Hinojosa Named Rockport Police Chief

Joe Hinojosa, Rockport's acting police chief since April 1, has been named to fill the post on full-time basis.

Hinojosa's appointment to the position came during Tuesday's, May 26, meeting of the Rockport city council as the result of a May 17 workshop session of the council during which some 20 applications for the post were reviewed.

Alderman Burt Mills made the motion to appoint Hinojosa to the police chief's post. The motion was seconded by Alderman W.B. Allen and approved by a 4-0 vote of the council.

Following his appointment, the new city police chief was asked to begin "looking for" someone to fill the police lieutenant's position on the Rockport force.

Hinojosa, 34, has been with the Rockport police department for nine years, coming here from Ingleside where he worked for the Ingleside PD for about two years. He's a native of the area, having been born in Taft.

Eight of his nine years with the Rockport force have been as second in command of the Rockport PD, serving as sergeant, lieutenant and captain "under a pretty good man — Chief (James) Craig-mile.

Joe Hinojosa

Hinojosa served as Rockport's acting police chief in 1973 and was asked to turn in his resume for the chief's position at that time "but I didn't feel I was ready for it."

He was named acting police chief again this past March to fill the vacancy created by Craigmile's resignation.

"I love law enforcement," Hinojosa said. "I decided to make it my career when I started at

"I look at myself as a public servant," he added.

Hinojosa and his wife, Vicky, have been married two years. The couple have no children.

Sewer Line Service Report Sparks Debate

By Pat Blair

A report by Rockport's city engineer on a pressure line north of the city sparked a debate on who should be allowed to tie onto the line.

Council members in Tuesday night's, May 26, city council session seemed to agree that a meeting on the matter was in order but no date was set.

In other action during the three-hour meeting, the council denied — on the recommendation of the city planning and zoning commission — rezoning requests from the Aransas County Navigation District and Donald Kelley and named Rachel Garcia to fill a vacancy on the P&Z board.

And in action relating to the pressure line study, a request by Oliver Hensler for permission to tie onto the line was retabled pending additional study.

Hensler is asking the tie-on for proposed development on the property on which Oak Shore Inn is presently located.

Gene Urban, representing Urban Engineer of Corpus Christi, Rockport's city engineering firm, reported in Tuesday's meeting on a six-inch pressure line that presently serves the Racquet Club north of Rockport on Highway 35.

The line was originally privately owned and was purchased by Rockport some years ago under an agreement that anyone wanting to tie onto the line would be allowed to do so provided there were connections available and the line's capacity had not been reached.

The city has already approved requests for more than 400 connections to the line although City Secretary Herman Johnson pointed out that these are "commitments" — none of the developers involved have actually tied onto the line at this time.

Urban Tuesday night told the council that a lift station is needed to serve the area in question before anyone is allowed to tie onto the system.

Subsequently, however, he told the council that the line could be utilized without a lift station if arrangements were made for off-peak pumping of sewage. If off-peak pumping was utilized, Urban said, the line "could handle about 1,000 persons."

Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. argued that no one outside Rockport's "area of responsibility" — inside the city or in the city's extra-territorial jurisdiction — should be allowed to tie onto city sanitary sewer lines.

"I am scared we are fast reaching our present capacity at the existing (sanitary sewage treatment) plant," Falk said. "I am vitally concerned that we protect (See TWO, Page 8)

County Pays For 'Herald' Damages

A Toast of the Coast Herald van was alleged to have damaged the lawn of a residence near FM 1781 and the damage was paid for with county funds, according to County Commissioner W.B. "Pete" Sanders.

The incident occurred during a chase involving local law officials and a male subject fleeing, at a high rate of speed, in a late model car. The subject left his car and fled through several lawns into the brush and was followed by authorities.

Damage to the lawns was in the form of deep ruts left by vehicles. It was presumed to have been done by county and city police cars, and was therefore repaired under Sanders' supervision at county cost.

The ruts were filled with sand, and the commissioner, when asked later, was unable to give an exact estimate of the cost of repair.

Sanders was later told by a reserve deputy some of the damage was done by the Herald's van when involved in the chase. The commissioner brought the matter up at the regular meeting of the County Commissioners Court on Wednesday, May 27.

"According to my source," said Sanders, "the worst damage was done by the Herald van. The county people ran into bar ditches and right up to the edge of the property, but that van ran through one lawn and into another person's property."

No decision has yet been made as to whether the Herald will be asked to make reparations to the county, said County Judge John Wendell on Thursday, May 28.

"They're going to have a hard time proving it's him unless they talk to an officer," said Wendell. The people involved should repair them — I don't care if they are policemen or not, they shouldn't go in and tear up private property."

IS SOUTH TEXAS AT last on a secure road to becoming a Mexican-American fiefdom, eventually to be headed by Carlos Truan? It is not difficult to visualize a super Duval County in the offing.

There is however a pill in the ointment. Carlos will have to joist with other Hispanic would-be leaders. Even so, he has won the first inning in his ill-disguised effort to make Spanish a second national language; in South Texas, the number one language.

Yes, Carlos was a winner in Austin when he won in his effort to have Spanish taught through the sixth grade. Sure, it wasn't all he wanted.

Remember he first sought to carry instruction in Spanish all the way through high school. But have no fear, he'll get that in due course.

Meanwhile his current success means that Hispanics in increasing numbers will not bother to learn English and so be deprived of the opportunity to enter the mainstream. Precisely what Carlos wants. Ere long he fancies himself as the duke and dictator of a region oarger and richer than the past Duke of Duval ever dreamed of.

Somewhere, somehow, from out there between the Colorado River and the Mexican border there must be someone of Hispanic origin who will rise up and tell his people: "See here, we are Americans, we don't care to be hyphenated Americans. We're not Hispanics, not Latinos, not Chicanos — we're just Americans like those whose roots began in France, Italy, Germany, Ireland."

Name the people from every land on the planet and all the languages they once spoke. The man or woman who does this is going to make Carlos awfully, awfully mad. Will it ever happen though?

PERHAPS, BECAUSE I am a sailor of sorts, one of the most fascinating people of this century is Sir Francis Chichester. He passed from this vale of tears nearly a decade ago and although in his time he was often in the news, I suspect that many readers have never heard of him — at least forgotten him.

So briefly, he created quite a swath in aviation circles in the late 1920s and then, years later when he was ill and in his middle 50s he circumnavigated the globe under sail in his Gipsy Moth IV.

At the age of 70 he made a second attempt to win the OSTAR, the single-handed race from England to the United States.

From among his books there is an opening paragraph that I have long thought to be one of the most fascinating I have ever read. It hangs above me on the wall of my den as I write. I spoke of it so often that one of the best friends of my lifetime had it copied in old English lettering and framed.

"I love this life, this great exciting, absorbing, intriguing, puzzling, adventurous life. But I am 69 in September, 1971, before this book is published, I shall be 70 and my life-span is shortening. So for the past few years I have pondered time after time how I can use the remainder of this great gift of life to the full. The Buddha said that life was a gift which any man can take but none can give; I think it is wrong not to use such a gift to the utmost, wrong to bury it like an unused talent, wrong not to use it to the very end."

I leave the reader to his own estimate of those words, but I ponder as most men must — how well have I used my life "to the utmost?" For my own part the answer must be an old WWI toast: "Tonight, wine, women and song; tomorrow regrets and soda water."

