Shooting occurs near SO

A local woman turned a small caliber weapon on herself in front of the Scurry County sheriff's office Thursday morning, wounding herself in the stomach.

Undergoing treatment at the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room around 10:45 a.m. was Glenda Arriola. Hospital personnel say she was expected to be transferred to Lubbock later in the day.

She was wounded by a single shot from a .22 cal. pistol. The nature of her wound was not thought to be life threatening, local officials say.

Sheriff's deputies report the woman and her female roommate apparently drove up in a vehicle and stopped in front of the sheriff's office shortly before 9:45 a.m.

The first indication of a problem came when the roommate came into the building and told

Three jurors added

After being stalemated since last week, three jurors were chosen in 132nd District Court Wednesday for the trial of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr.

The selection Wednesday included two men and one woman. It marked the first jurors selected since last Thursday, when the fourth juror--and the first male--was seated.

Wednesday's action brings the total of jurors chosen for duty to seven including four women and three men.

Interviews with prospective jurors resumed Thursday morning with two completed before noon. Neither were chosen for duty.

To date, 56 of the 117 prospective jurors who filled out questionnaires Oct. 13 have been interviewed by attorneys.

The individual interviews will continue until 14 persons are selected for the trial.

Saudi government fires oil minister

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia today dismissed Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani after a quarter century in office. Analysts worldwide predicted a temporary oil price decline and realignment in OPEC's balance of power.

The official Saudi Press Agency, in a terse statement issued before dawn, gave no reason for Yamani's dismissal, but said he had been replaced by Planning Minister Hisham Nazer.

Nazer, considered a key minister in this kingdom of 11 million people, is thought to have close ties to the royal family. He was the first Saudi representative on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Country's board of governors in 1961, and was deputy oil minister under Yamani for several years in the 1960s.

Saudi Arabia is the world's largest oil exporter. Oil analysts said Yamani's dismissal could cause a short-term decline in oil prices because of uncertainty about the new minister.

In The Netherlands, heating oil prices on the Rotterdam spot market fell slightly this morning, but recovered by early afternoon to about $14-$15 per barrel. One analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity, called the early declines an "emotional, knee-jerk reaction" to the Saudi news.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for December delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were sharply higher. The price of a 44-gallon barrel opened at $13.90 and quickly moved to $14.17, 44 cents above Wednesday's $13.73 close.

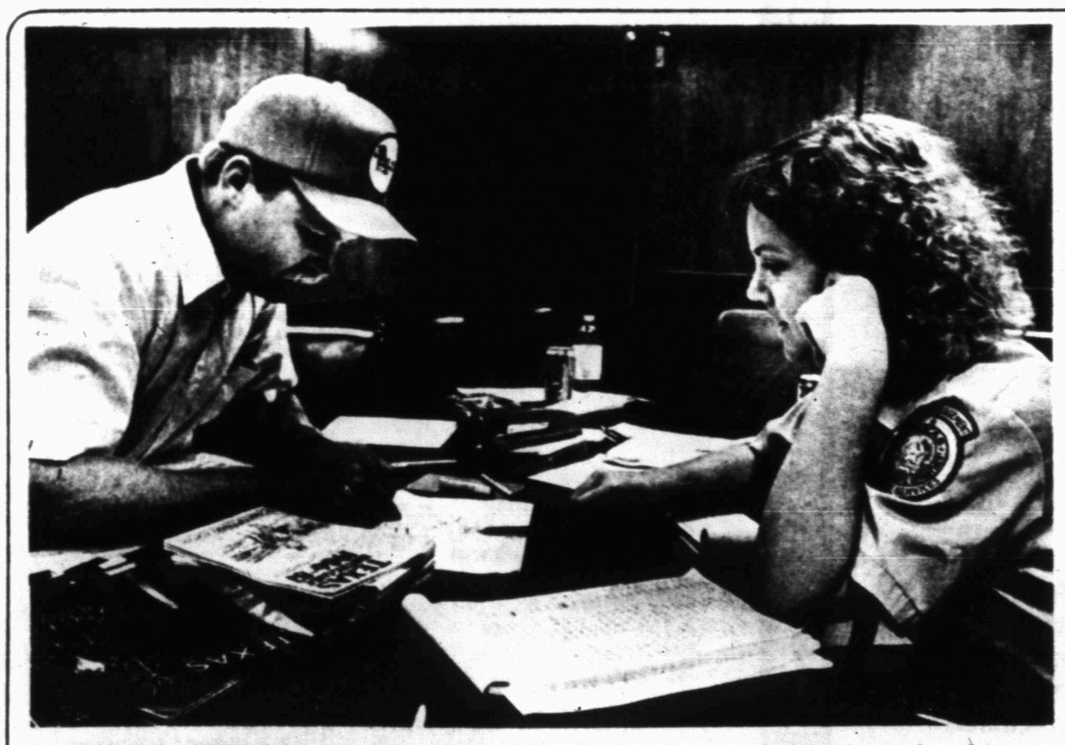

"Everybody's expecting a change in Saudi oil policy," said Edward Dellamonte, an analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "Probably we're going to see a more moderate policy, more conciliatory to the other OPEC members, and probably a return to Saudi Arabia's being a swing producer."

Oil executives in Japan who spoke on condition of anonymity also said Nazer's appointment might signal a new conciliatory stance toward Saudi Arabia's opponents in OPEC, such as Iran. However, analysts elsewhere predicted no significant change in Saudi policies.

There had been rumors the 56-year-old Yamani — a commoner who uses the honorific title sheik — was ill and at odds with the royal family, and that King Fahd was making key oil policy decisions in recent months.

In Paris, the Saudi interior minister, Prince Naif bin Abdulaziz, told reporters, "There is nothing surprising about it and I don't think there is one particular reason (for it). ... Sheik Yamani did his work. He exercised his functions as minister who carried out the policies of his country."

Naif, concluding a four-day visit, said there would be no change in Saudi Arabia's oil policy. "Our oil policy is not tied to a change in men," he said.

Hunting seasons approach

The issuance of white-tailed anterless deer permits for Scurry County Wednesday marked the approach of deer hunting season for most sportsmen beginning one week from Saturday. The regular season in Texas runs Nov. 8-Jan. 4.

In addition, the quail hunting season statewide opens this Saturday and will continue through Feb. 22; and the fall turkey season for Scurry County opens Nov. 8 through Jan. 4.

Dove season, which opened Sept. 1, is set to close here Nov. 9.

The archery season for deer is already underway, opening Oct. 4 and due to end this Sunday.

The limit for white-tailed deer is one buck. Doe or anterless deer may be taken only with a permit.

Caption rule due balloting

(Editor's Note: This marks the second in a series of four articles outlining constitutional amendment proposals which will be decided by Texas voters during the General Election Tuesday.)

The second amendment proposal on next Tuesday's ballot would alter requirements which state that the subject of a bill before the Texas Legislature must be expressed in its title.

The amendment would change the stipulation regarding title from a "constitutional rule" to a "constitutionally required rule of procedure."

In effect, the change would eliminate the possibility that legally the bill might be struck down because of a "defective" title.

In addition, the amendment

Transfer announced for local TESCO rep

Phil Fortune, Texas Electric Service Company customer service representative, has been transferred to the company's Graham office where he will become a customer services and operations supervisor.

Fortune, who came here in 1968, joined TESCO in July of 1961 as a meter reader in Colorado City. Six years later, he transferred to Sweetwater where he served as a customer representative for one year before moving to Snyder.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One reason to diet is the fact that figures don't lie."

Tomorrow night, Snyder takes on the defending Class AAAA state champions when the Tigers travel to Sweetwater on Halloween night.

We noticed in the Sweetwater newspaper that residents would observe trick or treating on Thursday instead of Friday. That might be an idea to add to our game plan.

Coaches often like to change jersey numbers in order to confuse the opposition. We might suggest that our costumes have no numbers at all, and the coaching staff could wear masks on the sideline.

And our game plan could include all tricks, and no treats. See in you Sweetwater.

If you're looking for a store that sells Halloween costumes, look under boo-tique.

Halloween hoopla is no longer just for kids, and retailers say the day has become a "national Mardi Gras." Halloween is as good as any if adults are looking for an excuse to have a party.

Industry folks believe that one out of every four adults between the ages of 18 and 40 will wear a costume this Halloween. Rental stores in major cities are reporting block-long lines waiting to get costumes.

Costumes with the most demand are high-priced detail costumes renting up to $150 a night. Japanese outfits complete with black robe and imitation sword are big with men.

Women like more feminine attire like a French court costume or sexy witch outfit.

There is also a trend to dressing like vegetables. This year, masks are out and Tina Turner wigs are in.

The more enterprising costume companies also have something for the expectant mother. There's a roomy costume that looks like a rabbit popping out of a hat.

