Health plan to tax benefits

Proposal would target extended coverage

■ According to administration officials, Clinton's package would tax above-basic insurance as income.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Administration officials said on Saturday that workers would have to pay federal income tax on health benefits provided by an employer if the benefits exceed those in the standard package to be guaranteed to all Americans.

In addition, they said, employers could not take a tax deduction for the money they spend on such extra benefits.

These proposals represent a sharp departure from current law, under which employers can take a tax deduction for all their employee health insurance costs, and none of the benefits are counted as taxable income for workers.

The administration had hinted that it wanted to limit employers' tax deductions. But it was expected to avoid offending workers by rejecting a proposal to count some of their benefits as taxable income. The proposal is likely to provoke strong reactions, particularly from organized labor, whose support for the president's plan is essential to its approval on Capitol Hill.

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin bureau

■ Analysis

AUSTIN — As Labor Day 1993 approaches, the future of the Texas workforce to the year 2000 and beyond can be described in one word: change.

Workers in some industries will lose their jobs, other industries will hire thousands of new employees, businesses and the state will assist many people in retraining, and some will go back to school and switch careers.

Researchers and state officials say the following will characterize jobs and the workforce for the foreseeable future:

■ U.S. employers and employees will face continuing challenges from other nations in a world of greater economic

Festival brings bluegrass to Texas

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

ANDREWS — Music lovers brought a slice of Kentucky to West Texas this weekend during a three-day Bluegrass Festival at the Andrews County Park.

Ten bluegrass bands from across the Permian Basin and New Mexico have picked and grinned since Friday night and don't plan to stop until this afternoon.

"There ain't nothin' better than being down here. It's a family affair. We come for the fellowship," said Nelson McGee, a member of San Angelo's Concho Grass. "Heck, I've always been a country music fan. I got into bluegrass about 15 years ago."

McGee, who plays the flat-top guitar, said his five-member band attends festivals all across the state.

The fourth annual Andrews event — held each Labor Day weekend — had attracted an estimated 2,500 people by Saturday afternoon, according to band coordinator Jim Brown — leader of the bluegrass band "Windy Mountain."

"I love the music. I remember hearing it on the radio as a boy growing up in Oklahoma. I taught myself to play it," Brown said. "It's a spinoff from country."

Technically, bluegrass is a folk derivative of country music that is typically played on banjos and guitars in rapid tempos with jazz-like improvisations.

"It's an uplifting kind of music. That's the thing about bluegrass. People who like it seem to be positive and

New administration fuels fire of rising religious movement

EDITOR'S NOTE — Religious conservative movement is busily nurturing one of the strongest grass-roots political organizations in decades. Part one of a series.

CHESAPEAKE, Va. — In the ashes of George Bush's defeat, a young political organizer named Ralph Reed saw the seeds of revival. "For Christians," he says, "without a crucifixion there is no resurrection."

Insurrection may be a more fitting word to describe Reed's ultimate political goal for the Christian right, but the Biblical metaphor is fitting: His is the business of mixing religion and politics.

The movement is one of the country's most intriguing and controversial political forces. Still young, its po-

PBS seeks educational success, offers week-long school specials

By Myra Lee Salcedo

The future belongs to the educated and to the teachers who electrify their students, according to public broadcasting.

In a quest for successes in education and for solutions to problems plaguing American schools, a week's worth of "Back to School" specials will air on the Public Broadcasting Station.

"Each year as kids leave the playgrounds, come indoors, and start preparing for another year of school, PBS offers a week of educational programming," said Karen Santos Freeman, PBS manager of education in Alexandria, Va.

Lawyer's secret life unravels with mysterious death of wife

ATLANTA (AP) — Sara Tokars suspected her husband was having an affair. She peered into his secret safe and discovered a shadowy world of cocaine, money laundering and sex. She wound up dead, shot in the head as her two sons watched.

Fredric Tokars insists he's the pawn of conspiracy-happy police and his wife's vengeful family. Prosecutors said he and a host of underworld characters ran a drug network, laundered the proceeds through nightclubs named for high-profile athletes and killed Mrs. Tokars because she knew too much.

"This was an execution," said

FUEL: Rising religious movement mounts strong organization

tential in elective politics has barely been tested.

This year, in virtually every state, Christian conservatives are using evangelical and fundamentalist churches — along with direct mail and television fund-raising appeals — as bases for a sophisticated organizing effort that merges eager activists with state-of-the-art training and communications.

The primary target is local politics — typically school and library boards, state legislatures, precinct and county Republican Party organizations. Already, conservative Christians can claim significant political success:

—Effective control of Republican Party operations in a handful of states, including Iowa, Virginia, South Carolina, Minnesota and Oregon. They hold considerable sway in many more, including California, Texas, Pennsylvania and much of the South.

—Majorities on a small but growing number of school boards.

—Top dollar fundraising. The movement is reaping tens of millions of dollars, fueled by opposition to President Clinton's policies.

—The sympathy of an expanding network of churches that distribute voting guides and encourage political activism.

—Carefully cultivated voting lists, which help boost voter turnout and can make the difference in low-profile local races.

The explosion of political activity by religious conservatives helped Ronald Reagan to two landslide presidential victories. One of the movement's own, broadcaster Pat Robertson, bid for the 1988 GOP nomination — and in the process awakened more activists.

The most militant activists are blamed, in part, by moderate Republicans for President Bush's defeat last year, because of their high profile at last year's GOP convention. Religious right leaders dispute that, but many still believe a broader agenda is the path to a softer image.

"The pro-family movement has limited its effectiveness by concentrating disproportionately on issues such as abortion and homosexuality," Reed wrote recently in the conservative Heritage Foundation's Policy Review. His prescription: Recruit minorities, mainline Protestants, Catholics and conservative Jews to the Christian Coalition by spending more time — and money — on health care, taxes, crime and other issues.

Some religious conservatives are wary of the approach, worried the shift in emphasis will offend the movement's most loyal followers. Said Martin Mawyer of the Christian Action Network. "Our supporters want groups out there to protect them on the social issues."

This debate over the movement's long-term course comes in a year in which the Christian right's immediate agenda is packed with state efforts to limit homosexual rights, restrict abortion access and reshape America's public schools.

Democrat Clinton has given the movement fresh impetus, with his advocacy of abortion rights and his proposal to allow gays in the military.

"We can't let a misguided army of liberals and homosexuals make a mockery of our country, a mockery of moral values, a mockery of God's laws," reads a fund-raising letter from one televangelist allied with the Christian right, James Kennedy of Florida's Coral Ridge Ministries. "God's people will not be locked into silence by Satan."

To movement leaders, their role is no different than the AFL-CIO is to union members or the Chamber of Commerce to businesses.

"This whole angle and tone of using the religious right, in a negative way, is very bigoted," said Tom Armstrong, a state legislator in Pennsylvania. "Some people say we shouldn't legislate morality. That is ridiculous. Every single piece of legislation has some moral impact."

At issue in this debate is the public soul-searching over the most divisive of political issues — abortion, homosexuality, sex education, censorship, pornography, school prayer.

"It is quite clear that religion and especially the salience of religion to people makes a big impact on how they vote," said James Guth, a Furman University political scientist who has studied the religious right and its evolution from the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority into the more sophisticated movement of today.

Ralph Reed, 32, is Robertson's top political lieutenant, directing the Christian Coalition from a modest office in a southern Virginia industrial park. The offspring of Robertson's 1988 presidential campaign has chapters in every state, more than 400,000 contributing members and the names of another 300,000 people who have corresponded with the Coalition or taken part in some of its activities, Reed said.

Besides the Christian Coalition, the movement has dozens of organizations with their own leaders and agendas.

Robertson's influence is rivaled by a man unknown to most Americans, James C. Dobson. He is a child psychologist whose Focus in the Family organization — and nationally syndicated radio program of the same name — is a growing force.

Dobson eschews the spotlight and generally steers clear of the polarizing rhetoric that often brings attention to less powerful movement leaders. But his reach is enormous. Nearly 1,800 radio stations broadcast his daily program, which Dobson often offers as a platform for other Christian conservatives. Focus on the Family magazine and other Dobson publications reach more than 2 million homes. And the Colorado-based organization has an annual budget approaching $80 million.

Another key organization — a spinoff of the National Association of Christian Educators — carries the deliberately benign name of Citizens for Excellence in Education.

Chinese vessel receives clean grade on cargo

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Saudi officials apparently found no suspect cargo in a search of a Chinese freighter the United States claimed was carrying chemical weapons materials for Iran, sources reported Saturday.

They said that some chemicals that could not be identified were found among 628 containers aboard the 19,237-ton Yin He. But these did not appear to be part of the consignment U.S. intelligence claimed was bound for Iran.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the chemicals were taken to laboratories for analysis. They gave no other details.

Sha Zukang, head of an eight-member Chinese foreign ministry delegation which aided the Saudi inspectors, told reporters in Dammam that no chemical weapons ingredients had been found aboard the Yin He.

He said American officials had "signed to the results" that the ship was clean.

The United States is trying to block the sale of arms and other technology to Iran, which it accuses of sponsoring international terrorism and trying to acquire weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons. China has been a key arms supplier to Iran in the past.

The U.S. government claimed last month that the Yin He was carrying at least 24 containers of thiodiglycol and thionyl chloride to Iran. Those chemicals can be used to make mustard gas and nerve toxins.

Washington initially insisted that it search the Yin He. Beijing refused, but later agreed to allow the Saudis to conduct the search. That search ended Saturday.

The diplomatic wrangle has further strained relations between Washington and Beijing.

Sha said China was considering asking Washington "to apologize, pay compensation and pledge not to repeat the situation in future."

Speaking in Chinese through an Arabic-speaking Chinese interpreter, Sha declared: "As usual, the Americans intervene in what does not concern them."

Storms covered the Gulf and East coasts on Saturday, and showers were scattered from the Northwest onto the northern Plains.

Much of the rest of the nation enjoyed fair, sunny Labor Day weekend weather.

Strong thunderstorms produced heavy rain along the Alabama and Mississippi coasts, the National Weather Service said.

Showers were also scattered over southern Idaho, northwestern Utah, northeastern Nevada, southern North Dakota and northern South Dakota.

The heaviest rainfall reported during the six hours up to 2 p.m. EDT was 0.92 of an inch at Millville, N.J., the weather service said.

WEEK: PBS to show back-to-school specials

(From 1A)

"PBS's educational programming is making a difference by expanding the universe — from classrooms to virtually every home in America," she said.

Beginning tonight, PBS specials will feature a 13-year-old violin virtuoso, an award-winning math teacher bucking the odds by succeeding in educating seventh-graders in poverty-stricken East Harlem, celebrities performing comedy sketches encouraging viewers who dropped out of high school to go back and get a GED (General Education Diploma), a performing arts magnet school, and a show exploring a grass-roots movement for school choice.

"This week's programs will take you from the schoolhouse of a Lummi Indian, to the laboratories of the next generation of American scientists to the intergalatic golf courses of the next millennium," Ms. Freeman said.

The PBS spokeswoman said the most outstanding show of the week may be "Something Within Me" (that is to air at 7 p.m. Wednesday on KOCV-TV in Midland and Odessa). Winner of the Audiehce Award, the Filmmaker's Trophy and a Special Jury Prize at the 1993 Sundance Film Festival, the show focuses on a school that immerses children in performing arts.

St. Augustine, a Catholic grade school in one of the poorest sections of the South Bronx, offers a curriculum with rigorous instruction in music, art and dance, along with a traditional academic schedule.

Regardless of talent or ability (there are no auditions for admission) students study music theory, learn piano and a second instrument, play in an ensemble, sing in a chorus and take humanity courses.

The goal of the curriculum, according to educators, is not to "turn out professional musicians, but to graduate eighth graders who have discovered the satisfaction of learning and have developed the discipline and self-confidence to overcome the difficult environmental challenges of crime, violence and poverty in the South Bronx."

In the course of eight years the school has tripled its enrollment. The school — which is 96 percent African-American with the remaining 4 percent Asian and Hispanic — now boasts the highest reading and math scores in the district. The school once had the lowest test scores in the district and came close to shutting its doors before it developed the new curriculum that integrated the arts into all subject matter.

Other PBS specials focusing on education include:

■ "High School Stories: One Day in America's Schools" — This features the story of Adeleine Rodene, a Haitian immigrant who has found a place that encourages her to be herself in a U.S. high school. She is one of seven different high school seniors featured in this special that travels to six schools and one home school. One student learns from a Bible-centered curriculum taught to him by his mother at home. Another student attends the Harvey Milk School in New York City that was established for gay and lesbian youth who felt threatened at other schools.

Another segment of the show focuses on a student attending a small school in Ocracoke Island, N.C., which has only seven seniors.

"High School Stories" airs locally at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

■ "Good Morning, Miss Toliver" — Operating out of East Harlem Tech, award-winning middle-school math teacher Kay Toliver demonstrates that one inspirational educator can help students reach their full potential.

The 30-minute program follows the teacher and her charges into the East Harlem community where they explore mathematics in architecture, business and the environment. "I do in life what I always wanted to do — teach," Ms. Toliver said in a press release.

"Today's competitors are formidable: television, video games, rap music, and the hustlers on the corners of East Harlem streets. This is stiff competition, but I think of myself as a winner and so are my students . . My goal is for students to see the wholeness of math and how it relates to every aspect of life. I do this by allowing them to discover."

PLAN: Health package would tax benefits

(From 1A)

Unions have fiercely resisted these limits, or tax caps, saying their members gave up wages to get comprehensive health benefits and would be unfairly penalized if extra benefits were taxed as income. The unions have adhered to this stand even while acknowledging that any extra wages would be subject to taxes.

Alan V. Reuther, legislative director of the United Automobile Workers, which is now engaged in contract negotiations with the Big Three automakers, said on Saturday: "We are strongly opposed to the taxation of any health care benefits."

Robert E. McGarrah Jr., director of public policy for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said on Saturday that the union's 1.3 million members had health benefits substantially more generous than those in Clinton's standard package. "We have consistently told the administration that the tax cap would be a big problem for us," McGarrah said. "We will fight it."

The administration is aware of the political risks in trying to limit tax breaks for health benefits. But Administration officials say they see such curbs as necessary to encourage more cost-conscious behavior by consumers, workers and businesses.

Moreover, the officials say that, under Clinton's plan, all Americans would eventually be entitled to comprehensive health benefits, including all medically necessary hospital and doctors' services.

The officials said that young and old alike would be entitled to insurance coverage for prescription drugs under the Clinton plan. Such coverage would start in 1996, they said. Many people would have to pay the first $250 of drug costs, plus 20 percent of any drug charges beyond that; insurance would cover the remainder.

SECRET: Wife's death leads police to husband

her father, Dr. John Ambrusko of Bradenton, Fla., who only gradually suspected his son-in-law was involved in the killing.

"Originally, I didn't think it was Fred. . . . I had admired Fred. I thought he was a young, aggressive guy trying to get ahead."

Now it seems Sara Tokars' death is proving the unraveling thread that is fraying the neatly woven fabric of her attorney husband's precisely ordered world.

Mrs. Tokars, 39, and her two sons were kidnapped Nov. 29 as they returned from a Thanksgiving vacation in Florida.

A man forced Mrs. Tokars to drive away from her home in suburban Marietta and shot her in the back of the head. The car crashed, the gunman fled and Ricky Tokars, 6, helped his little brother Michael, then 4, out of the wreckage and ran for help.

Several weeks later, a cocaine addict named Curtis Rower told police he had killed Mrs. Tokars for $5,000 — paid by Tokars' business partner, Eddie Lawrence.

The next day, Christmas Eve, Tokars attempted suicide. Police began calling him an "unindicted co-conspirator," his in-laws sued to block him from $1.75 million in life insurance on Sara, and the news media made Fred Tokars a household name in metro Atlanta and southern Florida.

"Please leave us alone," Tokars pleaded to reporters. He distributed pictures of him and his sons frolicking on a Florida beach, saying they were a family trying to put their lives back together.

Ten days ago, Tokars, 40, clad in a T-shirt and shackles, faced the TV cameras again, arrested on charges of murder, kidnapping, trafficking cocaine, money laundering and racketeering.

And prosecutors began weaving a sordid tale of a frightened wife who discovered her husband was using his legal expertise to help drug dealers set up a cocaine network from Detroit to Miami.

"They are trumped-up charges based on lies," said Tokars' attorney, Jerry Froelich, who declared he would prove police forced Lawrence into falsely blaming Tokars.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Buddy Parker is producing everything from photographs to telephone records that he says illustrate Tokars' secret, illegal life.

Tokars told a fellow lawyer "that these drug dealers have no education, that they are stupid and they need somebody 'like me' to make sure their monies are invested and the IRS cannot trace them," Parker said at Tokars' arraignment last week.

Parker contends Tokars laundered drug proceeds through businesses, including nightclubs bearing the names of Atlanta Braves outfielder Deion Sanders and Atlanta Hawks basketball star Dominique Wilkins. Neither athlete is implicated in Tokars' alleged deals.

Meanwhile, cracks appeared in the the Tokarses' marriage. She had to account for every dime and wasn't allowed a checkbook or credit card or to resume her teaching career, her family said. In 1989, a frustrated Mrs. Tokars hired a private investigator, who discovered her husband was having an affair.

Then she discovered his secret safe in the basement. She took pictures of wads of money and documents that prosecutors say show Tokars stashed $1 million in offshore accounts under his sons' names.

The pictures went to one of her sisters, with instructions to keep them safe. She gave the rest to the investigator, telling him to take them to the police if anything happened to her.

Last fall, Tokars asked Lawrence to find a hit man, Lawrence testified last week as part of a plea bargain. Prosecutors said Tokars phoned Lawrence on Nov. 29 to tell him what time his wife would return home from Florida.

Friends said Tokars could never have killed his wife. He was "hysterical" after her death and couldn't fall asleep without his own mother at his side.

But Emily Sherwinter describes Tokars as a legal mastermind always looking for a way to get rich quick who so frightened her that she dissolved their law partnership last year.

Days after the slaying, she told police, sobbing, "In my gut, I know it's Fred."

"I then wondered, 'How could a man do that in front of his children?'" she told the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "It's so depraved, so far beyond basic human instincts."

WORK: Forecast calls for change

competition.

■ The trend toward more service jobs and fewer manufacturing jobs will continue, at least for the short run, as companies seek cheaper labor in other nations. Nonetheless, the United States is, and will remain, the No. 1 manufacturing nation in the world.

■ If approved, the North American Free Trade Agreement with Mexico will affect Texas, both in jobs lost and new jobs created, more than almost any other state.

■ The era when someone could settle for a high school diploma and still make a good living at high-paying assembly line or oilfield jobs is about over.

■ Employees will need more education and greater skills in the future, even for the most simple jobs.

■ Staying with one company until retirement is a thing of the past. Most people will change jobs several times before settling in one they like, and many will return to school and change careers.

■ To avoid paying company benefits, particularly health care, businesses will continue the shift toward using temporary and contract workers rather than hiring permanent employees.

In short, the traditional workforce, like the traditional family, is changing.

The number of women entering the workforce during the past 20 years already has been a major force for societal change.

And as the number of minorities, particularly Hispanics, increases in Texas, education and job skill levels will become even more important as minorities occupy a larger share of the workforce.

School officials estimate minorities will outnumber anglo students in Texas public schools by the year 2000.

According to Comptroller John Sharp's office, Hispanics will comprise 36 percent of new entrants to the labor force from 1980 to 2000, blacks will represent 11 percent, white females 30 percent and white males 23 percent.

In the face of such change, the state is trying to adapt and meet the challenges.

At the suggestion of the Texas Department of Commerce, Gov. Ann Richards pushed, and lawmakers approved, legislation this year to create the "Smart Jobs Fund."

In 1991, the commerce department and Texas Industrial Development Council surveyed 350 chief executive officers around the nation.

The study revealed that the presence of a competent and skilled workforce was the single most important factor business leaders considered in plant location decisions, ranking well ahead of "cheap" labor.

happy people," McGee said.

Silver Grass band member Bill Myrick — who doubles as master of ceremonies for the festival — said the key to its success is the family atmosphere.

"We don't sell alcohol on the premises here. We don't want any rowdies. These are just a bunch of good old folks who want to put their feet up and relax awhile," he said. "This nice weather sure makes it fine to do that."

Other bands at the festival — which will end around 2 p.m. today — include: Kays Brothers of Hobbs, N.M.; Star Canyon of San Angelo; Gore Brothers of Big Lake; Big Sandy of Brownfield; Pecos Valley of Artesia, N.M.; Spring Fever of Odessa and Midland; and the Sandhills of Odessa.

PLO's top faction OKs peace with Israel

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The PLO moved closer Saturday to a final vote on a landmark accord with Israel on Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho. PLO chief Yasser Arafat proclaimed on Israeli TV, "Peace has started."

Arafat, who said mutual Israeli-PLO recognition is near, won support for the plan Saturday from his Fatah faction, the PLO's strongest group, and from Jordan's King Hussein, triumphing over opponents who say the pact is a sellout.

In Israel, tens of thousands of Israelis waving banners reading "Our people are with peace" rallied Saturday in Tel Aviv in support of the plan, which was. approved by the Israeli Cabinet on Tuesday.

Organizers said there were 110,000 demonstrators, the largest rally since hundreds of thousands of Israelis took to the streets to protest against Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

In Saudi Arabia Saturday, the Organization of Islamic Conference, representing the world's Muslims, also welcomed the PLO-Israel peace plan.

Arafat gave no date for the mutual recognition, but said it would be "very soon."

Israel Army radio said Saturday that the two sides have agreed on Sept. 13 as a target date. In Washington, State Department spokesman Mike McCurry confirmed that date has been "floated." The United States has been largely left out of the talks that led to the PLO-Israeli plan.

In a rare interview Saturday with Israel TV in Tunisia, Arafat shook the hand of reporter Yoni Ben-Menachem and said "Let's meet in Jericho." Asked whether peace was on its way, Arafat said: "Peace has started."

The Fatah Central Committee approved the Gaza-Jericho plan over the opposition of some members, Arafat told reporters at his Tunis headquarters.

At least six influential members of the 18-strong committee adamantly refused to accept the plan.

PLO sources said the six warned Arafat that he has ignored at his peril the status of Jerusalem and not provided for the return of the 3.5 million Palestinian refugees, two highly cherished and emotional issues.

Muslims flee as Bosnian bloodbath resumes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A wave of bedraggled Muslim refugees, some showing signs of torture, streamed out of central and southwestern Bosnia on Saturday while Croat and government forces battled for land.

The Muslims were apparently driven from Croat-controlled districts ahead of a possible agreement to divide the Bosnia into Croat, Serb and Muslim states.

Talks on such a division collapsed last week in Geneva over territorial issues, provoking fears of more intense fighting in Bosnia. But Bosnia's Muslim president, Alija Izetbegovic, said Saturday on a visit to Turkey that he expected the Geneva talks to resume in two weeks.

Sarajevo and other fronts were fairly quiet Saturday. Serb forces, who now control 70 percent of Bosnia, seemed content to leave the fighting to Croat and Muslim-led government forces.

United Nations officials said fighting persisted in Mostar, the main city in southwestern Bosnia, after a two-day truce collapsed in intense shellfire on Friday. Fighting also was heavy in Gornji Vakuf, 40 miles to the north.

The violence forced the closure of routes used by aid convoys to central Bosnia and Sarajevo, the capital.

A refugee wave was cresting in Jablanica west of Sarajevo near an area where expulsions had intensified in late August, said Ray Wilkinson, a spokesman in Sarajevo for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

The road from the last Croat checkpoint into Jablanica was strewn with personal belongings, "indicating the civilians had ... fled in terror,' Wilkinson said.

Pope lands in Lithuania on first leg of historic trip

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Pope John Paul II launched the first papal visit to the former Soviet Union on Saturday with an appeal for reconciliation in a country he described as "martyred" by 50 years of Soviet occupation.

"With great emotion I have just kissed the soil of Lithuania, grateful to God for the gift of being able to come among you," John Paul said after arriving from Rome for a seven-day tour of the Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

His visit to Lithuania held special meaning for the Polish-born pontiff, whose drive for human rights in his homeland contributed to the fall of Communism across Europe.

In 1984 and 1987, the pope sought to visit Lithuania, the Roman Catholic stronghold in the Soviet Union. But the Moscow leadership blocked the trips.

"How deeply I have longed to visit your land, which is particularly dear to me," he said. He praised the "silent witness of a passionate love for religious freedom."

Tens of thousands lined the motorcade route under gray skies that turned to rain shortly after the 73-year-old pope drove by. Catholics make up about three-quarters of Lithuania's 3.7 million people.

"I just caught a brief look at him. But what a personality! He's something special," said Zitas Stankevichas, a policeman standing along the pope's route. "It was like it was in the Soviet army when some special general came to see your troops. You had to be very prepared."

The pope was greeted at the airport by President Algirdas Brazauskas, a 60-year-old former Communist who crossed himself and kissed John Paul's ring.

Just five days ago, Moscow withdrew the last of its troops from Lithuania, removing a possible source of friction during the papal visit.

"After 54 years our country has become absolutely free," Brazauskas told John Paul. "This is a very significant and symbolic coincidence."

But about 15,000 Russian troops remain in Latvia and 4,000 in Estonia, the next stops on the papal trip. The U.S. Congress has threatened to cut off aid to Russia unless they go home.

Fans in Taiwan cheer Jackson despite rumors

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Michael Jackson electrified 40,000 fans Saturday night and beamed when a teen-age girl clambered on stage and pressed his cheek to hers.

Jackson went on singing "She's Out of My Life" until the unidentified girl was led away. Then he wiped his eyes with his sleeve, hunkered down on-stage during the instrumental and held his head in his hands.

The audience, certain that Jackson was crying, roared "Michael! Michael!" to encourage him to come back on stage. The entertainer reciprocated the warm feelings by calling out, "I love you," and treating the audience to a fireworks display seen all over Taipei.

The fans packing Taiwan Municipal Stadium clearly were unswayed by allegations in Los Angeles that he molested a 13-year-old boy.

"I love him no matter what they say about him," 13-year-old Kevin Chiang said.

In another show of support, Jackson's parents and four of his brothers and sisters flew Friday from Los Angeles to Taipei and had a two-hour lunch with the singer before he set out for the stadium Saturday.

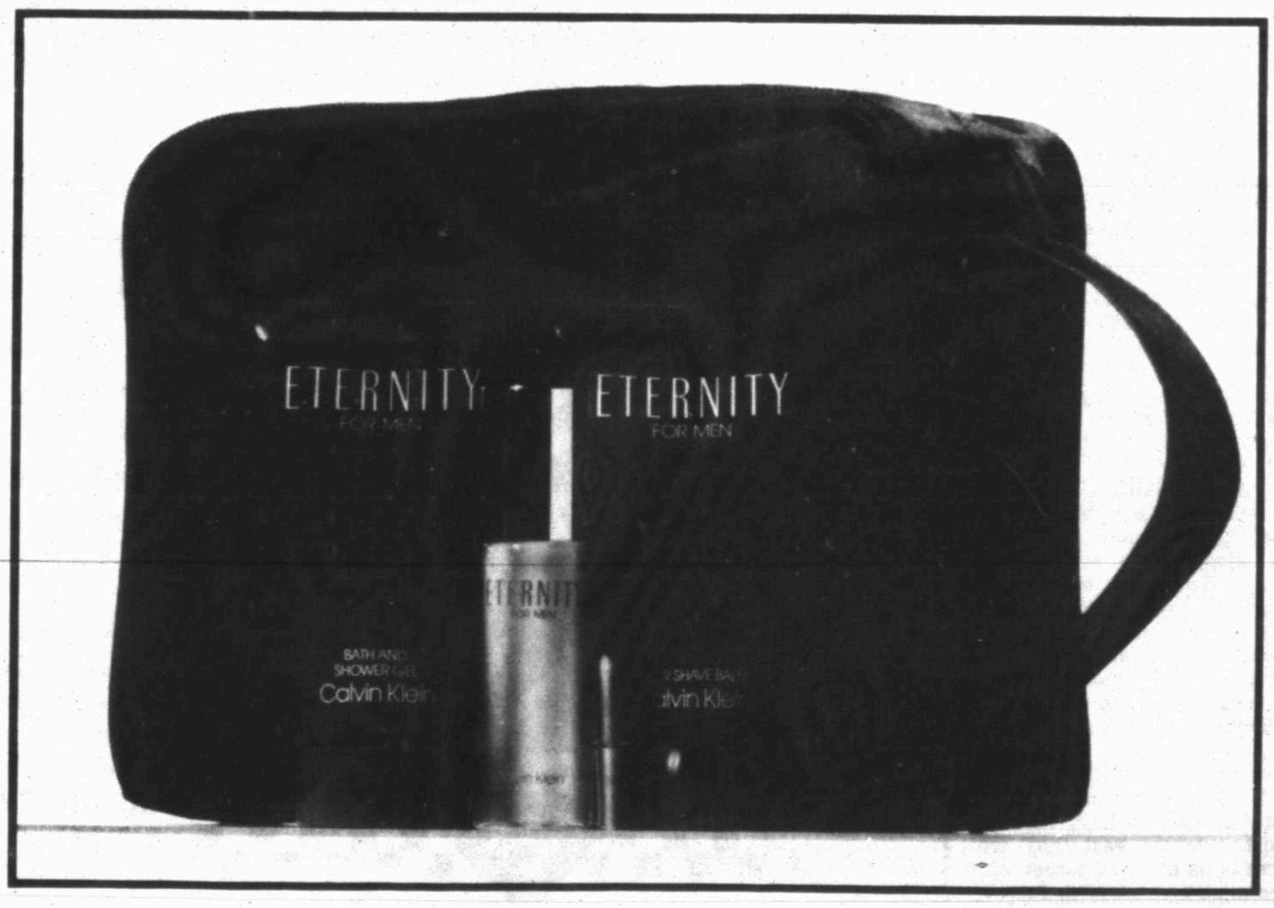

Jackson had postponed his concerts in Bangkok and Singapore, pushing back the Taipei performances to Saturday and Monday.

His publicists, doctor and family said migraines and dehydration caused by tropical heat were to blame, not the child abuse allegations.

The singer's aides claim the allegations are part of an extortion scheme by the father of Jackson's young accuser.

In a brief encounter with photographers as he left his hotel for the stadium, Jackson covered his eyes with his hand but gave a V sign.

"He's fine," said his father, Joseph Jackson.

Argentine police arrest Clara Borowick Wednesday for being a suspected leader of the Children of God religious sect. Some charge the group with being a 'sex cult.' Authorities, however, release 13 detainees Friday because of a lack of evidence. Sect members claim they're victims of religious persecution.

Authorities in Argentina continue 'sex cult' inquiry

William H. Heath
Associated Press writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Prosecutors studied video and computer recordings, books and pamphlets Saturday in a search for evidence against members of the Family, a sex-oriented religious cult.

But officials said testimony by former members alleging sexual abuse of minors, incest and prostitution offer the strongest evidence against the cult, founded in California in 1969 and now scattered throughout the world.

Seventeen adults, 12 of them charged with conspiracy to kidnap and conceal children, and more than 100 children, ranging from infants to teen-agers, remained in custody.

Reports following nearly a dozen police raids on Buenos Aires area cult residences Wednesday have placed the number of detained children as high as 268.

Court officials have refused to release names and explained discrepancies by saying early counts were based on passports. They said many children have multiple nationalities and passports and were counted more than once.

The Buenos Aires newspaper Pagina 12 quoted Federal Court Judge Roberto Marquevich on Saturday as saying that medical tests so far had failed to show any children had been physically or sexually abused.

Court officials said Marquevich would begin interrogation of the 17 adults Monday.

Thirteen adults were released from custody on Friday. One, Enrique Lacuesta, an Uruguayan citizen, told reporters that prosecutors couldn't prove any of the charges and accused police of planting pornographic video cassettes during the raids.

"We are strictly forbidden, under penalty of excommunication, to so much as touch a minor in a sexual manner," Lacuesta said.

Confiscated material included 280 video cassettes, audio cassettes, computer diskettes and extensive printed and graphic material, police said.

Former cult members have charged that members were forced to prostitute themselves to attract new members and to help pay bills.

"Sex is the fundamental and most twisted doctrine that the community has," former cult member Lizzi Romanone told local news agencies. Female members were obliged to "have relations and practice free love as a form of sacred prostitution."

Report: Turkey prepares for war against Armenians

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Prime Minister Tansu Ciller will ask Parliament to wage war if Armenia attacks Nakhichevan, an Azerbaijani enclave on the Turkish border, a newspaper reported Saturday.

The army, meanwhile, said it was drawing up contingency plans.

The tide of the 5-year-old war between Azerbaijan and Armenia, two former Soviet republics, has turned against the Azerbaijanis over the past year. Christian Armenian forces have routed Muslim Azerbaijani troops and taken control of the ethnic Armenian enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh in Azerbaijan and several surrounding Azerbaijani towns.

Late Friday, Armenian forces captured another Azerbaijani town — Goradiz, a few miles from Iran — despite a truce and warnings from Turkey and Iran, Azerbaijani Defense Ministry officials said Saturday. The Armenians have denied breaking the ceasefire, hammered out last week.

Turkey, a secular Muslim nation, sympathizes with Turkic-speaking Azerbaijan, but has been wary of risking confrontation with Russia through unilateral military intervention. Tehran fears the conflict will spread across its northern border to its own large Azerbaijani population and minority Armenians.

Turkey has put its troops on alert along its northeast border with Armenia and Iran, Turkey's neighbor to the east, has sent forces to its northern border with Azerbaijan to check further Armenian advances.

"If one spot of Nakhichevan is touched, I go to the parliament and obtain authorization for war," Ciller said in an interview with the Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet.

Nakhichevan has a common border of seven miles with Turkey. Referring to a 1921 border treaty with the former Soviet Union, Ciller said Turkey had guarantor power over Nakhichevan, which is part of Azerbaijan but separated from it by Armenia.

The prime minister said she would discuss the crisis with Russian officials during her trip to Moscow next week.

Col. Dogu Silahcioglu, spokesman for the Turkish Chief of Staff, said in a statement Saturday that the Turkish army was developing plans to activate units.

San Diego reviews sex industry rules

SAN DIEGO (NYT) — Forty San Diego residents recently received a very odd invitation: the police wanted them to accompany some officers on an adult-entertainment tour. So on four evenings last week the group, picked out of the telephone directory, went to an ocean-front bar and watched topless dancers and then crowded into a peep show at a sex parlor on the city's east side.

The evening was part of a $10,000 study to re-evaluate the vice squad's enforcement practices of businesses like peep shows, massage parlors and bars with nude dancers. The tour was to determine whether people were offended by what they saw or whether the city's regulations reflect standards that went out of style with bobby socks and the Hula-Hoop.

Nancy Baldwin, 50, a leasing consultant and a parent, found what she saw sad. "I burst into tears as I walked out of there," she said, recalling the visit to the peep show. "You see a woman behind a glass window who's going to do anything you tell her to do. I felt so sorry for that girl."

But like most of the people on the tour, she felt that police time and taxpayer money can be better spent on more important things than handing summonses to nude dancers accused of violating the city vice code. The one concern she and the others had was whether crime was linked to the sex business.

"If there is no correlation this whole thing is a waste of money," Ms. Baldwin said. "If it's not hurting anybody then leave it alone. If there is no victim, there is no crime. All these nitpicky rules seem utterly ridiculous."

Ms. Baldwin's mother and father were taken aback by her participation. "My parents had a fit. They just thought it was someplace I shouldn't be." But even in this affluent coastal city long dominated by conservative politics and military families, people are growing more tolerant.

Marcos wake attracts crowd in Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Hundreds of Hawaii's Filipinos converged Saturday for a daylong wake for Ferdinand Marcos before his body is flown to the Philippines.

The casket was carried into a high school auditorium past an honor guard of about 50 Filipino-American World War II veterans. It was then placed on the stage, where the former Philippines president's son and sister accepted condolences from those filing past.

Marcos died in exile in Hawaii in 1989, three years after he was ousted in an uprising that installed Corazon Aquino as president. Since then his body has been housed in a temporary crypt while his family awaited permission from Philippine officials to bring it home.

Mrs. Aquino refused a Philippine burial. But current President Fidel Ramos approved on the condition that the body be buried in Marcos' home province, Ilocos Norte.

Ramos also ruled out state honors befitting a former president because of Marcos' reputation as a corrupt dicatator. During his 20-year rule, Marcos imposed martial law, suspended civil liberties, arrested thousands of opponents and allegedly rifled the national treasury.

Final prayers and tributes were scheduled for Sunday morning before the body is taken to Honolulu Airport for a flight to Guam.

Herve Villechaize, actor on 'Fantasy Island,' dies at 50

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Herve Villechaize, the diminutive actor whose shout, "The plane," opened the popular television show "Fantasy Island," has died at age 50, his publicist confirmed Saturday.

He learned of the 3-foot-11-inch Villechaize's death from the actor's girlfriend, David Brokaw said. The cause of death wasn't immediately available.

Villechaize played Tattoo, humorous sidekick to Ricardo Montalban's Mr. Rourke on "Fantasy Island," which ran on ABC from 1978 through 1984.

He also appeared in movies and, more recently, television commercials.

Clinton faces hard battles after vacation, some observers say

Associated Press

■ News Analysis

President probably faces hard fights on NAFTA, military gays, health care which will require GOP as well as Democratic votes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's economic plan is law after a contentious battle on Capitol Hill. Now the rest of his program could prove no less difficult to get through Congress, which returns to work this week.

Free trade with Mexico and gays in the military are just two of the upcoming issues where the president is facing tough opposition from within Democratic ranks. And he'll almost certainly need Republican help to pass the centerpiece of his presidency, health care reform.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine said Congress can't be any more partisan than it was on the budget, when not a single Republican backed Clinton's plan to raise taxes and reduce the deficit.

"I think everyone is uncomfortable with the partisanship," he said. "Everyone has an incentive to be less partisan" including Republicans, who "the American people consider ... negative and obstructionist."

During the monthlong recess, Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he was ready to help the president with the North American Free Trade Agreement. Clinton's biggest problem appears to be with fellow Democrats, especially in the House.

Typical was the statement last week by Rep. Dick Swett, D-N.H. He said he would oppose the pact negotiated by former President Bush, to which Clinton has added some side agreements designed to allay fears that Mexico would steal U.S. jobs.

"NAFTA is too seriously flawed to ever make it right," Swett said.

"We've bent over backwards for years so other countries can kick us in the assets. It's time we stood up and protected our own interests."

Clinton is expected to send the agreement to Congress in mid-September. Congressional committees then will propose changes to Clinton, after which he will submit a final draft to the House and Senate for action, probably by Thanksgiving.

Clinton will have an answer sooner on his proposal to loosen the rule that bars homosexuals from the military. Both the House and Senate open debate this week on the nation's defense program, and attempts will be made to overturn the president's plan to allow gays to serve as long as they don't reveal their sexuality.

Also on the Senate agenda this week: a vote Tuesday on Clinton's choice of Joycelyn Elders to be surgeon general and final passage of his national service program. The latter would allow people to earn college benefits by working in community service jobs, much as people in the military get benefits under the GI Bill.

Both chambers will spend much of September finishing the annual spending bills for the federal government. While largely routine, some big issues remain within them.

Senate supporters of the superconducting supercollider will try to overcome an overwhelming defeat for the physics project in the House.

Study: Most jobs created in 'recovery' are temporary, low-wage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many Americans who have found part-time work this year would much rather be working full-time, according to a study released Saturday. But full-time jobs that pay well are rare.

"An unprecedented number of the new jobs created in the recovery have been either temporary or part-time," Lawrence Mishel and Jared Bernstein conclude in a briefing paper, "The Joyless Recovery: Deteriorating Wages and Job Quality in the 1990s."

"The temporary-help industry, which comprises less than 2 percent of total employment, accounted for 27.7 percent of the new jobs," they said in the study for the Economic Policy Institute. "Less than half the new jobs were private-sector non-temporary jobs."

The institute is a progressive Washington think tank funded by foundations, businesses, labor organizations and individuals.

The study, using Labor Department data, also found broad-based wage reductions during the recovery for both blue- and white-collar men.

"For instance, blue-collar men suffered a 5.9 percent wage decline over the 1989-93 business cycle, including a 3 percent decline over the 1991-93 recovery," it said. "Male white-collar wages fell 1.2 percent during the downturn and again in the recovery."

Mishel and Bernstein said the current recovery is the only one since World War II in which unemployment was no lower after 28 months of expansion.

The unemployment rate was 5.4 percent when the recession began in July 1990 and rose to 6.8 percent by the time the downturn ended in March 1991. But it continued to rise, reaching 7.7 percent in June and July 1992 before dipping back to 6.8 percent in July 1993.

The Labor Department reported Friday the rate had fallen to 6.7 percent in August, the lowest level since July 1991.

Many criticize Al Gore's plan for FBI, DEA

N.Y. Times News Service

A plan to merge the Drug Enforcement Agency into the Federal Bureau of Investigation, advanced by Vice President Al Gore as a money saver, is receiving resoundingly unfavorable reviews from many of the people who know the most about what it would entail.

Members of Congress who have been most involved in anti-drug efforts and even President Clinton's senior officials in the State Department, the National Security Council and his Office of National Drug Control Policy are advising against the move.

Opponents say that a merger might not save money but that it might also curtail the effectiveness of drug-control efforts. Moreover, some senior administration officials argue that a merger might be seen both at home and abroad as evidence of a lack of commitment by the president to combat drugs at a time when critics say he is failing to present a national anti-drug strategy, cutting spending for drug treatment and rarely addressing the issue publicly.

But even more fundamentally, the critics say, a merger would be difficult because the cultures of the two agencies are so different. For instance, while FBI agents generally wear suits and ties to work, it is not uncommon to see DEA agents in jeans and T-shirts, and sometimes even with ponytails and pierced ears.

Agents investigate theft, fraud, murder on show horse circuit

By Don Terry
N.Y. Times News Service

CHICAGO — Tommy Burns has done some nasty deeds in his 32 years but he's no rat. He wants everyone to be clear on that score. He knows how to keep his mouth shut.

And he wants everyone to be crystal clear about one more thing. The only reason he's cooperating with federal agents investigating deadly acts of cruelty and fraud in the glittering show horse business is that those rich skunks he worked for turned their backs on him the second he got busted doing their dirty work.

For nearly 10 years, he says, he crept into stables and barns in the middle of the night and killed show horses, 13 or 15 all told. The rich owners pocketed tens and sometimes hundreds of thousands of dollars in insurance money. His total was about $150,000.

Burns says that if he had taken all the offers to kill horses that came his way, the death toll would have been closer to 50. His typical fee was at least $5,000. But he says he once got $40,000. "People get paid less for killing people," he says.

Once he was arrested, he says, his so-called friends wouldn't bail him out or even return his calls. They made him feel like something on the bottom of a riding boot. Spilling his guts is his bittersweet revenge. It is also his only shot at shaving time off a prison term. The only other thing he wants from this mess is to be sent to a federal prison with a golf course.

He told his former pals they'd be sorry for not helping him. Now, according to the nervous talk whipping around the horse show circuit, when Tommy Burns is finished talking, owners, trainers and veterinarians could be indicted and disgraced.

The authorities have long been sifting the circuit's rumors of fraud, larceny and even murder. With Burns prepared to talk to a grand jury, officials think they have a guide into this seemingly glamorous universe of influence and wealth, of sun-washed fields of green and sinister stories of greed.

In a prepared statement, Jane F. Clark, president of the 60,000-member American Horse Shows Association, which sanctions 2,500 events, said her organization has given federal authorities its complete cooperation:

"I am eager to see the investigation completed and any guilty parties brought to justice. The prosecutions of a few which will result should not be taken as a general indictment of the overwhelming majority of horsemen.

Top season features dinosaurs, lawyers

By John Horn
AP entertainment writer

LOS ANGELES — Led by "Jurassic Park," "The Firm" and "The Fugitive," the 1993 summer movie season will be the highest-grossing in Hollywood history, according to weekend estimates.

Ticket sales from Memorial Day weekend to Labor Day were expected to exceed $2.2 billion in North American theaters, shattering the 1989 record of $1.99 billion, according to figures released Friday by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.

So far, sales total $2.09 billion, according to box-office analysts Exhibitor Relations. The three-day Labor Day weekend was expected to bring in about $150 million, taking the season grosses beyond $2.2 billion.

The summer season represents a sharp turnaround from 1991's $1.66 billion gross and 1992's $1.74 billion haul. Some of the gain comes from higher ticket prices.

