OKLAHOMAN IN PLEA FOR SPANS ON RED RIVER

Says Interstate Bridges Are Very Necessary To Prosperity

TALKS WITH MOSELEY

Member of Oklahoma Highway Commission In Austin

AUSTIN, March 8.—(AP)—Interstate bridges between Oklahoma and Texas to link the federal aided highways are necessary to the prosperity of the southwest, Roy M. Johnson of Oklahoma City, member of the Oklahoma state highway commission, said here today.

Johnson, accompanied by J. M. Paige, Oklahoma state engineer, and Walter Burnham, Oklahoma state bridge engineer, held a conference with Hal Moseley, chairman of the Texas state highway commission, on the Hugo-Paris bridge, the Vernon-Frederick bridge contract being let and the Burkburnett bridge plans being suspended because of an injunction restraining use of state and federal funds on the ground that the money would be expended out of the state of Texas.

Mr. Johnson said that a survey is being conducted by the state of Oklahoma on the influx of tourists into Texas from Oklahoma and other states farther north. He said that if the connecting links—bridges across Red river—were completed that the Gulf coast and Rio Grande valley would draw many of the tourists now diverted to Florida.

Congratulates Texas.

He congratulated the state and Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson on having "such a practical and capable engineer as Mr. Moseley, as head of your highway commission."

Tuesday Wichita county officials are to confer with members of the attorney general's department in order to seek the dissolution of the injunction preventing the construction of the Burkburnett-Randlett bridge. W. T. Willis, owner of a toll bridge at Burkburnett, obtained the injunction.

WALSH, WICHITA COUNTY AUDITOR, IS IN AUSTIN

AUSTIN, March 8.—(AP)—Injunction against the state highway commission restraining the use of state and federal aid for the construction of the Red river bridge at Burkburnett, continues, but efforts to revamp plans for construction of the bridge are to be made, E. P. Walsh, Wichita county auditor, said today. He was in conference with Assistant Attorney General L. C. Sutton, and said he expected County Judge B. D. Sartin and County Engineer J. M. Isbell of Wichita county here Tuesday to confer on the matter.

Garner Assured Of President's Stand

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP) Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader, today assured the house that President Coolidge in urging that congress put the brakes on appropriations for the remainder of the session has no fault to find with expenditures to date.

The assurance was given after Representative Garner, democrat, Texas, asked the floor leader just what reductions the president wanted.

"There is no effort to restrain congress," Mr. Tilson replied. "It is simply calling attention to the drastic cut in revenues."

He added that the president made no specific recommendations for reduction.

Buy Acreage For New Sewage Plant

An expenditure of $5,715 was authorized by the city council at its meeting Monday night for the purchase of more than ten acres of land near the city incinerator on which it is proposed to construct the city's new sewage disposal plant. The land purchased was in two tracts. One of 5.9 acres owned by P. P. Langford, brough $750 an acre, or $5,715 for the tract; the other was a small plat of 4.3 owned by J. A. Kemp for which $300 an acre was paid.

The two purchases put the city in a position now to begin construction of the plant as soon as bids are received and the contract let.

COUNCIL SEEKS PARK ROSTRUM

Calls for Bids to Provide For Union Services In Bellevue

The first step in the securing a permanent place in Bellevue Park for holding summer out-door church services and other gatherings was taken by the city council Monday night when the city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for the construction of a frame stucco shell to serve as a rostrum and provide an acoustical background for speaking and singing.

It is planned to place the shell in the center of the park where the pavilion now stands. The plans, as drawn by Voelker and Dixon, architects, and presented to the city council at its meeting Monday night involve a structure 33 feet high, 50 feet long, and 31 feet deep. It will be of wooden construction with a stucco exterior. In th. rear it will provide a large lavatory space for use of the park patrons.

Since the inception of the union open air church services at Bellevue Park last summer the need for such a structure has become pressing, it was stated in the council meeting. The structure when completed is expected to make a very beautiful addition to the park fixtures. Bids will be received by the council before any further definite action is taken.

Names Changed

The ordinance permitting a change of the names of three West Wichita Falls streets was passed on its first reading at the meeting of the city council Monday night. Avenue M, Wenonah to Grant will now become Cumberland; Avenue N, Wenonah to Grant will be Hollywood, and Avenue O, Wenonah to Grant will become Miami street.

LEGISLATURE IS MAIN HOPE NOW OF ROAD BONDS

State Solons Must Pass New Districting Laws To Settle It

REHEARING IS DENIED

Maryland Case Decided In 1915 May Be Guide For Action In Texas

The legislature of Texas now holds the key to the road bond situation of the state which recently assumed court in invalidating wide importance through action of the supreme court in invalidating the Texas law under which road districts were created and bonds voted.

This became apparent Monday when the supreme court denied a petition of Attorney General Dan Moody, who sought a rehearing of the Archer county road case. The court's action definitely closed the matter so far as the Archer or any other road case in Texas is concerned and means that the original opinion of that court which was that the 16-year old Texas law under which road districts have been created, functioned without due process of law and in violation of the 14th amendment to the constitution.

Issues Stand Invalid

With the court ruling in this fashion, all bond issues floated in Texas under provisions of the statute—and these may run as high as $100,000,000—stand invalid until legislature action is taken.

This action it is pointed out by Attorney C. K. Walsh of this city, attorney for Perry Browning and other Archer county landowners, who fought the case through all the courts of the land and into a successful termination in the supreme court, will not be a difficult or complicated matter. Doubt has been expressed in some quarters that the legislature has authority to revise districts and bring about their conformation with the law, but the supreme court itself, Mr. Walsh points out, has ruled that a state legislature has this specific power and that it has been done in numerous instances heretofore.

Cites Wayland Case

As authority for this claim the case of Wagner vs. Lesner 2 , U. S. 207-220 is cited. This was a case arising in Baltimore, Md., a number of years ago and which was decided by the supreme court on November 20, 1915. The legality of a legislative act defining a district in which improvements had already been made through flotation of a bond issue was attacked in Baltimore and the question carried to the supreme court for final hearing. The court's opinion was that "an act of the legislature of Maryland levying a tax for improvements that had already been made was held valid without notice of hearing to the property owners."

This case was cited by Mr. Walsh to the supreme court a few days ago when he appeared in Washington to argue against Moody's motion for a rehearing. The court, when Mr. Walsh's argument was finished, asked him what remedy could be resorted to by Texas for the validation of its road bonds, and he referred them to the Wagner-Lesner case in which the court itself had settled the question some 10 years ago.

Has Power to Do It

In Texas today, it is declared, the lecislature may either in regular or in special session pass a law redistricting the state in political subdivisions conforming to the mates and bounds of county lines, setting forth the descriptions of the territory and defining the purposes for which the districts are created. Special elections in the old districts will have no effect on the standing of the case at all since these districts will be legally wiped out by the re-districting on a county line basis.

It is expected that this will be the next step in the now famous dispute. By doing this, it is held, the legislature can still preserve the validity of all districts in which improvements have been made with bond issues voted under the old district law.

Mrs. Doris Kresge, Wife Of The Chain Store King, Sues Husband For $1,000,000 "Wedding Bargain"

Reconciliation Rumored As Trial Halts Suddenly After Conference Between Attorneys On Opposing Sides

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—The suit of Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, to recover $1,000,000 from her husband, Sebastian S. Kresge, head of the chain store system of Kresge and company, was halted suddenly today by the adjournment until tomorrow. This led to rumors of a possible reconciliation between the two.

The adjournment came just as Mrs. Kresge was about to take the witness stand after a consultation between opposing counsel.

The plaintiff, who is Kresge's second wife, alleged that the capitalist made a pre-nutial agreement to assign her, after their marriage a large block of stock in the Kresge company and that he had refused to deliver the stock.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Kresge, asserted that his client was "a fool," and that the principal question before the court was whether Kresge was to be "mulcted out of more millions than he already had been gouged out of by a grasping group." On every occasion, he said, Mrs. Kresge's attitude had been "if you love me you ought to do what I ask. You ought to give me what I want."

New Outlet For Road Is Ordered

The hearing was closed and the ordinance passed on its first reading providing for a third outlet in the downtown section to the paved Henrietta road by the city council at its meeting Monday night, when sufficient objection to the paving of Indiana Avenue, 13th street to the Wichita Valley tracks, and Oak street, Mississippi to the Wichita Valley tracks, failed to develop to stop the project. The ordinance providing for the paving passed on its first reading.

Ella Duckenfield, Leader Here In Behalf of Negroes, Dies a Victim Of Malady She Fought for Others

Here 25 Years, She Promotes Practically All Worth While Movements for Civic Growth of Negro Element of Wichita Falls

Ella Duckenfield, mother superior of the negro element in Wichita Falls, died early Monday afternoon—a martyr to the service of the negro race of the city. Illness contracted less than a week ago while she was working night and day in nursing members of her own race through an influenza epidemic that has struck the negro section with unusual severity, developed into pneumonia which proved fatal. She died at 2:45 Monday afternoon.

Her passing cast a pall of grief not only over the negroes of Wichita Falls, but brought expressions of deep regret from welfare workers and civic leaders of the white race, all of whom have recognized her value and worth in laboring in behalf of the negroes.

Here 25 Years.

For the past 25 years, Ella had made her home here, watching it grow from a struggling little village to a metropolitan city, working during that time to better conditions of the negroes in the community. She was instrumental in getting the negro park; she was an active member of St. John's Baptist church; she was president of the Washington school Parent-Teacher association; the colored Day Nursery which she helped organize was granted admittance to the community chest of the municipal welfare board largely through her efforts. She sponsored the organization of the Negro Community club which had for its purpose the bettering of conditions of the negroes of the city, and for the greater advancement of Wichita Falls, acting in a way as a colored chamber of commerce.

Nurse Is Brought.

Since the epidemic of influenza which has been prevalent in the city for several weeks, Ella had been working with her friends, trying to assist them in their illness. She taxed her strength and became ill last Wednesday. Her condition grew worse, and pneumonia developed. On Saturday, a colored trained nurse from Dallas came to take care of her, but she gradually grew worse until the end which came Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock at her home, 308 Park street.

She leaves her husband, Richard Duckenfield and a 16-year-old son, Martinez.

The body is being held at the Hines mortuary pending word from her sister. No arrangements have been perfected, but the funeral will be held at St. John's church where she has been a consistent member and faithful worker since its organization. The body will be forwarded to her former home and birthplace, Pittsburgh, Texas, for burial.

LEAGUE CRISIS STILL REMAINS

GENEVA, March 8.—(AP)—No progress was made today in the crisis over the question of enlargement of the league of nations council. The opening session of the assembly convoked for the election of Germany adjourned tonight after a dramatic appeal by the president, Dr. Alfonso Dal Costa, former premier of Portugal, for harmony, without designating a day for the next meeting. To gain time to permit the reappearance of M. Briand at Geneva, the sub-committees of both assembly and council will take up auxiliary matters tomorrow.

The day closed with a continuation of the almost frenzied exchange of visits between the statesmen and with all parties to the conflict, for council seats adhering rigidly to their original positions and openly proclaiming that they had no intention of receding one iota.

McALESTER, Okla., March 8. (AP)—Suit for $50,000 damages alleging alienation of the affections of his wife, now deceased, has been filed here by C. C. Dixon, deputy sheriff, against H. H. Hokey. Both men live at Krebs.

In the suit Dixon alleges that Hokey's attentions to his wife were responsible for the wrecking of his home.

LYNCH CRACKS DOWN ON MOODY

HOUSTON, March 8.—(AP)—Lynch Davidson of Houston, candidate at the July primaries for governor,, tonight answered what he termed "the unwarranted and unfair attack upon me" by Attorney General Dan Moody in his Sunday announcement for governor.

"I resent it," said Mr. Davidson, and added:

"Dan has found a platform called "honesty and integrity' in government and hopped on it, and insists he is the only candidate in the race fit to stand on it. It hurt my feelings to have Dan talk that way about me. The people of Texas have honored me with positions of trust during the last number of years and my honesty has never before been questioned. So I do not see why he is unwilling to share this new platform with me, first discovered in America in or about the year of 1776, instead of trying to hog it all.

