Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith, left, confers with police patrolman Joey Heinemann, right, near the scene of a grass fire Friday on the Andrews Highway near Holiday Hill Road.

Sheriff says range fires most likely no accident

By JIM STEINBERG

Sheriff Dallas Smith said Friday afternoon he believes a series of grass fires occurring both Thursday and Friday in "all probability" were set.

Smith's statement followed three more grass fires doused by firemen Friday afternoon and evidence that at least one of them had been set.

An 18-year-old man and a 16-year-old juvenile were detained by city police after the pickup they were traveling in was seen in the vicinity of the third fire at the north end of Midland Drive shortly before 2 p.m., Smith said.

"They were about the only vehicle in sight at the time smoke was seen in the area. And they had been seen coming out of the area where the smoke was," Smith said.

The youths were turned over to the sheriff's office for questioning.

"We found long kitchen matches in the cab of the truck similar to ones found at the scene of the fire. The boys had sleeping bags and said they had been camping," Smith said.

No charges have been filed. Laboratory tests to compare matches found at the scene with those found in the truck are being conducted, Smith said.

Describing the scene of Thursday's fire which covered a two-mile stretch from FM 1788 to Holiday Hill Road as a narrow strip 50 yards wide, Smith said he believed it had been set.

"Why all these fires all of a sudden? There was no problem like this Wednesday and that was a much more windy day. The only logical explanation is that someone is setting them," he said.

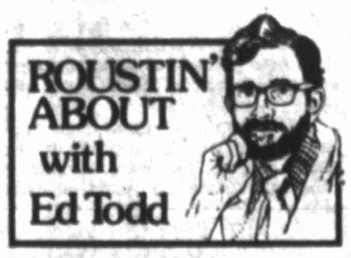

Patrols throughout the county will be increased to prevent still more fires from being set, Smith said.

The three fires Friday which Smith said were probably set occurred between 1 and 2 p.m. The first occurred one mile south of Cole Park, the second was one mile west of Holiday Hill Road on the Andrews Highway and the third was at the north end of Midland Drive.

Late Friday morning fireman used 350 gallons of water to extinguish a grass fire adjacent to Henderson Elementary School, 4800 Graceland Drive. The cause of that fire was unknown.

The Henderson school, along with Anson Jones Elementary School, 4919 Shadylane Drive, were evacuated for about 45 minutes Thursday as a grass fire approximately two miles wide entered the city's west side.

Hey, good buddy squelch the talk

"Hey, out there, good buddy," blares the peaked-up voice over Channel 9.

"This here's Bulldog Bart, and I'm all spruced up for a night on the town . . . colored red . . . know what I mean?

"I've done got my pretty-boy self in one helluva jam.

"Come to my rescue, you CB'ing dudes, 'cause I'm cracked up 10-50-like. Done gone and smashed up my shiny wheels, for real."

Bug off, for real, juicy Bulldog Bart. Your lingo is old hat on these wavelengths.

For sure, Robert Dadzitis would say, and does, in so many words.

The citizens' band Channel 9 is, at long last, strictly for straightforward emergency talk.

Distressed motorists should bypass that fancy, lighthearted talk on Channel 9. On the remaining 42 channels, the CB'ers can carry on their freewheeling spouts, cryptic talk, jawing and yakking.

It's a free country, you know.

And CB'ers like Dadzitis want to help keep this land a safe and responsive one by monitoring Channel 9.

It's the assistance-and-emergency channel monitored by the independent CB group called REACT—Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Teams.

Only an outlaw would dare key-in on Channel 9 and utter gibberish into the mike. The Federal Communication Commission (FCC) would react harshly to such misuse of the people's airwaves.

Dadzitis, a drummer by profession and a Latvian by birth, is team leader of the Midland REACT'ers.

The REACT'ers, at their convenience, voluntarily listen for distress calls over Channel 9.

Those keying-in on the emergency channel are supposed to "eliminate all the jargon and 10-codes and just talk plain English," Dadzitis said.

The distressed motorist would use the word "wreck" or "accident" in describing his plight, rather than the code 10-50. The code for an emergency is 10-33. Specifics follow.

Nothing fancy or playful, please.

"They can talk '10-4, good buddy,'

Carrier cruises off coast as Amin action watched

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise cruised off East Africa on Friday as U.S. military officials kept watch on the situation in Uganda where President Idi Amin has ordered all Americans detained until Monday.

Pentagon officials said no orders had been issued for any military moves. But it was believed that staff officers were considering various possible options in case U.S. citizens in Uganda require rescue.

Amin ordered the some 240 Americans in Uganda not to leave the country and to meet with him Monday. He said President Carter should consider U.S. human rights issues before commenting on Ugandan affairs.

Carter earlier this week said the Ugandan government's handling of human rights had "disgusted the entire civilized world."

A Ugandan government spokesman said there was no reason for Americans to be alarmed over Amin's actions and that they would be free to leave after the Monday meeting.

Radio Kampala on Friday broadcast a message saying the meeting with Americans in Uganda is for Amin to "thank all Americans for the excellent work they have been doing in Uganda ...."

The broadcast said that Americans who want Ugandan citizenship will have it granted as well as those who want their work permits extended.

Meanwhile, there were indications the Carter administration intends to be very cautious about making even purely precautionary military moves because Amin's possible reaction is unpredictable.

Sources said the diplomatic avenue is being counted on to assure the safety of the Americans in Uganda.

State Department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown said that Assistant Secretary of State for African affairs William E. Schaufele summoned a Ugandan diplomat to the department Friday to express strong concern about Amin's order.

Brown said there are about 240 American missionaries and their dependents living in Uganda. He said he believes most of the missionaries are Protestants.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell declined to comment Friday when asked if U.S. military planes were being readied for a possible evacuation of Americans from the landlocked East African country.

He said it was safe to assume the President would take "whatever steps are necessary and proper" to assure the Americans' safety.

Powell said the U.S. Navy task force operating near the east coast of Africa was on "routine, publicly announced maneuvers."

He said the force, consisting of the Enterprise, cruisers Truxton and Long Beach and the submarine Tautog, left Mombasa, Kenya, on Monday, long before Amin's action.

However, both the Pentagon and the U.S. embassy in Nairobi said the ships had departed Wednesday.

Powell called a special news briefing to deny rumors that 5,000 Marines were poised to invade Uganda. He said the task force has fewer than 200 Marines aboard.

When Amin detained a hijacked plane last July, Israeli commandos pulled off a daring rescue raid at Uganda's Entebbe airport.

The United States is "doing everything it can" to assure the safety of the Americans in Uganda, Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said.

Clark, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, said the U.S. government "is working quietly" through West German diplomats to make certain no harm comes to the Americans.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., told newsmen that it is incumbent on members of Congress, especially Republicans, "to give the President wide discretion in how to handle this difficult and delicate problem."

At the same time, the White House made available a United Nations statement which said U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim had discussed the Ugandan situation when he met with Carter earlier in the day.

The U.N. statement added:

"The President described the current situation, but there was no detailed discussion of the conditions and situation of U.S. citizens in Uganda. The secretary-general did indicate that if circumstances warranted and he could be helpful, then he would be willing to do his utmost."

U.S. expresses strong concern, plans for crisis

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States expressed the "strongest concern" Friday over the safety of Americans in Uganda after erratic President Idi Amin Dada claimed that the United States planned to invade his country.

Amin's instructions to Americans to appear before him on Monday with lists of their property caused the Carter Administration to begin crisis-style planning. Officials were unsure if they actually had a crisis on their hands, but said Amin's "total unpredictability" made precautions necessary.

President Carter on Wednesday said that Uganda's actions "have disgusted the entire civilized world," and he deplored "the horrible murders that apparently are taking place in that country."

Amin's initial response was the instructions to Americans in Uganda to assemble on Monday, with lists of their property. Those who wanted to remain in Uganda could do so, the order said, but "any American working for Zionist Israel propaganda against Uganda will take (sic) consequences." Security forces were instructed to prevent any American from leaving Uganda before Monday.

That message, just before 6 a.m. (EST), set off an alarm in Washington. A task force of diplomatic, military and intelligence officers was assembled at the State Department to consider means of insuring the safety of the Americans.

Official estimates list 200 to 240 Americans in Uganda, although some sources put the figure as low as 150, mostly Protestant and Catholic missionaries. Information has been limited since the closure of the U.S. Embassy in Uganda in November 1973, because of threats and harassment of Americans, who were advised to leave the country at that time.

At the end of a day of confusing sequence in which Ugandan spokesmen claimed "the Americans misinterpreted" what was happening, the mood of incipient crisis diminished in Washington.

A spokesman in Uganda, quoted by Uganda Radio, said Amin only wanted to "to thank all Americans for the excellent work they have been doing in Uganda since the closure of the American Embassy in Uganda in 1973 during the Arab-Israeli war."

White House press secretary Jody Powell read the text of that broadcast to reporters and then said, "We consider this broadcast helpful in allaying concern."

Administration sources said they believed Amin decided, at least for the present, "to cool it" after arousing alarm earlier in the day with his message to Americans in Uganda, and a rambling, 5,000-word accusatory telegram to President Carter. In the telegram, Amin charged that Carter was being given false information in a "dirty campaign against Uganda" by "the United States, Britain and Israel," stimulated by "pressure from the Zionists."

Tension built up in Washington throughout the day, starting with a White House announcement that "we are reviewing the situation with concern and monitoring it closely," with information relayed through the West German government which represents U.S. diplomatic interests in Uganda.

President Carter conferred with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young. Carter also discussed the Ugandan problem with visiting U.N. Secretary Generla Kurt Waldheim, who said later that he told the President "that if he considered it useful and helpful I would be ready"

Siege ends, pair freed in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — An unemployed construction worker released a pregnant teenager and her 18-month-old son Friday after holding them hostage for more than 12 hours. Police said the gunman had killed a man and threatened to shoot his hostages.

Leroy Cotton, 30, tossed his rifle from the apartment that was the scene of the siege, released his hostages and surrendered quietly, police said. He was led from the building in handcuffs.

"They're both safe," Mayor Lee Alexander said of the hostages. He carried the infant, swathed in a blanket, to a waiting ambulance, and

Clifford optimistic after Cyprus visit

The Manchester Guardian

NICOSIA, Cyprus — President Jimmy Carter's special envoy to Greece, Turkey and Cyprus, former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, said Friday night that he thought there was "a definite possibility" that a Cyprus settlement can be arranged this year.

Ending his 10-day mission on a decidedly optimistic note, Clifford told a news conference that there were "any number of factors" that seemed to be pointing toward a solution of the problem.

He spoke at the end of a day in which he had "very forthright" discussions with the Turkish Cypriot leader, Rauf Denktash, following his talks with Archbishop Makarios on Thursday.

He appears to have dispelled Denktash's suspicions that his mission was some kind of pro-Greek move by the Carter Administration. The Turkish Cypriot leader described the talks as "cordial and sincere."

He said he was sure Clifford's report to Carter would reflect his appreciation that the Cyprus problem went further back than July 1974 — when Turkey invaded the island — to the start of intercommunal fighting among Greek and Turkish Cypriots at the end of 1963.

On both sides of the green line, which divides Nicosia into Turkish and Greek zones, Clifford made it publicly clear that the United States will not try to pre-empt United Nations efforts for a solution.

Snoop panel getting the eye?

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate's senior intelligence overseer mystified his colleagues at a White House leadership breakfast Tueday morning with a cryptic statement leaving the strong impression that members of the Senate Intelligence Committee are being spied upon.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye (D-Hawaii), according to at least five persons who were present, appeared to hint to President Carter and the House-Senate leaders that members of the Intelligence Committee had been placed under surveillance, but he did not say who ordered it or who was conducting it.

One member who was present said Inouye's remarks implied that the purpose of the surveillance was to determine whether committee member were the source of leaks to the press on Central Intelligencce Agency payments to foreign rulers.

However, both President Carter and the Intelligence Committee, in statements to The Washington Post, denied that members of the committee or staffers have been placed under FBI or CIA surveillance.

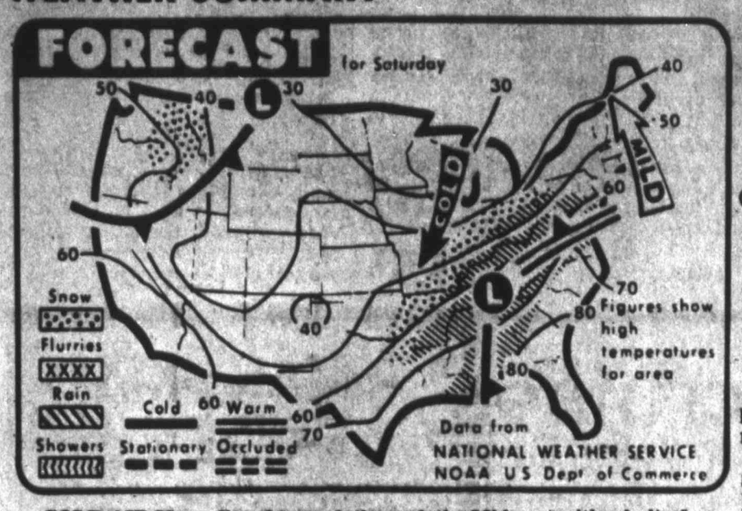

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell quoted the President as saying that he didn't think Inouye had said "anything so ridiculous." Powell pointed out that Inouye lacks authority to order surveillance of anyone, and said President Carter hasn't done it.

Powell also added that Vice President Walter F. Mondale had checked with the FBI and the CIA and both had said nothing of the sort is going on or will go on. But if they turn up something in their normal work indicating that a foreign intelligence agent IS "targeting" a committee member or staffer, they will notify that person.

The Senate Intelligence Committee, and later Inouye himself, issued a flat denial that Inouye had ever asked that members of staff of the committee be placed under surveillance by U.S. intelligence agencies.

"I have never made such a request," Inouye said, "and no one has been placed under surveillance." He said his comments earlier at the White House had been misinterpreted.

Police Chief Thomas Sardino escorted the baby's mother, Earline Jones, 19, from the apartment. She appeared shaken and was in tears.

Police said Cotton would be arraigned later on charges of homicide, kidnaping and reckless endangerment.

As he was being led to his cell in handcuffs, Cotton told a crowd of reporters, "I feel pretty good."

Asked why he did it, the lanky, goateed suspect said, "Police shot at me, I shot back." But moments later, he said, "I shot first." The police did not acknowledge firing any shots.

