KLAN ISSUE BOBS UP IN TRIAL OF NORRIS

Today

Latest—Not Too Good.
A Coolidge Miracle.
Free Love Is Bad.
Optimism and Work.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1927, By The Star Co.

The very latest, last night, from Mexico was not pleasant. Mexican mobs in Guadalajara fired shots in the air, indicating annoyance, when stopped in their march against the American consulate. Mexican students "will fight and die with Calles in his battle against the northern colossus." Uncle Sam is the colossus.

Ninety-nine are killed in Mexican rows.

The Russian lady envoy to Mexico indignantly denies the truth of President Coolidge's statement about bolshevik propaganda in latin America. She says, "we are innocent."

* * *

The pope denies the charge by President Calles that Catholics have instigated rebellion in Mexico, and says Mexican Catholics have shown great self restraint.

This country sends the fifth regiment of marines to concentrate at the Quantico naval base, for "emergency" service. Two more fighting ships are sent to Nicaragua, and La Presna, powerful Argentine paper, reflects Latin-American public opinion in calling President Coolidge's message "an imperialistic utterance."

* * *

Dispatches from Mexico City report business almost paralyzed, a serious crisis threatening the Mexican cabinet, and Mexico. Many say that the fate of President Calles is in the hands of President Coolidge. Others think a conflict between Mexico and the United States inevitable.

It is dangerous to attack religion and oil, the heart and the pocket, at the same time.

* * *

National Committeeman Clements of Missouri says, "nothing short of a political miracle can stop President Coolidge's renomination and re-election in 1928." The only question is: Does President Coolidge want the nomination?

There is no third term question involved. Mr. Coolidge has been elected president only once. George Washington's idea was to prevent presidents using the power of patronage to force repeated nominations and elections. 1928 would be President Coolidge's second elective term.

* * *

As for a miracle defeating President Coolidge you can imagine even miracles that are impossible. No miracle could make a six weeks old calf in five minutes, for if made in five minutes it wouldn't be six weeks old.

* * *

The son of a Methodist bishop demands a divorce because his wife believes in a new, strange, abhorrent theory of "free love." It is strange, it is abhorrent; but it is not new. Monkeys entertained that theory before there were any men on earth. And lower animals had it before monkeys came. That is part of the animal inheritance out of which we have been slowly climbing, pushed upward by the institution of marriage and strong will of women.

* * *

Florida has chosen "optimism and work" as the state slogan, following the big wind and a temporary land slump. It's an excellent slogan, especially if you put the heavy accent on "work."

Florida's future is assured as one of the great national sun parlors. Incidentally, at this moment you can't, for love, money or pull, engage rooms for the season at the big Palm Beach hotels. Try it.

* * *

Another good slogan for Florida would be: "Give us men like S. Davies Warfield." Transportation is to a state what blood is to the body. Mr. Warfield, a born fighter, and successful in the face of vicious opposition, has forced new branches of his seaboard air line system north, south, east and west in Florida, carrying passengers direct from the north to Miami without change of cars.

A far-sighted railroad man is as valuable to a state as a great governor, and as scarce.

"Yes, the sparrow has found a house, and the swallow a nest for herself."

It is reported that Count Salm, from Europe, who married a daughter of the Standard Oil, Miss Rogers, will withdraw all claims against the lady and her father for balm in the shape of $325,000.

Old Bible times are no more. Mrs. Potiphar walked away with a piece of Joseph's coat. Count Salm walks away with a piece of Standard Oil change. And the mother must allow him to see his dear little boy. Very touching scene in modern domesticity.

SENATE SWATS APPOINTEES TO ROAD BUREAU

Moody Forces Win Full Victory in Rejection Of Nominees

JUDGES CONFIRMED

Appointment of Woman As Labor Commission Not Voted On

AUSTIN, Jan. 13.* (AP)—The forces of Governor-Elect Dan Moody Thursday won a crushing victory when the senate rejected for confirmation Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's entire highway commission.

All other nominees were confirmed with the exception of H. A Wroe, Austin, for member ship in the Texas university board of regents, and Miss Fannie Dansiel, Austin, state labor commissioner, whose appointments were not acted upon.

Judges Confirmed

Confirmed: Lamar Bethea, Bryan, judge on the commission of appeals; Fritz R. Smith, Scurry, county judge of the 32nd district; Charles G. Dibrell, Galveston, judge of the 56th district; E. M. Dobson, Falls county, judge of the 82nd district; L. A. Howard, Lubbock county, district attorney of the 72nd district.

Governor-Elect Dan Moody is known to have emphatically urged that the highway commission, made up of Eugene T. Smith, San Antonio, chairman; Scott Woodward, Fort Worth, and George P. Robertson, Meridian, should not be confirmed.

A haggard group of solons emerged from the senate chamber at 5:30 o'clock after three hours of debating and disagreement. The session marks virtually the last incident in the stormy fight which the Fergusons have carried on with Moody and the action of the senate was regarded as a great triumph for the new governor's forces.

No New Appointees

Governor Ferguson is not likely to send up other names for confirmation. She is believed to realize that if the present commission cannot be confirmed other persons she might name would meet with opposition.

FAIR WEATHER

Friday and Saturday: Generally fair.

That's Wichita Falls' weather dish for today and tomorrow, according to word from the U. S. government weather forecaster. This indicates at least a measure of relief from the "cold snap" which has been keeping Wichitans on the rush between fires for the last two days.

A northwest "breeze" varying in velocity from 15 miles to 24 miles per hour, however, made the day seem colder.

W. R. THOMPSON SHOT AT BURK; HOLLAND HELD

Burkburnett Dentist Shot While Seated in Chair At Barber Shtop

HIT BY TWO BULLETS

No Reason Given After Shooting, Officers Declare

W. R. Thompson, 21, dentist, of Wichita Falls and Burkburnett, was shot twice, once under the arm and once in the chest, Thursday afternoon about 6:30 o'clock as he sat in a barber's chair at Burkburnett.

Mr. Thompson was rushed to the General hospital here, and physicians expressed the belief Thursday night that he would recover.

E. E. Holland, 35, Burkburnett barber, was placed in the county jail following the shooting.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Deputy Ed. Kiersey, who brought Holland to Wichita Falls following the shooting, stated that three shots were fired. Chief of Police Bill Garland took Holland into custody following the shooting and carried him to the Burkburnett city hall.

A .32 caliber double action revolver was taken from Holland. One of the bullets which struck Thompson entered just below his right arm and came out at the top of the left shoulder and the other entered at the center of his chest. One of the bullets grazed a lung, physicians said.

There were five or six people in the barber shop when the shots were fired, witnesses reported. Thompson was shot while sitting in a barber's chair getting a haircut from another barber.

Holland declined to make any statement following the shooting. He is being held pending the recovery of Thompson.

Holland, who is a barber in the City Barber shop, is married and has four children.

PASTOR FACES BAR FOR PLEA THIS MORNING

Jury to Try Fundamentalist On Murder Charge Completed

DEFENSE LOSES TILT

Protest To Questions On Klan Affilfation Overruled

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 13. (AP)—Twelve married men, fathers of children, will sit in judgment on the fate of Dr. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist Baptist pastor, charged with killing D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman.

After a day of threading its way through the Ku Klux Klan issue and the views of a retired Methodist preacher on the religious beliefs in a Baptist minister defendant, the trial reached the evidence stage with completion of the jury about 5 p. m.

Jury Photographed

The jury was sworn, admonished not to talk about the case to any one or receive telephone calls, had their picture taken and were locked up.

The defendant will plead at opening of court tomorrow and the state's testimony then will begin.

The jury is composed of the following: W. D. Miller, 57, former sheriff; C. J. Brown, 37, laborer; O. D. Moore, 34, laborer in a chili factory; Walter Johnson, 27, dairyman; Will J. Dill, 61, retired; C. A. Galbreath, 27, butcher; W. T. King, 40, blacksmith; G. V. Potter, 24, machinist; T. J. Cunningham, 41, farmer; T. H. Tumey, 45, employed at Austin city electric plant; Lee H. Caldwell, 40, automobile salesman; Andrew McAngus, 50, grocer.

Klan Issue Up

The Ku Klux Klan question came sharply to the fore in the examination of T. H. Tumey, former member of the klan, Attorney Dayton Moses, representing Dr. J. Frank Norris, who is on trial for the slaying of D. E. Chipps of Fort Worth, protested against the state pursuing klan questions, Moses, facing Judge James E. Hamilton, presiding, said:

"The defense objects to these questions because Dr. Norris is not now and never has been a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

Moses said that because of the heated klan controversy of recent years in this locality it was unfair to bring in the question of klan membership since Dr. Norris was not a member of the order.

Martin Issues Dare

District Attorney Jesse Martin of Tarrant county charged Moses to produce a witness who would swear that Dr. Norris had never been a klansman and he then asked Mr. Moses himself to take the witness stand and swear under oath that Dr. Norris was not a member of the klan.

"We have our own methods of getting this information," said Martin, "and we state that Norris was a klan member."

Defense Loses Tilt

Judge Hamilton overruled defense motion that the state be prohibited from asking questions relating to the klan, declaring that such questions were permissible.

The jury contains two men who are former klansmen, Tumey and Caldwell. Both said they had quit the order.

B. W. Allen, dairyman farmer and a former Methodist preacher was somewhat nonplussed when asked whether he disliked Dr. Norris and the question caused considerable argument among opposing counsel. Sam Sayers for the prosecution insisted the question was not proper. Allen said he would like to answer with qualifications.

"Do you dislike Dr. Norris from what you have read or heard of him?" was the question put by Mr. Moses to the former preacher.

"I don't dislike him," was the answer. "My opinion of his doctrines would not mean that I dislike the man personally."

Venireman Challenged

"Don't you know that you have expressed some very decided opinions against Dr. Norris?" Moses asked. Mr. Allen said he didn't remember but he was eliminated by a defense peremptory challenge.

A number of veniremen said it would embarrass them to assess the death penalty and one Baptist was excused because he said it

Girl Bandit Suspect Indicted By Grand Jury On Arson Charge

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Jan. 13. A true bill, charging Rebecca Bradley Rogers, university graduate, and alleged bank bandit, with arson in the burning of a vacant building at Round Rock, near here, last month, was returned by the Williamson county grand jury here early this evening.

Mrs. Rogers is at liberty under $1500 bond in connection with the arson charge, and $5000 bond on a charge of robbing the Farmers National bank at Buda, Hays county.

At the time Mrs. Rogers is alleged to have robbed the bank at Buda she was an employe in the office of the then attorney general, Dan Moody. She holds the degree of bachelor of arts from University of Texas, and was studying for the master's degree at the time, it is said.

The Round Rock charge was the result of tracing the license number of her automobile when it became known at the time of her arrest in Austin on the robbery charge.

Houston Mayor Ousted As Deacon Of Church in Row Over Covenant

HOUSTON, Jan. 13. (AP)—Five old time trustees of the First Baptist church of Houston, including Mayor Oscar Holcombe, and such widely known men as F. M. Law, J. W. Neal, Frank C. Jones and R. C. Terrell, have been ousted from the official family of the church and replaced by five covenant signers who are ardent supporters of Pastor J. B. Leavell.

This development came in the hearing of the injunction against the church Thursday in District Judge Charles E. Ashe's court, when Attorney John H. Crooker, representing the "ousted members" seeking to stay in the church, included the five new trustees as defendants in his amended petition. Hearing of the injunction was postponed.

It seeks to enjoin Rev. Dr. Leavell from ousting from the church those who refuse to sign the the church covenant.

Rev. Dr. Leavell is in Nashville, Tenn.

FASHIONS By Sally Milgrim

A Straight-Line Coat of Lacquer Red Duvetine Shows an Interesting Use of Vertical Tucks.

The present interest in slim, straight lines has resulted in a number of ingenious devices to further accentuate the effect of slenderness and height. Chief among these is the use of rows of vertical lines occasioned by tucks, applied bands of self material or contrasting trimming.

Sketched today is a mid-winter coat of lacquer red duvetine that aptly illustrates this tendency toward vertical effects. Extending from the yoke to within five inches of the bottom are narrow tucks placed at regular intervals on both the front and back. These call attention to the straight silhouette at the same time increasing the apparent height of the wearer. The only other trimming is a high collar and deep cuffs of natural kolinsky—a fur with a lovely golden brown cast. The lining is lacquer red crepe finished with two bands of yellow silk at the bottom.

With this striking coat is worn a simple felt hat in a tone to harmonize with the fur.

The slender silhouette of this lacquer red duvetine coat is accentuated by vertical rows of narrow tucks.

The wedding will be an event of early spring, according to the announcement.

Wiley Robertson Talks To Barwise P. T. A.

"So many people do not realize how they are spending their money until it is too late and they have become old and without funds," Wiley Robertson, vice-president of the City National bank, told members of the Parent-Teacher's association of the Barwise school which met Thursday afternoon in an interesting talk on "Thrift."

