Local Woman Sees 'Beulah' Damage

Mrs. Hattie Smith, 504 Glendale, visited her daughter, Mrs. Shirley Reed of Weslaco, and stayed three weeks. She has recently returned to tell of seeing the devastation caused by Hurricane Beulah.

Though Weslaco was not badly damaged, Mrs. Smith told of the fear of losing the levee and the success of the townspeople in saving it.

Harlingen was not as fortunate, and the town received extensive damage from flooding. On her return trip by bus, Mrs. Smith told of traveling through water three feet deep, causing the driver to store all suitcases in the bus, rather than in the usual underneath compartment.

BULLDOGS SUFFER SECOND SETBACK IN DISTRICT PLAY; FALL TO LIONS, 17 TO 7

By DEE UNDERWOOD

According to one newspaper account, "Brownwood's mighty Lions, the ninth ranked AAA team, trailed Burk Burnett 7-3 at halftime Friday night, but rallied to a 17-7 District 4-AAA victory."

We have our own version, but will keep it to ourselves.

Bulldog football fans came home from Brownwood seeing red. The Bulldogs saw red during the game, 105 yards of it flying around. The Lions drew one penalty, five yards for delay of the game.

The game got off to a flying start, the Lions taking the kickoff and losing the ball on their second play via interception. Butch Wood picked off a Si Southall pass at the 50 and ran it back to the Lion 41. However, some key plays came under the flag and the Bulldog's drive was killed.

The Bulldog defense rose to the occasion, stopping the Lions on down inside the Burk 20. The game then settled to a defensive pace until midway of the second quarter.

With 5:58 to go in the second stanza, the Lions were faced with fourth down on the Bulldog 23 yard stripe. Damon Smith toed a beautiful field goal that split the uprights to make it 3-0.

The Bulldogs weren't about to take it lying down, as they took the kickoff on their own 16 and began a sustained 84 yard march to the Lion goal. On the thirteenth play of the series, quarterback Jeff Beaver flipped a 13 yard pass to wingback Allen Willett for a touchdown. Lynn Attwood kicked the extra point to put the Bulldogs ahead, 7-3.

Banquet Slated In Honor Of Local Firemen

DR. EARL E. KIFER

In appreciation for the wonderful job done in our city and surrounding area the Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a banquet for the firemen and their wives Thursday, October 19, 7:00 p.m., in the Town Hall.

There will be an interesting program and good food. The program will be as follows: Master of Ceremonies, Rev. Don S. Youngblood, words of appreciation by A. H. Lohoefer, Mayor and Jim Frye, President of the Chamber of Commerce. The main speaker will be Dr. Earl E. Kifer, pastor of Brooklyn Avenue Methodist Church in Dallas.

Dr. Kifer is a veteran of World War II, and has served as a Texas Ranger before becoming a minister. He is a man of wide experience and is much in demand as a speaker. He has spoken for many civic clubs special occasions, and Chambers of Commerce. Being quite a humorist he has many return engagements.

After intermission, the Bulldogs took the kickoff and mounted another drive. It too fell short and the defensive struggle, spiced with some more flags, went on.

With 6:44 to go in the third period, Brownwood drove to the Bulldog two yard line, riding the slashing runs of fullback David Wallace. From that point, All District tailback Wayne Fenton plunged over for the six pointer. Damon Smiths extra point kick made the score 10-7 for the Lions.

The Bulldogs took the ball on their 25 yard line and drew a five yard penalty. By the time it was third and 18 from the 16, things looked bad. Somebody forgot to figure on tailback Charles Hicks, who slashed through the Brownwood line and galloped all the way to the 49 of Burk before being stopped.

However, that drive also faltered and it was well into the final period that the Bulldogs made a final scoring threat. Driving from their own 24 yard line, on some fine runs by Hicks and passes from Beaver to Steve Cozby and Willett, they went to the Lion 19 before they were slowed. In what was probably the defensive play of the game, Ricky Stokes and Robert Smith caught Beaver behind the line of scrimmage for a six yard loss. The next play saw a five yarder against the Bulldogs, as they couldn't hear their signals, and the drive had bogged.

With 2:25 left in the contest, Fenton, one of the finest running backs in the district, scored on a spectacular run. Heading around right end, he blew by everyone and raced, untouched, into the end zone, 59 yards away. Damon Smith kicked the extra point to make the final score of 17-7.

