at the closing session today of the convention of the West Texas Druggists association.

Members of the organization passed a resolution favoring "any fair and legal method of coping with foreign-owned corporations." They also passed a resolution calling on the legislative committee of the Texas Pharmaceutical association to prepare a resolution for submission to the state legislature revoking the present law, which does not permit the state board of pharacy to review cases of violation of narcotic laws.

Parachute Jumper Comes Down to Face Arrest

HAMDEN, Conn., March 7. (UP)—Ed Sherman, veteran West Haven parachute jumper, saw policemen waiting on the Hamden flying field today as he descended in a 2,500-foot practice jump—but it was too late to turn back. As Sherman's feet touched earth, officers served him with papers in connection with his wife's suit for alleged non-support.

The United States Public Health Service assert in a recent bulletin that at least one half of all adults suffer from it at times—men, more than women.

And bear in mind it is no disease to trifle with for many of its victime have been disabled for weeks.

They call this modern disease Athlete's Foot because the germ Tinea Trichophyton breeds on the floors of the dressing rooms of gymnasiums and athletic clubs—also on shower boards and mats and near swimming pools.

When this parasite first attacks, there is an eruption followed by itching (often intense) the skin cracks—it blisters—when the blister breaks there is an oozing of liquid.

If not caught in time the disease usually spreads along the sole and sides of the foot—the skin reddens and may peel off.

CAUTION: The disease is infectious—someone in your own home may have it—(find out tonight). Beware of bathmats, either at home or in hotels—use a newspaper—it's safer. Wear your own slippers and walk as little as possible in your bare feet.

TREATMENT: After bathing the feet apply Moone's Emerald Oil generously, not only under and between the toes but over the bottom and sides of foot. This powerful oil soothes and penetrates—stops the itching and checks the growth of the germs of the vegetable parasite.

Pharmacists everywhere in America dispense Moone's Emerald Oil—a bottle lasts a long time.—Adv.

RECIPES

Piquante Fruit Cocktail

Mix together one-half cupful of powdered sugar, one-half cupful of orange juice, and one-third cupful of grapefruit juice and chill. Remove pits from one cupful of canned cherries, either white or red, and cut canned pears in cubes to the amount of one cupful. Place the fruit in cocktail glasses, alternating cherries and pears, fill with the liquid, and sprinkle each service with one-half teaspoon of chopped crystalized ginger.

Baked Stuffed Fillets

In baking whole fish it has always been a task to stuff the fish sew it, and prepare it for baking. The fillets make it possible to serve this same delicacy with far less labor. Prepare a well-seasoned bread stuffing as follows: Melt six tablespoons of fat in a frying pan, add one tablespoon of finely chopped onion and saute until the onion is tender. Then add two cupfuls of dry bread crumbs, two teaspoons of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, four tablespoons of milk, one teaspoon of sage, one teaspoon of chopped celery, and one teaspoon of parsley. Mix well, and then arrange a layer of this stuffing between every two fillets. Spread melted butter or oil over the surface of the fillets, place in a baking pan with one-half cupful of hot water, and bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees F. for 20 minutes, or until tender, basting two or three times with the liquid in the pan. Remove to a hot platter and serve with tomato tartare sauce.

Tomato Tartare Sauce

Cook one tablespoonful of minced onion in three tablespoonfuls of fat until tender. Then add three tablespoons of flour and stir until bubbling. Next add two cupfuls of strained tomatoes or one cupful of canned condensed tomato soup diluted with one cupful of water. When smooth and creamy, add two tablespoonfuls of chopped pickles, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one tablespoonful of capers and salt and pepper to taste.

Golden Glow Salad

One cup boiling water.
One cup canned pineapple juice.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One package orange jello.
One cup canned grated pineapple.
One cup grated or scraped or ground carrot.
One-half cup pecan meats, chopped.

Dissolve jello in boiling water. Add pineapple juice, vinegar, and salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, add pineapple, carrot and nuts. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. This amount makes nine small molds.

Cheese Straws

One-half pound grated cheese.
One-half pound butter.
One-half pound flour (two cups).
One-fourth teaspoon cayenne.

Cream the butter and stir in the flour, add the cheese and pepper a little at a time and mix it in well. If necessary add enough milk to soften sufficiently to knead. Roll thin, about one-eighth of an inch thick. Cut into strips five inches long and one-fourth inch wide. Bake in hot oven until a light brown, about eight minutes. Serve with salads. This rule makes about 100 straws. A part of the straws may be made in circles by joining two ends, moistening slightly tips with water and pressing together.

Note—Cheese straws may be made of left-over pie dough. Roll pastry one-fourth inch thick, and sprinkle one-half with grated cheese. Fold, press edges firmly together, fold again, pat and roll one-fourth inch thick. Sprinkle with cheese and fold and roll out a second time. Cut in strips five inches long and one-fourth inch wide. Bake eight minutes in a hot oven. Cheese straws are improved by placing in the oven a few minutes before serving to freshen.

Maple Parfait

Four eggs
One cup hot maple syrup
One pint double cream

Beat eggs slightly and pour on slowly the maple syrup, beating constantly. Cook over water until the mixture thickens and coats the spoon. Cool and add the stiffly beaten cream. Place in a mold and pack in ice and salt for three hours using one measure of salt to one of ice. This mixture may be frozen in the mechanical refrigerator drawer.

FISH

Fish may be used to advantage to vary the weekly menu, especially during the Lenten season, which is generally thought of as a time of self-denial and discipline. Fish and shell-fish are two of our most extensive natural sources of food. Like meat they are rich in protein and contain variable amounts of vitamins A and B. Furthermore, as foods grown in or near the sea, they contain variable amounts of iodine. Iodine has taken on great importance in the last few years, owing to the new knowledge of it as a regulator of thyroid activities and thus a preventive of goiter.

Perhaps in no single article of food has the housekeeper in years past encountered more difficulty, real or imaginary, than in the preparation, cooking and serving of fish foods. Fortunately, however, the fishing industry in all of its branches has been aggressively engaged in perfecting its products to overcome these seeming objections. Today, our markets sell not only canned fish of superior quality, but fresh fish and frozen fish fillets in package form as well, fish fresh from the ocean, which has been cleaned, boned, skinned and wrapped with the utmost care. When these fillets are purchased there are no fishy odors, no disagreeable cleaning to be done for they are ready to cook.

Frozen fish fillets are frozen so rapidly that the flesh cells do not break, the juicy texture and flavor of the fish are retained and no bacteria can grow.

With such a wide variety of canned fish products as well as fresh and frozen fish fillets—all ready to cook, and procurable in our markets—the home manager has every reason for making fish one of the staple meat products of her meals.

A brief study of fish and shell-fish will open up an amazing variety of delicious and satisfying dishes, as too often fish is merely rolled in meal and saute'd. They are delicious cooked in this manner, but the following suggestions will offer several newer and more healthful methods of varying the fish dinner.

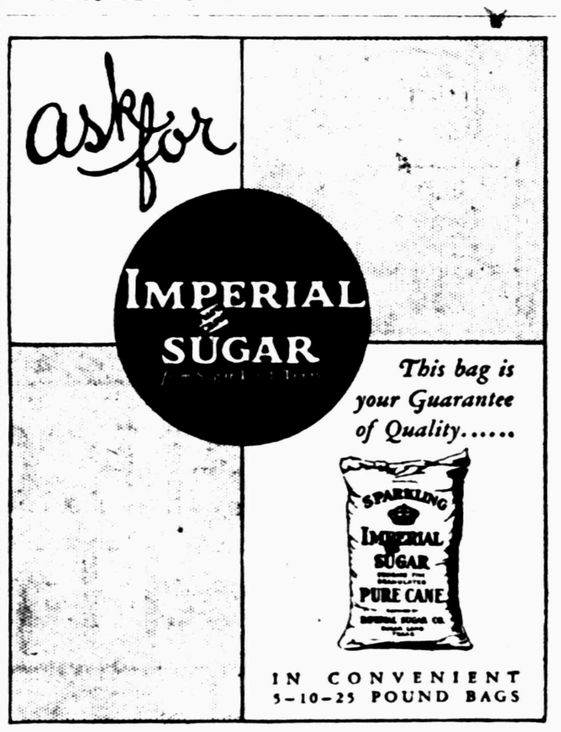

Broiled Fillets of Fish

Wipe or rinse fish, season, put on a well greased baking sheet, brush with melted butter and place under a gas glame or electric broiler for five minutes or until well browned. With two broad spatulas turn fish over and brown the other side. A fireproof glass platter or plate might be used instead of the

HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Constipation is the most common menace to health today. It is extremely dangerous in itself and is the source of many other complicating ailments. There is no permanent relief in pills and drugs. Many of them are dangerous.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. And roughage in food helps eliminate the possibility of constipation. Most modern foods do not contain roughage. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily is the proper amount. In recurring cases, ALL-BRAN should be eaten with each meal. It is an essential in any reducing diet. In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains iron, the blood builder. It is the original ALL-BRAN, proved effective by millions and recommended by physicians.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has an appetizing flavor. Eat it with milk or cream, in cereals and fruit juices, in soups and in cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Members Of Alamo P.-T.A Hear Inspiring Program

With "Better Homes" as the general topic of the program, one of the most inspiring meetings of the year was given when members of Alamo P.-T. A. met in the school auditorium Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Wm. D. Bratton was leader in the program.

Speaking on "Better Homes" Mrs. Bratton stated that the home is the very foundation of civilization and the spirit of the home is but an expression of what the mother is.

Mrs. Luther Hoffman talked on "The Home Beautiful," stressing the point that one's home can be made beautiful no matter what the means or the condition in life.

The wonderful talk made by Mrs. C. A. Spragin on "Character Building" was the high point of the splendidly prepared program, inspiring every mother who heard it to greater efforts in rearing her children.

Interesting Announcements Made

Miss Ruby Lee Martin gave the devotional and in the business meeting, after the reading of the minutes, Mrs. Jim Barnard, treasurer, reported $38 added to the treasury, made from percentage on ticket sales and winning first place in attendance at the recent French Marionette show.

In the various announcements made, Mrs. C. L. Baum said that membership cards had been sent to all P.-T. A. members and Mrs. T. H. Lawson stated that the school faculty will have charge of the next regular meeting and that an entertaining program is anticipated.

It was announced that Alamo P.-T. A. will sponsor an "All Fools Day Festival," the last of March, with Mrs. J. Newton Huff acting as general chairman.

The nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for the coming year was named as follows: Mrs. Abe Marcus, chairman; Mesdames Lester Jones and Jason Walker.

Mrs. H. J. Strief urged all members to subscribe for the Child Welfare magazine. Mrs. A. J. Newby, president, explained the object of the thrift exchange and quoted Doctor Cantwell as saying "this movement is a great step toward better citizenship."

Miss Ila B. Cook presented a group of her pupils in three lovely songs. In the room count, Mrs. Mangum's won first prize and Miss Moore's was second.

Many Attend Meeting

Members registering were Mesdames W. L. Whitlow, B. O. Brown, F. Slengel, J. C. Martin, C. C. Hill, F. H. Corbin, John P Marrs, L. D. Powell, Joe Hancock, Lester Jones, O. K. Conner, Bill Nabors, F. BOY HANGS SELF

GOLDEN, Colo., March 7. (AP)—Louis Lusby, 17, inmate in the state industrial school for boys here, hanged himself in a storeroom of the school yesterday. He had been despondent for several weeks. His mother, Mrs. Louis Lusby, resided in Amarillo, Texas.

Dickens Reviewed In Unique Manner By Friday Club

Mrs. Walter Bachman was the charming hostess to members of the Twentieth Century club Friday afternoon in her home on Hays street. Mrs. T. H. Lawson was leader for the day in the program on Charles Dickens.

Roll call was answered as usual with current events on the assigned topics and Mrs. Roy I. Carter gave a splendid talk on the topic, "Some Critical Estimates of Dickens."

David Copperfield was the book that was chosen for study and was reviewed in an original fashion; each member gave a three-minute synopsis of a chapter, bringing the story to the close of the first half. An interesting discussion completed the study.

After a social half hour, Mrs. Bachman ushered her guests into the dining room where Mrs. A. B. Lipscomb poured tea for her at a handsome silver service on a table lovely with a bowl of spring flowers in the center and lighted tapers in silver holders.

A delicious refreshment plate was served to Mrs. G. B. Albritton, D. H. Allday, J. D. Bright, Roy I. Carter, E. H. Eddleman, E. B. Lehrack, C. E. Deaton, T. H. Lawson, A. B. Lipscomb, C. E. Naylor, R. B. Parker, F. P. Warren and B. P. Williams and the hosters.

Unity Club Has Program On Texas One Act Plays

Spring arrived in beautiful fashion in the dining room of the Woman's Forum when members of the Unity club met there Friday for luncheon before the presentation of their "Texas Play" program. The luncheon table was fragrant with spring flowers.

Mrs. Claude Woods was leader for the day with Mrs. W. N. Maer and Mrs. W. M. Priddy assisting.

The book of Texas one-act plays compiled by Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, which will be released from the press in another week contains the three principal plays the which feature the program.

Mrs. Woods gave the beautiful foreword written by Mrs. Oneal in the book and talked on the volume and the Texas writers whose work will appear in it, familiarizing members of the club with the personnel of the writers.

Mrs. Woods then gave a synopsis and vivid review of Mrs. Oneal's play, "The Inspiration," which was a prize play in a contest put on in the Woman's Forum.

Mrs. Newton Maer told in most interesting fashion the story of Mabel Ruth Strong's one-act play, "Tombs," which was winner in the Texas State Federation contest and is included in the book. Miss Stong, though an Ardmore, Okla., girl, was a senior in C. I. A., majoring in kindergarten work, when she wrote the play which took stat prizes. It was her first attempt at work of that character. Mrs. Maer told also of another play, "Brain Dust," written later by Miss Stong which was of strong interest.