"I find, in my observation as a banker, that the average wealthy man is more thrifty and economical than the poorer man and a great deal more careful about the way he spends his money," Mr. Robertson said.

The meeting was presided over by the principal of the school, Miss Bettie Dilworth in the absence of the president Mrs. W. Roberts. Pupils of the fifth grade sang a song on "Thrift." "Value of the Parents Visit to the School," was discussed by Mrs. A. H. Haley.

In the business session, resolutions of respect, love and appreciation for the late Judge J. H. Barwise, were adopted and copies sent to the family.

A large number of members were present. The second grade room, taught by Miss Imogene Henson, won the attendance prize.

Mother Should Drive Out Selfish Son To Learn Lessons From Life

Dear Dorothy Dix—We have a son whom my husband and I have sent through high school and one year at college at the cost of great sacrifices to ourselves. Now he is making $50 a week, and his father told him that he should give me some money every week for his board and laundry; but this he refuses to do. He shows no appreciation of anything we have done for him, and I worry a great deal about the disappointment I have met with in him. What would you do in this case?

MRS. E. S.

Answer—The only thing to do is to tell your ungrateful son that he must either pay board or leave home. That is only fair to you and will be his salvation.

The more you encourage selfishness in a child the more rank it grows in his soul. That has been the mistake you have made. You have given everything to your son and asked nothing of him, until he takes everything as a mere matter of course. He does not think of you as anything but slaves to minister to his pleasure.

All children are greedy and selfish. They have to be taught consideration for other people and to respect other people's rights and to do their share and divide with others. Evidently you never inculcated this spirit in your boy. You gave him the best of everything. You made the sacrifices and now you are reaping the harvest of the tares that you sowed.

If you had taught your son that he must do all that he could to save mother; if he had been brought up to revere mother and save his pennies to give her a little treat; if he had been taught to appreciate father and to feel that he must do all that he could to lighten father's burden as soon as he began making money, he would have found his chief joy in helping you. He could not be willing to graft his living off you.

It's late now to begin to undo the harm you have done; but you had at least, better save whatever money you can, because when you are old you cannot depend upon a selfish son to take care of you. He will send you to the poor house.

DOROTHY DIX.

MODISH MITZI — How To Be Smart Though Stormy — By JAY V. JAY

There's been a storm—indoors. "Now, Mitzi," sternly lectures Dad, "you're not going out like that." Of course, that is Mitzi's intention. She is wearing a fur lined coat over her smart crepe dress. "Next-to-nothing-stockings, and paper soled shoes," storms Dad—

Dad went shopping with her. He's to give her his idea of suitable clothes for wet weather. Feet first. To begin with arctics. Arctics with a turn down cuff and buttons or snaps in the back. They come in all sorts of colors too, so that they can match any coat. Mitzi's listening.

Over a top coat one should wear a raincoat. The one that Mitzi is wearing came from Scotland and is of oil silk. It's a very well cut and has the raglan shoulders which so easily slide over other things. A felt sport hat goes with the coat. "Sensible," says Dad. "And smart," adds Mitzi.

"While we are getting practical things I must stop and buy some lingerie," Mitzi suggests. The panties have pleats in them to keep her warm. Dad wonders how so brief a garment—well, there's nothing to do about it. No number of lessons will teach her! His daughter just wasn't born common-sensible.

Tomorrow—A Few Accessories Quite Different.

Mrs. E. O. Reynolds who is visiting in Hattiesburg, Miss., is expected to return the latter part of the week.

One-half cup butter, two teaspoons baking powder, one and one-half cups sugar, one cup chopped nuts, three-fourths cup milk, four egg whites beaten dry. Mix as other cookies.

Tomato Jelly Salad

One quart tomatoes (stewed and strained), one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar. Measure juice after straining, allow two teaspoons gelatine to each cup. Soak gelatine in cold water 10 minutes. Add to juice, bring to boiling point, pour into molds and chill. Serve with mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

Boiled Dressing

Four eggs or eight yolks, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon dry mustard, two teaspoons butter or olive oil (can use up to one-third cup), one-half pint cream whipped, four teaspoons vinegar, one teaspoon sugar, paprica. Beat eggs thoroughly, white and yolks together and place in double boiler. Scald (not boil) the vinegar, pour it on the eggs and cook until mixture thickens. Add oil and vinegar or lemon, alternately, until all is used, stirring constantly. Have all materials ice cold, if possible. Mayonnaise should be stiff enough to hold its shape.

Gives Forum Reading Tuesday

Miss Berniece Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Martin, and a talented reader, will be presented by the dramatic department of the Woman's Forum Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. N. Maer when she will read "The Little Journey" by Rachael Crothers.

Today { At the Theaters
By Ruth Morrison

The Majestic: Interstate vaudeville; also "Blarney," with Renee Adoree and Ralph Graves; Pathe News and comedy.

The Olympic: "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," with Louise Brooks; comedy and Fox News.

The Strand: "When Bear Cat Went Dry," with Lon Chaney; comedy and Kinograms.

The Mission: "Drifting Through," with Harry Carey, and chapter four of "Silent Flyer."

The Garden: "The Battling Kid," Al Hoxie western, and chapter No. 12 of "The Branded Four," and Fable comedy.

The Gem: J. Farrell McDonald in "The Shamrock Handicap" and comedy.

Some of the people will say that it was risque—and we will admit that it was—but all of the people will agree that it was one of the most riotous Majestic programs of the season. You were shocked at Jay C. Flippen's daring remarks and some of you laughed outright while the rest permitted yourselves an inward smile. You nearly died at Mae Daley, "the actress who was not a mattress, though she looked like one" and Frank Kessler and his Musical Weavers held you spellbound with their throbbing harmony. Their star, Elizabeth Brice, queened it over her "Sunday school class" of nine jazzing musicians in true Follies style and was frankly chagrined when the curtain went up on a little crap game they were having behind her back!

Clogging on roller skates? Of course there is such a thing! Mulroy, McNeece and Ridge executed every step known to stage dancing including the black bottom and Russian ballet in their "Whirls and Steps" number.

Charlie and Helen show how it is done when a good boy goes out with a flapper and has to think of his reputation! We can at least give him credit for his vigorous efforts to escape Helen's forced attentions as she bade him goodnight at his door.

Jay C. Flippen told us all about his girl that was "so dumb she didn't know nothin'—and didn't even suspect anything!"

* * *

An after-theater lunch and we were still laughing at the remembrance of the Majestic— then someone brought up the subject of going to "The Bohemian Girl" next Monday at the Palace. J. D. Gray, manager of the Palace, is all enthusiasm over this light opera which is here for one day only. Enchanting gypsy music, singers of nation-wide fame and a plot that is intense and gripping—all these qualities, Mr. Gray claims will make "The Bohemian Girl" one to be long remembered by people of Wichita Falls. Mail orders are pouring into the Palace box office—so, listen, boys, get your date now and make an early reservation!

* * *

And the Olympic is good, too. "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em"—all about one fascinating little miss who expects a great deal from this old world of ours—and gets it! And her lovable elder sister who gets it as a rule in the neck! Then there's the boy, loved and left for the next one.

* * *

Lon Chaney is at the Strand today and tomorrow and the Mission, Garden and Gem are showing a variety of pictures that will please old and young alike.

PROSPERITY IN LIVE STOCK DISTRICTS

THERE is prosperity in the big live stock district of Texas, the senatorial district represented by the Hon. B. F. Berkley of Alpine, the largest district of the 31. Senator Berkley is from the big range country; his district covers the territory from the upper Rio Grande almost to the county of Bexar. He is as familiar with conditions as it is possible for a close observer to be, and he predicts future prosperity for the cowmen and the sheepmen and the goatmen of a vast territory under Texas skies.

Nature has been kind. There were heavy seasonal rains. This made the landscape green and the pasturage rich and lushy. This made the live stock fat and healthy. This did not call for the feeding of live stock by their owners. And the markets have been favorable. Cowmen and sheepmen and goatmen received fair prices for their offerings.

Hence, they view the future with auspicious eyes. They are confident that they are coming into their own again. They feel that the demand for meat stuffs will be greater than ever before and that the prices to be paid for marketable live stock will at least pay fair dividends to the pockets of those engaged in the industry. In what is known as the Alpine country, in Brewster and adjoining counties, the cowmen find an ideal home for their herds.

According to those familiar with the country and its climatic and soil conditions, the Lord must have intended it for a grazing country and in recent years the drouths have been less severe and the increased precipitation is rapidly placing that section in the rain belt of the southwest. Live stock is an important industry. In Texas it is said the investment represents more than a half billion dollars. For years it was the basic industry of Texas.

Growth of other industries has not lessened the importance of the live stock industry. There are hundreds of stock farms everywhere throughout West Texas and South Texas. But in what is known as the Hudspeth congressional district the cowmen retain their ranches and the sheepmen their holdings, that is, to a great extent for the reason that it is pasture more than it is an agricultural land and recent changes in climatic conditions have largely lessened the terrors of the drouths of bygone years.

Texas is on the map and those who are interested in this important industry feel that the future is bright for those engaged in it and that the frightful losses of the years which followed in the wake of the World war will be forgotten in the near future by those who have fought valiantly to come back or in other words to recoup their losses. There will be many bills introduced this winter by the lawmakers from the live stock districts of Texas. As a matter of course they are entitled to consideration. All the growing industries of Texas are entitled to consideration. Constructive legislation should have the call. Protective legislation should have the call. Texas must move forward. This is a fast growing state. It is a long call from James Stephen Hogg to Dan Moody. Hogg was the first of the constructive statesmen. Those who were close to him had constructive brains and followed his standard. Then came Charles A. Culberson who picked up the standard when Hogg laid it down and carried the unfinished policies of Hogg to completion. Every decade the governor and the lawmakers find new work cut out for them. Of course, the 40th legislature will find new work to do. Texas is nearing the six million population mark and the garments that covered a baby state will not cover the giant of all American states.

It is next to impossible for the lawmakers of today to transact the business of a commonwealth in a 60-day term. It would be impossible to make a satisfactory job of it in 90 or 120 days. Old Davy Crockett had the right idea, "be sure you are right and then go ahead." A rapid fire procedure results in crude legislation and laws which are set aside by the courts or are found to be full of blow holes.

SOLDIER BONUS CLAIMS

FEDERAL loans on soldier bonus was urged in the senate by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. They were urged in the senate by Senator Royal A. Copeland of New York. Under the Walsh bill an interest of 6 per cent would be charged.

When is a hero a hero?

In time of war he is lauded to the sky. In time of peace he is overlooked. There are three or four millions of these former service men in the United States. They may take it into their heads some day to take charge of the political machines of the country and then what will happen to the kings of finance, the captains of industry and the glib tongue politicians who appear to have been born without memory.

Why not give the former service men the preference? Why shouldn't the federal government advance loans on soldier bonus? He did not get a great deal when the war on. He should not be overlooked now that the war is over. He carried on. Now his government should carry on.

HOLDS A WINNING HAND

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE holds a winning hand. He declared against a new cruiser program. He was challenged to combat or a show down by the big navy men of the house. He faced the issue. He asked for delay pending a possible second arms limitation conference. His proposal was given the right of way.

Trade wars have been the wars of the past. All settled by the cannon and the sword. Trade wars will be the wars of the future, to be settled by the cannon and the sword.

General Paul B. Malone told all the story in his eloquent address before the Austin Chamber of Commerce at its annual banquet. Men have been fighting for the trade dollar since the dollar was invented and trade was created.

Man hasn't changed. His nature is the same. His greed is the same. His ambition is the same. His thirst for gold is the same. This is a trade world and the men of trades, who are the men of the mighty dollar, rule the world.

IN THE ALAMO CITY

NOW it is said the banking business of San Antonio increased $100,000,000 in 1926, and in the county of Bexar there are 1000 boys and girls members of poultry clubs.

In the land of the open spaces, the cow and the sow and the hen, are coming into their own.

San Antonio claims a population of 220,000. This constitutes a home market in itself. Farmers who produce food stuffs for their table and feed stuffs for their stock are the farmers who are smiling at the end of the year.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC. 1926

By Beatrice Burton
Author of
"Love Bound," "Her Man," "Honey Lou," Etc.

READ THIS FIRST—

BOBBIE RANSOM, a pretty little blond school teacher, is anything but the flip sort of girl whom you'd expect to be "movie struck." But she is. For years she has been dreaming of going to Hollywood to break into pictures.

Neither her father, a widower, nor her AUNT GERTRUTE, nor ANDY JERROLD, who wants her to marry him, will lend her the money to go on "such a wild goose chase." And because she's extravagant and spends everything she makes, she has no money of her own.

Finally she borrows $500 from the well-to-do WIDOW PARKINS, who is going to be her father's second wife, and goes to Hollywood with a high heart and a full purse.

