Verdict In Favor Of Griffin Given In Election Case

Hidalgo District Judge Race Wrangle Is Decided In Favor Of Plaintiff; To Appeal Case

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 30.—A wrangle of months' duration for the judgeship of the 93rd judicial district in Hidalgo county reached its climax today when Judge George C. Calhoun held that the commissioners court acted arbitrarily in refusing to count returns of the Weslaco precincts and instructed the jury to return a verdict in favor of Gordon Griffin, plaintiff.

J. E. Leslie, whom returns to the secretary of state revealed was elected by a majority of 14 votes said he would appeal.

Griffin's counsel said the instructed verdict had the effect of making permanent an injunction restraining Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, from anvassing returns which did not include the disputed box. The commissioners court also will be directed to accept the Weslaco count, which rGiffin asserted would give him a majority of 582 votes. Votes for the race again will be tabulated and forwarded to the secretary of state. If Griffin's contentions are found correct by a canvass, he will be issued a certificate entitling him to the office, his attorneys said.

Nashville Is Hit By Rising Waters

Tennessee City Is Victim Of 'Humping' River; Residents Are Forced To Flee Homes

(By Associated Press)

NASHVILLE, March 30. — Lights from Nashville's flood beleaguered homes and factories played tonight on as strange a sight as a river may afford. The Cumberland was "humping,"—its abnormally swollen flow rolling up in midstream a great bumps, believed a sure sign that the stage of nearly 51 feet would continue for hours to flood streets, residences and industrial sections

The river today had passed the third crest forecast and still was rising slowly to a point 11 feet above flood stage. The police and real estate firms had made available their facilities to the hundreds whose homes were temporarily uninhabitable, but factories and other commercial institutions had no relief from the water which covered valuable machinery and stocks of goods and deposited heavy layers of mud throughout the city's river section.

"Dan" Loses Home

Merrill Hotel Falls Before Progress

The old place will not be missed nearly so much by the 22,000 or 25,000 inhabitants of the city of Lubbock, nor the 150,000 or 200,000 guests who have made it their domicile for a day or so during the 17 years of its existence, as "Dan" will miss it.

"Dan" has made it his hangout place now for about eight years. A familiar sight about the sidewalk, entrance or lobby, he has greeted and been greeted by thousands upon thousands, and to him will the demolition of the Merrill hotel mean more the loss of "home."

Today is the last day "Dan" will be found about the old Merrill, headquarters for cattlemen, cowboys, ranchers, farmers, business men of the Plains country for years; pride of Lubbock while it was becoming of importance and larger and better hotels were constructed.

Bob-tailed "Dan." Sort of a sorrel dog he is. Cafes in the neighborhood of the courthouse square know him well. He is acquainted so well with them that he knows how to open doors

Several members of the panel were said to have been indisposed, possibly from something eaten at dinner tonight.

The crowds which for several days packed the room had dwindled until the room was about one third filled at 5 p. m.

In the closing arguments, the state renewed its demand for the death penalty. Wilson's attorney reviewed the testimony, stressing Wilson's testimony and that of Mrs. Wilson regarding the preacher's intimate relations with her.

Naco Faces Attack

Arizona Border Town Likely To Get Rebel Attack In Near Future; Airplanes Figure In Activities

(By Associated Press)

THE Federal steam roller yesterday rolled back the Mexican rebel forces in the state of Chihuahua another step with a reported clash at Corralites, a short distance south of Jimenez.

General Juan A. Almazan informed Mexico City that his advance cavalry had forced the retreating insurgents to leave "numerous dead and wounded in the field." From these reports it appeared that the southward advance of rebel General Escobar Friday had been reversed suddenly at Rellano at sunrise yesterday, but the cause was not apparent, for the federals occupied that town without resistance.

Main Force Retreats

Five regiments of insurgents, probably about 1,500 men, had opposed the federal cavalry while the main force continued to withdraw northward on ten troop trains.

The situation at Naco, near the Arizona border, still simmered without reaching the boiling point of attack. The superior insurgent force rested on its arms within sight of the town while the federal defenders clung to their entrenchments. Airplanes were prepared to support the defense of the town.

The federal garrison is strongly intrenched behind barbed wire and

Penitentes Take Up Cross Again

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Mar. 30. (AP)—The mountains around Las Vegas last night resounded with weird chants as hundreds of native penitentes observed Good Friday in their strange ceremonies, centuries old.

Only one "crucifixion" was reported, although in the canyons there were many processions of penitentes, stripped to the waist, who walked three abreast, lashing themselves across the back with whips in "atonement" for their "sins."

The "crucified" member was strapped to a cross and left there for three hours. One penitente at Mora was reported to have been nearly dead from exhaustion when he finally bore his large cross to the place where it was to be erected, and was so weak that he had to relinquish to another the "honor" of being "crucified."

Louisiana Attorney General Declares Moon's Services Not Needed In Impeachment; Sooners Adjourn

(By Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE, La., March 30.—The Louisiana attorney general spurned the services of Charles A. Moon, Oklahoma representative, as adviser in the impeachment proceedings against Governor Huey P. Long today and the governor announced that he would come forth next week with revelations that would "split opponents wide open."

Thus public interest in the house inquirey Monday night into the executive's official acts rose to a high pitch.

Stay Was Not Long

Moon's appearance here created consternation among the governor's prosecutors and brought solace to his faithful, who set up the cry of "persecution." Moon's stay in Baton Rouge was not long. He checked in at the hotel and checked out again.

Attorney General Percy Saint denied he had invited the Oklahoman who aided in the impeachment of that state's governor, to join him as adviser in the impeachment move against Governor Long, charged with nineteen official offenses including murder plotting.

"Apparently Mr. Moon has just butted into something in which he has no business," said the attorney

Mr. And Mrs. B. C. Rix, Pioneers Of West Texas, Observe Their Golden Wedding Anniversary Today

A BRIDE AND GROOM of half a century ago will celebrate their golden wedding anversary in Lubbock today with an old fashioned family reunion.

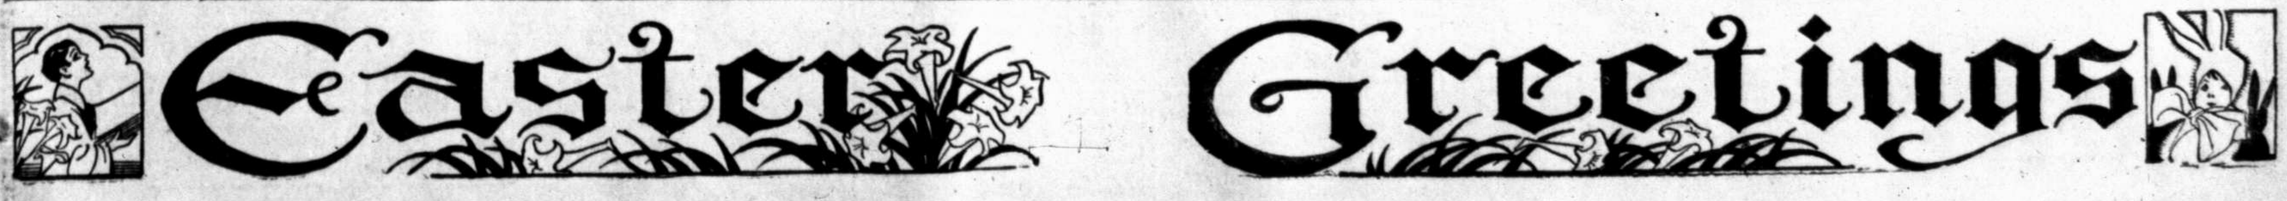

It was fifty years ago today that Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Rix, now of 2102 Broadway, were married in the little village of Cedar Creek, Wisconsin. That day will be lived again today as their children, grand children, and other relatives gather here to celebrate the fiftieth birthday of the wedding.

Mr. Rix is eighty-four years of age and Mrs. Rix is seventy-five. Both were born and reared in Cedar Creek. In 1876, Mr. Rix came to Texas. As the railroad extended only to Fort Worth, he went overland to Fort Concho, now known as San Angelo, where he spent the winter. From there he drove through a herd of cattle to Fort Dodge, Kansas.

After he returned to Wisconsin he and Mrs. Rix were married in 1879, moving to Texas with their family in 1887. Following several years at Colorado, Texas, they moved to Big Spring in 1890 where they lived for the next thirty-six years. Lubbock has been their home for the past three years.

Among the descendents to celebrate the wedding anniversary today are four children: Harvey L. Rix, of Big Spring, and Ruth Rix, Jed A. Rix, and Wallace W. Rix, of Lubbock; and seven grand children, six children of Harvey Rix, and one child of W. W. Rix. One other daughter, Amelia, died several years ago.

In commenting yesterday on the anniversary, Mrs. Rix said, "There isn't much history to it; fifty years have just passed."

Norman Stresses Lubbock Day At Plains Dairy Show

"With Floydada and Muleshoe anticipating the visit of a large delegation to Plainview next Wednesday, at the second annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy show, which is the same day Lubbock county will send a delegation, we hope that this city and county will have a big turn-out," declared F. A. Norman, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce dairy committee, yesterday.

"Floydada, particularly will at the show with a big crowd," he said, "and the committee wants everybody who can possibly make the trip to go."

Mr. Norman explained that the delegation from this county will include a score or more of the county's farmers and dairymen, the Lubbock high school band going along to furnish music for the occasion. Cars, to furnish transportation for the band members, 35 of them, have been requested. All volunteers who will have room for one or more of these musicians are requested to get in touch with Mr. Norman, in order that all arrangements will have been made before Wednesday morning.

All farmers of the county who have answered one of the 2,000 questionnaires circulated by the dairy committee several weeks ago have been given a special invitation to attend the Dairy Show on Lubbock Day, Wednesday.

his singles, 20 for placing first in the track meet, and 50 as a premium for entering the events. Lubbock and Slaton high schools tied for first places, winning six each. Only two athletic meet records were broken, that being in the high jump by Vester Ritchie who cleared the bar at 5 feet, 9 inches, besting the old mark of 5 feet, 7 1-2 inches, and Dunn with a 42 feet, 1 1-2 inches inches in the shot ut.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 30. (AP)—Positive identification of the body found in the Connecticut river Friday as that of Frances St. John Smith, long missing Smith college student, was made by her dentist, Dr. Carleton W. Wood, of Pelham, N. Y. today.

Dr. Wood brought with him from Pelham four molar bands which he removed three years ago from Miss Smith's mouth. Each of these bands fitted on teeth in the dead girl.

Dr. Frederick D. Jones, medical examiner, gave the cause of death as "drowning, sustained under circumstances undetermined."

Small Army Of Officials Ready For Extension Battle Of Railways Here

A. Gillies, Slaton, superintendent of this division.

The Texas and New Mexico railroad company's group will include T. D. Gresham, general counsel for the Texas and Pacific railway, of which organization the T. and N. M. is a subsidiary; John B. Payne, vice-president; John Somerville, vice-president; Charles Earl, general manager, all of them Texas and Pacific railway officials and all from Dallas.

Mileage Is Identical.

Both applicants for a permit plan on building approximately the same mileage of tracks, the Santa Fe project scheduled from the end of their present branch line at Seagraves westward to Lovington, N. M., a distance of about 46 miles, with tracks to be laid from a point several miles east of Lovington southward to the oil field territory of southeastern Lea county, by or through the towns of Knowles, Nadile, Hobbs and ending at Henry. This line parallels the Texas and New Mexico boundary lines and ends within a few miles of the southern boundary of New Mexico.

The Texas and Pacific application, which is for the T. and N. M. railway begins at Monahans, Texas, extending northward to Kermit, crossing the state lines north of that city and coming northward through the oil fields, angling a little northwestward at Lovington.

Data Well Gathered.

For several weeks the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and officials for the Santa Fe railway have been busy gathering every piece of data available, classed as of possible assistance in showing why the permit should be granted to that road, and both organizations will undoubtedly be busily occupied in assembling this information and outlining their procedure of presenting it before Examiner Davis.

Albert L. Reed, of Dallas, traffic expert and attorney, has been engaged by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce to assist this city in presenting pleas for the santa Fe's application. He arrived in the city Friday morning and has been occupied in outlining the Chamber of Commerce's part in the hearing.

Committees Are Named.

A number of committees have been appointed by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development, to assist in this preparatory work. The general committee in charge of the campaign has been headed by B. Sberrod, former president of the B. C. D. He has had on his committee, Charles H. Read, S. E. Cone, W. O. Stevens and W. K. Dickinson, Sr., Sub - committees working with them include, Alex McDonald, Joe Nislar, J. A. McCelvey, L. C. Montgomery, S. A. Wells, G. P. Kuykendall, A. C. Jackson and dozens of others.

Several special trips were made into the New Mexico territory to be traversed by the extensions by Lubbock business men and railway officials, for the purpose of securing first-hand detailed information as to potential and actual tonnage available in the area. This is to show the I. C. C. examiner that the road is a present necessity and that future development will continue to bring the line sufficient revenue to survive the years ahead.

Expenditures Announced.

The Santa Fe has announced that it expects to spend approximately $2,700,000 in constructing its extension, and that it will operate the extension as a part of its present Panhandle and Santa Fe system.

Lubbock's argument, as well as that of the Santa Fe, will be that the T. and N. M. is to operate as a separate organization from the Texas and Pacific Railway company, and that this fact will not insure the territory certain operation of the line should revenue fall off and make the road dependent upon other than its own income for sustenance.

The argument has also been stated against the T. and P. that the experience of the line from that system's mail line to Seminole, abandoned some time ago, might obtain on the road, should the T. and N. M. be granted a permit.

Many Witnesses.

Witnesses will include scores of cattlemen, farmers, sheepmen, business interests and oil company representatives, who have tonnage into or out of the area involved. And it is likely that some other railroads will present testimony or objections to one or the other applicants building their extensions.

From those closely in touch with the situation, there seems to be a stiff contest throughout the hearing, although Lubbock men seem to feel there is no valid reason why the Santa Fe's application should not be granted, and that they can see no reason why the T. and N. M.'s application should be granted.

and patter through to the back for something to eat. Closed doors meant loud yelps from him, until they were opened. Guests of the hotel would often take him to lunch, sending him to the kitchen while they sat at the table or counter. The police and fire stations are included in his rounds, also.

Early Monday morning workmen will begin tearing down the Merrill, to make way for the 12-story Hilton hotel.

"Dan" was brought to the Merrill, when he was a pup, about eight years ago, by H. G. Seitz, who has been proprietor of the hostelry since that time. If the dog is to be seen hanging about construction gangs while the new Hilton is lifted skyward, during the next few months, you will undoubtedly note wistful eyes and perhaps hear a whimper or so from him.

Break Attempt Is Frustrated Here

Hacksaws Are Found Last Night In County Jail By Officers; Cleverly Hidden On Bathtub

The second attempted jail break during the past two months was frustrated last night by Sheriff Wade Hardy and Deputy Sheriff Will Earnest, jailer, when a couple of hacksaw blades were taken from two Mexicans in the county jail.

The hacksaws had been "planted" in the jail some time last year, according to Earnest, and were hid underneath the top beveled edge of a bathtub by the simple process of spreading syrup on the blades and sticking them to the tub, on the side nearest a wall.

A negro, recently placed in jail, who had been confined there last year, at the time the hacksaws were hid, is said to have told the Mexicans where they were. The jailer, learning of the plan to break out of the jail, notified Sheriff Hardy and they secured a confession from the Mexicans and retrieved the hacksaw blades.

The first attempt was made when a Mexican tried to smuggle two hacksaw blades to a prisoner by putting them inside two cans of Marijuana weed, used by Mexicans as a substitute for tobacco.

Lemond Warns On Driving On Amber

Automobile drivers will take warning. Chief of Police John Lemond Saturday announced that he had issued orders to the police department to tighten up on all drivers who cross street intersections at the wrong time.

"There's too many drivers in too big a hurry to get somewhere," he said. "They keep on driving while the amber signal, changing from green to red lights, is on, and they are oftentimes at the center of the corner when the red light is on. The law specifically stipulates that when the amber light is on, cars coming to a traffic light, changing from green to red, should stop, and those standing still, should remain so, until the green light shows."

general. "I never hear of Mr. Moon until I read in the newspapers that he was coming here. We will ignore him, of course. If he is in Louisiana he came of his own accord."

Long Continues Work

Governor Long said he would forego an Easter holiday and remain in Baton Rouge to plan his battle. He worked today with a squad of stenographers and clerks and his brother, Earl Long, in the preparation of additional pamhlets to spread over the state.

"We will have the entire state plastered before we are through," the governor said. "I never have rested since I became governor. I will not now."

He expressed confidence in victory, saying he had received word from the rural districts that the country people, who he said elected him governor, still were his supporters.

Oklahoma Solons Make Impeachment Record

OQLAHOMA CITY, March 30. (AP)—Bearing a record for impeachments never exceeded, the twelfth Oklahoma legislature adjourned sine die today.

A turbulent session which had overthrown a governor, Henry S. Johnston, impeached three justices of the supreme court, and investigated the conduct of state officials including its own members, died peacefully and with the certainty that its labors would be resumed in a special session.

As a parting shot the senate, resolved into courts of impeachment suspended Chief Justice Charles W. Mason and Justice Fletcher Riley of the state supreme court, pending their trial. They, with Justice J. W. Clark, suspended yesterday, will appear before the senate court April 15 to plead to 31 articles of impeachment.

sifting carefully needs of these institutions. They had been requested for appropriations totaling $64,284,840, but whittled $18,925,073 off to save the tax-payer money.

Budget Believed High.

But, the house appropriations committee believes that the budget as approved by the board of control is too high and has announced that it will reduce it materially.

Will the cut be made from the appropriations proposed for eleemosynary institutions or taken from the educational and departmental allotments, is a question interesting to contemplate.

R. B. Walthall, chairman of the board, backed up by Roy I. Tennant and Claude D. Teer, is insisting that not one dime be cut from the eleemosynary recommended allotments.

The board of control has approved appropriations totaling $16,202,510 for the 17 eleemosynary institutions for the next biennium. This does not include $3,542,964 for the penitentiary system.

Pen Has 4,729.

There were 4,729 inmates of the penitentiary, according to today's report to Governor Moody.

At the Abilene state hospital for epileptics there are 963 patients, with at least 400 awaiting entrance.

There are 181 girls in the training school at Gatesville.

There are 617 orphans in the Corsicana state institution and 165 more in the Waco home. These places are very crowded, with long waiting lists, Mr. Walthall said.

well provided with ammunition, but the only assistance it can count on from the federals is from air squadrons.

Attacking rebels under General Topete were variously estimated to number between 3,000 and 5,000. They had devised rude tanks, mounted with machine guns, out of tractors covered with sheet metal.

Nearest federal troop concentration was along the Baja California-Sonora line, where a large force was reported preparing to advance against the Sonora rebels. Scattered bodies of federals were more than 100 miles west of Naco.

The past week saw six permits issued, totalling $23,225, the bad weather and last of the month period being thought responsible for little activity in construction lines, according to Mr. Schlag.

Boundary Suit Up To Mullican

With attorneys for both sides claiming the jury's verdict, on two points of issue involved in the boundary suit case of J. A. McClatchy versus A. W. and Fred Worsham, tried from last Wednesday until Saturday, before Judge M. Mullican, in the Ninety-ninth district court, the judge is faced with the task of rendering a decision.

The case involves 32.32 acres of land, the title and possession of which is in dispute because of contested boundary lines. The land is located in Section 10, block D-2, Lubbock county. The east half of it was sold to A. W. Worsham and the west half of McClatchy, the controversy being a question of surveyor's lines.

McClatchey is suing for title and damage of $2,000. Attorneys for him are J. E. Vickers and Richard Douglas, the Worshams being represented by George R. Bean. Argument started Friday afternoon and was completed yesterday morning.

Included in the mixed offering for today were cows that sold from 5.00 @9.50. A few odd head of bulls sold at steady prices, 6.50@8.40. Slaughter heifers sold from 12.50@13.00. No good calves were included in the receipts.

Hogs topped at 10.90. Packing sows sold from 8.50@9.25 and pigs up to 9.00.

Son Of Famed Novelist In City

COUNT Ilya Tolstoy, son of the premier Russian novelist, who lectured last night at the Tech gymnasium, believes that modern literature is decidely inferior to that of the Victorian period, which preceded

However, the count—who talked freely in response to questions propounded by an Avalanche-Journal representative—sees some solace from the flood of 'printed matter' now being pushed speedily through countless presses the nation over.

"As art", he said, speaking in English, which while flawless in selection of words, betrayed a decidedly foreign accent, "present-day literature appears to be inferior. Scientific treatises however, will have a permanent value. There have been numerous recent scientific works which are both interesting and of permanent value."

Count Tolstoy looks like a Russian count. No one would ever mistake him for a lawyer, or a salesman or a business man—as, for instance, one might readily mistake Dr. John Erskine, who lectured here last year. His forehead is sunken, his head nearly bald, his eyebrows beetling and his eyes set far back in cavernous sockets. His beard is thick, long, and pointed and is turning gray, his eyes are cold grey and they seem to pierce right through you. He is a man who would stand out in any concourse and a figure who would call for a second glance from even the casual observer. Compared with photographs, he much resembles his distinguished parent.

Count Tolstoy was registered at the Lubbock hotel. He was courteous and cordial.

Likes Tagore Best

The son of Russia's greatest novelist believes that of modern writers Tagore, the Hindu, is the leader. He has a penchant for philosophical works and believes that in these lies the modern contribution to lasting literature.

Motion pictures — talkies and all —come under the general classification of 'rotten' in the estimation of Count Tolstoy. Of course there are varying degrees of rottenness, even with him.

County Tolstoy found out something about the movie business several years ago when he supervised the filming of "Ressurection" adapted from the novel by his father, Theatre goers will best remember it as a starring vehicle for Dolores Del Rio.

"I had to continually fight with the directors to make them adhere to the novel and leave out the tricks of the craft with which they wished to burden the story. I was only partially successful in this effort.

"I suppose we might say that about one in every one hundred motion pictures have some lasting value."

Count Tolstoy fled from Russia during the stirring days of the war. He has not since returned. During the twelve intervening years he has toured over most of the world, lecturing and simply traveling.

Comments On Russia

Modern Russia is in rather a deplorable state, thinks Count Tolstoy.

"They—the bolsheviks—failed in what they set out to do. They started something which was impossible; which was opposed to both human and social laws and it was evitable that the movement should fail. Bolshevism as it now exists in Russia is widely different from the conception furnished by Lenine before he began his political career."

Religion Is Described

Religion of Russia today is similar to Mohammedenism. There is one God and Lenine is his prophet

"However, the people have strayed from worship of the ideal supposed to have been represented by Lenine and now they revere the individual," he said.

The elder Tolstoy died in 1910 at the age of 82. The son's present lecture tour is in commemoration of his father's one hundredth birthday.

The son is making long jumps across Texas. He came to Lubbock from Texarkana and next goes to Austin, to lecture at State University.

"Ressurection", the first part, is the son's favorite among all of his father's works.

County Tolstoy speaks six languages and has traveled in every part of the world.

Eyes glistening, he said:

"Do not refer to me as a man without a country. I am a citizen of the world. The world is my country and to the world I give my allegiance."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 30. (AP)—Governor Bibb Graves had available tonight estimates of three state departments which placed flood damage in Alabama at $10,060,943. He plans to submit them to President Hoover Monday in connection with an appeal for federal aid in rehabilitation.

As the tale was told, the porter, while sweeping, discovered a pair of dice. The business man, upon seeing them, said:

"Well, Parson, let's see you pass. Here's four bits you can't."

As the negro placed a half dollar beside the business man's, Deputy Sheriff Will Earnest happened on the scene.

"Just one of those peculiar coincidences," some one remarked.

Performance Of Claude Bracey Is Sensation Of S.M.U. Relays At Dallas

Institute Flash Betters Official Mark In Century

Rice Sprinter Runs 100-Yard Distance In 9.4 Seconds; Other Records Are Shattered

BY J. H. ANDERSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, March 30. (AP)—Claude Bracey, senational southwest sprinter, bettered the official world's record for the 100-yard dash for the second time in two days when he ran the distance in 9.4 scends at the Southern Methodist relays this afternoon.

At the Texas Relays yesterday in Austin, Bracey was clocked in 9.5 seconds, the mark generally recognized in the United States but the official world record is 9.6 seconds. Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach and relays referee, said today's mark would not be considered for a record, due to the wind at the back of the Rice Institute star. Rockne, however, said Bracey's 9.5 seconds mark might be considered as there was little wind when he sped down the straightaway in the Memorial Stadium of the State university.

Bracey, a hero to his fellow Texans, first came into the national spotlight last spring when he was timed on several occasions, at 9.5 seconds in the century. He made the Olympic team but failed to show his spring form at Amsterdam.

Bracey Is Sensation.

Bracey's wonderful sprint was the outstanding achievement of the games, but not by any means the only excellent record made.

Bevan of the Emporia, Kan., Teachers, hurled the javelin 208 feet, four inches, bettering by 15 inches his mark of yesterday which set a new Tex Relay record. Abbott of Illinois and Frazier of Kansas ran a pretty race in the 3,000 meters, the former winning in 9.19 by a sprint at the finish. Portmess of Northwestern leaped 24 feet, 7 1-4 inches to win the broad jump.

Illinois' great sprint relay quartet, Timm, Burkhart, Cave and Paterson, won both the university quarter mile and half mile relay. In the first they were timed in 42.1 seconds, one-tenth second slower than the Tex Relay mark they set yesterday, and in the 880-yard relay they cut 1-10 second from their winning time at Austin, running the distance in one minute, 28.5 seconds.

Ramus of Ohio State hurled the discus 157 feet, within 14 inches of the world's record of Bud Houser, former Southern California star.

Best Pole Vault Mark.

Warne of Northwestern vaulted 13 fet, four inches, one-half inch better than the Tex Relay mark he and Canby of Iowa had set 24 hours before.

And last but not least in the attractions of the afternoon was the appearance of Paavo Nurmi the Rinn, rated as the world's leading middle distance runner. Nurmi ran a special two-mile race against a relay of collegiate talent and although his time of nine minutes, 40.2 seconds was many seconds slower than his record of nine minutes, 17 seconds, he was cheered by the crowd as he finished.

The one-mile relay for high schools was won by Masonic Home, Fort Worth Oak Cliff, Dallas, was second, and Texarkana, Texas, and Brownwood, tied for third. Time 3 minutes, 39.8 seconds. San Angelo had the best time but was disqualified because the lead off man dropped the baton.

