Expression of grief

Midlanders join in a prayer during Tuesday's ceremony to commemorate the Marines who died in Beirut. The event was held during the lunch hour at the Downtown Park.

Midlanders mourn dead Marines

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." John 15:13

More than 200 American Marines in Beirut, Lebanon, laid down their lives for their friends in the United States, and Midlanders commemorated it with a Day of Mourning ceremony at noon Tuesday in the Downtown Plaza Park.

As traffic wheeled by, brakes screeching at stop lights several blocks away, about 200 business people and school children gathered under the warm sun to hear four ministers and an ensemble sing praises to the fallen servicemen.

Although none of those killed or injured were from Midland, Freddie Nelms thought the city should show its grief and sympathy for those families who have felt the loss. Last week, he began pushing the idea of such a ceremony and other religious groups joined.

After opening remarks by the Rev. Johnny Mitchell, the Rev.

W.C. Kenan said, "A few Sundays ago in a country we know of, in Lebanon, as we were at home enjoying our lives some of our countrymen lost their lives. We're here to respect those who lost their lives. Our men laid down their lives for what they thought was right."

As he prayed, Kenan said, "God grant strength to those bereaved families, to strengthen them, to guide them. We pray for the President; this is a trying hour. We pray for the Congress to make the right decision."

People stood quietly on the lawn as they listened to the Praise and Promises ensemble from the First Baptist Church, directed by Doris Bruce, sing "America the Beautiful" and an updated version of "The Star-Spangled Banner." "Praise the Lord and give thanks, America," rang out one line.

A few sniffles could be heard, a few tears wiped from the eyes, a few hands raised to the glistening golden sun. Couples folded their arms around each other.

Nelms, accepting a proclamation from Mayor G. Thane Akins, said, "The true response will have to come from each of you here today." He likened the disaster to unpolished pearls. "Do not let the pearls remain unpolished. We can see to it those 200-plus Marines have not died in vain. Let the gift of life and suffering given by those loved ones be finally rewarded."

Closing remarks came from Dr. Daniel Vestal. "I love America," he said, pausing while several quiet "Yeas" were uttered throughout the crowd.

"The strength of America will not be found in its military. The strength of America will be found in the character of its people."

Quoting from Psalm 119:33, the pastor said, "Teach me O Lord, the way of thy statutes. Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; I shall observe it with my whole heart. Make me to go in the path of thy commandments... Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity; and quicken me in thy way."

He concluded, "Let's give thanks for the American men who died for their courage and their faith."

As the last words of the "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" faded into the noontime noises, the sun's heat was replaced with chills when the singular strains of "Taps" tumbled into the air and fell over the crowd.

The Rev. Johnny Mitchell of the Antioch Baptist Church was one of the speakers at the Day of Mourning ceremony.

Diplomats ordered out of Grenada

■ Reporter's impressions of Grenada, Page 3E

POINT SALINES, Grenada (AP) — Cuban, Soviet and Libyan diplomats were ordered to leave Grenada by today, but an official in Havana says Cuba's delegation would stay put until Cubans captured or wounded during the U.S.-led invasion are evacuated.

About 70 of the 600 Cuban prisoners worked Tuesday on the construction of a detention camp to house them until they are sent back to Cuba.

By nightfall, after 36 hours' work, prisoners moved into the complex of 30 tents and a concrete building at Point Salines. The complex is near an airport many of the Cubans were helping build before the United States invaded the Caribbean island to oust a Marxist, pro-Cuban regime that seized power in a military coup two weeks earlier.

Shortly before a nightly curfew began, Capt. Bob Willey, a U.S. Army spokesman, said there had been no reports of any shots fired on Grenada on Tuesday. But 17 Grenadian troops were reported to have surrendered to the 292 Marines who took Carriacou, a tiny island dependency of Grenada, and five other Grenadian soldiers were captured in the northern part of Grenada.

Cuba's deputy foreign minister, Ricardo Alarcon, said the expulsion order from Governor General Paul Scoon of Grenada "will only be carried out by force and by U.S. troops."

Scoon, "evidently acting under instructions by the U.S. government, ordered the Cuban diplomatic personnel on Grenada to leave the country in 24 hours," Alarcon said, adding the message was received before noon Tuesday.

Libya and the Soviet Union did not publicly comment on the order Tuesday.

Alarcon said he did not know how many people were part of the Cuban mission in St. George's, the capital of Grenada. But he said they would not leave — except possibly the women and children — until the Cuban prisoners were returned.

International Red Cross officials said they hoped that 35 wounded and 15 ill Cuban prisoners would be airlifted today or Thursday to Barbados, where a Swiss jet waited to take them home.

Two Cubans, one with a spinal injury and the other with a fractured skull, have been admitted to a U.S. hospital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where 44 American servicemen and one Grenadian have also been treated for injuries in the invasion.

Catherine Peduzzi, a Red Cross representative, said details for evacuating the remaining 600 Cuban prisoners of war will be worked out later. "Our main priorities right now are the wounded and the sick," she said.

Woman optimistic husband still alive

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Although a U.S. drilling ship that vanished during a typhoon with a crew of 81 aboard — including a Midland engineer — was found resting on its side at the bottom of the South China Sea, Patti Cates said she's optimistic her husband is alive.

Native Midlander Bernard Patrick Cates, 39, was on board the Glomar Java Seas as sub-sea engineer. According to Mrs. Cates, her husband is responsible for the equipment attached to the wellhead.

"He left Midland on the 17th (of October) and arrived at the rig on the 20th," Mrs. Cates said. "There wouldn't have been time to hear from him, but we're very optimistic."

"We have no indication at this point not to be optimistic. Until they start recovering bodies, I see no reason to think otherwise."

No survivors from the Glomar Java Sea had been found Tuesday, but the search was continuing, said a spokesman for the company that owns the vessel.

"We do know there have been survivors off the rig," Mrs. Cates said. "They just haven't been located."

"It's a logical deduction to be optimistic, but I'm not being unrealistic to think something could go wrong," she added.

According to the Associated Press, a Chinese workboat using sonar spotted the 5,926-ton ship in 300 feet of water, about 60 miles south of China's Hainan Island near Vietnam. Richard Vermeer, vice president for control and administration of Global Marine Inc. of Houston, said the sonar equipment determined that the ship is sunk at the drilling site, AP reported.

Mexican holiday celebrates death

HUEJUTLA, Mexico (AP) — Millions of Mexicans join in a feast with the dead today in a ceremony stretching back to the times of their Aztec ancestors.

It is the Day of the Dead — a bizarre blend of pagan and Roman Catholic tradition and for many Mexicans the country's most important holiday.

In this isolated mountain town 150 miles north of Mexico City, as in thousands of other villages and towns, symbols of death are everywhere in the weeks before Nov. 2. Bakery shelves are piled high with bread in the shape of bones. People buy and eat sugar skulls that carry their names. Children play with toy skeletons. Friends exchange poems that jokingly refer to each other's funeral. Radio stations play song after song about death.

The celebration tells much about this nation of 75 million people.

"The word death is not pronounced in New York, in Paris, in London, because it burns the lips," Octavio Paz, Mexico's leading poet and essayist, says in his book "The Labyrinth of Solitude."

"The Mexican, in contrast, is familiar with death, jokes about it, caresses it, sleeps with it. It is one of his favorite toys and his most steadfast love."

That intimacy is inherited from the ancient Aztecs, who saw death as a natural transition from life and honored their dead in commemorations sometimes lasting months. Life and death were represented by the same goddess, and her symbol was a human skull.

Opponents view child support proposition as dangerous precedent

EDITOR'S NOTE: Eleven constitutional amendments will appear on the Nov. 8 ballot. This series examines the arguments for and against each proposal and how each would affect the state's citizens. This part looks at Proposition Six.

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

If there has been any fire of controversy fanned in the Nov. 8 constitutional amendments election, it has been sparked by Proposition Six.

It would allow "the legislature to provide for additional remedies to enforce court-ordered child support payments."

Opponents see the proposition as a "dangerous precedent." Since 1986 the Texas Constitution has prohibited the garnishment of wages — the seizure of a person's current pay to satisfy the claims of creditors. In Article 16 Section 28, the Constitution reads: "No current wages for personal service shall ever be subject to garnishment."

THE AMENDMENTS

This has been interpreted as a bar to any Texas law permitting involuntary withholding of wages to satisfy court-ordered child support obligations.

But in 1982 the Texas Senate Subcommittee on Public Health and Welfare's study of child support enforcement recommended the Constitution be amended to permit courts to order income withholding in child-support cases.

FORTY-FIVE OTHER states have some type of mechanism to enforce child-support payments. Ten states which use income withholding also permit voluntary wage assignments by parents who are ordered to pay child support.

Although Texas law requires parents to support their unmarried minor children, the methods currently in use in Texas have failed, according to Mark Hoover, regional director for child support division of the Texas Attorney General's office in Midland.

Hoover said there are three remedies to collect for non-support: File with the child support division, seek a private attorney or go through the welfare department.

Young black will probably face all-white jury in robbery trial

DALLAS (AP) — An all-white jury will probably hear the armed robbery case of a young black engineer who claims the charges against him are racially motivated, a defense attorney says.

Edwin M. Sigel, an attorney for the 25-year-old defendant, Anthony Williams, said Tuesday that only six of 72 people in the jury pool for the case are black.

"That's just an unlucky draw" that there are so few blacks in the jury pool, Sigel said.

A prosecutor was expected today to continue asking prospective jurors individually how much they know about the case that has drawn nationwide publicity because of allegations that the charges were racially motivated.

Williams, of Swansea, S.C., is accused of stealing $31 in the Aug. 22, 1982, armed robbery of a suburban Dallas convenience store. Williams says he is innocent.

No jurors were chosen in the first day of jury selection Monday, although Assistant District Attorney Steve Miller individually questioned more than 20 prospective jurors.

Prosecutors said that it would be this afternoon at the earliest before a jury is chosen.

Williams moved to the Northeast Texas city of Greenville from South Carolina to go to work for E-Systems Inc., a major defense contractor, last year.

Lenell Geter, 25, his former roommate and co-worker, received a life sentence last fall for a similar robbery Aug. 23, 1982, at a Balch Springs fast-food restaurant, despite testimony from 10 E-Systems employees that Geter was at work when the crime occurred.

Both defendants' cases have drawn national attention, including investigations by CBS' "60 Minutes" and exposure on Phil Donahue's syndicated talk show.

State District Judge Ed Kinkeade ordered a jury pool larger than the usual 42 people because of publicity surrounding the case.

"We don't try lawsuits in the media," Kinkeade told prospective jurors Tuesday.

Williams' trial was to have begun Monday, but it was delayed by Kinkeade because of his infant son's illness.

Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade said there is solid evidence against Williams. Wade has refused a request by NAACP attorney George Hairston to drop the charges against Williams until Geter's conviction could be appealed.

Williams was the victim of overzealous detective work and mistaken identification, said co-workers and civil rights groups.

"We feel very strongly for these guys," said Ed Garrett, an E-Systems supervisor who testified for Geter. "We feel it was a grave injustice."

Williams and Geter were recent graduates of South Carolina State College working at $22,000 a year jobs at E-Systems when the investigations began.

Family of deceased kidney patient files suit against center, manufacturer

DALLAS (AP) — The family of one of three patients who died within minutes of each other after receiving kidney dialysis treatment has filed a $1 million federal lawsuit against the treatment center and the manufacturer of the dialysis equipment.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday on behalf of Jeroline Thompson, alleges that her death was caused by the negligence of the staff at the Dallas Kidney Disease Center. Extracorporeal Medical Specialties, Inc., a Pennsylvania-based company and subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson Inc., was also named as a defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Thompson, 59, was one of three people who suffered nearly simultaneous heart attacks Friday when their blood rose to fatal temperatures while they were connected to dialysis equipment at the treatment center, authorities said.

Two other patients were hospitalized but have been discharged.

Investigators probing the deaths completed an on-site inspection of the equipment and pronounced it safe for continued use, a spokesman for the center said Tuesday.

Investigators from the Food and Drug Administration, the owner of the clinic and the manufacturer of the equipment completed their examinations Monday night, said a spokesman for the center who asked not to be identified.

The fatal malfunction was apparently caused by two wires that crossed, resulting in overheating of the cleansing saline solution flowing into the patients' bloodstreams, officials said.

Extracorporeal said it was examining 75 of its units in 50 dialysis centers nationwide, but has found no problems.

Richards speaks to educators on alcohol abuse

AUSTIN (AP) — The same day that State Treasurer Ann Richards urged a group of educators and counselors to warn children about the dangers of alcohol, she attended a court hearing for son in connection with a marijuana charge.

Mrs. Richards told the group Tuesday that she was successfully treated for alcoholism and noted that children of alcoholics have a greater chance of abuse themselves.

Daniel Richards, her 24-year-old son, was arrested early Tuesday morning in connection with a misdemeanor marijuana charge.

He was charged with possession of less than 2 ounces of marijuana, a Class B misdemeanor. Richards was released on a $300 personal recognizance bond.

In her speech, Mrs. Richards said that her problems with alcohol had adversely affected her family. She urged the teachers and counselors to educate children about its dangers, even though they may not get much support from the media.

"The ridiculous part of it is that everything we teach our children, whether it is advertising in magazines, whether it is shown on television, whether it is on the radio, is that good times and celebration and relaxation demand alcohol," said Mrs. Richards.

Hustler magazine publisher arrested for refusal to release subpoenaed tape

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hustler magazine's publisher, promoting himself in a "Larry Flynt for President" T-shirt, cursed at a judge who ordered his arrest for failing to hand over a tape connected with John De Lorean's drug trial — but avoided a contempt citation.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi released the paraplegic Flynt after the publisher apologized for his outburst Tuesday.

Flynt, who was delivered to the courtroom by a platoon of federal marshals who arrested him at his heavily guarded Bel-Air mansion, had said he feared for his life if he went out.

He had threatened to shoot anyone who tried to serve a contempt warrant, but he offered no resistance and told 100 assembled reporters and photographers that his threat was "a publicity gimmick."

"If anyone is going to put a bullet in me, I want the whole world to be watching," said Flynt, 40, who has been confined to a gold-plated wheelchair since a 1978 assassination attempt in Georgia.

Takasugi had found Flynt in contempt for failing to appear in court with a barely audible tape recording which allegedly shows a government informant, James Timothy Hoffman, 42, threatening De Lorean if he refused to go through with a drug deal. The 58-year-old former automaker faces federal charges that he conspired to distribute $24 million in cocaine, part of an FBI "sting" operation.

"Mr. Flynt does not have the tape referred to in the subpoena," attorney Alan Isaacman told Takasugi. "We are reluctant to put him on the stand and have him answer questions for fear he may waive his Fifth Amendment privileges ... we feel he does not have to answer questions."

At one point in Tuesday's bizarre proceeding, Flynt loudly fired his three lawyers and said, "I'm my own attorney now. I have the right to defend myself." He later changed his mind.

When the judge sought assurances that Flynt would appear in court again if released, Flynt shouted, "Please, I'm begging you, Your Honor. If you're so interested in justice, let me talk." His comments were punctuated by obscenities and a blunt sexual epithet.

Takasugi freed Flynt on his own recognizance, ordering him to return Nov. 14 when the issues of the tape and whether he should be held in contempt will be discussed. Meanwhile, the judge vacated the earlier contempt citation.

Flynt said last week that the subpoenaed tape had been stolen, possibly by a reporter who attended the news conference at the publisher's mansion.

Calls to Flynt's home late Tuesday were answered by a spokesman who declined to be identified, who said Flynt was too tired to come to the phone.

U.S. Attorney James Walsh said his office wants Flynt to appear before a grand jury on Thursday.

Tighter security for congressmen considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrest of a man carrying a bomb in the Capitol last month has caused tighter security, but House and Senate leaders are considering additional protection, including glass or plastic enclosure of the chambers.

The leaders have held several discussions on new security measures since a man entered the House gallery with a live homemade bomb Oct. 18, and threatened to blow up the Capitol, deputy House Democratic whip Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said Tuesday.

House Sergeant at Arms Jack Russ said the bomb "was not a dud" but failed to explode because the man "had not placed his wiring properly."

Russ said in an interview Tuesday that without waiting for the leaders to adopt additional measures, he re-adjusted metal detectors and installed "state of the art" bomb-detection equipment that is so sensitive he refused to describe it.

Alexander, in a separate interview, said Russ and Senate Sergeant at Arms Larry Smith were to present additional recommendations to the leadership before the Congress recesses in about three weeks.

"We discussed a glass enclosure of the chambers or a new high grade plastic material," Alexander said. "That's one real possibility."

Russ said he has visited parliaments of several foreign countries and state legislatures that use such enclosures to separate the floor of the chambers from the spectator section. The House and Senate galleries are on a balcony level overlooking the floors.

Russ said if the newly installed bomb detection devices and the more sensitive metal detector settings had been used Oct. 18, the man with the bomb "would not have been able to get in the front doors."

Capitol police identified the arrested man as Israel Rubinowitz, a 22-year-old Israeli who threatened to blow up the Capitol when approached by police. He entered the gallery with a group of tourists and had the bomb under his clothes.

His court-appointed lawyer, Carl Angelis, told a District of Columbia Superior Court hearing after the arrest that Rubinowitz wanted to address Congress about the problem of world hunger.

Rubinowitz, who faced a preliminary hearing today, was charged with making threats of bodily harm and held in lieu of $25,000 bond. The charge carries a maximum 20-year prison term and $5,000 fine.

Despite the security breach, Senate Sergeant at Arms Larry Smith said that on the day Rubinowitz entered the gallery, "the level of security present was that desired by the members of Congress. The police handled it well within the boundaries and guidelines we had given them. Now, I think there is interest in improving things."

Reagan preparing to sign bill honoring Martin Luther King

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overcoming his doubts about the career of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, President Reagan is preparing to sign a bill declaring a national holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader.

Reagan, who publicly speculated on whether secret FBI files would show King was a communist sympathizer, invited the civil rights leader's widow, Coretta Scott King, to attend today's East Room ceremony. Other relatives, including King's father, were also scheduled to attend.

Reagan also wrote to former New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson that the public's perception of King was "based on an image, not reality."

During his first three years in office, Reagan always expressed reservations about the expense of making King's birthday a federal holiday. He also noted that other minorities would also want a holiday to honor one of their heroes.

But Reagan, who has received only sparse support from black voters, abruptly changed his mind about the proposal.

Under the legislation, the national holiday would be established in King's honor on the third Monday in January beginning in 1986. King was born Jan. 15, 1929. The bill was approved by the Senate on a vote of 78 to 22. The House voted 338 to 90.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated the holiday would cost $18 million in premium pay for certain federal employees who will have to work on the holiday.

Several days after writing to Thomson, Reagan told a news conference he would sign the legislation creating a legal holiday in King's honor. Reagan's letter to Thomson was in reply to one Thomson had sent asking Reagan to veto the bill. Thomson called King "a man of immoral character whose frequent association with leading agents of communism is well established."

The president replied: "I have the same reservations you have. But here the perception of too many people is based on an image, not reality."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who tried to block the legislation from passing, also contended King had links to communists.

Strike threatens Chrysler recovery

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — The resurgent Chrysler Corp., fresh from reporting a record profit after years of money troubles, faces millions of dollars in lost sales and production if a walkout at an Ohio stamping plant persists, an analyst says.

The second shift at Chrysler's assembly plant in Belvidere, Ill., went home early Tuesday night after workers ran out of stamping parts made at Twinsburg, Ohio, shut down two of Chrysler's seven assembly plants today — idling 6,300 workers — and could affect three more plants by week's end, the company said.

But a union official predicted a settlement and talks were continuing.

Paul Jeunette, financial secretary of United Auto Workers union Local 122 at Twinsburg, said Tuesday that he thought a settlement possible "in the next 48 hours." The UAW authorized the walkout.

Negotiations toward a local agreement, under way for 15 months, were recessed Tuesday but were to resume this afternoon, he said.

The plant, located about 25 miles southeast of Cleveland, produces front doors and floor pans. Without the Twinsburg plant, Chrysler "can't make cars," Jeunette said. "They can't let cars off the assembly line without doors."

Failure to end the strike could threaten the jobs of thousands of U.S. and Canadian autoworkers, but exact figures were not available, said a Chrysler spokesman who asked not to be identified. He also could not say how much the strike could cost the automaker.

However, a Wall Street analyst who also asked not to be identified said that closing Chrysler plants could be disastrous for the automaker as sales begin to recover. The analyst made the comment last week after Chrysler reported a record third-quarter profit of $100.2 million.

U.S. pressing Chilean leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is telling Chilean leaders they must act decisively to restore democratic government or risk new problems in Chile's relations with Washington. Edward J. Derwinski, who holds the rank of counselor to Secretary of State George P. Shultz, was to confer in Santiago today and Thursday with both government and opposition leaders. He was carrying a message that Chile risks being the "odd-man out" in relations with Washington after Argentina's elections on Sunday, which will return that country to democratic government. A State Department official said the United States will soon declare Argentina eligible to purchase U.S. arms. "Certification is imminent," added the official, who insisted on anonymity. While Argentina has virtually completed the return to democratic rule, Chile has made insufficient progress, in the view of administration officials.

Formal talks between the right-wing government of Gen. Augusto Pinochet and the moderate Democratic Alliance were suspended by the alliance in mid-October on grounds insufficient progress was being made toward restoring democratic institutions to Chile after 11 years of military rule by Pinochet. John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, told reporters Tuesday that the administration regrets that the talks haven't resumed. "The absence of such a dialogue or exchange of views on a democratic transition is a matter of concern since this situation can only favor those opposed to a peaceful return to civilian government in Chile," Hughes said. Under a constitution adopted in 1980 and engineered by the Pinochet government, Pinochet would stay in office until 1989. Derwinski will make the point to Chilean leaders that Washington thinks that this is unrealistic.

Administration deplors choices offered dissidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is deploring the choices offered by the Polish government to 11 imprisoned dissidents: vow not to associate with Solidarity upon release, stay in prison, or leave the country.

day characterized the offer as a choice of: "accept amnesty and make a vow they will not engage in activity connected with the Solidarity movement; stay in prison; or leave the country."

The 11 include seven Solidarity labor movement leaders and four members of a dissident intellectual group known as KOR. White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes on Tues-

"We think this kind of treatment is inconsistent with the way any country should address its citizens," Speakes said. "To ask anyone to confront anyone with a choice of this type is something we deplore in strongest terms."

FBI searching ruins in Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI laboratory specialists are sifting through the rubble of the shattered Marine headquarters in Beirut in search of evidence to piece together the type of bomb used in the Oct. 23 terrorist attack.

Federal government sources, who spoke Tuesday on condition they not be named, said two lab specialists are expected to return next week with any evidence that requires lab testing.

The FBI said the purpose of the lab tests is to determine the construction and deployment of the explosive used in the bombing, which killed 230 Marines, and to determine whether the bomb can be linked to explosives used in other bombings.

U.S. officials have said they have linked the April car bombing of the U.S. Embassy at Beirut to Iranian groups. The sources said the FBI specialists would try to determine if the same explosives and methods were used in the truck bombing of the Marine headquarters.

Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Paul X. Kelley has said the bomb was loaded aboard a truck which crashed through a barbed-wire fence and into the lobby of the building carrying 5,000 pounds of explosives on a suicide mission.

The FBI said its assistance was authorized by Attorney General William French Smith at the request of the chief of naval operations, Adm. James D. Watkins.

