Automobile Accident Near Waurika, Okla., Kills Youth; Four Escape

FATAL CRASH COMES AFTER RANCH DANCE

Lee Smart of Fleetwood Dies as Car Turns Over on Road

COMPANIONS UNHURT

Body of Victim Taken to Waurika and Later to Ryan, Okla.

Special to The Record News

WAURIKA, Okla., Nov. 24.—Lee Smart, about 25, of Fleetwood, Okla., a small community near Terrell, was killed instantly near here early today when the car in which he and four others were returning from a dance at the Roy Spradling ranch between Waurika and Ringling, overturned, according to reports received here.

None of the four reported to be riding with Smart was reported injured.

The accident occurred about 5 a. m. The body of the victim was brought here and later taken to Ryan, Okla. Arrangements for funeral services had not been completed late today.

Details of the accident were not known here.

Demurrers to Be Filed In Timpson Salary Suit

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24. (UP)—Two demurrers to the $7,600 salary suit brought by Frank Timpson after he was ousted as business manager of Angelus temple, will be filed Monday, according to George Acret, attorney for the woman evangelist.

Exception to the suit will be taken separately by Mrs. McPherson and by the Echo Park Evangelical association, he said. Meanwhile, Mrs. McPherson has posted a $1,500 bond and lifted the attachment levied against her automobile and bank account by Timpson.

California Fliers 'Test' for Endurance Hop

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24. (AP)—After weeks of preparation, Bobbie Trout and Elinor Smith got away today apparently on their long awaited endurance flight but after a few hours in the air and a gasoline contact, they landed at Metropolitan airport tonight with the explanation that it was just another "test." The young fliers pronounced the test successful and said it might have been turned into an endurance flight except that the wind was too gusty.

Methodist Mission Board Ends Seattle Meeting

SEATTLE, Nov. 24. (AP)—Pledging its support to a drive to raise $10,000,000 for denominational world service, the Methodist board of home missions brought its three day convention to close here yesterday.

The fund will be used, if obtained, in general church work and will be separate from the money appropriated annually from home mission activities. The board appropriated $2,124,250 from its budget during the convention for financing home mission work in 1930.

Husband Slays Wife Who Threatened Divorce

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (UP)—Max Braun, who threatened to "cut out her heart" if his wife did not drop divorce proceedings against him, kept his promise.

Braun killed his wife with a knife last night, using the method he had promised, and then attempted to commit suicide by slashing his throat with the same knife. He was near death in a hospital here tonight.

Ione Orde, Star In Kraft Murder Case, Puzzles Even Her Mother

By RALPH W. WHEATLEY

POINTE A LA HACHE, La., Nov. 24. (AP)—A mystery novel in herself—that's Ione Orde.

Of women who lately have risen fro obscurity to pique the public curiosity, none has kept herself within a shroud of secrecy with more success than this ultra-modern product, central figure in the investigation of Jack Kraft's death.

This black-haired, green-eyed girl has baffled experts on feminine psychology, shrewd detectives and even her own mother.

She landed here Oct. 11, a riddle woman. A month later she still was that; as the curtain slowly lifted on her past, the enigma deepened.

She has clung to spoken lines with the skill of a trained actress. She withstood, immovable, the rigors of a third degree, the pleadings of a priest of her church and of her distraught mother, and not once did she falter in those lines. Her prosecutors, who tried to break down her story, she drove to exasperation by boldly enacting her role on the witness stand with a threat of perjury dangling before her.

From the witness stand she openly smiled at John McGouldrick, ship's officer, man-about-town type, indicted on a murder charge in connection with the death of young Kraft in what the prosecution contends was a fight over the girl. She was determined to defend him, then, she said, to marry him.

That might well be the picture of a woman of the world, but in her antics out of court she has presented herself in quite another light.

She has been viewed romping in glee at "tag" with youngsters in the jailyard and chasing baby chicks to the disgust of a ruffled hen.

"What is your name?" bellowed the district attorney, in court.

"Ione Marie Gloria Gay Powell Rouser Orde," she replied sweetly.

She explained her maiden name was Marie Gloria Rouser; that she became Gay Powell on her marriage to a British actor in France, and used Ione Orde on sketches she made.

Twenty-one years old now, Ione was reared in France.

She left New York early in October with Jack Kraft, a press room employe with other ambitions and a bent for travel. Aboard the steamship Creole, they found their total capital was less than $25.

They planned to tarry a while in

Ione Orde, held in connection with the death of Jack Kraft, has mystified all who have interviewed her at the jail at Point a la Hache, La. Also held in the case is John McGouldrick (lower left), ship's officer.

Grave in Small Wood to Receive Body of Georges Clemenceau Today

Remains of France's 'Father of Victory' Carried by Train And Motor to His Beloved Vendee

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.
Universal Service Special Cable

PARIS, Nov. 25. (Monday)—The mortal remains of Georges Clemenceau are being taken southward across his beloved France to his still more beloved Vendee for their last rest beside the body of his father in the small wood on the family estate.

Before this dispatch reaches the family breakfast table in America this morning, France's "Tiger" will be on his final journey—a motor trip overland, leaving Paris at 2 o'clock this morning to cover the 350 miles separating the modest apartment, where the leader breathed his last, from the wooded strip near St. Vincent Sur Jard.

His Wishes Carried Out

Even in life this strong-minded old warrior couldn't have commanded stricter obedience than in death. With scrupulous exactitude his every wish is being minutely fulfilled.

There will be no religious rites nor official ceremonies connected with his interment, Premier Andre Tardieu, who rose to fame under the "Tiger's" political aegis, is in constant touch with the family, assuring them of his careful execution of the dead chieftain's indomitable will.

Yesterday afternoon Tardieu called at Clemenceau's residence to express the government's desire to grant national obsequies to the "Tiger."

Display Barred

Michel Clemenceau, the dead statesman's son, told the premier that display of such sort would not be in accordance with the family's desire to execute the testamentary will of his father which expressly forbade a national funeral.

In accordance the government decided to renounce the idea of granting national obsequies and decided to pay respect to their for-

Our Gang Stars Revealed as Two 'Regular Guys' in Backstage Chat

By BILL HOOD
The Record News Staff

Just a couple of regular guys whose outlook on life is no different from that of countless American boys of their age and whose natures have remained unaffected by contact with the glare of klieg lights and footlights in theaters and movie lots.

Joe Cobb, he of the perpetual smile, better known by theater goers in all parts of the world as "Fat Boy," paused in his dressing room football game with Scooter "Tough Guy" Lowry Sunday night backstage in the Majestic theater, assumed a typical boy-like stance and put forth a chubby hand to be shaken. Countless interviews with newspapermen had not erased his bashfulness upon an introduction.

"Hey!" it was Scooter. Executing a perfect clog, he cocked his derby hat to one side and extended a wiry hand which gave a vigorous clasp despite its diminutive size. "Call me Tough Guy!"

That was Scooter the actor. A moment later he was any boy. Perched upon a dressing table he became as interested and as interesting a boy as any wide-awake youngster. His questions and his answers bore out the nickname he has acquired but there was nothing

GRUNDY TRIAL OPENS TODAY

Defense Ready for Trial, Says Attorney

Defense counsel will be prepared to announce ready when Roy Grundy is called to trial in the 89th district court here Monday on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of June Hilburn here last Oct. 17, according to the announcement Sunday of R. E. Taylor of the firm of Taylor, Muse & Taylor, attorneys for the accused man.

A special venire of 100 has been called and the prosecution, according to Sam B. Spence, district attorney, will attempt to force the case to trial, "barring the wholly unforeseen." Much depends upon the calling of the list of witnesses Monday, it was said. R. E. Taylor and C. O. Taylor will try the case for their firm.

Hilburn was instantly killed by three charges from a shotgun fired at close range on the morning of Oct. 17. The slaying took place in the 600 block on Eighth street near the heart of the business district. Grundy entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned several weeks ago and has been held in the county jail since that time in default of $10,000 bond.

The state has summoned a long list of witnesses, among whom is a 7-year-old boy. Those summoned to testify for the prosecution include persons from many walks of life, a plumber, a fish dealer, a druggist, a hotel employe, a clothing store employe, a barber, a lunch stand employe, a produce dealer, a farmer and many others. What type of testimony will be asked of the child has not been disclosed.

F. E. WARREN OF WYOMING, DEAN OF SENATE DIES

Last Veteran of Civil War In Upper House Is Victim of Pneumonia

STATE RITES PLANNED

President, Cabinet and Justice Taft to Be Asked To Services

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. (US)—Senator Francis E. Warren, Republican of Wyoming, dean of the senate, died at this home here today at the age of 85 years, a victim of bronchial pneumonia.

A member of the senate since Dec. 1, 1890, Senator Warren was the last veteran of the civil war to serve in that body.

Present when the veteran legislator passed away were his widow, Frederick E. Warren of Cheyenne, Wyo., only living child, Gen. John J. Pershing, son-in-law, and his physician, Dr. John Minor.

Senator Warren suffered an attack of bronchitis three weeks ago, which led to his bed. It appeared that he was recovering until Thursday, when his condition took a sharp turn for the worse.

State Funeral Planned

He lapsed into unconsciousness Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock and never again regained consciousness. Death came at 10 o'clock this morning.

Arrangements were started for a state funeral service in the chamber of the senate Tuesday. Vice President Curtis immediately consulted senatorial leaders about extending the highest honors in the gift of the senate.

President Hoover, members of his cabinet, Chief Justice Taft, and associate justices of the supreme court, will be invited to attend the senate rites.

Burial in Wyoming

Though the senate is not in session, Vice President Curtis will have notices of the ceremonies sent to members in or near Washington.

Pallbearers will be named to carry the casket to and from the senate chamber and Vice President Curtis will designate a committee

Billy Sunday's Son Held On Auto Theft Charge

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 24. (US)—At liberty for the present under $500 bond, George M. Sunday, eldest son of the noted evangelist, will surrender himself here tomorrow to answer an auto theft charge police announced today.

When Sunday was arrested yesterday near Santa Cruz, the officers did not know Los Angeles authorities were seeking him on a morals charge preferred by his estranged wife. He first gave his name as "G. E. Castleton" and is alleged by police to have said he was living in seclusion near Santa Cruz with a woman companion. Myrna LaSalle, a Hollywood model and beautiful, also is wanted in Los Angeles on the complaint sworn to by Mrs. Sunday.

Girl Who Killed Her Lover Starts for Prison

TOULON, Ill., Nov. 24. (UP)—A 21-year-old girl who weighs 230 pounds was started to the state penitentiary today to serve 25 years for the slaying of the man who promised to marry her and then refused.

Laura Weaver pleaded guilty here yesterday to a charge of strangling Wilmer T. Kitselman to death. She was sentenced by Judge Joseph E. Dailey.

Kitselman and Miss Weaver lived here together and were known as man and wife. He consistently refused to marry her, she said in a confession, and thus so thoroughly enraged her that one night while he slept she strangled him with his belt.

Services for May to Be Held at Electra Today

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 24.—Funeral services for Patrick Joseph May, 54, who died at his home here Friday of injuries sustained three weeks ago in an oil field accident are to be held from the St. Francis' Catholic church here Monday at 9:30 a. m. Interment will be in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wichita Falls Monday afternoon. Members of the Knights of Columbus, of which he was a member, will serve as active pallbearers.

Mr. May is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Mary Elisabeth Andres of Dallas, and two sons, J. F. May of Wichita Falls and J. A. May of Electra.

Severe Loss of Life In Portugal Storm Feared

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 24. (AP)—Troops from neighboring districts tonight were hurried to the northeast coast where a fierce Atlantic gale was reported to have done great damage. It was feared there had been severe loss of life, but broken communications prevented exact estimate of the destruction.

Vast Airplanes to Carry 225 Persons and Compete With Railroads to Be Put Into Use

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. (UP)—Airplanes so vast and so commodious that any mention of them only a few years ago would have been dismissed as a mad dream have been designed, and within a year will have been translated from sketches into flying giants of steel.

Simultaneous construction of four winged monsters—each with a wing spread of 262 feet and each capable of transporting as many as 225 passengers—was announced today by the General Development company of Connecticut through its vice president and chief consultant, Dr. William Whitney Christmas.

Railroad Competition

Dwarfing all other air carriers either undertaken or planned, the planes will be of such size as to permit operative competition with railroads. They are intended for cross-country passenger, mail and freight service.

A staff of 26 engineers is rushing to completion the production drawings. If the construction schedule is followed the first unit of four planes will be in the air before the end of 1930 and will represent an expenditure of $2,000,000.

Comfort and safety rather than excessive speed are to be stressed in the huge monoplanes.

Tremendous Craft

An idea of the tremendous size of each plane may be gained from the statement of engineers that traffic on Fifth avenue, New York's wide street of shops, could pass between the "landing legs" and that the craft barely would fit in the Pennsylvania station, one of the nation's largest railway terminals.

Eight chemically-cooled engines supplying more than 1,000 horse power each, will enable the planes to attain a maximum speed of 145 miles an hour. It is planned generally, however, to use but six motors at a time, although altitude can be maintained for short periods the engineers declare, on only two engines.

Two types of planes will be constructed—one for passengers, the other for freight and mail.

Rites Held For Charlie Minister

Special to The Record News

CHARLIE, Texas, Nov. 24.—Funeral services were held here at 4 p. m. Sunday for the Rev. D. Roy Wilson, 44, minister of the Church of Christ, who died here late Saturday afternoon from what physicians described as the effects of a deadly potion.

The rites were conducted from the Christian church with the Rev. Taylor, pastor of the Burkburnett Christian church, officiating. Interment was in the local cemetery.

A verdict of suicide by poisoning was returned over the body of the Reverend Wilson soon after his death by Justice of the Peace R. E. Pepper of Petrolia.

The Rev. Wilson had been temporary pastor of the church here, which has no regular minister. He had come from Allen, Okla. His widow and two children by a former marriage survive.

Rock Island to Spend 50 Billions Next Year

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (UP)—The Rock Island railroad announced expenditures today of $50,000,000 for next year.

The $50,000,000 program is the largest ever undertaken by the road said J. E. Gorman, president, and is about $10,000,000 more than was spent for improvements this year.

Approximately $20,000,000 will be used for new equipment, including 41 locomotives, 5,000 freight cars, 24 passenger cars and 62 work cars.

Gorman said the total spent next year would be increased about $5,500,000 if the Interstate Commerce commission grants the road permission to build a new line from Shamrock, Texas, to Quanah, Texas and from Quanah to Beaver creek, south of Vernon, Texas, a distance of 110 miles.

42 Barrels of Dressed Turkeys Are Stolen

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. (UP)—There are at least three men in Chicago who are going to have all the turkey they want to eat Thanksgiving day. They held up a truck and stole 42 barrels of dressed turkeys, $3,000 worth, from the General Market House company.

Despite their absconding with all the $3,000 worth of gobblers, however, Chicagoans still will have enough to go around. In the last week, 336,000 live fowls and 11,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry have arrived and more are on the way.