DALLAS, March 30. (AP)—Claude Bracey of Rice Institute entrenched the name of Texas more firmly in the sports firmament by his sensational running in the 100-yard dash of the Southern Methodist Relays today but he was not the only Lone Star athlete to win.

Leland of Texas Christian pushed Bracey when the former was clocked in 9.4 seconds in the century, and won second. Winders of the Texas Aggies won third in the 3,000-meter event, won by Abbott of Illinois. Bartlett of the Texas Aggies was third in the discuss in which Ramus of Ohio State hurled the platter 157 feet.

Gregg of Simmons and Howe of the University of Texas were two of four high jumpers to tie for third. The Medley Relay quartet of Abilene Christian college, Stevens, Hodges, Wood and Vaughn, won their event in 3 minutes, 37.2 seconds, two seconds slower than the Texas Relay mark equalled yesterday by the Pittsburg, Kan., Teachers college. Today Pittsburg was third with Hastings of Nebraska, second.

Masonic Home Team Leads High Schools

DALLAS, Mar. 30. (AP)—By winning the mile relay and finishing second in the 880-yard relay, a quartet of speedsters from Masonic Home, Fort Worth, won a majority of honors in the high school division of the Southern Methodist University relays today.

The Masonic fliers, despite a strong wind that swept the field, set the fast time of 3 minutes, 39.8 seconds in the mile event, nosing out Oak Cliff High of Dallas, Texarkana, Texas, and Brownwood, finished in a tie for third place.

The veteran Main Avenue team of San Antonio, a factor in high school meets of the state for several years, sweet to an easy victory in the 880-yard relay. The quartet, composed of Bardwell, McMunn, Fleming and Grant, covered the half mile in one minute, 35.1 seconds. Masonic Home was second, with Texarkana, Texas, third.

Brownwood Wins Medley

Brownwood high school romped away with the medley mile from a large field in three minutes, 49.9 seconds. Oak Cliff of Dallas took second place, with Central of Fort Worth third.

What was expected to prove the feature relay of the high school division, a meeting between San Angelo and Main Avenue, San Antonio, did not develop. The two combinations have waged a nip and tuck fight for state honors the last two years. Main participated only in one event today, the 880, and the blue-clad San Angelo swifts, who won the mile yesterday at Austin, did not place in the other two relays.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

Joe Williams

Bill Carey, new prexy of Madison Square Garden, had many a brush with bandits when he was building railroads in China. Just the man to talk business with fight managers.

Bill has met some pretty rough guys in his 30 years of engineering here and there; robbers, squatters, grafters, sneak-thieves, racketeers. Is it any wonder he rose to be head man in the cauliflower industry?

O'Goofty's only worry is that after so many cloistered years, Mr. Carey's new associations do not spoil him.

A New York writer says patriotism may lure Dempsey back into the ring to stave off the menace of one of the foreign heavies winning the championship, such as Paulino Schmeling or von Porat. Ye scribe didn't say anything about Mr. Dempsey fighting either of those guys for nothing, however.

The question seems to be: Whether or not to be patriotic and take half a million, or to be disloyal and refuse it. That's a hard one.

As far as the dear, damned public is concerned, why not let somebody take the precious heavyweight title across the pond? Nobody over here seems to be using it very well right now.

It Was Smart, If "Tricks" Of Hudlin And Reeves Works Out

BY NEA SERVICE

NEW YORK, March 30.—Two young American League players, dissatisfied with their play during the 1928 season, resorted to trick arrangements during the winter months in an effort at improvement.

They are Bob Reeves, Red Sox infielder, and Willis Hudlin, Cleveland pitcher.

Hudlin lacked control last year and rigged up a target at his winter home to practive with.

Reeves thought he was hitting under the ball and over-striding at the bat and devised a machine which fed balls to him for batting practice.

Both say they benefited by their trick machines and are anxious for the season to get under way to see if their conclusions are correct.

Westerners Amass Total Of Eighty Nine Points In Taking Off High Honors In Class A Schools Here

Acuff Tracksters Carry Off Championship Of Class B Schools While Lubbock Juniors Win Title In Junior Division; Over 1000 Enter

Westerners of Lubbock High school showed their heels to Class A competition in the annual Interscholastic track and field meet Saturday on the Tech athletic field, scored 89 points while their nearest rival was counting 51 and walked off with the county championship. Slaton's 51 points placed second and Idalou came third with 8.

Acuff ran off with the Class B track and field championship with little trouble, scoring 82 points while Shallowater took second place with 32. Wolffarth, Bledsoe and Canyon placed third, fourth and fifth in the order named.

Lubbock Junior High school met little competition in turning back the county juniors in the Saturday morning fracas. The local tracksters took first place in every event of the junior meet with the exception of chinning the bar. This was won by Scott of Idalou.

Locals Win Easily

Lubbock High School's triumphant march to the Class A title of the county was easily the sensation of the meet. Coach Lowry's thinly clads won eight first places, 12 seconds, four thirds and eight fourths. The highly touted speed merchants of Slaton high went down as easy victims for the super-trained athletes of Coach Lowry.

In spite of the soggy track that ordinarily would prove a handicap to the runners, unusually good time was made in the majority of the track events. Two records fell in field events, the high jump and shot put. Vester Ritchie of Lubbock cleared the bar at five feet, nine inches in the high jump, beating the old record set by Givens of Idalou at five feet 7 1-2 inches. Dunn of Slaton heaved the shot 42 feet 1 1-2 inches. The old mark was 41 feet 4 1-2 inches.

Yancy Price of Lubbock and Cecil Austin of Slaton were tied for scoring honors of the Class A division of track and field meet, each counting 13 points for his team with two first places and one second. Price placed first in the 100-yard dash and the discus throw, taking second in the 220-yard dash. Austin won the 220-low hurdles and the javelin and was second in the broad jump.

Slaton Flash Splutters

The Slaton sprint ace was unable to come up to the stiff pace set in the century. Price ran the distance in the near record time of 10.1, but was forced to run again because a fellow team-mate jumped the gun. The second run was clocked at 10.2. Lubbock placed first, second and third in the 100 and took both first and second in the 220. Austin was unable to place in either of these dashes.

Only Lubbock and Slaton entered the mile relay in the Class A event. The Tiger quartet covered the distance in 3 minutes and 23 seconds, one second short of the county record. Each lap found a Slaton sprinter a mere stride in advance of a Lubbock man, Nowell bringing in the baton ahead of Hopper of Lubbock.

Lubbock's performance in the county meet qualifies 24 local high school tracksters for the district meet here April 19 and 20. Slaton will enter eight and Idalou three.

Complete results of the senior track and field events follow:

120 high hurdles, Class A—Nowell, Slaton, first; Wilson, Lubbock, second; Watkins, Lubbock, third; Pressley, Lubbock, fourth. Time 17.4.

120 high hurdles, Class B—Railsback, Acuff, first; Nichols, Becton, second; Germany, Acuff, third; Farris, McClung, fourth. Time 19.2.

220 low hurdles, Class A—Austin Slaton, first; Watkins, Lubbock, second; Nowell, Slaton, third; Williams, Lubbock, fourth. Time 26.9.

The freshmen medley relay provided a sensational finish in which L. S. U. won by only a few inches over South Park, of Texas.

Detroit Tigers Rated "Dark Horse" Of American Loop

District Interscholastic League Meet To Be Held In Lubbock April 19-20

Harris Hopes To Raise Club From 6th To 3rd Place

Young Manager Has High Ambitions For Team That Finished In Second Division Last Season

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30.—The Detroit Tigers may not win the American League pennant this season—in fact, some baseball folk, among them one Miller Huggins, will be greatly surprised if they do. However if they don't finish among the first three there will be another baseball man who will be very disappointed. That man is Manager Bucky Harris, bought from Washington after the close of the 1928 season.

Bucky's ambitions, one think will strongly favor the modest, unassuming Tiger pilot this year. It will be his first as a non-playing manager. Consequently he will have far more time to devote to his squad than when he had to divide his managerial duties with those of a second-sacker. Already he has injected a spirit into the Detroit camp that has been lacking for many years.

A Bench Manager

"If necessary I'll go back to my old position but I want to spend as much time as possible on the bench," declared Harris. "And I don't believe I will be disappointed because Charley Gehringer looks mighty good in that berth."

Harris declines to make any predictions for the club. It is too early in the year, and it doesn't pay anyway, he claims. However, the rest of the boys aren't so backward. They're enthusiastic and ready to attempt almost anything for the Tigers.

On paper, the club looks mighty good. The infield is particularly strong with Harry Heilman on first, Charley Gehringer at second, Heinie Schuble playing short and Marty McManus holding down third. Heilmann will probably start at first base. For some years back he has been cavorting around right field, and piling up a hefty batting average. He is just about the best right hand slugger in the league, having won the championship in 1921-23-25-27. In the even years, his hitting slumped, but this is one of the years it will pay to watch him.

In reserve for first, Harris has Alexander, a rookie estimated as being worth $75,000 by Connie Mach.

Gehringer Promising

Under the tutorage of Harris himself one of the greatest second sackers, Gehringer should shape up mighty well. His speed and perfect, sure hands already have won him considerable praise but in previous seasons he has lacked expert coaching.

Schuble makes his bow as the third Texan to fill the shortstop berth for the Tigers. He was bought from Beaumont, in the Texas League to replace Johnny Tavener, who was traded to Cleveland for George Uhle. Schuble bit off his first chunk of the big league cake a few years ago with the Cardinals but he was too young to stand the gaff and was sent back to the minors.

McManus, whose throwing was weak last year, appears to be his old self again. He underwent an operation on his arm during the winter and now claims that he is as good as he was five years ago. Marty is one of the best "clutch" batters in the league. His average is never very high but he always comes through with his hits when they are most needed.

Strong Outfield

The outfield regulars will include Roy Johnson, Harry Rice and Jonathan Stone. Of the three, Rice is the only veteran. Johnson is the youngster Detroit bought from the San Francisco Seals for $75,000. Harris is expecting some big things from him.

Stone went to the Tigers from Mulberry, Tenn., late last year and in the 26 games he played on the club in batting with a average of .354. He is fast and has a good throwing arm. His only weakness is slow curves and that is rapidly being remedied.

The only weakness that has made itself apparent on the Tiger squad so far has been in the catching staff. Harris needs one or two more backstop and needs them badly. Mervyn Shea, at present looks like the regular first string catcher. Then there is Raymond Hayworth, a big aggressive fellow, who will be carrried throughout the season. And that's the workes

The moundsmen look somewhat better, with three valuable likely southpaws, Frank Barnes, Earl Whitehill and Emil Yde. According to Harris, southpaws are almost worth their weight in gold in the American League since most of the heavy hitters stand on the right side of the plate. The rest of tthe hurling staff is rounded out with Owen Carroll, who led the Detroit pitchers last year, George Uhle, George Smith, Victor Sorrell and Elam Van Gilder.

Larry Bettencourt, former all-American football star now with Milwaukee, says he gets more thrills from playing baseball than he did from football.

Veteran Spit-ball Pitcher Attributes Success To Hard Work; Beginning 5th Year With Macks

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Down at Fort Myers, Fla., training ground for the Athletics, Old Jack Quinn, one of the last of the fast disappearing race of spit-ball pitchers, is beginning his fifth year with the Mackmen and his twentieth in the majors.

Somewhere in his forties Quinn is already in good shape, having trained for two weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., before going south. He attributes his success to hard work. He was a breaker boy in the coal mines near Pottsville, Pa., before he took up baseball and a strong physique has carried him through many years on the ball field.

Eager for the season to begin, Quinn declares he will continue to pitch "until they take my uniform away."

"There's only a few of us still in the game," he said. "Red Faber of Chicago and myself are the only two spit-ballers left in the American league. I believe Grimes of New York and Mitchell of the Cardinals are the only ones in the National.

"Urban Shocker died last year and Bill Doak and Stanley Coveleskie have retired, so there are only a few remaining but we still manage to get by and fool the batters.

"When the baseball powers ruled out the spit-ball seven years ago I think they had in mind to legislate only against trick pitching. I have always contended that few batters were ever hurt by spit-ball pitching. It was the curve ball hurlers with their freak pitches who did the damage.

"I see nothing mysterious about the spitter. Just take a baseball, moisten it a little on the side near the thumb and let the ball slip inward or away from you as you throw, depending on where you want it to go. That's all there is to it."

What a Man, Eh?

If ever an honest tribute was paid to the skill and ability of a young man it was paid to Bucky Harris, the new manager of the Detroit Tigers, in the training camps of the other American League clubs.

Every manager of the seven other clubs in the league admitted the greatest respect for the power and the possibilities of the Detroit club and when pressed for a reason they all paid a compliment, directly or indirectly, to Harris.

Those who did not mention the skill of the new manager as their first reason for respecting the team said—"That Uhle might win thirty ball games this year." And in the next breath the flowers were tossed at Bucky with the explanation—"He'll pitch for Harris. Anybody will pitch for that fellow."

They All Say So

While chewing the fat in Ft. Myers one night Connie Mack told Ed Dickerson, the fat Grand Rapids sports editor, that Detroit looked like the pennant winner. Connie intended it to be a confidence and it was treated as such by Dickerson but the word got back to Connie and he promptly said he had been misunderstood and that what he meant to say was that Detroit might win the pennant.

Harry Grabiner, of the White Sox, credited the chances of the Tigers directly to Harris. The Tigers, he said, were a powerful club last year but they played dumb baseball. "They won't play dumb with Harris around. He's one of the smartest men in baseball."

Miller Huggins, Dan Howley, Walter Johnson and all of the National League managers italk to said that Detroit would be in the race on account of Harris.

One of the Yankee pitchers said Harris was the second smartest manager in baseball. He wouldn't name the first.

Mack Worried About Athletics

Since it has appeared in print there is no obligation to hold a confidence and it can be said that Connie Mack is sorely distressed about his Athletics. When I was in Ft. Myers he told me, confidentially, that he was not at all satisfied with his team. He didn't want to be quoted at that time for obvious reasons but since then he apparently is willing to admit his concern.

White Sox To Do Own Thinking; New Manager Leaves It To Them

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DALLAS, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Russell A. (Lena) Blackburne, starting his first full season as manager of the Chicago White Sox, believes in his club.

"They are on their own at the plate most of the time," said the manager. "Unless there is a point in the game where it is necessary for the manager to make a decision an take the responsibility for it I let the fellows do the thinking.

"If any of them can't do it, I will step in, but until they have shown that they can't think for themselves they will have plenty of chances to decide what to do

"I tell them: 'You're in the big league now, as high as you can get in your profession. If you don't know something about baseball now, how are you ever going to learn?'

"Our club is just like a wheel—and there are no bad spokes in it either. I am not a high hat manager in any sense of the word. I am one of the boys, and, while I don't play in the field, I am on the coaching lines all the time, and I can yell as loud as anybody.

"I am making no claims except that we are a first division club but we might be a dark horse at that. We have a lot of speed, good pitching, and, while we may not have a great hitting club, our hitting should be good enough to get us somewhere. Autry has 'made' our catching department. That trade with Cleveland was a good thing for both of us. We needed Autry and Cleveland needed Falk.

"Our club will be one of the youngest in baseball, and it will have the fight. Nobody can tell me that a fighting ball club can be kept down.

"The American league race should be so hot this year that any team with its head up all the time will have a chance to play a part int it. The Yankees, of course, have a terrific punch, and with Ruth and Gehrig in there will always be dangerous, but they can't scare us, and we will win some games from them.

"The young players who joined our club late last year and finished strong are improved this spring, and some of the so called 'veterans' are better than ever. They look good to me."

Seventeen Counties Of District 2 Are Expected To Enter Contest Here This Month At Tech Field

Record Number Of Entries Expected By E. Y. Freeland, District Chairman; Rules Changed

Athletes from seventeen counties of District Two will gather in Lubbock April 19 and 20 to compete in the Interscholastic League meet on Tech Field. Past records indicate that more than 200 high school thinly clads will be on hand when E. Y. Freeland, district athletic director, calls his officials together for the two-day affair.

The district head plans to run off preliminaries in practically all events Friday with the exception of the mile run and the relay. Finals will be held Saturday, April 20.

A change in Interscholastic rules allows county meet officials to send the winners of the first four places to the district meet. No county will be allowed to enter more than six men in each event. These rules indicates that a regular army will decend upon Lubbock during the dates mentioned above.

Fifteen events including the relay will be run off in the meet, Mr. Freeland said.

The counties included in the meet are: Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Dickens, Crosby, Lubbock Hockley, Cochran, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Yoakum, Gaines, Dawson and Borden.

Nine Loan Funds Are Available To Students At Tech

Morrow Bequest Of $20,000 Heads List Of Money Available to Worthy Youths At College

THERE ARE nine loan funds available for students of Texas Technological college, the total amounting to about $27,000. More than 100 students have already borrowed from these funds, and reports are to the effect that no student has yet failed to repay a loan.

The largest of these funds is the George T. Morrow Student Loan Fund of $20,000, a permanent bequest created by the will of the donor. The interest only of this amount will be used for loans, the capital sum being invested. Some $800 interest will become subject to loan by Sept. 1, 1929. The terms of the will specified that the president, business manager and registrar of the college should administer the fund.

Rotary Fund $5,000.

Early after the organization of the institution the Rotary club of Lubbock started a loan fund which now amounts to $5,000. It is administered by a committee appointed by the Rotary club, Dean J. M. Gordon is now chairman of this committee. He reports that 91 students have borrowed from the fund, and that there are now outstanding 60 loans. Of this large number of students borrowing not one has been considered a bad risk. This fund is available in small amounts to students who have attended the college a year or more and demonstrated their worthiness and ability.

The Twentieth Century club Tech Students' Loan Fund was originated in 1925, $200 being raised the first year by an assessment of $5 per member. Six students have borrowed from this fund which now amounts to $415.90. Interest rate is four percent and loans are made to either men or women.

The Home Economics club loan fund was established the first year of the school by the Home Economics club. This organization holds a sale about Thanksgiving each year. The first sale netted $87 and $80 to $100 has been similarly raised each year. Money is loaned on the recommendation of the Home Economics council and with the approval of Dean Margaret Weeks. Four percent interest is charged and it is open to home economics students who need the money. Often loans are made to help students over registration, one girl having been assisted twice in this manner. Two girls who are teaching this year have just repaid $50 loans. Seven loans are now outstanding.

The Athenaeum club student loan fund was started in 1926 and amounts now to $250. It is available to any worthy woman student. Five students have participated in this loan with two loans of $100 each now outstanding.

The American Association of University Women last year raised $100 and are planning to secure another $100 which will provide a rotating fund to be loaned $100 each year to some girl graduate of the Lubbock high school who wishes to attend Tech or some other approved institution.

The Business Women's Loan Fund amounts to $390, with most of this now loaned out. It is available to any unmarried girl at five per cent interest. The fund was started the year the school opened and is loaned on the basis of scholarship and character, and upon recommendation of Dean Mary W. Doak. Four students have participated in this fund.

The Engineering Society loan fund is not yet operative, but $200 has been raised and is now drawing interest. When the amount reaches $500 it will become available, according to Dean Wm. J. Miller, and it is hoped that it will reach this amount by the opening of the fall term. Members of the society pay $1 annual dues, part of this being applied to the fund which will be loaned to engineering students. It is hoped to increase materially the fund this year by getting freshman engineers to sign over their chemistry deposits to the fund.

The Agricultural club loan fund for agricultural students now amounts to $150. No loans are outstanding but money will become available in the near future. The purpose of the fund is to furnish temporary funds to students who have previously contributed to the fund. It is supervised by Dean A. H. Leidigh and the officers of the society. In order to increase the amount, freshmen are asked to sign over science deposits, sophomores and upper-classmen during 1928-29 are asked to contribute $2.00 each, and other means will be used. Six per cent is charged and for the present, loans will be limited to $25 each.

Tech Professor Is Writing Book

Biography Of Texas' Only Republican Governor Is Soon To Be Published By Eastern House

Dr. C. S. McKay, professor of history at Texas Technological college, is writing a biography of Ex-Governor E. J. Davis, which is to be published by the Dictionary of American Biography.

Governor Davis, native of Florida and union general in the Civil War, was the only republican ever elected Governor of Texas. He served from 1870 to 1874, following an election in which the freed negroes participated and from which ex-Confederates were barred. During his term there were two negro senators and 10 negro members of the lower house of the Texas legislature.

The Davis administration, according to Dr. McKay, is well known as a period of high taxes, wholesale graft and oppressive legislation. Davis was defeated by Richard Coke for re-election, but refused to give up the office. He and his radical legislature held the first floor of the Capitol at Austin for a week, guarded by negro troops, while Governor Coke and the democratic legislature were administering the state government from the second floor of the Capitol. There was constant danger of an armed clash between the rival factions but Davis gave way when President Grant refused to intervene.

The administration of Davis was the subject of Dr. McKay's master's thesis at the University of Texas.

House Is Knocked From Blocks

Culmination of a story of unusually bad luck, consisting of flat tires, blow outs, broken axles and the like, on frequent trips to Amarillo, and failure to collect nine months' back rent came recently when Miss Flora McGee, English instructor at Tech, received startling news from Amarillo.

A small house she had invested in there had been knocked entirely off its blocks, by three fair maids, driving a borrowed car, while somewhat "inebriated."

The occupants of the house, participating in the WFAA "daily dozen" at 6 a. m., saw their radio hurled across the room and the plaster from the wall crumble with a crash. The family thought themselves to be victim of a sudden and vicious earthquake, but on opening the door, they found the three girls entangled in the remains of a new automobile.

Wood From White House Sent Here

A rectangular block of pine wood which was taken from timbers in the roof of the White House while the structure was being remodeled in 1927 has just been received by Professor R. A. Studhalter of Texas Technological College. For 112 years these longleaf pine beams held the roof of one wing of the executive mansion safely over the heads of twenty-six presidents of the United States.

The wood was originally built into the mansion during the administration of President James adison in 1815., Year before last when the supporting timbers of the roof were taken down the wood was found to be in perfect state of preservation, although no treatment had been given to lengthen the life of the wood.

In 1814, after the Battle of Bladensburg, the British soldiers, with their flaming torches, came thronging up Pennsylvania Avenue and burned the White House, the fire destroying the interior and seriously damaging some of the masonry. President Madison and his famous wife, Dolly, made a dramatic departure from the executive mansion, fleeing up Pennsylvania Avenue just ahead of the British.

Mr. Studhalter is very proud of this relic and will see that it gets a prominent place in the proposed museum for Texas Technological college.

This bull is a Holstein. First prize in the three-year-old bull contest of his class, last year, Flowerdale Sybil's King, is in much better shape this year. The other bull is a Jersey calf.

According to W. L. Stangel, head of the department of animal husbandry at the Tech, Flowerdale Echo Cynthia, of the college herd, that made the state record for butterfat production in Texas last August, will be the center of attention at Plainview, with her twin calves, which are to be on exhibit.

The herd is to be in charge of H. MacMillan, dairy cattle herdsman at the Tech, other Tech faculty members to attend the show being Ray Mowery and K. M. Renner.

"Blind" Justice Bad For Children

EDITOR'S NOTE: Olive Roberts Barton, noted writed on children's subjects, has prepared twelve articles on "The Pre-School Child" for the Avalanche. This is the sixth.

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
NEA Service Writer

Mothers are often distressed unnecessarily about the behavior of little children. They often find them doing all kinds of things they shouldn't and very few that they should—according to their own way of looking at things.

That is why authorities on child behavior and child training are so anxious that parents make a study of facts about children, just so they won't blame them unfairly.

Suppose your little girl or boy is between 3 and 4 years of age. Perhaps you think he tells fibs, that he is disobedient, or contrary.

Know then that it is often a peculiarity of a child of this age to obey you when you tell him "not" to do a thing, and yet openly defy you and refuse absolutely to obey if you command him to "do" something. In other words his disobedience is more apt to be negative than positive.

Tact is Essential

It is a wise mother who will make allowance for this and who will be very tactful and careful about the things she insists on having done. At this age I should try to avoid open conflict of wills, for resentment is very easily aroused now and it is difficult for a child to distinguish between a just and an unjust command. He has not begun yet to learn to reason—nor has he yet adjusted his relationship between himself and the world. When these two things are established you will find your child more obedient and biddable than he is now.

After all, the "why" of things is the secret of obedience. Children have just as much right to know the "why" of obeying a law as older people. There are exceptions, but as a general rule their reason and idea of justice should be satisfied. Until they are old enough to reason, blind obedience cannot be insisted upon too strongly.

As for telling fibs, it is merely another natural phenomenon. His young brain, just beginning to think for itself, cannot distinguish fact from fancy; dreams and reality are confused. Indeed, half the time, as far as he is concerned, fancy is fact. His imagination is very real to him. Don't scold or punish him for it. Try to show him where he is wrong, if you like, but there I should be careful, too.

AN INVITATION

From Your Laundry

THE Lubbock Laundry Co. — 1001 AVENUE G

THE Family Service Laundry Co. — FAMILY SERVICE, YET EVERY SERVICE JUST FOR YOU — 1618 AVENUE H

THE The Model Laundry — STUDENTS' IDEAL SERVICE — 13th AND COLLEGE

OPEN HOUSE

Every Afternoon Except Saturday, 1 to 4 O'Clock

April 1 st. to April 27 th. Inclusive

The laundries cooperating in this move to educate the housewives of Lubbock of the value of sending it to the laundry are especially anxious that every woman in Lubbock and the surrounding territory attend this open house at least one day. Then you can see the plan of operation, how every angle for the proper cleaning of your garments has been taken into consideration. A courteous attendant will escort you through the entire process, and explain every method that is used.

SEE!

The Magic Bubbles Distil the Dirt

The woman who has tried these services wonders how we get the clothes so white, clean, crisp and sweet smelling. She would marvel all the more if she could see how gently it's all done.

The Result is all in the modern, super-human machinery that the laundry industry has developed—incomparable in effect to any home method or appliances. It's in the Magic Bubbles too, of purest of soaps—in the specially processed softened water; n the four 15 minutes sudes immersions and the seven separate alternating hot and cold water rinses. It's not an art nor an artifice—it's a science.

SEE!

The Gentle Care That Is Taken

Have you ever watched Sarah rub and tug over the scrub board—or poke and pull at your clothes with a pole in the wash boiler? Is it any wonder the fabrics give, the buttons pop off or hubby complains of frayed cuffs and collars and holey socks.