At the boarding house of the eccentric MRS. MANGAN she meets STELLA DELROY, who's an extra girl in the movies. Through Stella she gets two day's work at the Magnifica Studios in a picture directed by famous ROY SCHULTZ. The assistant director, GUS MACCLOUD, a handsome bachelor, takes great interest in her, and another extra girl, MONICA MONT, advises her to play up to him. Monica is a gold digger, and Bobbie is dreadfully upset when Monica decides to come to live at Mrs. Mangan's, for she never pays for anything that she can get for nothing.

MacCloud invites Bobbie to go to the Mexican gambling town of Tia Juana with him, and tries to make love to her, but she rebuffs him. She feels that he's too sure of her. But after Roy Schultz's wife, LOTTIE, tells her that both MacCloud and her own husband are interested in her career, Bobbie begins to be nice to him. Slowly she feels herself falling in love with him but she never loses sight of the fact that he can help her become a film actress. One night he takes her to an actors' benefit, and toward midnight suggests that they leave and drive down to the ocean. Despite the lateness of the hour, Bobbie says she'll go, and they start off.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"It's From Home!" She Gasped

CHAPTER XIX

It was a blow to Bobbie to hear from Monica's own lips that she, too, had been a visitor at Gus MacCloud's hillside house.

It always is a blow to a woman to find out that there have been other women in the life of the man she happens to be in love with.

"And yet," Bobbie told herself, remembering that she had seen Gus with at least three other women in the time she had known him, "it's only natural that a good-looking bachelor in his thirties should have had love affairs by the dozen."

She slowly stirred the coffee in the cup that was balanced on her knees.

"Monica," she said, looking up from it, "How well do you know Gus?"

Monica shrugged her slender shoulders.

"Come on in my room a minute. I want to show you something," she said, and jumped up. "It came last night just after you left with Gus."

Bobbie put on her kimono and slippers and followed her across the hall. One the table in the center of Monica's room was a radio. An expensive looking one.

"Where did you get it?" Bobbie asked, and Monica laughed her shill, gay laugh.

"Oh, from one of the electricians over at the studio," she answered. "His brother has a store where they sell these things and he's been ding-donging at me for a month to buy one from him. So I told him to bring one over and here it is. I hope they don't expect me to pay for it. If they do, they're going to be awfully disappointed." She shook her head sadly.

"I haven't ten dollars to bless myself with," she went on, closing the door of the room gently and lowering her voice. "And I was just going to ask you to do me the biggest kind of a favor, Bobbie."

Bobbie looked at her, waiting for her to go on.

"I was going to ask you if I and my radio could move into your room with you for just a week or so," Monica explained, after a moment's hesitation. "You see, neither one of us would have to pay Mrs. Mangan as much money that way as we do now. And honestly, Bobs, I'm just stony broke. If you won't take me in, I'll have to go and sleep in the park until I get work."

Bobbie's eyes traveled her up and down. She looked tawdry in her flashy clothes, but there was a genuine diamond in a ring on her left hand. How could anyone be stony broke with a ring like that.

"All right, when do you want to double up? Today?" she asked, wishing she had the courage to suggest to Monica that she sell the diamond. She almost offered to lend Monica the money to pay her board bill, but something told her that if she did it once, there would be no end to the money Monica would borrow from her.

But all the same, she hated the thought of having Monica in her room.

For one thing, Monica was sloppy. Her own room was fairly running over with things that should have been hung in the closet or put away in dresser drawers. Stockings of an amazing thinness were slung across seats of chairs. Silk underclothing that reeked with the "Subtil" perfume that Monica used to lay in corners of the room. Monica apparently just "stepped out" of it at night when she undressed herself.

The dresser was a mass of powder puffs, rouge boxes, chocolate creams, packages of cigarettes, lemons that Monica used for her complexion, water-wave combs tangled up in hair nets, soiled handkerchiefs and tissue for removing cold cream from the skin.

There was a plate of dried brown apple cores on the table beside the radio. The radio! Bobbie knew that Monica would keep that radio going all the time. It was going to be terrible to have Monica and that radio in the same room with her.

She didn't want anyone with her! She liked having the orderly quiet place to herself, especially at night when she could sit propped up against the pillows and peacefully read herself to sleep.

She liked to have everything in its place—every dress on its hanger, every pair of slippers on its trees, every hat covered with tissue paper on the top shelf in the clothes closet.

"I don't know whether I can stand having her in with me or not," she told herself, miserably.

* * *

It was worse even than she expected it to be, for Monica simply took possession of the room, as if she were paying the rent instead of Bobbie. She played the radio for hours every night. She borrowed Bobbie's clean handkerchiefs, her silk stockings, and used her face powder as if it were her own.

"Isn't it nice that we both use the same shade?" she would ask cheerfully, dabbing it all over her face and neck and arms. "Because I haven't any of my own left!"

On an afternoon toward the end of the week, Bobbie came home tired and discouraged by a visit to the Central casting office and to the casting office at Magnifica.

She had gone to Magnifica, not so much to see the casting director, but to see Gus MacCloud. However, he was nowhere in sight.

"Funny I haven't heard from him for nearly a week," she thought, on the way home. "And not a word from Roy Schultz, either. Maybe my screen test was poor. Maybe they think I'm no good."

She went up the stairs of Mrs. Mangan's house to her room. It was in wild disorder and the smell of the "Subtil" perfume seemed to be more overpowering than usual.

Bobbie groaned as she began to put things away. Things that Monica had left around—ribbons, handkerchiefs, strings of beads.

Then, all at once, she saw that Monica had left a note pinned on the blue-silk pin-cushion that stood on the dresser.

"Bobbins dear," she had written. "I've gone up to Gus MacCloud's. He telephoned for both of us. I borrowed your black satin dress to wear. You're to get a cab and come right along, too, the minute you read this. Supper 'n' everything! Nize party!"

She had not signed it. But Bobbie told herself that she would have known it was Monica's handwriting, no matter where she had seen it. It was like Monica—wild and hurried and careless looking.

"I won't go!" Bobbie said aloud, and she said it bitterly and with feeling.

The least Monica could have done was to wait for her and drive her up in her car! But no, she had to go rushing off ahead of her to have an hour or so alone with Gus MacCloud! No doubt trying to vamp him, as she tried to vamp every man who came along.

"Sure, I believe in getting everything from every man that I can," she had told Bobbie only the night before. "And all that stops me from getting more from them than I do is that I have only two hands instead of four!"

* * *

The telephone in the upper hall rang loudly.

"A gentleman for you, dearie!" Mrs. Mangan's voice came floating up from downstairs.

It was MacCloud, and at the sound of his voice Bobbie began to weaken. She knew she was going up to his "nize party" after all. Not that she felt like meeting a lot of new people, but because she would see him again.

"You've got to come," he told her. "I'll send everybody home if you don't come. I'll be right down for you."

Well, that was different—if he was coming for her! Bobbie clicked up the receiver and flew back to her room.

She was trig and fresh in a tan silk sports dress and hat when his cream-colored car stopped before the house.

"Be right down!" she sang out to him, leaning from the window of her room.

The sight of him lolling there behind the wheel of the long low car in his sweater and cap, thrilled and excited her, somehow. She added a last touch of scarlet paint to her lips with fingers that shook a little.

In the mirror her eyes were pools of shining amber light, and there was a smile in them. The corners of her mouth went up.

"Oh, I'm happy—happy!" she whispered to the girl in the glass, and ran down the stairs.

Mrs. Mangan was standing at the front door talking to some one, and she turned around just as Bobbie reached the bottom of the stairs. In her hand she held a telegram.

"It's for you," she said. Her eyes were round and frightened.

She stood behind Bobbie and tried to see what the message said. "I always go all of a tremble whenever a telegram comes to the house," she declared. "Oh, I do hope there's no bad news in this one, Miss Ransom, dear." She almost wrung her hands as she spoke.

"It's from home!" gasped Bobbie. "My Aunt Gertrude is sick—appendicitis! Oh, what WILL I do? I should never have left her. I should have stayed with her!"

From out of doors there came the sudden loud honking of Gus MacCloud's machine. Evidently he was in a great hurry to be back at his house.

Bobbie ran out to him, holding the telegram in her hand.

"Oh, I'm sorry, but I can't go with you!" she said, and her breath came jerkily between the words. "I've got to go home. My aunt's dreadfully sick, and my father wants me to take the first train for home."

MacCloud was silent. He stared moodily down the length of the street and grunted.

"Hmm!" He threw his motor into gear. "Well—sorry. See you later, maybe!"

Bobbie gasped. "For cat's sake! You act as if I'd hurt your feelings! I should think you'd be sympathizing with me instead of acting like this!"

He swung his head, and kept his eyes straight before him. "No, but it's doggoned funny that you never can do anything I want you to do," he said, sulkily. "Rushing away just because your aunt has a tummy ache, or something! Just when I throw a party for you! I'll bet your aunt isn't half as sick as you pretend to think she is. Why don't you long-distance your folks back home and find out exactly how she is?"

Bobbie shook her head. "No. They wouldn't send for me if she weren't dreadfully sick," she told him firmly. "I've got to go and I've got to go right away. The very first train—"

She stopped. For without another word, MacCloud was gone. His car slid into motion and moved down the street between the palm trees and the neat lawns! He did not look back, although she watched him until he was out of sight.

For a second Bobbie hated him. "Why, he's just a big spoiled baby," she said to herself. "He really isn't worth bothering about."

She couldn't imagine Andy Jerrold, for instance, acting the way MacCloud had just acted. But she kept thinking about him, instead of poor Aunt Gertrude, all the time she was packing her bag and telephoning about trains.

It was more than two hours afterward that she read her telegram once more, as the train moved out of Los Angeles and headed toward home.

She looked back at its receding lights with wistful, unhappy eyes.

"I'll be back soon," she promised herself, staring out of the window at the darkness of the countryside a half hour later. Against its blackness she seemed to see a man's face with fine features and a pair of close-set sulky blue eyes.

"I wonder how well Monica and he know each other," she mused, thinking of them in the white plaster house on the hillside right at that moment—together.

Then she gave an impatient shake. "Oh, he wouldn't look at Monica!" she kept telling herself. But she wasn't sure of it, at that!

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Bobbie chooses between home and career, between marriage and the movies in the next chapter of "The Hollywood Girl."

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(EFS)—Billy Minsky, New York's Burlesque Baron, sent a check at the first of the year to a theatrical paper, renewing his subscription.

"I am doing this at the request of Dr. Blank," he wrote to the editor, "a very eminent and learned physician who said he found more interest in your publication than in Spinoza, or Voltaire."

To which Ye Editor made answer:

"Thanks for your very kind letter and your extremely kind enclosure which was the exact amount. Will you kindly request your doctor friend to let me knew whether Spinoza and Voltaire are foreign publications and how their circulation compares with ours?

"P. S.—Do you know any more doctors?"

"Abie's Irish Rose" recently reached its 2,000th performance on Broadway. The play opened at the Fulton theater, May 23, 1922, and shortly after moved to the Republic, where it is now in its fifth year, having played more consecutive performances than any other dramatic production in the history of the stage.

The play has grossed, to date, $20,000,000. There are six companies playing in the United States, one in Australia and an eighth company will open in London next April. Arrangements are now being completed to assemble a company in South Africa.

Anne Nichols, the author, has just been guaranteed $3,000,000 for the movie rights.

The play is an outstanding refutation of Bill Shakespeare's philosophy of nomenclature.

That which we call "Abie's Irish Rose," by any other name, would not have prospered to the extent it has.

The play was written and the name inspired by heavenly guidance. "Abie's Irish Rose" is the good Lord's answer to the "sinful pride" of the modern "Intellectual."

After much deliberation, New York members of the Journeyman Barbers' Union have come to the belief that "tipping debases the ethics of the tonsorial business."

Who says woman's influence in the affairs of men is not all potent, sweet and lovely? You never heard Signor Hot Howels babbling about "ethics" until Betty began to have her bean bobbed.

A New York columnist titles his department: "Personal Touches Along Broadway."

And believe me, Brother, there are many. Mazda Lane is where the "touch system" was perfected many years ago.

One of the oldest morning chronicles in Saptown on the Subway, reaching out for additional circulation, has taken to advertising its merits in the pages of its "vile contemporaries."