DOG DRUNK

Veterinanrian Comes to Aid of Condemned Pup — At Memphis

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24. (AP)—Dr. R. G. Collins, Nashville veterinarian tonight telegraphed Memphis police court authorities offering to pay the fine assessed against Mutt who, dog drunk, was facing death in a gas chamber for violating the prohibition act.

The pup was arrested Saturday in Memphis with his master, Mike O'Malley, on a charge of drunkenness. Mike was sent to jail. Mutt was sent to the city pound. The judge decreed Mutt's execution by gas unless someone paid his fine and claimed him within three days.

"I never heard of a dog drinking the stuff before" Doctor Collins said. "I am inclined to believe someone forced it on him. The man who thinks more of a dog than I do has not yet been born."

PARADE OPENS SCOTT BRIDGE

New Span Formally Put Into Use Sunday

A new note in celebrations of civic achievements was sounded in Wichita Falls Sunday as the recently completed Scott avenue bridge over the Wichita river was formally opened to the public.

Despite the importance of the event, there was no speech making.

Instead of listening to speeches, the Wichita Falls citizen simply drove across the city's newest bridge in his car. The absence of formality in the ceremony was noisily overlooked as a stream of automobiles, over two blocks long, roared across the span.

The procession was headed by Fire Chief J. L. McClure, who steered his official chief's car in front of three fire trucks. It formed between Eleventh and Twelfth streets on Scott avenue, and proceeded direct to the bridge, crossed it, and then returned. Motorists' fears that the unpaved approaches to the bridge would be muddy after recent rains were unfounded, the dirt driveways being firmly packed.

The speech making in connection with the opening of the bridge is scheduled for 11:15 a. m. Monday. At that hour Mayor J. W. Akin and two Hal Roach comedy stars will broadcast addresses from a special radio equipped car in which the comedians are traveling. The ceremony will be held at the bridge. Thereafter, the comedians, "Fat Boy" Joe Cobb and "Toughy" Lowry, appearing at the Majestic, will tour the city in their car, which is constructed to resemble a locomotive. Behind them will form another parade, in which Publix theater, and city and county officials will participate.

Lamesa Man to Defend Cousin in California

LAMESA, Texas, Nov. 24. (AP)—Judge Dyrel Kirk, second cousin of the accused man, was scheduled to leave here today for Redwood City, Calif., to join the defense of Ira Kirk, formerly of Lamesa, charged with murder in connection with the death of his sweetheart, a school teacher who had refused to marry him. It was previously reported that Judge Kirk was a brother of Ira Kirk.

Bodies of Doughboys On Final Trip Home

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. (US)—The bodies of 75 doughboys of the 339th infantry, who perished in post armistice operations against Bolshevik troops in Northern Russia, are on the high seas today, homeward bound, due to reach American soil Wednesday morning.

SLAIN YOUTH'S GIRL FRIEND IS ATTACKED

Secret Investigation Results In Indictment of Quintet

CRIME DESCRIBED

Young Woman and Mute Boy, Fearing Death, Finally Furnish Facts

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Nov. 24. (AP)—The torture, mutilation and then burning alive of Connie Franklin, 20, a farm hand, and an attack on his young woman companion, on a lonely mountain road 14 miles east of here last March, came to light today with the arrest of five men indicted by the county grand jury. All were indicted on first degree murder charges and two of them on statutory charges.

The men are: Norman Greenway, Hubert Hester, Bill C. Younger, Alex Fulks and Joe White. Greenway and Hester are charged with criminal assault in addition to murder.

Long Investigation

The grand jury has been investigating the slaying for months. Fear of reprisals which sealed the lips of the young woman, even when brought before officers and the grand jury, and later taken to Little Rock in the hope she would divulge information on which the grand jury could act, made the work of the jury difficult, according to Prosecutor Hugh Williamson of this district.

The young woman was quoted by Williamson as saying she and Franklin were walking along a road when five men accosted them. The men seized Franklin, she said and beat and mutilated him. She said Franklin, overcome by the torture, fainted, and his assailants, thinking him dead, built a fire and put his body on it. The body rolled off, she said, and they replenished the fire and placed the body on it again.

Story Substantiated

Failing to entirely destroy the body by the fire, the young woman was quoted as saying the men picked up the remains, placed them in a sack and took them to a nearby stream.

Williamson also said the woman's testimony was substantiated by a written statement of a deaf mute boy, said to have witnessed the gruesome sight at a distance.

Hester and Younger were jailed at Newport, while Greenway and White are in jail at Batesville for safekeeping.

Officers declined to say where Fulks was jailed.

Franklin disappeared March 10 and reports were made he had been murdered. Since he was almost unknown in the community officers expressed the belief he had left and the investigation was not started until some weeks after when a sister of the dead youth arrived from her home in the adjoining county, and instituted search.

Williamson said when the grand jury started its investigation, witnesses brought before it were too frightened to testify. He said the information on which the men were indicted came after long and tedious questioning of the woman and deaf mute, the latter's name not being divulged. Promises of full protection by officers were made.

Search Continued For Missing Arctic Fliers

SEATTLE, Nov. 24 (AP)—Shrouded in the silence of the Arctic northland, the search went forward today for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borgland, who disappeared early in November after they took off from Eller, Alaska, in an attempt to reach the fur trading ship Nanuk, ice bound near North Cape, Siberia.

Four dog team parties were sent out from the Nanuk to scout the shore line in the vicinity of North Cape for the missing fliers but none of them has reported as yet.

ADMITS MURDER

DETROIT, Nov. 24. (AP)—Joseph Malick, 19, confessed early today, according to Wayne county officers, that he shot and killed his father, Frank Malick, in his greenhouse in Nankin township, near here.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Despite the unfavorable weather conditions during a part of the week, ginnings centers of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma on the whole enjoyed a good business last week and materially increased their season's total of production, according to week-end reports filed with The Record News by its correspondents. Prices over the section closed Saturday from $1.25 to $2.50 a bale lower than on the previous day in the majority of the towns. Lower prices to some extent were due to poorer staple. # GIRL BAFFLES INVESTIGATORS

Ione Orde Enigma Even to Her Own Mother

New Orleans, then hitch-hike to the Pacific coast, sketching and writing. It was an idea they had.

Aboard the ship the girl met John McGouldrick, suave second officer.

The night of Oct. 11, a drama, full details of which have not been established, was enacted on the boat. The climax came when the lookout called:

"Man overboard."

Rescue failed.

When the Creole reached New Orleans the log told of Jack Kraft committing suicide. The story was accepted by authorities. A few days later Kraft's body was washed ashore. A bullet hole through his heart was found.

The girl was arrested with Sammy Epstein, second steward. Epstein entered the jail here as its first occupant since last spring.

Both he and the girl maintained Kraft had jumped overboard.

Then, the day the Creole started on the return voyage, the girl scribbled a note to McGouldrick, expressing her love for him.

McGouldrick was arrested when the boat reached New York and taken to the Pointe a la Hache jail. He said he had no intention of marrying the girl.

For weeks Ione's identity was sought. She insisted her true name was Ione Orde. Then someone found an athletic medal among her effects with "Gloria" scratched on it.

Finally her mother, Mrs. Gloria M. Rouzer, recognized her daughter from newspaper photographs.

Mrs. Rouzer hurried to Louisiana with Miss Dorothy Frooks, a lawyer. Even after Mrs. Rouzer arrived, the girl denied she was her mother. Finally, though, she rushed to her mother's arms, weeping.

She explained she wished to protect the family name.

"This is the first time my daughter has deceived me," she said. "I cannot understand her."

And neither can others.

RUMOR OF PLANE CRASH STIRS CITY

A brilliant red sky, and a stunting airplane which disappeared below the horizon several miles west of the city shortly before 6 o'clock Sunday night led to rapid circulation of a report that the plane had gone into a tail-spin and crashed in flames.

Persons in all parts of the city who saw the plane or who heard the rumor sent numerous calls to the hospitals, ambulance companies, police station and The Record News office in an effort to verify the crash. Several persons in the downtown section of the city rushed to the police station when they saw the ship, which appeared to be falling about six miles west of town, and a police squad was dispatched immediately to the vicinity of the supposed accident. Smoke from smudge pots and farm houses dotted over the countryside led officers and newspapermen for miles in the vicinity in a fruitless search.

Famous Trumpet On Display Today

The ancient and original trumpet of Krakow, made famous in Eric Kelly's "Trumpeter of Krakow," read and enjoyed by countless children of many languages, will be placed on display in the Kemp Public library Monday morning and will remain until late Tuesday, it was announced by Miss Lucia Powell, librarian.

Engraved on the trumpet are the names of the trumpeters who have sounded the heynal from the tower of Krakow for the past 42 years. An affidavit from the archive department of the city will also be on display, attesting to the fact that the trumpet "has been used since time immemorial to sound the heynal from tower of Our Lady Mary in Krakow." Kelly, a Pole, won the Newberry medal for the year's best juvenile book with the volume which will be part of the display. The public, and especially the children, have been invited to view the interesting exhibit.

A want ad was worth more than $2,000 to Mrs. Anna Myers of Chicago, who, through that medium, was advised she was joint heir to an estate that had awaited settlement 50 years.

DEATH CLAIMS AGED SENATOR

F. E. Warren of Wyoming Succumbs

of senators to accompany the remains to Cheyenne, Wyo., the senator's home, where burial will be made.

Born at Hinsdale, Mass., June 20, 1844, Senator Warren's early years were spent in the Bay state. He enlisted in 1862 in the 49th regiment, Massachusetts volunteer infantry, and served as private and non-commissioned officer in the regiment until it was mustered out of service.

Medal for Gallantry

He received the congressional medal of honor for gallantry on the battlefield at the seige of Port Hudson. Later he was a captain in the Massachusetts militia.

Farming and stock raising in Massachusetts were pursued until 1868, when he moved to Wyoming, which was then a part of the territory of Dakota. He was reputed to have amassed a large fortune as a stock raiser in Wyoming.

Senator Warren was elected to the Wyoming state legislature; was appointed governor of Wyoming in 1885 by President Arthur, and in 1889 by President Harrison, Always active in the Republican politics, he attended the national Republican conventions as delegate in 1904, 1908 and 1912.

He was the first governor of Wyoming to be elected when that state joined the union.

In the senate he was especially active in legislation for the national defense. He served many years on the military affairs committee. As chairman of the appropriations committe, his hand has shaped many outstanding pieces of legislation over the years.

News of his death caused a shock to Democrats as well as Republicans in the senate. He was mourned by officials in the executive branches of the government with whom he had come in contact.

Plane Minus One Landing Gear Lands Safely After Warning Is Telephoned

FORT WORTH, Nov. 24. (AP)—A cabin airplane carrying three persons that flew here from Dallas minus one of its landing wheels, landed in Fort Worth without accident Sunday afternoon.

The plane was piloted by D. D. Johnson of the Texhoma Aeronautic Service. It was rushed to a repair shop immediately after landing.

The plight of the ship, telephoned the local field from Love field at Dallas, was announced to the pilot by ground signals before he landed. He came down with the plane making as little speed as possible and in a half-pancake landing, touched the ground with one of the rudders pushed forward to keep the plane on its one good wheel as long as possible.

The plane touched the ground at Love field at Dallas as if attempting a landing. The landing gear was damaged and the ship took off, headed for Fort Worth with the pilot apparently unaware of what had happened. Frantic signals from the ground were not seen by the pilot and several ships took the air to wave a warning of the danger, but were unable to catch the damaged plane. Love field officials then telephoned the Fort Worth airport, and also the field at Tulsa, as the destination of the plane was not known at Dallas.

Our Gang Stars 'Regular Guys'

of arrogance or superiority in anything he said. He was intrusive with a youthful brilliance which made him a welcome party to conversation.

Seated in a small dressing room, Joe could hardly have been overlooked, his size placing him boldly before the eyes and announcing his presence even while Scooter's vivacity held the attention. Joe is 13 years old and weighs 125 pounds, according to Walter J. Neal, who has been manager for Our Gang for the past four years, and who is traveling with the boys on this tour.

"Aw, Mr. Neal, don't tell off on me," Joe protested. "Make it just about 125—not so definite."

He was born in Shawnee, Okla., his father having been a native Texan. When Joe was seven years old, he and his father made a trip out West which began merely as a pleasure jaunt but which resulted in Joe's being drafted as comedian for Hal Roach in Our Gang comedies. He has played in more of the comedies than any other member of the gang. He has a sister 15 years old and another nine years old, but no other member of the family is abnormal in stature. His father came from a family of 10, all of whom were of average size.

Despite his size, Joe has never experienced illness and even now can play as hard and run as far as any boy, with no ill effects and no unusual show of exertion. He and Scooter were engrossed in a football game when interrupted Sunday night, both exhiliarted with chasing their football up and down the hall outside their dressing rooms. Both are enthusiastic about sports of all kinds and are friends to most of the famous sport characters in the country, although Joe wanted it made plain he was no relation to Ty Cobb.

In contrast, Scooter weighs 47 pounds, most of which is solid flesh and bone. The apparently hard life of a trouper has had no ill effects on either of them although they are not subjected to the monotony of calesthenics or the rigidity of diets. Neither of them eats much meat and both follow the simple rule of eating at regular hours with nothing between meals.

Scooter will be 10 years old next month—he prefered it that way instead of saying he was 9 years old. In his own words, he was "born in the Roaring Forties in New York," where his present home is located. As though absorbing the spirit of his birthplace, he is a talented dancer and musician, as well as an all-around youngster, since he was first able to learn and develop his abilities.

When he was 5 years old, he won a popularity contest in New York against competition offered by more than 500 other children. As a prize, he was presented with $1,000 in money, his railway fare to Hollywood and a year's contract with Hal Roach. He immediately became one of the most popular members of Our Gang and his contract was extended another half year, after which he "went on the road" with others of the gang in vaudeville acts. Meanwhile, he had become "the beloved scamp" to all who knew him in Hollywood and with whom he came in contact in his other dramatic activities.

His last important role was a feature part in "Chinatown Charlie," a talking production which gave him an opportunity to display his inherent roguishness. The last four Our Gang productions, most popular of which are "Small Talk" and "Railroadin'," were also talkies.

The two youngsters are under contract to Harry Weber, manager and producer for some of the most prominent stars in vaudeville and on the screen. Al Boasburg, one of the country's best known "wise crackers," writes and plans the gags used by the kids in their pictures and acts.

Mr. Neal, their manager, a graduate of Western High university, supervises regular lessons and study while they are making a vaudeville tour and they are perhaps beyond the average child in classroom knowledge. On the lot in Hollywood, the entire gang attends a special school provided for them in which the teachers are authorized and certified by the county as in the case of a regular school.

Joe and his father, Mr. Cobb, were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. C. T. Christensen here Sunday noon. Mr. Cobb, formerly an attorney in Pottawatomie county, Oklahoma, had been intimately acquainted wfth Mr. and Mrs. Christensen in Wewoka, Okla., several years ago.

As for ambitions, both Joe and Scooter have no other intentions than to continue as actors when they grow older, they said. The disillusionment so often spoken of in connection with Hollywood has found no resting place in their eager hearts.