Come to these Laundries and let us show you how gently the same operations are performed here with even more immaculate results in the appearance of your clothes. That's only one of a dozen reasons why it's better and cheaper to send your laundry to the Laundry.

SEE!

Our Accurate Sorting System

Aside from the thorough cleanliness of the laundry work and gentle handling of your clothes here is another important advantage you gain in sending your laundry.

As a matter of sanitation every family's budle is as separately and individually washed as in your own home. Furthermore the white goods are separated from the colored goods and each separately washed. Such personal attenton insures against loss of clothes, assures the utmost in cleanliness and the security of fabric and color.

SEE!

How You Save Time More Economical

Consider that the average family's laundry takes from four to five hours to wash. Another three or four hours to dry, and another three or four hours to iron—really a day and a half at least. At 50c an hour you'd pay yourself double what these Laundries would charge you for the same amount of wash work. And that doesn't take into account your cost of material and washing utensils.

How much more profitably and pleasantly your time can be spent with the children or your social friends—and how much more thoroughly your laundry work will be done.

Stage Is Set For Second Annual Plains Dairy Show

Exposition To Be Finest Ever Held In Local Section

Fine Rains Add Great Zest To Celebration; Largest Number Of Cows Yet To Be On Display

WITH the enervating spring rains throughout every one of the 54 counties that comprise the greater Texas Panhandle, giving jubilation to farmers, dairymen, stockmen, poultrymen, business men, and all, and a reasonable expectation for a bumper crop year, and with the weather clearing up in time for roads to be passable, all records are expected to be broken for attendance at the Second Annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show, at Plainview next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Dairy Show will be housed in its newly constructed $20,000 group of five buildings. These are composed of a dairy products building, the livestock pavilion and three stock barns, each capable of housing 100 head of cattle.

Much Stock Expected

There will be approximately 300, or more, head of the country's finest dairy cows on exhibit, most of them from the area comprising the Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy association, which is the 54 counties located in the block parallel with the top of the Panhandle and the east and west boundaries, stretching as far south as the counties of Nolan, on the east and Andrews, on the west.

Within this area there exist more than 100,000 dairy cows, one year old or over. The number is increasing at the rate of several thousand a year, in some counties having doubled since the last government farm census of 1925.

Plains Area a Leader

The South Plains, in which 28 of the 54 counties are located, leads the other 26 counties in total number of dairy cattle, total production of milk and total revenue from dairy products, according to the last U. S. census figures.

These figures reveal, for the entire Panhandle section, a total of 94,698 dairy cows, 31,761,790 gallons of milk produced in 1924, and $3,943,815 as the value of dairy products the same year.

When a comparison is made of the figures for 1920, an idea of the rapid pace of advancement in the dairy industry is seen. This pace has accellerated considerably with the four years' growth accumulation from 1920 to 1924. In 1920 there were 90,314 dairy cows in the section, with only 13,633,042 gallons of milk produced, all dairy products being then valued at $2,281,348.

Quality is Paramount

From these comparisons the big fact revealed is that the thousands of new settlers have not alone increased dairy herds, but they have paid closer attention to quantity and quality production.

It is not merely for the sake of competing with other dairymen for the many thousands of dollars offered at Plainview in prizes, that is responsible for exhibits of purebred dairy cattle, but dairymen take pride in fine stock. They exhibit and attend the show to spread the gospel of the whys and wherefores of dairying bringing increase to Plains-Panhandle citizens in dollars and cents.

Only one mistake has been made by the association this year, in planning this show. That is in providing only about half as much space for exhibitors to use in the dairy products building. More individuals and firms were turned down, because of no available space, than will display at the show.

Program is Arranged

From the program, given below, it is learned what features one will see when going to Plainview during the four gala days:

On Monday, the day before the show formally opens, preliminary tests in the production contest will be had.

Early Tuesday morning, April 2, the big show will open its doors to the public. All exhibits will be open for inspection. Official tests in the production contest are scheduled. There will be the 4-H club dairy cattle judging contest, and the Vocational Agricultural Students' Dairy Cattle judging contest.

Wednesday features Jersey day. There will be Jersey cattle judging at the livestock pavilion, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. Announcement will be made of the production contest winners. This is Lubbock county day, also. The relegation from here will be headed by the Lubbock high school band of 35 pieces. A large number of dairymen and business men will go in a motorcade, leaving Lubbock early in the morning and returning late at night.

Banquet On Thursday

Guernsey day is Thursday. Also this will be Holstein-Friesian day. Guernsey cattle judging, in the livestock pavilion, being at 9 a. m. The Holstein-Friesian judging will begin at 1 p. m. The Second Annual Cattle Exhibitors banquet, at 7 p. m., and the annual meeting of the Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show association is on the program.

Friday, closing day, is grade cow day. Judging of these will be had at the pavilion, beginning at 9 a. m. At 11 o'clock in the morning a parade is scheduled, and in the afternoon the annual sale obtains.

LEMON-RAISINS

Raisins, soaked overnight in lemon juice, make a novel addition to breakfast food. Serve the food thin and do not use milk over it.

Sessions of the Ohio senate from Columbus will be broadcast by station WLW, Cincinnati, as a series of practical demonstrations in state government for school children.

Boll Worm Meet
Confer On Costs Of Eradication

BIG SPRING, Mar. 30.—E. J. Scholl, inspector in the Pink Boll Worm division for the state department of agriculture is in Big Spring conferring with local ginners regarding sterilization costs in the pink boll worm eradication efforts. Just what methods will be followed in sterilization plants in the gins has not been worked out, some ginners are known to favor the operation of the sterilization systems themselves presenting their claims for such work to the state. Others favor charging the farmer and then allowing the farmer to collect from the state as is now planned for such service in 1928.

Price Fixing Of Cotton Would Be Made Obligatory

Present Method Of Selling On Call Is Criticized By Seed Crushers' Association, In Session

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, March 30.—Criticizing the present method of selling cotton on call, the Texas Cotton association, in session here, today adopted a resolution making it obligatory on members to fix the price on cotton before delivery.

The resolution was adopted as part of the report submitted by the committee on co-operation and coordination, headed by J. K. Dorrance of Houston.

The University of Texas Business Bureau would be assigned the task of assembling and preparing data and compiling costs in connection with marketing of cotton, under the resolution.

The association also recommended that a credit bureau be established. Duties of this body will be to circularize members, request information on bad accounts, and generally to furnish complete credit information to all members of the association.

Efforts of the Texas Cotton Seed Breeders association to raise the standards of cotton were endorsed after a letter from John G. Rogers, president of the breeders, was read.

Marked optimism was noted in the reports of both domestic and foreign exchanges. With the exception of England (Liverpool) all foreign countries where exchanges exist were represented on the floor.

Lynn Farm Work Has Fast Growth

TAHOKA, March 30.—That home demonstration and 4-H club work in gaining in popularity in Lynn county is evidenced by the fact that these two organizations have doubled their membership in the first three months of 1929. Not only has the membership been doubled, but three new women's clubs and five new girls' clubs have been organized. There are now 12 womens clubs with a total membership of 258, and 11 girls' clubs with 164 enrolled, a grand total of 422.

Miss Thelma Greenwade, the county home demonstration agent who is putting this work over in a big way, has been here only six months. She is a graduate of the College of Industrial Arts, and is an active worker in all movements of county wide interest to farmers and their families. As a result of her work and that of her predecessors in the demonstration field, Lynn county has become one of the outstanding counties in West Texas in the home improvement programs sponsored by the A. & M. College.

Woman's clubs are maintained at Midway, Wilson, O'Donnell, Lakeview, New Home, Draw-Redwine, New Moore-Slash-L. Edith, Grassland, New Lynn, Three Lakes, and T-Bar. Girls' clubs are at Joe Bailey, New Home, Lakeview, T-Bar, New Lynn, New Moore-Slash-L, Morgan, Grassland, Edith, Draw, and Dixie.

Evans, will be in charge of the car and exhibits. Exhibitors from Dawson county are Edd Price, J. W. Braswell, Jno. R. Burkhart, E. W. Hester, and J. M. Patterson. There are 30 registered bulls in rotating circles in the county.

WEALTH IS UNDERGROUND

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The department of the interior estimates that 200,000,000 tons of coal still are underground in the United States.

Ranches, Farms Good In Scurry

SNYDER, March 30.—The Scurry county precipitation for the past four days has brought the total for the month thus far to 2.78. Ranches and farms were never looking in better shape and a fine diversification program is in progress at this time.

County Agent W. O. Logan has in hand a project looking to the establishment of a combined pasteurized milk, butter, ice cream and possibly a cheese factory with the assurance already given of a very substantial local investment to begin with.

A complete agricultural survey is to be made of the county and exact information secured for later use.

Going To Fly
Bull To Make Air Trip To Texas

OCONOMOWOC, Wis. March 30. (AP)—While there may be some doubt as to whether the cow in the nursery rhyme ever did jump over the moon, one of her sons is going to fly.

A pure bred yearling Holstein bull, Carnation Badger Acro Lone Star, will leave Pabst airport here by airplane April 2 for a trip to Schulenburg, Texas where he will be presented to a group of Texas dairy farmers.

The bull is the property of the Carnation Milk Products company, and the occasion for the gift is the breaking of ground for the company's first milk condensery in Texas. The animal is to be sent by airplane that it may arrive in time for the ceremony, scheduled for April 3.

Nearly Four Thousand Have Written For More Information On This Great Plains Country, Answering Ad Drive

Many Of Those Responding In Publicity Campaign Plan To Visit South Plains Country Soon

Burmash Sta., C. P. R.,
Ontario, Canada.

"The Spokesman,"
South Plains, Inc.,
Lubbock, Texas.

Dear Sir:

We received your little booklet nicely portraying your South Plains country in word and picture for which please accept our thanks. It might be quite in order to outline to you just about what we think we would like to have.

It is a small dairy farm, say about six cows, some hogs and real poultry farm. We would like to have all the small fruits that do well on the South Plains and to build a real home.

We should be pleased to have you tell the approximate price of dairy cows and let us know about the size of farms on the South Plains. We do not want a large farm and would like to pay cash and start right.

I am going to take a run down to see you and your South Plains country this spring, so will appreciate an early reply.

Yours very truly,
(Signed)

3,686 Replies Received.

The above is an excerpt from one of the 3,686 replies received by "The Spokesman" of South Plains, Inc., since the advertising campaign sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development was inaugurated last December 15.

The Spokesman seems to be about the most popular fellow in Lubbock. His mail box is practically filled with letters every day and he is forced to use from three to four stenographers in answering his correspondence, which comes from all over the North American continent. From the hills of New York to the sunny beaches of California and from the swamps of Florida to the breeze-swept shores of Washington, people are writing to learn of the South Plains country of Texas and the advantages and opportunities offered here.

Many of the requests for information have been made by merely clipping the coupons that are found at the bottom of all the advertisements in the farm journals while quite a number of them have been made by letters, or letters have followed seeking further information after inquirers have read the booklet, we are told by the Spokesman and his corps of workers.

Many Planning Visits.

Hundreds of the inquirers about the section seem vastly interested and have signified their intentions of visiting here during 1929. Lubbock is due for many visitors during this spring and summer as one direct result of the campaign.

From Albany, N. Y., writes a woman asking for information regarding the routes to be taken by automobile to the South Plains after she had read the booklet, while a man writes from Rushville, Ind., asking for similar information, stating that he and a party of friends were to visit the area this summer.

"Received your booklet today and am pleased with the description of land and climate," writes a woman from a certain Texas county. "Will be frank to say that my husband is not inclined to even think of moving but have several thousand dollars of my own and have two sons who are interested in the Plains country and if I could get 160 acres of land they would move to it. I would like to know prices on land out from Lubbock suitable for farming. Would want it near a highway—."

Two brothers wrote from Ashville, N. C., requesting information on the section. The Spokesman informs us that the two boys have visited the section since receiving the literature. They were in Lubbock only two weeks ago.

One Good Way.

"We received your pamphlet and have read it with much interest. We would like very much to subscribe to the Lubbock daily paper, as we can get a better understanding of the surrounding country," writes a couple from Tuscon, Ariz. "We are both westerners and love Texas and all that goes with it and we sincerely hope it won't be long until we are one of you."

Madison, Calif., has at least one citizen who is enlightened on West Texas and the South Plains country. He writes: "Your book at hand and have read the same. We people here in California and in Canada, my old home, have to think of cockleburrs, rattlesnakes and tornadoes in the summer and blizzards in the winter when we hear the name West Texas, but you tell me a different story."

Dislike Marsh Country.

From Morocco, Ind., comes a letter certain of finding a better place, certain of finding a better country. "Please send me your book, 'Farm Life On The South Plains of Texas.' We wonder about farm help and drinking water, market conditions and transportation facilities. This country is swamps, sand and willows."

There's more than could be mentioned, many of them of much interest. The Spokesman reads them all and fires a booklet back to them as soon as possible and any other information that they desire.

Proof of the scope of the campaign may be substantiated by glancing through the file of letters in the Spokesman's office. Only while this writer was in his office, we noticed from as far away as Waynesboro, Pa.; Attica, Ind.; Downvill, La.; Dyersburg, Tenn.; Miller, S. D.; Wendow, Minn.; Ottawa, Ill.; Aline, MountainPark and Mountain View, Okla.; Baldwin and Corinth, Miss.; Paridise, Ky.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Headland, Ala.; Hot Springs, Ar.; Mitchell Ontario, Canada; Phoenix, Ariz.; Long Beach and Visalia, Calif.; Anthony, N. D.; Knox City, Mo.; Black River Falls, Wis.; Persia, Ia.; Central City, Neb.; Good Thunder, Minn., and hundreds from over Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and neighboring states.

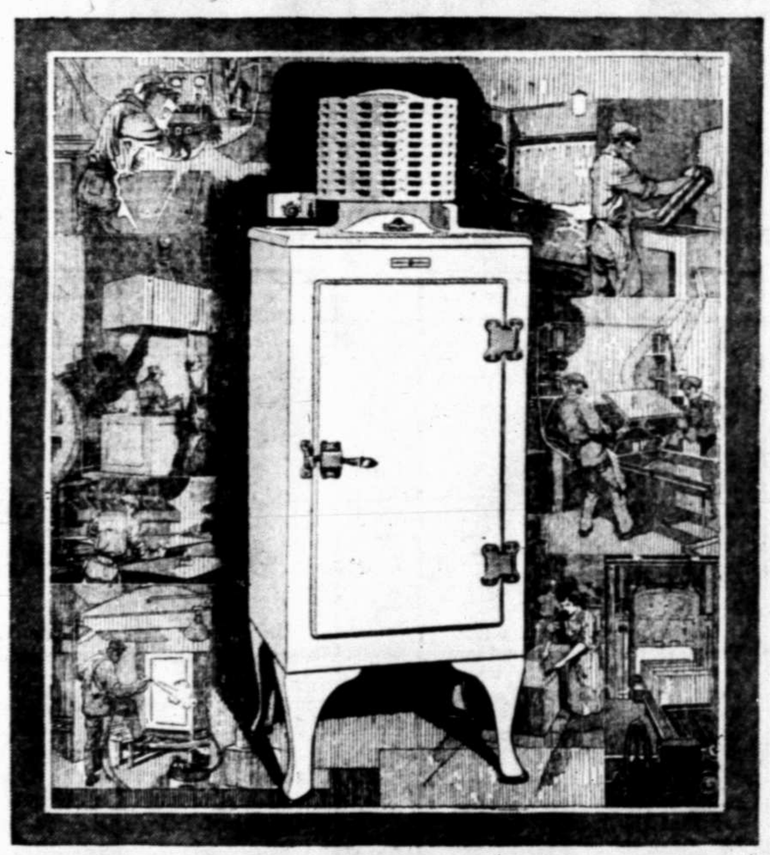

Get out your map of the nation and look up these places and then you can begin to estimate the amount of interest being manifested in these South Plains of Texas.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

ANOTHER chapter has been added to the achievements of the engineers and scientists of the General Electric Research Laboratories. The same group of men who perfected the hermetically sealed mechanism of the General Electric Refrigerator, have now designed and built the first all-steel refrigerator cabinet.

This achievement marks the greatest improvement made during the past 30 years, in the design and construction of refrigerator cabinets. It means that new and far greater value has been built into the already unrivaled General Electric Refrigerator.

After the engineers of General Electric had perfected this all-steel refrigerator, they had to build the giant presses which were to cut the steel and bend it into shape; and electric welders to fuse together the folded forms at a temperature of 4500 degrees.

Millions spent for new machinery

To manufacture this new all-steel refrigerator General Electric has invested several millions of dollars in new machinery. But it has achieved its purpose. Its aim was to build the best refrigerator ever produced and offer it to the small families of America at a price within their reach.

$215 At the Factory

No refrigerator has been built in such quantities or by such efficient and economical methods. Mass production has cut costs and made possible the very low price—$215 at the factory.

General Electric has now made scientific refrigeration, which is vital to the health of the nation, possible for every home. Only a small down payment is required. The balance may be paid in easy installments—just a few dollars a month.

The only way really to appreciate the outstanding quality, the beauty, the great value of this new General Electric all-steel refrigerator is to see it. Come in today. It is now on display.

Listen in on the General Electric Hour, sponsored by the General Electric Refrigerator. This program is broadcast from 9 to 10 P. M. Eastern Standard Time over N. B. C. network of forty-two stations.

Local Schools Prepare For Annual Spring Festivals

Mock Wedding To Be Among Various Programs Offered

School Board Officers And Other Business Men To Appear; Operettas Also Being Planned

LIKE a burst of springtime in all of its glory, will come the budding artists' in the many gay and colorful operettas, pageants, festivals and carnivals, to be put on this spring by members of the music and public speaking departments of the Lubbock schools, and the Texas Technological college.

According to Miss Stella Thurman, principal of the K. Carter school, on April 19, in the high school auditorium, will be presented the operetta, "The Playroom at Night." About 150 children will appear in the main operetta with approximately 60 others singing in the opening chorus. The performance will be colorful and gay as are the many toys that make up the playroom of the pampered child, and the students who make up the cast will be costumed as so many noise-making, fun-provoking or musical toys as the case may be.

The setting is a playroom strewn carelessly with toys of every sort and opens with a night lady followed by her sleepy children. The night fairies trip in after the children are off to bed, wave their wands over the toys and they suddenly come to life and walk and talk to each other. At the hour of twelve, the fairies return and with another wave of the wands the toys suddenly become inanimate objects again.

Womanless Wedding Planned

Mrs. E. B. Wheelock announced that the K. Carter P. T. A. will put on a womanless wedding following Barrier Brothers' style show to be held the evening of April 5, in the high school auditorium. The money thus made from the "mock wedding" will be used to buy trees and shrubs to place on the school campus. The principals figuring in the wedding will be Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, bride; France Baker, groom, and Neil H. Wright, clergyman. In the bridal party will be Lawrence Grlin, John Jarrott, Dick Smith, Seth Cummings, Hubert L. Allen, Homer Hunt, R. L. McKnight, W. W. Rix, A. C. Jackson, E. L. Robertson, W. B. Atkins, Ray Mowrey, E. B. Wheelock and others yet to be selected.

Miss Nell Parmley, principal of the George M. Hunt school explained that the operetta "A Rose Dream" which the school put on on March 1, was all that they would have this term, and while it was given somewhat earlier than the usual run of spring programs, it was well attended and $90 was cleared for the school. There were 100 students in flower costumes that took part in the cast.

Other Plans Laid

Miss Margaret Stone, music director at Dupre school, said, "Mrs. L. J. Von Tungeln and I only decided on our spring operetta today, and really have not completed our plans as yet. 'The Lost Queen of Flowers' is the title and the operetta will feature some 175 students who will be costumed as so many brilliant spring blossoms. The operetta will be given in the high school auditorium on the evening of May 3."

Miss Lula Jones, principal of the Sanders school, said, "Because outdoor affairs at this season of the year prove so unsatisfactory, and because it puts us at such a disadvantage to go to the high school for our rehearsals, we have divided to not work up a spring entertainment of any sort, since we have no auditorium of our own in which to give it."

No Plans At Central

Mrs. Willie C. Smith, music director of Central Ward school said, her school has no plans for a spring festival or other pageant or operetta, for the weather conditions here in the early spring, are so uncertain for outdoor entertainments. R. W. Mathews, principal of the high school said that no special entertainment will be given by the school this spring as the faculty wishes to center their time on other phases of school work.

Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the department of dramatic art at Texas Technological college, has already begun laying her plans for Tech's annual pageant. The date has been set as May 17 and will be held at the Tech athletic field. It will be a reproduction of the Elizabethan era and some 200 Lubbock people, attired in costume, will be introduced as patrons of the college.

No plans have been announced by the junior high school.

Rain Terrifies
Drought Children All Perplexed

SYDNEY, Australia, March 30 (AP)—The break of the prolonged drought in western Queensland, the northern state of Australia, has given children of six years of age experience of rain for the first time in their lives. It is related that as the drops clattered on the iron roofs of the homesteads, they were terrified.

But to their parents the tatoo was the sweetest music in the world. They stood in the open, laughing and cheering and were drenched to the skin, just to feel once again the almost forgotten touch of water from the sky.

Papers Prepared By Seniors Bear Upon Vocations

The teachers of Lubbock schools are all laying special emphasis upon some of the aims of modern education as outlined by the National Education Society. For the past several weeks the seniors in Miss Lomax's English classes have been studying one of these especially; namely, vocational effectiveness.

A questionnaire was given each student by which he might analyze and pudge the profession or vocation in which he was most interested. Some students also called upon local citizens, whom they considered successful men and women, for advice.

At the close of this study each senior wrote a paper on the subject, "My Chosen Vocation" and the following vocations have been listed:

Nine musicians; six lawyers; five nurses; two interior decorators; two home demonstration agents; one telegrapher; three Spanish secretaries; two aeronautical engineers; one tea room operator; two aviators; one geologist; one airway operator; six civil engineers; nineteen school teachers; one mathematician; one mechanical engineer; two business accountants; one traveling salesman; two stenographers; six physicians; one professional baseball player three commercial artists; one saleswomen; three pharmacists, one contractor; one electrical engineer; one field secretary for Christian Endeavor work; one artist; one banker, one minister; one literary writer; one detective; one dietian; one architectural engineer; three stock farmers; one dramatic artist; three ranchmen; one radio operator; one religious worker; one bookkeeper, and last but not least, one good American housewife.

One-Act Play Is Heard In Chapel

A one act play, "The Killer," directed by Mrs. Wanda Banker, was given in chapel March 28. The characters were:

The Killer—Regan Little.
The Sheriff—Fred De La Shaw.
The Girl—Mildred Price.
The Other Man—Davis Vaughn.

"The Killer," was given in the Tech chemistry building yesterday to compete with other one act plays for first place in the play tournament.

Cast for the junior play, "When a Feller Needs a Friend," was selected Wednesday by Miss Ethel Lawson and Harold Gordon. From the junior class the following students were chosen to represent the characters in the play: Martha Alice Penney, Ada Ruth May, Mildred Price, Martha Spencer, Elaine Henry, Yancey Price, Charles O'Neall, Davis Vaughn, Roddy O'Neall, W. D. Lawson.

Debaters Wallop Opposing Talkers

March 27, the Lubbock High debating teams sponsored by Mrs. Virgil Wolfe, and Dan Powers, defeated the Amarillo debating teams at Amarillo by a unanimous decision. The subject for debate was, "Resolved, That the English Cabinet Method of Legislation Is More Efficient in England than the Committee System is in the United States." The students in the teams are Martha Brown, Mary Beth Sheely Richard Rockey and I. J. Thornton.

March 28, the Lubbock High teams met Plainview teams here for a practice debate and won an easy victory over their Plainview opponents.

Meetings Held By Two Top Classes During Past Week

The junior class held a meeting in the east study hall on Tuesday, March 26. Ernest Dowell presided.

The president announced that the Junior Queen for the junior picnic will be elected soon. He also announced that the junior pins were expected to be in at the end of the week. The junior caps are on sale now.

Henry Frnka suggested that the juniors should agree to buy so many tickets for the senior play if the seniors would agree to buy a like number for the junior play. The seniors agreed to this plan.

Tryouts for the junior play, "When a Fellow Needs a Friend," were held that afternoon.

The Senior Class met March 25 in the west study hall. President George Pierce called the meeting to order. A committee was appointed to investigate Silver Falls for the Senior picnic, to be held May 9. The president appointed another committee to plan the program to be given in chapel, May 8, by the seniors.

Bits Of The Past

(By the Editor)

Rehearsals for the Senior play of '29, "Come Out of the Kitchen," brought some very interesting archaic data to light. Being both curious and dramatically inclined, I spent one whole afternoon after play practice examining the mural decorations behind the scenes in the Lubbock High School auditorium, and succeeded in deciphering quantities of information. The names of many illustrious actors of by-gone days are scrawled across the beck of the drop-curtain and emblazoned with many flourishes on the wings. Chapel programs, class plays, operettas, band concerts, and Little Theatre productions vie with each other in obtaining the most publicity.

As I browsed around backstage and examined these signatures and legends, a wealth of incident was suggested to my imagination. Probably the most conspicuous among them was the name of Hubert Hopper, who appeared behind the footlights many times in the four years of his high school career. Equally prominent is that of Leroy Vaughan, senior of '28, whose signature appears at every turn. His modesty suggests forgery.

"All a Mistake," the masterpiece of the class of '23, is widely heralded across the west wall, possibly one of the first plays ever given in the present high school building. Later casts have practically obliterated the names of these pioneer players, but the cast of '25 who appeared in "That Girl Patsy" remains intact with such distinguished names in it as Ben Hutchinson, Jim Watson, Vaughan Corley, Elmer Moore, Otis Koen and Elizabeth Forsom.

Class Of '27 Advertises

The juniors of '26 believed in advertising. Their operetta, "Windmills Of Holland" starring Edna Mae Slover and Manell Hall, occupies five feet of space on the curtain. "Ruby Atwood, director," is painted in brilliant hues across this billboard.

Below it, I found "And the Lamp Went Out—'27" with the names of Sarah Michie, La Trille Bishop, Voncile Gilderson, J. D. Jenkins, and Eugene Adair, beside it, and to the right, the historical inscription "First Annual Concert of the band March 4, 1924."

Several inches away Anna Chipley and Don Clinton are printed alone and unexplained, followed by this modest announcement: "This 24th day of April, 1924, I hereby pronounce you, Roy Hunt, husband, and Ann Chipley wife."