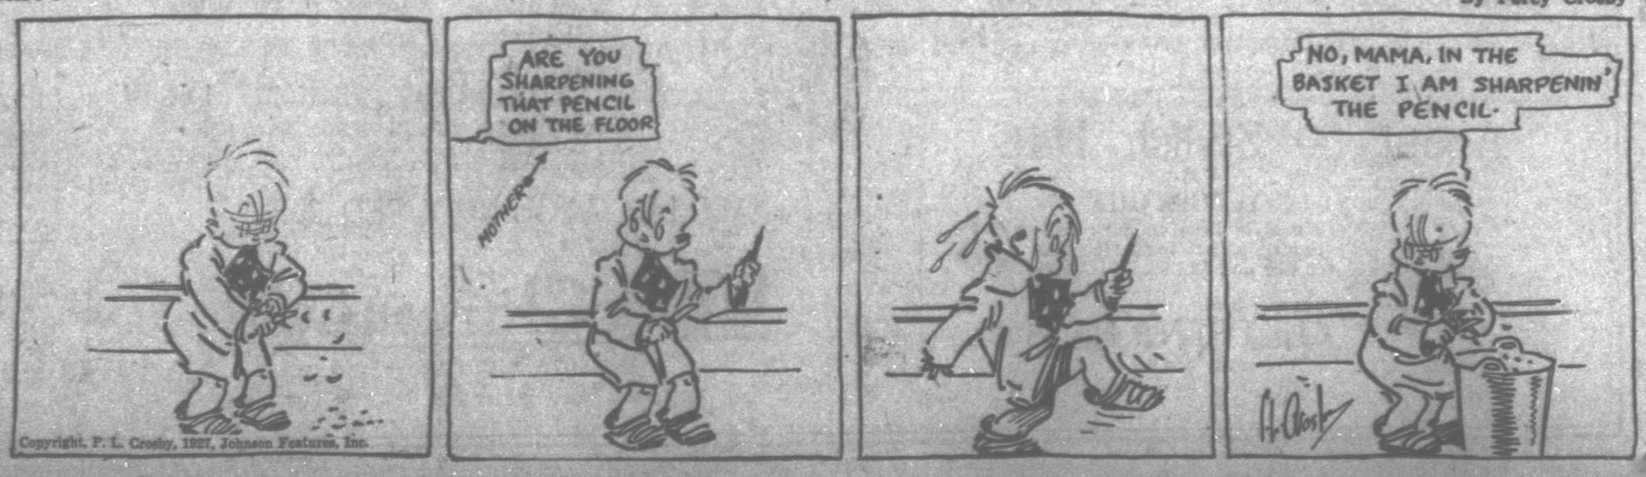

In a paper read by the Starchy Archies of the town, they advertise that they have "the most distinctive editorial page in American journalism." While in the "tabs" that are tucked into the pockets of the gum-chewing contingent, they blazon the announcement that their daily "comics" are pro bono publico, nulli secundus and other delectable things.

After a close study of the various gubernatorial inaugural pictures in recent rote sections I am more than persuaded that if you wish to get a correct slant on a man's character, persuade him to be photographed in a silk hat.

GIRL IDENTIFIES BODY OF MAN

Victim in Murder Mystery At Childress Named

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Jan. 13.—The body of the man found stuffed in a culvert, 25 miles northwest of here was identified early today as Jack Morgan of Borger. Identification was made by his wife, Mrs. Jack Morgan of Borger, who arrived in this city at 3 o'clock this morning in response to information telling of a telegram to Jack Morgan found on the body.

Mrs. Morgan gave the following details leading up to the time of the disappearance of her husband. She is employed by F. A. May who runs a rooming and boarding house in Borger.

Visited in Ramah.

Early in November she and her husband were in Ramah, N. M., to visit their 5-year-old son who is living with her parents at Ramah, 30 miles from Gallup. While there, a telegram was sent by Mr. May, November 6, saying "Come at once."

This was the telegram found on the body after its discovery in a culvert on the Newlin-Wellington highway on the Ozark trail Tuesday morning by a tourist.

Morgan preceded his wife to Borger, going by train, and she later joined him. Morgan, who was an electrician, met two young men, said to be from Panhandle, and with them, he started to Amarillo to find work. Later she had a letter from him mailed from Amarillo and he said he was going to Oklahoma to find work, and after that she had not heard from him.

Wife to Investigate.

She left Childress late today for Borger and there she is going to make an effort to find out who the two men are who were in company with her husband before his death. Sheriff John Compton of Childress county, is also making an effort to locate the men.

Belief is expressed locally that some connection in this case may be made with two boys who are being held in Altus, Okla., on a charge of car theft. The car was stolen recently at Ardmore, Okla., the information said.

'DANGER FEAR' NORRIS ISSUE

"Law of Apparent Danger" Pastor's Defense

BY FRANK BALDWIN
Record News Staff.

AUSTIN, Jan. 13.—You can believe your life is in danger by reason of actions of an adversary and kill him, only to discover afterward you were laboring under a misapprehension, yet the homicide you have committed is justifiable in the eyes of the law.

These 42 words constitute a layman's definition of "apparent danger" as gathered in questions put to prospective jurors by Rev. J. Frank Norris' attorneys during progress of the minister's trial in Travis county criminal district court.

Hypothetical Issues

The legal battery which is attempting to send you to the electric chair can offer conclusive evidence your life was not in danger; that your opponent was not armed; that he could not have killed you if he wanted to; yet you get on the stand and make out a perfect case for yourself, supported by available evidence, that although all that may be true you thought you had pretty good reason to think your time had come and presto, neither the electric chair nor penitentiary walls can threaten. That is, provided the 12 men selected as your peers, live up to all the promises they have made under oath to your attorneys and the court that they will follow his instructions given them upon retiring to consider a verdict—instructions based on evidence adduced at the hearing—and don't go off on some tangent based on your hostism against Roman Catholics, your crusade against modernism and all things sympathizing with theories of monkey ancestry or perhaps take advantage of you while in the jury room for disagreeing with Rev. George Truett, President Samuel Palmer Brooks of Baylor university, et al, in their observation of Baptist orthodoxy and official conduct of the General Baptist Convention of Texas.

Case in Nut Shell

In a nutshell, the adversary whom you killed never had any intention of killing you which could be sufficiently proven six months later in a county criminal court room to support an out and out plea of self-defense necessary to assure a verdict on that basis of justifiable homicide. Very probably your adversary was not armed with so much as a knife. But—where you pause to let the full effect dawn upon the uninformed—enough went on to give you a mental conviction of "apparent danger," and the law says you don't have to run away, but can stand your ground and so the homicide resulted.

Hours of questioning prospective jurors in the Rev. J. Frank Norris murder case on part of defense attorneys in Travis county criminal court either established definitely that they are going to attempt to prove the divine's mind at the time of the Chipps killing in his pastor's study last July was filled with "apparent danger" of his life, although it is possible it cannot be proven Chipps had no intention of killing him, or else this same defense array of talent is pulling a piece of legal strategy hitherto unknown in these parts about Austin.

Closely Quizzed

Not a venireman got by without a typewritten full page of interrogation of the probability of his following Judge James R. Hamilton's instruction on this so-called justifiable phase of homicide.

"Do you believe in the law of self-defense?" the veniremen heard almost immediately after he had said he did not subscribe to the Searchlight; never heard Norris on the radio; was not a Baptist; did or did not believe man sprang from a monkey or was not interested in the General Baptist convention of Texas.

Sample of Questions

Then: "Ever witness the trial of a murder case?"

Or: "Ever hear a charge delivered to a jury by the court?"

"Do you believe in the right to defend your life?"

"Well, who would not."

"If it would be necessary in order to save yourself would you believe yourself justified in killing another man?"

"Yes," again.

"Do you understand what is meant by 'apparent danger'?"

And if a juror did not at that time, he did a few minutes later after his interrogator got through telling him.

"In determining the issue of self-defense you must view it from the standpoint of the defendant." Yes, all right, so far, so good.

"You understand, therefore, do you, the principle that no man has to run away? He is entitled to stand his ground.

"Yes," very probably.

"And even though his life is only apparently in danger to him; and we'll go so far as to say even the facts if the case prove his life was not in danger—all of that to the contrary notwithstanding—if he kills his adversary he would be justified therein and that is the law. Do you understand that?"

Want Plain Facts

Most of them understood, although there were at least two exceptions, who opined:

"Well, the facts would have to be pretty plain that his life was in danger before I'd turn him loose" and it was not more than a couple of moments before such juror prospect was conspicuous by his absence.

Never has it been doubted that the Rev. Mr. Norris' plea to his answer of not guilty would be self-defense, but only recently was the intimation given that there was a possibility the defense could not establish that Chipps, the victim, was armed or that perhaps a jury of 12 men could not, by available evidence, be convinced that Norris' life was in danger, but that the defense believe it had conclusive proof that the mental condition of the pastor at the time was such as convinced him he was about to be killed.

As a high light, the outcropping of defense plans to offer "apparent danger" as their bulwark against conviction was first in interest only above the presence of the first Roman Catholic on the stand as a prospective juror, and in another instance the arrival from the venire room of an admitted fundamentalist, neither of whom got on to the Norris jury. A defense attorney afterward said that the Norris side perhaps would not have minded the fundamentalist as a juror, but that so far as the Catholic was concerned—never. As it were, both Catholic and fundamentalist were excused for cause by mutual agreement of both sides.

A List of Don'ts

To get on the Norris murder trial jury one must master the following list of don'ts:

"Don't read the Searchlight with too much avidity. Better not own a radio lest you hear Rev. Dr. Norris relate through the air an allegation of Roman Catholic et a conspiracy in Fort Worth "to put him behind the walls of the Texas penitentiary."

Don't have a fixed opinion of Rev. Frank Norris' squabble with Texas Baptist church leaders over the definition of church orthodoxy.

Don't profess the Roman Catholic faith nor permit your embracement of baptistry to become too ardent.

Don't allow you have ever worried much one way or another over whether you are a product of the divine creation or sprang from apes.

Don't have a fixed opinion as to the guilt or innocent of the defendant or admit that you are a blood relative.

Memorize these and you have a summary of almost seven hours of questioning, which occupied the time of the court in the Norris trial today.

One J. T. Wood was the first known fundamentalist to find his way to the stand. Wood, questions brought out, had a ramification of residence in Texas, which took him from Brownwood to Fort Worth to Austin, to say nothing of several temporary residences elsewhere. Mention the word Fort Worth at the Norris trial, if you are a venireman, and watch yourself become the center of interest.

Yes, he went to school in Fort Worth for a while, Wood asserted. Attended the Baptist seminary there. Preached occasionally, although he was perhaps to be defined as a Baptist theologian without portfolio. Ministered once in a while to jail inmates, etc. Did not belong to Rev. Dr. Norris' church, but had heard him speak.

"If not too personal," was Marvin Simpson's question for the defense, "what is your belief in evolution?"

Juror Puzzled

"Well, are you a fundamentalist?"

And still Wood did not quite understand.

"I mean," said Simpson again, "do you think man come from God or sprang from a monkey?"

"I think man came from God," was Wood's answer.

"And do you think all things come from God?" suggested Simpson, and Wood averred they did.

Asked whether he desired to get on the Norris jury, Wood replied no, not unless they wanted him.

Simpson passed him back to the state, but it developed Bill McLean was not interested in Wood's possibilities and promptly exercised a pre-emptory challenge to get rid of him, and thus the first anti-modernist went into the discard as a juryman.

The Catholic who found his way into the witness box was one J. W. Epps. There is one thing which must not be passed unsaid, for whatever business organization Rev. Dr. Norris has created for the publication of his Searchlight, the staff of that publication must have a circulation manager or a generalissimo of distribution par excellent. Scarcely was there a venireman in the box who had not discovered the publication at his doorsteps sometime since last July when Norris was granted a change of venue from Fort Worth to Travis county. Epps had got one, probably as many as three copies of the paper, and he had never subscribed. It appears that the general trend of circulation of the Searchlight in Travis county since last July has been on the basis of free distribution.

Asked of Attack

"You know Rev. Norris attacked your church in Fort Worth, don't you?" asked Dayton Moses of Epps.

Answered affirmatively, Moses asked the venireman if he didn't sort of feel bitter against the minister for those attacks.

"Yes, I do," came back Epps.

"And you'd carry that bitterness into the jury room, wouldn't you?" Moses continued.

"Well," and Epps hesitated, "No, I don't think I would." But Moses persisted and then drew from him the admission he had once stood trial for murder—in 1916—but had been acquitted. Mutual agreement finally excused Epps.

And so went the trial through the long hours. It was a day of many more ups than downs, and certainly a day without the bromidical pathos; for laughs, which always bring a rap from Judge Hamilton and a stentorian admonition from the bailiff.

There was Venireman Will J. Dill, who later became juror number five, who didn't believe he had ever before served on a jury, not because he was once an Austin volunteer fireman, but because "I was just naturally lucky in escaping the summonses," and the suggestion from the same witness that "Don't know who sent me the Searchlight, but it must have been the mailman, 'cause he was the one who always left it."

Juror Fears Opinion

One W. B. H. Williams, venireman, said he was "afraid" he had an opinion, and when Judge Hamilton said he need not be scared about having one, he freely admitted it was a fixed one. After Veniremen W. H. Badger had followed Judge Hamilton's suggestion that this "party" opinion was perhaps a "floating" one, he gained a ready dismission.