Meanwhile, Israel's ambassador to the United States, said Tuesday that the Reagan administration cannot count on the Israeli army to help pacify Lebanon and take pressure off the U.S. Marine contingent there.

Meir Rosenne noted that the Israeli army has withdrawn southward from the Beirut area to the Awali River and he left little doubt that Israeli policy does not contemplate a return.

"We continue to seek to assure the security of our northern border (with Lebanon) and intend to leave Lebanon as soon as this has been accomplished," Rosenne said. "This is Israel's position."

Representatives of Lebanon's warring factions are negotiating in Geneva in hopes of reaching a compromise leading to national reconciliation.

Warship dispatched to Cuba

From Wire Reports WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, on the heels of a tough warning to Cuba's Fidel Castro that any terrorist attacks against U.S. targets would be a very serious development, is dispatching a U.S. warship group, headed by the aircraft carrier America, to waters off Guantanamo Bay in Cuba.

Pentagon officials disclosed the dispatch from Norfolk, Va., of a naval task force group, manned by about 5,000 Marines, to Cuba to participate in what one source said were exercises designed "as a vital show-of-force" to counteract the reported new threats by the Castro regime.

English renew love affair with tea

LONDON (AP) — Britain's see-saw love affair with tea is blooming again with a revival of elegant tea dances, trendy tea shops and even business deals over a "cuppa" instead of a cocktail.

London's fashionable Ritz and Waldorf hotels are packing in tea-time dancers, who manage to mix several cups of the house brew and cream-covered scones with a whirl around the floor to Glenn Miller's arrangement of "In the Mood."

"It's so English," said London travel agent Michael Leach during an orchestra break at the Ritz's ornate 18th century-style dining room.

"We like to keep up the tradition. So many things go by the boards these days. You've really got to look to find style. It's better than we expected. In fact, we're wondering what we can do next...to top it."

Specialty tea shops are also doing brisk business. Restaurant critic Egon Ronay said: "It can easily happen nowadays that a deal is closed over a dainty cucumber sandwich while sipping tea instead of over a tournedos ossini gulping champagne."

Britain first got hooked on tea more than 300 years ago and since the middle of the 18th century, it has been the national drink. But the passion for tea started to wane in the late 1960s and 1970s when it faced stiff competition from coffee and soft drinks.

Now, tea consumption is on the upswing.

Jim Munday, executive director of the Tea Council, said it's because people have tried the alternatives and come back to the old "cuppa" — as tea is called here.

"Today, every man, woman and child over the age of 10 drinks over four cups per day and tea accounts for over half of everything we drink," said Munday.

"The old-fashioned image is rapidly disappearing and tea is becoming positively trendy...Tea consumption among the young is on the up and up, even in the trendy West End. And people are beginning to sample the delights of the more exotic teas, which although a little more expensive still cost less than a cup of instant coffee," he said.

For Britain, tea is big business. This island nation of 54 million is the world's biggest market for tea, buying between 20 percent and 25 percent of world tea exports. Retail sales are worth more than $600 million annually and restaurants sell more than

"Today, every man, woman and child over the age of 10 drinks over four cups per day and tea accounts for over half of everything we drink. The old-fashioned image is rapidly disappearing and tea is becoming positively trendy..."

— Jim Munday, director of Tea Council

$4.5 million worth of cups of tea every day, according to the Tea Council.

But the world's oldest known beverage is also an institution — especially afternoon tea — and tea dances were great social events in the first half of the century.

"I hadn't been to a tea dance in nearly 30 years and my children decided this was a treat for me," said Dorothy Jenkinson of London, who was celebrating a birthday. "I think then there was more mixing. I think people are a bit shyer than in my day."

Capt. Henri Bertrand Leitman of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, agreed. "I haven't been to a tea dance since I wore a uniform in World War II," he said. "I think this is great fun...but it's more subdued today. I think with the tea, they could serve alcohol."

For a nation of tea lovers, critic Ronay claims it's still difficult to find a good "cuppa."

"It's the old story of not using the best quality tea or not enough of it, or the fallacy about teabags and the psychological resistance to them. Technical problems of the bags and their perforations having been solved, the tea they yield is just as good as that of loose tea," he said.

In fact, the secret behind Britain's "Tea Place of 1983," chosen by Ronay, is that it uses 250 teabags every day.

Peter Newens, proprietor of The Original Maids of Honour Tea Shop in Kew, Surrey, said his recipe for success is to use only boiling water, warm the pot, brew the tea for four minutes and stir.

As for serving, he said, use fresh milk — and always put it in the cup before the tea.

Workshop teaches how to have affair

Psychologist gives 'practical' advice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What Cynthia Silverman teaches some women to enjoy earned author Nathaniel Hawthorne's heroine Hester Prynne a scarlet letter.

The 43-year-old psychologist conducts a workshop for married women who are having, or thinking of having, extramarital affairs.

"This is not advice on free love," Ms. Silverman says. "Men and women both have affairs and the frequency of women having affairs is now almost as great as the men. The goal is to educate women to make a meaningful decision. Let's see they don't do it moronically or hurt themselves or their families."

To that end, workshop participants are given practical advice such as remembering to cover absences with excuses a husband cannot check, and to resist the temptation to confess because "a white lie is better than a black truth."

THERE ARE also hints on discretion (don't clutch his hand or look longingly into his eyes at the neighborhood restaurant) and partner selection (married men are better because they, too, must be discreet).

"I think the No. 1 reason for women (having affairs) is romantic adventure, the Cary Grant type of romance that doesn't exist in marriage," says Ms. Silverman, who admits gaining some of her expertise outside her first two marriages.

"A normal, happy comfortable marriage doesn't have that excitement...the feeling that you're alive, the tingling, the anxiety."

The workshops — which cost $7.50 for a 1 hour, 45 minute session each week — stress enjoyment without guilt.

"I was a basket case when I met in there," says one wife who was involved with another man for about two years when she began attending the workshop last summer.

"I STILL feel a little bit (guilty), but not to the same degree," says the woman, who sees her lover once or twice a week.

The workshop, she added, "helped me set my priorities differently. I always made sure that my family came first, especially my children, but now I realize I have a right to happiness also."

Ms. Silverman practices Rational Emotive Therapy, a psychological method developed by Dr. Albert Ellis. It features counselors who try to identify irrational thought and change behavior.

There are currently four women, between age 20 and 50, in her extramarital affairs workshop, which originally was intended for women whose husbands were having affairs.

The composite participant would be a well-educated, comfortably middle-class woman in her early 30s, in her second marriage, said Ms. Silverman, who does not encourage all participants to have affairs.

THE SECOND workshop session covers what she believes to be neurotic reasons for sex outside marriage: vanity, relief from a bad marriage or escape from a husband who is boring in bed.

The first session deals with what she calls a healthy reason: desire for variety.

Ms. Silverman holds a doctorate in psychology from City University of New York.

Her first marriage came and went at age 18, but she believes her second lasted 16 years in part because she had affairs.

Her current marriage, three years old, is "the kind of relationship I never thought I'd have." She's so happy, she says, she no longer has affairs.

Hershey candy bars will cost nickel more

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Hershey Bars likely will cost a nickel more in December.

Hershey Foods Corp. said Tuesday it will increase wholesale prices on its standard bars Dec. 19 and expects the change will add a nickel to the retail price.

Company spokeswoman Deborah Ryerson said the increases vary from wholesaler to wholesaler, depending on the volume they buy. She said the company has no control over retail prices.

In most markets, she said, the regular size Hershey Bar sells for 30 cents. The price increase will affect candy sold under the Hershey and Reese's labels. Hershey's Kisses and other bagged candies will not be affected, Ms. Ryerson said.

She said the increase was due to steadily rising cocoa bean prices, which are up 20 percent over last year's levels, as well as higher prices for sugar and almonds.

The company's last price change was in the spring, but that was partially offset by a size increase in each candy bar.

THE BETTER HALF

"Uncle Stanley, you said you like food that sticks to your ribs...so I put glue in your oatmeal!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Nov. 3, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Actor Charles Bronson, Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis, heavyweight champion Larry Holmes and New York Times columnist James Reston share this birthday with you. Also born on this date: poet William Cullen Bryant. Follow your hunches in business. Intelligent choices bring best profits. You will often be in a position to influence others. Try not to act self-conscious about your authority. Your ideas are good ones! Be lenient with a loved one who is truly penitent about a mistake. A new romance distracts you from minor irritations and inconveniences at work. Let offspring know your plans once they are definite.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Incredible fringe benefits could be the main attraction of a job offer made today. There is a basic difference of opinion between you and romantic partner. Best to find out now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your self-discipline returns. Someone who has been out of work finds new employment. An employer considers adding to the workforce. Start a self-improvement project. Romance looks great this evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get a head start on the opposition. Concentrate and you will be first across the finish line. Sales should be better than ever. Consult with mate before accepting an invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You mix business with pleasure and reap a double reward. A student's part-time job helps pay college costs, easing the pressure on parents. Take advantage of a relative's special knowledge.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Encourage someone to promote your talents. You need a representative to handle financial negotiations. Continue to work on a current assignment. You find a way to get family members together for Thanksgiving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A challenge must be met. Otherwise, you lose by default. Someone could be manipulating others behind the scenes. Being honest about your emotions will improve your personal relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A successful idea makes you very popular at work. Incredible luck accompanies a visit from an outsider. Make the right move today and money starts to flow your way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Once you get your act together, nothing will slow your progress. Futuristic ideas hold special appeal. Insist on financial independence when launching a new partnership or business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An old love returns. New financial gains are possible. A domestic quarrel can be patched up with a phone call. You find an Aquarian attractive as a romantic or business partner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Those still in school make rapid progress. Support mate in a tricky social situation. What someone neglects to tell you could be very important. Avoid quarreling in front of children.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your decisions are worthless if you do not enforce them. Get the facts. You should not make assumptions in business. Entertaining leaves you feeling relaxed. Games sharpen your mental powers.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Understanding is a two-way street. Give mate a break. Leave well enough alone, in a family member.

PBS show joins TV, community

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Producers of the public TV documentary "The Chemical People" hope you won't stay home to watch.

"You can watch in your living room, but we say, 'Please don't,'" says Lloyd Kaiser, president of WQED, the Public Broadcasting Service station here, which produced the two-part program to be shown Wednesday night and on Nov. 9.

Instead, PBS wants viewers to go to one of the 10,600 "town meetings" scheduled across the country to watch with neighbors, friends, police officers, physicians, educators and others who care about teenage drug and alcohol abuse.

"The philosophy is that each community will determine what its problem is, and how it will go about solving the problem," Kaiser says. "Everyone says this is a landmark effort and it is."

WQED maintains the approach is unique — and has a good chance of succeeding — because it combines the power of television with grass roots organizing. PBS broadcast a half-hour special to urge people to take part in the program.

"This concept brings two of the most potent forces in society together — television and community action," says First Lady Nancy Reagan, the program's host, in a statement.

"The problem is one that requires the cooperation of all segments of the community and the determination to do something about it," Kaiser says. "The first problem is that most people feel it's a problem, but not in my community, not in my school, certainly not in my home."

The first hour, "The Chemical Society," is designed to crumble the "wall of denial" and motivate people to set up permanent committees to halt drug and alcohol abuse. The second hour, "Community Answers," demonstrates how to form a committee and make it work. Young people and parents discuss their problems and how they worked to solve them. Drug and alcohol professionals discuss the severity of abuse among young people.

The University of Michigan Institute of Social Research says one in 16 high school seniors smokes marijuana daily and that substance abuse is higher in America than in any other developed country.

In the second program, viewers will hear from people who have established task forces and what they have accomplished. "Community Answers" was filmed in several cities, including Pittsburgh, where "The Chemical People" originated as a local program in May 1982.

The Continental Life Insurance in Britain sponsored a new team tournament this year. More than 300 teams played off for four places in the event. They were joined by four invited teams — one each from the United States, France, Britain and England. Britain defeated the United States in the final.

This was one of the more interesting hands of the final.

Would you rather play or defend six clubs after a trump lead?

The competitive auction allows North to judge his hand well. South must be short in spades, so there is an excellent fit. Six clubs is a reasonable shot, and with any other lead presents no problem.

With both red suits breaking badly, if you discard a heart on the ace of spades and try to set up either red suit, you are doomed to failure. Therefore, you must postpone taking a heart discard and, after drawing another round of trumps, run the jack of hearts.

If East wins this trick, you have no problems. The heart suit can be established with a ruffing finesse and you have more than enough tricks. But what if East ducks the first heart? You appear to be short of an entry to set up and run the hearts.

But appearances can be deceiving. Cash the ace of hearts and ruff a heart. Now cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond. Next lead another heart and allow East to win the trick!

East is down to nothing but spades, and he must put you in dummy with the ace of spades. Since you can now discard all your diamond losers on the ace of spades and dummy's two good hearts, you should be delighted that you opted to play.

Island evidence

Anyone who had doubts about the justification for the invasion of Grenada last week shouldn't have those doubts now. The presence of an airstrip capable of accommodating any aircraft in the Soviet Union's arsenal may have fallen short of justifying the invasion — with the resulting loss of lives. But the discovery of a number of caches of weapons and ammunition make it clear that Grenada was not merely a peaceful Caribbean island.

was the nipping in the bud of another potential "stepping stone" for the Soviet Union and Cuba to funnel communism and terrorism into this hemisphere.

It was regrettable that a number of U.S. servicemen and civilians on Grenada died during the invasion. Regrettable, but realistically unavoidable in a military operation and that is exactly what the island invasion was.

In his address to the nation last week regarding the bombing in Beirut, Lebanon, and the invasion of Grenada, the president made some very important points. Said Reagan, "We are a nation with global responsibilities. We are not somewhere else in the world protecting someone else's interests. We are there protecting our own."

He went on to note, "The world has changed. Today our national security can be threatened in faraway places. It is up to all of us to be aware of the strategic importance of such places and to be able to identify them."

The invasion of Grenada verifies that fact.

If it sent a message to Fidel Castro and Yuri Andropov, so be it!

Spell it again, Sam

People who haven't been exposed to the thrills of working on a newspaper are not likely to believe the variety of requests that pour into our sanctuaries. Someone heard that a railroad station in Wales with an awfully long name was for sale, and could we please spell it. Well, yes, as a matter of fact, we could — assuming our sources are correct. The name of the town is spelled:

Llanfairpwllgwyngyll. For the name of the station, just add: Gogerychwyndrobwllll (to be perfectly honest, there may be an extra "l" or two in there) antysillogogoch. Type and the eyes tend to run together on a word that size. In answer to the next question: Sorry, we don't do pronunciations over the phone.

Another View: Behind closed doors

Before the House of Representatives reformed its ways, revenue and entitlement bills were routinely rammed through the Ways and Means Committee by its powerful chairman. Frequently it took many months before outside observers could figure out exactly which private interests had managed to walk away with what. That didn't strike most people as a good way of guarding the public interest, and 1973 reforms required that all meetings be open to the public unless a committee majority voted to close a particular session. Since then open doors have been the rule at Ways and Means markups. But the people who have walked through those doors have not typically been the general public; rather, they have been the same powerful lobbyists who work the congressional corridors. Now they can make sure that the pressure they exerted on a congressman in private doesn't get dissipated when his colleagues press for compromise.

With the spotlight on them, congressmen spend much more time worrying about the quality of their own performances than the quality of the legislation they ultimately produce. Even minor technicalities get bogged down because legislators are embarrassed to admit they don't understand what's going on. Compromises get worked out in hasty corridor meetings or rammed through committee on party-line votes — and they tend to break down when a bill comes to the floor. And in the final chaos of a big tax markup it is still impossible for the public (and even the staffers) to figure out what happened.

The tax bill that recently emerged from Ways and Means was marked up in closed session. It is not a big revenue-raiser, but many provisions required considerable political courage. Judged by the speed and outcome of the process, closed doors certainly seem to have worked in the public interest in this case. That's not to conclude that closed sessions should be the rule. When it comes to handling out public benefits, secrecy can work very much against the general interest-witness the pork-barrel grab typical of closed appropriation subcommittee sessions.

By and large, the current rule seems to work well. Open sessions should be the general practice. But if a majority of a committee's members feels that a closed session is more appropriate for a particular measure, they should be willing to vote on the record for that decision. If the thing gets out of hand, you can be sure there will be plenty of noise about it.

— The Washington Post

Every time something serious happens, my relatives from around the country call me to find out what is going on. They do this on the false assumption that someone who lives in Washington must know more than they do.

Last week was a busy one.

Cousin Ziggy, who is a nervous Nelly when it comes to the Caribbean said, "Why are we landing in Grenada?"

Art Buchwald

"Because of leftist Marxist thugs who overthrew the other leftist Marxist thugs running the government."

"But why would we care if one Marxist government overthrew another one?"

"Because the guys who took over made the Marxist thugs who were in power look like altar boys."

"Can I ask you a serious question?"

"Shoot."

"Does the Reagan administration have a foreign policy?"

"Of course it has a foreign policy. You can't be a super power without having a foreign policy."

"What is it, then?" Cousin Ziggy asked.

"Our foreign policy is not to have one."

"What does that mean?"

"If the other side knows that we have no foreign policy, then the Kremlin thugs have no idea what we'll do next. Up until recently when a president spelled out a foreign policy, the Soviets immediately worked out a policy to counteract it. But now they're as confused as the American people as to what our objectives are, and they're climbing the Kremlin walls."

"Under the 'no-foreign policy-foreign policy' of the U.S. are we getting closer to going to war with the USSR?" Ziggy asked.

"No, but they are getting much closer to going to war with us."

"What's the difference?"

"The Soviets will not sit down with us unless they know we are willing to fight."

"Are the Soviets willing to fight if they know we are?"

"That's the 64,000 megaton question. Until that moment comes we must do everything to make them understand that we will use every weapon in our arsenal, up to and including the big 'H', before we'll bow to blackmail."

"And that's our foreign policy?" Ziggy asked.

"That's our broad policy. We are also in the business of destabilizing governments favorable to Moscow's thugs, and supporting governments that Moscow is trying to destabilize."

"We'll give the job to a third party which will be financed and trained by the CIA. The Soviets use the KGB to find and train their third parties. If destabilization doesn't work through third parties then we are prepared to use American brute force, just as the Soviets do when one of their covert operations fail."

"What ever happened to diplomacy where nations talked things out first, before flexing their muscles?"

"Our foreign policy is to use diplomacy only as a last resort, when all else fails. The president can't endanger the lives of 220 million Americans, not to mention everyone else on the globe by using diplomacy, when the only thing the other side understands is armed might."

"It doesn't sound like a foreign policy that can last for a very long time. At some moment one side will test the other to see if it's bluffing or not."

"Reagan doesn't bluff," I said. "That was the true message of Grenada."

"And Andropov?"

"He doesn't bluff either. That was the true message of Afghanistan."

"So what do we have to look forward to?"

"More of the same, with clearing skies and light parachuting on Thursday."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Soviets won '62 missile crisis

WASHINGTON — In an earlier column, I revealed that the historic 1962 "agreement" between President John Kennedy and Premier Nikita Khrushchev over Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba was never a real agreement, and certainly not the ironclad understanding the American public believes has existed for the past 21 years.

Jack Anderson

The State Department has determined in a recently covered up situation, even withholding from top White House officials the secret documents that chronicle the delicate U.S.-Soviet negotiations in the fall of 1962. My associate Dale Van Atta has seen secret and top secret papers which show that the situation today is no better — and in some respects worse — than when the missile crisis took the world to the brink of nuclear war.

The Soviets have many more offensive weapons in Cuba — and far more sophisticated ones — than the 42 medium-range ballistic missiles that touched off the 1962 confrontation.

Faced with a determined President Kennedy and a clear American military superiority, Khrushchev reluctantly agreed not to deploy the missiles he had planned for Cuba, removing those already in place. But he balked at the U.S. insistence that the Soviets also pull out the IL-28 "Beagle" bombers on the island.

In a secret letter to the Soviets, U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson listed the weapons the United States considered offensive in nature. The list specifically included bombers.

In a Nov. 5, 1962, memo to the president, Attorney General Robert Kennedy reported on a meeting with Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. He said he had told the Russian that "certainly it was very clear that the bombers, the IL-28s, had to go."

But Khrushchev did not agree. Secretary of State Dean Rusk sent Stevenson these top secret instructions on Nov. 7:

"Soviets take position that Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement related only to missiles. Our primary purpose is to get the MRBMs (missiles) and IL-28 bombers out, and we would go far in reducing the list of offensive weapons in order to achieve this purpose."

On Nov. 20, Khrushchev wrote to President Kennedy, complaining that during their exchange of correspondence in October the president had not made "a single mention of bomber planes. I informed you that the IL-28 planes are 12 years old and by their combat characteristics they at present cannot be classified as offensive types of weapons."

Khrushchev then added that "we intend to remove them within a month" anyhow, so the United States should call off its quarantine of Cuba. After some stalling, the Soviets did remove the bombers and the U.S. quarantine was then lifted.

But the sad fact is that the Soviets now have more and better warplanes in Cuba than they did in 1962. They have a dozen Tu-95 "Bear" bombers, some with strategic nuclear capability, and they have about 40 MiG-23 or MiG-27 fighter-bombers, the latter capable of carrying nuclear bombs. In secret testimony to Congress, top intelligence officials admitted that the United States has no reliable way to tell if the Soviet planes actually have nuclear weapons.

Delivery of at least six nuclear missiles by submarine was verified in 1972 and 1974, and the Cuban naval base of Cienfuegos is known to be linked by rail to a nuclear warhead storage facility.

Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Steven Symms, R-Idaho, have rightly raised questions about what they believed were Soviet violations of the 1962 agreement. The fact that there actually was no agreement doesn't lessen the practical dangers posed by the Soviets' offensive weapons 90 miles from the U.S.

BOONDOGGLE OF THE WEEK:

Despite employee complaints and a critical inspector general audit, the General Services Administration is insisting that a district Internal Revenue Service office in Nassau County, N.Y., move into bargain-basement quarters that have been nicknamed "Horror Hotel."

GSA officials say the rent of $520,000 a year was the lowest bid for leased office space. The disgruntled employees say the reason is obvious: There are heating, air-conditioning and fire safety problems.

The GSA's inspector general found other faults with the bidding process, including these:

— Price was the only factor considered; quality was not a priority.

— Even the price evaluation wasn't done properly. For example, only the winning bidder had been allowed to negotiate for base services to trim expenses. The other bidders had no such opportunity.

— The winning bidder submitted the low bid only after being allowed to figure the base contract price over 10 years, instead of the originally mandated five. Then, the relevant documents were backdated to make it look acceptable.

Despite all this, GSA officials found "no reason to take action" that would have canceled the deal.

JORDANIAN RDF UPDATE: My report last Jan. 13 on a super-secret Pentagon plan to develop a Jordanian rapid deployment force has since been picked up by other reporters — and by the General Accounting Office. After reading my column, GAO investigators called to ask for details about the hush-hush plan.

But when the GAO sleuths tried to pry more information out of the Pentagon, they ran into a stone wall. Since the proposed Jordanian RDF would be used in furtherance of U.S. goals in the Middle East, Congress understandably wants to know more about it. The GAO, I'm told, will now try to force answers out of the brass.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Sandinista image losing appeal

WASHINGTON — Some Latin Americans who supported the Sandinista revolution in Nicaragua are changing their minds, the State Department says.