CONGRESS ASKS FOR OFFER ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Senate Votes 51 to 26 To Entertain Bids On Project

FORD'S IDEA REJECTED

Measure Would Spurn Offers Similar to Auto King's

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP) Congress today approved appointment of a joint committee to negotiate bids for private leasing of Muscle Shoals.

A resolution drafted to carry out a recommendation of President Coolidge and already adopted by the house was accepted by the senate, 51 to 26, and sent to conference.

Add Two Amendments.

The senate added two amendments. One, by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, would require that surplus power developed at the big war-time project be distributed equitably to states adjoining Alabama. The other, by Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, would give the proposed joint committee until April 26 to submit a proposal to congress for lease of the project instead of April 1, as voted by the house.

Proponents of the resolution, led by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, fought vigorously for its adoption without amendment to avoid the necessity of conference adjustment with the house and expedite disposal of a long pending problem. Opponents of private operation fought fruitlessly, but with equal vigor to attach amendments to the resolution that would nullify its object.

Ford Must Raise Bid.

The joint congressional committee provided for in the resolution would comprise three members of the senate agriculture committee and a like number from the house military committee would be authorized to negotiate for private lease of the properties for not more than 50 years and would be directed to reject any offer less remunerative to the government than that made by Henry Ford several years ago. Any bid approved by the committee would be subject to action by congress before it could be made effective.

Party lines played little part in the final roll call. Thirty-four republicans and 17 democrats voted for the resolution while 13 democrats, 12 republicans and the one farmer-labor senator voted against it.

Legless Bowler Is In Tournament

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 8.—(AP)—The appearance of a legless bowler on the alleys of the American Bowling congress tournament here today marked the first instance of its kind in the 25 years history of the congress.

The bowler was Peter Gregory of Detroit. He was entered from the Toledo Rotary club taking a position left vacant by a bowler who failed to show up.

It is customary for a bowler to run several steps before hurling the ball but this is impossible for Gregory who walks the foul line on his stumps. It is purely an arm motion that enables the maimed pinster to reach the end of the runway.

Gregory averaged 180 for his three games in the five-man event.

MRS. BREWSTER IS GIVEN BALM

Wife of Wealthy Magazine Publisher Wins Alienation Suit

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP) Miss Corliss Palmer, screen actress now in Hollywood, Calif., today was assessed $200,000 for the love and affections of Eugene V. Brewster, New York magazine publisher.

A jury in supreme court, after deliberating one hour, returned a verdict for the amount in favor of Mrs. Elanor V. Brewster in her suit against the actress for alienation of Brewster's affections. The action was not contested, and the jury deliberated only on the amount of damages, Mrs. Brewster asked for $250,000.

Asked Her Way Into Home.

Mrs. Brewster testified that Miss Palmer first came to their home as a contestant in a beauty prize which Mr. Brewster conducted in 1920. She asked permission to stay at the Brewster home for a few days because she had no other place to go.

After gaining access to the home Mrs. Brewster said Miss Palmer refused to leave. She won the beauty prize, won Brewster's affections and finally virtually drove Mrs. Brewster from her home, the latter testified.

Later, the wife said, Brewster installed the actress in his New York studio and only occasionally visited his wife and boy. In November, 1921, these visits ceased altogether, and in June, 1922, she said, Brewster and Miss Palmer established themselves in a "love palace" at Morristown, N. J., where they lived for some time.

Then Ridiculed Her.

Mrs. Brewster said the actress had usurped her place in the Brewster home at Roslyn, L. I. Miss Palmer broke up a proposed "second honeymoon" planned by Mrs. Brewster and her husband, Eugene B. Brewster, she said.

"After my baby was born," she testified, "my husband suggested that we go south on a 'second honeymoon.'

"Miss Palmer ridiculed our plans in the presence of both of us and tried to discourage my husband from making the trip in which she sumceeded. I went alone and was away three weeks."

So Speak the Hair Dressers, Their Business Hard Hit By Modern Fad; Bobbing Will Make Women Bearded

A Race of Short Haired Woman Will Bring On The Goatee and Mustache, Is Claim Voiced At Convention

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Women who bobbed their hair seven years ago have 50 percent less hair now than they had then, Frank Parker, hair expert, told several hundred members of the American Master Hair Dressers' association. The association opened its two-day annual convention at which was sounded the keynote "death to the bob."

Tight hats worn by women with short hair, duplicating the condition to which the common baldness of men is attributed, may be the cause of the loss of hair by women, Mr. Parker said. Charles Nessler, president of the association, made the same statement.

"Nature must compensate for this discouragement to hair growing on the head and it has been predicted that a race of short haired women will be a race of bearded women," said Mr. Parker. "I think the bob is doomed, however. In 1878 women did the same thing. They cut off their hair and murdered the hair dressing business. In 1893 they did the same thing. Both times they got over it. They will now."

Gangster Who Slew 4 Men Is Captured

TACOMA, Wash., March 8.—(AP)—A nation-wide search for a notorious west coast gangster ended here today when more than 20 policemen armed with rifles and tear gas bombs, surrounded an apartment house and captured Milo Eggers, who escaped from federal officers in San Francisco in January, 1925, after a gun battle in which his brother, Ariel Eggers was killed. He is wanted in Canada for the murder of four men during alleged hi-jacking activities off British Columbia.

RESCUE WORK IS HALTED BY FUMES OF GAS

69 Are Imprisoned In Adjoining Pits In West Virginia

40 SAVED FROM DEATH

1 Known Dead But Fate Of Other Victims Unknown

ECCLES, W. Va., March 8.—(AP)—Of the 69 miners entombed tonight in mines number five and six of the Crab Orchard Improvement company near here, one is known to have been killed, 37 were rescued alive and 31 are entombed.

The men were entombed when a double explosion rocked two connecting mines, numbers five and six of the Crab Orchard Development company according to reports reaching here. The first blast was said to have trapped 40 miners in number six and a moment later, the explosion, carried to number five, entombed 26 men working there.

Both mines are shaft operations electrically equipped, with a daily tonnage capacity of about 2,000 tons.

Coal Dust Explodes.

The night shifts were at work when the blasts occurred. Mining men expressed the belief that the explosion in number six traveled through the underground channels to the laterals running into number five and that the explosion spread through the latter mine, setting off coal dust.

A state rescue car, stationed at Gary, was ordered to the scene.

Officials of the two mines issued calls to surrounding mining villages to send rescue crews. Volunteer rescuers hastily organized at the mines, but could not go down the shafts because of the fumes.

MacReady Seeks To Fly to Sky's Rim

DAYTON, Ohio, March 8.—(AP) His second attempt within the year to set a world's altitude record will be made tomorrow by Lieut. John A. MacReady, McCook Field altitude flier.

He will try to rise above 40,000 feet. The present record, held by Callizo of France, is 39,586 feet. MacReady will attempt to better this mark by more than 500 feet, since he established a new record he must fly at least 400 feet higher than the present mark.

Several months ago Lieutenant MacReady came within 800 feet of the French record.

Oklahoma Fields Show Increased Activity, Reports Indicate

141 NEW TESTS SHOW IN WEEK'S FIELD REPORTS

Kansas Areas Slump Off Little; Only Eighteen Starts

TULSA, Okla., March 8.—One hundred and forty-one new tests were begun the past fiscal week in Oklahoma oil fields. This is the greatest number of new wells started this year, and much of it is due to the present adequate scale of crude prices being paid by the major purchasers.

Creek and Stephens counties tie for first place, each, having 19 new "first reports." The great increase of new work in Stephens really puts that county to the front, for much of the Creek activity is in proven areas.

Osage county is third with 17 new operations; Okmulgee is fourth with 14 and then comes Carter, another active Southern Oklahoma district, with 11. Garfield is next for 9; followed by Jefferson with 8; Grady with 7; Payne for 6; Lincoln for 5; Okfuskee, 4; Comanche and Muskogee and Pawnee for 3 each; Seminole, 2, with Beckham, Caddo, Cotton, Hughes, Kay and Pittsburg counties, trailing with one each.

Only 18 "first reports" came from the Kansas oil fields during the past fiscal week. They were scattered over eight counties, Greenwood county still leading with 6; Butler being second for 4, and Kingman and Lyon counties with two each. Barber, Chase, Phillips and Wabaunsee counties had one each.

New Booch Sander Indicates New Pool

TULSA, Okla., March 8.—A new Booch sand pool near the town of Bryant, in outhern Okmulgee county, appears to have been opened by the Colorado Gas and Fuel company of Denver, Colo., in No. 1 Asbury, in the northwest corner of the southeast of the southeast of 32-11-12e. This well found the pay at 1,596 feet and in it 66 feet, it is showing for 150 barrels a day of 39.6 gravity crude. The Gulf Pipe Line company is connecting to the new well.

The new well is about 35 feet higher on the structure than was the old O. P. Stover of Sapulpa, well in the northwest corner of the northeast of 5-10-12, one-fourth of a mile to the southwest, that had the Glenn sand back in 1920, during the excitement of the Lyons-Quinn pool. It showed for a big well but in drilling in it caught fire and the rig and tools were destroyed.

New Testing Due For Red River Bed

FREDERICK, March 8.—(Special.)—Work has been started under the direction of P. V. Ruch, on the oil test to be drilled by the Mellish Placer Oil Mining association in the Red river bed. The well is to be drilled in the center of the river, on land recently awarded to the association in the distribution to claimants by government receiver.

Phillips Petroleum Company Showed Rapid Growth During Year of 1925

Bartlesville Company One Of Biggest In Mid-Continent

By PAUL HEDRICK
Record News Tulsa Correspondent.

TULSA, March 8.—The year of 1925 was one of incessant improvement and expansion for the Phillips Petroleum company of Bartlesville, so the annual report by the board of directors to the stockholders indicates. Financially, also it was one of the best years in the history of the Phillips company. After all charges the earnings amounted to $21,243,060.76, equivalent to $11.14 a share on the total of 1,906,936 shares outstanding during the year, and $8.82 a share on the total of 2,407,082 shares outstanding at the end of the year. After maximum allowable deductions for depletion and depreciation there was $12,329,623.12 available for dividends and surplus, equivalent to $6.46 a share on the average shares outstanding during the year, and $5.12 on the total shares outstanding at the end of the year, compared with $4.59 and $3.82, respectively in 1924.

Gross income was $35,770,893, showing a steady increase each year since 1921.

287 Properties.

At the end of 1925 the company was operating 287 producing properties, consisting of 43,306 acres, comparable to 235 properties and 31,616 acres at the beginning of the year, an increase of 52 properties and 11,690 acres. It had 1,750 producing wells at the end of the year, of which 1,730 were oil and 20 gas, compared with 1,436 at the beginning of 1925, a net increase of 303 wells. During the year the land department acquired 151,742 acres of very desirable leaseholds and sold, released or assigned 52,043 acres. Total acreage held on Dec. 31, 1925, was 588,448 acres, or an increase of about 114,000 acres.

The production for 1925 amounted to 10,912,216 barrels, a daily average of 29,896 barrels. The net production for the year after all deductions was 9,306,861 barrels, a daily average of 25,744, compared with 9,355,799 barrels net, a daily average of 25,562 barrels in 1924.

Crude oil stocks were reduced 2,225,644 barrels during 1925, leaving an inventory of 4,784,576 barrels on Dec. 31, 1925. At the average price at which the company was selling this grade of oil, the added value would be in excess of $3,000,000, no part of which was reflected in the 1925 balance sheet or earnings statement.

Artesia, Panhandle.

During 1925 the Phillips Petroleum company operated 81 natural gasoline plants, an increase of 10 during the year. One was purchased since the end of 1925. It is building another at Artesia, in southeastern New Mexico, and is starting work on No. 2 plant in the Texas Panhandle field. It is contemplated to be the largest plant ever built.

In 1925 it manufactured 119,852,102 gallons of natural gasoline, a daily average of 328,362 gallons, compared with 62,501,127 gallons, a daily average of 170,768 gallons in 1924, an increase of over 91 per cent. It produced more gasoline in 1925 than the total amount produced in all previous years combined. The present rate of production is in excess of 150,000,000 gallons per annum, and will be substantially increased before the end of the year.