Added to his severe cold, which appears to have lodged in his throat, the defendant himself carries an expression of deep seriousness throughout the session of court, with only an occasional light of a smile at approach of some visitor or friend. For the first time in his life Rev. J. Frank Norris, leader of congregations and general armies against modernism, heard the casual question by men in whose hands he has placed himself, put to utter strangers in effect, "How about killing this preacher legally as punishment if it turns out facts about the Chipps case justify it?" During one recess in at least two instances the pastor told individuals who approached him he "did not want to speak at all just now," and one of them was a white man who in a sincere assumption of piousness whispered, "I am so and so, and we"—Norris, however, did not understand his mission. It was evident—"are praying for you." The other was a negro who did not get a word out of his mouth before he was met by the pastor's explanation, "I'm sorry, but I don't care to see anyone just now." Yet he seemed to have his moments of light-heartedness, though in one instance he accused a newspaper reporter of being unfair in terming him a "self-asserted fundamentalist," to another he extended the jovial greetings, "Well, I'm going to give you an exclusive interview—I'm certain of victory, and what is more my wife will be here Thursday morning and my daughter, Mrs. Charles Weaver, will be here from Boston Friday."

Norris Intent

J. Frank Norris is intent on his trial to say the least, and when it comes to the point of his attorneys being able to accept a juror he goes into huddle system with all of them, as their heads get together with all of them for a last conference. Once Norris was charged in one indictment with perjury and in two indictments with arson. That was back in 1912 and 1913, in Fort Worth, and he was acquitted, but the cautiousness with which his counsel is watching every contingency was shown in a memorial presented Judge James R. Hamilton at noon Tuesday calling attention to these indictments, urging that they were of no concern to the present case, and that the court warn state's counsel in advance that no questions relative to them would be countenanced because "same is too remote and would be highly prejudical and injurious to the defendant who is a minister of the gospel as you know, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth.

'Wild' Bill McLean, State Attorney, Interesting Note in Norris Trial

BY GENE FOWLER
(Universal Service Staff)

AUSTIN, Jan. 13.—A completed jury in the trial of the Rev. J. Frank Norris, of Fort Worth, marched out of court here this evening. Two lean deputy sheriffs, their belts studded with cartridges and six-shooters on their hips, walked with them, one in front and one in the rear. They had dinner together and were told by the court that they can't even call their wives by telephone until it is decided whether or not the Rev. Norris is guilty of killing D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman.

Jurors Sworn In

The twelfth juror, Andrew McAngus, grocer, was accepted a few minutes before 5 o'clock. He and his fellow jurors were sworn in at 5:15. Three wearisome days of debate, examination and arguments between counsel for prosecution and defense closed abruptly, just as many spectators believed the jury game might go into extra innings.

Three good men and true were selected in the morning session. It took all afternoon to get the twelfth juror. Objection to capital punishment by prospective jurors was one snag; veniremen who had opinions as to the guilt or innocence of Fort Worth's fundamentalist champion was anothtr.

In the shank of the afternoon, Attorney Moses Dayton of the defense, projected a jolting, bald and shuddery note in the proceedings, when he asked Freddie Stumpf this question:

"You say you are against capital punishment. Suppose a negro outraged a respectable white woman and then killed her, if the evidence were satisfactory would you as a juror be able to vote for the death penalty in that case?"

State Counsel Objects

This was objected to strenuously by Sam Sayers, one of the special prosecutors. Sayers said:

"This raises race prejudice. It is not a proper question."

The objection was overruled and the venireman said, he would not vote for the death penalty even in such a case as that outlined.

Dalton, Tenn., had its Darrow. The Hall-Mills case had its Sen. Alex Simpson. Here, Austin has its picturesque, dominant legal figure in W. P. (Wild Bill) McLean. Sturdy and active, Wild Bill's stentorian tones have been known to hurl terror into the bosoms of witnesses. He used to punch cows with Tex Rickard, it is said, in the old days at Henrietta, Texas. That was before Tex went to the Klondike and long, long before he was writing half-million and million dollar checks for our beloved prize fighters.

"Wild Bill" Picturesque.

There is something that smacks of the range about Wild Bill. He has a picturesque way of word and deed copyrighted by himself alone. He has had prepared a scale model of the Rev. Norris' study adjoining his First Baptist church of Fort Worth, in which a congregation of 9000 hears the views of the late William Jennings Bryan perpetuated. The model is constructed on a scale of one inch to a foot. The roof lifts off and exposes the miniature room in which Chipps fell under a hail of lead and the adjoining room where one or more witnesses may have been.

Wild Bill McLean said that he had been asked to place dolls in the model to represent the figures in the drama, but added:

"Dolls?" and here he used a word of much virility by way of emphasis and continued:

"Say, what I wanted to bring here was a skeleton, but the court won't stand for a skeleton and I won't stand for dolls."

How He Got Name.

Wild Bill McLean is said to have obtained his title of "Wild" from an incident occurring while he was attorney for Clara Hamon Smith, slayer of Jake Hamon.

He was discovered by Sam Blair, noted Chicago reporter for Universal Service as he and his client were coming into the states. McLean remonstrated verbally and physically with Blair, who had the scoop about Clara's whereabouts, that Blair nicknamed him "Wild Bill" and he has been "Wild" to his friends and associates in name ever since then.

McLean reiterated in court today that the prosecution would not ask questions of witnesses regarding charges of arson and perjury brought in 1912 and 1913, respectively, against the Rev. Norris. He was cleared of both charges.

To Work Fast

It was indicated by McLean that he will make no opening statements tomorrow but would begin speedily to examine witnesses. He inferred that he has three eye witnesses. One of them is L. H. Nutt, Fort Worth banker. Nutt was said to have been in the room when Norris shot Chipps. The other two eye witnesses are a mystery to all but the prosecution. One of them may be the Rev. Norris' secretary, Jane Hartwell, who now is ill in a Fort Worth hospital. However, McLean's hint was that it is not Miss Hartwell but another woman.

This morning there were charges that the Rev. Norris at one time belonged to the ku klux klan. This was denied by Moses Dayton. All day the Rev. Norris sat as calm as a checker player while the jurors were being chosen.

AUSTIN COURT LIKE CHAPEL

Religious Atmosphere Exists About Norris Trial

By BESS CARROLL
Universal Service Staff

AUSTIN, Jan. 13.—In the beginning Texas may have been a plug of tobacco and a longhorn steer, but at least there were no monkeys walking across the plains of years, linking with their tails the unknown past to the present—this much has been granted in the trial of Dr. J. Frank Norris, famous fundamentalist successor of Bryan.

The "twelve good men and true," who have been chosen to try the Rev. Mr. Norris for his life, on a charge of murder, believe that "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth—and divided the waters—and God made man in His own image, in the likeness of God created him."

Echo of Tennessee

A distinct echo of the famous Scopes-Darwin case, where the theory of evolution went on trial, will be heard here in Texas—where the very rudiments of fundamentalism will be tested. For 30 years the bitterest enemy of modernism, J. Frank Norris has shouted defiance at the idea that once man dined on peanuts and threw cocoanuts from the tops of trees. He has begged men to accept the Bible as it is.

Now, the famous fundamentalist, charged with breaking a fundamental law, will be judged by men who believe, like him, in a God who said—"Thou Shalt Not Kill."

Boy Is Fundamentalist

Even young Elliot Chipps, son of the man slain by the noted pastor's gun, is fundamental in his beliefs.

Asked concerning his opinion on evolution, the 14-year-old boy replied, "Why—God made me."

Though it is not at home, religion is a guest now in criminal court. It is far from the gigantic platform of the great First Baptist church of Fort Worth, where Dr. Norris preaches the gospel of brimstone and damnation, yet the courtroom itself might be a church. Flanked with high vaulted windows, domed like a cathedral, this room brightened by God's own candle—the sun—might be a little country chapel somewhere, where once a week the world is forgotten as weary, life-worn men are given a glimpse of heaven.

"Amen" Benches

Sitting on the "Amen" benches, close to the rail, are men and women with prayers in their eyes. Recess comes, and they hurry to would bother him to return the death penalty against a Baptist minister.

The entire afternoon was consumed in selecting the twelfth juror, three having been taken up to the noon recess. A number of men were excused because they had opinions, being stricken from the list by Judge Hamilton before they could be questioned by attorneys.

One of these was L. M. Morrow, a farmer, who said he had read a Norris sermon in the Searchlight, publication of the pastor's church. The sermon was on "the prodigal son," and Morrow said since he wasn't "up on the Bible he guessed it was true."

Former Klansman

Caldwell, former klansman, was asked whether he could weigh the testimony of a Catholic on the witness stand the same as any other witness and replied in the affirmative.

The prosecution expects to place on the stands tomorrow Mrs. R. E. Parker, Harold Rains, John Homer, Henry Lee, chief of police of Fort Worth, and Judge Dave Shannon, who held the inquest over Chipps, and two others. Most of these witnesses will testify to the facts of the killing. Policemen will tell of the condition of the body and circumstances surrounding the scene of the slaying in Dr. Norris' church last July.

Gone are the days when barber shops and restaurants serve as chief hang-outs of the hot stove leaguers, brother. If you want to catch the latest dope on events transpiring in the sports world and some that aren't just kick in at a civic club session. There on the side between courses and the regular club business in hand you'll hear practically all the red hot tips of the day along, of course, with a few lukewarm ones.

* * *

BASEBALL

For instance, the other day the writer learned at the real estate board luncheon that Freddy Fussell, the wronghander, and Large Jim Roberts, the right-hander, opposite extremes in one case, but quite similar in another in that both pack prima donna temperaments, are expected to be the two most effective hurlers in the league next summer. There's foundation with a concrete base in that prediction. Both sans temperament are capable of burning up the loop.

* * *

This temperament stuff in Freddy is natural. He's a left-hander. But with Jim it's inexcusable.

THAT GYM

Then the next day at the Lions luncheon we bumped into another warm tip. Gathering tidbits dropped by one of the Bengal gentlemen, an ardent sportsman, we learned that since Wichita Falls' public-spirited men of means who make out-of-town donations to "worthy causes" have not seen their way yet toward paying in for a municipal gymnasium here at home, a couple or three sharp business experts have put heads together and decided to pitch out on their own and construct a semi-private gym which, however, is to be open to the so-called "tired business" man, athletic girls and boys at a minimum cost. Hot tip, that, if any at all.

* * *

WRESTLING

Now this young man, meaning the writer, didn't get around to the wrassel affair Wednesday night. Got caught at Call field in the rain and the Stutz is strictly a dry weather vehicle. Plenty of athletics out there, however. Couple of girls' basketball teams and the Landon-Hill outfit were rained in also. But not having witnessed the wrassel, I naturally became interested yesterday at the Rotary club luncheon when Louie Pink, a veteran fan, began dishing out the first-hand info. Louie was all for Johnny Carlin and Charley Grip. Said he, "Why Matsuda and Reynolds were slow compared to Johnny and Charley in that hour and three minutes battle. And I wouldn't be a bit surprised if Carlin wouldn't have beat Grip if Charley had not got to wrestling pretty dirty."

* * *

"KILL THE UMPIRE!"

The match proved to be a one-fall affair when Grip, after being bested all the way around, managed to sneak a body slam and put Carlin out of commish. Louie said he'd like to see them go at it again if Charley, heretofore, the "exponent" of clean wrestling, would clean up in reality. With a referee in there instead of Lee Meyers, according to Pink's dope, Carlin might trim the dickens out of Charley. Anyhow, it would be a great battle, averred Louie. Lee disguised as third man in the ring Wednesday, but I have an inkling that he didn't fool anybody any more than he ever did. Lee just naturally doesn't know his onions as an arbiter.

* * *

Louie gave us a laugh when he began extemporing on "this fellow Edwards who poses as a champion." Seems the Edwards-Glover affair was a none too clever a piece of hippodroming or something similar. How he ever beat Ecklund and won a title is a question. The great Clarence must have been a mighty sick man the night of that match.

* * *

Anent the Edwards-Glover vaudeville offering, several of the boys got steamed up at the police station yesterday. Appears Alec Ross held out on the two prize tinears. Decided the main event show wasn't worth the money, whereupon he was hailed to Chief Gawge's sanctum for argument. The low-down on the matter is, Ross took the Edwards-Glover end of the purse and gave half of it to Carlin and Grip who DID get in and pitch to the limit before a comparatively small house. And the Scotchman that he is, Ross pocketed the other half.

* * *

AND A FIGHT

And then I ran across another nice piece of sports at the Rotary session. It was indicated in open meeting that Horace Robbins and Prince Albert have been "poking 'em in under each other's ribs." That'd be a great melee. Ought to match 'em up quick and throw a benefit bout for the "Little Brothers" Rotarians are helping along.

