ABOUT THIRD TERM. DECEY HERE AND THERE. SHAW'S BABY PRICE. SPIRAL, NOT JAGGED.

There is no question of a third term for a man who has only been nominated and elected once. If not President Coolidge, WHO for the Republicans? That question interests Washington. Three names interesting the wise are Secretary Mellon, Secretary Hoover and Frank Lowden, of Illinois. Secretary Mellon, older than the two others, is young enough to manage admirably after-the-war finances for this nation and to work nine hours a day at his office.

Herbert Hoover has worked like a slave on development of national resources, including the Boulder Dam and waterways from the Great Lakes to the ocean and the Gulf. The country appreciates that. Governor Lowden, a practical farmer, has millions of farmers with him. But the main question is: Does President Coolidge want the nomination. If he does, it is his.

Montana's Senate last week voted in favor of the Constitutional Amendment against Child Labor. The amendment may be lost, child labor being profitable, and profits hard to give up. But it is comforting to see decency here and there. In the end, of course, the amendment would help every State, just as the end of slavery helped all—including States that had the greatest sacrifices to make.

Child labor cheats grown men and women of work and cheats the next generation of its chance in life, to say nothing of mocking Christ's warning, "Their angels do always behold the face of my father, which is in Heaven."

There are fine women in America. A year ago Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of California, took up swimming "to reduce." Last week she swam the Catalina Channel, her eleven-year-old boy crying out to her, "Come on, Mamma, don't give up." When she finished the swim, the thirty-year-old mother was delicious, partly paralyzed and had been bitten four times by savage barracudas.

Too bad that such a woman should waste her marvelous vitality on a battle that pleases the morbid but does no good. The nation could afford to pay her to have twenty-one children instead of swimming twenty-one miles in icy water.

Bernard Shaw says mothers should be paid for having children and adds, "I would not have a baby for less than $10,000." He underestimates it. If he were a woman, with only a man's courage, and had had ONE baby, he wouldn't have had ONE for a million dollars.

France builds dozens of tiny airplanes, smallest in the world; every French submarine will carry one. One of these submarine airplanes rose from the water nine seconds after the submarine reached the surface, went up 2,000 feet, descended and went aboard the submarine again.

A fleet of submarines coming up near a big city, discharging its swarm of mosquito-like airplanes, each carrying its gas or explosive bomb, could make the next war interesting.

The "jagged" lightning, making "sparks" in the sky is not jagged at all, Mr. Legg, Westinghouse engineer, shows with photographs 150 times faster than motion picture cameras, that the lightning bolt is a spiral. That interests those who know that the spiral, as opposed to the circle, is the emblem of progress.

Our earth, accompanying the sun in its journey through space, travels ahead toward the star Vega, we going around it, following it, take a spiral course. You are many billions of miles from the spot in the universe where you were born, and probably never will go back.

Don't neglect colds, but don't be panic-stricken when told that Europe's influenza epidemic may come here. A wise doctor has said, "The best thing to take for a bad cold is two days," which means two days of complete rest in bed, at an even temperature, drinking much water, eating as little as possible.

L. A. McLEMORE IS FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

Proprietor Of Saddle Shop Is Victim Heart Attack

HERE NINE YEARS

Body Shipped To Sulphur Springs, Tex. For Burial

L. A. McLemore, proprietor of the L. A. McLemore saddle shop and a resident of Ozona for more than nine years, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Ozona Tuesday morning. Death apparently resulted from an attack of heart disease.

The body was discovered by Paul Werhner, who was employed in McLemore's shop. When Mr. McLemore failed to show up at the shop at his usual hour Tuesday morning, Mr. Werhner went to his room at the hotel to see if he were ill.

Walking into the room, Mr. Werhner found the body of his employer lying across the bed, fully clothed, with the stub of a cigarette in the mouth. The body was cold and stiff and it was the opinion of Dr. G. L. Coates that Mr. McLemore had died sometime early Monday evening. It was believed that Mr. McLemore died shortly after going to his room after supper. He had indicated to friends that he intended attending a Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night and his failure to appear at that meeting led his friends to believe that death overtook him while he was preparing to attend.

Mr. McLemore was approximately 56 years of age and had never married. He had been in Ozona nine years, first being employed in the saddle shop owned by the late W. F. Coates. At Mr. Coates' death he bought out the shop and continued to operate it, building up a big business, his products drawing not only locally, but by mail throughout the country.

Surviving are a sister and one brother. The brother of the dead man was notified by Scott Peters Tuesday morning and was reported on his way here. The body was taken to San Angelo Tuesday and will be shipped from there to Sulphur Springs, the old home of the family for burial.

"MEANEST THIEF" SWIPES FUNDS OF H S JUNIOR CLASS

Almost every town at one time or another lays claim to having the meanest thief, but Ozona now championship.

Members of the Junior class of the local High School worked several weeks in preparation of a play which was presented at the Ozona Theater Friday night. Proceeds from the play were to go toward defraying expenses of the banquet to be given by the Juniors for the Seniors. A total of $65 was realized from the play.

The money was placed in a desk in the D. E. room at the school and Wednesday morning members of the faculty found the money missing and a glass in one of the windows to the room was broken. Authorities are making a rigid investigation into the case.

George A. Wilson, representative of the San Antonio Express, is here this week in an effort to secure donations totalling $600 for a page devoted to Ozona in a coming "booster edition" of the Express. A special meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday night when the plan was outlined by Mr. Wilson. A shortage of funds in the Chamber's treasury, however, prevented that body's taking action.