Defensively for the Bulldogs, Butch Wood and Lanny Walker did a fine job at linebackers. Tackles John Edwards and Bob Larson, guard Rudy Robinson, and end Steve Cozby were outstanding. The defensive backfield of Mark Seay, Allen Willett, Kenny Young, and John Robinson came up with another of their tremendous efforts, allowing but 45 yards passing by the touted Southall.

Hicks led in rushing yardage with 92 yards in 15 carries. Beaver completed 11 of 21 passes for 104 yards. Cozby caught four for 60 yards, while Willett hauled in 5 for 44 yards.

ALSO THEIR GRANDCHILDREN!TEMPORARY TAX?

In the nation's capital the word "temporary" often has a definition not found in the dictionary. All too frequently in Washington "temporary" simply means "permanent." Remember the "temporary" wartime buildings that were still standing decades later, the "temporary" commissions that never finish their assignments? Certainly none of us can forget the "temporary" taxes that have been imposed upon us.

Here's an example; in June 1932, Congress levied a tax of one cent a gallon on gasoline as a temporary measure. It was described as an emergency step to help the Federal government meet the financial crisis brought on by the depression. This tax produced $57 million revenue in its first year.

Thirty-four years later and with a rate of four cents a gallon, the tax yielded $2.9 billion, bringing the total since 1932 to nearly $33 billion. In 1967, this "temporary" tax is expected to have an even higher yield.

We are not raising the question here of whether the gasoline tax is good or bad, but we are stressing the fact that "temporary" in Federal language may mean "forever." During the Korean war many excise taxes were enacted to help pay for the conflict. However, a great many of these so-called temporary taxes have been retained either at the same rate or in slightly modified form.

This phenomenon of government should be borne in mind when there's talk of new or increased taxes.

INTRODUCING THE ATOM

In order to inform the public about the latest developments in the field of atomic power generation, a utility company assembled a mobile display center which is touring its service area.

Visitors can see a model of an atomic fuel assembly and look inside a simulated nuclear reactor. They can use a geiger counter to check the low radioactivity level of a filter from the exhaust stack of an atomic power unit of the company. Animated diagrams show how an atomic power plant works and a lighted map depicts atomic power plants that are operating or being planned and built around the world.

Peaceful uses of the atom in many fields of activity must not be confused with its catastrophic destruction power in war. It is much like electricity which in a bolt of lightning can destroy a house in a flash. The same electricity can be generated with the atom and harnessed to feed the smallest light bulb.

The mobile exhibit and explanation of the use of the atom as it visits schools, fairs, shopping centers and communities will do much to educate the old as well as the young to the opportunities opened by this new source of power and remove fear of an element with which we will all have to live in the years to come.

BABSON'SPOINT OF VIEW*Babson's Point Of View On: CHRISTMAS SALES

Babson Park, Mass. — Sales of retail stores just chalked up a new all-time high for September. This is good news for everybody... especially for merchants from coast to coast. For the late summer surge came hard on the heels of a sluggish performance that had most retailers scratching their heads and wondering why Mr. and Mrs. Consumer were saving so much and spending so little. Now we can confidently look forward to a "best-ever" ringing of the nation's cash registers, come Christmastime.

Consumers Have the Cash
Recent months have seen personal income persistently poking into new high ground... to the tune of average monthly chunks of better than $4 billion each. Disposable personal income (what's left after taxes and other payments) has been lagging TOTAL personal income. The gap seemed to be the result of a greater disposition on the part of consumers to save more. Perhaps all the spring talk of a "mini-recession" had made people cautious.

Latest figures, however, indicate that spending is coming back into fashion. The September surge at retail stores is a most promising omen for Christmas sales. We can foresee new records without half raising our eyelids; and if we look real hard, it is not difficult to predict gains over Christmas 1966 of 6%, or even 8%. Not everywhere, of course, because big strikes will still be pinching consumer pocketbooks in some areas.

Plentiful Supplies
Neither war in Vietnam nor strikes here at home will have too serious an impact on the flow of available goods. Unless, of course, the expected upsurge in store sales should be even greater than we anticipate. In that case, some shelves could be bare for last-minute shoppers.

Fact is, supplies of most goods are plentiful. Not only are we pretty well assured of having both guns AND butter; we can also count on GENEROUS AMOUNTS of quality and luxury items. Next year may be a different story, but for Yuletide 1967 shelves will be well stocked and quality and variety will be more evident than ever.