The bloom is coming off the rose of the Sandinista revolution, a senior department official said. The Sandinistas' aggressive attitude toward the Catholic Church is one cause of disenchantment, according to the official who requested anonymity. Another is the successful effort the Marxist regime made to have the Central American problem placed on the agenda of the U.N. General Assembly.

The hostility of the reception the Sandinista government gave Pope John Paul II during his visit to Managua and Leon March 4 apparently shook the hopes of many Latin Americans who do not ordinarily concern themselves with politics and ideology.

Of course, the vast majority of the Nicaraguan multitudes that turned out to greet the pope were friendly. But, if nothing else, that made it all the more obvious that those who sought to heckle the pope formed small, organized groups, "divine mobs," Sandinista Interior Minister Tomas Borge terms them.

Presumably millions of televisioners throughout Latin America and the world saw and heard the pontiff pause, at one point, and demand "silence" of the hecklers.

In the opinion of the State Department official, that had a profound effect on public opinion in other countries, including those that had sympathized with the Sandinistas' proclaimed goal of a pluralistic democracy in Nicaragua.

At the governmental level, what dismayed some Latin Americans was the effort the Sandinistas made to get to take up the Central American case.

Latin governments seemed to prefer that the troubles in Central America, which El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica and Guatemala blame mostly on Nicaragua, be considered and resolved by Latin Americans.

For that reason, despite their questions about the impartiality of the Contadora Group — Panama, Colombia, Venezuela and Mexico, even the other four Central American governments endorsed the Contadora efforts to come up with an arrangement that would ensure peace in the region.

With reason, because they, too, had been involved with Panama and Venezuela in helping the Sandinistas in their fight against the Somoza government, Honduras and Costa Rica voiced early doubts that the Contadora Group could be trusted now to make recommendations that might restrain the expansion of Marxism in Central America.

But they all agreed to a 21-point statement of principles drawn up by the group, regarding it as the basis for a Latin American solution to a Latin American problem.

Although they also signed the statement, the Sandinistas took the question to the United Nations where, expectations are, the discussion and the resulting resolution will be dominated and determined by governments that are more responsive to the interests of the Soviet bloc than those of the more democratic Western countries.

Latin Americans regard the Sandinista action as indicating a willingness to play Moscow's subversive game against the West rather than an anxiety for a return to peace in Central America.

Reinforcing that impression, the Sandinistas have been militarizing at an increasingly accelerated rate. Already they have created a military establishment greater in number than those of the rest of the Central American countries put together. Recently the Sandinistas decreed obligatory military service, to further increase the size of their armed forces.

Despite the fears of the other Central American countries, despite the reported shift in Latin American public opinion and despite the disenchantment of some Latin American governments, it seems that the hemisphere is waiting for history to repeat itself in Nicaragua.

Which is that a relatively small group of anti-Sandinistas, determined men, as were the Sandinistas in 1978 and 1979, will gain enough popular support, and clandestine aid from abroad, to be able to oust an objectionable government.

One important difference between then and now is that in the late 1970s the United States put an embargo on arms shipments to the Somoza government and was even able to convince the Israelis that they should halt their cash sales to Nicaragua.

Twenty-three-month-old Jamie Fiske is accompanied by her mother Marilyn Tuesday as she arrived at University of Minnesota Hospitals for her first annual checkup. Jamie underwent a liver transplant Nov. 5, 1982. The Fiske family is from Bridgewater, Mass.

Liver transplant patient 'healthy'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jamie Fiske, whose survival was uncertain a year ago when her father pleaded for an infant liver donor, is now "healthy and normal, just her own person," her father says.

As if to prove it Tuesday when she returned to the University of Minnesota Hospitals for a check of the organ she received there, the 23-month-old child blew a kiss to staff members and reporters, after declining at first to say hello.

Jamie was scheduled to undergo various tests to determine the condition of the liver she received in a transplant last Nov. 5.

Man may get 90 years in prison

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A man could be sentenced to as long as 90 years in prison if convicted of abducting two White House aides and three other people at a golf course where President Reagan was playing.

Charles R. Harris, 44, of Appling, Ga., was indicted Tuesday on kidnapping and false imprisonment charges, along with a firearm charge, in connection with the Oct. 22 incident. He had faced federal charges, including threatening the president, but they were dropped.

As the hostages being held in a pro shop at Augusta National Golf Club were gradually released, the abductor demanded to talk with Reagan, but when the president telephoned he hung up.

Police should be trained better

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Police should be trained better to deal with the emotionally disturbed, a public safety board recommended as it cleared five white officers of wrongdoing in a black man's death.

An FBI probe is continuing into the shooting of Denver Smith, 24, a former Indiana University football player from Dayton, Ohio, who was shot four times Sept. 12 in a scuffle with officers who responded to complaints that he was threatening motorists with a tire tool.

However, the Bloomington Board of Public Safety released a report Tuesday saying the officers "acted within the limits" of regulations. Black groups expressed disappointment with the findings.

Officials seeking cause of blaze

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (AP) — Fire officials are seeking the cause of a blaze that routed 20 people from rooms at a motel near the Hearst Castle, leaving $500,000 in damage and injuring one firefighter.

No guests at the Green Tree Inn were hurt as 30 rooms were damaged before the Tuesday morning blaze was controlled. Officials said it may have started in an area where paints and solvents were stored.

Some guests at adjacent motels were also evacuated after Green Tree night clerks Tom Williams and Betty Davison sounded the alarm, officials said. One firefighter suffered a severely cut finger.

The 62-room motel, near coastal Highway 1, is a few miles south of the Hearst Castle, owned by the publishing family.

Teacher may be lowest paid

McLEOD, N.D. (AP) — Widow Janice Herbranson says couldn't afford to serve as principal and faculty of a one-room school for $6,300 — less than half the national average — if she didn't also run a saloon.

"I don't suppose I could live on this salary if it was my only income," she said Tuesday after learning that her name appeared at the bottom of a National Education Association listing of low teacher salaries across the nation. The average is $12,966, the NEA said.

"If I'm the poorest paid, am I the poorest teacher?" she said she asked herself. "I feel comfortable knowing that I do a good job." The only staff member at Salund School in this town of about 50 said she understands that the school board cannot afford to pay more.

Democrat elected in Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Democratic activist Terry Goddard, vowing to administer "a more open government," has swept to victory in the mayoral election in the nation's ninth largest city.

"Now we're going to do it," the 36-year-old Goddard promised cheering supporters after he defeated Republican Pete Dunn in Tuesday's voting.

Dunn conceded shortly before midnight, congratulating Goddard in a telephone call and pledging support.

With 316 of 317 precincts reporting in the non-partisan mayoral contest, Goddard led Dunn 71,395 to 61,187, or 52 percent to 45 percent.

A lower-than-anticipated turnout of some 46.3 percent of the city's 295,668 registered voters also approved 12 of 13 propositions, including measures to ban public employee strikes or arbitration.

Incumbent Margaret Hance did not seek reelection to a fifth term.

Burns filming 'Oh, God!' sequel

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian George Burns signed a five-year contract with Caesars World, vowing to see the pact through to its conclusion because "I can't afford to die when I'm booked."

George Burns

Burns, 87, joked with reporters at the announcement Tuesday, making frequent references to his age. "The last time I played Caesars Palace, it was owned by Julius," Burns dead-panned. He called himself the original performer for the Roman Empire. Burns will star at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas and Caesars Tahoe in Stateline, Nev. His first engagement for the resort chain is Dec. 27 through Jan. 1 at the Lake Tahoe property. The contract calls for a two-year option at the end of the five-year period.

He is currently at the Las Vegas resort filming "Oh, God III." In a departure from his two previous "Oh, God" films, the new movie will feature Burns as both God and the devil. It is scheduled for release by Warner Bros. in 1984.

Burns was a fixture on the Las Vegas stage for years, introducing such stars as Ann-Margret and Bobby Darin. He quit appearing in the city nearly 20 years ago, then returned last year for a series of sell-out engagements at the Sahara Hotel.

Burns recently authored the book "How to Live to be 100 — or More!" which is described as "the ultimate diet, sex and exercise book."

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau and rookie quarterback Ken O'Brien say they were only trying to break up a fight — not assault anybody — in the brawl that broke out Sept. 30 at the Manhattan disco palace Studio 54.

Each is charged with third-degree assault and innocent pleas were entered in court on their behalf Tuesday.

Studio 54 employees have said the brawl began after the 6-foot-5, 269-pound Gastineau lost an arm-wrestling match to the club's bartender. Of three men injured in the melee, two received broken noses, according to the complaint filed in Criminal Court.

Gastineau, 26, and his 6-foot-4, 210-pound teammate were released in their own recognizance and had no comment for reporters as they left the courtroom.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford, an outspoken critic of drug and alcohol abuse since her own battle against addiction, says community awareness and education are essential in fighting the problem.

Betty Ford

"Perhaps they will make a choice not to abuse their bodies if they know what it does," the 65-year-old Mrs. Ford told a news conference Tuesday before being honored by Abraxas, a statewide organization offering alternative rehabilitation for young drug and alcohol offenders.

As she spoke, her husband, former President Gerald Ford, listened quietly with crossed arms.

In April 1978, Mrs. Ford admitted herself to the Long Beach Naval Hospital Alcohol and Drug Rehabilitation Center in California where she stayed for nearly four weeks battling an addiction to alcohol and arthritis medication.

She has said the hardest part of all was facing the fact that she was an addict.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Al Pacino spent an afternoon on a witness stand where the talk was about tapes — around 1,000 of them left by the renowned acting instructor Lee Strasberg.

The 43-year-old Pacino, currently appearing on Broadway in "American Buffalo," was called to testify Tuesday by Strasberg's widow, Anna. She and the Actors Studio are engaged in a court fight over ownership of the tapes, which contain her husband's critiques of students.

Pacino is co-artistic director of the studio. Mrs. Strasberg contends the tapes belong to her late husband's estate and said she wants to make them available to "everybody who has an interest in the theater and acting."

The studio, supported by affidavits from its president, Paul Newman, and co-artistic director Ellen Burstyn, contends the tapes are "teaching tools" essential to the educational process there.

Pacino said in court the critiqued sessions "could get very personal," but "I don't think I have a problem" with other actors hearing them. The case was continued to later this week.

Hams provide communication lines

By The Associated Press

When the invasion of Grenada began, Mark Baretella, a medical student on the Caribbean island, went to the anatomy laboratory at St. George's University Medical School, opened a body bag and pulled out a ham radio.

He had hidden his radio equipment in the lab after a military coup toppled the government of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 12.

Although afraid he might be seized by authorities, the 22-year-old Baretella, of Ridgely, N.J., began broadcasting information about what was happening on the island. He kept at it for two days and was helped by another nearby ham operator, Don Atkinson, a retired salesman from West Hartford, Conn.

They provided the world with much of the information about the early stages of the American invasion. They also gave a boost to their fellow short wave radio operators.

"For too long we've been accused of creating television interference," said Robert Neukomm, a ham operator in Wyckoff, N.J., who was among operators in the United States relaying information from Grenada to reporters and relatives of Americans living on the island.

"THIS IS THE first time we've had any good public relations since Sputnik, when an American ham picked up the signals and alerted the world that the Russians had put something up in space," he said. "We've had other good publicity, but nothing to this magnitude."

Ham operators insist there was nothing unusual about their actions during the Grenada invasion. They point out that in recent years hams have dodged martial law enforcers in Poland, the Argentine military during the Falklands battle and the eruption of Mount St. Helens in 1980, which led to the deaths of two ham operators.

"There are cases all the time around the world where ham radio has offered the first line of communications out of a devastated area, from an earthquake, hurricane, tornado or other natural or man-made disaster," said Richard Palm, deputy manager of the American Radio Relay League, a non-profit organization representing ham operators.

Robert Neukomm is surrounded by amateur radio equipment he keeps in the basement of his Wyckoff, N.J., home. He has been maintaining daily contact with other ham radio operators who are still on Grenada.

The league, which is based in Newington, Conn., says there are more than 400,000 licensed ham operators in the United States and an estimated 1.5 million around the world.

The ARRL was founded in Hartford, Conn., in 1914, when Hiram Percy Maxim, who tinkered in early radio, got together with a few amateur radio friends to establish a network they could use to relay their signals across the nation.

During World War I, several thousand hams in the United States were called upon to operate radios for the armed forces, and the hobby grew.

AMATEUR RADIO, regulated by international treaty, operates on bands or channels on frequencies not designated for radio stations, police, military or transportation use.

All operators in the United States must be licensed by the Federal Communications Commission. To obtain a license, a prospective ham must pass an exam that tests proficiency in Morse Code — still used when interference makes voice communication difficult — knowledge of radio electronics and familiarity with federal regulations.

The basic purpose of amateur radio, as spelled out by the FCC, is to provide a voluntary communication service to the public in emergencies, Palm said. But it is also a hobby.

"Hams love to communicate with just about every country in the world, and it's in a very unique position to provide and enhance international goodwill," Palm said.

During World War I, several thousand hams in the United States were called upon to operate radios for the armed forces, and the hobby grew slowly but steadily.

When a boom in Citizens Band radio, which operates on different wavelengths, occurred in the 1970s, many younger operators switched to ham radio because CB, which does not require a license, became a crowded fad.

"There were too many kids on it. It got uncontrolled," said Baretella.

HE SAID ham operating fulfills a "need to tell somebody when something happens. It's a special kind of feeling. I guess not everybody has it."

Carol Smith of the Radio Relay League said the organization has helped finance placement of 10 satellites into orbit to provide a relay for ham signals. The last was launched July 11. But in most cases, ham operators use the Earth's atmosphere to help get their high frequency signals to other stations.

"You can go thousands and thousands of miles by bouncing it off the various layers of the ionosphere," said Ms. Smith.

For their efforts during the Grenada invasion, several ham operators have received or been nominated for citizen awards. Rep. Frank J. Guarini will recommend to President Reagan that Baretella be given "the highest possible civilian award," an aide to the New Jersey Democrat says.

Rupert Murdoch adds Chicago newspaper to media empire

CHICAGO (AP) — Promising to keep the Chicago flavor of the feisty Chicago Sun-Times, Rupert Murdoch added the nation's seventh-largest daily to his global media empire with a bid local investors couldn't beat.

Local investors, led by publisher James Hoge, had co-owner Marshall Field V rooting for them, but couldn't match Murdoch's $90 million offer for the 649,000-circulation daily and related Field Enterprises property.

Murdoch's deal, announced Tuesday, is expected to be sealed Jan. 3.

The Sun-Times, which employs 2,000 people, was put on sale in April when co-owners Marshall Field V and half-brother Frederick announced plans to dissolve Field Enterprises Inc. to pursue their own business interests.

Their grandfather, Marshall Field III, founded the newspaper in the 1940s, and a family member served as publisher until 1980 when Marshall Field V stepped down.

Marshall Field V said he had hoped to sell the paper to local interests, "but my brother wanted to maximize the sale of the paper. He has that right under our agreement...and I don't want to get into an argument with him."

The Fields asked for — and received — assurances from Murdoch that the Sun-Times would continue to publish "in substantially its present form."

"Our job is to make it better and drive it forward," Murdoch said at a news conference. "It is a Chicago product and we are here to serve Chicago. There are no plans to change the makeup."

Murdoch also said he has no plans to seek labor concessions. Unlike some newspapers he's purchased, the Sun-Times is profitable.

The purchase means Murdoch will compete against Chicago-based Tribune Co., in the nation's two biggest cities. He also owns the New York Post. Tribune Co. owns the New York Daily News and the Chicago Tribune.

At the Tribune, editor James Squires expressed sadness at the Field family's departure from Chicago journalism. "They have been a great competitor for us," he said.

Most people think aching feet normal

CHICAGO (AP) — Most Americans believe their feet are beautiful even when they ache, and some folks think even the aching is normal, according to a poll released today which purports to be the first major survey of feelings towards feet.

The Gallup Poll was conducted for Dr. Scholl's Inc. and the American Podiatry Association by The American Institute of Public Opinion at Princeton, N.J.

"The results reveal some 'alarming misconceptions,' the two sponsoring groups say.

For example, the study found that 73 percent of people over the age of 18 reported that their feet hurt, and 82 percent consider the condition normal. The younger the respondent, the more likely he or she was to believe that aching feet are a natural condition.

According to the poll, 75 percent of Americans spend more than four hours a day on their feet, and half of those who complained of foot problems attributed the pain to "being on their feet a lot."

One misconception pointed up by the survey is the belief that having sore feet is normal, said Dr. Charles Gudas, a podiatrist at the University of Chicago and a member of the National Foot Health Board.

"Tired, aching feet at the end of the day is not a normal condition. It means you have a functional imbalance or static deformities like fallen arches, ingrown toenails," Gudas said.

For 33 percent of those surveyed, the pain of standing for hours was worsened by uncomfortable — but fashionable — shoes.

Nevertheless, 22 percent of women surveyed said they wouldn't give up their high heels even if they believed the shoes were damaging their feet.

Twenty percent of men and 45 percent of women said they would put up with uncomfortable shoes for the sake of looking good. Women between the ages of 18 and 24 were most likely to follow the dictates of fashion to the detriment of their toes.

Another common misconception is the belief that shoes are harmful. They actually are not, Gudas said, noting that most chronic problems are hereditary.

"With high-fashion shoes, you may have a lot of problems, but it's my opinion they don't do a great harm to the feet," he said. "They don't wear them 24 hours a day, every day of the week, anyway."

While 84 percent of women and 90 percent of men consider their rare feet attractive, only individuals between the ages of 18 and 24 reported going barefoot with any frequency. Nearly 25 percent of the young adults surveyed said they did so "most of the time."

The most common foot problems for all respondents, but particularly women, were calluses, blisters and corns. Only one in 10 individuals had seen a podiatrist for a foot problem.

Conservative Collins claims: Time has come to stress academics, not athletics

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

H. Ross Perot and his Governor's Select Committee stirred up a hornet's nest throughout Texas when they proposed cutbacks on extra-curricular activities, especially those in the area of athletics.

Part of those cutbacks include getting back to the basics of education, the three Rs, and moving extra-curricular activities like band, drama and athletics to non-school hours and non-school days.

ANOTHER organization, the Texans for Conservative Government — a legislative arm for Texas Research Studies — is in favor of restrictions based on a participant's school achievements, mainly through the student's grade point average.

"The Perot committee has not formalized their recommendations in this effort yet," said Dick Collins, president of Texans for Conservative Government. "They have talked in general about entirely too much stress on extra-curricular activities, specifically athletics and not enough on academics.

"There is no question in my mind that they are entirely right. I love high school athletics, I participated in and enjoyed them. It's an important part of the growing up experience. But I would hazard a guess that most of us here in the Oil Patch know who the star halfback is at Odessa Permian and not who the straight A students and members of the National Honor Society are."

Collins would like to see academics gain their proper perspective in, as well as outside, the school system, using stricter academic requirements as a basis for extra-curricular participation.

"The objective of going to high school is to gain knowledge, to get ready to make a success in life because most of those kids (in athletics) are not going to grow up to be a Tony Dorsett or a Roger Staubach. There's only 2,000 jobs in the NFL, so most of those kids aren't going to make the pros. Our focus needs to be more on academics and less on extra-curricular activities. Maybe not much less, but we need to talk in terms of making those kids that are participating in athletics and other extra-curricular activities responsible students."

A KEY to Collins' position on extra-curricular activities is the current academic requirements to be eligible to compete. For one, it is possible for a high school student to maintain only a D average (1.0 grade point) and still be eligible.

In the Midland Independent School District, for example, all that is required of a student is passing four solids — academic classes such as English, math, history, etc. — and a D is considered passing (The UIL only asks for passing grades in three solids).

Also, there is a six-week probation period for each student and if a student has a failing mark in one of his solids, he has the next six-weeks to bring the grade up or lose his eligibility. Once the eligibility is lost, the student must bring his grade up before he can return to his extra-curricular activities.

Though MISD has a higher standard than required,

Collins and his group feel it is still too low. He also doesn't agree with a recommendation by the State Board of Education.

"The State Board of Education voted to recommend to the UIL that they raise academic requirements from passing three out of seven courses, or Ds in three out of seven courses, to Cs in three out of seven courses," said Collins. "That's nonsense. If those kids can't make a two-point average (or better), they ought not to be playing ball (or any other extra-curricular activity)."

COLLINS ADDED that one proposal has the grade point requirement as high as 2.5 but says, "I'd go along with a two-point and that's not just for athletics. It should include drama, band, whatever else. Our focus of public school education is to educate those kids to read and write and add and to make them ready for society when they go out there because we all have got to add whether we have a pocket calculator or not."

Chaps give cage fans sneak look

Midland College Chaparral basketball fans were treated to a sneak preview of the 1983-84 season at Open House Night in Al Langford Chaparral Center Tuesday, highlighted by an intrasquad scrimmage.

Coach Jerry Stone introduced his new-look Chaparrals while tennis coach Joe Williams presented his 6-0 women's team and his 9-1 men's team.

Stone pointed out that the Chaps have only four sophomores returning and "we will be an up and down team with no super stars", but he promised it would be another entertaining team.

Then, as if to prove it, the Chaps went out and staged a lively 30-minute scrimmage with the Terry Williamson-Ted Battles coached Green defeating the Ed Clements-Skip Baldwin White, 82-70.

Stone said, "The teams were equally divided by our trusty computer, so the outcome was purely a case of superior coaching."

Baldwin left early, head hanging in humiliation, claiming he had a TV broadcast Wednesday or Thursday.

A LITTLE bit of old (Brian Essary) and new (Jerald Wrightsil) led the Green in scoring with Essary pumping in 24 points and Wrightsil, a star at Big Spring High last season, warming up in the second half to score 24 as well. Bert Cooper at point guard handled himself well and contributed 10 points while Jeff Hurd, a freshman from Dallas, scored 10.

For the White, 6-11 Tevin Bins, a freshman from New York City, led the way with 21 points and veteran Ervin Williams scored 16. Chuckie Graves had 10 points. Bins, who did most of the damage in the second half, played the final 15 minutes with four personal fouls.

The Chaps open their season Monday against Cisco College in a 7:30 p.m. game at the Chaparral Center.

Tex claims colleges face potential scandal

DALLAS (AP) — Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, said on Tuesday that college football faces a potential "big scandal" because agents are signing players before their eligibility expires.

Schramm said there is "intense competition between the agents for a growing number of clients."

"It will come to a head in some fashion where somebody will blow the whistle on another guy," Schramm added. "One way it could happen is if a player signs with more than one agent. One agent might assert his prior claim on the player and produce evidence showing he preceeded the other agent."

Asked if he had a solution to agents signing players before the season was over, Schramm said "I have no idea what the answer is. I'm positive those in the colleges are just as aware as we are in the professional ranks."

Schramm said some agents don't care about the fall out.

The King WAS dead

Remember the days of "The King is Dead" stuff. Old Mojo over at Odessa Permian will forgive us. It should read, "The King WAS Dead."

One of the District 4-5A peasants, Abilene Cooper, didn't like the new reign of the Rebels of Midland Lee and quickly re-installed Mojo as No. 1 by whipping the Rebels last Friday night by a 23-21 score.

Now on the horizon is "General James" and his Sky Dawgs of Midland High. The Bulldogs are another peasant on the 4-5A front after quarterback James Weiborn went down for two weeks with a knee injury. He is back and the Sky Raiders will probably go back to the pass-happy days that made them famous.

CATCHING THE brunt of all this is Lee's Rebels. We all told them that they could be in the playoffs with a win over either Cooper or MHS. Cooper is past history. MHS is the matter at hand and must be dealt with Friday.