ARE THE YEARS catching up with me, or am I right when I opine that life on this planet becomes less cheerful every day. Of course, neither you nor I are often affected personally by the deplorable circumstances in Lebanon, hijackings, the attempted murder of President Reagan and the Pope.

Is it crass to ponder: who next?

No can many of us comprehend the rash of suicides in Ireland. From this distance most of us assume that Ireland is an unhappy, war-torn land where it is unsafe to be on the streets. True, but even so it remains that the fanatics, Roman Catholic and Protestant, represent a very small portion of the people. But amongst all factions, fanatics, and otherwise, there exists a common hatred of the British, and that is indeed a tragic circumstance because were the British troops to depart Northern Ireland there would be a blood bath of almost unimaginable proportions.

The British Empire now belongs to the past and I more than suspect that Britain would like nothing better than to see an end to its obligations on the Emerald Isle. As a consequence England's troops remain, attempting — often futilely it seems — to maintain order.

Perhaps their show is not a good one, but any sane and rational person must be obliged to acknowledge that they serve to protect even those who rue their presence. —ahab

Yours is the best paper in these parts!

Since our last subscription (6-80) we met Mr. Paul Jackson, built a house on Key Allegro, went to SeaFair, ate, shopped and fell more in love with our future home.

Keep up the good work. We did miss the recipes this year at Christmas tho.

Dear Mr. Carter:

As Commissioner of Agriculture of a state which is second in the nation in food production and fourth in exports, I am asking your support and advice on how this Department can best reach readers of THE PILOT to help create a public awareness of just how fragile this vital life-support system really is.

One of my most difficult jobs is obtaining public recognition and help for that three percent of farmers and ranchers who feed and clothe the other 97 percent of our population. Most of our citizens are two and three generations removed from the land and spend only 14 percent of their disposable income for food, as compared with 23 to 85 percent in much of the rest of the world. Some 41 U.S. Congressmen do not have a single farmer or rancher in their districts. Yet the voting public and Congress exert pressures and create legislation which vitally affect the productive capacity of Texas and the nation.

It is a difficult point to get across — that agriculture needs the support of every citizen and every lawmaker; that there is a "Hiroshima" every three days in the world from starvation while there are 238,000 new babies born every day.

Attached is an explanation of news data available from the Texas Department of Agriculture and a brief questionnaire for your consideration. We will be happy to write special articles of interest to your readers and provide photographs or other material that would be helpful. Our goal is to make "Texas No. 1 in production and profits." A response from you would be of great value to us in our effort to promote a climate of understanding between producers and consumers in our state.

Continue good wishes,
s/Reagan V. Brown
Commissioner of Agriculture

Dear Friend:

Since the beginning of 1981, I have been working closely with individuals representing more than 100 national, regional and state small business organizations to determine and distill the tax priorities of the small business community into a comprehensive tax package.

On May 7, I introduced the Bentsen Small Business Investment Act, designed to attack three basic problems facing the small business community: capital formation, capital retention and business continuity.

You know better than anyone the extent to which persistent inflation and costly financing have challenged the viability of small businesses.

If Congress is seriously to address our economy's larger problems, it must ensure that small business ventures have a good fighting chance since they are our nation's broadest economic strength.

My bill cannot provide an ultimate resolution to all the problems besetting small business, but, if enacted, it will make an important difference.

In short, the Bentsen Small Business Investment Act will:

- Increase the corporate surtax exemption from $100,000 to $150,000;
- Reduce corporate tax rates; for example, the 30 percent bracket, which now applies to taxable income of $50,000 - $75,000 a year, would be expanded to $50,000 - $100,000;
- Create a $300,000 estate tax exclusion;
- Increase the capital gains tax exclusion from 60 percent to 75 percent;
- Defer capital gains taxes from the sale of an asset owned by a small business if the gain is reinvested in another small business asset within 18 months;
- Encourage employee investments by eliminating a provision in the tax code which requires employees to pay taxes at ordinary tax rates on the difference between the public price for their company's stock and the special, low price they pay under stock option plans;
- Increase the amount of used equipment eligible for the investment tax credit from $100,000 to $250,000;
- Increase from 15 to 25 the number of shareholders allowed to participate in a subchapter S incorporation;
- Permit securities brokers to set up a loss reserve for trading losses in qualified small business stock issues.

There are about 12 million small businesses operating within the United States representing more than 97 percent of all American companies. They provide livelihoods for more than 100 million Americans and account for 45 percent of our GNP.

Although these statistics are dramatic, they cannot accurately reflect the true value of small businesses to our society. Small businesses — men and women are what make America run.

My bill also would limit to five years the time period required for individual record-keeping.

I hope I can count on your support as I continue working to push these measures through Congress.

Sincerely,
s/Lloyd Bentsen

TEXTBOOK RATINGS
(1981 Supplemental Adoption)

All of the basal readers adopted by Texas in November 1980 were inferior in that none of the series provided an intensive phonics (phonics first) method to teach reading. To rectify this problem, the Texas State Board of Education called for a supplemental adoption of intensive phonics programs to be used with the basal series, grades 1-3. The following were adopted and are available for local schools.

INTENSIVE PHONICS
Excellent: Addison - Wesley, Addison Wesley Reading Program, 1979; Excellent: Harper & Row, Lipincott's Basic Reading Program, 1981; Excellent:

Modern Curr. Press, Modern Curriculum Press Phonics Program, 81; Fair: Steck - Vaughn, Sounds, Words & Meanings, 1981; and Very Poor: Riverside, Discovering Phonics We Use, 1981.

The Addison-Wesley and Harper & Row programs are complete reading programs for grades 1-3, and can be used as basals. We recommend that one of these programs be selected.

The remaining programs are supplemental in nature, consisting primarily of workbooks which are vital for phonics instruction if the previously state-adopted basals are to be used.

The Riverside program would only amplify rather than alleviate the detrimental aspects of the basals. It is totally unsuitable.

Documentation Available: Comparison Chart, Chart Documentation (8 pages), Official presentations to State Textbook Comm. (Riverside & Steck-Vaughn only), Official detailed Bills of Particulars (Riverside and Steck-Vaughn only), Considerable evidence supporting the superiority of Intensive Phonics.

ACTION NEEDED

Regardless of which basal series was selected by Texas schools, it is inadequate in its phonics instruction in the early grades. Therefore, the State Board of Education has made available some excellent phonics materials for use by local schools. These materials are to be provided at state expense (ie, your tax dollars) and are available by request.

MAKE SURE YOUR SCHOOL BENEFITS FROM THIS AVAILABLE MATERIAL.

Contact your school and express your desire that an intensive phonics (phonics first) program be selected for use in your school. Local schools in Texas have until July 20 to place orders for the supplemental materials. As of this date, only 700+ districts have indicated they will select phonics programs. Thus, nearly 400 districts are not taking advantage of this opportunity. Is your school in one of these districts? IT IS NOT TOO LATE TO PARTICIPATE!

Note: This supplemental adoption is separate and apart from the regular adoption which is in process for Social Studies, Economics, Homeomaking, Dictionaries, etc.

We want to furnish you with whatever information you would like to receive. However, we operate on a contribution basis and need to receive a check to cover our costs for photocopying and mailing the documentation materials.