But You Will Pay More
Most manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers are already optimistic with regard to sales performance dur-

First Methodist Kindergarten

Our students had a very busy week last week.

On Thursday, October 5, our special visitor was Mrs. Helen Arthington, LVN.

Our thanks to Mrs. Arthington for coming to explain to the students just what to expect when being taken to their Doctor for a routine check-up.

Scottie Howell served as "patient" while Mrs. Arthington demonstrated instruments the Doctor might use. There were many happy faces as each student was presented with a sucker which is the sign of having been a good patient.

Later, on Thursday morning our class was the first in line to visit the Telemobile which we enjoyed very much.

On Friday morning the parents of four School held their first P-TA meeting at which time Room Mothers, Party Chairman and Assistants were chosen for each class.

Room mothers are Mrs. Evelyn Riley for Mrs. Halsey's class and Mrs. Gayle Tow for Mrs. Cokendolpher's class.

The first party this year will be on October 27 and students are most excited about their first school party.

IAN SMITH AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT

In throwing up a barrier of red tape against Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia, who has been invited to speak at the University of Virginia, the U. S. State Department has given evidence concerning the Johnson administration's fear of Mr. Smith's effectiveness.

The invitation to Prime Minister Smith came from the highly respected University of Virginia Law Forum. Mr. Smith accepted, with the understanding that he would face critical as well as sympathetic questions. He was not afraid of close questioning. The State Department apparently is afraid, however. It reached into its legal grab bag and came up with the statement that Mr. Smith could not be admitted without a valid legal travel document from the British Foreign Office.

Obviously, Britain's socialist government hasn't the slightest intention of facilitating a trip to America by Mr. Ian Smith, no more than an earlier British government would have given Patrick Henry a chance to state the American colonists' case elsewhere in the world. The hard-line socialists in Britain are still insisting that Rhodesian government must be brought down — even though Rhodesia shortly will celebrate its second anniversary of independence and is widening its commercial contacts with the world, over British and U. N. objections.

Ironically, if Mr. Ian Smith were a communist or leader of a black revolutionary state in Africa he no doubt would easily get permission to enter the U. S. and, most probably, would be given an all-expenses-paid tour of the country. The State Department has managed in the past to find sufficient reasons to admit such anti-American leaders as Sukarno of Indonesia, Ben Bella of Algeria, and even Fidel Castro. Red tape was never allowed to prevent their admission to the land of the free.

Nowadays, one hears much about international understanding and the right of dissent, but the State Department doesn't want Americans to understand too much about Rhodesian realities. It is opposed to giving a platform to a statesman who will dissent from the Orthodox liberal view of contemporary Africa.

It is tragic that the American people are not given a better view of what is going on in Africa, with Gregory Peck as narrator, which distorted the situation in Southern Africa. Using all the tricks of the Ed Murrow school of televised propaganda, the producers of the show showed South Africa in terms of bearded old men nodding as they listened to patriotic speeches. In analyzing Portuguese Africa, the camera moved in for a close-up of a strand of barbed wire. The over-all effort was to convey to viewers a bleak and grim picture of the parts of Africa where European leadership exists.

The televised report did not explain that the European areas, including Rhodesia, are the areas where ALL the people have vastly greater educational and economic opportunities than the people in black Africa. Nor did the report tell of the hospital facilities that Rhodesia and South Africa have provided for the black Africans — facilities unequalled elsewhere in Africa.

These distortions, which are commonplace in this country, are especially unfortunate because Africa is one of the most rapidly developing areas in the world. Economists now are discussing the likelihood of an economic union of the Republic of South Africa, Rhodesia and the Portuguese provinces of Angola and Mozambique — a union that would give ALL the people of these lands enormous advantage over people elsewhere on the continent. Moreover, the developed, European-led lands of Southern Africa are eager for trade with the United States and for American investment in their industries. In South Africa, for instance, Americans have more than $600 million invested, with more money going in all the time. It is one of a small number of countries in the world where there is no danger of a communist or socialist political takeover or economic nationalization.

The closing of the Suez Canal, moreover, has made southern Africa immensely more important in the last two months. American seaport cities well understand the growing movement of ocean commerce around the southern tip of Africa. This commerce is likely to continue even after Nasser has reopened the Suez Canal, for the supertankers now on order are too big to use the canal. Thus it is imperative that the free maritime nations have good relations with South Africa and its progressive neighbors.