How are we as Midlanders supposed to view this game? Who is the villain?

Is it possible that MHS is in a no-win situation? If the Bulldogs crumble the last hopes of Lee for a playoff berth, won't the Bulldogs be winners with the wrath of the community upon their shoulders?

If Lee wins the game, they go to the playoffs, but in the sight of MHS followers, it's going to have to be at the expense of Midland High.

THINGS WERE much neater last year. MHS was in the playoff hunt. This year the Bulldogs can't win a playoff berth and the only thing they can do now is keep another Midland team from going to bigger things. That is the sad situation we find as Friday night approaches.

That would seem to be the first impression. But we must remember what district races are all about in the first place. There are seven games for each team. Each one should have hopes of winning on each night. That's what we teach, or should teach.

A trip to the playoffs must be earned by the two teams who post the best overall district record. There should never be a "give-me" game. If Lee is good enough to battle for a state championship, then the Rebels must be good enough to beat Midland High on an even terms basis. Maybe the fact is that Lee may not deserve a playoff berth if they lose.

For Midland High a repeat city championship should be an incentive. I never knew a Bulldog or Rebel who didn't want to win this game, and that's as it should be. The test is there and we hope the best team on this Friday wins. That's why we play these games.

AND YES, WE all thought the King was dead. But old Mojo is up on the top of the standings again where they left off one year ago. Mojo Magic has come back to haunt us — a resurrection of sorts.

But even though Mojo is back on top, the position is shaky at best. If Odessa High defeats Permian Friday before a near sellout throng at Ratliff Stadium, and Lee wins, Permian is out of the playoffs by virtue of having lost to both Lee and OHS.

Should Permian crow once again in 4-5A Friday by beating OHS and Lee fail to take care of business against MHS, it would look like another four-way tie for second place between Abilene High, San Angelo, OHS and Lee. Haven't we seen all this before?

But the bottom line is that you throw out a football and let the teams decide all this. Stop worrying about what could happen and let the kids decide it all. Then we will talk playoffs and who goes and who stays home.

Can't we just sit back and enjoy this one for what it is — a football game between two teams with a lot of pride and lot at stake?

Southern Methodist defensive tackle Mitch Willis, after the 10th-ranked Mustangs stopped Texas A&M three times from the 1-yard line in the final period to preserve a 10-7 victory: "They were so close to the goal line that you could place half a burnt cigarette between the nose of the ball and the end zone."

Denny wins NL Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — John Denny, who turned his career around last season to become the winningest pitcher in the National League, was named the winner of the NL Cy Young Award today.

Denny, 30, posted a 19-6 record in helping the Philadelphia Phillies win the NL East division title. It was the best season of the right-hander's nine-year career and came directly after a year in which he was 6-11 with the Cleveland Indians and 0-2 with the Phillies, who acquired him on Sept. 11, 1982, to help them chase the East flag.

He faltered in that short stint but made up for it in style in 1983. In 242 2-3 innings, Denny registered a 2.37 earned run average (second in the league), struck out 139 and walked 53 while hurling seven complete games.

DENNY WAS A landslide winner in the balloting by 24 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America — two from each of the league's 12 cities. He received 20 first-place votes and 103 points in outdistancing Cincinnati's Mario Soto. Denny appeared on 21 of the 24 ballots cast.

Following Soto, who was 17-13 for the last-place Reds and led the league in complete games with 18, was New York Mets reliever Jesse Orosco. Soto collected 61 points and had two first-place votes, while Orosco had one first-place selection and 19 points. Orosco, a left-hander, was 13-7 with a 1.47 ERA and 17 saves.

The other first-place vote went to Montreal's Steve Rogers, who fourth with 15 points.

Pittsburgh's Larry McWilliams (seven points), Phillies reliever Al Holland (four), Atlanta rookie Craig McMurty (three), Bob Welch of the Dodgers (two), Nolan Ryan of the Astros (one) and reliever Lee Smith of the Chicago Cubs (one) also received votes. The writers voted for three pitchers, with five points awarded for first place, three for second and one for third.

Denny began his major league career with St. Louis and was 51-46 for the Cardinals before being dealt to Cleveland on Dec. 7, 1979. He had a 24-23 record with the Indians and even re-signed with them prior to the 1982 season after becoming a free agent.

WHEN THE Phillies were searching for added pitching in the 1982 pennant chase, they sent three minor leaguers to Cleveland for Denny. But he pitched poorly and was considered the Phillies' No. 4 starter when the season began.

But with Philadelphia's other starters either hurt or faltering,

Phillies' John Denny

Denny became the team's stopper, at one point winning seven straight decisions. He was 13-1 following the All-Star break and 6-0 in September, when the Phillies took charge of the division. He also was the winning pitcher in the Phillies' only World Series victory.

"I've grown a lot from last year," Denny said during the World Series. "This year, what I accomplished was consistency. Being consistent has allowed me to have the year I did and that's what separates this year from last."

Denny also became more religious recently and he claimed it helped in his turnaround.

"I BECAME a Christian a while back," he said. "As a result, you have a different attitude about things. You handle the job differently. I learned to cope better."

He credited Phillies pitching coach Claude Osteen with helping him last season.

"When I came to Philadelphia, I got together with Claude Osteen, who was my pitching coach in St. Louis," Denny said. "He noticed a problem in my delivery and we corrected it in spring training. It made a major difference."

"Finally, the Phillies have a strength and flexibility coach (Gus Hoefling), and I joined his program. I worked harder than I ever have before. I strengthened my arm and body coming off a sore shoulder from the year before."

Grange upset by death

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
 A little bit of Red Grange must have died with the news that his old coach and close friend, George Halas, had passed away in Chicago at the age of 86.

"He is very distraught — he really doesn't want to talk to anybody for a while," Grange's wife said Tuesday from their home in Indian Lake, Fla. "The phone has been ringing constantly. Later on, I'm sure, he will feel up to it. But not now. It was a great shock to him. And he is taking it badly."

Halas and Grange. The two names are synonymous with the birth of pro football — one, the former player, coach and owner of the Chicago Bears; the other, football's greatest player of his time and the magnet that gave the game a stimulus.

"I always thought of the Bears as my alma mater and so did many of the other players," Grange, Illinois' famed No. 77, said a few years ago in writing the foreword to Richard Whittingham's Illustrated History of the Chicago Bears.

"George Halas built the Bears into what they are today. When I joined them, George used to sell a half-dozen tickets and run across the road and buy tape, then tape the players' ankles before they would run on the field."

"He ran everything at the ballpark. Nobody ever worked as hard as George. And if it hadn't been for the Bears and the Green Bay Packers I don't believe there would have been a National Football League."

The key date was Oct. 16, 1921. That was the day that Halas and Edward C. "Dutch" Sternaman, both 26, launched the Chicago franchise by moving a team from Decatur, Ill. — about 125 miles to the southwest — into the bustling Windy City with the financial backing of a cornstarch manufacturer named A. E. Staley.

The Staleys had been part of a ragtag league of semipro players from close-by cities — Massillon, Decatur, Rochester, Detroit, etc. — forming the American Professional Football Association, which later became the NFL. The great Jim Thorpe was made president to provide stability and arouse public interest.

Some 8,000 paid $1 to watch the Staleys beat the Rochester Jeffersons 16-13. Halas and Sternaman got $100 each, same as the players, who worked as miners, farmers and store clerks during the week.

In 1922 the Staleys became the Chicago Bears which bore the cleat print of Halas as player, owner, manager and coach for better than half a century and as coach setting an all-time record of 328 victories.

His great coup was in signing Grange, who set an All-America tailback for Illinois who was the best name in college football, to a pro contract in 1925.

An ingenious promoter named C. C. "Cash and Carry" Fyle handled Grange's negotiations and made the red-haired star one of the first big commercial commodities, plugging Red Grange dolls, candy bars, meat loaf, sweaters and socks while endorsing other products.

"George Halas was a different kind of coach," Grange said later. "Tough but respected."

He recalled that once a player named Johnny Sisk complained of a sore leg and got excused from practice. Halas was looking out a window when Sisk opened his car door only to have a smoke bomb explode in his face. Sisk ran like a deer toward the clubhouse, only to be met by a glowering coach.

"Okay, John, six laps," Halas snapped.

Another time when feuding factions threatened team morale, Halas called players by name and ordered them to line up in two different groups.

"Here are the guys who are breaking up the team into factions," he said. "I'll fight you one by one, or all together."

There were no takers.

Grange said Halas was hard on officials and once was so abusive to a referee named Jim Durfee, the latter began marching off a five-yard penalty.

"What's that for?" asked Halas, steaming.

"Coaching from the sidelines," the referee replied.

"That proves how dumb you are," Halas yelled. "That's 15 yards, not five."

"Yeah," said Durfee, "but the penalty for your kind of coaching is only five yards."

Not many people got the better of George Halas.

Cleveland men sentenced

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two Cleveland men have been sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to charges in the slaying of Olympic track star Stella Walsh three years ago.

Donald Cassidy, 21, pleaded guilty to murder Tuesday in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court. Judge Harry A. Hanna sentenced Cassidy to 15 years to life in prison.

Cassidy also was sentenced to one to five years on an escape charge. He and two others escaped from the county jail on Oct. 6, and all were recaptured.

Ricky Clark, 24, pleaded guilty Tuesday to voluntary manslaughter in Walsh's death. Hanna sentenced Clark to six to 25 years in prison.

Walsh won medals in the 1932 and 1936 Olympics for her native Poland. In 25 years of track competition, she won about 65 world and national championships.

Walsh, 69, was killed outside a Cleveland discount store on Dec. 4, 1980.

What will and what won't change when the Bell System splits up.

When Southwestern Bell Telephone separates from the Bell System and becomes a separate company, you can be sure your local telephone service will continue working the way it always has. We're committed to keep providing high quality, dependable local telephone service at rates that are affordable for everyone. In short, one thing that won't change is our commitment to keep your local phone service the best—and the most economical in the world.

mission decision, Southwestern Bell Telephone may also offer new telephone equipment for sale in 1984. TELEPHONE REPAIR. If you continue to lease the telephones now in your home, repairs will be handled by AT&T at no additional charge beginning January 1. Telephones purchased from Southwestern Bell Telephone before the end of the year also will be serviced by AT&T, but you'll be charged if your set is out of warranty. Of course, repairs of telephones purchased from companies other than Bell should be referred to the store or manufacturer.

BILLING. You'll continue to receive one bill for all services previously provided by the Bell System, except purchases of new equipment from AT&T. But each company's charges will be shown separately on your monthly bill. For example, long distance calls placed within your surrounding area and handled by Southwestern Bell Telephone will be shown on one page, while long distance service provided by other companies will be shown on another. Telephone numbers of each company will be featured on your statement in case you have questions about your bill. LOCAL TELEPHONE SERVICE. Southwestern Bell Telephone will continue to provide the network for completing local and long distance calling. In other words, you'll still get a dial tone from Southwestern Bell Telephone.

WE WANT YOU TO KNOW. At Southwestern Bell Telephone, we want you to know about these and other changes that will affect the way we do business together. Watch for more details in the months ahead in ads like this and in your monthly bill insert. In the meantime, if you'd like to learn more about these changes, call us at 1 800 555-5000, toll-free, and we'll be glad to answer your questions.

4-5A discards contingency plan for 8-team slate

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The District 4-5A Executive Committee took no chances in making out its 1984 football schedule while the University Interscholastic League (UIL) was making up its mind for district realignments for that year.

In a meeting last month, the committee drew up two schedules, one with Big Spring in the league and the other with Big Spring out.

Saturday, the UIL released its new district alignments for 1984 and District 4-5A was left untouched. Big Spring will again be a member of 4-5A.

Big Spring wanted to drop to Class 4A, which would leave 4-5A with seven teams and the possibility of nine-game football schedules instead of the current 10. Since every team would draw a different open date under a seven-team league, it looked impossible to fill those open dates with games.

However, the UIL set the Class 5A enrollment at 1,305 students and kept Big Spring in Class 5A. Big Spring is right at that enrollment cutoff.

Now that the UIL has decided on the Big Spring issue, the committee has released 4-5A's football schedule for 1984.

Although Big Spring is still in the league, 4-5A fans won't recognize the new schedule. For the first time in nearly two decades, the district race will not open up with the Midland High-Odessa Permian and Midland Lee-Odessa High matchups. That's going to make it a new ball game.

Next Sept. 28, Midland High will host Big Spring and Lee will travel to San Angelo, marking the first time those teams have opened the district campaign against each other.

One feature was saved, however. The intra-city clashes involving teams from Odessa, Midland and Abilene will again be played as the last game of the year. If Big Spring had fallen out of the 4-5A district, the MHS-Lee game would have been the first district game.

Midland High's schedule looks like this next year — Big Spring, at Abilene High, Odessa High, San Angelo, at Abilene Cooper, at Permian and Lee.

Midland Lee's schedule will be at San Angelo, Cooper, at Permian, at Big Spring, Abilene High, Odessa High and at Midland High.

Lee coach Spike Dykes has always taken the approach that you have to play all the teams anyway, so it makes little difference when you play them. "The schedule really doesn't make any difference to me, but I'm glad Big Spring is in the league. I don't think anyone in the league wants a nine-game schedule," said Dykes.

Midland High coach Pat Culpepper said, "Well, it will be different not having to open against Permian. I think that will be good for us."

Midland Athletic Director Gil Bartosh noted, "I don't see any major flaws in the schedule for our local teams. I think things worked out well for both of them. It was a blind draw and I think we came out pretty well."

With MHS opening with Big Spring and Abilene High instead of Permian and Big Spring, the Bulldogs have to feel like they got a good deal. However, the Bulldogs follow with Odessa High and San Angelo and end with Permian and Lee. That will be two rough stretches for the Bulldogs. However, if MHS gets off to a fast start, the Dawgs might be in a position to handle those situations.

On the Lee front, the Rebels face a tough opener with San Angelo, but come back against Cooper before facing Permian. Even though the Rebels stumbled against Cooper this year, most coaches would agree that you would like to have a Cooper between the San Angelo and Permian games. Lee would the catch Big Spring and Abilene High after Permian before meeting Odessa High and MHS. There should be no major gripes there either.

Every team seems to have a few bright spots and a few rough spots. But overall, there seems to be few gripes.

This schedule will also be followed in basketball, volleyball and baseball, even though those sports play each district team twice. Basketball and baseball will follow this year's format through the current school year.

The following is a composite schedule for the 1984 football season:

Sept. 28: Big Spring at Midland High, Midland Lee at San Angelo, Abilene High at Odessa Permian, Odessa High at Abilene Cooper.
Oct. 5: Midland High at Abilene High, Abilene Cooper at Midland Lee, Odessa Permian at Big Spring, San Angelo at Odessa High.
Oct. 12: Odessa High at Midland High, Midland Lee at Odessa Permian, Abilene High at San Angelo, Big Spring at Abilene Cooper.
Oct. 19: San Angelo at Midland High, Midland Lee at Big Spring, Odessa High at Abilene High, Abilene Cooper at Odessa Permian.
Oct. 26: Midland High at Abilene Cooper, Abilene High at Midland Lee, Odessa Permian at San Angelo, Big Spring at Odessa High.
Nov. 2: Midland High at Odessa Permian, Odessa High at Midland Lee, Abilene High at Big Spring, San Angelo at Abilene Cooper.
Nov. 9: Midland Lee at Midland High, Odessa Permian at Odessa High, Big Spring at San Angelo, Abilene Cooper at Abilene High.

Can Ralph Sampson do impossible?

Pop Quiz: The only player to score a touchdown in both the Rose Bowl and the Super Bowl? ... Hint, he's active in the NFL...

One wonders how they can expect Ralph Sampson to turn things around in Houston when the Rockets couldn't finish above .500, even with Moses Malone. The rookie from the University of Virginia will need time and help, unless he turns out to be the greatest thing ever to hit the NBA...

MIDLAND COLLEGE Coach Jerry Stone confirms that former Midland College star Spud Webb will be a starter at North Carolina State and will make six ESPN appearances alone this season.

Incidentally, the R-T's Terry Williamson has an article on Spud in the Sporting News' pre-season basketball magazine, now on sale at newstands.

Ever since I referred to the University of South Carolina as "not one of the stronger teams in the ACC" in an article about Southern California's decline, fans have been informing us that the Gamecocks are no longer members of the ACC, but independent in football and Metro Conference in basketball.

I know, I know, but it was a case of slipping into old habits. It was always felt here that the Gamecocks made a mistake in dropping out of the ACC. And how come they don't play Clemson on Big Thursday anymore?...

OKLAHOMA'S Barry Switzer may be the winningest coach in college football, percentage-wise, but against Texas his Sooners are 5-5-1.

Jim Frey, the Chicago Cubs' new manager, was Darryl Strawberry's private batting tutor. When Darryl asked how the Cubs would pitch to him, Frey answered, "We're not going to pitch to you. We're going to pitch around you."

When Los Angeles fans were polled as to whether to keep Steve Howe, the troubled relief pitcher of the Dodgers, the answer was an overwhelming "yes". Wonder how such a poll would have turned out in Atlanta?...

THE HOUSTON Oilers, once NBC's hottest tv attractions under Bum Phillips, has had its network reduced from 26 to 12 stations, one reason the team isn't seen in West Texas anymore.

The Oilers are hurting at the gate as well as on the tube. Only 39,000 showed up for a recent game in the Astrodome.

If they were voting the 1982 Heisman Trophy now, it would probably go to SMU's Eric Dickerson or Pittsburgh's Dan Marino, both enjoying sensational rookie NFL seasons. The actual Heisman winner, Herschel Walker, wasn't all that great in the minor league USFL.

Only player to score a touchdown in the Rose and Super Bowl... Rob Lytle, then with Michigan, now with Denver...

Hurricane set free

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — University of Miami football Coach Howard Schnellenberger says the fifth-ranked Hurricanes can now press on "unshackled" as a two-year probation for minor recruiting violations came to an end.

The probation, announced the week after the Hurricanes picked off then top-ranked Penn State en route to a 9-2 campaign in 1981, kept Miami out of a post-season bowl game that year. It ended at 12:01 a.m. today, Schnellenberger said.

The probation — for such minor violations as giving away hats and T-shirts — had included limits on the number of scholarships that could be given to football players, but quarterback Bernie Kosar and linebacker Jay Brophy said its effect on them had been negligible.

Pete Redfern paralyzed from freak diving mishap

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It appears that former major league pitcher Pete Redfern wasn't as seriously injured in a freak diving accident last weekend as first believed.

"Originally, the information that I had was that the spinal cord had been severed between the third and fourth cervical vertebra," said Redfern's lawyer and friend, Jay Jaffe, Tuesday night. "The information that I got tonight is that it's not severed, but it's severely damaged between four and five, not three and four, which is much better as far as Pete's concerned."

Redfern, 29, pitched in parts of seven seasons with the Minnesota Twins before being cut by the American League team last spring. He has been bedridden at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, Calif., some 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, since shortly after last Saturday's accident.

Jaffe said a decision was expected today concerning surgery.

"He did have some movement today," said Jaffe. "His spirits are very good and the doctor that he has in the case now has told him that he's going to work with him and Pete's going to have to have positive thoughts to fight this because he's going to have a fight on his hands."

"He's awake and he's aware of his situation and this afternoon during examination he did have some reflexive movement in his right leg. The nurse said that we would have to wait to see the degree to which the nerves regenerate after surgery to have a more complete prognosis. I feel a lot better."

Redfern, a right-hander, was signed as a free agent by the Los Angeles Dodgers during the 1983 season and was sent to their Albuquerque farm club in the Pacific Coast League, where he was used in long relief.

He was notified of his release by the Dodgers last Saturday, the day of the accident.

Jaffe, 36, like Redfern a former baseball player at the University of Southern California, described the details, as he knew them.

"Pete was with two guys Saturday on Balboa Island," Jaffe said. "Apparently, there was a wall about three or four feet high next to the water and Pete dove off it without realizing how shallow the water was. It was about one or two feet. He says he doesn't remember hitting bottom."

High School athletics overemphasized

Collins feels this improvement in education standards shouldn't just be limited to improvement in the school system, but outside as well. What he sees is a campaign for academic exposure and awards through the media along the lines of what athletics receives.

"We recognize them probably once a year in an honors banquet or something like that," said Collins. "Yeah, there's Joe Jones, and he's a smart guy, and that's all we do. We need to do more of that and we need to publicize it, get the local newspapers to do that, get the media active."

"One of the most successful programs I've seen is Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Any of us that like to go out partying from time to time have had a little bit more to drink than we ought to have. But now, with Mothers Against Drunk Driving, all of a sudden — and I've known men who frequently have the old idea: 'I'm okay, I can drive home, I'm fine,' because it's macho and ended up in accidents — now it's the other way around. They (MADD) have created a real awareness of driving and people are starting to become careful when they've been drinking. I think that public relations campaign has created a major effort in the United States towards thinking about it, and I think we need that same kind of thing toward academics."

ONE OF THE counter arguments against cutbacks in extra-curricular activities, especially from the athletic point of view, has been that extra-curricular activities help teach discipline among the participants.

"That's probably, by and large, a valid comment," said Collins. "But, just because kids behave in school — they should behave themselves in school — we shouldn't have to pat them on the back for it because they are supposed to behave. Further, that ignores the central problem of the reason we go to school: To get an education, not to beat Odessa Permian."

"How many kids (graduating seniors) from Midland Lee or Odessa Permian are going to go to college on an athletic scholarship. There will be a few. How many, 10, plus or minus? Let's just say 20 percent of graduating seniors get an athletic scholarship. What about the other 80 percent? If they haven't focused on education, what are they going to do when they get out of school? They've got to learn all this

Gourmets of Gridiron Cowboys eat high on hog

By SKIP BAYLESS Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

It hit me about the 24th bite of my submarine sandwich, which was about the size of an NFL ball. Though we were still climbing, already my keyboard was greased with mayonnaise and butter...

That's when it hit me like a Boston cream pie in the face. For eight weeks, Dallas had wondered why its Cowboys appear so sluggish until fourth quarters, and now I knew. The Cowboys eat too much.

Call them the Dallas Doughboys. Metallic cor-don bleu. Come and get them. Soup's on and on and on, on the Cowboy team plane. I know this because I occasionally catch their charter flight to or from games, depending on commercial air schedules and if I've eaten the past week.

But before we get to the appetizers, remember that the Cowboys bill journalists for the flights. Don't get the idea that objectivity is bought with steak and lobster. It's just that everyone is served the same movable feast, defensive tackles and wimp writers alike.

TAKE IT from a 152-pounder. The Cowboys are served enough on late Saturday afternoon flights to feed Peking for a week. Soon after landing, of course, they eat dinner — a hotel buffet stretching from here to ancient Rome.

The Cowboys need a Lawrence Taylor, all right — to let out their silver disco pants before kickoff. The Cowboys don't play their games in quarters, but courses. It's a wonder they don't eat the hash marks...

Why do the Cowboys put such heat on the passer? Coach Ernie Statner calls for a "blintz." The guys running in and out of the huddle aren't shutting plays, but going for more Chinese. Liz Taylor ought to be a Cowboy Cheerleader.

The Cowboys play only four quarters because I COULDN'T stomach another bite. A flight attendant said, "How about some strawberry swirl cheesecake?" I said, "Sure."

She brought not one, two, but three pieces! And I devoured them! I felt like I was in an Alpo commercial. This team has its cake and eats too. Finally, we began our descent, probably because everyone had gained 10 pounds.