Miss Rebecca Smith, a member of the faculty at C. I. A., was featured by Mrs. W. M. Priddy, who told of Miss Smith's outstanding position as a Texas playwright and lecturer. "Mr. Glint," the play by Miss Smith which appears in the book, proved wonderfully interesting in Mrs. Priddy's tielineation.

Members present were Mesdames G. D. Anderson, A. H. Carrigan, E. B. Gorsline, J. C. Hunt, Carrie Joline, O. E. Maer, W. N. Maer, J. T. Montgomery, H. B. Patterson, W. M. Priddy, W. L. Robertson, Eugene Sherrod, Marvin Smith, C. B. Woods, H. C. Young, W. S. Langford, Luther Hoffman, Carter McGregor, C. Y. Tully and Lillian Kerr.

Mrs. Dawson's Weekly Recipes

baking sheet and this may be garnished and carried to the table. It will take from five to eight minutes to the side to cook the fish. Spread with maitre d'hotel butter and parsley.

Maitre d'Hotel Butter

Taree tablespoons butter.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Few grains pepper.
Three-fourths tablespoon lemon juice.
One-half tablespoon chopped parsley.

Work butter with a small spoon until creamy, adding salt and pepper. Add the lemon jiice slowly to the butter. Add chopped parsley and spread over fish. A bit of red or green pepper may be finely shredded and added to the butter.

Baked Fillet Poulette

Cut fillets of fish in individual servings, dip in milk and in sifted dry bread crumbs. Put in a baking dish and bake until crumbs are brown, about 25 minutes. Place on the serving dish, surround with egg sauce and garnish with hard-cooked eggs. Cut the whites in rings and rub the yolks through a strainer. Decorate with lemon cut in fancy shapes and parsley.

Egg Sauce

Add drawn butter sauce slowly to one or two egg yolks, return to saucepan and stir over hot water until slightly thickened.

Drawn Butter Sauce

Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half cup boiling water.
One-third teaspoon salt.
Few grains pepper.
One teaspoon lemon juice.

Melt butter, add flour and stir until smooth, then add boiling water, salt and pepper. Remove fish to serving dish and to the liquid in the baking pan, add enough water to make one-half cup and add this to the sauce; add lemon juice.

Tuna-Salmon Timbale

Two cups canned tuna.
Two cups canned salmon.
Three cups milk.
One cup cream.
Four egg whites.
One tablespoon butter.

Season the tuna and add 1½ cups of the milk and one-half cup of the cream. Add slowly two of the egg whites, beaten, and one-half tablespoonful of the butter. Prepare the salmon in the same way. Grease a fish mold with the butter. Put into the mold the tuna mixture and press down lightly. Then cover the tuna layer with the salmon. Set the mold in a pan of boiling water and cook for 20 minutes in a slow oven (350 degrees F.). Garnish with pimento and serve with lemon juice and a sauce if desired, made with one can of shrimp, heated with one cup of cream and a seasoning of salt and pepper.

Deviled Fish

Six strips bacon.
Two tablespoons minced onion.
four tablespoons green peppers.
Two cups canned flaked fish.
Six olives.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves.
Two cups tomato pulp and juice.
One cup crumbs.

Cook the bacon until crisp; remove from the pan and mince. Cook the pepper and onion for two minutes in the bacon fat; add the tomato and seasoning, and boil for five minutes. Add the flaked fish, the minced bacon and more seasonings if necessary. Place in greased ramekins, cover with crumbs, dot with butter, and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for five minutes, or until crumbs are brown. This mixture may be used to spread on rounds of bread and baked for five minutes in a hot oven to serve as canapes.

Salmon and Hominy Grits

To three cups of hot cooked hominy grits add two cups of flaked salmon; season with salt and one-fourth cup melted butter. Turn into a square pan. When cold, cut in squares, dip in flour and saute. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

NO FRIEND LIKE AN OLD FRIEND

For thirty-five years millions have shown preference for Shredded Wheat over all other cereal foods—and it's so easy to understand why. It's the whole wheat in its most digestible form. The crisp, crunchy shreds encourage thorough chewing—and the more you chew it the better you like it. So easy to serve a quick breakfast because it is ready-cooked. Delicious for any meal.

DON'T FLASH YOUR TRUMPS

Daily Editorial

IT'S A CLEVER lion that knows when to wear an ass' skin. If young Benjamin Disraeli had been less of a fop, his early political opponents wouldn't have been so prone to dismiss him as a fop.

"It doesn't pay to advertise" ability—too soon ambition stands a better show when operating from ambush. The bud that tries to rush its hour in the sun usually gets a frost-nip for its pains.

Experience constantly advises shrewdness to camouflage in the mannerisms of folly. That's how so many of the boys, who apparently would never amount to a hill of beans, continue to maneuver themselves into cabinets, corporation control, and bank presidencies.

The first law of strategy is to lull suspicion of actual fighting strength. The unobserved force makes fastest progress.

A flank attack has the best chance to succeed. Concealed artillery scores the most hits—the unanticipated assault is hardest to resist.

Nothing is so misleading as that which seems most obvious. Military and financial coups, alike, are invariably preceded by feinting in a different direction from the real objective. Telegraphed blows seldom land. The fewer people that sense your plans, the brighter your hope of executing 'em.

If you're headed west, the prospect of arriving at a set goal, without interruption, is immeasurably increased by broadcasting the impression that you're bound east. On the battlefields of business, as well as war, don't prematurely flash your trumps or sound your trumpets. The card table, sales management and market manipulation require that the other fellow shall be kept guessing. Efficiency doesn't blare, blow or strut. While you're underestimated, you won't be undermined.

DON'T TALK about your immature projects, and you're apter to put them through.

All sorts of folk, who in the ordinary course of events might not be aware of your existence, will hasten to thwart you if they detect a personal menace in your aspirations.

There's no discretion so useful as that which prompts men to shutter show windows until they're ready to display a complete line of goods.

When you can make a competitor feel that he's the smarter of the two—when you can impress him with his own superiority and infect him with the idea that you're the dunderhead—you're already halfway past his defenses.

It's far easier to win when nobody suspects an ace in the hole. Most people tell too much; they exaggerate their attainments and consequently prattle away their opportunities.

Impatience to be recognized as important keeps them from becoming important. As Lew Fields used to say, "They stand too far in front of themselves."

The spotlight hog can only see the glaring calcium; it's blinding blaze both reveals him and conceals those who are taking his measure.

When you over-feature yourself you've begun to lose sense of surroundings. The background's the safest place from which to take an accurate survey. Keep down until you're already to rise. If you're bent on advancement, affect a retiring attitude. The very crowd that the brass band attracts, blocks its march.

The young German who built a model of the Cologne Cathedral out of 2,500,000 matches and came to New York to get money to finance the rest of his education apparently hopes to set the world on fire as an architect.

The trouble about flattering one's self is that someone is likely to knock you flat.

How Selfishness Fails

SHORTLY after Dr. Snook was electrocuted in the Ohio state penitentiary, Warden P. E. Thomas wrote a little character study of the man, basing it on his observation of him as a prisoner and on many talks he had had with him.

Now Snook, of course, is well forgotten; yet one or two of the warden's remarks about him are worth looking at—not because Snook was a noteworthy person, but because it is interesting to see just how a murderer differs from an ordinary citizen.

The outstanding trait in Snook's character, says Warden Thomas, was selfishness. Snook lived for himself alone. He based all of his actions on the way they would affect himself; he made all of his decisions with himself, and only himself, in view.

So it was that Snook got himself entangled in a sordid love affair and committed a murder to get out of it.

Probably there wasn't as wide a gulf between Snook and some of the rest of us, in that one respect, as we like to think. Snook was supremely selfish—but genuine unselfishness is far from being a universal trait. He shaped all of his life with the aim of pleasing himself before anyone else—and so, in a slightly lesser degree, do most of the rest of us.

This, of course, does not mean that we are all potential Snooks. But it does mean that we are not quite so far removed from him as we might choose to imagine. He had our common vice of selfishness; he merely carried it a bit farther than the ordinary man does.

There is another point worth considering, too, in connection with this selfishness of Snook's.

Snook was supremely selfish—and because of his selfishness he wound up by getting himself into the worst mess imaginable.

His very desire to make his own life pleasant and enjoyable kept it from being that and turned it into a tragedy. His selfishness, in other words, defeating itself.

That is the way things often work out in this world. The man who is eternally "looking out for number one" is apt to be outstripped, in the pursuit of happiness, by the chap who makes it his rule to look out for someone else's welfare. To put yourself first all of the time is likely to mean, some day, that you will find yourself last.

All of which, to conclude, is simply another way of staging a very old truth—a truth that is best said in the significant phrase, "He that saveth his life shall lose it."

Mr. Coolidge Comments on Texas

TEXANS are a little more proud of their empire than the residents of most other states, possibly with the exception of California, it seems to The Record News. Yet, we find the comments of Calvin Coolidge on Texas to be a somewhat welcome relief from those of all the other visitors who have been here in the last decade and have been interviewed by energetic newspaper reporters. While Mr. Coolidge's terse comments are perhaps as far from an accurate picture of the state as some of the flourishing exclamations of more polite visitors, they strike a refreshing tone in this day of civic ballyhoo.

At El Paso Mr. Coolidge sticks his head out of his train to remark that West Texas "looks like it did 20 years ago to me," which to say the least is an unusual comment on West Texas. At San Antonio, the former president did not lay a wreath of flowers at the shrine of the Alamo heroes, but demanded to know "what the Alamo was built for." San Antonio press dispatches confessed the former president said "nothing which could be construed to be a constructive comment on San Antonio," and at Dallas he replied to an invitation to come back to Texas with the remark that "I'm here now."

Most Texans know their state well enough to take Mr. Coolidge's comments with a grin of appreciation. No visitor can tell anything about Texas by a railroad trip through the state with stops of 10 and 15 minutes at principal towns. Mr. Coolidge differs from the average run by simply being frank enough not to pretend that he can. His comments compare to those we usually receive as a glass of unsweetened grapefruit juice does to a barrel of applesauce.

A New Meaning for "Futures"

WHATEVER our attitude toward the policies and program of the federal farm board, we must admit that the board's action in demanding the actual delivery of wheat on the May future contracts which it purchased recently in the Chicago market strikes a pleasing note in agricultural sections.

Farmers and their sympathizers always have been in error in attributing all of their marketing misfortunes to the speculations of traders in futures. Any of the many proposals to eliminate future trading is likely to bring economic chaos at least for a period of years, it seems to The Record News. The fact that the board is calling for actual delivery of wheat on the future contracts that it purchased, however, has had and will continue to have a tonic effect on the price of that product on the Chicago market.

If applied to the future markets of other farm staples, it should act as an effective check to vicious drives against the prices of commodities, which flurries often cost farmers thousands of dollars within a few days or weeks during the marketing season. The fact that speculators, through such a policy of the farm board, often would have to go out and buy the actual wheat, cotton, corn or other produce that they had sold for "future delivery," seems to The Record News to be a curb on needless speculation without destroying the economic benefit which comes from free buying and selling in the future markets. If the farm board does much "speculating" for the farmer's benefit it is likely to bring about an entirely new understanding of the mythical market in "futures."

Man About Town

Well, she's had it coming to her for a long spell. She's been begging for it, but her luck asserted itself again, and the incident hasn't landed on the Page Ones. Blessed is the mess of charm and a pair of stems that Simply Leave You Limp when they are decorated by sheer hose, she has triumphed on the stage and the screen. Her weekly wage is plenty and after all these years she still is "in circulation," preferring the local Dandies to marriage.

But something has happened to her. She has shelved the smarter spots and her intimates for Harlem and the sepias, one of whom she brazenly hoofed with the other 5 o'clock in the yawning. And when the torrid tunes and tempos got hotter, she necked with him right before your orbs.

Then she adjourned to the ladies' reception room to powder her nose. The brownskin's "heart," it appears, was waiting For Just That. Cornering the celebrity in the room the infuriated second fiddle beat her mercilessly, destroying her gorgeous frocks, millinery and other decorations and then, to make her revenge complete, robbed her of her costly "ice." The celebrated victim hasn't complained to the police, for obvious reasons.

His handle is Jesepi Radealli and his tenoring will do until another Caruso ankles along, so marvelous is his vocalizing . . . Ambitious to delight Americans, Radealli listened to Lew Leslie, the revusical producer, when Leslie found him in Milan, where he nightingaled with the Milan Opera a year or so ago . . . Leslie brought him to this village of ours and kept him under cover and supported him.

The warbler's visit to New York got around, however, and the local impresarios tried to theft him, but he couldn't be located and even if they could get to him, Radealli wouldn't have crossed Leslie . . . He agreed to wait on tables in a friend's speakeasy in the slums, where he rehearsed daily . . . He knows by heart every aria, but his "Pagliacci" is his ace . . . They took him out only at night for an airing, as one would take out a pet, Leslie taking no chances on his "find" getting away from him, for it was his intention to feature Radealli in his revue to "startle the town."

But the premiere night came, the night Radealli had waited for—for over a year—and the show was too long . . . Leslie cut his appearance and broke his heart . . . Radealli might have saved the show, too . . . Instead, they found room for Argentinita, Spain's alleged idol, whose flop was so heavy you still can hear the thump . . . Remember the Maine!

The shudder that comes with ankling the 53rd and 7th avenue pavement at dawn, which is where the late Rothstein meandered alone nervously jingling coins . . . The Blue Ribbon, on 44th street, probably the only restaurant in town that never rates a tumble from those who write about places frequented by celebrities, but which is where Mencken, Nathan and a score of other People Who Matter tear their herrings daily.