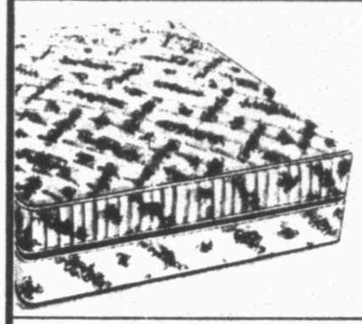

Revenues were boosted by other films that appealed to different audiences. "Sleepless in Seattle" attracted statistically older audiences, while "Free Willy" and "Snow White" snared younger patrons.

"To make a successful season, you need them all, and they were all there," said John Krier, president of Exhibitor Relations. "There was a mix in the audience and there was a mix in the pictures presented. There was something for everybody."

Other high-grossing summer films included "In the Line of Fire" and "Cliffhanger."

"Rising Sun" did modest business and "Dave," which was released before the summer started, made much of its money in the summer.

Report stresses more violence at work

CHICAGO (AP) — An American woman is more likely to die on the job at the hands of an attacker than by accident, according to a report released Saturday.

Corporate downsizing and the erosion of health benefits are contributing to work environments in which workers feel increasing stress and many could snap, added the report, titled "Breaking Point."

Prepared by the Chicago-based National Safe Workplace Institute, it estimates 110,000 incidents of violence occurred in U.S. workplaces last year, causing about 750 deaths and costing employers $4.2 billion.

About 40 percent of all women who are killed on the job die in workplace attacks, the report said. Although it did not provide a breakdown, it said that was more than by any other cause.

Nine out of 10 violent workplace deaths claim men, but men still face a greater chance of dying in an industrial accident, the report said.

"We have a very violent culture superimposing itself on the workplace," said Dennis L. Johnson, president of Behavior Analysts & Consultants in Stuart, Fla., and a contributor to the report.

Johnson, whose company advises clients on preventing or dealing with such violence, said three things could help stabilize a work force on the brink:

—An efficient economy approaching full employment.

—An effective legal system emphasizing crime prevention.

—A society that values good behavior.

"In each of these three items, the United States finds itself as a culture very wanting," Johnson said.

Workplace violence can originate internally, as when a frustrated employee strikes out while on the job, the study said, or it can come from outside, as when workers are threatened by hate groups or someone who holds a grudge against a company or employee. Other workers, such as cashiers and bank tellers, face the possibility of violence on the job from robbers.

THE SANCTITY OF LIFE

"Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you were born I set you apart; I appointed you as a prophet to the nations" (Jeremiah 1:5).

There is a sanctity of life that is purposefully being opposed in our society today. Each day, in so called "God blessed America", more than 4,000 preborn lives are snuffed out. These are real people who suffer capital punishment with no trial and no benefit of counsel before they are executed in a cruel and inhumane manner.

We the members of the Fairmont Park Church of Christ, stand in opposition to the Planned Parenthood abortion clinic. We do stand behind the powerful case for life as stated in Psalm 139:13-16:

"For you (God) created my inmost being; you knit me together in my mother's womb. I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful, I know that full well. My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place. When I was woven together in the depths of the earth, your eyes saw my unformed body."

Many have unwittingly, unknowingly allowed an abortion. If that has happened to you we stand ready to be a source of assistance and encouragement. And, if you want to do something in honor of that aborted baby, why not work to help other mothers avoid the same mistake.

Joe Kennedy's wife to battle his annulment

BOSTON (AP) — Sheila Rauch Kennedy has brought new attention to a sensitive subject for the Roman Catholic Church by saying she'll fight an annulment petition by her divorced husband, Rep. Joseph Kennedy II.

The church never recognizes legal divorces, but it grants annulments — more often than in the past — for a variety of reasons.

Without an annulment, Catholics can't remarry and remain in good standing in the church, which teaches that marriage means forever.

Sheila Kennedy said her 12-year marriage to the congressman didn't fit a church requirement for annulments: that a "sacramental bond" never existed.

"If our marriage were deemed never to have existed in the eyes of the church, then our children, like others of annulled marriages, would have been neither conceived in nor born to a sanctified union," she wrote in a letter to Time magazine.

The couple have 12-year-old twins, Matthew and Joseph.

In July, Kennedy, D-Mass., announced his engagement to Anne Elizabeth Kelly, his staff scheduler. No wedding date has been set. Kennedy, 40, is the eldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Ethel Kennedy.

"I am not going to lie before God about the birth and conception of his kids, just so he can have a big church wedding," Sheila Kennedy told The Boston Globe.

Kennedy's spokesman, Brian O'Connor, wouldn't comment.

"It's a personal family matter," O'Connor said.

Church leaders said annulments have no bearing on children in the marriage.

Sheila Kennedy was raised as an Episcopalian. They were married in an ecumenical ceremony at St. John Baptist Vianney Catholic Church in Gladwyne, Pa. Catholic and Episcopal clergy jointly presided. She was 29 and he was 26.

She has remained an Episcopalian. The twins attend both Catholic and Episcopalian services.

Kennedy's uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., ran into similar trouble last year, when he married Victoria Reggie. The 61-year-old senator divorced his first wife, Joan, in 1982. He reportedly sought to annul that marriage, which produced three children.

"Senator Kennedy, in the eyes of the church, is married and, as long as he is married, he is not free to enter into another marriage," Cardinal Bernard Law said at the time.

Family threatens lawsuit in murder with ties to Klan

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The family of a black man slain in 1957 — reportedly by a Ku Klux Klansman who was an FBI informant — met Saturday with a civil rights lawyer to consider suing the federal government.

The body of Willie Edwards Jr. was found in the Alabama River in April 1957. Four men were arrested for Edwards' murder, but a judge threw out the charges because prosecutors could not determine exactly how Edwards died.

Recently, Diane Alexander said her late common-law husband, Henry, confessed to her last December that he was one of the men who killed Edwards. The group had forced him to jump from the Tyler Goodwin Bridge into the river, Alexander's widow said.

She also said that Alexander, who was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, told her he was a paid informant for the FBI in the 1950s.

The claim prompted the interest of attorney Morris Dees, founder of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery. Dees met Saturday afternoon with two of Edwards' daughters.

"The family is not interested in receiving money for the death of their father as much as they are interested in getting to the bottom of the role of the FBI's paid informant Henry Alexander in this murder," Dees said.

He said Edwards' family has given him the OK to investigate whether the FBI or other parties covered up Alexander's role in the killing.

Dees wrote to FBI Director Louis Freeh on Aug. 31, asking for records on Alexander.

If the records show the agency was negligent in handling Alexander as an informant or that it continued to pay him with knowledge of his tendency for violence, the Edwards family would consider suing the federal government, Dees' letter said.

Alexander was indicted over the years for four church bombings and a shooting, but was never tried, Dees said.

Observers: Vidor's always been rocky on race

By Terri Langford
Associated Press writer

VIDOR — This East Texas town that takes its name from the timber industry family of filmmaker King Vidor has a rocky history when it comes to race.

Any resident in and out of Vidor will tell you that, including Mayor Ruth Woods. But the degree of racism differs from person to person.

Since 1955, Mrs. Woods, a Louisiana transplant, has called Vidor home.

"We're just like any other city, we don't have any control over people's mouths," she says of the racist slurs hurled to blacks who do decide to drive through or, in the instance of William Simpson, move to Vidor.

"I'm not saying there isn't racism," said the 60-year-old mayor, who won her second two-year term in May. "You show me a city anywhere in the United State of America, anywhere, and I'll show you heaven. There is some racism here. But they are not the heart and soul of this city."

When King Wallis Vidor was born in Galveston on Feb. 8, 1894, his family had already established a strong lumber business. The small community nestled on the eastern edge of Beaumont took Vidor as its name in 1910, after King Vidor's father established a sawmill here.

Today, Vidor's adults are employed by area gas and chemical companies — Texaco, Chevron, Goodyear, DuPont and Gulf State Utilities — in nearby Port Arthur, Orange and Beaumont.

There's not much to Vidor; most of the businesses line Farm-To-Market Road 105, which bisects Interstate 10. There's a bevy of churches, along with many stores and offices.

In the 1940s and 1950s, older residents say, there were occasional Ku Klux Klan rallies and activities, with some occurring well into the 1970s and 1980s.

"It's no secret that in the 50s and later 60s we had a Klan member, a grand dragon of the Kluckers. He ran for mayor here. I think he got twenty-something votes," Mrs. Woods said.

Today, there are a few KKK members — or "Kluckers," as she calls them — living in the area.

But she says Vidor is different now.

"It is no secret that the Klan came from four hours or two hours away from us and stirred up havoc in our city and traveled their way back to Cleveland or Waco," she said.

In the 1960s, there was even a magazine shop that sold KKK paraphernalia.

"The magazine place stayed there long enough to default on their rent and electric bill," the mayor quipped.

But others say there's not much to laugh about and that a real threat exists.

From her view in Beaumont public housing, 66-year-old Inez Carter says Vidor is a city to avoid.

"I used to work for a lady in Vidor . . . I never tried to live there," she said. "Because it's too dangerous, people are prejudiced."

Hutchison may, may not have to appear, DA says

AUSTIN (AP) — A Travis County assistant district attorney said Saturday he did not know if U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison could delay her appearance before a grand jury investigating her tenure as state treasurer.

Mrs. Hutchison's attorney John Dowd is requesting that the senator's appearance be postponed so that she may cast important votes in the Senate on Sept. 9 and 10.

Dowd said Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, has offered to appear on Sept. 13, when the Senate is not in session.

But Steve McCleery, first assistant Travis County attorney, said the grand jury is not scheduled to convene that day.

"They picked a date they knew the grand jury doesn't meet," he said.

"We picked the week of Aug. 30 so that it would not conflict with her Senate duties. They asked us to extend it two more days and we did," McCleery said.

"They found a number of reasons for her not to come," he said.

A subpoena was issued Friday ordering Mrs. Hutchison to testify at 9 a.m. on Sept. 9.

Woman recalls '50s murders during therapy

LEAGUE CITY (AP) — A woman undergoing therapy has told police she has recalled the slayings of two girls more than 30 years ago and even remembers who raped and murdered them.

Police said they have not yet determined if the two girls existed, but they have checked on the suspects.

"We've researched the men she has named as the killers, and the men are still around and their criminal history indicates they are capable of doing what she said they did," said detective Pat Bittner, who declined to give any more specifics.

The woman has said the girls, ages 11 and 12, were raped, murdered and buried in the League City area either in 1958 or 1959. She said the girls names' were Rosabell and Esabell.

"She is recalling some incidents in her childhood which involved sexual abuse and she recalls this incident where she witnesses the deaths of two young black girls," Bittner said.

"We think there is something legitimate to what she's saying and we can't discount this. I'm looking for something to corroborate what she's saying," he said. "We feel she believes what she (said she) saw."

The woman, whose name has been withheld by authorities, wrote a letter to League City police two weeks ago in which she described the memories she has recalled during therapy.

She said she was 7 when she saw the slayings, but it was not clear why she would have been a witness.

The biggest problem in the investigation is a lack of records, he said. Local police records don't go back to the 1950s, so he is seeking the public's help in determining if the girls ever existed or were reported missing.

Ft. Worth plant could lose up to 1,000 more jobs

FORT WORTH (AP) — In yet another blow to Lockheed's beleaguered production line, Pakistan has called a halt to its F-16 program, a Pentagon spokesman said.

The news follows a recommendation last week from a Pentagon review that the Air Force stop buying F-16s after 1994.

Lockheed officials said they were unsure how the Pakistan decision would affect operations in Fort Worth, although sources told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Saturday's editions it could mean 500 to 1,000 additional layoffs at the plant.

Layoffs will occur at Lockheed unless other foreign buyers are found for the planes, according to The Dallas Morning News.

Lockheed already plans to lay off about 6,000 of its 18,500 workers by the end of 1994.

Pakistan has discontinued payments on its $1.75 billion program after one week of high-level negotiations with the State Department, a Pentagon spokesman said Friday.

The Pakistani press attache in Washington declined to comment Friday. But on Thursday, before the Pentagon's announcement, he said his government still wanted the planes.

"Of course we do, since we have been making all the payments," the official, Malik Zahoor Ahmad, told The Morning News on Thursday.

The news follows a recommendation last week from a Pentagon review that the Air Force stop buying the Fighting Falcon after fiscal 1994.

A Lockheed spokesman said the company was unsure how the Pakistan decision would affect operations in Fort Worth.

MPD closes in on accreditation

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

The Midland Police Department's long-delayed, four-year push toward accreditation could end this fall.

The department is seeking to meet close to 900 standards set by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, which already has certified more than 200 police departments nationwide.

Accreditation will set guidelines for fair promotional possibilities for officers, as well as fair disciplinary procedures. Measures calling for equal treatment of minorities will also be ensured, although the department already has an active minority recruitment program.

"Only 220 out of the 38,000 departments across the United States have been accredited," said Midland Police Chief Richard Czech. "It would make us one of the elite."

Department officials have said that accreditation also will help improve relations with the public through increased community involvement.

The department has been working on the accreditation process since October 1989 and must comply with 897 standards to become accredited.

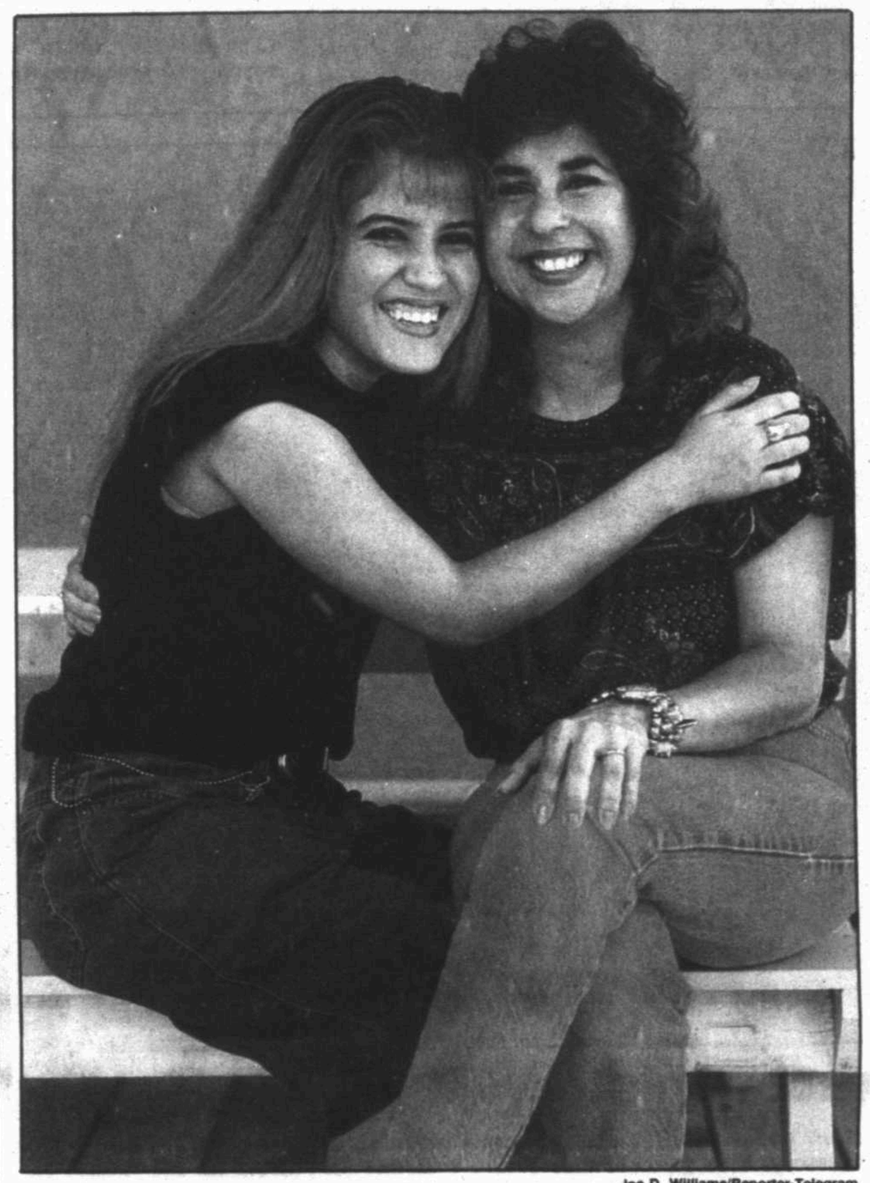

A group of three assessors from CALEA plan to visit the department at the end of the month to determine if the department will qualify for the merit.

In July, Texas Accreditation Association officials assessed the police department's progress and offered comments.

"We have spent from July until now reviewing those comments and changing what might be weak areas," said Mike Roberts, who is part of the department's accreditation team.

The assessment team that will arrive on Sept. 25

Samantha Jurado hugs "big sister" Sylvia Shepard during one of their weekly visits. Ms. Shepard was selected Big Sister of the Year at the recent Big Brothers/Big Sisters awards banquet in recognition of her devotion to Samantha after the teen's house burned less than a year ago.

'Sister' receives award, rewards in relationship

■ Organization recently recognized Ms.Shepard as Big Sister of the Year.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Samantha Jurado is a different person than she was just five years ago. The changes have resulted not only from growing from a child into a teenager, but from the love and companionship she has received from her "big sister," Sylvia Shepard.

Samantha, a 15-year-old ninth-grader at Midland Freshman School, was matched in June 1988 with Ms. Shepard through the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

The teen started out the relationship as a shy 10-year-old girl, Ms. Shepard said. It took a couple of years to help build her self-confidence, but now she has blossomed into a giggling and talkative teen who considers Ms. Shepard her best friend.

"She was extremely shy when I first met her ... she has opened up a lot more and is a lot more confident. I hope I contributed some to that," Ms. Shepard said.

Ms. Shepard was recently selected as the Big Sister of the Year for her efforts in helping Samantha's family after their house burned down last December.

She said she was surprised to receive the award. "I didn't think I deserved it," she said.

But, when Samantha's house burned it was Ms. Shepard who helped out by giving the family clothes and referring them to Casa de Amigos where they were able to get some assistance.

Samantha was definitely appreciative of the relief, the friend to lean on and just having someone there.

"She was there to help me and talk to me," Samantha said about her big sister's involvment following the blaze.

Rosemary Flores, a Big Brothers/Big Sisters caseworker, said Ms. Shepard was selected from five different outstanding big sisters because "the difference she made in Samantha's life."

"Her 'little's' home burned down ... and she really helped the family out with clothes and food and she went to different agencies searching for assistance for them," Ms. Flores said about the main reason Ms. Shepard was selected.

"She was really there for (her little sister) and was really outstanding."

The couple was matched in June 1988 while Ms. Shepard was single and wanted some extra-curricular activities in her life. She said a friend told her about the program and since she had arrived from El Paso, having left her family behind, Ms. Shepard thought this was an ideal way to keep from missing her family as much.

"It has been nothing but fun. We get to talk and it really is like having a little sister," she explained.

Samantha said one of her favorite things about her big sister is the fact that she can "tell her anything and she won't get mad."

Samantha said she confides in Ms. Shepard and depends on her a lot. For instance, before school started it was Ms. Shepard who helped Samantha get her school supplies.

The ladies share a number of favorite activities and memories, but the two activities they enjoy the most are eating and shopping.

Park ends season with a splash

By Michael Kashgarian

ODESSA — The city of Odessa's summer venture into water fun will end with a splash this weekend.

Water Wonderland, 12300 W. Highway 80 E., between Midland and Odessa, is offering a cut-rate admission of $5 for each day this Labor Day weekend.

"We're kind of doing that as an appreciation to the public in the Permian Basin," said Tom Cody, director of administrative services for the city.

This summer, the park, which was under the management of the city, welcomed about 80,000 visitors compared with about 50,000 last year, Cody said.

"Everything went very well. The city's operation of that has been a big success I think," he said.

But the future of the water-theme park is currently up in the air.

"I don't know. We're going to finish up the season and look where we are," Cody said.

Water Wonderland was rescued from closure this year when Odessa leased the park, which had been plagued with financial problems in recent years.

In operation for a dozen years, the park made money this season. But any profits won't go to the city of Odessa but will be turned over to bankruptcy court. The park owners filed bankruptcy last September with debts of about $1.6 million.

"It was a more or less break-even situation, and to keep the jobs," Cody said.

The city took over the park this summer to continue summer employment opportunities for about 75 people, mostly youths, and to offer recreation for local residents and tourists, officials said.

"We had some terrific, terrific kids that worked out there this summer," Cody said.

GARY OTT

Moby Dick finds home in steamy bathroom mirror

Somehow, I knew it wouldn't last.

But at least I gave it my best shot for eight days straight, and for that I'm due some credit. After all, how many dedicated 41-year-old couch potatoes do you know who willingly go on an exercise binge?

That's what I thought. Not very many.

Ott

It all started two weeks ago Wednesday. I stepped out of the shower, glanced briefly at the full-length mirror to my left and astutely noticed that Moby Dick had somehow managed to make his way into my bathroom.

"Good heavens," I said to no one in particular. "I thought Moby Dick was a fictional character."

The steam from the shower began to fade and as it did the mirror became a bit clearer.

I looked at it more closely.

"Good heavens," I repeated, this time with a great deal of alarm in my voice. "That's not Moby Dick. That's me!"

And, thus, I began my exercise regimen.

It was really very simple. Each morning, before hopping in the shower, I would do 25 sit-ups, followed by 10 quick push-ups. That one-two punch would then be repeated at lunch and again that night. Occasionally, I would even complement that rugged routine with 20 deep knee bends and some heavy breathing exercises.

I felt like a million bucks, and was reasonably certain that at any time now I would glance at the mirror and be overjoyed to find Arnold Schwarzenegger staring back at me.

I mean, why not? I had been doing my sit-ups religiously for an ENTIRE WEEK. It would seem only logical that at some point the excess weight would magically disappear and in its place rippling muscles would suddenly appear, not unlike the kind young boys used to fantasize about when ordering a Charles Atlas kit.

But it didn't happen.

Each morning I would eagerly leap from my bed and head directly to the mirror. With great anticipation, I would strike my best muscle-man pose fully expecting to witness first-hand the immediate rewards of my strenuous exercise program.

NOTE: There is something terribly disappointing, even as an adult, about having your expectations destroyed by the cold hard facts known as reality.

Believe me, I know. Day after day, I would stand before the mirror. And each time, my disillusionment would grow. My muscles would not cooperate. They refused to make an appearance, even a token one, apparently content to remain in a soft, flabby condition.

This, as you can well imagine, angered me a great deal.

The audacity of my muscles to remain in hiding! I told them so, too. While standing in front of the mirror with my hands on my hips, I issued a stern lecture: "Doggone it," I said, "This has gone far enough. I want you to quit playing games. I've been exercising for a whole week and I expect to see some results. Now!"

The image in my mirror did not change.

So I arched my left eyebrow and tapped my foot as if to emphasize my displeasure.

Still no changes.

In fact, the more I glared at the mirror the flabbier my body became.

"Stop that," I shouted.

Still, it got larger and larger.

I started to walk away, but as I did, there was a faint snickering sound coming from the mirror.

"Hey, Moby Dick," it said. "Double your sit-ups and I'll see if I can find Charles Atlas for you."

Toll attendants see humanity from booths

DALLAS (AP) — For travelers planning to use Texas tollways, remember that toll takers accept all combinations of change, but they don't take American Express.

In other travel tips, remember:

■ To leave at home your ideology about why you shouldn't have to pay tolls.

■ To forget about paying with dollar bills covered in chocolate, sweat or syrup. Or even beer.

The credit card was proffered by a driver distracted by a conversation on his cellular phone on the Dallas North Tollway. Toll attendant John Bates says he considered taking the card and handing the motorist his change, but decided to let the guy off the hook.

Bates, 30, has worked at the Keller Springs barrier plaza for five months. He's not making a career out of it, but he hates the fact that some people, in addition to exhibiting some of the aforementioned behavior, "look at us as $2.50-an-hour lowlifes."

Actually, toll attendants earn at least $7.94 per hour plus full state benefits. And they get a toll tag that allows them to soar through any lane for free.

Some say their arms get tired from swinging change into a basket for eight hours. Occasionally, they'll smack their elbows against the concrete booth while tossing the money. The emissions from some vehicles can really choke them. And the money soils their hands.

Although the booth — a spare 3 feet by 7 feet — is air-conditioned and heated, attendants still get a good dose of the elements with their windows open all day.

And some drivers can be less than charming. All of which, well, take their toll.

"Sometimes people can be rude out here," said Diana Steffens. "But I really love it."

Ms. Steffens, 35, had worked in day care and several other professions before hearing about openings with the Texas Turnpike Authority. She passed the math test and started about five months ago.

She's had some interesting encounters, like the time a woman dropped her dollar bill and wanted Ms. Steffens to leave the booth and pick it up. They argued and the woman cursed her, but eventually produced another dollar and drove off.

David Rogers, 21, said a toll taker's job involves the balancing act of being sensitive to individual drivers, while taking honking, impatient motorists' concerns into consideration.

For example, people who are lost and need directions can't be rushed. "You've got to handle the traffic and not let the traffic handle you," Rogers said.

Ms. Steffens says she puts herself in the drivers' shoes. If they've just been cut off in traffic, they'll take it out on the very next person they speak to.

And that could be the toll attendant.

"We have to be that punching bag for them," she said. "I don't let it get to me."

Said Bates: "You're a sounding board for these people at 6 o'clock in the morning."

Being courteous, however, cannot obscure the biggest part of the toll attendant's job — ensuring the tolls get paid.

According to figures from March to June 1993, motorists on the Dallas North Tollway pour in about $2.9 million a month. But an average of $31,000 is lost monthly. The booths process about 215,000 transactions a day.

Jerry Shelton, director of administration for the Texas Turnpike Authority, said "lane runners" can be given a citation for intentionally not paying a toll with a fine of up to $100. Department of Public Safety troopers have the option of writing a ticket for running a red light, he said.

Attendants said they occasionally use their own money to pay the toll when the person looks honest. Most of the time, they get their money back with a nice note.

But most people will be asked to show a driver's license and sign an unpaid toll report. Then the motorist may send in the money within 15 days with no penalty.

DEATHS

Alma Hickson

Graveside services for Alma Hickson of Midland have been set for 2 p.m. today at Andrews Cemetery with the Rev. Bob Porterfield officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hickson died Friday at her home.

Jo G. Knox

Funeral services for longtime Midlander Jo Gregory Knox are set for 11 a.m. Tuesday at First United Methodist Church sanctuary with the Rev. Russell Parchman officiating. Burial is to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Knox died Friday at a Midland hospital.

She was born Sept. 20, 1930, in Colorado City, where she was reared and graduated from high school. She graduated from Sul Ross State University with a degree in physical education.

She was the first intercollegiate champion cowgirl in 1951 while at Sul Ross and was in the hereford business.

She married George W. "Tee" Knox on Aug. 7, 1954, in Colorado City.

She taught at Midland's San Jacinto Junior High School and also at schools in Stanton and Grady.

She was former president of the American Hereford Auxiliary and Texas Hereford Auxiliary. She was the first recipient of the Outstanding American Hereford Women award.

She was a member of First United Methodist Church where she was in the Handbell Choir and Boone Bible Class.

She was preceded in death by a son, Richard W. Knox.

Survivors include her husband of Midland and a daughter, Kathy Buchholz of Tarzan.

tivities they do together have changed and adapted with her newer interests.

She said when she was younger they went skating and swimming. Now they enjoy going to the mall, trying different restaurants and checking out movies. They also do a lot of baking and watching movies at home.

But, no matter what activity the two plan or do they simply enjoy each other's company. Since their match in 1988, Ms. Shepard married and now has a 3-year-old son.

She said after having her baby she had to cut back on some of the time she spent with Samantha, although she doesn't seem to have missed much. Ms. Shepard's son, Willis, considers Samantha another member of the family and asks his mom to bring her over to play.

Plus, it is apparent Samantha holds him in high regard also as she plays with him and carries him around the Shepard home.

Ms. Shepard and Samantha both encourage anyone who considers enrolling in the program either as a "little" or a "big" to go for it.

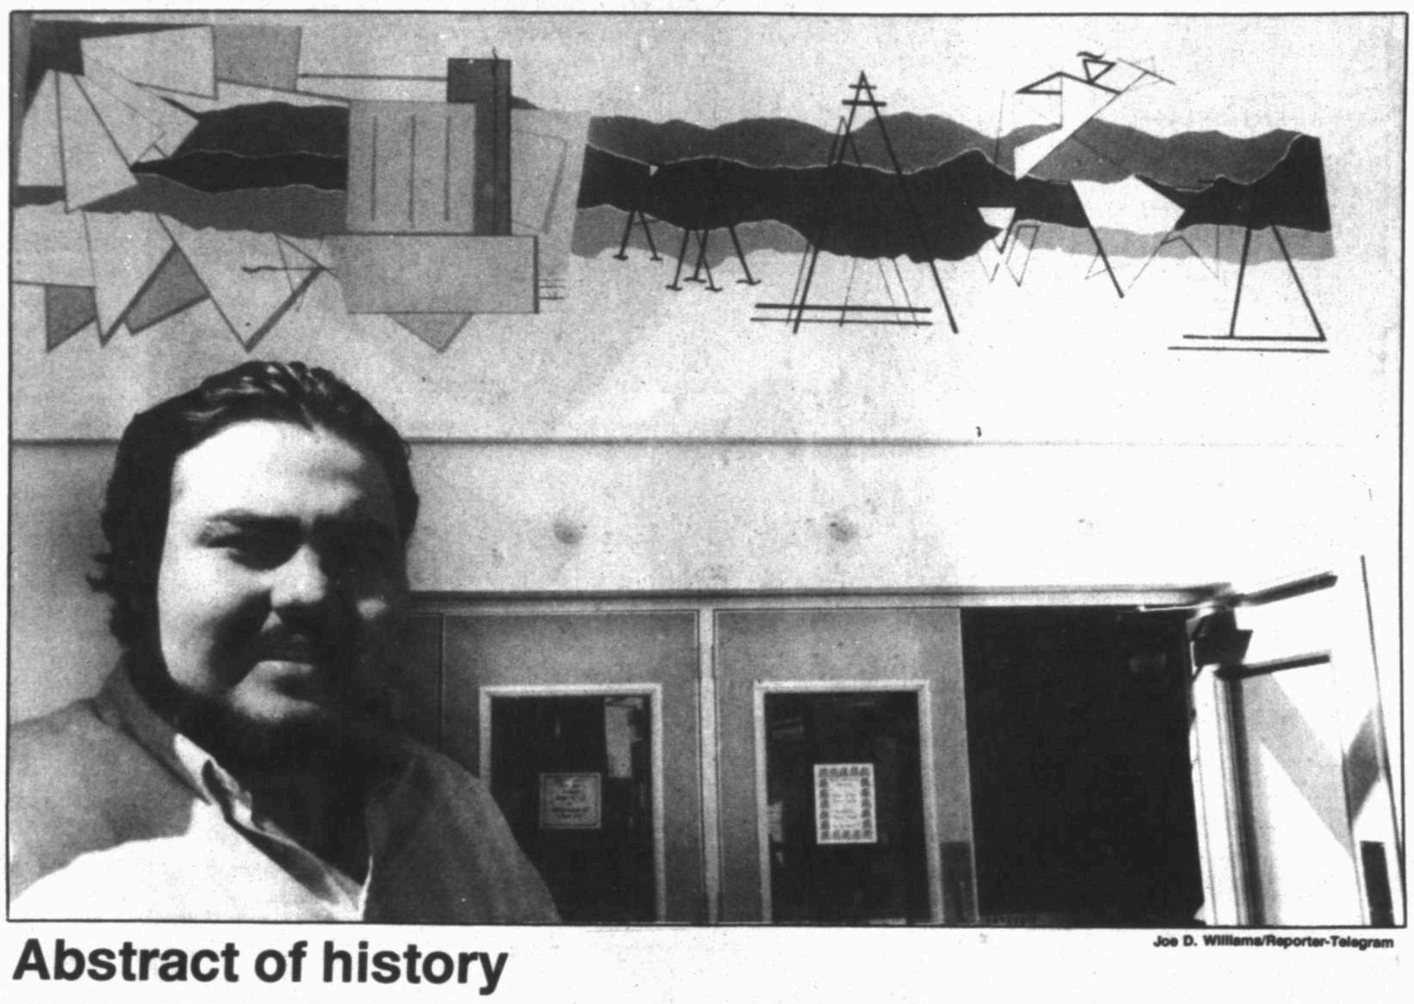

"Anyone with a little time and a lot of love should join," Ms. Shepard said. "There are so many kids waiting to get a match."

Samantha said she learned about the program from a school teacher who noticed how shy she was and what a hard time she had making friends.

"Now I have someone to talk to ... I can do things now I never thought I could do before," Samantha said.

"She has so much potential," Ms. Shepard said of her protege.

Samantha plans to take driver's education in an attempt to get her driver's license and try to get a job when she turns 16. Both are things she didn't think she would ever do.

WATER: Park discounts rates at season's close

(From 1B)

Whether the city continues to keep the park above water has not been decided.

If the park is put up for sale, as anticipated, the city will have the first option to refuse purchase if someone else wants to buy the property, officials said.

And if Water Wonderland isn't sold, Odessa also has the first option to lease the park.

Area residents were apparently pleased with the city's operation this summer.

"The response has been very, very positive. The people have been very pleased with what the city's done with this," Cody said.

The weather service predicts sunny skies this weekend and Odessa officials hope to have a good turnout.

Hours of operation this weekend will be from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Koresh fathered 12 children who died in fire, cultists say

WACO (AP) — Two former Branch Davidians who had sons by cult leader David Koresh say he fathered 12 of the 17 children who died at Mount Carmel, according to a published report.

Dana Okimoto told the Waco Tribune-Herald in a copyright story Sunday that she knew Koresh would keep his children by him if he stayed inside the compound. Ms. Okimoto, who recently acknowledged that she had two sons by Koresh, left the cult in 1992.

The children died with Koresh April 19 when the compound burned to the ground. None of the 21 children released during the 51-day siege of Mount Carmel were Koresh's.

According to former cult members, six cult members other than Koresh's legal wife bore the children.

One was Judy Schneider, the wife of Koresh's top lieutenant, Steve Schneider, according to former cult members. Ms. Schneider and her 2-year-old child died in the compound fire.

Two girls bore children for Koresh while underage. One was Michele Jones, Koresh's sister-in-law, who had three children.

The other girl, Aisha Gyarfas, had a daughter when she was 16.

Four of Koresh's children who were not at Mount Carmel will be listed as his legal heirs, according to attorney Kathryn Gilliam, appointed to represent the interests of any children surviving the cult leader.

Attorney Percy Isgitt of Houston said Koresh's mother, Bonnie Haldeman, doesn't agree that she had 12 grandchildren die in the April 19 fire.

She said only Koresh's children by his legal wife, Rachel, died that day, Isgitt said.

But Robyn Bunds, a former cult member and the mother of one of the identified heirs, said Haldeman confirmed to her in phone calls the identities of the women having Koresh's children.

MPD: Department nears accreditation standards includes team leader Chief of Police Thomas J. Sexton of Mount Pleasant, N.C.; accreditation manager Lt. Linda S. Swope of Newport News, Va.; and Lt. Jimmy W. Soblotne of Kokomo, Ind. Each of the officers' police departments is similar in size to the Midland department.

Roberts said the three will tour the department offices on Sept. 26 and begin reviewing the department's policy and procedures, management, operations and support services.

"They will walk through the offices to see what actually goes on and then will divide up the files and begin examining them to see if we are in compliance with all the accreditation guidelines," he said.

Officer Kim Wilkinson, who has also helped with the accreditation process, said the assessors will also spend several days riding with officers, visiting with employees and watching what goes on in the day-to-day activities.

"Basically, they are going to see if we are doing what we say we are doing," she said.

Also as part of the on-site assessment, department employees and Midland residents can offer comments to the assessors at a public information session scheduled for Sept. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Midland City Council chambers, 300 N. Loraine St.

Residents may also call in their comments to the assessors between 1-4 p.m. on Sept. 27 and 28. The number is 685-7579.

After the assessment is completed, a hearing will be conducted at the CALEA commissioners' meeting on Nov. 20 in Kentucky to determine if the department will be given accredited status.

However, Ms. Wilkinson said the department will have a good idea of what the outcome will be before the assessors leave.

"The department will definitely have a feeling one way or the other before the meeting," she said. "The meeting is really just a formal step."

Accreditation is for five years, during which time the department must submit annual reports proving continued compliance with the standards under which they were intially accredited.

Police seize video poker machines

DALLAS (AP) — Police have confiscated 17 video poker machines in raids of about a dozen pool halls and grocery stores in Dallas, Irving and Garland.

In the raid Thursday, Dallas police confiscated 17 video poker machines and charged 10 business owners or managers with possession of gambling equipment.

"This is new territory for us. We make a lot of arrests for gambling, but usually it's for bookmaking. This is different because we recovered slot machines," said Lt. Don Richie of the Dallas Police Department vice division.

Judge: Meza's request moot

AUSTIN (AP) — Raul Meza's request that parole officials quit moving him around the state is moot because of his arrest this week in Uvalde on a disorderly conduct charge, a judge has ruled.

Meza, 32, said his conditions of release from prison under mandatory supervision were being violated.

State District Judge Mike Lynch says he ruled that the issues raised in Meza's request are questionable because the man has been charged in a family disturbance at his grandparents' farm.

Meza was released from prison June 21.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

Three days remain to register for Midland College's fall semester

By H.A. Tuck

If you want to attend Midland College this fall for credit courses, you have just three more days to get registered.

Tuck

Monday, Sept. 6, is being observed as the Labor Day so all the offices are closed and classes won't be in session.

Part-time registration continues through Thursday in the Student Services area of the Student Center. Hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. all three days. The best advice, however, is to register and begin attending classes on Tuesday since you can get behind in a hurry in most college classes. If you want to find out which classes still have openings, call 685-4501.

There are four new instructors at Midland College we'd like to introduce. One of them has been a part-time instructor previously. All have excellent credentials, will be credits to the college, and assets to the community.

Judy Bartley is a full-time instructor now in the Associate Degree Nursing program after having been a part-time instructor since 1990. She received her Diploma in Nursing from Good Samaritan Hospital School of Nursing, her BSN from the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center School of Nursing in the Permian Basin, and her MSN last month from the University of Texas at El Paso.

John Cimics will be instructing in drama and theater management. He earned his BA in Government and English from Georgetown University, his MA in Theater Arts from the University of Northern Colorado, his MFA in Directing from the University of Hawaii, and his MFA in Acting from the University of Connecticut. He has taught at the University of Hawaii, Chaminade University, University of Virginia, and the University of Connecticut.

Russell Goodyear has joined the faculty as an instructor in both English and Spanish. He comes to MC from the Sul Ross State University Center in Del Rio. He earned an Associate of Science degree from Marion Institute, his BA in English from Henderson State University, and both his MA in Spanish and his Ph.D. in Spanish Comparative Literature from the University of Arkansas. He also received Spanish language training at the U. S. Defense Language Institute in Monterey, Calif.

Gary Roberts is an instructor in Emergency Medical Services. He came to MC from Seminole, where he had been Assistant Director of Paramedics. He earned his EMT and Paramedic certifications from Odessa College, helped organized the Seminole EMS Volunteer Association and served as its president, and also served as an on-call flight medic for St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock.

Also new is Bob Haines, who joined the staff last week as Director of Financial Aid. He had been serving as Director of Financial Aid for Wayland Baptist College in Plainview. Haines also had served as Assistant Director of Financial Aid at Amarillo College. He earned his bachelor's degree from Wayland and his master's degree from West Texas State University.

This show may be seen through Feb. 24. It's open today from 1-5 p.m., but the gallery is closed on Monday for Labor Day. Hours for the rest of the show are: 8 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. on Sunday.

In Focus is presenting a large number of photos including quite a number that are experimental in composition or printing style.

Both new and returning students have an opportunity Wednesday to make new friends, find folks with similar interests, and even enjoy free food. Student Activities is sponsoring a "Welcome to Midland College" luncheon and club fair from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Student clubs and organizations will show their wares in an attempt to recruit new members. It's a great way for freshmen to meet others and for returning students to find out who the new faces belong to.

A lot of folks signed up for the City of Midland-Midland College Fire Fighters' Recruit School. There are still a very few days to apply, if you are interested in a career in fire fighting. For details you should contact Montry Mansell, training chief, or Ellery Stowell, training captain, by calling 685-7346.

We also hear that three classes will be conducted this fall in the college's new Environmental Technology Program. Since this is a new field, no one was quite sure what the response would be. If you'd like more information on that program, contact Dr. Dick Lodewick at 685-4613 or Fred Wetendorf at 685-4686.

And there may still be some openings in the fall Emergency Medical Services program. Contact Gary Roberts at 685-4593.

Remember that Friday is the deadline for enrolling in any class this fall at MC.

For the Fire Fighters Recruit School, you have a lot to do before Friday, so make your contacts Tuesday.

SEE BETTER. LIVE BETTER.

Don't let nearsightedness (myopia) or astigmatism limit your ambitions or restrict your lifestyle.

At the Turner Eye Clinic we use a proven surgical procedure called Radial Keratotomy to dramatically reduce your need for glasses.

Thomas Turner is speciality trained in nearsightedness and astigmatism surgeries and is certified by the American Board of Ophthalmology.

It's same-day, minor surgery without hospitalization or disruption of your normal schedule.

Often called R.K., Radial Keratotomy may eliminate the need for glasses entirely. While R.K. has been a blessing for hundreds of thousands of people, it is not for everyone.

Is R.K. for you? Discover for yourself at our FREE SEMINAR AND EVALUATION, Tuesday, September 7, at 7 p.m. Call today to make a reservation for the seminar or more information.

Fraternity's gooey mixture slides down drain into creek

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas fraternity violated a city ordinance when members spilled a gooey flour-and-water mixture they used in a mud wrestling match down a storm sewer that empties into a creek.

The Beta Theta Pi fraternity was not cited for violating the ordinance because the incident did not appear premeditated.

Frat members had filled a kiddie pool with the pancake-like batter during a dry rush party this week.

When the party ended, they dumped the mixture down the front steps of the frat house and tried to wash it away.

An Austin police officer pulled up about that time. He called the city's environmental hot line as the batter dripped down the sidewalk and into a storm sewer.

"We tried to stop it with dikes from going into the storm sewer," said Jason Fowler, fraternity president.

The batter broke the dikes. "It was kind of a big civil engineering job we weren't prepared for," he said.

Susan Tyler, one of the city's water quality investigators, said she did not know how many gallons of goo got into the creek.

More than 20 frat members spent six hours shoveling and mopping up the mess.

Tyler said they removed about 98 percent of the mixture.

Cold, hard truth is seat belts do work

OK, we confess that the seat belt law is an irritating infringement on our indomitable West Texas independence. To put it plainly, we'd rather eat cold, unsweetened oatmeal than to have government tell us that when we climb into the pickup to go feed the cows — or even to go visit the neighbors — we've got to "buckle up." It grates on our nerves.

Ironically, a survey taken to determine compliance with the seat belt law showed that 85 percent of front-seat occupants in Midland were using seat belts. That compares with the state average of 69 percent.

The high percentage of seat belt users doesn't seem to go along with the rugged independence most West Texans profess, and for awhile it was difficult to resolve the disparity.

On pondering the matter, however, we realized that the people in West Texas normally can accept almost anything that makes sense, just as surely as they will never accept anything that doesn't. And statistics year after year have shown that people who wear seat belts stand a much greater chance of surviving a fatal car crash than do those not wearing seat belts. Seat belts really work, and that fact is backed up with cold, hard statistics.

Over time, even the most independent-minded of us can come to accept something like the seat belt law which grates on our nerves in the beginning. As we hear about friends and relatives who are alive today because they were wearing their seat belts when involved in an automobile accident, the truth becomes simply too hard to avoid.

Seat belts work. They save lives and cut down on serious injuries. They are worth the irritation they cause to people who don't like to be told what to do.

Remember that on this Labor Day weekend as you're traveling to visit family or friends who live outside this area.

Summit on trade pact should have been open

Congressman Ron Coleman and the El Paso chapter of the Foreign Trade Alliance conducted what they called a summit meeting (Aug. 24) . . . on the North American Free Trade Agreement.

. . . Coleman and the alliance were wrong in closing that meeting to the public.