Joe's father and Scooter's mother also are accompanying them on their vaudeville tours. Scooter, still wearing his stage make-up long after their act was done early in the evening, smiled knowingly when his mother and little sister entered the dressing room. Seizing a towel and industriously wiping the paint from his face, he leaned over and gave his sister a brotherly kiss and then straightened up with a snap, executed another clog and thrust forth his hand.

"So long. Glad to have met you." Dropping his stage attitude once more, he said, "You can come to see us at the hotel tomorrow, can't you?"

mer chieftain by placing all flags at half-mast, and, at the moment the tired warrior's body is placed in the grave, have the guns of the army and navy, everywhere, fire 500 rounds.

This is the same salute that was fired at the declaration of the armistice in 1918. The government has also decreed that next Sunday all former soldiers will march past the tomb of the unknown soldier as a mark of respect to Clemenceau.

President Doumergue, the presidents of the two legislative chambers and other government officials will attend this ceremony.

In accordance with Clemenceau's desire, his personal chauffeur, Brabant, who drove him during the war, left immediately after his death was announced early Sunday morning by motor for the Vendee to prepare the grave.

Servants to Attend

He and the "Tiger's" valet, Albert, two loyal servitors for many years, and members of the immediate family will attend the burial which will be devoid of the slightest trace of ceremony.

In accordance with the dead statesman's last wish he will be buried beside his father in the overgrown bramble patch in the Vendeean woods. Here the grave that has been kept freshly dug at his commands is waiting to receive him. Brabant's mission is to see that the sides are straightened and that its depth is increased.

The interment is scheduled for noon. Special precautions have been taken to prevent the attendance of anybody except the family and Clemenceau's former associates.

A special brigade of the gendarmerie has been ordered to keep all others at a distance of 20 yards. Automobiles will not be able to approach within a mile of the spot.

Sunday and Sunday night was the world's last chance to do homage at the "Tiger's" bier.

Nation in Mourning

On Sunday, while Paris turned to the tiny apartment on the Rue Franklin to pay its reverent tribute to the dead statesman, Frenchmen in all cities of the republic mourned their country's loss.

Throughout the daylight hours and far into the darkness vast throngs of people filed through the historic Rue Franklin—named for Benjamin Franklin, who was American ambassador to France—paying final homage to their hero.

On the side of the street opposite the building containing Clemenceau's modest apartment an unending column of men, women and children from all walks of life passed silently by—the people of France to whom he is a veritable "father of victory."

A smaller, but likewise endless stream in automobiles and afoot utilized the nearside of the street for the purpose of halting a moment before the door and then entering to register their visits in one of the three books placed there for those desiring to extend more personal condolences. In this smaller stream were seen those who for one reason or another occupy positions of greater prominence than their fellows who composed the larger group opposite.

There were the highest officials of the country, which the "Tiger" led to the heights of a smashing triumph over the foe, diplomats of the world's nations, including the United States charge d'affaires, Norman Armour, and officers in uniform, not only those of France but also those from foreign states.

STUNT FLIERS THRILL CROWD

8,000 See Program at Staley Field

Dare Devil Durant, stunt man with Clinesmith's flying circus, performed his 140th parachute jump at Staley field Sunday afternoon from a height of 5,000 feet.

J. I. Staley, prominent Wichita Falls oil operator, accompanied the stunt man in the plane after explaining that "he wanted to see how it was done as he might have to jump some time."

Mr. Staley has made all trips to his New Mexico ranch by plane during the last 18 months.

Another feature of the air circus, which drew a crowd of more than 8,000 persons, was the performance by Pilot Vaught who stunted an Eaglerock biplane while it was flying upside down.

Durant also hung by his toes from the landing gear, lay between the wings on wire struts and sat on top of a plane during a loop.

Mac MacKenzie, of the circus, piloted the planes while acrobatics were being performed.

J. F. Friberg, adjutant of the Pat Carrigan post of the American Legion, took his first airplane ride during the afternoon. Visitors from Kell field included the two Travelair planes owned by J. A. McKanna and a Curtis OX-5.

Before the show seven planes, piloted by local airmen, flew over the city at an altitude of 2,000 feet as follows: Ben Branson, Stinson Junior; Hap Burt, Travelair; Fulcher Armstrong, Stinson Junior; Dudley Rider, Hisso Eaglerock; Bill Garrett, Eaglerock OX-5; Mac MacKenzie, Travelair; and Bob Brooks, Mono Prep.

Police Benefit Revue Set for December 18

Due to conflicting attractions in Wichita Falls during the next several weeks, it has become necessary to change the date for "Sketches of 1930," the huge revue to be staged for the benefit of the police relief fund, to Wednesday evening, Dec. 18 at the Memorial auditorium, it was announced Sunday.

Tickets for the show will be available from all police officers during the coming week. Rehearsals are being held each day.

CONFESSES THEFT

An 18-year-old youth who confessed to the theft of $21.50 from the Katy cafe on Jefferson street Saturday night after he had told officers a story about having been hijacked in the cafe was released from the city jail Sunday when the owner of the cafe stated he would not bring charges after the confession. The money was found by police in a tobacco can hidden in high grass near the cafe, it was reported.

Dr. Bash Delivers Farewell Sermon

Dr. Floyd Allan Bash made his farewell sermon to members of the First Christian church Sunday night when 11 new members were taken into the church, bringing the total to 729 new members during his pastorate here. He will leave Wichita Falls early Monday morning for Des Moines where he will assume the pastorate of the Central Christian church of that city. His farewell sermon was on the subject, "If I Had One More Sermon to Preach."

D.A.R. Bridge Tournament Is Brilliant Success

In the midst of a lovely Thanksgiving setting, approximately 160 women gathered at the country club Saturday afternoon to take part in the bridge and 42 tournament given by the Major Francis Grice chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Autumn leaves were garlanded across the ceiling of the main dining room, where the games were played. Smilax veiled in green the cheerful red lights around the side walls and baskets of chrysanthemums and winter daisies filled every available space in the windows. Miss Frances Smith, in charge of the decorations, with her corps of helpers, prepared a beautiful room for the assembly.

The dainty hand-painted tallies done in rich autumn colorings, were the work of Mrs. Roy King.

Mrs. Fred T. Couper, regent, was working with all committees, Mrs. Ben Bell, chairman of the finance committee, with Mrs. F. W. Fischer, G. T. Buchanan and W. L. Herblin were largely responsible for the success of the tournament. Mrs. Herblin was in charge of the refreshments.

Candy, donated by members of the chapter, was sold during the afternoon by Misses Dorothy and Erma Kline, Mary Hyatt, Josephine Bell and Mary Catherine Gould, who also served the delicious plate lunch when the games were finished.

Mrs. J. G. Davis was winner of the high bridge prize and Mrs. C. F. Reppy was second. The low went to Mrs. Charles E. Litchfield and Mrs. Sellars won in the cut. The 42 prize went to Mrs. G. F. Buchanan. Prizes were both unusual and handsome.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Queen Mary's London Needlework guild opened last week in England and the principal exhibit was of three scarfs knit by the Prince of Wales and three knit by Prince George.

◆ ◆ ◆

Knitting, they say, is a growing pastime for British men of society. "Right honorables" and "barons" submitted many specimens of their handiwork in this bazaar.

◆ ◆ ◆

Can one imagine American men of means knitting and giving their handiwork for exhibit?

◆ ◆ ◆

In our mind, we go over the men in Wichita who count as our big men; the men who have stood back of the city and who are the rock bed on which she stands now. And we are proud that they are men who have other things than knitting to take up their spare time.

◆ ◆ ◆

We have a hearty admiration for the Prince of Wales. He has shown a spirit of democracy, new to the rulers of his land. But for all that, it seems in America, that when persons having nothing to do—unless it is knitting—the old adage proves true, "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

◆ ◆ ◆

There's a pride in America in accomplishment. Not in any dilettante's ability, but in the man who does best in his line of work, whatever it may be.

◆ ◆ ◆

Name the men in Wichita Falls who are most admired. In every line of business and in every profession, they are the men who built the city and who, since its building, by their ability keep it a Mecca for nearby towns.

◆ ◆ ◆

It will be hundreds of years in England before the lower and middle classes outgrow idealism of what royalty does—at least royalty whom they love.

◆ ◆ ◆

Royalty in Germany had one sad end last week when Victoria of Hohenzollern was buried in the pine woods of her native hills. One sister and one brother were at her grave.

◆ ◆ ◆

Poor woman of 61, who married a gigolo of 27! In less than a year he had squandered her $3,000,000 fortune.

◆ ◆ ◆

Her quest for happiness was futile. At 63 she died alone in a hospital, refusing even to have Wilhelm II see her on her death bed.

◆ ◆ ◆

"Little Vickie" she had been—his favorite sister.

◆ ◆ ◆

In bright blue days, Victoria would not have been hungering for companionship, what this young man whom she thought an exiled Russian baron—seemed to offer her.

◆ ◆ ◆

We see the same thing in our own midst. The courts of Wichita show tragic examples of those who do the wrong thing in reaching out with futile hands for "happiness." Only to be betrayed into disgrace.

Young People Of Floral Heights Meet Sunday Eve

An interesting program was given at the regular meeting of the Epworth young people of Floral Heights Methodist church, when they met Sunday evening at the church.

Following the reading of the minutes, a beautiful devotional was given by Miss Helen Ruth Connelley after which sentence prayers were given.

Mary C. Boone gave an interesting chapter from "Japanese Home Life," followed by extracts from the missionary bulletin.

Miss Helen Simpson told of the passing of Miss Lockie Rankin, giving a brief sketch of her life. Miss Estelle McPhail's description of the celebration of "Mother's day" in Central Africa was vivid. A letter from a Japanese student in the Hiroshima Girls' school in Japan was read by Miss Dorothy Johnson.

A delightful reading was given by Miss Mary Hyatt.

Announcement of a special program for the week of prayer to be given next Sunday was made, at which time a self-denial offering for the Maria Laying Gibson fund will be taken.

The meeting closed with the benediction repeated in unison. About 50 members were present.

Plan for Schools To Hire Athletes Broached

FORT WORTH, Nov. 24. (AP)—"I think it would be a good idea for universities to hire football teams just as they hire dramatic artists to give concerts," said Dr. Herbert L. Willett of the University of Chicago, when he spoke at Texas Christian university here.

"I do not think athletics in general are detrimental to a school," he continued, "but there is too much emphasis being placed on football. Track, tennis and baseball do not have the same devastating effect."

"Don't ask me why!"

Excuses a man seems never to understand; explanations that are embarrassing. Women who have learned of Midol avoid these unpleasant experiences!

Midol is not a narcotic, but it does banish the suffering which too often attends the menstrual period. It acts quite harmlessly, but effectively, on the organs affected. Safe, but swift; complete comfort comes in five to seven minutes. You will get this relief regardless of how hard a time you've always had. These wonderful tablets do nothing to hinder the normal, natural process of menstruation, so it's only common sense to use them.

If you would spare yourself all suffering at this time, get Midol in a trim little case of aluminum for purse or pocket. Fifty cents at any drug store.—Adv.

Bids on Lubbock School Called

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 24.—Bids on $850,000 in school bonds will be received Dec. 6, by the Lubbock independent school district, according to A. C. Jackson, secretary of the school district. The bonds were voted about 10 weeks ago for the purpose of building the new high school building.

Reservation to reject any and all bids has been made by the board in advertising the bonds for sale.

The letting of the contract for the school building will be made some time in December, it is expected.

Plans and specifications for the new high school structure will be available to contractors who wish to submit a bid, in about two weeks the Peters, Strange and Bradshaw firm of Lubbock, architects on the job have announced.

Construction on the new school building is expected to get under way sometime in January and school officials expect to have the building completed and ready to occupy in time for the mid-term of the 1930-31 school term, just about a year after the contract is let.

Dorothy Dix Tells Why Girls Pursue Many Married Men

When a Girl Pursues a Married Man it May Be the Old Story of Forbidden Fruit; Pseudo-Sophistication, Gold-Digging, or the Cruelty that Delights in Seeing a Sister-Woman Writhe.

A wife wants to know why so many young girls are love pirates who seek to take married men away from their wives when there are so many slick-haired boys who are slimmer, handsomer, better dancers, more full of pep, who are to be had for the taking, and who would seem to be far more attractive prizes than any stout, middle-aged, bald-headed husband and father.

If the girl is really in love with the married man, that is one thing. That is a tragedy that often cannot be prevented, for love is not amenable to reason and the knowledge that a man can never be hers, or that she can only have him at the price of breaking up another woman's home, does not always keep a girl from setting her affections upon him.

But it spells misery for her and brings untold heartaches upon her, for she drinks the bitter cup of jealousy to its dregs, even if the man returns her love, when she sees another woman bearing his name, spending his money, appearing in public by his side, while she toils for a daily wage.

She knows all the sordidness of a hole-and-corner secret romance that has for its background cheap restaurants and obscure theaters where one's friends never go and one will not be recognized. She knows what it is to waste her youth and her beauty in hopeless longing and waiting, or if she does finally marry her man what it means to wade in scandal to the altar.

The great majority of girls who pursue married men, however, have not the justification of the grand passion for their conduct. They are not in love with the men. They don't want them. They would not marry them on a bet. They are only flirting and the wonder is that they do not see how dangerous their game is.

They are playing with fire that always scorches their reputations when it does not entirely consume them. For a cynical world invariably believes the worst of the flapper and the married man. They never get even the benefit of the doubt.

Four general reasons may be assigned for girls taking this foolhardy risk. The first, and perhaps the most impelling, motive that drives a girl into having an affair with a married man is the hereditary carving of her sex for forbidden fruit. It is precisely the same cosmic urge that made Eve eat the apple, even though she knew that she was liable to lose her perfectly good home if she did it and bring disaster down upon her head.

The married man is another woman's property and that fact alone makes him more desirable than a single man and puts her on her mettle to steal him if she can. She gets no kick out of her playing around with boys, because there is no risk in it, but it gives her a tremendous thrill to joyride around with some other woman's husband, knowing that she will be cited as a corespondent in a divorce suit if she is caught. It is because the married man represents adventure and the bright face of danger that he has such an allure for so many girls.

Other girls make a specialty of flirting with married men because they think it shows how sophisticated and worldly wise they are. It is a very common thing to hear a young girl say that she doesn't know why it is but that married men always fall for her and want to kiss her and make dates with her and that she is a pot of poison to half of the wives she knows.

Why a girl should think that it shows that she is a super-vamp to be able to attract a married man is past understanding, because, as a matter of fact, he is the easiest thing in the world. He is grateful to have any flapper notice him and any gay young woman can have him who wants him. Besides, he knows he is safe. He can always hide behind his wife's skirts and have an attack of conscience when he gets tired of the girl and wants to get rid of her.

Then there are the girls who are gold-diggers. They single out married men for their attentions because the married man is generally better worth exploiting than the single one. The young chap, who is just starting out in life and who is only earning a small salary, is mostly pretty poor pickings. Rides in a cheap flivver, table d'hote dinners, the movies, inexpensive presents, are about all the most cheerful and energetic worker can get out of him.