And this ran interference for dinner. There was half a calf I was too full to eat. Potato halves filled with cheese sauce. Cauliflower in cheese sauce. Alka-Seltzer in cheese sauce. I kept seeing myself in a funhouse mirror. I kept typing, "Cowboy Coach Tom Sundae."

their food has just digested. Then, by all means, it's on to the team plane and a late lunch. This year, the Cowboys are America's team, and it's a shame they can't get Advantage program credit for calories instead of miles.

Sunday evening, I shared three seats with Larry Wansley, the Cowboy security director who came from the FBI's cream. Sorry, it's just that as you board, there are coolers of soft drinks and beer and in each seat a plastic "snack" sack.

A TRICK-OR-treater working the Highland Park of Dallas for four hours Monday night couldn't have done as well. Begin with the submarine, which requires a 300-pound benchpress to hoist. Turkey, baloney, ham, cheese, mayonnaise, butter and enough bread to choke Vernon Baird. Next, not one but two packs of sugared almonds. Two packs of cheese. Two of crackers. A garnish container — olives, onions, etc. Milk chocolates. And if that won't hold you until takeoff, an apple about the size of Washington state.

On the bus to the airport, I always vow not to open my snack pack. But before we land, I must have my Monday-column finished. While writing, I will nervous-eat almost anything that doesn't moo.

I can't help myself. Before we left the runway, I was into a second pack in the vacant seat. Thank goodness for Sugar Free Dr Pepper.

Now it was time to eat. Time for the appetizer tray, featuring a mound of crab salad (topped by raw shrimp) in half of what I think was the biggest avocado I've ever seen. Also, grapes, cheese, crackers and two different kinds of rolls, no bigger than Too Tall's fist. This in itself was meal enough.

And this ran interference for dinner. There was half a calf I was too full to eat. Potato halves filled with cheese sauce. Cauliflower in cheese sauce. Alka-Seltzer in cheese sauce. I kept seeing myself in a funhouse mirror. I kept typing, "Cowboy Coach Tom Sundae."

I COULDN'T stomach another bite. A flight attendant said, "How about some strawberry swirl cheesecake?" I said, "Sure."

She brought not one, two, but three pieces! And I devoured them! I felt like I was in an Alpo commercial. This team has its cake and eats too.

Finally, we began our descent, probably because everyone had gained 10 pounds. Growing restless, the players waged a plane-pillow fight such that the captain announced we would circle if it wasn't stopped. That's when I spied one last snack pack that had rolled beneath a seat. I believe they were fighting over it.

Dreams to keep a guy sleepless

By SCOTT OSTLER
Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service

The questions that have been keeping me awake at night...

Will Billy Martin be fired by George Steinbrenner?

This is an ongoing story that would knock nuclear war off the front pages in the Big Apple. There has been speculation that there are rumors that Steinbrenner is contemplating the possibility of considering firing Billy.

Steinbrenner knows he cannot make a hasty decision because (a) the fate of the team hangs in the balance; (b) the fate of the free world hangs in the balance; and (c) the story gets George in the newspapers every day.

The public's concern is natural because Billy is a guy we can all relate to. He cannot hold a job for more than a year or two, he cannot get along with his bosses or his players and he is generally misunderstood.

LIKEWISE, WE all sympathize with Mr. Steinbrenner, a convicted felon who is currently being sued by the IRS and Dave Winfield, and who is known as a compassionate, sensitive human.

But George has to make a decision. If he is going to fire Martin, he must do it soon, in order to have time to hire Billy back before spring training.

Where will Pete Rose play next year? Will he play in Cincinnati? Anaheim? Tokyo? Once again, you can bet there will be no hasty decision made here.

Last time Pete was a free agent, about four years ago, he toured the country for months, making more stops than Barnum & Bailey. That is the way the big guys do it these days — breakfast with Ted in Atlanta, lunch with Gene in Anaheim, dinner with George in New York, midnight snack with Ray at the golden arches in San Diego.

At each stop the player delivers a sincere message to the public about their great city, wonderful team and swell owner. The suspense builds. Alert me when Pete's campaign bus wheels into sight.

WILL AARON Pryor really make

Who would have dreamed that this work champ would actually come back after retiring permanently months ago?

Ring historians are searching the record books to find a precedent for this bizarre occurrence — a boxer announcing his retirement and then actually changing his mind and coming back to fight months and months later.

Insiders say that if Pryor really does return to the ring, it will be only in the unlikely event he is offered two things — an opponent and money.

Will the Russians boycott the 1984 Olympics?

It would be a tragedy if the Russians were to stay away from Los Angeles Without the smiling faces of Soviet athletes and officials, the Olympics would not be the same.

THESE FOLKS are cheerful as chipmunks in a forest fire. And their good-natured complaints and protests about everything from the food to the smog to the capitalistic nature of these Games would, in a backhanded way, let us know how much they appreciate our hospitality.

And when a Soviet athlete is stripped of an Olympic gold medal for failing a dope test in an American lab, well, who would want to miss out on that kind of fun?

Besides, some of the warmest stories that come out of Olympic Games are the tales of athletes who defect to the West. Since it is doubtful that any Canadian athletes will seek asylum in Los Angeles, we are going to miss those Soviets if they decide to stay home.

WILL (FILL in the name of your favorite free agent) be back with the (fill in the name of his present team)?

In Los Angeles, Dodgers pitcher Jerry Reuss says his decision to stay or go will be "strictly business."

In Tampa, underpaid quarterback Doug Williams jumped the Buccaneers and gloated over the subsequent collapse of his teammates, saying, "I hope they go 0 and 16."

Williams also said that from now on "I play for the paycheck."

Officials blame NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The referees' union said the National Basketball Association's latest offer proved the league does "not care to negotiate."

The NBA called the union's counterproposal "outrageous."

With that, the latest attempt to end an NBA lockout of referees failed on Tuesday with no word on when further negotiations might take place.

NBA negotiators, joined for the first time by Commissioner Larry O'Brien, and representatives of the referees' union met for four hours at a New York hotel Tuesday afternoon.

The league's referees have been locked out since the start of the exhibition season while non-union officials have worked games. Tuesday's meeting was the first since last Thursday, the day before the regular season began.

Union counsel Richie Phillips told reporters at the meeting's close that the NBA had shown by its new proposal that it really was not willing to negotiate the issues.

Gas decontrol effort filibustered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts in the Senate to stop spiraling winter heating bills are being challenged with a filibuster to President Reagan's effort to remove government price ceilings on natural gas.

Supporters of an administration-backed bill to gradually phase out the remaining federal price controls on gas producers in exchange for promises of a temporary rollback in residential rates were greeted Tuesday with a filibuster by Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, acknowledged that Melcher's filibuster could prevent any action this year on legislation to affect the prices paid by the 45 million American families who heat their homes with natural gas.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., filed a petition to end the filibuster two hours after it began. But under Senate rules, a vote on that will not come up until Thursday.

Baker, meanwhile, said he would try to bring up other bills today, such as an authorization for intelligence activities and appropriations for the Postal Service and Treasury Department.

Sixty votes are required to end Melcher's filibuster. Melcher said Tuesday night any number below that "would indicate that the Senate is not serious about considering natural gas at this time."

McClure, as chairman of the Senate Energy Committee and chief sponsor of the White House-endorsed bill, said the legislation "would ensure immediate and substantial relief to consumers" while preventing gas shortages that could send gas prices skyrocketing in the future.

Melcher, however, called the administration-supported bill a "fast shuffle," saying that neither it nor a dozen alternatives circulating on Capitol Hill have the necessary support for passage.

"My best guess would be that nothing is going to happen between now and Nov. 18" when Congress is scheduled to adjourn, he said.

At issue is a myriad system of government controls that have allowed some producers prices of up to $9 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas while limiting others to a 27-cent ceiling for the same volume.

"It's insanity," said Sen. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, the ranking Democrat on the energy committee and a supporter of decontrol. Johnston, however, succeeded in including a provision in the committee's bill that would protect from decontrol the 27-cent price paid by the largest utility and several industries in his state.

The chief feature of the committee's bill is Reagan's 1980 campaign promise to remove the federal price ceilings on so-called "old" natural gas from wells drilled before 1978.

Under a complicated system of federal controls, that gas, representing about half the nation's supply, is selling at an average price of $1.46 per thousand cubic feet compared with prices ranging up to $9 for gas from recently drilled wells.

A Senate Energy Committee compromise worked out last July by McClure, Johnston and Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., would gradually raise wholesale prices on old gas and lower the prices on gas from new wells to an average around $3.25.

Supporters contend that the compromise will reduce residential consumer rates, now averaging about $6.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, by 10 percent to 20 percent next year.

Opponents, led by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, argue that most of the old gas is owned by big oil companies who stand to reap up to $40 billion in profits if government price ceilings are removed.

Metzenbaum and Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., are sponsoring the chief alternative legislation to expand government controls rather than remove them and roll back prices to 1982 levels. It, too, lacks majority support.

SEPM tripping Saturday

The Permian Basin Section of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists (PBS/SEPM) will sponsor a one day field trip Saturday. The field trip, led by Johnnie Brown of Midland, will examine the Lower Cretaceous outcrops in the Iranan and Sheffield areas of Texas. Persons interested in attending are asked to meet at 9 a.m., U.S. Highway 67 at the west Rankin city limits. Participants are encouraged to bring boots, sack lunches, water, collecting equipment and a camera. For further information and reservations please contact the SEPM office at (915) 683-1573 or Brenda Cunningham (915) 686-7707.

Casbeer's project tops list

Dwayne Casbeer & Associates' $2.6 million office building, to be constructed at 210 N. Fort Worth by Odessa's Area Builders, tops the past two week's building permits.

Midland Department of Buildings and Inspections reported $813,165 in permits for the week of Oct. 17-21, and $3,802,957 for the week of Oct. 24-28. Monthly total permits rose to $6.9 million, which, with the month of October near its end, is very near the $7.8 million in permits granted during October 1982.

Second-largest behind the Casbeer office project is Rusk Elementary School's addition of new classrooms, being built by Lee George Construction, Big Spring, at a total construction cost of $390,000.

J.W. Cooper of Odessa had the next-largest commercial permit — for a $100,000-cost remodeling of Southwestern Bell's 701 N. Ft. Worth offices.

Area Builders will finish out the offices of ClayDesta Corp. at 8 Desta Drive, which will cost $80,000; the Odessa company will also finish American Petrofina's Dinero Plaza office, 1004 N. Big Spring, at a cost of $80,000.

There was a $25,000-cost permit granted to Wal-Mart, for T.M.J. Builders to put down the foundation for the national discount chain's 4715 Billingsley Boulevard store.

Residential construction in October continued high. The most expensive homes were built by Allen Construction, with a $140,000 construction cost for a home at 4527 Shady Oak, and Midland's Kelly Young Construction, building a $100,000 home at 4020 Angelina.

BONSA Construction, Midland, has permits for four houses to be built on Nassau Drive, in the $43,000 range. Whittle Homes, Rockland, Tex., has gained permits for five houses in Greentree, on Greentree Boulevard, each having a $61,000 construction cost.

Texas is Conoco Country.

Part III

Locked deep in the ground beneath the arid scrub country of South Texas, 125 miles southwest of San Antonio, are billions of barrels of untapped petroleum. There's just one hitch. Those barrels are thick tar that clings stubbornly to the sandstone that surrounds it.

But now Conoco has found a way to produce this huge energy resource. It's called "fracture-assisted steam technology" (FAST).

Here's how it works: Under great pressure, water is pushed through the tar-bearing formation, creating a network of horizontal fissures. Then steam is forced down an injection well into the fissures, melting the tar above and below them. This enables the tar to flow into production wells where it is diluted with lighter, thinner crude oil that has been pumped underground, so that the tar remains fluid when it cools. Then the mixture is pumped to the surface, where water (from the steam) is removed, leaving the tar-oil mixture ready for shipment to refineries where it can be processed into commercial products.

Although the FAST technology works, it is still very expensive. And at today's oil prices, the tar can not compete with conventional petroleum.

So for now, we'll continue to improve the technology and prepare for tomorrow. We're here for the long haul, because Texas is Conoco Country.

Self-discipline important in nursing, instructor says

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A patient has been in the hospital for two weeks. He's happy; he's receiving quality care, the food is reasonably good, the nurses attentive.

Across town, she's dressing for the 3-11 p.m. shift. The baby throws up on her and she finds her shoe, hidden by the dog, under the bed after a frantic search.

The car doesn't start for awhile and when she finally hits the freeway, everyone not in a hurry is between her and the hospital. On the floor, one patient needs an IV started because the day shift didn't have time to get to it. Two nurses have called in sick.

A light flashes and she hustles down to the patient who has been satisfied with his care for the past couple of weeks. Checking her watch in exasperation, she demands to know what he wants.

"I've just screwed up two weeks of good public relations," said Joy Ridehuber, instructor at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

"I realize that sometimes it's real tough to get excited about broth and jello," she told Midland Memorial Hospital employees during an inservice seminar on legal aspects of nursing Tuesday. But that doesn't mean a nurse should make faces when serving the food.

"Self-discipline is required to practice responsible, ethical behavior."

THE BLUR of patients may be referred to as numbers, cases or symptoms such as the "gallbladder down there in 15," she said. "Sometimes that's very easy to do. Sometimes, with the high stress involved, it's hard to give it our all."

No matter how hectic health care can be, Ms. Ridehuber stressed the importance of keeping accurate charts — for the benefit of those treating the patient and for the nurse's benefit.

"I know it's happened to all of us," she said. "You sit down at 2 a.m. and you haven't even opened your (chart) book yet."

A late entry looks just like that — and often can be construed as a cover up.

Although libel more often is associated with physicians, nurses also can be sued. Because most nurses don't have much money, most suits are filed against the physician or hospital, she said.

Malpractice insurance for a physician with a specialty can run between $35,000 and $50,000 a year. Nurses may spend $35 to $40 for $1 million worth of coverage.

"But that doesn't stop the hospital

Joy Ridehuber

Nurses can be sued for omitting information on patient's chart

A nurse that gives medication to a patient, explains what it is, what it is for and how it may affect him is following correct procedure.

But if she doesn't record on the patient's chart that she gave him the instructions, she could be sued.

Nurses are liable for instructions that weren't given, or those that were but weren't recorded, according to Joy Ridehuber, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center instructor.

A patient's records are used for communication between the medical staff, recording and evaluating the patient's progress and as a source of protection for the nurse, physician, staff, hospital as well as the patient.

Nurses are expected to chart the following: the truth; objective facts without opinions or emotions; care given; observations; anatomical locations; amounts; conclusions; notification of others regarding the patient; chronology of treatment; symptoms and incidents; mental status of the patient; position of bed and side rails; types of restraint, when they were applied and checked; what the patient says; and other necessary data.

The responsibilities of nursing can be overwhelming in the hectic rush of floor duties. But patients' rights can never be overlooked or violated.

According to the Patient's Bill of Rights, increasingly being given to patients at the time of admission, a patient has the right to:

— Considerate and respectful care;

— Complete, current information from his doctor about diagnosis, treatment and prognosis in terms he can understand and the name of the doctor handling his case;

— Information from his doctor that enables him to give informed consent before any procedure or treatment starts and from turning around and suing you — even though they're your agent," Ms. Ridehuber said.

NURSES HAVE the responsibility to see that patients' rights are not violated. According to the American Nursing Association's Code of Ethics, nurses provide services with respect for human dignity and the uniqueness of the patient; safeguard the patient's right to privacy by protecting confidential information; act to safeguard the client and the public when health care and safety are affected by the incompetent, unethical or illegal practice of anyone; and assume responsibility and accountability for individual nursing judgments and actions.

The nurse also participates in the profession's effort to protect the public from misinformation and misrepresentation and to maintain the integrity of nursing, the code states.

— Refuse treatment to the extent the law allows, and know the medical consequences of doing so (in cases of minors, the patient can be made a ward of the state);

— Privacy in his medical care program that includes discreet conduct of examination and treatment, confidentiality in discussion of his case, and his permission for anyone not directly involved in his care to be present at case discussion, consultation, examination and treatment;

— Have communications and records concerning his case kept confidential;

— Reasonable response to requests for services within the hospital's capacity, as indicated by the urgency of his case;

— Complete information as to the reasons for transfer to another institution if necessary (including the alternatives to such transfer), and the knowledge that the other institution has accepted his transfer;

— Information about any relationship between his hospital and other health-care or educational institutions as far as it concerns his case and about any professional relationships among individuals (by name) who are treating him;

— Know if the hospital proposes to conduct human experimentation affecting his case or treatment, and to refuse to participate in such research projects;

— Expect reasonable continuity of care (including knowledge of what appointment times and doctors are available and where) and to have the hospital provide for his doctor (or a delegate) letting him know what his continuing health care requirements will be after discharge;

— Examine his bill and have it explained to him regardless of who pays it; and — Know what hospital rules and regulations apply to his conduct while he is a patient.

Conservative group recommends educational solutions

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

While H. Ross Perot and his Select Committee on Public Education point out glaring problems in the state's schools, Texans for Conservative Government feel they have some solutions.

After extensive studies, president Dick Collins said the organization has come up with several recommendations to reform public education.

In an interview Tuesday, the Dallas businessman said problems with Texas schools can be overcome by raising teachers' salaries and providing other financial benefits, enforcing stiffer teacher certification requirements, testing high school graduates for minimum competency, raising graduation requirements and encouraging stricter and more consistent discipline in the classroom.

Texans for Conservative Government is a non-profit, privately-funded division of the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies, an educational research organization.

The study, presented to the state's secretary of education last month, agreed with many of the conclusions of the Perot committee: There is too much emphasis on athletics and other extracurricular programs, schools are graduating students who don't have minimum competency skills, too much attention and funding is given to poor achievers and not enough to gifted students, discipline must be restored to the classroom and teachers are poorly paid, trained and monitored.

"We're at a crossroads and we have to do something," Collins insisted. "Our public schools are declining and getting worse, not better." National statistics show American students rate poorly when compared to those in other industrialized nations. And Texas students rank below the national average.

"The essence of our plan calls for a $600 million increase for the Excellence in Education Foundation — 65 percent for teachers' salaries and 35 percent for maintenance and operation," Collins said. The group advocates $60 million be spent to finance a merit-pay program for teachers and recommends a 16 percent across-the-board increase in salaries.

Teachers' salaries in 1983 averaged $20,530 nationwide and $19,600 in Texas, he said.

In addition to higher salaries and merit pay raises, financial incentives to lure prospective teachers into the field were recommended. One way to do this, the group feels, is to pay the tuition of college students in exchange for a guarantee that they will teach in a Texas school.

Many teachers today, Collins said, aren't sufficiently qualified to teach. A college sophomore-level test recently administered to Houston teachers resulted in a 62 percent failure rate in reading. Forty-six percent failed in math and 26 percent in writing skills.

He said this was because teachers spend too much time learning how to teach and not enough time mastering subject matter. Exit testing for graduating teachers was suggested, along with a change in college curriculum for educators.

The organization also advocates tougher high school graduation requirements. Specifically, it recommends four years of English, history and mathematics; two years of a foreign language; three years of science; and a year of computer training.

"Minimum standards are increasingly becoming maximum standards," Collins declared. "Floors are becoming ceilings."

He also said high school seniors should be required to pass a minimum competency test before receiving diplomas. "Make them take an exit test before they get a high school diploma," he said. "Let's make that diploma worth something."

Collins expressed a belief that public schools fail to challenge gifted students. "We need to have programs to help our more advanced students. We're focusing too much on remedial work and not enough on our advanced students. These are the future leaders of Texas."

Almost contradicting the demand for stricter certification requirements, the group also suggests enlisting the aid of private industry in education. "We need to bring in members of private industry to help in areas where we don't have enough qualified teachers," Collins said. Currently there is a shortage of teachers of math, science, economics and other high-technology areas. "Teachers' unions are against this, and they're wrong," he insisted.

"If we don't correct public education now, those who can pay will send their kids to private school. Those who can't are going to send their kids to a public school that's bad and getting worse. We have got to do something now," he said. "It's a long road, and we're just taking the first steps."

Hance to FDIC: Don't panic over energy loans

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock is asking a Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. official not to react strongly on energy loans made to Permian Basin businessmen by three banks that have failed.

In a letter mailed Tuesday to Graham T. Northrup, director of FDIC's congressional relations office, the Texas congressman said he's afraid the agency will "overreact" when they look at the large amounts of loans handed out to the oil and gas industry. "It's not a nickel-and-dime industry," said Hance's press secretary, Randy Sanders.

In a three-month period starting in August, three area banks have failed: Metro Bank at Midland Regional Air Terminal, National Bank of Odessa and First National Bank of Midland. Each bank was taken over by another financial institution after being shut down by the FDIC on a Friday.

"I am most concerned that if the FDIC overreacts and takes a hard-line position, there will be a domino effect of hardships on the people in that area," the letter reads.

That domino effect could be caused if the FDIC forces companies with large loans into bankruptcy. Their employees would be out of a job and unable to pay their bills, which would affect other companies, according to the spokesman.

"Many of the people who do not have loans that are current are people who have been able to ride out the peaks and low points over the last 20 to 30 years. To cut off credit would be a disaster for many businesses and for the entire Permian Basin area," the letter continued.

Midland College pulls plug on electric bills

Midland College has cut its electric bills nearly in half from a few years ago. Because of that, the junior college was one of six recipients nationwide of the Honewell Merit Award.

"Every year our energy costs would go up about $3,000," physical plant director John Hohenberger explained. "It was getting outrageous."

So the college conducted an energy audit and over the next two years installed nearly $170,000 worth of energy-conservation equipment.

"It's going to pay for itself in less than two years," he predicted.

MC put in 12,000 "watt-miser" lightbulbs, decreased many four-light fixtures to two, recalibrated fresh air intakes and thermostats, installed new electrical transformers and purchased a micro-processor to conserve energy used by the college's many air handlers. Now, rather than having the fans run 24 hours a day, they run slower and are programmed to shut down 20 minutes out of every hour and turn off when not needed.

"After the first year (of using the microprocessor) we reduced our operating cost by over $20,000," Hohenberger said. The figure represented a 13 1/2 percent decrease.

The total savings is more than $6,000 a month, he said, nearly half of a typical month's electric bill a few years ago. And the temperature levels are more consistent.

DEATHS

Art Shires

Services for Art Shires, 56, of 3203 Lockheed, were to be at 11 a.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Clark Ford, pastor of the Memorial Christian Church, officiating. Burial was to follow in Resthaven Memorial Park. He died Monday in a Midland hospital. Shires was born Nov. 9, 1927, in Henrietta, where he grew up. He entered the Army in 1946. He married Jackie Griswald in 1948. They moved to Midland several years ago. He was associated with B.J. Hughes Inc. since 1966 as a salesman. Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Sharon Osborne of Midland; a brother, Nolan Shires of Wichita Falls and two grandchildren. Pallbearers were to be Jack Dreyenbuhl, Bill Wheeler, Joe Burchfield, Gwen Ferguson, John Echols and Jerry Rauterkes. Honorary pallbearers were to be employees of B.J. Hughes Inc.