Ian Smith could spell out some of these truths at the University of Virginia, but the State Department will have none of it. It has its ear tuned to the wants of Anglo-American liberals and anti-American black Africans.

FLAG FLIES

Captain Scott Pilkington, 1303 Shady Lane, holds U. S. flag which has flown over the United States Capitol and the capitols of Georgia, Alabama and Oklahoma. His goal: to fly it over all 50 state capitols.

Unique Flag Flies Over Burk City Hall Saturday, October 7th

The flag which flew at City Hall, Saturday, October 7, was not the usual flag flown there.

The prized possession of Capt. Scott Pilkington, of Sheppard Air Force Base, the flag once flew over the United States Capitol and the state capitols of Georgia, Alabama and Oklahoma. It has flown also, at bases where he has been stationed.

Pilkington's ambition is to fly the flag over all 50 state capitols and bases and city halls wherever he is stationed. He became enthused in the unique project while serving as a page in the House of Representatives in Washington, June 1956.

The flag was acquired by the Captain through his uncle, Representative E. C. Gathings, of Arkansas.

Captain Pilkington is married and has two children. With his wife, Nola (Tenny), Scott, Jr., and 6 week old Preble Ruth, he resides at 1303 Shady Lane.

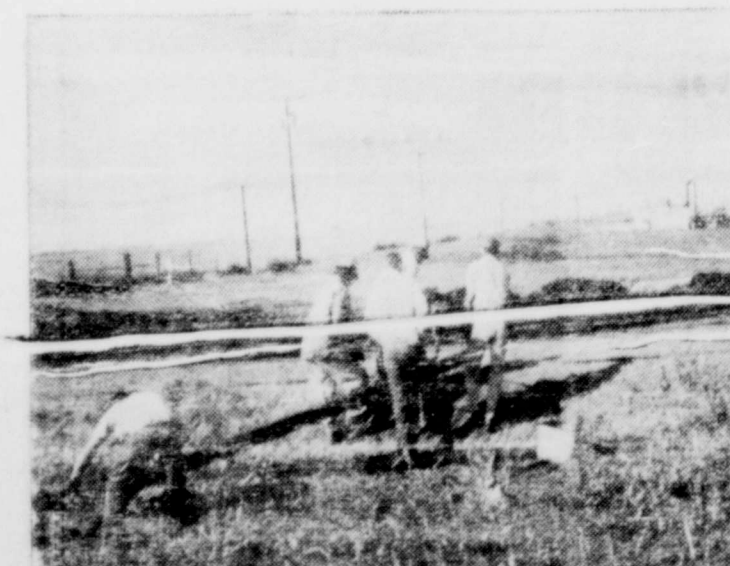

CIBA SPUR

CIBA Products plant construction moves right along. As men continue to work on the building, these others were very diligently beginning to build a spur of tracks reaching to the unloading platform of the plant. Though appearing to lead to nowhere at present, the tracks is destined to cross CIBA Road and meet its other end on the other side. Progress of CIBA and Burkburnett continue.

Across the CIBA Road from the plant, another section of the railroad spur makes its way to the section being constructed near the building. These long rails will bring the project to completion in about one more week, and the spur will be ready for use.

A rail for a railroad is not a light piece of material. Here are five men carrying one of the steel rods. It will be laid in place, bringing the CIBA spur closer to completion.

For Women Only

—by Joy Tomlinson—

Arthritis A Disease of All Ages

Arthritis, which affects some 13 million Americans, is not a "disease of old age" as many think. Quite the contrary, in one form or another it strikes all ages, and is most likely to occur between the ages of 20 and 50.

For women this is particularly distressing, for rheumatoid arthritis, the most painful form, is seen about three times more often among females than among males. And we all know that in the 20 to 50 years age span family obligations are at their highest and demands on a woman are most severe.

Unfortunately, there is no known cure for arthritis. In fact, medical science doesn't know what causes it. Arthritis means "inflammation of the joint." This inflammation may be triggered by an injury to the joint; overwork of the joint; or possibly a bacterial infection. Yet, it may develop where none of these conditions is present.

Treatment of arthritis differs from individual to individual, and only a physician is qualified to diagnose the disease and prescribe treatment. This may include drugs, diet, heat or physical therapy, or a combination of them.

While medicines used may range from cortisone to gold salts to phenylbutazone, or others, most doctors will prescribe pure aspirin—either alone or in combination with other medicines. In fact, aspirin is the single most widely-used medicine in the treatment of arthritis.