Angie Peres

I think it would be pretty neat. This town needs that sort of thing.

Bill McCabe

I think that's fine, it will develop the area and increase the tax base. More people will come into the area, that will stimulate the economy and will definitely increase the property value.

Clinton Hubbard

That's good. That's what they need. There isn't enough building around here now. There should be more people here.

Linda Graybial

I'm always for progress. Our town is small but we're always getting more people here and we should accommodate them. We can't stay little.

Bob Foster

I kind of like Rockport the way it is—a sleepy little town. It might bring in too many people. As far as the condominium part, people can always go to Port Aransas. Then again it might help the economy. I guess it goes both ways.

Report From Washington

By Bill Patman

Every 10 years the Texas Legislature has a special assignment that most importantly affects the kind of representation you will have in Congress for the next decade.

The legislators redraw the of congressional districts so that each congressman continues to represent an equal number of people.

The point is to insure that each citizen's vote and voice count as much as every other citizen's vote and voice in the nation's Capitol.

Here in the 14th District we are only 17,000 over the ideal population standard of 527,000, based on 1980's census figures. Only minor tinkering is necessary to make our district fit the standard.

With those slight adjustments we also would retain other characteristics that federal law and the federal courts demand. The "integrity of political subdivisions" should be preserved. Districts should be "compact." "Historical boundaries" should be maintained.

The reason these are required is so citizens with common interests may speak with one voice, and with some continuity of representation, if they wish it. But if the plan now being proposed by the Texas House becomes law, those who live on the central coast of Texas will lose a direct, united voice.

There will be two representatives in Congress who have a part of our area on the fringes of their districts but who will be paying far more attention to Houston and San Antonio. Rural citizens of South-Central Texas will not have a vote and a voice "equal in weight" to their counterparts in the cities.

What the House plan would do is throw out the congressional district we have now and replace it with two districts that would be dominated by voters in San Antonio and Houston.

Our district, No. 14, would run from Corpus Christi to Houston. That's not "compact". That's 235 miles. Dallas and Austin are closer to each other than that. San Antonio and Houston are closer to each other than that.

Nobody would ever dream of lumping those cities together in the same districts.

We on the central coastal plains of Texas have many common interests, including agriculture, fishing, shrimp-ing, oil and gas production with related petrochemical industries, environmental concerns such as hurricane protection and tourism.

Our water and navigation districts share common interests and problems. Our economy is closely inter-related and interdependent.

So we stand to lose much in this 11th-hour surprise attempt to shatter and raze our traditional community of counties.

I say "11th-hour surprise attempt," because for a long time the plan lay purposely concealed — I must say, I can see why! — in the secret recesses of a few selfishly conniving minds.

The House Committee held only one hearing in our district and that was in September of last year. No witness at any hearing — save for one former congressman — suggested or supported the House plan.

Indeed, before the House Committee finally unveiled its freakish scheme, no one dreamed anyone seriously would propose splitting Corpus Christi in two.

Never before has a major city been divided like this unless it was too big — like Dallas and Houston — to fit into one district. It just goes to show how far a few people in power will go to satisfy their undisclosed private goals — goals that, in this case, clearly conflict with the expressed needs and wants of the people who live in the district.

Fortunately, we don't have to put up with this. There is another plan pending in the Legislature, one drawn by a Senate committee. That committee saw no reason to hit us with a sledgehammer, so it left our district virtually intact.

Unlike the House committee, the Senate panel held hearings after the census figures became available in April, and after people were awakened to the important task that was taking place.

The Senate listened to what dozens of respected local leaders told them and followed the people's wishes by passing a reasonable plan. They did a good job, and now, we should support them. But we must hurry. Only a few days remain for a joint committee of senators and representatives to work out one plan acceptable to the entire Legislature.

If the House plan becomes law, there is a good chance the courts will throw it out anyway, on the ground that it violates nearly every standard and is just plain absurd. But we can't take that chance.

Besides, it would be a shame to suffer the uncertainty that would hang over those planning joint district enterprises and cooperative, multi-county projects, while we awaited the outcome of litigation that might take months and even years.

So we should kill the House plan right now and give it the burial it so richly deserves.

The way to do that is to send a wire or mailgram today to your state senator and your state representative, plus Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton, Senators Peyton McKnight and Tati Santiesteban, and Representatives Tim Von Dohlen and Bob Valles.

Lt. Gov. Hobby and the senators may all be reached at the same address: P.O. Box 12068, Capitol Station, Austin 78711. Speaker Clayton and the representatives all get their mail at P.O. Box 2910, Austin 78769.

Just tell them you oppose the House plan for redistricting on the coast, that you like the 14th district the way it is, and that you support the Senate plan.

For a few pennies you can directly affect the drawing of the congressional district that we are all going to have to live with for the next 10 years.

Volunteers Create Potential Disaster For County

By Ted Norman

Dozens of volunteer firemen speeding to the scene of an accident with red lights and sirens has the potential for a fatal disaster.

Many citizens and county officials including County Judge John Wendell have expressed a concern about the situation.

But Aransas County Chief Investigator Ricky McLeister says it's all "very necessary."

Wendell says that he gets calls all the time from concerned citizens about the problem. "I've had concern for several years and I'm afraid they overact in the excitement of the situation."

Wendell said that he believes someone should look into the situation. And he indicated that he wasn't sure if they were violating the law or not by using red lights and sirens.

Herman Johnson, Rockport City secretary, says the problem is also magnified by the fact that "everyone has a scanner" and he says that everyone is showing up at wrecks.

Johnson says there are 35 volunteer firemen plus more in the Lamar, Holiday Beach, Fulton and Copano areas.

Johnson says that there is not a city ordinance concerning the use of red lights and sirens by the volunteers and he says the city just enforces the state law.

Johnson says the problem with volunteers got so far out of hand that last year a volunteer took a fire truck to Seadrift for a ride.

Ricky McLeister, Aransas County Chief Investigator and president of the Aransas County Volunteer Medical Corps and captain of the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department, confirms that the city enforces the state laws relating to the use of red lights and sirens.

The Texas laws relating to uniform act regulating traffic on highways, V.C.S. 6701d article I subdivision 1 paragraph d says, "Authorized Emergency Vehicle" means vehicles of the fire department (fire patrol), police vehicles, public and private ambulances for which permits have been issued by the state Board of Health, emergency vehicles of municipal departments or public service corporations as are designated or authorized by the governing body of an incorporated city, private vehicles operated by volunteer firemen or certified Emergency Medical Service volunteers while answering a fire alarm or responding to a medical emergency.

McLeister says there are 35 volunteer firemen and he says 11 of them including himself have installed two-way radios in their vehicles at their own expense.

Asked about Judge Wendell's concern over the high speed of volunteers, plus the use of the red light and siren, as well as so many volunteers showing up on the scene of a wreck, McLeister approached the questions by painting a hypothetical scenario of a wreck at Highway 35 and 881.

McLeister says that the first thing that happens is some frantic person will call and say there is a major wreck at this location, the car is on fire and the driver is trapped inside.

"My first concern is that guy trapped in the car," says McLeister.

McLeister says the first thing he will do is dispatch a law officer to the scene.

"Now you have one car rolling to the scene with red light and siren," says McLeister.