During the standoff, an arrangement to exchange the baby for cigarettes fell through at the last minute when the mother objected, saying she was fearful something might go wrong in the exchange and her child might be harmed.

The mother was described by the mayor as "very terrified." She is expecting another child in June and had been treated by a doctor recently for an undisclosed illness, a sister said.

Cotton had propped the infant in a window of a second-floor apartment and threatened to kill his hostages if police tried to flush him out with teargas, a police spokesman said.

The hostages were innocent victims and did not know Cotton, the spokesman, Rod Carr told reporters.

Police went to the apartment building about 2 a.m. after a resident reported hearing shots. Officers then found a man's body in an apartment next to the one where Cotton was holed up.

One of the officers, Timothy Mumford, was injured when Cotton fired three shots through the closed door of another apartment, sending splinters into Mumford's face, officials said. They said Mumford did not appear be seriously injured.

Sardino negotiated with Cotton through the apartment door. He said the man had demanded immunity from prosecution and a package of cigarettes. Sardino would not talk about the police response to the immunity request, but the demand for cigarettes was ignored.

Cotton, formerly of New York City, was armed with a .22-caliber rifle with a scope, Carr said. "He's very hostile toward society in general," Carr said after several hours of negotiations.

The dead man was identified as George Sparks Jr., 24, whom police said had been arrested 22 times, mostly on charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct. There was no indication whether Cotton and Sparks knew each other, and police said they were at a loss to explain the killing.

Police said Sparks had been shot in the head with a .22-caliber rifle fired through the apartment's wall.

Cotton and the hostages are residents of the three-story apartment building, but Sparks lived in a home nearby, police said.

Cotton's wife, Jennifer, 27, stood in a crowd of about 80 persons outside the apartment building Friday, but she refused to answer reporters' questions.

U.S. plans for crisis in Uganda

to go to Uganda to intercede with Amin for the Americans there.

The senior Ugandan diplomat in Washington, Paul C. Chepkwurui, was summoned to the State Department and told by William E. Schaufele, Jr., assistant secretary for African affairs, of the "strongest U.S. concern" about the implications of the Ugandan announcement.

It was the second trip by Chepkwurui to the State Department in two days. On Thursday, a spokesman said, Chepkwurui was told that Uganda's "false public allegations of U.S. complicity to overthrow President Amin might have the effect of inflaming public opinion against Americans there."

Chepkurui told newsmen Friday as official U.S. concern intensified that "There is no cause for alarm" about the Americans in Uganda.

He said "President Amin wishes to inform them that they would not be bothered or harassed. He wants them to know that he has appreciated the work that they have done and he wants them to continue. But if they want to leave, they can go, and they won't be kicked out either."

The same theme was reinterated by Ugandan Embassy spokesmen throughout the day. At the same time, however, Amin's accusatory message to Carter was being transmitted. It included the renewed claim that "5,000 American Marines ...are supposed to come and rescue 250 American missionaries in Uganda," but "Uganda has the strength to crush any invaders."

Administration spokesmen described the invasion claim as "totally false" and "absurd." But administration sources acknowledged they were quite concerned about the action Amin might take, as one put it, "however irresponsible that might be."

President Carter, spokesman Powell said at midday, "will do whatever he feels is both necessary and proper to protect American lives anywhere."

Officials refused to discuss what forms of military rescue might be attempted, if necessary. Inevitably, speculation arose about whether the United States was considering anything comparable to the daring Israeli commando raid at Uganda's Entebbe airport last July, to rescue Israeli hostages hijacked by Palestinian guerrillas.

Pentagon sources said no instructions had been given for any military moves, but that U.S. naval forces would stay in the area. An all-nuclear task force comprised of the aircraft carrier Enterprise, the cruisers Truxton and Long Beach, and the attack submarine Tautog, which left the Kenyan port of Mombasa three days ago, will remain in the Indian Ocean to await developments in Uganda.

A. L. McCarroll wins Eagle Scouting award

A. L. "Ike" McCarroll, past president of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, Friday night was named recipient of the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award at the annual Eagle Scout awards banquet.

The event, held at the Midland Country Club, was attended by more than 150 Eagle Scouts, scoutmasters, guests and other scouting officials.

Also highlighting the banquet was the presentation of the council's first Scoutmaster of the Year Award. It went to Thurman Atchley, an Odessa High School physics teacher who is scoutmaster of Gonzales Elementary School Troop 269.

The Distinguished Eagle Scout Award which went to McCarroll is presented to an Eagle Scout who has been a member of Boy Scouts of America a minimum of 25 years and who has distinguished himself in civic or business activities.

McCarroll, a Midlander, has served on the council's executive board the past 15 years and is a former chairman of the Chaparral District which encompasses all of Midland.

Friday's banquet, in addition to honoring specific Eagle Scouts, paid tribute to more than 50 young men who attained the rank of Eagle Scout during 1976. The youths were sponsored at the event by businessmen and other professionals. Each sponsor was matched with a new Eagle Scout who has entered or is planning to enter the career field of his sponsor.

Guest speaker for the night was Clayton W. Williams Jr., an Eagle Scout who maintains residences in both Midland and Fort Stockton. Williams, who owns the Gulf Building in Midland, is president of Scope Oil Co. and is a cattle rancher.

The Buffalo Trail Council is composed of six districts covering 18 counties in the West Texas area.

Wild West Texas weather becomes damp, cooler with chance of snow

After an absence of several weeks, harsh winter weather returned to parts of Texas Friday, with light snow in the Panhandle, the Associated Press said.

A cold front extended from the mouth of the Pecos River northward into a storm center located in the San Angelo area. A stationary front ran northeast from the storm center to just north of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Forecasters said snow accumulations would be less than two inches in the Panhandle, while scattered thunderstorms near the storm center moved eastward over the state.

Surface winds in West Texas continued to blow dust, with visibilities Friday afternoon reduced to as low as three miles in the Midland area. Gusts reached as high as 55 miles per hour in the Guadalupe Pass Friday evening.

Temperatures Friday evening were in the 60s and 70s over the southeastern two-thirds of the state and the lower 30s in parts of the Panhandle.

Fire warnings were issued by the National Weather Service Friday afternoon as strong winds lashed the state and forest and grass fires burned almost 6,000 acres in Northeast Texas.

It was windy and dusty again for a time Friday night as a cool front passed through Midland about 6 p.m. bringing with it a slight chance of snow, the weatherman says.

Northerly winds gusted to 38 mph as the mercury dropped 17 degrees between 6 p.m. and 7 p.m., and it began raining about 8:23 p.m., according to the National Weather Service.

That precipitation has a 30 per cent rain mixed chance of continuing today in the form of rain or rain mixed with snow.

The low temperature Friday night was expected to fall into the middle 30s, while the high for today is predicted somewhere in the middle 40s.

Sunday temperatures were expected to climb into the 60s and no rain is predicted.

Friday night rainfall was reported in Lamesa, Andrews, Stanton, Odessa and Rankin. And it was "dust blowing like crazy" over in Big Lake.

TWO OUTSTANDING ENGINEERS were honored Friday night at The Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers awards banquet at the Ranchland Hills Country Club. Fred Staible of El Paso, left, was named Junior Engineer of the Year, while O. R. "Randy" Clements of Odessa, right, was named Engineer of the Year for 1976.

all they want to on the other channels," Dadzitis said.

Currently, he said, about 30 CB'ers are members of the Midland REACT. And that's not nearly enough CB'ers, mostly working on haphazard shifts, to provide 24-hour-a-day monitoring.

The Midland Police Department, not incidentally, perhaps, also monitors Channel 9. In that respect, the police can fill in for the REACT'ers.

Though the REACT membership here is scant, Dadzitis estimates that one-fourth of the 70,000-plus motor vehicles registered in Midland County are CB-radio equipped. That would figure out to 18,000 or so CB radios in town and country.

REACT'er or not, it's a cinch that just about anyone of the umpteen dozen CB'ers listening in on any channel would answer a distress call. And that CB'er would get on the air and see to it that something fitting and proper was done about the situation — no matter what.

That's for sure, good buddy. 10-4.

And 10-4 to you, too, Bulldog Bart. Hang in but key off, okay? Help's a'coming, good buddy.

(Don't call me "good buddy," good buddy. You don't know me . . . .)

Flames sweep through huge hotel in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Fire swept through the upper floors of one of the world's largest hotels Friday night, forcing some guests trapped by the flames to jump from windows, witnesses said.

They reported an undetermined number of injuries. The U.S. Embassy said it had no reports of American casualties.

Guests said the fire at the 5,500-bed Rossiya Hotel, housing tourists and delegations, broke out at about 9 p.m. It appeared to be under control by 12:30 a.m. But at its height, trapped guests screamed for help, some lowered themselves out windows on knotted bedsheets and others jumped for their lives.

One witness said the fire spread quickly from the 12th down to the third floor of the 15-story hotel, which covers several city blocks about one block from Red Square.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the fire apparently started in the north wing of the hotel, a square modern building 225 yards on each side.

One guest said he believed the blaze was caused by an electrical fire "because flames were breaking out in all sorts of weird places."

Michael Hansen, a White Plains, N.Y., businessman, who was a guest in the hotel, said he heard no fire alarm.

There were several large tourist groups at the hotel, including an alumni group from Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. The leader of the Cleveland group said all had been accounted for.

An American reporter attempting to call his office with information on the fire was lectured by Russians who said, "Don't do it, don't do it."

Newsmen were excluded from the hotel shortly after midnight.

Walter F. Stuart of Brentwood, Tenn., here with the Case Western Reserve group, told a reporter:

"I was trying to take a picture until a man came up and took the camera out of my hand, opened it up and exposed the film ...He gave it back without the film."

Texan tells officials of revolution threat

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Railroad commissioner Jim Langdon says he has told Washington that natural gas shortages threaten revolution and internal strife because of their impact on jobs and human well-being.

Langdon met earlier this week with White House energy adviser James Schlesinger as well as top state regulators, the Federal Power Commission and Texas congressmen.

He said he told Schlesinger that the winter's problem arose when fuel "ceased to be available in sufficient numbers to power our factories, provide jobs and produce products and services that are essential to the lives of the citizens of these (energy-deficient) states."

"At this point you have the ingredients of a revolution and internal strife that must be avoided," Langdon said he told the White House adviser.

He also warned against "a dangerous polarization of America" between energy-producing states and those without oil and gas resources.

He described Schlesinger as "friendly and appeared to be anxious to obtain a grasp of the magnitude of the energy crisis and possible solution."

During the period in which the Carter administration seeks to draft a national energy policy, Langdon said, "I will go back as often as I can."

Expectant Carters are the President's son, Chip, and his wife, Caron, as they appeared recently in the White House. Caron entered Bethesda Naval Hospital Friday to deliver the couple's first child.

Chip Carters have 7-pound boy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter became a grandfather for the second time when daughter-in-law Caron Carter gave birth Friday night to a seven-pound boy who the family said would be named James Earl Carter IV.

The father, Chip Carter, 26, was in the delivery room at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland to watch the birth. He described it as "probably the best experience of my life — including Dad winning the presidency."

President and Mrs. Carter and daughter Amy, 9, also were at the hospital. They had flown by helicopter from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., less than an hour before.

The mother is 25 years old.

Carter emerged smiling from the hospital elevator after visiting the new mother and returned to Camp David by helicopter after a brief visit.

"We're very proud," the President said, adding that Chip and Caron both were doing well.

"It's a beautiful baby," Mrs. Carter reported with a smile, saying the birth of a second grandchild was "exciting."

A spokesman for the Carter family said that Chip had been offered use of the presidential suite at the center, but had turned it down "because it was too expensive."

Instead he arranged for his wife to have a regular room on the seventh floor, which costs $168 a day.

Back at the White House, the young parents have a nursery waiting on the third floor, where they occupy a suite of rooms.

The first family had stopped by at the hospital a few hours earlier en route to Camp David for their first weekend at the presidential retreat.

Briscoe dedicates justice center

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph briscoe officially dedicated the Criminal Justice Center on the campus of Sam Houston State University Friday, a $7.5 Million facility built by inmates of the Texas prison system.

Briscoe, speaking to some 500 persons in the auditorium of the center, said, "If the answer to the cause of crime will ever be known, that answer will be found here.

"If the age-old question of punishment vs. rehabilitation is to be solved, it will be solved here. This center has opened a new door for service to Texans and to all Americans," he said.

The governor said the Criminal Justice Center offers "the promise of finding the best ways to deal with crime in our society."

The center, located on four acres of land adjacent to the main campus, is the largest criminology education building in the nation. The center has an enrollment of about 2,500 undergraduates and 735 graduate students.

Briscoe said he has been encouraged in the early days of this legislative session "that my requests for criminal justice bills will be enacted. I believe this will be the most productive legislature ever in the fight against crime."

GOP needs rebuilding, Brock says

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of the Republican National Committee said Friday night the GOP must rebuild its organization from the ground up, beginning with state legislatures.

"I don't believe we can have a higher priority than the election of a Republican majority to the state house and the state senate of every state," said Bill Brock, the former U.S. Senator from Tennessee.

"That's the critical target," he told the biannual board meeting of the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW).

BROCK, ELECTED the GOP head in January, said there was no purpose in electing Republican governors without having Republican legislatures.

And, he warned that to elect Republican congressmen without having Republican legislatures wouuld be a waste of time because the state legislatures will redraw congressional districts after the 1980 census.

At a news conference before his address, Brock said he did not anticipate any "striking gains" for the Republican party in the 1978 congressional elections unless there is a serious downturn in the U.S. economy.

HE SAID THE party must rebuild itself from the grass roots, much like the GOP did following Barry Goldwater's loss in the 1964 presidential election and like the Democrats did after George McGovern's 1972 presidential loss.

Brock said Republican leaders must encourage candidates to run for all offices down to the lowest city and county levels.

And, he said he would like to see the Republican National Committee be able to offer financial help in such campaigns.

Brock disputed suggestions that the GOP is the party of big business. He said campaign funding disclosure reports from the 1976 presidential election showed 55 per cent of the contributions from business groups went to the Democrats.

HE SAID 70 per cent of the GOP's financing comes from people who give the party $10 or less each year.

Brock said he does not support public financing of political campaigns because it gives an edge to incumbent candidates, who currently are mostly Democrats.

The new GOP chairman also said he would not be surprised to see a woman Republican candidate in the near future for either vice president or president.