The company plants used 75,079,338,000 cubic feet of gas, compared to 42,155,720,000 cubic feet in 1924, an increase of 78 per cent. The average recovery of gasoline per thousand cubic feet in 1925 increased seven and one-half per cent over 1924.

Mrs. Clara Tedford Accused Of Slaying Husband After Auto Ride

DALLAS, March 8.—(AP)—Formal charges of murder were lodged today against Mrs. Clara M. Tedford, 32, who shot and mortally wounded her husband, G. A. Tedford last night after the two had quarreled on an automobile ride, on which they were accompanied by another couple.

Tedford died just before noon, immediately after talking to District Attorney Shelby Cox about the cause of the trouble, which was not made known. Mrs. Tedford already under $5,000 on assault to murder charge, was rearrested and charged with murder.

Witnesses say Mrs. Tedford approached her husband and shot him as he was talking to another man, near the garage Tedford operated.

Lure of the Movies Brings His Death

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—(AP) The lure of motion pictures led first to jail and then to death for Natale Carradi, an Italian youth, who came here from New York a few months ago to seek fortune in the films.

He was killed yesterday in an attempt to escape from the Los Angeles jail which occupies the top floors of the hall of justice. With two other prisoners he made a rope of blankets, planning to slide from the ninth floor to a fire escape on the seventh which would lead to freedom. Before he reached the eighth floor the improvised rope parted and the youth crashed to the pavement. He died at a hospital.

He was arrested a short time ago when his employer charged that the lad stole money from him.

Pussyfoot Gets Warm Reception On Dry Law Talk

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, who has many times been the object of heckling in his prohibition addresses, has had another set-to with "wet" opponents.

His talk at the West Side Young Men's Christian association yesterday ended in some confusion when hecklers propounded a series of questions after the main address which met with protests from the drys present. Questions flew back and forth, but in the confusion of shouts from both wet and dry adherents, went unanswered.

In response to a demand of wets present a poll on modification of the Volstead act was taken by Dr. S. W. Grafflin, who presided. Dr. Grafflin put the vote by display of hands and decided the vote was against modification.

"Didn't King George of England give his approval to the use of beer for working men of Great Britain?" was one question. Mr. Johnson did not admit this, but said the working people of America had brought about prohibition here.

"If, as you claim, the majority of the nations of oriental countries have always been for prohibition, how is it that they are the backward nations?" was another question. Before Johnson could answer the questioner interposed:

"The great nations of the world, America, England, France and Germany, have always been drinking nations and these are the nations that have advanced civilization. How about that?"

Mr. Johnson tried to answer, but a storm of protest against the question made his voice inaudible. The meeting broke up soon after.

During his talk Mr. Johnson said that all the world, except Portugal, Spain and Greece had the liquor interests with its back to the wall.

Noted French Ace Establishes Field Near Old Mission

SAN ANTONIO, March 8.—(AP)—The first step toward giving San Antonio an airport comparable to the best maintained landing fields in the country has been taken with the construction of the first of several hangars two miles south of the city. This hangar is to be completed in a day or two.

Already levelled the field is available for use in emergency landing.

While primarily interested in the establishment and maintenance of an airport where the airplane traveller can obtain any kind of service desired, from the overhauling of his plane to being carried into San Antonio by auto from the field, Lievre intimated that backing obtained by him during a recent trip to Detroit, New York and Washington will result in air passenger service to Mexico and several northern cities in this country.

Stabilization of Industry To Be Keynote of Convention

FORT WORTH, March 8.—(AP) Stabilization of the cattle industry, adoption of some measure to prevent raising of surplus cattle and another to bar importation of cattle from infected countries, will be some of the chief objectives of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association, which holds its golden anniversary convention here beginning tomorrow, following the executive committee meeting today.

Routine matters and adoption of the report of the officers of the association were the principal subjects to come before the executive committee. A majority of 60 members of the committee were on hand when the meetings started at 10 a. m.

Presence of Secretary of Agriculture William Jardine will be one of the features of the general session tomorrow. The secretary left Washington Sunday. He has intimated that he favors three nation treaty between the United States, Canada and Mexico, whereby no cattle importations could be made into either of these countries without the consent of the other two. Such a treaty will be acts favorably on the request of the formed if Secretary of State Kellogg livestock interests, it is explained.

TOM LOVE ON THE ROAD AGAIN

THOMAS B. LOVE is on the road again. He has been on the road in Texas in every campaign for 26 years. He served as a member of the legislature for three terms. He was a speaker of the lower house. Thomas M. Campbell made him banking and insurance commissioner. He served a term or two as national committeeman. He was an assistant secretary of the treasury under William Gibbs McAdoo. Texas has been kind to him. His country has been kind to him.

He was one of the McAdoo lieutenants at San Francisco where the McAdoo flag went down. He was one of the McAdoo lieutenants at the Madison Square Garden convention where the McAdoo flag went down again. He was known as the boss in those days. He backed Felix Robertson for governor. He lost and voted for the republican nominee, Dr. George C. Butte. Now he is a candidate for state senator in the Dallas district where Big John Davis is a candidate for re-election.

This former boss has adopted the 8th Commandment for his platform. He thunders from Mt. Trinity, not Mt. Sinia. He is for the federal inheritance tax. He is for the income tax. He is for the dear people. He owns a palatial farm a few miles from Dallas. Now he is a plain farmer man. His heart bleeds for the down-trodden. He has imiginary corns on his hands caused by imiginary labor, guiding the plow and swinging the hoe and deep wrinkles furrow his broad face for lack of sleep brooding over the wrong of labor, organized and unorganized.

John Davis is a native Texan. He has served four years in the senate. Before entering the senate he saw service elsewhere. He was born on a rocky farm in San Jacinto county. And, in his boyhood, he was splitting rails while the former boss was splitting velvet. Big John is a states-right democrat. He does not believe in 50-50 splits. He insists that the federal government should keep its hand off of the state government and permits the people to be their own bosses and conduct their own local affairs.

Big John has a heart. In the question of issuing pardons, he would err on the side of mercy. The former boss would never pardon the bootlegger or a rapicat, but he would favor a liberal policy of pardoning for all others convicted of crime. This should be a very interesting contest. Big John hasn't much time for bosses. He has scant respect for the unit rule and the two-thirds rule. He would permit the people to decide for themselves in the congressional districts.

He does not believe in castiron instructions, in order that state bosses may hand their delegates over to the national bosses or the candidates of the national bosses. It has been said that Thomas B. Love, former boss and now on the road again, is a cunning politician. Perhaps he is; but Texan democrats never had a boss that they didn't dump in the long-run. Ever now and then a boss comes to the surface. He may ride the people for a time, but then comes the bucking period on the part of the people the boss is thrown in the ditch and the procession moves forward just as if the boss had never happened. Big John may be slow-thinking, he may be easy moving, he may be unmanagable and follow his own head but he manages to garner the votes on primary election day.

He is a regular in the county of Dallas. After the run-off and Mrs. Ferguson had been declared the nominee, Big John followed the party flag and voted the ticket straight. Now what is going to happen in the July primary?

A BOOM FOR EL DUCE

THE escape from Italy of Cesare Rossi on the eve of the Matteotti trial is probably rather a relief for Mussolini than anything else. To be sure, this man, who was one of the most prominent of those accused in the Matteotti murder case, asserts that he is going to spread before the world the truth about Fascism. He has already accused Mussolini of instigating the murder of the socialist deputy, declaring that he himself was only an instrument. But Mussolini might have been compelled to sacrifice Rossi, and autocrats who sacrifice their instruments always create a bad impression among those he must depend upon. Rossi may battle, but for Mussolini his tattling will be the lesser of two evils.

THIS MODERN AGE.

Many an anxious son walks the floor nowadays awaiting dad father to get home from the night club.

TEXAS' PRISONS AND CONVICTS

TEXAS had a penitentiary system that is as antiquated as time can make it. It should have been thrown in the discard years and years ago. It should be placed on a business basis and the penological methods of the day should be employed in the handling of convicts and their care. There will be an important amendment before the voters of Texas this year. It provides for the re-location of the penitentiary. It provides for modern legislation in order that the re-location may be made possible and the prisons of the commonwealth may be placed in charge of these institutions and their inmates. It provides for many things which are needed and necessary.

Speaking of the prisons of Texas, Dr. Max Handman, professor of sociology at the University of Texas, made some interesting comments recently in the city of Dallas. He said with free labor for the Texas prisons industries, the Texas prison system has not been put on a self-supporting basis, and it cost the tax payers from $250,000 to $350,000 annually for the support of the prison. Furthermore, the recent survey of the Texas prison gave us for the first time a knowledge of those who are in the prison.

Dr. Handman declared that half the inmates are native Texans and as many are World war veterans. Two-thirds are mentally sub-normal. Fifty per cent have been in the penitentiary more than once, and 25 per cent have been in at least four times. Almost nothing is being done in the way of mental occupational education. He said the people do not show the least interest in them after they have been put behind the gates of the prison; ill treatment and torture of convicts is only a side issue, when the main issue should be to make the convicts better men after they have completed their sentences than they were when they began.

His viewpoint is, the first step should be to abolish the old plantation system of agriculture on the farms. He would allow the convicts a part of the profits from their labor and ventured the prophecy that when this shall have been brought about there will cease to be a deficit in the operation of the prison farm. He would allot each convict his own small farm and build up in him an interest in the work. He declared in the past it has been impossible to determine the cost of operation of the prison system because of the mis-management and because the records either have not been kept or have been kept in such a manner that it is impossible to get any definite and accurate information from them.

It has cost the taxpayers of Texas in the past 25 years, millions of dollars to operate the prisons of the commonwealth and now if the voters of Texas are wise when election day shall come, they will adopt the amendment and at the same time, they will see to it that their very best men are sent to the senate and the house to draft the legislation necessary to bring about the re-location of the prison, the sale of prison farms and the employment of modern methods in the handling of these convicted wards of the state.

This survey should have taught the people of Texas many things. They are largely to blame for conditions. They have it in their power to place Texas first. They have it in their power to scrap the antiquated system which came into existence 75 years ago and should have been discarded at least at the close of the war between states. Dr. Handman is right. These prisons and farms are operated by free labor. All the farm machinery and supplies are furnished by the taxpayers of the state.

All the buildings are furnished free. All the salaries of the employes from warden down are footed by the taxpayers. It is impossible to break even with everything free. How is it possible for a farmer who is not a convict to make a dividend return on his land and his labor.

Politicians are gentlemen who farm the people. They are gentlemen who are not high grade business men. Many of them were failures in their private venture before they began to direct the affairs of the state.

At the ballot box all men are equal. At the ballot box, the ballot of an intelligent free man tells the story. Why not tell at the polls this year?

JUST A SUGGESTION.

Maybe if we made the right sort of approach Europe would lend us enough money to assuage her dislike for us on account of what she owes us.

MICKEY (HIMSELF) McGUIRE — 9

The GOLDEN COCOON

By RUTH CROSS

"Since you've heard that much," she said, "you may as well hear the rest." She paused to collect the facts in her mind to arrange them in their proper order.

Sarah Cochran waited austerely. At the last day Molly would not stand before a more implacable judge.

"I was in love with Stephen Renfro once—at least I thought I was. . . ." She was surprised at the ease—the glibness—of her words. "He asked me—finally—to marry him. Then one evening he did not come. I waited until midnight. Three mornings later his marriage to Susan Dillworth was announced in the papers.

"I don't know just what happened. I was young. I hadn't supposed men were like that. My one thought was to destroy myself—not so much physically . . . . Anyhow, I went out into the streets. I walked and walked for hours. I kept drawing nearer to the river, and yet I knew that wasn't what I wanted. Toward midnight I passed a row of houses—you remember where they used to be between the railroad tracks and the river. I saw a woman. It came to me like a blow—that was the way—to destroy myself. I went up the steps of one of the houses. I rang the bell. Arthur Bancroft was standing in the hall . . .

"Oh, no—not that. . . . But he had seen me there—I was there four hours. It comes to the same thing as far as he's concerned.

"The next morning Greg saw me standing by the railroad track, waiting for the train to pass. He followed and overtook me at the river. The rest you know, except thta—I tried again—and he stopped me again." She made a brief gesture of conclusion.