The most sensible speakesy in New York—on Park avenue . . . Governed by a woman Who Understands Drunks and for whom you cannot buy a drink up against the bar . . . If she drinks with you, it's on the house, an elegantly appointed hideaway, one floor of which contains dozens of plume-filled cushions, pillows and tiny mattresses, all done in silver . . . And on which you simply fall or loll about and Sleep It Off, if the funmilk has gone to your knees . . . And you may cuddle or pet with your Honey in this nook or that one almost all over the place, providing, of course, you are not technical about privacy.

He has the distinction of being one of New York's toughest guys . . . And there are few stunts he wouldn't pull if he thought it would serve his friends or affiliations . . . In the past few years he has gone straight violating the Volstead act via the night club route, and probably has done several things that wouldn't exactly be legal . . . But he has his way of thinking and won't tolerate anyone cussing around a gal . . . He was out of town when his colleagues put on a new floor show . . . Upon his return he closed the show . . . Because it was full of cuties who danced in the lewd . . . "What do you guys think I am, anyhow?" he thundered. Let those Nice producers and other birds make dough that way."

It has never happened before . . . That is, not until Marc Connolly's "The Green Pastures" came to 47th street the other curtain-time . . . Never have the critics toyed with so many superlatives on one play . . . Most agreed it is the finest thing ever done in the theater . . . That it has grandeur, beauty, magnificence, perfection, rhythm, melody, loveliness, distinction and greatness . . . Yet, it is the oldest story of them all, all of it coming out of the Bible . . . Marc Connolly juggled with it for three years, but the din of cheers that greeted him in the critical columns the following morning made it worth the task . . . And when the reviewers (who were rushed for time, and who were dazzled by the spectacle) continue their raves in their Sunday departments, there will be an army of belittlers who will point out that Connolly is a member of the famous Round Table at the Algonquin, and is being "log-rolled" again . . . Which would be another major exaggeration, considering that not one of the critics is a round-tabler, and besides all of them panned his last show straight into the showmorgue.

The current Westport scandal concerns a lad tagged—well, no matter . . . He has carried on terrifically with a welded woman who has a quintet of papooses and a husband who has been in a sanitarium getting cured of the heroin habit . . . The husband has just returned to his shack and the Chap Who Is Ca-Razee Like Anything for Her will tolerate no Goings-On. He wants her to Come to Him . . . In the meantime the husband, who has maniac eyes, is no silly-Willie . . . Westport is breathless . . . It may come to nothing, of course, but it looked like a one-way bullet up to yesterday . . . E. B. White, of New York's grandest weekly broke a non-breakable rule and gave money (to the extent of $1.25) to a panhandler the other noon . . . But White explained everything . . . It appears that he was generous because the guy didn't want a cuppa cawfee but, heheheh, "just loved to spend money."

The Girl With The Red Hair by Rob Eden

"In return for $5,000, I, Gay Terris, agree to marry Frank B. Patterson."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Pretty Gay Terris is forced to obtain $5,000 to send her sick mother to Arizona. She composes an ad which she intends to place in the newspaper, offering herself in marriage for a loan of the money. Frank Patterson, her employer, a wealthy bachelor of 50, learns of her plan and calls her to his private office.

CHAPTER II

Patterson's desk was meticulously clean. There was not a speck of dust on it. The glass covering the mahogany surface gleamed like a mirror. In a basket at one end, a stack of papers was orderly arranged. They might have been leaves of a book. Besides his basket there was only an ink well and a pen on the desk.

The windows looking down 20 stories onto the street were spotless, too, and the blinds were drawn discreetly to shut out any lingering ray of sunshine that might want to wander through the room. There were no cigaret trays around. Patterson permitted no smoking in his private office.

The walls were bare except for a plain big figured calendar, and a class picture indicating that Frank Patterson had graduated from Yale in 1904.

The man sitting in the big swivel chair fitted into the room perfectly. Tall, and inclined to slight portliness, his clothes were conservative, dark and fitted very well. His shoes were carefully shined, his hands well kept. Soft. His hair was thin and gray.

Gay knew he was particular about his office, his files, his desk. His secretary had told her that. There mustn't be a thing, a paper out of place. He was hard to work for, Mr. Galway, she thought, was not like that. He flared up at times, when his temper got the best of him, but he wasn't so bad. Not as bad as Mr. Patterson would be at any rate.

Gay knew also that the vice president was a bachelor, that he had never married. Perhaps that was why he was so particular. So fussy.

It was like going to school again, having to wait while Mr. Patterson read and re-read her ad. She fidgeted in her chair, and sighed. She should have taken it out of the typewriter. Shouldn't have left it, so anyone could see it.

"You wrote this?" Patterson's cool voice came to her. Not a disagreeable voice, yet not a nice one. Rather a voice with an edge on it.

She nodded. There was nothing else to do. She couldn't deny it.

"What are the desperate circumstances, please?" He was looking at her now, having taken off the spectacles and put them in his pocket.

In as few words as possible Gay told him. She did not look at him while she was talking, for she was fighting to control herself, fighting because she knew that in a moment she would be crying, and she couldn't cry in Mr. Patterson's office. She gripped the arms of the chair savagely as she went on. Mr. Patterson didn't care. No one cared except her. Why did he want to know? Why did she have to tell him?

"You were going to put this in the personal columns of the newspaper?" His voice came to her as if he were far away. Muffled. Again she had to fight back the tears that were ready to spring to her eyes.

"Yes."

"Why should you take these means?"

"I—have no other way to get the money. I must have it."

Why should he question her like this? When it was her business? Humiliation enough to do as she was doing, without being questioned about it. . . . She wanted to run from the office, wanted to be home with her mother.

"I have an appointment at 4:30." Patterson reached in his pocket, and snapped open his watch. "Come back and see me at 5. In the meantime, I'll keep this." He indicated the paper which he was folding up and putting in his desk drawer.

Blindly Gay groped for the door, and found herself in the big office. Several of the girls looked up curiously as she walked past them to her desk which was in the corner.

Why had he said that? What did he want to see her again at 5 for? Why had he kept her paper?

"What did Patterson want?" Nita Rollins had to ask, her question three times before Gay answered.

"Nothing."

"You came out of his office looking like he'd fired you," Nita laughed, and patted her smooth shiny black hair. A bracelet at her wrist jingled. "Listen, Redhead, you've been looking like a ghost all afternoon. What's the matter?"

"Nothing."

"Don't pull that line. I know," Nita drawled. The bracelet jingled again as she smoothed her tight fitting bodice. Gay couldn't help looking admiringly at the dress. It was stunning. Nita dressed well, always something new. Jewelry, clothes. "Well, forget it, anyway. It's nearly 5." With that, she walked back to her desk, with the swaying, lazy step that was peculiarly hers.

Gay smiled wanly. Nita had tried to sympathize, and now she did need sympathy. Nita was good at heart.

She was still brooding at her typewriter, when she saw the other girls rise, close their machines and leave.

Mr. Patterson had said to come back at 5. Hurriedly she closed her desk, and walked to his office. The door was closed.

"Someone's in with him," a voice at her elbow announced, as she stood with her hand on the door. Well, she would wait. He had asked her to. She started dizzily back to her desk, wondering what she should do if her ad remained unanswered. Perhaps no one would want her. Perhaps it would be taken as a joke. Yet it was the only hope she had. Her salary. What was $1,040 a year when she needed $5,000? How could she save $5,000, when she only earned $1,040? In 10 years she might, but not in one. And she needed the money right away.

A sudden thought came to her that Mr. Patterson might not return the paper to her. Quickly she opened her typewriter and wrote another, folding it when she finished and putting it in her purse. In case he forgot. She hoped he wouldn't keep her too long, for she had to go to the newspaper office before she went home. And mother would worry. Dr. King had said on no account was her mother to worry.

Finally she saw Patterson escorting a man from his office, and she rose and hurried to his door. He held it open for her as she entered.

When she was seated, he turned to his desk, and pulled the paper from it. Looked at it a long time. But he had looked at it before. He must know it by heart by this time.

"You are in earnest about this, Miss Terris?"

"I am going through with it!" She spoke defiantly. For a moment her eyes met his, and then fell. She heard his chair slide back, heard his top desk drawer open, then the smooth slide of his pen over paper.

If he would only let her go! She hated his neat, orderly office, the heavy rug that showed no footprints, the blinds pulled down so carefully. The furniture, expensive, yet solid. Too solid. Like Mr. Patterson himself.

"You are quite sure you are in earnest about this?"

She did not bother to answer this time, only nodded, still not looking at him. She bit her lip until it ached.

"Here, Miss Terris." Something crisp fell into her lap, and she looked at it wonderingly, then at Patterson, who was smiling fatuously at her from his chair.

A check—but why—

Miss Gay Terris—five thousand dollars. Signed, Frank B. Patterson.

"I don't understand—" she murmured as she held the dull green slip of paper in her hand.

"What don't you understand?"

"This—"

"I thought you would understand when I told you to come back at five."

"But—"

"You asked in your advertisement for a loan of $5,000. In return you offer marriage. Am I right?"

"Yes—" Gay still looked dumbly at him, not quite understanding.

"I'm taking you at your word."

"My word?"

"Yes."

She flushed, and started to get up. Now she understood. How could she be so ignorant! In return for his loan he wanted to marry her! Mr. Patterson! The check fell from her hands onto the floor. Patterson retrieved it for her, and once again she found it in her lap.

Five thousand dollars. It meant her mother could go away, could get well. It meant also that she must marry Patterson.

Surreptitiously she glanced at him. He was writing.

This man to be her husband. It would be hard, more difficult than she had thought.

Will the arrangement be satisfactory?" Patterson was speaking quite calmly as if he were talking of business, of letters to be written, anything but marriage.

Gay hesitated. The money was in her hand. What she wanted. "Yes," she answered, "quite satisfactory."

"If you'll sign this," he handed her the paper he had been writing.

The words stared up at her boldly, horribly. "In return for $5,000 I, Gay Terris, agree to marry Frank B. Patterson.

Below the smooth, flowing lines of Patterson's writing, she signed her name. The signature did not look like hers, but it was the best she could do. Her hand was shaking so . . .

"I didn't set any date in the agreement, because I think we should get to know each other better," Patterson was saying, as he blotted her signature carefully, and looked again at it to see that all the ink was absorbed. "Say we wait three months. Is that all right? It won't make it—so sudden. And then no one will suspect our little agreement."

Gay acquiesced, and putting Patterson's check in her purse ran out of the office before he could say more.

That 13 Diamond Divorce Hearing

"A Chicago woman is suing her husband for a divorce because he hit her with a cut glass fruit bowl, when she bid six no trumps and failed to take a single trick although she had 13 diamonds in her hand."—News item.

PHILLIPS

Judge: Now then, who was your wife's partner on the occasion when she held these 13 diamonds and failed to take a trick?

Husband (sadly): I was.

Judge: You are positive she failed to take one trick?

Husband: I am.

Judge: And her bid had been six no trumps, as I understand it?

Husband: Yes, yerroner.

Judge: Your wife charges that you struck her as she played her last card. Is that true?

Husband: It certainly is.

Judge: With what did you strike her?

Husband: With a cut glass fruit bowl.

Judge: Would you mind showing us exactly how you did it? I will have your wife take a chair in front of you and I want you to hit her again with a fruit bowl just as you did on the night of the bridge game.

Husband: Gladly, yerroner.

Judge: The plaintiff will please come here and take a chair where her husband can reach her.

Wife (nervously): Must I do this, yerroner?

Judge (whose own wife is a bad bridge player, too): You must.

Wife: But I don't see why it is necessary.

Judge: I'm a bridge player myself and I want to see the technique employed in such a case.

Husband (anxiously, as he lifts a fruit bowl over his head): Make her come here, judge, make her come here!

Judge: Don't get impatient. And put that bowl down.

Husband: Why?

Judge: I'm getting you a larger one.

(The court then reproduces the bridge game. The wife, with all diamonds in her hand, bids six no trumps. Her opponent, of course, leads another suit and she never takes a trick.)

Judge (to the husband): Now go ahead and sock her.

Husband: Just as I did at the game?

Judge: A little harder, if anything.

(The husband breaks the bowl in pieces over the wife's head.)

Judge (very disappointedly): No! No! No!

Husband: What's the matter yerroner?

Judge: You can hit her harder than that. Here's another bowl. Now then remember, her bid was six no trumps. Ready? Let her have it again, now . . . and with everything you have.

Husband (breaking the second bowl over her head): Like that?

Judge: That's better, but far from satisfactory under the circumstances. I think I'll refuse the lady's petition for a divorce.

Wife (raising herself on one elbow): And why!

Judge (sternly): A husband who can't hit a partner any harder than that for bidding six no trumps on a 13-diamond hand is comparatively gentle.

Honk! Honk!

M'FARLANE SCORES MOODY'S PRISON PLAN IN LETTER TO MARTIN

CROWDING OF PEN DENIED

Management at Fault, Says Senator in Letter

In a public reply to a request for an immediate agreement on prison reform measures, mailed to legislative representatives this week by Judge P. A. Martin, Senator W. D. McFarlane Friday attacked the administration of the present laws as the source of the prison controversy.

The senator takes issue with Judge Martin especially on the point of the relocation of the present system, asserting that the expenditure of $10,000,000 on new ground and buildings is absolutely unnnecessary. Judge Martin had suggested in his letter that he personally favored the building of a prison system near the seat of government, as proposed by Governor Moody, but added that he would be glad to see any plan for relief adopted.