That is especially true in light of who attended: U.S. Treasury Department officials, business leaders, mayors from other border communities as well as representatives of the Texas and California governors.

That meeting resulted in a resolution against taxing border businesses and residents to pay for environmental improvement projects — a resolution that will go to President Clinton.

People had a right to hear those discussions. . . .

The six-term Democratic congressman contends that he did not invite the public because the meeting was organized on such short notice and it was to gather ideas from business leaders on funding for the border projects.

The secrecy of this meeting is reminiscent of the old smoke-filled rooms in which the business of government was conducted out of public view. But that practice no longer has a place in the decision-making process.

Fat, inefficient space agency overdue for needed changes

NASA no longer has the right stuff. The space agency can't seem to do anything right no matter how much it spends.

This week's malfunction of the $985-million Mars Observer was the latest in a series of costly and sometimes tragic failures by NASA.

The streak of bad luck and poor performance began with the explosion of the shuttle Challenger in 1986. Seven crew members perished in the $8 billion disaster. . . .

When NASA developed the Apollo program that put Americans on the moon more than 20 years ago, it was lean and fit. Now it is fat and inefficient. Changes are overdue.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Sept. 5, the 248th day of 1993. There are 117 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Two-hundred years ago, on Sept. 5, 1793, the Reign of Terror began during the French Revolution as the National Convention instituted harsh measures to repress counter-revolutionary activities. In the year that followed, thousands of people were sent to the guillotine.

On this date:

In 1698, Russia's Peter the Great imposed a tax on beards.

In 1774, the first Continental Congress assembled in Philadelphia.

In 1836, Sam Houston was elected president of the Republic of Texas.

In 1882, the nation's first Labor Day parade was held in New York.

In 1905, the Treaty of Portsmouth ending the Russo-Japanese War was signed in New Hampshire.

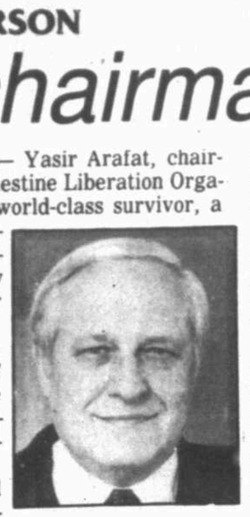

In 1945, Iva Toguri D'Aquino, a Japanese-American suspected of being radio broadcaster "Tokyo Rose," was arrested in Yokohama, Japan. She served six years in prison for treason but was pardoned in 1977 by President Ford.

In 1957, "On the Road," by leading beat author Jack Kerouac, was first published.

Can chairman bring PLO to peace?

WASHINGTON — Yasir Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, is a world-class survivor, a nine-lived cat who astonishes even cynical Middle East experts by landing on his feet after each disaster:

Anderson

— He fought Israelis in the 1948, 1956 and 1967 conflicts, going to the latter war in a Volkswagen stuffed with rocket-propelled grenades.

— He has escaped more than 50 assassination attempts by fellow Palestinians, Arabs and Israelis. He has been imprisoned and tortured in Egypt and Lebanon.

— His chairmanship of the PLO has persevered for more than a score of years despite forced expulsion of him and his headquarters from Jordan in 1970, Lebanon in 1982 and Syria in 1983.

— Finally, reports of his death were once again greatly exaggerated last year when his plane went down in a sandstorm in the Sahara. Arafat miraculously survived the crash and was rescued by the Libyan army.

But now — with the Gaza-Jericho breakthrough in the peace talks, which many are hailing as the most significant Middle East peace agreement since the 1979 Camp David Accords — comes the toughest challenge of all for the 64-year-old Arafat: Can he survive success?

In a relatively swift, bold stroke, Arafat has emerged as the undisputed leader of his primary constituency, the majority of moderate Palestinians in the occupied territories who are weary of struggle without change.

The "Gaza First" step toward Palestinian-Israeli peace has been around for at least five years in diplomatic circles. But it was the end of the Cold War and the Gulf War that made the step inevitable. The end of the superpower conflict meant an end to Soviet arms supplies to the Arabs. The Gulf War was the end of any Pan-Arabist bloc against a Middle East peace proposal.

But a key part of the mix was Arafat's psyche, which propelled him to compromise.

Until the Gulf War, the PLO struggle for a Palestinian state may well have been the richest nationalist struggle, per capita, of any in modern history. Tens of millions of dollars came from oil-rich Gulf state governments, and tens of millions more every year from remittances paid by Palestinian workers in those countries. But those states, particularly Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, cut off funding for the PLO after it appeared to side with Saddam.

That was coupled with a profoundly sobering reaction by Arafat to his most recent brush with death. Whatever the reason, Arafat intimates say that a new Arafat emerged from last year's plane crash.

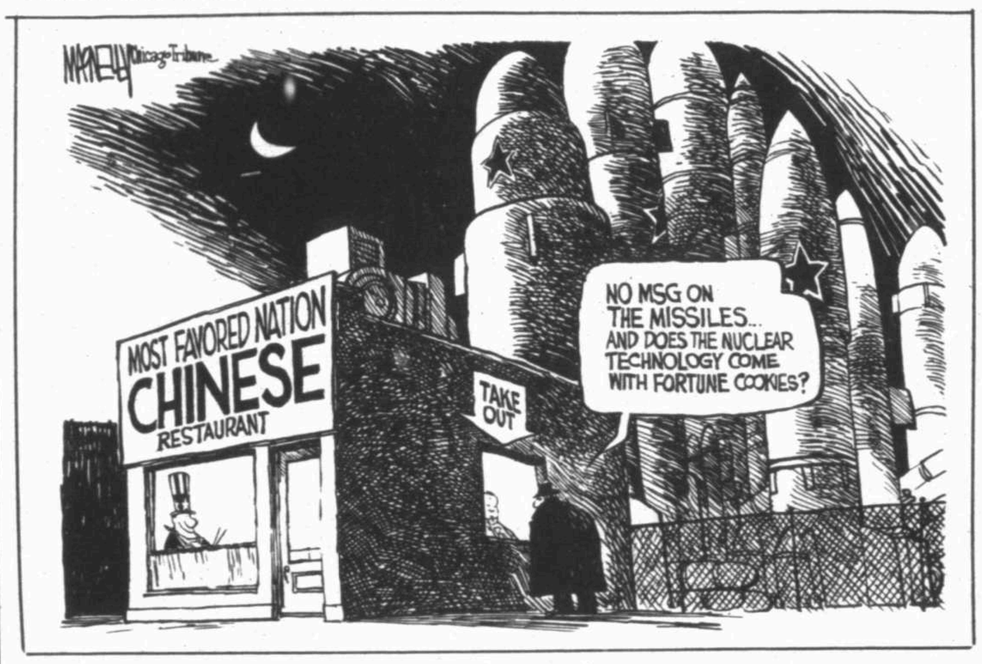

"He took his survival from the accident as a sign that his life finally has limits and if he is to accomplish his goal of rescuing the Palestinians from permanent refugee status, peace with Israel must come first," one explained.

Some diplomatic officials fear an upsurge in terrorism against Israel, the PLO and the West. All eyes are on Palestinian extremist, Ahmed Jibril, who this week promised to assassinate Arafat for compromising with the Israelis, and tabling the most contentious issue of who rules Jerusalem until later. Jibril may not succeed, since he's been trying to kill Arafat since 1966. But there's also the religiously inspired Hamas group.

As Arafat makes peace with Israel, he is also making war with radicals within his own ranks.

Appearing on so many hit lists is the ironic byproduct of peace with Israel. The question is, can Arafat survive his ultimate success?

Bad things follow frequent liar program

The government's story, which may be a lie, is that the scheme to make illegal loans of $5 billion to Iraq was the work of five branch-bank employees in Atlanta. They worked for the Atlanta branch of Italy's Banca Nazionale del Lavoro with headquarters in Rome, and the deed was done back during the Bush administration when Washington still thought Saddam Hussein was one of the good guys.

Baker

Five billion seems a considerable sum for an American branch of an Italian bank to be dispensing without so much as an "OK by you?" to the home office in Rome, but the Justice Department says, believe it or not, that's the way it happened.

Naturally, patriotic Americans will assume the government is lying. That's because the government is supposed to lie about such matters. Throughout the Cold War it lied about matters far more scandalous because it had to protect the national security. It was lying for the public good.

Complaining too shrilly about it was bad form. Didn't you know there was a Cold War on? What did you expect the government to do? Let you in on the secret tricks it was playing to protect the country?

To protect the country the CIA was licensed to spread lies abroad. Never mind that the world had become so small that these patriotically motivated lies would be circulating back to the U.S. before they were a day old.

Sometimes the CIA even had to lie, without official license of course, to Congress. Who had the loosest lip in America? Congress. Tell Congress what was up, and you might as well broadcast it to Moscow Station.

Sure, lying to Congress was deplorable, but sometimes it had to be lied to for good patriotic reason. Not all Americans, of course, reasoned this way, but enough did so that presidents could treat Congress with contempt and get away with it by pleading "national security."

Since the country has become hardened to the assumption that the government is a frequent liar, bad things have followed. There has been the loss of faith in government as an honorable enterprise. This has strengthened the know-nothings by reinforcing their slogan that "government is the problem, not the solution."

Moreover, it has created a corrosive cynicism. "Fool me once, shame on thee; fool me twice, shame on me," goes the old rule of self-preservation. Thus we are inevitably tempted to assume that Attorney General Janet Reno was not leveling with us last week when she defended the Justice Department's handling of the Atlanta bank loan to Iraq.

Last year, President Bush's attorney general, William Barr, declining to have an independent counsel investigate it, declared that justice had handled it correctly. In effect, the Bush people insisted that branch-bank small fry had engineered the Iraq loan on their own and that Bush administration heavyweights had not conspired with Italy to arm Iraq before the Persian Gulf war.

Federal Judge Marvin Shoob, who tried the Atlanta case, is skeptical. Only "in never-never land," he said last week, could a small branch bank have carried out the loan scheme without the home office's knowledge. He has sentenced the five Atlanta employees to probation or home detention, saying: "It would be the height of hypocrisy to sentence these defendants as if this were a simple case of wrongdoing by a branch's employees."

It's depressing being forced to ponder that Attorney General Reno may not be giving it to us straight from the shoulder. Still, with speculation involving the CIA and an Italian government already in grave trouble, this is precisely the kind of matter in which the government has felt obliged to lie in the past for "national security."

It's one more example of how our Cold-War heritage corrupts and poisons relations between government and people.

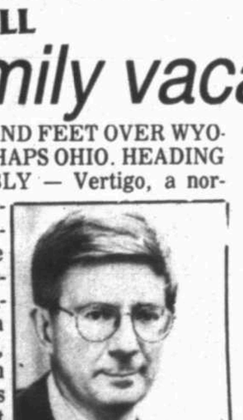

Campaigning for president, Bill Clinton promised a review of the Italian banking case if elected. Ms. Reno's statement last Thursday said "a thorough independent investigation" had given justice no reason to change its opinion. Case closed. Quit grinning.

The family vacation is progress gone too far

THIRTY-THOUSAND FEET OVER WYOMING. OR PERHAPS OHIO. HEADING EAST, PROBABLY — Vertigo, a normal consequence of vacationing, can be combated by looking out the airplane window and focusing on the far horizon. But the horizon is a line one never reaches, so the mind fills with melancholy thoughts about Moses on Mount Pisgah, seeing the Promised Land that he would never enter. Never mind. Just over the horizon, cool and beckoning, lies Labor Day, and release from the rigors of vacationing.

Will

Connoisseurs of oxymorons, those contradictory phrases such as "Balkan cease-fire" and "congressional deficit-reduction plan," know that no oxymoron is purer than "family vacation." That annual "vacation" is not merely obligatory, it is fun. But it involves too much heavy lifting to be really restful.

It is a law of family life that the amount of baggage — what armies call a logistical tail — accompanying a traveling child is inversely proportional to the child's age. The older Will children will, unless reminded and then threatened, leave for a three-week vacation with one change of socks. But David Will, 13 months old, embarks for California the way Eisenhower embarked for Normandy in 1944, with lots of equipment.

David makes few requests, other than a steady supply of Ritz Bits, those tiny cracker sandwiches glued together by peanut butter which may require United Airlines to redecorate several 757s. But David is a high-maintenance creature requiring diapers and bottles and a portable playpen

The experience of traveling with the Will children is not like Boswell's experience traveling with Dr. Johnson in the Hebrides. The dialogue is different. When, five summers ago, in Rome I announced that we were going to Florence for a few days, the children exclaimed in spontaneous chorus: "The hotel had better have cable." Comity hangs on the thin thread of such contingencies.

It has been said that the choice of vacation spots is a common disruptor of marital bliss, so what America needs is an ocean in the mountains. All the Wills, save one, love beaches, the most detestable places on the planet.

Beaches are sun, sand and surf. The first causes cancer. The second sticks to every patch of skin that has been coated with the gunk that provides protection from the sun. The third, the surf, is a hostile element that mankind, or at least that portion of mankind that has actually evolved enough to hate beaches, has been trying to get away from ever since our biological antecedents emerged from the oceans and began crawling inland, shedding gills and acquiring civilization.

Perhaps, said Chekhov, the universe is suspended on the tooth of some monster. While at a beach, I believe that. But this year, as usual, my reasoned objections to beaches were met by my family's spacious yawns. Truth be told, I am glad, because the sight of a 24-pound boy meeting the Pacific Ocean was worth the trip. David had been more or less walking for more than a week. Thigh-deep, meaning nine inches, into the surf, his confident body language proclaimed to the Pacific: "It is a question of who's boss!" He learned.

For him in the surf, travel was what travel used to be for most people, arduous and tinged with the thrill of danger. Historian Daniel Boorstin notes that the old English noun "travel," meaning journey, comes from "travail," meaning "trouble" or "work" or "torment."

Thirteen years and two children ago I knew this. I wrote that vacations, although a hard-won entitlement for toiling humanity, come under the category of progress that may have gone too far. However, there is this to be said for vacations: They rob winter of its sting. Someone shoveling snow is consoled by the thought that things could be worse. He could be at a beach. Of course vacations enable parents and children to get to know each other better, but time heals such wounds.

Next summer is still far over the horizon, but it is never too soon to begin summoning up the stoicism that vacations require and that Robert Frost distilled into six words: The best way out is through.

Solution to flooding creates big problem

The county went to a lot of expense recently trying to alleviate a flooding problem in South Midland. The work did not alleviate the flooding, and it caused other problems. We have a business on South Jackson. We did have a nice driveway. Now we have a bar-ditch with standing water every time it rains. The county graded and carried away dirt from their right-of-way. Now the overfull road washes our driveway away every time it rains. We have now been informed by the county that we have to get a permit and rebuild our driveway to county specifications.

Position on NAFTA should be examined

Recently reported in the area media was a trip by local "leaders" to Mexico — a trip designed to set the stage for support by these "leaders" for the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

While on an international and national level the debate continues as to the benefits of NAFTA to the business community, the American (make that the United States) worker is left to wonder what impact the NAFTA will have on his/her job and family. Unfortunately, the working American is grappling to make this determination with the handicap of being woefully uninformed of the provisions of the agreement, and the far-reaching ramifications of same. Even more unfortunate is that our area "leaders" are largely uninformed themselves!

There is more — much more — to this agreement than can be covered here. In fact, the document is over 1,000 pages! Area officials and bureaus claim that they have the "Overview" of the NAFTA. It is 43 pages, and is put out by the same government that negotiated the agreement. Wonder what kind of spin is on the overview?

We urge the leaders and officials of our communities to examine their position on NAFTA — and their motives for the same — and act in the interest of those they represent. We further urge every working man and woman to get involved in this debate, and ask questions about the positions our officials take. Be aware that this agreement was negotiated by politicians trying to save their jobs, and that the primary beneficiary of this pact — Mexico — is governed by the same political party that led the revolt against American colonization and industrialization in 1910. Don't be conned into believing that the governing party of Mexico has changed its ideology.

Two super Wal-Marts not needed in basin

What is our city council doing? Two super Wal-Marts in the Permian Basin. Why? What I think they should do is bring in an HEB. The people of Odessa and other surrounding areas would come to Midland if we had an HEB; and the people of Midland would go to Odessa for the super Wal-Mart therefore helping both the Midland and Odessa economy. Wake up people.

Fire hydrant testing saves lives, property

It's that time of year again. The time of year that the fire department does the annual hydrant testing. Last year in September as I was driving to work I saw this fire engine at the corner of Michigan and Andrews Highway. I saw two firefighters standing at the fire hydrant and water was flowing out of it and down the street. I stopped to ask why they were doing that. They replied that every year the fire department tests and services the city hydrants. They went on to say that some hydrants are found to have been damaged or vandalized. Those hydrants are reported to another city department to be scheduled for repair and returned to service.

At first I thought this flowing of water was a waste and just created flooded intersections. The firefighters then told me that they hear that quite often and explained to the inquirers that no one can predict which hydrant will be needed and when. So doing an annual flow test and greasing of the movable parts becomes essential so that every possible hydrant is ready in case of an emergency.

A few months later there was a house fire in my neighborhood. I was sure glad when I saw a firefighter hook up the hose to the hydrant down the street. Water then started flowing through the hose and to the fire engine the fire was quickly put out and kept from spreading to other houses. So next time there is a hydrant flowing water down the street with a firefighter standing there watching it be glad and NOT angry. That hydrant they test today may be the one used to save your home or business tomorrow.

Program cancellation 'burns' area viewer

I would like to make a point about the television programming. We have a group of people that thinks it has the right to tell others what we should all be watching.

I like the action shows about crime series. There is one that is to be taken off the air before it has a chance to be shown, called "N.Y.P.D. Blues." I really get burned when someone tells me, as an adult, that I do not have the right to watch something on T.V. I wonder if the producers have thought about this. If you let someone take over the rights of others and the only programming aired was that which select groups of people might watch, soon the programming will only be watched by a third of the people. It is like when they had the book burning, because a select few didn't want certain books to be read and what happened? They ended up burning The Bible along with the other books. The burning of T.V. programs is the same way. It is what this country is made of: Your freedom of choice. Look at it like this, if someone decided they didn't like what they read in the newspaper and they started calling all of the advertisers to stop advertising. Isn't it a form of blackmail to do this?

Who wants to spend a whole night of T.V. time watching kiddie shows. I am an adult.

Reader recognizes MHS cheerleaders

As I read the Wednesday, Sept. 1, edition of the Reporter-Telegram, I was very pleased to see the picture, write-up and names of the Lee High School cheerleaders. They did very well at camp and certainly deserve the publicity. The Midland College squad has also received attention in the paper and each member of the squad was recognized.

I also remember reading in the Aug. 16th edition of the Reporter-Telegram of the accomplishments of the Midland High School Varsity and Junior Varsity squads. Their outstanding performance and skill earned both squads an invitation to the National Cheerleading Association national competition to be held in Dallas on Dec. 27 and 28, and three of these young people received the honor of being named All-American Cheerleaders.

My problem is, who are these young people from MHS who have brought such honor to their school for the first time in more than 30 years. Do they have names or are they just a group of kids who don't matter to anyone but their parents?

These young people are entitled to be known by their names and I wish to recognize them for their accomplishments. On the Varsity squad the three All Americans are Kit Tomlinson, head cheerleader, Jeremy Kinder and Stacey Wheeler. Other varsity members are Albert Flores, Hadley Tyler, Kenye Kay Butts, Tiffany Cauthen, Landi Orr, Mandy Rector, Natalie Lowe, Kim Sebastin and LeaAnn Shields. The mascot is Shane Denson. Junior varsity includes Hillary Hyde, Kara Kidwell, John Farnell, Ashley Baugh, Amber Hightower, Angela Jones, Chelsea Pervier and Jesica Price. Janie Wilkins is the enthusiastic and dedicated sponsor.

Support groups help many troubled teens

This is in response to the "Speaking Out" column on Aug. 22 by Michelle Hayward and Kit Tomlinson. I compliment these teen-agers on their courage and willingness to take a stand against something that is popular among our youth today. From news reports, the grand jury report, and the open town meeting on Aug. 18, drug and alcohol abuse in our community among teen-agers and adults is worse than most of us want to believe.

Unlike some, I do not blame the parents. I am legal guardian to someone that might be described as a "troubled teen-ager." I learned through a parent support group that I did not need to be ashamed, that I did not do anything wrong, and that the fact is, children use drugs and alcohol for a lot of the same reasons that adults do — to cover up the pain they feel and the fears they have. As Kit pointed out at the town meeting, the kids today are not living in the world we lived in; they have a lot more to be afraid of today and in their future than we had 20 years ago.

As a parent, what can we do? I plan to get more involved and informed by attending the town meetings. I will continue to attend my parent support group because I hope I can help other parents deal with the same problems I have had.

Is expelling a kid from school for being under the influence the only solution? Perhaps these kids need something other than more punishment. The counselors at the schools are there to help the kids, but some give the impression that they would rather get the troublemakers out of the system. Instead of expulsion or sending these kids to the Alternative Education Center or Culver Youth Home, the schools could consider mandatory support groups during the noon hour, free period or after school. There are many licensed drug and alcohol abuse counselors in our area who might volunteer their time to help with these support groups, thereby taking the economic burden away from the school system.

SPEAKING OUT

Campus police improve security of schools

By John E. Miller

John E. Miller is chief of police for the Midland Independent School District Police Department.

Let me set the record straight once and for all as I am very tired of the misinformation and the out of context statements made by others printed in the paper about the school district security department and what my "intentions" have been.

When hired in January of 1989 to take over the security department of the school district I was given a mandate to improve the safety and security of our schools. In September of 1989 the department became the twelfth campus police department in the state, there are now approximately 45. Ector ISD just hired six personnel as campus police officers for each of their junior highs for $24,200 a year where we use security for $10,500 a year.

They now have 12 school district police and I have four, counting myself, and eight security personnel. The MISD (Midland Independent School District) police meet the same high state standards and hold the same state license as every officer in Midland Police Department (MPD). Several of the security officers are police academy trained and have passed their state police examination for licensing. There is very little that we are not capable of accomplishing and have demonstrated so over the years and that is exactly why we continue to meet the needs of Midland schools and our community.

As mentioned in previous articles in the paper after the infamous "report" was published, their conclusions about this department and me were biased and unsubstantiated by fact. I never was intent on creating my own police force. Like other Texas communities, the district in its wisdom felt it was necessary to meet its needs. I gave documented proof that we were successful to the Midland Reporter-Telegram and other media representatives in countless interviews this past year. The 1992 UCR published by Department of Public Safety (DPS) illustrates that MISD had the lowest level of aggravated assaults and other part one offenses of the reporting school districts!

What the citizens of Midland need to understand is that our schools, while we have our share of problems, are among the safest in the state and I can prove that with hard documented evidence. We have been very successful with our programs and will continue to improve thanks to several new pieces of legislation, which brings me to my final point.

Two years ago, long before the special grand jury even was formed, several other enlightened school police chiefs (Chief Tom Nichols of Lubbock ISD, formerly the Lubbock city police chief among them) and I identified the problem of lack of support and cooperation from local police departments. We saw a real need to clarify and change several Texas laws to permit us to improve school safety. If anyone has tried to make a new law or get an old one amended you know the stone wall we were up against. We drafted HB633 and two others, found a legislator and state senator to sponsor them, and then testified and built coalitions of support.

Through the efforts of our newly formed Texas Association of School District Police (TASDP) and its affiliation with the Texas Municipal Police Association (TMPA) we managed to get our bills passed on a 100 percent vote in the Senate and an overwhelming non-recorded vote in the House with the governor signing the legislation into law effective May 11, 1993. This was accomplished over the objections of the Texas Police Chief's Association and CLEAT who were both told by the Public Safety Committee chairman they were not interested in their "turf" concerns but only in the safety of our schools. In that legislation was a paragraph we included which by law would force local police to communicate and coordinate with school police.

It didn't take a grand jury report to do it! We also gave total support to HB23 which requires local police to tell school officials when they arrest a student for certain crimes such as drugs, weapons and crimes of violence. Schools need to know that because it often spills over into school the next day and they weren't providing us with that information.

Chief Tom Nichols of Lubbock ISD and I were both recently elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the National Association of School Security and Law Enforcement Officers (NASSLEO). This is an organization of some 2,000 members involved in school safety across this country. These professional members elected me to represent them because I am a professional in the field of school safety and security. I hold a Masters degree, a Texas Peace Officer Advance Certificate and Instructor License.

I have worked in law enforcement since 1971 and was a town police chief in Maine as well as having five years with a federal law enforcement agency. As an Army Reserve major assigned to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Denton, I have worked with the local Midland office of emergency management in my reserve status as an emergency management operations officer for the past three years. I am also a Certified Fraud Examiner, the only one in Texas west of Ft. Worth.

The Midland ISD Police Department operations and our efforts in Texas serve as a model nationwide for safe schools. We recently brought our patrol cars up to professional standards and I am certain that the community will take pride in them. My police officers are changing to a new blue uniform and the security officers will remain in the tan to help distinguish the two functions for the students and public. We will have primary law enforcement jurisdiction within the boundaries of the MISD for all non-life threatening offenses that relate to school matters, whether they be major crimes or not. If you see us stopped at a traffic light or stop sign don't expect us to chase the car that runs a light as we will only be enforcing the traffic laws on the adjacent streets to our schools. We always have handled these matters and will continue to do more than just handle truancy — as was recently implied by folks from downtown as all we'd be responsible for. The school district has taken a lot of steps and spent a lot of money to make our schools safe with $25,000 to DARE, $10,000 to D-FY-IT, changing policy to make students more accountable and other innovative steps.

After three months of coordination with MPD and the city manager, the board approved the memorandum of understanding required by HB633 with the city but then the city wanted us to start all over again and work out a new agreement so we are obliging them. What have the other governmental agencies done in the way of changing ordinances or contributing money to D-FY-IT? The citizens of Midland can be assured that the Midland ISD Police Department is making every effort to keep their schools "SAFE AND SECURE."

Readers' views on: Abortion

All women deserve spiritual compassion

I am not going to sling the labels of "conservative" or "liberal" or the judgments of "right" or "wrong" about abortion. I want, instead, to simply say that choice, first of all, does not mean and has never unequivocally meant "abortion;" choice simply means what it says: decision between alternatives. And if some pregnant women for whatever reasons they might choose select the heart-wrenching decision of abortion, I would want them to know that sound medical care and sound psychological advice are available to them in an atmosphere that respects their dignity and the difficulty of any CHOICE they might CHOOSE. I think it's something about "throwing the first stone" admonishment that stops short my judgment about the circumstances of another's life.

Abortion is not nor should it ever be just another form of birth control. No, abortion is a choice a woman must sometimes make, and unfortunately, many women have made this choice either in shame or in danger of their lives through "coat hanger" assistants. If faced and when faced with this alternative as a viable choice for that individual life, then that woman deserves the dignity and good care of people who sit not to judge her but to assist her in this life decision. This is a decision that involves not just "life" but "quality of life" choices.

As far as I am concerned, women who for reasons of their own and in full recognition of the gravity of their choice, are my sisters, my mothers, and my daughters. What I would want for all women is dignity integral to their womanhood; safety and care in their medical needs; and choice, always choice — in their careers, in their relationships, in their lives — to be the very best they can be and to do the very best they can do in this life.

But until through education and choice, every child is indeed a wanted child, then, if a women's life choice is abortion, then I would want all the women of this community and West Texas area to know that they can walk in the front door, not the back, and leave with their self-esteem and with their private lives intact.

Instead of promoting a sense of "religious arrogance" about the decision individual women might have to make, not just about life but the quality of life they can provide at any given time to the children of their hearts, I would want most of all to offer them the Golden Rule of spiritual compassion.

Education prepares parents for gift of life

Many arguments for and against abortion have been offered, but I feel the need to express my opinion. I think of myself not as anti-abortion but rather pro-life. I believe that there are rare instances when abortion may be necessary to protect the life and health of the mother, but abortion is not the answer in cases where a woman merely feels "inconvenienced."

The answer, in my opinion, is self-control prior to marriage and if needed, family planning during marriage. As parents and members of the community, we have an obligation to teach our children to be responsible for the consequences that result from the choices they make. But more importantly, we must teach them that sexual relations are appropriate only within marriage. And we as adults need to realize that life is a precious gift . . . even when it is unplanned!

Plane crash kills 3 near Houston

PORTER (AP) — Three people were killed and a fourth person was critically injured in a plane crash Saturday morning in Montgomery County, authorities said.

The Texas Department of Public Safety had few details about the crash, which occurred around 8 a.m. near Porter, said DPS dispatcher David Janning in Houston.

The three victims were "burned beyond recognition," Janning said. The fourth person, a woman, was taken by Life Flight helicopter to Houston's Hermann Hospital where she was in critical condition Saturday morning.

Janning said the crash apparently occurred somewhere on Williams Airport property, but he did not yet have any details about the accident.

The National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration were called to the scene to investigate, he said.

Porter is about 40 miles north of Houston.

Darryl arrested

GLENDALE, Calif. — Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Darryl Strawberry was arrested Saturday for investigation of spousal abuse, police said.

Strawberry, 31, was arrested for allegedly striking a 26-year-old woman he is living with above the right eye, causing a one-inch laceration, Glendale Police Sgt. Lief Nicolaisen said.

Nicolaisen wouldn't give the woman's name, but said she and Strawberry were living together in Glendale. Nicolaisen said he wasn't certain whether the two are married.

The woman was treated at Verdugo Hills Hospital after the 5:45 a.m. incident, Nicolaisen said, adding the woman was released shortly thereafter.

"He struck her once with a closed fist," Nicolaisen said. "We were called to the emergency room of the hospital and we accompanied her back to the residence where they lived so she could remove personal belongings. We went there to keep the peace and to further our investigation into this alleged domestic violence and we made an arrest.

"This was the result of a domestic dispute between the two which resulted in Strawberry striking the woman. He was cooperative in the arrest, the police had no problems with him."

After being arrested, Strawberry was booked at the Glendale City Jail on one count of unlawful infliction of corporal injury on a spouse-cohabitant, Nicolaisen said.

Strawberry was later released on $20,000 bond. According to Nicolaisen, Strawberry spent about 90 minutes in jail before being released. Strawberry is scheduled for arraignment on Sept. 30 in Glendale Municipal Court if charges are filed by the Los Angeles County District Attorney's office.

The Dodgers are in Miami playing the Florida Marlins this weekend, but Strawberry, who has missed most of the season with a back injury, has not been traveling with the team.

NY's Abbott gets no-hitter

■ Abbott, who was born without a right hand, pitched his first no-hitter as the Yankees beat Cleveland 4-0.

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — Jim Abbott never dreamed he would be on the same list with Allie Reynolds and Don Larsen.

Abbott pitched a no-hitter Saturday as the New York Yankees beat the Cleveland Indians 4-0. It was the Yankees' seventh regular season no-hitter and the eighth overall, counting postseason.

Abbott is a fan favorite because he has overcome the handicap of being born without a right hand. This effort will only add to his many great accomplishments.

Larsen pitched a perfect game on Oct. 8, 1956 at Yankee Stadium against the Brooklyn Dodgers. Reynolds pitched two no-hitters in 1951, beating Cleveland and Boston.

"I was just thrilled to death," Abbott said, who acknowledged the cheers by tipping his cap and waving to the crowd. "I never expected to throw a no-hitter."

Other Yankees to toss no-hitters are George Mogridge, Sam Jones, Monte Pearson and Dave Righetti. Righetti was the last Yankee to pitch an official no-hitter prior to Abbott on July 4, 1983.

Andy Hawkins pitched an eight-inning no-hitter but lost the game to Chicago on July 1, 1990. But Major League Baseball later took 50 no-hitters out of the record book, including all less than nine innings.

The crowd, held down by morning rain, remained on its feet until Abbott came out of the dugout to take a bow. He then brought catcher Matt Nokes out with him.

"Matt called a great game," Abbott said. "He deserved credit, too."

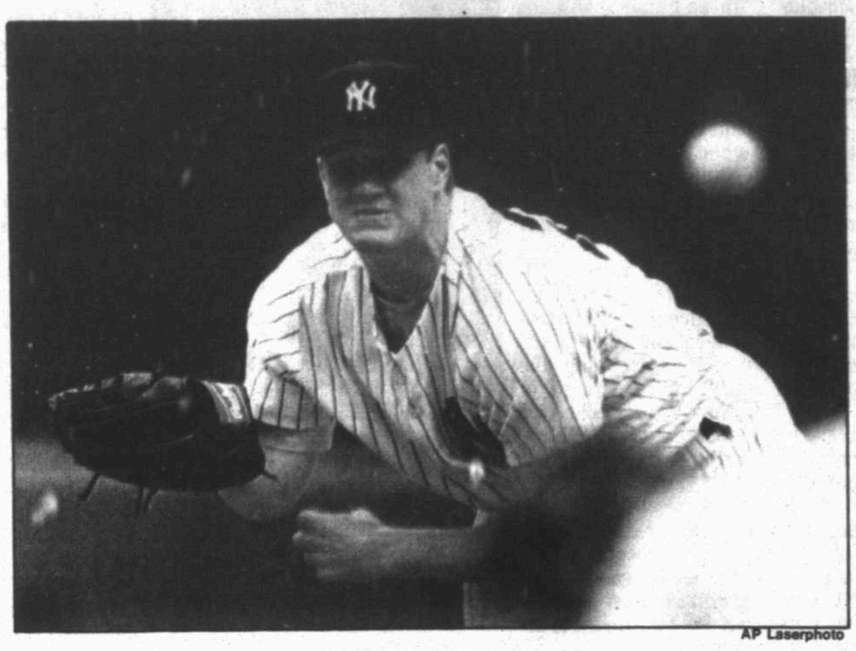

The game ended when Carlos Baerga grounded out to shortstop Randy Velarde.

"I saw that on the scoreboard. I'm glad for him, because he's a great, great kid," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said.

Abbott met with his wife shortly after tossing his no-hitter and shared some special moments.

"She and I have shared a lot this year," said Abbott, who has struggled for much of the season. He entered the game with a record of 9-11 and a 4.31 ERA.

"It's a thrill to do this in a pennant race, in September," Abbott said.

■ A&M didn't need Hill as twin-tailbacks McElroy and Thomas carried Aggie offense.

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M's leading rusher, Greg Hill, was suspended for Saturday's game, but the fifth-ranked Aggies didn't need him.

Their twin-tailbacks did the job just fine.

After a mistake-filled, scoreless first half, Leeland McElroy caught touchdown passes of 26 and 58 yards and Rodney Thomas ran 80 yards for a score, igniting Texas A&M to a 24-0 victory over Louisiana State.

McElroy, a redshirt freshman playing his first college game, took a screen pass from quarterback Corey Pullig and turned it into a 26-yard touchdown play for the Aggies' first score.

McElroy caught the ball behind two blockers, ran around the pileup and down the sideline for the touchdown with 8:40 to play in the third quarter.

"I just wanted to have a good game," McElroy said. "I wasn't worried. I knew Rodney would take up any slack."

Thomas and McElroy split time at tailback in place of Hill, one of five players suspended for accepting pay for work on summer jobs they didn't perform. Hill's suspension began last season, and kept him out of the Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame on Jan. 1.

Thomas ran 80 yards in 13 seconds later in the third quarter for the second-longest run of his career. He broke through the line and outran the LSU secondary.

"Things happened just right," Thomas said. "The timing was right. The offensive line got good blocks and it was off to the races."

On the second play of the fourth quarter, McElroy caught a short pass over the middle from Pullig and ran 58 yards for the touchdown with 14:05 left in the Raiders rip Pacific

By Mike Butts
Staff writer

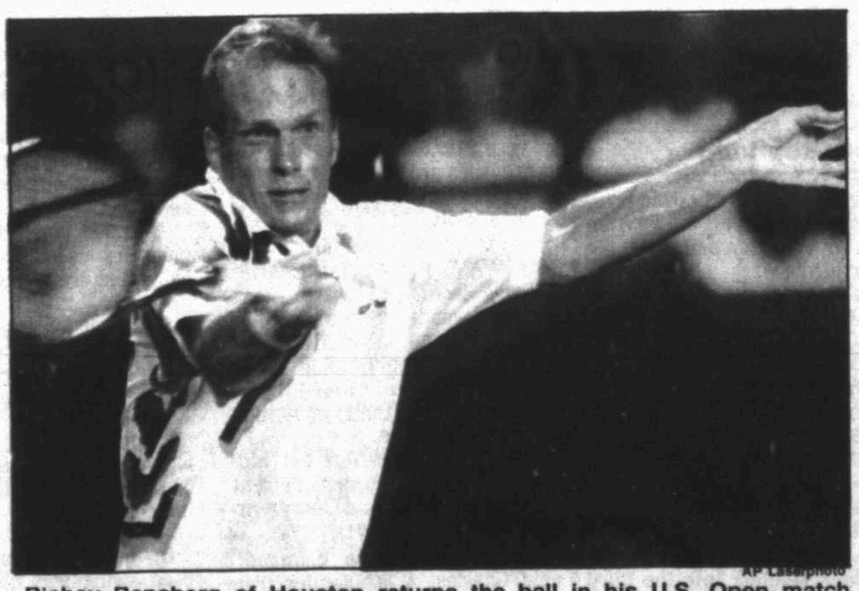

LUBBOCK — For Texas Tech fans, the rest of the month of September should provide a good idea of just how good this year's Red Raiders are. But all Saturday night's season opening 55-7 slaughter of Pacific at Jones Stadium did was raise another question about the team.

Is the Red Raider offense this good or is Pacific that bad?

Tech started its 69th season of football by romping to 587 yards of offense — its fifth-best all-time total — against the Tigers. Pacific had a 3-8 mark last year as members of the Big West Conference. It was the most Tech had scored in an opener since a 1927 62-0 win over Panhandle.

Sampras, Chang avoid jinx

Richey Reneberg of Houston returns the ball in his U.S. Open match against Andrei Medvedev Saturday. The tournament has featured rain, injuries and the upset of several top seeds, including seven in the men's singles draw.

NEW YORK — Pete Sampras ruled the stadium court, Michael Chang the grandstand, and side by side Saturday night they avoided this year's U.S. Open jinx to move a match away from a quarterfinal showdown.

Phillies set NL record, but lose to Reds 6-5

CINCINNATI — Philadelphia scored off Jose Rijo to set an NL record but couldn't overcome the Cincinnati pitcher's career-high four RBIs and seven strong innings that led the Reds to a victory Saturday night.

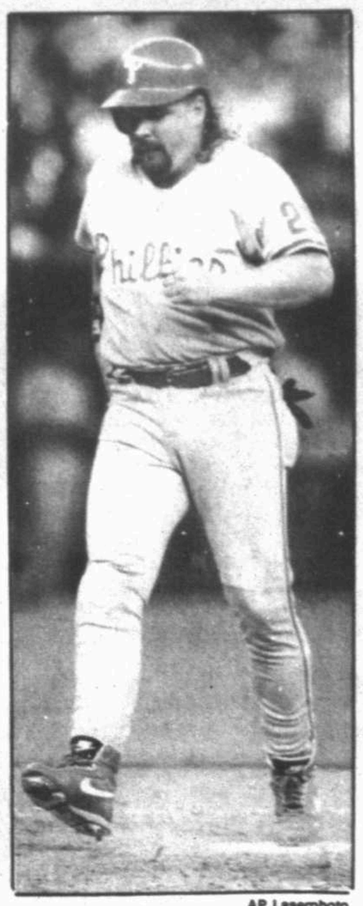

Rijo (13-7) gave up one run in seven innings and had a two-run single and a two-run double off Danny Jackson (11-10) to snap the Phillies' three-game winning streak.

■ NL Roundup

Philadelphia scored four runs in the ninth, when Rob Dibble gave up a pair of singles and four walks. But Scott Service got the last two outs for his first major-league save.

Philadelphia set a modern NL record in the fourth with Darren Daulton's sacrifice fly. The Phillies haven't been shut out in 151 consecutive games, topping the previous mark by Pittsburgh in 1924-25. The New York Yankees of 1931-33 hold the major-league record of scoring in 308 straight games.

The Phillies didn't do much celebrating when John Kruk crossed the plate with the record-setting run — and for good reason. The NL's most prolific offense was being outscored by the Reds' free-swinging pitcher.

Philadelphia's John Kruk scores to prevent a shutout.

Cubs 9, Mets 8

CHICAGO — Shawon Dunston's first hit in 16 months — an eighth-inning double — tied the game, and he scored the winning run on Sammy Sosa's single as Chicago overcame five New York homers to beat the Mets.

With the Mets ahead 8-7, Ryne Sandberg led off with a walk, took second on a grounder and scored on Dunston's liner to left-center. Sosa folowed with his third hit of the game, a single to center off reliever John Franco (3-1).

The hit by Dunston — sidelined after back surgery — made a winner of Jose Bautista, who allowed the Mets to take an 8-7 lead in the top of the inning on Ryan Thompson's second homer of the game. Randy Myers pitched the ninth to get his 39th save, extending a club record he set Friday.

Bobby Bonilla also had two homers — the first his career-high 33rd — for the Mets. He went 3-for-4 with three RBIs, as did Thompson.

Bonilla's first homer, followed a single by Eddie Murray — who later was to homer — in the first.

In the bottom of the first, Sandberg extended his hitting streak to 16 games with an infield single and scored when Glenallen Hill hit his fourth homer since being traded from Cleveland to the Cubs on Aug. 20.

Pitcher Frank Castillo's RBI single in the second put Chicago ahead 3-2, but Murray's 22nd homer tied the game in the third.

Mark Grace's RBI single in the third knocked out New York starter Eric Hillman and gave the Cubs the lead.

Thompson's seventh homer made it 4-4 in the fourth, but Chicago scored three times in the bottom of the inning. Steve Lake had an RBI double and Dwight Smith followed by breaking a Cubs record with his 47th career pinch-hit, a two-run double.

Dodgers 9, Marlins 4

MIAMI — Eric Karros had a career-high four hits, four RBIs and one of three Los Angeles home runs in support of a hitless Orel Hershiser as the Dodgers beat Florida.

Karros and Cory Snyder, who also homered along with Henry Rodriguez, broke out of batting slumps. Karros went 4-for-5 after entering the game 3-for-17 on the fifth game of road trip that ends Sunday. Snyder, who went 2-for-4 with a walk, came in 4-for-17 on the trip.

Hershiser (11-12), whose last trip to Florida was historic because he lost 6-3 in the Marlins' inaugural game last April, settled down after a shaky first inning in which he allowed three runs (two unearned) on two hits.

He pitched eight innings plus and won his third consecutive start by allowing eight hits, striking out four and walking one. But Hershiser went 0-for-5, lowering his batting average to .391. The major league record for a pitcher is .406 by Jack Bentley of the 1923 New York Giants.

Jack Armstrong (7-15), winless since July 17, allowed eight of 13 Los Angeles hits and six runs in 4 1-3 innings. He allowed two homers, bringing his total to 27 — one behind the league-leading figure of Colorado's Greg Harris.

Rodriguez hit his sixth homer to start the second inning, slicing the Marlins' lead to 3-2. Karros singled in the fourth and Snyder hit his ninth homer to put the Dodgers ahead for good.

Giants 3, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — J.R. Phillips tripled and hit a two-run homer in his first two major league at-bats and rookie Solomon Torres won his second straight game as San Francisco beat St. Louis.

The victory kept San Francisco 3½ games ahead of Atlanta in the NL West. The Braves beat visiting San Diego, 3-2.

Phillips, called up from Triple-A Phoenix on Friday, hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning after Barry Bonds doubled off starter Rene Arocha (10-6).

Phillips was hitting .263 with a Pacific Coast League-leading 27 home runs and 94 RBIs. He was claimed on waivers by the Giants on Dec. 17, 1992, from California.

Torres (2-0), making only his second major league start, allowed eight hits with two walks in eight innings. Rod Beck pitched a scoreless ninth for his 40th save.

It was another big game for Giants newcomers. On Wednesday at Atlanta, John Patterson hit his first major league homer in the ninth inning as San Francisco won.

Matt Williams made the score 3-0 against the Cardinals in the sixth with his 29th home run.

St. Louis loaded the bases twice in the first three innings but failed to score.

Torres, 14-3 with two minor league teams this season, was called up from Phoenix on Aug. 24 when Trevor Wilson went on the disabled list.

Braves 3, Padres 2

ATLANTA — Terry Pendleton hit a homer and David Justice drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single as Atlanta beat San Diego to keep the pressure on San Francisco.

It was the Braves' third consecutive win, 11th in 13 games and 20th in 24 in their relentless chase of the first-place Giants in the NL West. The Braves remained 3½ games behind San Francisco as the Giants won, 3-1, at St. Louis.