ROSS FAVORITE FOR BIG SWIM

Many Will Try to Cross Catalina "Ditch"

AVALON, Catalina, Jan. 13.—The chief item of news, in connection with the $40,000 Catalina channel swim, scheduled for Saturday, appears to be the decision of Norman Ross, favored in the race, to enter into the blue waters of the channel minus grease, oil,

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—Louis Timson, American Legion entry in the Catalina channel swim, refused to deny or confirm the report that he is to marry Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English channel.

Despite his silence, the report gained credence. The romance is said to have started while the American girl was training for the channel swim.

or any other artificial preparation for lessening the effect of the varying degrees of chill, that a mid-winter swim, of 22 or more miles, is certain to induce.

Ross and his trainers have experimented with various preparations of grease and oil, and have abandoned each, in turn, as not worth carrying along as extra cargo.

Ross is none too sanguine of his chances of crossing the Catalina strip of water. The chilly currents are what he fears most.

There is no entry in the race, unless it be George Young, of Toronto, who can keep up with the big moose in straight-away swimming, and as far as speed and endurance go, Ross is well equipped for the journey, next Saturday.

While Ross has his own opinion of the class of the field it does not necessarily remain that the rest of the water bugs should be forgotten in the sloshing.

They have come from great distances, many of these channel crossers, and there isn't a one in the 153 entries, who can't prove to you, if given enough space for gestures, how and why he will cross the channel.

The field of lady swimmers, is headed by Miss Clarabell Barrett, of Pelham, N. Y. Miss Barrett once spent 22 hours in the English channel, and had all but crossed it, when she had to go back after her hat, or vanity case. I forgot which. Mrs. Charlotte Schoemmel, also of New York, set a new record for publicity getting, during the debate on the grease vs. bathing suit question.

In the division of mere males, there are swimmers, posers, freaks, publicity seekers, and plain ordinary "cuckoos."

Of those who have a chance to swim the channel, there are Mark Wheeler of Los Angeles, a crawl stroker; Howard Chaffee, of Ventura who isn't fast and George Creegan of Paterson, N. J., who isn't bad at all.

Yankees Swap Ward For Pair

Sox Trade Grabowski And Morehearт Even Up

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.(AP)—The New York Yankees jumped into the trading spotlight today, announcing completion of the deal by which Aaron Ward, veteran second baseman goes to the Chicago White Sox for two youngsters—Grabowski, catcher and Ray Morehart, infielder. According to Ed. Barrow, secretary of the Yankees it was a straight trade with no cash involved.

Ward has been with the Yankees since 1917, being purchased from the Charleston, S. C., club of the "Sally" league for a reported price of $800. He was a regular cog in the Yankee machine until last season when he was replaced by Tony Lazzeri. He is expected to play regularly for the Sox next season, occupying the post made vacant by the departure of Eddie Collins.

Manager Miller Huggins expects to carry both Grabowski and Morehart all next season but both appear slated for utility roles. Grabowski, whose home is in Schenectady, N. Y., was obtained by the White Sox from Minneapolis in 1924 he batted .262 in 45 games last year. Morehart who lives in Terrell, Texas, starred in the Western league in 1925, and subbed for Eddie Collins in 44 games last year besides playing 25 more at short and third. He hit .315. Both Yankee newcomers are 25 years old. Ward is 29.

Tris and Ty Fail To Keep Trust?

Out For All Time, Declares "Anonymous Leader"

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—With the baseball "scandal of 1917" disposed of, interest today veered again to possible future moves in the Speaker-Cobb affair, on which Commissioner Landis made no formal ruling.

The Tribune today quotes "one of organized baseball's leaders," who declined to permit his name to be used "at this time," as saying "Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb never again will play ball or manage an American league club," and also says it learned that the statements made public in the case form only a small part of the data held by organized baseball.

"Cobb and Speaker were given positions of trust and they failed to keep that trust," the anonymous baseball leader further was quoted as saying. "No matter what Landis rules, the American league won't have them."

Woz Was Whizz Winning "Wictories," Sords Says

There may be some reason for arguing over the selection of the champion batter of the National league but anyone who tries to start an afternoon's powwow over the question as to who led that circuit in pitching will find himself barking up an empty vinegar barrel.

For Ray "Woz" Kremer, Pittsburgh righthander, won the honor hands down or up as a pitcher should have them.

Kremer, in winning 20 games and losing but six for the Pittsburg team, not only set the pace in the percentage of games won and lost (an average of .769) but he also the led the league in effective hurling by allowing an average of but 2.61 earned runs per game.

Flint Rhem of the Cards, Pete Donohue of the Reds and Lee Meadows, Kremer's teammate, each won 20 games for the season, but Rhem was nicked seven times. Donohue 14 and Meadows nine.

The same official records show that Jess Petty, lefthander, had an unsual year with the Dodgers. He wound up the season with an even break—17 games won and a like number lost. He ranked eighteenth in winning averages. But he ranked third in in effectiveness, with an average of but 2.84 runs a game charged against him. Chalie Root also stood between Petty and Kremer. Root's average was just .02 less.

Had Yde, Aldridge and Morrison or two of those birds come through as old Meadows and Kremer the St. Louis Cardinals might not have won two flags in the same year they disposed of Rogers Hornsby. They ranked well down in the list for effectiveness.

Kremer's effectiveness was not based on his ability to get 'em by the batters. He ranked twelfth in strikeouts. Pitchers with much poorer records, generally weighed turned in bigger lists of strikeout victims. He did, however, keep 'em over the plate. There were 29 hurlers who permitted more bases on balls than he did. Kremer allowed just 51 passes. Blake of the Cubs, the wild man of the league, allowed 92.

HANLON DENIES REPORT TENER MAY BUY ROBINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 13, (AP)—Reported negotiations for the sale of the Brooklyn Nationals to John K. Tener, former governor of Pennsylvania, and one time president of the National league, are denied at the office of the Robins. "It's all news to me," said Fred Hanlon, secretary of the club.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

In ranking the leading heavyweights of the game today the writer necessarily puts Tunney at the top of the list, for some reason or other. I suppose it is because he is the world champion by title.

Then, of course, Jack Dempsey, the deceased, is placed second, and then the fun starts. Who is next? Why and—comes the argument.

Jack Sharkey is third with but little reverses. He did the thing most of the contenders could not. But they do say that Harry Wills was an old man when Mr. Sharkey of Boston, tripped him to defeat in New York. Still the credit goes to Sharkey—due credit—we mean, and well deserving.

* * *

For the rest of the trip we'll place either Jim Maloney, or Paul Berlenbach at fourth and fifth places with the edge going to Paul, although that should be decided between the two of them. Paul could give Maloney one of the best fights of the Boston boy's career.

Berlenbach is far from through with the game, and in stepping into the heavyweight class, he faces men who are as slow as himself. He will find them easier picking than when he fought with the light heavies.

* * *

Paul would be a cyclone against men like Munn or Persson, although probably not hitting nearly as hard as either of them, owing to lack of weight.

Maloney, a newcomer in the ranks of the professional boxers, and heavy contenders, possessing all there is for the future, when it comes to surprises in boxing. 'He is a lad who has not been figured out as yet. Maloney is the boy who all but knocked out the German, Harry Persson.

Beyond fifth place we have Monty Munn, Bud Gorman, Harry Persson, and possibly Harry Wills. These men can hardly be listed by number. The breaks with their fights tell more than their progressiveness.

Too Much Golf Defeated Glenna

Collett Believes Woman Can Overdo Links Game

Miss Glenna Collett, former national woman golf champion, has declared her intention of remaining out of active golf competition until summer. She will engage in only one tournament in the spring months, that at Nassau, for which she had filed her entry before making her decision.

She states frankly that her reason for dropping out of winter and spring tournaments is her belief that she hurt her game in 1926 by playing 12 months of golf previous to that time.

After winning the national title in 1925 Miss Collett continued in active competition through the late fall, then accepted invitations to enter southern meets during the winter and played through these.

Her defeat in Florida, at the hands of Miss Virginia Van Wie was the first indication that Miss Collett was "off" in her game. She realized it as quickly as anyone, but believed that she had lost her stride only temporarily and did not realize at the time that she had become a bit "stale" as a result of her continuous efforts.

Her failure to hit her stride consistently after that brought her to the realization that her game had fallen below the 1925 standard and would remain that way unless some drastic step were taken to improve it. The step has been taken.

It may be that Miss Collett will bring other golfers to consider the same danger.

The rapid growth in popularity of golf in the past few years has changed it from a seasonable game to a year-around sport. The eagerness of clubs and civic organizations to draw the leading lights of the game to their cities has presented temptations to these stars to pursue the game the year around.

Apparently the men who devote their entire time to golf are able to keep up their game at all times. But how about the feminine devotees? Miss Collett is of the opinion that she hurt rather than improved her game with this continuous play. The probabilities are that other members of the fair sex will consider the matter.

Moving On

Harvey Hendrick, purchased by the Brooklyn Dodgers from the New Orleans club of the Southern association at the close of last season, has two chances to come through as a regular for Manager Robinson. Hendrick was playing first for the Southerners when purchased, but Uncle Robbie then had in mind using him as an outfielder. Within the last few weeks he has parted with both Zack Wheat, outfielder, and Jack Fournier, first baseman. Now Hendrick is in line for either job, filling in where he'll fit best.

HARVEY HENDRICK.

Hendrick's career is a bit unusual. Was 23 when Memphis gave him his first real tryout. Played with Chattanooga in 1921, was drafted by Red Sox in 1922 and released to Galveston. Recalled in fall and traded to Yanks. Was waived to Cleveland in 1925 and farmed to Providence. Sold to New Orleans last spring.

C. I. A. PREXY COMING

Hubbard to Address University Club Saturday

An address of interest is promised for the University club luncheon Saturday noon when President L. H. Hubbard of the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, will be the principal speaker. He is coming to Wichita Falls especially to address the club on the subject, "The Trend In College Education."

All C. I. A. alumni in Wichita Falls are extended a special invitation to attend the luncheon, Burl Bryant, president of the club, has announced.

The memory of Germany's first president has been honored by naming the new Mannheim bridge over the Neckar River, after Friedrich Ebert.

Landon-Hill and Hub Busy Tonight

Panhandle Cagers Tackle Gulf Saturday

Two Commercial league clubs swing into action Friday night and another takes to the court Saturday. Neal and his Landon-Hill squad invades Clara tonight for a battle with Belcher's Greyhounds and Goldstucker's Hub Clothiers hook with Brewster's Hawks in the second game of a double header at Iowa Park. The Parkers play Megargel in the opener. John Tyson leads his Panhandle quint against the Gulf Production company outfit Saturday night at Call field. Tyson probably will start McCasland at center, Hinds and Andree at forwards, and Cannon and Thurman at guards. Rawls and the rest of the boys are expected to get into the game at some stage.

Both Panhandle and the Hub paced through snappy practice sessions Thursday night at Call field.

The Hub broke out in new uniforms and sweat shirts last night. The jersies are old gold with maroon lettering. The shirts are white with red and green Indian designing, all in all, a pretty layout.

New Cage Star Joins Whippets

Coaches Clary and Neal shoved the Whippets, girls' cage squad, along at a rapid gait early Thursday evening in practice and scrimmage session on the Maskat court. Rubertina Davis and Mary Moore, out of the line-up at the Wednesday conditioner, were on deck and led in the attack.

Mabel Wright, formerly with the Dublin high school team at a guard position, joined the squad and in her initial workout looked like a big leaguer. Wright, if first indications mean anything, looms as one of the most effective defense players in the women's league which opens play January 26 on the Junior college floor.

PORKERS ON WAY

Arkansas Invades Frogdom for Brace of Games.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 13. (AP)—Nine players and Coach Francis Schmidt, constituting the Arkansas Razorback basket ball squad, left here Thursday night for Fort Worth, where the Porkers will meet the Texas Christian university Horned Frogs in games Friday and Saturday nights.

With the Razorbacks and Frogs tied for first place in the southwest conference, along with the Texas Aggies, the coming series will play an important part in determining the championship. The Frogs were the only conference team to defeat the Porkers in 1926, when Arkansas won its first championship.

The Fort Worth team this year is composed largely of veterans, while Coach Schmidt has only three members of his old quint back. Players making the trip were Captain Steele, Haizlip, Gregory, Hale, Pickel, Burke, Rose, Kays and Lambert.

MAY TAKE RAJAH TO COURT.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.(AP)—William F. Fahey, attorney for Rogers Hornsby former Cardinal manager, announced late today he had advised Hornsby not to recognize the $90,000 claim of Frank L. Moore, betting commissioner of Fort Thomas, Ky., Moore declared his reply would be made in court.

"To take a little rest," N. Meyer of Jordon, Minn., 79 years old, voluntarily retired January 1 after 48 years continuous service as county judge of probate.