But the middle-aged married man assays better to the gold-digger. He has made his pile, or else she doesn't bother with him, and he can be made to feel how sad it is for a poor little girl not to have a car of her own and French millinery and pearl necklaces and things. A sweetie of her own age is all very well to play around with, but a sugar papa is imported frocks and silk stockings and chiffons.

Then there are the girls who flirt with married men because there is something cruel in their natures that makes them enjoy seeing another woman suffer. They get a morbid pleasure out of torturing some fat, maddle-aged commonplace wife with jealousy.

Such a girl's favorite prey is some man who has outgrown his wife and she knows it. He has kept his youth and she has lost hers. He has grown more brilliant and charming as the years went by, while she has lost what little attraction she had as a girl. But he has remained reasonably faithful and contented until the girl comes along and takes him away from her for the fun of seeing her writhe in helpless agony.

She is young and slender and beautiful and alluring, everything the wife is not. It is no trick at all to take her husband away from her and the knowledge that it breaks a sister woman's heart and half-orphans children and wrecks a home only adds zest to the game.

Certainly flirting with married men is a favorite sport with many girls, but it is a hazardous diversion, because it tarnishes their names, it drives marrying men away from them and makes old maids of them and because sooner or later conscience wakes up and reproaches them with the wrong they have done other women. Perhaps when they see some younger and prettier girl flirting with their own husbands.

Dancers to Appear Here Dec. 9

A group of dancers, trained from early youth by Isadora Duncan, who will make their appearance in Wichita Falls at the forum clubhouse, Dec. 9.

Isadora Duncan Dancers To Appear at Forum Soon

Bag and baggage, with the most important articles of all, their abbreviated dancing skirts and blouses, the Isadora Duncan dancers will soon be making their appearance in Wichita Falls.

Last year, in a theatrical season which had many failures, they were one of the brightest attractions in New York. They have a background of classical music by Chopin, Schubert, Schumann and Tschaikowsky and to these are added a feature New York has been most enthusiastic about, a series of modern Russian dances which have proven a terpsichorean revelation and created a furore.

America, including Wichita Falls, believes it knows what is called "interpretative" dancing, but it is said we have no real understanding of it until we have seen this group of Russian girls, charming, lithe and graceful, with Irma, the adopted daughter of the late Isadora Duncan, at their head.

Each program concludes with the ensemble, "Impressions of Modern Russia," which has stirred the cities where it has been seen to remarkable demonstration.

They will appear in Wichita Falls as a benefit under the auspices of the Woman's Forum clubhouse on the evening of Dec. 9. Mail orders which will open Nov. 25, may be addressed to Mrs. A. G. Holmes, 1717 Huff, with check enclosed. Tickets will be on sale at Renfro Drug store No. 1, Dec. 4.

Drama Department To Present Blue Curtain Players

Mesdames J. W. Akin Jr., E. F. Bohmfalk, Orville Carrico, C. E. Daniel, C. M. McFarland and J. F. Oakley will be hostesses Tuesday at 3 o'clock when the Blue Curtain players, directed by Miss Juanita Kinsey, will present a program at the regular monthly meeting of the drama department of the Woman's Forum.

"Getting Acquainted" will be the title of the one act play. Miss Lela Belle Jenkins will represent Jane, a spinster. Miss Katherine Keller will be Priscilla, her sister and W. A. Johnson will be John Purdy, a suitor.

A sketch entitled "He and She" will be given with Frank Bain taking the part of the husband and Dolores Peevy that of the wife.

Aaron Kruger will read, "China Blue Eyes."

With the outstanding program offered, a large crowd is expected at the meeting.

FOLLERIN' THE BAND

WHO hasn't "follered" the band up Main street, or up Broadway or Michigan boulevard? Heart pumping joyously, feet beating the ground in time! Grandly intoxicating moment of childhood!

And—later in life—who hasn't felt a thrill as the conductor lifted his baton for the overture to begin? A moment pregnant with the glamour of the theatre! Music casts its spell throughout all the Ages of Man.

Is it wise then, in this enlightened and prosperous day to countenance substitution of a shadow of music for the real thing in the theatre?

Imagine the Irish following a Music Box on St. Patrick's Day! Or fife and drum music by a Machine on Memorial Day! Incongruous? Of course, but not more so than a mechanical overture in the theatre.

Talking pictures—a new dramatic form; the radio—which transmits music directly and DOES reflect the artist's mood of the moment; the phonograph in the home—where living music usually is not available—are not at issue here. We are discussing only the SUBSTITUTION OF MECHANICAL MUSIC FOR REAL MUSIC IN THE THEATRE, in consequence of which Real Music is being eliminated in theatres.

CRABBING THEIR ACTS

Daily Editorial

IN back-stage parlance, the stock market break has crabbed so many acts, expecting to be indefinite headliners, that most of us have forgotten pretty much everything else but tariff tangles, senate wrangles and disarmament angles.

Meanwhile, Habibullah, the Water Boy of Kabul, is consoling himself for a lost throne and head, with his allotted houris in Paradise.

If Edward Knoblauch and Marmaduke Pickthall hadn't foreimagined his lurid performance, in the respective adventures of "Hadj, the Beggar," and "Said, the Fisherman," playrights and novelists might well have turned tha. grotesque situation to gorgeous account.

And yet, only a comic-opera plot would dare compel a king to abdicate and yield succession to the meanest subject in his realm, because he sought to introduce the wearing of Paris frocks and London toppers.

The closing of this episode removes at least one thorn from the lion's paw; but Britain has plenty left to keep Downing street wincing.

For instance, unspoiling the Egyptians wasn't such an easy job as anticipation pictured. And it will take all the diplomatic genius in the foreign office to conciliate the interests of British investors, with the aspirations of the different Nationalist groups Oliver Twisting for still more concessions from his majesty's government.

Briand's fall, and Tardieu's rise, should also complain of cavalier treatment from an otherwise engrossed American press.

Signor Mussolini may likewise accuse the cables of temporarily neglecting his importance.

And for all that's been lately printed on the subject, the Chinese-Russian imbroglio seems wiped from the slate, together with the civil wars of Cathay and Jugo-Slavia's political mess.

Even Bishop Cannon finds it difficult to squeeze a scold into the front page. And one is hard put to remember if Henry Ford has delivered an impressive opinion on anything, since the Edison Centennial collided with the bear movement.

EDITORIAL comment would ordinarily have required columns to marvel properly at Juanita Hansen's recovery of $168,000 damages for a shower-bath scald; not to mention its normal reaction at the announcement of a $300,000 fee, paid to a single alienist by the guardians of the mysteriously afflicted Stanley McCormick.

We've grown used to calculating by billions, that these sums seem small change.

So does the Prince of Wales—who apparently can't devise better use for his time and talents than to employ them at knitting neckties.

The heir-apparent to an empire beset by colonial problems, staggering under the burden of chronic doles, and generally embarrassed by idle mines and spindles, is hardly qualifying himself for international confidence by indulging in such tomfoolery, when economic crises and fiscal depression should engage his fullest thought and energy.

Nero fiddled while his Rome burned. Louis, the Purblind, tinkered with locks as revolution sharpened secret pikes. And Edward, the playboy, blithesomely crochets while a labor frontier tightens its grasp upon authority and daily increases its supporters.

When the desperate folk of France cried for bread, Marie Antoinette brightly suggested that they try cake.

After the starving colliers exhibited their gaunt estate to young Mr. Windsor, he sent bouquets as an earnest of his sympathy.

When England hopefully looks to the royal house for leadership, the incumbent of St. James palace waves a hand-knitted what-not.

Very much, besides the ups and downs of the ticker and the tariff, to think about, gentle reader!

What Ingenuity Can Do

THE MOST unpredictable thing in the world is human ingenuity. Any other element in life can, to a certain extent, be judged in advance; but you never can tell in what way the inventive genius of mankind may not confound your estimates.

The progress of the Germans in warship construction in the last few years is an interesting example.

When the Versailles treaty was drawn up, the English were determined that German naval power should be crippled forever. In 1914 the great German fleet was larger than any other on earth except England's. It was strong enough to prove a genuine menace, and in the battle of Jutland it gave an impressive account of itself.

England did not want to face that situation again. So Germany was prevented from building any battleship exceeding 10,000 tons in weight. The size of its cruisers was similarly restricted. Rigid limits were placed on the caliber of the guns that these reduced warships might mount.

The thing looked absolutely certain. The modern battleship mounts 14 or 16-inch guns and is around 30,000 tons in size. How could any battleship Germany might build hope to cope with such a vessel?

It was the same in the cruiser division. The new cruisers being built by England and America are of 10,000 tons and mount eight-inch guns. One of them, it would be supposed, might be a match for the strongest battleship Germany could ever build.

But the inventive genius of Germany was one thing that the treaty makers could not gauge in advance.

The new German battleship, which keeps strictly within treaty limits, is a profound departure from all former naval standards. A third the size of the ordinary battleship, it nevertheless possesses armament that would enable it to stand up to any one of them in combat; and in addition it has greater speed than any other battleship afloat, so that it could get away safely if the odds were too great. It could simply pulverize any cruiser in existence.

And the new German cruisers are, likewise, a vast surprise. Limited to 6,000 tons in size, they are nevertheless said to be capable of outsailing and outfighting any English or American cruiser of greater size.

Thus the Germans, although the treaty was expected to limit them to a position of minor importance in naval circles, may not, because of their inventive genius, regain their old place as a premier naval power.

For all ordinary situations in life it is possible to provide rules in advance. But no one can ever tell what developments human ingenuity is going to bring about. The human brain can work miracles that rulemakers can never foresee.

The Senate and Confidence

ROGER BABSON, who conducts a business forecasting service, gained much fame and prestige when his forecast of the Wall street crash, predicted some months ago, came true. It happened just about like Roger said it would, and perhaps for the very reasons he gave at the time.

From the eminence of his prestige Mr. Babson now ventures to observe that the United States senate is responsible for the present lack of confidence throughout the country, meaning, we are led to infer, that the senate ought to have hurried and passed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill as it came from the house.

Mr. Babson with his reports and charts may be able to analyze and forecast business conditions but we believe he has made a bad failure of the moral confidence of the people.

If there is anything that ought to tend to restore public confidence in leadership it has been the fight that has been made against the Smoot-Hawley tariff that would have wrecked public confidence. Nothing that could have happened would have been so disquieting as would the acceptance by the senate of this bill as it came from the house. It would have gone far toward destroying that confidence in the integrity of the government which is so essential to business.

The fight that has been made against this bill has been heartening and, if, like Mr. Babson, we can venture a prediction, it will be that the fight is won and that it has the approval of the people and hasn't hurt any legitimate business.

Mr. Babson will have to look elsewhere than to the courageous stand of certain senators to find the cause of any lack of confidence that may exist throughout the country.

If we could be permitted to say so, without any charts or reports to back us up, we would say that Mr. Babson is mistaken in the first place about there being any widespread lack of confidence whatsoever.

$3,500,000 for a Good Name

"A GOOD NAME is better than riches," so the saying goes, and C. S. Mott, multimillionaire vice president of General Motors and chairman of the board of the Union Industrial bank of Flint, Mich., seems to have taken this to heart.

At any rate, Mr. Mott has dug down into his pocket and withdrawn $3,500,000 cash with which to cover the shortages of defaulting employes of his bank who gambled in the stock market and lost. He may recover some of this money—and he may not—but the fact remains that the men and women who deposited their savings in his bank are protected.

Apparently, Mr. Mott figured that he was better able to stand the loss than his depositors; apparently, he took the broad view that he, as head of the institution to which they had entrusted their savings in good faith, was obligated to protect them. Yet, it seems he was in no wise legally responsible and could have resisted any lawsuit successfully.

We need more men with this broader conception of duty, more men who place a greater value on their reputations and their obligations to society than they place on their money.

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLVII

"I can't face them," Ann Marie said to herself and stood stock still in the middle of the sidewalk.

She knew that she couldn't . . . She couldn't go home and kiss Alice as if she was glad and happy because she had run away with Neal and married him . . . She couldn't sit and watch them with their arms around each other and their eyes full of the tenderness of the newly-wedded.

She just couldn't do it. There were limits, after all, to what she could stand.

It was just as she was turning to go away from the house that the thought of Uncle Hamby popped into her mind . . . Perhaps she could borrow this money that she needed from him! Perhaps, when he heard the whole story, he would behave like a human being for once and lend her the two thousand dollars . . . People did funny things sometimes.

His gloomy stone house on Sycamore street had never looked gloomier than it did that night when she walked up the steps and rang the bell.

"Mister and Missus are in the dining room," Nellie, the middle-aged maid, told her when she opened the front door.

They had just begun their soup.

Uncle Hamby looked at her, his spoon poised in mid-air when she came into the room.

"I knew it was one of you Macys!" he said with a snort and laid his spoon back in the bowl. "Relatives always come at mealtimes!—Never saw it to fail!—Well, pull up a chair!"

Ann Marie shook her head.

"No, thanks, I couldn't eat a thing," she said, and smiled at Aunt Annie. "I've just had a lot of lemonade."

Uncle Hamby smiled at her, too. But his smile was a tight-lipped sarcastic one.

"What'll you bet that Ann Marie didn't come to borrow money from us—if she could?" he asked.

Then he turned to Ann Marie.

"Ever notice that about poor relations?" he asked her. "They never show up unless they want a free meal or need money!"

Aunt Annie looked uncomfortable. "That's not a very nice thing to say to Ann Marie," she murmured, "even if you are joking, Hamby."

Poor Aunt Annie!....She was always trying to pass off the unkind insulting things that Uncle Hamby said as jokes.

"I'm sure Ann Marie never asks us for anything," she went on in her sweet timid way. "And as far as free meals and money are concerned, I guess she's given a lot of people free meals and money, too, since she's been in New York. The girls were up there for weeks—"

"Oh, don't!" Ann Marie held up her hand. Her blue eyes, dark and dilated, were full of unshed tears. Her throat shook....She was trying hard not to cry. "Don't say anything nice to me, Aunt Annie—Please don't! If you do I'm just going to go all to pieces—all to pieces—"

And then, to her own horror, she burst into tears.

Before Aunt Annie could stop her she was out of the room, out of the house, and out onto the sidewalk.

She heard Aunt Annie calling to her as she hurried along under the low branches of the sycamore trees that lined the street. But she pretended not to hear her....No use to go back there and make a show of herself by having hysterics.

She never had them in her life. But she knew she was on the verge of them now. She bit her lips to keep back the laughter and the sobs that shook her,...What was it Mrs. Leezy was always saying about life?—"Trouble on top of trouble. That's what it is!"

Ann Marie had her dinner that night in a little serve-self lunchroom on Front street.

She wasn't at all hungry. But she forced herself to eat. And she ate as slowly as she could, spinning out the time before she would finish and go back home. She dreaded the thought of going back and facing Neal and Alice.

It was half-past eight by the time she had set down her thick white cup of coffee and paid for her meal.

At a quarter of nine when she turned into Pleasant street once more, the car was still standing in front of the house.