Slated High

Despite evasive denials, report is current that Judge E. H. Gary, head of U. S. Steel, plans to retire in April and that former governor Nathan Miller of New York (above) is to take his place at $200,000 a year.

FT. WORTH BANK GIVES $10 FOR OZONA GOLFERS

Ozona's energies toward construction of a golf course has attracted attention in far-away cities of the state and the mail this week brought a $10 check from the Stockyards National Bank at Ft. Worth to Scott Peters, local golf club enthusiast, as a contribution toward the fund.

"I saw in the papers a few days ago," wrote E. W. Hightower, vice president of the Ft. Worth Bank, "that you boys are trying to engineer a golf course and were raising funds toward this end; so to help matters a little we are enclosing a $10 check to apply on your fund, that is, if you have no objection to 'foreign money'."

The contribution is "gratefully received" Mr. Peters declared, and we have "no objection" to foreign money.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Kincaid attended the funeral of Jim Moore held at Center Point Wednesday afternoon.

Road Building Program Topic of Discussion At Chamber of Commerce

Plans looking toward a movement for a county-wide bond issue in Crockett County for the surfacing of the principal highways of the county were discussed at the enthusiastic meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening.

No definite action was taken by the body at the meeting, but plans for appointing a committee to make an investigation to determine the amount of bonds necessary to take care of the work, and another to circulate a petition calling on the commissioners court to order an election to decide whether or not bonds should be voted were discussed.

Appointment of these committees will probably be taken up at the next meeting of the body, it was declared.

Discussion of roads was brought up by T. A. Kincaid, who declared himself in favor of early action toward surfacing the Ozona-Barnhart road, declaring that that road was vitally important to Ozona and Crockett County people since practically all supplies for this section are brought in over that road.

Irion County has proposed a bond issue to surface the San Angelo-Barnhart road through that county, it was reported, and is laying plans for an active campaign. Tom Green County is going to start paying the road to the county line out of San Angelo and if Crockett County will surface

MOORE DIES FROM ATTACK OF APOPLEXY

Inspector For S. & G. R. A. Succumbs In S. A. Hospital

FIND UNCONSCIOUS

Believed To Have Lain Several Hours Beside Car At Bandear

Jim Moore, inspector for the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas, and well known throughout West Texas as a peace officer, was found unconscious beside his car in front of a hotel at Bandera Monday morning and died early Tuesday morning in a San Antonio hospital without ever regaining consciousness. Death is attributed to apoplexy.

Mr. Moore is believed to have lain on the ground in an unconscious condition for several hours before he was discovered by residents of the town shortly after daylight. Intermittent rains had fallen throughout the night and when Mr. Moore was found his clothing was soaked and his body was stiff. He was taken immediately to a San Antonio hospital where every effort was made to save his life.

Mr. Moore is believed to have been seized with the stroke at around 3 o'clock Monday morning. At about 8 o'clock Sunday night he called Mrs. Moore on the telephone from Menard and then called T. A. Kincaid, president of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association. Mr. Kincaid told him to report at Bandera to investigate a case for the association there and Mr. Kincaid said that it was his opinion that Mr. Moore left Menard immediately for Bandera and should have arrived there about 3 o'clock.

The lights to his car were still burning when the body was discovered. Mrs. Moore left immediately after being notified of her husband's condition by telephone Monday morning.

The body was taken to Center Point, the old family home, where funeral services were held at 2 o'clock.

C. C. NAMES COMMITTEE WOMEN TO ASSIST MRS. HOOVER ON HOSPITAL

Organization Gets Squarely Behind Project For Institution Here

GOLF COURSE LAID OUT ON KINCAID LAND

Professional Unable To Get 9 Holes On Couch Tract

MEMBERS INVITED

Workmen Now Clear Fairways, etc. Dues Being Collected

The Ozona Golf Course has been staked off on a tract of the Kincaid pasture about three miles east of Ozona on the left hand side of the Ozona-Sonora road and membership dues in the club are now being solicited.

The location of the course was changed after Fred Hendry, San Angelo Country Club pro, inspected the site donated by S. E. Couch west of the city and found that there was not enough land in the draw set aside to accommodate the nine-hole course.

The new location for the course is a beautiful stretch of territory just off the road. The nine holes have been staked off on a rolling tract of land, covered with mesquite and other brush and skirted on the west by a low chain of hills. Mr. Hendry was enthusiastic about the appearance of the course and was well satisfied with the results after it had been staked off.

Very little clearing will have to be done to lay out the fairways. Two of the fairways cross the mesquite flat and these will have to be cleared. One of the greens is located on the top of a low rise, making one of the prettiest holes on the course. A particularly difficult "dog-leg" will be included, with the tee on the side of a slope and with mesquite brush barring a long shot across the rough. Long and short holes are sprinkled through, with the necessary total yardage, plenty of hazards and difficult shots.

Monroe and Early Baggett constituted a committee to accompany the professional in staking off the course and will be in charge of the work of finally clearing the fairways, laying out the greens, etc. This work is under way this week.

The course will be ready for play in a short while, it was pointed out by Scott Peters, and organization of the club is being rushed. Membership fees have been fixed tentatively at $25 initiation and $2 a month dues. Money will be necessary to go ahead with the work of laying out the course and those who are contemplating joining are urged to send in their checks to Scott Peters, Evert White, Early Baggett or Monroe Baggett.

Adv. 1 p

A committee of women to work with Mrs. Laura Hoover in putting over the campaign for a hospital in Ozona was named by the Ozona Chamber of Commerce at one of the most productive meetings in the history of that organization at the Hotel Ozona Monday night.