Midland Public Library to put on book sale

The book collectors' fair will be held this weekend, when the Friends of the Midland County Public Library puts on its 16th Annual Book Sale in the Midland County Exhibit Building off U.S. Highway East. Browsers who pay the $2 early-bird admission from 8 to 9 p.m. Friday will have first choice from the thousands of hardback and paperback books — from encyclopedias to science fiction — in the sale. Most hardback books will be selling for three for $1, though "better books" in the northwest corner of the building will be priced from $1 to $10. Exceptional values may be somewhat higher. Magazines, including the National Geographic and Playboy, and paperback books will be selling for 25 cents each. Records, games, prints, maps, oil-related publications and garage-sale items will be in the sale. No admission to the sale will be charged Saturday and Sunday. The sale Saturday will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Sunday, when books and magazines may be discounted, the sale will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Technical, special-interest and general books — from the arts to the sciences — will be in the sale. Books in the sale have been donated to the Friends by individuals, companies and libraries and are representative of collections in a well-rounded library. The sale this year has an unusually heavy volume of children's books, according to Mary Mann, the sale's coordinator. President of the Friends is Rob Sutphen. Money raised in the sale benefits the library.

DA notes developments in probe of baby deaths

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — District Attorney Sam Millsap says "significant developments" have occurred this week in the nine-month investigation into a string of suspicious infant deaths at Medical Center Hospital. "It's difficult to know whether the developments have helped or hindered the investigation," he said, "but they have simplified some things." Three top hospital officials testified before the grand jury on Monday. The jurors might be considering criminal indictments against the Bexar County Hospital District and the University of Texas Health Science Center — which operate and staff the hospital — over an alleged cover-up of the deaths, the San Antonio Light reported today. Millsap's office has submitted an extensive supporting brief with the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in a case that will decide whether corporations and governments can be held responsible for personal crimes, the newspaper said. The district attorney refused to comment on what bearing the brief might have on the baby deaths case, but conceded a ruling probably would extend to include the hospital district. The grand jury has been investigating deaths that occurred in Medical Center's pediatric intensive care unit from 1978 to early 1982. Vocational nurse Gene Jones, who worked in the unit during that period, has been indicted in nearby Kerr County on one-murder charge and seven counts of causing injury to a child. Ms. Jones, 33, is accused of harming the children with injections of a paralyzing drug. Her murder trial has been set for Jan. 9. The nurse has testified before the Bexar County grand jury and denies any wrongdoing. Grand jurors here have subpoenaed records concerning at least three internal investigations dealing with Medical Center's pediatric intensive care unit. Millsap said he did not learn of any of those probes until he opened his investigation in February. The chairman of the hospital district board, Dr. William Thornton, said Tuesday that he remains convinced the hospital acted properly in not bringing the investigations to the attention of law enforcement authorities. "We were advised by legal counsel that there was nothing there that should be taken to the district attorney's office," he said. Chief Deputy District Attorney Nick Rothe, who is coordinating the investigation, said Tuesday that the grand jury is nearing the end of hearing evidence.

Continental hires pilots to replace those on strike, spokesman says

HOUSTON (AP) — Between 40 and 50 newly hired pilots will begin training classes next week designed to let Continental Airlines expand its schedule in December, a company spokesman says. Continental began hiring pilots this week to replace those who are on strike, Bruce Hicks said Tuesday. "These guys will take one to two weeks of training" before they start flying, said Hicks. "These guys have thousands of hours of flying time on the type of aircraft we fly." Continental will start additional training classes weekly with an average of 20 new pilots in each class to meet plans "for our continuing expansion starting in December and beyond," said Hicks.

Continental filed Sept. 24 for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. The airline stopped flying for two days and then returned to the air with its domestic routes slashed by two-thirds and the salaries of employees cut as much as 50 percent. It also laid off about two-thirds of its employees. A week later, on Oct. 1, the pilots and flight attendants walked off their jobs, joining the mechanics who already were on strike. Since then, the airline has slowly beefed up its schedule, using pilots, flight attendants and mechanics who crossed the picket lines. The pilots who start training next week will be the first group hired to replace the striking pilots.

Hance asks FDIC not to panic

(Continued from Page 1C) First National of Midland is the second largest bank in the country to fold in terms of assets. It was bought by RepublicBank Corp. of Dallas and renamed the RepublicBank First National Midland. Sanders said the FDIC and RepublicBank are reviewing the outstanding FNB loans and deciding what to do with them. If RepublicBank doesn't want them, FDIC will take over the loans and the company will be notified, said Sanders. Representatives of the firm will be questioned as to how they are going to take care of their loan. "The FDIC is interested in getting the money," said Sanders. Hance has had several telephone calls from concerned residents in the Permian Basin, and that prompted the letter, according to his spokesman. The congressman also asks Northrup to visit the Permian Basin and to give the people a positive attitude about the future by holding a news conference.

And Danny Price of Lamesa said tools and two spare tires were taken from his 1982 Ford pickup truck while it was parked at Midland Park Mall. Total loss was placed at about $1,300.

Guns stolen from Midland residence

In burglary complaints to city police during the past 24 hours, three pistols and a shotgun worth a total of $1,250 were reported taken Tuesday from the Randy McMillin residence at 4711 Harvard. Entry was gained by kicking in a rear door.

airless sprayer valued at a total of $950 were stolen from a utility room in his home early Tuesday morning. There was no sign of forced entry, according to police.

as auditors to compare insurance claims and medical reports. Patient records are kept for communication, protection and evaluation, Ms. Ridehuber said. While the charts are used to monitor a patient's treatment and progress, they also can be used by insurance companies against the patient, or by attorneys against the hospital or nurse.

for an X-ray. Then they have to have the X-ray the next day. Who eats that extra $161 (cost of a patient day in MMH)?"

out an incident report?" and leave it at that," she said. Even if the defense lawyer brings it out that the report was unrelated, the seed of doubt would be planted in the jurors' minds.

HOSPITALS COMPENSATE by raising costs and the community absorbs the expenses.

Marking "late entry" on a item on the patient chart is another unnecessary practice, she said.

Using objective statements of the patient's conditions, including detailed descriptions of the patient's activities (instead of saying the patient ate well, describe the size of portion and at what time he ate) are helpful for nurses to remember when filling out the chart.

"THOSE PEOPLE don't have any idea what a shift is like," Ms. Ridehuber said. "We may go eight hours without having a chance to go to the bathroom. I mean, it's like all nurses have 2-liter bladders, right? It's standard for nurses."

Also, patients' statements can be quoted on charts. Incident reports, which are filled out when a mistake ranging from minor to major is made, are not recorded on patient charts at MMH. According to Ms. Ridehuber, that is a wise procedure "because that's like putting a red flag on it."

If mistakes are made on a chart, they should never be erased. A line should be drawn through them and initialed. "Don't erase, use whiteout or start over on another chart. Don't indicate 'error — wrong medicine' if you just charted the wrong medication."

In legal action, a clever attorney would note an incident report was made even if the report was incidental to the lawsuit.

"This is done not to cover anything up, not to absolve yourself, but just to put yourself in the right light," she said.

"He'll just say to the jury, 'If nothing happened, why did the nurse fill

USAF Band of the West to perform free concert at Lee High School

The United States Air Force Band of the West will perform a free concert today at 7:30 p.m. at Lee High School Auditorium. The Band of the West performs regularly before high ranking military and civilian leaders and has performed for U.S. presidents from Kennedy to Reagan as well as President Diaz-Ordaz of the Republic of Mexico. Millions of people have seen the band at its performances in the Cotton Bowl Parade and at the State Fair of Texas during its 20 years of consecutive appearances in Dallas. The band has also performed in concert with the Dallas and San Antonio symphony orchestras. Lt. Col. Nevin L. Langtry is the band's new commander and conductor. The Headquarters Band of the Air Training Command, the Band of the West is stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio. The Band of the West, which averages 800 performances a year and travels at least 100,000 miles annually, is composed of seven different performing units. The Wind Ensemble, with over 45 musicians, is the largest. This unit will be performing in Midland. The Wind Ensemble performs musical selections ranging from symphonic band literature to the Broadway stage. Other performing units of the Band of the West include the Ceremonial Band, performing for civic and military ceremonies and festival and celebration parades; Dimensions in Blue, performing jazz from the big band era to today; New Approach, for rock fans; Chamber Ensembles, presenting all forms of chamber music including woodwind and brass quintets. Country Critters, the Air Force's original country-western group, and Texas Blue, the newest performing unit in the Band of the West, both perform current popular country music. The Midland performance is sponsored by the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

King put soldiers in uniform

Until the time of Gustavus Adolphus (1594-1632), king of Sweden, soldiers general wore civilian garb. He changed that by establishing a well-paid, well-disciplined, strikingly costumed standing army of some 13,000 horse and foot soldiers. Their uniforms, woven in the king's own mills, were colored with the fast dyes of the time, mostly red and blue.

Explosions ignite petrochemical barges

SEADRIFT (AP) — A series of explosions ignited the contents of two petrochemical barges at a manufacturer's docks Tuesday night, rattling windows as far as 20 miles away and producing billowing black clouds of smoke. Firefighters from nearby Bloomington and Port Lavaca were called to the scene, but the fire continued to smolder late Tuesday. It was expected to burn through Wednesday morning, officials said. Authorities said there was no danger to the surrounding area, although law enforcement officials had for a time considered evacuating nearby homes and communities before determining whether toxic chemicals were involved. The chemical, made from propylene and ammonia, is used to produce synthetic fibers and plastics.

Officials said they were not sure what caused the explosions. The manufacturer, Vistron Chemical Corp., said the barges were less than 10 percent full at the time of the explosion, but added that as much as 250,000 pounds of the chemical, Acrylonitrile, might have been involved in the fire. Authorities said the blasts occurred about 8:30 p.m. as a crew was unloading the barges on the canal near the Gulf Coast about 70 miles northeast of Corpus Christi. Midland woman dies in mishap

A Midland woman died and two other persons were injured in a two-vehicle accident 3 1/2 miles west of the city about 10:40 p.m. Tuesday. Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry was 67-year-old Milisa Lewis of 208 1/2 Madison. According to the Department of Public Safety, Newman was eastbound on U.S. Highway 80 when his 1983 Buick ran into the rear of an eastbound 1980 Ford pickup truck driven by Cleveland Johnson, no age available, also of 605 S. Dallas. The women were passengers in the pickup and were thrown from the vehicle when it ran off the road, overturned and hit a telephone pole. Johnson was not injured. Mrs. Lewis' body was taken to the Thomas Funeral Home.

Authorities said they were not sure what caused the explosions. The manufacturer, Vistron Chemical Corp., said the barges were less than 10 percent full at the time of the explosion, but added that as much as 250,000 pounds of the chemical, Acrylonitrile, might have been involved in the fire. # Texas Baptists to elect new head AMARILLO (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas is in danger of losing some of its schools or hospitals if it does not regain an awareness of its religious heritage, the organization's outgoing leader says.

The Rev. D.L. Lowrie, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lubbock, warned 2,500 convention delegates Tuesday that there is "something destructive" in the state organization.

Lowrie is ending his second one-year term as convention president, the maximum allowed. Delegates were expected to elect a new president today.

Possible successors include Dr. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has served on many Baptist boards and commissions, and the Rev. Morris Chapman, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls.

Moore is a mainstream conservative Baptist considered more theologically and politically moderate than Chapman, who has advocated a constitutional amendment to restore prayer to public schools.

In remarks to the opening session of the convention, Lowrie urged Texas Baptists to plow greater spiritual, financial and human support into the convention's institutions, which he said have been criticized too often and praised not often enough.

"Over these four years that you have allowed me to fill a place of leadership in this great denomination, I have

Group to build hospitality house

AMARILLO (AP) — The Texas Baptist Men, a group within the Baptist General Convention of Texas, has approved the building of the first hospitality house in the state for the use of prison inmates' families.

The 35- to 50-bed project would be built near the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit in Huntsville at a cost of $75,000. The donation was proposed by former Cleveland Browns football player Bill Glass, vice president of prison ministries, who has been active in liaison with Texas prisons.

The house would provide low-cost overnight lodging for visiting families of the 37,000 prison inmates in that area, said executive board members of Texas Baptist Men, who unanimously approved the donation.

The project approval Monday preceded the Baptist General Convention here this week.

sensed something destructive," he said. "Some of our institutional leaders feel like they are under a constant state of siege. They are in danger of developing a defensive mind set toward this convention.

"Some members of this convention have forgotten how to do everything except be a critic," he said.

Lowrie blamed the heads of Texas Baptist institutions for some of the rift.

"Some administrators, because of their loyalty to their institutions, may tend to forget this vital relationship between the institution and the convention," he said. "They may be tempted to label every critic an enemy."

The BGCT owns eight hospitals, four children's homes and eight universities in Texas, including Baylor in Waco and Houston Baptist.

Lowrie also referred to a remark made last year by the Rev. Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church of Dallas. Criswell warned that Baptist universities in the South were in danger of being taken over by "liberals" and pulling out of the Southern Baptist Convention.

"Some of his conclusions may be debatable, but his basic thesis is not debatable," said Lowrie. "The tendency is for denominations to lose their institutions as they get older."

William M. Pinson Jr., convention executive director, said in other remarks that Baptists need to build hundreds of new churches to serve Texans' needs.

The state convention has a long-range goal of more than 2,000 new churches and missions in Texas by 1990.

Block: Not enough grain to aid farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has in storage more than 80 million bushels of low-grade feed corn which a Texas senator wants used for drought relief, but a nationwide aid program would require up to 10 times that, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says.

Block said Tuesday that the government-owned corn of the lowest three grades — 4, 5, and sample — is stored in 27 states, with the majority of it in Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Block provided the figures in a letter to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is sponsoring legislation that would require agriculture officials to make corn of those grades available at reduced prices to drought-stricken farmers and ranchers around the country.

At a news conference, Bentsen urged Block to begin making such grain available instead of waiting for Congress to force him to do it through the legislation, which has passed the Senate but is still pending in the House.

"Up to now you've seen the Department of Agriculture resist and put blocks in the way of every approach," Bentsen said. "And I think they're just terribly wrong."

When the measure was approved by the Senate last month, John Ochs, Block's press secretary, said there were only about 25 million bushels of such corn stored and that all of it was in Texas.

Elsewhere, Ochs said, the lower grade corn had been blended with other corn to produce a higher grade that would not be required to be sold under the Bentsen measure.

Ochs said that because such grain was available only in Texas, the legislation would benefit only that state.

In his letter to Bentsen, however, Block said that the Commodity Credit Corporation, which finances the storage, "has in inventory in 27 states a little over 80 million bushels of corn that is U.S. No. 4 grade or lower."

But Block, who has consistently refused to release the grain as drought aid, said any nationwide program of assistance "would require the distribution of as much as 800 million bushels of grain" and cost between $1 billion and $1.5 billion.

Bentsen also said he has asked the Senate Agriculture Committee to investigate reported discrepancies in the quality of government owned corn stored in an elevator in Plainview.

In a letter to the committee, Bentsen said that inspections by both federal and Texas agriculture officials had disclosed far more low-grade corn in the elevator than reported by Commodity Credit Corporation inventories.

Bentsen told reporters that since inspections appear to indicate the stored grain's quality is deteriorating it should be made available as quickly as possible as livestock feed in drought-stricken areas.

However, in his letter, Block said the elevator operator in Plainview had reported dramatically higher quality levels than Texas agriculture officials and has "not indicated...that grain stored in its facility is in danger of going out of condition."

Serviceman awoke in rubble of Beirut barracks

EL PASO (AP) — Lorenzo Almanza said when he awoke half-buried in the rubble of a terrorist bomb attack on a U.S. barracks in Beirut, he heard the cries of fellow servicemen trapped in the wreckage and just "wanted someone to get me out of there."

The 21-year-old Navy corpsman was stationed in Lebanon during the Oct. 23 suicide attack on the Marine headquarters at the Beirut airport that took the lives of more than 225 U.S. servicemen. He said he was asleep on the second floor of the four-story barracks when he was awakened about 6 a.m. by a muffled explosion, but went back to sleep.

"I woke up on the ground floor, but I don't know how I got there," Almanza told the El Paso Times in a telephone interview Tuesday from the U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl, Germany, where he is being treated for leg and pelvic injuries.

"I was breathing dirt," Almanza said. "I started yelling for help, but no one came. I said to myself, 'What am I going to do?' I just laid there for a while."

He said his right arm was free and so were his legs, but they felt numb.

Almanza said he began digging himself out with the one arm. He guesses it took 15 or 20 minutes of work before he pulled loose and saw his own injuries and the wreckage around him.

"I saw my legs," he said. "Both had compound fractures. They were just dangling there. And I could see I had a big wound on my hip."

He said he found himself "like in a little room." He saw one of the four or five men who had been sleeping in his quarters staggering around. He said the others were partially buried, but thought to be alive.

Acne usually worse in boys

Dear Dr. Solomon: It seems to me that more boys than girls have acne. Is this because girls are cleaner than boys and take better care of themselves? — Mrs. K.T., N.Y.C.

Dear Mrs. T.: Acne does tend to be worse in boys than in girls, but the culprit appears to be the male hormone androgen. According to Dr. Donald R. Schermer, of the Mount Sinai Medical Center in Cleveland, androgen seems to have a stimulating effect on the oil glands.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father and grandfather both had high blood pressure, and now I've been told that I have it too. Since it runs in the family, I am naturally concerned about my son. At what age would it be possible to tell if a person is going to have high blood pressure? — Albie, Salem, Mass.

Dear Albie: According to Dr. Stephen H. Zinner, of Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island, it may be possible to predict the future development of high blood pressure as early as the first year of life.

Dr. Zinner studied about 200 infants and determined that blood pressure readings at six months of age predicted subsequent readings up to two years of age.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine had some trouble with a blood transfusion when he was in the hospital for an operation. Can you explain why having a blood transfusion should cause a problem? — Gene, Coatesville, Pa.

Dear Gene: Dr. Dennis Goldfinger, of Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles, says that from 5 to 15 percent of patients who receive blood transfusions develop hepatitis; however, most of these cases are not serious and do not become chronic with long-term consequences.

It is rare for a transfusion to result in death, but this may occur if the wrong blood is used. Acute reactions are characterized by fever, chills, pain and shortness of breath.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been reading with interest your columns on older people who seem to fracture their bones so easily, and how it may be because they don't get enough calcium. I've known one youngster who was always breaking something, and it became a joke that his parents lived at the hospital emergency room. Is it possible that kids that fracture bones also need more calcium? — Mr. J. O.T., Bellingham, Wash.

Dear Mr. O.T.: The results of a study conducted at the University of Utah College of Medicine suggested a relationship between fractures in children and a diet low in both calcium and phosphate. It was found that among the 17 children studied, four had consumed less than 60 percent of the recommended dietary allowances of calcium and phosphate within the previous 48 hours. However, while these findings are suggestive, they do not constitute proof of a relationship between fractures and diet.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had a coronary bypass operation less than a year ago because I was getting chest pains whenever I tried to do a little too much. I feel fine now but I would like to know how long it will last. How long does such an operation help a patient? — Ron, Flint, Mich.

Dear Ron: The results of a study of more than 1,200 patients who underwent coronary bypass surgery indicate that the procedure is an effective form of treatment for as long as 10 years in patients with unstable angina.

Students run from Portland to Portland

DALLESFORT, Wash. (AP)— The students at Dallesport Elementary School are running from Portland to Portland, which might not seem like much of a run, except one Portland is in Oregon and the other in Maine. And that's a distance of 3,150 miles.

But to do it, the 165 kids don't even have to leave the schoolyard. They do their running during recess and at lunch.

All the distances run are being kept track of and added up until the 3,150-mile goal is reached.

Parents make difficult choice not to seek liver transplant

WESTLAND, Mich. (AP)— A woman whose infant daughter died in her arms after the family decided not to seek a liver transplant for the child says she wondered "10,000 times a day" if the decision was right.

Five-month-old Samantha Decker succumbed earlier this week to liver failure, but her parents said in a newspaper interview before the death that they let her slip away in order to spare her more pain later.

"People need to know that we're not wrong, uncaring or unfeeling," said the baby's mother, Kelly Decker, 23, of Westland, a Detroit suburb.

Still, she said, "I feel terrible guilt. I asked my husband 10,000 times a day if we were making the right decision. But we'll never know."

The child's condition had worsened over the weekend as her breathing became more difficult and she showed signs of total liver failure, said the infant's aunt, Janet Czapski.

Mrs. Decker and her husband, Erik, said they decided in August against seeking a liver transplant because the chances of finding a suitable donor were less than 1 percent and the baby's survival chances afterward would be less than 1 percent.

Even if she survived a transplant, the operation would have meant a long and painful recovery for the tiny child, more than 50 medications each day and the possibility of undergoing kidney dialysis, they said.

"We loved her enough not to do that to her. As much as we want her to live, we couldn't put her through all that pain," Mrs. Decker said.

"The media do not tell you the facts," Mrs. Decker had said. "They make heroes out of the people who decide to go for transplants, but they don't tell you what people like us are going through. We couldn't put her through all that pain."

The cost of the operation and post-operative care at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh was estimated at $150,000, the Deckers said, and the family medical insurance would pay for none of it.

"My husband makes $25,000 a year, but this is beyond normal, middle-class control," she said.

FOOD

The time-honored melting pot of the U.S. is spilling forth a cuisine that chefs around the world are acknowledging as "American." Comprising adaptations from practically every country, as well as dishes unique to regions of the U.S., clever American hosts are entertaining in American style. Take the pride of the southland, for instance—the pecan pie. It could crown any party meal in triumph. And it combines two of America's famous originals—pecans and corn syrup.

As nearly everyone knows, corn was an important staple to Indians across this land. They shared it with the new settlers from Europe, and taught them how to dry it, grind it, press it and love it. Pecans, also an Indian favorite, were called variously "pakans," "pagans," and "peccans" by the local Indian tribes. The Indians roasted pecans, and they also ground them, mixed them with vegetables and extracted their oil.

Pecan trees, given to George Washington by Thomas Jefferson and planted just weeks before the Revolution, can still be seen at Mt. Vernon. Even then pecans were prestige nuts and a worthy gift. Today, their flavor and delightful crunchiness add goodness to a variety of foods—desserts, of course, but also main dishes, meats and relishes. Pecans are also nutritionally wholesome. They add fiber to the diet and contain iron, calcium, the B vitamins, potassium and phosphorous.

Although the ingenuity of the Indians was great and their use of corn creative, it wasn't until this century that corn syrup was developed. It was named Karo, perhaps for romantic reasons, by its inventor. Corn syrup quickly became a standard product in the American kitchen. Cooks like its subtle sweetness and the consistency, body and gloss it lends to sauces and glazes. Many of the fine corn syrup recipes developed by its early fans remain classics of good eating today—whether they be special desserts, meats, fruit, or vegetable dishes, sauces, condiments or candies.

Call it patriotic, chauvenistic, or just plain fun, but embracing American cookery is a festive way to entertain.

Citrus Glazed Ham with Pecans

1 (12 to 15 lb) fully cooked ham, with bone in
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 tablespoon shredded orange or lemon rind
2 tablespoons orange or lemon juice
Toasted pecan halves
Whole cloves
Very thin slices orange peel

Place ham fat side up on rack in large roasting pan. Bake in 325°F oven about 1 hour and 15 minutes. In small bowl stir together corn syrup, orange rind and juice. Remove ham from oven; with sharp knife, score fat 1/8-inch deep in diamond pattern. Brush ham with some of the syrup mixture. Continue baking about 45 minutes, basting frequently, until ham is well glazed and heated through. Remove from oven. Place 1 pecan half in center of half of the square marked on ham. Put whole clove through center of orange peel and insert 1 in center of each of the remaining squares. Baste ham once more. Return to oven 10 minutes.