Kent Mercker (3-1) and three relievers combined to hold the Padres to five hits. Greg McMichael pitched the ninth to pick up his 13th save in 13 tries, allowing an RBI single by Jeff Gardner.

Mercker, primarily a reliever, had only one victory in eight previous career starts — a combined no-hitter on Sept. 11, 1991 in a 1-0 win over the Padres. The left-hander allowed one hit in five innings with two walks and three strikeouts.

Pendleton, who also homered in Friday's 7-3 win, hit his 12th home run of the season in the second inning off Doug Brocail (3-11).

Expos 7, Astros 5

HOUSTON — Ken Hill pitched a strong game and had a two-run double as Montreal extended its winning streak to nine games by beating lumping Houston.

Marquis Grissom and Rondell White had two-run homers — White's first in the major leagues — as the Expos handed the Astros their seventh loss in nine games.

Montreal's record for consecutive victories is 10 in 1979 and 1980. Expos pitching hadn't allowed a run in 19 consecutive innings before Luis Gonzalez got an RBI single following a leadoff triple by Steve Finley to start a five-run ninth.

Rockies 10, Pirates 4

DENVER — Charlie Hayes had three hits, including the game-winning single, and Andres Galarraga knocked in two runs with a homer and double as Colorado rallied over Pittsburgh.

Winner Lance Painter (2-2) pitched seven-plus innings, allowing four runs on 12 hits. He struck out three and walked two. Steve Reed and Darren Holmes finished up.

Loser Tim Wakefield (4-9) allowed five runs on seven hits over 4 2-3 innings.

The Rockies trailed 4-2 in the fifth when Dante Bichette doubled to drive in Painter and Joe Girardi, who had both walked. With two outs, Hayes hit an infield single to send Dante Bichette home and give the Rockies a 5-4 lead and their eventual winning run.

Bell homers and drives in five for White Sox

Associated Press

DETROIT (AP) — George Bell homered for the second straight day and drove in five runs, leading Chicago to an 11-2 victory over Detroit Saturday.

Alex Fernandez (17-6) moved to 5-0 in his last six starts. He allowed two runs on seven hits, one walk and struck out three in seven innings. Jeff Schwarz pitched the eighth and Brian Drahman the ninth.

Bill Gullickson (12-7), who was 6-0 in August, lasted only three innings, allowing five runs on six hits.

Chicago scored in each of the first four innings, with the help of several defensive lapses by the Tigers.

In the first, Joey Cora's single to left skipped past Dan Gladden, as Cora reached second. He took third on Frank Thomas' fly ball and scored on Robin Ventura's bunt single.

In the second, Dan Pasqua's shallow pop down the leftfield line dropped between shortstop Alan Trammell and third baseman Travis Fryman for a double. Pasqua scored on Ozzie Guillen's single.

Royals 4, Red Sox 2

BOSTON — Brian McRae homered and Kevin McReynolds tripled as Kansas City scored all their runs in the ninth inning to defeat Boston and reward the strong pitching of David Cone.

McRae tied the score with a shot into the right-field bullpen after Greg Gagne had led off the ninth with a double. After Mike Macfarlane walked with one out, McReynolds tripled past diving right-fielder Rob Deer and scored on Gary Gaetti's sacrifice fly.

Cone (11-11), who rarely has gotten much offensive support this season, allowed four hits and struck out eight in eight innings. He permitted only one hit after the first inning and retired 13 straight batters during one stretch.

Mariners 6, Brewers 1

SEATTLE — Tim Leary scattered seven hits over 8⅓ innings and got all the run support he needed when the first three Seattle batters scored as the Mariners beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1 Saturday night.

Leary bounced back from a terrible August and improved to 9-7 for the year. Leary struck out four and walked three before leaving with two out in the ninth and the bases loaded.

Ted Power came on and got Pat Listach to ground out to first to earn his ninth save.

During the month of August, Leary went 0-3 with two no-decisions and recorded a 10.17 ERA.

Milwaukee starter Cal Eldred (15-13) pitched 7⅓ innings and suffered his first loss after winning four straight starts. He allowed six hits, struck out five and walked three.

Mike Felder started the first inning for Seattle with a single, and moved to second base on Bret Boone's walk. Ken Griffey, Jr. doubled both Felder and Boone home, and moved to third base on the throw home. One out later, Dave Magadan singled Griffey home.

The Mariners added insurance in the fourth when the first two Seattle batters of the inning scored.

Orioles 6, Athletics 3

OAKLAND — Chris Hoiles hit a two-run homer in a four-run sixth inning as the Orioles beat the Athletics, extending Baltimore's winning streak to six games and Oakland's slide to five.

A's rookie starter Steve Karsay (1-3) blanked the Orioles through five innings for a 1-0 lead.

But with two out in the Baltimore sixth, Harold Baines and Cal Ripken singled, the latter taking second on right fielder Ruben Sierra's error before Mike Pagliarulo singled them in. Hoiles followed with his 21st homer.

Karsay, acquired from Toronto on July 21 in the Rickey Henderson trade, dueled with Jamie Moyer (11-6), who kept the A's scoreless through four innings. Moyer allowed eight hits in seven plus innings, struck out five and walked none.

The A's scored in the fifth when Mike Bordick doubled with one out. Marcos Armas followed with a single that bounced past shortstop Ripken, sending Bordick to third. Henry Mercedes struck out before Jerry Browne singled over Moyer's head to score Bordick.

Rangers 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Juan Gonzalez took the major-league lead with his 41st home run and Julio Franco followed with his 100th career homer, helping Kevin Brown and Texas beat Minnesota.

Texas remained six games behind Chicago in the AL West.

Brown (11-11), who has a 7-1 career record against Minnesota, allowed eight hits in 6 1-3 innings to win for the second time in his last six decisions.

Scott Erickson (8-17) already trailed 3-1 with one out in the fifth when Gonzalez lined a 3-1 pitch over the left-field fence. Franco then hit his 14th homer of the season.

It was the seventh time the Rangers, who lead the league with 158 home runs, have hit back-to-back shots. Gonzalez has been part of the last six occasions.

The Rangers went up 6-1 in the seventh when Gonzalez doubled and scored on Ivan Rodriguez's single.

The Twins scored three times in the bottom of the inning. Pat Mearses' bunt single and Shane Mack's double chased Brown.

Angels 4, Blue Jays 2

ANAHEIM — Eduardo Perez hit a bases-loaded triple to support Joe Magrane's first victory in nearly two months as California beat Toronto.

The defeat cut the Blue Jays' AL East lead to one game over the New York Yankees, who beat Cleveland 4-0 earlier in the day. Third-place Baltimore, a 6-3 winner over Oakland, closed within four games.

Magrane (1-1) was in total control to pick up his first AL victory in his third start for the Angels, who signed him on Aug. 19 following his release by St. Louis. Magrane allowed five hits in his seven-inning stint, only two of which reached the outfield, while walking one and striking out three.

Magrane had not won since July 7 when he defeated Atlanta 3-1.

Steve Frey got the last two outs for his 12th save.

Perez provided most of the offensive support with his two-out triple in the first inning, after the Angels had loaded the bases on Chili Davis' single and two walks off Todd Stottlemyre (8-10).

OPEN: 'Lucky loser' Gaidano advances to 16

and games of hearts.

The scheduled switches fit right in with the tenor of this tournament, plagued by injuries, illness, heat, mugginess, rain and a record number of upsets — including seven seeded men falling in the first two rounds.

But when Sampras and Chang finally got on the courts, another crowd of 20,829 packing the stands, they skirted the pitfalls that caught so many others.

Sampras, No. 2, overpowered Arnaud Boetsch 6-4, 6-3, 6-1 moments after the indefatigable Chang, No. 7, wore down Bernd Karbacher 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

No big surprise there. But there was out on Court 21, where Maria Jose Gaidano, the "lucky loser" from qualifying who replaced ailing Mary Joe Fernandez at the last moment, reached the round of 16 by beating Jenny Byrne.

"This has been one of the biggest emotions I've ever felt and one of the most beautiful," said Gaidano, a 20-year-old Argentinian making her first trip to New York.

Sampras threw a scare into Boetsch in the first game of their match. The Frenchman survived seven break points and managed to hold serve after 10 minutes, but it was obvious then that it was just a matter of time before he yielded.

Sampras didn't have his usual high number of aces — none in the first set and only six in the match — but his serves of up to 126 mph produced plenty of service winners and soft returns.

"I didn't do much all day," Sampras said. "I got here at 10, figuring I'd play at 2. There's not much you can do. It's a little uncomfortable in the players' lounge. There are times you want to be left alone and not bothered. It's tough to get privacy."

The switch from day to night did not disturb him, though the court wasn't as dry as he'd like.

"It was a cool night and the court played a bit slick," he said. "I thought I served a little up and down. There was one streak where I couldn't buy a first serve, but I'm pretty pleased."

Chang had lost all three times he played the tall, powerful Karbacher, but hardly needed that for incentive in a Grand Slam event. Still, he welcomed the victory over the German.

"It's a real big deal," Chang said. "Down a set and down a break, I was fortunate to squeak out the second set. You can't be content to just get the ball back against him. He raps the next one for a clean winner. He goes for broke.

"I try as much as I can always to look forward, regardless of past matches. You can get in a negative frame of mind. I was taught to press ahead. Do your best to run for the prize. Keep your focus and not worry about the past, even the good things like winning the French Open in '89. I want bigger and better things."

In the only afternoon match in the stadium, slipped in between the raindrops, Patrick McEnroe played and lost. Not in the dramatic fashion of his five-setter two years ago against Jimmy Connors, but in a routine wipeout at the hands of No. 12 Thomas Muster, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

The playing time was only 2½ hours, but it took more than seven hours to complete with a 3½-hour drizzle delay in the first set and then another 1-hour delay during the second set. No sooner would the court be mopped up than another light shower would soak it again.

"It was difficult for everyone," McEnroe said. "We're used to it. It's part of the job. I don't think (the delays) affected the match. We played well when we came back from the breaks. What can you do?"

He couldn't do much with Muster's punishing shots into the corners and angled volleys.

Mayfair breaks tie in Milwaukee

Associated Press

FRANKLIN, Wis. — Billy Mayfair birdied the final hole to break a four-way tie Saturday and take the lead after three rounds of the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Mayfair shot a 3-under-par 69 for a one-shot lead over defending champion Richard Zokol, Mark Calcavecchia and Jim McGovern. Calcavecchia shot a 67, Zokol 68 and McGovern 69 at Tuckaway Country Club.

Mayfair, who shared the second-round lead with Harry Taylor, had three birdies to stand at 14-under-par 202 after shooting 66 Friday and 67 Thursday. Taylor dropped off the leaderboard with a 4-over 76.

On the 18th hole, Mayfair hit a 4-wood within 175 yards of the hole, then knocked the ball 3 feet from the pin with a 7-iron and made the putt for birdie.

Steve Pate, Ken Green, Ronnie Black, Gil Morgan, Bruce Leitzke, Donnie Hammond and Ted Schulz are two shots back at 12-under 204.

Mayfair lost a playoff to Jim Gallagher in the 1990 GMO. He ranks 64th on the money list with $221,562 after tying for second in the GTE Byron Nelson and seventh in the Kemper Open.

Zokol had two bogeys and three birdies Saturday. Zokol was two shots back heading into the third round after shooting 68 Friday and 67 Thursday.

Zokol ranks 108th on the money list with $123,519 this season. His best finishes are ties for 14th at the PGA and last week at the World Series of Golf.

Quicksilver Seniors

MIDWAY, Pa. — Bob Charles switched from graphite to steel-shafted woods Saturday and pounded a tough Quicksilver Golf Club course into submission, shooting a course-record 65 for the second-round lead in the $1.05 million Quicksilver Classic.

The 7-under-par effort left him alone at 5-under, two shots in front of Raymond Floyd and George Archer, who both shot 71.

"My swing tempo changed," said Charles, a left-hander from New Zealand who is the second-leading money-winner on the Senior PGA Tour this year. He had played with graphite woods the first two rounds and decided to match his woods to his steel-shafted irons.

"It's not good to have some clubs in your bag that are light and some that are heavy. Now, they're all heavy."

So much for experiments. And so much for the Quicksilver course that permitted only five players to break par after the first round.

A sunny morning dried up some of the rain that fell the night before on the 6,900-yard, slanted, undulating course.

On the front nine, Charles' reborn swing was quickly evident. He left his approach shot on 3 nine inches from the hole and put it within two feet on 4.

Washington exacts revenge on Stanford

SEATTLE — Washington took out all its frustrations on Stanford.

Angered by Pac-10 sanctions and Bill Walsh's criticism of their program, the 12th-ranked Huskies retaliated by routing No. 15 Stanford 31-14 Saturday in their first game under coach Jim Lambright.

Sophomore Damon Huard threw three touchdown passes and ran for another in his first career start, and Napoleon Kaufman rushed for 195 yards as Washington beat Stanford for the 10th straight time.

Lambright, a longtime assistant at Washington, was promoted to head coach Aug. 22 after Don James resigned to protest a two-year bowl ban and other stiff penalties levied against the program by the Pac-10. James was the winningest coach in Washington history and led the Huskies to 13 bowl games in the last 14 years, including a current run of three consecutive Rose Bowls.

With James watching from a VIP box at Husky Stadium and a boisterous crowd of 71,893 urging them on, the Huskies blew open a close game in the third period when Huard threw two TD passes in a 3-minute span.

No. 22 Clemson 24, UNLV 14

CLEMSON, S.C. — Clemson shook up its offense and changed its fortunes as Patrick Sapp threw for two touchdowns and the 22nd-ranked Tigers opened with a victory over UNLV.

Sapp, a strong-armed sophomore who completed 10 of 14 passes for 194 yards, threw a 13-yard pass to Terry Smith to put the Tigers ahead 17-14. His 25-yard pass to Marcus Hinton set up a 1-yard scoring run by Rodney Blunt.

Those scores came after UNLV had awakened memories of Clemson's struggle with Ball State in last season's opener, when the Tigers needed two late TDs to break away from a 10-10 tie.

This time, UNLV led 14-10 before the Tigers came back. Clemson's Andre Humphrey picked up rolling punt and was hit immediately, freeing the ball at the Tigers 23. UNLV's Dion Thompson recovered and took it 20 yards to set up John Branch's 2-yard touchdown two plays later.

No. 17 Penn St. 38, Minnesota 20

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — John Sacca threw four touchdown passes to Bobby Engram and No. 17 Penn State made its debut in the Big Ten with a victory over Minnesota in the season opener for both teams.

Sacca completed his first six passes, including TD passes of 29, 31 and 20 yards in the first quarter, and finished 18-for-32 for 274 yards. Engram had eight catches for 165 yards and his four scores broke the school touchdown receiving record of two, held by 30 players.

Sacca's 31-yard touchdown pass to Engram in the fourth quarter clinched the victory.

Minnesota's Tim Schade was 34 for 66 for 476 yards, but threw four interceptions. Two came inside the Penn State 15 in the last five minutes. His 476 yards broke the Minnesota single-game passing mark of 444 yards, set by Mike Hohensee in a 35-31 victory over Ohio State in 1981.

Omar Douglas had 11 catches for 193 yards for Minnesota, a school yardage record. Dwayne McMullen had 186 yards receiving in 1984 against Northwestern.

No. 9 Nebraska 76, N. Texas 14

LINCOLN, Neb. — Reserve quarterbacks Brook Berringer and Tony Veland accounted for five touchdowns as No. 9 Nebraska opened with a rout of Division I-AA North Texas.

Starter Tommie Frazier sprained his ankle on the second play of the game, but it hardly mattered. Nebraska scored the first five times it had the ball and the longest of its 10 touchdown drives required only 3 minutes, 19 seconds.

Berringer ran for two touchdowns and threw for one, and Veland passed for one and ran for another.

Nebraska also lost running back Calvin Jones to a knee sprain early in the second half, after he had scored twice and rushed for 124 yards on 16 carries.

Berringer completed all seven of his passes for 124 yards, finding split end Corey Dixon for a 33-yard touchdown on Nebraska's first possession.

S. Carolina 23, No. 14 Georgia 21

ATHENS, Ga. — Brandon Bennett hurdled into the end zone from the 1 with two seconds remaining to give South Carolina a victory over No. 14 Georgia.

The Gamecocks, who blew a 17-7 fourth-quarter lead, drove 52 yards in the final 2:52 to capture the Southeastern Conference game, the season opener for both teams.

Sophomore Steve Tanneyhill completed two key passes in the drive, a 35-yarder to Stanley Pritchell at the 15 and a 13-yarder to Boomer Foster at the 2.

Georgia, which fell behind when the Gamecocks converted three turnovers into two touchdowns and a field goal, secured a 21-17 lead by scoring twice within a span of 4:21 in the final quarter.

No. 2 Alabama 31, Tulane 17

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Alabama began defense of its national championship by piling up 371 yards in the first half and getting two touchdowns from both Sherman Williams and Chris Anderson to beat Tulane.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide, 13-0 last season, extended its overall winning streak to 24 games against a team that went 2-9 last season and came in a 35-point underdog.

Tulane, which has lost seven in a row in the series, could take solace in scoring its first points against Alabama since 1964. In the three meetings since then, the Tide had won by a combined 126-0, including 37-0 last season and 62-0 in 1991.

The shutout last season was part of Alabama's unexpected march to a national championship, which culminated eight months ago with a 34-13 victory over Miami in the Sugar Bowl.

Alabama is trying to become the first school to repeat as No. 1 since the Crimson Tide did it in 1978-79. Despite losing 10 starters, including three first-round NFL draft picks, coach Gene Stallings has indicated this is the year he expects big things from his team.

No. 3 Michigan 41, Washington St. 14

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Todd Collins made Michigan fans forget about Elvis in a hurry.

Collins, in his first start since Elvis Grbac graduated, threw for 265 yards and three touchdowns as the third-ranked Wolverines rolled over Washington State.

Kevin Hicks scored both Washington State touchdowns on a 97-yard kickoff return and a 3-yard pass from Mike Pattinson.

Pattinson, taking over for Drew Bledsoe, whom New England made the top pick in the NFL draft, completed 19 of 33 for 139 yards with one interception.

Michigan rolled up 453 yards, holding the Cougars to 220 yards.

No. 4 Miami 23, No. 20 Boston Col. 7

BOSTON — Miami's defense, quarterback Frank Costa's successful debut and Dane Prewitt's three long field goals gave the fourth-ranked Hurricanes a season-opening victory over 20th-ranked Boston College.

Miami, which lost the national championship and an unbeaten season with a Sugar Bowl loss to Alabama last season, had three interceptions, four sacks and repeatedly pressured quarterback Glenn Foley.

Costa succeeded Heisman Trophy winner Gino Torretta and threw for 205 yards, including a 63-yarder that set up Donnell Bennett's second touchdown. He completed 15 of 31 passes.

The last three quarterbacks — Steve Walsh, Craig Erickson and Torretta — each took Miami to a national title in his first year as a starter.

Sparked by an experienced defensive line, Miami led 23-0 until Darnell Campbell's 1-yard run capped a 95-yard drive with 2:46 left in the game.

While the Eagles were outgained only 390 yards to 340, they picked up just 37 before Miami took a 14-0 lead on Bennett's 8-yard run with 3:36 gone in the second quarter.

No. 7 Notre Dame 27, Northwestern 12

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Three long second-half passes by Kevin McDougal and a changing of the guards rallied beleaguered Notre Dame to a victory over Northwestern.

McDougal, a senior making his first start, overcame a costly fumble to lead four straight scoring drives after coach Lou Holtz inserted backup guards Mark Zataveski and Ryan Leahy, the grandson of former Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy.

While the Irish rallied, Northwestern wilted after dominating the first half and taking a 12-7 lead on Dennis Lundy's 11-yard run following McDougal's fumble on the first snap of the second half.

With quarterback Len Williams leading a sharp short passing attack, the Wildcats held the ball for more than 20 minutes in the first half and outgained Notre Dame 189-78. But the Wildcats self-destructed after Lundy's touchdown gave them a short-lived lead.

No. 24 N.C. State 20, Purdue 7

RALEIGH, N.C. — Steve Videtich kicked two field goals and Geoff Bender threw a fourth-quarter touchdown pass as No. 24 North Carolina State sloshed its way to a victory over Purdue.

The Wolfpack opened its season under new coach Mike O'Cain. He replaced Dick Sheridan, who abruptly stepped down in late June.

Torrents of rain started about an hour before kickoff and continued well into the second quarter. Passing was out of the question in the early minutes as neither team could move into the opponent's territory in the first quarter. When the skies cleared in the second half, the offenses got going.

Purdue's season began in controversy. Quarterback Matt Pike was arrested last weekend for underage drinking and his status was uncertain for the season opener. Rick Trefzger started, but Pike replaced him on Purdue's second offensive series.

No. 16 North Carolina 44, Ohio U. 3

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Leon Johnson scored two touchdowns and powered a North Carolina ground game that averaged more than 8 yards per carry as the 16th-ranked Tar Heels downed Ohio University.

Johnson had both touchdowns and 121 yards in the first half as North Carolina (2-0) took a 24-0 lead. He finished with 147 yards on 12 carries as the Tar Heels rushed for 432 yards on 50 carries.

Curtis Johnson added 144 yards on 16 carries, including a 56-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter.

North Carolina completed only four passes, but Corey Holliday caught two to break the school record for career receptions with 108. Holliday's 108th catch moved him past Earl Winfield's mark set from 1982-85. Holliday has caught passes in 35 straight games.

No. 10 Tennessee 50, Louisiana Tech 0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Heath Shuler threw three touchdown passes and No. 10 Tennessee rolled past Louisiana Tech in Phillip Fulmer's first regular-season game as coach of the Volunteers.

Fulmer served as interim head coach for the first four games last season while Johnny Majors was recuperating from heart surgery. Majors returned to finish the regular season, but was forced to resign after the regular season. Fulmer took over the program in December and led the Volunteers past Boston College in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Louisiana Tech held Tennessee on the opening series, but Rodney Bruce fumbled the punt, the Vols recovered, and things went downhill rapidly from there for the Bulldogs.

No. 8 Florida 44, Arkansas St. 6

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — The long wait is over for Terry Dean, who took control of Florida's "Fun 'N Gun" offense and threw for 237 yards and two touchdowns in the eighth-ranked Gators' rout of Arkansas State.

Dean, a fourth-year junior, threw only 45 passes while playing behind two-time Southeastern Conference player of the year Shane Matthews the past three seasons.

He completed 16 of 22 in his first college start and finished with a streak of 11 consecutive completions.

Jack Jackson and Willie Jackson scored on receptions from Dean, while backup quarterback Danny Wuerffel threw TD passes to Daryl Frazier and Harrison Houston.

No. 1 Florida St. 45, Duke 7

DURHAM, N.C. — A muddy field couldn't even slow down No. 1 Florida State and Charlie Ward as the Seminoles rolled over Duke 45-7.

Ward completed 22 of 31 passes for 272 yards and two touchdowns. The senior also ran for another score as the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions manhandled the Blue Devils along the line of scrimmage in winning their ninth straight league game.

Sean Jackson complemented Ward's passing with 107 yards rushing on 13 carries, while the Florida State defense held Duke without a rushing yard in the opening half. The Seminoles missed out on a second straight shutout when the Blue Devils blocked a punt late in the fourth quarter and scored two plays later.

The game was delayed 15 minutes because of lightning and heavy rain. But the Seminoles (2-0, 1-0 ACC) scored on their first possession and applied the knockout punch with a 22-point second quarter to hand the Blue Devils (0-1, 0-1) their 14th straight league loss.

No. 6 Syracuse 35, Ball St. 12

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Marvin Graves threw for three touchdowns in less than three quarters to carry No. 6 Syracuse to a victory over Ball State in the season opener for both teams.

Graves, second in the nation in passing efficiency last season as a junior while leading Syracuse to a 10-2 record, threw scoring passes of 7, 5 and 61 yards to three different players.

He completed 11 of 17 passes for 224 yards before giving way to backup Kevin Mason with 1:15 remaining in the third quarter. He also gained 66 yards on five carries.

Syracuse built a 16-3 lead in the first half, then seized control of the game with touchdowns on its opening two possessions of the second half to go up 29-6.

Memphis St. 45, No. 23 Miss. St. 35

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Steve Matthews, showing no ill effects from a strained thumb ligament, threw for two touchdowns and ran for one as Memphis State beat No. 23 Mississippi State.

The left-handed Matthews sat out a day of practice last week and still had some soreness in his throwing hand, but set a school record by completing 29 of 45 passes for 340 yards. He completed eight of nine in the first quarter as the Tigers took a 10-0 lead in the season opener.

The Tigers held off a late Bulldogs comeback threat for their second straight victory at Scott Field. Two years ago, the Tigers won 28-23 here, where Mississippi State is 9-3 under coach Jackie Sherrill.

Memphis State, a slight underdog, scored 21 points after halftime before Mississippi State managed a first down.

The Aggies completed the turnaround after a sloppy beginning on Terry Venetoulias' 33-yard field goal with 8:37 to play.

Thomas ran for a career-high 201 yards on 25 carries and McElroy had 30 yards on six rushes and caught four passes for 91 yards.

"We would like to get off to a quicker start with everyone we play," Aggies coach R.C. Slocum said. "But there's no real prescription for you to win. The mark of a good team is to hang in there and find a way to win."

The Aggies had three first-half turnovers, the first being tight end Greg Schrop's fumble after catching an 8-yard pass the first time Texas A&M had the ball. Tory James picked off two of Pullig's passes in the second quarter.

"The first half, we put ourselves in position to put points on the board and we didn't execute at the right times," LSU coach Curley Hallman said. "The second half, they just have a great running back. You have to wrap him (Thomas) up. McElroy and Thomas are both talented."

The Aggies didn't get their first third-down conversion until 42 seconds before halftime after five misses. A&M's deepest first-half penetration was to the LSU 36 in the first quarter.

The defense kept the first half from getting out of hand by harassing Tigers quarterback Jamie Howard. Defensive end Sam Adams caused Howard to fumble early in the second quarter and linebacker Antonio Shorter recovered at the Tiger 40.

Freshman cornerback Roy Mickens recovered a fumble by Jermaine Sharp at the Aggies 16 in the second quarter to stop the Tigers' deepest threat.

The fumble was a big blow to the Tigers' upset bid.

"Who knows, we might have scored at that time," LSU offensive coordinator Lynn Amadee said. "We did exactly what we wanted to do. They told me it bounced off his (Sharp's) knee or thigh pad."

No. 18 Ohio St. 34, Rice 7

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Joey Galloway, playing in his first game after missing most of last year with a knee injury, had three catches for 92 yards including a 48-yard touchdown reception as 18th-ranked Ohio State beat Rice.

Raymont Harris rushed for 76 yards on 16 carries and had a 2-yard touchdown run. Bob Hoying and Bret Powers each threw a touchdown pass for the Buckeyes, who improved to 89-11-4 in openers.

Tim Williams kicked field goals of 27 and 39 yards for Ohio State, the latter coming on the last play of the first half.

Williams opened the scoring on Ohio State's first possession after the Buckeyes drove from their own 21 to the Rice 10. Harris capped a 71-yard drive when he scored up the middle in the second quarter.

Powers was booed by a crowd of 89,040 after he threw an interception to Nathan Bennett on his second snap after coming in to spell Hoying in the second quarter. He threw incompletions on his first three passes, then hooked up with Galloway on a 48-yard scoring pass to make it 17-0.

Galloway played the first two games a year ago but then missed the rest of Ohio State's 8-3-1 season after surgery.

USC 49, Houston 7

LOS ANGELES — Rob Johnson threw for four first-half touchdowns, three to Johnnie Morton, and Southern California went on to rout Houston.

Morton had a school-record 15 catches for 180 yards as the Trojans (1-1) provided coach John Robinson the first victory following his return to USC after a decade away.

The Cougars' season-opening loss spoiled Kim Helton's debut as coach.

Johnson, far outshining the Cougars' Jimmy Klingler, threw for 279 yards, completing 25 of 33.

In the first football meeting between the schools, Johnson and Morton were practically unstoppable in the first half, as Johnson completed 18 of 25 for 216 yards and Morton caught 11 passes for 146 yards.

Morton, a senior who is No. 2 on the Trojans' career receptions list behind John Jackson, eclipsed Jackson's single-game record of 14 receptions, set in 1989.

Klingler, the nation's total offense and passing yardage leader last season, completed 15 of 30 for 115 yards and one touchdown. Last year, he averaged 343 yards of offense and nearly three TD passes a game.

No. 21 Oklahoma 35, Texas Christian 3

FORT WORTH — Quarterback Cale Gundy triggered a sudden second-quarter scoring burst that propelled No. 21 Oklahoma to a victory over Texas Christian.

Scoreless for a quarter and a half, the Sooners struck for three touchdowns in six minutes on two short-distance shots by running back Jerald Moore and a 15-yard pass from Gundy to flanker Corey Warren.

Oklahoma defensive back Rod Henderson raced 40 yards with an intercepted pass in the fourth quarter to lock up the victory before a crowd of 40,418, fourth-largest for a TCU home opener and the largest ever for a non-conference curtain-raiser.

Gundy, Oklahoma's most prolific passer ever, posted 194 passing yards by halftime and wound up the warm, humid evening with 16 of 24 for 246 yards and no interceptions.

His young TCU counterpart, sophomore Max Knake, was 20 of 34 for 197 yards and was picked off twice.

It was the first meeting in 39 years between the Big Eight Sooners and the Horned Frogs of the Southwest Conference, and the verdict gave Oklahoma a 5-2 edge in the series.

Baylor 42, No. 25 Fresno State 39

WACO — J.J. Joe's 65-yard touchdown pass to Marvin Callies with 1:59 left rallied the Baylor Bears from a 20-point deficit to a wild victory over the No. 25-ranked Fresno State Bulldogs.

Baylor launched the Chuck Reedy era on a successful note with a remarkable comeback after trailing pass happy Fresno State 20-0.

Trent Dilfer passed for a career-high 483 yards and three touchdowns on a career-best 31 completions, but the Bulldogs couldn't stop Baylor's potent ground game. Fresno State had 621 yards offense to Baylor's 561.

The Bulldogs of the Western Athletic Conference scored every time they had the ball in the first half to roll to a 33-14 lead over the Southwest Conference Bears.

But Baylor held Fresno State without a touchdown in the second half while scoring 28 points on a 4-yard run by Bradford Lewis, a 5-yard run by John Henry, a 2-yard run by Robert Strait and the Henry-to-Callies connection.

No. 11 Colorado 36, Texas 14

BOULDER, Colo. — Kordell Stewart threw three first-half touchdown passes and cornerback Chris Hudson returned an interception 21 yards for a score, powering No. 11 Colorado past turnover-prone Texas.

Four of Texas' six turnovers occurred in Colorado territory, depriving the Longhorns of scoring opportunities, and the Buffaloes converted two of the miscues into TDs.

Stewart completed 19 of 30 passes for 246 yards and no interceptions, leading the Buffs to a 21-7 halftime advantage.

Texas redshirt freshman Shea Morenz had superior production, throwing for 347 yards, but his four interceptions proved fatal. Hudson had two, giving him 10 for his career in only 13 starts.

Texas had four turnovers in the first half and also gave up the ball on downs, setting up Colorado's final score of the half.

Arkansas 10, SMU 6

DALLAS — Oscar Malone's fourth-down touchdown dive from the 1 with 39 seconds left gave Arkansas a victory over Southern Methodist, making a success of Danny Ford's return to coaching and the Razorbacks' return to Texas.

The real top Hog on the winning drive was Oscar Gray, who gained 35 of the 49 yards the Razorbacks needed for the game's lone touchdown. It was their first penetration deeper than SMU's 18.

The Ford era at Arkansas appeared headed for a dismal beginning when Lance Ellison missed his second kick of the second half, a 36-yarder, with 5:20 to play.

But the Razorbacks defense held SMU, giving the Hogs' offense their final chance.

SMU's last possession ended with quarterback Mark Eldred being tackled at Arkansas' 42-yard line.

Emmitt Smith asks for trade

DALLAS (AP) — Running back Emmitt Smith has told the Dallas Cowboys to trade him to a team that would provide a contract worth $4 million per season, according to a published report Saturday.

Sources told The Dallas Morning News that Smith made the comment within the past two days as his negotiations with the team appeared to reach an impasse.

But Cowboys owner Jerry Jones flatly ruled out any possible trade.

"Totally out of the question," he told the newspaper.

Jones declined to comment on whether Smith advised his agent, Richard Howell of Atlanta, to pursue any trade potential.

Cowboys spokesman Brett Daniels said he could not confirm or deny that any such discussions were taking place.

"That's something that is between Emmitt and Jerry," he said.

Daniels said that Jones had already left Dallas for Washington, where the Cowboys face the Redskins on Monday night.

Howell did not immediately return a telephone call Saturday afternoon from The Associated Press. Smith has a new private, unlisted number and he could not be contacted Saturday.

Two rookies, Montana highlight starting quarterbacks in Week One

Associated Press

It's like a family reunion photo with the principals slightly out of focus.

Joe Montana in a Kansas City Chiefs' uniform? Visiting Tampa for a reunion with Sam Wyche, who was his first quarterback coach in San Francisco, and Steve DeBerg, the man he replaced as the 49ers' quarterback?

■ NFL Roundup

Just call it the vagaries of the NFL, where everyone is expendable. Just two seasons ago, DeBerg was the Chiefs' quarterback and found lacking ... or at least aging.

As the NFL's 74th season begins, the Chiefs are one of the marquee teams, largely because of the marquee quarterback known in Kansas City as simply "Joe."

The team has been redesigned for him.

No more 255-pound Christian Okoye and 245-pound Barry Word pounding into the middle of the line to get into Nick Lowery's field goal range. Okoye is gone, Word was shipped to Minnesota, and the running backs are sleek Harvey Williams and all-purpose Marcus Allen, brought in to provide Montana with a Roger Craig. The idea is to get the Chiefs off the 10-6, 9-7 treadmill and deep into the playoffs.

Montana seems to be in form, although he hasn't played a full game in more than two years because of elbow problems. He played four quarters total in four exhibitions, going 23 of 37 for 288 yards with two touchdowns and no interceptions.

Montana's return comes on a day in which two of the quarterback prospects for the 1990s — Drew Bledsoe of New England and Rick Mirer of Seattle — make their debuts. It's the first time two rookies have started on opening day since 1973, when Bert Jones of the Colts and Joe Ferguson of the Bills did it.

Bledsoe, No. 1 pick in the draft, has the dubious honor of going into Buffalo; Mirer, No. 2 overall, has an equally difficult job: going with the Seahawks to San Diego.

But for this week at least, the focus is on the 37-year-old Montana, who came over last spring after a comic opera dance in San Francisco, where he was promised the starting job and rejected it. He says he's much more relaxed than in San Francisco, where the controversy with Steve Young had him aloof and unpleasant.

"I'm not a loud leader," he says. "If they want me to be a leader, it will be by the way I play, not by the things I say and do off the field."

This is probably the perfect opening game for the Chiefs, away from Kansas City, where Montana's arrival has kindled Super Bowl expectations. It comes against a team that was 5-11 last year, has lost 10 or more games for 10 straight seasons and looks no better.

Wyche can only try to stay positive.

"If we keep trying to break a string of losing, we keep saying the word 'lose,'" he says. "You never get the negative thought out of your brain."

So the 39-year-old DeBerg starts and takes his licks, without left tackle Paul Gruber, the team's best player, to protect him. Gruber was unsigned going into the final week but, luckily, so was Neil Smith, who would be up against him for the Chiefs.

Dallas (13-3) at Washington (9-7) (Monday night)

For the fourth time in seven years, the two previous Super Bowl winners open the Monday night schedule, and it's the second straight Dallas-Washington opener. But this rivalry stands on its own — in 1989, the Cowboys' only win was in Washington.

The Cowboys have had a troubled preseason, as do most Super Bowl champs. It started with Emmitt Smith holding out, Tony Casillas getting hurt, then three defensive backs and backup tight end Alfredo Roberts going down.

The Redskins have their own troubles as Richie Petitbon makes his debut as head coach. Left tackle Jim Lachey is out for the season with a knee injury, making Mark Rypien vulnerable to the Dallas pass rush. When Rypien is vulnerable, the Redskins are turnover-prone.

If Smith doesn't make a last-minute appearance, Derrick Lassic replaces him. Lassic knows something about championship teams — he was MVP in the Sugar Bowl last season as Alabama won the national college championship.

"I've always taken a lot of pride in that I show up for big games," Lassic says. "The bigger the game the better I play. When I'm in big games I just ask one thing: Call my number."

New England (2-14) at Buffalo (11-5)

Is this a ringing endorsement for Bledsoe in his first start?

"Right now, I think you can assume that I'm going to try to do that," Bill Parcells said when he was asked if Bledsoe was his starting quarterback.

That, of course, is typical Parcells, who has done his best to tell the world that the team he took over is the worst in the league — "We're playing a good team this week. We're in flux. I didn't want to be, but that's the way we are."

Orchard Park isn't the best place for flux. As usual, the Bills are angry — this time about three straight Super Bowl losses. This is one way to ease into the season; Bledsoe was impressive in exhibitions, but the pace speeds up by about a third when the regular season starts.

San Francisco (14-2) at Pittsburgh (11-5)

The season is just starting and the quarterbacks are hurting.

Steve Young wants to risk his cracked thumb in this game, and the 49ers seem willing to let him rather than go with Bill Musgrave, the third-stringer, who looked decent against San Diego last week.

Neil O'Donnell wants to risk his sore elbow, but the Steelers will stick with Mike Tomczak and let him hand off to Barry Foster.

Foster is lucky he's around, based on his performance against San Francisco three years ago. He was a rookie then and let a kickoff fall untouched at the 2-yard line, leading to a San Francisco touchdown.

Pittsburgh's defense isn't the biggest in the league but it may be the quickest. And either Young or Musgrave will be throwing into a secondary that's probably the NFL's best.

Houston (10-6) at New Orleans (12-4) (Sunday night)

A neighborhood battle played every three years.

One key — the performance of the Saints' depleted offensive line against Houston's new "46" defense, installed and orchestrated by Buddy Ryan. Wade Wilson, New Orleans' quarterback, is turnover-prone under pressure and Craig Heyward is no longer around to pick up blitzers.

Houston is under its annual "this-year-or-else" pressure. It seems valid.

"They keep telling us a lot of us older players won't be around next year," says Warren Moon, who will try to stay standing against what is still one of the NFL's better defenses.

Miami (11-5) at Indianapolis (9-7)

The Dolphins seem ready to take over the AFC East from the Bills and the Colts are coming off the biggest improvement in NFL history — from 1-15 to 9-7. Unfortunately for Indianapolis, the second step is often the hardest.

This probably isn't the right time for the Colts to be playing Miami. Duane Bickett, their best outside linebacker, just signed; Jeff Herrod, their best inside linebacker, is out for six weeks, and Steve Emtman is working back slowly from knee surgery.

Jack Trudeau is the Colts' quarterback — Jeff George's holdout dropped him to third string. One feature will be two rookie running backs who could be standouts — Roosevelt Potts for Indianapolis, Terry Kirby for Miami.

Seattle (2-14) at San Diego (11-5)

Mirer, whose contract was in question, makes his debut after the NFL and the NFL Players Association on Friday reached agreement on rookie salary rules. He's probably worried more about his offensive line, one reason the Seahawks scored just 13 touchdowns on offense in 16 games last year.

Seattle does have defense — Cortez Kennedy was the defensive player of the year last season. But the Chargers have that, too — one reason they won 11 of 12 last year after losing their first four and captured the AFC West. And they have Stan Humphries, Marion Butts and a real offense.

Los Angeles Rams (6-10) vs. Green Bay (10-6) at Milwaukee

Yet another debut: Reggie White for the Packers.

After an initial flurry, White's had a quiet preseason, which is just what Mike Holmgren would like. What he doesn't like is the flux in his offensive line, where injuries and holdouts have created problems that weren't supposed to be there when the season started.

The Rams have more problems — less talented personnel and injuries at wide receiver. White could also create problems for Jim Everett, another of those quarterbacks who turns the ball over under pressure.

New York Giants (6-10) at Chicago (5-11)

This is a matchup of two teams tearing down so they can rebuild.

The guys doing the tearing down are the new coaches, Dan Reeves with the Giants and Dave Wannstedt, who signed on with the Bears after turning down the Giants' job. Reeves has cut one of his best defensive players, linebacker Pepper Johnson, and picked up enough of his ex-Denver players so that cynics call the team "the New Jersey Broncos."

Wannstedt, who was Jimmy Johnson's right-hand man for a decade, is trying to model his rebuilding on what Johnson did with the Cowboys. That means speed, which is hardly what he has on a defensive line that features three over-30 starters — William Perry, Richard Dent and Steve McMichael.

Minnesota (11-5) at Los Angeles Raiders (7-9)

Al Davis says not to downgrade the Raiders based on last season. "We've removed the cancers," he says.

With Jay Schroeder dispatched to Cincinnati and Todd Marinovich cut, the quarterback is Jeff Hostetler, whom Reeves dispatched soon after taking the Giants' job.

The Vikings seem to stay in step even while losing players — three-fifths of the offensive line left in the off-season and running back Terry Allen is out for the year. So Green picked up Barry Word from the Chiefs to replace Allen.

One curiosity: the first NFL game ever featuring two black head coaches: Minnesota's Dennis Green and the Raiders' Art Shell

One sidelight: the first NFL game for the Brothers Ismail.

Qadry Ismail, "The Missle," was the Vikings' second-round draft choice. Raghib Ismail, "The Rocket," signed with the Raiders this week, could be in uniform and might even return a kick or two.

Phoenix (4-12) at Philadelphia (11-5)

The Cards, 25-55 in five seasons in Phoenix, entered training camp with aspirations of climbing over the depleted Eagles. Both teams are weak at the crucial owner position (Bill Bidwill vs. Norman Braman) and Braman seems willing to let the Eagles slide under free agency.

But three key Cardinals — linebacker Eric Hill, cornerback Robert Massey and running back Garrison Hearst, the No. 1 draft pick, were holdouts. And the Eagles had a pretty good exhibition season and still have talent like Randall Cunningham, Fred Barnett, Seth Joyner and Clyde Simmons.

Phoenix's quarterback will be Steve Beuerlein, who beat out Chris Chandler after signing as a free agent from Dallas. "The first notch under my belt," Beuerlein says of the Eagles.

Atlanta (6-10) vs. Detroit (5-11)

The Lions are one of the favorites in the NFC Central — they were, after all, 12-4 just two seasons ago. They have an offensive line back and they've added Pat Swilling to the pass rush.

The Lions hope the line has meshed quickly (Lomas Brown just signed). Jerry Glanville will throw all kinds of blitzes at them, which means oft-injured Rodney Peete's health is in jeopardy.

Make this a meeting of injury-prone quarterbacks — Atlanta's Chris Miller has missed 16 games with injuries since 1988, and Peete has missed 17 in the last three years.

Denver (8-8) at New York Jets (4-12)

John Elway is happy because Dan Reeves is gone and Wade Phillips is the coach. But Elway's receivers are also depleted. The best are H-back Shannon Sharpe, rookie running back Glyn Milburn and fullback Rod Bernstine, who can both run and catch.

And the biggest plus is a rebuilt offensive line designed to keep Elway healthier.

The Jets now have Boomer Esiason at quarterback. He doesn't have a rebuilt offensive line and his team was 0-4 in exhibitions. "That in itself will keep us from getting cocky," Esiason says.

Cincinnati (5-11) at Cleveland (7-9)

The Bengals don't like to spend money, which is evident in the fact they have just four players left from the team that went to the Super Bowl five years ago. David Klingler, the second-year quarterback, will learn under fire.

The Browns are another team whose owner, Art Modell, says "don't count us out." But he's building slowly under Bill Belichick, repairing a piece at a time, making this a battle between teams Nos. 3 and 4 in a four-team division.

NM Highlands beats ENMU

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Jermaine Whitaker passed 10 yards to Rus Bailey with 2:26 to play, lifting New Mexico Highlands to a 15-10 victory over Eastern New Mexico Saturday night.

The Cowboys trailed 10-6 entering the fourth quarter. But Bob Koning connected on a 27-yard field goal at the 9:33 mark, and Whitaker and Bailey added the game-winning play in the season opener for both schools.