The committee consists of the following:

Mr. Laura Hoover, Chairman
Mrs. Bert Kincaid
Mrs. Hugh Childress
Mrs. P. T. Robinson
Mrs. Will Baggett
Mrs. W. E. West
Mrs. Orville Word
Mrs. N. W. Graham
Mrs. L. B. Adams

Appointment of the committee of women to aid Mrs. Hoover in pushing the hospital drive to a successful conclusion came after a long discussion of the project by the membership. It was agreed by members of the organization that a hospital is one of the most pressing needs in Ozona and that an opportunity is now at hand that will never present itself again quite so attractively.

In one afternoon's work, Mrs. Hoover succeeded in raising between $4,000 and $5,000, it was pointed out, and it was the general belief that if a live committee were appointed to assist Mrs. Hoover the drive could be successfully concluded in a few days.

The possibility of saving human life and unnecessary expense in case of illness were argued as the greatest benefits to be derived from having a hospital in Ozona. Many cases are on record here, it was declared, where a well equipped hospital would have saved a life. In case of a serious trouble which necessitates an operation, the patient is endangered in having to be rushed over rough roads 90 miles to a hospital before he can have proper attention, it was pointed out.

"Take one of the most common ailments, appendicitis," Joe Pierce pointed out, "in case of pus formations, if a patient is allowed to remain perfectly quiet until such time as an operation can be performed, he has a much better chance for recovery. But when a patient in this condition is whisked over 90 miles of rough road, there is great danger that the inflamed organ may be ruptured and complications that will result fatally follow."

"The people of Ozona donate enough every year to San Angelo hospitals, doctors and hotels in providing care for the sick to equip a modern hospital here," another member of the organization declared.

At present there is no place or equipment in Ozona where an operation might be performed, it was pointed out. It is necessary, therefore, to take a patient to a far away hospital if he needs surgical attention. With a hospital here, it would be possible to place a patient there in comfort and have a doctor here from another town, if the patient so desired, in the time required for preparations for the operation. In such instances, where the services of an out-of-town doctor were required, it would be possible to have the doctor come here instead of having to take the patient to the doctor, and risk his life.

When a patient is taken to another town and must spend several weeks in a hospital, members

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

It is 1868 and the Pacific Railroad has reached its newest "farthest west"—Benton, Wyoming, a town described as "roaring", as was Frank Beeson, a young man from Albany, New York, comes here because he is in search of health and Benton is considered "high and dry".

Edna Montoyo, a fellow passenger on the train from Omaha, impresses Beeson with the beauty of her blue eyes and the style of her apparel. Equally she astonished him by taking a smile of brandy before breakfast. A brakeman tells Beeson she has followed her man to Benton.

Jim, a typical western ruffian, whom she knows apparently well insults her and is floored by Frank whose prowess impresses the passengers.

Col. Lundersen and Bill Brady volunteer to entertain young Beeson.

Frank avoids being caught by any of the numerous gambling games, but is robbed of all his money.

At the "Big Tent" Beeson again meets the Lady with the Blue Eyes. At "Monte" someone turns up the corner of the winning Queen of Hearts and Beeson, his whole $22 bet on it, turns the card which instead of being the Queen is the Eight of Clubs.

AWAKENING

My fingers left it as though it were a snake. The eight of clubs! Where I had seen, in fancy, the queen of hearts, there lay like a changeling the eight of clubs, with corner bent as only token of the transformation.

"We can't both win, gentlemen," the gambler said. "But I am willing to give you one more chance, from a new deck."

What the response was I did not know, nor care. My ears drummed and seeing nothing I pushed thru into the open, painfully conscious that I was flat penniless and instead of having played the knave I had played the fool, for the queen of hearts!

The loss of some twenty dollars might have been a trivial matter to me once—but here I had lost my all, whether large or small; and not only had been bilked out of it—I had bilked myself out of it by sinking, in pretended smartness below the level of a mere artful dodger!

I heard My Lady speaking beside me.

"I'm so sorry." She laid hand upon my sleeve. You should have been content with small sums, or followed my lead. Next time—

"There'll be no next time," I blurted. "I'm cleaned out."

"You don't mean—"

"I was robbed first at the hotel. Now here."

"No, no," she opposed. Jim sidled to us. "That was a bungle, Jim."

He ruefully scratched his head. "A wrong steer for once, I reckon. By thunder, I want revenge on this joint and I mean to get it. So do you, don't you partner?" he appealed to me.

As with mute, sickly denial I turned away it seemed to me that I sensed a shifting of forms at the monte table—caught the words "You watch here a moment," and close following, a slim white hand fell heavily on my lady's shoulder.

It whirled her about, to face the gambler. His smooth olive countenance was dark with a venom air; his syllables crackled.

"You devil! I heard you, at the table. You meddle with my come-ons, will you?" And he slapped her with his open palm, so that the impact smacked. "Now get out 'o here or I'll kill you."

She flamed red, all in a single rush of blood.

"Oh!" she breathed. Her hand darted for the pocket of her skirt, but I sprang between the two. Forgetful of my revolver, with a blow I sent him reeling backward.

He recovered. With lightning movement he thrust his right hand into his waistcoat pocket.

I heard a rush of feet, a clamor of voices; and all the while, I was tugging, awkward with deadly peril at my revolver.