Senator McFarlane added in his public letter that the movement for prison reform constitutes a "plea of guilty to incompetency and inefficiency in management on the part of the board appointed by the governor under the laws requested by them." He asserts also that there is room for more prisoners at Huntsville, attacking the board's recent assertion that no more prisoners can be accepted until the prison population is reduced.

The complete letter is reproduced below:

Judge P. A. Martin, judge of the 89th judicial district, Wichita Falls, Texas. Dear Judge—I have your letter of March 4, which you have handed to the press of the same date, in which you stated at length reasons why you agree with the governor's program in penitentiary legislation, and request us to build a new system near Austin.

While your letter is not signed, it is written on your official stationary, and addressed to myself, and other members of the legislature, and I assume that it is from you, and states your position on this important question. As you perhaps know, I have opposed the governor's penitentiary program of disposing of the present penitentiary property and locating a new system near Austin, for many reasons, too numerous to mention.

Incompetency Charged

On page 298 of the acts of the regular session of 1927, you will find a penitentiary bill covering 35 sections that was enacted at that time that gave to the administration every reform of every kind requested, and all of the different complaints set up by him and his board that he appointed in 1927, when this law became effective are in fact pleas of guilty of incompetency and inefficiency in management, of the board appointed by him under the law they requested, that allowed them a free hand in the operation and management of the prison system along the lines suggested by he and his friends who are now advocating the sale and re-location proposition.

I do not care to go into detail to state the many reasons why such a program as the governor advocates is unnecessary, needless it is to say that it condemns itself to the ordinary business man on its face, when you stop to consider that to buy and build a penitentiary system in the central part of the state on the plan suggested by them, will mean the expenditure of not less than 10 million ($10,000,000.00) dollars, and should the legislature fall in line with their request, before the program could be started, the present governor would be out of office, and a new administration in power, and who knows what policy or program a new legislature and a new governor would favor, and how much better off would the state be in adopting this new location idea.

Since the passage of the Hawes-Cooper bill Jan. 6, 1929, practically all the penitentiary wardens in the United States realize that the sale of penitentiary made products are limited to the use of the state departments of governments, and this being true, they are recommending the change of the employment of their convicts from industrial pursuits, in order to raise more of the food they and the other wards of the state consume. The question of finding employment for the convicts under this law and existing state laws is becoming more acute all the time, and certainly the first requisite of a successful management is to keep the inmates busily engaged in some productive employment.

Location at Issue

There is in fact but one question of difference between the governor's program and those of us who disagree with him, and that is one of location. We are willing to give the governor all his suggested reforms within reason, and are only requesting that he put in effect these reforms on present owned property, which now consist of 77 odd thousand acres of land, and the governor has recently admitted that his idea of centralizing the system at one plant, is all wrong, and that his idea has not been followed in the United States, Canada or Europe, and he has been three years finding out this fact.

Since we have some of the richest land in Texas, paid for, well located from every standpoint, why should it be necessary to go to a tremendous expense to sell out and move to a new site, and be forced to buy and build a new prison at such a tremendous cost to the tax payers. We are now confronted with a deficit in the state treasury at the end of this fiscal year of nearly three million dollars, according to the comptroller. The state schools are requesting more than a million and a half dollars for their immediate needs of the summer schools, etc.

The appropriation to rehabilitate the prison system on present owned property will of necessity require an initial appropriation of at least one-half million dollars and since we are having such a hard time of finding ways and means of raising any of the funds necessary, would you or some one else please advise us how we could raise available revenue to meet the needs of the new penitentiary idea, such as suggested by the governor's program, you adopt, as his bill provides an immediate appropriation of three million dollars.

The recent action of the prison board, in closing the prisons, and refusing to accept any more convicts in the penitentiary, is a fair example of the way the prison board, appointed by the governor, regards the law.

Section 19, of chapter 212 of the 1927 prison act, provides:

"The manager shall make suitable provision and regulations for the safe and speedy transportation of prisoners from counties where sentenced to the state penitentiary by the sheriffs of such respective counties if such sheriffs are willing to perform such services as cheaply as said commission can have it done otherwise. Said transportation shall be on state account and in no circumstances shall the prisoners be carried direct from the county jails to the state farm, but shall first be carried to the receiving station as designated by the prison board where the character of labor which each prisoner may reasonably perform shall be determined."

Section 25, of said Act provides:

"Prisoners shall be kept at work under such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the manager with the board's approval, etc. . . ."

Vacancy at Walls

Yesterday's morning papers all carried the information that within the last two weeks there have been transported from the walls at Huntsville to the new penitentiary buildings located on the Wynne farm, 283 prisoners, thus leaving a vacancy in the walls at Huntsville of this number. The same papers carried the information that the governor has recently paroled or furloughed about 250 convicts, and during the last session the governor announced that about April the first, he would appoint Judge Woodward, father of Senator Woodward to be the third member of the parole board, and Mr. Lee Simmons, a member of the prison board, stated before the senate at the last session, while in the committee as a whole, that in his opinion, due to the failure of the governor to appoint the third member of the parole board, so that it could begin to function under the parole law, that became effective last year, that there is now more than five hundred convicts who are entitled to, and should be released.

The governor has known, or should know all of these facts, and he has known, or should know that it was due to his failure to appoint the parole board, so that it could begin to function, that has caused a delay in the release of convicts, under the law who are entitled to be released. Yet, the governor approves the action of the prison board under these conditions, when they passed a resolution refusing to accept any more convicts in the prison system.

At the regular session of the legislature the prison board came to the legislature requesting $688,000 for an emergency appropriation, and to cover their deficiency for merchandise, they had purchased, and expenses incurred for which there had been no appropriation made, and the legislature promptly appropriated this money for them The constitution shall be created by or on behalf of the state except to supply casual deficiency of revenue, and such deficiency shall never exceed in the aggregate at any one time $200,000, and that the legislature shall first make appropriations before any department is authorized to spend such money.

At the beginning of the administration there were five saw mills on the penitentiary property and the legislature at the regular session appropriated more than three million dollars to meet the needs of the penitentiary system, and build new barracks, as they have repeatedly done, they could have started these saw mills to work cutting some of the 30,000 acres of standing timber the system owns, and in a few days' time could have erected ample barracks to meet their needs.

Spabe Available

The truth is, as is shown above they have space in the walls at Huntsville now, left by the prisoners who were sent to the new barracks on the Wynne farm, they have completed more new barracks on the Ferguson farm. They could have completed more new barricks in a very short time, had they seen fit to do so.

As they state in their interview "we have been considering this action for a long time."

Apparently they decided this action was necessary at this time to try to put over their program which is the governor's program on penitentiary legislation now pending before the legislature.

Section 7, of the Penitentiary act of 1927 provides:

"If any member of the board shall be guilty of malefeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance in office, or shall become incapable or unfit to discharge his official duties or shall wilfully fail, refuse or neglect the discharge of the duties of his office, such member may be removed from office in either of the following ways:

(1) By the governor in the manner provided by law. (the governor approves their action.) (2). By suit brought by the attorney general in the name of the state on his own motion or at the direction of the governor. (The attorney general is the appointee of the governor.)

Article 800 of the code of Criminal procedure provides:

"Immediately upon the receipt of such warrant, the sheriff shall transport such condemned person to the state penitentiary at Huntsville, and shall deliver him and the warrant aforesaid into the hands of the warden and shall take from the warden his receipt for such person and such warrant, which receipt the sheriff shall return to the office of the clerk of the court where the judgment of death was rendered."

Thus you see the prison board has disregarded the laws of Texas, and such action on their part in refusing to accept convicts not being justified under the facts, should be removed from office or at least should be required to perform the duties for which they are selected, and instead of continually banging around Austin, should get on the job, and try to do something for the penitentiary system, to assist us in working out satisfactorily this great problem.

I am sending the Wichita Daily Times, and the Wichita Record News, a copy of this letter, and trust that they will see fit to publish same, in their spirit of fairness, since they have published your letter to us, on the penitentiary question.

Yours very truly,
W. D. McFARLANE,
Senator 23rd District.

Manacle Makers Suffer Worst Business in Their History

LONDON, March 7. (US)—If Britain can't scrap her navy yards, she may scrap her handcuff factories. The manacle makers are ready to throw up the sponge, according to word from Birmingham.

The Birmingham handcuff industry, once prosperous, is ready to quit making police bracelets and concentrate on novelty sets. Every detective in Scotland Yard and all military police for years carried handcuffs in their hip-pockets; now, only civil police are carrying them.

Mrs. Dawson Leads Delightful Program

Mrs. Arch Dawson led an exceptionally interesting lesson on Denmark for members of the Travel club when they met at the Woman's Forum clubhouse on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Henry C. Fulcher read a paper prepared by Mrs. W. W. Cook on "The Danes and Old Time Denmark" and Mrs. C. H. Clark talked on "Danish Educational Systems." Mrs. Homer Lee's paper was on "Local and State Government" and Mrs. Dawson gave an article on "The Position of Women in Denmark." Mrs. Q. B. Lee talked on some of the things that Dr. Lee noticed while in Denmark.

Discussions were led by Mrs. W. W. Frasier on "The Royal Family;" Mrs. G. L. Shapard on "Religion" and Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin on "Army and Navy." Round table discussions were held on "Trades Unions" and "Danish Dairies."

Those present were Mesdames T. M. Conrey, C. H. Clark, E. T. Huff, Arch Dawson, W. W. Fraser, H. C. Fulcher, Ola G. Hamlin, T. A. Hicks, Leslie Humphrey, Homer Lee, Q. B. Lee, Ben G. Oneal, Guy Rogers, G. L. Shapard, John Thomas, C. N. Alexander and R. B. Parker.

Burkburnett Club Entertains With St. Patrick Party

Members of the Current Literature club of Burkburnett entertained their husbands and the cast who presented "Officer 666" with a St. Patrick party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. McDonald in Burkburnett Friday night.

St. Patrick's colors were noted in the decorations throughout the house. In the dining room, the table was particularly pretty with a bowl of green carnations in the center and the graceful tapers gleaming in silver holders that were adorned with bows of green tulle.

Games featuring March 17 were the diversion of the evening. Mrs. Pat Morrison was winner of high score and received an oil painting; low prize went to Mrs. Ellis who received a bottle of French bath salts. G. A. Reaves Jr. received the high prize for men, a pretty statuette of a setter and Pat Crawford drew the consolation, an Eddie Cantor book.

Two Irish vocal numbers were given by Pat Morrison, accompanied by Mrs. Morrison, and Jack Williams gave several piano numbers.

While the refreshment plate was being served, Irish jokes were told and Pat Morrison was presented with a small ivory elephant for telling the best jokes.

The St. Patrick's color scheme was emphasized in the refreshment plate which was served to Messrs. and Mesdames W. D. Bent, F. L. Crawford, Dudley Ellis, J. N. Hicks, Alvin Lohoefner, Pat Morrison, Joy Sessums, O. C. Whitaker, Neeley Vaught, J. B. Smith and James Thomas, Misses Isabel Johnson, Ela Billingsley and Bernardine Bristow, Messrs. Hero of Spanish War Battle Dies Suddenly

LOS ANGELES, March 7. (US)—Collapsing while he was trying to get his automobile started, John D. Maxfield, 53, died at his home before an ambulance could arrive to take him to a hospital.

As first clarinet of the band of the First Colorado volunteers during the Spanish war, Maxfield was the man who started playing "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" as the regiment was wading a shallow river during the advance leading to the capture of Manila.

Since the band was under heavy fire at the time, Admiral Dewey mentioned the incident in his report, and the first Colorado became known as the "Hot Time Regiment."

Then too, a blonde girl of some eight years caught our attention. It was in a school room and whenever the teacher looked as if she meant to ask this child a question, up went the child's hand, and she would rise to ask a question. Whether she was really imbued with a thirst for knowledge or whether her counter question was a mode of defense against answering the teacher, we admired her ingenuity.

SCHACHT QUITS AS BANK HEAD

Present Young Plan Cause Of Resignation

BERLIN, March 7. (AP)—The resignation today of Dr. Jhalmar Schacht as president of the reichsbank is expected to have an influence on the progress of the Young plan and its connected legislation the Polish liquidation agreement—in parliament.

While at the moment the alignment of parties to both of these issues cannot be foretold, it is widely believed that Dr. Schacht's dramatic resignation may spur the German people to induce all parties at least to give the Young plan and the Polish agreement a final and fearful scrutiny.

Dr. Schacht, in giving his reasons for resignation, reiterated only the opinion that has been heard many times in Germany since the last Hague conference—that the present version of the Young plan is a mere distortion of the original plan.

In Wilhelmstrasse circles it was believed the resignation would not affect the vote on the Young plan, but political leaders agreed it came at an embarrassing moment.

Petitions of Nelson and Curd Approved by Clerk

Walter Nelson Jr., and P. B. Curd, announced as candidates for mayor in the coming city election, accepted their nominations to the office Friday afternoon after W. E. McBroom, city clerk, had checked their petitions and formally announced to them they had been nominated. The acceptances were made in writing.

Additions were being made Friday to the petition for O. B. Kelly, a third candidate for mayor, when Mr. McBroom's check found a few discrepancies concerning the signers.

The only remaining requirement for placing the names of the candidates on the ballot is certification, which must be obtained within 10 days before the election April 1, Mr. McBroom said.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.
(Copyright 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, March 9:

Sunday—Breakfast, French omelet, toasted cereal biscuit, stewed raisins; lunch, stewed corn, buttered beets, shredded lettuce with peanut butter dressing; dinner, roast chicken, asparagus, cooked celery, salad of grated raw carrots and chopped celery, apple whip.

Monday—Breakfast, breakfast food (retoasted) served with cream but no sugar, stewed figs; lunch, baked potato, spinach, salad of shredded raw cabbage; dinner, vegetable soup, roast beef, steamed carrots, green peas (canned), raw celery, jello or jell-well.