Whitaker completed 18 of 33 passes for 193 yards. He threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Micky Reeves in the second quarter but also had two interceptions.

Highlands led 6-3 at halftime, but the Greyhounds got a 20-yard TD pass from Torrance Garfield to Harold Blackwell. Angel Roquillo's PAT kick gave Eastern a four-point lead midway through the third quarter.

Thelbert Withers led the Cowboys on the ground, gaining 110 yards on 26 rushing attempts. Darrell Whitaker led Eastern with 25 carries for 112 yards.

Martin wins fourth Grand National title

Martin, who has won two of the last four Grand National events while winning three straight NASCAR Winston Cup races during the same stretch, earned his fourth Grand National triumph of the season and the 11th of his career.

His Roush Racing-prepared Ford Thunderbird beat the Chevrolet Lumina of runner-up Randy Lajoie by .65 of a second, averaging 117.638 mph in the race slowed by caution seven times for 27 laps.

"This car is awesome," Martin said. "That was a tough race, but Roush Racing just keeps giving me better cars than I've ever had before."

Martin, who led twice for a total of 65 of the 147 race laps, took the lead for good on lap 111 when he passed series point leader Steve Grissom.

Chad Little finished third, followed by defending series champion Joe Nemechek and Grissom, who now holds a 167-point lead over David Green. Grissom came into the race leading by 139 points over Green, who finished 12th.

■ Texas Colleges

Howard Payne 40, Sul Ross State 21

ALPINE — Scott Lichner threw four touchdowns Saturday as Howard Payne routed Sul Ross State 40-21.

Lichner completed 18 of 26 passes for 161 yards and had TD throws in all four quarters for Howard Payne (1-0).

Lichner threw a 27-yard TD to Floyd Chambers in the first quarter and added a 1-yard score to Chad Franks in the second period.

Lichner added to a 20-7 halftime score with a 9-yard touchdown toss to Franks with 11:34 left in the third quarter, and connected with Bobby Gutierrez for an 8-yard touchdown early in the fourth period.

Richard Kretz completed 31 of 55 passes with two touchdowns and four interceptions for Sul Ross (0-1).

Southwest Texas 20, Texas A&M-Kingsville 14

SAN MARCOS — Ronald Wilkerson's third-quarter touchdown capped a 20-point comeback as Southwest Texas beat Texas A&M-Kingsville Saturday 20-14.

Wilkerson's 12-yard run with 4:20 left in the third period was the only scoring in the second half.

Texas A&M-Kingsville (0-1), formerly known as Texas A&I, scored on its first possession on a 2-yard run by tailback Jeff West 1:10 into the first quarter.

Later in the period, cornerback Keith Pittman picked off a John Hygh pass and returned it 48 yards to put the Javelinas up 14-0.

Ray Whitehead kicked two first-half field goals for the Bobcats, and Steve Eaton's 4-yard run with five seconds in the half cut the Kingsville lead to 14-12.

Joe Menchaca passed for 84 yards for A&M-Kingsville, which had 162 yards of offense.

Southwest Texas is 1-0.

Tarleton 24, East Central (Okla.) 21

STEPHENVILLE — Trampas Wilson kicked a school record five field goals, surpassing his successful kicks for all last season, as Tarleton State upset East Central (Okla.) 24-21.

Wilson, who made just three of seven field goals last year, hit from 25, 31, 39, 27 and 20 yards. Tarleton (1-0) also got a 3-yard touchdown run by Lonzo Anderson, and a safety when Opie Scott sacked Richard Peoples in the end zone.

East Central (0-1) got 374 rushing yards, 209 by Tyler Jack.

Text by Kes Gilhome

When looking for a new home these days it is all too common to find houses for sale that have been built without any great appreciation for the finer points of design. All too often the architect's source of inspiration seems to have been a small box, and the result is an unimaginative floor-plan in a house that seems to be a virtual replica of so many others.

This delightful three bedroom house, located in a very quiet cul-de-sac in northwest Midland, breaks these design conventions and acts as an example to all that excellence in architectural design can and has been achieved in the Permian Basin.

The floor-plan of this home has been designed to take advantage of the Natural Texan attributes of wonderful natural light and lovely summer days. By wrapping the house around the perimeter of the pool and using a large number of windows and sliding doors to open up the house, the architect has achieved his aim of creating a tranquil environment by flooding the whole house with diffused natural light.

The shady patio runs the length of the house and surrounds the pool/hot tub area on two sides. Trees and flowering shrubs provide seclusion and privacy in the garden which is perfect for entertaining or just for lazing about in.

The master bedroom suite looks out over the pretty garden and has a multitude of important features that set it apart from what one usually expects to find. Large enough for a sitting area, with book shelves built in to one wall, this room is a perfect retreat from daily stresses and is perfectly designed for convenience whilst retaining its originality.

The unusual floor-plan gives a sense of flow throughout the suite and it is mirrored by the extremely unusual octagonal bathroom. Large enough for an enormous sunken jacuzzi tub it contains his and hers vanities, a separate shower and masses of storage space for the ultimate in convenience and luxury.

Unusual design features abound in this open plan home: sunken floors and tiered ceilings impart movement while at the same time defining separate living areas.

That this house is different is apparent as soon as one enters the house via the foyer which has a definite Mediterranean feel: trees and shrubs abound in white washed planters while terra cotta tiles and huge skylights provide simplicity and plenty of light.

The house will open for viewing today between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. this afternoon, either stop by at 4405 Keri Court or call Jo Braden of the Prudential Adobe Realtors at 694-90548.

Grass and yard clippings provide source of nutrients for your yard

Kay Sutton
President/Midland
Association of Realtors, Inc.

Warm weather and sunshine bring another season of mowing and maintaining your lawn. The Midland Association of Realtors, Inc. would like to share some tips on how to use grass and other yard clippings as a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping around your home.

"Mowing, bagging and disposing of lawn clippings have been a recurring cycle for years in this community and our landfills cannot continue to absorb the waste," says Kay Sutton, president of the Midland Association of Realtors, Inc.

"During the summer, yard waste can amount to 50 per cent or more of residential trash. It's time to change those statistics!"

The Midland Association of Realtors recommends recycling yard clippings for the good of both your lawn and the environment. "Creating a compost pile is an ideal way to recycle your lawn wastes, while simultaneously providing a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping," says Sutton. "Anything growing in your yard is potential compost material."

Ideally you should begin your compost pile in late spring for use in the fall and in the fall for use in the spring. However, it's never too late to begin the process.

To begin, remove any grass and sod cover from the area where you plan to construct a compost pile. Create a bin to enclose the compost. Prefabricated snow fencing, woven wire, wood pallets or bricks can serve as inexpensive compost bins. Be sure to allow for easy access through the top or sides for turning the compost.

For best results, the Midland Association of Realtors recommends the following "recipe":

- 1st layer: 3 to 4 inches of chopped brush or other coarse material.
- 2nd layer: 6 to 8 inches of leaves, grass clippings, sawdust, etc. Materials should be "sponge damp." You may want to sprinkle sulfur over the heap to increase its acidity.
- 3rd layer: 1 inch of soil (to speed up the process).
- 4th layer: 2 to 3 inches of manure or a handful of commercial fertilizer to provide the nitrogen needed. Add water if the manure is dry.
- 5th layer: Repeat steps 1-4 until the bin is almost full. Top off heap with a 4 to 6 inch layer of straw and scoop out a "basin" at the top to catch rain water.

A properly made heap will reach a temperature of 140 to 160 degrees fahrenheit in four to five days. At this time, you'll notice a settling, a good sign that your heap is working properly. After five to six weeks, fork the materials into a pile, turning the outside of the old heap into the center of the new pile. Add water if necessary. It shouldn't be necessary to turn your heap a second time. The compost should be ready to use within three to four months.

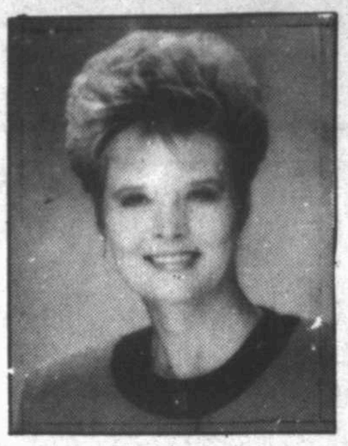

Compost is ready when it is dark brown, crumbly and earthly smelling. For best results when using, turn your soil, apply 1 to 3 inches layers of compost and work it in well. "Fertilizing your garden and lawn with compost can improve the overall landscape and beauty of your home," Sutton says.

"In addition to saving landfill space, recycling your lawn reduces your water usage and the need to purchase soil conditioners and trash bags," adds Sutton. "That's good for you and good for the environment," she notes.

You can find out more about caring for your lawn and about composts by contacting your local nursery.

The Midland Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. Why do you need a Realtor?

Jan Melton
Owner/Broker
Re/Max of Midland

You see the signs and classified listings for "FSBOs" -- For Sale By Owner. As an intelligent, capable individual, why shouldn't you sell your own home?

Statistics show that the majority of those signs and ads will be converted to those of a Realtor before the property is sold.

The home-selling process is the classic example of something that looks much simpler on paper.

A good Realtor knows what properties are selling for, which areas are strong or getting hot, and what buyers are looking for right now. They have the perspective of what has happened in your area and are good prognosticators 0of what will be coming.

A Realtor will give you an objective view of your home's market value and what you can do to increase the price you'll eventually get.

Your listing Realtor may or may not be the Realtor that actually sells your home. But both the buying and listing agent work for you. In the absence a written agreement to the contrary, both agents have a legal obligation to represent your interests first.

A good Realtor depends on referrals and repeat business. He or she understands that to just make a deal is not enough, it has to be the right deal, the right property, the right people. Only experience can structure that combination for you.

Selling your home can be an emotional experience. A Realtor will not only "run interference" between you and a potential buyer, but keep decisions on a professional and objective level.

Suggesting financing sources, writing contracts, providing comparable prices for your neighborhood, these are just a few of the areas where it pays to have a professional.

A Realtor understands which problems are serious sales busters and which are easily remedied glitches. Having a professional on your team can keep you from pressing the panic button.

If you've been through a closing, you know the mountains of paperwork involved. Your Realtor will make sure everything is in order and handle all the last cross-town sprints and questions that arise.

The simplest of sales can quickly become complicated without a licensed professional involved. Conversely, you may not feel the bumps of a rough sale with a good Realtor on your team.

Like most worthwhile services, you9 don't miss your Realtor until you try working without him or her.

Learn how to protect your assets at the "Fair Housing: The Basics and Beyond" seminar" September 23, 1993 in Midland/Odessa

Do you really understand Fair Housing laws? Does your company have a comprehensive written Fair Housing policy? Don't let the courtroom be your classroom. Register now for "Fair Housing: The Basics and Beyond," an in-depth education seminar developed exclusively for members of the Texas Apartment Association by Fair Housing Compliance Services of Dallas. The seminar will offer:

- a comprehensive look at recent Fair Housing cases, including new interpretations and understanding of state and federal Fair Housing laws;
- a thorough understanding of how Fair Housing laws and rulings govern the day-to-day operation of rental property management, from advertising and marketing, to leasing, record-keeping and cooperating with a Fair Housing investigation;
- practical exercises to help rental property professionals apply Fair Housing principles to typical leasing and resident relations situations;
- a complete review of Fair Housing basics, including protected classes, occupancy standards, Fair Housing investigations and the complaint process; and
- an insider's view, from a 10-year HUD veteran, of the direction Fair Housing and HUD might take in the new Clinton Administration.

OIL REPORT

SUNDAY, September 5, 1993 SERVING 54 COUNTIES IN WEST TEXAS AND NEW MEXICO

BRIEFING

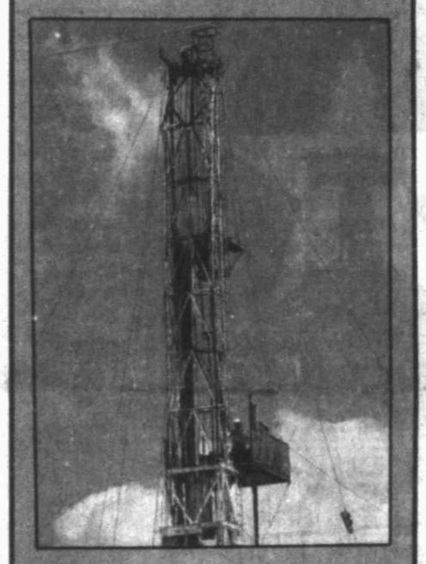

A rig drilling for gas in the Val Verde Basin.

Gas discovery

Tom Brown Inc. and Conoco have finaled a prolific gas discovery in Terrell County, and plan to jointly explore 58,000 acres on trend with the discovery. The discovery well completed for 6 Mcfd and 240 bbls of condensate per day.

Oil prices

Oil prices tumbled all week long, after recovering last week to near $19 per barrel. Late in the week prices dropped 44 cents and 32 cents on two consecutive days as reports that the U.N. was meeting with Iraq to discuss the dropping of an oil boycott against that nation.

Prices had rallied earlier on the news that a strike in Nigeria could impact crude supplies from that OPEC nation.

Count down

The Permian Basin rig count was down three this week, after slipping one last week. Still the 117 rigs working this week is 26 above the 91 rigs working this time last year. Nationwide the rig count jumped 17 to 822.

Coming September 19, the Permian Basin Oil Report will take a look at artifical lift and new developments in the standard method for getting oil out of the ground and into the tanks.

Domestic production still sliding

■ Another sharp decline in U.S. production has been reported by the API.

Staff report

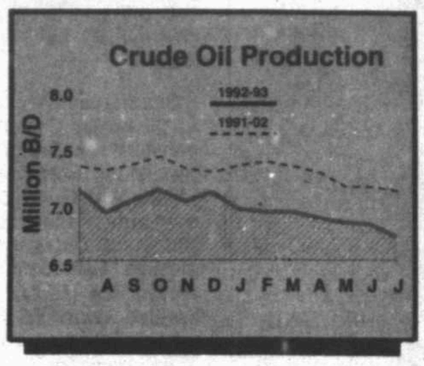

Following on the heels of a historic low in June, the American Petroleum Institute has reported another sharp decline in domestic crude oil production.

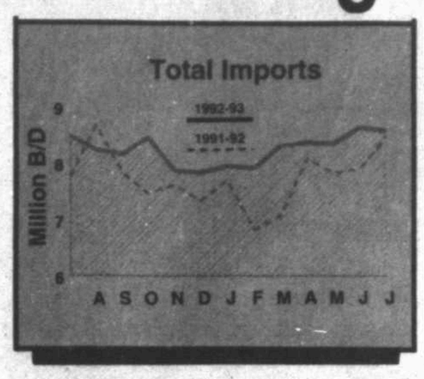

According to API's Monthly Statistical Report, crude oil production in the United States last month averaged only 6,713,000 barrels a day (b/d). This was 5.9 percent less than the 7,131,000 b/d produced in July 1992.

Meanwhile, U.S. demand for petroleum products, as measured by products supplied from primary storage, remained modest in July, averaging 17,238,000 b/d, just 0.3 percent more than demand during the same month a year ago.

API also noted that in July, imports of crude oil petroleum products rose only 0.4 percent or 8,513,000 b/d compared to 8,479,000 b/d in July 1992. Even though this increase was the smallest this year, it is not even close to the 8 percent year-to-date increase that reflects the underlying problem with oil imports.

Last month, both the API and the Independependent Petroleum Association of America warned the Clinton administration and Department of Energy that America had reached a historical level in that the nation was now more than 50 percent dependent on foreign crude oil and petroleum products.

Domestic production this year is running far below last year's levels of 7,500,000 b/d as crude imports have increased 8 percent for the year.

Toby Carleton set to lead AAPG

■ Midland geologist talks about his upcoming turn at helm of geology group.

"Distinguished" describes A.T. "Toby" Carleton's career as well as his manner.

And it is the title of several awards and committees which have been a part of Carleton's affiliation with AAPG -- American Association of Petroleum Geologists. He serves this year as president-elect of AAPG, and will assume the presidency July 1, 1994.

The organization has a wealth of knowledge to tap from Carleton whose career has spanned the industry and whose affiliations have touched nearly every professional geologic association.

After attaining bachelor's and master's degrees from UT Austin in the early 1950s, the Houston native joined The Ohio Oil Co. (now Marathon) working

Program would share safety info

By Ellen Hopkins

Everyone who works on an oil or gas lease should be in a position to share safety information about that lease according to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). And, to that end OSHA is trying to devise a program in the Permian Basin to bring all parties together.

A recent OSHA-sponsored meeting brought together operators, well servicing companies, transporters, consultants and sales personnel to discuss multi-employer worksites.

"We discussed new and different ways to dispense information and find common solutions to these worksites, so that all companies would feel responsible for the safety of all employees," said Pat Bradley, area director for OSHA in Lubbock.

Bradley said OSHA has been concerned about the high incidence of fatalities and injuries in this area.

"Oil and gas seems to comprise a goodly portion of the number of fatalities of those recorded in our Lubbock area," she said. "And we're all trying to reduce this number."

Bradley said a "goodly portion" was equivalent to more than one-half the total.

She explained that the means by which the total can be reduced comes from the proper training of all employees who share the same worksite, and the idea of this meeting was to discuss and share the various written training programs among the employers.

"We're talking about sharing programs like HAZCOM (HAZardous COMmunications) and Emergency Response," Bradley continued. "Specifically these include lock-out-/tag-out programs, standard operating procedures and tank entry programs. The smaller companies can take a larger company's written programs and tailor it to meet their needs.

"It's important to remember that it's always an individual employer's responsibility to have a program that works for all his employees," she said, "and a program

Cotton, oil bond in process

■ Biological process uses raw cotton for fast complete oil cleanup

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

LUBBOCK — One of the most common sights in West Texas is an oil pumpjack in the middle of a cotton field. Cotton and oil have been West Texas companions for many decades, but a new process discovered by researchers at Texas Tech University may soon link the two prime products for an unusual purpose — the clean-up of oil spills.

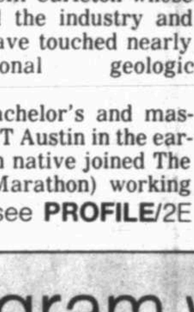

Cotton has long been used to clean up oil spills, but once the oil soaked sponges were saturated they had to be destroyed. Now, however, a new biological process, discovered by researchers at Tech allows the oil to be reclaimed from the cotton. The process, adapted from the manufacturer of textiles, involves the use of a biological process which occurs inside a bioreactor.

"That is all we can say about the process at this time," said Caryl Heinze, a Texas Tech researcher who helped develop the process. She noted that the process takes about four hours and that the cotton which comes out of the bioreactor is essentially clean with only minute traces of hydrocarbon

JOHN PAUL PITTS

Understanding the tree-hugger mindset

Pitts

Earlier this year Carl Pope, 47, was named the fifth executive director of the Sierra Club, and was interviewed by the staff of the environmental organization's magazine, Sierra.

That interview, done mostly for the "tree-huggers" was written to provide Sierra readers Pope's insight on "how to save the world," but it also provides us "people huggers" a unique opportunity to glimpse the mindset that is the driving force behind the Sierra Club. And, perhaps, to understand the reasons behind much of the radical and excessive environmental legislation of today.

It is especially important that the oil industry, already staggering under the burden of environmental overkill and still a prime target for environmental groups, understands the thought process and motives of those driving environmental policy. Because as the saying goes: "You ain't seen nothin' yet."

Here, in an effort to further environmental understanding, I have extracted from that interview some of Pope's more offensive remarks (italics) and followed up with my own offensive remarks (bold.)

ON DOOM AND GLOOM — "In 10 or 20 years if we continue our present course, many natural systems will have unraveled beyond repair. The rain forests will be gone in 20 years, and within 10 years all of the temperate rainforests in North America will not be ecologically sustainable."

The sky is falling! The sky is falling! The earth is warming! The earth is warming!

Anyone who believes all gloom and doom predictions will also believe that we ran out of natural gas in 1978. That was when Jimmy Carter was formulating energy policy and the last time America was forced to build faulty national policy on the unscientific rantings of hysterics.

Evidence against the ozone holocaust theory continues to mount daily, but the general public never hears about it, because most of it comes from conservatives.

The planet has suffered far more damage from natural disasters such as volcanos and meteorites, than man could ever dream of inflicting with his puny little air conditioners, yet it has healed nicely everytime. One day the ozone fad will pass and we will all look back on it as another silly mistake, but in the meantime a lot of real people will suffer economically and needlessly.

ON AGENDA — "We have begun (to resolve environmental evils) by electing Bill Clinton president. Leadership at the top levels of U.S. government is very important...the U.S. is the greatest shaper of world wide cultural attitutdes...the Sierra Club needs to link these daily real-life problems with global cycles and mechanisms."

Translation: The Sierra Club has a global agenda. Get the U.S. whipped into environmental shape (according to Sierra Club parameters) at whatever cost, then make the U.S. whip up on the rest of the world to get them in line.

ON GETTING THE STUPID AMERICANS IN LINE — "The Clinton/Gore message is that leadership and technology will solve our economic and environmental problems alike. That is only a partial truth. There are clearly aspects of American life that cannot be sustained indefinitely.

Nuevo buys gas storage interests

HOUSTON — Nuevo Energy Co. has announced its acquisition of a 48.5% interest in a long-life natural gas storage facility in Morton County, Kan. for $6.4 million. The Richfield Gas Storage System, which is connected to four major pipelines, is a depleted natural gas field with related facilities located in the Hugoton area of Morton County in the extreme southwestern corn of Kansas. Natural gas will be stored in two depleted sands with the Morrow formation.

The field possesses a total working capacity of 5 billion cubic feet (Bcf) of gas, with daily peak withdrawl capacity of up to 100 million cubic feet of gas. Firm gas storage agreements for 3.4 Bcf of gas have been executed for periods ranging from four to eight years.

"We are excited about the potential for years of positive cash flow from this acquisition in light of its non-depleting nature and the growing need for gas storage," says J.P. Bryan, chairman of chief executive officer. "Additionally," says Bryan, "this expenditure provides Nuevo a low risk, economically attractive investment which has significant upside potential related to uncontracted storage capacity."

that can be removed by composting and that essentially all of the oil can be reclaimed.

Michael Sommermeyer, a spokesman for Texas Tech, said the process could have a profound environmental and economical impact upon both the oil and cotton business.

"The end result could mean disposable materials that would offer a faster and more complete oil spill cleanup. More spilled oil could be reclaimed, and fewer barrels would settle to ocean bottoms to impact marine life."

Sommermeyer also noted that the process could open a new market for the producers of raw cotten, or low grade cotton especially those in West Texas who already grow one-fourth of the nation's annual cotton crop.

The biological process for separating the oil from raw cotton was discovered when researchers at Center for Advanced Research & Engineering were investigating the use of raw cotton in oil spills, using a $400,000 grant provided by the Texas General Land Office, Oil Spill Prevention and Response Program.

Raw cotton, which is the usual result when drought or early frost hits a cotton crop, was found to be perfect for cleaning up oil spills because it has a wax that allows it to absorb oil but not water. But the oil soaked pad then became a disposal problem. The trick was to find a way to get the oil out of the cotton, and reclaim both.

That's when Heinze, a biological sciences professor, Texas Tech Chemcial engineering Professsor Harry Parker and research associate Deborah Carr joined forces to find a process that might do the job. "We shopped the problem around the industry. This textile process was suggested to us: we tried it and it worked," said Heinze.

Under study since 1992, Sommermeyer said the process was now in the process of being patented.

A former Midland oil company, Tipperary Corp. of Denver, provided a $235,000 grant to develop the process which separates oil from cotton and paid to acquire the patent. According to an agreement with the university, Tipperary will have an exclusive license to market the process.

Heinze said working models of the bioreactor should be ready by the end of the year for field testing and that the process could be on the market by the middle of next year.

that also applies to other employees at the worksite who are exposed to his chemicals.

"We all share in the responsibility, and it's easier to share if we try to get more communication among the employers," Bradley said.

She said although this type meeting is really an outreach for OSHA, it was a new and hopefully successful way to share information among the companies who participated. Those in attendance represented companies ranging in size from seven employees to 5,000.

"We'll let this group decide if they want another meeting in the future," Bradley said. "If so, OSHA will try and facilitate that."

PROFILE: Midlander to lead AAPG

in Midland and Roswell, NM. He was chief geologist at Zapata Petroleum (now Pennzoil) three years later, and an independent geologist in Midland in the early 1960s and again in the late 1970s.

In 1963, Carleton became general and managing partner of Structurmaps, Ltd. and he credits AAPG meetings -- at which he exhibited -- with affecting the success of this company. Beginning in 1979 and for the next ten years, he was vice president/western division manager of Pogo Producing Co. in Midland. Acting president of Tocor Exploration and Tocor Investments, Inc. is his current position.

Simultaneous to his career advancements, Carleton was broadening his reputation in various professional organizations. Since joining AAPG in 1956, he has been a member and chairman of the House of Delegates and Distinguished Lecture Committee, received the AAPG Distinguished Service Award in 1987, and twice received the group's Certificate of Merit. Carleton is a life member of West Texas Geological Society and has served many offices including president. Other affiliations include SIPES, TIPRO and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

The Oil Report asked Carleton to reflect on his lifetime achievements, anticipate his role as president of AAPG next year, and how he feels 3-D seismic affects the fie.d of geology.

You belong to and have held offices in many industry associations such as AAPG, WTGS and PBPA. How have these organizations and memberships helped your career and vice versa?

Every professional organization I've belonged to has contributed to whatever success I've had over the years; I've found them all personally rewarding. And vice-versa. I'd like to think there has been a mutual benefit and that we've helped each other. I certainly feel a debt to my profession. For example, I was contacted by a group who had formed a small oil company. I had met these ex-vice presidents of oil companies through our membership in AAPG. They were looking for major oil reserves and asked me to represent them in the Permian Basin area. I worked with them for about three years, and I can say that association provided direct economic benefit to me.

All these memberships have offered a big learning experience to me. I've had access to new technology and I've shared a lot with them also.

Speaking of technology, what has the popularity of 3-D seismic done to the geology profession and industry in general?

We know 3-D will allow us to find reserves we knew were there but we didn't know how to find. Now we can find them without overdrilling, so this technology is a real boon to our profession. It doesn't solve all our problems, but in areas like Glasscock County we can locate carbonate detrital deposits that can produce over one million barrels of oil. We think of 2-D as a reconnaissance tool and 3-D as a refinement tool. We see applications in developmental drilling, such as in areas of channel sands. We can chase them even if they're not over a couple hundreds yards wide.

Will furthering this technology be one of your goals as an officer of AAPG?

Times are changing in the industry and my main goal will be to help guide us to the next century. It's important to expand our scope to include more disciplines like our Division of Environmental Geosciences. As new concerns, technology and disciplines evolve, AAPG needs the ability to embrace these disciplines or we'll be left behind. We want to look at all the new technologies and bring them into the fold. It's important to have a viable organization. And it's important to expand AAPG internationally because the bulk of new reserves will be found outside the U.S. That's where many of the industry personnel are and we need to be where they are working.

We understand AAPG has 32,000 to 33,000 members in 107 countries. Yet the name remains tied to America -- American Association of Petroleum Geologists. Any thoughts on a name change?

Actually that has been discussed. I wouldn't object to it, and in the years to come it could be a possibility. However, it seems some of our international members like being associated with an American organization; it adds prestige.

I feel the same when comparing all the associations I've been a part of. I was proud of the West Texas Geological Society presidency, and I thought the Society of Independent Earth Scientists was wonderful. But WTGS is a local group, and SIPES was strictly for independent geologists. On the other hand, AAPG represents all the world and has earned a reputation as the premier association.

Do you see quite a future for AAPG, or will it be replaced when petroleum is replaced with some other fuel?

I feel strongly that there will be a need for petroleum in the future. The world energy demand will grow proportionately with the population; when the population doubles we'll see double the use of energy. There really is nothing on the scene except nuclear to fill the demand, so petroleum will have to fill it. So we'll need petroleum industry and geologists in the future.

We're looking to the future. The Twenty First Century Committee is part of AAPG, as well as the Division of Environmental Geosciences. This Division is actually working to incorporate hydrogeologists and engineering geologists and others so we can incorporate new disciplines in the field. We're concerned about pollution and want to educate the public and the government. We have an economic environment to protect in the future as well as a public environment.

PITTS: Speech reveals environmental mind

(From 1E)

The addiction to the automobile is the most detrimental thing, and a preference for detached single-family suburban houses is the second — nothing else really matters except maybe our preference for eating lots of meat...We could change things in the next ten years by changing the way we use technology, but beyond that we will have to deal with the tougher issue of lifestyle change."

The last time the intellectual elite gave the ordinary people an "engineered" utopian society in which almost no one drove an air polluting car, nearly everyone lived in tidy high rise apartments that did not burden the planet with suburban sprawl, and only a handful of citizens ate red meat from CO2 producing cows was just a years ago. It was called the Soviet Union.

Talk about going in circles. The Sierra Club, will not be happy until Americans are living like Russians.

Anyone not suspicious (correction — anyone not terrified of this group's agenda) would do well to wake up and smell the flowers. Least they wake up and find out the Sierra Club is telling them where to live, what to drive and what to eat.

ON THE TIME TABLE — "Our major challenge is to speed up the pace of change. We're going in the right direction, but we're not going fast enough. With a new and sympathetic administration, we have a chance to move faster...We have the danger that the sense of urgency may fade...this is not the time to relax, but to intensify demands. The 1990s need to be the decade of no excuses."

This urgency is written all over today's oil and gas environmental laws and those laws yet to be written, because the Sierra Club mindset, through the political process, has been transferred directly to the state and federal environmental bureaucracy. As such, it is a major reason for the onslaught of needless and excessive environmental regulation. It is also a prime reason the doom and gloom propaganda gets progressively gloomier.

ON MORALITY — "We must keep sight of the moral component of what we are about. A reasonably good definition of morality is that it's a force that makes us care about things that don't affect our immediate self interest. One of the concerns I have about some of the current emphasis on using market mechanisms to clean up the environment is that it runs the risk of shifting the focus away from the moral imperative to do something about pollution."

Translation: Every moral individual should care more about the welfare of the planet than he does about his own self interests — such as his family. It is not morally correct to care more about a job to feed your family than the rain forest or the whales.

To hell with people, their needs and their wants, and trying to bring economic reason and reality to the environmental process. It only takes away from the moral imperative to do something about pollution.

SERVICE SECTOR

Odessa firms report expansion

Editors Note: This begins the first of what will be a regular column about the service sector of the Permian Basin oil industry. The Oil Report welcomes news about your company. Please send to: Oil Report, Service Sector, Box 1650, Midland 79702.

Staff report

Goex International, Inc., a wireline explosives supplier, is currently working on sales in Russia and has been selling to China and Mexico, as well as domestically. The company's new product is the Innovator Gun, a perforating gun that is more sturdy and has really been a boon to business according to Bill Perkins, Goex's new area manager. Perkins has been in the wireline business for 40 years and was previously the owner of Apache Services. When Perkins came to Goex in February this year, Apache Services was sold to his sons who renamed it Capitan Corp.

Frank's Fuels says it is getting ready for the new push for cleaner fuels. Frank Harrell notes that sales are better now than in the last five years. Frank's sells liquid propane and the necessary conversion equipment so cars and trucks can burn propane instead of gasoline. Harrell feels propane will compete with CNG because it has advantages, the most obvious of which is distance. He said vehicles can travel three times further on a tank of propane than a tank of CNG.

Pemco Equipment says its foreign business is expanding. The rig manufacturing and repair company, has built over 1200 well service derricks and is know worldwide. Pemco rigs have been sold to Argentina, Turkey, Spain, Mexico, Brazil and the China Sea since the company started in 1962, and now the company nas quotes out to Russia and India and is waiting on a reply. Manager Jimmy Breaux said repairing well service rigs is a significant portion of his business, but finding skilled mechanics remains a problem.

Enclean, Inc., a provider of industrial cleaning services to the U.S. process industry, was acquired August 6th by Rust International, Inc., headquartered in Birmingham, Alabama. Rust is a subsidiary of Waste Management Inc. Enclean Division Manager Ray Sonnenburg said the acquisition is expected to strengthen the company's depth and provide additional capital for equipment and new technology. He added that there is a pending name change.

PMC Equipment Company began targeting overseas markets in March this year and Kenny DeWitt, president, said sales look very promising. He said contacts acquired through trade shows and a lot of letter writing have increased international sales of gas measuring equipment in the Middle East, Far East and South America. DeWitt looks for continued success and hopes to reach a 50/50 domestic/international sales split. DeWitt added that PMC is currently in the negotiation stage for a joint venture with an electronics firm to manufacture electronic flow measurement equipment.

Coppinger Supply, Inc., specializing in oilfield service supplies, added the Southwest Oilfield Products line to its warehouse last month. Southwest is a manufacturer of mud pump fluid and parts, and many drilling contractors are familiar with the Southwest line. Coppinger President Larry Bell has noticed an increase in business overall this year which he attributes to the area's increase in well servicing and completions.

Dixie Electric's General Manager Randy Tucker said the company's programmable controllers, used in conjunction with automated wellsites, have been in high demand recently. Tucker said all his additional business can be attributed to the areas of automation and compliance, mainly lease automation, waterflood stations, pumping units, and improving the condition of old equipment for compliance purposes. Dixie has been in business 43 years and is busy enough now to hire more electricians and linemen.

Thompson's Specialties, distributors of fire and safety equipment for 46 years, has added four personnel in the last year who bring many years of fire and safety expertise. Bob Quisenberry, a 35 year employee of Shell Refinery and formerly director of safety, has joined Thompson's as training specialist. Tim Nolan is the news sales/service director specializing in fire training. George Boles, previously with Continental Emsco for 43 years, joins Thompson's Specialties in outside sales. The company also has a new technician, Jesse Loffler, in charge of H2S equipment and working in sales. Owner Bob Thompson said the company has enlarged its service area to include Abilene and Amarillo, and he now has three mobile trucks providing service on-site for fire equipment.

Service Sector is compiled and written by the staff of the Permian Basin Oil Report.

Arkla moves to Houston

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkla Inc. has moved its headquarters to Houston, the natural gas company's chairman said today.

Until recently, the company split its headquarters between Little Rock and Shreveport, La. But during the past few months, Milt Honea, chairman and chief executive officer has been spending most of his time in Houston.

Honea said he has been devoting much of his attention to Arkla's pipeline group, which moved to Houston last fall. Honea said the company's recent decision to stay in the interstate pipeline business was one of the main reasons it moved to Houston, the U.S. oil and natural gas capital.

"The center of the pipeline business of the country being here is a major factor in the move here," Honea said today in a telephone interview from Houston.

Honea became Arkla's chairman and CEO last December when Thomas F. "Mack" McLarty resigned to become President Clinton's chief of staff. Arkla Inc. is an integrated natural gas company, meaning it participates in more than one phase of the natural gas business, including its interstate pipeline and local distribution subsidiaries.

Arkla bought Houston-based Entex Inc., a gas distribution company, in 1988.

The move to Houston will not affect most of the employees who work at the Arkla building in downtown Little Rock, the company said. They work for Little Rock-based Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co., a local distribution division operating in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas.

Some Arkla employees will move from Shreveport to Houston, but Honea said Arkla will continue to have a secondary corporate office at Shreveport.

University Lands sets sale

Staff report

The Board for Lease of University Lands has issued a call for nominations for land to be sold at its 84th oil and gas lease sale, scheduled for 10 a.m., December 14 at the Midland Hilton.

All available Permanent University Fund Lands located in all counties, with the exception of El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson and Terrell counties may be nominated for inclusion on the list of lease sale tracts.

El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson and Terrell counties are packaged in a separate special frontier lease sale for which no nominations are required.

Lease terms, as approved by the board, include:

- Five-year primary terms
- Advance rentals of $5 per acre per year for years two and three and $10 an acre per year for years four and five; and
- 25 percent royalty on oil and gas. Royalties may be reduced to 20 percent or 22.5 percent, depending on the establishment of commercial production.

All nominations must be received by the Manager of University Lands, Oil, Gas and Mineral Interests, P.O. Box 553, Midland Texas 79702-0553 by 5 p.m. September 22.

Torch lightens Triton

DALLAS (AP) — Triton Energy Corp. says it has sold "a substantial portion" of its U.S. working interest properties to Torch Energy Advisors Inc.

The company said Monday although the sale closed this month, the effective date was Jan. 1. Because of that, the sale price of about $18.7 million was reduced to about $16.1 million to reflect estimated revenues and expenses since then, the company said.

A final price adjustment will occur within 90 days, Triton said.

Permian Production-increasing production on existing wells

In the present economic climate, more and more producers are putting a greater emphasis on increasing production and productivity on existing wells. With the rising cost of exploration and lease operating becoming forever more expensive, increasing production without risk or a substantial cash outlay becomes very attractive. Permian Production Equipment, Inc. was founded in 1979 by Charlie McCoy, in order to supply the industry with innovative equipment designed to do just that.

Mccoy, educated at Louisiana Tech in Engineering and Business holds patents in oil and gas production equipment and at present is a director for the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and a member of both the Society of Petroleum Engineers and the American Petroleum Institute.

Unlike many local companies PPEI survived the "de-boom" in the mid-eighties, primarily because the products which they invented, manufactured and distributed here in the Permian Basin were used mainly to increase production on older existing wells. PPEI now services most domestic as well as some international oil fields.

Their forte is taking existing, marginally to medium performing wells and increasing production with a very acceptable pay out frame of, in most cases, 30 to 90 days. Potential returns are very high, with an average cash return of about 8 times the initial investment over the first 12 months.

PPEI's products include casing pressure reduction equipment such as the Beam Gas Compressor (BGC); operators of rod pumping wells are finding that by using the BGC they can relieve restricting back pressure on the producing formation and dramatically increase production and cash flow on producing wells which respond to this technique.

Back pressure has several different causes: line friction due to long flow lines from the separator back to the well head; a result of sales line pressure or the pressure required to operate the separator. All of these things inhibit the producing formation's ability to give up it's oil and gas. By mounting a BGC on the walking beam of a pumpjack, wells with a good productivity index and well head back pressure can dramatically increase their production as the wellhead pressure is reduced toward 0 PSI.

Apart from the increase in productivity there are many other benefits in installing a BGC. It utilizes the energy generated by the pump jack without the need for an additional prime mover. It can be operated in high as well as low pressure applications. It will help sell low pressure gas by pushing it into the sales line and relieve gas interference in the down hole pump which increases production and reduces equipment repair cost.

Permian Production Equipment has the personnel and expertise to keep wells producing at their optimum. For more information on the Beam Gas Compressor and PPEI's other products call Charlie McCoy at (915) 563-1266.

Tom Brown, Conoco make prolific gas strike

■ Strawn discovery could lead to new exploration play in Val Verde Basin.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Tom Brown Inc. and Conoco have completed a successful Strawn wildcat in Terrell County that could spark new gas exploration interest in the far southern reaches of the Permian Basin.

A rank wildcat, 14 miles from Strawn production, the ACU "49" No. well tested at a rate of six million cubic feet of gas per day and 240 barrels of condensate with a flowing tubing pressure of of 3000 psi on a one-quarter inch. choke.

Mobil's George Mitchell No.1, 14 miles southeast of the Tom Brown-Conoco well, in the Little Canyon Strawn is the closest Strawn production to the well.

"This was a legititmate test," said Cliff Drescher, vice president of operations for Tom Brown, "we wanted to be sure we had something there and were not disappointed. I have been disappointed too many times by a flash, but I don't think we are going to be disappointed."

Drescher said both Tom Brown Inc. and Conoco had "good warm fuzzy" feelings about the prospects for the well and the area.

Tom Brown and Conoco, each own a fifty percent interest in approximately 7000 net acres in the prospect, and will jointly explore and develp a 58,000 acre area of mutual interest along trend witht the ACU "49" No. discovery well. Tom Brown acquired a fifty percent interest in the acreage from Conoco for an approximate cost of $1.7 million.

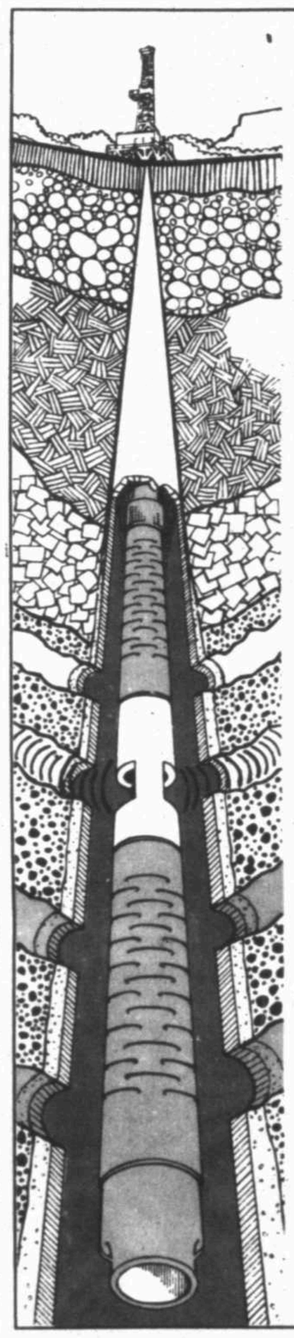

Plans call for further definition of the area by 3-D seismic before further drilling. The area of interest will be a trend running roughly from the Puckett field to the Brown-Bassett field.

The Strawn discovery is extra good news to Conoco who already has a major Ellenburger play underway in the area and tremendous acreage. The discovery of Strawn production adds a third

Clean-up perforations, remove scales, paraffins and debris with the PerfClean Tool's® powerful shock waves.

Restore the permeability and porosity of your wells by economically treating with the PerfClean Tool. It is a safe and efficient way of cleaning new perforations prior to other stimulation treatments, as well as formation testing, and removal of scales, paraffins and other debris. This lightweight tool has no moving parts and is easily transported to remote or offshore locations.

With the PerfClean® Tool...

- Remove scale from the perforation tunnel and/or wellbore pipe
- Remove skin damage caused by perforating operations and wellbore damage prior to formation testing and/or stimulation
- Lower treating pressures required for stimulation treatments
- Enhance matrix acidizing operations
- Increase effectiveness of chemical treatments
- Increase effectiveness of horizontal well stimulation treatments

Case History 1 '93

Ector County, Texas: San Andres Formation
Operator called to run the PerfClean tool on a well in a waterflood that had lost production due to iron sulfide scale. The well was pumping at 3 bbls of oil, 6 bbls of water/day. A conventional acid job was performed prior to the PerfClean treatment with no marked improvement. The PerfClean treatment was performed by first cleaning the perforations with 2% KCl, then treating each foot of perforations at 2 bbls/min. with 40 gallons of 15% NEFE acid.
Following the treatment the hole was circulated out to recover scale fines. The operator then performed swab runs to ensure that all fines were recovered. During the swabbing the well began flowing. Thirty days after receiving the PerfClean treatment, the well's production stabilized at 40 bbls of oil, 15 bbls of water/day.

Utility buys Texas oil company

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric said Wednesday a subsidiary has acquired DKM Resources Inc., a Texas petroleum business, in a deal worth more than $50 million.

The cash transaction more than doubles the oil and natural gas reserve base of Medallion Production Co., which is based in Tulsa, Okla., and acquires, explores, develops and sells oil and gas reserves. Medallion is owned by InterCoast Energy Co., a nonregulated energy subsidiary of Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric.

The regulated utilities of Iowa-Illinois serve 242,000 natural gas and 202,000 electric customers in central and eastern Iowa and western Illinois.

DKM Resources, based in Houston, is a privately owned oil and gas acquisitions company with proven reserves in 10 states. It was acquired from the Dyson-Kissner-Moran Corp. of New York.

"The acquisition significantly adds to our pool of low-cost oil and gas reserves," said Stanley Bright, chairman of the Davenport-based Iowa-Illinois.

DKM Resources is to be merged into Medallion later this year.

It brings proven oil and natural gas assets estimated at the equivalent of 14.8 million barrels of oil, including 55 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

With the acquisition, Medallion will have interests in 659 oil and gas properties and 224 operated wells in 16 states and the Gulf of Mexico. Its reserve base will total about 29 million barrels of oil equivalent, including 117 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Medallion's daily production is expected to rise from the equivalent of 7,200 barrels of oil to 11,000, including 46 million cubic feet of natural gas.

The deal is the latest in a series of acquisitions of oil and gas reserves by Medallion during the past 18 months. Transactions this year were:

— A $2.2 million acquisition of Wolverine Exploration Co.'s interest in certain oil and gas properties in eastern Colorado's Cheyenne County.