His fingers had whipped free of the pocket. I glimpsed with second sight (for my eyes were held by his) the twin little black muzzles of a derringer concealed in his palm; a spasm of fear pinched me they sputtered, with ringing report, but just at the instant a flannelled arm knocked the arm up, the ball had sped ceilingward and the teamster of the gambling table stood against him, revolver barrel boring into his very stomach.

"Stand pat, Mister, I call you!" In a trice all entry of any unpleasant emotion vanished from my antagonist's handsome face, leaving it olive tinted, cameo, inert. He steeled a little, and smiled, surveying the teamster's visage, close to his.

"You have me covered, sir My hand is in the discard." He composedly tucked the derringer into his waistcoat pocket again. "That gentleman struck me; he was about to draw on me, and by rights I might have killed him. My apologies for this little disturbance."

He bestowed a challenging look upon me, a hard unforgiving look upon the lady; with a bow he turned for his hat, and stepping swiftly went back to his table.

Now in the reaction I fought desperately against a trembling of the knees; there were congratulations, a hubbub of voices assailing me—and the arm of the teamster through mine and his bluff invitation:

"Come and have a drink."

"But you'll return. You must! I want to speak with you!"

It was My Lady, pleading earnestly. I still could scarcely utter a word; my brain was in a smother. My new friend moved me a way from her. He answered for me. "Not until we've had a little confab, lady. We've got matters of importance just at present."

I saw her bite her lips, as she helplessly flushed; her blue eyes implored me, but I had no will of my own and I certainly owed a measure of courtesy to this man who had saved my life.

We found a small table in a corner. The affair upon the floor was apparently past history—if it merited even that distinction. The place had resumed its program of dancing, playing and drinking as though after all a pistol shot was of no great moment in the Big Tent.

"You had a narrow shave," my friend remarked as we seated ourselves.

He then proceeded to tell me that the whole thing was crooked.

"And the woman is the main steerer," he concluded. "That purty piece who damn nigh lost you your life as well as losin' you your money!"

"You mean the lady with the blue eyes?"

"Don't you savvy that your 'lady's' Montoyo's wife—his woman, anyhow?"

"Montoyo? Who's Montoyo?"

"The monte thrower! That same spieler who trimmed us," he rapped impatiently.

"She's bound to Montoyo. He's a breed, some Spanish, some white like as not, some Injun. A devil, and as slick as they make 'em. She's a power too white for him, herself, but he uses her and some day he'll kill her. You're not the first gudgeon she's hooked, to feed to him."

Now I saw all or enough. I had received no more than I deserved.

"Jest why Montoyo struck his woman I don't know," the teamster went on. "Do you?"

"Yes! She had cautioned me and he must have heard her. And she showed which was the right card. I don't understand that."

"To save her face, and egg you on, shore! Your twenty dollars was nothin'. She didn't know you were busted. Next time she'd have steered you to the tune of a hundred or two and cleaned you proper. You hadn't been worked along yet, to the right pitch of smartness Montoyo must ha' mistook her! Well now what are you going to do?"

"I don't know," I replied. I must find and earn enough to get home with."

"To write for funds was now impossible through very shame. 'Home's the only place for a person of my greenness.'"

"Let me make you a proposition, he said. 'I'm on my way to Salt Lake with a bull outfit and I'm in need of another man. I'll give you a dollar and a half a day and found.'"

"You are teaming west, you mean?" I asked.

"Yes, sir. Freightin across. Mule whackin'!"

"But I never drove spans in my life; and I'm not in shape to stand hardships." I faltered. "I'm here for my health. I have—"

"Stow all that, son," he interrupted. "Forget your lungs, lights and liver and stand up a full-size man. In my opinion you've had too much doctorin'. A month with a bull train, a diet of beans and sow-belly, and you can look anybody in the eye and tell him to go to hell! This roarin' town life—it's no life for you. It's a bobtail, wide open in the middle."

"Sir," I said gratefully. "may I let you know in the morning? Where will I find you?"

We arranged to meet next day and I returned to the hotel, having paid in advance.

Gazing neither right nor left, I strode resolutely for the exit, but at the door I was halted by a hand laid on my arm, and a quick utterance.

"Not going? At least say good-night!"

I barely paused, replying to her, "Good-night."

Still she would have detained me.

"Oh, no no! Not this way. It was a mistake. I swear to you I am not to blame. Please let me help you. I don't know what you've heard—I don't know what has been said about me—you are angry—"

I twitched free. With such as she, a vampire and yet a woman, a man's safety lay not in words but in unequivocal action.

"Good-night," I bade thickly. Bearing with me a satisfying but somehow annoying imprint of moist blue eyes under shimmering hair, I roughly stalked on and out free of her, free of the Big Tent, her lair!

In the morning as I left the hotel the clerk handed me a note.

It could have been sent by only one person—the superscription, dainty and feminine, betrayed it. That woman was still pursuing me!

Couldn't she understand that I

Things You Should Know

HOUSEHOLD REMEDIES

Beyond the question of a doubt, there are many old-fashioned methods of dealing with acute diseases that should be perpetuated. Water applied externally will reduce fever temporarily, and will contribute much to the patient's comfort, if applied with judgment. It should be applied warm—sponging—unless the physician is present and orders otherwise; it is free from depressing effect, which cannot always be said of drugs that reduce fever. Mustard plasters should be kept in the home, or at least the material for making them. By irritating the skin, we may partially empty a congested or inflamed part beneath, thus relieving pain. The surface should be vigorously reddened to secure the best results. The "fly-blister," once a family measure, should be dismissed as a household resource; it might do exceeding harm.