Tuesday—Breakfast, coddled eggs, melba toast, stewed prunes; lunch; eight ounce glass of grapejuice; dinner, baked halibut, string beans, salad of sliced tomatoes, baked pears.

Wednesday—Breakfast, whole wheat muffins with butter, baked eggs, stewed raisins; lunch, boiled rice, buttered parsnips, celery; dinner, stuffed pork chops, baked tomatoes, salad of head lettuce, dish of berries (canned).

Thursday—Breakfast, eggs poached in milk, retoasted triscuit, baked apple; lunch, pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates; dinner, roast veal, spinach, salad of peas, string beans and chopped celery molded in gelatin, cup custard.

Friday—Breakfast, corn meal mush with butter or cream; lunch, cooked lettuce, oyster plant (salsify), salad of grated carrots; dinner, broiled fillet of sole, asparagus, buttered beets, lettuce and tomato salad; no dessert.

Saturday—Breakfast, coddled eggs, melba toast, stewed apricots; lunch, oranges as desired; dinner, broiled steak, string beans, pineapple whip, stuffed celery.

"Stuffed pork chops. Have the chops cut about an inch thick and trim off all fat around edges. With a sharp knife, slice each chop through, back as far as the bone, making a sort of double decker, between which place a tablespoonful or more of the following dressing. Crush a sufficient amount of Melba toast (grinding through a food chopper is better) and moisten with milk. Add the desired quantity of chopped celery, minced ripe olives and raisins. Mix together, being careful to moisten only enough to hold ingredients together. Fasten the layers of each chop together with toothpicks, and bake until thoroughly done. Drain on brown paper just before serving and garnish with uncooked puffed raisins around the edge of the platter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Epilepsy

Question—W. L. C. writes: "I have a brother who has epilepsy and I am about to be married and this has worried me greatly, as I am afraid it may be hereditary. If so, I would not like to take a chance on marrying."

Answer—If you will keep yourself in perfect physical condition there is no reason why you should be afraid of marrying. Have your brother write to me and I will send him some complete instructions on the cure of epilepsy which can be accomplished through the fasting and diet treatment and other measures which will produce perfect intestinal elimination.

Nosebleed

Question—W. K. writes: "I am a boy of 14 and I am so disgusted with my nose I don't know what to do. It bleeds every time I take a bath, and also every morning."

Answer—I would advise you to see a nose specialist as there must be either an anatomical difficulty inside of your nose, or the membrane may be too tender and delicate. If the latter is so, the nose specialist could treat the nose to encourage the membrane to grow stronger.

Hairy Child

Question—Worried grandmother writes: "I have a little granddaughter 7 years old whose arms, neck and sides of face are covered with hair. In fact, for the last year her mother has had to have the hair on her neck cut, and I have never seen such long hair on anyone's arms. Would peroxide and ammonia kill the hair roots? Or do you think a skin specialist could help her?"

Answer—It is likely that your granddaughter will gradually get over the tendency to having the excessive hairy growth, but if you are worrying about it I would advise you to see a skin or beauty specialist and get his opinion. The trouble may be caused by some glandular derangement.

Power Concern's Letter Revealed

WASHINGTON, March 7. (AP)—A letter showing that correspondence on the naming of an executive secretary of the federal power commission passed between power company officials was introduced into the record today at the federal trade commission's investigation into the financing of public utilities.

Richard B. Scandrett Jr., then a vice president of the American Gas and Electric company, wrote Sidney Z. Mitchell, president of the Electric Bond and Share company in August 1929 saying he understood Thato C. Merrill, then power commission secretary, intended to resign. Scandrett continued that George C. Danforth of Augusta, Maine had been suggested for the place by F. W. Scheidenhelm, an American gas consulting engineer.

Common Law Wife of Clare Briggs Acknowledged

NEW YORK, March 7 (UP)—An admission by Glen Briggs, brother of the late Clare Briggs, that the noted cartoonist had publicly acknowledged Marie C. Briggs, also known as Maggie Toohey, as his common-law wife months before his death last January was on the records in the will contest before Surrogate O'Brien today.

PILOT OF DIXIE CHAMPIONS RETURNS TO SPUDDER FOLD

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

The great breeze we predicted would flounce o'er this municipality Friday arrived, indeed, but apparently it was not caused by the arrival of the "Brazos Kid," otherwise Austin Thomas, pitching ace of Navasota, Texas, of whom his teammates wrote grandly in a letter received by and printed in this column Thursday.

The sports department of this rag was indeed disappointed at the Kid's failure to arrive. The Humble Pipeliners, the Kid's hometown ball team, had written warning us to get out cameras and reporters ready for the great event, and we did just that; but if he will only get in Saturday we'll forgive him, provided he puts on a good show a la Arthur The Great Shires. Arthur The Great said magniloquently that "I am God's gift to the sports writers." The old boy was refreshing, at least. Now if the "Brazos Kid" comes in town with a foot-long cigar in his jaw and a cane on his arm he'll please us immensely and we'll have a hot season here this year, provided the Kid can play ball as well as his friends think he can.

Of the four Tulsa infielders, only one, Walter Euller, third baseman, arrived Friday. The others, Prexy Huff reported, sent wires saying they were en route. Larry Bettencourt, whose job yet remains a mystery, is on the way from California. Larry, it has been strongly indicated, will be used as a utility man. But just suppose he's put on third. That will make two candidates for the berth, Euller and Bettencourt. And then there's a third, the one who was so promising in the workout Friday—Charles Sicola.

Sicola is a rookie here, from Houston. But his handling of third base yesterday afternoon was far from amateurish. Fitzgerald had a good word to say for the youngster. Tony Defate cried, "Attaboy, Kid, what a form!" many times as the youngster stopped a blistering ball and cracked down on it as he hurled it to first. One spectator, a ball player himself who a few years ago starred on the University of California team, gave the spectator's viewpoint: "The boy has got speed and form. The way he handles himself reminds me of Frank Frisch, New York Giants third sacker. He looks darned good today, but of course tomorrow he may not even be able to catch a ball. But if he keeps this up he'll be a whizz."

Another spectator strode by. "Golly," he said, "that guy reminds me of Tex McDonald." Tex was a third sacker of great renown who played with the Spudders in the days of long ago. He was here in 1921 and 1922.

If the youthful Sicola does pull through he'll have some awful stiff opposition in Euller and Bettencourt, both of whom have years and experience behind them. But he's got the two things that'll carry him a long way: speed, for the game, and form, for the fans. If there is anything a baseball fan likes it's form. To see a snappy infielder duck to earth, snap up the ball, whizz around and pelt it to first without the slightest indication of effort is a thing of beauty which, as the poet says, will live forever.

So much for this player's possibilities. Among Friday's arrivals were several who this year hope to live up to reputations already made. Take, for instance, Art Hillin, new in our midst from Mount Calm, Texas. Last season, playing with Spartanburg, S. C., of the South Atlantic league, Art set a league record by pitching 306 innings in the season. And his name also decorated the hall of fame by reason of his winning 19 games that same season for a team that was hovering near the cellar. Hillin went to Spartanburg from Abilene, and before that he was a diamond flash for the Texas Aggies.

Take another pitcher of many records, John Reid, who for six years held down the mound in the United States Marine corps. Of course, playing in the marines is a little different in theory from playing with professional teams, but winning games is what counts, after all, and John won plenty. Pitching on his regiment's team for two seasons, he never lost a game, playing 18 games the first season, and 26 the second. And in 1928 he was picked as a pitcher on the All-Marine team, composed of the choice players of the entire corps.

Reid has done nothing but play baseball for the last six years, going at it in the summer in our climes, and in the winter down in sunny Panama and Cuba. He should make excellent mound material here.

Incidentally, this boy Reid can tell many tales of faroff lands. He has traveled everywhere—the tropics, the far East, China . . . He wears a ring of hand-beaten gold—made in China. In the center is a large, rich-red ruby. He ordered it especially made from a Chinese craftsman.

But back to our star players. There were two powerful hitters in Friday's arrivals. Look over Garland Orr's record, and you'll see that he was the leading hitter of the season at Abilene last year, with an average of .422. And Art Bradbury's arrival was the occasion for Spudder officials to recall that Art (can we call him "The Great?") slammed out an average of .365 during the past winter season at Oakland, Calif.

John Illia and Kenneth Ferry got in Friday from California. They didn't bring any glowing records with them, but these rookies should do something good, since both were signed on the recommendation of Larry Bettencourt. Both knew the star infielder well out in the sunny state. Illia played baseball and football with Larry at St. Mary's college, and they're quite chummy.

SKIPPER CARL REJOINS SQUAD

Sicola Shows Good Form in Friday's Workout

By FRED D. THOMPSON
The Record News Staff

Back from the farm and looking it—ruddy of face and clear of eye—the man who was the talk of the South two years ago when he piloted the Spudders to the Dixie championship returned to the fold Friday after a year of tinkering with ploughshares.

If a ploughshare were something that could be handled with a glove or a mit, and something that could be batted out to centerfield for a two-base hit, doubtless Skipper Carl Williams would not have come back this year to take up where he left off these many months ago as manager of the Wichita Falls baseball club. But a ploughshare is a ploughshare, and a farm is a farm, whereas baseball is something that makes Skipper Williams' blood hurdle and boil.

Joins Squad Today

The skipper arrived from Santa Anna, Texas, too late to watch the squad scamper through its daily workout under the guidance of Howard Fitzgerald, who has been Carl's good man Friday this week. But he will be on hand Saturday. If the weather permits, work will start Saturday morning; but if it turns colder, and the blizzardy wind persists, operations will be delayed until the afternoon.

Skipper Carl arrived in town Friday with a broad grin and a stern handclasp for his mates of other years, and with self-restraint in his talk of the 1930 Spudder ball club. What are your plans? What do you think of the squad? What are the prospects for a winning team this year?

These questions were in everybodys' minds. To which the skipper replied:

"Give me a week. I don't want to pop off now and then have to take it back."

Dozen Players Arrive

Skipper Williams will, indeed, need at least a week for his examination of the ball-tossing horde, which now numbers over 30, from which the pennant chasers are to be selected. The players are rolling in by leaps and bounds, and the orchard is flooded with them. An even dozen new arrivals had checked in at the office of Secretary Guy Airey late Friday. They were Jack Crouch, veteran catcher of the 1929 Spudders who got in Thursday night and who donned uniform Friday; Clyde Pratt, Winters, Texas, outfielder, who finished the season here last year after a sojourn with Abilene and Springfield; Art Bradbury, Oakland, Calif., catcher who also was here and at Abilene last season; John Illia, rookie Occidental, Calif. pitcher who learned how in a California Tri-county league and at St Mary's college; Kenneth Ferry rookie Niles, Calif., outfielder who last summer played with Alvarado of the Alameda County league, and in the winter with Oakland; Ash Hillin, former Texas Aggie star, who spent last year with Spartanburg, S. C., of the South Atlantic league; Walter Euller, first of the Tulsa infield quartet to arrive; Roland Flinn, right-handed pitcher who played last season with Lewisville, Me.; Ralph Butler, Philadelphia catcher whose last berth was with Martinsburg, W. Va.; Eddie Lennon, of Philadelphia, who pitched last year for Hazelton, Pa.; Felix Nevinsky, also from Philly, who short-stopped last season for Scranton, Pa.; and, finally, Garland Orr, hard-hitting Lewisville, Texas, outfielder, who spent the season last year at Abilene.

Sicola Star Sacker

Despite the aggravating high-velocity wind, the snappiest workout of the week was held Friday. The infield, which has been in charge of caretakers all week, was opened to the players Friday, and the squad held its first infield practice of the season.

And this phase of the day's work in addition to giving the players their first feel of the diamond, brought out that Jack Crouch is back in his last year's form behind the bat, and that the Spudder powers made a good deal when they sent a scrap of paper down to Houston for one Charles Sicola to sign. Sicola, at third base, was the talk of the spectators down at the lot Friday, and from Howard Fitzgerald came the remark that the youthful rookie showed up well. Sicola showed a fast arm and displayed an appealing form.

Players Show Speed

Besides Sicola and Crouch, there were Carroll Burrows, who caught some hot ones at first; Guy Taylor, who was perfectly at home on second; and T. E. Bell, young Electra rookie, at short. Nason Baxter later subbed for Crouch at the catching position, as did Wise. Robert Williams replaced Sicola at third, and Norville Eckelcamp relieved Burrows at first. Tony Defate, who is working out here preparatory to leaving for Georgia for the season, officiated at the bat, and when Fitzgerald relieved him, went to shortstop.

The inning was fast, and revealed some excellent infield possibilities for this season.

Previous to the infield workout, Lester White and Cy Smith, of the pitching staff, limbered up from the mound. The rest of the players caught a good deal of fielding practice and running, and fungo hitting went on as usual.

George Mebel, outfielder with Abilene last year, who returned Thursday from a trip to New Mexico, was in uniform down at the lot for the first time Friday. He arrived several days ago from his home in New York, but left for the neighboring state to visit friends.

Alas, Alas

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—Arthur the once great Shires, now in the depths of gloom, sadly eyed the Dallas Texas league steers work out today and remarked that he couldn't see why the Chicago White Sox could expect him, one of the world's greatest drawing cards, to toil this season for a smaller stipend than some of the Texas league athletes he was watching.

Bashful Arthur declared he had given up a good paying proposition in winter exhibition fighting (in the ring) in order to please the Chicago magnates. He opined that on top of that big sacrifice on his part, he received a minor league contract. It seems almost too much to bear, he believes.

So, Art is going to turn to other fields, he says. First, however, he is making a trip to McKinney, Texas, to express appreciation to Art Largent, Chisox scout, for past favors.