If we paid $150 for a costume, we'd have to go to the game disguised as a banker.

In Brief

No deal made

PARIS (AP) — The French government today denied a published report that, aided by Syria and Algeria, it negotiated a truce with a Lebanese terrorist clan implicated in a wave of bombings in Paris.

France has "no contact, no negotiations with terrorists," said Denis Baudouin, a spokesman for Premier Jacques Chirac. "We categorically deny it."

Syrian officials said the secret services of the two countries are cooperating to prevent terrorist attacks in France.

The French interior minister said the two countries planned to cooperate on security matters in the future.

The Snyder city council was to gather at noon Thursday for an information session related to Monday's regular November meeting.

They were to gather at K-Bob's.

ISD break-in

Scurry County sheriff's deputies are investigating a burglary of the Hermleigh school discovered Thursday morning.

Investigators said someone apparently entered the school by forcing open a door on the north side of the building sometime Wednesday night.

Deputies said that an undetermined amount of money — estimated to be over $100 — was taken from a safe in the school office.

Spook House

The Scurry County Vietnam Veterans will sponsor a Spook House Thurday and Friday beginning at 6 p.m. at Clark's Country Kitchen, 2403½ 25th St.

Admission will be 50 cents for grade school aged children and $1 for junior high students and up.

Party slated

The American Legion Women's Auxiliary Unit 181 is sponsoring a Halloween Party for children from 6:30-9 p.m. Friday at the American Legion Hall, 1802 Avenue R.

Refreshments will be served and activities will include a spook house, costume contest with prizes to be awarded, fortune teller, and games.

Admission is free and all children are invited.

Falklands...

Fishing extension is rejected

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina and Britain both promised to use force if necessary to assert what they claim to be their rights to waters around the Falkland Islands, the scene of a war between the two countries in 1982.

Britain on Wednesday declared a 200-mile fishing zone around the islands, which it retook from Argentine occupation forces after a 10-week battle that killed about 1,000 men.

Argentine President Raul Alfonsin rejected the British move as a provocation and an encroachment on Argentine sovereignty.

The Falklands sit about 300 miles off the southern Argentine coast. The new British fishing zone, which previously was three miles, overlaps Argentine territorial waters.

Alfonsin, after meeting Wednesday with government and military leaders, said Britain's declaration would "cause serious tensions and conflicts, with consequences as yet unforseeable."

A government communique said Argentina favors a negotiated settlement of the Falklands issue, but added that it "will not allow the arbitrary attempt by the United Kingdom to exercise powers that conflict with Argentina and to take away areas and resources that pertain to the national patrimony."

Britain said it took the measure because of failure to reach agreement with Argentina on fishing rights and because of what it called Argentina's "aggressive patrolling" of the disputed waters. London said fishing restrictions, including licensing requirements, would be strictly enforced within 150 miles of the islands.

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe, announcing the new zone to the House of Commons, said Britain might "use armed force in appropriate circumstances" to protect its rights.

The waters are exploited by a number of foreign fleets, some of which have worked out accords with Buenos Aires allowing them to fish in the disputed zone.

MIA's remains laid to rest after 14 years

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Elizabeth Castillo raised six children alone for 14 years while awaiting word of her husband, who was shot down over Laos in 1972.

Air Force Lt. Col. Richard Castillo finally returned. He was buried in Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery Wednesday with full military honors.

"It's both sorrow and joy," Mrs. Castillo said. "Sorrow that he's gone, but joy that he's finally home."

Castillo was an infrared sensor operator on an AC-130 Spectre gunship shot down by a surface-to-air missile over Savannakhet Province, Laos. He was one of a crew of 14, all of whom were lost.

"If it weren't for men like Richard, the world would not be like it is today," said Monsignor Mark Deering, who celebrated Mass at Randolph Air Force Base Chapel No. 1.

Representatives from Missing In Action-Prisoner Of War organizations all over Texas, including the Alamo Area Vietnam Veterans, attended the funeral. Some came in uniform; others wore badges proclaiming their affiliations.

Mrs. Castillo was left alone with six children — the youngest was almost 2 and the oldest was 9 when their father left — never knowing if her husband was dead or alive.

The Air Force declared Castillo dead in 1979, but offered no proof. Mrs. Castillo, who did not believe he was dead, never remarried.

Dear Abby

Blondes Get Mixed Review In This High-Flying Survey

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: While flying from Tampa to Los Angeles recently, I read an article in USA Today concerning the old theory that gentlemen prefer blondes. According to a recent survey in which 1,000 men were polled, over one-third said that they prefer blondes, brunettes were a close second, and redheads trailed. I decided to do my own mini-survey aboard Northwest Airlines Flight 1, so I dashed off this note on my Dear Abby stationery:

Fellow passengers: For years we've heard that gentlemen prefer blondes. Do they really? Please let me know how you feel about that age-old theory. You need not sign your name, but please indicate the city of your residence. Thank you! — ABBY

I sent the note to the two gentlemen in the cockpit first. Here are some responses:

DEAR ABBY: Blondes are not my preference. The color of the hair does not matter to me; it's what is under the hair that counts. I prefer an intelligent woman, personable, feminine, with a sense of humor and one who is knowledgeable about current events. In my work I meet many women — flight attendants, pilots and passengers. They are wonderful! Many surprise me with their depth and intelligence. Others open their mouths and their brains fall out.

YOUR CAPTAIN,
RICK OSBORNE

DEAR ABBY: I always take a second look at a blonde, particularly if she's wearing dark clothes. I can't say that I really prefer blondes, but I tend to notice them more, simply because they stand out from the crowd.

GARY BERG, CO-PILOT

DEAR ABBY: Speaking as a brunette (former blonde), I don't believe gentlemen prefer blondes. Although the fair-haired beauties are more conspicuous and attract more attention initially, what men really prefer is a woman with a charismatic personality.

SALLY TRELAND, FLIGHT ATTENDANT

DEAR ABBY: I do not prefer blondes. In fact, I have always had an aversion to obviously dyed hair, and unfortunately, the majority of blondes seem to have become blondes via that route.

ED SIEGEL,
PALM BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I prefer brunettes. I had better; I've been married to one for 20 years. But I have to admit if I am walking behind a blonde, particularly one with long hair, she arouses my curiosity more so than a brunette would.

STAN OLSON,
PALM HARBOR, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: As a native Japanese gentleman, my preference is naturally for dark-haired women. Perhaps it is because we tend to be more trusting of the familiar.

N.T., TOKYO

DEAR ABBY: After considerable experience, I definitely do not prefer blondes!

SHERMAN C. VOGEL,
FREEPORT, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I believe that most men, given a choice, really do prefer blondes, but only if they appear to be natural blondes. Men are greatly turned off by women with bright yellow, obviously dyed hair. It looks cheap.

J. FROM ST. PETERSBURG

DEAR ABBY: Living in the Scandinavian capital of the U.S.A. (Minnesota), where blue-eyed blondes run rampant, I may not be qualified to answer, but I think a gentleman may be attracted to a blonde the same way he would be attracted to a girl in a gold lame gown. There is something flashy about both.

ANONYMOUS, MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: You asked the wrong man. My wife is sitting right beside me and, as you can see, she is a natural redhead. She also has a fiery temper to match, so naturally this gentleman definitely wouldn't look twice at a blonde.

R.L., LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: I married a brunette and have never asked her to change the color of her hair, which should be sufficient proof that this man does not prefer blondes.

G.H., TAMPA

Judge orders witnesses to testify

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge has ordered two witnesses to testify before a grand jury investigating the alcohol poisoning death of a University of Texas fraternity pledge.

Judge Bob Perkins' order came Wednesday, after prosecutors agreed to grant a kind of immunity to UT students Mariella Krause and Deric Weiss.

Prosecutors said the two students were riding in a van with Mark Seeberger, a UT freshman and a pledge in the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, on Sept. 17, when he is believed to have drunk a lethal amount of rum.

Seeberger's body was found the next morning in his dormitory room.

The investigation by a Travis County grand jury, along with separate investigations by UT and the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, has centered on whether Seeberger drank voluntarily or if he was forced as part of a fraternity hazing activity.

Area Extension Homemakers clubs gathered at the Coliseum Tuesday for the annual Craft Day.

Attendance for the craft demonstrations and luncheon included 78 members and guests, the largest group ever recorded for the event.

"Memories from the Past" was the theme chosen for the day. Items of interest included homechurned butter, taffy pulling, stenciling, bonnet making, fashions from the past, quilting and weaving.

Luncheon dishes featured many recipes from the past. A recipe booklet was handed out to those in attendance.

Bridge

James Jacoby

It's no secret that, if each trick lost by sloppy defense since bridge began were one floor of a skyscraper, that tower of lost tricks would reach to the moon. Because that's true, it's easy for a declarer to be lulled into a false sense of security when it looks as if a defender may be making a mistake. That's when it pays to know the name and background of the careless defender.