It was not easy for Sarah Cochran to break her long silence. Her mouth twitched at the corners. The muscles of her face jerked convulsively. "My son—my son!" Her moan was a strange blend of anguish and bitterness. "A woman like you—you let him marry you?"

"Yes," Molly said simply, "I let him marry me."

"A woman like you—my son. . . And he's to be dragged through the mud and the slime—his career at an end, his work gone for nothing—and all because of you. . . ." The proud old head sank forward. The heavily veined hands opened and closed with a gesture of unspeakable futility.

"After all the years and hopes and sacrifices—that you should happen across his path like that—the merest accident. . . . I knew from the first—something warned me you would bring ruin on him, bring ruin on us all. . . ."

"He's not ruined yet," Molly suggested quietly. "There may be some way . . ."

The older woman lifted her head, looked across at her piercingly. That had not occurred to her. She considered it for some minutes. Then, "We must think only of Greg," she muttered, more to herself than to Molly.

"Yes, we must think only of Greg," the latter repeated quietly. "But there's one thing I have to take into account that you don't—Greg loves me. He loves me so much that all that other didn't make any difference to him. I've got to try to think of what will hurt him least." She picked up her wrap and gloves and moved toward the door of her own room. "When I've decided on something I'll come back and tell you."

In her room with the door shut and bolted, Molly began at once to take off her evening things. She found a dark traveling suit in the closet and put it on, brought out a suitcase and stowed away a few immediate necessities in it. In her little wall safe there was three hundred dollars in gold which Grg had given her on her last birthday. She glanced at her watch. Fifteen minutes to two—and the northbound express went through at three.

Molly sat down to the writing desk.

"Greg—I lied to you about that rejection slip this morning. It was an offer of a position—not much to begin with, but an opening wedge, a chance to learn. I'm leaving tonight to take it in.

"I know this will seem abrupt and ill considered, but I have desires—I don't know whether I can call them ambitions—older than my love for you, stronger perhaps. I can't content myself with being merely absorbed—no separate existence. I must belong a little to myself. I've tried to make you understand. . . .

"Some day when you are happy with a woman worthy of your love you may find it in—"

She was about to conclude, "Try to believe that, in spite of this, I love you and shall always love you." But she checked her pen and added merely the word, "Molly."

She took up her purse and traveling bag. Halfway across the room she hesitated; finally put the bag down, went quickly toward her husband's door, turned on the light. He must have gotten off on very short notice indeed, for things were in a great state of confusion—drawers hanging open, closet doors ajar, things scattered about.

She moved about now, laying things back carefully in their proper places, giving the little touch here and there that he liked. Tomorrow or the day after he would be coming home. Her heart smote her sorely at the thought. He was always so glad to get back, so content to be with her again, after even the briefest absence; as eager about it almost—though he made his little pretense of casualness—as if he had been away for months. There was something in his very expression at such times that reminded her how beautifully yet pathetically defenseless is even the strongest of men once he has given all his love and confidence into a woman's keeping. If she was unworthy—if she was not good enough . . . That picture wrung her heart too.

Slowly she crossed the room, softly closed the door—as if she left something dead, or stricken to death, inside.

Sarah Cochran was pacing measuredly up and down with the air of one who awaits the issue from a room where the old, old battle of life and death is being fought out once more. When Molly came in and set down the traveling bag, she halted and stared blankly at her.

The latter compared her watch with the clock on the mantel, which pointed to half past two.

"There's just one way," she said then briefly. "We must make them believe that I am dead. Oh, I shan't be, of course," she added quickly, reading in the keen old eyes how glad she would have been to see her lying there dead at her feet if that could have saved her son. "Much depends on you," she went on. "You must listen very carefully and do exactly as I tell you. . . ."

Five minutes by the clock it required to outline the plan. The other nodded from time to time, dubiously at first; toward the end with growing conviction and hope.

"I think you'd better give him this," Molly concluded, handing her the letter she had written. "You can say you found it in my room. You must never let him suspect the real reason why I am going, and you will have to do everything on your own initiative. He would not consent. . . ."

"But—you have no money!" Sarah Cochran gasped. The thought had evidently just occurred to her.

"Yes, the three hundred dollars Greg gave to me on my birthday."

"You will need more." She looked about vaguely for her own purse—remembered she hadn't it with her. "You must send me some address," she said then. "I will keep you supplied. Greg wouldn't want you to lack for anything."

"I shall manage." Molly was at the door. She seemed for a moment to hesitate. Finally, without looking back: "You'll do the best you can—for him—won't you? It's not going to be easy—for him. . . ."

Molly, walking in the direction of the station with the suitcase, was thinking: "She has her son again, and she is glad. But she will have to watch him suffer. He won't show that he suffers, and that will be more terrible for her. . . ."

CHAPTER XXVI

The ticket to New York which Molly purchased involved no conscious act of will. Hong-Kong or the Antipodes would have served as well. Her one thought was to lose herself; to sink identity, personality—if such a boon might be, memory.

When she stepped on to the ferry-boat in the dun-gray fog of early morning, the city on the opposite shore looked but a thing of vapors and uncouth shadows, a mildewed blotch on the encompassing dun-gray waters. The damp, piercing cold cut through her light coat, straight to the bone. Shivering, she wondered dully what she had ever imagined in such a place. Where was the enchantment, where the splendor and the terror, where the brooding giant? Fit symbol—her dreams always reckless, keyed too high; the reality dun-gray and unequivocal.

After hours of dogged tramping, miles of dingily carpeted stairs, she found a room within the possibilities of her purse. It was the smallest room she had ever seen. The old lean-to at home was spacious in comparison. She dropped her suitcase, paid the landlady two weeks in advance, locked the door, and fell full length across the dingy couch. She had not taken a Pullman for the three days' journey— she would not have slept, anyway. . . .

Now as she lay motionless on the hard and narrow couch and stared about her at the ugly, narrow room an exasperating line kept pounding through her brain—beating time to the city's muffled yet sinister roar: "Each in his narrow cell forever laid—"

On the afternoon of the fourth day the landlady panted up the three flights of stairs and rapped with businesslike intent at the door. Molly was sitting by the one window—dressed apparently just as when she arrived. Her hat, gloves, purse, lay in precisely the same spot on the washstand.

"Did you want something?" she asked, without turning round or taking her eyes from the prospect of dingy roofs and dingier skylights.

Molly rose and took up her hat from the washstand. "I'm just going out to get something to eat," she said, with a suggestive glance at the door, which her caller's bulk all but concealed.

"Faith an' I reckon 'twon't hurt you none, neither." Mrs. Mulvaney flattened herself obligingly sidewise and noted with increasing respect for her own psychic powers that the hat went on without so much as a peek at the mirror. "Come joy, come grief, 'tis eatin' an' drinkin' we must still be after doin'."

Molly turned the key in the lock and made good her escape. Once she had swallowed a few spoonfuls of the soup which a scornful waitress set before her, her head cleared a little, her limbs grew more dependable. She inquired her way to the place where papers from home were to be had, bought a half dozen and carried them to the nearest park bench.

GOVERNOR'S WIFE DROWNS IN PLEASURE BOAT

The headlines shrieked with heavy black type. She skimmed briefly through the double columns:

Mrs. Gregory Cochran, who with her husband's mother preceded the governor some days since to their summer camp in Michigan. . . .

Alone in a small canoe—sudden squall—capsized. . . . Body not yet recovered, but every effort still being made. . . . Governor Cochran had already started north to join his family when the tragic news reached the capital. . . .

Saturday. . . . The papers slipped unnoted to the ground. Again for the thousandth time she had to live that hour of his homecoming. Unsuspecting, loving her, trusting her; hurrying home—to that letter, to that vicious, cowardly stab in the back. If she could have spared him that—the first moment of it, even—taken it somehow on herself. . . . Her own anguish was nothing. She hardly knew whether she suffered. But Greg—to picture him growing only a little more quiet and self-contained—even his mother persuaded after a while that he no longer felt the sting * * * But he would feel it. She, Molly, knew.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

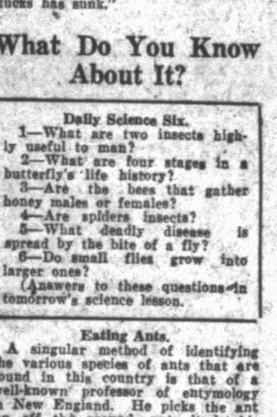

THE LONELY MOON

A million stars, and one moon only,
And yet at night, when hearts are lonely,
It always is the moon, somehow,
To which we turn, as I turn now.
When you, dear heart, are miles away
And I am weary with the day,
It is to her I lift my eyes,
The lonely mistress of the skies.

A million planets fill the azure,
But only one can give her pleasure,
The lordly sun, and him she seeks;
But, even as she climbs the peaks,
He slips behind them farther west,
While still she follows on her quest,
And never finds, and never knows
More than his glory as he goes.

A million stars, and one moon only,
And she the saint of all the lonely.
For we know separation, we
Know absence, or may absent be.
Yet God has given up a boon:
The lovely and the lonely moon
Arises as the day departs,
The saint of separated hearts.

DINNER STORIES

A cross young bridegroom came home to find that his wife had cooked some alleged dumplings for dinner. She was a poor cook, and she had done her worst. The dumplings were uneatable. They were as heavy as the burden of guilt on a murderer's conscience.

"Call these dumplings?" roared the irate husband. "Want to choke me with metal door-knobs so you can draw my insurance money?" And he hurled the weighty missles through the window. The couple kept ducks on the back premises, and the fall of the dumplings on the hard ground shattering them, the ducks gobbled up the fragments.

Five minutes later, a timid knock was heard at the door, and a pale-faced urchin, awed by the strange tale of disaster he had to tell, thrust in his head and gasped, "Missus, yer ducks has sunk."

Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Tax time has come 'round once more!
I see, even in my slumbers,
Tax collectors by the score.

Taxes on our household plunder
Come each year to vex the soul;
Income . . . Poll Tax . . . till we wonder

If the poorhouse is our goal.
Tax is real, and very earnest,
When your list you have to file;
Take good care, when thou returnest,
That your memory is vile!

Tax Collectors oft remind us,
We must pay the last red cent,
And, departing, leave behind us
Money needed for the rent!

Complimenting Mrs. C. E. Swindler, one of the members of Division Two of the First Christian Woman's Council, who is leaving soon for Amarillo to make her home, the division gave her a surprise by meeting at her home in all day session Monday.

Each member brought an article of food, and luncheon was enjoyed at the noon hour, after which the honoree was presented a lovely handkerchief shower.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Derden, and Mrs. J. M. Isbell, leader of the division led in prayer. Mrs. Kennemer gave the mission study, a discussion on Mexico.

County Schools To Show Increase

Work on taking the annual schol census in the common school districts of the county is proceeding rapidly and without serious difficulty, county superintendent of schools, Burl Bryant stated Monday. Various enumerators that have been called at his office in the past two days have reported more than satisfactory progress with their work, he says.

It is the tenor of their preliminary reports that the county as a whole will show a large increase in scholastic population over the census of last year, Mr. Bryant states. The cities, Electra, Iowa Park and Wichita Falls should show very large increases, the preliminary reports show, while Valley View, Pleasant Valley, City View, Cobb, Allendale and Friberg are among the rural communities should also show increases.

These increases, it is stated, are due largely to the influence of irrigation inducing immigrants to move to the country. The entire county in 1925 showed a scholastic population of approximately 15,500. The state laws require that the census taking be completed in March.

Damage Suit On Trial in Court

Trial of a damage suit asking $55,000 of John O'Neal, Wichita Falls oil operator, was begun in the 78th district court Monday before Judge Guy Rogers. Mrs. Josephine Hill acting for herself and four minor children, Alma, Christine, Floyd, and Nadine, is plaintiff.

Claim for damages is based on a series of events which had their beginning when E. P. H. Rathke of Electra picked up T. W. Hill, deceased husband of the plaintiff, on September and carried him a short distance down the road to Iowa Park. In order to avoid striking an approaching car driven by the defendant, the petition of the plaintiff alleges, Mr. Rathke turned his car into the ditch by the side of the road. The defendant, O'Neal, did likewise, however, striking Mr. Rathke's car and throwing Hill to the ground by the side of the car. As a result of the injuries received in the collision Hill died three weeks later.