He said Anne Armstrong, a Texan who is returning from a tour as U.S. Ambassador to England, "would be a strong candidate for almost any office in this country."

Regent choices ripped

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The three new University of Texas regents were chosen "from Janie Briscoe's Christmas card list," a firebrand Texas professor charged Friday.

"The governor in a state of thirteen-plus million people didn't search any farther than his own dinner table," Dr. Thomas Philpott told Texas Weekly, a televised news panel show.

Philpott, a history professor who won the 1974 Amoco Teaching Award, said he has been punished for speaking out and for approaching the legislature on matters affecting higher education.

He expects to be punished again, but says, ". . . I'm like Martin Luther, the pious monk who found that he couldn't live with Pope Leo, he couldn't live with a corrupt abbott, and so launched a reformation. I want to reform the community (university)."

Twice, faculty committees have recommended him for raises. UT President Lorene Rogers cut his salary the first time and vetoed the second raise, he said.

In a short assessment of her at the end of the show, Philpott said, "Yes, she's abysmal. We've had 10 deans resigning."

UT has never had a board of regents whose voting majority of five has not been made up of bankers, Philpott said. "And the next group have been lawyers."

Representation from these groups is fine, he said, but "those should not be the only qualifications for selection to the board of regents."

Loan asked for Gotham

NEW YORK (AP) — With New York City facing default next week, the Emergency Financial Control Board on Friday formally requested a $255 million federal loan to keep the city afloat.

But there were warnings that Washington might not respond favorably since the city has failed to come up with a plan to redeem $983 million in city notes which have been ordered paid by the state Court of Appeals.

Felix G. Rohatyn, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp., told the board meeting in the World Trade Center that there was "uncertainty" regarding the loan.

Board member David Margolis, an executive of Colt Industries, expressed serious doubt that the city could repay the loan and said full disclosure of the city's plight should be made to the federal government in requesting the loan.

"The disclosure should include the fact that the city could go broke next Friday," he said.

Before the session began, City Comptroller Harrison Goldin told newsmen that the city would be unable to meet between $20 million and $25 million in routine bills next Friday although, he added, payment could probably be deferred.

The real fiscal crunch, he said, will occur on March 11 when the city has to meet a $55-million payroll and, a few days later, some $120 million in payment on the city's outstanding debt.

Former school chief innocent of charges

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A state court jury deliberated two hours Friday before finding former Crystal City School Superintendent Angel Noe Gonzalez innocent of felony theft charges.

Gonzalez, who was indicted June 16, 1976, went to the jury box after the verdict was announced and shook hands with the individual jurors.

The 47-year-old Gonzalez was also indicted on two counts of official misconduct in connection with the hiring of a man who authorities claimed received $13,000 in school funds in a year while doing no work.

The misconduct trial is still pending.

After Friday's verdict, Gonzalez said for the last nine months he and his family had been persecuted by "Adolph Briscoe, John Hill and Jerry Caruth (the Asst. Texas Atty. Gen. who prosecuted the case)."

"Unless the people of this state rid themselves of men like these and unjust people like the Texas Rangers, the Mexican-Americans and poor whites, who don't march to their tune, will never have any constitutional rights," said a tearful Gonzalez as his family stood around him.

Gonzalez said he was persecuted because he ran against U.S. Congressman E. "Kika" De La Garza.

Gonzalez added he was leaving Texas to accept position with the Oakland, Calif., school district.

Human rights abroad

If this nation stands for anything other than the selfish interests of its citizens, it stands for freedom, self-government, human rights for all mankind.

But our selfish interests and our moral values often come in conflict in a sinful world.

When such conflicts occur, we face difficult and dangerous choices. Prudence must temper our idealism. There are no easy answers.

President Carter is right to reemphasize morality in our foreign policy. Many people became disillusioned with the real-politik of Henry Kissinger. They had had enough of pragmatism.

So now Alexander Solzhenitsyn will be welcome if he comes to call at the White House. And we are putting the Soviet Union on notice that we will protest obvious violations of the Helsinki treaty, whether the Russians like it or not.

Well and good.

But we must be careful. The Russian rulers are insecure. They resent outside interference. They are inclined to overreaction.

President Carter may declare that there is no linkage between human rights and detente. But the Russian leaders may disagree.

It is obvious that the issue of peace between the two nuclear superpowers transcends all other issues in importance to the human race.

Practical considerations must at all times modify our commitment to moral values. That doesn't mean we must lose sight of moral values. It just means that we are aware that they are not easy of attainment in the real world.

We must never embrace dictators or praise injustice. But we must be patient. We must realize that no nation, no matter how powerful, can right every wrong and remake the world in its own image. There are practical limits.

Abuse of GI bill

The program of educational benefits for veterans was altered drastically at the end of last year to require contributions from members of the active military as a condition for educational subsidies upon leaving the service.

But the hundreds of thousands of military personnel who entered the service prior to Dec. 31 remain eligible for the student assistance that has been a tradition since World War II.

And the implication is that the program will be vulnerable to abuse for as long as the next two decades.

The chief criticism is directed at the practice of students enrolling in college simply to qualify for subsistence payments. In many cases they accept their monthly checks and fail to show up for classes. Some educational institutions, too, reportedly encourage less-than-serious participation, frankly emphasizing their desire for tuition dollars over class attendance.

A concerned Congress wrote rules for strict monitoring of students into the 1976 Veterans Law, but higher education officials and the Veterans Administration differ over methods of enforcing the regulations.

It seems clear that the VA must tighten its supervision.

But the colleges have an obligation to cooperate in getting full value from the GI Bill, which channels $5 billion annually to the colleges — twice the amount of all other federal subsidies.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Argentines support their dictatorship

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

In Latin America it is the rule rather than the exception that political adversaries join forces when their nation is threatened from abroad.

That is happening now in Argentina.

The country fears that the U.S. Congress may again be the forum from which propaganda attacks are launched against Argentina and that Congress may vote sanctions against the country for human rights violations.

Already some of Argentina's most prominent political leaders have let it be known that, if such a thing comes about, they will stand firm with Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla and his military government; they will not seek to take advantage of the government's problems.

Sure, the Peronists and the Radicals and the other orthodox Argentine political parties want a return to duly elected government.

But they also want an end to the undeclared war that has been raging in Argentina the last few years, and they want an end to the terrorism in the cities and the guerrilla activities in rural areas that have provoked violations of human rights.

Virtually all Argentines, including the armed forces themselves, long for a return to normalcy in that potentially rich, well-fed country.

But they mostly feel that the United States is backing the wrong side.

According to the prestigious Buenos Aires newspaper, La Nacion, the heads of both the Justicialist Party, as the Peronists are known, and the Radical Party, the nation's second most important political group, have made their views known to the United States.

They took the opportunity presented when Charles W. Bray, deputy assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, visited Argentina in December.

Bray, as was announced at the time, was sent to Buenos Aires to ascertain for himself what is the situation of human rights in Argentina.

He visited President Videla in the Casa Rosada, government house, and talked with Adm. Emilio Eduardo Massera, commander in chief of the navy, and other Argentine government officials.

But what was not reported until recently was that Bray also conferred with some of the top Peronists and other political leaders. Included were Dr. Italo Luder, the senator who was provisional president of Argentina during the period Mrs. Maria Estela Peron was ailing, former Interior Minister Roberto Ares and Deolindo Bittel, acting president of the Justicialist Party, as well as with Dr. Ricardo Balbin, president of the Radical Party.

La Nacion reported recently that "when Mr. Bray asked what would be the attitude of Peronism if a decision of the Congress eventually obliged the North American administration to adopt some type of sanction against Argentina, he received one lone response, which Luder summed up in the name of all Peronism: "We would be at the side of the Argentine government."

La Nacion commented that was probably one of the few issues on which Peronists can agree among themselves.

On a later occasion, Bray put the same question to Balbin, the Radical leader, and received a similar answer, La Nacion said.

What does this consensus mean?

Simply that Argentines mostly appear to think that they are better off now, under the military government that has been running the country since last March 24, than they were before when Mrs. Peron was president, and her ailing husband prior to that.

Few doubt that vigorous action must be taken against terrorists as bold and vicious as those in Argentina. They recall that the security police chief was killed by a bomb, placed under his bed by his daughter's classmate. That the bomb that went off in a Navy Ministry lecture hall was placed by an employe with security clearance. That the bomb that killed a police official and a number of other persons in Ciudadela was planted by his girl friend.

Argentines find it relatively easy to justify extreme measures against "subversive delinquents," as they call them.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'The Insiders' story reviewed

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The back rooms of Washington are prowled by an exclusive breed we call The Insiders. They whisper into the ears of the mighty, influence policy, arrange favors for clients but never answer to the public.

They hold no official status, yet they have pipelines into the highest offices in the land. One moment, they may be operating as fixers without portfolio in behalf of high-paying clients. The next, they may be handling some White House assignment too delicate to be performed by anyone in official position.

Of The Insiders, none is more polished, more charming or more durable than is Clark Clifford. He is always gracious to the press, always self-assured, always quietly competent.

He has a rare talent for remaining in the background of the news, directing politicians as though they were actors on his stage and allowing them to take the bows. Perhaps it is this quality that has helped him endure through the administrations of four presidents — more than a quarter-century at the pinnacle.

Lyndon Johnson called him "Just-A-Minute Clifford," with the explanation: "At the end of the discussion, when we think we're all agreed, Clark will say, 'Now just a minute.'" Clifford has never been afraid to say no to presidents, and he has the ability to put things in perspective and view them without emotion.

With the election of Jimmy Carter, Clifford has resumed his quiet role as Mr. Insider. He has been offering advise to his fifth president so unobtrusively that almost no one has noticed. At this writing, he is on a mission in the Mediterranean for the president. He will apply his special soothing salve on the antagonists in the Cyprus wrangle. If anyone can bring home a settlement, Clifford should.

The pressing demands of public service, meanwhile, have left him with time to turn a dollar. Clifford is, of course, tight-lipped about his legal fees. Yet he has one of the most lucrative practices in Washington.

In both performance and remuneration, Clifford has long ranked at the top of the special pleaders, who play all the angles of the federal triangle.

But Washington abounds with lesser hustlers, fixers and five-percenters. The energy crisis has brought them swarming into Washington like prospectors to a gold rush. The Federal Energy Administration is charged with protecting the public from the more larcenous manipulators. The agency's secret files contain a multitude of energy scandals, great and small, dating back to the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

The case of the Parish Oil Company is a typical example. This was a small Metairie, La., oil firm which has quietly sunk into the financial quicksand. But a couple of years ago, it was drilling for oil in the back rooms of government.

The company clamored for fuel allocations by the millions of gallons, far more fuel than it appeared to need. These oil explorations were directed by an ingratiating company executive named Ray Morton.

He quickly found that the best route to the Federal Energy Administration was through the offices of a powerful politician. Once he used then-Speaker Carl Albert's office to arrange a meeting with the right people at the FEA. Morton emerged triumphantly from this meeting with the opening that led to a precious fuel allocation for Parish Oil.

Incidentally, we've learned that Morton was put in touch with FEA by Albert's former assistant, Howard Yourman, who told us he had looked upon Morton as a constituent. Of course, Albert represented Oklahoma, and Morton lived in Louisiana. But Yourman explained that Morton had something to do with an oil firm in Albert's home district.

Again in July, 1975, Morton turned up in the FEA's offices in New Orleans. He mentioned that a politician had offered to get oil for Parish for $50,000. Parish never got the oil, but the FEA began investigating the bribe request.

For the ensuing 18 months, the investigation has been going around in circles. Two rival FEA offices spent part of the time chasing one another in a bewildering ring-around-the-rosy.

The Atlanta regional office had authority over the Parish oil allocation, so Atlanta began the investigation. But the Dallas regional office had jurisdiction over New Orleans. The Dallas office became offended, therefore, when the Atlanta office investigated the New Orleans office — and the wrong people in New Orleans at that.

This infuriated Del Fowler, the head of the Dallas office. He threatened to arrest any Atlanta investigators who infringed on his jurisdiction. Fowler then took over the investigation, which grounded to a halt in 1975 but has now been reopened. Inside sources say it is close to completion.

Footnote: We contacted Morton who referred us to the erstwhile president of Parish, James Richard Vermillion. The latter described the case as a "misunderstanding." There had been no misuse of the money, he said, except that the lawyer's fee had been too high. An FEA spokesman added that the investigation shows no government employees were involved in the bribery attempt.

Mark Russell says

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter jolts Israel during first month in office

Ey ROWLAND EVANS And RORERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — Of all the abrupt and surprising foreign policy maneuvers of President Carter's first month in office, the most surprising is his courageous refusal to be unduly influenced by Israel and the American-Jewish community.

The most recent example was Mr. Carter's decision to renege on Gerald Ford's promise to provide the dreaded people-killer CBU concussion bombs to Israel.

Reneging on the concussion bombs followed a pattern of Carter Middle East decisions that, with one exception, has much pleased Arab states long disturbed by what they perceive as this country's pro-Israel bias. The exception was Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's dictum that unless the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) recognizes Israel's statehood (PLO) recognizes any PLO presence at the Geneva peace conference.

But that exception was predictable. Given this country's unbreakable commitment to Israel, it was probably unavoidable. Not nearly so predictable was the sudden, public State Department complaint about Israel's illegal oil drilling in the Gulf of Suez two weeks ago.

Israeli gunboats fired on buoy markers last summer owned by a U.S. oil company — Standard of Indiana — to scare off oil prospecting for Egypt. Despite Standard's appeals to the Ford administration, the U.S. did nothing.

The difference between then and now is profound. Late last Monday, a new Standard oil rig was moved into position in the Gulf of Suez. In an obvious test of the Carter administration's new hard line, an Israeli gunboat appeared out of the mist and ordered removal of an anchor being dropped to secure the rig. The order was obeyed.

Standard Oil notified the U.S. embassy in Cairo, which alerted the Carter State Department. The State Department protested vigorously to Israel. By Thursday, the anchor was secured without hindrance.

Equally impressive in Mr. Carter's even-handed conduct was the Pentagon's decision forbidding Israel to sell Ecuador Kfir fighter aircraft, powered by General Electric's J-79 jet engine. Not reported up to now is the fact that in originally supplying those engines to Israel, the U.S. imposed this condition: they must never leave Israel.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers wrote a long letter to Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon in the spring of 1971 that set concise U.S. terms for yielding to Israel's persistent demands for the J-79. Rogers wrote that it was not to be exported (it contains highly classified components) and that the aircraft Israel planned to use it for had to stay inside Israel.