Our declarer at four hearts took the diamond ace and played the Q-K-A of hearts as defender East threw a low club and a low diamond. South then gave up a heart to West's jack as East let go another low club. Of course declarer had kept all five spades in dummy, hoping that the defenders would try to cash two diamond tricks. He could then ruff the third diamond and perhaps run five spade tricks for an overtrick. Sure enough, West led a diamond to East's queen, and dummy was now down to the K-8 of clubs and the five spades. And now East, the "careless" defender, played a third round of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, throwing dummy's low club, and then tried to run the spade suit. Unfortunately East's four spades to the jack prevented the suit from running, and now poor South had to lose two club tricks and go set in his game contract.

The East defender was Alan Sontag, winner of numerous North American championships and one World Team Championship, who would never have failed to lead a club back unless he knew that the spades were not splitting.

Several causes for nightmares

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband is in his early 70s and is a large, healthy, active man. Every few months, he has nightmares for several nights in a row. They are so bad that he gets very violent and I have to get out of bed. Sometimes he remembers them; sometimes he doesn't. He's a moderate drinker and takes a diuretic for high blood pressure. I don't know where to start looking for help.

DEAR READER — Nightmares often are ways in which we try subconsciously to deal with stressful situations. However, alcohol and some medicines can make these dreams worse. Ask your husband to stop drinking for a while and see if he is less troubled by nightmares. At the same time, make sure that his doctor is aware of the problem; perhaps a medication change is in order.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband was diagnosed as having cryptitis. Wyanoid suppositories don't seem to help much, and sometimes he has bleeding. Can this condition become cancerous?

DEAR READER — Crypts, or crevices, often form in the lining of the anal area. When these become inflamed or chronically infected, cryptitis results. Antibiotics often will cure the ailment, although surgery is sometimes necessary to remove infected tissue. The condition does not, to my knowledge, lead to malignancy.

DEAR DR. GOTT — One of my breasts is twice as large as the other. This makes it difficult to buy clothes and has given me low self-esteem. How common is this, and can it be fixed?

DEAR READER — To a degree, my answer depends on your age and whether you are male or female.

In a developing adolescent, breast growth can be asymmetrical. Eventually, the other breast will catch up, so if the girl is patient, the situation should resolve itself.

In adult women, disparate breast sizes can be a problem. Although a woman's breasts are seldom identical, the problem — if severe — may require the services of a plastic surgeon. If one breast has grown progressively larger, I would worry about the possibility of a breast tumor. In this circumstance, a doctor should examine the breasts to make sure that a growth is not present.

In adult men, breast enlargement is always abnormal. Certain glandular tumors can cause men's breasts to grow, but in my experience, the most common reason for male gynecomastia (breast growth) is medicine. Many drugs have the potential to produce breast enlargement.

In summary, you should see a doctor who will examine you and make specific recommendations.

Texas cuts cash to higher education

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is one of only five states that cut higher education appropriations for this school year and ranks next-to-last in how well it treated colleges and universities compared with two years ago.

Those were among the findings in an annual survey published Wednesday in the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Higher education leaders in Texas said the survey underreported the state's appropriations, and they cautioned that the diverse funding methods among the states can make comparisons difficult, if not impossible.

But they do not dispute that the state has one of the poorest showings in the degree to which support for higher education has increased or decreased since 1984.

"I don't think there is any question that Texas is at the bottom in terms of support for higher education," Kenneth Ashworth, Texas commissioner of higher education, told the Austin American-Statesman.

"Unfortunately, (the survey) is accurate on that," he added. "But there is a dispute over the magnitude of the problem."

University of Texas President William Cunningham said he had expected the survey to show Texas at the bottom in the amount of support relative to two years ago and said that "makes it much harder for us to recruit the outstanding faculty."

"This is the second year in a row that we've been listed as either 49th or 50th in increased support for higher education," Cunningham said. "We cannot build a world-class university with this pattern of funding."

The annual survey, compiled since the late 1950s by the Illinois State University Center for Higher Education, is one of several regular national studies that help form public opinion on how well states support colleges and universities.

Woman convicted on all six counts

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Jurors convicted a woman on all six counts of aggravated sexual assault and indecency with a child in incidents involving three of her young students at an El Paso YMCA day-care center.

The jury handed down its verdict Wednesday and was to deliberate today on the punishment for Gayle Stickler Dove, 42. She faces up to life in prison on each of the three aggravated assault counts and 20 years on each of the indecency charges.

Parents who packed State District Judge Sam Callan's courtroom to hear the verdict were admonished by Assistant District Attorney Debra Kanof to show no emotion before jurors.

The parents, some of them weeping, filed from the courtroom and headed directly for the witness room, where they remained until Mrs. Dove left the courthouse.

Neither videotaped interviews with the abused children or the youths themselves were brought into the courtroom.

Such videotapes were used in the March trial of Mrs. Dove's co-defendant, Michelle Noble, who was found guilty and sentenced to life in prison.

"Motive has been shown to you. You know what's going on here," Ms. Kanof said. "We have mean and vicious people here molesting children and they're smart."

Because of the extensive media coverage of Noble's trial in El Paso, Mrs. Dove's trial was moved to Amarillo.

Wet weather helps slightly

BIG SPRING--Despite slightly less water sales due to unduly wet weather, the Colorado River Municipal Water district is less than one per cent off estimated revenues for the first three-quarters of the year. Revenues totaled $9,966,170.

On the other hand operating expenses of $4,904,848 were $933,357 less than budgeted, principally a 20.12 savings in power costs which amounted to $3,098,905. However which rebates of $221,303 for fuel adjustments is considered, the percentage of under-run on power drops to 7.67 percent.

Sales were based on delivery of 1,113,883,390 gallons in September and 14,684,933,770 gallons of water for the nine months. Of the three-quarter total, 11.50 percent came from wells, 78.72 from lakes, and 9.78 in diverted or unpotable water sold to oil companies.

Net gain during September amounted to 33,789 ac. ft. at Lake E. V. Spence, making 244,990 ac. ft. in storage. Lake Thomas increases for the month was 19,152 ac. ft. making 48,665 ac. ft. in storage. Together the two lakes had 293,655 ac. ft. or 42.39 percent of capacity.

Sun said linked to decline of ozone

NEW YORK (AP) — A new analysis of satellite observations suggests that the sun, not artificial chemicals, is responsible for the potentially dangerous depletion of ozone in the atmosphere, says a report published today.

An unusually intense peak of solar activity that ended in late 1979 and early 1980 triggered a cascade of chemical changes that led to a global decline in atmospheric ozone levels and a pronounced depletion over Antarctica, the report says.

Now that the sun's activity has subsided, the ozone may be returning, said one of the authors, Linwood B. Callis of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., in an interview Wednesday.

He said he has found satellite data suggesting a climb in ozone levels this year, lagging by several years, as expected, behind the decline in the intense solar activity.

If the solar theory of ozone destruction turns out to be correct, Callis said, "this will be the first indication that a solar cycle can have such a major effect on the atmosphere."

Ozone, an ionized form of oxygen, in the upper atmosphere shields the Earth's surface from some of the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation.

Interest in changes in the ozone level has intensified in recent months following the discovery of the ozone depletion, or "ozone hole," over Antarctica, suggesting that atmospheric ozone destruction may be more severe than previously realized.

Some researchers have suggested that the ozone destruction is due primarily to pollutants, including the chlorofluorocarbons used as refrigerants and aerosol propellants.

Callis's analysis of satellite observations shows increases of up to 75 percent in nitrogen dioxide in the stratosphere between 1979 and 1984, he said.

The nitrogen dioxide was formed by solar energy, and led to the formation of other nitrogen compounds known to promote ozone destruction, Callis said.

The study, by Callis in collaboration with Murali Natarajan of SASC Technologies in Hampton, appeared in the British scientific journal Nature.

If atmospheric ozone continued to diminish, the increased ultraviolet radiation that would reach the Earth's surface could change weather patterns and climate, affect plant growth and increase the incidence of skin cancer, Callis said.

Changes in ozone in the lower stratosphere could also contribute to the so-called greenhouse effect, a gradual warming of the Earth attributed primarily to an increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide, which traps the sun's heat, he said.

Grand jury finishes probe into slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Grand jurors concluded their probe into the shooting death of a police officer who allegedly committed vigilante acts over a three- or four-year period without returning additional indictments.

The jury ended its eight-week probe Wednesday into the Aug. 18 shooting death of Stephen Smith by fellow police officer Farrell Tucker. It indicted Tucker last week on a charge of murder.

Tucker claims the shooting was in self-defense and that Smith had threatened to kill other police officials.

Sources told the San Antonio Light that grand jurors walked away from their investigation concluding the city had a troubled, but fundamentally sound, police department.