But the bride and groom were nowhere in sight.

"Perhaps they've gone to the movies," thought Ann Marie hopefully, "and I won't have to see them."

She went up the walk.

On the porch sat Mrs. Leezy, fanning herself with the evening newspaper. Howdy and Stella rocked gently to and fro in the hammock couch. Stella was singing softly, and her voice was the voice of contentment and happiness.

"Where's Dad?" asked Ann Marie, standing at the foot of the steps.

"'Round at the side of the house, messin' with his flowers, as per usual," Mrs. Leezy answered resentfully. "'Stead of sittin' out here where he b'longs. I declare he ain't no more company to me than one of them there totem poles!"

Mr. Macy was sprinkling the lawn at the side of the house. Above him were the lighted windows of Alice's bedroom and through them came the murmur of voices.

Looking up, Ann Marie could see Neal's dark head. He was sitting near the windows, smoking a cigaret.

"They've been having a battle royal up there," said Mr. Macy in a whisper. "I've been listening to them. Seems they left some hotel or other without paying their bill—and each one of them is blaming the other one for getting married! They're a fine pair."

He sat down on a low wooden bench beside his bed of cannas.

"I certainly have raised a fine lot of children," he said bitterly. "Alice and this matinée-idol of hers turn out to be a couple of dead-beats, likely to be arrested any minute!—Howy gets himself into this mess with the worst girl in this town—and Jeanie married the town bum. That's what he is, no matter how much money he has—the town bum and the town drunkard."

"—no matter how much money he has," thought Ann Marie, turning her father's words over in her mind.

Why, of course, that was the solution to the whole awful problem! —Brooke Walter's money. He'd undoubtedly be perfectly willing to lend her two thousand dollars, provided she would pay it back to him at so much a week. Especially when she told him what it was for.

"Jeanie will make him lend it to me," she thought. "She won't want to have Howdy disgraced just now when she's ready to take her place here as Brooks's wife."

But where were they—Jeanie and Brooke hadn't told a soul where they were going on their honeymoon. They had just started away in Brooke's car amid showers of rice and old shoes.

The one person who might know where they were was Alice. For Jeanie and Alice had never had any secrets from each other. They had fought and bickered. They had stolen each other's clothes and toilet articles. They had said mean nasty things about each other whenever they were on the "outs." But they had always been great friends, nevertheless, for they were two of a kind!

As Ann Marie started up the stairs she could hear the quarrel going on between the newly weds.

Alice's voice—her family voice —was the high shrill kind that carries like the whistle of a steam engine.

It came clearly to Ann Marie's ears now.

"— Well, you'll have to go to work now, Neal Forsythe!" she was saying. "Because I'm no Ann Marie, let me tell you!—I never have worked and I never am going to work! So you'd better go to see your uncle about a job in the bank first thing tomorrow morning, and I don't mean maybe!"

Ann Marie could not hear Neal's answer.

She waited a minute outside the door and then knocked on it.

Alice threw it open.

"Hello! Hello, Ann Marie," she said, pulling the dressing-gown she had on closer around her slender body. It was a white one and Ann Marie had painted a border of water-lillies on it for her long ago.

Ann Marie pulled herself together. She leaned forward and kissed her on her painted mouth.

She looked beyond Alice at Neal, lounging in his chair, smoking.

"I hope you'll both be happy. I really hope that," she said to both of them. "I know you will be."

She knew that they wouldn't be. They were both too selfish and demanding. Both of them would want to be waited on and pampered and spoiled—and there would be no one to wait on either of them, or to spoil them or to pamper them!

"Come in and sit down." Neal said, getting up from his chair. "We really are sick and tired of being alone. Honeymoons are the bunk, what?" He grinned, showing his even white teeth. But Ann Marie knew that, in spite of that grin, he meant exactly what he said.

He was tired of married life before he had actually started it.

She shook her head.

"No, I just wanted to ask Alice where Jeanie and Brooky are," she said. "I've got to get hold of them —It's awfully important."

"They're at the Plaza in New York," answered Alice. "They'll be there until tomorrow noon. Then they're going to drive up to Canada—I'll bet they don't think their honeymoon is the bunk!"

Her voice was as sharp and as cold as an icicle.

Then suddenly it began to tremble. Her whole face quivered and tears sprang into her shallow blue eyes.

"All I've heard since the night I ran away with that big lazy helpless thing," she said, her voice breaking, "is how wonderful you are and how awful I am—He says you used to put his buttons in his shirts for him and wait on him hand-foot-and-finger!—Well, if he expects me to do it for him, he's all wet—"

She turned and flung herself, crying and choking, down upon the untidy-looking bed where Neal had tossed his coat and his hat and a pair of dusty tan shoes.

The next morning at half past eleven Ann Marie telephoned Mr. and Mrs. Brooke Walters' sitting-room in the Plaza hotel in New York City.

"Come right up! We're just having breakfast," Jeanie's voice came to her. "We just got up, and telephoned the clerk that we'd take any phone calls came in for us . . . Have you been trying to get us?"

"For about an hour. I'll be there in no time," answered Ann Marie and hung up.

Wood Removed From White House Shown

HOUSTON, Nov. 24. (AP)—A segment of one of the wooden trusses that held the roof over the heads of 26 presidents of the United States has been obtained by Jefferson Davis high school here.

The block, made from timber removed when the White House was remodeled two years ago, will be kept permanently on display at the school.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

President Hoover And The Business Conference

First Industrial Leader: Good morning, Mister President.

President: Good morning, gentlemen.

First Industrial Leader: You're looking very well.

President: Yes; I had nothing but high grade bonds.

Second Industrial Leader: Well, it's been quite an er, ër an eventful month, hasn't it?

President: Yes. We have been through—what was it Mr. Lamont or somebody called it?

Third I. L.: A little disorderly selling.

President: tat's it. Well, I suppose you gentlemen all know the purpose of this huddle—beg pardon—conference.

First I. L.: To quote the papers, we are here to organize business and government agencies in a concerted action for dispelling pessimism, for continuing business progress and for insuring the orderly march of American industry.

President: That's about it Now just how are you as pessimism-dispellers? A little rusty, I suppose?

Fourth I. L.: Well, it's been so long since we had any pessimism in this country that we're out of practice dispelling it, but we can get the hang of it with a little practice.

President: We've got to get together in a concerted pessimism-dispelling drive. Now, of course, to do that we must all be optimists. It won't do to have any pessimists out trying to put over optimism. Is there any pessimist in this conference,

Chorus: No!

President (observing that two gentlemen didn't answer): How about you over there in the corner? You didn't answer.

Fifth I. L.: Well, you see I bought steel at 250.

President (pointing to another gentleman): You didn't answer either. Are you pessimistic? You look depressed.

Sixth I. L.: I get that holding the motors for a rally.

President: Well, it won't do. I can't have any of you gentlemen participating in these conferences with long faces.

Sixth I. L.: If my face too long for the purposes in mind?

President: Much too long. I should say you would have to shorten it at least six inches.

Sixth I. L.: I could never shorten it six inches with prices where they are just now.

President: Well, you'll have to shorten it considerably. How about five inches?

Sixth I. L.: Four inches is the best I can do now.

President: You and that other gentleman with the long face will have to shorten them five inches between now and the time the official photographs are taken. It would ruin everything if you got on the front page of the newspapers looking like you do now.

Sixth I. L.: Really, Mister President, you ought not to set yourself up as a critic of long faces. Yours is not any too cheering, you know.

Second I. L. (sharply): No harsh words about Mr. Hoover's presidential countenance. Think what we'd be up against if we had to restore confidence with Mr. Coolidge's!

President: I'm going to do the best I can with my face and I want all you boys to do the best you can with yours. We must look cheerful. We must look happy and confident. Now then, all together, a nice long smile!

(The business men try to smile).

President (dissatisfied): That won't do, boys. I want a real honest to goodness smile. Put some feeling into it. Once more now.

(They do a little better).

President: That's better. Now, that'll be enough for today. I want you to practice smiling overnight and we'll all get together again tomorrow morning for another try. And remember, I want your best smile! And no sickly grins, understand?

(Curtain).

She Meant Indigent, Maybe

The lady of the house was telling the maid about the woman across the hall who had become extremely disturbed over the playing of a radio late at night and who had gone so far as to complain to the police.

"Ain't that awful?" observed the maid. "She oughta me put in that home they have in the country."

"What home is 'that, Nora?" asked the l. of the h.

"The Home for Indignant Women," was the reply.

Not Tough Enough

Three full-blooded Indians drank the anti-freeze solution from an automobile radiator in Minnesota and died immediately. The Indians haven't become accustomed to the white man's ways yet.

Broths and Soups

Broths and soups may be made in an appetizing and yet a wholesome manner. The same rules about food combination should be used in the making of soups as in the selection of other foods to be used at the meal. The meat broths made from cubes are not highly nutritious, but still act as appetizers, and can be used for the meat stock flavoring of a soup made from vegetables.

In many cases, those who like a hot drink with their meals will find an agreeable change in a thin broth made from the bouillon cubes or from an infusion which comes from boiling beef, mutton or chicken. This may be sipped along with the meal, as some people drink their coffee. Very good broth may be made from simply boiling a small amount of ground steak and using only the strained liquid, but of course the entire boiled ground steak soup may be used and possibly with the addition of some of the non-starchy vegetables.

If one desires to make the most concentrated and nutritious broth, it is always well to cut the meat in small pieces or grind it through a meat grinder. It should then be put into cold water and slowly warmed, but never allowed to quite reach the boiling point. In this way more albumen of the meat is extracted and the natural flavor of the meat passes into the broth.

All broths and soups should be cooked slowly, and a richer flavor can always be obtained by this slow cooking over a long period of time, even as long as four or five hours. A good chicken broth can be made the day after a chicken dinner by boiling all of the bones left over and cooking for a long time to extract the gelatin. There is always a certain amount of meat left on the bones and this flavors the broth, together with celery, parsley and other vegetables which may be added.

Clam broth is made by washing the clams or oysters thoroughly and then putting them in a kettle of cold water to cook slowly. As soon as the shells open, the broth is ready.

It is now possible to buy minced clams in cans, and also to buy the clam broth, itself. These minced clams or the broth may be used by adding a little water, or the clams or broth may be put into a soup made of a combination of vegetables.

A palatable and nutritious soup can be made from using any one of the non-starchy vegetables, such as spinach, string beans, summer squash, etc. The vegetables should be cooked for a long time, then minced or run through a colander and again warmed up with the addition of a small amount of milk or cream. These vegetables should be cooked in only a small amount of water, but the water remaining after cooking should be used and the minced vegetables returned to this water or a small amount of hot water added if too much of the water had already been cooked away.

A good rule to remember in the making of soups is that the soup is much better from a dietetic standpoint if only a few articles of food are used and only such foods as would make a good combination if used in the ordinary way at a meal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Drainage from Incision

Question: K. G. writes—"I contracted pneumonia following an operation. I progressed nicely and have fully recovered with the exception of the wee hole which remains in my side and still leaks a little every day. Of late it doesn't seem to make much progress toward healing, and it worries me a little as I am fond of outdoor recreation, especially swimming and tennis. Am I doing right in using this strenuous exercise which may tend to keep the wound open?"

Answer—The best method for producing a healing to a running sore or wound is that outlined in my article called A Cleansing Diet which I would be glad to forward to you. It is good to use some exercise, but try to avoid moving or stretching the areas affected by the wound: Cold compresses covered with dry woolen material for some distance about the affected area often prove helpful.

Anesthetic

Question: Mrs. T. W. K. asks: "When all of the teeth must be extracted, what is the safest anesthetic for the person who has a heart leakage?"

Answer—The type of anesthetic to be used would have to be left to the discretion of the dentist. Sometimes it is advisable to use a local anesthetic to the teeth rather than gas, when there is trouble with the heart.

Stammering

Question: C. S. asks: "Will you please tell me how I can end my stammering? Many times I cannot say a thing and become very nervous. I have had this trouble for several years."

Answer—I would advise you to go to some doctor or psychologist who makes a specialty of correcting stammering. The cure requires a great deal of personal attention from some instructor who understands the mental causes.

Sunset Cotton Crop About All Gathered

Special to The Record News

SUNSET, Texas, Nov. 24.—The cotton crop here has been about all gathered and ginned. The yield was good, but the acreage was very light. Weevil damage has been comparatively light this year and it has been predicted that the acreage will be much larger next year.

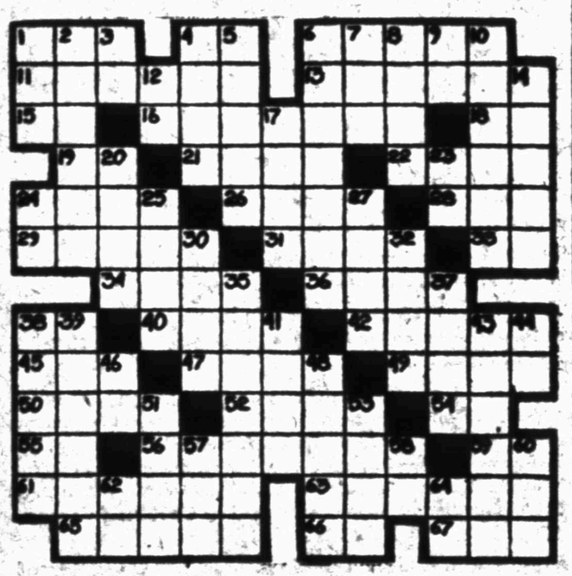

Occasional showers of rain and heavy dews have considerably delayed peanut thrashing here this fall. Some farmers have stacked their peanuts, but hundreds of acres are in the windrow in the fields. The average yield is lower this year than it was last. The best are thrashing out slightly over 20 bushels of nuts and a half of a ton of hay per acre.

The first snow of the season fell here Thursday but it melted as it fell. The first freezing weather of the season reached here Friday night. Saturday morning there was a very heavy frost and the earth was frozen lightly.

The Iron Man

Missing! An old-time hurler,
Another light fogged in the past,
McGinnity veteran twirler
Has cashed in his checks at last.

Baltimore papers please copy,
New York and Brooklyn, too;
Let's weave him a chaplet of poppy,
Of the "Old Guard" some must be true.

Joe's gone, but we scarce can believe it,
And his end just came easy, not hard.
His record? How many achieve it?
One of ball's old Imperial Guard.

In our mind's eye he's almost before us,
While the mob yells they love to attest,
Just how many shrieking adorers
Saw Joe off on this last trip "West."

When he and "Big Six" stood together
To safeguard the National league,
Joe stuck through the worst kind of weather
And was loyal through all the intrigue.

Just name us a latter day twirler,
If asked double-headers to win,
Could equal this sterling old hurler
And not finish up "all in."

Joe, we your old friends say "God speed you,"
Old Iron Man, athlete and pard.
If they play ball up there they will need you,
One of ball's old Imperial Guard.

—Matthew S. Kelley.

Tradition—The Army-Notre Dame

There are occasions when tradition means a matter of 40 or 50 years—such as the Yale-Princeton, the Harvard-Yale or the California-Stanford games.