Other Names Listed

"The Colonel's Maid," and "Be an Optimist" both presented by the Seniors of '26, bring various remeniscences of Virgina Mullican, S. C. Arnett, Edith Carter and Ferrel Roark; and the other of Irene Connor, Kate Pressley, Grace Jennings, Buddy Brothers, Margaret Trigg, and many others.

In gigantic penmanship near the dressing-room door appears the signature of James Kennedy, most notorious class president of high school history, and near it the cast of "Fixing It For Father," produced by the Seniors of '27: Bob Kennedy, Maurice Powell, Mildred Buckingham, Lawrence Green, Edith Hicks, and Halcyon Campbell.

And Here's a Heart

"Wives to Burn," Junior offering of the same year, introduces us to Virginia Murray, Marjorie Ainsworth, Roscoe Bayless, Robert Cooper, and their contemporaries to which is added the initials M. L. W. and D. E. C. enclosed in a heart.

Not to be outdone, the Juniors of '28 gaily inquired "Whose Little Bride Are You?" on every conceivable spot. Brooks Penney, Opal Hawes, Frances Gunn, W. R. Fickas, La Trille Bishop, Fred DeLeshaw, Hiley Boyd and Hortense Halsell all did their parts nobly, judging by their printing.

"The Haunted House" and "Felicidad" suggest a breath of melancholy, and below their casts is discovered the modest appellation: E. W. Fite, janitor '26 and '27.

Little Theatre Remembered

"Frances Ford" appears blandly on the curtain, with the vague legend "To Sneeze or Not to Sneeze" below it, and not far away "John R. Johnson and Alene Dean" grace the center of a large circle. "Horace Grady Moore" is written with awe-inspiring flourishes just above, possibly a remnant of his Little Theater experiences.

More outstanding than all of these is the picturesque cast of '28, with their violent assertions that "Mary Made Some Marmalade."

The cast included: Leroy Vaughan Margarit Erwin, Roscoe Bayless, La Velle Dollahite, Robert Cooper, Haskell Beard, Edna Peek, Jim Whiteside, Dorothy Rushing, Beulah Wright, Candler Glazier, Alva Douglas.

And now enshrined in the place of honor is "Come Out of the Kitchen." I read the list over thoughtfully, and concluded my exploits by adding my own name to the rest.

There are more students for the ministry in Chicago than in any other city in the world.

Watson Declares New Farm Relief Bill's Boundaries

Indiana Republican Leader Says Equalization Fee Is Not To Be Included; Farm Board Planned

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30. — An emphatic declaration as to the scope of the new farm relief bill, coupled with announcement that relief legislation will receive first call at the special session of congress, was made today by Senator Watson, Indiana, new republican leader.

This announcement, made while both the senate and house agricultural committees again were in session, received attention of those interested in farm legislation. Interest was heightened as a number of this group all along have viewed the hearing largely as a matter of form and have not expected them to be productive of any new ideas.

Watson declared that the new bill would not have an equalization fee and that it would be modeled closely along the lines laid down by the republican national convention and by President Hoover in his speeches during the campaign. At that time Mr. Hoover recommended a federal farm board with authority to help co-operative marketing associations and to build up stabilization agencies with initial capital from the government. He also frowned on any proposal looking to a subsidy or fee or tax on the farmer.

BIRTHDADY PARTY

Little Miss Betty Ann Hilliard celebrated her 9th birthday by having her friends to a party Tuesday afternoon. The children had an enjoyable time hunting bright colored easter eggs and telling ghost stories. The birthday cake with "Betty Ann" written on top in pink and blue candles was very pretty.

ROCK ISLAND TWO-ROW LISTER
NO. 28-M

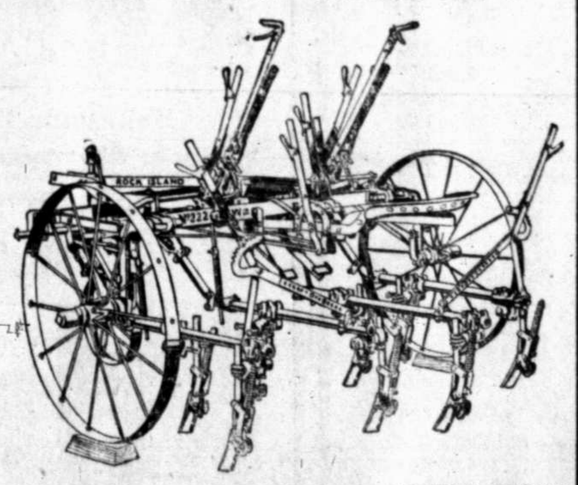

The steadiest running Lister of them all. You can't get it off the seed bed. It is a strong Lister—and durable too. Adjustable to five widths of rows.

The farmers like the Tip-Over Hoppers. They like the even tension of the Drive Chains, too.

THE NEW ROCK ISLAND TWO-ROW CULTIVATOR NO. 222-W

Is another favorite among Lubbock county farmers.

It is easy to cultivate uneven rows with this cultivator, on account of the two gang-spacing levers, each operated independently of each other.

Mrs. Tyre Is Astonished At The Results

"My Friends Recommended Orgatone To Me And I Feel Like A Different Person Since Taking Two Bottles," Says Lubbock Woman

"When I bought my first bottle of Orgatone, I felt like it was that much money thrown away, so my wonderful recovery has astonshed me," said Mrs. Alice Tyre, of 1610 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas, a few days ago.

"For six years," she continued, "I have been physically broken down and have suffered tortures with indigestion and nervousness. Nothing I would eat agreed with me, and it soured on my stomach, and formed gas and affected my heart so sometimes I felt like every breath would be the last, and my nerves were simply shattered to pieces. I also suffered terribly from constipation, and headaches and never knew what it was to sleep more than two hours any night. The doctors told me I had an acute case of indigestion, and at times my stomach would ache and pain until I could hardly stand it.

"I spent many a dollar seeking relief, but never found the right medicine, until my friends recommended Orgatone to me, and now since taking two bottles I feel like a different person. I now eat, anything and everything I want, without it bothering me in the least. My indigestion is a thing of the past, and gas does not form or bother me, and I haven't had a pain in my stomach since taking Orgatone. My constipation is all gone, and in fact, I am just in a better condition all around, and all my troubles are gone. Orgatone has certainly saved me a lot of money for I would have spent a many a dollar if I hadn't found it. Orgatone has proven a great benefit to me, and I am glad to give this statement."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowens Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of $1.25 for one bottle or $6.25 for six bottles.—Adv.

HAD YOU TAKEN NOTICE

Of the very important fact that things are looking up in Lubbock real estate? Work is proceeding rapidly on the Broadway underpass this to be immediately followed by the Avenue H underpass, right away now work will begin on the two big hotel propositions, we are getting ready to vote the airport bonds and place our city among the leaders in that regard, this to be followed by the vote to build the new high school building, and that to be followed by the highway building proposition. Lubbock has continued to go forward, and the reason is that her people are progressive and stay in the lead on needed developments, and that is why she is going to make a real city. Do not wait too long now to make that real estate investment you have intended making.

The very best medium priced piece of realty in Lubbock today is the property at 804 Avenue Q, and the buyer is sure of a splendid profit on it. It is worth every dollar of $4,250.

$3,150.00

will buy it yet. The lot is unusually large, 55 by 148, facing east on pavement, pavement paid, and $1,000 will handle it. It is absolutely the very best chance in Lubbock today to pick up about $2,000 profit in a short time. See us.

Texas Barb Comes Out Minus Quiz

AUSTIN, March 30. (AP)—The Texas Barb, University of Texas student publication, appeared today without the Missouri University sex questionnaire on which Texas University authorities had planted a firm foot of disapproval.

"The questionnaire is dead," the Barb said in its leading story. "Dean V. I. Moore killed it with his veto and President H. Y. Benedict laid it beneath the sod with his confirmation of action of the Dean."

The questionnaire, which resulted in the ouster of two Missouri professors, was to have been circulated among students here and answers sent to the former university faculty men.

Try-Outs Will Be Held Monday For Theatre Offering

"Hay Fever", Comedy To Be Next Play Produced By Little Theatre Here; Try-Out Tomorrow

Try-outs for the next Little Theatre play, "Hay Fever," by Noel Coward are to be held in room 202 of the Administration building at Tech college Monday night at 7:15 o'clock, according to Miss Ruth Pirtle, director.

Anyone who wishes to may try out for a part in the production which is a hilarious comedy of ultra-modern life.

The characters, scenes and situations are thoroughly up-to-date in this delightful English play. The plot revolves around a week-end party given at the country home of the Blisses, and characters include Sorel and Simon, a growing daughter and son; Clara, a servant; Judith Bliss, who is nearing middle age quite reluctantly and often reminding herself of triumphs made earlier when she was on the stage; Davis Bliss, a serious minded man who makes a living by writing "best sellers"; Sandy Tyrell, Myra Arundel; Richard Greatham, and Jackie Coryton, four guests for the week-end. The action takes place from Saturday afternoon until Sunday morning.

Numerous complications arise over hilarious situations, and the humor continues and grows up to the last minute. The fun is, however, of a clean sort and results from a lively family mix-up.

The play is in three acts and is a Samuel French production.

Merger Announced By Finance Firms

Consolidation of the Mortgage-Bond company of New York and the Maryland Mortgage and National Title company of Baltimore through the formation of a parent company to be known as the Mortgage-Bond and Title corporation was announced to day in a joint statement by George A. Hurd, president of the Mortgage-Bond company and Robert G. Merrick, president of the Maryland company. Further development of the mortgage and title business on a national scale is planned by the new company, which will operate in all sections of the United States.

With a capital and surplus between $7,000,000 ad $8,000,000 and total resources of approximately $45,000,000, the Mortgage-Bond and Title corporation will be one of the largest institutions of its type in the country. Directors of the two companies have unanimously approved the consolidation proposal, subject to ratification by stockholders who will be asked to exchange their present holding for stock of the new company.

The Maryland Mortgage and National Title company has a substantial amount in loans in northwestern Texas, handled through the Investment Securities company of Fort Worth, Texas, with Green Brothers as local agents at Lubbock.

World War Salvation Army Veterans Transferred to Lubbock Permanently

ENSIGNS "MA" AND "PA" BURDICK

With the blood-curdling horrors of the world war branded indelibly in their memories, "Ma" and "Pa" Burdick, grey-haired and work-worn as a result of more than a quarter of a century in the service of the Salvation Army, continue to carry on the mission work of their organization, happy that they can still be of service to their fellow man.

If the "doughboys" were the judges, "Ma" and "Pa" Burdick would be given a secure nitch in the Hall of Fame. It was "Ma" Burdick who sent the first shipment of doughnuts and coffee to the front line trenches—a service which "sold" her to the soldier boys.

Are Transferred Here

These veteran fellowship workers have been transferred to Lubbock permanently, following an intensive evangelistic tour throughout the state. Both are rated as ensigns, a high rank in the corps of the organization. In this city they replace Captain and Mrs. F. C. Scott who were transferred to Waco.

When the United States first entered the World War, "Ma" and "Pa" Burdick left their Salvation Army posts in America and enrolled to relieve the suffering at the front both with "worldly and spiritual food."

Won French Medal

Mrs. Burdick was presented with the French medal of honor and bravery, the Croix de Guerre, for her motherly care of the "doughboys" on the battlefields. At first she had to cook doughnuts on a little oil stove, eight at a time, but later she was supplied with a larger range, with which she could better supply the needs of the troops that had been cut off from supplies. Once when enemy shells had wrecked the provision wagons of a division, the little group of Slavation Army workers eased the pangs of hunger among the soldiers with coffee and crisp cruellers.

Holding gospel meetings in shell wrecked churches, wine cellers, and even on shrapnel marred battlefields of cooking doughnuts in half destroyed buildings and shell punctured wine cellers; of serving coffee and cruellers to suffering men as shells burst overhead and posionous gasses enveloped the atmosphere, are among the many graphic experiences of the war, remembered by the Burdicks.

"Don't Drop The Pies"

Mrs. Burdick tells this one; "We had just finished making pies when an observer ran through the village telling us to make for the dugouts as enemy planes were beginning to drop shells. One of the Salvation Army girls gathered up an arm full of pies and new shoes that we had received that day. As she was attempting to cross a stream a shell burst in front of her almost throwing her from the bridge. A near-by soldier yelled: 'Never mind about the shoes, but for goodness sakes don't drop those pies.'"

Praises To Risen Christ Offered Today By Churches

Easter Gladness Will Be Joined In By Christians Of Lubbock; Special Music Arranged By Choir Directors

Sunrise Prayers Are To Be Heard At Texas Tech And Sunday Schools Are Also Adding Features

TODAY IS Easter Sunday, an anniversary of the resurrection of Christ and one of the most beloved days in the chasis of Christians throughout the world.

Today is probably the one Sunday when all the world goes to church more than on any other day and Lubbock pastors have arranged for some of the most elaborate services of the year to join with the rest of Christendom in sounding the mighty hallelujah chorus.

Since Easter has a symbolism of new life and beginnings, it has been designated as a day for the baptism of infants in several churches here and the accession of new members is to be a feature of the services.

Special Programs Planned.

Special musical programs have been arranged, sermon texts have been drawn from accounts of the resurrection, cantatas and pageants will constitute the specialties in worship today.

Beginning with sunrise prayer services and continuing through the day, Easter services will be held in Lubbock.

One of the most beautiful services today will be at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church of which the Rev. Luther G. H. Williams is rector.

Following Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, there will be Sunday school at 10 o'clock with an Easter festival, carols, a banner procession, floral offering and the presentation of lenten offerings.

A short sermon will be preached in connection with the service at 11 o'clock in the morning and there is to be special Easter music. Following Holy baptism at 2 o'clock an Easter-egg hunt will be given for children with the group meeting at the church at 3:30 o'clock.

The story of the resurrection will be told in an Easter Sunday school pageant at 7:30 o'clock in the evening at the church.

Baptize At Sunrise.

Women in the First Christian church are sponsoring a sunrise prayer meeting at the church in addition to other services during the day.

A goal of 500 in attendance has been set for the Sunday school of this church and there is to be a special program at this hour.

A musical Easter program has been arranged for the evening service by Mrs. Joe Coursey and members of the choir. Special vocal and violin numbers are on the program.

Infants will be baptised at the beginning of the 11 o'clock service in the First Methodist church and a class from the Sunday school will be received into the church. An Easter sermon will be preached by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Munger, in the morning and special music will be sung.

Cantata Will Feature.

A cantata, "Calvary," will be presented in the evening by the choir under the direction of C. J. Atchison with Mrs. Mamie I. Neal accompanying at the organ.

In connection with the regular services in the First Baptist church, the choir is to sing an anthem, "As It Began to Dawn," in the morning under the direction of J. D. Carroll. Easter sermons will be preached by the pastor, Dr. W. R. White.

Intermediate and Senior Intermediate Christian Endeavor members of the First Presbyterian church are to present a pageant "When Youth Crusades with Christ." Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church and Easter worship services in the morning will conclude a revival which has been in progress at the church of evening this week.

Special Service Planned.

Mrs. J. H. Howze has a special worship service for the Sunday school hour.

Miss Kate Pressley is directing the pageant and is assisted by sponsors of the Endeavors presenting the program. Myrtle Marian Shaw is soloist and Mrs. Joe Wilson accompanies at the piano.

Among those who will appear in the pageant are Hubert Hopper, E. B. Fincher, Mary Leidigh, Ruth Reed, Mary Lou Hopper, Jessie Lee Hensley, Clarence Woods, W. B. Jackson, C. J. Henson, Mary Wilson, Frances McKee, Ruth Wagner, Ruth Lewis, Julia Blackwell, Buster Moxley, Harry Blocker Jr., Audrey Overstreet, R. C. Douglas, Jamie McNeil and Frank Eaton.

Tech Has Plans.

An annual Easter sunrise program will be held from 7 until 7:40 o'clock in the archway of the Technological college administration building under the joint auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of the institution.

A program has been announced for this, beginning with a prelude of Easter carols from wind instruments in the tower. Mrs. Kenneth Knickerbocker is to play "Adoration" from Borowski as a violin selection preceding the reading of a scripture by Miss Margaret Cooper and the hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today" will be sung.

Following a prayer, the Girls' Glee club is to sing an anthem, "The Risen Lord," and the choir is to respond to a prayer by Hal Lary. A hymn, "Lift Up Your Voices," will precede a short address by Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the college, and the meeting will close with the song, "O, College Mother, Beautiful."

Soloists in the cantata to be presented by the First Methodist choir include Edgar Inmon, Sam Leifeste, Mrs. E. B. Wheelock, C. J. Atchison, Mrs. T. J. Beck, Mrs. J. T. Shaver, Miss Zella Reigel, Mrs. A. B. Short and Edgar Shelton.

This program is in seven parts, telling the story of Christ's crucifixion and resurrection.

BROWNSVILLE, March 30 (AP).—The Mexican state of Tamaulipas is one place where bootleggers are scarce.

Cleveland Airport, Given Highest Rating Securable In Nation, Is Model For Other Ports Over Country

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of four articles on the modern airport, and deals with actual construction of the port. Succeeding articles will treat of airport lighting, the weather reporting system and the part radio plays.

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service

CLEVELAND, March 30.—Cities desiring to participate in the progress of aviation by construction of their own airports may look to Cleveland for their inspiration.

For here is the first municipal airport in the world, and is rated according to department of commerce airport regulations as an "A1A" port, the highest type of air field. It is therefore a model for other cities to emulate.

Good Landing Soil

The field comprising the Cleveland airport covers 1,000 acres, of which an area 4,200 feet by 3,600 feet is now in use. It is practically level and free of all obstructions—an ideal landing area. Its sandy clay soil Major John Berry, manager of the airport, considers the best for airport purposes.

Department of commerce regulations require a minimum landing length of 2,500 feet in all directions for an airport rated "A1A," but Major Berry adds 500 feet to this minimum for the best type of airport.

"The entire field must be clear—no runways, no center lights, nothing that obstructs the free landing and departure of the planes," he says. "Runways have been found to be impracticable. With several airplanes arriving at the same time, and all trying to land along the one runway that will keep them facing the wind, you can see how congested the air would become. The pilots would have to wait for each other to land. That may be all right now, when there are not

The most desirable type of airport, according to Department of Commerce regulations, is pictured above. Cleveland's municipal airport conforms in almost every respect with the general plans.

Many Enterprises And Heavy Volume Of Building Makes Present Year In Tahoka One Of Best In All History

Present Year Looks Like A Winner For Lynn County Capital; 1928 Is Already Left In Shade

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

TAHOKA, March 30.—This year promises to witness the greatest amount of building and development ever to take place in the city of Tahoka; if the amount of building during the first three months may be taken as an indication. Already, practically half as much building has been done this year in the first three months as was done in the entire twelve months of 1928. Construction figures for January, February and March have reached a total of $93,950, and there are several residences under construction for which permits have not been taken out.

Leading the list of building projects now under way in Tahoka, is the $47,000 sewer system being installed by a Dallas firm of engineers. The disposal plant two miles south of town was completed several weeks ago, and workmen hope to complete the laying of the mains in town at an early date.

New Firms Secured

The entrance of a number of new business firms to Tahoka is necessitating the erection of several new brick buildings, and indications are that at least four or five additional buildings will be started in the next few weeks, though official announcement of their construction has not yet been given.

T. J. Bovell has just completed two new bricks on Sweet street, one of which will be occupied by the Bovell Bakery, a new enterprise and the other by a new store, also, the Park's Feed and Produce company, under the management of Sam Park. J. W. Nelson is opening a filling station on Main street.

Work starts in a few days on the new building on Main street for the West Texas Gas company. This building will be 30x60 feet in size and will contain an office, a display room, storage rooms, and living quarters for the local manager, M. O. Bridges.

New Theatre Planned

W. L. Knight is also starting work this week on a new brick, 29x106 foot in size and located at the corner of Main and Lockwood streets. This building will house a filling station and the Tahoka Bakery. Announcement has been made that a new theatre building is to be erected here at an early date and will be furnished with equipment for talk-

BY ALLENE SUMNER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, March 30—Uncle Sam has gone into the fashion business, as just one more string to his bow.

Uncle Sam's debut as assistant to the old Dame who ultimates bows on the right and buckles on the left took place a few nights ago when the flagship of the U. S. line, no less than the doughty good ship "The Leviathan," put on the first style show ever held aboard ship, large or small. This was a junior and misses' fashion show.

High moguls of the style show held their breath during the stormy days when all ships were overdue and it looked as if the "Leviathan" would get into port too late to be scrubbed and garnished for the big event.

But the Show Was Held

But though the flagship did come in a little late the sailors were at their posts at the appointed hour to take the exotic evening wraps of the big cloak and suit buyers and fashion scribes who came with sharpened pencils to herald unto the world the first ship style show.

Boats are popularly supposed to be a dead loss when in port. Time was when the sailors scampered off on shore leave, while a few painters and riveters and barnacle scrapers got the boat in shape for the next trip.

But "them days" seem well on the way to being gone forever. A ship in port of any swank whatsoever is just about as busy in port these days as when wallowing over the high seas.

Something New Under Social Sun

Ship parties are as il faut as slumming parties once upon a time when a speakeasy in the Bowery had any esoteric novelty about it. The blase deb hunting for a thrill has papa pay the check for a party on the Olympic or Majestic or Berengaria or Isle de France or What Have You, and the guests report "a good time had by all," what with rubbernecking into the bridal suite and trying the cloisonne bath tub.

But with this swanky party and that, calculated to make shore leave anything but desirable to the sailor boy who knows that checking wraps at the boat party or passing out ice water can grease his pockets very nicely, there had been no boat style show till Uncle Sam turned over his prettiest and biggest ship to the cutey mannikins of one of New York's largest wholesalers of children's and junior apparel.

Uncle Sam did it up brown. The caviar was served from ice baskets in the shape of lambs and elephants and slippers and mastodons and dinosaurs and porpoises.

The famous Queen Marie dinner was duplicated with Egyptian pheasants on artichoke hearts, to say nothing of fresh strawberries embedded in French vanilla ice. The waiters were even slicker than at the captain's dinner the last night out, and the orchestra, opening services with the national hymn, as appropriate to time and place, shook mean fiddles and harps.

Just Gobs of Interest!

And the sailor boys who have been everywhere and seen everything, pressed their noses to the plate glass French doors separating the luxurious first class ship's library where the show was held from the outer circle where the hoi polloi without style show tickets were congregated.

Crowded in with the gaping and ogling sailors were the dozens of mothers whose curly-headed, long-legged darlings were capering about in spring ensembles calculated to show that no unfeeling parent would send any child forth into the sharp gales of spring without a hat matching at least the lining of said child's coat.

That seemed to be the message of the swellest, perhaps most expensive style show ever launched; that no parent can be so benighted as to dare clothe its female offspring in anything less elegant than an ensemble.

Reds Feature Ensembles

The ensemble should have a dash of red about it somewhere, either in hat or scarf or lining, and a high colored sweater of orange or green or cherry is most chic with dark little coats and skirts.

Oh yes, how much does a boat style show cost? Remarkably reasonable, say those in the know—"really not much more than any first class hotel would charge," which probably means that this particular show cost just a few thousand dollars.

So, here's a new business for Uncle Sam—fullest use of her ships while in port. They may put on prize fights and give shows in port next, they say.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

That women do not create in the world of art and science is a dogma frequently heard. Strong men defy women to point to the great musicians, scientists, writers of their sex. And woman's weak explanation that women have always been too bound up in the personal life of caring for those about them in order that they, in turn, may achive, finds little heed.

Virginia Woolf tries to explain why there have been so few women great writers. The number of a woman's children, her income, her servants if any, and most of all, whether or not she has a room of her own, "explains much," she says.

She reminds us that Jane Austen, Emily and Charlotte Bronte, and George Eliot, perhaps outstanding women writers, had no children all told, and that two of them were unmarried.

THEIR ODD JOBS

Consider, too, she admonishes, that George Eliot had an invalid father to nurse; that Charlotte Bronte wrote as she could after picking eyes out of potatoes, and she might have reminded us of the domestic responsibilities of hundreds of other women writers.

And yet, we can as logically remind ourselves of the hundreds of husbands and fathers who, working their eight or ten hour day at some bread and butter task, and confronted with their own domestic jobs of furnace to stoke and screens to put in and awnings to repair, and all the odd jobs quite as imposing in their way as their wives', still try to "write" and even achieve it.

This assumption that it is only the woman who is unable to cleave to the straight undeviating line of one main job, is unfair. On the whole, though, when a man reaches the place were his writing is his profession, he is unhampered by digressions which the professional woman writer, especially if married, must bend the neck under. It seems possible to find substitutes for a man of the house when it is quite impossible to get them for the lady of the house.

Mrs. Woolf reminds us that "nothing tangible remain of a woman's day. The food she has cooked is eaten; the children have gone into the world." True, but how much "tangible" remains of a man's day, either?

So-called "sex injustices have a way of being found out as human race handicaps and injustices, if that is what they are.

GRAND DIVA

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, glorious singer and as glorious a woman, is very wise when she says that she will stop singing while the memory of her voice is still a pleasant one. It is characteristic of this woman, too, to make ultimate use of her power by singling out a young girl for her descending mantle.

Color Important

By MME. LISBETH

Color is most important in the spring fashions. Lovely high colors in prints and solid shades, make feminity to blossom as the rose.

This effective print crepe de chine combines blending red, pink and rose, with a tracery of green leaves, and lends itself harmoniously to the sports design of the frock. The coat is rose kasha and is finished by a scarf of the print.

A rose felt hat is chosen by June Collyer, screen player, to complete her ensemble.

Post-Lenten Time To Occasion More Socialities Here

Interest Continues Here In Annual Conventions Scheduled For April In Towns Near Lubbock

With the coming of spring and post-lenten season, socialities probably will increase in Lubbock. As terms draw to a close at the Technological college and in the public schools, class picnics, banquets and farewell parties will be given.

Rumors now are telling of spring weddings set for later in the season and tentative announcements of parties are being made by hostesses who do not wish for their affairs to conflict with other socialities. Annual dances and guest parties are being planned by societies and other affairs of the spring.

Annual Concentions

Except for children's parties, there were few parties during the week-end and last week was marked by an unusually small number of affairs, although there were several parties on Saturday afternoon.