But the jurors identified several management problems they believe must be solved to restore confidence in the police, sources said. It was those problems that were outlined for Mayor Henry Cisneros in his appearance before the panel last week.

Among them were that:

— The police psychologist must carry out conflicting roles — counselor on the one hand, evaluator with the power to recommend suspensions on the other.

— Undermanned patrols place officers on the street in stressful situations alone.

— An imbalance of power between the city manager's office, police management, the police union and the Fire-Police Civil Service Commission.

Parts cause war between automakers and companies

NEW YORK (AP) — Automakers once were the sole source of sheet-metal "crash parts," such as fenders and hoods. But the monopoly is gone, and competition has caused a collision of its own in the auto repair business.

Today, replacement sheet-metal parts might come from Taiwan, Italy or Brazil. Automakers don't like it. Neither do body shops. But the insurance companies love it.

And the consumer, who assumes he's getting a fender from Ford or Chrysler or Toyota, might instead be getting one from a tiny overseas factory. The only way to know is to ask. If the customer prefers the automaker's part, his insurance company might require him or his auto shop to pay the difference in the bill.

Insurance companies have embraced the cheaper overseas replacement parts, insisting that body shops use them to keep costs down. Body shops and carmakers complain about what they say is the poor quality of the cheaper parts.

About $4 billion worth of sheet-metal replacement parts are used annually, said Edward Molkenbuhr of ADP Collision Estimating Services, a computer service used by insurance adjusters. So the flap over parts has high stakes.

Consumers are largely unaware of the battle, but are caught in the middle.

"The customer is being ripped off in many instances because he doesn't know what has been installed in his vehicle," said Kenneth Myers, product and marketing manager of Ford's parts and service division.

Ford Motor Co. has been particularly aggressive in opposing the overseas parts. The company has run a series of advertisements and distributed 65,000 posters attacking the quality of the "imitations."

But G. Robert Mecherle of State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., which led the insurance industry support of overseas parts, says the competition is driving the cost of replacement parts down, reducing insurance costs.

"We represent the insurance consumer," he said. "We're trying to hold down the cost of repairs. We've seen the prices come down almost a third. We've seen $300 bumper covers come down to slightly over $100.

"This thing has really turned into a war now. All bets are off as to where the market is going, where the price is going."

But Allen Richey, executive director of the Independent Automotive Service Association, an association of repair shops, says consumers will never see lower costs.

"The insurance companies say they'll pass the savings on to the car owner. I don't see that happening. I think it's going to increase the profits of the insurance companies, pure and simple," he said.

And Richey says the quality of the cut-rate parts is awful.

"In too many instances, they've never been tested, or undercoated, or protected from corrosion or anything of that sort," he said.

Myers said Ford tested some of the cut-rate parts and found they didn't pass the company's 500-hour salt spray test, which simulates five years of weathering.

Convenience Banking?

What's So Convenient About:

PAYING higher interest on your loans?

EARNING LESS interest on your savings?

PAYING HIGHER service costs at banks?

LOSING local control over banking?

SACRIFICING service to the big banks' benefit?

YOU WILL HEAR A LOT FROM THE SO-CALLED CONVENIENCE BANKERS ABOUT PROPOSITION FOUR BUT YOU PROBABLY WILL NOT HEAR THIS:

The big banks of Texas hope to create a bank monopoly at your expense. Proposition Four has disguised branch banking as "full service banking." Whatever they call it — Branch Banking is a bad idea for Texas, and Texans will end up footing the bill for the big Texas bank holding companies to get bigger.

You especially don't want this to happen now since the Texas Legislature just passed a law permitting the large banks of New York City to purchase some or all of the large Texas bank holding companies. Not only can this legally happen now, but is almost certain to take place in the immediate future.

For all these years, Texans have never wanted or allowed the big banks of New York City to own and control the Texas Banking Industry. We are sure that this position by the people of Texas still has never changed.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED REDUCTION IN AT&T's TEXAS RATES

The Public Utility Commission of the state of Texas has entered orders in two recent cases that would substantially reduce the charges which AT&T pays to the state's local telephone companies and which could allow AT&T to reduce prices for most of AT&T's customers on calls placed within the state of Texas.

The total amount of the reduction to AT&T's customers is expected to be between $115.3 million and $120.6 million. This is in addition to the $19.8 million reduction in AT&T's Texas basic long distance prices that went into effect on March 1, 1986 and is in addition to the approximately $2 billion in AT&T interstate price reductions that took effect earlier this year.

If the changes are approved, all of AT&T's direct dialed long distance, directory assistance, WATS and 800 service customers would be affected, and would experience a decrease in their prices for these services when calling within the state of Texas. The following tables show the anticipated impact of the changes on AT&T customers by service category.

Class of Service	Approximate Overall % Reduction	Approximate Overall Dollar Reduction (in millions)
Long Distance	9.2	$ 68.4
Directory Assistance	20.0	1.0
WATS	29.1	29.7
800	19.9	21.5

The rate reductions are presently anticipated to occur in two phases on or about October 22, 1986 and November 12, 1986. The matter has been assigned as Docket Nos. 6926 and 7113. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf. A complete copy of the tariffs reflecting the potential rate reductions will be on file with the Commission on or before October 23, 1986.

Likely loss of family farm is causing woman to despair

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — May Hess says she hasn't been able to sleep well since she learned she may lose the farm her family has owned since the 1950s.

"My heart's broke," said the 68-year-old woman, who has sought help from country singer Willie Nelson's Farm Aid and the Texas Farm Crisis Hot Line. "I'm totally disgusted with everything. You see, I won't have any place to keep my cows. It would completely wipe me out."

Mrs. Hess said she promised her mother she would never let the 80-acre farm slip out of the family.

But on Friday she received a letter from an attorney for the State Bank of Omaha, 40 miles southeast of Mount Pleasant. The letter said the bank would foreclose on her land if she didn't pay the more than $30,000 plus interest owed the bank on a past due loan in 10 days.

Texas Department of Agriculture officials say Mrs. Hess isn't alone. One of every six farmers and ranchers in the state say they plan to leave the business. In the last three years, about 5,900 fulltime grain, cotton, peanut and rice farmers quit for financial reasons.

"It's a situation where we've done every possible thing to help," said Randy Moore, board chairman of the Omaha bank. "It's not that we don't intend to keep on and on. But the bank examiners have less patience than we do.

"This land is something I've had for years," Mrs. Hess said, standing on her piece of property about 110 miles east of Dallas. "To my mother, this was almost heaven down here. She said, 'Don't ever sell it.' I won't."

Mrs. Hess says she hasn't slept since she realized she may lose the land.

"I don't know who to talk to anymore," Mrs. Hess said. "I don't know who my friends are anymore. I thought the people at the bank were my friends, but now I don't know."

Bank officials said they had no choice. Bank regulators will force them to foreclose if they don't get their money, they said.

"There are certain rules that regulators expect you to operate under," Clint Moore, the bank's assistant vice president, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Sooner or later, a note's got to be paid or the interest has to be paid," he said. "Let's put it that way."

Mrs. Hess posted her land as collateral when she borrowed $16,000 from the Omaha bank three years ago to pay some of her brother's medical bills and some of her property taxes.

She said she planned to use the cows to raise money for payments. She says she kept up with at least the interest until three months ago when the bank wanted a $4,000 payment.

At that time, she contacted the Farm Aid office and the Austin-based Texas Farm Crisis Hot Line became involved earlier this month.

Rules will restrict reporters news organizations claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — New restrictions in the Freedom of Information Act designed to protect criminal investigations will make it easier for government agencies to withhold documents from public view, news organizations say.

The changes were included in a $1.7 billion anti-drug bill signed by President Reagan on Monday in response to law enforcement complaints that investigations have been compromised by FOIA requests filed by sophisticated criminal organizations.

Reagan, when he signed the bill, said the changes "substantially broaden the law enforcement exemptions in the act" and will "considerably enhance the ability of federal law enforcement agencies ... to combat drug offenders and other criminals."

Lawmakers supporting the changes said the new restrictions on law enforcement records, which took effect upon signing, would protect criminal investigations while not affecting the news media's use of the law.

News organizations, however, are skeptical.

"We view it as a small net loss on the law enforcement provision," said Richard M. Schmidt Jr., general counsel for the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He added that news organizations see a "small net gain" on the issue of fees, because the law would hold down and allow more waivers of fees for those requesting government records and documents. The provision takes effect in six months.

"But our attitude has been from the beginning that the Freedom of Information Act, while not perfect, is working and therefore why mess with it," he said.

The change news organizations are most concerned about is one that broadens the circumstances under which government agencies can withhold information that would reveal the existence of a criminal investigation.

The statute previously allowed agencies to withhold documents by showing the disclosure "would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy." The new law says a request can be denied if it "could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy." The word "would" also is replaced by "could reasonably be expected" in other instances.