Castor oil is almost too well known to mention—a very valuable agent, and should be kept in every home. I may say here that I have found it an excellent application to the skin in irritations that do not heal easily. It has cured cases for me—one a badly fissured lip wherein the patient and his physician suspected cancer; the doctor had applied caustics to kill the thing, thus keeping up the "anger" in it; a week's constant application of pure castor oil cured it!

Turpentine, in these days of kidney-disorder, should never be applied or given internally without the physician's advice. I once saw a fatal ending in a Bright's disease case, twenty hours after taking a dose of turpentine on sugar "to stimulate the kidneys." Turpentine is a valuable household remedy, but is dangerous, if used ignorantly.

Plaintiff sets up each and all of said mortgages and alleges that each subsequent mortgage is a renewal of the other and the notes subsequent to three notes given by Harl Stirman to Clayton Stewart in the purchase of said notes, and in renewal of the same the last note herein sued on, being the remaining part or portion of said indebtedness unpaid. The plaintiff prays the foreclosure of said mortgage liens against each and all of the defendants above named on 1500 ewes, 325 ewe lambs, now grown sheep, including about 1200 lambs, the offspring of said flock of sheep born in the Spring of 1926, which plaintiff alleges to be of the total value of $20,600.00. That the defendants have conspired together—the said Harl Stirman making a pretended sale of said sheep to The Wool Growers Central Storage Company, and it having made a pretended sale thereof to H. B. Cox for the purpose of defrauding and defeating plaintiff in the collection of his debt and foreclosure of his mortgage lien on said sheep. Plaintiff prays judgment against Harl Stir-man for his debt, against all defendants foreclosing his mortgage liens on said sheep, and that they be sold to pay said debt. In the second Count in said Amended pleading, the plaintiff alleges that Harl Stirman, The Wool Growers Central Storage Company and H. B. Cox have converted said sheep to their own use and benefit, and plaintiff prays for judgment against each and all of said parties, jointly and severally, for the amount of his debt, interest, at torney fees and costs of suit, and that execution issue to enforce payment of the same. A fuller description of said cause of action is shown by said Amended Petition now on file in this office.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, But have you before said Court, on said day of the next term thereof, this Writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Published Every Thursday Morning at Ozona, Texas, the County Seat of Crockett County, by

W. EVART WHITE EDITOR and PUBLISHER

Entered at the Post Office at Ozona, Texas, as Second Class Mail Matter, under Act of Congress, March 3rd, 1879.

Ozona, Texas, Thursday March 10, 1927

The outside world is beginning to take notice of the remarkable growth and development of Ozona. The fact that a town the size of Ozona has put over a half million building program in the last year and is still at it, is itself enough to attract the attention and elicit the admiration of the rest of the state.

On top of this development, Ozona has done and is still doing other things. It has organized a Chamber of Commerce that is bending its efforts toward the development of the town. It has arranged for the building of a golf course that will prove one of the greatest forward steps the town has ever taken. It has brought the West Texas Utilities here to serve its people, gaining thereby the services of one of the largest utility concerns in the state and a handsome new building to house the local offices of the company, construction of which is expected to start at an early date.

Most of the development that has taken place here has been largely through individual effort. Men who have had faith and a vision of the future have staked their money on their judgment. Those who have recently constructed splendid new buildings, Mrs. Mary Perner, Joe Oberkamp, Lee Wilson, J. R. Kersey, W. E. Smith and those far-seeing backers of the new Hotel Ozona have bettered themselves, that's true, but at the same time they have rendered an invaluable service to their community, sunk large sums of money in buildings that are a credit to themselves and to the town.

And what is a beautiful relief is the fact that Ozona has done all of these things and is still doing them without great hullabaloo and "Watch-us-grow" stuff—just seeing what's to be done, doing it and then inviting the world to come and see for itself.

Speaking of the habit of community building, Ozona has seen two splendid examples in the last few weeks that would put the tightwads of the average small town to shame.

Some time ago agitation was started for a golf course in Ozona. Prospective players were comparatively few and those who were behind the project did not feel that it would be just to levy an exorbitant initiation fee. But such a fee would have been necessary if the club had had to buy its own tract of land and finance the construction of a course.

S. E. Couch, one of Ozona's builders of the first rank, saw the situation, and although he has never taken an active interest in the game himself, came forward with an offer to donate the use of a tract of his land west of town. Golf enthusiasts were elated and laid plans for getting the course staked off. The tract offered by Mr. Couch was the choice of his holdings in that vicinity.

But when the golf pro arrived from San Angelo Saturday to stake the course, local fans were disheartened when he announced it would be impossible to get the course in the land allotted, located between a crescent-shaped chain of hills.

Then came forward another community builder—T. A. Kincaid. Mr. Kincaid offered the use of his land east of town and again hopes ran high as the pro was whisked to this location. On this tract he was able to lay out a beautiful hole course and now all is well. Golf bags and plus-fours will soon dot the hills and flats east of town—and we hope that some will cast roses in the paths of these two community builders.

We'd much rather slug praises than hurl brick-bats, but there is a certain type of vandal in these parts that we would fain heave a good sized alley apple at which a Sunday afternoon drive out almost any of the roads leading out of Ozona will bring such vandalism to the attention of anybody.

Tourists from the eastern sections of the country often exclaim at the naked beauty of the West Texas hills and plains. The country around Ozona is particularly attractive from this view and persons who have lived here for years enjoy a sight of the rolling, grass covered expanse of territory as far as the eye will reach.