Major League Pin Topplers Tied By Equal Victories

In the first game of the second half of the season Friday night the Mahanay's cafeteria and Wages Clothing company bowling teams went into a tie for leadership in the Major league by winning three games each from their foes. Mahanay's beat Wolff Bros. Y. B.'s and Wages' bowlers defeated the Kruger Jewelry company five.

The Curtis and Franklin team of the B. & A. league took three straight games from the Groves Shoe repair crew in a second frame after the last game of the first frame resulted in a tie.

S. M. U. Star Gets Release From Athletics

DALLAS, March 7. (AP)—Redman Hume, former star athlete of Southern Methodist university, today received word of his unconditional release from Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics. He signed immediately as an outfielder with the Dallas Steers. Hume was the property of the A's last season but spent the season farmed out to minor clubs.

Indians on Way

SAN ANTONIO, March 7. (AP)—Coming by rail and automobile the San Antonio Indians are headed this way from their distant homes to start spring training Monday morning.

Announcement was made today of the signing of infielder Dan Lynch last year with Ballinger in the West Texas league. He was the fastest man in the league last year and stole 63 bases.

Mishkin Looks Good

HOUSTON, March 7. (AP)—The hitting of Sol Mishkin, young Jewish first sacker today featured a practice game among Manager Schultz's hired hands. The Geraniums beat the Hollyhocks 6 to 2, with Mishkin's line drive over the right field wall with two on in a nine-inning tilt.

Wind Annoys Cubs

WACO, Texas, March 7. (AP)—A high, cold wind made practice at Katy park this afternoon unusually difficult, but the boys stayed out just as long. Manager Pratt uses various infield combinations, but seemed better satisfied with the one that had Stuvengen at first, Wiengardner at second, Molesworth at short and Boken at third.

Cats to Play Sunday

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, March 7. (AP)—Regulars vs. Rookies will be the order of the day here Sunday, when the Fort Worth Panthers play a six-inning contest, their first of the training season.

"These veterans are getting pretty cocky," Manager Snyder observed on Friday. "We'll see what they can do against a club of these kids Sunday."

TRACK SQUAD STARTS WORK

22 Thin Clads Report on Field Friday

Twenty-two aspirants shook the dust of idleness off their track shoes Friday afternoon and reported to Coach J. N. Hall for the initial workout on the local high school cinder path. The turnout was unusually large in view of the fact that spring football training is in session and most of the athletes are on the gridiron. A light workout comprised the first day's session, each man taking 12 laps around the quarter-mile track in the rear of the school building.

Three veterans of last year's crew returned to form the threat of the local high school on the cinder path. Tomas Beaty, Rollin Dixon and Clarence Ashton are showing the inexperienced ones how it's done in the early sessions. A wealth of material is on hand and with a little coaching the squad should swing into regular workouts and form a championship aggregation ere the district meet rolls around in the latter part of April.

Aspirants who reported the first day included Clarence Ashton, Tom Beaty, Bud Bentley, Rob Brandon, George Burch, Ed Cambell, Rollin Dixon, Earl Hardeis, Moulton Harrison, Joe Howell, D. Humble, Bill Matkin, John Meredith, Ed Mulligan, Maurice Patton, Marshall Rusk, Mitchell Scarbrough, John Skeen, Frank Tims, Johnny White, Woodrow Williamson.

West Texas Quint Wins First Tilts In State Tourney

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—Four teams remained in the race for state high school basket ball championship honors tonight at the conclusion of the second round of play. They are: Denton, John H. Reagan, of Houston, Breckenridge and Estelline.

Breckenridge will play Estelline in the opening game of the semi-finals tomorrow and Denton will meet Reagan. The winners of these two games will meet for the title tomorrow night while the losers will play a consolation game to determine the holder of third place.

Tonight Reagan defeated Devine 36 to 14 while Breckenridge nosed out Denison 24 to 23 and Corsicana was defeated by Estelline.

Corsicana, leading 15 to 10 at the half in their game with Estelline, was held to four points in the last half. The box score for the Estelline-Corsicana game follows:

Denton Defeats Athens

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—Denton High school blasted the hopes of Athens for a second consecutive championship here this afternoon by defeating the 1929 champions, 24 to 19 in the state high school basket ball tourney. The game marked the opening of the second round of the tourney.

In the first round Denison had little difficulty in disposing of Edinburg 47 to 34. Corsicana won its way into the second round by a 36 to 22 victory over Ralls. Estelline downed Bryan by one point, 19 to 18. Bowie High school of El Paso proved no match for the basketeers from Devine who won 37 to 14.

Estelline-Bryan box follows:

ESTELLINE (19)	G.	F.	P.	BRYAN (18)	G.	F.	P.

John H. Reagan High school of Houston had a rather easy time with Austin High school coming out on top 40 to 22.

The feature match of the day's play was the Denton-Athens game. Athens jumped into the lead at the start with a field goal but their margin was overcome quickly and from then on Denton was never headed by the former champions.

The first quarter ended with Denton in the lead 6 to 5. They were ahead 17 to 14 at half time and Athens cut their lead to two points, 19 to 17, at the end of the third stanza when Denton staged a scoring rally and ran up a five-point advantage, stalling the last minute of the game while the frenzied Athenians, the championship slipping from their grasp, battled desperately to get their hands on the ball in an effort to even the score.

Denton displayed a well-balanced aggregation while Athens placed most of its confidence in F. Tompkins, who was high point man of the fray with 12 points. Athens was materially crippled in its defensive department when B. Tompkins was ejected from the game on personal fouls. Denton also lost one of their guards, Carter, via the personal foul route.

RUTH SPURNS $80,000 OFFER

Ruppert and Babe Fail to Make Agreement

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7. (AP)—The first salary conference today between Babe Ruth and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, failed when the home run king rejected a compromise offer of $85,000 for 1930 or $80,000 for each of the next two seasons.

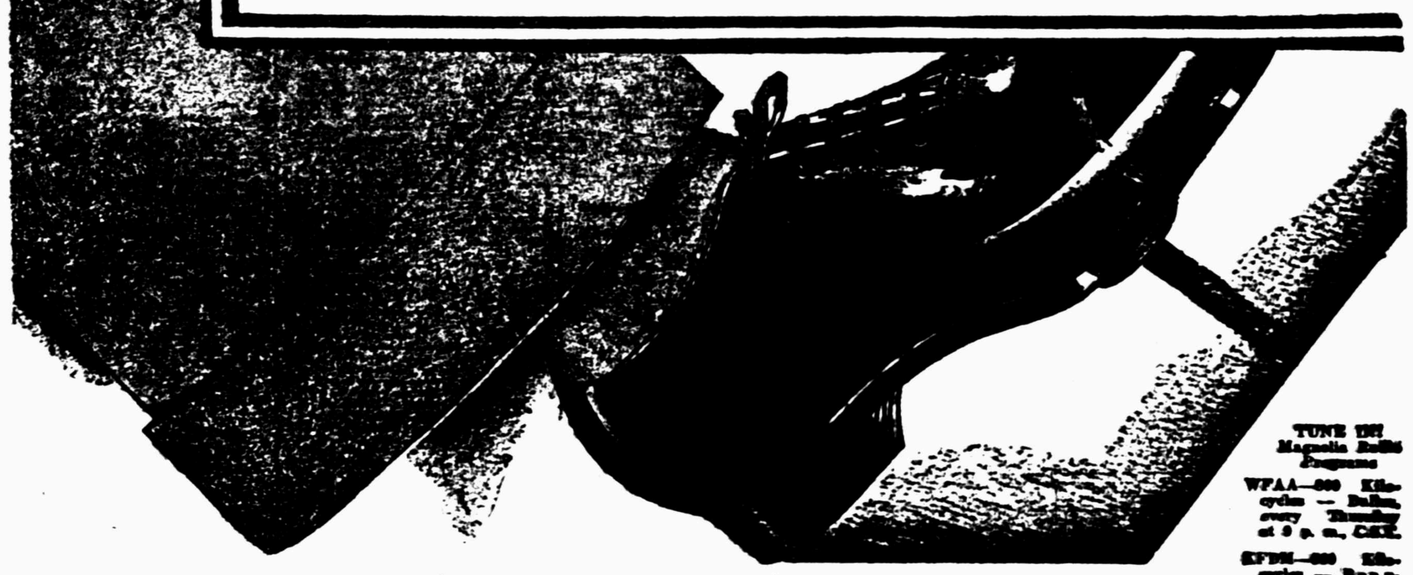

Ruth and Ruppert each made concessions, coming closer to an agreement than they have been at any time since the debate arose, but the conference, held in the clubhouse at Crescent park, broke up without a fountain pen being produced or any indication when the famous hitter would come to terms.

Ruth countered Colonel Ruppert's offer with a proposition to sign for $85,000 for the next two years, but the owner declined. Previously Ruth's demand was for a three-year contract at $85,000, while the best Yank offer had been $75,000 for a two-year term.

The colonel's concession today came as a surprise as he had been emphatic beforehand in saying the club had gone the limit at $75,000.

WHEAT DECLINE OVER-LEGGE

Farm Board Head Confers With Committee

WASHINGTON, March 7. (INS) —Alexander H Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, told the senate agriculture committee today he believes the bottom has been reached in the decline in wheat prices and that he expects improvement in the near future.

Legge and Secretary of Agriculture Hyde were called before the committee in secret session to express their views on a proposal the senate should investigate the government's farm relief activities.

Representative McNary, Republican, Oregon, chairman, told the committeemen he had received numerous letters from grain dealers reporting an organized effort was underway by the Liverpool, England, market to keep down the prices of wheat by ordering only small quantities for immediate consumption.

Some of the members expressed the belief an inquiry now would encourage, rather than curb these reported tendencies to defeat the board's plans for relief. Hyde agreed an immediate inquiry would do more harm than good.

Legge will confer with the committee again tomorrow.

"BIG BUSINESS" TO DISCUSS BOARD

WASHINGTON, March 7. (INS) —"Big business" is going to discuss the federal farm board "from the business point of view."

This was announced today by the chamber of commerce of the United States in calling its 18th annual meeting April 29—May 1. On April 30 the general session of the chamber will be devoted to a discussion of the farm board and it is contemplated an authoritative exposition will be made of its policies and administration.

Electra Society

Mrs. J. F. Ratcliffe was hostess to the members of the Alpha Bible class at her home on West Michigan avenue Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was opened with the song, "Love Lifted Me," and Mrs. R. E. Goodman, the president, presided over the business session. Mrs. J. C. Claypool gave the secretary-treasurer's report, and the members answered the roll call with scripture verses. Mrs. B. L. Whitmire was in charge of the lesson study which was taken from the book of Job. Mrs. H. S. Edwards of Muskogee, Okla., gave an inspirational talk on "Job." The closing prayer was led by Miss Kate Jackson.

Delicious refreshments were served to Mesdames J. F. Ratcliffe, J. V. Harrison, C. W. Sanderlin, W. W. Woosley, J. C. Claypool, J. D. Stroud, R. E. Goodman, S. C. Bedford, J. L. Brisco, G. S. Sowell, B. L. Whitmire, G. H. Morris, J. E. Graham, members, and one guest, Mrs. M. S. Edwards.

Mrs. Hub Myers was hostess to the surprise party and dinner given March 3 in honor of her mother, Mrs. Conrad Kemple, on the occasion of her 70th birthday. The party was held at the home of Mrs. Kemple north of Electra. About 70 guests attended from Electra. Each guest took a gift and basket dinner.

Circle two of the Baptist W. M. U. met at the home of Mrs. M. G. Peoples on the Dale Lease west of Electra. The meeting was opened with prayer after which the lesson was taken from the book, "In Royal Service." After the lesson an examination was taken. The meeting was dismissed with sentence prayers. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Fred Walton on the Rio Bravo lease.

The O. D. O. club was reorganized Tuesday afternoon when a group of women met at the home of Mrs. Bill Mickey on West Railroad avenue. Mrs. Mickey was elected president; Mrs. C. E. Pye, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. W. W. Holtzen, reporter. The club will meet every two weeks on Tuesday afternoon.

Refreshments consisting of cake and coffee were served to Mesdames W. W. Holtzen, Beulah McCarty, A. C. Elliott, Walter Beck, C. E. Pye, E. A. Adkins, Marvin Tisdale, Anna Attaway. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. E. Pye on West Washington avenue.

J. E. Warden and Mrs. J. A. King entertained their Sunday school classes at the Presbyterian church recently. After a short business session games and contests were enjoyed throughout the evening.

A delicious supper was served to Herman Miller, George Hatfield, Johnnie Wolf, Virgil Snow, Pauline Cobb, Delcie Nichols, Eva Mae Nichols, Edna Orton, Muriel Crutchfield, Ruth Smith, Barbara Hatfield, Alviera Bissell, Mrs. Terry Preston, Mesdames J. NEW YORK, March 7. (AP)—Cotton goods are quiet and irregular. Wool goods are selling in a moderate way for fall. Silks are in moderate demand. Raw silk is firmer. Burlaps showed little change for the day. Primary textile markets as a whole are unsettled due to price revisions and slow demand for future deliveries.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, March 7. (AP)—Cotton on the board of trade declined over $2 per bale. Opening prices were from 2 up to 13 points down in spite of cables, which were 2 to 16 American points better than due. After advancing 5 to 14 points in early trading prices turned steady and made new low levels for the season. Final prices were easy and from 35 to 55 points net lower.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, March 7. (AP)—The tendency of business in the wool market is quieter. A few mills and some top makers are buying, but purchases are restricted to immediate requirements. A quiet top market and rather uncertain market for cloth is being distinctly felt. Prices on domestic wool however, holds fairly steady, in spite of slower demand.