Another provision allows agencies to refuse requests without confirming or denying the existence of the records sought. That provision also applies to FBI records on foreign intelligence or counterintelligence.

In addition, law enforcement records under an informant's name would not be released unless "the informant's status as an informant has been officially confirmed."

Law enforcement officials have complained that FOI exposure has compromised investigations when information has been released and when, in withholding documents, the existence of files were confirmed.

Sideline glances...

No stickers at least in John's front yard

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

I've got a lot of enthusiasm for sports, I really do.

My father is a University of Texas ex and that ought to say enough right there. He also played quarterback for Stamford High School years ago.

My first cousin, Mike McClellan, was all-state for the Bulldogs. He went on to play for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Obviously, I didn't inherit the talent, just the enthusiasm. That enthusiasm led to a lot of bumps and bruises on John Ratliff's front lawn. The bumps and bruises were on me, not the lawn.

We'd play in John's front yard because his was the only one that didn't have stickers. Ours had an ant bed, a scrungy mesquite tree with branches about eye-level to a 10 year-old - and stickers. It was definitely out.

Every weekend in the fall, a bunch of kids from the neighborhood got together and walked a half-mile to John's.

Nowdays, it's all I'll do to walk around the yard long enough to get the grass mowed. Back then, though, we didn't mind it at all. In fact, one of my best memories is walking the mile home from the State Theater after watching Tarzan, Jungle Gym or a couple of westerns. We'd six-gun or spear each other to death a hundred times on the way back to the end of Hudson Road.

When we'd get to John's and began to choose sides, I'd try to find a way to get on the same team with Mark Bader. I'd choose Bader because he could run the fastest, throw the farthest and catch the best. He'd choose me because I lived next door to him and he thought it was the proper thing to do. Friends.

Actually, I was something of a commodity. I was the only kid our age that could hike the ball in a spiral.

That was important, because we were way ahead of our time back then in Stamford. We were using the shotgun when Roger Staubach was a junior in high school. A good snap from center was essential and my prowess afforded at least a little respect.

Also, I was an offensive tactition.

Don't laugh now. It's true. I used to go every Friday night to watch the Bulldogs play - in town and out - and it fascinated me. I'd spend a good portion of class time the next week designing plays. Of course, it was different making up plays for John's front yard. There were the bushes to consider, plus you didn't know if eight or 15 kids would show up on Saturday. So, most of the offense was built around single pass patterns and things like that.

I'd write up the plays during Mrs. Terry's reading class, crumple them up into a ball, drop them on the floor and kick them over to Bader. He'd drop his pencil, pick it and the paper up, and take a look. Occasionally, we'd get intercepted by Mrs. Terry.

Getting intercepted by Mrs. Terry wasn't a problem. She couldn't understand what all those X's and O's and arrows and stuff were so she'd just shake her head. I'm sure today she probably believes Bader and I are sexual perverts, or worse.

Anyway, our best play was a copy (though we didn't know it at the time) of the hook and lateral play. That's where the receiver hooks back to catch the pass, then laterals the ball to someone just before the defense can tackle him.

It worked great because no one ever covered me. They knew I was so slow that if I caught a pass, they could two-below me before any serious damage was done, you see.

Only they didn't count on the hook and lateral. We scored three touchdowns before the defense could adjust. When it did, Bader would simply fake like he was going to pass, and run the other way. They couldn't catch him if he got around the pecan tree. He knew it. They knew it.

Eventually, though, they figured it out. Just knock the little center on his rear everytime he hikes the ball. And that's how I got a lot of bumps and bruises on John's yard.

Not really on the yard. On me. I'm sure glad John's yard didn't have stickers.

And now, to less important things. Predictions. Last week I was 27-10 for .730. The season is 209-93 or .692. On with the picks...

Snyder at Sweetwater: If Snyder pulls off the upset it won't bother me a bit, but I'd wouldn't be picking honestly if I didn't go...MUSTANGS 28, SNYDER 14.

Andrews at Lake View: It's a tossup, I guess, but go with the Chiefs at home...LAKE VIEW 21, ANDREWS 14.

Monahans at Big Spring: Okay, so maybe the Steers are for real...BIG SPRING 27, MONAHANS 21.

Pecos at Lamesa: The Eagles have lost a couple of tough ones in a row. Lamesa pays...PECOS 31, LAMESA 14.

Highland at Ira: This one could be for a playoff berth...BULLDOGS 28, HORNETS 22.

Blackwell at Hermleigh: The Cardinals came close last week. Maybe they can pull it off this time...HERMLEIGH 24, BLACKWELL 18.

McCaulley at Borden County: No contest...COYOTES 32, EAGLES 18.

The collegians...

In honor of my father, I'll pick Texas to down the bowl-hopeful Red Raiders, 28-21, and even go so far as to have SMU upset Texas A&M, 31-24. As for the others, pick Houston 17, TCU 14; Arkansas 35, Rice 14; Miami, Fla., 34, FSU 21; Alabama 24, Mississippi State 19; Nebraska 45, Kansas State 7; Michigan 29, Illinois 19; Oklahoma 47, Kansas 6; Penn State 17, West Virginia 14; Auburn 31, Florida 14; Washington 21, Arizona State 20; Iowa 24, Ohio State 21; LSU 35, Mississippi 14; USC 20, Arizona 14; Clemson 21, Wake Forest 7; UCLA 23, Oregon State 17; Stanford 27, Washington State 21; and North Carolina State 19, South Carolina 0.

The pros...

You got to go with Dallas over the Giants, say 24-21. Houston won't beat Miami, though. Call it 34-31 since neither team has much defense.

As for the rest, pick New England 21, Atlanta 20; Tampa Bay 17, Buffalo 14; Cincinnati 31, Detroit 17; Cleveland 14, Indianapolis 7; LA Raiders 21, Denver 20 in a mild upset; Pittsburgh 24, Green Bay 20 in a who cares game; San Diego 23, Kansas City 21; Minnesota 14, Washington 13; NY Jets 19, Seattle 17; Philadelphia 21, St. Louis 7; and San Francisco 28, New Orleans 10.

Coryell steps aside as head of Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Don Coryell's resignation as San Diego Chargers coach was a surprise to club owner Alex Spanos, but the departure also drew the owner's blessing.

Spanos said he made no attempt to dissuade Coryell, who submitted his resignation Wednesday, and said a leadership change could help the Chargers salvage what so far has been a disastrous season.

The Chargers' 1-7 start is their worst since 1975, when San Diego opened with 11 straight losses. It was also Coryell's worst in 29 years coaching on the collegiate and professional levels.

Coryell, 62, was replaced by Al Saunders, previously the assistant head coach. This is the first NFL head coaching assignment for Saunders, 39, whose contract runs through next season.

"I'd say at this point, we have to look at what's going to happen from today on," Spanos said. "I don't like losing. I want to win. If Don felt this was the best thing for us, then God bless him," Spanos said.

The only coach to win more than 100 games at the professional and collegiate levels, Coryell built a dazzling offensive scheme in San Diego that helped bring the NFL's passing era into full bloom. But his critics, Spanos among them, believed his preoccupation with offense made a stepchild of the Chargers' defense, ranked at or near the bottom of the league for the past five years.

In his resignation letter, Coryell said he decided to resign after the Chargers suffered their seventh straight loss last Sunday in Philadelphia.

"I feel a change would be beneficial to the Chargers," he said. "I made up my mind (to resign) after the Philadelphia game, but Mr. Spanos was out of the city and I wanted to tell him in person."

The Chargers lost to the Eagles 23-7 last Sunday. Their lone win was a season-opening 50-28 decision over Miami.

"The most important thing right now is the direction of the football team, not why and how we got where we are," said Saunders, who informed the players of the change in a closed-door meeting before Wednesday's practice.

"The reaction among the players was surprise, just like it was for all of us," Saunders added. "As we talked about it, we felt like we had to go onward and upward. We're 1-7 right now and we've got to turn it around."

Saunders joined the Chargers as a receivers coach in 1983. He was promoted to assistant head coach at the end of the 1985 season.

Under Coryell, the Chargers advanced to the playoffs four

Westerners begin season with McMurry, 7 tonight

Western Texas College's Westerners begin the 1986-87 cage campaign at Scurry County Coliseum tonight at 7 o'clock against the Indians of McMurry College.

Coach Phil Spradling wasn't sure how his team would play in the season opener, but he is expecting an exciting look.

"I think we'll be an exciting team to watch. It will be a fast tempo game. We're going to break every chance we get, but at the same time, we'll run an offense, too," he said.

One reason for the fast tempo is that Western will be dominated by its guards, at least early in the season.

"I think our guards will have to carry us. Hopefully, by the second half of the season, our forwards will have some experience," said the coach.