Indeed, Israel's stated reason for developing its own fighter plane (with the J-79 engine) was to avoid overdependence on top-drawer U.S. fighters. If Israel ever should want to export its new Kfir sometime in the future, it pledged itself to "a process of consultation" with the U.S. So, both the aircraft industry and the Pentagon were surprised last summer when advertisements began showing up offering the Kfir. These ads appeared without any consultation with the U.S., violating the spirit of the 1971 agreement.

Assistant Secretary of State Roy Atherton was sent to the Israeli embassy here to ask whether Israel really was planning to sell the Kfir. His answer did not come for months, and it came not from the embassy but in the form of news reports that Israel and Ecuador had initialed a contract for the sale of Kfirs.

The President and Vance were fully informed of this record when the new administration refused to waive Israel's pledge not to export the J-79. Moreover, that Israeli performance, described by some officials here as a calculated move to box in the new administration, affected Mr. Carter's decision on the CBU concussion bombs.

When Mr. Carter ordered a review by the State and Defense Departments of the CBU deal, Israel naturally tried to save it. Vance was informed that the weapon would never be used against people, only against minefields and anti-aircraft missile sites. But Israel's earlier effort to get around the clear conditions of Rogers' letter made that promise suspect. Added to the larger consideration of Mr. Carter's overall intent to reduce arms shipments, that left the U.S. no alternative.

The key Arab states of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Saudi Arabia are praising Mr. Carter for his political courage. Playing an even hand now could pay richer dividends in the future, not only as an early example to Israel of the Carter policy, but also by stockpiling goodwill in the Arab world. The U.S. will surely need to cash in such goodwill before any Mideast peace settlement is made.

2. How do the signs of summer correspond with those of "the end of time?" Mt. 24 Mk. 13

Amin has often flirted with political disaster

By DAVID B. OTTAWAY
The Washington Post

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — In his six years of tumultuous rule, Field Marshal Idi Amin has often taken on the superpowers verbally and flirted with political disaster by threatening invasion of one or another of his neighbors. Yet, he has always drawn back when he found himself on the brink of self-destruction.

Whatever the burly giant of the unhappy terror-stricken East African nation of Uganda may be — a demented megalomaniac, an African Hitler, a tasteless buffoon or just the region's frustrating odd-man-out — Idi Amin is no fool when it comes to calculating his own survival.

Furthermore, for all his blundering and blustering Amin has never attacked any of his neighbors and has generally spared resident Westerners from his ugly reign of terror that has reportedly taken somewhere between 50,000 and 300,000 lives.

Thus it does not seem likely he will risk a serious confrontation over the 240 Americans residing in his country unless he is provoked by sheer fear of attack from the United States or some combination of neighboring states, such as Kenya and Tanzania.

For this reason alone, however, the situation remains fraught with risks and danger and a misinterpreted move or word could provoke a tragedy. In addition, the developing crisis is bound to raise still bitter memories in Uganda of the raid by Israeli troops on Entebbe airport in July to free 103 Israeli hostages from a Palestinian commando terrorist group.

As the murder of one hapless Israeli hostage, Dora Bloch, by Ugandan security men showed, Amin is not above killing foreigners in retaliation for a stinging humilitation such as Israel dealt him.

Just why he has decided deliberately to create a situation of tension involving a superpower like the United States is not altogether clear, but there is often more to Amin's strange behavior than at first meets the eye.

For example, it may be that by calling all resident Americans to the capital he is signaling to the Western powers they they too have something at stake if they back any new attempt to overthrow him. In this manner he perhaps hopes to forestall or avert such an effort.

Amin has just once again emerged unscathed from yet another imagined or real plot to assassinate him, the latest in an increasingly frequent number of reported coup attempts. He has reportedly rounded up over a thousand Acholi and Lango tribesmen suspected of conspiring against him and scores of them have apparently been killed, adding to the already monstrous death toll of his regime.

To all appearances, Amin's power base that depends on the minority Moslem population — about 15 per cent of the country's nearly 12 million people — has been steadily shrinking and even a large proportion of his own carefully picked and groomed army has turned against him.

One recent report estimated that a quarter of his army was under arrest, including most of its officers. Whether or not this is an exaggeration, all the evidence seems to point toward growing problems and tribal conflict within the Ugandan armed force.

In the latest alleged coup attempt, set for Jan. 25, the sixth anniversary of Amin's seizure of power, disgruntled troops were said to have plotted his assasination because he had appointed members of his own tiny West Nile Kakwa tribe to practically all key security and military positions and excluded members of other tribes from high posts.

The Longo and Acholi tribes have felt most aggrieved under Amin and they have borne the brunt of his periodic purges of the army and government. Uganda's former President Milton Obote, who now lives in the Tanzanian capital, Dar es Salaam, is a Longo and the Acholi people backed him. In September 1972, Obote and his followers tried to invade Uganda and oust Amin but the invasion failed.

As his power base within the army continues to shrink, Amin has sought to bolster his position by hiring southern Sudanese mercenaries — as many as 5,000 — and by seeking the help of outsiders such as Palestinians, Libyans and other Arabs.

Most recently, he reportedly has turned to Cuba for help, a seemingly strange alliance for both sides. Agence France-Presse reported Friday that a Cuban delegation had been in Kampala since Monday discussing with Amin ways of strengthening his Soviet armed forces.

Libyan President Muammar Gaddafi also has announced that his forces are at Amin's disposition in the current situation.

But whether such outside support can compensate for his narrowing base within the army remains to be seen. It seems that the former boxing champion turned military dictator is coming toward the end of his tether in his efforts to mobilize forces in his defense and in his suppression by force of the internal opposition.

What perhaps makes the current situation even more dangerous is the worldwide campaign to condemn the Ugandan regime for the killing of Anglican Archbishop Janawi Luwum and two of Amin's cabinet ministers allegedly involved in the latest plotting.

As he grows more isolated, Amin will probably also grow more dangerous and desperate and seek to use any means at his disposal to survive.

A too-hostile gesture or verbal assault from Washington could provoke a distrustful Amin into taking some of the Americans in Uganda as hostages in the hope of forestalling an invasion from ugandan exiles in Tanzania or another coup attempt.

Thus the United States is facing a delicate and dangerous dilemma in trying to protect its nationals from becoming Amin's pawns in the game for power in Uganda.

Wright tells Gonzalez, Sprague end feud

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — House Majority Leader Jim Wright (D-Tex.) said Friday the troubled House Assassinations Committee could probably be saved if Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez (D-Tex.) and chief investigator Richard Sprague "are both willing to swallow their pride a little bit."

Wright said he has ordered Gonzalez and Sprague to work with each other and with Kenneth Brooten whom Gonzalez had picked to replace Sprague, to "develop an organization chart and reduce the staff to something a lot less than 73."

If Gonzalez and Sprague end their feud and accept those terms, the Majority Leader said, "the House will more than likely authorize the committee to go ahead with its investigations."

The committee's investigations of the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr. have been immobilized since Feb. 10, when Gonzalez tried to fire Sprague but was blocked by other members of the committee who supported the investigator.

Gonzalez cut off the pay checks of Sprague and his staff and told Attorney General Griffin Bell not to give them access to FBI files. Gonzalez then named Brooten to take over as staff director.

Under the plan Wright has developed, both Sprague and Brooten would remain on the staff. Sprague would handle the invstigations and Brooten would be in charge of administration and the committee's budget.

The committee is scheduled to die on March 31 unless the House votes to continue its work. Wright said an extension probably would be voted if the Gonzalez-Sprague battle is resolved.

Wright said he would recommend that the investigators concentrate first on the King killing. "From what I've been told," he said "there may be reason to believe that the Martin Luther King (assassination) is more potentially productive."

The Majority Leader said House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill (D-Mass.) had asked him to play "dove of peace" between Gonzalez and Sprague.

"It's not so easy," he said. "I'm in the posture of a Marrying Sam trying to perform a shotgun wedding when neither side wants to get married."

The committee's public information officer told the Associated Press that Sprague had not agreed to the Majority Leader's proposals. Gonzalez, who is ill, is confined to his home and could not be reached.

To date, Sprague has refused to permit Gonzalez' new staff director, Brooten, to enter the committee's offices. But Wright said he is confident the two men could work together if the committee's work goes on.

Aardvark has little to call own

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A floppy-eared aardvark born a month ago at Point Defiance Zoo doesn't have much to call its own — including a name, a mother or even a sex.

The infant has been spurned by its parents, Aalice and Aalbert. But the little creature — whose sex has yet to be determined — is being loved by the folks whose quarters it shares.

"There is no other animal like it," zoo director Norman Winnick says.

'Rich kids' nearly lost money twice during two-day escapade

By GREG THOMPSON

WACO, Tex. (AP) — When the two teenagers left their South Texas home, they had only the clothes on their backs, two ounces of marijuana and two suitcases — stuffed with nearly $500,000 in cash.

Thus equipped for a trip to Chicago, they launched a bizarre, often comical, two-day spending spree. It ended in the Waco jail drunk tank where a prostitute offered to marry them.

The Alice, Tex., High School sophomores, Dean Bridges, 15, and Percy Garcia, 16, dug up the cash hidden on Bridges' father's ranch. They discovered that when you have $500,000 in cash you can:

—Pay a bellboy $3,000 to buy a 1977 Thunderbird for $8,800 in cash and drive it off a Dallas showroom floor.

—Give $100 gifts to winos and $20 tips to waiters.

—Stay at a downtown Dallas hotel and go on shopping sprees to buy cameras, clothes and stereo equipment.

The money, in $20, $50 and $100 bills, now sits in a Waco bank. The car, with less than 500 miles on it, is gathering dust in the Waco City Garage. And the controversy over the money continues to grow.

Bridges' father, James Hiroms, a welder and racehorse owner, went to jail in Alice Thursday rather than testify about the origin of the $500,000, which South Texas law enforcement officers believe is drug money.

"Nobody keeps that kind that kind of money around here for groceries," said one officer, explaining that Alice is at the crossroads of northbound marijuana pipelines from Mexico.

Bridges' attorneys have filed a formal claim for the cash and Garcia's attorneys say they might claim it. The Internal Revenue Service has filed a $300,000 lien.

"I want to drive that car out of the garage," Bridges told The Associated Press as he brushed dust from the blue auto. "I've got a good lawyer. I think I've got a good chance to get it."

The slender, shy Bridges said he had known for five months that something valuable — maybe money — was buried in a quail pen on his father's barren, dusty ranch near Alice.

The pen — and the money — was guarded by two Doberman Pinschers and Satan, a vicious German shepherd attack dog.

"I seen somebody bury it there," said Bridges in an exclusive interview. "I looked out my window from my room one night at dusk and watched him."

Bridges said that after a fight with his father Jan. 29, he decided to get whatever was buried there and "get as far away from Alice as we could."

Bridges easily pacified his dogs and dug for the money with Garcia, a chunky former Alice Coyote linebacker and another teenager, John Rose.

"We were going crazy, throwing up dirt until Percy threw his pick down there and hit something," said Bridges. "We were jumping around and yelling, 'You hit it! You hit it! We struck it rich!'

The money was in $10,000 packets in a red ice chest. Garcia said a piece of notebook paper with "500,000" scrawled on it was the first thing he saw when he opened the chest.

"My first thought was to get a car and go as far away from Texas as we could," added Bridges.

"All I could say was 'Wow!' " said Garcia. "I just kept saying it."

The cash wouldn't fit into one big suitcase. "It was so heavy the handle broke and the suitcase fell in the mud," said Bridges.

The youths gave Rose $4,000, stuffed their jeans with handfuls of bills and lugged the two suitcases of cash to the bus station.

Bridges had crammed his father's 9MM automatic pistol in his underwear, where it kept slipping down his leg, and Garcia left his mother a note saying he'd be back soon.

The teenagers nearly lost the money twice, they said.

"We were drunk. We just got off the bus and left the $500,000 on it," said Bridges. The suitcases were still there when they reboarded.

One wino shared his vodka with them. Bridges later gave him $100.

After arriving at a Dallas hotel, Bridges and Garcia filled their pockets with about $6,000 each and left for a shopping trip. They shoved the money-filled suitcase under their bed and left about $2 in change on a table.

"When we got back, we found out the maid had stole the change," said Bridges. "There was half a million dollars in cash under the bed."

At a Dallas bar, Bridges offered $1,000 to Gilbert Bailey, a wiry-haired Brazilian bellhop who spoke with a thick accent, as a fee to buy them a car. Neither boy had a driver's license.

After the youths counted out $10,000 in $100 bills at the dealerships, the three backed the $8,800 car off the showroom floor.

Bailey, who kept the extra $2,000, was later detained by customs officials in Miami, Fla, where he was waving handfuls of bills.

The teenagers had set out for Chicago because, "It looked like as far away from Alice as you could go." But they made a wrong turn and ended up in Waco, 100 miles south of Dallas.

"We had smoked some joints and drunk some beer and that was when we got lost," said Bridges. He was driving when a rookie Waco patrolman stopped the youths for running a red light, about 36 hours after they had left Alice.

The youths stayed in jail four days after officers found the pistol and marijuana. They were very popular with the other inmates, Bridges said.

Bridges said "one of the whores in the next cell even offered to marry us if we would buy her a car."

Bridges has since been cleared of the weapons possession charge, but Garcia was declared delinquent on the marijuana charge. Disposition of his case has been transferred to Alice.

Both boys have been suspended from school for truancy. Garcia is living with his parents. Bridges lives with his mother and stepfather in Robstown, near Alice.

One Los Angeles-based movie producer said the boys will make a profit "in six figures" for the rights to their story.

"I just want to get my money out of the bank and my car out of the garage," said Bridges.

Dean Bridges, 15, left, and friend Percy Garcia, 16, admire the 1977 Thunderbird they purchased in Dallas in January before they were stopped by Waco police and found with nearly $500,000 in cash in the trunk. The automobile is impounded in the Waco City Garage. Source of the money remains a mystery.

Yarbrough loses bookcases case

HOUSTON (AP) — A final court judgment Friday ruled that Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough owes a contractor $600 for law office bookcases built in 1975.

County Civil Court Judge Charles Castles ruled, however, that Yarbrough need not pay about $750 for legal expenses incurred by the contractor, R. E. Blue Jr.

College rules out divorcees

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — California Baptist College says divorced persons need not apply to become instructors because the board of trustees is worried about "moral deterioration."