— A $2.5 million acquisition of oil and gas properties in Louisiana's Beauregard Parish.

— A $2.3 million acquisition of the interest of Zeit Exploration Co. Inc. and Patrick Petroleum Co. in certain oil and gas properties in south Louisiana.

A driller walks among a row of drill pipes at a gas drilling site near Boyd, Texas. Texas is both the nation's largest conumer and producer of natural gas.

Natural gas role growing

■ Once thought of only as an oil state, Texas is now being viewed as a gas state.

DALLAS (AP) — When Texas' oil industry was in its infancy around the turn of the century, drillers had to burn off an annoying substance they saw as useless after it had pushed the precious crude to the surface.

That substance was natural gas. Although it has been decades since the fuel was burnt as a worthless nuisance, many in the industry are hopeful that natural gas now is poised to come on stronger than ever before.

While domestic oil production has dropped to its lowest level in 35 years and imports this summer have hit their highest ever, gas — sustained by higher prices — has been making gains.

"There used to be a saying in the oil and gas industry: 'Find gas three times and you're fired,'" said Charlotte LeGates, spokeswoman for the Natural Gas Supply Association, a Washington-based group that represents major domestic gas producers.

"We've always called ourselves an oil state. In fact, increasingly, to some percent, we're a gas state."

Texas is both the nation's largest consumer and supplier of natural gas. The state produces about a quarter of the total U.S. natural gas supply and has more than a fifth of the nation's reserves, said Brian Schaible, spokesman for the Texas Railroad Commission.

Domestic oil reserves are being increasingly played out, while experts believe a tremendous natural gas base remains. For that reason and because they say they are frustrated by U.S. government regulations and high costs at home, major oil companies have moved many of their oil operations overseas and turned more of their domestic exploration activities to natural gas.

Nationwide, average domestic daily production of crude oil is down 5.5 percent so far this year, while natural gas liquids have grown by 4.2 percent, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers said earlier this month that the state is on a course to see its lowest oil production in 50 years. Preliminary Railroad Commission figures show that Texas' crude oil production in May dropped 5.5 percent from May 1992, while gas production was up 3.7 percent.

"It looks to me as though we're looking at kind of a slow evolutionary process that's going to see gas kind of gaining ground but no dramatic leaps," Schaible said.

"We've had production going down in oil since 1972," he said. "Gas, on the other hand, has been coming on strong in the last couple of years."

Ms. LeGates said factors helping gas include more stable prices so far this year and new technology, especially three-dimensional seismic techniques, which help each well find more gas.

Victor Burk, a partner with Arthur Andersen & Co. in Houston, said he sees signs that industry spending will increase, driven by natural gas exploration.

"The oil and gas industry, at least the upstream industry, may be turning around after a 10-year recession, which could mean more jobs for the oilfield service and supply sector of the industry," Burk said. "It's probably the most optimistic period that I've seen in the exploration and production business in several years."

"The most opportunity for exploration and development here in the U.S. rests with natural gas as opposed to oil. Natural gas prices have been relatively strong now for several months, and I think that supply and demand for natural gas are essentially in balance now," Burk said.

George Mitchell, chairman of The Woodlands, Texas-based Mitchell Energy, said his company expects to boost its drilling budget by 40 percent this year.

"We're increasing our budget because of gas, not oil. We are drilling oil wells too, to some extent, but gas is the best thing that we've got going for us," Mitchell said.

However, others warn that the industry remains deeply troubled.

"The picture is potentially very bright for gas. It is environmentally benign, it is the clean-burning fuel of the future," said Judy Leon, spokeswoman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

But, she said, unstable prices, falling production and spiraling imports reflect an overall industry crisis.

"Those three things taken together paint a very, very dangerous picture for the domestic producing industry, both in terms of oil and gas, because you have to look at the whole extraction picture," Ms. Leon said.

"The bottom line is, we'd like to see expansion in drilling for both oil and natural gas because we need to be producing more energy here period as opposed to importing it."

Enron signs Russian gas deal

HOUSTON (AP) — With the Russian prime minister looking on Monday, Houston-based Enron Corp. and R.A.O. Gazprom, the major natural gas company of Russia, signed the framework of an agreement to develop new markets for natural gas.

The signings, completed with toasts, came as Prime Minister Victor Chernomyrdin and U.S. Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary huddled in Houston to try to ease the way for American energy companies to do more business with oil- and gas-rich Russia.

"I think there are unique challenges," Ms. O'Leary said. "We are taking on a partner which for the last 50 years has had no normal framework. The challenge is quite difficult — to put a system in place. To expect it to happen overnight is unrealistic."

The Enron-Gazprom agreement was announced as Chernomyrdin, second in power to Russian President Boris Yeltsin, began a week-long U.S. visit with a stop in Houston.

The trip, which includes stops in Florida and Washington, is intended to increase trade and cooperative space ventures between the nations.

Under Monday's framework, Enron and Gazprom will cooperate to deliver Russian natural gas and develop projects to use the gas in European countries. Enron already operates 44,000 miles of pipelines and is one of the largest independent power producers in the United States and United Kingdom.

Chernomyrdin also visited with officials of Marathon Oil Co., which is involved with Shell Oil Co. and other partners in a $10 billion project developing two offshore oilfields off Sakhalin Island.

"He was very encouraging," Marathon spokesman Bill Ryder said. "He reaffirmed his support and his government's support for the consortium."

Ms. O'Leary said she and Chernomyrdin followed up items discussed earlier in the year when Yeltsin and President Clinton met in Vancouver, Canada.

"We have been working government to government attempting to outline a very tight but a very deep list of items that need addressing," she said, identifying them as oil and gas exploration, energy efficiency, environment, nuclear energy and setting up an infrastructure.

Chernomyrdin, speaking at a luncheon that attracted hundreds of officials from Houston energy companies, characterized the discussions as "very interesting talks."

"This meeting today is a good omen which I believe augers well for future cooperation of our two nations in oil and gas industries," he said. "It allows us to assure you we do attach importance to enhancing existing natural benefiting ties with our partners and building new ones."

Ms. O'Leary said it was likely Vice President Al Gore on Thursday, appearing with Chernomyrdin, would announce specifics on how the United States would deliver on its commitments.

The prime minister, in his talk to oil and gas company officials, appealed for billions of dollars in investment to restore idle Russian oil wells, to boost production of existing wells and to invest in new fields. He said the Russians were looking particularly for major companies with an aggressive product strategy who grab good opportunities when they see them.

"I'm convinced this visit to the United States of America will yield practical results," he said.

Later, in a tour of the Johnson Space Center, Chernomyrdin visited a mockup of the U.S. space station and met NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin and two Russian cosmonauts training at the center for a mission aboard the American shuttle next year.

Environmental regs will put lock on refineries

■ Study says clean air regs will be too costly for many refineries to remain open.

HOUSTON (AP) — Many American oil refineries will close down instead of paying upgrades required by U.S. environmental regulations, a new study shows.

The National Petroleum Council's 2½-year study of domestic refining operations said regulations that would force the industry to be cleaner would cost $37 billion, in 1990 dollars, to meet requirements from 1991 to 2000.

That's about $6 billion more than the current value of American refineries, said Kenneth Derr, Chevron Corp. chairman and chief executive officer, who presented the study to Energy Department Secretary Hazel O'Leary.

"What does that mean for the consumer? The cost of products will increase, the average cost increase for all products ... will see a six cent per gallon in 1995 and 10 cent per gallon in the year 2000," Derr said.

Derr further explained that the stricter regulations will also mean a greater dependence on foreign refineries as domestic operations that fail to meet the new rules, or can't afford to meet them, close down.

"We are concerned about the fact that environmental regulations today on refineries in the U.S. are more severe, more significant than they are in foreign countries," Derr said.

At the pump, the costs for a greener gasoline will be even higher, according to the study released on Monday.

In areas where "reformulated" gasoline is required by Clean Air Act regulations — California is one such state — there will be a 10-cent increase per gallon in 1995 and more than 13 cents in the year 2000.

"These kind of costs increases are going to have to be placed in the marketplace," said Derr.

The NPC's study was commissioned to determine if domestic refineries could meet environmental demands to reduce emissions and produce a cleaner fuel and at what cost.

Ms. O'Leary stressed that while she is concentrating this week in Houston with U.S-Russia oil ventures, her focus was unwavering as ever on the domestic refinery scene.

"This industry must survive if we want a vital economy," said Ms. O'Leary.

SPE group hosts New Mexico researcher

Joseph J. Taber of the New Mexico Petroleum Recovery Research Center will be the guest speaker at Thursday's meeting of the SPE Reservoir Study Group. The meeting will be at the American Legin Hall beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Taber will present a paper he co-authored with R.S. Seright entitled "Horizontal Injection and Production Wells for EOR or Waterflooding."

The paper describes the potential benefits of using combinations of horizontal injection and production wells for EOR processes or waterflooding. The results suggest that significant gains in injectivity, areal sweep and pressure gradients are possible through the use of horizontal wells.

Taber is the director emeritus of the New Mexico Petroleum Recovery Research Center, where he studies advanced recovery methods.

Cost is $8 per person.

ANALYSIS

Reading the lines behind BJ trading

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Sell on the rumor, buy on the news. That's Wall Street's advice for individual investors. But the pros have a different refrain: sell when company officials tell you the news, buy when they tell everyone else.

Such was the case recently with BJ Services Co., an oil and gas services concern. After rising fairly steadily since the middle of last month, the price of BJ stock began to fall precipitously Wednesday, dropping $1.875 to close at $26 a share in trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The selloff continued Thursday morning, with the shares falling as much as $4.25, to $21.75, before trading was halted.

Individual investors in the stock must have been perplexed. No news had been announced that would account for the collapse that by early Thursday cost investors $612.50 in paper losses for every hundred shares they owned.

What happened? The company decided that it was not going to meet analysts revenue estimates, and began telling analysts in telephone conversations Wednesday afternoon. Anybody who got to hear that news probably sold at a good price; as for everyone else, well, too bad.

Even with the stock in a power dive, trading was not halted until 11:05 a.m. EDT Thursday, when the number of sell orders swamped the buy orders. Only at 11:25, long after analysts first learned that their revenue estimates were too high, did an announcement come across the wire that news was pending.

The news was a dilly. The company said that its earnings would be lower than expected because of weakness in the drilling industry. In the announcement, BJ, based in Houston, said it expected fourth-quarter per-share operating earnings in the range of 24 cents to 28 cents, far below the earlier estimate by analysts 35 cents a share. Nonrecurring tax benefits are expected to lift total earnings to the range of 30 cents to 35 cents.

Much of the troubles stemmed from overseas business. Some analysts were told Thursday that BJ contracts with customers in Trinidad, the North Sea and Asia had been delayed for a variety of reasons. Those delays involve everything from scheduling problems that left equipment for the North Sea in dry dock to operational problems in Trinidad that delayed business.

Once the news was finally out, individual investors who may have finally caught up with the situation had a dilemma: if the news made them want to sell, they probably should wait — the market was headed back up.

The shares reopened at 12:48 p.m., up $1.75 from when trading was halted. The share price crawled upward much of the rest of the trading session, to close at $24.125, down only $1.875. More than 1.6 million shares, or 10 percent of the total outstanding, changed hands Thursday.

By the end of Thursday's session, an individual investor with 100 shares of the stock lost $375 on paper over two days simply because of a lack of access to the information the analysts had.

Executives with BJ said Thursday that the information disclosed to some analysts Wednesday was general, and did not include any of the specific numbers. But, by Thursday morning, the analysts knew not only that the revenue estimates were high, but that the company would be coming out with an announcement saying so.

Exxon chief sees higher prices

The way Lee R. Raymond sees it, world oil supplies are tight and prices should rise throughout the rest of the year. Mr. Raymond, chairman and chief executive officer of Exxon Corporation, says he doesn't believe the United Nations will soon give Iraq permission to sell oil in a move that many think would flood the market and send prices tumbling. He agrees that OPEC is selling more than their quotas allow but that, "it doesn't appear to our traders that there is a glut."

TRC lists 52 permits for horizontals

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission granted 52 permits for horizontal wells statewide in July, reflecting a slight decline in activity from the previous month, according to RRC Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent and Commissioners Mary Scott Nabers and Barry WIlliamson.

By comparison, 62 permits for the advanced technology wells were issued in June, 44 in May and 68 in April.

Altogether, the Railroad Commission has issued 379 permits for horizontal wells so far in 1993. In all, a grand total of 3,301 permits for horizontal wells have been granted in Texas since 1984.

Four new horizontal permits were granted to operators in the Pearsall (Austin Chalk) Field in July, while thirty were issued to those drilling horizontal wells in the Giddings (Austin Chalk).

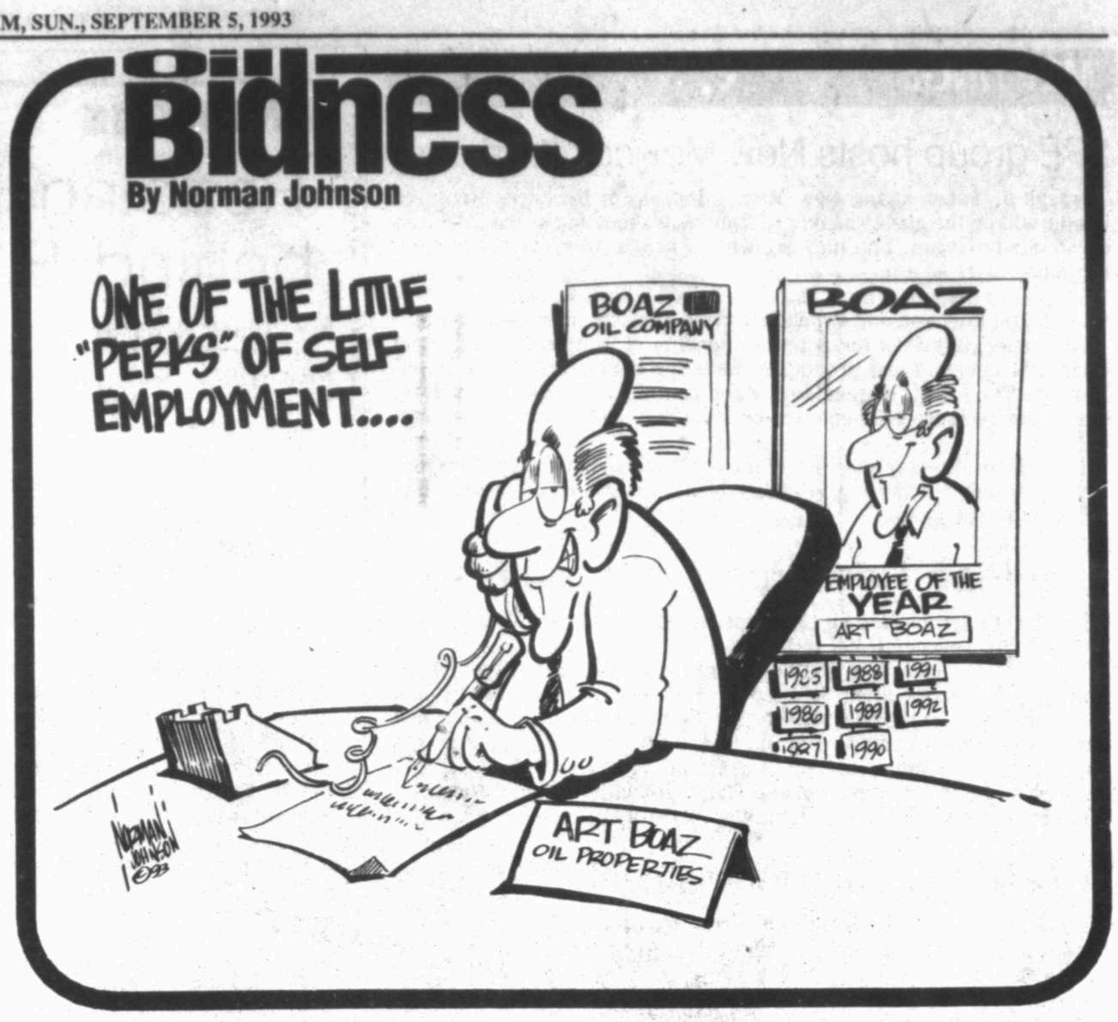

Overall, 1,248 horizontal permits have now been granted to operators in the Pearsall Field. Frio County leads all others with 679 of that total.

Meantime, Zavala County ranks second in the Pearsall Field with 204 horizontal permits issued through July 31, followed by Dimmit County with 190 and LaSalle County with 175.

Likewise, the Commission has issued 997 permits for horizontal wells in the Giddings (Austin Chalk) Field through July 31. Fayette County leads the horizontal race there with 425, followed by Burleson County with 408, Lee County with 115 and Washington County with forty-nine.

Also, Brazos County added another eleven permits in July, raising its total to 319.

July was a busy month for horizontal completions as drilling was concluded on some 80 of the advanced technology wells, raising to 2,625 the number of horizontal wells completed in Texas since 1984.

ACTIVITY: Looking at drilling prospects target in the area in addition to the Wolfcamp, and Ellenburger and will not only lessen Conoco's exposure in the risky frontier area, but is likely to intensify activity.

The ACU prospect is the direct result of Conoco's deep Ellenburger play, because it was drilled on conventional seismic used in the Ellenburger play.

If Conoco Ellenburger play hits and more prolific Strawn prospects, like the ACU well, are identified by the conventional seismic and further defined by 3-D, Conoco could very well have its platter full in this frontier area.

Recover very low vapor volumes at a profit

STORAGE TANK EMISSIONS → VAPOR JET™ VAPOR RECOVERY SYSTEM → GAS SALES

Strict government air quality standards now regulate hydrocarbon vapor emissions from oil production storage facilities. For many low volume vapor producers, compliance has become a significant factor in their profitability—or even survival.

To meet air standards, the vapors must be recovered. But the low volumes captured for gas sales often do not justify the cost of a conventional compressor-based vapor recovery unit (VRU).

The patented Vapor Jet system is a simple, cost-efficient and virtually maintenance-free alternative to conventional VRUs. Its ability to handle very low vapor volumes at a very low cost makes it ideally suited for marginal production facilities. In many cases, the system will allow the continued operation of sites where the cost of compliance with air quality standards might otherwise have been prohibitive.

Compliance doesn't have to be an expense. At an operating cost of just dollars a day, the Vapor Jet system can pay for itself with recovered gas sales.

It is easily installed at about 50 percent of a VRU's cost. And with its trouble-free design and minimal maintenance cost, the Vapor Jet system performs at 25- to 50-percent of a VRU's operating expense. For more information call Conoco Specialty Products, 1-800-962-5892.

Septemberfest '93

Illusions in Lights

Text by Georgia Todd Temple Design by Elizabeth Edwin

Vivid multi-colored beams of light will dance across the ceiling of the Marian Blakemore Planetarium during this year's annual Septemberfest celebration.

"This isn't like anything people see on a daily basis," said Mark Hartman, planetarium director. "They are not going to see anything like it on television."

Laser Artistry Inc., one of the nation's largest laser entertainment companies, is producing the Septemberfest shows, which will be seen at the Midland planetarium Friday through Sept. 12.

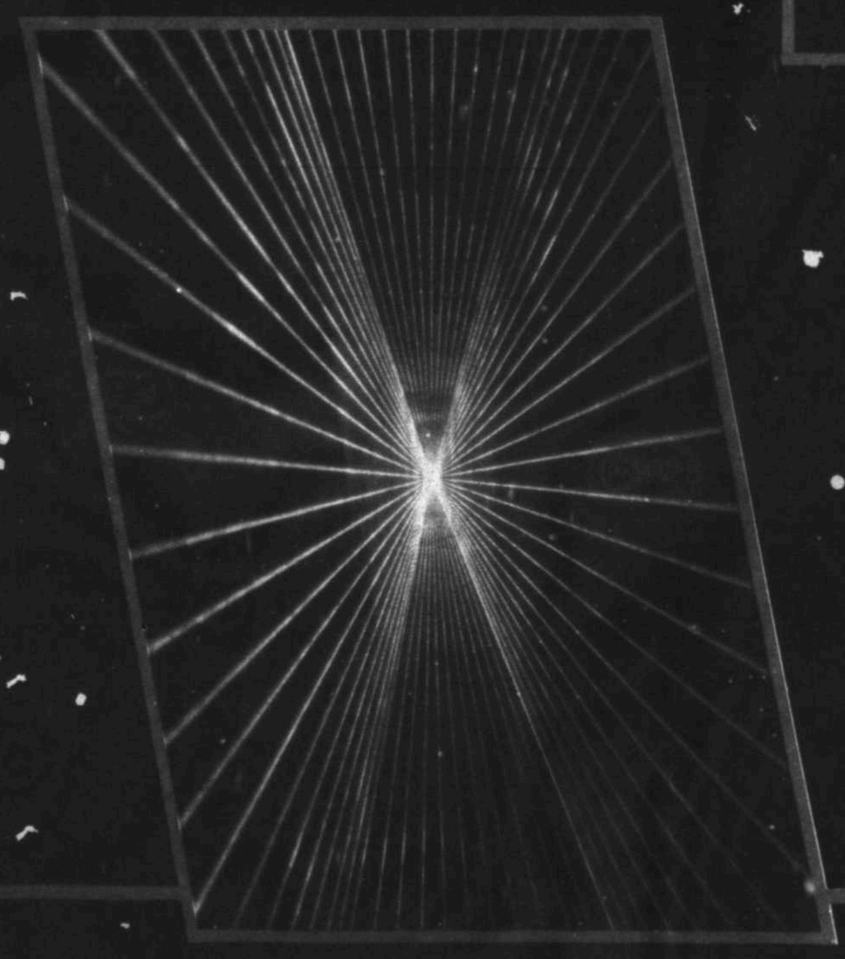

"Laser Artistry is a state of the art company," Hartman said. "They not only have the technology to draw circles, they can draw, within reason, anything they want in any color they want. They're not limited to red, green or blue. They have what's called an RGB system — a red, green, blue system. They mix the three colors together to get any color they want."

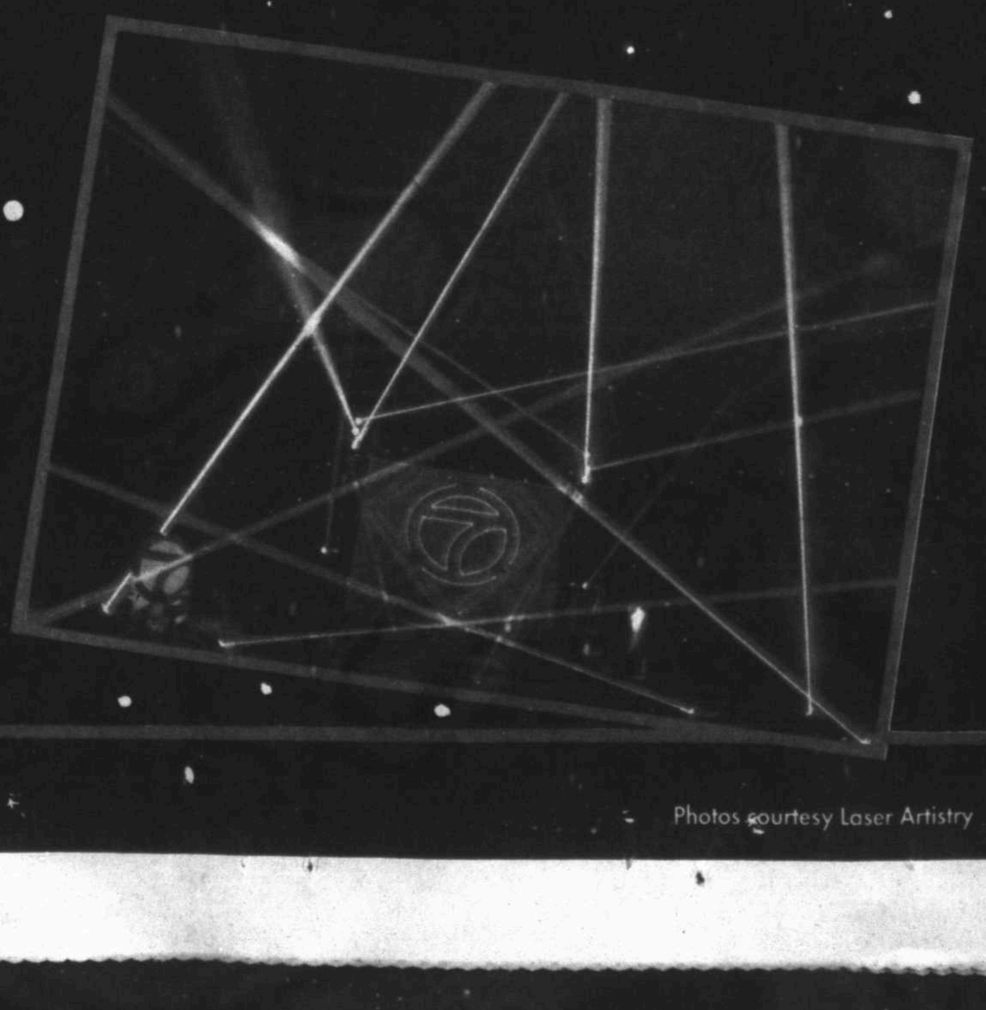

Laser Artistry's show will present "typical imagery from laser light shows — the types of things that occur primarily at special events," said Hartman, adding that the Angels have had limited laser light displays at some games and laser light companies have rented Midland Center on several occasions in the past and performed "laser light shows of one type or another.

"But, we've never had laser light programming at our facility yet, and there is a distinct difference.

"In a planetarium dome, just the dome screen itself makes it possible for them to project larger images that can cover a good deal of the viewer's field of vision. Along with that, we can put up our star field and it makes for an excellent backdrop to

HAVE YOU HEARD?

Recent party honors visitors

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

To honor recent houseguests, Evelyn (Mrs. Payton) Anderson hosted a delightful luncheon in her home.

McKnight-Harrison

The visitors were Evelyn and Payton's daughter, Gary (Mrs. Greg) Fell, and her daughter, Payton, along with friends Becky (Mrs. Mike) Cutshaw and Emily Monroe.

The foursome, all from Baton Rouge, La., took a 10-day tour across Texas, with Midland as their western most point, and Payton and Emily both celebrated their 13th birthdays along the way.

Several generations of Midlanders attended the party and enjoyed a hot weather menu consisting of gazpacho, shrimp salad, rolls, cookies and iced tea.

Among those stopping by were Becky (Mrs. Jack) Huff and her daughter-in-law, Joan (Mrs. Chris) Huff; Mitzi (Mrs. Byrne) O'Neill and her daughter-in-law, Dee (Mrs. Richie) O'Neill; Betty (Mrs. Jack) Sappington and daughter, Kitty (Mrs. Bill) Chalfant; Margaret Davis with her daughter, Missy (Mrs. Mac) McGee and daughter-in-law, Gretchen (Mrs. Scott) Davis, and Marge (Mrs. Gil) Tompson and daughter, Barbara (Mrs. David) Koch.

WHILE SUSIE AND JOHN Sheffield were vacationing in Jackson, Wyo., this summer, they received the exciting news that their daughter, Caroline, and Thomas Freeman were united in marriage on Aug. 20 in Lubbock. Thomas' brother, Wade Freeman of Lubbock, was their witness for the civil ceremony.

Caroline is a 1988 graduate of Midland High School. Thomas, son of Kathy Freeman of Snyder, is a 1984 graduate of Lee High School. After a honeymoon in Colorado, they are at home in Lubbock, where both attend Texas Tech University.

The Freemans' wedding caused Susie and John to reminisce about theirs 38 years ago. They chose to elope to Marshall, Texas, over Labor Day Weekend of 1955. Their anniversary was Sept. 3.

LAST WEEKEND, Midlanders Jed Barker and Harry Harrison traveled to Big Bend National Park, where they were among the judges at the Second Annual Barbecue and Chili Cook-off in Terlingua.

In addition to the cook-off, activities included continuous live music for dancing and listening, a fiddlers' jam session, volleyball and horseshoe tournaments and such novelty events as a cash register throw.

Cook-off winners received points, which will go toward their eligibility for the Chili Appreciation Society International Cook-off in Terlingua in November.

Proceeds from this past weekend benefit the Terlingua Area Foundation for Youth, known as T.A.F.F.Y. for short.

Among area residents seen in the crowd were Barbara Large of Midland, Susie and Bruce Day of Gardendale and Richard Erwin and Chris Cypher of Monahans.

AFTER A WEDDING trip to Cozumel, Mexico, Douglas Bartley and his bride, the former Caren Harris, are at home in Galveston. They were united in marriage Aug. 21 at Midland's First Presbyterian Church.

Pre-wedding festivities began in July with a miscellaneous shower, which was hosted in Galveston by Suzi Thompson of Victoria and Christian Sample of Austin.

In Midland, kitchen display shower was held in the home of Ann (Mrs. Ronnie) Williams and co-hosted by her daughter, Beth Ann Williams. A couples' miscellaneous display shower and dinner were held in the home of Christy and Dr. David Mallams. Co-hostesses were Carla and Johnny Barrow, Ellen and Larry Bell, Robin and John Berry, Teresa and Carl Crosby, Gwen and Harold Thomas and Hill Grover.

August parties included a recipe party held at Annie's Gingerbread House and hosted by Janice (Mrs. Frank) Kubica and Patty (Mrs. Dave) Cooper.

Douglas was honored with a "Honey-Do" shower and dinner, held in the First Baptist Church Activities Building. The hostesses were Dinah (Mrs. Tex) Paris, April Paris, Deanna (Mrs. Herman) Boatmun, Cindy (Mrs. Don) Cantrell, Betty (Mrs. Gene) Isaacs, Shari Laidley and Susan (Mrs. Bill) Gau.

A manicure party and luncheon were given by Gwen Thomas and her daughter, Tandee Thomas, at Backstage.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents, Judy and Warren Bartley, at Nolan's.

The wedding day began with a lingerie shower and bridesmaids luncheon in the home of Connie Glover. Co-hostess was Kim (Mrs. Kyle) Bruner, sister of the groom.

The wedding reception was hosted by the bride's parents, Nita and Charlie Harris, at the Plaza Club following the ceremony.

LASER: Lights create images

the lasers.

"When we move the planetarium projector, it gives people a sense of motion. The lasers appear to be moving through space. It's a great illusion.

"Sometimes we even have to warn people to close their eyes if they start to feel nauseated. You can only do that in a place like a planetarium. Some professionals say that planetariums are the perfect place for laser light shows."

Laser light shows are more common than they were 10 years ago but not as common in Texas as people would think, Hartman said.

"They have had a long running series of laser light programs in Fort Worth at the Fort Worth museum, and they have ongoing laser shows at the planetarium in Houston. There have been a few (laser shows) in other parts of Texas, though they are not ongoing, regularly programmed laser concerts. To my knowledge, Fort Worth and Houston are the only Texas cities that do them on a regular basis."

This type of laser entertainment works on the same principle as animation.

"Persistence of vision is what makes the whole thing work," said Hartman. "Long after the image is no longer present on your retina, your brain perceives it to still be there. There's a beautiful example of that, too. You can stare at a light and then turn away. You don't see the light anymore, but the image is still there.

"A child with a sparkler at night on the Fourth of July will take that thing and spin it around in circles and you see the circle that the sparkler draws. From a visual sense, it's the same thing.

"A laser will retrace the same line over and over again so fast that you can barely tell that it's doing it. If they are drawing a circle, they will draw that circle hundreds of times a second, and so it looks like a circle, and it's an extremely intense circle.

"But they are not limited to circles with new technology using new software and new scanner drivers, they can now trace real complex images and they can animate them. For instance, I recently saw an award winning animation of David Bowie dancing. They can even make an image of the earth and have it appear to be spinning around its axis."

LASER IMAGES are "unique" because they are unlike images created in any other manner.

"Probably the most striking thing about them is that they are incredibly intense colors," Hartman said. "We've heard people say that the colors are the most intense colors they have ever seen. That's partly due to the nature of the laser itself. It's a form of amplified light, and so it's concentrated into a small area."

The radiation from the laser light is so intense it can damage the eye if a person stares directly into the source of the beam, Hartman said, adding that the U.S. government has laws which regulate the setup of lasers so there is no danger to those in the audience.

"I've been around laser shows for 10 years and have never had a problem," Hartman said. "A typical classroom helium-neon laser might be 20 milliwatts or less. The large lasers that are used for cutting Plexiglas or metal or just about anything in factories, those can be upwards of 200 watts.

"The laser's visual intensity is proportional to its power output. Typically in a show situation, where they are using the lasers for entertainment, they are not going to be rated with a power output exceeding 5 watts unless they are using them outside or doing special atmospheric laser beam effects."

This is not Hartman's first experience presenting a laser light show in a planetarium situation. In 1980, Hartman was employed at the J. M. McDonald Planetarium in Nebraska. That year and the next, the facility brought in Jack Dunn, director of the Mueller Planetarium, University of Nebraska at Lincoln, to present a show.

"We did simple geometric images and had them dance across the planetarium ceiling with the stars in the background," Hartman recalled.

"It's still unique and interesting, but until you've seen a multicolored laser system with the right software, computer drivers and scanning equipment, you really haven't experienced the technology as it is today."

LASER ARTISTRY will offer those attending the shows the opportunity to see the latest in laser technology, said Hartman, who has wanted for some time to do a laser light show at the planetarium.

The idea of bringing a company like Laser Artistry to the planetarium during Septemberfest developed from a conversation between Hartman and Jami Owens, Septemberfest chairman. Mrs. Owen felt the role of the planetarium had been "secondary" in past years during Septemberfest and wanted to come up with something which would move the facility more into the limelight, Hartman said.

Hartman discovered "there weren't a lot of companies out there that were interested in coming to our celebration. There aren't as many as there used to be that travel around and do 'gigs.'"

He contacted Dunn, who is active in the International Laser Display Association and has recently been instrumental in promoting the use of the same kind of laser technology for those suffering from Retinitis Pigmentosa and other vision disorders.

"Jack Dunn had worked with Laser Artistry and had experience with other companies," Hartman said. "He gave us a list of companies that might be interested in coming and doing performances for Septemberfest. And we ended up going with Laser Artistry because of their reputation, and they were reasonably priced compared to other companies. They were willing to work with us."

SEPTEMBERFEST hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sept. 12. The laser light shows, which are sponsored by Jack Sherman Chevrolet-Geo-Buick-Mazda, the Midland Reporter-Telegram, K-Lite 100.3 FM and NewsWest 9, will run every half hour beginning at 10:30 a.m. Saturday and 12:30 p.m. Sept. 12. The actual show will be between 17 to 20 minutes in length. Admission will be $2.

"There will be two different shows that will alternate," Hartman said.

"One show will be more of a rock 'n' roll style show, and they will include, among others, one Van Halen song and one White Snake song. They are not going to be Van Halen or White Snake's heavier music by any means, but it is going to lean toward rock 'n' roll.

"The other show, Laser Artistry is calling more of their family show. It will have a Lee Greenwood tune, a Bette Midler song and will also probably have a Garth Brooks tune in it.

"Each show will open with the sound track to the movie 'Batman.' That will have laser graphics showing the world. Then it will zoom into the U.S. then zoom into Midland. There will be some specific Septemberfest and sponsor programming there. The rest of the show will be a mix of graphics and abstract images.

"They'll be bringing atmosphere beam effects, too. They will use smoke machines to pump a thin veil of smoke into the lower parts of the theater, and they will do beam sprays, which is a real unique way of displaying lasers.

"There's a real famous atmospheric beam display that people who have seen 'Aliens' know about. It's real difficult to describe. People have to come and experience it themselves."

Septemberfest begins Friday

The Museum of the Southwest's Sptemberfest is less than a week away, with the Preview Party planned on the facility's grounds for 7 to 11 p.m. Friday.

Theme for this year's Preview Party is "An Affair to Remember: A Romantic Evening of Italian Elegance." Italian cuisine, by the Midland Hilton, will be served and a classical harpist and strolling musicians will provide music for the occasion.

There will be a posted-bid auction during the Preview Party which features donated works of art, valued at a minimum of $100, from artists participating in Septemberfest. Admission is $37.50 per person.

Septemberfest opens at 10 a.m. Saturday and closes at 10 p.m. with the Jack Ingram Band of Dallas performing a dance from 8 to 10 p.m.

Hours Sept. 12 are noon to 5 p.m. Laser light shows will be presented every 30 minutes both days. Admission to the laser light shows is $2.

The 23rd annual Septemberfest, which is presented as a fund raiser by Las Manos, the museum's auxiliary organization, includes food booths, approximately 70 artists' booths and Kinderfest, for children.

Admission to Septemberfest '93 is $4 for adults and $1 for children 4-12. Those 3 years old and under will be admitted free. For more information, call the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., at 683-2882.

AT WIT'S END

Parents of handicapped children are blessed

EDITOR'S NOTE: Erma Bombeck is on vacation. She left behind a few of the "classics" that are most often requested by readers. This one first appeared in 1980.

By Erma Bombeck

Most women become mothers by accident, some by choice, a few by social pressures and a couple by habit.

Bombeck

This year, nearly 100,000 women will become mothers of handicapped children. Did you ever wonder how mothers of handicapped children are chosen?

Somehow I visualize God hovering over Earth selecting his instruments for propagation with great care and deliberation. As he observes, he instructs his angels to make notes in a giant ledger.

"Armstrong, Beth; son; patron saint, Matthew.

"Forrest, Marjorie; daughter; patron saint, Cecelia.

"Rudledge, Carrie; twins; patron saint ... give her Gerard. He's used to profanity."

Finally, he passes a name to an angel and smiles, "Give her a handicapped child."

The angel is curious. "Why this one, God? She's so happy."

"Exactly," smiles God. "Could I give a handicapped child a mother who does not know laughter? That would be cruel."

"But has she patience?" asks the angel.

"I don't want her to have too much patience or she will drown in a sea of self-pity and despair. Once the shock and resentment wears off, she'll handle it.

"I watched her today. She has that feeling of self and independence that is so rare and so necessary in a mother. You see, the child I'm going to give her has his own world. She has to make it live in her world and that's not going to be easy."

"But, Lord, I don't think she even believes in you."

God smiles. "No matter. I can fix that. This one is perfect. She has just enough selfishness."

The angel gasps, "Selfishness? Is that a virtue?"

God nods. "If she can't separate herself from the child occasionally, she'll never survive. Yes, there is a woman whom I will bless with a child less than perfect. She doesn't realize it yet, but she is to be envied. She will never take for granted a 'spoken word.' She will never consider a 'step' ordinary. When her child says 'Momma' for the first time, she will be present at a miracle and know it! When she describes a tree or a sunset to her blind child, she will see it as few people ever see my creations.

"I will permit her to see clearly the things I see — ignorance, cruelty, prejudice — and allow her to rise above them. She will never be alone. I will be at her side every minute of every day of her life because she is doing my work as surely as she is here by my side."

"And what about her patron saint?" asks the angel, his pen poised in midair.

God smiles. "A mirror will suffice."

DEAR ABBY

Getting money from this bank is like pulling teeth

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you can stand another letter about dentures, I think mine could take the cake:

Van Buren

In the late '40s, our troop carrier crew was diverted to the West Coast to pick up a load of priority freight. The operations officer didn't care that we were only prepared for a one-hour flight and had nothing (including money) with us for an overnight stay. As usual, if anything can go wrong, it will — we blew an engine and had to set down in San Bernardino, Calif.

I had no checkbook, no ID, not even my dog tags for identification and I needed cash for the night. I went to a branch office of my bank and told them my sad story. They offered to cash a counter check if I could produce proper identification.

Suddenly, I remembered the dentures Uncle Sam had made for me after I was banged up in a flight accident. My name, rank and serial number were engraved on my upper plate! I popped out the plate and pushed it across the counter, and asked the bank teller if that was good enough. After the teller and a bank officer regained their composure, I got two weird smiles and a counter check to fill out.

When the word got out, I was bugged every Saturday night at the club to show my "ID" in order to get a drink, so please withhold my name. — U.S. AIR FORCE, RET., INGRAM, TEXAS

DEAR USAF, RET.: Great story! You could lose your wallet and ID tags, but as long as you have your dentures, you'll have irrefutable proof of your identity.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 years old and have read your column since I was 9. What I'm writing about may have been in your column. Maybe not.

Yesterday, while I was at the beach, a child drowned. She was brought up to the shore and was given CPR. During these events, a crowd gathered. As the crowd grew, they circled around the child and just stared while the child's mother cried hysterically. I watched from a distance.

Here is my message: When someone is hurt, unless you can help, please keep your distance. The family and/or friends of the victim don't need you ogling at the scene of the tragedy while other people are trying to help.

This is something I've noticed at every accident I've witnessed and it makes me angry. People seem to think any victim means a peep show.

I hope this letter is printed so my message gets through. — STACEY NELLES, LAWSON, MO.

DEAR STACEY: Thank you for caring enough to write. Your message shows you to be a sensitive, kindhearted, mature 14-year-old. Most people live a lifetime without having learned what you already know. God bless you, Stacey.

DEAR ABBY: I work for an insurance carrier, processing checks and coupons. Perhaps you would like to add these names to your collection of unusual names:

Sunset Bay, Clay Potter, Ima Payne, Olive Pitt, Town Hall, Virginia Reel, Tester Couch, Kissalee Fish. — JUDITH WANAMAKER, KUTZTOWN, PA.

Mating ritual is topic of study

By Malcolm Ritter

NEW YORK (AP) — After poring over statistics on Playboy playmates and scrutinizing the spouses of identical twins, psychologists are offering two new ideas about how people choose their mates.

As a first impression, one new study says, men are attracted by the lower half of a woman's hourglass figure.

And when it comes down to the final choice, the second study says, the selection process is surprisingly random.

The research is the latest in a longstanding effort to figure out how men and women choose each other for marriage.

Prior studies have found some general trends. People tend to marry others who are at similar to themselves in such areas as intelligence, political values, religion, age and ethnicity, for example.

If such findings seem to slacken the sweet mystery of it all, keep in mind that prominent mating researcher David Buss of the University of Michigan says no theory can predict just who a given individual will marry.

For men, anyway, one important first enticement may be women whose waistlines are small when compared to their hips, Devendra Singh of the University of Texas at Austin suggests in the August issue of the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

That may not surprise many laymen, but Buss called the findings important because the idea had not been demonstrated before.

Singh said the attractiveness of a low ratio of waist to hip measurements probably began as a way for early humans to assess a woman's fitness to produce and rear children. Research has linked low ratios to good health and reproductive capability, he said.

And even in a culture whose icons of female beauty have ranged from the voluptuous to Twiggy, the attractivenes of a low waist-to-hip ratio has endured, Singh says.

He found that although women in Playboy centerfolds and Miss America winners have become thinner through the decades, their waist-to-hip ratios have barely budged. And his surveys of men and women show that lower waist-to-hip ratios in women are more attractive than higher ones.

In the other mating study, in the July issue of the same journal, David Lykken and Auke Tellegen of the University of Minnesota propose that although mate-seeking people choose from a field broadly similar to themselves, the final choice is surprisingly random.

That might surprise people who can think of good reasons they chose their mates. But Lykken sees that as rationalizing.

"One thing about human nature is that you can't tolerate a feeling that doesn't seem to have any legitimate cause," he said.

"You invent a cause for it. If the feeling is one of desperate infatuation with Sue, then the reasons why any right-minded young man should be desperately infatuated with Sue flood to the mind. I think the infatuation comes first, and the reasons come later."

Lykken and Tellegen surveyed middle-aged identical twins and their spouses, and they proposed the randomness idea after finding no evidence that people use any set of criteria to choose a mate.

If they did, the researchers reasoned, identical twins who grew up together, having identical genes and very similar childhoods, should share nearly the same criteria and so choose highly similar spouses.

But they found that spouses of twin pairs in their study were not especially alike. They also found that twins did not consistently approve of their sibling's choice of mate, contrary to what one might expect if the two twins were using similar selection criteria.

The spouses also failed to report any consistent attraction toward their spouse's identical twin.

Buss, however, said he believes the twin work fails to provide very strong evidence for the conclusion that so much of mating is random. It overlooks some research on influences over mate choice and does not test adequately theories about how people pair off, he said. He also said it has some methodological shortcomings.

Lykken defended the work, but said other scientists should try their own experiments to see if they support or refute the conclusion.

Lykken said his own rule is, "You should never believe a new result, especially if it's interesting, until it has been replicated — preferably from somebody who doesn't believe it."