WTC brings back all-conference, all-region guard Alvin Lee, a 6-1 sophomore from Richmond, who led the team in scoring last year. Also returning to the team is John Lewis, 6-2 from Lubbock. Lewis won't be playing, however, because he is on disciplinary probation for several weeks.

"We'll have to use pressure defense which means we'll have to be quick and we'll have to be in shape," stressed Spradling.

Other than quickness, shooting could be a team strength.

"We've got some pretty good shooters and hopefully we'll be able to take advantage of the three-point line some this season," noted the coach. "I think our transition game is good but our half-court defense is weak because of our lack of size inside."

Dusters slam dunk San Jacinto, 103-54

WACO – Western Texas' Lady Dusters got off to a rocket-like start here Thursday as they burned San Jacinto 103-54 in the Highlassie Classic.

The Dusters expect to have a tougher time today when they play Temple at 6 p.m. in the McLennan Community College Highlander Gym. They also take on classic host McLennan at 8 p.m. Friday.

"The girls played pretty well. It's not easy to score 100 points against anybody," said Coach Kelly Chadwick. "But San Jac is not real strong."

Returning all-region talent Brenda Welch led the Dusters with 26 points while Wendy Milner poured in 17. Snyder native Carie Housden notched a college career high with 15 points and Dee Ann Marr scored 12. All 10 girls who suited out for the game played, and all 10 scored.

"Everybody got to play and they played well," said Coach Chadwick. "I saw some things we did that impressed me and I saw some other things that I know we need to work on."

In other games Thursday, Howard beat Temple 54-48, and South Plains defeated McLennan, 66-64.

Riggins out for Tigers...

Snyder treks to Sweetwater; Monahans tries Big Spring

It may be the final chance Friday night for Monahans' Loboes while two other teams simply try to stay out of the 2-4A cellar and an ailing Snyder wonders what to do with powerhouse rival Sweetwater.

Monahans plays at Big Spring, Snyder is at Sweetwater, Lamesa entertains Pecos, and - in a game which could have a bearing on last place - Andrews is at San Angelo to play Lake View. Fort Stockton has the weekend off.

Snyder goes into Friday's annual game with Sweetwater minus its leading running back, Michael Riggins. The slippery sophomore, who has 595 yards on just 85 carries this season, is out with a foot injury. The report is he may be able to play next week.

Taking over at the tailback spot will be Jeff Rose, who started the season but who has not carried the ball in several games now. Rose has 78 yards on 14 tries.

Riggins' injury - a hairline fracture of a free-floating bone in the bottom of his foot - has been just one of Snyder's woes this week. Fullback Toby Ubando is listed as only probable because of soreness and bruises, while tailback John Pena has missed practice with an illness. The Tigers had seven players to miss workouts on Monday, and five were out Tuesday.

Sweetwater, a 21-point favorite according to the Harris Rating System, is 6-1 on the season and 4-1 in district play. Snyder comes off of two straight wins and is 2-5 and 2-3.

Meanwhile, Friday may be Monahans' final chance to make the playoffs. The Loboes were undefeated until Sweetwater shocked them 34-14 last week. They play in Big Spring Friday night.

The Steers are the only team in 2-4A without a district loss. They thrashed Pecos 33-20 last week.

Monahans is 6-1 and 4-1 while Big spring is 6-1 and 5-0.

When Andrews and Lake View tee it up in San Angelo, pride will be on the line. The Mustangs are 2-3 in district play, but have lost three straight. Lake View is 1-4.

In the only other game, Pecos, 3-3, tests 1-4 Lamesa.

NICE CATCH – Jay Bearden caught this 27-pound sailfish off the coast of Port Aransas recently. The fish is almost six and a half feet long. The other fish is a 77-pound black-tip shark, caught by Jay's brother, Gary.

Cats entertain Mustangs at Tiger Stadium tonight

Snyder freshman and junior varsity football teams play host to Sweetwater here this evening at Tiger Stadium.

The freshman contest is scheduled for an earlier than usual 4:30 p.m. kickoff. The junior varsity game is slated for 6 p.m.

In other games slated tonight, Snyder junior high teams are to play in Sweetwater. Seventh and eighth grade B-teams will play at 4 p.m. while the seventh grade A-team plays at 5:30 p.m. and the eighth grade A-team plays at 7 p.m.

Bass Club slates final tournament

Snyder Bass Club will hold its last tournament of the year this weekend, Nov. 1 and 2 at Oak Creek Lake.

It will be the final opportunity for members to qualify for the 1986 Top Twenty Classic Tournament, to be held next spring.

Entry fee is $7.50 per day with an optional $1 Big Bass Pot. Headquarters will be the Sportsman's, located near the dam. Stringers are limited to five fish, a minimum of 14 inches in length.

The tournament is open to Snyder Bass Club members only; however, memberships are currently being accepted. Anyone desiring to join may register at Western Auto or the Keyboard-Bass Pro Shop. All memberships paid will be good through 1987. Dues are $15 for individuals or $20 for families.

The last club meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13 at Snyder National Bank. Awards for yearly competitions will be presented and new officers will be elected.

In tournament action Oct. 11 and 12 at Lake Stamford, Nial Maytubby won with a stringer of 14 pounds and 15 ounces. Wendell Pinkerton was second with 11-14 and Tooter McClurg placed third with 11-4. Maytubby had Big Bass honors with a 3-13 catch.

Murdock leads Tiger honor roll this week

Dewayne Murdock and Brad Gartman were among those who received special recognition this week for their play in last Friday's Ragin' Tiger game with San Angelo Lake View.

Murdock, a 6-3, 250 tackle, was chosen as Best Blocker and winner of the Big Hit Award. Murdock, who reaped all-district and All-South Plains post-season honors last season, graded out 94 percent and had five knockdowns. He won the Big Hit Award for his blocks.

Murdock's success up front helped two other Tigers get special awards. Michael Riggins took Big Play honors for his 76-yard touchdown run while Toby Ubando was chosen Offensive MVP after running for 72 yards on 10 carries.

Gartman, who started at defensive halfback for the first time this season, was chosen as the Defensive MVP. He graded 98 percent, intercepted two passes and had five tackles. Gartman was also the Specialty Teams MVP for his punting, which kept Lake View from obtaining good field position most of the game.

straight years beginning in 1979, but have had problems winning in recent years. San Diego has not had a winning record since the strike-shortened 1982 season, when the Chargers were 6-3.

Last year, Coryell came within one game of getting fired. His job was saved when San Diego finished 8-8, the minimum that had been demanded by Spanos at the outset of the season. Nevertheless, Spanos shook up the coaching staff, firing three assistant coaches and making Saunders the liaison between ownership and the coaching staff.

Soon after he arrived in San Diego in 1978, Coryell implemented the pioneering offensive scheme known as "Air Coryell." The Chargers' offense blossomed into one of the NFL's best, leading the league in passing seven of the last eight seasons and finishing first in total offense five of the last six years.

Water law could stop waste dump

WASHINGTON (AP) — A provision quietly slipped into the Safe Drinking Water Act by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen earlier this summer may stop further consideration of the Texas Panhandle as a site for the nation's first nuclear waste repository.

Bentsen, D-Texas, said Wednesday that amendments he attached to the bill, signed into law in June, include a provision requiring federal agencies to comply with state programs for preventing contamination of water wells.

This would apply to the site in Deaf Smith County because the Ogallala aquifer lies above the giant salt deposit that is being studied by the Department of Energy as one of three possible nuclear dump sites in the country. The other two are in Washington state and Nevada.

If the Deaf Smith site is chosen, engineers would have to drop a shaft through the aquifer and several hundred feet beyond to get to the salt deposit, then funnel through 70,000 tons of radioactive wastes for 10,000 years of storage.

"The new provisions in the Safe Drinking Water Act enables Texas, if it so wishes, to aggressively protect the Ogallala from potential contamination by the Department of Energy or anyone else," Bentsen said at a press briefing in his Washington office.

Bentsen said he hadn't announced the measure until now because he was busy working on cutting funding for the waste repository project, which was accomplished in the final hours of the 99th Congress earlier this month.

He said the administration's inattention to details in the drinking water act enabled him to get the provision passed "without advertising it too much."

Max Woodfin, environmental coordinator for the Texas Water Commission in Austin, said a water code measure passed by the state in 1983 could be used to stall the DOE project by requiring the government to obtain a state permit.

The law states that "No person desiring to drill, excavate or otherwise construct a shaft ... may commence construction without first obtaining a water permit from the commission," Woodfin said.

"The shaft they're talking about in Deaf Smith would be covered by this law," Woodfin said, adding that DOE officials have said they will comply with all applicable Texas laws. The state has opposed the idea of a Panhandle dump since it's inception.

DOE spokeswoman Ginger King said Wednesday the department was looking into the ramifications of the Bentsen provision on its nuclear waste program.