BABY CHICKS GO TO MARKET

Egg Production Also Heavy In Wichita Area

Production and shipment of baby chicks from the M. Johnson Poultry ranch has swung into mid-season capacity during the present week, and approximately 50,000 chicks weekly are now en route to all parts of the United States within a few hours after being hatched, according to information given by Mr. Johnson Friday.

Most of the shipments from the Johnson ranch are consigned to poultry raisers in southern states, Mr. Johnson said, but recent shipments have extended as far as California, Washington, and New York.

Egg production continues to be heavy in the vicinity of Wichita Falls, according to local dealers. Two solid carloads of eggs have left the local plant of Armour creameries for the eastern market so far this week, and another was being packed Friday.

Poultry has continued to come from outlying territory in large amounts, it was said. From Wichita Falls to Clarendon, along the Denver railway, and in the territory covered by the South Plains railway, heavy shipments have poured in steadily to the local buyers. No price changes were posted Friday.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 7. (AP)—An opening advance in cotton was followed by sharp declines today under a renewal of the recent selling movement which appeared to be encouraged by failure of demand to broaden on the advances. May broke from 14.82 to 14.29 making a new low record for the season, and closed at 14.32. The general market closed steady at net declines of 31 to 38 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 11 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, and the market sold about 10 to 17 points net higher. March sold up to 14.52 and October to 15.17 on demand. Buying appeared and prices weakened later under a renewal of selling supposed to include considerable selling by the South as well as liquidation by recent buyers or old long.

All positions made new low records for the season with March selling off to 14.05 and October to 14.60 or 37 to 40 points net lower. The close was afew points up from the best on most positions on covering and trade buying.

Exports today 17,4233, making 5,557,499 so far this season. Port receipts 7,790. U. S. port stocks 2,051,798.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 7. (AP)—Following an early advance cotton sagged sharply late today under heavy selling promoted by bearish weekly statistics and disappointment at the attitude of the federal farm board. Values declined over $2.50 a bale from the high points with May contracts selling off from 14.64 to 14.08. The option closed at the latter figure for a net loss of 37 points. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 36 to 39 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively favorable and the market here opened steady. Initial trades showed gains of 2 to 6 points. July hit 14.85 and October 15.00, or 14 to 19 points above yesterday's close.

Prices reached the day's low in final trading with July selling for 14.30 and October 14.49 or 51 to 56 points under the top. The close was at the bottom.

Receipts 13,670; for week 59,138; for year 7,780,215; last year 8,579,481. Exports 14,629; for week 140,624; for year 5,428,676; last year 6,220,000. Stocks 2,126,883; last year 1,928,944. MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, March 7. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit today was featured by a fairly active hog trade at steady to 25c higher prices. Shipping demand was fairly broad for lighter weights scaling 230 pounds at 10@25c higher. The top of $11.25 was paid at Chicago. Offerings 70,800 against 114,965 a week ago and 85,465 the corresponding day last year.

Sheep supply 40,000, a decrease of 6,500 from last Friday and 2,000 short of a year ago. Fat lambs steady to 25c higher. Aged stock steady. Choice 85-91-pound lambs in Chicago $11.00. Omaha and St. Joseph paid $10.35 for choice fed lambs.

Cattle supplies fairly liberal. Current prices, however, are still materially higher with inbetween grades of fed steers selling to good advantage. Chicago scored $15.00 on 1201-pound yearlings. Plain Oklahoma meal and bull fed steers in Kansas City sold at $10.00@10.85. Receipts at 14,000 as compared with 10,232 a week ago and 9,471 a year ago.

KANSAS CITY, March 7. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Hogs—Receipts, 4,500; market 10 to 20c higher; top, $10.80, on choice 170 to 225 pounds.

Cattle—Receipts, 1,000; calves, 300; market steady; slaughter steers, good and choice, 950 to 1,500 pounds, $12.50@15.25; fed yearlings, $12.75@15.50; heifers, $11.25@14.25; cows, $8.00@10.00; vealers, $8.00@13.50; stocker and feeder steers, $10.50@13.25.

Sheep—Receipts, 35,850; market fully steady; lambs, $9.00@10.10; ewes, $3.75@5.35.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 7. (AP)—Cattle—Receipts, 1,000; calves, 500; market, 25c higher; steers up to $12.50; yearlings, $11.00@12.00; cows, $8.50@9.50; calves, heavies, $11.50; vealers, $12.00.

Hogs—Receipts, 1,200; markets, 15c higher; top, $10.45.

Active Industrial Issues Climb As Money Rates Are Eased Further

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 7. (US)—Further ease in money brought new buying in the stock market today that offset profit taking and closed active industrial issues higher for the day. Widespread publicity given "unemployment" caused some uneasiness but was offset by the character of absorption of the high grade leaders. Steel finished unchanged but Bethlehem gained 3¼, Radio advanced 1¼, Loews 3⅞, Warner 2, Paramount 2, Columbia Graphaphone 1½, Johns Manville 4, Simmons 3½, Otis Elevator 5, American Power & Light 3⅝ and Coca Cola 2⅞. Railroads turned softer with Central dropping 2¼ and others losing fractionally. Coppers held firm but the oils turned irregular under profit-taking by in-and-out traders. The call rate again eased from renewal of 4 to 3½ per cent with additional loans reported outside at 3 per cent. Turnover increased to 3,600,000 shares.

Prominence being given "unemployment" is not bearish. If it has any result it will be favorable, in the belief of bankers and brokers, for it will hasten some of the "constructive plans" talked of so much at the Hoover conferences of November. The belief in Wall street is that this feature is being greatly exaggerated at present and is greatly overemphasized. Undoubtedly it will disturb many people but this will be offset by the measures that are expected to be taken by leaders in the major industries if not by federal and state governments. Even if politics delays federal and municipal work the leading steel companies, railroads, etc., are expected to hasten work on expansion, improvements, etc., that will give further stimulous to general recovery in business.

Good buying of Steel, Central and other standard stocks of the highest grade was reported from the floor. It was claimed that one of the largest estates associated with the Steel bankers had added to its holdings of that stock. Mack Truck was the subject of favorable earnings estimates coincident with further activity on the part of the group that is most interested in the stock. Further bearish reports were circulated regarding several other automobile companies based mainly on knowledge of the drop in earnings during the current quarter. Officials of the General Motors company, it was reported, would be elected to the board of the Celotex company next week.

Further buying of the copper shares resulted from flotation of reports that Utility companies and other large consumers of the Metal were coming back in the market. It was hinted that some of the larger orders had been placed "at concessions" but that the official price for the red metal would not be lowered. California advices indicated that producers there thought they had the situation in hand and further oil price cuts might be avoided. Nothing was heard from Doheny, however. Columbia Graphaphone pool was reported planning more aggressive work against the "crowded short interest." It now appears that the touted "foreign buying" in some recent liquidating pool pets came from certain operators who now live in England after serving prison sentences here for their connection with bucketshops before the clean-up of 1920.

If money gets much easier they will be giving it away. That is the reaction of most experienced market folks to the latest developments in the money market—the cutting of the English rate and the loaning of call money at 3 per cent. A call money rate of 3 per cent is bullish only to the extent that it points to eventual inflation. Indications are that the inflation, both in the stock market and business, pointed to by the present credit manipulation, will not be experienced until after a goodly part of the reparation financing is completed.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, March 7. (AP)—Trade in wheat on the cash grain market continued nervous and inactive today with prices still upset by news from the contracts markets. Mills bids $1.14½@1.15½ for No. 1 ordinary hard but were not taking much grain. Exporters were out of the market. The Texas agent of the stabilization corporation was reported receiving board basis.

Bids and offers on other grains, basis carloads delivered freight paid to T. C. P.:

Corn—Fair demand; No. 2 mixed 91@92c; No. 2 white 93@94c; No. 2 yellow 94@95c.

Oats—Very slow sale; No. 2 red oats 56@57c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 45@45½c.

Barley—Slow sale; No. 2 barley, nominal, 65@66c.

Cane Seed—Demand good for best seed types. Bulk country run red top per hundred pounds $3.50@3.90.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 7. (AP)—Invoking of emergency rules which permit railroad track delivery of grain on March contracts had a decidedly unsettling influence today on prices of all cereals.

Corn and rye values tumbled to fresh bottom quotations for the present crop, and forced wheat to lose advances. Earlier, wheat and other grain as well scored upturns owing a good deal to official notice that farm board auxiliaries will buy sufficient wheat to stop any considerable decline in the wheat market.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent a bushel lower. Corn closed ⅝@2 cents down, oats varying from ⅛c decline to ¼c gain, and provisions showing 7-12 cents advance.

Sudden outbreaks of stop loss selling on the part of holders of future delivery contracts in corn formed the key to the day's results not only in corn but every other grain.

No aggressive buying either of corn or rye was in evidence, and the weakness spread quickly to the wheat market.

Liquidating sales of rye holdings came about chiefly from car lot delivery possibilities. Oats displayed relative steadiness, receipts and country movement of oats being light.

Provisions showed themselves responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

MAIL CARRIES COOK RELEASE

Parole for Oil Swindler Is Sent to Prison Head

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., March 7. (UP)—All that stood between Dr. Frederick A. Cook in the big federal penitentiary here and the great outdoors and liberty tonight was the United States mails, the very thing that got him into prison April 6, 1925.

Telegraphic advice from Washington, D. C., said his parole had been granted but he must await release until the justice department certificate is received through the mails.

When prison doors swing open for Cook they will release a man who 20 years ago came from the arctic wilds with the word he had "planted the stars and stripes on the North pole."

The 65-year-old prisoner will be released in a new tailor-made suit. Other convicts, when given freedom, wear the customary "prison suit" given them by the government.

Inside the gray walls of the penitentiary Cook was a busy man gathering up his belongings, his clippings, books, copies of "The New Era," prison magazine he has edited, and his unsold embroidery work. Since his entry, Cook has sold embroidery work to visitors.

Cook leaves the prison with the same zest that lent color to his exploits of the past.

It is known Cook considers writing two books, his memoirs for which he said a publisher is already found, and a second volume.

"The tone of the second book," Cook said, "would be such that I would not care to have it published under my name."

Officials said Cook would leave for Chicago later going to Denver where he would visit relatives.

While succoring sick prisoners in the penitentiary hospital, authorities said, Cook carefully guarded his health.

"My aim while I have been in Leavenworth," he said, "is to keep my good health. When I am released I will be penniless and so I must look forward to making my own way. I have friends, many of them, to whom I will turn when I am free, but this only will be for a little while.

"I hardly believe I will go back to the arctic again, even though I should be well paid for leading an expedition."

Before he leaves Warden T. B. White's office Cook will swear to a bankrupt's oath to escape a $12,000 fine imposed upon him with his sentence.

Haitiens Abused, Inquiry Is Told

PORT A PRINCE, Haiti, March 7. (UP)—American officials in Haiti were charged with unnecessarily severe treatment of natives in the December disturbances here by witnesses who appeared today before President Hoover's investigating commission.

Marc Seide, former secretary of customs at Port Au Prince, told the commission that the December disorders and bloodshed started when David P. Johnson, American customs collector, slapped Antonio Hyacinthe, a Haitian, because he had made "a slight mistake" while inspecting sewing thread.

The employes at the customs office, who struck because of the controversy, went to the office of the financial adviser to complain, he said, but police were called and "just as if we were revolutionaries, we were brutally pushed back."

15 TO ATTEND LEGION MEET

Wichitans Go to District Convention Today

A group of about 15 members of Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, will leave Wichita Falls Saturday morning for Fort Worth to attend the annual convention of the fourth division of the legion, it was announced Friday.

The delegation will be headed by Post Commander C. C. Kirby. Adjutant J. F. Friberg and Rabbi S. J. Schwab. Sessions and entertainment features of the convention will last until Sunday evening. The visitors will be given free access to all parts of the Southwestern Fat Stock show Saturday afternoon and will enjoy a dance and entertainment program Saturday night at the Texas hotel, headquarters for the convention.

At midnight following the dance members of the Forty and Eight will stage a "wreck" on a group of "p. g's." Memorial services for deceased veterans will be held Sunday morning and after a luncheon Sunday noon, the legionnaires and members of the ladies' auxiliary will meet in separate business sessions.

Rites for Ralph Adams Held at Electra Friday

Funeral services for Ralph Adams, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Adams of Key City, who died in a local hospital late Wednesday night, were held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist church in Electra with Rev. C. M. Bounds, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the new Electra cemetery. Arrangements were under the direction of the Totten Brothers Funeral home which took the body in charge Thursday morning.

It was erroneously reported in The Times and Record News Friday that services were held Thursday afternoon.

The youth died as a result of tetanus infection contracted from a small scratch on the hand, physicians said. His condition was not thought serious until shortly before his death.

Besides the parents, the youth is survived by two brothers, Leonard and Hubert Adams, and four sisters, Lucile, Bertha Rose, Irene and Betty Jean Adams.

Son Stays Home For Mother's 99th Birthday

EAST MORICHES, L. I., March 7. (UP)—Henry T. Osborn, 73, stayed home all day today. It was his mother's birthday.

The mother, Mrs. Louisa J. Osborn, was 99 years old. She said she was glad Henry stayed home with her and helped receive the guests, but it would have been better if Henry's twin brother, who lives at Tacoma, Wash., could have been present.

MAJESTIC: "Dangerous Paradise," with Nancy Carroll and Dick Arlen. Adventure as suggested by Joseph Conrad. Shorts. Sound news.
STRAND: Fifi Dorsay and Victor McLaglen in "Hot for Paris." Selected talking shorts. Sound news.
STATE: Mary Nolan and James Murray in "The Shanghai Lady." Stock company melodrama minus the tent. Comedy. Sound news.
GEM: Tim McCoy in "Sioux Blood." Chapter 14 of "Tarzan the Tiger." Fable comedy.