Researchers' findings on how people find mates

Associated Press

How the researchers arrived at their findings:

Devendra Singh of the University of Texas at Austin examined body measurements for women in Playboy centerfolds for 1955 to 1965 and 1976 to 1990 — the vital stats were not published during the intervening years — and found that even though the women became more slender, their waist-to-hip ratio changed only slightly, from .68 to .71.

Similarly, although Miss America winners also became more slender from 1923 to 1987, their waist-to-hip ratio was little changed, dipping from .72 to .69, he found.

He also asked 116 white men, ages 18 to 22, to study line drawings of 12 women who were either overweight, underweight or of normal weight and who had waist-to-hip ratios of .7, .8, .9 or 1. In all three weight categories, figures with lower ratios were rated as more attractive than those with higher ones.

Similar results appeared in a study with 89 older white men, ages 25 to 85, another study with white women from ages 18 to 78, and still another with young blacks of both genders, Singh said. All those studies involved Americans, and if a low ratio is truly a basic human enticement it should also appear alluring in future studies with other cultures, he said.

David Lykken and Auke Tellegen of the University of Minnesota found that when the spouses of 152 pairs of identical twins were compared on 74 mostly psychological traits, they were not much more alike than random pairs of same-sex participants in the study.

In another survey, 288 identical twins were asked what they had initially thought of their siblings' choice of mate. Although 39 percent of identical twins said they could have fallen for their sibling's spouse or that they "really liked" him or her, 38 percent said they would have not have chosen that spouse or would have rather stayed single that marry that person.

Similarly, when 233 spouses of identical twins were asked what they initially thought of the twin they didn't marry, 39 percent reported the positive reactions and 30 percent reported the negative ones.

Celebrities list their time-saving practices

Associated Press

Cher saves time by listening to tapes while exercising. Michelle Pfeiffer catches up with magazines in the checkout line and literary agent Nancy Love uses an egg timer to keep telephone conversations brief.

Those are some of the ways celebrities and other people said they saved time, according to an article by E. Bingo Wyer in the current issue of Cosmopolitan.

"My time is spent listening to tapes of new rock bands and music that friends send me," Cher said. "If I had to rely on getting to the clubs to catch what's happening, I'd never accomplish anything."

Pfeiffer uses the time lag on movie sets to make long distance calls to people she gets home too late to contact. "Also, when I'm grocery shopping," she said, "I'll use the checkout line wait to get caught up on magazines. I can flip through four or five."

Model Senta Lintfors saves a few minutes by rinsing her pantyhose while she's in the shower. Photographer Janice Bart offered this household hint: "Place a tiny marker dot at the top of each bed sheet, blanket and cover. When making the bed, just line up the small dots. No need to jump from side to side to get all the layers even."

Co-op solves baby sitter shortage

By Clara G. Herrera
N.Y. Times News Service

Parents take heed: Schools have snatched up most of the eligible affordable baby sitters. It's time once again to track down the perfect person to watch those young'uns.

One solution could gain moms and dads a little sanity without breaking the bank to do it: Babysitting cooperatives.

The idea is to trade baby-sitting time with other families without charging a fee. It works on the barter system, with coupons used as currency and a few rules to keep things flowing smoothly.

"There needs to be a good mix of people willing to give as well as take," said Marcia Floyd, a former president of the Creekwood/Oak Creek Babysitting Co-op in Grapevine, Texas.

"Usually you find one or two mothers who you trade off exclusively with because their children are your children's age," Floyd said. "If there's somebody in the co-op that you don't feel comfortable with to baby-sit, you just don't call them."

Floyd, who now lives in Keller, Texas, had her first experience with organizing a baby-sitting cooperative when she moved to Virginia about five years ago. "I didn't know anybody and I had a 7-month-old son and it was very isolated," she said.

THAT'S WHEN Floyd put an announcement in a neighborhood newsletter to organize a cooperative.

Twelve people joined.

"The main problem was just finding a group of people that didn't know each other to feel comfortable around each other, especially comfortable enough to have someone watch their children," Floyd said.

When Floyd moved to Grapevine four years ago, she joined the Creekwood/Oak Creek Babysitting Co-op and is still a social member.

Thirty children strong, the Grapevine neighborhood cooperative has worked out so well for so long that current members don't know who initially started it. Because of the friendships among members, the co-op has developed into more than a means to trade baby sitting.

"The baby sitting is relatively a small part of the club," said current co-op president Nora Warchall. "It's been more meeting other people in the neighborhood."

The group's list of bylaws requires members to pay $5 in annual dues and take turns hosting a monthly meeting. At the initial meeting, officers are selected to keep up with coupons earned and spent, complaints and the number of members.

Officers are elected once a year.

RULES ARE WRITTEN out, but some are followed less strictly than others, Warchall said. Bylaws state that coupon payment be made when a child is picked up, but it really depends on the participants in the exchange.

"One of the main things to remember is to be very flexible, because you're dealing with lots of mothers with children," she said.

Although there hasn't been any trouble with co-op members, the bylaws allow members to vote to "eliminate" a member if the president receives three valid child-care complaints against that member.

At meetings, members discuss co-op business and get a chance to know each other better.

"The monthly meeting is a time to see friends and socialize for a while," Warchall said. Fifteen families are members of the group.

Some cooperatives limit the number of families involved so the system won't get confusing, Warchall said. In others, more families means that there's a greater selection of sitters and a better possibility of finding a sitter when one is needed.

Susan Ramirez, a member of the Grapevine co-op, occasionally leaves her 2-year-old son Jake with someone when she runs errands or when she and her husband need a night out.

"I'm pretty particular in who I leave Jake with," Ramirez said. "I'm not just going to take him to a stranger and dump him. I don't have to take my child to anybody I don't want to."

THE MAIN REASON Ramirez joined is so Jake would be able to play with children his own age nearby, she said.

Before she joined the co-op eight months ago, Ramirez had to be recommended by another member. She was also required to attend one meeting as a guest. Once members are part of the cooperative, they leave medical-treatment release forms with sitters and provide medical information for them.

Besides babysitting, members get together about once a month for a "mother's night out." They also have holiday parties for the children and monthly play days to take kids on trips to zoos or picnics.

A "sunshine coordinator" keeps track of special occasions or family illness among members. Each co-op member annually contributes $5 to the sunshine fund to pay for flowers or cards sent from the group.

"Babysitting has really been a major benefit, but it's also nice to meet people," Warchall said. "The fact that it's a close-knit group is nice."

If you're interested in setting up a co-op, keep these tips in mind:

Neighborhood newsletters, church bulletins or fliers are good ways to spread the word. Many cooperatives also start out by word-of-mouth in neighborhoods. These parents tell others and the system mushrooms to include several families.

ESTABLISH A CERTAIN amount of coupons to give each member when they join. The Creekwood/Oak Creek Babysitting Cooperative distributes 25 coupons, with each coupon representing an hour or a half-hour of baby sitting for one child. People with more children get more coupons.

Appoint a treasurer to keep up with the number of coupons each member has earned and spent. Rotate this job among the members.

Advice for job searching offered

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Fewer jobs are secure today as many American companies reduce their work forces.

According to a human resources consulting firm, which helps fired employees adjust to their future, laid-off workers should not take it personally. The firm — Drake Beam Morin, Inc. — says company downsizing affects employees regardless of talent, loyalty or seniority.

It offers this advice:

- Take your time. Any job loss is an emotional shock, so think long and hard before reaching any decisions.
- Assess your future. This could be the time to change industries, start a new career or your own business. Evaluate your skills and consider every alternative.
- Begin networking. Contact friends, business, social and professional acquaintances about career opportunities. Ideas and leads can come from anywhere.

SEEDS FOR THOUGHT

Little-known tree grows well in area

By Deborah A. Benge

A little known fruit tree but one that does very well in the Permian Basin is the jujube. Ziziphus jujube, sometimes the Chinese jujube or Chinese date, can occasionally be seen in older landscapes of Midland and Odessa. Little known and little used, but perhaps a tree that should be used more often.

Benge

The jujube grows to a 20-foot-plus height with bright green, shiny leaves that are very attractive. The tree has an upright, open growth that seldom needs pruning. The new growth on the tree has a weeping form that adds to the silhouette of the tree. Fruit from the seedlings can be quite small, while improved varieties can be as large as two inches long and one and a half inches in diameter. As the fruit ripens on the tree August and early September, it will gradually turn from light green to dark brown and become wrinkled. The fruit has a tough skin but the inside is white with the texture of an apple. The seed is hard and shaped similarly to an olive pit which is why the jujube is sometimes called a Chinese olive. The fruit is sweet and surprisingly good.

Jujubes will grow in any soil except those that don't drain well. And they will grow in an alkaline soil as long as it isn't highly alkaline.

Jujubes are extremely well adapted to hot, dry areas and can survive drought and excessively wet soils better than any other fruit tree. Along with the heat and drought, they appear to be able to tolerate winter cold as well. Unlike many other fruit trees, the jujube blooms late enough that a late spring freeze is rarely a problem.

One more outstanding characteristic of this fruit is its lack of pest problems. There are few insects or diseases that will harm this tree. It even seems to be very tolerant of man-made stresses (improper care and abuses).

Plant young grafted trees in late winter or early spring before growth begins. Since their growth is upright, the tree can be spaced relatively close and thinned later. Space the trees 10 to 20 feet apart. Dig the hole just deep enough to receive the root system and be sure to plant it at the same depth it grew in the field or container.

Now for the problems jujubies have — root sprouting. Mature jujubes will develop several root sprouts that can mature into bearing trees, but the fruit is likely to be inferior to that of the grafted tree. Sprouts should be cut off at ground level as they pop up. Any root pruning from cultivation will encourage suckering, so jujubes are best grown in the lawn or grassy areas that are mowed on a regular basis.

Jujubes should be eaten fresh from the tree as they ripen. Fruit will turn a brown before it begins to wrinkle. The flavor of the fruit is quite different from other highly flavored fruit. The flesh has a relatively mild flavor which is honey sweet and high in vitamin C. Jujubes can be pickled, canned or used fresh in recipes.

Two jujube varieties that have been suggested by Extension horticulturists are Lang and Li, both with superior fruit and other characteristics. Availability of jujube is probably limited to mail order fruit nurseries.

If you want a fruit tree that doesn't need babying around, the Chinese jujube may be for you. Get more information on the tree and recipes by contacting the Midland or Ector County Extension offices.

For years, parents have been urged to establish a reading routine at home.

An at-home reading habit helps build a child's success as a reader because reading is perceived as being important and valued by their family. However, at-home mathematics generally has not been given the same attention, and some educators say they believe it should.

In 1989, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics published Curriculum Standards for math education. These standards emphasize critical thinking and problem-solving with a focus on math in the "real world."

Meanwhile, some teachers are encouraging parents to share with their children the mathematics they use daily, just as they have been encouraged to do with reading. It can be a difficult task.

Although adults use mathematics every day, these calculations are usually invisible to others as they are most often mental calculations, "done in our heads." As a result, children do not end up seeing, hearing or knowing about the problem-solving that adults around them engage in on a regular basis.

Elisabeth Keim, a kindergarten-first grade teacher at Public School 234 in New York City, says one way parents can encourage the use of mathematics is through well-selected books they can use at home. Parents should look for books grouped by math concepts with simple activities and games requiring few materials.

"City Math" and "Pizza Math" are two books in Time-Life's I Love Math series ($13.95 each). In a letter to parents, the editors give examples of how math is in everything children do.

The material is designed for children in kindergarten through second grade, and is to be used by parents and children together. (The reading level is too difficult for most children in this age group to handle on their own.)

"Circles" by Catherine Sheldrick Ross ($9.95) includes 40 activities for 8- to 14-year-olds in comic, full-color art. This book provides ideas for exploring geometric shapes in order to learn how spheres, cones, cylinders and other shapes look and behave.

Anemone (Lori Gregory) sits at her father's feet, King Neptune (Derrick Reznick). King Neptune is about to grant her wish to rise to the surface of the sea.

Odessa theater presents true family entertainment

Anemone, the youngest daughter of King Neptune, comes face to face with an evil Sea Witch and a handsome prince while celebrating her 15th birthday in the Kaleidoscope Company's production of "The Little Mermaid," now on stage at Odessa's Permian Playhouse, 310 W. 42nd.

"It's based on Hans Christian Anderson's 'The Little Mermaid,' " said Christopher Olsen, director of the Kaleidoscope Company and educational director for Permian Playhouse.

"It is not the Disney version, but it is still a musical with song and dance and beautiful sets and costumes that everyone is going to enjoy. It's truly family entertainment."

Rip-Tide (Brian Rowley), the Sea-Witch (Tara Lassiter) and Zip-Tide (Chris Borgman) come from their dark abode.

The cast of 24 includes Lori Gregory as Anemone, Jason Bushman as Prince Theodore, Derrick Reznick as King Neptune, Veronica Dye as Clem Clam, Tara Lassiter as the Sea-Witch, Brian Rowley as Rip-Tide, Chris Borgman as Zip-Tide, Tina Leckbee as Georgina, Chad Cazee as Borgy and Aron Greg, Sarah Kate Vernon, Betsy Cooper, Melissa Myers and Marisol Caballero as mermaids.

"The original Hans Christian Anderson version does not have a happy ending," Olsen said. "This one does."

The production, which is sponsored by ICA Properties Inc. and Dr. Michael L. Reznik, is on stage at 2:30 p.m. today, Saturday and Sept. 12. For reservations call 1-362-2329. Permian Playhouse is located in the parking lot of Ector County Coliseum.

The musical, Olsen said, "Is the kick off to our 24th season as Odessa's youth acting company. We are made up of 7th through 12 graders, and we produce our own season of children's theater.

"The kids in the company learn all the aspects of theater — lights, sceneic design, costume design stage managing as well as being on stage."

This season the Kaleidoscope Company also will produce "Little Women" Dec. 4, 5 11 and 12 and "Rapunzel" April 30, May 1,7 and 8. All shows are at 2:30 p.m.

Season memberships may be purchased for $5 per person. Each membership includes four punches which may be spread out over the three season shows

"Membership has its privileges," Olsen said. "As a member, they receive our brochure and our newsletter before every show. Any adult accompanying a child 6 years old or younger will be admitted free.

"Our clinetele of audiences is a lot younger than Midland Community Theatre's Pickwick Players.

"And we really gear toward fairy tales, tall tales. Of course, 'Little Women' will be a little older, but we usually do fantasy-type stories."

Single admission tickets to "The Little Mermaid" are $3.

"We also do two special productions," Olsen said. "On the average we do about five productions a year all geared toward younger audiences."

This fall, in addition to the regular season, the Kaleidoscope Company has planned a special production of "Cinderella, Cinderella." Sponsored by the Grandview Lions Club, the production will be on stage Oct. 23, 24, 30 and 31.

Twins Denise (Charlotte Martin) and Dennis (Will Coombes), members of the Sanctified Sanders Singers, sing "Are You A Christian Cowboy" in this scene from Midland Community Theatre's production of "Smoke on the Mountain," opening Friday at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Reverend seeks to modernize his church in comedy-drama

Step back in time to a 1938 June night in North Carolina, when the Rev. Melvin Oglethorpe presents a first in the sanctuary of the Mount Pleasant Baptist Church — a Saturday Night Sing featuring the gospel performing Sanctified Sanders Singers.

"He's trying to present something new and modern to his Baptist Church," said Bert Bostic, musical director for Midland Community Theatre's production of "Smoke on the Mountain," opening Friday and running through Sept. 25 at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Set in rural North Carolina, "Smoke on the Mountain" is a family play "in that all of the characters with the exception of two are related," Bostic said. "It is a comedy/drama. Although there's a lot of music in the play, it is really not a musical comedy.

"The music is the medium by which the family is able to express their religious pilgrimage. The comedy comes in in the relationship that develops between Pastor Oglethorpe and the family. The drama in the play really is about the reconciliation of Stanley, who is sort of a prodigal son, to his older brother Burl."

The Rev. Melvin Oglethorpe (G. Thomas Harlowe), right, teaches Dennis (Will Coombes) some fundamentals of preaching.

June (Trudie Thomason), on washtub bass, and Stanley (David Lindemood), fresh out of jail and playing his banjo, perform "I'll Live A Million Years" for the congregation.

Family members play instruments, without backup musicians, ranging from banjos to cowbells.

Tickets to 'Smoke on the Mountain," which is co-produced by Nancy and Buddy Anguish and Betty and Hal Kempf, are $8 for Sunday through Thursday performances and $10 for Friday and Saturday shows. Discount rates are available for groups of 30 or more. The opening night performance will feature desserts provided by Nolan's Fine Dining at intermission.

Director for the production is Don Bachmann, MCT's executive director. Set design is by Paul Fiorella with light and sound designs by Edward W. Taylor and costumes by Mae Dawson.

In addition to serving as musical director, Bostic plays the role of Burl Sanders.

"It is a lot of pressure when a musical director chooses to take a role because he not only spends his time worrying about his own notes, rhythms and lines and how they fit into the overall scheme of the play, but he has to worry about everybody else's music," Bostic said. "However, the cast of this particular play has become a close knit group very, very fast. We actually feel this family relationship of all for one and one for all."

The last time Bostic, who was musical director for MCT's production of "The Taffetas," performed as an actor was in 1978 when he played the role of Harold Hill in a production of "The Music Man" in West Virginia.

"I developed a lot of other interests which really took me out of the theater — like adopting children, being married and moving to a larger congregation that was more demanding of my time," said Bostic, who is in his 12th year as minister of program and music for St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

For him, "Smoke on the Mountain," was "the right opportunity at the right time.

"I really enjoy it, and truly I enjoy working with Don Bachmann. I think we have a very good relationship. It's a mutual admiration society somewhat. I think he's a fine community theater director with a lot of patience and excellent skills."

Other newcomers on MCT's stage for this production are John Bates as Clyde Manley and Tiffany Owen Pearle, Burl's fiddle-playing daughter.

Bates, who works for Enterprise-Rent-A Car, has lived here since he was in the fourth grade. He was active in band while in high school and is the son of John and Estalene Bates. He attended Lubbock Christian College and recently graduated from Texas Tech University with a liberal arts degree. He has spent many college hours studying voice and theater.

"I was trained to sing opera so this is kind of a stretch for me," Bates said of performing in "Smoke on the Mountain." "But I wanted to get involved here the first opportunity that came up. It's a little different trying to do this kind of music, but I'm having a good time with it."

Miss Owen, a marketing student at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, is a six year resident of Midland and the daughter of Mike and Cherry Owen. Her MCT debut is also her stage debut.

"I just wanted to," Miss Owen said, when asked what inspired her to tryout for "Smoke on the Mountain." "I just thought it would be nice, it would be a change."

So far, Miss Owen has found the experience to be "a lot of fun."

Bates, who attended Texas Tech on a vocal scholarship, hopes to spend his life in theater.

"I plan to be as active in music theater as I can," said Bates, who first became involved with theater in college. "Hopefully, I will be able to do as much professional work as possible, but right now I will do anything — professional or amateur."

The cast of "Smoke on the Mountain" also includes MCT veterans G. Thomas Harlowe as pastor Oglethorpe; Loree Fitz-Gerald as Vera Sanders; Charlotte Martin and Will Coombes as the twins Denise and Dennis, respectively; Trudie Thomason as Burl's sister June, a percussionist who signs for the deaf even though there is no one in the church who is deaf; and David Lindemood as Stanley Sanders, Burl's brother.

What drew Bostic to the play were its characters.

"I read the script and really enjoyed it. The parts were so genuine. All of these people are just down to earth good folk. Plus the fact it gave me the opportunity to be on stage with a real character of my own."

ODESSA: Permian Playhouse features 'The Little Mermaid'

(From 1G)

"This audience participation play will need an active audience to help Cinderella clean the house, get ready for the ball and take a ride to the castle." Olsen said.

Again this spring the troupe will participate in the Junior League of Odessa's Child's Play, helping to bring a month-long celebration of the arts to children along with the Art Institute for the Permian Basin, the West Texas Jazz Society and the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

During the summer months the youth performing troupe looks for special projects which can be of benefit for the community.

"This last summer, we did a bilingual program that a lot of the company members took part in, and we took it to various day cares across Odessa," Olsen said.

Tuition for the Kaleidoscope Company is $45 for Permian Playhouse members and $60 for non-members a semester.

"This year a lot of them will be coming for free, " Olsen said. "They worked real hard to get the scholarships. Last year we had a scholarship performance of 'Rumpelstiltskin,' in which we raised over $2,000 so that these kids wouldn't have to pay tuition."

Olsen, who graduated with a bachelor of fine arts from Texas Tech University and is currently working on his certification to teach in public schools at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, lives in Midland where his wife, Paula Olsen, is the choir director at Abell Junior High and Alamo Junior High. Mrs. Olsen is the musical director of "The Little Mermaid."

Olsen first became interested in theater when he was a young student.

"I got my start in theater when I was 11 years old in Wichita Falls in a production of 'Annie, Get Your Gun' at the Backdoor Theatre."

Primary among Olsen's goals for the Kaleidoscope Company is making the youth performing troupe accessible to all interested youth.

Lottery winner butts heads with cartoon land's bad boys

By Peter Stack
N.Y. Times News Service

Larkspur, Calif. — The calls, cards and letters keep pouring in for Dick Zimmermann, the lottery-winning millionaire who recently took up an impassioned crusade against television violence, targeting MTV's hit cartoon series, "Beavis and Butthead."

Zimmerman, 44, a broadcasting producer, won $9.76 million in the California lottery in 1988. While channel surfing earlier this summer, he chanced on an episode of the half-hour "Beavis and Butthead" show and was horrified, he said, to see the pair blow up a cat. (The MTV people deny that TV's most-watched delinquents ever did that.)

A week or so later, Zimmermann heard about a cat being blown up in Santa Cruz, and the act so outraged him that he posted a $5,000 reward for catching the responsible parties (no luck so far). Others have helped increase the reward to $14,000 via the Santa Cruz Humane Society.

Zimmermann is now a crusader against "Beavis and Butthead," two moronic teenagers whose antisocial ways lead them to play baseball using frogs as balls or to put dogs in washing machines. (MTV's pre-show disclaimer states that the characters are cartoon creations and that their outlaw behavior isn't meant to set a community standard, but is only for entertainment.)

Since Zimmerman began his campaign a few weeks ago, he's gotten more than 2,000 calls from across the country on a phone line he set up to take comments from anyone interested in taking action against violence on television. The number is (415) 485-2687.

"I'm gratified the response has been so big," Zimmermann said. "It's a powerful indication that people have had enough of murders and gratuitous violence that have increasingly become an assault against television viewers."

Zimmermann, who has three cats but doesn't consider himself a radical animal rights activist, believes that violence on television is desensitizing the public, and cites statistics that an average child will witness 7,000 murders on TV before ever graduating from elementary school.

"I'm not suggesting that TV play 'I Love Lucy' shows or 'Little House on the Prairie' 24 hours a day," he said. "I'm not a prude. Nor am I advocating government censorship.

"What I hope to do is to convince the public that we are not powerless, that we can join together to make a statement against TV violence."

Zimmermann hopes the outpouring his crusade has caused will lead to an organized anti-violence effort, possibly involving boycotts against sponsors of violent programming.

"I'm not going to do an H. Ross Perot number," he said. "I'm just glad the money I won gives me the opportunity in life to do something I feel strongly about in my heart."

Kennedy Center musicians go on strike

By Allan Kozinn
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The musicians of the Kennedy Center Opera House Orchestra struck Wednesday in a contract dispute over the orchestra's status as a tenured ensemble. The musicians were performing in a production of "The Phantom of the Opera." Performances have been canceled through Friday, but Alan Wasser, the general manager of the production, said that he was exploring ways to resume performances Saturday or early next week.

The orchestra, which is represented by Local 161-710 of the American Federation of Musicians, performs for ballet and musical theater productions at the Kennedy Center. It is also the orchestra of the Washington Opera, and is in a separate negotiation with the company on a contract to replace one that expired Tuesday.

The musicians have sought in recent negotiations to establish the orchestra as a permanent ensemble rather than a freelance group. Under the contract that expired last Saturday, its 61 players were guaranteed 10 weeks of ballet annually, and 17 players were guaranteed eight weeks of musical theater.

Both sides say that wages and benefits were scarcely touched upon before negotiations broke off Aug. 28. Instead, the Kennedy Center proposed that tenure and guarantees be phased out. The musicians said that the orchestra's status as a unified, permanent ensemble was not negotiable.

"Some of these same musicians play for the National Theater and at Wolf Trap for lower wages than we pay them," said Norman Samnick, the lawyer for the Kennedy Center. "We're prepared to live with that. But if the Joffrey Ballet or the Kirov comes and we need only 40 musicians, we still have to pay 61. We would like to eliminate that guarantee, but we're willing to do it over three years."

Leonard Leibowitz, the lawyer for the musicians, described the plan as "union busting" and said that it would turn the ensemble into a freelance orchestra. "Orchestras have fought for job security for 50 years," he said, "and having achieved it, it is unacceptable to be told to go back to the bad old days."

The bidding:

Opening lead: Three of ♠

This hand was played in the Life Masters Pairs event at the recent Summer North American Championships held in Washington, D.C. Follow the proceedings and decide whether anyone is at fault in the bidding or play and, if so, who. Remember the game is duplicate and overtricks, or undertricks, are crucial.

The auction was certainly normal. Once South could bid voluntarily at the two-level, North had more than enough strength and trump support to venture game. There are no charges for the bidding.

A low spade was led to the king and ace. Declarer played three rounds of clubs, discarding a spade from dummy, then ruffed a spade. The king of hearts was ducked by East and the trump continuation went to the ace.

East, Henry Bethe of New York, found the killing defense—he returned a diamond. Declarer could not get off the table without allowing West to ruff the third diamond, so the defenders collected two tricks. What's your verdict?

It is not easy to spot, but declarer could have made 12 tricks. Before leading the second heart, declarer should have cashed the ace and king of diamonds. If a defender were to ruff, declarer would be no worse off than with the adopted line. As the cards lie, East has only spades left on winning the ace of hearts. Declarer can ruff the spade return, draw the outstanding trump and score a third diamond for a second overtrick.

Congratulations to East on fine defense and to any of our readers who charged declarer with a miscue.

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Work is likely to require extra travel or longer hours. Look for opportunities to combine business with pleasure. Determination helps you turn a potential defeat into a victory. Early in 1994, your efforts attract the attention of a power broker. Love may turn your head next spring. If married, work at strengthening your relationship. A desire to have children grows stronger.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Bob Newhart, cartoonist Cathy Guisewite, Sen. John Danforth, actress Carol Lawrence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are sending out powerful vibrations of friendship, at home and elsewhere. You will reap both material and spiritual satisfaction through sharing. Romance heats up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Household chores may not leave much time for play. Even if you cannot get away, you can relax in the comfort of your home. Give offspring quality time. Listen to their concerns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A practical financial agreement can be negotiated today. Make certain you insist on terms that meet your needs. Household details can be handled with dispatch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do as much listening as talking now. Attending an evening social event could prove lucky. You get a rare bargain or prize. Seek professional help if still wrestling with a childhood fear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone you respect may offer to do you a favor. This is an excellent sign. Be certain to show how much you appreciate the support. Steer the love boat into tranquil waters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Looking at other people's achievements may cause you to devalue your own. Realize that you, too, have the resources and assistance to reach your objectives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your ideals will be tested now. Stand up for your beliefs no matter what the consequences. Your determination and dedication will carry you to new heights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today's events underline the importance of good communication within the family circle. A sibling needs a favor. Accept the fact that you are more dependent on someone than you like to admit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New social options make this an exciting day. A telephone call brings welcome news. Eliminate the distractions that rob you of time alone with your mate. Protect your privacy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An alliance is vulnerable today. Sensitive issues may surface, with money being the most troublesome. Self-control on your part can turn things around. Dress to impress if going out this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Teamwork produces wonderful benefits now. Someone you meet in a public setting introduces you to potential allies. The time is right to seek a loan or credit.

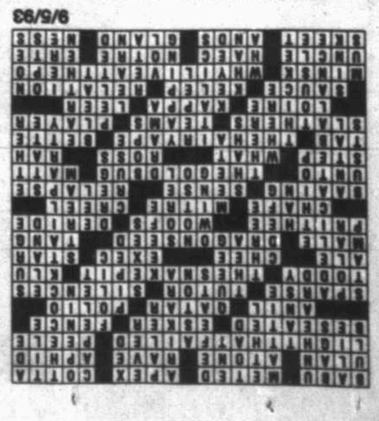

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stop worrying about things you cannot change and concentrate on the good things in life. New friends will brighten your social life. Romance is part of the picture. Play a waiting game.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are talented, efficient and practical. They believe in doing things right and can be hard on those who take a haphazard approach. They dream a lot but are unlikely to get carried away by their fantasies.

John Woodhouse, the youngest son of John James Audubon, assisted his father in the study and drawings of birds and animals and participated in the elder Audubon's publications. Paintings by the father and son are not oftne seen in exhibitions, since the majority are owned by the New York Historical Society which purchased them from the elder Audubon's widow.

The painting "Texan Red Wolf" is loaned for this exhibition through the courtesy of Texas Commerce Bank.

The exhibition, "Audubon: Texas Critters," features 22 prints from Audubon's two monumental publications, "The Birds of America" and "The Vivaparous Quadrupeds of North America." The exhibition focuses on birds and animals seen in Texas whether residing here or passing through.

Also on display are pictorial calendars covering a span of 100 years. These calendars remain at the museum through Oct. 17 in the exhibition "People's Art, 1889-1989."

Gallery 1114 features new selection of fine arts

Gallery 1114 reopens with a gala reception Saturday featuring a Mariachi band, south of the border food and a new selection of fine arts from local and regional artists.

In the exhibit, "Terra Escondido," artist Patricia Cowan Harris will be exhibiting two and three dimensional art based on geologic ideas and inspiration.

"For 15 years, I have devoted myself primarily to the science of geology and to creating art," the artist said. "It is no surprise, therefore, to see my love of one vital aspect of my life reflected in another, equally vital, aspect of my life. My art gleams of rocks, water, ice, mineral facets and symmetries."

Ms. Harris studied for seven years at the Czimbalmos Private art School, Stanten Island, NY, and has won numerous awards in the Permian Basin area. A geologist at Chevron, she incorporates her multi-dimensional perceptions of the earth through translating geologic cross-sections and features into colorful, impressionistic interpretations in oil and acrylic medium.

"The earth is multi-dimensional," Ms. Harris said. "I incorporate this aspect in my two dimensional canvases and three dimensional sculptural paintings."

Also new at Gallery 1114 are ceramic work by San Angelo artists Charlotte Rufenacht and Roger Allen and Midland artist Janet Whitman. Jo Dufo Designs features a new selection of silk-screened and hand-painted clothing. New pieces of Ann Dick jewelry are also available.

Gallery 1114 is a contemporary artists cooperative located at 1114 N. Big Spring St. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday and by appointment. For an appointment call 685-9944.

Underwater dancers make big splash

N.Y. Times News Service

Dancers don't have an easy life. Bleeding feet, endless rehearsals, skimpy meals and short careers are part of the profession. Now they can add seasickness and drowning to the list of occupational hazards.

Underwater dance is gaining a toehold in the world of performance art. Its champion is Celine Lafreniere, a dancer and former synchronized swimmer from Montreal who decided to meld art with athletics and formed H3O Underwater Dance Co. in 1984.

Lafreniere had just completed her master's degree in physical education at the University of Montreal. ("It was easier to find pools in physical education departments than in dance departments," she explains.)

For the past nine years, Lafreniere, with H30 partners Marie Gauthier and Daniel Godbout, has been developing the process, exploring and improvising dance in the weightlessness of water, and using videotape as the "spectator" medium.

Lafreniere is in Seattle this month collaborating on a series of underwater workshops with Raoul Beacom.

Working Together to Build a West Texas-Chihuahua Connection

By Jeffrey McDonald

Perhaps no other part of Mexico has exercised greater influence on the history and culture of the southwestern United States, than the state of Chihuahua. It's a relationship that may grow stronger in the future.

Chihuahua is of one of the six states that form Mexico's northern border with the United States of America. The capital of the state of Chihuahua is Chihuahua City. But equally well known is the city of Juarez, which lies just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas.

Chihuahua City was founded in 1707, and for many years it was the embarkation point for Spanish exploration and conquest of the northern frontiers of New Spain, through what would later become West Texas, and New Mexico. To this day, many Mexicans who come to the southwestern United States to work, and to live, come through the state of Chihuahua.

The population of Chihuahua City was estimated at 375,000 in 1984, though it has certainly grown since then. It is the home of the University of Chihuahua, and contains many points of interest for tourists. In recent years, it has also become the site of 'maquiladora' industries, in addition to the traditional textile, mining, and cattle industries.

The Continental Divide passes through nearly the entire length of the state, north to south. In many ways, the areas of mountain ranges and high desert country which can be found in Chihuahua strongly resemble the 'Big Bend' country of Texas.

Interest in Mexico in general, and in the state of Chihuahua in particular, has been growing in recent years in several West Texas communities. Business and government leaders on both sides of the border are looking to their neighbors across the river for new sources of economic opportunity.

"Well, the city of Chihuahua has a relatively large population base, and the potential is there for a good deal of trade with that area. There are about 60 maquiladora plants in Chihuahua City," explained Tom Stinson, Economic Development Manager for the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "They are centrally located in Mexico. And as trade develops with Mexico - with or without NAFTA - then Chihuahua City will be very important as far as the West Texas area is concerned. Because a lot of the goods that come to Mexico, and from Mexico to the United States, will have the potential for going through this area."

It was with this in mind that Stinson and other business and government leaders from Midland and Odessa, travelled to Chihuahua.

"As a matter of fact, we were on a trade mission down there just recently, with some of the manufacturers from both communities, and with the mayors from both communities,

Trabajando Juntos El Oeste de Tejas y Chihuahua

Por Jeffrey McDonald

Tal vez no hay otra parte en México que haya ejercitado una influencia superior en la historia y cultura del sudoeste de los Estados Unidos, que el Estado de Chihuahua. Es una relación que debe crecer y fortalecerse en el futuro.

Chihuahua es uno de los seis Estados que forman el Norte de la frontera con los Estados Unidos de América. La capital del Estado de Chihuahua es la Ciudad de Chihuahua. Pero equitativamente bien conocida es Ciudad Juárez, la cual se sitúa a las orillas del Río Grande con El Paso, Tejas.

La Ciudad de Chihuahua fue fundada en el año de 1707, y por muchos años fue el punto de embarcación para las exploraciones Españolas y conquista de las fronteras septentrionales de la Nueva España, por lo que mas tarde vendría siendo el Oeste de Tejas, y Nuevo México. En estos días, muchos de los Mexicanos que vienen al sudoeste de los Estados Unidos a trabajar, y a vivir, vienen del Estado de Chihuahua.

Se estima que la población del Estado de Chihuahua fue de 375,000 habitantes en 1984, sin embargo a crecido considerablemente desde ese entonces. Es la casa de la Universidad de Chihuahua, y contiene muchos puntos de interés para los turistas. Recientemente se a convertido en sitio para la industria de las 'Maquiladoras', adicionalmente a la tradición textilera, minas, y la industria ganadera.

La División Continental avanza por medio de la entera porción del Estado, de Norte a Sur. De mucha maneras, las areas montañosas y deserticas las cuales se pueden encontrar en Chihuahua fuertemente se asemeja al 'Big Bend' de Tejas.

Interés general en México, y en particular en el Estado de Chihuahua, a crecido en los recientes años en algunas comunidades del Oeste de Tejas. Líderes de negocios y del gobierno en ambos lados de la frontera están viendo a sus vecinos del otro lado del río para nuevas fuentes de oportunidades económicas.

"Bueno, la Ciudad de Chihuahua relativamente tiene una población base bastante grande, y el potencial esta allí para una nueva negociación de intercambio con esa área. Hay cerca de 60 plantas maquiladoras en la Ciudad de Chihuahua," explica Tom Stinson, Director de Desarrollo Económico de la Cámara de Comercio de Midland. "Ellos están localizados centralmente en México. Y mientras el intercambio comercial se sigue desarrollando - con o sin NAFTA - la Ciudad de Chihuahua será sumamente importante tanto o como el Oeste de Tejas este interesado en esa área. Porque muchos de sus productos que vienen a México, y de México a los Estados Unidos, tendrán el potencial para que pasen por esta área."

Fue con este propósito que Stinson y otras personas de negocios y del gobierno de Midland y de Odessa, viajaron a la Ciudad de Chihuahua.

"Tanto que, nosotros estuvimos en una misión de intercambio hace poco, con algunos fabricantes de ambas comunidades, y con los alcaldes de ambas comunidades y con representantes de las Cámaras de Comercio de ambas comunidades," dice Stinson. "Visitamos algunas de las instalaciones de negocios Chihuahuenses, y ellos fueron muy gentiles y muy receptivos al potencial del intercambio con el área de Midland-Odessa. Nosotros esperamos una visita recíproca del

INS Scam Exposes Immigration Reform Failure

By Raymond Rodriguez

The latest Immigration and Naturalization Service sting operation in San Diego received considerable news coverage and widespread criticism. The INS sent 600 letters to immigrants offering them work permits. Of the 60 who responded, none received permits and 43 were deported.

While much of the criticism was deserved, the INS faces an impossible task. The growing flood of illegals from nearly every corner of the world has taxed its capabilities to the utmost. Its latest scheme or sting operation is simply an admission that it cannot handle the job assigned to it.

That is not entirely the INS, fault. For years, the agency has been allowed to languish in mired ambiguity. The need for adequate funding, professional training, increased personnel and proper equipment has been largely ignored. Its fortunes depended on the political winds or whim of various administrations. The reason is simple: the United States has never had a clear policy regarding immigration, refugees, amnesty or asylum.

From time to time the nation has attempted to deal with these problems on a piecemeal basis. Often it has reacted to social, economic or political pressures designed to protect or favor ranchers, industrialists, service industries and users of seasonal labor. Immigration policy has frequently been shaped to ensure a dependable pool of cheap foreign labor from a variety of sources.

The United States has historically been a labor poor nation. This accounts: in large measure for the importation of African workers as slaves, the teams sent to Europe to encourage workers to immigrate, welcoming the Irish forced here by famine, and the importation of Chinese labor. When immigration from Europe receded sharply after the turn of the century, recruiters found a ready pool of exploitable labor south of the border.

Such a policy of convenience amounts to having no policy at all. It is applied or interpreted based on the labor needs of the moment. Even today, scientists, skilled craftsmen or artisans receive special dispensation to encourage them to immigrate. Athletes of every stripe are welcomed with open arms, especially if their defection will embarrass a country with whom we are at odds.

In fact, the key words to gain immediate entry are "political asylum." The status of the nation the refugees come from has a decisive influence on whether or not they will be allowed to remain. That is readily seen in the disparate manner refugees from the Middle East, Haiti, Central America or China are treated. Obviously, no sensible policy exists.

"Immigration control" is little more than a sham. It is beyond the scope of any agency to delineate and enforce the hodgepodge of immigration regulations in a sensible and humane, let alone timely, manner. Unless we are willing to give the INS the trained personnel, modern equipment and professional leadership it needs to do its job in a competent manner, abuses like the latest sting operation will continue.

Whenever frustration reaches the level that prevails in the INS and its enforcement arm, the Border Patrol, we can expect to read about incidents involving beatings,

El Escamoteo del Servicio de Inmigracion Revela el Fracaso de la Reforma de la Inmigracion

Por Raymond Rodriguez

La operación más reciente de escamoteo del Servicio de Inmigración y Naturalización en San Diego recibió una información considerable por parte de los medios de comunicación y criticas muy extendidas. El Servicio de Inmigración envió 600 cartas a inmigrantes ofreciéndoles permisos de trabajo. De los 60 que contestaron, ninguno recibió permiso y 43 fueron deportados.

Aunque gran parte de la critica era merecida, el Servicio de Inmigración se enfrenta a una tarea imposible. La marea cada vez mayor de inmigrantes ilegales procedentes de casi todos los rincones del mundo ha estirado su capacidad hasta lo increible. Su último complot de escamoteo es sencillamente un reconocimiento de que no puede manejar la tarea que se le ha asignado.

Eso no es completamente culpa del Servicio de Inmigración. Durante años, a esa dependencia se le ha permitido languidecer en una ambigüedad enmarañada. La necesidad de financiamiento adecuado, adiestramiento profesional, aumento de personal y equipo suficiente ha sido pasada por alto en gran medida. Su suerte ha dependido de los vientos politicos o del capricho de los diversos gobiernos.

La razón es sencilla: Los Estados Unidos nunca han tenido un curso de acción claro en lo que respecta a la inmigración, los refugiados, la amnistia o el asilo.

De tiempo en tiempo, la nación ha tratado de enfrentarse a estos problemas por pedacitos. A menudo ha reaccionado a las presiones sociales, económicas o politicas destinadas a proteger o favorecer a los rancheros, a los industriales, a las industrias de servicios y a los usuarios de la mano de obra estacional. Los cursos de acción en materia de inmigración han sido conformados a menudo para asegurar una cantera confiable de mano de obra extranjera barata desde una diversidad de fuentes.

Los Estados Unidos han sido históricamente una nación escasa de mano de obra. Esto explica en gran medida la importación de trabajadores Africanos

Hispanic Business.... is Good Business

By Jeffrey McDonald

Except — maybe — for the bumper sticker, perhaps no one item does a better job of displaying a person's personality than the t-shirt. It can tell others about your school, your attitude, your vacation, your sense of humor, and many other things.

For Ruben and Polly Vargas, the owners of Trendy T's, success has meant matching the style and the message on the shirt with the customer, and finding the right fit.

"A person can get a blank t-shirt, or one that is decorated with almost any design from a large selection," explained Ruben. "We offer screen printing, lettering, transfers, and monograms on caps, t-shirts, and other items. One of the most popular t-shirts is one that says, 'I'm Talking and I Can't Shut Up!'"

Natives of Lamesa, and graduates of Lamesa High School, Ruben and Polly are both enthusiastic entrepreneurs.

"It was better than chopping and picking cotton," explained Ruben.

They first went into business for themselves in 1979, selling computer portraits on t-shirts in county fairs and shopping malls. Four years ago, they decided to establish a business in a fixed location, in Midland Park Mall.

"We prefer a permanent location in the mall because of good customer traffic all year round," explained Ruben. "Besides, it's hard moving around so much, and the boys need us at home."

Both sons, Victor and Ruben, Jr., have helped in the shop at one time. The Midland location was successful, and in 1992, they expanded and opened a shop in Odessa's Permian Mall.

It is Polly who actually runs both stores, which have seven employees.

"Besides going to market and apparel shows, I order merchandise, sell, promote, hire personnel, pay the bills," she explained, adding that the long hours are compensated by the feeling she enjoys, being her own boss. "The hours are long and hard, but it feels good to know that you built something yourself."

In 1991, Polly was honored as Businesswoman of the Year, by the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to his work at the shops, Ruben also teaches marketing at Midland High School, sharing the first-hand knowledge that he and Polly have gained after years in the business world.

"I feel that I am a good marketing teacher because I practice what I teach everyday, with real people, real money, real merchandise in the real world," said Ruben, who earned a degree in marketing from, Angelo State University, and a master's degree in mid-management from UT-Permian Basin. "I have something very real to tell my students every day. It's great being able to do both, teaching marketing and owning your own business."

It's a satisfaction that Polly also feels, and one she strives to share with their employees and, most important of all, their customers.

"Your reputation is at stake all the time. We must continue to give good customer service and sell quality merchandise all the time," Polly explained. All the employees are taught to do that, and to take great pride in good workmanship."

"Whether a customer wants a single letter on a cap, a religious transfer on a t-shirt, or a hundred aprons for the Menudo Cookoff, that customer deserves the very best. Trendy T's does that!"

Negocio Hispano... es Buen Negocio

A menos que - y tal vez - que el engomado en el parachoques de su automóvil, quizás ningún otro articulo hace mejor trabajo de exposición de personalidad de alguien que la publicidad en una camiseta (T-shirt). Puede informar a otros acerca de su escuela, actitud, sus vacaciones, su sentido del humor, y muchas otras cosas.

Para Ruben y Polly Vargas, dueños de Trendy T'S, éxito quiere decir igualar los estilos y los mensajes en las camisetas con el cliente, y encontrar la talla y el gusto apropiado para cada cual.