Alumni, faculty and students protest the policy is "detrimental and damaging" to the Southern Baptist-affiliated school.

The 20-member board, which approved the policy two weeks ago, has postponed its application until the board's next meeting in May, officials of the four-year liberal arts college said Thursday.

"We're not going to back down," said Dr. Andrew Tucker, the board's president. "We may modify the policy somewhat."

"My feeling is that they want to look at refinements or review it," Dr. James Staples, the college president, said in an interview.

The policy would have the administration "refrain from employment of any faculty or administration who were divorced," Academic Dean Stephen Carleton explained.

"There is a tendency for moral deterioration to creep into colleges," said Tucker. "We feel the breakdown in the homes in our society now is a sign of moral deterioration.

"The board feels that the faculty should represent as close to an ideal Christian witness as practical," he said. "The scriptures have definite things to say about divorce."

The ban would not apply to current employes who are already divorced, but would be enforced against those who in the future become divorced or marry a divorced person, Carleton and Tucker said.

The board has not decided if the ban would be used against current faculty members when they seek tenure, they said.

Four of the 51 faculty members are divorced and three of those are untenured, Carleton said.

Alumni, on campus last weekend for homecoming, approved a statement asking that the policy be rescinded or modified to let the administration deal with cases individually, as it has been doing.

"We're strongly against it," one student said of the policy.

Moscow journal okays blue jeans for young

MOSCOW (AP) — There's nothing wrong with the welldressed young Communist wearing a pair of blue jeans, Moscow newspaper readers were told Friday. But if they're torn, too faded or being worn at the Bolshoi Ballet, good sense should draw the line.

Moskovsky Komsomolets, the paper of the Moscow Communist Youth League, admitted the Western-imported jeans fad has caught on for good in the Soviet Union. It quoted Vyacheslav Zaitsev, chief artist of the All-Union House of Fashion, as noting "the universality of jeans is unquestionable and there is nothing to replace them."

But Zaitsev made clear that jeans are not proper for every Socialist occasion.

"If your jeans are clean and pressed, then with a jacket and sweater they can be acceptable clothing even for going to the theater. But here it must be noted: to a youth or student theater, please, but not to the Bolshoi."

He also counseled: "First of all, you must observe the aesthetic norms — slightly worn jeans are a completely understandable thing, but if they're worn down to holes and patches and are shiny on protruding places, this is already bad taste."

Foreign jeans, particularly American-made ones with well known labels, are much sought after by Soviet youths. A pair of American jeans can go for as much as $66 on the black market, or $132 for jeans and a matching denim jacket.

Polish and French jeans occasionally available in Moscow stores cost about $25 a pair. The Soviet Union also makes some jeans, though foreign brands find the most buyers.

The Moskovsky Komsomolets acknowledgement that jeans are in the Soviet Union to stay is a far cry from the attitude of a cotton industry official in 1973, who dismissed jeans airily with the comment, "Now it is a fashion and then probably it will disappear."

But young Communists are still being advised not to let the capitalist import run away with them.

American-made blue jeans are also the rage in another Soviet Bloc nation — Hungary. The Communist party newspaper there reported recently that young Hungarians are paying $80 a pair for imported jeans.

Alone

When we are young we have many carefree hours. We do not fully appreciate it at that time . . . but looking back we realize that today's generation has even more time on its hands. Beautiful time, yes! But we must help them fill it with a sense of responsibility and leadership.

Of course, our schools and communities offer every opportunity for healthy growth of minds and bodies.

But what about their spiritual development? Youth rightfully looks to us, who are no longer young, for guidance.

No, we cannot let them look for God alone. We must show them the way to Sunday School and the Church . . . where they can find Him. Then the years to come will be filled with spiritual strength and faith to live according to His will.

Church slates annual missionary convention

Midland's First Alliance Church, 1610 W. Wall Ave., will hold its annual missionary convention next week.

The conference will begin Sunday, continuing through Wednesday, said the Rev. Les Harmon, host pastor. Sunday services will begin at 10 and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., while Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday services are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. All will be open to the public, he said.

Featured speakers at the convention will be two missionaries for the Christian and Missionary Alliance denomination, with which the Midland church is affiliated. They are the Rev. O. W. Jacobson and Miss Robbie Ellen Skaggs.

Mr. Jacobson is a veteran missionary with over 30 years' service in the republic of Colombia. He began his ministry among the Paez and Guambiano Indians and has since expanded his work to include port cities and fishing villages along a stretch of the Colombian coastline. He also has taught at a large Bible institute and has established a number of regional Bible institutes in Colombia.

Miss Skaggs, a young missionary with 10 years' service to her church, is an elementary school teacher for the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Gabon, West Africa. She arrived in that country in 1966 and became a teacher in the Bongolo Alliance School, later being made principal of that school. She also is the director of the Christian literature program for her church in Gabon, supplying missionaries and national churches with reading materials and audio-visual materials.

Free Spirit to present programs at churches

Free Spirit, an ensemble of talented young Christian musicians, will present a pair of programs in Midland next Week.

The group will sing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Midland's Latin Free Methodist Church, 411 S. Terrell St., and 7:30 p.m. Friday in the First Free Methodist Church, 4712 Shadylane. The Rev. Julio Castillo and the Rev. Gerald Burke, pastors of the respective churches, invite the public to attend either event.

Members of the Free Spirit are college-age young people who have interrupted their education or professions for a year to participate fulltime in a special musical ministry. The ensemble is sponsored by the Free Methodist denomination, headquartered at Winona Lake, Ind., through its Christian education department.

During the ensemble's six-year existence, Free Spirit has performed at national and state Sunday school gatherings, at expositions and world fairs, on numerous radio and TV programs and in concert engagements throughout the nation. Last year, the ensemble participated in the International Conference on Spiritual Renewal.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The visitor will sing during the 9:45 a.m. Sunday school hour at Oaklawn Park Church, and again during the morning worship hour beginning at 11. The public is invited to hear him.

Special events set at St. Mark's

Special "Consecration Sunday" events are planned this weekend at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St.

The special day will be highlighted with a service of consecration for the newly-completed addition to the education building at St. Mark's. Participating in the ceremony will be Dr. Alsie H. Carleton of Albuquerque, N. M., bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area conferences of the United Methodist denomination. Also to take part in the service is Dr. Lloyd Hughes, Big Spring District superintendent of the denomination.

The consecration ceremony will be incorporated into the morning worship service at St. Mark's and a reception following the service will be held in the church fellowship hall, honoring Bishop Carleton, Dr. Hughes and their wives.

Minister urging no television next week to protest violence

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What, pull the plug, darken the TV set an entire week? Heresy. But a man of the cloth urges such heresy, starting Sunday, as a national protest over cheapened sex and violence in TV programs.

He's the Rev. Donald E. Wildmon, 39, pastor of the First United Methodist church in Southaven, Miss., next door to Memphis, Tenn. He calls his campaign "Pull the Plug on TV Week," to end March 5.

It began at home, he says, during the Christmas holidays when he was watching TV with his family, saw a scene involving sex, found it offensive, switched channels, saw a torture scene and switched off.

"I just got disgusted," said the minister, father of four children, aged 13 and younger. "I said, 'I've got to do something, I don't know what, but I'm going to do something.'"

And on Dec. 31, he said, he urged his flock at church to engage in a week-long television turnoff. He also sent a news release about it to Memphis reporters. In time, he said, it made the wire services.

Rev. Donald Wildmon

He said in the last three weeks, mainly because of follow-up-stories about his campaign, he's gotten expressions of support from viewers of all faiths across the nation and more than 1,000 letters.

He said in addition to his proposed no-watch week, he's asking viewers to call local TV stations Monday "and express concern about television's violence, its distorted image of sex and to say we're fed up."

How much support he'll get is anyone's guess. But the Parent-Teachers Association, here this week for the last of its eight hearings on TV violence, says it knows little about it and takes no position on his campaign.

The Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, which recently ended four regional hearings on TV content, is familiar with his campaign, but takes no position on it, saying it's for individual viewers to decide.

Thomas J. Swafford, senior vice president for public affairs at the National Association of Broadcasters, says he hasn't heard sounds of industry alarm over the Rev. Mr. Wildmon's call for a no-watch week, but some broadcasters "may be a little curious to see what'll happen."

Swafford, until last year chief censor at CBS, said he's never heard of such a call for a one-week TV boycott before, and "I've never heard of anybody turning off the set for a week.

"They're going to miss an awful lot of nonviolent programs if they do. As a matter of fact, the only trouble with that (a boycott) is that they're just going to boycott all TV, it really doesn't say anything.

"If they were going to boycott programs like 'Kojak' or 'Starsky and Hutch,' and all of a sudden broadcasters saw those ratings falling, then maybe they'd be telling us something."

The Rev. Mr. Wildmon, who sees no-watch week as a symbolic warning to the networks what can happen if they don't mend their programming ways, agreed that what is offensive to one viewer may be high drama to another.

"I'll leave that to the American people to decide," he said. "If the majority agrees with me, then I'll have accomplished what I set out do do. If they don't, I won't. It's as simple as that."

Simpson, Moore lead Christian life seminar

A Christian life seminar which began here Thursday night under auspices of Midland's Christian Faith Mission will continue through tonight.

Charles Simpson

The special series on Christian life and maturity is being led by Charles Simpson of Mobile, Ala., joined by Jimmy Moore of Ruston, La.

Seminar sessions are being held in the Alamo Junior High auditorium, 3800 W. Storey St. Today's concluding event will begin at 7:30 p.m. It will be open to the public.

Simpson is a member of the board of Christian Growth Ministries of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and is a regular contributor to New Wine magazine. In addition to his writing and teaching work, and his TV ministry, he serves as a pastor of Gulf Coast Fellowship in Mobile.

Moore is lead pastor of the Fountain of Life Fellowship in Ruston. Through his Fountain of Life ministry, he distributes music as well as cassettes of scripture and song to groups and individuals throughout this country and in many countries abroad.

A special workshop session for men throughout this region who are in positions of leadership will be held at 9 a.m. today in the Alamo Junior High auditorium, it was announced.

Denomination leaders ask congregation protection

NEW YORK (AP) — United Church of Christ leaders apxpealed to federal and Texas authorities Thursday for protection of a new black congregation in Port Arthur, Tex., following repeated threats and fire damage to it.

Denominational executives said local officials there have refused to investigate the incidents or act to assure safety of the new congregation of blacks, scheduled to be dedicated this Sunday.

A note pinned to the church door Tuesday threatened to bomb it unless its leaders left town. Earlier, on Jan. 22, a fire of suspicious origin gutted the church's temporary headquarters, the denomination said.

Its national leaders, at a meeting in Winter Park, Fla., sent a plea to the Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Justice Department to intervene to protect the church.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Evans, president of the 2 million-member denomination, also urged Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Port Arthur Mayor Bernis Saddler to get state and local officers to protect the congregation.

"We have reason to believe that the fire ... was deliberately set to harass this congregation," the message said, also citing threats by telephone and the note pinned to the church.

Its congregation has been involved in a black voter registration drive there.

The new church, led by the Rev. William Land, had experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining a building.

Denominational officials said it first attempted to buy the vacated Central Baptist Church, but this was turned down, and subsequently that building was sold to the city at a price reportedly less than offered by the black congregation.

New series to start

St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church will initiate a special series of Wednesday evening Lenten programs next week.

The 7:30 p.m. programs will offer opportunities for learning more about the meaning of Lent's special emphasis on personal, corporate and family devotions. A different minister will lead the program each week.

Preceding each program will be a dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the parish hall. The Lenten series will be open to all interested persons in the community as well as all members of the parish.

Lenten events begin Tuesday

The first in a series of Lenten programs and soup suppers at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Featured speaker at the gathering in the parish hall will be the Very Rev. Bob Burton whose special trans-Pecos ministry encompasses the vast Big Bend region of West Texas.

Church to feature youth rally today

Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course Road, will hold a youth rally this afternoon.

The 1 to 5 p.m. event will have Doug Kostowski as featured speaker and Bernard Lassiter as song leader.

Alliance plans monthly service

Midland's Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance will hold its monthly fellowship service at 8 p.m. Sunday in New Jerusalem Baptist Church, 1301 E. Cowden Ave.

The Rev. C.S. Johnson of Midland's Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ will deliver the sermon at the gathering. The public is invited by the Rev. A. W. Washington, host pastor, to attend the event.

Antioch to end celebrations

A service at 3 p.m. Sunday in Antioch Baptist Church will conclude a week's celebration marking the church's 33rd anniversary.

The church was organized in February 1944 by the late Rev. C. J. Tisdale. The original congregation numbered seven.

The Rev. Johnny A. Mitchell, Antioch's current pastor, said the Sunday afternoon service will feature a message by the Rev. W. R. Hunter. The public is invited.

Museum displays dresses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An exhibition of women's dress in Los Angeles, "Instantly Fashionable," is on display at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art through April 3.

The exhibit of approximately 40 garments dates from 1820 through the late 1940s.

Ministers to take part in 'We Care' mission

More than 30 ministers will participate in a special "We Care" mission emphasis next week at Midland's First United Methodist Church.

Mission activities will include visitation, group meetings and discussions, and worship services.

According to Dr. Charles Lutrick, host pastor, the event will draw United Methodist ministers from many parts of the large Northwest Texas Conference of the denomination, including those from Lubbock, Panhandle, Andrews, Morton, Wellington, Hereford, Floydada, Seminole, Dumas, Abilene, Stanton, Lamesa, Colorado City and elsewhere. Also to be on hand for the special emphasis are United Methodist theologians, chaplains and administrators, plus ministers from several New Mexico cities.

The "We Care" emphasis will begin with a luncheon and orientation for the ministers Monday afternoon, followed by team meetings, group sessions and a dinner. A worship service in the sanctuary will begin at 8 p.m.

The Tuesday and Wednesday schedule calls for ministers' visitations followed by team meetings, during the mornings, luncheons at noon and afternoon visitation periods. Worship services will be held beginning at 8 p.m. both days in the sanctuary.

Group meetings for various age groups within the First United Methodist congregation are scheduled for 7 p.m. each of the three days.

Main objective of next week's special mission is total involvement of the entire membership of the First United Methodist Church, Dr. Lutrick said.

Inexperienced player must follow rules

South ruffed the second heart, led a trump to dummy's ace and returned a low club to try a finesse with the queen.