Interest continues in conventions. Methodist women of Northwest Texas are gathering in Plainview this week for an annual conference. Delegates continue to be elected to the fourteenth district P. T. A. convention in Floydada next week and plans are continuing for the program which is to be announced by the president, Mrs. J. E. Griggs of this city.

Librarian In Cleveland Schools

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

Col. Charles Lindbergh's fiancee, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, was named for her mother's sister, Miss Annie Spencer Cutter of Cleveland. Miss Cutter is supervisor of the school libraries department in the Cleveland library system.

Both Mrs. Morrow and her sister, Miss Cutter, are interested in higher education for women. Miss Cutter is acting as chairman of the advisory committee for the million dollar endowment campaign which her alma mater, College for Women Western Reserve University, is conducting.

Miss Morrow's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, was president of the Smith College alumnae association when that institution conducted a similar campaign recently.

Miss Winifred Mather Forbes of Pennsylvania State college is investigating the amount of metal necessary for weighing silken garments to enable them to keep their form. Tin is often used for this purpose. Too much weighing is said to shorten the life of the fabric.

Spanish Women's Club

According to Miss Katherine Elliott, clerk to the commercial attache in the American embassy at Madrid, Spain, the Lyceum Club Feminino de Madrid founded two years ago, is a crystallization of the feminine movement in Spain. Its organizers were for the largest part, women of distinction—editors, lawyers, etc., who desired something beyond the shut-in life of feminine Spain. Maria de Mazetu, its first president, is internationally known as an educator. She is a member of the national assembly and a writer. Senora Isabel de Palencia, the present president, is famous both in New York and in Madrid under the pen name of Beatrice Galindo. The membership, which is now 450, has trebled since its organization. Beautiful headquarters have been established and this is the center of much of the cultural, civic and philanthropic work of the city. International topics are always popular and there are but two topics that are taboo; they are politics and religion.

Railroading Picture Heads Movie Card; Al Jolson Comes Next Week

Monte Blue Star Of Featured Film Starting Sunday

Vilma Banky Will Appear Later In Week

A RAILROADIN' picture, with all the clanging bells, tooting whistles, grinding drivers and other sound effects made very effective, comes to the Palace today and incidentally probably headlines the week for Lubbock, in an amusement way. The photoplay is entitled "The Greyhound Limited" and Monte Blue is the star.

There are other features on the week's entertainment bill for the Palace. Following "The Greyhound Limited" comes "The Awakening" with Vilma Banky. This is a sound production.

Then, for Friday and Saturday of this week, comes a Vitaphone talking and sound picture titled "Beware of Bachelors". Audrey Ferris and William Collier, jr., are the stars.

Next week's feature at the Lyric starts Sunday. It is a Carl Laemmle production, "Red Lips" and the Sunday program is bolstered by four acts of vaudeville and a midnight frolic.

Dancing at the Uptown Dance Palace will be held on the regular nights.

Work is progressing favorably on the new Lindsey. Laborers yesterday began installation of the modern refrigeration plant which will make this theater comfortable even on the most torrid of summer days.

Already the town is abuzz with gossip concerning the appearance a week from today of Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer". Theatergoers in general are eager for this production.

THREE MEN DROWNED

Heavy Swell Overturns Boat Near Galveston Beach

GALVESTON, March 30. (AP)—Three men were drowned when a surf boat of the cable ship Lord Kelvin overturned off Tampico, Monday night, officials of the Mexican Telegraph company announced today. The men, whose names have not been learned, were members of a party returning to the ship after landing the shore end of a new cable.

The small boat was swamped by a heavy swell and a subsequent wave washed over the crew which was clinging to the overturned boat. Six of the nine men succeeded in reaching the beach 100 yards distant.

"The House of Horrors," the third of a series of mystery pictures, has gone into production at First National studios. Thelma Todd is assigned to the leading feminine role and in the cast, as feature players, are Louise Fazenda and Lucien Littlefield.

Warner Bros. is about to begin the biggest studio program the company has ever undertaken, and in line with these plans, Darry Francis Zanuck has been promoted to the post of associate executive in charge of production.

What The Fan May Expect In Palace Films This Week

Greyhound Limited Packed With Thrills

"THE Greyhound Limited," opening at the Palace today is a Vitaphone picture play to be classed as one of the most pleasing to appear in Lubbock since the Palace theater installed the latest innovation of the screen—the talkies.

Starring Monte Blue, the play possesses an unusual story interest, portraying incidents in the lives of an engineer and fireman of the Central Pacific railroad. Blue, as the engineer, starts out trying to tame his wild pal, the fireman, played by Grant Withers, only to muddle things. A blond waitress, Edna Murphy, and the fireman's mother, played by Lucy Beaumont, figure in the main story.

With the pals' friendship severed through the blond, the fireman takes to drink and is convicted of a murder, of which he is innocent. Sentenced to hang, a hair-raising finish, in which a string of box cars are let loose to roll down a mountain grade by a gang of crooks, aiming to wreck "The Greyhound Limited," leads to a last minute rescue of the fireman from the gallows.

A splendid musical score is played by the Vitaphone symphony orchestra and the picture has a goodly number of talking sequences, with the natural sounds of engines, trains, bells, providing perfect atmosphere.

Install Iced-Air Refrigeration In Lindsey Theater

Spanish Motif In Decorations Is Featured

WORKMEN yesterday began installing the iced-air refrigeration system which will make the new Lindsey Theater, now being completely remodelled, comfortably cool even on the hottest of summer days.

Decorators have been busy for some time inside the Lindsey, a Spanish motif being featured throughout. Indications point to the theater's being one of the most beautiful in this entire section when work has been finished.

Formal opening will take place on or about April 21, the exact time for the ceremony being at this time undetermined.

The Lindsey has been remodeled especially for presentation of talking and sound pictures, and Western Electric equipment, universally recognized as the best obtainable on the market, has been installed. Acoustics, perfect for sound pictures, will measurably enhance the effect of such productions.

The theater will have every convenience to be found in the higher-priced show houses anywhere.

Announcement of the opening attraction will be made in the near future.

Jazz Love Tangle Starts Friday

"Beware of Bachelors," a Warner Bros.' picture, comes to the Palace Theatre Friday next for a run of two days. The cast is headed by Audrey Ferris and William Collier, Jr., respective, as flapper bride and philandering doctor husband. Others in the all-star roster are Clyde Cook Andre Beranger, Dave Morris and Margaret Livingston. The story is fro mthe facile pen of Mark Canfield. Robert Lord did the screen adaptation. Direction was in charge of Roy Del Ruth.

"Beware of Bachelors" is the zippiest screen comedy of the year. It tells of the ways and means adopted by a sheik doctor's flapper bride to get even with him for his foragings in forbidden pastures. She succeeds in putting the lady patients to rout, but in following her husband's own tactics, finds herself in some tangles which make her as glad to get back to her repentant man as he to have her back. Uproariously funny. Don't miss it.

Vilma Banky Stars In New Picture

"The Awakening" starring Vilma Banky, comes to the Palace, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Running through this story is a tragedy aggravated by last-minute uncertainty whether to make a bum or a hero out of Louis Wolheim, who shows up in a French uniform, while the hero is a German. Walter Byron, an Englishman, plays the German hero, so that may mollify the four minute men of the late conflict.

Miss Banky, somewhat more vivacious in her new repsonsibility of individual stardom, is always attractive, although so gorgeous a creature should not be wastedas a peasant girl and then a movie nun.

"Nothing But the Truth," with Richard Dix starring, has gone into production at Paramount's Long Island Studio after more than a month of preparation. It is being directed by Victor Schertzinger, who has assembled an unusual cast of stage actors who have appeared in Broadway hits. The selection of the players is in line with Paramount's policy of "Casts That Can Talk."

SOFTENING PAD

It is an excellent idea to cut blotting paper to fit pantry shelves where dishes and glass are kept to slip under the fancy shelf paper one uses. It acts as a silencer.

Rub rusty knives with an onion and they will clean easily. Sometimes merely dipping in hot water afterwards will shine them.

Slaton Man Is Author Of 'Santi'

Detective Story Is Published By Boston Company

Reviews Lavish In Praise Of South Plains Writer

ALL UNHERALDED, a literery star has been hiding out down at Slaton. R. A. Baldwin, resident of the Lubbock county town for 17 years, is revealed in this week's book notes as the author of Santi, a widely praised novel just published by the Meador Publishing company of Boston, Mass.

Santi, lavishly praised for a first novel, is characterized in various reviews as an absorbing yarn, as a crime story and as a detective story. From the calibre and color of the reviews the book is evidently worthy of any one and its success is all the more astonishing since to us, at least, its publication came altogether unheralded.

Some of Reviews.

Since we have not had the pleasure and privilege of inspecting a copy of the book, let the following excerpts from reviews suffice:

"Here is an absorbing yarn. Santi is more than a crime story; more than a detective novel: It is a penetrating analysis of the criminal mind, interestingly told, well written, and a book you will read with unflagging interest.

"Francis Roland Santi is one of the Young Intellectuals and a self-styled superman, cold-blooded, egotistical. Intellect is his god. "Calm, cool reason" is his guide. Enthralled by mystery plots, he conceives the idea of writing a story wherein a criminal shall be the hero, endowed with such intellectual powers as to enable him to outwit the most astute detectives. Suddenly Santi recognizes the hero as himself, concludes that merely writing the story is not enough and determines to enact the plot in real life. He plans and executes a heinous crime — and then the trouble starts!

Grips Interest.

The author grips your interest as he reveals the inner working of a guilty conscience. Santi's profound precautions; his weird dreams; his

THE MOST interesting volume passing over the reviewer's desk this week was entitled "The XIT Ranch." It describes that famous, extensive ranch once occupying a considerable portion of what is now the North Panhandle. The volume —a valuable addition to the literary record of West Texas and the Panhandle — promises, by a cursory examination, hours of interesting reading. The book will be reviewed later in these columns. Meanwhile those interested might write the publishers, the Laweside Press, of Chicago.

A journey into India, the occult and mysterious, and deeper into the forbidden and mysterious kingdom of Nepal, north of Hinduland, is described in "The Last Home of Mystery," by E. Alexander Powell The volume is scheduled for publication by the Century company soon. An advance edition, exclusively for critics, has aroused a storm of comment.

"Unholy Virgins" is the alluring title of a book promised by Century early in April. Edna Walker Malcoskey is the author.

John Drinkwater's play, "Bird in Hand," which is coming to the Broadway stage after an eleven month's run in London, is to be published in book form by Houghton Mifflin Company early in April.

"The Brownings," a biography by Osbert Burdett, will have especial interest for the devotees of the Great Victorian poet. Houghton-Mifflin are the publishers.

Important books published by this company on March 22 were: "Dark Hester;" by Anne Douglas Sedgwick; "Hell's Loose," by Roland Pertwee; "As God Made Them," a group of biographical portraits by Gamaliel Bradford; "New Roads in Old Virginia" a travel book by Agnes Rothery; and Dr. John B. Hawes, "You and the Doctor."

A new book of poems by Kathleen Millay, entitled "The Hermit Thrush" is scheduled for early publication by Liveright. "Summer Lighting" a novel reeking with romance and adventure, is likewise slated by this company. "Tumbling Mustard," a yarn about the wide open spaces, is another soon to be published by this company.

In The Spring A Reviewer's Fancy Lightly Turns,—

Travel, Adventure And Fantasy Lead Among New Books

By GENE COHN
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, March 30.—In the spring this particular young man's fancy lightly turns to magic carpents that would whisk one away to Samarkand and Bagdad and mysterious cities with glittering turrets.

R. J. Casey

When the vernal equinox comes ambling around the corner, I find myself unable to resist any book which begins in this fashion . . . "The tiger smell is in the breeze that wanders lazily through the heat flats . . ."

Which, by the way, is the opening sentence of Robert Casey's "Four Faces of Siva" (Bobbs-Merrill). Casey, a Chicago newspaper man, fared forth on the trail of history' most fascinating mystery tales. His was a search for that strange hidden city of Angkor in the Cambodian jungle.

Angkor has remained one of the puzzle cities of all time. Why did four million people trek into the very heart of the jungle and there build a glittering, fantastic metropolis? And having done so, why did they disappear just as suddenly, leaving this amazing city to rot in its almost inaccessible hide-away? Casey calls it a great historic detective story—and such it truly is.

HOWEVER, any spring list we might compile would have to be headed by Richard Hughes' "The Innocent Voyage" (Harpers). Hughes is a young Englishman who has been vacationing on some of NOTICE—It is not the intention of The Avalanche-Journal to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly and if through error we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to same, and will gladly correct any erroneous statement made.

The Avalanche-Journal is an Independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those questions which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics; publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

There is a vanity which is done upon the earth: that there be just men, unto whom it happeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the righteous: I said that this also is vanity.—Ecclesiastes, viii, 14.

BUSTING THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Texas politics come in for a wonderful amount of speculation every now and then, and it has been prophesied that the old party would be wrecked upon the rocks of political strife and overturned by the waves of dissention and now the Wertz bill which was passed and given to Governor Moody for his consideration is another javelin that has been thrust at the old party, pretentously as a means of holding the party down to a true strain of Democracy. Those who are said to be qualified to speak are certain that the life blood of this bill will be let out by the veto knife of Governor Moody. There is a record of many years behind the governor. There are many precendents. Richard Coke was ushered into office in 1873. For years and years after his inauguration 95 per cent of the white men of Texas voted the regular democratic ticket. Then came the state-wide prohibition election of 1887. The antis won; the pros were overwhelmed. There were antis who said that a prohibitionist could not be a good democrat just as there are pros today that insist that an anti-prohibitionist cannot be a good democrat. Well, the anti leaders or the more ultra of the leaders insisted that the defeated pros should be barred from the council of the party in coming elections. Harmony, instead of discord, came. Pros were not barred. They were invited to remain in the big democratic wagwam. All the factions smoked the pipe of peace. Then came the Hogg era and in 1892 the greatest bolt of democrats in Texas history occurred. They backed George Warwick Clarke. Then the bolters were to be barred from the party conventions and the party pie counter. An olive branch was extended. All the bolters returned to the household of Jefferson, with James Stephen Hogg the acknowledged leader of the united organization. Charles A. Culberson picked up the flag when Hogg laid it down. Thousands of democrats, known as populists, bolted the Culberson nomination. Culberson fought and conquered. Then thousands of the deserters returned to the democratic camp. Sayers and Lanham had their day. There was no discord. Thomas M. Campbell came in. He invited the diehards of the populist party to return to the faith of their fathers. Cyclone Davis led the diehards to the door of the wigwam and Governor Campbell gave them a hearty welcome. This is the record behind the governor. Another page of the record is the bolt to Butte and the last page written is the bolt of 200,000 democrats, men and women to the Hoover and Curtis camp in the memorable campaign of 1928. Hogg accepted the olive branch and invited men who fought him to return to the fold. Culberson walked in Hogg's footsteps. Campbell invited Cyclone and his soborts to the pie counters. Colquitt was for new recruits al lthe time and this was the record that he made as governor in bygone years. Hobby was for peace. Neff always waved the olive branch. Ferguson was ousted and organized a new party. He failed and his followers returned to the party of the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian faith. Now Moody, leader of the regulars in many political skirmishes or battles that required dash who brilliancy and courage will add another chapter to the history of political precedent and practice which have prevailed in this commonwealth since the fated day when Richard Coke drove the followers of E. J Davis from capitol hill.

THE SABBATH

For the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath day.—Matt. 12-8. The Israelitish Sabbath was on Saturday. The Christian Sabbath is Sunday, the day on which the Lord rose. The Israelitish Sabbath was a day of complete rest from labor because it represented the final state of spiritual rest that the Lord gives when regeneration s completed and spiritual battles and labor cease. Not merely a period of time, but that blessed state of peace wherein the Lord himself holds a man's evils subdued and sustains one in perpetual peace, is the Sabbath day of which the Son of Man is Lord. This is that for which the Israelitish Sabbath stood, and which is foreshadowed. The Lord changed the character of the old Sabbath. In shelling out the wheat to eat on the way and in healing on the Sabbath, he seemed to the Jews to violate the Sabbath; but these things he did to make the Sabbath a day of human service in his love. He changed the Sabbath from an inactive to an active use. On Sunday, our Sabbath, the usual labor should cease. It is properly kept by making the Son of Man its Lord; that is, the day is rightly observed by having the Lord more exclusively in mind and devoting the day particularly to worship, self-examinations, study of the Word for life helps, charitable works, and in doing the things that specially promote his kingdom upon the earth. This is clearly taught in that searching illustration given when the Pharisees asked the Lord if it were lawful to heal on the Sabbath day. In ther presence, Jesus told the man with the withered hand to stretch it forth, whereupon the hand was restored. Then Jesus said, "How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath days." The observance of Sunday, the Christian Sabbath, as the Lord directs, is a law of both body and mind. "Man does not live by bread alone." Health of both body and soul are promoted by putting aside the labor and cares of occupation one day in seven, and devoting time to cultivation of spiritual values. "If thou—turn away from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight; the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him—then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth and feed thee with a heritage of Jacob." Governments which fulfill the Christian obligation by observing the Sabbath of the Lord are blessed in an abundant measure by an elevation of citizenship.

ONLY GREAT SPIRITUAL REVIVAL CAN SAVE CIVILIATION, CLAIM

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 30.—"Our civilization is in danger. Only a great spiritual revival can save it."

The assertion is Congressman George Huddleston's.

George Huddleston represents the Birmingham (Ala.) district in Washington. They call him "the little giant from the south." Capitol Hill speaks of him as the deepest thinker in congress, though conservatives complain that he is rather radical—"because," as he says, "I have some unclassified ideas."

Anyway, the little giant manages to maintain the regularity of his standing as a Democrat, a Methodist and a (slightly qualified) dry—all orthodox enough in a lawmaker from his part of Dixie.

He was discussing the new administration—the Hoover regime—what he conceives to be its real significance.

"We live," he said, "in an age of materialism unique in history.

"It is not solely American, but world-wide. It merely happens to have reached its fullest flower here—because of our resources, our money, and no traditions. Europe's past acts as a brake. We have none.

"The Hoover administration is our materialism's natural product—its embodiment—its expression.

"It symbolizes material commercial prosperity."

"Our materialism did not result from the war. The war simply was one of its symptoms.

"So is our crime wave—equally materialistic—materialism's offspring.

"A law enforcement campaign? As well rub liniment on the patient's stomach for appendicitis."

"Our ancestors' outlook was spiritual, because there were no material distractions.

"Men were pioneers then, even in the most advanced of countries. They led lives of privation, hardship. Their kings could not command the luxuries that now are absolutely necessities—to the commonest laborers.

"What activities were open to a leader, before the age of machinery?

"War—not for sordid loot, as now—but for glory—not lacking in its spiritual aspect. Statesmanship. Religion. Of the arts—a little. Nothing else.

"Today?

"The knight is president of the First National bank. The statesman is a politician, log-rolling for tariff advantages. The man of God is a popular

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES HELP OVERCOME ACIDOSIS

Tomato Juice for Ex-Tanks

"DEAR DOCTOR: I am 40 years old and have been a steady and, at times, extreme drinker since I was 19. Six months ago I cut out the stuff entirely and never intend to use another drop, because booze has caused me all the trouble that I have ever had, and of recent years, that has been plenty.

LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.

"Just lately I discovered that a large drink of cold tomato juice seasoned with pepper and taken before meals, seems to be helpful It appears to steady my nerves and satisfy any lingering desire for strong drink. Is this just imagination, and is it good practice to take such an acid dose when I have always understood that the ex-drinker suffers from hperacidity?

"There must be many men who like me, have cut out liquor and are looking for helpful hints that will keep them on the wagon. Incidentally I have a consuming curiosity to know why, after years of handling booze, I should suddenly find that I can't handle it at all. This, too, seems to be a rather general condition among the "boys."

"Have you anything that you would like to say to us, Doctor? We're off the stuff. We intend to stay off. Are there any little natural or artificial helps that we can use? I know, from red hot experience, that a man must WANT to stop drinking before he can accomplish anything. The moral decision and the desire to stop, are absolutely essential. A man must lick himself first, and I have done that trick to the queen's taste. If my tomato juice is good practice, I'll continue it. If not, I'll cut that out, too.

"EX-TANK.

Go to your tomato juice, Ex-Tank. You have apparently discovered, for yourself, a scientific fact that is being made use of in many of the hospitals devoted to the cure of the drink and drug habit. They, too, have found that tomato juice, or tomatoes themselves, seem to allay the longing for alcohol. This is not because tomato juice has any alcohol in it or generates any alcohol. Perhaps it is because it is one of the richest foods in vitamins and miner elements, which undoubtedly the alcoholic diet has been deficient in. (When you cannot get fresh tomatoes, the canned will do just as well, for very little of the vitamins are lost in the modern process of canning.)

The cool acid taste probably is an aid in allaying the craving also. But you should know that the acid of the tomato and that of other acid fruits and vegetables (with the exception of plums, cranberries, prunes, sorrel and rhubarb) is completely oxidized in the body leaving the alkaline salts with which it was combined. This helps to overcome acidosis, which condition in itself may be the basis for many disorders.

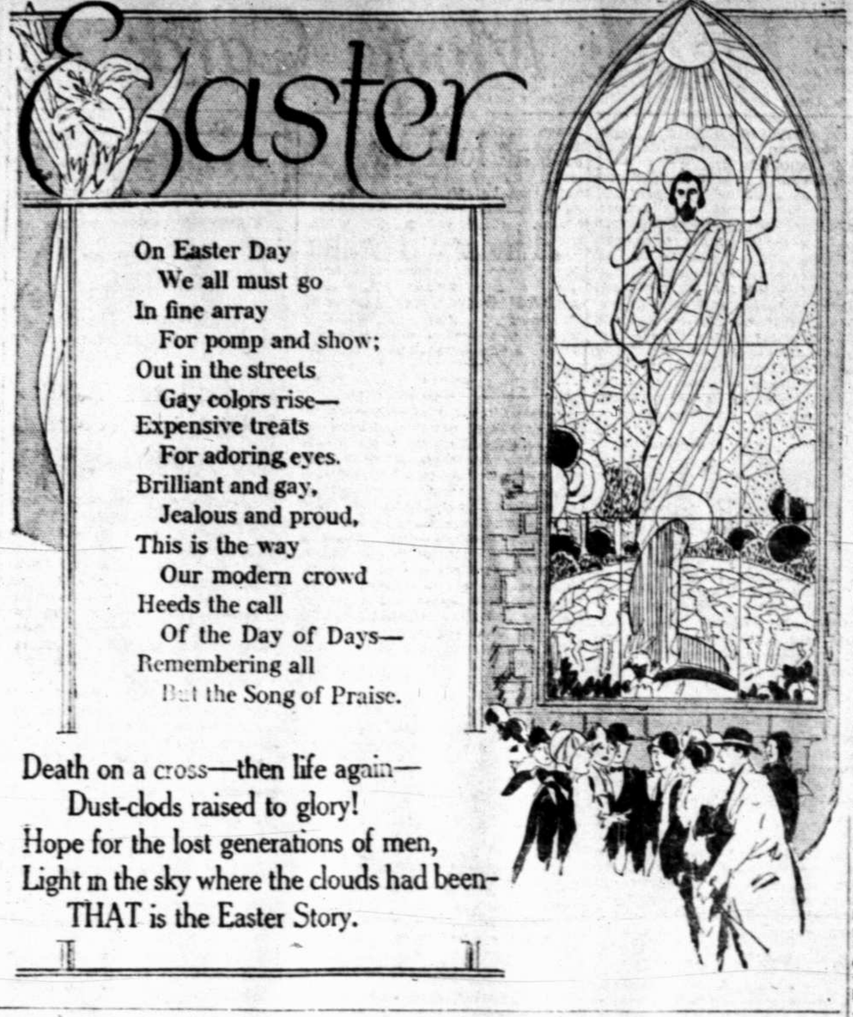

I would omit the pepper seasoning, if I were you, E.-T., for condiments, such as pepper, in excess will also irritate the stomach. The reason you have reached the stage where you cannot tolerate alcohol is that it has probably already affected your stomach and liver and you may have some degree of cirrhosis or hardening of the liver.

But as you are young, we'll hope the habit hasn't been practiced to the extent where you won't fully recover from it.

You will want a balanced diet, too, so you had better send for our article on the subject. Success to you, dear boy.

There are many ex-tanks besides alcoholic tanks who would be benefitted by taking tomato juice and tomatoes. I am thinking now of the food tanks, especially. If these would substitute tomato juce or a couple of ripe tomatoes (one pound is 100 calories) for the pounds of candy (simply candy, one pound, 1,600 calories, and with nuts and chocolate, is half as much again, probably, on account of the fat of the nuts), or for other excessively high-caloried foods they consume, they would have considerable help in keeping their weight normal. Tomatoes are recommended in diabetes, in Bright's disease, rheumatism, ophthalmia (inflammation of the eyes), and I could enumerate as many other things, that you would think it was a patent medicine testimonial.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

PRESS COMMENT

SPRING IS HERE

Very few fruit trees have put on the garments of spring, cold winds continue to sweep down out of the north on occasion, and there is a distinct chill in the morning air; but despite all these signs, or lack of signs, spring has arrived.

Men and women have begun to potter around in the yard, spading up the rotting fragments of last year's annuals, raking up old leaves, spading the flower beds and showing other evidences of a reawakened interest in gardening. That is the one infallible sign of spring's arrival.

Every fall, after the usual failure of the kitchen garden to turn out well, or the destruction of the flowers by marauding hens, every householder lifts his good right hand, calluses and all, and vows he will never try to raise another garden.

But in the spring, when the sap begins to rise and the buds to swell, he gets out his garden tbols, dons his working clothes, and pitches in against. Or, if he sticks to his resolution, he is driven to work by the good woman who shares the roof with him.

It is a sort of elemental urge, resident in most of us. "Back to the soil" isn't a slogan, it's a disease—a disease born into us.

So get your spading fork, your trowel and your seed catalogs. Spring is here.—Ranger Times.

PUBLICITY

Probably one of the most powerful weapons of modern times is the innocent sounding one of publicity. It was the most powerful weapon of all in the recent world war, though they called it propaganda. But the two terms mean about the same, for they come from about the same source.

Great business houses throughout the world now have their own publicity departments. Cities have them—and of course human beings have their own private publicity departments, for we all get a thrill therein, whether we acknowledge it or not.