There are other occasions when tradition can be built up in a greater hurry—through class of competition—speed, action, public interest and the knowledge that two unusual rivals are keyed up to a spectacle and a sporting contest well worth watching.

The Army-Notre Dame game lacks the matter of time which older rivalries know. But within a few years it has caught up with the old guard—and has passed most of the bunch.

You can pick any two old-time rivals from football and place them in a nearby stadium and yet the Army-Notre Dame game will outdraw them all if only accommodations were provided. If there was seating or standing space in New York on Saturday this gridiron feature would draw over 200,000 spectators. The demand for tickets has been something terrific.

Almost every mail and every phone call seems to be a request for one, two or more tickets. And the traditional lure back of this contest is less than 20 years. Much less.

It has grown to be one of the great sporting events of the year—a sporting event that is nearly always replete with drama—that is always packed with clean, fast, hard play, calculated to catch the fancy of a capacity crowd.

The Next Meeting

This next Army-Notre Dame game will carry a number of unusual features. Notre Dame is coming on East again with one of the best teams Rockne ever coached.

It is one of the best teams in the game today—a smart, fast team that is something to look at.

On the Army side Biff Jones is directing his last Army team. He has completed his four years at West Point and will now move on to other army duties. He has had one of the best coaching records in all Army football history. In this game Chris Cagle is playing his final football battle. So is John Hertz Murrel. They have been Army stars for four years. Cagle was one of the shining stars of the game in 1927 and 1928, but he has had a rougher road to follow this year. He is now out to give all that he has to offer—if the Notre Dame defense will let him get a foot of leeway. So far Cagle hasn't been able to put on the big show he sprung in 1927 and 1928. He has been extremely good, but Yale and Illinois kept him pretty well covered. His passing game against Illinois was something to look at—for Dr. Zuppke always has a pass defense that is hard to baffle. Any back who can show consistent stuff against Notre Dame is better than good, for Notre Dame is even stronger defensively than it is offensively, especially against any type of ball carrying game.

Nearing the End

Thanksgiving day will clean up a big part of the menu and Saturday will leave only a few post-season contests.

Two of these involve the longest trips of the year. In one, the Oregon Aggies or Oregon State travels to Miami to meet Florida. In the other, the Army moves to Palo Alto for the Stanford game. Carnegie Tech also travels on to Los Angeles to tackle Southern California. Jumping from one coast to another is now getting to be a steady football practice. Stanford came East last fall and California came East this fall. Now two eastern teams are obliging with return trips to the Pacific. All of this ought to prove something, but it probably won't until Pittsburgh has its shot.

Wichitans Enjoy Fishing Catches

Wichita Falls anglers have enjoyed the greatest run of crappie fishing during the last two days of any time within the last several years, according to reports Sunday from fishermen and from workers at the Lake Wichita pavilion.

Scores of limit catches were reported Saturday and Sunday, with the fish as a whole being as fine specimens as ever are found in this section of the country. Many reported catching the limit within an hour or two Saturday and Sunday.

Veterans at Lake Wichita said the unusual success at the lake during the last few days has been almost without precedent. Although crappie fishing in this section is usually good during the winter, seldom have the fish been found to bite as fast and as furiously as in the last two days. With the exception of opening day of the season last spring and a few days immediately following, the good catches of crappie at Lake Wichita Saturday and Sunday were the first to be shared by the general public this year.

TWO CLASSICS PROVE UPSETS

Notre Dame Loses Star Linesman

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The gridiron vanguard moved along today, minus some of its hitherto conspicuous membership, but with the positions of several of the foremost college football units more strongly fortified than ever.

Notre Dame, Purdue and Texas Christian all added impressive victories to records that show neither defeat nor tie, but California, Yale and Detroit met reverses that represented distinct shocks to the advance dope.

The two big classics of East and West resulted in sensational upsets as Stanford walloped the hitherto undefeated California Bears, 21 to 6, while Harvard's rugged forces beat Yale, 10 to 6, in a game that saw the Eli ace, Albie Booth, close his sophomore year as more of a goat than a hero.

Bears' Hopes Gone

California's last game smeared the bright championship hopes of the Bears and left the Pacific coast conference race in a scrambled condition. California had beaten Southern California, which defeated Stanford, so that the "Big Three" of the far West now stand in something approximating a triple tie. St. Mary's remains as the only unbeaten team on the Pacific coast.

At Cambridge, in sub-zero weather, Harvard closed an erratic campaign with a triumph over Yale especially satisfying because the Crimson put on its winning spurt simultaneously with the entry of the much-feared Mr. Booth. Little Albie had the unusual experience of seeing two of his boots blocked, one an attempted drop-kick, the other a punt.

Shackles on Booth

After each mishap, Harvard scored and thereafter, except for a similar "break" in Yale's favor, put the shackles on Booth and the Eli offense. In this battle of blocked kicks, Barry Wood, Harvard's star sophomore outshone his little blue rival and the Crimson exhibited two of the best defensive linesmen of the season in Ben Ticknor at center, Jim Douglas at Enr. Ticknor was the outstanding player of the game, shifting to guard after an injured arm made it difficult for him to pass.

Notre Dame swept Northwestern aside, 26 to 6, to make it eight in a row for the great Hoosier cast, which nevertheless suffered a severe blow in the loss of one of its finest linesmen, Tim Moynihan, aggressive center. Moynihan's leg was broken and Head Coach Knute Rockne, on his sick bed, will have the problem of replacement to deal with among other things in planning the drive against the Army for next Saturday in New York.

Boilermakers Celebrate

To make it a gala day for the state of Indiana, the Purdue Boilermakers celebrated their final appearance of the year by trouncing the University of Indiana, 32 to 0. Purdue thus closed its season with eight straight victories and a record that compares with those of the mightiest including Notre Dame and Pittsburgh. Undisputed Big Ten champions, the all-conquering Boilermakers have finished the greatest campaign in their history. The high-powered Purdue backfield array, led by Captain Welch, Harmeson, and Yevich, beat Indiana, Chicago and Iowa by bigger margins than any other team, scoring 18 more points against Indiana than Notre Dame was able to do early in the season.

Big Upset at Detroit

Perhaps the biggest upset yesterday was Detroit's downfall at the hands of the Oregon Aggies, 14 to 7. Since early in 1927, the Texans coached by Gus Dorais had gone through 22 games without defeat and but a single tie. They were heavy favorites to beat the far westerners, who had lost at home to four out of five Pacific Coast conference rivals.

Washington found a big trip no advantage whatever, being soundly trounced by Chicago, 26 to 6 as a climax to the most disastrous season the Huskies have ever experienced.

Texas Christian's Horned Frogs, if they felt any ill effects from the reported epidemic of "flu" in the squad, did not show it in walloping the Baylor Bears, 34 to 7. The Frogs appeared in perfect health and now dominate the Southwestern conference race, with Southern Methodist to be met next Saturday in the decisive engagement. S. M. U. trimmed Rice, 34 to 0, yesterday.

Nebraska Beats Kansas Aggies

Nebraska with a 10 to 7 victory over the Kansas Aggies, just about clinched the Big Six championship again, while Missouri was disposing of its old rival, Kansas, 7 to 0.

In the East, Fordham's rugged eleven repulsed the Bucknell Bisons 14 to 0, to maintain one of the few remaining unbeaten slates. The Maroon, however, has been tied twice. Intersectionally, it was a big day along the Atlantic seaboard, for Army's regulars beat Ohio Wesleyan, 19 to 6, Villanova downed North Carolina state, 24 to 6, Temple defeated Drake, 16 to 14, and Duquesne turned back the Haskell Indians, 7 to 6. The Navy handed West Virginia Wesleyan a broadside, 30 to 6, and Lehigh turned the tables on Lafayette, 13 to 12, for the first time in 10 years.

Florida beat South Carolina, 20 to 7, in the only Southern conference game of the day, the leaders, Tennessee and Tulane, taking a rest in preparation for Thanksgiving day tests.

Vega High School Team Drops Game to Claude 19-0

CLAUDE, Texas, Nov. 24.—The Vega High school football team motored over to Claude Friday afternoon where the Claude Mustangs poured it on them to the tune of 19 to 0 in favor of Claude. The Panhandle team will come to Claude Tuesday, Nov. 26, when they will battle with the Claude team for their Thanksgiving game, which will be their last game of the season. The Goodnight girl's basket ball team also played the Claude team yesterday leaving with a score of 6 to 2 in favor of Claude.

Frogs Will Enter Fray With Ponies Favorites to Win S. W. Championship

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 24.—Bowling over their last remaining opposition without calling upon their second wind, Texas Christian university and Southern Methodist university, undefeated aspirants to the Southwest conference title, set the stage properly yesterday for their climatic battle next Saturday at Fort Worth.

The section's two powerful elevens were not extended. Texas Christian spotted the Baylor Bears a touchdown and then thumped the Baptist, 34 to 7, in their tussle at Waco. The Mustangs, using nothing but reservers for almost three-quarters, crushed Rice, 30 to 4, before a chilled gallery here.

As a result of their fourth consecutive conference victory and their ninth triumph of the season, the Horned Frogs will go into the championship fray better than an even chance to win their first tittle. A tie would put them on top of the conference heap after six years of striving. The Mustangs must win to ascend the throne. A draw with Texas university is the only blot on the Ponies' conference escutheon, but it looms large at this stage.

Long Grid Rivalry

As a preliminary to the title bout at Fort Worth, the Texas Longhorns and Texas Aggies, whose rivalry dates back to the days when halfbacks wore beards, will hold their annual Thanksgiving day fiesta at College Station. Their battle, although having no bearing on the championship, is expected to draw 32,000 fans to the Aggies' new stadium.

Baylor and Rice will wind up the season's business on Saturday at Houston, but is scarcely will be a counter attraction to the spectacle in North Texas on that day. It has been a dismal year for both schools.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, who have come back with a run of four straight victories after being knocked out of the title picture early in the game, will close their books against the Oklahoma Aggies They play Thursday at Stillwater, and the game will count in the Porkers' conference standing.

A number of sensational runs compensated the customers for their chilly vigil at yesterday's two games. Cy Leland, Frog flash, proved to the satisfaction of any and all critics that he is one of the most poisonous ball carriers the conference has ever seen. He donated a pair of sparkling sprints to the Christian cause, returning one punt 92 yards through the bewildered Bears and skipping around end 62 yards for a second touchdown. His running and Howard Grubbs' deadly passing took the punch out of Morley Jennings' Bruins

The manner in which the Frogs humbled Baylor was remarkably similar to that in which the Mustangs had accomplished the feat on the previous Saturday. In both games the Bears broke the ice with a long march down the field to a touchdown in the second period, then folded up before their opponents' aerial assault. Inability to knock down enemy passes cost the Bears a shot at the title.

The Frogs were slightly more impressive in their triumph over Baylor than were the Mustangs. Where the Methodists depended entirely upon their overhead game for victory, the Christians displayed an ability to score with their running game when they took the notion.

SPORT Loose Ends

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

Last Saturday's onslaught between the Baylor Bears and the T. C. U. Horned Frogs was essentially a battle of individual stars. Like the gladiators in the arena of a Roman coliseum, these football stars stood out in battle before the vast crowds that thronged the Cotton Palace stadium in Waco.

To the 15,000 fans who braved the icy chill of the winds and to the multiplied thousands for hundreds of miles round about who listened in by radio, the spectacular performances of Cy Leland, Jake Wilson, Grubbs and McElreath was the salt and flavor of the whole game. The daring play and sensational exhibition of these individual performers blinded and obscured the fine play of the other good players on the teams. The battle turned into a duel between the "big guns" of Baylor and the "big guns" of T. C. U., with the honors going to the irresistable attack of the latter. Time and again after each T. C. U. touchdown, the Bears launched a counter attack but they could not dislodge the enemy from their path and had to submit, 34-7 to the more powerful team.

Cy Leland is undoubtedly the greatest player on a Southwest conference gridiron this season. From his record of performance against the best teams in the conference, we believe that he deservingly ranks with the great Al Marsters of Dartmouth, Albie Booth of Yale, Bill Banker of Tulane, and Leonard Lom of California. For he is as much the class of his conference as these other stars are of their respective conferences. And certainly everybody knows that football as she is played in the Southwest conference will compare favorably with football as she is played anywhere in the United States

In the third quarter of the game Saturday Leland took the ball from a punt on his own seven yard line and sprinted, sidestepped, skipped, stiff-armed and dashed 93 yards for a touchdown. Again he took the ball on a long 62-yard run from the line of scrimmage to cross over the Baylor goal line. His blinding speed and uncanny ability to shake off the tacklers is reminiscent of the good old days when Harold "Red" Grange, the galloping ghost of old Illini used to run rings around the greatest teams in the Big Ten conference.

There seems only one solution to the problem of stopping Leland. And that is they'll have to shoot him to stop him. But most people would hate to see homicide committed right on the gridiron. That Leland will be picked for the mythical all-conference eleven is a foregone conclusion. Only in the instance of Leland there is nothing mythical about it—it is the most natural thing in conference football. The thing that is agitating our poor powers is whether he will come under the notice of the big moguls who select the all-American. If he is not chosen for honors on the all-American, we'll be ready to throw up our hands and shout sectional prejudice or favoritism.

Cy Leland is a Northwest Texas boy, hailing from the home city of the terrible Lubbock Westerners. He got his first football training on the high school team that recently threw a wet blanket on the Wichita Falls Coyotes title hopes when they met two weeks ago and the Pack came off with a 6 to 0 defeat. Though his early football education was got on the high school team, we suspect that his great natural speed was developed by chasing the monstrous jackrabbits for which that part of the country is noted.

Three years ago Leland removed with his family from his native heath to Fort Worth, where he finished high school and entered T. C. U. His freshman year gave promise of a bright future but in his first year on the varsity he was just another T. C. U. backfield man. And it was not until the middle of the season this year that he began to flash his true greatness. Once he got started there was no holding him back and after the first two or three games his prestige has mounted like the well known locomotion of a kangaroo until now he occupies the dizziest pinnacle of fame and publicity in all the Southwest.

COYOTES PREP FOR AMARILLO

Special Train May Carry Fans to Game

The Wichita Falls Coyote will put in a heap big practice session out at the Junior college field Monday afternoon in preparation for their coming struggle with the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm at Butler on Thanksgiving day. This will be the last hard training session before going into the game with the Sandies and in all probability Coach Barry Holton will have his charges scrimmaging, either with the Baggett Indians or with the second stringers. A big gallery is expected to be on hand to give the Pack the final once over before they depart Tuesday for the Panhandle city.

The Pack has been training most strenuously ever since the day after they were defeated by the Lubbock Westerners, nearly two weeks ago. The team put up a hard defensive game against the Westerners but could never get started on their offense. Coach Holton has gone over the whole thing with the eleven and tried to strengthen his machine for the mighty contest that is sure to result when the Pack meets its traditional enemy of the gridiron at Butler field.