West won with the king of clubs, and that ended the defense. South ruffed the next heart, drew trumps and led the ace of clubs. The jack dropped, and dummy's clubs were good. South got rid of both diamond losers on dummy's long clubs.

"Why did you win that first club trick?" East grumbled as the opponents scored up the game and rubber. "That's the rule," West defended himself. "Second hand low, third hand high, and fourth hand win the trick if you can."

SMILES POLITELY

That's the rule they teach bridge players in their cradles, so East had to smile politely and change the subject. It's useless to expect your partner to play beyond his strength.

Since all readers of this column are as strong as Samson, we can see that West would defeat the contract by refusing the first club trick. He would get his club trick later, and East would get two diamond tricks. Declarer can set up dummy's clubs, but can never get to them since dummy has no side entries.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-873, H-QJ103, D-852, C-K42. What do yoy say?

ANSWER: Bid 1 NT. The hand is just barely worth a response since you have a count of 6 points. Since you have neither good support for partner's suit nor any ruffing values, you should not consider a raise to two spades.

Consumer director cites high loan interest hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The loan companies are pushing a bill that would increase interest rates 28 per cent on the average loan in Texas, the executive director of the Texas Consumer Association charged Friday.

Jim Boyle said a hearing on the bill, SB 615, by Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, will be held in the Economic Development Committee at 9 a.m. Monday.

The proposal contains "an incomprehensible formula which is called the interest rate modulator," Boyle told a news conference.

The bill supposedly pegs legal rates to the economy, and "loan companies are saying that this could lower rates," Boyle said.

"Poppycock. The complicated formula for arriving at the modulator is a red herring aimed at diverting attention from the outrageous increase in interest rates being sought by loan companies," he said.

"The mumbo-jumbo formula in the bill makes it impossible for anyone to figure out what the legal rate of interest is. Loan-sharking is encouraged by this legislation. There is no way to prevent, even discover usury if the Adams bill becomes law.

"Every session, the loan companies say, 'If we don't get an increase, we will leave the state.' This is a blatant falsehood. Their cries of 'wolf' have no validity. Not only are they still here, but one of the major loan company chains in the United States has recently moved its national headquarters to Dallas," he said.

That is Associates Finance Corp. of America, which moved from South Bend, Ind. It reportedly is a subsidiary of Gulf Western, and its lobbyist allegedly got Adams interested in the bill.

MY SPECIAL PRAYER

Our Father in Heaven, Holy is thy name. I have been a sinner and I have been sick. I believe in the Holy Trinity—which is: Our Father, his son Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. The truth first enters my mind and then my heart; this is a baptism of the Holy Spirit. Through the power of Jesus Christ the evil thought in my mind will be purged out and the evil words that come from my heart through my mouth will cease forever, and I will speak only truths. This will heal the sickness of my flesh; I understand that as long as my flesh lives there will be some evil remain in my flesh by nature, but with the Holy truths in my mind and heart I will control these evils and live by purpose and not by desires. I will live in dignity and not disgrace. When I speak I will hesitate until our Lord gives me the words to say. I will no longer have any fears because thou are with me. Surely Goodness and Mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Amen.

as a teacher, you must have had actual experience in what you are teaching. You must plant the basic seeds in the students mind, they will grow if you give them a pattern of inspiration; and that comes only from God.

NFL owners, players come to terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three years of on-again, off-again bargaining, peace finally came to the National Football League Friday when the players association and team owners approved a five-year basic agreement which modified both the college draft and the controversial Rozelle Rule.

In addition, some 43 players who played out their options last season and were to become free agents May 1 instead will be free to negotiate with other clubs as soon as the agreement is signed, probably in a couple of days.

SARGENT KARCH, executive director of the NFL Management Council (NFLMC), said he expected formal signing of the contract to take place Monday, subject to ratification by the union membership.

The college draft, which is now guaranteed at least through 1986, will be held on or about May 1 each year, beginning this spring, but will be reduced from 17 rounds to 12.

In addition, the expiration date of all player contracts is changed from May 1 to Feb. 1. Free agents must reach agreement with another club by April 15, upon which their old club then has the right to keep the player by matching his new offer.

If a free agent signs with a new club, his old club will be compensated by predetermined choices in that year's college draft ranging from a third-round choice to two consecutive first-round choices depending on the free agent's salary terms with his new club.

HOWEVER, ANY team signing a free agent must either own the rights to whatever draft choices it will be required to surrender or must trade for them, and those choices may not be lower than its own standing in the order of selection in the draft.

Under the old Rozelle Rule, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle decided the compensation for any club which lost a player who played out his option.

"I only had to make six or eight rulings since the rule was written around 1961," Rozelle said, "but it was never pleasant. I had more trouble with the clubs involved than with the players. One club usually thought the compensation was too much while the other club thought it wasn't enough."

The new agreement, approved unanimously by representatives of the players' union, will now be submitted to the rank-and-file for ratification. It also must be approved by Judge Earl Larson, who presided over former player John Mackey's suit against the NFL.

Besides covering the next five seasons, the agreement continues the pension plan—including the non-contract years of 1974-5-6 when the owners made no payments—with contributions totaling more than $55 million. Total cost of the package was estimated by the NFLMC at around $107 million.

Besides modifying the draft and free agent compensation, the new contract contains a no strike-no suit clause, establishes a 43-man player limit plus two more on the inactive list, reduces pension vesting from five to four years and provides for increases in minimum salaries and preseason and post-season play and improved insurance and medical and dental benefits.

The disciplinary authority of the commissioner also was reaffirmed. In addition, the NFLMC said during the next 10 years member clubs will make payments totaling $16 million in settlement of various legal disputes.

DICK ANDERSON of the Miami Dolphins, president of the players' association, and Ed Garvey, the union's executive director, said the new pact was aimed at helping the low-and middle-ranked players.

"This is a unique, innovative approach to help the 90 per cent of the players who are not superstars," Garvey said.

Garvey said the union's 785 members would begin receiving copies of the contract March 7, with the union recommending ratification.

"I can't think of a period that's been more difficult than the last few years," Rozelle said. "I was getting concerned about the impact sports disputes were having on the public. It was hurting us. Now we have some stability in the sport and everyone can turn toward more constructive use of his time."

Under terms of the new college draft, a drafted player must be offered a contract, or series of contracts, meeting minimum figures ranging from $20,000 for one year to a total of $200,000 for four years on or before June 15 in the year he is drafted.

If he does not sign, he is eligible to be drafted again the next year. If he is drafted again and still does not sign, he becomes a free agent after the ensuing season and may sign with any NFL club.

He can become a free agent earlier than two years in two ways:

—If his original drafting team, or any other team acquiring his rights, does not offer him a contract meeting the specified minimum criteria by June 15.

—If, after sitting out a year, he is not selected in the next year's draft.

The minimum figures of $20,000 and $200,000 increase to $22,000 and $220,000 in the last two years of the new contract.

Don't ask, Whatever became of Jack Nicklaus?

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who has played Inverrary Golf and Country Club as if he owns it, knocked six more strokes off par Friday to take a commanding lead halfway through the $250,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.

Nicklaus, who has never finished worse than sixth in five previous tournaments at Inverrary and won the Tournament Players Championship here last year, had eight birdies and two bogeys in his round of 66 Friday. His 36-hole total is 136, eight under par.

At 140, four under par, were defending Masters champion Ray Floyd, who had 68; Jerry McGee, who shot a 66, and Don Pooley, who won only $2,200 in 19 tournaments last year, 69.

First-round leader Gary Player had a one-over 73 to stand at 141 along with Jim Simons, Bobby Walzel, Sam Farlow, Danny Edwards, Fuzzy Zoeller and 1974 NCAA champion Curtis Strange, who got into the tournament on a sponsor's exemption.

"I didn't expect to be four shots in the lead starting out today," said an obviously-pleased Nicklaus, who had played in only two of seven previous PGA events.

"I would not say my swing or my game is anywhere near where I want it," said Nicklaus. "It sounds funny, but it's still not. I got away with the bad shots I hit."

Nicklaus has won $126,532 in his five previous tournaments at Inverrary, averaging 69.3 in 20 rounds of golf. He never has had higher than a 74 on the 7,127-yard layout.

"I obviously play the course well," he said grinning. "I enjoy the golf course. It's the kind of golf course you can play 65 on."

Nicklaus had 28 putts in his round, including a six-foot eagle try on 15 which lipped the cup. He was six under on the hole in last year's TPC with two eagles and two birdies and also birdied the 532-yard hole Thursday.

The surprise of the day was Pooley, who lost his playing card last year and had to regain it last fall. He won $700 at Phoenix earlier this year but missed the cut at Tuscon, Los Angeles and in Hawaii.

Pooley, who survived Monday's qualifying round to get into the tournament, never has shot two better PGA rounds than his 71-69 here.

"This is a strange position for me," the 25-year-old Phoenix resident said. "I'm usually on the bottom of the list. I'll probably be a little nervous (Saturday)."

Floyd, rejoining the tour after a three-week layoff, said he worked earlier this month with Jack Grout on his swing.

"He's like a blessing to my golf game...now I feel I am playing more securely," said Floyd. "I feel very good about where I am."

McGee, who has won only one tournament in 10 years on the tour but pocketed $130,000 last year, said his 66 was "about as good and solid a round as I've ever played."

The cutoff point was five-over-par 149. Eighty-three players made the cut.

Midland High golfers move into 4th place

DEL RIO—Midland High's golf team fired a 308 Friday at Laughlin Air Force Base to move into fourth place in the Del Rio Invitational Golf Tournament.

San Antonio McArthur owns the lead with a 300 while San Antonio Churchill's 301 is good for second place. San Antonio Roosevelt's 306 leads the Bulldogs by two strokes.

The teams move to the San Felipe Country Club today for the final 18 holes. Abilene Cooper has a 312 for fifth place and Odessa Permian is in sixth with 314. Abilene High is tenth with 324.

"We left four starters at home," MHS coach Robert Young said. "I was very pleased with the way the younger kids played. I have three sophomores entered in this tournament."

Phil Littlefield led the way with a 76 while Russ Brown and Jeff Lutke both recorded 77. Richard Minnex posted a 78 and David Brimberry managed an 82.

Midland High is the defending tournament champion, and will have to make up eight strokes today on the tight San Felipe course. The Laughlin course was a wide open course, so the teams will face a different test today and things could change drastically.

Aggies' Ross fires 6-hitter at Hogs

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M's Mike Ross hurled a six-hit shutout as the Aggies downed Arkansas 60 in both school's Southwest Conference opening baseball game.

Ross received hitting help from sophomore rightfielder Shelton McMath who went three for four including his second home run of the season.

M-Cubs box-seat tickets pass 500 mark

BY TED BATTLES

Spring training for the Midland Cubs is only little more than two weeks away and Bill Rigney, Jr., Midland Cubs general manager, reports that season box-seat ticket sales have passed the 500 mark and are still climbing.

"I don't know whether we can reach our goal of 800," says Bill, "But I think we have a good chance of betting the 711 we sold last year," which, incidentally, was a record for the M-Cubs....

HOME RUN king Hank Aaron, who has moved into the Atlanta Braves' front office as farm director, is finding out how the other half (management) lives now. He moans, "Even minor leaguers are showing up with agents now."....

Although he was picked by "fans" to start in the NBA All-Star game, Denver's Dan Issel saw only 10 minutes action, which is less time than any player on either side played. All of which goes to show that the coach has the final say....

ARKANSAS, WHICH hasn't made the NCAA playoffs quite yet, last won the SWC basketball championship in 1958 and advanced to the NCAA regionals in 1958 and lost to Oklahoma State, primarily because of the 18 points scored by a Cowboys' guard named Eddie Sutton. Sutton, of course, is now coach of the Razorbacks and hopes to make amends...

According to assistant Jim Meyer, the Dallas Cowboys will take a look at 6-5, 235-pound Jim Jensen at fullback during the exhibition schedule. "He's big, fast, intelligent and a good blocker.

Ramirez, Vilas post wins at Mission Hills

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Raul Ramirez and second-seeded Guillermo Vilas won quarter-final matches Friday in the $225,000 Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club.

That set up a semifinal match Saturday pitting the two top seeds in what many feel will determine the champion of this week-long event.

Ramirez, the Mexican Davis Cup captain and former University of Southern California star, easily beat Frew McMillan of South Africa 6-2, 6-1.

Vilas, of Argentina, had a harder time beating Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., 6-4, 6-7, 6-0.

Only one seeded player was left in the other half of the draw. Sixth-seeded Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., beat Charles Pasarell in another marathon, 6-1, 6-7, 6-3.

BUFFALO (AP) — Phil Smith scored 37 points Friday night to lead the Golden State Warriors to a 104-97 National Basketball Association victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Smith made all but one of his 10 shots in the first half and was 8-for-14 after intermission as the Warriors snapped a three-game losing streak and ended a four-game winning streak for Buffalo.

Cox sparks Cards, 91-80

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Wesley Cox scored 31 points to lead 10th ranked Louisville to a 91-80 victory over Georgia Tech in a Metro Conference basketball game Friday night.

Cox hit 11 of 16 field goal attempts and all nine free throws.

Louisville boosted its season mark to 21-4.

Tico Brown's 21 points led Tech, now 16-9.

Cox scored eight of Louisville's first 13 points as the Cardinals opened a 13-4 lead with 15:02 remaining in the first half. Louisville led by as many as 17 points in the first 20 minutes, with Cox getting 22 of his total during that time.

Bo deplores 'waste' of Broyles, Royal

"Let's face it," said Bo Schembechler of Michigan, "coaches are being run ragged. We lost Frank Broyles and we lost Darrell Royal. They quit before their time, driven out by the demands of recruiting. I deplore such waste."

Schembechler, Tennessee's Johnny Majors and seven other head coaches at the NCAA's College Football '77 agreed the pressure-cooker pace of big time college football is growing more and more demanding. The coaches discussed their problems at Kansas City with 40 football writers from around the nation.

"If we had had these rules at the time, I wouldn't have taken the job at Pitt," said Majors, referring to the limit of eight coaches on a staff and 30 scholarships per year. "Without being able to recruit large classes of freshman from which to build a broad base for your team, it's going to take much longer to turn a program around."

Schembechler, Bill Yeoman of Houston and John Robinson of USC lined up in favor of the cutbacks.