Cranberry-Orange Relish

2 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup orange juice or orange-flavored liqueur
1 cup orange sections
1/2 cup coarsely chopped toasted pecans

In 2-quart saucepan stir together cranberries, sugar, corn syrup and orange juice. Stirring occasionally, bring to boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes or until cranberry skins pop. Remove from heat. Stir in orange sections. Cover; refrigerate several hours. Just before serving, stir in pecans. Makes about 2 1/2 cups.

Deluxe Pecan Pie

3 eggs
1 cup light or dark corn syrup
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons corn oil
margarine, melted
1/3 cup light corn syrup
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 cups pecans
1 unbaked (9-inch) pastry shell

In large bowl with mixer at medium speed beat eggs slightly. Beat in corn syrup, sugar, margarine, vanilla and salt until well blended. Stir in pecans. Pour filling into pastry shell. Bake in 350°F oven 55 to 65 minutes or until knife inserted halfway between center and edge comes out clean. Cool. If desired, serve with whipped cream. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Praline Gateau

1 1/3 cups unsifted flour
1/2 cup ground toasted pecans
1 teaspoon baking powder
4 eggs, at room temperature
Dash salt
2/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup light corn syrup
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
1 cup finely chopped toasted pecans

Grease and flour 2 (9 x 1 1/2-inch) round layer pans. In small bowl stir together flour, ground pecans and baking powder. In large bowl with mixer at high speed beat eggs and salt until foamy, about 1 minute. Gradually beat in sugar, then corn syrup until mixture is thick and pale yellow, about 3 to 4 minutes. Beat in vanilla. Reduce speed to low; add flour mixture, 1/4 at a time, beating until well blended after each addition. Pour into prepared pans. Bake in 350°F oven 30 to 35 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool completely on wire racks. Place one layer on serving plate. Spread with about 1 cup of the whipped cream. Top with remaining cake layer. Frost top and sides of cake with remaining whipped cream. Sprinkle sides of cake with finely chopped pecans. Garnish with additional whipped cream and chopped pecans. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Candied Pecans

3 cups pecan halves
2 tablespoons corn oil
margarine
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup sugar, divided
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Place pecans in 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Heat in 250°F oven 5 minutes. In 2-quart saucepan melt margarine over medium heat. Stir in corn syrup and 1/4 cup of the sugar. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat. Boil without stirring 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Pour syrup over pecans, stirring constantly to coat evenly. Bake in 250°F oven 1 hour, stirring several times. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup sugar; toss to coat evenly. Immediately spread out on greased cookie sheets to cool. Separate into individual pecan halves. Cool. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 3 cups.

To toast pecans: Place pecans on cookie sheet. Bake in 400°F oven 5 minutes or until lightly toasted.

Wafer Crisps

2/3 cup unsifted flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped pecans

Line cookie sheets with foil. In small bowl stir together flour and salt. In large bowl with mixer at high speed beat eggs until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar until thick, about 2 minutes. Beat in corn syrup and vanilla. With mixer at low speed, gradually stir in flour mixture until well blended. Fold in pecans, drop by teaspoonfuls, 3 inches apart, onto prepared cookie sheets. Bake in 375°F oven 9 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool 5 to 7 minutes on foil on wire rack. Remove cookies from foil. Cool completely on wire rack. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about 6 dozen.

Crunchy Chicken with Peach Sauce

(Not Illustrated)

1/3 cup dark corn syrup
1/4 cup spicy brown mustard
2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned, cut in 1-inch cubes, 1/4-inch thick
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons corn starch
2 tablespoons water
3 cups finely chopped pecans
1 quart (about) corn oil
Peach Sauce

In small bowl stir together corn syrup and mustard. Add chicken; toss to coat well. Cover; refrigerate several hours or overnight. In small bowl beat egg whites lightly but not until frothy. Gradually stir in corn starch and water until smooth. Dip chicken pieces, a few at a time, into corn starch mixture; then coat with pecans. Dry on waxed paper-lined trays while coating remainder. Pour corn oil into heavy 3-quart saucepan. Heat over medium heat to 350°F. Add chicken pieces, a few at a time, fry about 1 minute or until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Serve with Peach Sauce. Makes 8 servings as an hors d'oeuvre.

Peach Sauce

2 cups fresh or frozen peach slices, thawed
3/4 cup dark corn syrup
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In 2-quart saucepan stir together peaches, corn syrup, vinegar, onion, cinnamon and nutmeg. Stirring occasionally, bring to boil over medium heat and boil gently 15 minutes. Place fruit mixture, about 1/2 at a time, in blender container; cover. Blend on medium speed 5 to 10 seconds or just until coarsely chopped. Store in tightly covered container in refrigerator. Serve with Pecan-Coated Chicken. Makes about 3 cups.

Macadamia nuts have sweet glaze

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

A while back, a friend sent me a gift from Hawaii: a can of glazed macadamia nuts. Each nut had a thin, crunchy, candy coating. Absolutely marvelous tasting. I couldn't stop munching them.

Then and there I decided to offer you a copycat recipe for these glazed macadamias. With the help of some candy-making experts, the recipe evolved and it follows.

One comment. If you find a can of these glazed macadamias in a food shop and buy them, you'll notice that their coating looks white. The coating on our homemade glazed macadamias may be on the white side or a golden color — it will depend on the oven of the range in which they are baked. But whatever the color of the coating, the glazed macadamias will still taste wonderful.

COPYCAT GLAZED MACADAMIA NUTS
3 cups macadamia nuts, see Note
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon corn oil
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter

Spread nuts in a single layer in a 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 250-degree oven for 5 minutes; reserve.

Leave oven control at 250 degrees.
In a heavy 2-quart saucepan stir together sugar, syrup, oil and salt. Stirring constantly over medium heat, bring to a boil; boil without stirring for 5 minutes. Off heat, stir in butter until melted.

Pour this white syrup over reserved nuts, stirring constantly to coat evenly. Bake in the 250-degree oven, stirring several times, until lightly browned — 50 to 60 minutes.

Sprinkle with extra sugar (about ¼ cup); toss to coat evenly. At once spread on cookie sheets to cool. Separate into individual nuts. Cool completely. Store in a tightly covered container.
Makes 3 cups.

Chutney can be homemade

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Because store-bought chutney is expensive, many cooks shy away from serving it. Yet chutney adds unbeatable piquancy to many a meal; it can often add a great deal to dishes other than curry.

For example, it's delicious with sliced roast pork or chicken; with broiled or fried fish; with shrimp; with toasted cheese sandwiches. A thrifty way to have the relish on hand is to make it at home.

We like to make chutney in small batches so we can store it in the refrigerator and do not have to bother "putting it up" in a water bath. If you like this idea, you may want to try the following recipe for Small-Batch Date Chutney.

These days whole plump pitted dates come in handy airtight containers. The dates are grown in plenty in California. Once in your kitchen, the dates should be stored in their containers in the refrigerator. It's important to keep the fruit tightly covered because, like butter, dates tend to absorb other flavors.

SMALL-BATCH DATE CHUTNEY

1 medium (4 ounces) onion, chopped medium-fine (¼ to ½-inch)
¼ cup packed down 1 large clove garlic, minced
Grated rind (medium-fine) of 2 medium or large oranges

¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup golden 80-proof rum
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground ginger

In a 3-quart saucepan bring the dates, onion, garlic, orange rind, orange juice, vinegar, rum, sugar, cinnamon, cloves and ginger to a boil. Boil gently, stirring often, especially toward end of cooking time to prevent sticking, until as thick as you like — 10 to 15 minutes. Refrigerate overnight, covered tightly, to allow flavors to blend before serving. Keep stored in the refrigerator. Makes about 1½ cups.

Taste testing 1979 Cabernet Sauvignon wines 'fun'

Copley News Service

Those who follow California Cabernet Sauvignon, vintage by vintage, say 1979 was not a very good year. They point to the "classic" 1978 Cabernets as examples of California's finest, and they say the '79 Cabernets are hard and unyielding. "It's true that 1979 did not present most wine makers with ideal conditions. The growing season was very cool, grapes did not ripen easily — some not at all — the harvest was late, and some vineyards suffered from rain. "Yet I have found a number of superb 1979 Cabernets, and it's fun to pick through them critically, looking for the best. After months of sampling, in various settings (blind tastings, single bottles by themselves, with and without dinner, etc.) I have come to the conclusion that the 1979 Cabernet vintage in California was as good as 1978, but one must choose very carefully. It is easier to find a clunker. Three of the best efforts from the '79 vintage are from Stag's Leap ($13), Beringer State Lane ($9.50), and Buena Vista Special Selection ($18). The Beringer is hard to find because it's such good value. I also found the Mondavi Reserve ($30), Phelps Insignia ($30), Sterling Reserve ($25) and Kenwood Artist's Series ($20) very fine — though they are rather expensive. To test the vintage even more, I staged a comparative blind tasting of 13 premium 1979 Cabernets for a group of seven expert tasters, and turned up some surprising wines — and a lot of controversy. Tied for the top spot in this tasting event, based on average scores, were wines styled the same way — fairly rich and aggressive in aroma, but made by wineries that rarely gain national recognition — Smothers ($12.50) and Pacheco Ranch ($11). The Smothers is a rich, intense wine of blackberry-currant aroma and ample balance to age well. The Pacheco Ranch, a wine from Marin County (which has very few premium wine grapes planted), is more cherrylike in aroma, a touch smoky, and slightly softer than the Smothers. One taster called the wine "eccentric" in that it has such obvious fruit qualities all the tasters wondered if it would improve with bottle age.

Third was another "big-styled" wine, Grand Cru Collector's Series ($14). A slight initial volatility — a sharp, pungent aroma some found unpleasant — was judged an advantage by most tasters, and the comment of one was that the wine was "very ripe, but not overripe." I found the wine pleasant, but marked it down for the volatility. Fourth in the group was my first-place wine, Mill Creek ($9.50). This small Sonoma County producer always makes "little" wines, modest in all respects, and this one follows form with only 12.7 percent alcohol and delicate herbal aromas. It tastes good now, but I like its potential. Three wines tied for fifth — Ahlgren-Napa ($12), Chateau Montelena ($16) and Markham ($14).

The Ahlgren has less aroma than others initially, and the oak aging dominated, but with aeration improved and offered excellent balance. The Montelena is very tannic, but had probably the most complex series of aromas on the table — everything from tea to tar to black cherries to cedar. The Markham, my No. 2 wine, was controversial. I felt the herbal-cherry aroma and full taste were in balance. Some felt the wine a bit too ripe and wouldn't age. All tasters liked the Louis Martini Monte Rosso Vineyard, Lot 1 ($12) — and one taster even identified the producer — though it didn't score higher than eighth overall. I like the richness and balance of the wine, and found it better at this point than No. 9, Iron Horse ($12), because the latter has more of the fruit of Zinfandel than of Cabernet. Others in the tasting included Chateau Chevalier (very rich, intensely flavored with a hint of anise, $14); Rutherford Hill (good fruit, but fairly coarse and hard with tannin at this point, $10.50); and Mt. Veeder (quite earthy and simple, very tannic and hard, $14). One "ringer" was a 1979 Chateau de Gueyze, a new import from the French region known as the Cotes de Buzet. And if you haven't heard of it, don't feel bad. Neither had I until last week. The Cotes de Buzet is a region in France just south of Bordeaux, and at one time was considered part of Bordeaux. However, it did not gain its legal right to issue a wine under the district designation until 1973.

Peach Shortcake is a versatile, easy-to-make dessert.

Peach shortcake versatile

When an impromptu party needs a special dessert serve a versatile peach shortcake that tastes like a million and has looks to match. Impressive, elegant, delicious — all describe this dessert.

Peach Shortcake is quick and easy — a shortcake with a decided difference. Made from a mix, it includes vanilla wafers for extra flavor and crunch. Just before serving split the biscuits and spoon on whipped cream and canned or fresh peaches for a glamorous taste-treat.

The basic shortcake is versatile and can be made year around. During the summer when fresh fruit is plentiful make it with strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, blackberries, nectarines or bananas as well as peaches. At other times use canned or frozen fruits which have been thoroughly drained.

PEACH SHORTCAKE

- 38 vanilla wafers, finely rolled (about 1 1/2 cups crumbs)
- 1 1/4 cups buttermilk baking mix
- 3/4 cup fortified whole bran
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup sugar, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup margarine, melted
- 1 pint whipping cream

1 (29-ounce) can peach slices, drained or 4 pounds peaches, peeled and thinly sliced

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In medium bowl combine wafer crumbs, baking mix, whole bran, walnuts, 1/4 cup sugar and baking soda. Using fork stir in egg, milk and margarine. Drop heaping tablespoons of batter onto baking sheet to make eight shortcakes. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until golden.

In small bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat cream and remaining 1/4 cup sugar until stiff. When shortcakes are slightly warm split in half; arrange bottom halves on individual serving plates. Divide half of whipped cream and peach slices evenly among shortcakes, set shortcake tops over cream and peaches. Spoon remaining whipped cream and peach slices over tops. Makes eight servings.

To microwave Peach Shortcakes: Prepare batter as in step 2. In seven (6-ounce) microwave-proof custard cups place two large paper baking cups. Using half of batter fill each about 1/2 full.

Set in microwave oven in a circle, keeping about one inch apart. Microwave at 100 percent power for 4-1/2 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched and no moist areas remain. Remove from oven; let stand one to two minutes; remove from custard cups to cool. Repeat with remaining batter. Serve as in step 5. Makes 14 shortcakes.

Crackers require effort

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Are there times when, in an attempt to cope with anger in a constructive way, you are ready to knead and punch down dough with a vengeance?

If so, Wholewheat Sesame Crackers suit the situation. The dough, portioned into quarters, needs rolling out with enormous vigor in order to have it as thin as possible. That takes a lot of elbow grease.

The crackers taste as wholesome as whole wheat flour and sesame seeds can make them and they are very crisp.

WHOLE WHEAT SESAME CRACKERS

- 1 1/4 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons sesame seeds
- 1/2 cup skim milk
- 1/2 cup corn oil

In a medium bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sesame seeds. Stir in milk and oil until a dough forms.

On a prepared pastry cloth, lightly knead dough until smooth. Divide dough into quarters; work with 1 quarter at a time and keep the remaining 3 quarters covered with saran.

On the pastry cloth, with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out 1 quarter of the dough, trimming the edges, to a paper-thin 12-by-8-inch rectangle. Cut into 2-inch squares. With a wide metal spatula place, slightly apart, on ungreased cookie sheets. If desired, sprinkle lightly with salt.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned. With the spatula remove to wire racks to cool completely. Store in airtight containers. Makes about 8 dozen.

Farina squares

- 2 1/4 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup farina
- 3 ounces grated sharp cheddar cheese

In medium saucepan over high heat bring water and salt to boil; stirring constantly pour in farina. Bring to boil again and then over gentler heat, stirring constantly, cook until very thick. Off heat, stir in 1/2 cup of cheese so it is distributed evenly. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan; cool; cover pan with saran; chill. Line cookie sheet with foil and coat with butter. Cut farina into 2-inch squares; with spatula remove squares and arrange them, well apart, on the foil-lined pan. Sprinkle squares with remaining cheese. Broil 6 to 8 inches from high heat until hot through and topping is melted. Remove with wide spatula and serve. Makes 16 squares. —(AP)

Holistic workshop planned

"Holistic Living," a workshop conducted by Dr. Justin O'Brien, D.Th., philosopher, theologian, university professor and international lecturer, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday at the Fine Arts Building, Room 101, Midland College.

The workshop fee is $25 and registration by noon Friday is required. Midland College registration hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday. For more information or reservations call Karen Thompson, 682-2268 or Diana Lusk, 684-7851.

Dr. O'Brien is the author of "Yoga and Christianity," and co-author of "Meditation in Christianity," "Western Spirituality" and "Art and Science of Meditation," and a cassette series. He is preparing for publication of "Running and Breathing," "The Search for Ultimate Meaning" and "The Inward Journey: Developing the Art of Meditation."

He presents workshops and retreats at universities, monasteries, parishes and Christian groups.

He has been a professor and international lecturer for 20 years. He has researched religious consciousness and yoga in India, archeology and Hebrew in Israel and Jordan, and modern philosophy at the Sorbonne, Paris. Formerly a theology professor at Loyola University in Chicago, he has spent the last 10 years as a principal teacher at the Himalayan International Institute.

He stresses the way we feel and act in life is related to self-understanding. He teaches the solution for enduring health — physical, mental and spiritual — treats each person as a totality. Diet, exercise, breathing, relaxation, sleep sensitivity and attitude all comprise the self-knowledge needed for preserving and renewing well-being.

The workshop will feature such topics and practices as freedom from fear and stress, breathing exercises for increasing vitality, how diet influences the mind, aerobic exercises without fatigue, eliminating restless sleep, improving the memory, staying tranquil and alert under pressure, overcoming fatigue during the day, using silence for productivity and awakening the divine life within.

O'Brien received his B.A. in Classics from Notre Dame University, a B.Ph. and an M.A. in philosophy from St. Albert's College, Berkeley and an M.A. in theology and from Marquette University. Studying in Europe, he received the Doctorandus degree in theology and the Doctorate in Philosophy of Religion, both from Mijmegen University in the Netherlands.

He has experimented with various disciplines in monasteries, ashrams and hermitages in America, Europe and the Himalayas to learn their value for modern living.

Test for potato I.Q. checks 'spud savvy'

How's your potato I.Q.? Do you know the reason for piercing potatoes before baking? What effect does refrigeration have on spuds? This Spud Savvy Test will tell all. Answer each statement True or False:

1. All russet Burbank potatoes are from Idaho.
2. Potatoes stored in the refrigerator keep longer.
3. All the potato's nutrition is in the skin.
4. Potatoes are high in calories.
5. Different-sized potatoes bake evenly in a microwave oven.
6. You can store potatoes at room temperature.
7. Green patches on potatoes are acceptable.
8. Idaho potatoes should not be pierced before baking.
9. Foil wrapping while baking does not affect the texture of the potato.
10. Idaho potatoes are strictly baking potatoes.

Answers:
1. False. All russet Burbanks, known for their fine baking qualities, are not from Idaho. Genuine Idaho potatoes receive the "Grown in Idaho" seal.

2. False. Potatoes should never be stored in the refrigerator. Excessive cold causes the starch content to turn to sugar, resulting in an undesirable sweet taste. Potatoes can be kept in a cool, dark place with adequate ventilation for several weeks. Ideal temperatures fall within 45 degrees to 50 degrees.

3. False. While the skin has many nutrients and good fiber content, the "meat" of the potato is packed with 3/4 of the valuable vitamins and minerals that the potato offers. Inside and out, potatoes contain protein, iron, thiamine, niacin, potassium and vitamin C.

4. False. A five-ounce baked potato has only 100 calories.

5. False. Potatoes microwave most effectively when they are approximately the same size. Scrub, dry and prick skins, then place potatoes in a circle on paper toweling in the oven, leaving about one inch between them. Halfway through cooking, turn the potatoes. Check for doneness by piercing with a fork. One potato takes approximately four to five minutes, two potatoes six to eight minutes, four potatoes 13 to 15 minutes, six potatoes, 17 to 19 minutes.

6. True. Potatoes can be stored at room temperature for approximately one week.

7. False. Green patches on potatoes should be pared off. The rest of the potato is just fine though, so go ahead and cook the unaffected part.

8. False. Piercing allows steam to escape during the cooking process, eliminating the possibility of potatoes exploding while baking.

9. False. Foil wrapping a baking potato is just about the worst thing a cook can do. The moisture is trapped inside the potato, causing it to steam rather than bake. If foil is applied after baking the skin becomes soggy instead of crisp.

10. False. Idahos are versatile. Not only do they bake, they can fry, deep fry, mash, hash and pan roast.

For more tips, send a check or money order for $1.75 along with name and address, including zip code, to the Idaho Potato Cookbook, P.O. Box 1068, Boise, Idaho 83701. The two-color, 36-page illustrated cookbook contains recipes for appetizers, main dishes and other potato specialties such as the one below.

ZIPPY CHEESE POTATO TOPPER

- 4 potatoes
- 1 package (3-oz.) cream cheese at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons blue cheese at room temperature
- 1/4 cup plain yogurt
- 1/4 cup coarsely chopped radish
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- Pinch pepper

Scrub potatoes. Dry. Prick with fork. Bake in 425 degree oven 55 to 65 minutes or until soft. In small bowl combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Using a fork cut an "X" in top of each potato. Squeeze potato to blossom. Spoon topping over potatoes. Serve immediately. Makes four servings.

Potato recipes have zing

HOT DOG POTATOES
Here's a suggestion for a lunch children will love: substitute a potato for a hot dog bun. Fork-split a fluffy baked potato, then scoop a length-wise groove (1-inch wide, 1/2-inch deep) out of each potato half. Set the cooked hot dog in one of the grooves and top with mustard, cheese and bacon bits. Cover with the other potato half.

POTATOES ITALIANO
Pizza potatoes have lots of family appeal as a snack or side dish. Slice a cooked potato lengthwise into 1/2-inch slices. Place them on a lightly greased baking sheet; brush lightly with oil and broil until golden brown. Turn slices over and top with pizza sauce, the family's favorite potato toppings, mozzarella and Parmesan cheese. Broil.

Lemon law's juice explained

By LINDA TRUITT

EDITOR'S NOTE: The new provision (Section 6.07) to the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission Code reported on in this article is only applicable to new motor vehicles purchased on or after Oct. 1, 1983. The new law does not pertain to used cars bought from any source, or to new cars purchased before Oct. 1.

Many people have been calling the Better Business Bureau and asking about the new "lemon law" passed recently by the Texas Legislature. Since it went into effect on Oct. 1, a review of the law is needed.

Basically, the law specifies that if the new car purchased has been subject to repair four or more times by the manufacturer or distributor within the warranty period (or one year from purchase, whichever is earlier), or the vehicle has been out of service for repair for a cumulative total of 30 or more days (again within the warranty period or one year from purchase), then purchaser has the right to ask for a new car or money back.

The law states that the manufacturer or distributor is responsible for making the necessary repairs in order to conform to the warranty, and if the repairs aren't made the customer can ask the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission to hold a hearing to determine if the manufacturer is responsible for replacing the car with a comparable model or taking the car and issuing a refund.

At any hearing before the Commission the manufacturer or distributor may try to win the case by proving the defects were the result of abuse, neglect or unauthorized modifications or alterations of the vehicle, or the defect does not substantially impair the use or value of the vehicle. If enough evidence is provided to prove one or both of these points the Commission can find in favor of the manufacturer or distributor.

Of course, there are other means of resolving automobile problems. One of the most effective is the BBB Automotive Program. General Motors has pledged to arbitrate any unresolved disputes on GM cars and light-duty trucks that involve the warranty, alleged manufacturer responsibility or alleged factory defects regardless of mileage, up to five years from the date of original purchase. Nissan/Datsun and Volkswagen have committed themselves to arbitrate any problems alleged to be the manufacturer's responsibility up to 36 months or 36,000 miles. The complainant need not be the original owner.

Dissatisfied customers who call the BBB about a GM, Nissan/Datsun or Volkswagen car or dealer are first asked to contact the dealer or the nearest divisional zone office. If the problem is still unresolved the BBB tries to mediate the problem by contacting both the company and the customer to help them find a mutually satisfactory solution.

If the problem remains unsettled the three companies mentioned above have pledged to submit it to the final step in the BBB complaint process — arbitration.