"We're aware of the amendments to the Safe Drinking Water Act. The only point that I would make is that ... there simply would be no comtamination of water supplies at any of the repository sites," said Anson Franklin, DOE director of communications.

Refugee shelter closed by church

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) — Catholic church officials have indefinitely closed Casa Oscar Romero, a controversial shelter for Central American refugees, while they look for another location.

More than 500 refugees were to be bused today to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for processing, Hernan Gonzalez, a spokesman for the Diocese of Brownsville, said Wednesday.

"We could stay at Casa Romero indefinitely, but we have been ordered by the city to vacate. We have not been told there are any ordinances that we violate," Gonzalez said.

Gonzalez said it could take six months to find a new facility. The city of San Benito asked the church in August to move the shelter, which opened in December 1982.

The church moved the male refugees to the county fairgrounds, leaving their families behind in the shelter.

Gonzalez said the male refugees, who were staying inside a sheet metal building normally used for livestock shows, also were to be bused to INS headquarters.

San Benito City Manager Demetrio Lucio said the aliens will definitely not be able to return to the Casa.

Lucio said city officials are concerned about residents because of friction between refugees and others who live in the neighborhood. He said extra police and sheriff's deputies will be on duty in the Casa area this weekend.

The shelter is named for a slain Salvadoran archbishop. A former director, Jack Elder, was prosecuted for transportation of illegal aliens and was sentenced to five months in a halfway house earlier this year after refusing to accept two years' probation.

Elder and others in the sanctuary movement maintain that the Central Americans, mostly from Nicaragua and El Salvador, are political refugees because they will be persecuted if they return to their home countries.

The U.S. government contends that they are immigrants seeking better economic conditions.

District INS Director Omar Sewell said he's glad the shelter is closing and called it a magnet that draws Central Americans to the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

He said the aliens can be bonded, but many said they don't have the money. Or, Sewell said, they could be released "in status" — or on their own recognition.

The aliens also could be deported, voluntarily returned home or detained at the Bayview center, Sewell said.

Humane society is against designer cats

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A humane society has called for a boycott of Neiman-Marcus over the luxury store's latest catalog offering — "designer kittens" bred with the markings of jungle cats.

"Living things are not appropriate catalog items to be bred for a luxury market and sold as high-priced toys," the Marin Humane Society said in a letter to its 5,500 members.

A spokeswoman for the group, Judy Carroll, said cross-breeding can produce cats with strange dispositions, and warned that those who can afford the $1,400 price for the kittens might be surprised by their behavior.

"How do you know how these animals are going to react?" she asked.

The Neiman-Marcus catalog claims its "California Spangled Cat" is gentle, "a purring, affectionate pet with the look of the wild."

The store has had 60 orders across the country for the cats, said Neiman-Marcus spokeswoman Linda Stewart. "It's mainly for people who want the rare, the unusual gift that no one else has. Right now cats are very popular. Like teddy bears were a few years ago."

The humane society's executive director, Diane Allevato, said the sales campaign "infringes on the dignity of the animals."

The cats, offered as "his and hers" gifts, are the creation of a genetic wizard named Paul Casey. He mixed several breeds of domestic cats over 15 years to produce a dazzling array of red, gold, silver, bronze and charcoal-colored kittens.

"All the genetic magic that produces the lush spotted coats of the world's big cats has been duplicated for the small, perfect bodies of these leopards for your living room," the catalog promises.

Neiman-Marcus received five letters of protest after mailing out 2.2 million Christmas catalogs containing descriptions of the kittens, said spokeswoman Carolyn Cobb.

Evidence against Hasenfus given

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A revolutionary tribunal today weighed prosecution evidence against U.S. mercenary Eugene Hasenfus, ranging from what Nicaragua says is a card giving him access to a military base in El Salvador to an Arkansas fishing license.

Sandinista prosecutor Ivan Villavicencio handed evidence one piece at a time Wednesday to the secretary of the People's Tribunal, made up of a lawyer, truck driver and laborer.

Villavicencio also asked the tribunal of the leftist Sandinista government to view the videocassette of an interview Hasenfus gave to the CBS program "60 Minutes."

The program, translated into Spanish, was shown on Nicaraguan television. In the interview, Hasenfus said he believed he was working for the U.S. government.

Hasenfus, a 45-year-old former Marine from Marinette, Wis., is charged with terrorism, conspiracy and violating public security. He faces up to 30 years in prison if convicted.

He parachuted from a burning C-123 cargo plane carrying arms for U.S.-backed Contra rebels when it was shot down Oct. 5. He was captured by Sandinista troops the next day in southern Nicaragua. Wallace B. Sawyer Jr. of Magnolia, Ark., American William Cooper and a third crew member, still unidentified, died in the crash.

Among the evidence introduced was a card purportedly giving Hasenfus security clearance for Ilopango military air base on the outskirts of San Salvador, El Salvador. It was numbered 4422, made out to Hasenfus and bore the Salvadoran air force emblem.

The card, issued July 28 with an expiration date of Jan. 28, 1987, read "Group: USA" and "Specialty: Adviser." On the reverse, under "Restricted areas," was a list of numbers.

Hasenfus has said he participated in 10 arms drops to the rebels from bases in El Salvador and Honduras and that the operations were coordinated by the CIA. He also has said that tons of arms were stored at Ilopango, then shipped to the rebels.

The United States has denied any official role in the arms drops.

Many of the documents were dirt-encrusted and already had been shown to journalists. Reynaldo Monterrey, tribunal president, said the documents would be examined later to determine if they were genuine.

Among other evidence Villavicencio submitted were what he described as flight documents from the plane, an Arkansas fishing license made out to Sawyer, a business card from Century 21 real estate company in the name of Hasenfus' wife Sally and Sawyer's and Hasenfus' U.S. driver's licenses.

A book of names, addresses and telephone numbers of former crew members of Air America, which Hasenfus said was a CIA airline that he worked for in Southeast Asia, was also entered as evidence.

Neither Hasenfus nor his Nicaraguan lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, were present for the first day of the presentation of evidence, which could last from eight to 12 days.

Meanwhile, Griffin Bell, a former U.S. attorney general who is acting as an adviser to the Nicaraguan lawyer, returned home to Atlanta on Wednesday to prepare the defense after Sandinista authorities barred him from seeing Hasenfus. Bell said he would return Sunday.

Waldheim admits to role during one Nazi operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Austrian President Kurt Waldheim ended months of denial by acknowledging he had a role in the Nazi army's "pacification" of a region of Yugoslavia, an operation that cost thousands of lives, The Washington Post reports.

The Post, in today's editions, also reported that in 1947 and 1948, Yugoslav and Soviet intelligence operatives tried blackmailing Waldheim into becoming a communist agent by threatening to charge him with war crimes if he did not cooperate.

Yugoslavian sources told the Post they had heard that Waldheim had been approached to work as a communist agent. But through a spokesman, Waldheim denied the incident, and the Post said it was unable to confirm that he was ever actually recruited.

Waldheim, the former secretary-general of the United Nations, sent a 13-page memo to the Post in April denying that he was involved in the 1942 operation in Kozara, a mountainous area that was home to 80,000 Yugoslavs, including 3,500 partisans. The memo said that Waldheim was transferred to an Italian infantry division 180 miles away, where he was a liaison officer.

However, Gerold Christian, a spokesman for Waldheim, told the newspaper that "additional research" has revealed that Waldheim's earlier statement was incorrect. Christian said Waldheim was in Kozara serving as a supply officer.

The New York Times, in today's editions, also confirmed through a spokesman Waldheim's involvement with the Nazi unit. "He was in the operation, but he was not in the fighting troops," Christian said. The spokesman said that Waldheim served several functions, including translator and supply officer.

Christian, the Times reported, said he could not explain why Waldheim could not previously recall his participation in the unit.

Eli M. Rosenbaum, the general counsel of the World Jewish Congress, reached in New York by the Times Wednesday night, cited the conflicting accounts given by Waldheim.

"Waldheim has flip-flopped so many times that he has lost credibility on everything relating to wartime activities eons ago," the Times quoted Rosenbaum as saying. "The man obviously has no shame, and I only wonder how many different stories he feels he can come up with."

The Post cited German reports showing that Lt. Kurt Waldheim was a member of the staff of the Nazi commander in the Kozara area, Gen. Freidrich von Stahl.

The Post said documents show Stahl recommended Waldheim and others for the puppet Croatian government's King Zvonimir Medal for "heroic bravery in the battle against the insurgents in the spring and summer of 1942." He also received an oak leaf given to soldiers who distinguished themselves "under enemy fire," according to a description of the medal obtained by the Post.