He continues the scenario by saying, "I probably would be out patrolling in the county and when I hear the call I'm going to respond and head for the scene with red light and siren and now we have two vehicles on the road responding."

McLeister says because the caller said the driver is trapped in the car he will call for the Jaws of Life.

"Because Fulton is the center of the county we keep the Jaws of Life at the Fulton Beach Fire Department," he continued. With the Fulton Beach Fire Department responding there are now three vehicles on the road using red lights and sirens. "Also some Fulton Volunteers may respond in private vehicles to assist and we could have five or six vehicles responding."

McLeister says then the call goes out to the Aransas County Volunteer firemen because the car is reportedly on fire or because of the risk of fire from spilled gasoline.

"Most of the volunteers will go to the Rockport Fire Station and ride to the accident on the pumper truck, but if they are closer to the scene they will go directly to the accident and meet the truck there."

"Let's say that only half of the volunteers respond to the call. We would then have 20 or 25 vehicles on the road using red lights and sirens."

McLeister says that the Emergency Medical Service always responds with both ambulances, "plus several EMS personnel will probably go to the scene in their own vehicles. Now we can have as many as 30 to 35 vehicles en route to the scene."

McLeister says that by the time it is over there can be as many as 30 to 40 vehicles on the roads responding to an accident.

When told that Judge Wendell expressed concern over this many vehicles responding with red lights and sirens and asked if this many vehicles were really necessary, McLeister said, "Yes sir, absolutely."

History Of Lamar Related To Rotarians

Although the Karankawa Indians — the first known inhabitants of this area — were reputed to have been cannibals, they did not harass the early settlers but rather protected them from other hostile tribes, according to Margaret E. House, unofficial historian of the Lamar area.

Mrs. House told the story during her talk at a Rotary Club luncheon meeting at the Sandollar Restaurant Wednesday, May 20.

As a footnote to the history of Lamar peninsula, Mrs. House said the Big Tree was a rallying point for the Karankawa Indians and their council meetings were held in the shadow of this now noted landmark.

She added that the tree, generally regarded as the biggest in Texas, once was even larger but had lost many of its larger limbs to hurricanes and other storms.

The first known written reference to this area was in a 1523 report by Cabasa de Vaca, Spanish explorer, after a visit. In 1766 a second explorer from Spain reported having visited this area, Mrs. House said.

Apparently the first settlement was a Spanish fort erected in 1785 on Copano Bay, according to Mrs. House.

An Irishman, James W. Byrnes, born in 1787, who migrated to this area in 1835 was to have considerable influence on the settlement and development of Lamar peninsula, Mrs. House related.

After fighting in the Republic of Texas war against Mexico, he retired in 1836 and with several associates founded Lamar which was named after the second president of the Republic of Texas.

Twenty houses were built, as well as a warehouse, wharves and salt works.

At that time land sold for 50 cents an acre.

Having become interested in politics, Byrnes was not personally involved in this development but he directed efforts of his associates.

In 1854 Byrnes contributed money to build the Stella Maria chapel which is still standing and is in daily use. It was constructed of concrete made with ground oyster shell, sand and water, a type of construction used for some other buildings and widely employed at that time for foundations.

The first educational establishment, the Lamar Academy, was founded in 1855 by Jane O'Connor. Students boarded at private homes.

Prior to the Civil War Samuel and James B. Colt, originators of the famous Colt revolver, planned to build a munitions and arms works in the vicinity of Lamar. However, Samuel Colt died and the plant was never built, according to Mrs. House, who added that Colt is believed to have been buried in Lamar cemetery although his grave has not been identified.

In 1861 Texas seceded from the Union and shortly thereafter federal gunboats shelled Lamar, destroying almost all the buildings except two stores, the post office and the church.

Later the Confederate army landed 40 camels at Indianola to be used for transporting supplies. A few escaped and wandered back to Lamar where they were placed in a corral with several mules. Overnight the camels killed all the mules, Mrs. House related.

During the Civil War cattle were left unattended and soon overran the area. Packers were established to butcher the cattle and ship hides, bones, horns and tallow to market in schooners.

At that time there was no way of marketing the meat and it was thrown away.

By 1875 all the packeries had closed. During this period Anton Stauch began growing tobacco, curing it and making it into cigars.

In 1885 Lamar had a population of 30. By 1890 the population had grown to 160 but 10 years later it had dropped to 125. In 1915 the Lamar post office was closed and all mail came by sailboat from Rockport as Lamar dwindled to become basically a collection of weekend homes and fishing camps.

The first causeway across Copano Bay was opened in 1931 and the first of many oil wells was drilled in 1948, Mrs. House said. Land for Goose Island State Park was donated to Texas by the Edwards Estate.

Soon land development became active on Lamar peninsula and many subdivisions have been established to make it an attractive community for retired people, young working couples and their children.

Mrs. House said that steady growth of the area in recent years is attributed to its country-like atmosphere and abundance of parks and wooded areas.

In other business, Jimmie Luigi, Rotary president, announced that Gordon Harris, 1977 graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School, had been awarded the 1981 Rotary scholarship of $500 for continuing his studies at Lamar College.

Harris is specializing in computer programming and has maintained a 3.5 grade average despite his need to work while attending college.

The scholarship is confined to graduates of the local high school. Selection from applicants is made by the scholarship committee on the basis of need and potential.

Luigi read a letter of appreciation from Harris.

County Receives Registration Reimbursement

Aransas County has received $833.60 as reimbursement for county voter registration efforts.

The funds came from the office of State Comptroller Bob Bullock under a state law designed to encourage voter registration and accurate voter lists.

The Texas Election Code permits the Comptroller to pay counties 40 cents for each new registered voter and 40 cents for each cancellation made to update lists.

Payment to counties ranged from $111,286.40 to Harris County to $9.60 to Loving, the state's least populous county, Bullock said.

Collins Bill Would Bind IRS

WASHINGTON — Should the IRS be made to stand by the advice it gives to taxpayers?

Texas Congressman Jim Collins thinks it should and has introduced legislation which would make the IRS "stand by its word."

Currently, the advice a taxpayer receives from an IRS office is not binding on the IRS. If that advice is wrong, the taxpayer is the one penalized.

"The IRS receives millions of phone calls every year asking for advice but what good is all that advice if a taxpayer cannot count on it? I would rather have one right answer than 10 wrong answers," Collins said.

The provision to bind the IRS to the advice it gives taxpayers is included in the Collins Taxpayers Bill of Rights — H.R. 2389. This bill now has 59 cosponsors and is pending in the Ways and Means Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Collins cited examples of inconsistent IRS advice in a report by the Citizen's Choice National Committee on Taxes and the IRS.

The 26-member commission held hearings across the country and found the most frequent single complaint was "the difficulty of getting from the IRS a single, authoritative answer to a question about the tax laws."

According to the report, a witness in Seattle called the same IRS office three times on the same day, talked to three different people, asked the same question and got three different answers.

GO WHERE THE ENERGY IS

No one is sure whether Hiram Hagarman built the dam — it may have been there before his time. The lake has given its own legacy of refreshing beauty to the country-side.

But Hiram built his mill by the waterfall — where the energy was. There he and his sons spent most of a century grinding corn for their neighbors.

His descendants remember Hiram as "a God-fearing man." Not surprising, of course . . . you'd expect a man who goes where the energy is to have a deep respect for the Source of all energy.