Strengthening Offense

No new plays have been added to the repertoire, for the coach feels that enough of these already have been taken in and that his team must perfect what plays they already possess. The running attack and the passing game has come in for a world of practice since the game at Lubbock and the wise boys who follow the team's progress believe that the Coyotes will flash a much better offense against the Sandies then they did against the Westerners—if for no other reason than that they are playing Amarillo. The Pack has always played its best against Amarillo. Even after a mediocre season with other teams, the Pack has memorably risen to great heights of power and courage in the annual game with the Sandies. They actually play better than they know how in this game.

With all this in mind and the fact that his charges put up a not unfavorable showing against the powerful Lubbock Westerners, Coach Holton is venturing the prediction that a great battle will ensue when the Pack tangles with the Sandies.

Special Train May Run

Plans are rapidly going ahead in preparation for the operating of a special train from Wichita Falls to the scene of the big game on Thanksgiving day. The Junior chamber of commerce is sponsoring the project and expect a record breaking crowd to follow the team. To be successful, however, the project must have the assurance of at least 200 subscriptions before the officials will make up the train. The rates will be $4.45 for the round trip. This is considered exceedingly low for the distance of the trip. Tickets may be had from the offices of Huff Insurance and from the offices of the Junior chamber of commerce. Officials are urging that all contemplating on making the trip to call in and make their reservations on the Amarillo special as soon as possible in order that they may clear away the details of arrangements, etc.

George Cummings Wins Invitation Golf Tournament

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 24. (AP)—Playing under adverse weather and course conditions, George Cummings, youthful Corpus Christi golfer, stayed close to par today to defeat Claude Cunningham of Houston five up and four to go in the 36-hole finals of the city's invitational amateur meet.

The match was playing in a driving wind and cold rain which fell throughout the day.

Reagan Juniors Getting Set for Feud Game With Zundy Grid Team

Believing that experience together with practice on fundamentals and weaknesses found in each game is the proper method to form a winning machine, Coach A. D. Beck is giving his Reagan Junior high warriors a stiff workout each day in order that his boys will be ready for the Zundy game here next week. Coach Beck considers experience and practice the main factors of the outcome of the intercity championship series.

Using dummy scrimmage for the purpose of getting his proteges familiar with someone in front of them the Reagan mentor is rapidly shaping his quad and predicts that his machine will win over the Zundy eleven. Although the Reagan warriors are confident of victory next Tuesday, they are not over confident and are settling down to some real labor.

Eight Games Played

With eight games, all hard ones, under their belts, the Reagan aggregation has gained experience under their Coach Bech's careful tutelage from each contest. The eight teams played by Reagan include Seymour Roadsters, Burkburnett, Bowie, Fairview, Denton (two games), Lawton and Coyote Junior team. All of these games furnished tough opposition for the future high school stars, and Coach Beck believes that his team has profited enough from these games to win the city championship.

Heftiness and Speed

Both the ball toting department and forward wall of the Red and White are well furnished with heft and speed. The backs are especially fleet and heavy. Captain Jack Cossey, leader of the Reagan eleven, is the outstanding back and the Reagan mentor has formed his ball toting around this versatile young man. Cleo Creecy holds down the right half position while Berry and Williams form the rest of the mail carriers. Creecy is especially good on end runs, often speeding around the wings for long gains. The Decker brothers, Bob and Cecil, along with Joe Deal at guard form the bulwark of the defense of the front line. The two brothers hold down the tackle positions and the opposing ball luggers run into a stone wall at these places. J. Z. Powell, pivot man, drops back to safety position on the defense and looms as a punt returner.

Dig Pep Squad

The pep squad for the Red and White has grown to enormous proportions, nearly half the girls in the school wearing the uniform of the Reagan pep squad girl. Mr. Parnell is sponsor and teacher of the pep squad and has formed a pep squad that will be hard to equal by a Junior high anywhere in Texas. Enthusiasm is running high in the Reagan halls and the entire student body is expected to be on hand when the two Junior highs square off at Spudder park on Nov. 26.

The Reagan eleven will be in the best condition of the year, says Coach Beck, and predicts that the Reagan lads will trumph over the Red and Gray after a hard battle. Comparing scores, the Reagan machine seems to have a slight advantage, but one can predict nothing from scores this year.

Bowlers Win Prize Turkeys in 'Shoot' On Friday Night

The handicap "turkey shoot" which took place at the Spudder bowling alleys on Friday and Saturday nights proved to be of much pleasure and entertainment to the bowlers of the City league and the Commercial league. Not only did the excitement run high on the well-played bowling but there was the additional stimulus of four big, fat turkey gobblers in the offing.

Three of the turkeys were won by men and one by the women bowlers. Smith of Montgomery company was high man with 235 plus a 11-point handicap. Coulter of Ferguson Ice Cream company was the next high man with a total of 259 points plus a four-point handicap. McGregory was the third man to win a prize turkey and he had a total of 258 points. Mrs. Stanley was the woman bowler who won a turkey. She rolled high with a total of 210 points to get her turkey. Close behind her in the bowling for women was Mrs. Homer Donohoo with 209 points and Mrs. Dr. Pritchard with a 195 score.

BAND PLANNED

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 24.—The Hollis High school is making preparations to have a "high school band," according to Gene Robertson, band and orchestra leader.

BOXING BOUTS ON THIS WEEK

Tuffy Griffins Fights in Chicago

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. (AP)—Chicago, New York, Los Angeles and Detroit furnish the high spots in the national boxing schedule this week.

Heading the list is the Chicago stadium show Friday night with Tuffy Griffith, Sioux City puncher, battling Paulino Uzcudun, the battling Basque heavyweight, in the 10-round feature. Paulino will be making his first appearance since his defeat by Max Schmeling, and the Basque may find Griffith just as tough.

At the Chicago coliseum Tuesday night, Jack Dempsey has matched George Hoffman, New York heavy, with Les Marriner, the former Illinois athlete, in a 10-rounder. Another Chicago attraction tomorrow night, finds Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, battling Babe Peleco, Newark, N. J., in the 10-round final bout at White City for Promoter Jim Mullin.

At Detroit Friday, Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., light heavyweight will face Charlie Belanger, Canadian 175-pound champion, in a 10-rounder.

Morgan vs. Eddie Mack

Los Angeles' big feature of the week will bring together Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, and Eddie Mack, Denver, in a 10-round non-titular go on Tuesday.

Madison Square garden's offering here on Friday night will bring together Al. Singer, junior lightweight, and Pete Nebo, heavy punching Seminole Indian from Key West, in the windup of 10 rounds. Johnny Farr, Cleveland lightweight, will tackle Sammy Fuller of Boston in the 10-round semi-final. Kid Chocolate, preparing for important engagement later in the season, will take on another foe of minor strength, Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus, at the St. Nicholas arena here tomorrow night.

The regular Monday night show at Philadelphia's arena should afford the customers with plenty of excitement. Three 10-rounders are on tap. Johnny Jadick, Philadelphia lightweight, meets King Tut of Minneapolis; Honeyboy Finnegan, Boston lightweight, faces Henri Dewancker, France; and Pablo Blanco, Cuba, battles Vidal Gregorio, Spanish bantamweight.

Oil is found in backyards of many homes in San Antonio, Texas.

"I certify Cremo sanitary and clean." Alfred W. McCann

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made... dark, stuffy factories... warm, dingy shops and windows... where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and where the ends of the cigars are spit on!

What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

Price alone doesn't make a cigar safe for your mouth. At any price there can be no tastier cigar than Certified Cremo... and, in addition, it's clean.

Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by United States Government approved methods. A suggestion, deliberately made with confidence to smokers of imported cigars: Try a Certified Cremo—made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, all ripe and mellow. Each leaf goes through a slow, expensive maturing process that develops the fullest flavor and mildness. You never realized how good Certified Cremo is—don't let its 5-cent price stand in your way. Your physician will recommend a mild cigar in place of heavy, expensive brands. There isn't a bit of scrap in Certified Cremo... not a trace of floor sweepings. All long filler... all fresh, tender leaves... and topped off with the finest imported wrapper! Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

SUPER RACE TO ESCAPE NOISE

Ideal Colony in Africa Gets Under Way

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. (UP)—A race of supermen, freed from the discordant notes of modern civilization and developing their intellects by being themselves, is planned by Ernest W. Shaw when his African colony gets under way in the next few months.

Since he announced, a few days ago, his plans for the colony—50 men and women who are few up with civilization—Shaw has been inundated with applications from people who feel the same way about things he does, he told the United Press today.

No Cranks Wanted

"It looks like I have struck a popular note, he said.

"My applicants are men and women, married and single, writers, artists and people in all walks of life—but all actuated by the central thought that the mad pace of civilized life today is too much for them.

"I have selected the best-sounding letters as a start, and will reply to them. We don't want any cranks or triflers. We who will make up the colony are just fed up.

"There will be complete freedom. Those who don't like prohibition will be able to do as the natives do—just tap a palm tree, as one does a maple for syrup. And let the sap ferment itself into masanga, or palm wine. Tobacco grows wild. There's game in the bush, and the rivers are filled with fish. Anybody who wants clothes can make his own. We will build our own huts of bamboo, leaves and clay; make our own furniture and weave our own mats.

All Noises Barred

"Our only taboos will be the awful noise-making instruments of the world. There will be no alarm clocks, no radios, no saxophones, no motor horns, no milk cans, no riveters. If a man wants a quiet little clock—with no chimes—he can have it. But for most of us the knowledge will be sufficient that dawn in that country comes at 6 a. m. and dark at 6 p. m., and that the sun is right overhead at noon.

"We will have a good time, and we may contribute to scientific knowledge. We ought to be free from disease and particularly from insanity; every man and woman will have to have a perfect health record."

Shaw conceived the idea after working at Bloomingdale hospital during the day—it specializes in mental cases—and in just looking at ordinary New Yorkers at other times.

Hollis Churches Plan Thanksgiving Service

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 24.—All churches in Hollis will unite in a union service at the Methodist church Thanksgiving day, from 10 to 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

The Women's Forum will sponsor this service. This is the second year that the forum has had charge of the program and they plan to make it an annual event.

The program for the service has been arranged as follows:

Congregational singing, led by Ralph Yowell.

Invocation, by Rev. J. F. Graham, pastor of the Methodist church.

Scripture reading by Rev. C. O. Davis, pastor of the Christian church.

Sermon, Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Male quartet.

Vocal solo, Mrs. Rex Keys, accompanied by Mrs. Herman Hollis.

Piano solo, Miss Irma Younger.

Benediction, by Rev. F. B. Boyett, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

QUANAH C. OF C. OUTLINES WORK

Members Hear of Progress And Duties at Banquet

Special to The Record News

QUANAH, Texas, Nov. 24.—With many persons standing throughout the program because they were unable to be seated at the tables due to lack of space, the annual membership banquet of the Quanah Chamber of Commerce witnessed a record crowd for any similar event ever held here, Friday evening, Nov. 22, in the large basement of the Methodist church. Over 400 members and guests listened to a program brimful of sparkling wit, sound business suggestions, and needs of Quanah outlined by speakers and enthusiastically received by the listeners.

Harold Hough, Fort Worth, "Hired Hand" of radio fame, acted as toastmaster, and Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls was the principal speaker.

R. E. Shepherd of Wichita Falls, who was to have had charge of the singsong, was unable to attend because of illness. Elvin Watkins of Quanah substituted for him.

President George Simmons outlined briefly the accomplishments of the chamber during the past year, these being chiefly the showing made in the hearing before the interstate commerce commission on railroad extension matters, decision on which will probably be handed down within a short time; completion of paving on highway No. 5 east and west across the county; all grading and drainage structure contracts for paving of highway No. 51 north and south across the county, and the topping contracts soon to be let by the highway commission, giving Quanah and the county paved highways in the four directions; membership campaign and budget campaign which has enabled the chamber to enter the coming year with no outstanding obligations, and operate strictly on a cash basis; practical assurance of a modern large hotel to be erected within the near future—this project delayed somewhat on account of the general business depression; and most outstanding efforts had been made along the lines of solving Quanah's water problem. This was declared the most vital and necessary project to be solved for the future growth and business expansion of Quanah.

In his inimitable manner, the toastmaster kept the guests always "in (not on) the air" as to what he would spring next, whether a witticism or sound business community development suggestion; and his introductions of the various numbers on the program were especially fitting.

Fire Causes Stir

A fire alarm sounding just prior to the introduction of Mr. Cline caused considerable confusion until the fire was definitely located in the White Motor company building on Mercer street, and within short time reported "out."

Mr. Cline brought a message of optimism, but sounded a sort of warning that individuals and communities would need to cooperate more closely than had ever been done in the past, to meet the great changes in business conditions, being brought about by huge mergers, consolidations and chain and group competition, which in reality may develop into no competition at all, but place the entire control of all commodities in the hands of less than a dozen men.

"Cooperation, fair play, and sportsmanship in business, are essential to the development of the individual, the firm, and to the community who would succeed and progress," said Mr. Cline. "An adequate supply of good water is essential to any community, and your water supply in Quanah must be solved before you can proceed very far on any program of development. This will cost you lots of money—increased taxes—but no good thing ever is secured for nothing, and your community will be no exception.

"Railroads, paved highways, industries of various kinds are good things to strive for and to have—you should have them here—you are entitled to them—your town has a great future as I see it—but for lasting and continuous prosperity and progress, the dairying and poultry industry form the background for a development program which will when carried out bring all these other good things to your community.

"Wichita Falls has had considerable expensive experience working on the industrial development through factories, and out of that experience we have learned some things which will help us to make fewer mistakes in the future. While we are not now neglecting the industrial development, a large part of our activities are directed toward the 'cow, the sow and the hen'."

Mr. Cline interspersed his talk with illustrations and stories which kept his audience in a happy frame of mind, at times convulsed with laughter.

"George, where's my pants?" was the astonishing question hurled at George Simmons Jr. by "Miss" Jimmie Robinson, the young "lady" whom, the toastmaster advised, was substituting for Thomas Bachus in a saxophone duet, the next number on the program. Thomas, the 12-year-old son of Mrs. Lucille Bachus, made such a pretty young "miss" that none of the audience knew the difference until the end of the encore when he snatched off his hat and demanded to know where his trousers were.

Violin solo by Mrs. R. G. Warner, music by the Quanah orchestra under the direction of E. S. Hamilton, and Mrs. George Simmons and Mrs. R. C. Willingham, accompanists, made up the musical program.

Secretary-Manager Carl S. Guin summed up briefly the work of the chamber during the past year through the nine standing and three special committees. He then listed the tasks facing the membership to keep this city progressing.

MARION COUNTY WINS

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 24. (AP)—Competing with 25 other counties in the South Texas State fair, Marion county, 300 miles north of here won first prize in agricultural exhibits. The $250 carried off here made a total of $1,750 won so far this season. Based on a possible 1,000 points, the exhibit rated 918.3 points.

The opposition tactics of Nikolai Bucharin have brought him to open break with Josef Stalin, Soviet Russia's strong man and secretary-general of the all-powerful Communist party.