The petition of the plaintiff alleges that the blame for the accident rests entirely on O'Neal, but that if it should find contributory negligence on the part of Rathke, then Rathke should be made to share the damages also.

Danger Signals of Indigestion

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system needs all of its healthful vigor to withstand cold, flu and other winter ills.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical book tells us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes pains and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Ferraline, Nature's great stomach treatment that has given relief to thousands. Ferraline immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including your stomach, liver, and bowels. Ferraline makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Ferraline today at any drug store. Ferraline is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the owners have instructed every druggist to refund the purchase price, One Dollar, if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous. Get Ferraline today from your druggist.—Adv.

Was It Love—or Fascination?

WHEN one is nearly twenty and wants to get ahead in the world, life as a manicurist in a barber shop is prosaic and dull.

Or, at least, so thought Angelique! The foolish flattery of men sickened her. She began to doubt whether she would ever meet a man she could love with all of the devotion she felt herself capable of.

But that was before she met Carlos, an exhibition dancer. When she danced with him, she wished it would go on forever.

But how little she knew about life and the ways of men! When Carlos asked her to become his professional partner, Angelique's heart set up a terrific hammering of excitement. To go on the stage with Carlos, and rise with him to heights of fame—she could hardly believe her good fortune.

The fact that Carlos was an absolute stranger to her did not enter her excited mind.

But her first visit to Carlos' studio started a drama that no playwright could have written, that no "movie" plotster could have created for the screen—a swift, heart-gripping, true-life drama that was to seize her in its merciless grip, fling her high into the clouds of reckless laughter, and then hurl her with crushing force down, down onto the rocks of fear and despair.

Never has the terrible price of ignorance been made more vivid, more compelling, than in this astounding true-life narrative entitled, "Out of the Ruins," in April True Story Magazine. Never was there written a more powerful warning against forming friendships with people that one knows nothing about.

Other Heart-Stirring Stories In the April Issue Are:

"Sunshine and Shadow"—Tessie longed for something to happen to vary the deadly monotony of life. Then she fell in love with Eddie Novak—and the underworld had her in its grip. A thrilling epic of grim courage.

"Not Always What You Think"—A good girl fighting alone against the world may have to choose between hunger and luxurious comfort "at a price." Read this girl's story about the choice she made.

U.S. RULING IN ARCHER CASE ALARMS STATE

Decision of Supreme Court Affects $75,000,000 Texas Bonds

AUSTIN, March 8.—(AP)—Decision of the United States supreme court in Washington in denying motion for re-hearing of the Archer county bond case was viewed with alarm in the Texas capital today.

The decision, affecting between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000 in Texas road district bonds, was briefly discussed, and then with much trepidation by authorities here.

Attorney General Dan Moody, who filed the motion for re-hearing, said that some means of validating the bond issues must be found. He declared that he did not believe that the people of Texas would repudiate the bonds after having enjoyed the privileges they afforded.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson said that he had not had an opportunity to study the opinion in the case.

Suggest Special Session.

Some authorities, who declined to be quoted, said that a special session of the legislature should be called to validate the issue.

The case resulted from the action of Perry Browning, et al, against Judge E. M. Hooper and the commissioners court of Archer county in contesting the validity of a $300,000 bond issue for improvement road district number 4, and was fought through several courts.

John R. Moore of Archer City, attorney for Judge Hooper, first refused to join in the motion for rehearing, but later submitted one.

Attorneys in many sections of the United States sought to intervene in the case. When the decision as made January 4, former Attorney General W. A. Keeling said that it was one of the most far reaching decisions ever made by the supreme court, in that it affected like district road bond issues in other states.

REHEARING DENIED DESPITE PLEA OF SEVERAL STATES

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—A rehearing of the Archer county, Texas, road district case was today denied by the supreme court.

The case, decided by the supreme court last Jan. 4, attracted wide attention because of its effects upon bonds issued by road improvement districts organized under conditions similar to those in Archer county which the court decided invalid.

Attorney General Moody of Texas, asked for a rehearing when John R Moore, the attorney who had conducted the case for the county, refused to do so. Subsequently the latter changed his position and also submitted a motion for a rehearing.

He was tried once in Corpus Christi on the indictment and the jury was dismissed when it failed to agree. The government's case was based on funds of the state department entrusted to him while he was stationed in Nuevra Laredo between 1918 and 1920.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified cresote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, cresote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to cresote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the cresote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood attacks, the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchal asthma, bronchitis and other forms of resporatory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

QUANAH, March 8.—Four white men and one negro, prisoners in the Hardeman county jail, last night about 4 o'clock overpowerd the jailer and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy James, and made their escape. There were 15 prisoners in the bastile at the time, but the others refused to leave.

One of the prisoners who refused to leave was George Hanna, who is charged with the killing of Wes Taylor last year.

CLAY CO. ROAD BIDS OFFERED

Nearly Million Dollars In Certified Contracts Are Filed

AUSTIN, March 8.—(AP)—Close to a million dollars in certified contracts were filed today by contractors with the state highway commission to guarantee their good faith in bidding on Liberty, Clay, Lavaca and Ellis county projects, Chairman Hal Moseley said. It is believed this figure sets a record for Texas.

The checks cover bids on projects, the estimated cost of which runs above $1,500,000.

Tabulation of bids on 416 miles of resurfacing work will not start until Tuesday at the earliest, Mr. Moseley said. The first surfacing of bituminous asphalt on this mileage was laid by the American Road company. Attorney General Dan Moody who prosecuted the American Road company and recovered $600,000 excess highway profits has warned the highway commission of further litigation if the commission carries out its plan to place a second surfacing of bituminous asphalt over a portion of the mileage involved.

Eight firms bid on construction of 34 miles of concrete, closing gaps in highways five and fifty between Henrietta and Wichita Falls. These are Clay county projects and will cost more than $600,000.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly relieved and cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. New Way to End Dangerous Cough

The most stubborn cough is relieved with the first dose, and is very often broken up entirely in 24 hours by a new method based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs.

Here is the method: You simply take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but also loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. So with the cause removed, the severest cough usually disappears quickly.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

More Truth Than Poetry

GOLDEN DAYS FOR GENIUS.

There once was a time when a writer of rhyme
  Or a singer of beautiful song
Never had half a chance to step out in advance
  Of the plodding and work-a-day throng.
He could scribble away at his poems all day,
  Or sing "tra-la-las," or declaim,
But no one said, "Here; you should have a career;
  We will show you the highway to fame."

But no talented kid in the backwoods is hid
  For long in this halcyon day,
No Miltons can blush unobserved in the brush,
  No Titians hang out in the hay.
The boosters soon find the young folks of the kind
  That are likely to rise to renown,
And they're sent to the front to do stunt after stunt,
  Which is all for the good of the town.

A youth who ca npaint or a girl who can faint
  Like Bernhardt could do on the stage,
Doesn't need to hunt round for a chance to be "found"
  In this up-and-traveling age.
No genius can lurk in a hut, out of work
  In Guthrie or Butte or Jones Fork.
It will get all the cash that it needs for the dash
  To the bright lights of good old New York.

If you hear of a bard, who has never been starred,
  Or a singer who can't get a show,
Or a genius so poor and ill known and obscure
  That he can't knock the world for a row,
You will know something's wrong with their verse or their song
  Or their sermons, orations, or plays,
For all those with enough of the genuine stuff
  Can't keep out of publicity's blaze!

DIXSON, LEVINE GET A DRAW IN 8-ROUND MILL

Wichita Falls Welter Is Lucky to Get Away With That

Dickie Dixson, Fort Worth bantamweight, battled Tabby Levine through eight stanzas Monday night in the American Legion boxing exhibition and in the end won a draw decision from the referee. Rabid ringsiders were somewhat amazed and disgruntled at the decision which, they said, should have been a point award for Dixson, but the referee ruled otherwise. Levine carried only one round by a comfortable margin, this being the fifth when he floored Dixson for a count of nine with a short body punch.

Dixson displayed his usual speed throughout the fight. Levine landed several sweeping swings, but could not get many of them where they were aimed. Dixson continually danced into the Wichita Falls youngster to land effective punches and then clinched before Tabby could do any harm.

Saves Himself.

Dixson saved himself until the final round and then broke loose and carried the fight to Tabby. In this final round Tabby was badly battered and was somewhat groggy toward the last.

Pug Humphries of Lawton, Okla., cleanly outboxed Buckshot Peoples and took the winning margin with ease. Peoples started fast and seemed to be an easy winner, but in the closing rounds Pug had the Wichita Falls welter helpless and was battering him hopelessly. It was a six-rounder.

Fred Whittington and Kid Pendlan battled to a fast four round draw.

Ace Cain furnished the only knockout of the evening when he battered Fireman Cannon to the mat in the first round of their four-round bout. The bout started slow and ended fast when Cain cornered Cannon against the ropes.

Spike Flannigan, Fort Sill, Okla., welter, and Sailor Murphy, of Dallas, fought a four-round draw. Both men were slugging hard and both were groggy part of the fight.

Whirlwind Kelly and Kid Robertson battled to a four round draw in the curtain raiser.

Coach Mosley is expected to put the club through a hard work tonight and a lighter one for Thursday to get them in the best of form for Friday night.

The Fort Worth team comes with the best of a record and will be hard to stop, according to dope.

IF?

CHICAGO, March 8.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey will give Harry Wills a long waited chance at the heavyweight boxing title on Labor day and in Chicago—if.

The principal part of the "if" Floyd Fitzsimmons intimated before departing last night for Los Angeles, is Chicago's passing or failing to pass a measure to legalize the sport here.

Fitzsimmons, who possesses the only documents extant that can bring Wills and the champion together in the immediate future, said Chicago promoters with whom he and Jack conferred over the week-end had offered "satisfactory" proposals and credentials. Wills is leaving everything to the future and Fitzsimmons.

Pro Football Has A Guiding Star In Bill Edwards

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Professional football today has its Landis in the person of William H. Edwards, formerly captain and coach at Princeton.

Dissatisfaction of Red Grange and his manager, C. C. Pyle, with the reception tendered them by the professional circuit, which held sway last season, gave Big Bill his opportunity for three years at an annual salary of $25,000. He will rule the organization which Grange and Pyle have brought into being.

It will be known as the American League of Professional Football Players. New York, New Jersey, Boston and Milwaukee are definitely aligned and clubs under consideration represent Cleveland, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Indianapolis.

Edwards said that he had signed a contract only after a straight forward declaration of the league's intentions toward college stars had become a part of the by-laws.

Mule Washburn Goes To Hospital With Flu; Four Over Fence

The Spudder brigade of training athletes continue to swell each day and Monday three more hopefuls drifted into camp. The first of the trio was Earl Rinehart, semi-pro outfielder from Davidson, Okla., who stepped into uniform and slapped out a few nice ones for the garden gleaners to chase. Patrick Martin, big left-hander, who finished the season with the Spudders last year, and Albert Turner, young shortstop from Minneapolis, came in on the afternoon train but was too late to get into the daily frolic.

Martin, who has been spending most of the off-season in the mountains of New York state, said he was in excellent shape and proclaimed himself ready for quick action and plenty of it. Turner also announced himself fit and hopes to break into professional ball for keeps this season. He and Martin will both be out in uniform today.

The Spudder squad now numbers 25 and more are expected in today.

Monday's workouts consisted mainly of batting practice and some infield antics.

MULE GOES TO THE HOSPITAL WITH FLU

Mule Washburn, hard-hitting first-baseman obtained from San Antonio, was out for the morning practice but complained of not feeling well and about noon went to the hospital with the flu. Washburn is the second on shelf with the flu. Dick Morgan member of the club to be cast on the is hardup with the same thing.

WILLIAMS LIMBERING UP IN GOOD SHAPE

Carl Williams, one of the pitchers that went the full year with the Spudders last season, has asked for more time before reporting. Williams stated that he had a troublesome crop of boils and would like to get rid of them before he reported in camp. This has been granted.