Think about building your life . . . your family's future . . . close to the spiritual resources of your church or synagogue. Go where the Energy is!

HUNGER

Hunger is a world-wide blight: approximately 700 million people in the world are seriously and chronically malnourished; women and children constitute 75 percent of the world's undernourished; in 1980 roughly 10 million will have died with hunger and malnutrition as a major contributory cause; if the world output of food were to double in 1981 the hungry would still go hungry because they would not be able to afford the food; and the major world hunger problem today is one of chronic malnutrition caused by poverty.

One young couple did a very unique thing to help address this problem: "Janet Laughlin-Pilrud and new husband, Robert, inaugurated a new CROP event by sharing a Wedding Feast with the people of Lansing, Michigan, who attended their wedding. More than 150 guests brought alternative gifts, cash and staple grocery items to be shared with the local Food Bank.

"Bob and I both have everything we need for ourselves and our home," said Janet. "And we would rather have people share the celebration with us and share their gifts with people who need them much more than we do." "Alternative celebrations can fit any occasion," according to Bob. "It fit our values and our lifestyle . . . sharing with our less fortunate brothers and sisters is part of our joy." (from Service News, May, 1981)

Along with whatever action we personally and corporately try to do to tackle this world problem the following prayer might be appropriate for us in the Western World: Father, we are fat, fine, and fashionable while 80 percent of the world is skinny, scared, and skeptical. We are full now. Before we die, we may be starving. We are comfortable now. We may yet be hopeless. We are the establishment now. We may yet become the oppressed. We are protected from the heat and cold, from war and famine. We may yet learn to live with them.

Many are starving, hopeless, oppressed, cold. We are no better than they. May we begin now to share what we have — in love, not in fear — but realizing that we or our children someday may be glad if others have learned from us how to share. In Christ's name. Amen.

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

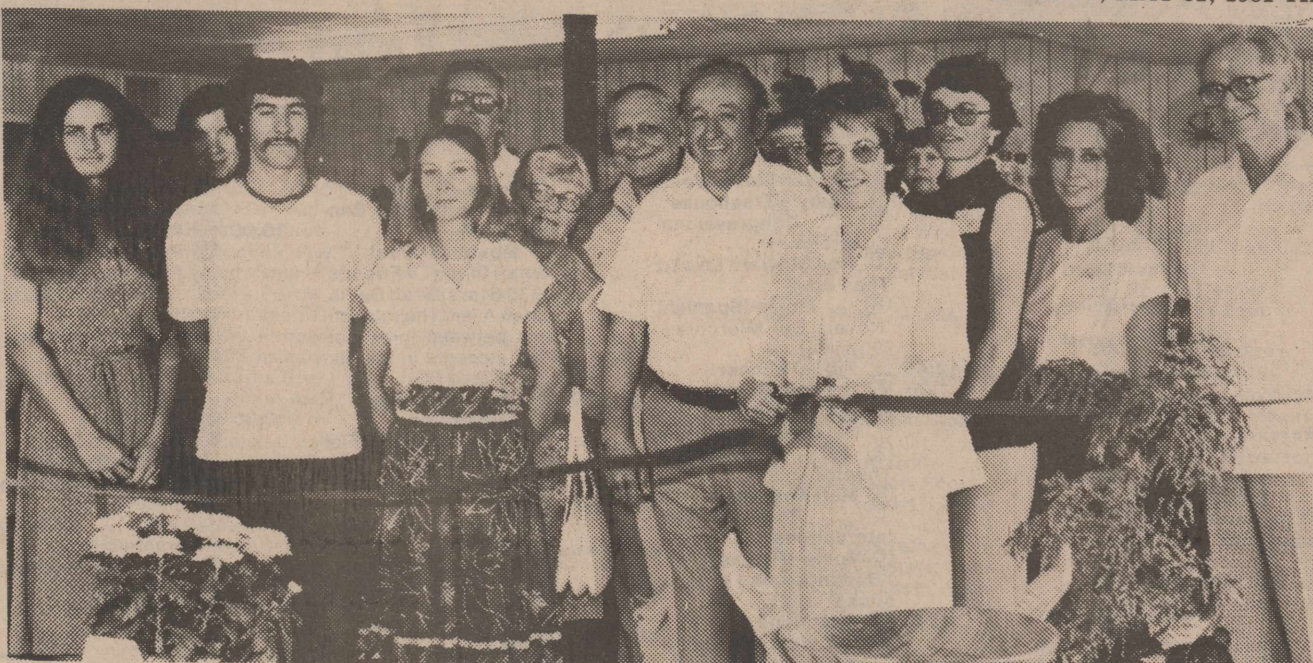

Dear Dr. Lutz, I purchased a two-month-old Schnauzer puppy. The breeder has urged me to have the ears cropped. I like them as they are. I see no reason to crop them. What do you advise? Silvia.

Dear Silvia, Centuries ago, when such sports as bull baiting were popular, owners of fighting dogs decided cropping the animal's ears was preferable to having the ears shredded in battle. Thank goodness, this practical reason for cropping ears no longer exists. Why, then, are dogs' ears cropped?

The surgery is requested simply because our eyes are accustomed to the appearance of crop-eared dogs, such as boxers, schnauzers, great danes, etc.

The American Kennel Club states that ear cropping is optional for all the breeds that are usually shown in dog shows with cropped ears. There is no breed for which it is compulsory.

Beauty is in the eyes of the beholder. If you prefer your dog's ears as they are, that's the way I would leave them.

Randow, Crary Named Best Actress, Actor In One-Act Contest

Beth Randow was named "best actress" and Gary Crary "best actor" by five teachers at Rockport-Fulton High School who judged the "first annual" Intramural One-Act Play Contest presented by the RFHS theater arts class.

The contest wrapped up the 1980-81 school year for the theater arts students, according to teacher David Rice who added, "We had so much fun we're going to make it an annual event."

Four seniors in the class were directors for the four plays, with each director being responsible for selecting the play, cutting it to one act, choosing their cast and setting up lighting, staging and sets.

Rice added that the contest followed UIL contest rules.

Best play, according to the judges who made their selections Thursday, May 14, was "Vanities", directed by Jamie Meeker and featuring Georgie Reininger, Nancy Martinez and Priscilla Garza in the cast.

All three of the cast members were subsequently named to the All-Star cast.

Also named to the All-Star cast were Dominic Dominguez, Michelle Willis, Margaret Little and Leon Haskin, cast of "Egad, What a Cad" (directed by Nancy Adams); and Heidi Potter and Les Miller from "Little Oscar"

(directed by Linda Rinche). Receiving "honorable mention" were Mark Luigi, Kelly Mack and Debbie Woods from "Egad, What a Cad"; Connie Flores and Robert Samora, "Little Oscar"; and Katherine Huffman, Joe Allgood, Sundry Thompson, Patty Ramirez and Dana Simmons of "MacBeth."

Director of "MacBeth" was Carolyn Farnsworth.

SOLAR FACTS

As mentioned in previous columns, there are three basic types of passive solar heating systems — direct-gain, indirect-gain and isolated-gain. This week's column focuses on direct gain systems, the simplest of the three concepts and among the most popular.

Like all other passive heating designs, direct-gain systems do not require any solar roof collectors or mechanical systems in order to operate. Instead, the building itself is designed to collect, store and distribute the sun's heat naturally.