Stahl's order was to remove Kozara's entire population and replace it with a "reliable" population, the Post said. Yugoslav figures say 1,600 partisans and 13,000 civilians died during the operation. Some 1,900 partisans escaped, and 68,000 civilians were sent to concentration camps or to forced labor in Germany and Norway.

The Post, in a separate story, quoted former Yugoslav intelligence and government officials as saying that the Yugoslav secret police compiled a dossier of allegations against Waldheim.

Anton Kolendic, the senior Yugoslav intelligence agent in Vienna in 1947-48, told the Post that he had planned to use the dossier in a "joint" action with Soviet intelligence agents to recruit Waldheim.

Kolendic said he gave Waldheim's file to Soviet intelligence agents and that he was "absolutely certain" that the Russians had made the approach.

Another former senior official of the Yugoslav intelligence service, who was not identified by The Post, said the Soviets in earlier 1948 had advised the Yugoslavs that Waldheim had been recruited and asked the Yugoslavs to stop further interference in the matter.

provides that the legislature is solely responsible for enforcing the rule regarding titles and prohibits the invalidation of past and future enactments due to poorly written titles.

The history of this rule dates to the Yazoo land frauds which occurred in Georgia in 1798.

Legislators there voted for the Yazoo Act under a caption indicating it was intended to pay off Georgia soldiers fighting in the Revolution.

In fact, the act gave away millions of acres of state land.

The purpose of the caption requirement now in force in Texas is to give notice to the public and the legislature of the subject of the bill.

The rule was particularly important when such bills were still handwritten. However, the modern legislative process has greatly expanded the information resources of legislators.

Simultaneously, however, courts have continued to invalidate laws on the basis of defective captions.

ARGUMENTS FOR

—In modern practice, the caption rule is little more than a legal technicality exploited by lawyers involved in civil lawsuits and criminal defendants. The original purpose of the rule--to provide notice of the subject of a bill--is now better served by the abundance of information available about each bill. To the extent that the rule continues to serve its original purpose, this would be served by retaining the rule as a rule of procedure.

—The caption of each bill is a permanent, continuing threat to the enforcement and application of the law. A bill may be successfully challenged on the basis of its caption years after becoming law. This shows the incongruity between the purpose of the rule and its enforcement.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

—The caption rule serves not only the legislature but the public. As with other so-called "legal technicalities," the rule serves to protect the rights of citizens. As with other such rights, the method of protecting it is through the courts; only by declaring laws with defective captions invalid can the courts encourage compliance with the rule. A change to a "rule of procedure" deprives citizens of any method of enforcement.

deputies that her roommate was "going to hurt herself."

Arriola then reportedly drove away and stopped in front of Snyder Laundry located one block west of the SO.

Sheriff Keith Collier said he began walking toward the woman when she exited her car and turned the pistol on herself, firing once into her stomach.

Scurry County EMS personnel were then called and transported Arriola to Cogdell.

Absentee set to end

With only one day to go, some 360 absentee votes had been cast as of 10 a.m. Thursday for next Tuesday's November General Election.

The last day to vote absentee is Friday. On that day, individuals expecting to be out of town Tuesday have until 5 p.m. to make their voting decisions known.

Balloting is taking place at the county clerk's office located on the third floor of the courthouse.

In addition to three locally contested races, voters must decide statewide seats to include the hotly contested governor's race between incumbent Democrat Mark White and his Republican challenger Bill Clements.

Local candidates include:

—Commissioner, Pct. 2: Democrat Tommy Pate and Republican W.A. (Bill) Jones.

—Commissiner, Pct. 4: Incumbent Democrat Ted Billingsley and Republican Glen O. Butler.

—Justice of the peace, Pct. 1: Incumbent Democrat Dan Callaway and Republican Troy Martin.

Hospital Notes

ADMISSIONS: Darlene Burk, 402 31st; Temi Matthies, 3002 41st; Marcilino Medrano, 2303 Ave. I.

DISMISSALS: Kruger baby boy.

3 arrests noted

Snyder police logged three misdemeanor arrests Wednesday including one man jailed on a misdemeanor assault warrant in connection with an incident earlier in the week.

Two other individuals were arrested as traffic "instanters" for having no motor vehicle liability insurance.

Investigation into shooting sought

DALLAS (AP) — City Council has agreed to call for a U.S. Justice Department investigation into the fatal police shooting of a 70-year-old woman.

But council members stopped short Wednesday of approving minority members' request for a broader congressional inquiry of police department practices.

"I think we're all profoundly troubled by this (shooting)," said member Craig Holcomb, who proposed the Justice Department investigation. "We want to find out the facts. That's absolutely essential."

Obituaries

Adolf Pavlik

SCHULENBURG–Services for Adolf E. Pavlik, 81, of Schulenburg were held October 23 at St. Rose Catholic Church with burial in Weimar Masonic Cemetery. Fr. Celestino Say of Hallettsville officiated.

Pavlik, a long time resident of the Schulenburg area, died October 21 at the Village Health Center in Houston where he had been a resident for three weeks. He was the grandfather of Stanley and Roger Pavlik of Snyder.

He was born Aug. 22, 1905 at Wildwood in Fayette county. He married Amelia Kunetka on April 17, 1934. She survives.

He was preceded in death by a sister and three brothers.

He is survived by two daughters and sons-in-law, Irene and W. C. Duncan and Marilyn and Daniel Treybig of Houston; four sons and three daughters-in-law, Ervin Pavlik of Giddings, Bennie and Rita Pavlik, Jimmy and Lillian Pavlik and Bobby and Patricia Pavlik all of Schulenburg; 14 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; one sister, Millie Ulrich of Weimar; and one brother, Ernest Pavlik of El Campo.

Rena Greenway

LUBBOCK–Services for Rena Greenway, 84, of Shallowwater were held at 10 a.m. Thursday in the First Baptist Church. Burial followed in the Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Greenway, the mother of Gene Greenway of Snyder, died Tuesday at her home after a lengthy illness.

Born in Comanche County, she moved to Shallowater from McCaulley in 1977. She married John Greenway on Oct. 8, 1933 in McCaulley. He died in 1979. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include two other sons, Doyle of Shallowater and Tommy of Andrews; a brother, Calvin Brown of Austin; three sisters, Eunice Morris and Tressie Harrell, both of Kermit, and Lou Bingham of Lubbock; six grandsons; and seven great-grandchildren.

Former manager joins company

DALLAS–Bill Henry, former manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, has been named executive vice president of finance for Cambridge Cos., a Dallas-based developer.

Henry was manager of the Snyder chamber in 1976-77. Prior to joining the new firm, he worked in acquisition, financing and leasing of offices and industrial properties for Merrill Lynch Realty Co.

In his new job, Henry will handle debt and equity financing for Cambridge which owns, develops and manages office, retail, apartment and hotel projects.

Births

Donald and Darlene Burk are the parents of a baby girl weighing eight pounds five ounces born at 2:50 a.m. today at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Paul and Carmen Romero are the parents of a baby boy, Paul David, weighing six pounds nine ounces born at 2:23 p.m. Oct. 22 at Lubbock General Hospital. Grandparents are Elvira Martinez and Paul Romero Sr.

The Truman Doctrine to contain communism went into effect in 1945 as Congress appropriated $400 million in aid to Greece and Turkey.

Tips for a Safe, Happy Halloween

Happy Halloween

In preparation for trick or treat activities parents should plan ahead to ensure their child's safety Halloween night.

Costume safety should first be considered. Parents should determine if the costume poses a fire hazard.

If a wig is worn, check to see that it is non-flammable. Loose fitting costumes or flowing costumes are also a greater danger for fire.

Masks often impair vision, so facial make-up is recommended as a safe alternative.

The bag for collecting treats should also be small enough so that it will not trip the child. Shoes are also important in this regard. Everyday shoes should be worn rather than poorly fitting costume shoes.

As part of the costume, the child should also carry a flashlight to be able to see and be seen in the dark.

If the child will not be accompanied, parents should also discuss the route planned for trick or treating. A time to be home should be given also.

The safety rules for walking should be gone over. These include crossing the street at crosswalks, looking both ways before crossing, never entering the roadway between parked cars and staying on the sidewalk whenever possible.

Regarding treats, insist that these be brought home before anything is eaten. Unpackaged items such as popcorn or small candies should be discarded also.

Fruit should be washed and cut into small pieces before it is eaten. Any items found tampered with should be reported immediately to law enforcement authorities.

After the night of trick or treating, parents should also help the child taper off from the excitement.

It is recommended that they talk with the child quietly about the evening. At bedtime, a nightlight should be left on if the child is at all frightened.

Individuals should consider also steps to make their homes safer for trick or treaters.

Obstacles should be removed from steps, sidewalks and lawns so children will not trip over them. An outside light should be left on Halloween night also.

Children should be greeted at the door, but not encouraged to come into the house. If handmade goodies are given out, individuals should add their name and address to the package to tell parents where the items came from.