DISTEL ON WAY DOWN IN HIS NEW LIZZIE

Word has been received from Geo. Distel that he left his home in Madison, Ind., Monday and is driving through in his new lizzie. Distel is expected into camp the latter part of this week. The hearing from Distel will leave but three more infielders to report. Defate, Dorman, and Kearns are yet to be heard from. Dorman is the only one of these yet to sign a contract. Mail has already arrived in Wichita Falls for Defate, and is supposed he is on the way to camp.

BRAINARD LOSES TWO OVER THE OUTER WALL

Boss Brainard tossed out a set of brand new baseballs in the afternoon workout and promptly lost four of them over the left field wall. Of the four lost, Brainard was responsible for two. Pete Lapan was the first Spudder to pound one over the wall and he was closely followed by Ping Bodie.

Brainard not only lost a pair of the balls, but he was lining the old apple hard.

CARAWAY SHOWS THE RAIL BIRDS SOMETHING

Lefty Caraway, the tall Spudder portside artist, was limbering up a bit Monday and took turns on the hill in both of the daily practice sessions. Caraway pitches with ease and seems to have good control. He was putting the ball down the alley Monday with a zip and had many of the railbirds chattering on the way he was working.

FREDDIE BOONE HITS 'EM HARD AND FREQUENT

Freddie Boone, last year mascot and general helper, is taking his regular turn at the bat and is hitting well. Freddie has also been giving railbirds a treat on the fielding end of the game. Fred worked at short in the infield workout Monday afternoon and did some nice fielding at that position.

Last year in the Sunday school league he was one of the best fielders in the loop, and did fairly well with the willow. He also got a taste of stopping hot ones when he caught one with the middle of his back in the batting practice.

N. Y. Banker Drinks Poison by Mistake

With the BROWN in the SOUTH

By NORMAN E. BROWN

PUNTA GLORDA, Fla., March 8.—An interesting experiment is under way in the Baltimore Orioles' camp here. Seeking a pitcher to take the place of Tommy Thomas, who was sent to the big show, Jack Dunn has decided to covert Sewell Dixon from an outfielder to a pitcher.

Dixon is a brilliant young chap, a good fielder and a good base runner. He cannot hit very well. Dunn believes he can make a hurler of the lad, who throws 'em righthanded.

Lots of pitchers have been made into outfielders, but it doesn't often happen the other way around.

Hope For Cardinals.

Baseball men are trying to figure just what part Bill Killefer may play in upsetting the National league dope the coming season. Bill, you know, was given the gate by the Cubs last season. In the winter he signed as coach and first aide to Manager Hornsby of the Cardinals.

Killefer's strong point always has been his ability to handle pitchers. He gave the Cubs brilliant pitching, only to see his efforts rendered null and void by weaknesses elsewhere, especially in the infield.

Bill, for one thing, may be able to do more with Aldan Sothoron than anyone else. Sothoron will be aided also by the introduction (in the open) of resin, which will permit the much-shunted hurler to use a trick ball much like his old paraffine one.

Killefer developed Vic Keen, ex-Cub, traded to the Cardinals last year, and knows how to get the most out of him.

It may be that better pitching will turn the trick for the diligent Cardinals. If it does due credit should fall on Bill Killefer's shoulders. Hornsby is the type who will give that credit where it is due.

When Managers Are Most Useful.

And speaking of Hornsby. Someone remarked the other day in a fanning bee that Fred Clarke's greatest work as a manager of the Pirates was done while he was playing the outfield in addition to piloting the team—that it was his presence and inspiration, more than anything else, that made the old Pirate machine a great one. And, by the same token, his ability as a manager decreased materially when he retired to the bench and tried to direct things from that position.

Which causes one to look far into the future and wonder if this will also be true of Cobb, Speaker, Sisler, Hornsby, Harris and Collins when they find old man Time beckoning them to give up their places in the line-up to younger men.

And if so, should it detract from their greatness?

Hardly.

Clarke ranks and always will rank by virtue of the success of his old machine as one of the game's great leaders. Cobb, Speaker and the others mentioned have already established themselves as great managers.

Fizzles and Owls Battle Three Over-Time Periods

The Grace Bears annexed the Independent basketball league title in Wichita Falls Monday night by disposing of the Reed Drug quintet 39 to 19 on the Grace M. E. court. Neal, Kollman and Arnold ran wild and had little trouble hitting the hoop for consistent scoring.

In the second game, the Fizzles emerged on top of the Owls by a 37 to 36 count only after three five-minute overtime periods had been played. Disoway and Haley for the Fizzles and Nesbit and McLarry for the Owls had a tough scoring battle all the way through.

Who Said Ruth Was Babe Size?

Central Press Photo

Despite reports that intensive winter training has made over Babe Ruth into a Venus de Milo mould, the Bambino doesn't look like it in this photo, showing him swatting out a homer in a practice game at the Yankee training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

24 CATS SHOW UP.

FORT WORTH, March 8.—(AP)—Twenty-four athletes, count em, 24, and no springs, no short weights, were on the job at Worth field Monday when the second week of training opened for the Fort Worth Panthers.

Twenty-three of the said athletes worked hard and perspired fluently under the keen eye of the twenty-fourth, Manager Jake Atz who loafed about smiling happily as he watched the most promising flock of rookies it has been his luck to survey in many springs. Of course, a promise in March may be a bad debt in August but several of the youngsters look better than Uncle Sam's I. O. U.

Monday was the first day out for Possum Moore, who looks like a baby blimp ready for flight; for Homer Ezzell, infielder obtained from the Boson Red Sox; for Milton Mullen, kid brother of the well-remembered Billy; for Paul Wachtel, Art Phelan, Stump Edington, Ziggy Sears.

The latest arrivals on the infield, Ezzell and Mullen, drew the spotlight when Atz hustled the infield through a peppery session to wind up the afternoon. Konetchy was at first; Palmer and Red Voltmer on second; Foss and Mullen at short; Ezzell and Miller at third.

MINERAL WELLS, March 8. (AP)—The Steers settled down to work again Monday after they had returned from Dallas where they easily defeated the Victory Wilson team Sunday in the first game of the year. Conley put his men through three hours of stiff exercise today and expressed himself as delighted with the manner in which rookies and veterans alike are coming around.

Joe Victor, who strained a ligament in his back Sunday, will be out of uniform several days. He has hurled enough already, however, to convince his colleagues that he can win a big percentage of the games for his team.

Darrough, Ahmon and Chalk are three youngsters who are demonstrating their stellar worth as hurlers. Ahmon has a fast ball, and the two southpaws possess wonderful control.

Slim Love celebrated his first day in camp by drycracking the orb out of the park.

Four receivers on hand are so good it will be hard to pick the best from the lot.

BUFFS MOVE OUTSIDE.

HOUSTON, March 8.—(AP)—The Buffalo candidates, augmented by a big bunch of infielders and outfielders, moved outdoors again today after three indoor sessions necessitated by the recent rains. Manager Joe Mathes sent his charges through a stiff two-hour workout.

Several new men made their first appearance at West End playing field, Felix Vigare, drafted from the Piedmont league and the only candidate for third base since Boggess has been sold, was watched carefully by the rail birds.

Other infield recruits present were Aubrey Speer, a former Trinity University player and McAdams, a Conroe semi-pro.

Danny Bloxsom, the Rice star and slugger, who made such a favorable impression at the close of the last campaign, was batting he ball with resounding wallops. Bloxsom has always been considered a tremendous hitter, both in college and local sandlot circles, and if his .300 mark in two weeks competition in the Texas league last September is a criterion, then Danny apparently can hit class A curving as well.

Gene Bailey, whose normal posiion is in the outfield, but who can play any infield position, was another new comer to the Buff pasture.

Red Hatch, a first baseman, who made a great reputation in California semi-pro circles and George Watkins who was with the club for a while last season were in uniform. Joe Burns, catcher, reported Sunday.

Johnny Kane, the spark-plug of the Buff infield, arrived here tonight and is expected to be in uniform tomorrow. Del Gainer, the other veteran infielder on the squad, will probably not be in camp until next week.

150 Brides-to-Be Arrive on Steamer

HALIFAX, N. S., March 8.—(AP)—One hundred and fifty brides-to-be are on board the Anchor liner Cameronia bound for New York to make glad the hearts of an equal number of young men. In coming across from Glasgow to Halifax the maidens had a rough voyage, the captain reporting having met with extremely tempestuous weather.

48 NUNS FORCED TO FLEE MEXICO

Indignities and Persecutions Of Officials Is Charged

LAREDO, Texas, March 8.—(AP)—Forced from their academy at Mexico City by indignities and persecutions of Mexican officials enforcing religious edicts, 48 Catholic nuns of the Order of Visitation Sisters, crossed to the United States here today on their way to the Mother House of the Order at Mobile, Ala. They proceeded this morning to Corpus Christi.

The nuns, arriving in a Pullman car in charge of Mother Superior Semple, said intolerable restrictions had been imposed on them, including a rule forbidding the nun dress habit. Their furniture was thrown into the street after an order last Thursday against use of their own building, and conducts of their religion, Mother Superior Semple said.

Nuns were ordered out of the building while Mexicans in the streets, made off with their furniture.

Discarding their habits and donning plain clothing, the party left Mexico City Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Mother Semple said her appeal to the American embassy was met with the reply that the situation was purely domestic and not within the embassy's jurisdiction.

Forty-two of the nuns are Mexicans, four are Americans and two are Cuban. Mother Semple, superioress of the Visitation Academy, located in a Mexico City suburb, is a native of Mobile, Ala.

This is the fourth time the nuns have been forced from this institution. The first ejection was at the hands of Zapatistas during their revolution, then twice by Carranzaistas.

The Visitation Academy was founded in 1898 by Bishop Edward P. Allen of Mobile.

United States immigration authorities gave the refugee party every assistance possible this morning, allowing passage to this sale within twenty minutes. The nuns again donned their habits here. They will be met this afternoon on their arrival at Corpus Christi by Bishop Emanuel Ledvina and other members of the clergy and laity.

TERRELL ANNOUNCES FOR RE-ELECTION TO OFFICE.

AUSTIN, March 8.—(AP)—Sam Houston Terrell, comptroller, today announced for re-election to a second term as state comptroller. He said that during the 1924 campaign he made the race on his ability and qualifications to give the state a real business administration.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—(AP)—The cotton market today was rather quieter than it has been of late. The price trend was downward nearly all day, although there was a brisk rally near the close on covering by near month shorts which caused the market to recover a good part of the earlier decline. In sympathy with poor cables, the market opened 11 to 14 points down and gradually eased off during the morning and wellinto theafternoon owing to the good weather in the belt and prospects for favorable conditions to continue. An unsatisfactory demand for spots was a further cause for the easier tone. At the lowest of the afternoon prices were 22 to 27 points from the lows on covering by near month shorts. The close showed net losses for the day of 7 to 10 points.

At the start as Liverpool cables were much lower than due prices opened 11 to 14 points down and the early prices proved the highs for the great part of the session with March at 18.40, May at 17.90, July at 17.40 and October at 16.61. Prices continued on the down grade through the session until the beginning of the last half hour of trading and reached low points of 17.76 for May, 17.26 for July and 16.54 for October, or 22 to 27 points down from Saturday's close.

In the late trading March rallied to 18.45, May to 17.96, July to 17.44 and October to 16.69, or 15 to 20 points up from the lows. The market finally closed near the top, but still under the previous close.

Exports for the day totaled 15.766 bales.

NEW YORK FUTURES.

Dec.	17.00	16.83	16.97-17.00	17.05

Opening: March, 19.17; May, 18.60; July, 18.00; October, 17.23; December, 16.94.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—A break occurred in the cotton market today which carried prices off from 22 to 27 points under Saturday's close, the low point of 16.83 for December being equal to the previous low figure for the season. Partial recoveries followed near the close, however, and the market finally was steady at a net loss of 7 to 10 points.

The opening was easy and 9 to 14 points lower. There was considerable pressure from the south, commission houses, Wall Street and hedging interests, partly brought about by fear of labor troubles in England and the unsatisfactory political situation in France. Spot houses sold May and local traders operated for a decline influenced by bearish reports from southern spot markets and an absence of demand for export account.