Direct-gain heating systems are so named because solar radiation enters the building directly to provide heat to the immediate interior area. As the sun's rays enter through the south-facing glass, it heats the building's interior surfaces and contents. To absorb and store as much of this heat as possible, thick masonry interior walls and/or floors are used. These heat-storing materials — known as the system's thermal mass — hold the heat for slow release at night or whenever outside temperatures drop.

For consumers, one of the greatest advantages of the direct-gain system (in addition to fuel savings) is its simplicity. In essence, only two things are needed: a south-facing glass area, and a thermal mass usually in the form of masonry walls and floors.

The southern exposure of the glass area maximizes the amount of solar energy entering the building in the winter, when heat is needed, and minimizes it in the summer. Since direct-gain systems operate whenever the sun is up, sun screens, shades and/or movable insulation are used to prevent overheating during the day. These same devices also help during the evening to prevent heat loss.

The use of masonry for the interior walls and floors not only provides absorption and storage of heat for future release, it also helps alleviate major fluctuations in temperature. In fact, most direct-gain experts recommend that at least one half, and up to two-thirds of the total surface area exposed to the south-facing glass, be constructed of masonry or other heat-absorbing materials. This provides optimal heating efficiency and comfort.

Eyes And Answers

TWO-EYE VISION

Dear Dr. Pettie: Why do you stress in your column the importance of two-eye vision in driving? I lost central vision in one eye when I was ten with vision in that eye 20/250 now, and 20/20 in the other. I find no problem whatever in driving.

I have probably been amiss in not more thoroughly explaining two-eye vision because space is limited in these columns. But let's take another look at this important part of vision functioning.

You stated you lost your central vision. I would assume your peripheral (side) vision to be intact; and if that is true, you have the most-needed element in two-eye (binocular) vision. With good side vision, judgment of distance can be excellent even in the absence of central vision in one eye.

Another reason I stress the importance of two-eye vision need in driving is that the quality of clear vision is enhanced. Also, glaring headlights at night or a bad reflection in daytime can momentarily blur one eye; the other must then take over. And, the total field of vision is broader, right and left, in a fully two-eyed person, consequently safer. You do not fall in these categories at all.

The above doesn't mean, necessarily, that one must have two-eyed vision to be safe in driving. I once knew a cab driver who had driven 26 years without an accident, and he had one artificial eye, the right. You obviously adapted well very early to your central vision loss because you retained good side vision. The cab driver learned to judge distance by observing minute differences in light and shadow and object size. If there must be a traumatic vision problem, I think I would prefer yours.

LET'S SEE HOW IT WORKS

Paul Harris turns on his new television set — the one he won in the recent drawing at Gould's Appliance Store here in Rockport. Registration for the TV set was one of the highlights of Gould's grand opening not too long ago at its new location on Highway 35 North. Harris was called to the store last Friday to pick up his prize.

Plans Underway For '81 SeaFair

The not-so-cool days of autumn are still five months away, but planning has already begun for this year's SeaFair — set for October 10 and 11 — with the naming of various event chairmen.

President and general chairman of the 1981 event is Joe Lister. Jim Cox is general events chairman, Pat Brown heads up the special events and entertainment committee and Jack Guillet is the grounds chairman.

Alex Knox is assistant chairman for special events and entertainment and Jimmy Lewis, Eddie Bradley and Dan Adams will handle the announcing and auctioneering during the two-day event.

A "first-time ever" event that proved popular last year — the parachute jump — will be back in this year's SeaFair with Paul Ross again in charge of arrangements.

Bill Mayhood is chairman of the gumbo cook-off which has been an annual feature since SeaFair's inception, and Bob Phillips is chairman and Homer Faber assistant chairman of the land parade that kicks off the annual observance on Saturday morning.

Other events committee chairmen include Peter Lazidis, crab races; John Behee, air sea rescue; Merel Holmes, sailing regatta; Elouise Boling, water ski show; Beth Levy, children's tent.

Brown will be in charge of music and special performances and Bobby Flannagan is trophy chairman. Pat Lister will be in charge of parking.

On Cox's general events committee, Mick Ladner is in charge of protocol again this year and Pat and Linda Daly are in charge of the sales of SeaFair hats and T-shirts.

Steve Mahnke is food booths chairman, Dennis Jenkins is in charge of beer sales and Del and Wynell McClain will be in charge of soft drink sales.

Display booth rentals are being handled by Bert and Sue Warrick.

June Keese is historian and Carolyn Behee is in charge of the information booth. Advertising chairman is Bill Griffith.

Other members of Guillet's grounds committee include Joe Holler, construction chairman; Bill Aston, chairman of medical services; Chris Barre, electrical chairman; and Bruce McMahan, security chairman.

Arthur Holsenbeck will be in charge of grounds and food tent clean-up and Bill Janeczek is handling the public address system.

Other committee chairmen are Dick Lilly, strike committee; Dennis Jenkins, tents; Guillet, Skid-o-cans. Members of Young Life under direction of Wayne Smith will assist SeaFair-goers in parking.

Two Zoning Requests Denied

the citizens of Rockport."

Alderman Murray McMillan pointed out that, under a 1978 agreement filed with the Public Utilities Agreement, the city of Rockport agreed to let anyone tie onto the pressure line in question provided that the request meets city requirements and capacity on the line has not been reached.

McMillan later suggested that the council "needs some sort of get-together on this."

In other action, a request by the Aransas County

Navigation District for a blanket special use permit was denied by both the planning and zoning board and the city council.

The request was to allow the Navigation District to issue temporary permits to businesses, civic groups or associations or individuals that complied with city ordinances and wanted permission to operate on Navigation District property within Rockport city limits.

City Attorney Allen Lee told officials approval of this request would be "an illegal delegation of the city powers."

Also denied was a request by Donald Kelley for rezoning for a partial lot at the intersection of Concho and Bronte from B-1 business to B-2 business.

Council members approved a request by Scott W. Felton for permission to tie onto an existing, privately-owned sanitary sewer line that serves Rockport Plaza, Ron's Fried Chicken and W.A. Christian. Felton proposes to construct a car wash in the area.

The council approved payment of $23,204.60 for oversizing of a water line to serve a proposed development on FM 3036. The oversizing was approved by council vote on November 27, 1979, and funds were included in the 1981 budget.

Requests from J.B. Phillips, B&J Enterprise and Dillon Grubb for permission to operate mobile snack bars and/or refreshment concessions on Navigation District property in Rockport were denied.

The city approved expenditures for Detective Steve Trevino to attend a Homicide and Investigators' Seminar in Austin June 1-5 and for Johnson to attend Tax School in Austin on June 29-July 1.

Police Report

Police said no charges had been filed as of The Pilot's deadline Thursday.

In a separate incident, Andrew Dyes of Rockport was allegedly the victim of an assault about 12:40 a.m. Tuesday at Julie's Lounge.

Police said an arrest was made in connection with the incident but no assault charges had been filed.

Summer vacation is a time many young people would like to find a job. This not only provides them with money, it gives them experience.

With experience, they have a much better chance of getting into a career job when they finish school.

Some will be fortunate enough to find paying jobs. Those who don't may still be able to get that all-important experience by volunteering. An increasing number of businesses and industry are accepting volunteer work as a qualification for applicants, and accepting the references of those who supervise the volunteer work.