But just how long the tourist will exclaim at the beauty of West Texas, or how long local residents will enjoy its bigness and inviting expanse depends on just how long this vandalism is to continue.

It's a startling, shocking sensation when one is riding along the road, admiring the beautiful country and suddenly let his eyes fall on an unsightly litter of tin cans, buckets, scrap iron and other heaps and litters of trash and junk. Just why anyone would feel compelled to cast his trash beside the road to mar the whole appearance of the countryside, is more than we ordinary mortals can understand. Most of the time, of course, it is sheer laziness, but whatever the reason it is no less vandalism than the work of a maniac who would mutilate a beautiful piece of art work.

"You can just see lambs growing," declared one Crockett County ranchman Monday morning following the abundant rain of Sunday night and Monday morning. Abundant rains, plenty of fine grass, fat stock, weather like the doctor ordered—what more could we wish? Except high prices for the stuff.

Another point argued in favor of the hospital was the fact that it will prove a drawing card through out this territory. Patients on ranches and in neighboring towns suffering from injuries or serious illness could be brought directly to the Ozona hospital, thus sparing them much pain and suffering incident to being carried in an automobile over rough roads.

Joe Pierce, Jr., W. E. Smith, Vic Pierce, T. A. Kincaid, S. E. Couch and others expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the hospital project and the vote for appointment of the committee of women to aid in the canvas was unanimous.

Purchase of the Kincaid property, now occupied by the Drennan Hotel, is contemplated in the hospital plan. The house, which is ideally located and arranged for a hospital, can be purchased, with the lot, for $8,000, and it is estimated that between $2,000 and $3,000 will be required to equip it.

IS YOUR SPINE IN LINE?

Perfect alignment of the spine means perfect health. Imperfect alignment means that one or more of the bones of the spine are out of the natural position. This produces pressure on the delicate nerves at the point where they leave the spine. Because the nerve is pinched the brain cannot get the full amount of life force over it.

Whatever part of the body this pinched nerve supplies is bound to be weak and diseased, whether it is the heart, stomach, lungs, kidneys, etc., because every cell in the body receives its life force over the nervous system, and if the nerve is pinched this life force is decreased.

CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS will put your spine in line and health follows.

Kite Tourney For Saturday

Biggest Kite In The World To Be Flown, Rev. Haver Says

A kite tournament and stunt party, with an attempt to fly "the biggest kite in the world," will be held Saturday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock at the new High School athletic field by members of Ozona Scout troops, it was announced Wednesday by Rev. Stanley Haver, who is in charge of the tourney.

The contest Saturday will be a preliminary affair, Rev. Haver declared, and if enough interest is shown another event will be held later on a larger scale. Six prizes are to be offered contestants. Otho Adams, Rev. M. M. Fulmer and Morris Dudley have been selected as judges. An admission charge of 25 cents will be made, the proceeds of the affair to go to the community Scout funds. An interesting program of stunts by the boys has also been arranged in addition to the kite tournament. The following rules of the contest have been outlined:

Each kite must be made by the person entering the same. Only two persons can participate in flying each kite.

The contest shall be judged at 3:30 p. m. Participants must enter their kites at 3 p. m. or after.

Prizes will be offered as follows:

For the largest kite made by contestant.
For the most kites on one string.
For the highest flying kite.
For the most beautiful kite.
For the smallest kite that flies.
For the oddest kite.

All kites must fly to the satisfaction of the judges.

Rev. M. M. Fulmer, pastor of the Baptist Church, has been enjoying a visit from his mother, Mrs. Fulmer of Killeen, for the last few days.

Lee Wilson, "Smokey" Adamson and John R. Weaver went to Dallas the first of the week to bring back three new Buick cars.

Nearly fifty guests enjoyed a Rainbow costume party given by Misses Eleanor Ingham and Maggie Mae Kay at the home of W. A. Kay Saturday night.

The guests came garbed in an array of interesting costumes and forty-two was enjoyed during the first part of the evening. A contest in colors followed, after which delicious refreshments of hot chocolate, fruit salad and sandwiches were served.

Miss Vivian Baggett won the prize for the girls for the best costume. Miss Baggett represented the flapper of 1860. Leonard Hensley won the prize for the boys with a clown costume.