The trend of prices was steadily downward throughout the greater part of the day, May selling off to 18.46 and October to 17.16 at the lowest levels of the session. It was not until the last half hour that short interests influenced by the sharp rally in stocks began to replace sales made earlier in the day with the result that prices had a strong upturn to 18.66 for May and 17.32 for October. The close was only a few points under best levels of the day.

Southern reports not only complained about a lack of spot demand throughout the belt, but indicated very favorable weather for farm work with everything pointing to an acreage almost if not fully as large as last year. While local sentiment seemed to be still mostly favorable to lower prices, in some quarters an opinion was expressed that new crop levels were not far from discounting the known bear factors. Probably some of the buying which occurred near the close was due to this view of the situation, although most of it naturally was credited to a covering movement.

Exports, 15,766 making 6,122,508 so far this season. Port receipts 21,390. U. S. port stocks 1,298,703.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—The stock market early today underwent the traditional "secondary reaction" which follows a break such as took place last week, but a spectacular rally set in during the last hour of trading and materially reduced or cancelled many of the early losses, closing quotations were irregular, a long list of active issues showing net losses of one to six points with a much smaller number of one to 8 1-2 points gains sprinkled through the list. Trading was rather quiet until the last hour when sales of about 425,000 shares brought the day's total to 1,655,400 shares.

New developments over the week-end were mixed in character. Publication of several favorable 1925 earnings reports, particularly by the New York Central railroad, the United States Rubber company and the Phillips Petroleum company was offset by an unexpected cut in Pennsylvania crude oil prices. Some uneasiness developed over the political crisis arising over the admission of Germany into the league of nations, and the renewed heaviness of French bonds and French exchange which, however, closed above their low levels of the day.

The credit situation continued relatively easy, call money renewing at 4½ per cent and then dropping to 4, despite the approach of the income tax date. Announcement that the treasury department would offer $500,000,000 long term bonds on a 3¾ per cent basis was generally regarded as an indication of easy money rates for some time to come.

High priced industrials and the Van Sweringen railroad shares led the late rally. General Electric rallied from 313½ to 329 where it was up 86 points on the day, and American Can from 299 to 309. "Nickel Plate" common, which had been hammered down over 11 points below last week's closing quotations to 146⅛ in the early trading, snapped back to 154⅝. Perre Marquette closed 1½ higher at 80¼, after fluctuating between 79¼ and 85, and Chesapeake and Ohio touched 128¼ and then eased off about a point after having sold as low as 124½.

Foundation company was one of the few stocks forced down below the lows established in last Wednesday's drastic reaction, falling to 102 and then bounding back to 107, where it was off six points on the day. Other conspicuous weak spots were American Brake Shoe and Foundry; Coca Cola; Gulf States Steel, which duplicated the year's low; McCrory stores "B"; National Cloak and Suit; Pullman; Tidewater Oil, preferred, which touched a new 1926 minimum at 96; United Fruit; U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which touched the lowest price since 1923, and Western Union.

U. S. Steel common sold down as low as 121⅛, but later rallied to 123¾ for a small fractional gain on the day. Good buying also was noted in General Motors, Hudson and Railway Steel Spring.

A rather thin market developed for some of the rail shares, Atlantic Coast Line dropping about six points to 216 and Delaware and Hudson 4¼ to 155¼.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. French francs got down to within a few points of the year's low of 3.54½ cents, but rallied to 3.60½, where they were practically unchanged from Saturday's closing rate. Demand sterling held steady around $4.85 7-16.

STOCK-A-DAY

The manufacture of brake shoes was the original business of the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company but the business has been so diversified that now brake shoes represent only 25 per cent of its business. It also makes railroad and mine car wheels and a variety of special steel castings for the automobile and other industries. The concern has absorbed many companies in similar lines and it owns, or controls through subsidiaries, plants in over thirty cities including some Canadian plants operated by the Dominion Brake Shoe Company, Ltd.

Capitalization consists of $9,538,500 outstanding in 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $100 par and 154,918 shares outstanding of no par value. The earnings of the concern have been sufficient to pay dividends without interruption since its inception in 1902. The present rate on the common is $6 per share annually being raised from $5 Dec. 31, 1925.

On Jan. 1, 1925, current assets exceeded current liabilities by over $8,000,000. Holdings of cash and government securities were more than current liabilities. There were no bank loans and no funded or mortgage debt. For the year ending Dec. 31, 1924, earnings were equal to $11.34 per comon share.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, March 8.—(AP)—Selling which developed after the United States visible supply figures were announced, led to a material set back in wheat prices today and pulled down the corn market as well as oats. Wheat closed unsettled 1¼c to 2c net lower, May (new) 1.58 to 1.58.., and July 1.38⅛ to 1.39¼. Corn finished at ⅜c to ⅛c net decline, oats ⅛c to ⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to 17c down.

Corn and oats were influenced largely by the action of wheat. An increase of the corn visible supply brought about some selling.

Provisions were responsive to lower quotations on hogs.

CHAPTER II.

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR, who looks like a flirt but isn't one, is engaged to marry RANDALL PHEPS. One afternoon he phones her at the library where she works and tells her to meet him to talk over a matter of great importance to both of them.

Sylvia waits for him in the rainy, wet park, for almost an hour before he comes. Then he tells her that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY, and wants to marry her. Dazed, Sylvia wanders around in the rain for hours before she goes home to the old house where she lives with her maiden AUNT AGONY, who has brought her up.

She tells her the news of the broken engagement and Aunt Agony admits that she has known for weeks that Ranny was calling on Fay, who lives just across the street; and she rejoices that Sylvia isn't going to marry him for, in her opinion, Ranny is weak and good-for-nothing.

She predicts that in a week or two Sylvia will have recovered from her heartbreak about Ranny and will be setting her cap for new suitors, among them PETER WILK.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The next morning when Sylvia awakened she felt as if a cloud were hanging over her. She lay with closed eyes for an instant, wondering what made her feel so unhappy and depressed. The whole world seemed as gray as the dull light that sifted in through the shutters of her bedroom.

Then suddenly she remembered.

Ranny had jilted her, thrown her down—Ranny, whose engagement ring still circled the third finger of her left hand.

She held it up and looked at it, twinkling and winking at her like a star in the half-light. With a pang she remembered how Ranny had kissed it when he put it on her finger last Thanksgiving night.

"Will you love me forever and ever, amen?" he had asked her solemnly, and just as solemnly she had promised that she would.

She had been so sure of him then. She had been so sure of him all along, right up until yesterday afternoon. So blinded she had been by the radiance of her Fool's Paradise that she hadn't seen what was going on right under her nose—hadn't seen that he was falling in love with Fay and that he had fallen out of love with herself!

The door of the room opened stealthily and Aunt Agony's long, straight face and one lynx eye appeared in the crack.

"Asleep?" she whispered.

Sylvia shook her head in reply. "No, wide awake," she answered, evenly.

"Fay Shirley's on the phone. What shall I tell her?" Aunt Agony asked, opening the door wide and stepping inside the room. "You don't want to talk to her, do you?"

Sylvia shook her head once more. "No—tell her I have a sore throat and am staying in bed this morning," she said. It was the truth, as far as that went. For Sylvia's throat really was sore and scratchy and her head ached with the cold she had caught yesterday sitting out in the rain waiting for Ranny to come.

"Phone Miss Hope, too, will you please, Aunt Agony?" she called a second later as her aunt started down the stairs, "and tell her I won't be able to come down to the library today."

She felt that she just couldn't face Miss Hope today after what she had told her yesterday, that she was going to be married in June.

"Oh, misery!" she groaned to herself as she got slowly and painfully out of bed a few minutes later and went into the bathroom to turn on the hot water in the old tin tub.

While it was filling she cleaned Ranny's ring with an old toothbrush dipped in alcohol and packed it neatly away in a little pasteboard box she found in the spare bedroom.

Aunt Agony had never been known to throw anything away, and the spare bedroom was a catchall for old boxes, wrapping paper and string of every kind and color.

"Waste not, want not!" was one of Aunt Agony's favorite sayings. She was given to proverbs and had at least one to fit every occasion.

When Sylvia, fresh and fragrant and starry-eyed from her bath, went down to breakfast, she found her aunt buried in the morning paper. She was so intent upon whatever she was reading that she did not hear her niece come into the room.

Sylvia stood in the doorway, looking around her at the familiar old room with its wood fire and the high, narrow windows that commanded a view of Bleak street, dismal in the rain.

For all their poverty they lived well, these two lone women. Aunt Agony was a famous housekeeper and she could make a dollar go a very long way. She had made the coffee and the hot rolls for breakfast, but she was as neat as a new pin in her gray cotton dress with its white collar and cuffs.

The mended lace curtains were like snow, the silver on the sideboard shone like glass, and there was a bowl of paper white narcissuses on the breakfast table. The Chinese laundry man had made Aunt Agony a present of the bulbs, weeks ago.

"Hot rolls!" cried Sylvia as she sat down and lifted the napkin from her plate, "how nice" She knew that Aunt Agony had made them especially for her.

Aunt Agony jumped. "Heavens to Betsy, girl! I didn't hear you come in" She ducked her gray head into the paper again.

Sylvia broke off a piece of the fluffy roll and buttered it. Then she looked at it and shuddered. She wondered if she would ever feel like eating again.

She forced herself to eat all of the roll and to drink a cup of coffee.

"Listen to this," Aunt Agony said, raising the paper and holding it in front of her like a shield. "Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shirley of Bleak street announce the engagement of their daughter, Fay, to Mr. Randall Phelps. The wedding will be an event of early June."

She lowered the paper and looked across the table at Sylvia's white face and lowered eyelids. "Well, they aren't wasting any time, are they?" she asked. "June's only nine weeks away—'Marry in haste and repent at leasure!' That's what I say!"

Sylvia wasn't listening to her. She was thinking that Fay, or Fay's mother, must have telephoned that item to the newspaper last night, last night while she was wandering around in the rain and the wind like a lost soul. Ranny must have gone straight to them when she left him, with the news that he was free—free to marry Fay!

She put her head down between her hands, holding the temples tight with her palms. And just as Aunt Agony was going to beg her not to cry again, she began to laugh.

Aunt Agony's thin hand came down upon the table with a smart smack.

"Now don't start having hysterics again!" she snapped, "or I'll send for Dr. Buzzard, sure as death!"

Sylvia went on laughing. "I'm not having hysterics!" she said, wildly. "I was just thinking of that line of Kiplings'—'I learned about women from her'—I've learned about men from Ranny, I guess. They're all alike—they kiss and ride away—"

Aunt Agony nodded. "They certainly do, but that's no reason for laughing yourself sick that I can see!" she said, severely, "and anyway, the smart thing is not to kiss 'em. Then they won't ride away quite so fast and, as I've always told you, Sylvy, a nice girl never kisses any man but the one she marries!"

Her niece raised her deep violet eyes and gave her a look that said paragraphs.

"Then there aren't any nice girls any more, Aunt," she answered, quietly. "You brought me up to be a nice girl, and I've never let any man but Ranny kiss me, ever! And do you know what he said to me yesterday afternoon?—that I was too good for him. That's why he's off me! I'm too good for him!"

"Humph, and so you are!" agreed Aunt Agony, her eyes snapping. "He isn't worth the powder to blow him up!"

Sylvia went on: "And men don't like 'nice' girls any more. They want what Ranny calls 'red hot mammas'."

Aunt Agony threw up her hands in protest. "I don't like to hear you use words like that, Sylvy!" she said. "You can be a lady no matter what the rest of the girls do—"

"Oh, can I?" Sylvia asked, and her silver laugh rippled out again, scornfully, "well, I'm not going to be any more! I'm going to have the wildest time I can have. I'm going to kick the roof off the sky; I'll show Ranny Phelps whether I'm too good for him or not. You keep your eye on me and you'll see stars!"

She shoved back her plate on the table and stood up. Her cheeks were scarlet and her eyes blazed.

"Here comes Fay now!" she cried, and her voice was strained with excitement. "Now for goodness sake, Aunt Agony, don't let her know that we feel badly about Ranny."