An article in Reader's Digest ("Aspirin: The Wonder Drug Nobody Understands") nicely summarizes this remarkable product: "It cures nothing; but it reduces fever, alleviates pain, combats inflammation and is, in general, our most versatile medicine." The article goes on to say that, "Today, according to The Arthritis Foundation, aspirin is 'the single drug most used' in treating the disease."

I know that my aging mother, who suffers from arthritis, swears by aspirin. Did you know that aspirin's use in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis first began as long ago as 1898? Americans take some 16 billion straight aspirin tablets a year. Says the Reader's Digest article: "Many people come to rely on aspirin, but medical scientists are agreed that there is no danger of addiction. In both the short and long run, aspirin is a remarkably untroublesome drug. With few others there is such a wide margin between a dose that is usually helpful and a dose that is usually harmful."

LIBRARY CORNER

The library is endeavoring to build a collection of books about Texas. One I found interesting is The Big Ranch Country, written by J. W. Williams, and published by Terry Brothers in Wichita Falls. Geographically it covers Texas from just west of Wichita Falls to the New Mexico line and from the Panhandle to the Rio Grande.

Mr. Williams toured this country in the late 1940's and talked with the owners, managers and cowboys. These visits plus much research enabled him to give the modern ranch picture and a brief history of the big Texas ranches, devoting Chapter 14 to the Burnett ranches. The book has five maps locating all the big ranches, picturing their brands, and tracing Mr. Williams' travel route. The illustrations are superb and the 46 pages of pictures are worth your time if you don't read a line.

The Big Thicket, located near Beaumont and the Louisiana border is the setting for Tales From the Big Thicket. This part of Texas is as remote in flavor from the big ranch country as the Florida swamps from the Sahara, but it, too, is Texas, and the tales are varied and fascinating, from bear hunts to oil booms.

Texas Schools Can Count On U.S.D.A. Foods

More than $36.8 million! That's the value of food Texas schools participating in the National School Lunch Program bought from local businesses last year. This represents about 80 percent of the food used at these schools.

Where did the other 20 percent come from? This was food and cash donated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to aid schools in expanding and improving their food service.

Schools can count on a sizable donation this year, too, according to John J. Slaughter, southwest director of Consumer Food Programs. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, Dallas Texas. More than $143 million worth has been bought for schools across the nation thus far. This is already $13 million more than bought all last year.

This amount will include some 436 million pounds of frozen and canned beef, butter, frozen turkeys, cheese, frozen orange juice concentrate, dried eggs and nonfat dry milk.

"Still more will be bought and allocated to schools during the year," Mr. Slaughter said.

Besides giving a boost to school lunches for over 20 million youngsters, the foods will help feed almost 100,000 children getting school breakfasts in a two-year pilot program made possible by the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

In addition, schools may obtain as much as they can effectively use of such food as raisins, peanut butter, flour, rice, shortening, lard, cornmeal and rolled oats.

USDA also has bought $10 million worth of canned fruits and vegetables for schools taking part in the program. These foods are bought specifically to help schools meet high nutritional program standards. These purchases, under authorities of the National School Lunch Act normally total $60 million each school year. So far the special-purchase foods amount to 72 million pounds of canned green beans, peaches, pineapple and peas. Also, USDA has asked for bids to buy sweetpotatoes, tomatoes, frozen cut-up young chickens, canned purple plums and applesauce.

Some 902,000 Texas children ate a total of 148.1 million lunches at school last year.

GO CLASSIFIED

STRENGTH IN RESERVE

The Army Reserve by word is training. Constant readiness is its goal. One of every 200 Americans belongs to the Army Reserve and each of them, whether in units or in the Ready Reserve Mobilization Reinforcement Pool, lives by this word.

Performing double duty, members of the Army Reserve may wear a homburg, or a sombrero, or a steelworker's hard hat, or a bus driver's cap, or any one of a dozen other types of civilian headgear as they go about their daily tasks in civilian life. But, during 48 to 72 training assemblies, many of which take up whole weekends, and two weeks each summer, they doff civilian headgear for Army hats.

More than 700,000 members of the Ready Reserve may change hats this way. The other two categories of the Army Reserve—Standby and Retired—are not so directly affected, although their ranks swell the total number of Army Reservists to more than one million.