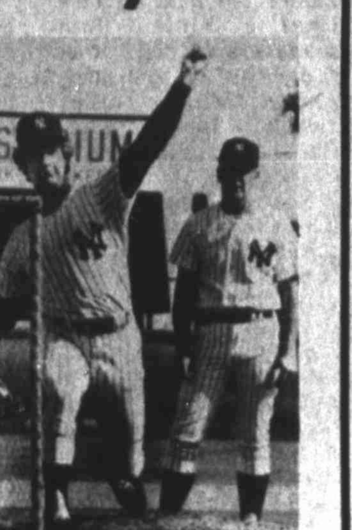

"People, I'm sorry, but I think it's good. It does appear we are returning to reason in our program. And that's not a bad deal," Yeoman said.

Robinson said, "I think we can live with it."

Finley lists terms

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley, volatile owner of the Oakland A's, sent Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Friday a list of conditions for his attendance at a hearing into the sale of pitcher Paul Lindblad.

Unless the conditions are met, Finley's lengthy telegram says, the hearing will be a "sham" and will serve no purpose except as "a personal inquisition" aimed at Finley.

Kuhn called the hearing after Finley announced last Saturday that he had sold the 35-year-old relief hurler to the Texas Rangers for $400,000. Kuhn, who had announced the day before that he wanted to be advised before any clubs sold top stars, blocked the sale pending the hearing. He took similar action June 18 in halting the sale of three Oakland superstars for $3.5 million.

Finley and Kuhn are in court over that one, with Finley suing Kuhn for the amount of the sale.

Bayi outduels O'Shaughnessy

NEW YORK (AP) — Filbert Bayi outdueled Niall O'Shaughnessy in the mile, Francie Larrieu Lutz and Tommy Haynes each won two events and Jane Frederick and Rosalyn Bryant were among four individual world record breakers Friday night at the AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships.

The meet was marred by a controversy in the men's high jump, in which three of the world's top competitors— Dwight Stones, Tom Woods and Bill Jankunis—withdrew.

Bayi, the slendor Tanzanian who said he dislikes pacesetters, made most of the pace around Madison Square Garden's 11 laps to the mile track before the diminutive O'Shaughnessy overhauled him with 1¼ laps remaining.

The wispy, 5-foot-7, 128-pound O'Shaughnessy held the lead until the final straightaway. Then Bayi overtook him in the final strides in winning in 3:59.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second ahead of the University of Arkansas senior from Ireland.

Mrs. Lutz registered a remarkable long distance double, winning the women's two mile in the meet record time of 9:58.2, then coming back about a half hour later to capture the mile in 4:43.1.

Her feat duplicated the accomplishment of Jan Merrill in this meet last year. Miss Merrill attempted another double in the 880-yard run and the two mile. But this time she was unsuccessful in both events, finishing second in the two mile and last in the 880.

Judy, suffering flu, fires career-low 63

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Judy Rankin fought off a bout with the flu Friday and shot a career record nine-under-par 63 to take the first-round lead in the $100,000 Bent Tree Ladies Classic.

Mrs. Rankin topped her previous career record of 65, shot in Omaha in 1965. She was one stroke short of topping the Ladies Professional Golf Association record set in 1964 by Mickey Wright at Mrs. Rankin's home town, Midland, Tex.

Mrs. Rankin, last year's top money winner on the LPGA tour, took last week's Orange Blossom Classic in St. Petersburg by five strokes.

She scored nine birdies and nine pars Friday to break the record on the 6,214-yard Bent Tree Golf Club Course.

Miss Wright shot a four-under-par 68 for second. Beth Stone was third at 69.

Penny Pulz and Sandra Post were tied for fourth place with two-under-par 70s. Last year's winner, Kathy Whitworth, was 10 shots back at 73.

"This game is so much fun when you make a few putts," said Mrs. Rankin. "When you make a lot, it's just hilarious."

The LPGA player of the year, Mrs. Rankin sunk a 30-foot putt from off the green on the 16th hole. She also made a six-foot putt on the 11th, an eight-footer on the 14th and an 18-foot shot on the 18th.

Mrs. Rankin said she had been fighting the flu all week.

"It was one of those days I felt I could get the ball close to the hole," she said. "I stood over the putt and figured I had a chance to sink it. Let's face it, you can play that kind of a tee-to-green round and shoot a 69."

—Mrs. Rankin's partner, Jo Ann Prentice, shot 75.

"Playing with Judy makes me feel like I shot a thousand," she said.

Chaps hold down fifth

HOUSTON — Mary Ann Londrigan of Midland College cracked one of five AIAW records here Friday by winning the 400-yard individual medley in 4:40.31. Her time eclipsed the 4:45.32 set by Suzy Lind of Texas A&M in the prelims although Miss Lindy came back to swim a 4:41.0 in the finals.

With one day to go in the state AIAW meet, the Midland College girls were in fifth place with 194 points in the 16-team field. Texas A&M led with 354 while Texas was second at 338, followed by Houston 235, Lamar 224, Midland and SMU 170.

Hibbett's home run paces Longhorns

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas outfielder Wendell Hibbett slugged a grand slam homer in the seventh inning to lead Texas to a 9-3 Southwest Conference baseball victory over Texas Tech in the league opener for both teams Friday.

Hibbett's blast was followed by a solo homer by catcher Bobby Kearney and concluded the Texas scoring.

SWC to begin cage scramble

By The Associated Press

The Arkansas Razorbacks sit back to watch the bloodshed and polish their Southwest Conference basketball crown while the other teams slug it out in the first round of the SWC basketball playoffs Saturday.

The Razorbacks, which won the season undefeated and are ranked sixth nationally with a 25-1 record, will take on the only opponent standing after the playoffs in a battle for the championship.

Houston, which lost twice to the Razorbacks but still has hopes of a rematch, is almost assured of a second round berth. The Cougars, 13-4, will host Texas Christian, 0-16.

In other matches, Texas Tech, 12—4 will host Rice, 3-13, and Baylor, 5-11, will be at Texas, 8-8, while Texas A&M, 8-8, hosts Southern Methodist in an afternoon television match.

The four survivors will then begin play on March 3 in the Summit in Houston with the winners of the first series meeting for the right to battle the Razorbacks.

The tournament winner will advance to the first round of the Midwest Regionals at Norman, Okla. the following week.

The Razorbacks came close to having their record marred by the Aggies in the last game of regular season. They managed a 63-62 victory and Coach Eddie Sutton immediately announced his players would have three days off.

Even if they lose in the tournament finals, the Razorbacks likely will get an invitation to be in the NCAA playoffs because of their 21-1 record.

In winning the conference with a perfect record, the Razorbacks accomplished what no other SWC team had done since 1957 when SMU pulled the trick.

Official statistics show the Razorbacks led the league in defense allowing only 57 points per game. The 918 points allowed by Arkansas was the lowest total since the SWC went into a 16-game format and was lower than all but two of the 14-game totals of 1975.

Sidney Moncrief led the Razorbacks in field goal percentage with a 65.5 reading.

Meanwhile, Houston established a SWC record for the highest average in both full season, 92.5, and SWC competition, 95.3.

Kingman, 3 mates miss first workout

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Dave Kingman was among three players missing Friday when the New York Mets held their first spring baseball workout.

Kingman, second baseman Felix Millan and utility infielder Leo Foster were absent from the two-hour drill held under a warm sun in 70-degree temperature. Foster is due in camp on Saturday and Millan reportedly is on his way from Puerto Rico.

Get ready, Pay-TV is on way

By CHARLES MAHER
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — At least once before the next equinox, or before Charlie Finley next changes managers (whichever occurs first), somebody will announce he has just read all the latest tea leaves and has concluded that pay television will be the saviour of sports. It's been going on for years.

Now, little more than a year after the Lakers and Kings went on pay TV, the Dodgers and Angels have decided to experiment with the medium. So is salvation finally at hand?

Maybe. It's hard to say.

Sometime sports promoter Jerry Perenchio, now in the pay-TV businesses, is predictably enthusiastic. The Angels, Lakers and Kings are hopeful. The Dodgers would like a longer look. Charlie Finley? He'd just like his team back.

Perenchio's company, National Subscription Television, will present six Dodger and six Angel games in the greater metropolitan area this year. "By the end of the first year, we're projecting 50,000 subscribers and by the end of the second year 150,000," Perenchio said. "Now I don't have to tell you that projections are nothing more than that. But I think it's doable...

"WITHIN A few years we think we'll have not less than two events a week, live. Baseball, football, basketball, track, wrestling, boxing, college sports, et cetera."

Angel president Red Patterson said the future of baseball, and possibly of all sports, may be in pay TV. "We're going to have to get much more income or a lot of clubs will fold," he said. "This could be the answer. But we're only at the beginning."

"I see it as being in its infancy," said broadcast executive Gene Felling. "But there's definitely a market. People are into special programming and obtaining sports events not offered on commercial channels."

"This is an experiment," said Dodger president Peter O'Malley. "How it's received by the viewers, whether they think the fee is in line with the programming they see, will determine the future of it. I don't think anyone can guess where it will be a year from now or 10 years from how. It's just another experiment which hopefully will be successful."

THE METHOD of transmitting Dodger and Angel games on pay TV will differ from that used on Laker and King games, which are broadcast regionally or nationally by Home Box Office of New York, a subsidiary of Time, Inc.

The two baseball teams will be seen on over-the-air pay TV. The Lakers and Kings are on pay-cable TV.

THE SUBSCRIBER will pay a $24.95 installation fee, make a refundable $25 deposit on the unscrambling device and pay a $17 monthly fee. He will get movies and other entertainment programs in addition to sports.

Perenchio said his company is talking with the Rams and with colleges. "We are also negotiating with Jack Kent Cooke on the Lakers and Kings," he said, "and we hope to conclude those negotiations in the near future."

The Lakers and Kings, of course, are already on pay TV but not in Perenchio's market. The Home Box Office cable telecasts cannot be received within a 35-mile radius of Los Angeles. Perenchio wants the market within the 35-mile radius.

HE THINKS he'll be able to expand his sports programming because player salaries are going up like coffee prices and, as Patterson said, the owners need another revenue source.

"The only way these owners have a chance to come out is if pay TV becomes viable," he said. "Take the Dodgers. I'm sure their payroll has doubled over just the past few years. And I mean few years."

But the question arises: What effect would pay TV have on attendance? If a fan can see the game at home, will he go to the stadium or arena?

"I don't think it will have any effect," Perenchio said. "A lot of sports enthusiasts can't get to the stadium all the time. Yet their desire to see sports is there. I don't think they'll go less to the stadium but will seize the opportunity to watch some games in their living room."

But how about the fan who has attended games regularly? Now he can avoid the drive and still see the games.

"If we had a crystal ball we'd know the answer," Perenchio said. "But with people who go to the ballpark it's a social experience, entirely different from staying in their living rooms. I do not believe the gate will be adversely affected."

PATTERSON AGREES. "I don't think we ever want to see a 'studio game' with empty stands," he said. "But I don't think pay TV necessarily means that.

"I draw on the experience of the Mets and the Yankees, who have been putting their home games on TV. And that's free TV. It hasn't affected their crowds, or at least has not been as serious as some people thought it would be."

Home Box Office, which does the Laker and King games, has only about 20,000 subscribers in California.

A spokesman of Home Box Office in New York said Madison Square Garden has shown home games of the Knicks and Rangers on cable in Manhattan for some years. "Up until maybe last year," he said, "the Garden had no problem selling out the Knicks and Rangers. Now they have problems and may have second thoughts about cable.

"In Philadelphia, the Phillies, 76ers and Flyers have formed a company called Prism and are marketing their home games for pay TV. It hasn't really been thoroughly tested but the games are pretty popular because all three teams are pretty hot. They have subscribers in the city and in the suburbs."

NEW YORK Mets' pitcher Jerry Koosman is trying to exercise, but sons Shawn, 7, and Mike, 9, would rather play as Mets begin spring training in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Umps told not to report

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball umpires have been told not to report to spring training until a general contract has been reached, a top baseball official said Friday.

Both the National and American league umpires received word from their respective leagues Friday, he said.

The umpires, whose contract ran out after the 1976 season, are looking for a long-term contract with an increase in pay and had said previously they would not report to the spring training camps without at least the basis for an agreement.

"Unless some kind of tentative agreement is reached or, at the very least, the basis for an agreement is established with the next few weeks, it looks as if we won't be going to spring training," NL umpire Billy Williams, secretary of Major League Umpires' Association said recently.

The 26 major league clubs began spring training this week and exhibition games are scheduled in two weeks.

With the American League adding two more teams, Seattle and Toronto, Lee MacPhail, the AL president, has suggested his league use three-man crews rather than the normal four-man crews. The umpires association is opposed to the proposal.

The umpires are seeking:

—an increase in the minimum starting salary from $15,500 to $21,500; $1,500 increments thereafter through the ninth year and $3,000 increments from the 10th year to the 20th.

—raising fees for spring training games from the present $25 per game to $100; spring training per diem from $49 a day to $64.50.

—establishment of a $250,000 pool in place of individual payments for World Series, All-Star games and league playoff games. The $250,000 would be alloted to the umpires association for dispersal as it see fit. At present umpires receive $9,500 for working World Series games, $5,500 for playoffs and $1,250 for the All-Star games.

Montreal saves Village

MONTREAL (AP) — The idea of blowing up the Olympic Village was discussed several weeks ago by a committee of Quebec politicians and civil servants studying the future of the $85-million facility.

The idea "of blowing it up or otherwise demolishing the building was examined quite seriously" but was rejected, said Marcel Bart, press secretary to Quebec Sports Minister Claude Charron.

"After all, there were a number of people who argued that when you take the cost of getting the Village ready for use and operating it over the years, it would simply not be worth keeping," Mr. Bart said in an interview published Friday.

The idea emerged several times from a newspaper advertising campaign started by the provincial government to solicit citizens' suggestions on how the Village should be used.

The $10-million cost of demolishing the twin-pyramid structure was a factor that caused rejection of the idea.

Howes to join Bruins

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League Boston Bruins have won and the Gordie Howe family will be leaving the financially troubled Houston Aeros, the Houston Post reported Friday.

"Within the next few months, the family Howe — Gordie, Mark, and Marty — will be packing for Boston," said a Post story from Phoenix, Ariz. "And, for the most part, the Howes will continue to operate as one."

The Aeros of the World Hockey Association opened a three-game road trip Friday night in Phoenix.

The Post said Gordie had recently stated he would probably be working in Boston next year, either in the concessions business or the steel industry. The Jacobs brothers, owners of the Bruins, are major operators of arena and stadium concessions.