Accidental aptitude brings Dick Arlen and Nancy Carroll to the Majestic screen (beginning Saturday) in "Dangerous Paradise" just when readers of "Time" (March 3) have been given the low-down on this interesting picture. A generous parcel of space is given to analysis of this adventuresome tale by the "Time" connoisseur, who is generally credited with greater discrimination than another publication's star-dispensing authority. While admitting that the "adventurous and fantastic shell" of Joseph Conrad's "Victory" has been preserved, cognizance is taken of the fact that Conrad's characters and atmospheres apparently can not be extracted from his pages for adequate reproduction on the screen. Implied admission of that fact is contained in the title flashes with which the picture opens: the audience is advised that the story is "based on incidents from a novel by Conrad."

Adoption of a Conrad novel for motion picture uses invariably would imply, however, material changes; for his writings certainly do not have the type of popularity which promises wide appeal from the screen. Many persons prefer bridge or dominoes to tennis or hiking as physical recreation. Conrad's peculiar and beautiful phraseology is exacting, too. "Dangerous Paradise" will prove entertaining and interesting, not because of Conradian elements in the story, but because of the alluring sweetness of Nancy Carroll, and the best acting Richard Arlen has gotten out of his system since his "Steve" (in "The Virginian").

The plot in itself is wild enough to arouse one's fancy as of old when "Treasure Island" loomed far above bonds and bills in importance. And melodramatic intensity of the gooseflesh-producing variety is furnished by Warner Oland's dying groans, as by his earlier pitching of the band leader down the long stairs. It will prove enjoyable to those who know not Joseph Conrad, and to those who are sufficiently self-willed to forget him. Fascinating to those who just like to look at Nancy Carroll.

DEATHS

J. W. CUMMINS JR.

Funeral services for J. W. Cummins Jr., 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cummins of Eastland, Texas, who died in a local hospital Thursday afternoon, were held Friday afternoon from the chapel of the Merkle Undertaking company with Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Interment was in Riverside.

The child was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cummins of this city and of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lilies of Vernon. An aunt, Miss Frances Cummins, and an uncle, Mark Cummins, also live in Wichita Falls. Three sisters also survive. The father is an employe of the Texas Electric Service company.

Boy, 15, Faces Charge Of First Degree Murder

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 7. (US)—First degree murder was charged today against 15-year-old George Danieckl. He was youngest of three boys involved in the killing of John Hayden last month.

After arraignment, the youth was taken to the county jail with William Garry and William Gallagher, also also accused of murder, and their companion, Anna Osowick, a material witness. Prosecutor David will seek indictments against the three boys at once.

All the bravado was gone from the four as they entered the jail. Their faces were pale and fear-filled. The girl, a pretty brunette, held her head low and seemed on the verge of weeping. They were finger-printed and assigned to cells.

BAND ENTERS MUSIC TESTS

Playground Musicians to Go To Amarillo

The Playground band will enter the Panhandle Music festival to be held in Amarillo April 16-18, it was announced Friday by Paul Seeds, director of the band.

The Playgrounds band will be entered as a class C band in the elimination contest when the high school bands within a radius of 300 miles of Amarillo meet in an annual district contest. The winner of this contest will be entered in the National Band contest to be held late in May.

Mr. Seeds has been given special permission to enter his band in the contest as no high school band will be entered from this city.

The band also expects to enter the the contest in Abilene in May when, through the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the West Texas Band Teachers association hold its annual contest.

Pay Program

Music classes of the Junior college will have a "pay program" at the regular assembly period Tuesday morning, according to Mrs. Hermione Vaughan, music instructor. The students will present a short operetta.

$2,750 Agreed Verdict Entered in Suit Here

An agreed compensation judgment of $2,750 was awarded to E. C. Jones against the Southern Surety company a short time after the suit was filed in the 78th district court Friday afternoon. The plaintiff's original plea was for $8,020 in the form of 401 payments of $20 each.

Mr. Jones asked the compensation in connection with injuries sustained while he was in the employ of the Shell Pipe Line company on Sept. 20 of last year. The plaintiff claimed he was permanently disabled when he was hit by a length of pipe while he was in the act of unloading a truck. The surety company was represented in the suit by Dan Boone, attorney.

WRECK YIELDS FLIERS' BODIES

Air Express Ship Found On Mountain

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Calif., March 7. (UP)—The wreckage of a once graceful air liner that crashed into a rainswept mountain canyon 13 days ago was located by a posse today, holding in its unburned framework the bodies of its crew of three men.

The ship, of the Western Air Express, was wrecked while being "Ferried" back to Los Angeles from Kingman, Ariz. After a lengthy search, the debris was seen from the air late yesterday by Dudley Steele and Mrs. Juanita Eloise Burns, Los Angeles fliers.

Mrs. Burns led a posse of 30 men into the San Bernardino mountains, near Lake Arrowhead, at dawn today. Overhead, Monte Shelton, Western Air pilot, cruised between the scene of the wreck and the posse, indicating the trail.

Several hours were required to extricate the bodies of the three victims—James Doles, pilot; Albert Beiber, co-pilot, and John W. Shelton, steward.

The big liner had been completely destroyed. A wing tip was found in the highest peak of the mountains in the vicinity. A search of two hours disclosed the pilot's compartment, smashed like an accordion and containing the bodies, almost a half a mile away. The bodies were placed in a canvas and were removed to Victorville for an inquest.

The possemen said the plane apparently had crashed into the peak while traveling at a fast speed. It did not burn. Doles had flown in numerous storms before. Last fall he arrived in Albuquerque, N. M., 30 hours late with a load of passengers after landing during a snowstorm.

Taxi Driver Attacked By Fare at Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, March 7. (AP)—William Broderick, taxi driver, was in a critical condition at a local hospital today after having been attacked last night by a man who hired the driver to take him to a residence two miles west of Sabine Pass.

When the taxi reached a point about a mile from its destination the passenger declared he believed a front tire was flat. Broderick climbed down in front of the car to look. He was slugged as he stooped, and the taxi was driven over him. Broderick staggered to a nearby house and was brought here. Albert Schultze, 35, has been charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with the case.

Mexican Hanged For Murder of Two Men

FLORENCE, Ariz., March 7. (UP)—After attempts of his countrymen to aid him had failed, Refugio Macias, 45-year-old citizen of Mexico, was hanged here today for the murder of two men.

The trap was sprung at 5:01 a. m. and 13 minutes later Macias was pronounced dead. He paid the penalty for killing Pedro Ornellas and Julian de Luna at Morenci, Ariz., in January, 1928, during a fight over a girl. His friends had attempted to interest the Mexican government in his case.

Abraham L. Erlanger, Theater Magnate, Dies

NEW YORK, March 7. (UP)—Death came unexpectedly today to Abraham L. Erlanger, largest individual owner of theaters in America, who had been ill 10 days of uremic poisoning.

Erlanger was 69. He died at 5 a. m. at his Riverside drive home with only members of his family at his bedside. He owned or was interested in eight New York theaters and 23 other houses scattered through the United States. He had been a dominent figure in the theater of America for three decades.

Family Blimps at Low Cost Are Being Made

ALLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 7. (US)—Baby blimps costing $1,000 and capable of carrying one American family in the air were promised today. Anton Heinen, who commanded Zeppelins during the war, has begun to manufacture them near here.

Captain Heinen declared the craft would be almost fool-proof. Noninflammable gas of his own invention will lift it, he said, and any automobilist will be able to operate it, after two days' instruction, he said.

Cline Scores Nation's Systematized Methods of 'Buck Passing' in C-C Talk

Over-Organization Threatens Courage of Individual, He Says; Problems Now Decided by Committees

"The citizenship of this country is over-organized, and is in danger of losing courageous individualism, which is the greatest factor in successful democracy," said Walter D. Cline before 130 business and professional men of Wichita Falls and Electra at the bi-weekly membership luncheon of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel Friday noon.

"The present trend in this country undeniably is toward mergers in business, and in all social organizations toward mass effort," the speaker continued. "When a problem arises, we refer it to the chamber of commerce if it is local, or to some committee if it is national, and consider our individual responsibility ended. It is a systematized method of "passing the buck," utilized because we think we are too busy to think out the pros and cons of such questions ourselves. Our various clubs and societies and chambers of commerce will be materially re-vitalized when we assert ourselves more freely as thinking individuals in our own right."

Duplication of Effort

Many fraternal and civic organizations are declining steadily in membership, Mr. Cline pointed out, because men are realizing that dues to the various movements amount to a prohibitive total, and that there is much duplication of effort in their various programs.

"Chamber of commerce, more than ever before, must now assert themselves in definite ways; they must command and hold the attention of their constituent communities by concrete work, if they are to survive," Mr. Cline said. "The Junior chamber of commerce brings a much needed element into this field—new blood; youthful optimism; men who are active in making new contacts, new friendships."

Turner T. Weatherall, president of the Electra Chamber of commerce and agriculture, responded to Mr. Cline's address with a brief talk on inter-city relations.

"Wichita Falls is known to Electra by its slogan of 'The City That Faith Built,'" Mr. Weatherall said. "We may term our city as that 'which oil built.' In recent months, perhaps, we all have been inclined to feel that no more slippery foundation for a city could be found than either of those qualities. But in such a situation, it is obviously good for us to stand together. We appreciate having a city like Wichita Falls within 26 miles of us, to afford us the urban facilities we could find in Fort Worth or Dallas. On the other hand, we are glad that Wichita Falls wouldn't get very far without Electra."

Besides Mr. Weatherall, the Electra delegation included W. A. Asbill, Ed Moreland, J. M. Hemby, W. M. Austin, and Robert P. Hall, secretary of the chamber of commerce and agriculture there. Other guests included Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, pastor of the First Methodist church at Archer City; A. T. Bryce, R. B. Tatum, Edward Briggs, and J. H. Davenport.

Announcement of the banquet to be given next Tuesday night, March 11, at 6:30 o'clock at the Kemp hotel for the national president of junior chambers of commerce was made by Maurice Cheek, chairman of the committee on arrangements. Mr. Cheek announced that musical numbers by a negro quartet, and a talk by C. C. McDonald will be included in the program for the occasion.

Oklahoma City Trip

W. P. Lacey was awarded the $5 prize offered for the best title for a department of personal notes to be included in the bi-weekly publication of the organization. The winning caption is "J. C. Jottings."

Members of the Junior chamber of commerce were invited by Rev. Mr. Moreland to attend the Sunday night service on March 9 at the First Methodist church in Archer City, which will be devoted to a chamber of commerce theme.

Members of the agricultural and dairying committees of the organization were asked by Jerry Vinson, president, to meet at the chamber of commerce offices next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

John Boswell, general manager, announced the chamber of commerce trip to Oklahoma City next Friday, March 14 when members of the local organization will be guests at a luncheon to be given by the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce at 12:15 o'clock, at which consideration to highway building between Burkburnett and Lawton will be given by those present. It was suggested that as many as 50 men from Wichita Falls probably will make the trip.

Music was furnished during the luncheon Friday by Frank Bird and his Bluebirds, staff orchestra of radio station KGKO.

CHEST BOARD CALLED TODAY

Grocery Demands Exceed Relief Budget

Grocery bills amounting to more than the bank accounts of several community chest organizations have resulted in the calling of an emergency meeting of the chest directors in the directors' room of the City National bank building at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, it was announced Friday.

The bills, contracted as a result of the severe weather during January, have been made larger by unemployment among unskilled laborers and other persons here, it was said. The special meeting Saturday was called on the request of the Family Relief society and the Salvation Army, the two organizations which are bearing the greater part of the burden and which are greatly behind in their budgets.

Charges Filed Against Pair in Hijacking

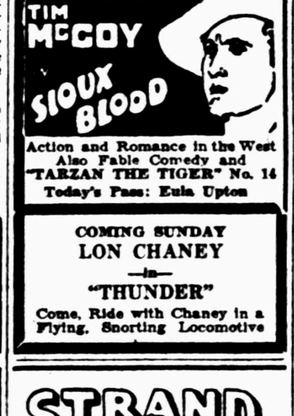

Charges were filed Friday afternoon against H. M. Dunning and L. R. Revere in connection with the hijacking of Jake Pruitt, who was robbed of $4 by two bandits near the baseball park late Wednesday night, according to information given in the district attorney's office. The two men were held in the county jail Friday night, pending setting of bond and a date for preliminary hearing.

Pruitt told police after they had made the arrest Wednesday night he had about $25 on his person, but only $4 of that amount was in his purse. The bandits, he said, took only his purse and escaped.

OPEN FORUM MEET. CALLED

General Commitee Members to Confer Sunday

Members of the general committee for organization of an Open Forum for Wichita Falls and the surrounding communities will meet again at the directors' room of the chamber of commerce next Sunday afternoon, March 9, at 3 o'clock to complete final plans for inaugurating the movement, it was announced Friday at the Junior chamber of commerce luncheon.

At the meeting of this committee of civic organization heads which was held several weeks ago, the Junior chamber of commerce was asked to make a preliminary survey of the city to ascertain whether or not sufficient funds might be subscribed voluntarily to finance the proposed Open Forum program for the coming year. According to Overton Abernathy, chairman of the committee to whom this work was assigned, subscription of almost the entire amount required will be reported Sunday. It is expected that the Open Forum will be definitely established as a medium for bringing prominent lecturers to the Memorial auditorium beginning next fall where they may be heard by residents of this section of the country absolutely without admission charge.

According to the plans followed elsewhere, each such lecture brought here by the Open Forum would be preceded by a short entertainment program, and would be followed by an hour's open discussion.