Moving On

Fred Heimach must virtually start all over again to prove to the baseball world that he is a big league pitcher. This after laboring five years to win a place in the sun. Heimach was sent to the St. Paul club this winter in the deal that sent Hofmann and Wanninger to the Red Sox.

FRED HEIMACH

Heimach went to the Athletics from Moline in the fall of 1921 with hopes high. He had won 24 and lost but eight games for the Three Eye team. His southpaw slants completely mystified the boys there. But he failed to become a consistent winner for Connie over a period of four years. His best season was in 1924 when he won 14 games and lost 12.

POLICE SCHOOL

Queisser, Hodgins and McConnell Speak at Meeting

Police Commissioner Frank Queisser, Chief of Police George H. Hodgins, Sergeant C. B. McConnell and others made short addresses Thursday evening in one of the regular department "schools."

All officers attended the meeting, held in the city court room. Matters concerning the department's relations with the public were discussed by the officials and more detailed matters relating to police affairs taken up.

COYOTES OFF FOR WALTERS

Union Valley Defends Court Against Invasion

Bud McCallum packs his high school Coyotes over to Walters this evening where they clash with the vaunted Union Valley five, the initial out-of-the-city melee for the

COYOTE BANQUET SOON

Coyote gridders of 1926 will be banqueted at the Wichita club Saturday night, announced Coach Bud McCallum Thursday at which time the 1927 captain will be elected.

Program plans for the feast are to be settled today, McCallum said.

Pack the current basketball season.

Union Valley has a veteran club which for the past several seasons has copped all kinds of championships. If Wichita Falls comes away unscathed on the foreign court prophesies will be in order that Wichita Falls, at last, has a real Texas championship cage contender.

An even dozen players will make the journey this afternoon. They are Captain Coyal Francis, Horton, Watson, Allred, Mills, Habern, Powell, Disoway, Newman, Nance, Woodson, Smith.

TICKET SELL-OUT FOR ROBERTS-DUNDEE BOUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (AP)—A complete sell-out of reserved seat tickets for the first time in the history of new Madison Square garden has forecast a $65,000 "gate" for Friday night's 10-round welterweight fight between Joe Dundee of Baltimore and Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash.

R·P·M· & Power

YOUR motor is designed to deliver a certain number of revolutions per minute to give maximum power and response under all conditions.

But as carbon forms, that "knock" occurs. The motor revolutions drop—and you lose power on hills and pick-up in traffic.

Conoco Ethyl Gasoline knocks out that "knock." What's more, the carbon (which causes the "knock") becomes a means of power because carbon increases pressure—and increased pressure means increased power. Conoco Ethyl Gasoline performs perfectly under this increased pressure.

So fill the tank with this revolutionizing fuel at the nearest sign of the Continental Soldier—and get extra knockless miles in spite of carbon.

PANHANDLE COMPANY ENDS REMARKABLE YEAR OF ACHIEVEMENT

DISCOVER FOUR NEW OIL POOLS

Its McCluskey Lease Is One Of Most Remarkable

By TOM TRULY,
Oil Editor, The Record News

The Panhandle Refining company of Wichita Falls has just ended one of the most successful years in its history and is entering 1927 with bright prospects for another successful year, officials said Thursday.

As the year starts off the Panhandle has 12 wells drilling away, scattered from Eastland to the Panhandle field. The company has one well drilling near Eastland, two in the South Bend pool of Young county, one on the Farmer lease in south Archer county, one on the Matthews lease, one on the Griffin lease, two on the Reilly-Griffin lease and three in the Panhandle field.

Successful Wildcatters

The Panhandle holds an almost unmatched record for successful wildcatting in the Wichita district during the past year. Jim Bowen, chief geologist, and E. F. Estegren, assistant, worked out the structures and recommended tests for no less than four wildcat discoveries. The Panhandle discovered the Griffin pool in Wichita county in July, the Carter-Wilson pool in Archer county in October, the Farmer pool in south Archer in November and the R. O. Prideaux area in September.

Besides this exploration campaign the company was constantly developing its older leases. In Eastland county the production of the Hightower lease was practically doubled from three new producers.

Remarkable Lease

The Panhandle holds one of the most remarkable oil leases in the entire Mid-Continent field in its McClusky tract in south Young county. This lease, on which the discovery well was brought in in 1920, has produced since then a total of 1,177,333 barrels of high gravity oil from 17 wells and bids fair to mark up a new high record in 1927 due to the contemplated deepening of several wells to the prolific 3800-foot Stoval sand. Stovall's well, just north of the Panhandle lease, was flowing 65 barrels per hour Wednesday after being in nearly a month. The Panhandle Refining company is deepening its Nos. 7 and 17 to this pay.

The extensive wildcat activity of the concern is to be carried on in 1927 as it was in 1926 and the district will probably profit to as great an extent as it did in the past year.

TEST TO SPUD

Dallas Company to Test Out Yoakum Territory

YOAKUM, Jan. 13. (AP)—A new test oil well is to be spudded in this month within two miles of Yoakum, according to announcements here.

The J. C. McNeil company of Dallas has leased a large block of land southeast of the city and purchased the equipment of the Steinman well, about four miles southeast of here. The machinery is being moved to the new site.

MAGNOLIA BUSY

MEXIA, Jan. 13. (AP)— The Magnolia Petroleum company is engaged in an active drilling program in wildcat areas of East Central Texas and in the west edge of the old producing area of the Mexia oil field.

SEMINOLE CLIMBS

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 13.—An increase of 465 barrels the last 24 hours was shown yesterday by the Seminole field. Its daily output was put by field men at 174,725 barrels from 149 wells.

SKELLY BUYS SCHAFER LAND

$240,000 Paid For Remainder of Valuable Tract

AMARILLO, Jan. 13.—Roxana Petroleum corporation has a well flowing 14 barrels per hour, in its No. A-2 Bryan, in section 92, block 4, I. and G. N. survey, Carson county. It is producing from the pay topped at 3144 feet, and drilled in to 3160 feet.

The Skelly Oil company announces that it has purchased a lease on the remaining 320 acres of unleased acreage of the Henry Schafer ranch, in northeastern Carson and northwestern Gray county. This gives the Skelly a mineral lease on the complete ranch, totalling 12,820 acres.

It is understood that $240,000 was paid by the Skelly company for its lease.

The Schafer ranch lies in a very strategic position to the new Roxana pool in Carson and the new development in Gray county, and the new lease is a direct offset to the J. T. Parks No. 1 Noel, in section 198, block 3, I. and G. N., which is flowing 22 barrels an hour from 3187 to 3207 feet, and which is to be deepened another three feet. The Nunn-McAuley No. 1 Bryan, in section 107, block 4, I. and G. N. survey, and an old well deepened, made 2400 barrels the first day from 3200 to 3220 feet and 2200 barrels the second day.

In the Hutchinson county area, the Y Petroleum company No. 1 Smith, in section 8, block Y, was making 40 barrels a day from 2925 to 2965 feet, and bottomed at 3000 feet.

For the fiscal week ended January 8 the Panhandle field production was divided as follows:

County	Daily Prod'c't'n (Bbls.)	No. of Well
Carson	3,321	66
Gray	9,246	87
Hutchinson	124,498	664
Potter	35	1
Wheeler	1,267	13
Total	138,367	831

HUGE GASSER

May Open Another Pool in Seminole Field

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (AP)—Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, subsidiary of Cities Service company, has a test well four miles south of the south Seminole pool making 15,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas from a depth of 3115 feet, which it is believed may indicate possibility of still another pool in this area of the midcontinent oil field.

TEST PLANNED AT BELLEVUE

Wichita Falls Operators Are To Put Down Well

Special to The Record News.

BELLEVUE, Jan. 13.—Orth, Culberson and Culwell of Wichita Falls, moved in the rig today on the Douglass ranch about two miles west of here and will begin drilling operations as soon as the rig and machinery are set up.

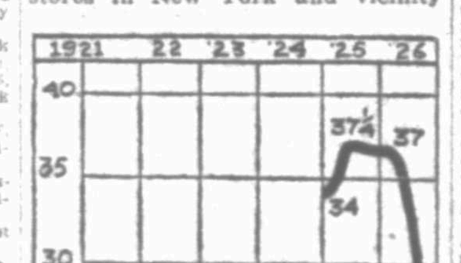

They have contracted to drill a 2500 foot test on a block of approximately 3000 acres. The location is 6043 feet west and 750 feet north of the southeast corner of the A. Brinkley survey, abstract 23.

This is the first test to be put down in that section and it is attracting the attention of many North Texas operators.

Cotton--Latest Market Quotations--Cattle

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.(AP)—A further advance at the opening of the cotton market today met increased selling which appeared to come partly from the south, but also was attributed to realizing by recent buyers. March sold off from 13.32 to 13.18, and closed at 13.20, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of nine to 10 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of one to 11 points, active months soon showing net gains of 10 to 16 points on a continuation of the recent demand. Buying was encouraged by reports of rains in the southwest and large figures on domestic consumption for December. The higher prices, however, appeared to meet a little more southern hedging, while there was considerable realizing and probably some local selling for a reaction after the advance of about 160 points from the low levels of early last month.

Belief that the market was approaching prices which might lead to increased southern spot offerings and that 14 cents for October might interfere to some extent with the movement for a reduction in acreage, may have accounted for some of the selling. Buying for trade or commission house account slowed down the decline during mid-day and led to occasional rallies, but offerings became somewhat heavier late in the afternoon. January declined from 13.30 to 13.09 and May from 13.63 to 13.40. Last prices were at the lowest of the day.

The census report showed domestic consumption of 605,217 bales for December compared with 583,950 for November and 576,216 for December last year but large figures had been looked for and the report seemed to have been pretty well discounted.

Private cables reported continental buying and trade calling in Liverpool but said there had been hedge selling and liquidation.

Exports today 13,562, making 5,983,649 so far this season. Port receipts 40,537; U. S. port stocks 2,969,271 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today but prices were more two-sided. At the start the tone was firm owing to the December consumption total by the census bureau which reported that domestic mills consumed that month 606,217 bales of lint cotton, the largest December consumption on record. The resulting bulge carried prices up 13 to 14 points from the previous close. The advance considerable realizing resulted by recent buyers and there was also selling on the weakened technical position. Prices eventually reacted to levels 16 to 17 points below the early highs.

After a slight rally about the middle of the afternoon prices again weakened on realizing and at the lowest showed declines of 25 to 27 points from the highs. The close was steady, showing net losses of 10 to 11 points.

Liverpool came in easier than due and January opened two points down but as the census consumption totals were issued right after that month was called and later months showed initial gains of three to eight points. Prices continued to gain after the start until March traded up to 13.43, May 13.60 and July 13.76.

Later in the morning prices reacted on realizing and continued to ease off until soon after noon March traded down to 13.26, May 13.43 and July 13.60. After a period of steadiness prices again eased off on renewed liquidation in the late trading, making new lows for the day with March at 13.18, May 13.36 and January 13.52. The close was a shade above the lowest.

WHEAT PRICE INCREASE CUT

Profit Taking Puts Down Price Swells

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Profit taking cut short the swells in the wheat pit today and led to moderate losses at the close. Trade was appreciably broader, but did not suffice to overcome the disposition of holders to realize. Export business was not so brisk and a renewal of bearish foreign news tended to intimidate many traders, but all things considered the market gave a very good account of itself. Oats and rye were a trifle easier with corn up on the inclement weather over the belt.

May wheat opened at $1.39⅞@1.40, reached $1.40⅝, sagged to $1.39⅝, firmed to $1.40⅝, dropped to $1.39⅝, rallied to $1.40¼ and closed at $1.39⅝@⅝. July opened at $1.30⅝@⅝, firmed to $1.31, sagged to $1.30⅝, recovered to $1.30⅞ and closed at $1.30⅝@⅝. Houses with eastern connections were good buyers of wheat. The northwest sold on the early bulge.

The seaboard placed the export wheat sales at 200,000 bushels, and rye 50,000 bushels. Liverpool closed ⅝ to 1 pence higher.

Locally wheat finished ⅛ to ⅝c lower, corn ⅛ to ¼c higher oats unchanged to ⅛c lower and rye unchanged to ⅛c off.

Shorts in corn were on the defensive at the outset and their covering quickly put prices up. The bulge ran into enough realizing on part of longs to cause a setback from the high point but the close showed moderate gains. The movement of corn from the country is moderate, and the snow will tend to check shelling and movement of the grain to terminals.

Oats hung within a narrow range and closed a trifle lower. There was fair absorption on the dips, but the flurries were not followed.

Rye firmed early but encountered sufficient realizing along with the leading cereal to react and finish a little lower.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.(AP)—The stock market today appeared to have reached a stalemate. Neither bear nor bull traders were able to break it out of the narrow trading area within which it has been floundering for a week or more. Easy credit conditions accompanied by rumors of an early resumption of pool operations in several issues, but they failed to make much headway because of the continued lack of public speculative interest. After the close of the market, the bank rate was announced as unchanged at 4 per cent.