The Ready Reserve, first to be called, could be augmented by the Standby and Retired members of the Army Reserve in time of war or other national emergency declared by the Congress.

Army Reserve units are diversified. They total 3,575 and run the gamut from 4-man Judge Advocate General detachments to 5,000-man infantry brigades. In between can be found all types of combat, support and service units. Some highly specialized units are found only in the Army Reserve. Others are identical to active Army units. All of them undergo training constantly to achieve and maintain the levels of military proficiency which make a military unit ready for combat.

MAJ. CORWIN E. HOBENSACK

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas — Maj. Corwin E. Hobensack has assumed duties as chief of Security Police at Sheppard Technical Training Center.

He came to Sheppard from Osan, Korea, where he was Chief of Security Police.

Major Hobensack entered military service in 1943 as an aviation cadet. He trained at the pre-flight center at San Antonio, Tex.; took primary at Corsicana, Tex.; basic at Mojors Field at Greenville, Tex.; and advanced at Altus, Okla. He received his pilot wings in November 1944. He then went to Dyersburg, Tenn., for B-17 transition training and served as a co-pilot in B-17's until he was relieved from active duty in February 1946.

He attended the Atlas missile training program at Sheppard in 1961 and became a combat crew commander of a standby crew at Lincoln, Nebr., where he stayed until the Atlas site was closed down.

He then reentered the Security Police field at Barksdale AFB, La., and then went on to Osan, Korea; his last assignment before coming to Sheppard.

A native of Chillicothe, Ohio, he finished high school there and went to Ohio University branch at Chillicothe for two years.

Among his decorations is the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Drainage Repaired

A picture to tell the reason for repairing the drainage culvert on Old Gulf Road. This bit of culvert could not drain very much rain water from the surface.

Half filled with mud and other debris there was not much room for the passage of rain water in this old piece of culvert removed from Old Gulf Road.

Wednesday, October 11, found these men very busy repairing the badly worn and mud-filled culvert on Old Gulf Road. Dirt was removed and the old pipe replaced with new where required.

HIS TROUBLES WON'T GET HIM DOWN

Forgetting his incapacitation, he is happily determined to plan ahead. His spirit is not easily crushed. Life is always full of hope and excitement. The Lord and this young man's Christian friends have taught him to have such an outlook on life.

"But the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith," Galatians 5:22.

We invite you to attend the church of your choice regularly to worship, to be uplifted, encouraged, and blessed.

Agent News County H-D

The word breakfast probably was coined because breakfast is the first meal of the day. After a night of "fasting," it's time to break the fast.

Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent, recommends an adequate breakfast for all ages. The body needs refueling regularly, and breakfast is the meal that follows the longest stretch of non-eating.

Research has shown that without an adequate breakfast, fatigue sets in earlier, irritability is increased, work output is reduced and all reaction time slows down.

So provide an attractive, tasty and adequate first meal of the day, the home demonstration agent suggests.

The first meal of the day doesn't have to fit standard breakfast patterns. Miss Wirges explains. Try something new.

How about an egg salad sandwich, lean meat or a cheese or peanut butter sandwich? A bowl of hot soup may even tempt you on cool mornings. The breakfast doesn't have to be conventional to be nutritious, says Miss Wirges. Particularly, when it's the difference between eating or skipping this important meal.

Cereal and milk furnish protein and a variety of vitamins and minerals, but they don't need to become monotonous. Try waffles, pancakes, French cinnamon or plain toast, rye or whole wheat bread, toasted cornbread or sweet rolls. Or how about ice cream on cereal to please the youngsters?

If you know your children aren't interested in breakfast, plan a new menu to appeal to them. Maybe they'd like their favorite fresh fruit on cereal—or maybe a hot dog suits their fancy. Just try to see that fruit, cereal and bread or milk—with hearty food like meat, eggs, fish or cheese—are included in some form.

No, potatoes aren't fattening. No food is fattening until your body's need for calories has been met. Surplus food from any source is changed to fat and stored in the body.

Here is how you figure it: One medium sized potato, 5 ounces, supplies 90 calories. This is about the same as a medium sized apple, pear, grapefruit or orange, none of which is considered a high-calorie food.

Added fat and gravy, often served with potatoes, do increase the calorie count considerably. For example, fried potatoes may be two to three times as high in calories as the same weight of boiled or baked potatoes. And the sour cream or butter or margarine added to the baked potato for tastiness add up in the calorie category.