In Nueces County, the Voluntary Action Center is putting together a youth program for the summer. Young people can call that center, express their interests and learn where they can volunteer.

In every community, students can learn through churches, chambers of commerce, nursing homes, hospitals or from public officials and teachers where volunteer opportunities exist.

Wherever agency councils exist, they are a good source of information about volunteer needs in the community. Such councils are in discussion stages at Beeville and Falfurrias. The Duval County Human Resource Board has been formed and is in organizational stages.

At Sinton, there is the Council of Community Concerns with Pedro Gonzales as chairman. The Rural Organization of Service Agencies at Robstown is headed by Juan Barrera. Allen Itz was recently elected president of the Kleberg County Human Resource Council in Kingsville.

The Alice Interagency Council is headed by Joe Frank Garza. Marcia Counter is president of the Gregory-Portland Community Awareness Council. Wherever there are agencies, there are volunteer needs.

The possibilities for service are as numerous as the ideas of a young person who really puts his or her mind to it. Any type of youth organization which has summer camping programs or day camps needs older teenagers to teach horseback

Commissioners Court Debates Wrecker Policy

The debate over county use of wrecker services continued in the commissioners court's regular meeting on Wednesday, May 27, though no final decision was made.

Representatives from local wrecker services, all of who want to continue the present rotation system, spoke with County Judge John Wendell who wants the service to go out for bid, and with the four commissioners, who will make the final decision in the matter.

The discussion was continued from the last meeting of the court. At that time, the matter was tabled pending further consideration and input from the sheriff's office on a tentative contract setting guidelines for wrecker service.

There was some confusion at the beginning of the meeting when Judge Wendell announced that bids would be taken on June 8 and asked the court if that was what they wanted, to which Commissioner J.M. Sprigle replied, "Judge, I don't recollect deciding on bids."

In addition the commissioners had not been given the new copy of the service contract, revised by the Sheriff's office. However, all the wrecker owners present had a copy of the new contract as did Judge Wendell and the discussion proceeded.

The main goal of the court is to find a system that is equitable for all parties concerned when a car has to be towed and a wrecker is called in by the county.

At the present time, if the person in need of the wrecker has no preference as to which service to call, the officer at the scene calls a service off of a rotation list.

The problem with the present system is as the Judge put it, "Every time there's a wrecker called, the police are being accused of taking payoffs."

He continued, "I'm getting tired of the Sheriff's Office being accused of taking payoffs. They're being accused every time. I get calls all the time. There's a taint on the court every time it happens."

Wendell told the court, "I don't care if we have to buy our own wrecker, we're going too far when the public believes there's dishonesty in county government."

Wendell had suggested at the last meeting that the service go out for bids, with one wrecker service in charge with the option of contracting other wrecker companies when the situation demanded.

Wrecker service representatives present at the meeting were not in favor of a bid situation.

Charlie Jones of A-1

Wrecker Service suggested that wrecker representatives and the court work together on a timetable of standardized rates and services and continue with the present system.

Wrecker owners had been sent copies of the contract discussed at the last meeting with the changes suggested by the sheriff's office.

The wrecker owners discussed with the court points in the contract they were unhappy with, the main one being the insurance requirements.

The policy required by the court under the new contract would require wrecker owners to purchase a $300,000 policy. The men present at the meeting brought up the fact that Corpus Christi wrecker services were required by the county to take only a $50,000 policy.

Judge Wendell asked the court, "Do you feel that $300,000 is too much?" to which Commissioner Sprigle replied, "Obviously these gentlemen do."

The discussion continued and ended with no decision being made. Sprigle told the men, "We just need to have some more time. Can you give us a list of what you don't like about the contract?"

Commissioner John Lee then said, "Yes, give us a list of your 'don't-likes' and we'll look them over."

Another meeting with wrecker owners and commissioners both present was finally decided on, though no date was set.

In other action, the court heard from Frances Iles and Cathleen Aiken, representing AIM Home Health Agency, Inc., a non-profit home health care service. AIM has requested a $77,000 federal grant to expand their services. Two hearings, one at the June Council of Governments meeting and another by the South Texas Health Systems Agency will determine the grant's chance for final approval from the Dallas-based Department of Health and Human Services.

Iles and Aiken were present in the court to ask for support from the group at large and from Commissioner W.B. "Pete" Sanders, the Court's representative on the COG

Board. Approval was given to the agency though no formal resolutions were made.

In other action, the court signed the lease contract from independent builder Doug Munro, in regards to the planned renovation and development of the county-owned buildings at the airport. Munro plans to establish an apartment complex and hotel in the barracks.

The court also heard from Tony Thorne, head of the Palm Harbor Property Owners Association. Thorne appeared at the court with James Metzner and Carl Finney, two Palm Harbor residents. The group was concerned with a drainage problem in the subdivision. Apparently present drainage pipes have been dislocated causing water to back up in lawns and interfere with some residents' septic systems.

Thorne requested that the county surveyors come and re-shoot the site to establish the proper grade as the first step in re-aligning the drainage lines. The request was approved by the court.

A CHECK FOR YOUNG LIFE

Doris Easter, representing the Rockport Castaways presents a check to Wayne Smith who accepted on behalf of the Young Life organization here. The Castaways raise the money through sales of items donated to their Thrift Shop at 1011 Concho and donate the funds to a number of non-profit organizations in Aransas County including Young Life and the area volunteer fire departments.

"Bobby Won The Race"

By Ted Norman

As the man said in an interview on television, "Bobby won the race."

The man is Bobby Unser, two or three time winner of the Indianapolis 500. As of this writing it still isn't clear if he, like his brother, Al, is a three time winner of the prestigious race of just a two time winner.

Bobby Unser, like 32 other drivers, spent the past year preparing the Norton Special for the traditional Memorial Day race at the brick yard. But unlike the other 32 drivers, Unser made it across the finish line first and was declared the winner.

But several hours after the completion of the race, after Unser had taken not one but two victory laps and after Unser had driven into Victory Circle and received the traditional accolade of his peers and admirers and was proclaimed the winner, a protest was submitted by number two man Mario Andretti.

To those involved in the dispute as well as with most uninvolved spectators the question seems not to be should Bobby or Mario be the 1981 Indianapolis winner but why did the USAC committee let Unser drive into the winners circle and be proclaimed the winner, then 24 hours later strip him of the honor.

The officials should have called Unser's pit immediately and told his car owner, Rodge Penski, of the infraction of the rules and assess a penalty of one lap then. Instead they let Unser bathe in the juices of victory then jerked the rug out from under him. Why was there almost a 24-hour wait?

Andretti spent a frustrating month trying to be in the race while still honoring contracts and commitments in Europe. While the qualifying was going on at the brick yard Andretti was in Europe for a Grand Prix race. And the former Italian driver had to ask retired race driver Walley Dallenback to qualify the car for the 500 race. Dallenback did a good job for Andretti but regardless of how fast he qualified the car Andretti was by USAC rule assigned a starting berth in the last row. This is a fair and just system that has been in force at the track for years and it has been accepted without quarrel by all the drivers who have been involved with the system of qualifying at the Indianapolis race.