It is rather speculative to guess as to why people desire publicity. Perhaps it is selfishness with some and vanity in others; but I am sure that in the majority of cases, where a man or woman is a real performer in the world, it is desired more because of the evidence of appreciation on the part of the recipient than for any other reason. I have noticed that even with those who most shrink from publicity there is a certain pride in honest publicity that brings satisfaction.

But as regards the modest man or woman the desire seems to be that a proper spread of ideas is more to be desired than personal aggrandizement.

I have been told by those who make it a business to give publicity to people that some of the wealthiest and most famous people—those who do not need publicity—really seek it. This is difficult to understand.

The fact remains, however, that were it not for the human stories of men and women, the thrilling, fascinating experiences that people and businesses go through, and which are told in the public press and in magazines, these same publications would have little sale.

We like to know about others. We like to know that they experience what we do, and that they are much akin to all the reactions that we are. Publicity really keeps the human family a compact thing.

I do not believe that you can give too much publicity to a good thing, a great idea, or to a useful man or woman. Or to a book that is very much worth while. When anyone tells me of a fine book I am always indebted to that person.

If the people of the world spoke the same language, got together among themselves, and understood the ideals and hopes and ambitions of one another, there would be an end to all wars forever! Perhaps publicity, used wisely, will bring this millennium about—Abilene Reporter.

NEW KIND OF INSANITY

An Ohio girl, 18 years old, fell in convulsions on the street after a 24 hour dance marathon. Dancing contests among the "people of moronia" go on for days. Bodies and so-called minds are worn out. Doubtless these people are the victims of a form of insanity. Doctors will find a name for it soon. Any way, it is easily recognizable.

SO THINK WE

We think a school girl's complexion is all right, provided it is not overdone, but some of it is entirely too highly colored.

We think some strange things happen, and among them is when El Paso policeman searched three days for a stolen automobile, and at the end of that time found it parked in front of one of the prominent hotels of the city. But sometimes they never find them.

We think many of the people of Lubbock should give the airport project careful study before they vote on the bond issue. The air transportation business is going to be such an immense affair within the next few years that it is a difficult proposition to know just how to build, and Lubbock certainly wants to be among the important points on the air map.

We think there were more people who doubted the practicability of the automobile when it first came on the market, than they do the airplanes, but we are of the opinion that the development of the air transportation will be much more rapid than the automobile was.

We think that the democrats may have four years of wishful waiting and they may even have more than that. But if Mr. Hoover will listen to some of the Hoovercrats, maybe the democrats will get a few of the crumbs that fall under the table.

—o—

We think this is a wonderful time of year for lazy folks. They can blame it all on the spring of the year.

—o—

We think if it is true that Chief Justice Taft has sent a suit of his clothes to help a needy farmer out west, it was a very generous act, and the farmer will probably not only have plenty of cloth to make himself a suit and two or three of the boys, but the thrifty housewife will have plenty of scraps left to make a rug or a door mat, and we are not speaking lightly of Mr. Taft either. He is just simply one of the biggest citizens that the United States ever had.

—o—

We think there is plenty of evidence that this is the age of electricity, for everyone wants everything charged, but we can also conclude that the age of electricity is fast passing away, for few people can now get anything charged.

—o—

We think since the Easter spell of bad weather passed over, that it may be possible that today's array of new dresses and Easter bonnets will still be the greatest ever seen on the South Plains.

—o—

We think there are some things that possibly the city commissioners can not control, without a great deal of expense to the taxpayers. We learned from the mayor a few days ago that the commissioners have tried to talk to the citizens of Little Juarez about giving that part of the city water, but they do not seem to be very much interested. Without water there will never be the sanitary condition in that part of the city that should be.

—o—

We think that President Hoover's action in the Texas and Pacific strike proposition will no doubt result in the matter being straightened out in a way that will be profitable to all concerned and the public too.

—o—

We think it is really not an indication of profitableness when the police court takes in several thousand dollars per week in fines. It may be for the court itself, but it surely is not for the community in general.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDDEN, Monday morning sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office. He was shot some time between one and four Saturday afternoon.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: Ruth, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children, who admits calling on him Saturday afternoon; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, who says she called on Borden Saturday afternoon to get the torn half of a $500 bill he promised her; JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's finance, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Hayward says he returned to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon to get his and Ruth's matinee tickets left on his desk. McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER, elevator boys, and BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, who tells of having heard Jack threaten Borden's life.

A detective is sent for CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress. BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy, says he returned to the office Saturday afternoon to get Ruth's gun for target practice but it was already gone. ASHE, Borden's manservant, tells McMann of a woman with a beautiful contralto voice of whom Borden lived in fear.

MINNIE CASSIDY, scrubwoman, tells of going to Borden's office at 1:30 Saturday, answering his phone while he was out, and of telling the woman with a "beautiful alto voice" that Borden refused to talk to her then but asked her to call later. Ruth asks Mrs. Borden if her husband knew some woman with a beautiful contralto voice. The widow haughtily evades the question. LETTY MILLER, scrubwoman in Jack's wing of the building, is brought in for questioning.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

Minnie Cassidy must have found Letty Miller already at work in some office that had closed early for the day, for when the cleaning woman who "did" Jack Hayward's offices appeared within three minutes, she was carrying her broom, floor mop and scrubbing pail, filled with oily dusting rags. Birdwell, the detective, opened the door for her, and was hailed by his chief, McMann.

"Any further report from Clay on Cleo Gilman?"

"No, sir."

"See if headquarters has got any line on Jake Bailey, Borden's bodyguard," McMann directed, then, as Birdwell withdrew, the detective sergeant glanced negligently at Letty Miller. "Come on over here. I won't bite you. . . . Now, take that chair, and don't fidget; I'm not going to keep you long. You'll have plenty of time to do your work. You're Letty Miller, the woman who regularly cleans John C. Hayward's offices?"

Letty's thin, calico-clad body accepted the support of the edge of the chair McMann indicated. Her face was raised anxiously; faded brown eyes peered at the detective nearsightedly through ugly, steel-rimmed spectacles. Gray-haired, frail, timid—no wonder, Ruth thought, Letty Miller had appealed to Jack's tender heart, so that he had tipped her more than he could afford. Was it in her power now to repay him for his kindness. It was hard for Ruth not to take the witness out of the detective sergeant's hands. . . .

"Yes, sir," Letty quavered.

"You cleaned Mr. Hayward's offices last Saturday afternoon?"

"Yes, sir."

"At what time, or approximately what time?"

The cleaning woman pursed her colorless lips in thought, then answered slowly: "I couldn't say exactly, sir, but it was after half-past two, because I was in another suite at half past two and happened to look at the clock and remember that I still hadn't cleaned Mr. Hayward's offices, though ordinarily they're among the first I get to."

Ruth's cold hands gripped each other fiercely as she waited for McMann to put his next question: "And why didn't you clean Mr. Hayward's offices earlier, in your regular routine?"

"Because Mr. Hayward came in when I was just ready to begin," Letty answered, with a tiny flash of defiance.

"And ordered you out, eh?" McMann suggested significantly.

"No, sir," Letty retorted, almost spiritedly. "He told me to go right ahead with my work, but just then his phone rang and while he was answering it I took my things and left."

"Very considerate of you, I'm sure," McMann commented drily. "And what time was this—when Mr. Hayward returned, I mean?"

Again Letty Miller pursed her lips in thought. "I couldn't say to the minute, sir, but it must have been about 10 minutes to two. We come on at 12 on Saturdays, but we do halls and baseboards and lavatories until the tenants begin to leave at one. And last Saturday I'd done four suites of offices before I went in to do Mr. Hayward's—and seen him, like I told you. So it must have been pretty near two—say from 15 to five minutes of two."

"You like Mr. Hayward mighty well, don't you, Letty? He's been good to you—about tips and so on?" McMann asked suddenly.

Letty's lined, pale face flushed a dull red. "Of course I like him, sir. He's a good, kind gentleman, and I'm sure—"

"I thought so!" McMann interrupted grimly. "All right, what next? When did Mr. Hayward leave? I suppose you're going to be very helpful and tell exactly when he did leave?"

Both Ruth and the scrubwoman glared at him then, but McMann did not seem to mind. He did seem a little nonplussed, however, when Letty answered defiantly: "No, sir, I'm not, because I don't know when he did leave! I wasn't in that corridor then. When Mr. Hayward come back I took my pail and mop and broom and went around the corner to an office I knew was closed for the day, because it's always closed all day Saturday. And from there I went to the office next to it. I didn't come back to Mr. Hayward's office till after half-past two, like I said, and I didn't see him again."

The hope that had routed Ruth's overpowering fatigue when she had remembered that Letty Miller had seen Jack on his return to his office died a violent, leaving the girl utterly crushed, and so tired that she felt she could not even lift her eyes again, no matter what happened.

If only Letty had waited, had watched for Jack to leave, had been in his ofice from two until 10 minutes past two, so that she could have refuted Bill Cowan's damning story about the telephone call!

While McMann continued his questioning of the cleaning woman, Ruth sat in a small, inert heap in her chair, staring with despair-dulled eyes at her lax hands.

Dimly she realized that McMann gained no further information; Letty had not worked in the corridor on which Borden's offices were located, hence had not had opportunity to witness the arrival or departure of the dead promoter's visitors; she had not heard the shot fired, if she had, had not noted it consciously; when she had cleaned Jack Hayward's offices she had not glanced across the airshaft, through Jack's window to Borden's, had, therefore, neither seen the promoter nor noticed whether his window was closed or open. As to Jack's gun, Letty had never seen it, she said; on Saturday, when she had wiped off the desk drawers, the bottom drawer had been closed, and she had not opened it, or any other drawer.

Ruth did not even raise her head when Letty Miller was dismissed, with the usual instructions from McMann, but she had the impression that Letty's near-sighted, dull-brown eyes peered at her pityingly, asking her to forgive her for not having been able to clinch Jack Hayward's alibi. But she could not look up, and Letty was ogne.

"Detective Carlson wants to report, sir," Birdwell announced from the door.

"All right; show him in," McMann replied curtly. "Hello, Carlson. Any news? You've seen all the stock salesmen that showed up, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir." Carlson answered cheerfully, as he lowered his fat body into the chair vacated by Letty Miller. "Four of 'em blew in, with alibis all neatly wrapped up and ready to deliver. That accounts for all of Borden's boys except Adams and Grant, one of the salesmen, just received this wire from him. I've checked his alibi with his landlady. He's been renting a room in an apartment, of which he gave the address, and I called the woman on the phone. Looks straight, all right. Here's the wire."

McMann accepted the yellow sheet and scanned it frowningly, then, with courtesy which Ruth was not too utterly tired to appreciate, passed it to the girl. It was a long day letter:

"Have just read of Borden's murder. Saw him Saturday, left office about one-ten. He ordered me to Chicago, because he thought I was spending too much thought and time on my girl. Went directly to my room, Mrs. London's apartment, 128 West Sixty-fifth street, talked with Mrs. London for half hour and packed my trunk and bag. Had lunch with Mrs. London. Called my girl, made a date with her, and left apartment about three o'clock. Met girl downtown half-past three. Was with her till my train left for Chicago eleven-ten Saturday night. Don't give my girl's name unless necessary. Miss Lester knows Borden was sore at me and I don't want police to think I quarreled with Borden and killed him. I did not. He did bawl me out for falling down on job but gave me another chance. Show this wire to police if they haven't found real murderer. Am stopping at Drake Hotel. Will come back immediately if necessary. Adams." Ruth read it, and let the sheet flutter down upon Borden's desk.

"Well, Miss Lester, what do you think?" McMann asked.

"I think he's telling the truth," Ruth answered dully. "It had not occurred to me to suspect Mr. Adams. I think it was fine of him to volunteer this information so promptly."

"Or very clever," McMann said slowly. "Get the name of the girl

GIBRALTAR

Seven weeks of sea, and twice seven days of storm
Upon the huge Atlantic, and once more
We ride into still water and calm
Of a sweet evening screened by either shore
Of Spain and Barbary. Our toils are o'er,
Our exile is accomplished. Once again
We look on Europe, mistress as of yore
Of the fair earth and of the hearts of men.
Ay, this is the famed rock, which Hercules
And Goth and Moor bequeathed us at this door
England stand sentry. God! to hear the shrill
Sweet treble of her fifes upon the breeze
And at the summons of the rock gun's roar

Don't Shoot Cannons On The Street!

ere's Nothng So Dead As A Dead Law And Lubbock is Home Of Several; The Curfew Shall Not Ring!

STEN carefully tonight at 8:30 o'clock sharp, and see if you hear church bell or some other bell olled one time.

No?

Then Lubbock's curfew law is to all intents and purposes dead.

Chief of Police John Lemond is instructed by an ordinance passed by the city commission of Lubbock on Nov. 11, 1909, to ring such a bell at such an hour and within a half hour afterwards clear the streets of all boys under the age of 18 years.

Article one of the legislation in question stipulates that it is unlawful for any boy or boys under the age 18 to be on any public street, alley or any store in Lubbock, or to loiter on the sidewalks or streets or about the door of any theatre or place of amusement after 9 p. m., unless business or duty so requires. Exception from this drastic rule are when boys are returning from theatres or churches or other lawful places of entertainment—this is quoting from the ordinances literally—with a parent, guardian or law books of the city of may be found numerous lar examples of antique legislation which have never been repealed and are being violated constantly in the city every 24 hours.

ted among these is the Sunday law" which is in more or less danger of being repealed as the result of action taken by the recent state legislature, which places the regulation entirely in the hands of the city council.

Lubbock has a rather strict Sunday law, two of them, in fact.

The first prohibits not only games of regular baseball and football, but "scrub," and any game or practice with a baseball or football. This would prohibit that time-honored exercise of the youngsters of playing "catch," which is now mounting to the height of its popularity once more. Beanbags are not mentioned in the law which was passed back in 1907, and is ordinance number 10 on the books of the city.

The second law states that it is unlawful to hold shows in the city of Lubbock, not only theatrical shows but concerts and other forms of entertainment.

Games Are Barred.

Back in the unregenerate days when these ordinances were passed, they had games of which a younger generation never have heard. Annual taxes were stipulated against such pastimes when operated for profit such as bagatelle, pigeon hole, devil-among-the-tailors, Jenny Lind, pool and billiards—well, we recognize these last two, but what was his Satanic majestic doing among the knights of the flatiron?

And you couldn't hitch your horses to shade trees and presumably can't do it now, as that ordinance has never been repealed. And in those days the speed limit for bicycles, horses and pedestrians was eight miles per hour, and don't skid going 'round a corner. With the passing of the "livery" and Old Dobbin, this regulation is more or less of no value to the city, but nevertheless it is still a law and you'd better be careful about your speed or someone may decide to brush the dust from the ordinance and haul you into court.

Had to Work Streets.

Another ordinance which has been superceded, according to city officials, is that which required all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 45 to work five days on the streets and alleys of Lubbock during each year, on call of authorities, or to furnish an able-bodied substitute or pay $2.00 a day. This regulation may have been supplanted in these modern times by the task of spending at least five days out of every year hunting a parking place on the streets for the owner's automobile.

Better keep your pigs, chickens and other animals in a pen, but this is more or less of a modern regulation which applies to all classes of livestock. Your dog must also have a tax tag or he'll probably face the firing squad.

And, by the way, don't shoot any cannons on the streets. It is unlawful. An ordinance passed, Oct. 18, 1910, specifically prohibits the firing of cannon inside the city limits. Leave those .75 millimeter howitzers alone, children, or Chief Lemond and his force will be out after you and throw you in the hoosegow.

from that chap Grant, Carlson, and go see this Mrs. London personally. I don't quite like the looks of this. Too pat. Give the girl the works, too. . . . Did any of the salesmen have keys to this office, Miss Lester?" he added, when Carlson had left.

"No. No one was supposed to have a key but Mr. Borden, Benny Smith and myself," Ruth answered. "Rita Dubois had Mr. Borden's key from Friday until today, but I never knew Mr. Borden to trust anyone else so far."

"Of course Borden would have admitted Adams, unless they had quarreled so violently that Adams had threatened Borden's life," McMann reflected aloud. "After Adams left—assuming that he has told the truth about Borden's having ordered him to Chicago—he may have decided to make another appeal to is boss, to be allowed to stay here—"

"In that case, he would have ridden up in the elevator," Ruth pointed out drearily. "And Micky Moran did not bring him up. Micky knows Adams well. He would not have forwith the gun he knew was kept in course if Adams came back with the intention of killing Mr. Borden, gotten if Adams had returned. Of my desk, he would have walked up, but if the quarrel had been so bitter as all that, Mr. Borden would not have admitted him, and Adams had no key."

McMann regarded the girl steadily through narrowed eyes, and slowly a smile twitched at his grim mouth. "You're a new experience to me, Ruth Lester! You'd give your life to save Jack Hayward's, if it comes to that, but you won't throw the weight of a word against any other person that you don't believe is guilty."

"I want the truth to save Jack," Ruth answered quietly. "I know he is innocent, but I can't blame you for suspecting he is guilty—except for one thing. All this long, dreadful day, Mr. McMann, no matter how much I wanted to help Jack I have told you the truth, and have suppressed nothing—nothing! And I ask you now to forget that I have corroborated Jack's alibi—that he rejoined me at the Chester Hotel at 10 minutes after two, and did not leave me again. According to Bill Cowan's story, Borden was alive and talking over the telephone at 10 minutes after two—"

"With Jack Hayward," McMann reminded her, with curious gentleness.

"No!" Ruth cried desperately. "Perhaps with someone in Jack Hayward's office, but not with Jack Hayward! I'd stake my life on that. I've pointed out the similarity of Jack's and Mr. Borden's telephone numbers. Either Cowan or the operator could have got the wrong number. And though I know you don't believe her, believe instead that she robbed a dead man's body, Rita Dubois has told you that Borden was alive until half-past two—when Jack and I stood in the lobby of the Princess Theater."

"Then you believe that Rita killed Borden?" McMann asked suddenly.

Ruth struggled with temptation, then raised her head to meet the narrowed, probing gray eyes of the detective. "I—don't know," she answered despairingly. Then, desperately, her voice like a sob: "No, I don't believe she did. But I know Jack didn't!"

"I don't think Rita did it, either," McMann said quietly, "because of—this," and the detective thrust a hand into the pocket of his coat, brought out something which he extended toward Ruth on the palm of his hand.

Studebaker Adds New Speed System

An illustration of the value of seconds in modern manufacturing is the installation by Studebaker of a new system of inter-department and inter-plant communication which combines with the speed of the speed of the telephone, the accuracy and permanency of typewritten orders. This system, known as telephone-typewriter service, was recently installed in the South Bend plants of The Studebaker Corporation. It is one of the largest units of its type in existence.

The machines were required by the need for closer co-ordination between strategic units in the plant and along the assembly lines, where production must keep pace with the volume of orders for Studebaker's new cars.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 30 (AP)—Huey P. Long, governor of Louisiana, finds that silver baby cups are becoming one of the major items on his personal expense accounts. His salary is $650 a month and he estimates that 14 per cent of this is spent in purchasing these gifts.

Since his election last May, Governor Long has presented a cup to every baby in the state which is made his namesake. He says there now are 10 "Huey P's" and he believes the total will run well over 200 before his term of office expires.

He considers the naming of the babies after him as a barometer of the people's approval of his administration and does not mind the expense.

The list of babies includes one girl.

Bad Reception Is Due Faulty Tubes

"Impaired radio reception is in the vast majority of instances the result of neglected tubes", declares A. I. Folsom of the Folsom Company of Dallas, Texas. "The life of a tube varies with the quality of workmanship and materials behind it. The discovery by radio fans that the cheapest tubes do not necessarily have the life and activity of those more skilfully constructed is sweeping the Sylvania radio tubes into a popularity hitherto unconceived.

The Sylvania Products Company of Emporium, Pa., makers of Sylvania radio tubes, entered the southwestern market in June, 1928. Business began to grow by leaps and bounds. Five powerful territorial broadcasting stations were employed to carry the Sylvania's Foresters, official radio entertainers of the Sylvania Products Company to the radio fans of the southwest.

Close cooperation at both ends of the industry have done much towards bringing about this sudden popularity.

SET SALES DOUBLE

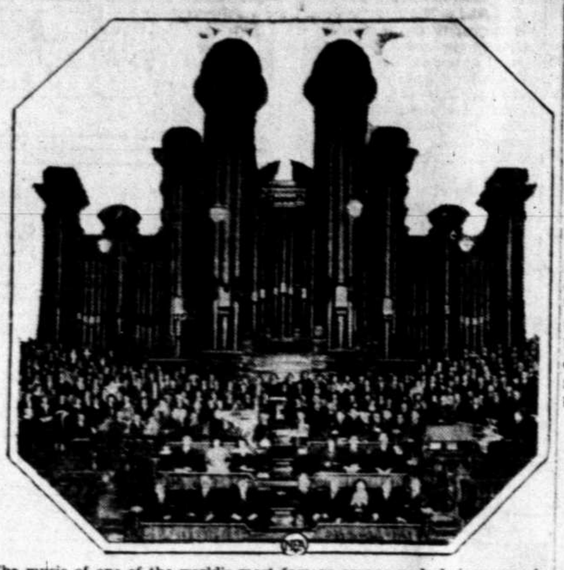

More than 2,550,000 factory built radio receiving sets were sold during 1928, representing an investment of more than $306,000,000. In 1927 only 1,250,000 sets were sold for $168,750,000.

SELL MANY TUBES

Radio tube manufacturers estimate that around 50,200,000 tubes were sold last year. The wholesale value totaled $110,250,000.

A representative of every type of music is being given in a 30-minute program from WBBM, Chicago, on Monday evenings.

Giant Mormon Organ On Air

The music of one of the world's most famous organs and choir groups is brought to radio listeners through station KSL, Salt Lake City. The organ is located in the Mormon tabernacle in that city and was constructed 60 years ago. It was built by early Mormon settlers out of white vertical grain pine and contains seven divisions. The choir, organized by President Brigham Young in early Mormon days, is composed of 200 voices.

Pennsylvania Congressman, Beck Pleads For Radio Left Unshackled By Restriction of Federal Censorship

Former Solicitor General Avers Restriction On Ether As Obnoxious As On The Press

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Censorship of radio or moving pictures "is as dangerous to democracy as the censorship of the press", in the opinion of Rep. James M. Beck of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States and president of the Washington chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, told members of the chapter that "so far as freedom of thought is concerned it make no difference whether thought is conveyed by the press, by radio waves or by pictures. In each case what is shackled is the human mind."

No medium of expression, he explained, has the right to subvert morals or advocate treason but existing law is ample to protect the public in these fields. "The power to punish for the abuse of the right of free expression presents a very different question from that previous restraint which forbids anyone to exercise the right without having acquired a license from the government," he said.

"Within the life of all of us two new media of expression, radio and moving pictures, have come into existence. They may prove more important in the development of the human mind than even the printing press. We live too close to them to present their infinite potentialities. They are the greatest gifts in their potential usefulness that have been made in our lifetime.

"If we devote our energies not to shackling these new forms of activity but to utilizing them for the welfare of humanity I can see a method of popular education promising much for the future of democratic institutions."

WGR, Buffalo, announces its fourth and annual all night program for Friday night, March 22. It also commemorates the station's seventh anniversary.

Anna Case will sing at the greater New Jersey dinner, which is to be broadcast April 4 by a state-wide network with WOR as the key.

The fourth annual barn dance callers' contest will be held by WLS, Chicago, Saturday night, March 23.

Radio Leads

Bests Airplane, Though Younger

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Even though radio is but a scant decade old, it has fast outgrown aviation, an industry established quite a few years before, according to David H. O'Brien of the Graybar Electric Company.

"Radio is probably the fastest growing industry ever known," he says. "Within a period of less than ten years, it has entered more homes than has, for example, the electric light in nearly half a century.

"Travel by air is still an experiment; radio in the American home has almost reached the stage of being a necessity."

Lopez, Whiteman Now Appearing On Broadcast Chains

Big Names In Radio Entertaining Line Recognized As Valuable In Putting Over Programs

Big names in the radio entertaining line are recognized as a valuable aid in putting across sponsored radio programs. The two major chains have demonstrated this. Columbia tied up Paul Whiteman and his band with a cigaret manufacturing concern. NBC has signed up Vincent Lopez to conduct an orchestra sponsored by a cigar manufacturer. These two band leaders are probably the best in the country.

Radio artists are just as human as the rest of us. A short biography of Charles L. Shepherd recently appointed musical director of KHJ, Los Angeles, reveals that his grandmother had to lock the windows and make him take off his shoes before she could trust him to take his piano lesson. After that Shepherd grew to like music, and started on a career taking him to Europe and throughout this country.

Titled Talent

British Leaders To Broadcast

LONDON, March 30—A committee of leading British savants has been formed to arrange a series of lectures over the British Broadcasting Company's system that will equal in quality the famous Romanes lectures of Oxford University and the Rede lectures at Cambridge.

On the committee, and available for lectures, are such British leaders as Lord Balfour, Sir J. J. Thompson, Sir William Hardy, Sir William Bragg, Sir Oliver Lodge, Lord Crewe, Dr. T. F. Tout and other famous philosophers, explorers, physicians, scientists and statesmen.

The first of the series of programs prepared by this group was a lecture on poetry by Robert Bridges, the "Poet Laureate" of England.

Pilots Now All For Broadcasts

Aviators Who Once Shunned Radio, Are Begging For It—Demanding Specially Equipped Planes

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Mail pilots who shunned radio a few years ago, now bank on its ability to get them through snow and fog on the dangerous Cleveland-New York route.

"The pilots kick like school boys when through some unforseen circumstance we are unable to furnish them a radio equipped plane," Lester D. Seymour, general manage of National Air Transport, Inc., says.

It has been amusing and gratifying to watch the pilots' change of attitude toward radio within the last few months. At first they refused it or reluctantly paid little attention to its operation. It was just another gadget to worry about on an already crowded instrument board.

"Several who used radio religiously or sought its aid as an emergency came back with stories of how they got through impassable weather with constant assurance that they were on their course and with accurate information on the weather ahead of them. Their confidence grew, and today it takes on the proportions of a religion with them."

The four antenna maids are added entertainers in the KPO variety program, given each Monday night.

Navy Broadcasts Radio Concerts To Nations Of South

Objects Are To Foster A Friendship and Strengthen Cultural Ties With The United States

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—To foster the friendship and to strengthen the cultural ties linking the United States and Latin-American countries, Pan-American musical programs will be broadcast by the navy for listeners in Central and South America.