But it's not the potatoes that add pounds, it's the surplus calories from other sources.

WMU Leadership Course To Be Taught Here

A Leadership Course for officers of the WMU will be taught Oct. 18th at 9:30 a.m. in the chapel of the First Baptist Church. The leaders in the study will be Circle Chairman, Mrs. J. C. Hinkle; Secretary, Mrs. J. C. Hinkle; Treasurer, Mrs. John Parrish; Enlistment, Mrs. W. Grounds; Mission Study, Mrs. F. Hunt; Mission in Action, Mrs. R. White; Program, Mrs. B. Sparkman; Stewardship, Mrs. L. Champ; Prayer, Mrs. J. Hays; Sun Beams, Mrs. B. A. Norland and G.A.'s, Mrs. B. Cox.

The women in the circles holding these positions are urged to attend. Others interested are welcome.

Mrs. J. A. Fouts is serving as chairman of the Wichita County Program Building Subcommittee on Foods and Nutrition. Plans made by this committee include all Wichita County homemakers. Announcements and educational information will be made available by this subcommittee in the near future. These can be seen in the county home demonstration agent's weekly news.

Beware of instant flour. There's more in the cup than meets the eye.

When baking with instant flour, take two level tablespoons out of each cup of flour called for by the recipe, says Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent.

A full measure of instant flour in a cake or cookie recipe, designed for regular flour, may alter the shape, texture, and flavor of the final product.

Instant flour is processed with steam or hot water after regular milling to make tiny granules stick together as large particles. This takes up less space in a measuring cup. Therefore, instant flour mixes more rapidly with water without forming lumps and is a handy product for making gravy.

In baking, instant flour weighs more per cup and takes up liquid faster than regular flour, leaving too much flour for the dough in relation to the liquid. For example, in popovers, the butter doesn't contain enough for the product to "pop" properly.

The county home demonstration agent suggests improving the taste and appearance of pastry by adding more fat to the dough. Some companies making instant flour suggest that extra fat be added to the product to help overcome the tendency of instant flour to soak up water.

Although a little extra fat helps, Miss Wirges warns that adding extra water to the dough is not solution. This destroys the proper balance between ingredients and tends to ruin the baked product.

Women Marines were established in 1942 as part of the Marine Corps Reserve and were given permanent military status in 1948.

News From The County Agent

Boll weevil populations remain heavy in many fields in Wichita County. County Agent B. T. Haws advises that early harvest, stalk destruction and plowing under plant debris will reduce the number of boll weevils entering diapause.

By cutting off the food supply of the boll weevil, this insect is not able to build up sufficient fat reserves to enter diapause or will enter diapause in a condition whereby it will be unable to survive the winter. To be most effective the program should cover a wide area.

Stalk destruction as soon as possible after harvest will destroy the source of food for the boll weevil. In situations where there are still squares and small bolls left on the cotton, flail-type shredders will kill a high percentage of the larvae and pupae of the boll weevil that are in the squares and bolls. Plowing under the debris will kill even more of the larvae.

Small grain disease problems can be largely solved by planting seed of resistant varieties or seed which have been treated with a chemical fungicide for disease control.

The treatment process is simple and cheap and excellent insurance against crop losses from seed-borne diseases, reminds county agent B. T. Haws.

Many small grain diseases are caused by organisms carried on the surface of the seed and can be easily controlled. Loose smut of wheat and barley is an exception. The organism causing this disease is carried inside the seed and cannot be controlled by chemicals.

Application of seed treatment fungicides may be made in homemade treaters or by commercial seed treatment plants. Regardless of the equipment used, it is important to get uniform coverage of the seed with recommended amount of the material.

Because all seed treatment chemicals are poison, they should be handled with care. No more seed should be treated than will be planted. Treated seed should be treated then planted. It should never be fed to poultry or livestock or mixed with untreated seed which may be fed or sold. Strict compliance with the label instructions is a must when handling chemicals.

Winter temporary pastures are a dependable source of green grazing for livestock in the late fall, winter and early spring.

Green grazing, points out the county agent, puts more pounds on beef cattle, increases milk production from dairy cattle and reduces hay, grain and veterinary bills.

More than one variety of small grain should be planted, if maximum grazing is needed. Adapted early types of rye, barley and oats may provide grazing four to six weeks earlier than cold-resistant winter types; however, they usually do not give sustained production through the winter, says Haws.