Aunt Agony snorted. "Feel badly?" she asked. "Why, I'm tickled to death that they're going to marry each other! It would be a shame to spoil two houses."

And she got up, straightened her back, squared her shoulders and marched to the door to let Fay in.

She came into the dining room slowly, with her big green eyes fixed on Sylvia with fear and doubt written plainly in them. "Darling," she began, "you aren't going to let this spoil our friendship, are you?"

Sylvia stood very still, holding onto the edge of the table with both of her hansd. Finally she shook her head while she looked Fay over from head to feet as if she had never seen her before. She was trying to see her as she looked to Randall Phelps.

Fay was not pretty. She was too tall and thin, for one thing. And her hair was too red, for another. But there was a dash about her, an air of sparkling recklessness that more than made up for the beauty she lacked. Men were crazy about her.

When she came into a room you forgot all about the pretty girls in it. For she had a certain crackling vitality that drew all eyes.

This morning she seemed to fairly blaze with life in spite of the woebegone look on her face as she met Sylvia's eyes. She sank down into the chair that Aunt Agony had left empty.

"Listen, Sweetie Peach, I know you ought to hate me for falling for Ranny," she said, "but you couldn't begin to hate me like I hate myself!"

She clasped her freckled hands on the table and it was then that Sylvia saw that she was wearing a new engagement ring—a plain one of platinum set with a square, table-cut diamond—Ranny's gift, no doubt.

It was not the first engagement ring that had decorated that slim, freckled hand, not by any means. Fay had been engaged several times before in her short and peppy life, both officially and unofficially.

All winter she had worn a betrothal diamond given her by that fat and prosperous young business man of our town, Eddie Carter. She had broken off with him only a month before.

"Honey," she was saying in her husky voice, and she reached across the little table and took one of Sylvia's cold hands in hers. "Honey, I give you my word I never meant to take Ran away from you. I just don't know how we happened to get in so deep. I suppose we were just meant for each other!"

At that Sylvia gave a low, little laugh. She had heard Fay say just that very thing about men before when she was having love affairs with them. "We were just meant for each other, I guess!" While Fay's affairs lasted they were as intense as the Fiery Furnace. But they seldom lasted long.

"You know Ranny and I never gave a darn about each other all the years we've been friends," she went on, "until one night about five weeks ago. I'd been over at the library for some books—remember?"

Sylvia nodded. She remembered that evening perfectly. She had worked late and Ranny had promised to take her home, but he failed to do it. She had walked home alone.

"Please don't tell me about it, though, Fay," she begged. "I want you to have Ranny, if you love him. But don't ask me to listen to you tell me about—you and him—please!"

"No, and you don't have to listen to it, either!" came Aunt Agony's thin, high voice from the hall. She appeared in the doorway and stood there holding the morning mail in her hands.

"I think you'd better go home, you!" she said sharply to Fay, "and I'd a little rather you didn't come over here any more—now get!"

Fay "got."

How does Sylvia face the world after being jilted by Randall Phelps? Will she continue to be "too good" for the man she loves and all other men? Or will she keep her threat to Aunt Agony to enjoy life and the depths of heartless flirtation?

And how about Fay Shirley, the girl who takes a man from her friend, a girl who picks lovers carelessly, and as carelessly lets them go? In the next installment Sylvia discovers whether a man who jilts a girl is worth worrying about and she begins to wonder whether, after all, there is not a different sort of man.

U. S. Plans Drive On Wine and Beer

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Confident that the government will obtain the upper hand on the sources of bootleg liquor, Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, today began mapping out a campaign against wine and beer through the establishment of a mobile squad to give particular attention to those beverages.

The machinery to be set up will be in addition to that announced last week aimed at checking the illicit diversion of industrial alcohol through a separate enforcement squad.

"Special Edition" Of Follies Here Tuesday, March 16

The "Greenwich Village Follies," acclaimed and accepted as the finest type of revue entertainment to be seen in America, comes to the Palace theatre, March 16.

This is an especially assembled edition of the "Greenwich Village Follies," and is presented by A. L. Jones and Morris Green, who have been producing one of these notable girl-and-music shows each year for the past seven years.

John Murray Anderson devised and staged the special edition of the "Follies" to be seen here and he has embodied into it everything that the heart of a revue lover could wish. There are costumes of undreamed of beauty, statuesque girls that seem like ornate creatures from some gorgeous planet, then there are girls so tiny and nimble that one wonders if John Murray Anderson did not draw upon another planet for his kindergarten of girls.

There are famous artists' models chosen from Greenwich Village after a big beauty contest of Bohemia's famous artists' models.

In cast the "Follies" is a veritable treat. Raymond Hitchcock, one of America's most beloved comedians, heads the list of notables, with Handers and Millis, a rare comedy team also featured, and a long list of feminine celebrities, including Claire Devine, Evelyn Hoey, Myrtle Pierce, Audrey Ridgeway, Lucille Peterson, Josephine Fontaine and others.

Paul F. Stricker, representative of the National Safety Council, spoke before the local Saftey Council last night on "Community Safety Councils."

A total of $3,000,000,000 is lost annually due to accidents in the United States, he pointed out. Due to unprecedented boom conditions now existing in Texas and the south, it is necessary that the safety problem be kept before the people. "Unless this is done, the accident problem will break loose and get out of control," Mr. Stricker declared.

To this end, there has been formed a Texas Council of Safety to help both large and small communities. This department has been organized and is now functioning in line with the National Safety Council.

Mr. Stricker uregd the local council to bring out especially the home safety and fire prevention safety phases of community safety work.

President J. D. Bright presided at the meeting and has called for a safe driver's school of instruction for the near future. This will apply to both private owners of vehicles and public delivery trucks.

Mr. Stricker congratulated the local council on the pioneer work already done and urged that the good work be kept up.

RUSSELL LEANS ON LAW POINT

Extent of His Punishment May Depend Upon The Court's Ruling

On a lone point at law may hang the extent of the penalty which R. J. (Jack) Russell must pay for highway robbery in connection with his daring jailbreak here last January, it developed upon adjournment of the eighty-ninth district court Monday afternoon.

Russell is on trial for robbery of his jailer, Charlie Wheat, of a pistol valued at $25, and it was the effort of defense counsel, Eugene Mathis, Monday to confine his trial to that charge. The state, however, held other views and at the close of the day's session was arguing before Judge Martin that the mere robbery of Wheat's gun was a trivial offense in the other details of the jailbreak could not be presented also. The state lawyers referred here to testimony of Wade Taylor, deputy constable, and Red Mumford, deputy sheriff, who were also robbed by Russell incident to the jailbreak. The defense contended that inasmuch as there were separate indictments against Russell in connection with those two holdups testimony relative to them was not pertinent in the trial on the charge of robbing Wheat.

To Argue Further.

In adjourning court for the day, Judge Martin stated that he would hear further argument when court reconvenes this morning before making a decision one way or the other as to just whether testimony as to what Russell did after he left his cell will be allowed in the trial.

Practically all of Monday was spent in the selection of jurors. The special venire of 100 men was exhausted shortly after noon and the regular panel of the week was resorted to to fill out the twelve men.

Russell was arraigned and plead guilty. In response to a question propounded by Judge Martin as to just what name he wanted to be tried under so that the "alias" in the indictment might be discarded, Russell answered, "R. J. Russell." Russell's real name is understood to be Phillip Keesee.

Wheat on Stand.

Immediately after the jury was sworn in Charlie Wheat, night county jailer, was put on the stand. He told how, as he opened the door to Russell's cell that night, Russell had met him with a gun, forced him into a cell, and locked him there after relieving him of his pistol. Russell did not rob him of two rather expensive watches in his vest, however, the witness testified.

How much of today the completion of the trial will consume depends entirely on the decision Judge Martin makes on the effort of the state to introduce testimony other than of Wheat, the jailer. Should this be denied it is probable that both sides will rest their case, and counsel's argument started.

The twelve jurors are: H. D. Biles, C. R. Hays, J. M. Morrison, A. L. Bridges, J. H. Mix, E. Miss, E. J. Perkins, C. O. Roberts, W. E. Gentry, W. R. Hyer, J. A. Opry and C. A. Fleming.

"Be Right With God," Is Everett's Message Before M. E. Men's Club of City

Dallas Business Man Is Speaker At Banquet Held Here

"They keynote of character is 'Be right with God'," W. C. Everett of Dallas told members of the Methodist Men's club of the First Methodist church, south, last night when he made an interesting review of the story of Joseph, making application of his life to the trend of modern times. First as a boy, a dreamer of dreams, he briefly reviewed the story and then as a business man, he told how Joseph had saved nations.

"Business men are behind every good movement; they are the men who are providing the worthwhile things and making it possible for the church to succeed. In the United States, business and commerce are coming into their own, and the finest class is to be found in the business men."

Dreams Play a Part.

"Dreamers play a wonderful part in the world," and Joseph's life in the Egyptian prison was related, how he interpreted the dreams, which later brought him into favor with the ruler of the land. "The result was," Mr. Everett said, "he probably saved the life of a whole nation." Out of it came a race of business men.

"There is not a commercial transaction but what a Jew has had something to do with it, and his financial genius is to be reckoned with."

The United States is the wealthiest nation of the world and the most wasteful, wasteful of time, by crime, by fire, by wrongdoing, by war; one of the greatest wastes in the world is the choosing of the wrong occupation. How Joseph built up a great reserve, a reserve of character and business ability, was used to illustrate his point in the thought the speaker gave to the assembly. He urged men to remember the kindnesses done them by others, and to serve their fellowmen.

Is Dallas Builder.

Mr. Everett is president of the Empire Building and Loan association of Dallas; he is one of the organizers of the Bonehead club and is one of the He was for many years manager of the Methodist Publishing House of that city.

A group of numbers was played by the Sunday school orchestra during the evening, under the direction of E. F. Bohmfalk. A quartet composed of Misses Kathryn Sullivan, Mildred Martin and Messrs. Baldwin Montgomery and Paul Rutledge sang a group of songs with piano accompaniment by J. S. Pitman. R. W. H. McCulloch as Professor Iglo Gandi performed a number of sleight of hand tricks much to the amusement of the club.

W. B. Hamilton presided as toastmaster. He announced that final plans for the new church building are expected to be completed by March 20 and that the contract for the new building would be let soon afterward.

FAIR, MARKETS UP BEFORE C.-C.

Important Meeting Called For 10 o'Clock This Morning

Plans for a campaign to raise $100,000 for the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association will be discussed in detail Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at a joint meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce and a committee from the fair association. The meeting is called by President J. T. Mytinger of the chamber of commerce and every member of the directorate as well as every member of the fair association committee is urged to attend.

Another matter of vital importance to be considered Tuesday morning at the meeting, will be the discussion of plans for the formation of a corporation for the marketing of farm products from the irrigated valley. It is proposed to organize this corporation with a capital stock of $10,000, much of which has already been subscribed. Among those who have subscribed for the stock are: Blair-Maupin Grocery Company, Wichita Falls Produce company, the Witherspoon Produce company, the Peoples Ice company, and Solon Downing. Plans for the marketing organization were discussed in detail at a meeting of the chamber of commerce committee yesterday afternoon. This committee is composed of M. A. The fair association indebtedness is approximately $83,000. Of this amount $65,000 is for the purchase price of the grounds and the buildings. Another item is $8,000 interest and the remainder, approximately $10,000 is the net loss sustained by the fair association in maintaining the fair for the past four years.

NEW RULE ON SCHOOL VOTES

Candidates Are Required To File Petitions With County Judge

Those wishing to make the race for trustees in the common school districts of the county must file their name with County Judge B. D. Sartin on or before Wednesday, March 27, it is announced. This formality is required by the new state law which decrees that ballots for the school trustee elections must be printed rather than written out in the voter's script as formerly, and that names must be turned in as early as 10 days prior to the election in order to secure a place on the ballot. As an alternative to the candidate actually filing his own name others may present a petition to have his name on the ballot, this petition to contain as many as five names of qualified voters of the district.

The annual election will be held the first Saturday in April or April 3. Of 24 common school districts in the county some will elect one trustee, some two and some three. Trustees thus elected serve two years.