The broadcasts will be made by NAA, the navy's powerful station at Arlington by executive order signed by President Coolidge just before he left office, at the request of Secretary of State Kellogg, chairman of the Pan-American union.

For several years the navy station has been broadcasting concerts of operatic and instrumental music at the Pan-American Union building here for the benefit of listeners in the United States. Latin-American listeners now will be able to hear native melodies sung and played by artists of their own country at the concerts in Washington.

The international radio telegraph convention, which became effective January 1, reserves certain frequencies for international broadcasting. Previously these frequencies have been used for broadcasting between the United States and Europe.

For the broadcasts to Central and South America the frequencies of 6,120 and 9,550 kilocycles will be used. These are in the short wave band while the transmission for American listeners in the United States is on 690 kilocycles in the broadcast band.

PICTURES IN THE AIR

Television programs are now being broadcast on a regular daily schedule from W1KAY, Lexington, Mass. Pictures are being sent from W8XAV, Pittsburgh, W2XAF, Schenectady and W3XK, Washington, D. C., three times a week.

Joe Negelm, baritone, is appearing on the evening programs of KMBC, Kansas City.

WWJ's Veteran

DETROIT, March 30 (AP)—E. L. Tyson, veteran announcer of WWJ, is known as "Ty" to all of his friends. He was born in Tyrone, Pa., 41 years ago and served overseas with the Twenty-eighth (Pennsylvania) division in the world war. He is married and has one small daughter.

Newspapers Buy Radio Forecast

PARIS, March 30 (AP)—The newspaper printed hour by hour in every home is not far distant, according to M. Rene Baschet, managing director of L'Illustration, president of the Paris Press Association.

He pictures a machine working something like the familiar ticker but by radio, occupying small space. Such an invention, adds M. Baschet will not replace the daily newspaper; it will be an adjunct. Morning and evening papers will explain in more detail the interesting events recorded by the home news-printer.

Tommy Monroe and Bob Allen have returned to KPO after a theatrical engagement in Los Angeles.

Towers of WTIC New Fifty Kilowatt Plant Loom To 700 Feet Above Level Of The Sea

HARTFORD, Conn., March 30.—Seven hundred feet above sea-level and on top of Avon mountain, WTIC's new 50-kilowatt transmission plant is nearing completion.

When the Federal Radio Commission granted "The Travelers" permission to erect the 50-kilowatt station, engineers had difficulty in selecting a location. In the first place, rulings made it impossible to erect such a powerful station within three miles of any thickly populated town. In addition, the interference of power lines, telephone wires, hills and bodies of water had to be contended with.

After a series of tests, in which interference, terrain and power absorption were determined, engineers finally selected the present plant site of land from 90 they had tested.

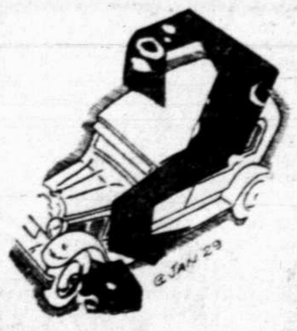

Here on top of the mountain the exterior part of the plant has been completed. It is 75 feet by 45 feet. Care in construction is shown in the interior parts of the building shielded by means of copper screening electrically connected with all structural steel, plumbing and specially constructed grounds.

The antenna presents a problem in construction. Being situated on the east coast, WTIC naturally is trying to divert most of its power westward. To do this, it is planned to construct a certain type of antenna that will send stronger waves westward.

There will be two and possibly three 200-foot towers supporting the antenna. These will be painted black and orange, with white stripes separating each color. This coloring is approved by the U. S. Navy as a guide to aviators. As a night guide, the towers will be lighted.

All programs to be presented by WTIC on the completion of its new transmitting plant will originate in its studios in this city, and will then be amplified and sent over special telephone wires to the transmission plant to be put on the air.

Family Troubles Aired In Divorce Suits Filed Here

"More disagreeable and painful experiences came to this plaintiff, by reason of his marriage to defendant, than ordinarily could befall a man in a year's time," partly reads a petition for divorce filed by the man, in the Ninety-Ninth district court here the past week.

The petition states that the couple were married in April, 1928, and only lived together one week thereafter, "at the expiration of which said period of time the defendant left and abandoned him." Furthermore he was told by her that she had not married him for love, but merely as a means of possibly getting a home; that she loved another man—in Oklahoma—and was going to him.

Others Not Printable

"And she told him that he was a common —— fool," and some other things not so printable.

In two more divorce suits, filed in the Ninety-Ninth district court the wives are given the blame for wrecking the ship of marital blessedness.

One suit gives forth the information that the two were married in 1902 and lived together until 1924, when, "without any cause that is or was known to the plaintiff, she informed him that she was going to leave him, and that she never did intend living with him again." And, the original petition for divorce says, she did leave and abandon him, and they have not loved together since.

The other divorce suit declares that the couple were married in 1924 and lived together until 1927, "when they separated on account of the conduct of her towards him. She became enamored with other men and associated with questionable characters.

Rodgers To Sing Here Apr. 11-12

Jimmie Rodgers, who sings "Blue Yodel," "Way Out of the Mountain," "In the Jailhouse Now," and other songs of that calibre and who is touted by his advance agent as having set Gene Austin back in the shade, is to sing at the Palace on April 11 and 12 at both matinee and night performances.

Rodgers makes Victor records and his records are "best sellers" of this company.

College Story Is Told In 'Red Lips'

Three hundred college freshmen temporarily left college to go into the movies during the filming of "Red Lips," Universal picture of campus life which will open at the Lyric theater today with Charles Rogers and Marian Nixon in the starring roles. The men were recruited with the aid of the studio casting office and the employment bureaus in the colleges. They are from the Universities of Southern California, California and Pomona.

"Red Lips" is reported to be one of the snappiest pictures of college life ever seen on the screen. It is the story of a shy freshman who falls in love with the fastest-going flapper of all the college "dates."

Jolson Sings Some Of Favorite Songs

Al Jolson, the world famous comedian making his screen debut in "The Jazz Singer" at the Warner Theatre in New York in October, scored the greatest success of his career. He says so himself.

For several years he has been urged to become one of the stars of the screen, but for some reason has resisted the appeal. When Warner Bros. offered him the star part in Samson Raphaelson's play, which depicts the story of the only son of a cantor trained to follow his father's career, running away from home to follow the dictates of his own desire to become a jazz singer, they did not know they were asking him to repeat in pictures the incident that developed his career on the stage. It is claimed that there has never been a picture on Broadway that has scored such a sensational hit.

"The Jazz Singer" will be presented here with Vitaphone. Patrons will have an opportunity of seeing this famous stage star and hearing him sing a number of the famous "mammy" songs, that have made the name of Jolson familiar throughout the land. The picture will open a four day engagement at the Palace theatre starting Sunday next.

It is the most utterly delightful and fantastic work since "Peter Pan" or "Treasure Island." And yet, thanks to the crisp, gripping style of the writer, the children of this book become more alive and real than any I have encountered. The youngsters have been living in the West Indies. A combination of earthquakes and tornadoes—both amazingly described—cause the parents to start the youngsters back for London. But enroute they are captured by pirates—and I never expect an episode which delighted me quite as much as that in which the chief pirate catches the children sliding around the deck of the ship and realizes that he and the crew will have to mend their torn pants unless they are stopped.

AND, of course, there's Joan Lowell's "The Cradle of the Deep" (Simon-Schuster), which is as refreshing as a sea breeze. And for more pastoral moments there is Henry Williamsons "The Pathway," a book which caused chieftains of the revolt against the monthly book selections. Williamson, who had been known chiefly as a naturalist, writes in the quiet fashion of Hudson's "Green Mansions." "The Pathway" is the story of a mystic, and the very difficulty of such a subject makes Williamson's book all the more praiseworthy.

Museum Is Planned For Tech College

A meeting to sponsor a movement for a museum at Texas Technological college has just been held. The geology department of teh college has already begun a collection of objects of interest in its own field, and it is the hope of the committee to create and sponsor similar action in every department and to help encourage donations of all kinds, but particularly all those whose origin is in the South Plains country.

A temporary organization was made with the following officers: E. A. Studhalter, president; Miss Lavina Johnson first vice president; Dr. John C. Granbery, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Dale Buckner, secretary-treasurer; Rr. M. A. Stalcup, curator.

The aim is to promote collection of materials by schools and departments. Each department will have cases for its own collections placed in the science building with the objects already on exhibit by the geology department. The home economics school will center its activities on the collection of costumes and pottery, but will welcome other donations in its field.

Young Men's Fancies Do Not Turn To Love In Spring As Tennyson Claimed, Youngsters At Tech Insist

"IN THE spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

So wrote the poet Tennyson nearly a century ago and people have been reading it and believing it ever since. And not only were the young men supposed to be victims of this strange malady, but girls too have been thought to allow their minds to dwell in like channels.

The main idea conveyed by the well known lines is that at only one certain time of the year, and that when "the robin's breast is a brighter crimson, and the dove is a livelier iris." Then does a young man turn his thoughts to that all-important idea of love.

Mrs. Doak Is Heard.

Mrs. Mary Doak, Dean of Women at Texas Tech, does not believe that there are any more girls turning their thoughts to love in the spring time than in the fall or winter seasons. She admits that the climate here may have something to do with the prevailing condition. If languid days came to this part of the country as is the case where other colleges are situated, the dean thinks that there is a probability of more "courting" being evidenced at the college, however, by the time the trees are fully green, the sparrows chirping, the days ideal for early promenading, the last term is drawing to a close, and thought of the ending of school enters the students' minds. Most senior girls say that graduation time is more important than a man.

The effect of balmy moonlight nights in the springtime is supposed to be quite disastrous to grade points. Even this theory has been exploded as grades in the spring are many times even higher than those made in the fall and winter terms. The reason for this is probably because the serious minded students want to apply themselves more faithfully to their final work for the year, and the care-free ones fear that if their grades are not up to the standard they will not be invited to return to college for another year.

Dean J. M. Gordon avows that while there is admittedly not a lessening of courting in evidence, there is decidedly not a decline, and added that "the youngsters were nice about their 'courting.'"

"Do my thoughts turn lightly to love?" inquires one young man whom many girls apparently languish for.

"Well, I should say not, because love-making to me is a very serious matter." This statement was balanced by another popular youth who declared that he had never been seriously in love. "I tell 'em all the same thing and the only time I ever court is on the dance floor," he declared.

Times Have Changed.

The writer Tennyson, who is guilty of such an erronous statement was discussed by several of the students. "He simply didn't know his stuff said one boy, "or maybe since his day times and women have changed. Why you remember he wrote of the men who used to have to battle with firce monsters in order to win the favor of a glance from the lady with whom he was in love. But today there aren't any monsters and instead the girls have to be fought off."

After the boys' version was heard the coeds chimed in. "I don't know whether Tennyson was such an authority on love or not," said one. You know he wrote of Galahad, whose strength was as the strength of 10 because his heart was pure. Well, I had rather have a man who is not so pure of heart and a little less of a butcher."

A current magazine comes forth with a sentence from a prominent New Yorker to the effect that 7 o'clock in the morning is the most crucial hour in a young man's life. This is the ideal time for the youth to make that most important decision that he has to make—namely, to what girl shall he propose marriage. The Tech boys scoffed at this idea, and some said that it was all they could do to make 8 o'clock classes on time, much less decide which girl they should honor with a proposal.

With all of their apparent disbelief in the famous utterance however, boys and girls alike have cast longing eyes out of the windows at the downpour of rain during the past week and greeted each other with the words, "This means that spring is coming and aren't you glad?"

That's Baloney!

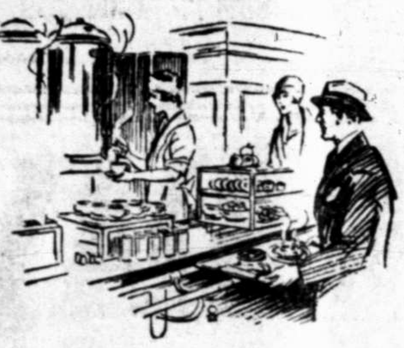

There's No Disease Of Spring Fever

Do you feel listless and inert? Are you languid and imagine that your symptoms put into writing would make a good advertisement for "before taking?" In other words do you think that you are a victim of "spring fever?"

Well calm yourself and rest assured that such is not the case because there is no such disease according to Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer.

"People who think that they are afflicted with that strange malady that they like to name spring fever are only retaining traditions believed in by our grandfathers," the doctor said. "All of the sulphur and molasses that was poured down the present generation when they were children might well have been left off for all the good that it did," he added. Dr. Rollo admitted that warm days certainly do have a tendency to make a person drowsy.

Dr. John C. Granbery, head of the department of Sociology at Texas Tech says that this peculiar feeling which we like to name "spring fever" is a physiological and psychological phenomenon resulting mainly from the change in climate during the present season. He pointed out that this change in human beings corresponds to the changes in plant and animal life in the spring.

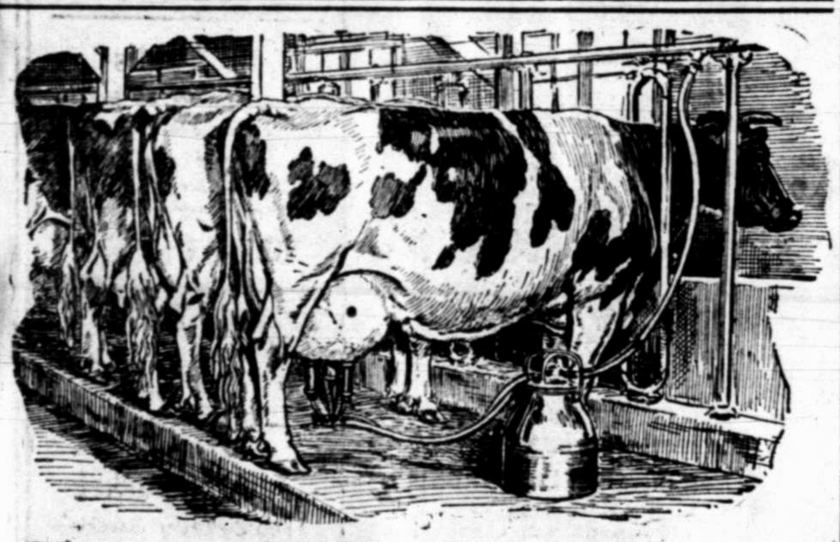

Don't Stint on GOOD Food!

The cost of good food deliciously prepared is not great—the difference does not warrant buying poor foods low in nutritious value.

It is only when you pay for service and "ritzy" surroundings that your meal is expensive. That's why so many people come here. They "help themselves" to fine foods at a mighty small cost.

Cleaner Milk with the De Laval Milker

CONSISTENTLY low bacteria counts are made throughout every season of the year by thousands of De Laval Milker users, many of whom are producing Certified, Grade A and other low count milks. The sanitary design of the De Laval together with the ease with which it may be thoroughly cleaned and kept clean are important factors in earning the regular cash premiums offered for the best grades of milk.

The uncertain element in the production of clean milk is eliminated by the De Laval. Barn air, dust and other bacteria-laden filth cannot come into contact with the milk. The few parts of the milker with which milk comes into contact are illustrated at the left. A few minutes' work usually suffices to take them apart and thoroughly clean and reassemble them.

These are the only parts that require washing

NO WOMAN EVER MADE A WISER DECISION

than the Lubbock woman who was in our store recently and said "I am through shopping around everywhere when I want some furniture, because I know now that I can always get what I want at the right price here." That decision will mean many a saving of many hundreds of dollars to that Lubbock woman and a great deal of satisfaction, because just as she said she will get what she wants at the right price here. Otherwise women will come to the same conclusion after they have looked over our stock carefully and compared our prices with others.

WE PAY LESS -- SO DO YOU

We can sell for less, because we buy our furniture for less. We do it by buying in carload lots direct from the factories of famous manufacturers; we pay cash for it, which means that we get the benefit of the discount on every piece of furniture; and another reason we sell for less is that our volume of business is so large that we can afford to take a smaller profit on each piece. Those are the reasons why we pay less and so do you.

LAST WEEK

We enjoyed the largest volume of business in the history of our business. Having delivered furniture in Hall county on the North; Lea County, New Mexico, on the West; Odessa on the South; Amarillo on the North and almost every town between these distant towns—and on the South Plains.
We are indeed grateful to the South Plains trade territory and this is further proof that IT ALWAYS PAYS TO TRADE WITH BAKER. BAKER is ever striving to merit the continued patronage of the entire South Plains by giving the GREATEST VALUES IN FURNITURE and THE BEST SERVICE. Giant Plane To Stop At Snyder

Ford Craft Will Vist On Scurry Capital's New Aviaton Landing Field Tomorrow

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SNYDER, March 30.—One of the largest planes now being used will land at the new Yoder field here Monday, a 16 passenger tri-motored all metal Ford plane, as a practical demonstration that Snyder's new airport is in suitable condition to take care of the largest planes now operating.

C. W. Harden, pilot of the plane, and the man who gave Col. Charles Lindbergh his first training in parachute jumping and worked with Lindbergh for two years at Lincoln, Neb., was in Snyder today and inspected the field as well as securing permission for the big plane to land here.

The big plane, which is scheduled to arrive here Monday morning at 9:30 from the San Angelo airport has been secured as an added inducement for Snyder's first trades day when county farmers are bring their surplus stock and impdements to town where they will be auctioned off free. In addition the plane is acting as an aid in getting the public air-minded and creating more interest in aviation. The arrival here of this monster bus of the air will also show commercial aviation companies that Snyder's airport can be used by any plane from the smallest to the largest.

Chevrolet Will Improve Service

DETROIT, March 30—In preparation for America's biggest motoring season, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced here today the development of a comprehensive program for the service protection of the millions of its cars that will be in use this spring.

Surveys made by the company indicate that automobile travel this year will break all mileage records; they show that the automobile will be called on to shoulder an increasing portion of the nation's transportation requirements and they point out that the automobile will pioneer its way this year into uncharted spots and secluded recesses, where until but a few years ago, service was miles away and frequently uncertain.

The bottom of Lake Superior, which is 1180 below the surface in some places, is 578 feet below sea level.

Airplane May Change Auto Design

Glenn Curtiss, Air Pioneer, Reveals Inefficiency of Modern Car by "Aero" Trailer

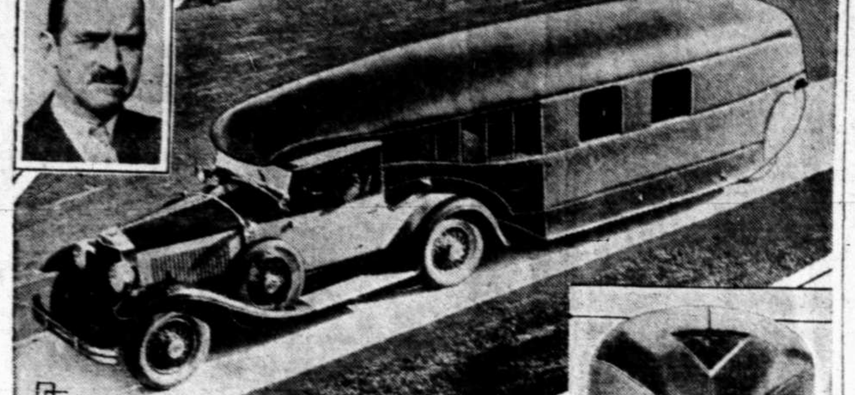

By NEA Service

MIAMI, Fla., March 30.—"I believe there will be a complete revolution in auto design very shortly. It will be based on a study of present day aeronautics"

This is the radical assertion of no greater authority than Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer aviator and airplane builder, whose 30 years of experimental research into both aviation and automotive engineering is still to reach its climax.

Curtiss bases his prediction on results he has established from recent experiments with a new type of motor vehicle whose design is predicated on that of the airplane. This vehicle, a trailer, hitched to a regular stock roadster, permited that car to travel at a greater speed than it did without the additional weight!

The secret of this achievement is its lightness and sturdy airplane construction. Curtiss calls it an "aerocar" and offers it as his solution to the modern demand for fast, comfortable camp cars busses and commercial vehicles. He has been working on it for more than a year. It was from tests of this car that he realized how much airplane design could help toward improvement of the automobile.

The speed of the roadster pulling the "aerocar" designed by Glenn H. Curtiss, air pioneer shown in inset, was increased, rather than reduced due, says Curtiss, to the adoption of airplane design in ts construction. This may be noticed particularly in the rear view at right.

No Advance On Buggy.

Curtiss goes so far as to say that, compared with the airplane, the automobile is a "horrible example" of inefficiency.

"The automobile today in some respects is not far advanced from the horse and buggy stage," he says. All it has gained in 20 years is power and reliability. It is no safer than the horse and buggy of 50 years ago. Perhaps the biggest safety factor in the modern car is the non-shatterable glass and the recent invention of all-steel bodies.

"The design of the motor car lends nothing to cut down wind resistance. At 60 miles an hour practically half of the motor's power is used to overcome this element. Paradoxical to the airplane, overcoming of wind resistance is the last improvement considered in the automobile. As a result, a minimum head resistance, minimum gas consumption, far superior engine performance and less weight to the horsepower are in favor of the airplane."

By shaping his "aerocar" like an airplane in front and back, Curtiss has been able to advance the speed of the roadster pulling it, despite its increased weight. In his tests along the Ta-Miami Trail across the picturesque Florida Everglades, he found his roadster could register a consistent speed of 75 miles an hour, when alone. With the 1500-pound trailer attached, however it made 83 miles an hour!

Curtiss attributes this increase in speed to its streamline effect in the rear, which minimizes the usual powerful suction that follows in the wake of the roadster.

"There is no more useful reason ofr some things in the modern style of the automobile than there is for the style of a man's necktie or a woman's hat," he comments. "Automobile style should be based on utility. As soon as we begin to follow the trend set by our most efficient form of transportation today, the airplane, the style of the American automobile is going to be such that it will speed up travel 100 per cent.

"There are only two things that prevent a car from going 1000 miles an hour. They are friction and head resistance. At high speeds 80 per cent of the power of the engine is used to overcome head resistance and the other 20 per cent is taken up by friction."

Criticizes Auto Cooling

Curtiss laughs at the efforts made toward cooling the modern motor.

"The modern radiator," he says, "is a fallacy. The cooling effect on the motor when the car goes with the wind and against the wind varies considerably, constantly changing the temperature of the motor. For instance, a car going up hill with the wind gets overheated quicker than a car going up hill against the wind.

"No fan can control the whims of nature or serve to keep the motor at a constant temperature. The flow or air should be kept constant and the pressure should be the same.

"Proper heating and proper temperature have as much to do in maintaining the efficiency of the gasoline as do many of its integral parts."

The airplane, Curtiss believes, will point the way toward increased efficincy in the automobile. But it will never take its place, he assures us.

"The automobile will never supplant the airplane and the airplane will never supplant the automobile. The function of the airplane is to make long, fast journeys," is the way he puts it.

Canadian imports from the United States during 1928 were valued at $825,741,000.

Great Sucess Of Auto Show Surpasses All Hopes

Dealers Pleased Over Support Of Exposition Here

President Kuykendall Says Every Retailer Hopes To Have Better Show During Coming Year

LUBBOCK'S first automobile show has closed its doors Friday night after more than 10,000 people from Lubbock and its trade territory had passed through on inspection of the most brilliant array of automobile designs ever assembled in the history of the Plains.

The fourteen local automobile dealers were unanimous in their acclaim of the overwhelming success of the show from every standpoint. From far and near came hundreds by thousands each hour to view and compare the various models and designs of 1929.

Exceeds Expectations

"Lubbock's first automobile show exceeded the fondest expectations of even the most optimistic member of the automobile association," G. P. Kuykendall, president of the association said. The great turnout proved beyond a doubt that the buying public is fully aware of the wonderful values offered by the automobile industry.

"We have already started plans to make of the 1930 show even greater than the one just passed. The 1929 show has set a precedent that will be hard to surpass, but the rapid progress in the automobile field will make this possible.

"I attribute a large part of the success of the show to the splendid co-operation of the Avalanche and Journal. These progressive newspapers have portrayed vividly to their thousands of readers throughout this section the progress of the show. Without this co-operation, the numbers at the show could scarcely have been half so many.

"To El Hoover, the Lubbock local auto dealers wish to express their thanks. The manager of the dance pavilion did everything within his power to make the occasion better for all concerned."

Rewards Come Early

This, coming from the president of the Lubbock Automobile Dealers association, is an expression from the entire company of dealers. Practically every dealer who was represented in the show has already realized in dollars and cents a nice reward from the effects of the showing of his product. Before the first day of the show was over, several dealers reported sales on new cars. Even more were closed Friday.

While the immediate sales were direct result of the show, local dealers realize the most valuable effect of the occasion is the enormous [illegible] of good will aroused. "Impressions were made on the minds of prospective automobile buyers that will affect sales for the next two months. Acquaintances were renewed that will entrench Lubbock dealers more firmly than ever in the confidence and trade of the trading mecca of the South Plains.

The reception given the show indicates beyond doubt that an automobile show in Lubbock will be an annual affair, incorporating not only the citizens of Lubbockites but the second pride of the entire plains population. In time it should become another that will stand out as one of the greatest attractions offered the city.

Earlys Of Racing Recalled

Old Time Speed Demons, In Their 'Horseless Buggies' Clocked Their Split Seconds Too

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 30.(AP)—A second today means much more than a quarter of a century ago—at least, it does to automobile racers.

Maj. H. O. D. [illegible] of England, present holder of the world's speed title, gained it March 11 when his low-hung "Arrow" roared down the course at an average speed of 231.36 miles an hour.

That was faster than the speed attained last year by Ray Keech of Phila[illegible] who took the title with a speed of 207.552 miles an hour. Yet if he had clipped only one second off Keech's record his feat would have been acclaimed. Keech, in fact, shaved .05 of a second off the former record of 206.956 held by Capt. Malcolm Campbell of England. And Campbell in setting that mark had nosed out Major Segrave by .2 of a second.

Back in 1903 beach racing first was inaugurated here with a galaxy of antique gasoline, electric and steam automobiles. Alexander Winton startled the world by sending his "Bullet" racer roaring over the sandy speedway at the rate of a mile in 1-5 seconds. That was speedy those days, but subsequent record holders had little difficulty in cutting one or several seconds off the record marks.

The old mile beach record mark was made making "Pirate" owned by R. E. Olds, pioneer manufacturer and driver who was one of the first to enter racing here 25 years ago, would present a humorous comparison to the huge "Golden Arrow" which Segrave drove to the present record.