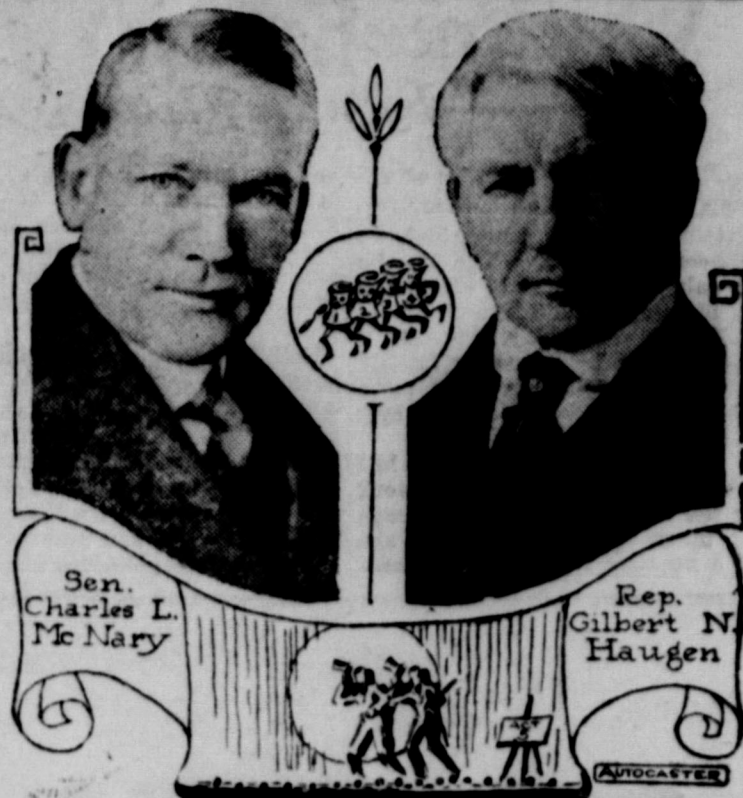

JIM MOORE DEAD

Mr. Moore was 51 years old. He had been a peace officer most of his life. He entered the Texas ranger service when he was 19 years old and served several years during some of the most exciting times in the history of Texas. He served several years as an inspector for the Cattle Raisers Association and about 14 years ago was elected sheriff of Crockett County, which office he held two terms. He then entered the ranching business in Kimble County and nearly two years ago came to Ozona as an inspector for the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association. He had previously served on the executive committee of the Association.

Surviving are the mother, who resides in Center Point, and one brother, Harry Moore, who is sheriff of Culberson County. The funeral was attended by a number of Ozona people.

Oregon McNARY - HAUGEN Iowa Famous Farm Relief Pair in National Spotlight

Sen. Chas. L. McNary, Oregon and Rep. Gilbert N. Haugen, Iowa, have been joint authors of four different bills since post-war deflation, all of which have aimed at relief of agriculture. Their present bill is the most important legislation of this session, having been jockeyed from defeat last year to passage by House and Senate—and now up to the President. McNary and Haugen have been stars on the legislative stage for five years and still going strong, Washington admits.

THE OZONA MERCANTILE

"Small Profits, Many Sales"

Dr. Frank Crane Says

In a brochure recently got out at Antioch College, Ohio, reference is made to the custom of the old-time Shakers, who generally observed the laws of Christian brotherhood, of sending their most unscrupulous members out in the world to do their trading. Hence originated the saying that the Shakers always sent the devil to market.

The implication is that while Christian living and principles were suitable for ordinary affairs and in the family life, they were not suitable for the outside world. There you had to fight the devil with fire and deal unscrupulously with unscrupulous people.

A very common idea is that those people get along best in this world who do not strictly adhere to the moral law. You have to be crooked enough to get along and yet not crooked enough to fall foul of the law.

Those who are old and experienced in this world's dealings know the fallacy of this reasoning.

The fact is that it pays to be honest—to be honest in little things as well as in big, and to be honest in the privacy of your chamber as well as in the open forum of the market.

Honesty is not a thing to be put on and off and to be used for certain purposes. It is something to be adhered to all the time, and a man who is faithful in all his dealings both at home and abroad, has the best chance of success.

Ed Howe, the sage of Potato Hill, can hardly be accused of being a strict religionist, and yet in his homely philosophy and experience, he has discovered that doing right is one of the surest means of success.

If any boy or girl is knocking about seeking some secret of success, none better can be offered than strict integrity.

To be just and upright in all things may occasionally get you into difficulty, but as a rule and in the long run it pays.

A man who keeps his hands clean and his heart right is always prepared for any attack, and as it has been roughly expressed, "He can look any man square in the eye and tell him to go to blazes."

What Price Beauty?

by Miss Flo

There are many varieties of woman to be sure. But there are two outstanding types with which we are concerned today. The one who is calm, poised, and efficiently conducting the duties to which she has been assigned, and the other hurried, strained, rushing futilely about, accomplishing little more than wrinkles with her poor system of management.

Invariably the woman who has no sort of a system for her work is the woman who finds her days so taken up with work that she has no time for anything else—not a minute to read or play. She is the woman, too, who is cross and irritable and so worn out by the time night comes that she is too tired to do anything but go to bed. Naturally her looks must suffer.

Tell the average woman that you have heard of a new cream that will erase from her face all the lines of worry and you will never know a minute's rest until you have told her where it might be obtained. But tell a tired, nagging woman that she can prevent tiny lines from creeping into her face by adopting a system for her work, and she will laugh at you.

It may be bromide, nevertheless, it is true that system wins success. The difference between the hurriers and the people who really accomplish big things and hold to youth and beauty is in the system established in the latter's lives. Every big woman who has reached success has done it by conserving her energy for the important things, wasting nothing on fruitless rushing about. Not that she excludes play. No indeed she provides for that as a necessary part of her upkeep.

Begin your day the night before by getting a full quota of sleep. Get up in the morning and start the day by first planning your work, that you will have time to read—time for friends—time for pleasure, and time for the observance of health and beauty rules; eating slowly, for one thing, relaxing the muscles of the eyes and the body occasionally during the course of a day's work, brushing the hair night and morning—all of which are very necessary in keeping alive the spirit of youth.

Minatra To Speak On N. E. A. Meeting

On next Sunday night at the Methodist church at 7:30 Professor C. C. Minatra will deliver an address on the high points of the session of the National Educational Association which he attended at Dallas last week. This great national meeting at Dallas called into service the greatest minds of the nation in stirring addresses. Winfred Grenfell, the picturesque doctor, preacher and teacher of the Labrador coasts, and many other attractive figures were there. Professor Minatra will bring the first hand impressions of this great meeting in a short address at the evening service Sunday night. Special music will be given by the Young People's choir.

The Friendship Bible Class for young people will have a practical problem period beginning next Sunday morning at 9:45. Every young man and woman, married or single, is invited to this class.