If the customer also agrees to arbitration both the company and the customer have a part in choosing an arbitrator from the pool of BBB-trained volunteers. At the hearing both sides may make statements, present evidence and ask questions. A neutral expert may be called if needed. There is no charge to the customer for arbitration.

Linda Truitt is president of Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin Inc.

Black-eye peas go Chinese

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

In the past dozen years or so, the Chinese stir-fry technique has greatly influenced American cooks. This comment is occasioned by the following recipe for Black-eye Peas and Stir-fry Vegetables, to which we were recently introduced.

Up to now, dry black-eye peas were most often used in a traditional way — cooked with rice and pork to make a delicious Southern dish that goes far back in American culinary history. In recent years the peas have been given wider use — in fritters and croquettes; as stuffing for tortillas; in casseroles; and in salads.

But now an enterprising cook has added them to a stir-fry dish of onion, sweet red or green peppers, zucchini and fresh tomato wedges. The combination makes a good vegetarian main dish or a side dish to accompany poultry, fish or meat.

BLACK-EYE PEAS & STIR-FRY VEGETABLES
2 tablespoons full-flavored olive oil
1/4 cup parsley leaves, finely chopped

1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 medium (4 ounces) onion, thinly sliced (loosely packed scant cup)
1 medium (4 ounces) sweet red or green pepper, seeded and thinly sliced
Two 7-inch long zucchini (each 4 ounces), thinly sliced (1 1/2 to 2 loosely packed cups)
1 large (8 ounces) red-ripe tomato, cored and cut into 16 wedges
1/4 teaspoon crushed dry thyme
16-ounce can cooked dry black-eye peas, drained
Salt and pepper to taste

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, heat the oil. Add the parsley, garlic, onion, red pepper and zucchini. Cook, stirring often, until the zucchini is crisp-tender — a matter of minutes.

Stir in tomatoes and thyme and heat, stirring often.
Fold in the black-eye peas and the salt and pepper; heat, stirring carefully once or twice, so as not to break up the peas. Serve at once.
Makes 6 servings.

Soup has extra 'plus'

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

TOMATO PLUS SOUP

Tasters may have fun guessing what the "plus" is.
1/2 cup leftover cut-up baked skinned eggplant
11-ounce can condensed tomato bisque soup
1 1/4 cups water
Salt and pepper to taste

In a food processor with the metal blade process together the eggplant and undiluted soup until eggplant is pureed. Turn into a 1 1/2-quart saucepan; gradually whisk in the water.
Heat, stirring often, until simmering. Stir in salt and pepper. Serve hot. Makes 3 cups.

LIVING TODAY

New care labels for clothes

By SHARON A. HILLIS

If you find yourself confused by vague or incomplete laundering labels in clothing, relief is on the way. The Federal Trade Commission recently issued amendments to its care labeling rule requiring manufacturers to provide more detailed instructions.

The rule, established in 1971, originally required manufacturers and importers of textile apparel to attach care instructions to garments, but the rule didn't specify what the labels should contain. The new amendments, which spell out what information must appear on care labels, are expected to prevent incomplete, inconsistent or inaccurate instructions.

Washing instructions must specify whether an item should be washed by hand or machine. Also, if hot water cannot be used the label must recommend water temperature for laundering.

The amendments also require that if a manufacturer gives washing instructions, drying procedures must also be described. In some circumstances a bleaching guide must appear on the labels.

Dry cleaning instructions must now specify a solvent, if all solvents cannot be used safely. Manufacturers of fabrics no longer have to provide individual labels to customers. Instead they can attach the required care instructions to each bolt of fabric.

The FTC found retailers often didn't distribute the labels to consumers and consumers frequently didn't sew them into the garments they made. The new requirements give consumers the opportunity to compare care instructions.

Sharon A. Hillis is Midland County Extension Agent, Home Economics.

THIMBLE COOKIES
Requested by a reader.

1/4-pound stick butter (1/2 cup), cut into thin pats
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1 large egg, separated
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
3/4 cup walnuts, finely chopped
1/4 cup (about) thick strawberry preserves

In a medium bowl with an electric beater cream the butter and sugar; add the egg yolk and vanilla and beat until blended. With a wooden spoon, gradually stir in the flour until blended. Chill, covered tightly, until firm enough to shape. Using 1 level tablespoon for each, roll into balls. In a small bowl, beat the egg white until foamy; spread the nuts on a sheet of wax paper. One at a time, dip balls into the egg white and then roll in the nuts; set aside on the wax paper. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Using a lightly floured thimble (1/4-inch across bottom) press an indentation (at least 1/4-inch deep) in the center of each ball. Using a small fractional measuring spoon, fill each indentation with the preserves. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until lightly browned — about 15 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 1 1/2 dozen.

Grandmother gives warning

By ERMA BOMBECK

Remember the other day when I wrote about my impatience to become a grandmother?

I didn't see why my children were punishing me by refusing to give birth and provide me with a few billfold-sized photos to pass around and a couple of cute stories. After all, it seemed such a little thing to ask for a mother who gave up being Joan Collins because she wanted to stay home and be a professional martyr.

Well, a grandmother named Janet in Riverside, Calif., has come to "save me in the nick of time. Get hold of yourself," she warned. "Time has erased the ravages of war from your mind and you are vulnerable to attack."

"Yesterday," she continued, "I accompanied my 13-year-old granddaughter and her mother on a shopping trip for clothes. Try to remember how you offered lovely blouses, skirts and sweaters off the rack to your children which they sniffed and rejected. And remember the shock when you saw your kids on their knees reverently worshipping a Goodwill reject priced at $130."

It was only a phase.

"Do you want to go through that again with a granddaughter? Are you ready for the New Wave, Punk, New Romantic, Things Remembered, Flashdance tacky?"

Everyone has to change, Janet.

She went on to write, "And what about those horrible moments when the clerk gently lifted my charge card from my wallet as I frantically tried to revive my daughter from a coma? Her card had been snipped in half three stores back when it was discovered she was $2,000 over the limit."

Come to think of it, Janet, I do remember a maxi leather coat that died from terminal dust in the closet and had to be put to sleep. And there was that business with the $30 jeans with the knee ripped out that I paid $5 more for because they were guaranteed to shrink and fade. But we're talking babies here . . . babies who . . . as I remember . . .

Kept hours like hamsters, played the piano with sticky fingers, flushed shoes down the toilet, put meal worms in the refrigerator next to the lettuce, crayoned on the fireplace, knew only one word: "No!" made their own formula for their own bottle, sat down when they no longer felt like walking, bit the dog's nose, locked themselves behind doors for which there were no keys, dialed direct to Hawaii and . . . Thanks, Janet, I needed that!

Reasons for being vegetarian vary

Copley News Service

What makes a person decide to become a vegetarian?

If you've opted to omit meat from your diet, you probably based your decision on one or more of the following reasons:

—You don't like the thought of eating your fellow creatures.

The Hindus of India avoid meat because of their belief in reincarnation, or the transmigration of souls. Reincarnation means that each living thing possesses a spirit soul — the soul inhabits a different body each lifetime. Thus, while you may be human this time, your next life might be that of a chicken, or a dog, or a kangaroo. For a Hindu, slaughtering and eating an animal is tantamount to cannibalism.

While most Western vegetarians do not believe in reincarnation, many dislike the idea of consuming butchered animals. Most people will agree that raising animals for slaughter isn't as appealing, aesthetically or morally, as raising a vegetable garden. And as George Bernard Shaw, one of the more famous Western vegetarians put it, he simply could not bring himself to "dine off the carcasses of dead animals."

—Then there's the fact that the world's food shortages might be significantly eased if more people became vegetarians.

It takes 16 pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef — that which might feed over a dozen vegetarians is reduced to one steak dinner for a single meat-eater. Raising animals for food is just ecologically unsound and wasteful.

—Or you might decide to give up meat for personal health reasons. Most Americans get 40 to 45 percent of their daily calories from fat. And much of that is saturated fat from animal sources. Saturated fat is known to contribute to high blood cholesterol levels, which can lead to heart disease. A diet high in fats can also lead to obesity, with the added risks of high blood pressure and diabetes.

A vegetarian is less likely to be overweight, partly because of the high fiber content of his or her diet. A diet high in fiber creates a feeling of fullness which discourages overeating. Fiber also helps to maintain digestive regularity. A faster passage of food through the system means less buildup of bacteria, which can interact with food particles to create carcinogenic substances. These are just a few of the reasons for giving up meat and becoming a vegetarian. If you're already a vegetarian, you've probably considered them all at one time or another. And if you're considering giving up the meat in your diet, think about these reasons — then try the tasty vegetarian entree below. You'll find that a vegetarian diet is healthy, ecologically sound, less costly, and just plain delicious.

GOLDEN RICE CASSEROLE

- 2 cups cooked brown rice
- 3 cups finely grated raw carrots
- 2 cups grated cheddar cheese
- 1/4 cup milk
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 3 tbsps. minced onion
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper

Toss together all ingredients except 1/4 cup of the cheese. Pour into a 1 1/2-quart oiled baking dish. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Cover and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer. Serve with a tossed salad or green, leafy vegetables. Serves 6 to 8.

DEAR ABBY

Woman wants to find daughter she gave up

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What are your views on adopted children one day being able to meet their birth parents?

Nineteen years ago my parents forced me to give up a baby girl for adoption because I was 16, unmarried and pregnant. I was very bitter at the time because I wanted to keep my daughter, but I realize that my parents did what they thought was best for me.

I am now a happily married mother of three, but my nightly prayer is to meet my first-born child. I have no desire to "surprise" her with a telephone call or an unexpected visit. I want to meet her only if she wants to meet me.

I heard that there is a national organization with whom birth parents and adopted children may register, and if all parties are agreeable to meeting, they may do so.

I am not a wealthy person, Abby, but I would gladly pay a fee. Thanks for any help you can give me. — MY NIGHTLY PRAYER

DEAR PRAYER: There is such an organization. It is: International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702.

I have checked the organization out and have found it to be a legitimate, non-profit corporation that provides this charitable, humanitarian service gratis. Contributions are welcome in order to keep the operation going, but no fee is charged for services.

For a registration form, write to the above address, and please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: Although this is not a common problem, I hope you will help me. I am a 5-foot-10-inch woman who weighs 120 pounds, and I'm fed up with people telling me how "skinny" I am. I have even been asked if I'm "anorexic," which I consider an extreme put-down because I most definitely am not!

No one would say to an overweight person, "Gee, you're fat!" I have never dieted to get thin — in fact, I have tried unsuccessfully to gain weight, and I am plain sick and tired of being picked on because I'm so thin. By the way, I'm in excellent health. Please give me a witty comeback to use when people tell me I am painfully thin. — THIN BUT HEALTHY

DEAR THIN: Those who would remind someone that he/she is fat, thin, short or tall are either woefully ignorant or brutally insensitive, or possibly both. So resist the desire to respond with wit and assure them that you are in excellent health, then quickly change the subject.

Bars made of prunes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

- PRUNE BARS
The sponge-cake variety.
- 1 cup pitted prunes
  - Strong hot tea
  - 1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 3 large eggs
  - 2 teaspoons vanilla
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Cover prunes with tea; cover container and let stand overnight; drain thoroughly; cut prunes the size of raisins. On wax paper stir together flour, baking powder and salt; add prunes and toss well. In a medium bowl beat eggs and vanilla until foamy; gradually beat in sugar until thickened and pale yellow. Gradually fold in flour-prune mixture and walnuts. Turn into buttered and floured 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 20 minutes. With small metal spatula loosen edges. Cool. Cut into bars and remove.

Cookies 'fudgy'

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

- CHOCOLATE KISSES
- 2 large egg whites
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted and cooled
  - 1 1/4 cups coarsely chopped walnuts

In a large bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar, a heaping tablespoonful at a time; continue beating until stiff and glossy. With a rubber spatula, fold in melted chocolate until blended; then walnuts. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until set and dry on top — about 10 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool completely. Store between wax paper sheets in an airtight container. Makes about 2 dozen. For very "fudgy" cookies, serve the day they are baked.

Brandied cherries

BRANDIED CHERRIES

For unwrinkled cherries, resist all temptation to stir in the sugar quickly.

- 1 1/2 pounds dark red sweet cherries, stemmed and pitted (about 4 cups)
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup brandy

Into a straight-sided crock or similar utensil, turn cherries, sugar and brandy. DO NOT STIR. Store covered in a cool dark place. Each day, using a large spoon, turn cherries over in the liquid, but do not stir. Continue this process until sugar is dissolved and the cherries are as brandied as you wish — this will take many weeks or much longer. When ready, keep covered in the refrigerator. Makes an excellent dessert topping. Cherries will not retain their original color. —(AF)

Pie made with green tomato

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

GREEN TOMATO & APPLE DEEP-DISH PIE

Cream Cheese Pastry, see recipe
3 medium (1 pound) apples
4 small (1 pound) green tomatoes
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 of a 1/2-pound stick butter (1/4 cup), cut into thin pats
Milk

Make up Cream Cheese Pastry and chill as directed.

Quarter, core, pare and thinly slice the apples — there should be 4 loosely packed cups; turn into a medium bowl. Core and thinly slice the tomatoes — there should be 3 loosely packed cups. Toss with the apples, lemon rind, sugar and cinnamon. Spread over the bottom of a buttered 2-quart oblong baking dish (11 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches). Arrange butter pats over mixture.

On a prepared pastry cloth, with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the Cream Cheese Pastry to a 12-by-8-inch rectangle. Cut four 2-inch-long slits, for vents, at equidistance in the center of the pastry. Fold pastry over rolling pin and place over apple-tomato mixture. With tines of a fork, press pastry against the sides of the dish. Brush pastry with milk.

Bake on the middle rack of a preheated 450-degree oven for 15 minutes; continue baking at 350 degrees until tomatoes and apples, when pierced with a fork through the slits, are tender, and the pastry is browned — 30 minutes longer; serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

Note: In order to have skins at their tenderest, use green tomatoes that are about to begin or are just beginning to be tinged with pink in one or two spots.

CREAM CHEESE PASTRY: With a wooden spoon beat together a 1/4-pound stick soft butter and 3 ounces soft cream cheese until blended; gradually stir in 1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour until blended. Wrap tightly, shape into a thick rectangle, in saran and chill until firm enough to roll out.

Baking easy with packaged mixes

Intimidated by souffles or pie crusts? Don't worry. Almost anyone can turn out fabulous desserts.

Start with a packaged mix and add some easy variations. Sweetened condensed milk is another aid for the timid cook. It is a convenient base for pie fillings, cakes and many other desserts. The milk and sugar are already preblended and pre-cooked, so there's no danger of lumps or a "grainy" texture.

By using 1/2 cup buttermilk baking mix and a filling based on sweetened condensed milk it is easy to turn out a pie that will impress family and guests. With a few simple variations standard cake mixes can become the base for wonderful tasting confections.

UNBELIEVABLE LEMON PIE

1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (NOT evaporated milk)
1 cup water
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup buttermilk baking mix
3 eggs
1/4 cup margarine, softened
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup flaked coconut

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In blender container combine all ingredients except coconut. Blend on low for three minutes. Pour mixture into greased 10-inch pie plate; let stand five minutes. Sprinkle coconut over top. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted near edge comes out clean. Cool slightly; serve warm or cool. Refrigerate leftovers. Makes one 10-inch pie.

UPSIDE-DOWN LEMON GINGERBREAD

2 tablespoons margarine
1 (14 1/2-ounce) package gingerbread mix
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 egg
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 cup flaked coconut
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Preheat oven according to ginger-

bread mix directions. Melt margarine in 9-inch square or round cake pan. In medium bowl mix gingerbread according to package directions, substituting 1/4 cup lemon juice for 1/4 cup water and using one egg. To melted margarine stir in brown sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, coconut and pecans; spread evenly in bottom of pan. Pour batter over topping; bake according to package directions. Immediately turn out onto serving plate. Serve warm with whipped cream. Makes one 9-inch cake.

FDA: All diet pills 'of limited usefulness'

Hearst Feature Service

Thirty-five years ago, drug-company statistics showed that two-thirds of overweight patients were taking amphetamines, prescribed for obesity by doctors who misjudged their safety.

Today, physicians are aware that amphetamines are powerful habit-forming chemicals with such serious side effects as insomnia, hypertension, gastrointestinal disturbances and, according to an article in the November issue of Redbook Magazine, in some cases, psychoses. New, supposedly safe amphetamine-like medications such as fenfluramine have become the drugs of choice for treating obesity today. But according to the FDA: "All anorectic (appetite-suppressing drugs) are of limited usefulness." People taking prescription appetite suppressants lose weight only slightly faster than dieters, and the greatest effect is in the first two weeks. The typical weight loss is about ten pounds. Most nonprescription appetite-control aids, including pills and candies, contain methylcellulose, a bulking agent that ostensibly induces a feeling of fullness, and benzocaine, a local anesthetic that somewhat dulls the taste buds. The key ingredient, however, often is phenylpropanolamine, or PPA, a nonprescription decongestant chemically similar to amphetamine. Recent reports have linked it with high blood pressure.

Angolan troops kill 37 rebels

LISBON (AP) — Angolan government troops and militiamen have killed 37 rebels over the past month, according to the government-run Angolan News Agency.

A report Tuesday said troops of Angolan President Jose Eduardo dos Santos' Marxist government carried out the actions against guerrillas of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, known as UNITA.

UNITA has fought Dos Santos' government since losing a civil war to the Marxists in 1976, a year after the country's independence from Portugal.

Car crashes into Air Force base

TOKYO (AP) — An unmanned car rigged with an incendiary device rammed into a gate guardhouse at a U.S. Air Force base and burst into flames, but no one was injured. A leftist student group claimed responsibility.

Aftershock rumbles survivors

ERZURUM, Turkey (AP) — Four more earthquakes, aftershocks of a quake that destroyed 44 villages Sunday, jolted eastern Turkey during the night, killing two people and frightening thousands of survivors sleeping outdoors in near-freezing temperatures.

Rescuers looking for additional survivors of Sunday's quake found four bodies today. That discovery, along with the two deaths from the aftershocks, raised the overall death toll from the series of tremors to 1,239.

Monitoring stations recorded four tremors of medium intensity late Tuesday night. The quakes shook villages northeast and southeast of Erzurum, a provincial capital, and in Horasan region, believed to be the epicenter of Sunday's tremors.

Turkish military officials said two bodies were found in the rubble of collapsed homes in Kalebogazi, a village between Erzurum and the Soviet border. Kalebogazi had escaped the devastation of the quake which struck Sunday morning.

No Richter scale reading, a measure of intensity of ground movement, was immediately available for the quakes Tuesday night.

A Swiss disaster team using search dogs found 15 bodies on Tuesday. "There was nobody alive under the ruins," said Jean Pierre Racle, a team member.

The massive quake on Sunday rocked four townships and surrounding villages in Erzurum and Kars provinces near the Soviet border. Some 30,000 cattle and sheep, the source of main income for the peasants, were killed.

Trucks brought blankets and tents Tuesday to the survivors. The government said more blankets and tents, along with tons of tea, were on their way.

Rain and sleet hampered efforts to dig out survivors of Sunday's earthquake.

Africans to vote on plan

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — White South Africans voted today on a bitterly debated proposed constitution that would, for the first time, let some non-whites be represented in Parliament.

The constitution has been denounced by liberals because it would continue to exclude the black majority and by ultra-conservatives who described it as "white political suicide."

But spokesmen for the governing National Party and the main opposition, the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party, predicted voters would approve the plan.

The South African Press Association reported that voting was fairly heavy in some areas after a slow start, but no figures were available.

Law and Order Minister Louis Le Grange, without citing a source, said the referendum was winning easily in the Transvaal, the nation's most populous province and a stronghold of white supremacists opposed to the new constitution.

U.S. military officials said the car that crashed Tuesday into the gatehouse at Yokota Air Force Base west of Tokyo was stolen and the steering wheel was strapped with seat belts. Air Force Staff Sgt. Joseph Cotton said the fire was quickly extinguished by Yokota fire fighters.

The Kyodo News Service reported that a caller who claimed he was from the Revolutionary Labor Group said the attack was a protest of President Reagan's scheduled visit next week.

The caller said the organization opposes the visit because it would strengthen security ties among the United States, Japan and South Korea, the agency said.

Soldiers killed in truck crash

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Three American soldiers from the multinational force in the Sinai Peninsula were killed when their truck crashed into a tree near the northwestern Sinai town of El Arish, the force reported.

The dead were identified Tuesday as Spec. 4 Leon D.

Benning, 20, of Detroit, Spec. 4 Andre Liggett, 24, of Los Angeles and Pfc. Brian K. Merritt, no age available, of Spring Lake, N.C.

A force spokesman said Benning and Liggett died Saturday soon after the accident. Merritt died Monday in an Israeli hospital.

The spokesman said announcement of the deaths was delayed until the next of kin were notified.

The men, medics with the 547th medical company at Hunter Army Airfield in Savannah, Ga., were on a six-month tour of duty with the 2,600-member force, which oversees the 1979 peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Government increases food prices

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has increased prices of eggs, milk and rice by 35 percent and raised support prices for 13 basic farm commodities in response to a continuing economic crisis.

The increases, certain to worsen inflation that reached 100 percent last year, were imposed Tuesday as Health Department officials reported 30 million people, or 40 percent of the population, suffer from problems related to diet deficiency. The report attributes this in part to current economic problems.

Eggs went up from 48 cents to 67 cents a kilogram, about 16 eggs. Rice rose from 11 cents to 24 cents a pound and milk from about 20 to 24 cents a quart.

Ship sinks killing seven sailors

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Seven sailors, including the captain, died when a West German cargo ship sank in rough seas off Iceland's south coast, the Icelandic Coast Guard reports.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the eight other crewmen were rescued Tuesday night but that some were suffering badly from exposure. He said four of the seven victims died after being hauled from the sea by rescue ships.

The spokesman, who declined to be named, identified the ship as the 6,500-ton Kampen and said all the crew members were German.

Edwin Sylvester, a fishing boat captain, prepares a meal of goat's head in celebration Sunday of the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada.

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Caribbean News Editor Dan Sewell was one of the few American reporters to visit Grenada and write about its mounting turmoil before the military coup and U.S. invasion.

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The first glimpse of this lush little island from high in the sky is like seeing a jewel, an emerald set off by the brilliant blue of the Caribbean.

When the airplane doors pop open, heat rushes in. Temperatures are in the 90s, the sun is intense and the humidity is high.

THE RIDE into St. George's, the capital, is even bumpier than the landing. The potholed road winds past a crushed armored personnel carrier.

Ten boys wearing shorts laugh and yell and take turns leaping from a concrete wall into the warm, translucent water, seeing who can make the biggest splash.

A young man eyes American soldiers going house to house looking for weapons. "Hey, man, they're doing good things," he says.

"THIS HAS been really good for our young people," says Genty Jacobs, a hotel owner whose nephew is Grenada's ambassador to the Soviet Union.

By DAN SEWELL

Men in fatigues point the way toward waiting trucks or vans, past the reinforced-concrete shell of what was to have been a terminal building.

All around the tarmac are more soldiers, most of them busy, a few standing idly. A Cuban-made truck captured in the Oct. 25 invasion by U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers rolls by with a grinning GI at the wheel.

Outside town, much of the refurbishing the government did before reopening the Grenada Beach Hotel in August has been wiped out by bombs.

Be a warm person—knit one to give and one for yourself! Body heat is lost through the head so it makes sense to go out in cold weather wearing a warm hood.