The "Pirate" was a tiny, chain-driven car, without a body and mounted on small tired bicycle wheels with the driver's seat suspended from the frame in the rear, unprotected from the wind

Airport

Important Features

In a recent address before the Society of Automotive Engineers, John Nolan of Cambridge, Mass., an expert in city regional planning, attempted to outline the features that go to make up the ideal airport. Practically every one of his points, Berry points out, has been incorporated in the construction of the Cleveland airport, while one important feature, that of runways, has already been discarded as out of dae. Another significant development planned by Berry May be new to Nolan and even to the aviation authorities of the department of Commerce.

This latest development is the pavement of three concrete strips, each 100 feet wide. One would run directly in front of the hangars for the entire width of the airport—4,000 feet. The other two would extend out from the hangar line along each side of the airport for about 3,000 feet.

"These strips," Major Berry explains, will enable pilots landing in any direction to taxi back to the hangars safely out of the way of departing or arriving ships."

Names Requirements

Outside of this innovation of Berry's, Nolan enumerates the following essentials in the construction of an airport:

1—The port must be easily accessible by modern highway and railway.

2—Adjacent buildings, within 350 feet, should be no higher than 50 feet, to afford a safe gliding angle of 7 to 1.

3—The higher the altitude the larger must be the field, as the rare air delays acceleration and take-off of planes.

4—A level plot with unobstructed approach in all directions and with turf of firm texture is essential. A light, coarse soil is most suitable.

5—The field must have at least 2,500 feet of landing distance in any direction.

6—The location should permit easy expansion with increasing needs.

7—All wires must be underground.

To these Major Berry adds the important feature of drainage. The Cleveland field may be taken as a model in this, too.

Along the middle line of its length runs a 48-inch sewer. Across the field and draining into this large sewer are smaller drains laid 400 feet apart. And running into each of these smaller drains, like a fireman's scaling ladder, is a series of small French drains of crushed stone set 20 feet apart.

Thus quick and complete drainage of the entire field is maintained even in the worst weather.

Weather Equipment

Of great importance, in addition to these essentials, is the weather and radio equipment maintained by the U. S. weather bureau and the department of commerce. Berry prides himself in the contention that he has the best equipped airport weather bureau in the country. This includes not only the regular weather observing apparatus, but a high powered transmitting station which broadcasts the latest weather reports to pilots along the New York to Cleveland airway every hour.

The station has a teletype reporter which is directly connected with the weather bureau at Washington, a modern radio beacon and a direction finder for the location of ships in flight. In addition, apparatus at the port and in some of the mail planes permits of direct ship to ground communication, while other radio apparatus has been installed for the guidance of planes in flight, day or night.

An administration building is to be completed by the middle of May. It also will be a model for such structures. In the basement of the airport depot—which is what the building may be termed—will be extensive rest rooms for men and women, besides the necessary heating and other apparatus. The main floor will have an observation dining room looking out on the field, a large waiting room and ticket offices, a first aid room, a customs and immigration office—for Cleveland is a port of entry—and a post-office.

Pilot's Hotel

The second floor will have six sleeping rooms for pilots, baths and showers, a pilots information office, weather bureau, radio remote control, general and private offices and the field manager's emergency sleeping quarters.

On the roof in the center of the building will be the control tower where a man will be stationed day and night, operating the neon landing tee, the neon signals and the other controlling lights on the field. He will be the "traffic cop" of the airport.

This administration building will complete the line of buildings along the front of the Cleveland airport. The left side will be next in construction of additional hangars.

U. S. Optimistic, Sales Head Says

PONTIAC, Mich., March 30.—Completion of a 16,000 mile trip to America's leading merchandising centers has definitely settled the mind of W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales of the Oakland Motor Car Company, that the United States has embarked upon what bids fair to prove its year of greatest prosperity.

Particularly is this true of the automobile industry, generally accepted as the most sensitive barometer of business, of which Mr. Tracy said that it shows every promise of eclipsing any previous year by a sizeable margin.

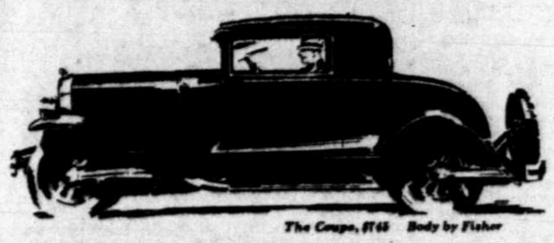

On the road almost continuously for two months, Mr. Tracy visited 150 Oakland-Pontiac dealers in all parts of the country, in addition to nine district and three regional offices, touching at such representative trading areas as New York, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Seattle, Dallas, Chicago, Memphis, St. Louis, San Francisco.

If all the outlying possessions of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, could be combined into a single area, they would total less than the area of the state of Montana.

Will Introduce New Automobile

General Motors Corporation Will Present The Viking In Near Future, Rumor Declares

The Viking, a new automobile—entirely new in every particular and a product of General Motors Corporation—will be introduced within a fortnight.

This announcement was made today by T. J. Reuter, president and general manager of Oldsmobile, a division of the General Motors Corporation. The new Viking will be manufactured by the Oldsmobile company and will be a companion car to the successful Oldsmobile Six.

The outstanding fact contained in the announcement is that the new Viking will introduce the V-type, eight cylinder power plant in a car of the medium priced field. Heretofore the V-type eight has been a feature in only automobiles of the higher price range.

Issues Statement

Mr. Reuter's statement follows:

"General Motors and Oldsmobile shortly will introduce a new and distinctive automobile to the motoring public. It will be named the Viking and will be manufactured by Oldsmobile and sold by Oldsmobile dealers as a companion to the Oldsmobile Six. The new automobile will represent three years' development by both General Motors and Oldsmobile engineers and designers.

"As early as 1926 we visioned a coming demand for a fine eight cylinder automobile of General Motors quality which could be sold at a moderate price. Our engineers started to design such a car with the entire resources of General Motors—its engineering staff, research laboratories and proving ground—at its disposal.

Rumor Pins Hup To Aviation Mystery

News of a mysterious event, about which only the vaguest details are known, has emanated from Detroit—automobile capital of the world. Directly, the information connects Hupmobile with aviation. Indirectly, according to advice thus far obtainable, the event will concern dozens of prominent persons throughout the United States.

Officials of the Detroit automobile company have refused to comment on the rumor or disclose the future plans of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation relative to the event. Likewise they have refused to indicate what connection the company will make with civil aviation.

It has been learned, however, that Hupmobile will stage its greatest single driveway of Straight Eights on April 17 and 18. This driveway, it is understood, will provide for the personal delivery of more than 150 Hupp Straight Eights to purchasers or their representatives from the Chicago territory.

LARKS POPULAR

Mocking Birds Also Are In Favor Through U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP).—Meadow larks and mocking birds are favorites the country over, Mrs. Katherine B. Tippetts of the general federation of women's clubs finds as a result of a nation wide campaign to have each state adopt an official bird.

Most of the southern states chose the mocking bird, while most of the middle west selected the meadow lark. California named condor and the District of Columbia chose the wood thrush.

Sales Record Set By Graham-Paige

Production Total Is Now 21,880 Equalling All Of Year Factory Output In 1927; Beats Last Year

DETROIT, March 30—This year's production of Graham-Paige motor cars reached a total of 21,880 cars on March 20, equalling the entire year's production of the factory in 1927, before the Graham-Paige was presented by the three Graham brothers.

Last year, when the factory attained, on May 2, the total of the previous year, it was regarded as a remarkable achievement of the new management. This year, the same total has been reached just 40 days earlier.

Olds Shipments Again Increase

LANSING, Mich., March 30—Again new high records of production shipments and sales of Oldsmobiles are reported by factory officials, March records exceeding all previous figures. Co-incident with the statement of production gains, the officials announced work was being started on a new shipping warehouse containing more than a quarter of a million square feet of floor area to provide additional shipping facilities for the rapidly expanding business.

More than 13,000 Oldsmobiles were produced and shipped during the month just closing, factory officials report. This is approximately 4,000 more Oldsmobiles than were produced and shipped during March, 1928, showing an increase of about 44 per cent.

ON AUTO ROW

USED SALES PICK UP

Used car sales have been picking up rapidly during the past week, Lubbock automibile dealers reported at the close of their business Saturday. General signs of prosperity, especially that of a bumper crop, is taken as the cause for the improvement in business conditions.

MANY ARE SOLD

The majority of local dealers have reduced their investment in used cars considerable since the opening of the spring buying season. This has been the result of a combined effort on the part of all dealers to cut down the used car stock before the heavy spring season gets under way.

SLAUGHTER IS PLEASED

Jo Dick Slaughter, of the Slaughter Buick company, reports that the used car situation in Lubbock has been greatly relieved. The local Buick dealer has been disposing of the used models at a rapid pace during the past two weeks and is now in a position to talk trades. It has been necessary on the part of the Buick as well as other dealers here to shut down on used cars for a short time until the stocks were reduced, he stated.

ADDS SERVICE DEPARTMENT

Travis Bailey, who has recently joined the Lubbock automobile fraternity, plans to operate a complete service department in connection with the Packard and White Truck agency here. However, his chief business will be to sell new machines. G. D. McKenzie, a Packard expert, will assume the managerial duties of the local concern on April 10.

SHIPMENT IS EXPECTED

A new shipment of Packards and White trucks is expected within the next few days, according to Mr. Bailey. These will be shown at the temporary location at 713 Texas Avenue. The new dealer will divide his time between Lubbock and Roswell, N. M., where the headquarters for his eastern New Mexico agency is located.

SALES ARE REPORTED

Hub Jones of the Hub Motor company reports the sales of a Hudson sedan to H. C. Sprong, local cotton broker, and an Essex coach to R. A. Logan, also of Lubbock.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Gas Suited For Winter Is Goal

Process To Evolve Perfect Cold Weather Motor Fuel Is Sought By Experts Of Government

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30 — The Department of commerce through experts at the bureau of standards has undertaken a study of the best types of gasoline to use in automobiles during the winter season.

The value of each gasoline for winter use is determined by studying the fuels boiling point at various pressures.

At sea level, water boils at 212 degrees while at the top of Mt. Everest, where the atmospheric pressure is much lower, water will boil at 160 degrees. At every pressure water is known to have a different boiling point. When water begins to boil at a certain pressure, the temperature remains constant until all the water has evaporated.

With alcohol anti-freeze solution, however, it is known that the alcohol boils off more readily than the water and consequently the temperature of boiling changes. Gasolines are still more complex mixtures which rapidly change temperatures as the more volatile constituents boil off, the difference between the temperature at which boiling starts and that at which the last drop evaporates sometimes being 200 degrees.

Air must be removed from gasolines when they are being tested as to their value for winter use, because dissolved air in the gasoline will cause it to bubble as in boiling before it reaches its true boiling point.

The tests so far have shown that the boiling points of air free gasolines at the same pressure differ widely. This means that some types of gasoline will be found more suitable for motor use in witnter than other kinds.

FORD WASTES NOTHING

DETROIT, March 30 (AP).—Henry Ford throws nothing away. Fourteen by-products of automobile manufacturing are included in a report showing that the Ford company saved $16,774,672 in 1928 by making commercial use of everything from slag to sawdust.

The first substantial cement factory in the Netherlands was put into operation during 1928. It has a capacity of 3,00,000 tons a year.

HOW'T SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAL KLEIN

BY ISRAL KLEIN
Science Edit, NEA Service

Arrival of spag again reminds us of our duties o our automobiles if we would wa to have them in as efficient anclean condition as we got them iginally. Spring cleaning applie as much to the motor car as tthe home. Done systematically ad thoroughly, we may be assured comfortable and carefree motorit during summer.

Perhaps the st act in preparing the car for sumer driving is to undo what hadeen done to assure its efficiency uring the winter. This applies especially to the cooling system an the lubricants in crankcase, tramission and differential. It aries also to battery charging and carburetor adjustment.

The cooling stem requires draining of its antifreezing content and cleaning of thentire system before it is refilled vh fresh water. If alcohol has be the anti-freeze, the solution may e discarded. But if glycerine has een used, it can be drained into pail or other receptacle and tored for use next winter. The lution has not been affected by a winter's driving and is almost as go as new, except for some rust an dirt it has collected from the sysm. This settles to the bottom, hower, so that the clear fluid can be ained off when needed.

Draining f the system isn't all, however. It ould be cleaned thoroughly with baking soda solution —about a cuful to the capacity of the system. his solution should be retained in he system while the engine is kr running for a while, and then drned out. This will carry away all sc scale and rust that has accumuted in the system over winter.

The practe of cleaning out the coolling syst with soda should be repeated ev six months. It will prevent closing of the radiator with rust and eventually eating holes in the thin pi lines by the impurities in the syste.

After draing the soda solution, fresh wat should be poured through the system while the drain cock below is kept open and the engine is nning so that it may wash out a the rust and other impurities the soda has loosened up. When the flushing water comes through clean, the pet cock may be closed and the system filled to the top.

Similar thorough cleaning is needed for the transmission and differential. The lubricant in these cases is of a lighter texture than that required for summer driving. A heavier oil or grease must be used in order to make up for the thinning effect of the summer's heat, coupled with the heat from the gears, has on the lubricant.

But before changing to heavier oil, the transmission and differential cases should not only be drained, but cleaned well with kerosene. The constant grinding of gears causes a deposit of metal from them in the cases. This should be flushed out, or they will cause worse wear on the gears.

Kerosene, therefore, is advised for cleaning out the grains of metal in both cases. The car should be driven about with the kerosene in the transmission and differential until sufficient time has been given it to to loosen up the oil and metal that might have stuck to the gears or sides of the cases.

Then the light oil can be drained and the proper summer grease installed. Care should be taken not to put in more lubricant than is necessary—just up to the the inspection hole in the difrerential and the transmission.

If the radiator shutter is removable, it should be taken off, for the radiator needs all the cooling surface possible. The fan belt should be tightened and if it shows signs of wear it should be renewed

If the radiator hose connections are worn, they, too, should be replaced with new couplings and the clamps shculd be tightened.

With these changes there need be no worry over proper cooling of the engine or effective lubrication of the transmission gears.

Nash Announces Two New Models

Distinguished Seven-Passenger Sedan And Dashing Roadster In Special Six "400" Line Named

KENOSHA, Wis., March 30. — Nash Motors company has added two new and important models to its moderate priced, Special Six "400" Series line—a dashing roadster and a distinguished seven-passenger sedan. The roadster supplies an unusual type of open car charm, and the new sedan supplies closed car spaciousness and luxury heretofore unequaled in its price class.

The introduction of both models, powered by the famous Nash twin-ignition high compression, valve-in-head motor and distinguished by the many engineering and equipment features which Nash alone offers, rounds out the company's great "400" Series line and adds two brand new achievements to a manufacturing success never before equaled in Nash history.

Roadster Is New Type.

In the sparkling new roadster the company has produced a new-type model that meets the American open car ideal in every line. High waisted and low seated it is a rare combination of style and comfort for people who like copious doses of blue skies and winding, beckoning roads with their motoring mileage. It is a trim wide-awake car, designed with long, sweeping body lines, actuated with hair-trigger acceleration. In appearance it is a color symphony of rich, deep cedar and beige, the fenders and upper body in the new cedar shade, and center side panels in beige. Five wire wheels in bright orange are standard equipment. Their special design includes extra large hub caps with hub nuts skillfully concealed. Horizontal louvres in the hood, and chromium plating of lamp brackets, lamp tie rods and upright posts in addition to all other bright metal parts on the car, gives it additional charm.

"The rest of us are struggling to keep, as nearly as possible, in a class with these modern successes."

"About 150 years ago began the machine era. Since then everything has accelerated it—first steam, then electricity, now gasoline.

"One man can do the work of 10 of our ancestors.

"Creature comfort has become our god.

"There can be no going back. We must push ahead, trusting to emerge into a new age—of the spiritual—not the old one. That is gone forever.

"Or—we are near the end of things."

"And how?

"Perhaps we shall destroy one another in a war for markets.

"Already a small fraction of our population can produce enough for all the rest. England is not far behind us. All western Europe will equal us soon. Japan is industrialized. But China, Russia and India are not even under weigh. Their industrialization is inevitable in the near future.

"With every great country in the world producing many times what it can consume, the struggle for customers must be terrific.

"The natural remedy would be to curtail production, with more leisure for everyone, but we shall not arrive at that solution while we continue to regard commercial supremacy as mankind's greatest blessing.

"War is a likelier outcome—not the old war, but a war which will exterminate populations."

"Or destruction may come economically.

"Let a point be reached where work is available to but a small share of the world's peoples and society will be threatened, not quite so quickly, but just as surely.

"Revolution can not help. It paralyzes. It does not cure.

"Indeed, we see social decay today, from race suicide and the packing of families into apartment houses —home life obsolescent."

"I see no hope but in a spiritual revival.

"I do not mean religious. I mean ethical.

"Christianity has been so twisted that it no longer means much. What it does mean is not suited to this situation.

"We need a revival which will turn men from concentration solely upon material production. Why should a worker continue to turn out automobiles after he already has made too many? Why not a few hours of leisure?—which does not necessarily mean lying abed or stuffing one's belly. There is beautiful work to be done, as well as useful."

Chrysler Plant Is Taken By De Soto

The entire passenger car manufacturing facilities of the Chrysler Motors plant in Highland Park at Detroit has been taken over for the exclusive production of the De Soto Six, according to an announcement this week by company officials.

The big Highland Park plant is built on a site covering an area of more than 53 acres. One of the most complete manufacturing institutions in the industry, it has been used in the past for building other Chrysler Motors products as well as the De Soto Six. The million and three quarters feet of floor space in Highland Park has now been set aside for De Soto in anticipation of the heavy volume of sales predicted for the coming year by dealers and officials of the company. Approximately 1,500,000 feet is used exclusively for manufacturing. The remainder is devoted to offices.

The mean or average altitude of the United States is about 2500 feet above sea level. The range in elevation is from 14,501 above sea level to 276 below.

THIS IS THE NEW Roosevelt

MARMON-BUILT

The world's first Straight-Eight under $1000 . . . Now on display

Roosevelt Five-Passenger Sedan, providing faithful, economical transportation in a more advanced manner

THE long awaited is here . . . The year's most impressive achievement of America's fastest moving industry is brought to public view . . . The move so freely predicted has now actually happened—Marmon has built a straight-eight to sell (at the factory) for less than $1000.

There have been any number of four cylinder cars at this price . . . Today there are many sixes at this figure . . . But there is only one straight-eight—the Roosevelt.

A REMARKABLE ROAD CAR . . . Fifteen minutes over a rough road will prove to you how completely the new Roosevelt upholds the Marmon tradition of producing "the easiest riding cars in the world."

And it is but natural that this first low priced straight-eight should come from Marmon. Marmon, for more than three years has devoted its central efforts toward simplifying and making the straight-eight a practical, economical and long-lived car for all to own.

Consider First Its Beauty

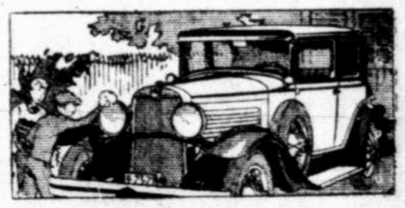

The first time you see the Roosevelt you are sure to recognize it as a new achievement in smart, yet thrifty, transportation. It's low and in the modern manner. No conflicting lines—but from radiator to back end one graceful line follows straight through. Marmon has taken the attitude that a $1000 car can be just as stylish in appearance, just as modern in appointment as a car costing twice this amount.

Roosevelt Performance

Marmon has made sure that the Roosevelt should measure up to the time-famed standards of Marmon performance. The Roosevelt motor is a straight-eight, built completely in Marmon plants. It develops 70 horsepower—far more power than any other car in its price field.

There are no waits while the motor is picking up the load—few hills that require a gear shift—no place any car of the price can go that the Roosevelt can't go in even less time. The Roosevelt will outperform any other car in the world at its price.

The Roosevelt follows in all fundamental points Marmon proved features of design. No detail was taken for granted. Every feature was proved and reproved by testing in the Alleghenies, the Rockies, the deserts and on the Indianapolis Speedway—the most severe proving ground in the world.

The Roosevelt Victoria-Coupe four passengers, one of the four smart yet practical body styles.

County Manager Plan Is Now Urged

Richard S. Childs, Promoter Of City Manager Plan Turns His Attention To Plan For Countys' Use

By HOWARD P. JONES
Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, March 30.—Making democracy "democ" is the hobby of Richard S. Childs, president of the National Municipal League, but better known as the father of the city manager plan.

He now is advocating the county manager plan.

"This new county manager business," he explains, "is not new, but it's just had its first real tryout.

"As is generally known, the list of county officers comprises the least interesting and least important within the gift of the people, so much so that in hundreds of rural counties some of these offices attarct no candidates and remain unfilled term after term. The party bosses, therefore, are undisturbed in their control, and use the patronage and contracts undisguisedly for their ka) which did not entwine the old county government structure inextricably into its constitution. To reconstruct meant passing a set of a dozen technical amendments, and where was the state-wide interest that could be invoked in such a dull cause?

own continuance in power. The county is the unit of bossism. Your state machine—look at it—is not a unit but a federation—of county leaders whose power at home is so scarce that they affront the state chairman unafraid.

"The reformers' lack of attention to county government is explained sufficiently by the legal refractoriness of the problem. Until recently there was only one state (Nebras-

"So behind its technical defenses, that made every endeavor at modernization unconstitutional, county government has remained the same in structure and almost the same in spirit as when it was first evolved a hundred years ago to provide primitive machinery of local justice for the farming and mill-village countrysides of pre-railroad days!

"The county manager plan simply is the principles of business applied to county government. The board of directors, board of supervisors, or whatever you want to call them, meets and determines policy, and hires a manager to run the business. If the manager does a poor job, he gets fired; if he does a god job he remains in office. Consequently, his whole motive is to make a god record for himself. He has sole responsibility for administration; that is, the actual carrying out of the policies adopted by the board. His aim is to render the most efficient and least expensive service possible.

"As for knowing whether it's any good, we have one example. In 1927 North Carolina passed some excellent legislation looking toward the improvement of county government. One of the acts provided that the board of county commissioners might employ a county manager. Several counties took advantage of this in various ways, but Davidson county is the most important because it decided it was a case of whole turkey or none.

His View of County

"Davidson county was in just as bad a fix as most of our counties. Each board came into office ignorant of the financial condition of the county and went out of office not much enlightened.

"At the present moment, the future of the Davidson county manager plan is in doubt, due to a change in political control, but look what happened in one year: the tax rate was reduced, the county deficit was practically wiped out, the government was simplified, and the citizens were saved large sums through centralized purchasing and the calling for bids.

"Some of the savings effected speak for themselves: under the old system tax scrolls cost $181; the county manager paid $39. Tax abstracts formerly cost $8.50 per thousand; the manager got them for $4.25. The tax rate dropped from 1.25 to $100 valuation to 1.20 the following year, and to 1.17 in 1928.

"Under the old system, the county's credit rating was C. It jumped up to A. The county actually made short term loans in New York under the manager plan at 4 1-2 per cent!

"That was the beginning. Now movements are under way in Oklahoma, Ohio, Iowa, Oregon, North Dakota and Missouri legislatures. The next few years should see a vast change in our county government."

ing pictures.

L. F. Craft is making an addition to his brick building on Sweet street in which he and J. C. Burdette will install a modern steam laundry plant. H. B. Howell has just completed rebuilding the Anchor Filling Station, which was partially destroyed by fire a few weeks ago.

Seventeen New Homes

Seventeen new residences have been erected or are under construction for the following: Harold Edwards, E. M. Swan, L. F. Craft, Chas. F. Shook, J. H. Henderson, Chas. Doo, C. H. Crouch, Mrs. J. H. Holloway, Miss Amanda Leedy, R. W. Fenton, jr., D. H. Goodnough, O. L. McHorse, Thomas Brothers, A. G. Freeman, Herman Turner, and Clarence Crouch. Permits on none of these residences have been for less than $2,000.

The city of Tahoka is making a number of minor improvements. The house of the city were recently numbered, and street name plates are being put up at all street intersections. Contract has been let for an additional block of paving. A number of new plants have been set out in the city park, which is only two blocks from the court house square.

The State Highway Department has thrown up an excellent dump on Highway No. 84, leading into town from the east, which is to be extended from the Garza county line on the east to the Terry county line on the west.

A new roof for the Lynn county court house has just been completed at a cost of $1,050.

The Tahoka Chamber of Commerce has started a sidewalk building campaign, and committees are now at work on a move to lay several additional miles of concrete sidewalks, preparatory to making an effort for free city mail delivery.

City Is Beautified

The city is being beautified otherwise by the planting of hundreds of trees, evergreens, shrubs, and perennial flowers.

Financial conditions in Lynn county are reported by business men as being exceedingly good for this time of the year, due principally to the fact that farmers have taken a greater interest in dairy farming and poultry, turkey and hog raising. Also, the county raised the largest feed crop in 1928 in its history, in addition to a 34,217 bale cotton crop, the second largest on the South Plains this year, in number of bales. Lumbermen and contractors predict that the next few months will witness the most building this town has ever had in any one year.

Building Permits Climb At Floydada

$18,000 Automobile Service Station Will Be Built In Floyd County Capital By Lubbock Contractor

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, March 30.—Building permits in Floydada for March climbed to a new high level this week when E. S. Randerson announced an $18,000 automobile service station and two stores to be built on California and Wall streets. Previous to the permitto Randerson the total for the month was $71,000, which included two brick business houses and a number of residences.

The Randerson building will be constructed by Miller and Scott of Lubbock and will be a large automobile service garage and two 50x50 foot store buildings.

The three other brick business buildings, permits for which were issued this month, are the White and Boothe theater and drug store building on West California street and the J. R. Readhimer business building on the same street and the Floydada creamery building on Wall street.

Plant Eats Meat

It Dies Without Steak Diet

LONG BEACH, Calif., March 30 (AP)—Chrysamphora dallington, a meat eating flowering plant found by W. K. Moore has developed temperament under the influence of cultivation.

Mr. Moore discovered it in the Washington mountains, here he says it lived on flies, other woodland insects and even small snails and worms. It snares them in a funnel shaped gullet.

Under cultivation Moore declares this plant dies unless supplied with choice bits of steak, chicken and other delicacies. The plant has a hollow stem, at the base of which is a receptacle that digests the animal diet.