Recent softening of money rates combined with large importations of gold, have revived discussions of the possibility of an early cut in the rediscount charge. In some banking quarters there is a feeling that the reduction might be delayed until after there has been a downward readjustment of brokers' loans, until such time as it becomes evident that the main purpose of the change will stimulate business rather than speculation in securities.

One of the reasons assigned for the comparative dullness of recent markets is the absence of several large operators on winter vacations. Most of the larger commission houses present a rather deserted appearance during trading hours, despite the many rumors and "tips" in circulation. While increases in brokers' loans generally indicate an expansion in public interest the recent rise has been attributed largely to borrowings by underwriting syndicates.

Some of the motors were subjected to short selling on the theory that increasing competition foreshadowed further price cuts and the probable elimination of some of the smaller companies. Chrysler, General Motors, Peerless and Yellow Truck preferred each closed a point or so lower.

U. S. Steel was heavy closing nearly a point lower at 157⅝, in the face of reports that operations had increased to around 85 per cent of capacity. Some of the independents were strong, particularly Gulf States and Republic. Oils also gave another show of strength, Barnsdall "B" and Amerado touching their highest prices in a year or longer. Commercial Solvents "B" soared over five points to another new high record at 255, but lost all its gain.

Rails displayed a stronger undertone than the industrials, Lehigh Valley was the individual feature, soaring over five points to 108⅝, the highest price since it was listed on the New York stock exchange in 1912. Baltimore and Ohio touched 110, the highest price in ten years, and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred sold at the highest price in a year or more.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges held firm, with a 10-point jump in Italian lire to 4.34 cent as the outstanding individual feature. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 and French francs around 3.96⅝ cents. Shanghai taels advanced a full cent to 61⅝ cents.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13.(AP)—Steady prices and an active turnover marked the grown portion of the cattle trade Thursday. Calves were 25 to 50c lower.

Beef cattle were the first to seek the scales.

She stock was wanted evidently for buyers did not wait for belated trains to arrive, but plunged right into the fray with fully steady bids on everything saleable. Beef cows cleared up to $6.25 and fat butcher cows sold close to $5.00 while canners and cutters were unchanged from rates on Wednesday.

Early sales of heifers and yearlings brought out only plain kinds selling below $7.00.

Calves suffered from a lack of support by shippers and the quarter cent loss was distributed all over the lot. Heavies moved at $8.00@8.50 and light veals did no better.

The hog market sagged ten cents or more due to adverse reports from western markets where over 100,000 hogs arrived. Early buying in the truck division at $11.60 indicated this, the bulk of the supply moved late.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13.(AP)—Cash wheat on the Fort Worth market was one cent and 1½c lower Thursday in sympathy with contract values which were impressed by heavy Argentine offerings at lowered figures. Export bids were around $1.47¼ as compared with $1.49¼ Wednesday and business was slow at that figure which is based on No. 1 hard wheat delivered promptly to Gulf ports.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard, milling $1.49¼@1.51; No. 1 ordinary hard, $1.46¾@1.49¼; No. 1 red, milling $1.50@1.52; No. 1, 75 per cent red, milling, $1.48@1.49.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.(AP)—Increasing shipments from Argentina and liberal moisture for the domestic winter crop gave wheat a downward slant today. Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to ⅛c lower, corn at ⅛ to ⅝c advance, oats unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 25c.

Wintry conditions in the corn belt put strength into corn. The crop movement is expected to fall off because of heavy snow falls. Oats were steadied by corn.

Most deliveries of provisions were easier, owing to continued liberal receipts of hogs.

OIL STOCKS IN MARKET LIGHT

Petroleum Issues Display Sales Strength

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Oil stocks came into the limelight today but failed to stimulate stocks of other groups. Production today is normal; consumption has increased and oil in storage is not large. Oil companies, it is pointed out, are no longer faced with large inventories due to over-production. Consumption this year, it is estimated, will exceed that of last year with 22,000,000 automobiles in use. A number of oil stocks are selling at a ratio of ten to one in relation of market prices to earnings. In no other section of the list, it is pointed out, does such a situation exist.

Money loaned at 4 per cent. Trading in commodities was light and exchange rates were practically unchanged.

Lehigh Valley featured the rails by rising more than four points. Rumors were prevalent that a fight for control was on. This line would form an important link with the Delaware and Hudson and New York Central systems. The steady demand indicated competitive bidding for the shares by important interests. Delaware and Hudson and New York Central are understood to hold jointly 60 per cent of Lehigh Valley stock.

Atlantic Refining was in demand on talk that directors would place the issue in the dividend-paying class. The company's earnings of approximately $10 a share last year would seem to warrant a dividend. The company before paying a dividend, however, may see fit to retire the balance of its note issue. The pool in Barnsdall was active and there was a demand for Marland oil on the belief that directors will raise the dividend this year. Mid-Continent petroleum was higher and there was a fair demand for Phillips. Wall Street has come to the conclusion that the only remaining bargains will be found in the oil list and is beginning to direct its attention to this group.

Heavy trading occured in Republic Steel at rising prices. The stock is understood to be discounting a favorable earnings statement for 1926 and there is the likelihood of an increase in the dividend to $5. Reports in the street indicate that the company's dividend was earned by a wide margin and in some quarters earnings for 1926 are estimated at $8 a share, or twice dividend requirements. Steel "when issued" held steady. A strong group has become interested in the stock and some of the big traders have taken a long position in it.

Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred rose to a new high and Reading was higher in sympathy with Lehigh Valley. The demand for W. and L. E. is said to be based on merger plans rather than earnings or dividends. Short interests prevails in the stock and it is understood that the shorts will be driven to cover. A report from the south said that the company had acquired control of the Roanoke and Catawa Mountain Railway company, a line which hooks up with the Norfolk and Western. In addition, the company has eight thousand acres of limestone and timber lands in the south.

A demand prevailed for Mack Trucks at times which sent it across 94. Directors report progress in the company's new plan of financing sales. Losses have not been as great as expected by insiders and Mack is getting into a strong position under the new arrangement. It would not be surprising if Mack hooked up with another bus and truck company and also a concern turning out pleasure cars. This would eliminate unnecessary competition and result in greater earnings for the companies involved in the deal. The demand for business and trucks continues at a high rate and officials of such companies optimistic regarding business for the current year. A strong syndicate, it is understood, has been formed in the issue.

Sharp advances occurred in such specialties as Cast Iron Pipe and Commercial Solvents. Pipe at one time sold at 226 and Solvents hit 255. Chicago Pneumatic Tool, one of Schwab's pets, was active at higher prices. Sulphur stocks continued in demand on favorable dividend prospects.

City Collects $655 Tax From Traction Company

Operation of passenger busses in Wichita Falls in the calendar year 1926 gave the Wichita Falls Traction company a gross revenue of more than $66,000, figures filed with the city auditor reveal. Towers of Municipal Auditorium Eliminated In New Plan

In the interests of economy, the two towering minarets of the new municipal auditorium are to be eliminated in so far as the highly ornamental masonry work is concerned.

Original architects plans for the structure included two elaborate towers flanking the front of the structure. The cost of these, it was figured, would be about $10,000. By cutting them out, accordingly, this amount can be saved and the appearance of the building will in no way be impaired.

APPEALS BILL BEFORE HOUSE

Daniels Submits Court Act To Legislature

Creation of a 12th court of civil appeals for Texas with the seat at Wichita Falls is now pending before both branches of the legislature, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Austin to the Record News Thursday night. The court would serve Montague, Clay, Wichita, Archer, Young, Baylor, Hardeman and Foard counties and would relieve the congestion in the civil appeals court at Fort Worth and Amarillo, as well as serve more efficiently for the hearings on the large number of cases originating in this section.

Daniels Submits Bill

The bill Thursday was introduced by Rep. Roy J. Daniels of Wichita Falls, who is joined by Rep. J. D. Avis, also of Wichita Falls. Sen. W. D. McFarlane of Graham is sponsoring the bill in the senate. The senate bill was introduced Wednesday.

The proposal to place the 12th civil appeals court here has received wide support, and is particularly urged in the interest of the counties involved. Although only two counties—Dallas and Harris—exceeded Wichita in the number of appeals last year, attorneys and interested parties are compelled to go to either Fort Worth or Amarillo for hearings.

Bill Urged

Ben G. Oneal, prominent Wichita Falls attorney, was in Austin Thursday in connection with the bill. Mr. Oneal was named chairman of a committee of the Wichita bar association to co-operate with legislators in their work for the new court here.

Alterations to the uniforms are to be made within the next week and when they are completed, they will be distributed among the 60 members of the band who will parade through the business section and give a concert.

The band was organized several months ago through the efforts of the Lions. Funds were raised to furnish instruments to those boys who did not have them, and Paul Seeds was secured as director. Already the boys have given several public concerts, and are given credit for having done remarkable work in the short length of time they have been rehearsing.

Lions of the city are making plans to have the boys go with the Wichita Falls delegation to McAllen in May to play at the state convention of Lions.

ROTARY HEARS SCOUT SCIENCE

Boys Show Ability in Tests Before Club

Demonstration of knot tying, handkerchief signaling, first aid treatment and fire ignition saps phosphorus by a quintet of boy scouts under direction of Frank Creighton, scout executive, headlined the Rotary club program at weekly luncheon Thursday.

A two-minute inspirational message relative to t.. club's "Big Brother" drive was delivered by Luther Hoffman.

Other Clubs

Announcement was made that the Bowie Rotary club will hold its meetings hereafter on Wednesdays and that the next Burkburnett Rotary session is carded for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

It was announced, also, that Lawton Rotarians will stage an inter-city party January 26, at which Harry Rogers, president of Rotary International, will be present with several other prominent officials.

All's Lovely

Club President A. E. Myles explained to ... organization shortly before the meeting adjourned that a bit of razzberries chirped by Horace Robbins at the session of the week before had not caused him to lose his temper and that the pair are good friends or something or other.

The scout program was put on under auspices of the boys' work committee. Bill M..rton and Gaylord Giles of Troop 2 did the signaling. The ... also gave the knot and first aid demonstration. Bonner Barton of Troop 13 served as the "heavy" in the first aid work. Kenneth Wharton of the same troop built a fire by friction with a bow and yucca wood spindle and entertained during the process with a running fire of humorous comment on just why the blaze was not forthcoming as speedily as he desired and how Creighton had "framed" him by giving him a "bow-legged" spindle. Oscar Thornton of Troop 3 built a fire with flint and steel.

WRAPPING TOLL

Christmas Packages Go to Dead Letter Office

Two big mail sacks filled with everything from shaving soap to cob pipes were filled at the post office Thursday and started for the Washington dead letter office. Their departure marked the last gesture of local postal officials at the record breaking Christmas mail rush.

Scores of damaged packages, perhaps 100 in all, comprised this year's toll to careless wrapping or faulty delivery. Numerous packages with the address of the consignee so badly damaged as to be indecipherable have been sent back to the consignor. Those boxes, bundles and sacks in the Thursday shipment, however, were hopeless cases and the dead letter office was the only fate left for them.

MAYOR SHEP GETS THE AIR

Wichita Falls Official On Radio Saturday

R. E. Shepherd, who, among other things, is listed in the directory as mayor of Wichita Falls and civic celebrity extraordinary, gets the air Saturday night.

Arrangements have been completed by the management of the radio station WBAP for the popular Wichita Falls man to broadcast a 30-minute program between 9:30 and 10 p. m. He will give several of the tenor solo numbers that have become prime favorites here and all over West Texas.

While not a seasoned veteran in the realm of radio broadcasting, "Shep" is by no means a novice. He has looked a "mike" in the eye before.

Several weeks ago when the Fritz Motor company's new building was opened in connection with the first annual radio and flower show here, Shepherd and other local celebrities sang over WBAP through special arrangements made with the Star-Telegram. The concerts were given in Wichita Falls, carried to Fort Worth by wire and put on the air from the radio station there.

Wichita Cases To Go To Trial; Ma's Business Her Own, Says Allred

Inasmuch as Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson retires from office next Tuesday, January 18, no effort will be made by District Attorney Ben P. Allred to postpone criminal cases set for trial next week, he said Thursday.

The action of several district attorneys and district judges over the state in delaying all criminal matters until after Governor Ferguson's retirement prompted a query to Allred as to whether such a thing might be likely here. In San Antonio, notably, cases have been delayed because of the flood of pardons now being issued by the governor. In San Antonio, a man given a five-year sentence received a full pardon two days after his conviction, and this drew an ironic fire from the district attorney.

"We probably won't secure any convictions before January 18, so there is nothing to be gained by asking a delay," Allred said. "I think, though, that we would have gone ahead anyhow, played our game and let the governor run her business."