SAYRE TURKEY POOL SUCCESS

5,000 Birds Now Ready For Auction

Special to The Record News

SAYRE, Okla., Nov. 24.—Over 5,000 turkeys have been listed for the turkey pool being formed under the auspices of the Sayre Chamber of Commerce to be sold to the highest bidder on Dec. 4, and indications are that the number will reach between 6,000 and 10,000 birds before listing is closed. The response to the suggestion that they be pooled has been much greater than was anticipated and the interest is growing in every direction. Instead of being a Beckham county pool it has already spread far beyond the borders of the county in every direction and now includes listings from five counties in Oklahoma and one in the Texas Panhandle. It has been suggested that the "Western Oklahoma turkey pool" would have been a more appropriate name than the Beckham county pool.

The secretary-manager of the Sayre Chamber of Commerce who initiated and is handling the arrangements for the pool is to be assisted by a committee composed of three business men and several turkey growers in receiving bids and handling the thousands of turkeys that will be delivered on the day of the sale.

23 Study Club Holds Meeting at Iowa Park

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Texas, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Ritchey Abernathy was hostess to the 23 Study club at her home Thursday afternoon. The subject of the program was "Texas," and was ably handled by Mrs. F. P. Stryker, who related "Texas Legends;" Mrs. Carroll Hester, who told of the cowboy period in both song and story; and Mrs. Paul Powell, who rendered several native songs and accompanied each by its history. Mrs. George A. Weems gave a report of her visit to the state meeting of federated clubs at Mineral Wells. Refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames B. L. Turner, R. C. Acuff, S. L. Denney, Troy Hager, Carroll Hester, Paul Powell, F. P. Stryker, Paul E. Martin, M. L. Hines, Reeves Overbey, C. L. Moody, Noel Troutman, George A. Weems, and the hostess, Mrs. Ritchey Abernathy.

ROAD MEET AT LUBBOCK TODAY

Carlsbad Cavern Association to Open Session

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 24.—Final preparations were made for entertaining the first annual meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association which meets here Monday, when the highway committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce met last week.

The delegates will register at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning and the morning meeting will be called into session at 10 o'clock.

Luncheon at Noon

The out of town visitors will be guests of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at noon.

Members of the highway committee urged that as many local people as possible attend the meeting.

Tom A. White, a director of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association, met with the committee. Members of the highway committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce follow: R. J. Murray, chairman; Richard Douglas, H. J. Hankins, Ray Grisham and Jack Parsons. Hankins is vice president of the association that meets here Monday.

Word from towns up and down the line indicates that a good delegation will meet here. On account of the fact that Lubbock is almost in the exact center of the 775-mile highway link, the largest attendance that the association has yet experienced is expected. A motorcade will start out of Oklahoma City early Sunday morning which will gain momentum as each town is reached. This motorcade will continue on over the highway as far as Carlsbad Tuesday where they will see the Carlsbad caverns. It is expected that a number of Lubbock people will join the party that makes the trip on to the caves.

Letters of invitation have been sent out to several hundred newspapers, officials of the highway association, state highway commissioners in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico and others by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and from City Commissioner J. H. Hankins in an effort to get the largest attendance the association has ever had.

To Elect Officers

The first annual election of officers and other business of this kind will be looked after at this session. Carl Guin, secretary of the Quanah Chamber of Commerce, who had much to do with the organization of the highway association, is the present president and is expected to be here Monday to preside.

R. A. Singletary, manager of the good roads division of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, and Victory L. Minter, secretary of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce, are members of the program committee that have worked up the program for the meeting Monday.

KIDS STAR IN VODVIL BILL

Joe and Scooter Good—Critic Forgets Other Acts

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Visual proof of the fact that motion picture cameras reproduce them just as they really appear in the flesh comprised the premier attraction on the current Interstate vaudeville bill at the Majestic theater Sunday when Joe Cobb and Scooter Lowry of the Hal Roach "Our Gang" group brought their rotund person and tough-guy faces, respectively speaking, before the audience under the tutelage of Harry Weber.

The face brought into play by the redoubtable Scooter Lowry may be properly referred to the plural, for an extensive repertoire of facial contortions designed to quell the spirit even of Mickey McGuire go with a labored roughhouse vernacular and clever dancing to comprise the youthful comedian's act. "Fat Boy" Joe Cobb, not so aged as some have suspected in view of his long service in the Roach comedies, is very much at home before the footlights, and uses a highly audible speaking voice to good advantage. Preceded by several shots of their favorite screen roles of recent years, the two "Our Gang" stars are acceptably humorous in the few moments they spend on the stage.

Just about all the cycling tricks that have been enacted with bicycles in toto and in various stages of dissection and a few new thrills added, are introduced in the opening bill by St. Claire Sisters and O'Day. Substituting a bicycle for the broad-backed horse used in the circus ring, running mounts, riding hand-stands, and other circus features are successfully transferred to the stage.

Al and Fanny Stedman contribute the lightest part of the entertainment, with 12 minutes of meaningless patter and snatches of song around the piano. Occasional flashes of burlesque impersonations suggested the possibilities of increasing the use of that element in the act.

Now, where's that program? There must have been two other numbers on the bill. Here they are: "Henry J. Kelly in a laugh feast called 'Chilli-con-carne'," and "Five Synco-Pets in a Romance of Song." If we could only remember.

Ann Harding in "Her Private Affair," a talking-film attraction, and Movietone news completes the entertainment.

Plainview Farmer Hardly Had Well Day in Four Years

Wants Everybody to Know the Good Orgatone Has Done Him. Gains Daily

"I was determined to try Orgatone after hearing and reading about the good results it was accomplishing so I bought a bottle and began taking it and the results are, I have gained in health and feel better than I have in four years." This is what C. J. Spraggen residing on Rural Route 2, Plainview, Texas, said.

"I have suffered from indigestion and stomach trouble until it just seemed as if nothing was ever going to help me at all. In fact, I hardly knew what it was to have a well day in four years until Orgatone straightened me out. I had gotten to where I couldn't eat anything without suffering from it. After every meal gas would form and bother me for hours afterwards and cause me all sorts of trouble.

"I was in a very bad run down condition and had practically no appetite at all and what I did eat would sometimes turn as sour as vinegar on my stomach. No one but those who are troubled with indigestion knows how I did suffer, and although I had tried every thing I knew of nothing seemed to reach my case or do me any good.

"I kept on going down hill and the day I started on Orgatone I was suffering from the same old troubles. I started to feel better in a few days after I began taking Orgatone and have gradually picked up ever since. I now feel like my old self again and have not only gained in strength but can eat anything I want and as much as I want without it bothering me in the least. My constipation is broken up. I sleep like a dog and simply feel like a different man."

Lovers of music from the genius of classic and modern composers will find Monday's program from station WLW, Cincinnati, inclusive of an unusual number of such features. At 10 a. m. Monday the Orpheus Instrumental trio will present a 30-minute entertainment which will include Rubinstein, Saint-Saens, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Grieg, Massenet and Boisdeffre. A noonday organ program, given by Pat Gillick, will feature Ketelbey highly impressionistic "In a Chinese Temple Garden," and a "Chinese Wedding Procession," by Hosmer.

The Matinee players, presenting 35 minutes of entertainment beginning at 3:10 p. m., will include a Strauss waltz and Chaminade's "The Flatterer." Wagner, Tschaikowsky, Mascagni, Debussy and Cadman are among the composers whose works make up the 5 o'clock program to be given by the Tea Time trio and Bromley House, baritone. For those who take advantage of the clear air available after midnight, the Cino Singers will present a program of favorites at 12:30 a. m. (Tuesday), including operatic, concert, and semi-popular numbers.

DANIEL BACKS WHALE STORY

Bible Teacher Tells of Jonah's Trials

Declaration of faith in the ability of God to fashion the events narrated in the book of Jonah, and in the efficacy of the lesson it taught the fleeing Jew, featured the address of Roy J. Daniel before members of the Kay Bible class at the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

Daniel

"I care not what others may believe," declared Mr. Daniel, "I believe the story of Jonah—all of it—even that portion of it that tells about Jonah and the big fish. And the story reminds us that no man can successfuly flee from the voice of God."

Reviewing the biblical history of Jonah's activities, Mr. Daniel said that Jonah's great hatred of the people of Nineveh destroyed his proportion of values.

"Nineveh, an Assyrian city, contained more than a million inhabitants. The stench of the sins of Nineveh reached throughout the known world and to the throne of God. Being commissioned to preach repentance, Jonah, a Jew, traditional enemy of the Assyrians, attempted to run away. The results of his effort adequately prove the futility of trying to ignore divine edicts," the speaker said.

Judge Suspends His Own Fine But Retracts Decision

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 24.—Corporation Court Judge A. A. Browne isn't a man who believes in being severe with others yet lenient with himself. Illustration:

Judge Browne, dreaming, walked across the street against a red traffic light. Officer Tim O'Leary remonstrated. "Well, you certainly got me that time," Judge Browne admitted, continuing his walk toward the court.

There the judge reached for the docket, took a pen and wrote: "A. A. Browne fined $2 for walking against a red light. Fine suspended."

A jokesmith remarked: "Why, you can't try yourself—that's illegal."

"By George that's right," Judge Browne replied. He grabbed the pen a second time, removed the blot from his record by writing across the court docket: "Illegal."

Rabbit Breeders To Discuss Show Plans

Members of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders association of Texas will hold their regular biweekly meeting in the basement of the courthouse on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, at 7:30 o'clock, according to W. L. Smith, corresponding secretary.

Of primary interest to members of the association will be the discussion of plans for the annual show to be held Jan. 16, 17 and 18, according to Mr. Smith. Reports of the advertising and premium committees for that event will be heard Tuesday night.

Membership in the breeders' association and attendance at its meetings are increasing, Mr. Smith stated.

Fundamentalist-Modernist Disputes "Waste of Time," Says Bible Teacher

Story of Jonah and Whale Teaches Lesson Regardless of Beliefs, Says Judge Martin

"To espouse the cause of either fundamentalist or modernist or to repeat their arguments in the case of Jonah and the whale is to my mind a waste of valuable time," declared Judge P. A. Martin, teacher of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church, in his discussion of the book of Jonah.

The lesson of Jonah is one of the earliest lessons in international and inter-racial brotherhood, the speaker said.

"There is a lesson in it for us," he continued, "and that is to recognize that disaster in some form follows disobedience as night follows day. The word of the Lord has come distinctly to the Christian people of America to cry out against prevalent evils. The only remedy is that applied to Nineveh: a mighty repentence and turning to God. Do we trust in God, or more solely upon the dollars on which we inscribe that profession of trust?"

The address of Judge Martin follows:

"The Bible book of Jonah has provoked more discussion among the learned and the would-be learned Bibel students than any other four short chapters in the book. It has been and still is, a fruitful subject for discussion among the people who call themselves 'fundamentalists and modernists' those who adhere to the literal verbal view and those who adhere to the view that the book is a parable written to teach a great lesson, like the parable of the talents, of the ninety and nine and of the prodigal son; a masterpiece of Hebrew imagery.

Waste of Time

"A great deal of very valuable time has been wasted trying to prove that there are no fish in the Mediterranean sea that can swallow a man and that no man could live three days and nights inside a fish even if the fish could swallow him. The literalist on the other hand has the ready answer that the record states that God 'prepared the great fish' and that he was evidently a specially constructed fish, built to order, as it were, for the express purpose of accommodating the prophet for the time necessary to teach him to obey God. From the standpoint of each debater, their respective arguments are, as is usually the case, unanswerable. But to espouse the cause of repeat the arguments of either would be, in my humble judgment, a waste of valuable time.

"The Assyrian was the arch-enemy of the Jew. Ever since Joshua led his host of ex-slaves into Canaan the Assyrian hordes and their forefathers had raided the Holy Land, burned their cities, butchered their women and children or carried them off captive to Nineveh. Finally they had completely wrecked the northern kingdom and had swallowed up forever the very identity of the 10 tribes that composed it, and they are lost to this day, as a result of Assyrian warfare. In the day of its greatness, the Assyrian empire was without mercy and in all the history of the world no nation had greater reason to hate another nation than the Israelite had to hate the Assyrian.

"So, when the word of the Lord came to Jonah to go over to the great capital Nineveh and cry against it on account of its sins, every instinct of the prophet's narrow soul revolted and he turned the other way and set sail for a distant port. He ran into a bitter experience, as we all know and bitterly repented his act of disobedience and when the voice of the Lord came to him again, he hastened to the great city and for a whole day's journey his voice echoed up and down the city streets with its awful note of warning 'yet 40 days and Nineveh shall be destroyed.' And deep down in his heart he wanted to witness the destruction he prophesied. But lo his utter astonishment and disgust the people of Nineveh repented in sack-cloth; the Assyrian king proclaimed a fast; and God, ever ready to forgive, repented him of the evil intended and saved the city. Then Jonah pouted and sulked under his gourd vine, till a worm killed it, and then he had a violent case of sun stroke and wanted to die and claimed that the Lord had ruined his reputation as a prophet as well as perpetuating a race of detestable people.

"The lesson of Jonah is a lesson of international and inter-racial brotherhood, given to teach the Jews that it was their duty to preach Jehovah to even their worst enemies and that the great Father God would forgive and save those of any nation who called upon him and earnestly and honestly repented of the evil they had done. How little they appreciated the lesson, we learned last Sunday when we found that after three years close association with the Christ it required two miracles to teach the Apostle Peter that 'God is no respector of persons.' Race prejudice was too strong to be influenced by the missionary lesson of Jonah even though the story of 'Jonah and the whale' and the repentance and salvation of Nineveh were household legends in all Jewish families long before the time of Christ.

"The same lesson comes down to us as adopted sons of the covenant and in addition to its lesson of human brotherhood, I think there is another important lesson in it for each of us and that is that disaster, in some form follows disobedience, as the night follows the day. The word of the Lord has distinctly come to the Christian people of America to cry against the evils of our Ninevehs of crime and greed and ignorance and vice. Gigantic wealth looks into the haggard face of hunger. Guilt holds out its tempting hands to the innocent. Our people are money mad. Easy money mad. Witness the recent wild speculation in our financial capital where billions of dollars were lost in a day, lost forever by people who cannot afford to lose. Witness the robberies, the murders the burglaries. Easy money madness. Every Christian knows that, the only remedy is the remedy of old Nineveh —a mighty repentance and a mighty turning to God. Are we, like the old prophet, turning the other way and running away from the plain road to duty? Is American Christianity the Jonah on the bid ship of state sound asleep and waiting for our enraged fellow voyagers to throw us overboard?

"Emblazoned upon the face of our coined dollars are the words: 'In God We Trust.' Is it the truth or is it a hypocritical and blasphemous lie? Do we in fact trust in God or in the dollar?"

A STORY ABOUT TWO RUGS

Two neighbors had rugs they wished to sell. One of them used the Classified Ads of this newspaper and found a buyer in short order.

The best part of the story, however, is that this will not deter the other from advertising HER rug in the Classified Ads, too. Every prospective buyer who was disappointed in the first instance will be reading the offer of the second and answering without delay.

And the other rug CAN be SOLD also.

These ads will sell for you!