The Workers Council of the Sunday School will meet Sunday afternoon at 4. Superintendent Will Odom will preside.

"Clay Chimney Trail"

Half unconsciously wadding both money and paper in my hand as if to squeeze the last drop of rancor from them I swung on.

"Mr. Beeson! Wait! Please wait!"

I had to turn about to avoid the further degradation of acting the churl to her, an inferior.

"I've been waiting since daylight," she panted, "and watching the hotel. I was afraid you wouldn't answer my note, so I slipped around and cut in on you."

"I know where you are going. George Jenks has engaged you. You don't have to turn bull whacker or mule-skinner! It's a hard life; you're not fitted for it—never, never. Leave Benton if you will. Let us go together."

"Your husband, madam," I prompted.

"Montoyo? He is no husband to me. I could kill him—I will do it yet, to be free from him."

"My good name, then," I taunted. "I might fear for my good name more than I'd fear a man."

"But I'm not asking you to marry me," she said. "I am not asking you to love me as a paramour, sir. Please understand! Treat me as you will; as a sister, a friend, but anything human. Oh, I'm so tired of myself; I can't run true, I'm under false colors. And there is Montoyo—bullying me cajoling me watching me. But you were different! I foolishly wished to help you, but last night the play went wrong. And Montoyo struck me—me, in public! Oh, why couldn't I have killed him. You'll say I'm in love with you. Perhaps I am—" quien sabe? I only ask a kind of partnership—the encouragement of some decent man near me. I have money; plenty till we both get a footing. But you wouldn't live on me; no! I would be glad merely to tide you over, if you'd let me. And I—I'd be willing to wash floors in a restaurant if I might be free of insult. You I'm sure, would at least protect me. Wouldn't you? Say something, sir."

She paused, quivering. "Shall we go? Will you help me?"

For an instant her appeal, of swimming blue eyes, upturned face, tensed grasp, breaking voice, swayed me. But I resolved not to be snared again.

"Impossible, madam," I uttered. "This is final. Good-morning."

She staggered and with magnificent but futile last flourish clapped both hands to her face. Gazing back, as I hastened, I saw her still there, leaning against a wall.

YOU MUST KILL YOUR PRAIRIE DOGS

With all kindness the Commissioners Court has given months of warning and the Court has at large expense bought for cash at wholesale the ingredients and is letting everyone have it at cost. Unfortunately the weather has not been propitious, but now the sun is shining. There is no place to stop now, and everyone knows that it is not a personal matter with the Court, but a real official duty to perform. It is so eminently unfair to let up now the Court wishes none to expect any let up in the matter of extermination of the prairie dog. Commissioners Court, Crockett Co. 7-38

Saturday afternoon by the employees who cleaned up the basement, Mr. Flowers said, and the thieves found it an easy matter to walk in and help themselves.

Apparently nothing else was molested by the intruders except the cash. Between $18 and $20, representing cash sales late Saturday afternoon before closing time, was pilfered from the register.

No clues were left by the invaders by which officers might trace them.

Since moving into the new store building, Mr. Flowers had been unable to get his big safe moved from the old location across the street into his new store. Monday morning, however, the safe was moved and installed in the store for the safe keeping of cash and valuables in the future.

Miss Leta Graham And Nelson Hawkins Are Married Here

Miss Leta Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Graham of Ozona, and Nelson Hawkins, formerly of Waco, now manager of the Nolen Land and Abstract Co. of Ozona, were united in marriage Thursday, March 3, at a pretty church wedding at the new Ozona Methodist Church.

The ceremony was performed at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, the Rev. Stanley Haver, pastor, officiating, after which the bride and groom, members of the wedding party and a few close friends were tendered a reception by Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Graham at their home.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Floy Friend sang "Oh, Promise Me" with Mrs. William Grimmer at the piano. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Monroe Baggett. During the ceremony the soft strains of "Traumerel", played by Mrs. Baggett at the piano and Miss Carolyn Fox on the violin, floated up from behind the altar. Decorations were in accord with spring, a profusion of southern smilax peach blossoms and roses forming an altar, the center of which was an arch of smilax and roses with a white wedding bell suspended from its center.

Miss Grace Whitworth of Rock Springs was bridesmaid. She wore a beautiful gown of lavender georgette.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Evert White, sister of the bride, who wore a gown of yellow chiffon.

Miss Emma Phillips, maid of honor, was beautifully gowned in pink taffeta with meline ruffles. The three carried arm bouquets of pink gfadioli. The bride entered on the arm of her father, wearing the typical bridal attire of white satin, over which fell a tulle veil with a crown of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

The path of the bride was sprinkled with peach blossoms by two attractive little flower girls, little Misses Catherine Childress and Lela Mae Phillips, who wore pink georgette dresses and carried little white baskets of flowers with decorations of orange blossoms and pink meline bows.

Little Roy Henderson, Jr. dressed in a white satin suit was ring bearer.

The groomsmen were Leonard Hensley and Hugh Childress, Jr. The groom was accompanied by Evert White as best man.

Mrs. Willie L. Hawkins of Waco, mother of the groom, was present at the wedding.

Immediately after the reception the couple left on their wedding trip in a new Chrysler coupe, the gift of the bride's father. The bride's going away attire was a dress and hat of rose beige, a coat of brown trimmed with marmot fur, and accessories to match.

Mrs. J. E. Fisher of Dallas is here visiting her sister, Mrs. J. W. Henderson, Jr.

Tom Nolen and daughter, Miss Josephine are here from San Angelo visiting friends.