THERE ALSO have been reports the Bruins have been trying to work a deal with Montreal to acquire the rights to Marty.

"They have them right now," the Post quoted Mark as saying. "Got them two or three days ago. I don't know what it took—cash, trade or whatever. All I know is that Boston now owns the NHL rights to both of us."

"None of us began the season thinking we would leave Houston or the Aeros," Mark said. "But it has reached a point now that I think the only way possible for us to stay was if there were a merger and the Aeros were to come under new ownership. I don't see both of those happening right now."

TWO PAYCHECKS have been deferred for all the Aeros except the Howes who combined annual salaries total $325,000.

But Mark said the Howes also have deferred $10,000 each.

"That includes playoff money from last year and performance bonuses written in our contracts," he said.

"We don't ever expect to see that money. They say they are going to pay us, but I don't see how."

Mark said it is true, he was packed and ready to head for Boston if his Aeros paycheck had not been delivered.

"That's because the deadline for signing with an NHL team is March 6," he said.

Bonnett registers surprise

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Neil Bonnett, looking like the bright new stock car star he's tabbed to be, surprised a flock of veteran drivers Friday and won the pole position in record time for Sunday's Richmond 400 Grand National race.

The 30-year-old Bonnett, who was feeling down and had lost his sponsor after two personally dissatisfying performances earlier this season, wheeled the Harry Hyde-prepared Dodge around the .542-mile oval at an average speed of 93.632 miles per hour.

Bonnett, who switched this season from his own independent operation to the Hyde Dodge, did not finish in the season opener at Riverside and last week's Daytona 500. However, he said his outlook was better here because his Dodge won last year's Richmond 400 with Dave Marcis driving.

WHA bid rejected

TORONTO (AP) — Hockey Canada's international committee rejected Friday a bid from the World Hockey Association to include 30 games against international competition in its 1977-78 schedule.

The proposal would have allowed WHA teams to play against teams from Sweden, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union, with the results counting in the standings.

MacFarland said his league would continue to try to convince Hockey Canada of the need for increasing numbers of games against international competition

Islam turns on Ali

CHICAGO (AP) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali failed in several fund-raising tours to the Arab World on behalf of the Nation of Islam because of drunken and sexual debauchery by members of his entourage, said a complaint filed Friday in federal court.

Constantine Kangles, the attorney who filed the suit on behalf of a foreign fund-raising corporation, would not say whether Ali himself acted in the manner described by the suit.

"We're not saying he did; we're not saying he didn't," said Kangles. "We're saying he knew about it."

THE COMPLAINT asks for $5 million in damages for Garland M. Taylor, of Chicago, and his firm, the American Arabian Investment Co.

The suit contends that Taylor signed two contracts with the Nation of Islam, which agreed to pay him 10 per cent of all gifts or grants and 2 per cent of all loans he solicited.

During 1975, Taylor claimed he obtained promises of $50 million for the Nation of Islam from Saudi Arabia, The United Arab Emirates and Kuwait.

The suit said Taylor was hired "after a great deal of adverse opinion had been formed against the Nation.

"This arose through the behavior of the large group of followers," the suit said.

"It was reported to the company that this large entourage of Muhammad Ali had engaged in the use of narcotics, the taking of alcoholic liquors and consorting and carousing with women other than their wives," the suit said.

"IN THE Arab world these acts are to a believer in the Moslem Religion, most serious violations of all of the religious teachings and they make a person unworthy to be known as a Moslem or a follower of their faith."

The suit said: "Equally important, any such actions constitute serious violations of the laws and criminal statutes of all the various Arab States. The taking and transporting of dope, marijuana, heroin, cocaine or other such narcotic agents in the Arab World is summarily punished as a criminal offense of the highest priority."

Batboy calls Yankees cheapskates

NEW YORK (AP) — Three New York Yankees batboys have refused to accept the $100 offered each of them in place of the World Series shares, which were voted down by Yankees players.

"The Yankees were cheapskates," said Walter Gershoff, a batboy who was let go before the Series, "and we want everybody to remember them as cheapskates."

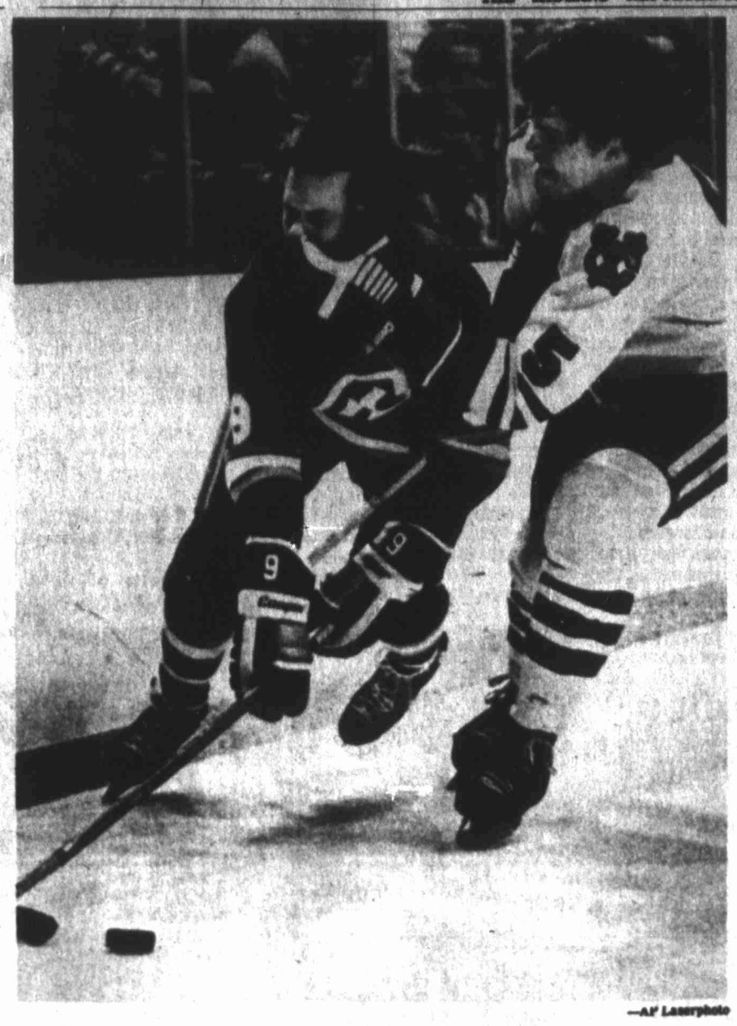

After it was reported that the Yankees had voted not to cut the batboys in on the World Series money, relief pitcher Sparky Lyle said he would write each of them a check for $100 from the Yankees' fine fund.

"If we take that, it will be like taking tip money instead of really getting a Series share which we feel was coming to us," Nick Garris, another Yankees batboy, told the New York Post.

Garris said the vote to exclude the batboys was taken before the playoffs. "What if the Yankees had lost the playoffs?" Garris said. "We would have owed them money."

Another batboy, Alan Vines, said at least six players had told him he would receive a World Series share. The Yankees' fourth batboy, Joseph D'Ambrosio, who wants to be a batboy again this year, declined to get involved in the situation.

Lyle, en route to Florida, was unavailable for immediate comment.

Rangers well-stocked in pitching

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — You can almost smell spring in the air and major league baseball teams can almost smell division pennants at this time of year.

It's the time when the promising young pitchers have not failed and the powerful rookies have not begun to strike out.

The Texas Rangers of the American League opened their spring training Friday with an armful of pitchers, renewed hopes and the admonition by manager Frank Lucchesi that he does not want "yes" men as assistant coaches.

There were only a few of the players on hand when the team began training routines.

Lucchesi met with his four coaches for over an hour Thursday to define roles for the season.

Pat Corrales and Sid Hudson are returning to the Texas staff while Fred Koenig and Connie Ryan are newcomers. Ryan will coach at third and will be in charge of infielders. Lucchesi emphasized that he won't second guess his third-base coach if a runner is thrown out by a few feet at the plate.

Koenig will coach at first, and generally coordinate all coaching activities.

Corrales will be in charge of making out the batting practice schedule and will assist with the pitchers. Hudson will be the pitching coach.

Lucchesi stressed that he did not want yes-men, and was interested in ideas from all the coaches.

Lucchesi said he told the coaches he wanted them all to help evaluate the staff because of the number of pitchers in camp.

If Paul Linblad is counted, the Rangers will have 21 pitchers. Lucchesi said the Rangers do not know whether to count him since commissioner Bowie Kuhn voided the deal pending Wednesday's hearing.

"The subject came up, but we're in kind of a limbo," the manager said. "I don't even know where Lindblad is. He might be n a plane flying here for all I know."

For the Rangers who make it, workouts will start at 10:30 each morning. "I don't believe in a set routine," Lucchesi said. "If it takes an hour to do what we need, that's how long we'll be here. If it takes four hours, we'll stay here four hours."

Sportsmen lose friend

BY GREG AKINS

Warren Page, one of the nation's best known sportsmen and gun writers for more than a quarter of a century, died at his home in New Canaan, Conn., Jan. 22, just a few days after his 67th birthday.

Page's worldwide sporting and conservation achievements had earned him the respect and admiration of millions of his fellow sportsmen, and won numerous awards and distinctions.

Although I never met Mr. Page personally, he was a frequent visitor to the Tall City and had many friends here. I know he will be missed, but his legacy is one for all sportsmen.

I HAVE, on more than one occasion, written about hunter safety. I still firmly believe that this has to be at the top of every gun handlers list. We will never lick the problem of having accidents with firearms because of the human element. But, thanks to man dedicated, concientious people, we are making strides in that direction.

Some statistics to attest to this come from a recent survey by the National Safety Council. On their list, firearms rated seventh as the most frequent cause of accidental death in the United States. Firearms accounted for approximately 2.5 per cent of the accidental deaths nationwide, and that includes all firearm accidents, those at home as well as while hunting.

BY COMPARISON, automobile accidents accounted for 47.8 per cent of the total fatalities. Falls accounted for another 15.5 per cent, or more than seven times that of firearms.

By looking at the number of licensed hunters nationwide, it calculates that .000033 per cent died in firearms accidents. Similar statistics, using the number of licensed Texas hunters, revealed a .000010 per cent accidental death rate.

Even though this is a very low percentage, there were 63 reported accidents and 11 of these resulted in someone's death. Make a promise to yourself to practice safe gun handling in the future, and if you are not aware of how to handle firearms in a safe manner, make it a point this year to get qualified instruction. You'll be glad you did next hunting season.

IF YOU are in the mood to get in some New Mexico trout fishing, you can start today at lakes Charette, Clayton, Jackson, Maxwell 13 and 14, McAllister and Springer. Fishing should be pretty good on most of the lakes, but the Maxwell lakes are very low and are not being recommended as yet. Lakes to open April 1 include Alice, Bonito, Maloya and Santa Cruz.

If your are going to be traveling east of Dallas anytime soon, you might enjoy wetting a hook at Lake Quitman. I had a report of a stringer of 29 crappie that weighed in at 36 pounds.

A crappie report a little closer to home notes that Mrs. Joe White of Odessa landed one at Oak Creek Lake that weighed 2 pounds, 9 ounces. You just don't hear of crappie that large very often.

FISHING IS reported very good at Lake Spence with a 22½ pound striper and a 9½ pound black heading the list. Both of these fish were just one-half pound under the lake record.

With the weather getting prettier, and the water temperature warming, fishing should continue to improve. So get your fishing license and go.

Midland College club hosts Brazilian team

A 16-member Brazilian national swim team will be guests at a special international night Tuesday sponsored by the Midland College International Club.

The event will be in the student center from 6:30 to 10 p.m. and is opened to the public.

The swim team arrived in Midland Friday and will stay until March 5.

Persons who wish to attend may bring a covered dish or desert for 10 people or pay $1 instead of bringing food.

Activities will include the buffet dinner, featuring food from different countries, and an informal talent show, which will include folk dances, songs, costumes from other countries and other entertainment.

"We particularly invite those persons in Midland who are natives of other countries to attend and share their heritage with us," said Darlene Sage, club president.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Sage at 694-8592 or Anita Harwell, club sponsor, at the college.

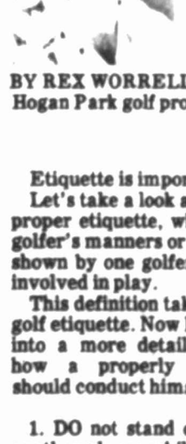

Phils sign Sizemore

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Second baseman Ted Sizemore, obtained in an off-season trade with the Los Angeles Dodgers, signed a three-year contract with the Philadelphia Phillies Friday and then went to work to win a starting job.

The 30-year-old veteran will be battling rookie Fred Andrews, utility man Terry Harmon and recently acquired Dave Johnson for the spot vacated by Dave Cash.

"That's all right. At least I'll be given a chance to win a job here," said Sizemore, who joined workouts in the club's first full day of spring training.

Golf etiquette is important

BY REX WORRELL

Etiquette is important in golf!

Let's take a look at the big E in golf, proper etiquette, which amounts to a golfer's manners or common courtesy shown by one golfer to another while involved in play.

This definition takes in all phases of golf etiquette. Now let's break it down into a more detailed description of how a properly educated golfer should conduct himself on the course.

1. DO not stand close to or behind another player while he is addressing the ball or making a stroke. Talking (Blackie) and moving around (Charlie) under these conditions are also considered taboo.

2.No player should make a shot until all is clear up ahead. In other words, wait until the players in front are well out of range.

3. In the best interests of all players, it is necessary to play without delay. This is the most frequently abused rule of etiquette. To hold up the foursomes behind you frustrates both your own group and the players waiting to hit. If your group gets behind only a couple of minutes are required to stop and allow a faster group to play through.

4. Players searching for a lost ball should always permit players coming up to pass them.

5. Before leaving sand traps after play, the courteous golfer levels the sand.

6. Players should not pull carts or drop bags on the putting surface. Before leaving a green, all ball marks and spike marks made while playing the hole should be repaired. As soon as this is done, leave the green immediately to make way for the next group.

POLITENESS ON the golf course has traditionally been the main reason why golf is considered a game of gentlemen and ladies. Check your group's etiquette the next time you play and see how it measures up....

Eagle shooters this week were Scott Shelton and Roy Haze. Scott eagled the par five eighth hole, hitting a perfect six iron witnessed by Judge Bill Ahders. Roy eagled the same hole with a chip-in witnessed by Marvin McCree. Congratulations.