But Andretti took exception to the rule and began to ask the United States Auto Club, the sanctioning body of the spectacle, to change the rules. Andretti explained, in his whimpering manner, that he was busy racing all over the world and didn't have time to fit the week of qualifying at Indy into his schedule.

It seems that everything that came out of Indy this past month has been stories of Mario Andretti whining about something. No one can ever overlook the fact that Andretti is a very good race driver, he is one of only two men from America who have ever held the World's Driving Championship. Phil Hill of Santa Monica, California, was the first. Andretti can drive just about anything that has an engine and wheels and do a good job of it. But the man cries a lot.

Andretti seems to want everyone to change the rules to fit his needs and his problems. One of the important things in being an international race driver is having enough business sense to program a schedule of the racing season that will allow you to drive in the races you think are most important to you and your career.

Andretti has obviously overloaded his schedule and not chosen his races carefully. He wants to win the World Championship for a second time and still be free to drive at Indy. It didn't work out and he not only didn't win at Indy, he was disqualified in the Grand Prix the week before for jumping the starting flag. I haven't heard to what extent he cried over there.

For years there has been a controversy over officials of major sports events using video tape replays to decide disputed calls in sporting events. To my knowledge this is the first time it has been done in an event of this magnitude. Keep in mind that many things are involved. First, the difference between first and second place is well over a quarter million dollars. The winner will sign contracts for endorsements of over a million dollars, and if Unser is moved back to second spot it will strip him not only of a win but of the much coveted third win. Unser, at 47 years of age, would also have been the oldest person to win the race.

So the decision to allow Unser to retain the first place win or strip him of the crown, which has been slightly tainted by now, should not be decided on with flimsy evidence of because of the whining of Mario.

The video tapes of Unser dragging out of the pits with all 600 horses hooked up has been shown several times. I have seen them three times, he did pass six or seven cars. However, the tapes show Mario pulling out of the pits right behind Unser and he is in the process of driving on the apron under the yellow line and he is passing the same cars. The tape always stops when Mario comes on the apron and I would like to see more of it. I believe it will prove that Mario is as guilty as Unser in the infraction of the rule.

Indy has always had problems with the small print in the track rules and especially with the rules regarding exiting the pit and driving under the yellow light. They only recently went to the use of a pace car and allowing cars to bunch up and improve their positions. The yellow flag periods at the brick yard still aren't working.

This episode will not taint the 1981 winner as badly as it is going to taint the race itself if the United States Auto Club doesn't patch up the loopholes in the rules and solve the problems at the brick yard. Every year it seems to get harder to run a race there without controversy.

Andretti's car owner, Pat Patrick, sums it up best with his advise to Bobby Unser when he said, "Bobby, stick with it, you're going to win (the appeal)."

Yes, like the man said, "Bobby is the winner."

Prepare Boats For Hurricane Season

AUSTIN — Boat owners should begin preparing now for Texas' hurricane season, according to water safety officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Hurricanes can strike the Gulf Coast anytime from June through November, but are most likely to occur during August and September, the department said.

The department offers the following advice for protecting your craft from hurricane-force winds and tides.

Of course, all boating activity should cease when weather forecasts indicate rough weather is on the way. There are several ways to secure a boat which may save it from damage or destruction.

The first thing that should be done to the boat is to remove or stow all loose gear. Take down all antennas, outriggers and anything else that can be blown away. Remove all electronic gear. Marine radios and marine radio-telephones removed from the boat can be used for emergency communications provided there is a 12-volt battery source available.

The boat should be taken out of the water if possible. If you plan to trailer it to safety leave it attached to the vehicle when parked.

If it is necessary to leave the boat, it is safer on land during a hurricane. It should be taken to high ground and placed in a garage, barn or other sheltered area. If no shelter is available, remove the boat from its trailer. Avoid locations near trees or structures which may fall in high winds.

Whether on the trailer or off, the boat should be secured. If the boat is not an inboard-outboard and the hull has sufficient strength it can be filled with water to hold it down.

Another method of securing a boat is to use mobile home anchors that are screwed into the ground and strapped over the boat.

Boats which are too large to be easily taken out of the water should be moved to sheltered waters. Boats should be moved out of covered slips as they may be crushed against the top of the boathouse during high tides.

Anchored boats are less likely to sustain damage than boats moored to docks and pilings. These fixed objects can crush the hull of a boat in heavy waves.

All lines, especially anchor lines, should be in good condition and long enough to provide for the heights of flooding water.

Some large boats can be taken into the relative shelter of a river where land or bluffs will help blunt the force of the wind.

After you have done everything possible for the boat, leave it. Evacuate the area and do not take any further risks.

Two Records Set In One Month

AUSTIN — Two new state record catches of Warsaw grouper were recorded during March and April, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The record fish were certified separately, since one was caught on rod and reel and the other with spearfishing gear.

The rod and reel record Warsaw caught by James Bagwell of Port O'Connor March 16 weighed 83 pounds. He caught the fish 26 miles off Port O'Connor. It was 51 inches long and 41 inches in girth.

A 158-pound Warsaw grouper speared by Richard D. Hindman of Houston April 11 out of Port O'Connor established a new species category in the unrestricted division of the state fish records. Hindman's fish was five feet, one inch long and 54 inches in girth. There was no previous entry for Warsaw grouper in the unrestricted division.

Fishing Report

Key Allegro — not much action with the winds over the past few days but things are ready for the weekend with plenty of bait available. Frozen bait, squid, plenty of ribbon fish and offshore bait is plentiful.

Things look better for the weekend. Frozen shrimp is plentiful.

Sea Gun — Catching plenty of speckled trout, charter boats did real good after the wind and rain left the area. Most anglers are using live bait. The waters are calm and fishing is good.

Palm Harbor — fishing has been pretty good, the Kleine's — Larry and Robert Burton of Aransas Pass caught plenty of drum, trout and flounder. J.B. Woldord of Portland caught lots of drum and trout. Micky Meine of San Antonio landed a stringer of reds and lots of trout. Mr. and Mrs. Renfro of Aransas Pass caught red, drum and trout. Most action was on dead bait and it is plentiful.

Copano Causeway — Catching lots of big trout and gaftop and sheephead. Best fishing is from midnight to dawn. Fishermen are using live shrimp and artificial bait for trout and squid for the gaftop. Both live and dead bait is plentiful.

St. Charles Bay — Not many people fishing because of the wind, the water is choppy and muddy but waters are fairly calm but slightly muddy and clearing. Most action has been trout caught on live bait. The best time is early morning but fish have been biting all day. Plenty of live bait available.

Fulton Beach Marina — no report.

Fulton Harbor Bait — fishing is improving with lots of trout being caught off the seawall. Plenty of snapper, sheephead and flounder also landed. Waters are clearing and fishing should be excellent this weekend. A new gulf and bay charter service has just been started.

Beach Road Bait House — Lots of good sized trout being caught off the pier and some good sized black drum being landed, lots of live and dead bait, the water is, "Clear and clean and beautiful." Everything looks good for good fishing over the weekend.

AVAST YE MATEY

Rod Babcock enjoys some free time windsurfing near Key Allegro Isle. Babcock and his wife Cayse are visiting from northern California. Mrs. Babcock is a former resident of Rockport and she said they came to attend a wedding, visit her brother Frank Bailey and have a vacation. The Babcocks brightened the horizon for several days with the bright colored sails of their Windsurfers.