"El cliente encontrara desde una camiseta en blanco, sencilla sin nada hasta una de esas decoradas con casi cualquier diseño de una gran variedad," explica Ruben." Nosotros ofrecemos, impresos por medio de pantalla, inscripciones con letras, transferencias, y monogramas en cachuchas, camisetas y otros artículos. Una de las mas populares, es una que dice, "Estoy hablando y no me puedo callar!"

Nativos de Lamesa, y graduados de la escuela Secundaria Lamesa, ambos son personas entusiastas en su negocio.

"Es mejor que trabajar como tajador y pizcador de algodón," explica Ruben.

Ellos establecieron su negocio en 1979, vendiendo retratos por computadora impresos en las camisetas y lo hacían en las ferias y en los centros comerciales. Pero hace cuatro anos ellos decidieron establecer su propio negocio en un lugar fijo, y fue en el Centro Comercial Midland Park Mall.

"Nosotros decidimos un lugar permanente en este centro comercial por la razón que el trafico del buen cliente lo tiene uno cautivo todo el año, explica Ruben. "Además es muy difícil estar cambiándose de un lugar a otro todo el tiempo, y nuestros hijos nos necesitan en el hogar.."

Ambos hijos, Victor y Ruben, Jr. han ayudado alguna vez en el negocio. La localización en Midland a sido un éxito, y en 1992 ellos se extendieron y abrieron otra tienda en el Centro Comercial de Odessa Permian Mall.

Es Polly la que actualmente maneja y administra ambas tiendas, en las cuales tiene siete empleados.

"Mas aparte de asistir a las exhibiciones de mercadotecnia y moda, ordena la mercancía, vende, promueve, emplea al personal, paga las cuentas," ella explica, añadiendo que las largas horas de trabajo son recompensadas con lo que le redituan los negocios, siendo ella misma la patrona. "Las horas de trabajo son largas y pesadas pero se siente muy bonito saber que uno construyo algo para el bienestar propio y de otros.

En 1991, Polly fue honrada y nombrada la Mujer de Negocios del Ano, por la Cámara de Comercio Hispana de Midland.

Adicionalmente a su trabajo desarrollado en sus tiendas, Ruben también enseña mercadotecnia en la escuela Secundaria Midland, compartiendo los principales conocimientos que el y Polly han aprendido durante todos estos anos en el mundo de los negocios.

"Pienso que soy un buen maestro en este ramo porque todos los días practico lo que enseño, con gente genuina, dinero verdadero, mercancía real, en un mundo auténtico," dice Ruben, quien obtuvo su titulo en mercadotecnia de la Universidad Angelo State, y su maestría en administración de empresas en la Universidad UT - Permian Basin.

"Tengo algo real y verdadero que decirles a mis estudiantes todos los días. Es grato hacer ambas cosas, enseñar mercadotecnia, y ser uno mismo su propio patrón.

Es una satisfacción que Polly siente, y que se esfuerza en compartir con sus empleados y lo mas importante de todo, compartir esto con sus clientes.

"Su reputación esta en juegos todos los días. Nosotros debemos de continuar ofreciendo un buen servicio, y vender mercancía de calidad," Polly explica. Todos los empleado son lo bastante competentes para hacer el trabajo, y están bien orgullosos de este como lo desarrollan."

"Ya sea que el cliente quiera solamente una sola letra en una cachucha o todo un escrito religioso en su camiseta, o cientos de delantales para el Menudo Cookoff, siempre será el mismo servicio y calidad, el cliente merece lo mejor. Y Trendys T's se lo ofrece.

Reforma de la Inmigracion

como esclavos, los grupos enviados a Europa para animar a los trabajadores a inmigrar, el dar la bienvenida a los irlandeses obligados a emigrar por el hambre y la importación de mano de obra china.

Cuando la inmigración procedente de Europa disminuyó agudamente después de la vuelta del siglo, los reclutadores hallaron una cantera lista con mano de obra explotable al sur de la frontera.

Tal politica de conveniencia equivale a no tener ningún curso de acción. Se aplica o se interore.ta basándose sobre las necesidades de mano de obra del momento. Aún hoy, los cientificos, los trabajadores hábiles o los artesanos reciben dispensas especiales para alentarlos a venir. Se da la bienvenida a los atletas de todas clases con los brazos abiertos, especialmente si sus deserciones abochornarón a una nación con la cual estemos en desacuerdo.

En verdad, las palabras claves para obtener entrada inmediata son "asilo politico." La situación de la nación de procedencia de los refugiados tiene una influencia decisiva sobre si se les permitirá o no quedarse. Eso se ve en seguida en el modo disparatado de tratar a los refugiados del Medio Oriente, Haiti, la América Central o China. Evidentemente, no existe un curso de acción sensible.

"El control de la inmigración" es poco más que una farsa. Se halla más allá del control de cualquier dependencia el delinear o hacer cumplir la mezcolanza de reglamentos de inmigración de manera sensible y humana, sin contar lo oportuno. A menos que estemos dispuestos a dar al Servicio de Inmigración y Naturalización el personal adiestrado, el equipo moderno y la dirigencia profesional que necesita para hacer su trabajo de modo competente, continuarán los abusos como la operación de escamoteo más reciente.

Siempre. que la desilusión alcanza al nivel que prevalece en el Servicio de Inmigración y su rama para la ejecución de la ley, la Patrulla Fronteriza, podemos esperar la lectura de incidentes que involucren golpizas, tiroteos y operaciones de escamoteo.

Ninguna cantidad de dinero, mano de obra o equipo será suficiente para hacer cumplir un curso de acción ilusorio. La misión del Servicio de Inmigración y Naturalización debe ser claramente establecida y definida por el Congreso.

El Congreso dejó de hacer eso cuando promulgó la Ley de Reforma y Control de la Inmigración de 1986. Esta vez debe hacer acopio del valor necesario para resistir las presiones de los grupos que procuran privilegios especiales o de los que buscan la promulgación de medidas punitivas.

Los Estados Unidos deben evaluar a su propia situación en lo tocante a la inmigración y elaborar un plan maestro coordinado a fin de hacer frente al asunto. Sólo entonces el Servicio de Inmigración y Naturalización será capaz de realizar su trabajo legal y eficazmente.

No amount of money, manpower or equipment will suffice to enforce a "will-o'-the-wisp" policy. The INS, charge must be clearly established and defined by Congress. Congress failed to do that when it enacted the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act. This time it must muster the courage to resist pressure from groups seeking special privilege or those seeking the enactment of punitive measures.

The United States must assess its own situation regarding inxnigration and involve a coordinated master plan to deal with the issue. Only then will the INS be able to perform its job legally and effectively.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Texas TB cases increase

Texas has seen an increase in tuberculosis cases in recent years. The increase is expected to continue, in part because the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention revised its definition of AIDS in January 1993 to include tuberculosis. With HIV/AIDS, the chances of developing tuberculosis are greater.

Aumentan los casos de TB en Texas

En años recientes, Texas ha visto un aumento en el número de casos de tuberculosis. Se supone que el número de casos aumentará más, en parte por el hecho de que el Centro Para el Control de las Enfermedades ha incluído desde enero 1993 a la SIDA en su definición de tuberculosis. Con la SIDA, los chances de contraer el tuberculosis son mayores.

What is 'Las Manos'?

By Jeffrey McDonald

Now is a good time to learn about Las Manos, and their activities in support of Midland's Museum of the Southwest, because it's one of their busiest times of the year.

"Our purpose is to be the 'helping hand' of the museum, to support and promote fundraising and educational activities for the museum," said Jami Owen," Vice President of Las Manos. "We do that through a Student Art Festival that is held in conjunction with all the schools in Midland. That's held in the April-May time frame."

"Then the big event, that we've sponsored for the past 23 years, is Septemberfest. Those are basically our two big events, though we also have special endeavors, like the redesign of the museum's newsletter."

It is with the assistance of volunteers like Las Manos, that the Museum of the Southwest has become so much more that 'just' an art museum.

"The wonderful thing about this particular museum, is that we have several different buildings, not just the Turner mansion," said Owen. We also have a wonderful facility in the Children's Museum. And we have a new Director, a Curator of Education."

"And then there's the Planetarium. I think it's one of the unsung heroes of that whole museum complex. It's a marvelous facility, and it holds 110 people."

It is the educational and entertainment opportunities for children, provided by the Children's Museum and the Planetarium, of which Owen is particularly proud. In fact, children are an important reason that Owen, who is herself a parent, first became involved with Las Manos.

"Well, I'll tell you. For me, it's the children. It's important to have a place that I can take them to, and expose them to wonderful things. And I don't want that to stop," said Owen. "I don't want the museum to say, 'Well, there's no funding.' And the funding dries up, and all of a sudden there's just nothing there anymore, and we've lost a wonderful opportunity for our children."

"So really, I guess I do it for my children. Maybe, in some small way, I help preserve what is already there. And hopefully, I'll help to enhance and further expand the programs, and the exhibits, and that sort of thing. So by the time they're in school, going through the museum programs, it will still be there."

One way in which Owen and other members of Las Manos work to make sure the museum will always be there, is Septemberfest, which takes place September tenth through the twelfth, on the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest, in Midland.

"This year's event will have seventy artists from the Southwest. We'll have continuous entertainment on two stages. Music, dancers, tumblers, a marching band, lots of clowns," said Owen, who is Chairman of this year's event. "We'll also have the (Midland Community Theater) Summer Mummers there. And we'll have Kinderfest, of course, with over twenty activities for kids to participate in."

"Food concessions? We have lots of people coming in, and their sales benefit not only the Museum of the Southwest, but also a local non-profit organization."

According to Owen, Septemberfest not only provides an opportunity to enjoy fine arts and handcrafts, but also to meet the actual artists, and get a jump on the holiday gift-giving.

"A great place to start Christmas shopping. You find the different, the unusual, the hand-made," she explained, adding that the range of arts and handcrafts will include painting, printing, photography, woodworking, metalworking, and jewelry. "And that's the thing I like to stress about the show. It is a requirement that everything is done by hand. That it is a unique, one-of-a-kind item."

"The artist has to attend. That's one of the requirements, that they don't send a representative. So the people can stop and talk to them, and find out how they do something. Or if you want a customized type of item, it's very easy when you talk directly to the artist."

Septemberfest 1993 begins with a preview party Friday night, September tenth, from 7:00 to 11:00 pm. Admission to the party is $37.50 per person, and includes a catered dinner, open bar, entertainment, and a silent auction. Septemberfest itself is open 10:00 am till 10:00 pm on Saturday, the eleventh, and 12:00 noon till 5:00 pm on Sunday.

Admission on those two days is $4.00 for adults, and $1.00 for children 3-17. Children under 3 are free. This admission price includes all activities throughout the museum grounds, including a Saturday night karioke contest, and the laser light show, which will be shown every half-hour in the planetarium.

And while you're there, you might ask Jami Owen about joining Las Manos. As busy as she's liable to be, she always has time to meet people who share her commitment to the community, and it's children.

"We would love to have everyone who is interested in art, education, community service, those sort of things, become a member of Los Manos," she said. "It's a fun group!"

For more information about Las Manos, and Septemberfest 1993, you can call the Museum of the Southwest, in Midland, at 683-2882.

Que es "Las Manos"

Por Jeffrey McDonald

Ahora es un buen momento para conocer acerca de "Las Manos," y sus actividades en el apoyo del Museo del Sudoeste de Midland, porque en este momento del año es uno de los mas ocupados.

"Nuestro propósito es de ser la 'Mano que Ayuda' al Museo, para apoyar y promover fondos y actividades educacionales por el museo," dice Jami Owen," Vice Presidente de Las Manos. "Nosotros hacemos esto a través de un Festival de Arte para Estudiantes que es celebrado en conjunto con todas las escuelas en Midland. Y es celebrado en los meses de Abril-Mayo."

Luego el gran evento, que nosotros hemos patrocinado los últimos 23 años, es el Festival en Septiembre (Septemberfest). Estos dos son básicamente nuestros dos grandes eventos, sin embargo nosotros tenemos ocupaciones muy especiales, como rediseñar las letras del museo."

Es con la ayuda de los voluntarios como "Las Manos," que el Museo del Sudoeste a sido mas que un 'simple' museo de arte.

Lo mas maravilloso de este museo tan particular, es que nosotros tenemos varios edificios, no solamente la mansión Turner," dice Owen. Tenemos ademas unas maravillosas instalaciones en el Museo de Niños, y tenemos a un nuevo Director, un Guardián de la Educación."

"Y luego ahí esta el Planetarium. Pienso que es uno de los desaparecidos héroes de todo ese museo. Son unas instalaciones fabulosas, y tienen un cupo para 110 personas."

Son las oportunidades de educación y entretenimiento para los niños, proveidos por el Museo de Niños y el Planetarium, de los cuales Owen esta particularmente orgullosa. En realidad, los niños son la principal razón para que Owen, quien es Madre de familia, primeramente se involucro con Las Manos.

"Bueno, les digo. Para mi, son los niños. Es importante de tener un lugar a donde los pueda llevar, y exponerles cosas maravillosas. Y no quiero que hagan un alto a eso," dice Owen. No quiero que el museo diga, "Bueno, no hay fondos." Y que los fondos desaparezcan o se esfumen, y que de repente no haya nada, y nosotros perdamos una maravillosa oportunidad para los niños."

"Entonces realmente, pienso que lo estoy haciendo por mis hijos. Tal vez, de una manera pequeña, ayudo a preservar lo que ahorita esta allí. Y llena de esperanzas, ayudaré para aumentar en valor y mas adelante aumentar los programas, y exhibiciones, y toda clase de cosas. Así es que, para el tiempo que ellos estén en la escuela, llendo a los programas del museo, estarán todavía ahí."

Uno de los caminos que Owen y otros miembros de Las Manos trabajan para estar seguros que el museo esté siempre, es tiempo del Festival (Septemberfest), el cual toma lugar del diez al doce de Septiembre, en los terrenos del Museo del Sudoeste (Museum of the Southwest), en Midland.

"El evento de este año tendrá setenta artistas del sudoeste. Tendremos entretenimiento continuamente en dos escenarios. Música, bailarines, volatineros, banda marchante, muchos payasos," dice Owen, quien es la Directora del evento de este año. "Tendremos también la (Teatro de la Comunidad de Midland) Mojiganga del Verano (Summer Mummers). Tendremos el Festival para niños de Kinder (Kinderfest), claro, que con mas de veinticinco actividades para que los niños participen."

"La concesión de alimentos? Tenemos a mucha gente que a venido a solicitar, y los beneficios que se obtengan no solamente son para el Museo del Sudoeste, sino también para las organizaciones de beneficencia locales."

De acuerdo con Owen, el Septemberfest no solamente provee una oportunidad para gozar del arte fino y arte manual, pero también para conocer a los artistas actuales, y dar un salto para el premio que se da en este día de fiesta.

"Un lugar muy bueno para comenzar las compras de Navidad. Usted encontrara lo diferente, lo unusual, lo hecho a mano," ella explica, agregando que la extensión del arte y arte manual incluye pinturas, imprenta, fotografía, trabajos a madera, trabajos con metales, y joyería. "Estas son las cosas que quiero manifestarles sobre este espectáculo. Es un requisito que todo lo que se exhiba sea hecho a mano. Esto lo hace único, un objetivo único en su estilo."

"El artista tiene que estar presente. Es uno de los requisitos, que ellos no manden un representante. Para que la gente se pare y hable con ellos, y que se den cuenta como ellos hicieron algo , que a la gente le llame la atención. O si usted quiere un diseño propio, es mas fácil que usted hable directamente con el artista."

Presidente Municipal de la Ciudad de Chihuahua, probablemente a finales del mes de Septiembre."

David Díaz, Vice Presidente de la Cámara de Comercio Hispana, fue también parte de la delegación del Oeste de Tejas. La visita fue posible, en parte, por la ayuda del Cónsul José Luis Suárez, del Consulado Mexicano en Midland.

"Nosotros fuimos parte de la delegación que viajo a Chihuahua, para comenzar una relación," dice Díaz. "Y esperemos que en un futuro no muy lejano se convierta en una relación de 'Ciudades Hermanas', Midland y la Ciudad de Chihuahua, para tratar y promover negocios entre las dos ciudades."

Visitas de la frontera y hacia la frontera, entre representantes de los dos paises, han tomado lugar en Odessa. Hasta cierto punto, ambas ciudades han juntado esfuerzos muy agresivos para desarrollar intercambio entre México y el Oeste de Tejas.

"Nosotros participamos en la misión de intercambio con la Ciudad de Chihuahua, y tuvimos visitantes de Ciudad Juárez en el mes de Julio," dice José Molina, Presidente de la Red Radiodifusora México Americana de Odessa. "Estuvieron para extendernos una invitación, para participar en la Expo, la cual ellos van a tener este mes."

"Hemos tenido invitaciones de varias organizaciones de México, invitándonos a sus expos y sus reuniones. De la cuales hemos podido asistir a algunas y a otras no a sido posible."

Cámara Mexicana o Hispana, tal como Mano, también han usado sus conexiones con organizaciones, tales como la Asociación Tejana de la Cámara de Comercio México-Americana, para aumentar en valor las relaciones con los negocios Mexicanos.

"TAMACC tuvo su convención en El Paso recientemente," dice Molina. Nosotros participamos en esta con el propósito de difundir la noticia con los representantes de los negocios Mexicanos que estuvieron presentes, en El Paso, como parte de la convención."

Tal vez el punto mas importante en la reciente convención de TAMACC, fue NAFTA, el Tratado de Libre Comercio de Norte América. Muchos en el Oeste de Tejas ven el pasaje de NAFTA - el cual esta bajo negociaciones por parte de los representantes del gobierno de Canadá, Estados Unidos y México - así como la oportunidad en acelerar la oportunidad de relación en el desarrollo entre Chihuahua y el Oeste de Tejas.

"Vemos el acuerdo ya ratificado como una oportunidad para aumentar en valor no solamente relación de intercambio comercial entre Tejas y México," dice Neil McDonald, Director de Desarrollo Económico de la Cámara de Comercio de Odessa, "pero también de proveer bodegas/transporte/empaquetado/centro de procesos en el área de Odessa/Midland, por nuestra proximidad a México como un área Metropolitana."

"Nosotros de principio a fin apoyamos," dice Díaz de la Cámara de Comercio Hispana de Midland. "Nosotros estamos bajo el paraguas de TAMACC, y TAMACC esta cien por ciento apoyando esto."

Pero no todo el apoyo por NAFTA es entusiasmo. Ahí están esos que cuestionan el tramo de tiempo que tiene que pasar antes de que los beneficios de NAFTA se sientan, mientras otros cuestionan si ira a ver algunos beneficios.

"Generalmente hablando, el tratado del libre comercio será benéfico para la economía de la comunidad," dice Abraham Torres, Presidente de la Cámara de Comercio Hispana de Odessa. "Pero será a largo plazo, no necesariamente a corto plazo. Habrá reemplazo de trabajos, y habrá cuestionamiento del ajuste a ese reemplazo. Estoy hablando estrictamente acerca de Odessa. No estoy hablando acerca del resto del país."

"Nosotros no sufriremos tanto como otras partes del país, otras partes de los Estados Unidos. Como base el petróleo y gas, que es lo que somos, continuaremos operando sin ninguna interrupción. Tal vez halla alguna actividad en el área de la exportación de petróleo relacionada con los servicios a México.

Pero Torres es rápido en agregar que el tiempo involucrado en este tratado esta mas lejos de lo que nosotros suponemos.

"Se a hablado mucho acerca de la 'Conexión', la conexión norte llendo a través de Presidio y Alpine - Highway 67, creo que así se llama, es un proyecto a largo plazo que tomara, pienso que, diez años."

Pero tal vez eso sea muy pronto para esos, que como D. L. Wilson, quien cree que mayores flujos en NAFTA debieran ser corregidos antes que el acuerdo sea ratificado.

"Como usted sabe, nosotros hemos estado muy opuestos a los acuerdos de NAFTA," dice Wilson, quien es el Presidente de la Central de Unión Laboral del Permian Basin, la cual representa la AFL-CIO. "Uno de los problemas es que el movimiento laboral Americano nunca a tenido realmente ninguna entrada de la gente que va a afectar."

La extensión de esa afectación será variable, dependiendo sobre la fuente citada. Wilson indica que, bajo el tratado del libre comercio, tantos como 410,000 empleos son vulnerable únicamente en el Estado de Tejas. Nacionalmente hablando, se estima tantos como 7 millones de empleos en los Estados Unidos serán vulnerables a este tratado.

Wilson también teme que el tratado tendrá un efecto que deteriorara sobre las condiciones laborales en los Estados Unidos, condiciones que la organización laboral a peleado animadamente por mas de 100 años.

"Pienso que creara una terrible desventaja para los trabajadores de los Estados Unidos. Creara un sistema terrible de injusta competencia entre los niveles salariales," dice Wilson. "Estamos tomando niveles altos económicos, y estamos combinando con la economía de México, donde los salarios varían desde 63 centavos para los de las maquiladoras a $1.84 promedio salarial en México - comparado en cualquier parte de los Estados Unidos de $9.00 a $16.00. Así es que esta envuelto un nivel salarial desproporcionado, hablando de la inquietud de la parte trabajadora."

Wilson sugiere que las economías como la de México se 'armen' antes que se unan a tales tratados como los de NAFTA. Es esta la política, el señala, la que nosotros usamos en Europa.

"Usted vera, todos vana relucir las observaciones acerca del Mercado Económico Europeo," el dice. "Pero usted sabe que es lo que hicieron ellos? En paises como España, y Portugal, y otros, lo que ellos hicieron fue que armaron una economía para esos paises antes de que ellos se unieran."

El último resultado del Tratado del Libre Comercio de Norte América, y la forma final que este tratado tomara, esta todavía en debate. Pero con o sin NAFTA, la conexión del Oeste de Tejas con Chihuahua permanecerá, y crecerá, tal y como lo a hecho por cerca de 400 años.

Something for Everyone at the Howard County Fair

By Amarante Cordova

A sure sign that summer is coming to an end, and that autumn is just around the corner, is the county fair, an annual event in communities throughout West Texas.

The Howard County Fair, a tradition of family fun and entertainment for more than thirty years, takes place Monday, September sixth, through Saturday, September eleventh, at the Howard County Fairgrounds and Rodeo Bowl, on the west side of Big Spring.

Advance preparations for the fair are already underway, according to Tom Koger, the President of this year's fair. The schedule of entertainment, for example, is already in place.

"Of course, we will have the Gene Ledell Carnival there all week. On Saturday night (the eleventh) we will have Dude Mallory, who is a recording star, and he will be performing in the Rodeo Bowl," said Koger. "On Friday night, the entertainment will be Tejano music. On Thursday night, a group called Turning Point will be playing the music of the sixties and the seventies. And on Wednesday night, it's Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys."

"On Saturday night, there will be an extra charge for the concert. All the others, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, all the other entertainment will be free, included in the charge to get into the fair."

Admission to the Howard County Fair is $3.00 for adults, and $1.00 for children six to eleven years of age. Children under six years of age get into the fair for free. Senior citizens receive a $1.00 discount on admission.

Once inside, fair visitors will enjoy a wide variety of informative and entertaining attractions. Koger and his staff have been working hard to develop this variety, which they feel is important to the success of the fair.

"It really is. And we do make a real effort to have a program that will appeal to everyone," said Koger. "Of course, no one thing is going to appeal to absolutely everybody, so we hope to have something in there that will be of interest to somebody."

This includes the Howard County Fair Queen Pageant, which takes place Monday night. Contestants in the pageant will come from throughout Howard County, and any adjacent county.

Another attraction is the Battle of the Cheerleaders, which takes place Tuesday night. It's an event that is rapidly becoming one of the most popular at the fair.

"We have cheerleader groups all the way from 'pee-wees' right up through high school. And I understand that it is growing every year," explained Koger. "I know, in the past, we've had some from as far away as Roby, and Roscoe, and I understand that Sweetwater will be here this year. So it's turned into a real big event for us, and we always look forward to that."

Of course, there will also be plenty of the events and activities that you associate with a county fair. The livestock competition, for example.

"All our livestock shows are junior livestock. The steers will start coming in Thursday (the ninth) and the judging will begin Friday night and continue through Saturday," said Koger. "Rules being what they are, the kids cannot miss school. So rather than string it out over the week, we try to do it all Friday night and Saturday."

Food will be another important part of the fair's attractions, including one competitive event that will have a different flavor - literally - each day.

"We will have a different food category each day, that will be judged. For instance, Monday is Cake Day," explained Koger. Tuesday is Pie Day, Wednesday is Bread Day, Thursday is Cookie Day, and Friday is Decorated Cake & Candy Day. So we will be having a competition in different types of baked goods each day."

Other attractions include arts and crafts, a petting zoo, an antique tractor display, and plenty of daytime activities for local schoolchildren. There is literally something for everyone, and fair organizers expect approximately 25,000 visitors to this year's event.

The 1993 Howard County Fair opens at 12:00 noon on Monday, September sixth, and closes at 10:00 pm. On Tuesday through Friday, the seventh through the tenth, the fair opens at 4:00 pm, and closes at 10:00 pm. On Saturday, the eleventh, gates open at 10:00 am, and close at 10:00 pm. The fair will be held at the Howard County Fairgrounds and Rodeo Bowl, west of Big Spring.

"Please come out to the Howard County Fair. We'd love to have you," said Koger. "Pick the night or the act that you'd enjoy the most. Come and enjoy a good time!"

Algo Para Todos en la Feria del Condado Howard

Por Amarante Cordova

Es de seguro que la señal del final del verano a llegado, y que el otoño esta a la vuelta de la esquina, es la feria del condado, el evento anual en las comunidades por todo el Oeste de Tejas.

La Feria del Condado Howard, una tradición de mas de treinta años con diversión y entretenimiento familiar, tomara lugar el Lunes, 6 de Septiembre, hasta el Sábado, 11 de Septiembre, en Howard County Fairgrounds y Rodeo Bowl, en el lado Oeste de Big Spring.

Todas las preparaciones para la feria están tomando su camino, de acuerdo con Tom Koger, quien es el presidente de la feria este año. Por ejemplo, el programa y horarios del entretenimiento, ya esta listo.

"Claro que sí, tendremos toda la semana el Carnaval de Gene Ledell. El Sábado por la noche (día once) nosotros tendremos a Dude Mallory, quien es una estrella, y estará actuando en el Rodeo Bowl," dice Koger. "El Viernes por la noche, el entretenimiento será de música Tejana. El Jueves por la noche, un conjunto llamado Turning Point amenizara con música de los años sesentas y setentas. Y el Miércoles por la noche, es el turno para Jody Nix y sus Texas Cowboys."

En la noche del Sábado, habrá un cobro adicional para el concierto. Todos los demás días, Miércoles, Jueves, y Viernes serán absolutamente gratis, incluyendo la entrada a la Feria, así como la entrada a los espectáculos.

El costo de admisión será de $3.00 por adulto al Howard County Fair, y $1.00 para niños de seis a once años de edad. Niños menores de seis años entran gratis a la feria. Ciudadanos Mayores de Edad recibirán un dólar de descuento por entrar a la feria.

Una vez dentro, los visitantes a la feria disfrutaran de la extensa variedad de atracción informativa y entretenimiento que hay. Koger y su personal han estado trabajando arduamente para desarrollar esta variedad de diversiones, las cuales ellos sienten que son importantes para el éxito de la feria.

" Realmente es importante. Y nosotros hemos hecho un gran esfuerzo para tener un programa que interese a todos los que vayan," dice Koger. Por supuesto, que no solamente una cosa va a interesar a todos, así es que esperemos tener algo que le interese a alguien."

Esto incluye la Presentación de la Reina del Howard County Fair, que tomara lugar el Lunes por la noche. Las concursantes para reinas vendrán de todas partes del Condado Howard, y lugares adyacentes al condado.

Otra atracción es la Batalla de las Muchachas Animadoras (Cheerleaders), que tomara lugar el Martes por la noche. Es un evento que rápidamente se a convertido en uno de los mas populares de la feria.

"Tendremos grupos de estas Muchachas Animadoras desde 'pee-wees' hasta las de escuelas Secundarias. Y tengo entendido que esta creciendo el número de grupos cada año," explica Koger. "Se, que en el pasado, tuvimos algunos de estos grupos los mas lejos que vinieron fueron de Roby, y Roscoe, y entiendo que Sweetwater estará aquí este año. Así es que se esta convirtiendo realmente en un gran evento para nosotros, y nosotros lo veremos siempre así, hacia adelante."

Claro que habrá bastantes eventos y actividades que usted asociara con la feria del condado. Por ejemplo, la competencia de la ganadería.

"Todo el espectáculo ganadero será tipo 'Junior'. El ganado comenzara a llegar el Jueves (nueve) y el la competencia empezara el Viernes por la noche y continuara hasta el Sábado," dice Koger. "Los reglamentos de la feria están establecidos, los chicos y chicas no podrán faltar a la escuela por ninguna circunstancia. Así es que en lugar de hacer todo durante la semana, nosotros tratamos de hacer todo el Viernes por la noche y el Sábado."

La comida es otra de las partes importantes del atractivo de la feria, incluyendo un evento competitivo que tendrá un sabor diferente-literario-cada día.

"Tendremos diferentes categorías de comidas cada día, las cuales serán calificadas. Por ejemplo, el Lunes será competencia del mejor Bizcocho o Torta (cake)," explica Koger. El Martes es día del mejor Pastel (pie), Miércoles es el día para el mejor Pan, el Jueves es el día de la mejor Galleta, y el Viernes es el día del Bizcocho o Torta mejor Decorado y también del

The Adventures of Maria Guadalupe Torres in Maquilaland

By Paul E. Brink

"I always wanted to work for a U.S. company because I had an idea such companies would have good working conditions. But once I started, the dreams were far from reality."

Maria Guadalupe Torres, an organizer of women working in the mostly U.S.-owned assembly plants just across the Mexico-U.S. border, devotes herself to making those dreams a reality.

Born in 1944, Torres was raised in the shacks of railroad families for whom her mother worked as a domestic. Her father died when she was an infant. After finishing the third grade at age 10, she helped her mother clean houses and look after children.

Mother and daughter crossed the border at Brownsville, Texas, in 1960. Both became live-in domestic workers. Torres, first job was as a nanny, earning $8 a week.

They worked in Brownsville or nearby Harlingen until Maria Guadalupe was in her mid-20s. At that point, she located a job in a pottery factory in the Mexican border city of Matamoros. When she started it, she was told she would not be paid for the first week because she was "in training."

Torres confronted the owner on the behalf of herself and other workers. He relented, conceding their "right" to be paid. Maria Guadalupe Torres had won her first labor victory.

She began working in a "maquiladora" (assembly plant) in 1969. The company was Kemet, owned by Union Carbide. Her job involved washing capacitor bodies, bare-handed, in methylene chloride, a volatile solvent that has been linked to birth defects, cancer and liver damage. Sometimes, to little avail, she raised questions about federal labor laws covering health and safety equipment and training.

In 1981, Torres attended a meeting held by the American Friends Service ConKnittee,s Border Project, which organizes and trains women maquiladora workers about their rights under Mexican labor law. She has been an organizer ever since. Six years ago, she quit her job at Kemet to begin organizing full time.

U.S. corporations portray the explosion of maquiladoras as a roaring success for Mexico's impoverished labor force. Torres' view contrasts sharply. Maquiladoras, she points out, serve as a magnet to draw thousands of workers .. mostly young women — from Mexico's interior, with the unregulated growth of the plants placing tremendous burdens on the limited infrastructures of border towns.

Few of the mostly U.S.-owned companies operating more than 2,000 maquiladora plants follow Mexico's excellent labor, health and safety laws. Maria Guadalupe describes working conditions as reminiscent of U.S. factories in the 19th century.

"It's not enough for the maquiladoras to come to Mexico to exploit cheap labor," she says. "They are ruining the environment and making the women workers sick, particularly with reproductive problems." She tells of women breathing solder fumes without knowing that lead can cause birth defects. Warning labels are only in English.

These foreign-owned facilities, she is convinced, have no commitment to the health and welfare of the Mexican work force: "The day I see that the plants are really cleaning up the contamination and pollution, I'll believe they are going to do something."

In the last 14 years, some 10,000 women in six Mexican border cities have joined the work of the AFSC's Border Project. They have formed their own organization, the Border Committee of Women Workers. With the help of full-time organizers like Torres, workers in some plants have had scores of small but significant victories. They have recovered overtime pay, substantially improved their working conditions and decreased intimidation and mistreatment by supervisors.

"For me to learn of Mexican labor law was like opening a window," Torres says. She makes it clear that the women are not trying to close plants .. they desperately need the jobs. They want only to protect their health and that of their children and communities and to maintain something as fundamental as their dignity.

The Mexican government needs to enforce its labor and environmental laws. But large responsibility lies with U.S. companies that have abandoned workers and communities in such cities as Buffalo, Detroit, Los Angeles and Raleigh. U.S. multinationals reap profits at the expense of workers in both the United States and Mexico.

Torres has met with several U.S. congressional delegations investigating abuses by maquiladora manufacturers. She has taken representatives on tours, graphically dramatizing the need for workers, health, safety and wage protections in the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement.

The question remains whether NAFTA will recognize and protect the dignity, health and future of young Mexican women. Maria Guadalupe Torres continues her work toward that goal.

Las Aventuras de Maria Guadalupe Torres en Maquilalandia

Por Paul E. Brink

"Siempre quise trabajar para una empresa estadounidense porque tenia la idea de que tales compañias tienen buenas condiciones de trabajo. Pero una vez que empecé, los sueños estaban lejos de la realidad."

Maria Guadalupe Torres, organizadora de mujeres que trabajan en las plantas de ensamblaje primordialmente de la propiedad de estadounidenses, inmediatamente junto a la frontera entre México y los Estados Unidos, se dedica a hacer realidad esos sueños.

Nacida en 1944, Maria fué criada en los tugurios de las familias ferrocarrileras para quienes su madre trabajaba como sirvienta. Su padre murió cuando ella era una niñita. Después de terminar el tercer grado, a la edad de 10 años, ella ayudó a su madre a limpiar casas y cuidar niños.

Madre e hija atravesaron la frontera por Brownsville, Texas, en 1960. Ambas se convirtieron en trabajadoras domésticas que vivian en las casas donde trabajaban. El primer trabajo de Maria fué como niñera, ganando ocho dólares a la semana.

Ellas trabajaron en Brownsville o la cercana Harlingen hasta que Maria Guadalupe estuvo alrededor de los 25 años de edad. En ese punto, ella localizó un empleo en una fábrica de cerámica en la ciudad Mexicana fronteriza de Matamoros. Cuando empezó en el mismo, se le dijo que no se le pagaria la primera semana porque estaba "en adiestramiento."

Maria se enfrentó con el propietario en nombre de ella misma y de otras trabajadoras. El retrocedió, aceptando el "derecho" de ellas a que se les pagara.

Maria Guadalupe Torres habia ganado su primera victoria laboral.

Ella empezó a trabajar en una "maquiladora" (planta de ensamblaje) en 1969. La empresa era Kemet, propiedad de Union Carbide. Su trabajo involucraba lavar los cuerpos de los capacitores, a mano limpia, en cloruro de metileno, un solvente volátil que ha sido relacionado con los defectos de nacimiento, el cáncer y el daño al higado. Algunas veces, con pocos resultados, ella planteaba preguntas respecto de las leyes federales del trabajo que se referian a la salud, el equipo de seguridad y el adiestramiento.

En 1981, ella asistió a una reunión efectuada por el Proyecto de la Frontera del American Friends Service Committee, (AFSC en inglés) que organiza y adiestra a trabajadoras de las maquiladoras sobre sus derechos bajo las leyes laborales Mexicanas. Ella ha sido una organizadora desde entonces. Hace seis años, ella renunció a su empleo en Kemet para empezar a organizar a tiempo completo.

Las empresas estadounidenses pintan a la explosión de las maquiladoras como un triunfo rugiente para la fuerza de trabajo empobrecida de México.

Pero el punto de vista de Maria contrasta agudamente. Las maquiladoras, señala ella, sirven como imanes para atraer a miles de trabajadores — primordialmente mujeres jóvenes — del interior de México, y el crecimiento no reglamentado de las plantas sitía cargas tremendas sobre las infraestructuras limitadas de las ciudades fronterizas.

Pocas de entre las empresas de propiedad estadounidense que administran más de 2,000 plantas maquiladoras cumplen las leyes Mexicanas excelentes sobre el trabajo, la salud y la seguridad. Maria Guadalupe describe las condiciones de trabajo como que recuerdan las fábricas de los Estados Unidos en el siglo XIX. "No es suficiente el que las maquiladoras vengan a México a explotar la mano de obra barata," dice ella. "Están arruinando el ambiente y haciendo que las trabajadoras se enfermen, especialmente con problemas reproductivos." Ella cuenta de mujeres que aspiran vapores de soldadura sin saber que el plomo puede ocasionar defectos de nacimiento. Las etiquetas de advertencia están solamente en inglés.

Ella está convencida de que estas instalaciones de prociedad extranjera no tienen dedicación a la salud y el bienestar de la fuerza de trabajo Mexicana. "El día en que yo vea que las plantas están realmente limpiando la contaminación y la infección, creeré que van a hacer algo."

En los últimos 14 años, cerca de 10,000 mujeres en seis ciudades fronterizas Mexicanas se han unido al trabajo del Proyecto Fronterizo del AFSC. Ellas han formado su propia organización, el Comité Fronterizo de Trabajadoras. Con la ayuda de organizadoras de tiempo completo como Maria, las trabajadoras de algunas plantas han tenido decenas de pequeñas victorias, pero importantes. Han recibido paga por tiempo extra, han mejorado considerablemente sus condiciones de trabajo y han disminuido la intimidación y el maltrato por parte de los supervisores.

"Mi aprendizaje de la ley laboral Mexicana fué como abrir una ventana," dice ella. Y aclara que las mujeres no están tratando de cerrar las plantas — ellas necesitan los empleos desesperadamente. Sólo quieren proteger su salud y la de sus hijos y sus comunidades, y mantener algo tan fundamental como su dignidad.

El gobierno Mexicano necesita hacer cumplir sus leyes laborales y ambientales. Pero la gran responsabilidad reside en las empresas estadounidenses que han abandonado a los trabajadores y las comunidades en ciudades tales como Buffalo! Detroit, Los Angeles y Raleigh. Las empresas estadounidenses multinacionales obtienen utilidades a expensas de los trabajadores, tanto en los Estados Unidos como en México.

Maria Guadalupe Torres se ha reunido con varias delegaciones congresionales estadounidenses que investigan los abusos de las fábricas maquiladoras. Ella ha llevado a los representantes en viajes guiados, dramatizando gráficamente la necesidad de proteger la salud, la seguridad y los jornales de los trabajadores en el propuesto Tratado Norte-Americano de Libre Comercio (NAFTA en inglés).

La pregunta continúa que si NAFTA reconocerá y protegerá la dignidad, la salud y el futuro de las mujeres Mexicanas jóvenes. Maria Guadalupe Torres continúa su trabajo hacia esa meta.

West Texas-Chihuahua Connection

and with representatives of the chambers from both communities," said Stinson. "We toured some of the business facilities down there, and they were very gracious and very receptive to the potential for trade with the Midland-Odessa area. We expect a reciprocal visit from the Mayor of part of September."

David Diaz, Vice President of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, was also a part of the West Texas delegation. The visit was made possible, in part, through the assistance of Consul José-Luis Suarez, of the Mexican Consulate's Midland office.

"We were part of the delegation that travelled to Chihuahua, to begin relationships," said Diaz. "And hopefully to further establish a 'sister-city' relationship with Chihuahua City, to try and promote business between the two cities."

Visits back and forth across the border, between representatives of the two countries, have also been taking place in Odessa. In fact, both cities have joined in aggressive efforts to develop trade between Mexico and West Texas.

"We did participate in the trade mission to Chihuahua City, and we had some visitors that came by Odessa-Midland in July, from Ciudad Juarez," said Jose Molina, President of the Mexican American Network of Odessa. "they were here to extend an invitation to us, to participate in their Expo, which they are having this month."

"We've had invitations from various organizations in Mexico, inviting us to their expos and their meetings. Some of which we've been able to participate in, and some we haven't."

Hispanic or Mexican chambers, such as MANO, have also been using their connections with 'umbrella' organizations, such as the Texas Association of Mexican American Chambers of Commerce, to enhance their relations with Mexican business.

"TAMACC had their convention in El Paso just recently," said Molina. And we participated in that in order to network with the Mexican business representatives that were there, in El Paso, as part of the convention."

Perhaps the most popular topic at the recent TAMACC convention, was NAFTA, the North American Free Trade Agreement. Many in west Texas see the passage of NAFTA - which is still under negotiation by government representatives of Canada, the United States, and Mexico - as a chance to accelerate the relations that are already developing between Chihuahua and West Texas.

an opportunity to enhance not only trade relations between Texas and Mexico," said Neil McDonald, Director of Economic Development for the Odessa Chamber of Commerce, "but also to provide a processing center in the Odessa-Midland area, because of our proximity to Mexico as a metropolitan area."

"We fully, wholeheartedly support it," said MHCC's Diaz. "We are under the umbrella of TAMACC, and TAMACC is also in full support of it."

But not all support for NAFTA is that enthusiastic. There are those who question the length of time that will pass before the benefits of NAFTA are felt, while others question whether there will be any benefits at all.

"Generally speaking, the agreement itself is going to be economically positive for our community," said Abraham Torres, President of the Odessa Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. "But it will be on the long term, not necessarily the short term. There will be job displacement, and there will be a question of the adjustment. And I'm talking strictly about Odessa. I'm not talking about the rest of the country."

"We will not suffer as much as other parts of the country, other parts of the United States. As an oil and gas base, which we are, we will continue to operate without interruption. There may be a pickup of activity in the area of exporting oilfield related services to Mexico."

But Torres is quick to add that the time frame involved may be longer than others anticipate.

"There's a lot of talk about 'the connection', the north connection going through Presidio and Alpine - Highway 67, I think it's called" he said. "But that, to me, is a very long term issue that will not come about, I don't think, for the next ten years."

But even that may be too soon for those, like D.L. Wilson, who believe that major flaws in NAFTA must be corrected before the agreement is ratified.

"As you know, we've been very opposed to the NAFTA agreement," said Wilson, who is President of the Permian Basin Central Labor Union, which represents the AFL-CIO. "One of our problems is that the American labor movement has never really had has been no input from the people that it's going to effect."

The extent of that effect will vary, depending upon the source cited. Wilson's source indicates that, under the Trade Agreement, as many as 410,000 jobs are vulnerable in the state of Texas alone. Nationwide, as many as 7-million jobs in the United States are going to be vulnerable.

Wilson also fears that the agreement could have a deteriorating effect upon the working conditions in the United States, conditions that organized labor has fought to encourage for more than 100 years.

"I think it will create a terrible disadvantage to workers in the United States. It will create a terrible system of unfair competition between wage levels," said Wilson. "We're taking a high-level economy, and we're merging with the economy in Mexico, where the wages vary from 63¢ for the maquiladora, up to the $1.84 average wage in Mexico - compared to anywhere from $9.00 to $16.00 in the United States. So there's a disproportionate level of wages involved, as far as working people are concerned."

Wilson suggests that economies such as Mexico's be 'built up' before they join into such an agreement as NAFTA. It is this policy, he points out, that was used in Europe.

"You see, everyone has glowing remarks about the European Economic Market," he said. "But do you know what they did over there? In countries like Spain, and Portugal, and others, what they did was they built the economies of those countries up before they actually merged."

The ultimate outcome of the North American Free Trade Agreement, and the final form that agreement will take, is still being debated. But with or without NAFTA, the West Texas-Chihuahua connection will remain, and grow, as it has for nearly 400 years.

Education – Opened a Whole New World for Luis Morton

By Amarante Cordova

The academic community of West Texas was to play an important role in the career of Luis Morton, a career that crossed the state of Texas, and would cover a variety of pioneering achievements.

"I came to Odessa College, to teach government, in 1955," recalled Morton, who spoke by telephone from his home in Killeen, Texas. "It was a good place to be, a good place to teach."

Morton would become the first Hispanic professor at Odessa College. At that time, Odessa College was one of the few institutions of it's type in this part of the state. It served not only the city of Odessa, and Ector County, but cities and counties around the area. For thousands of West Texas youngsters, many of whom were the first generation of their family to attend college, this was their first experience with higher education.

A native of Laredo, Texas, Morton received his bachelor's degree from the University of Houston. He then attended Saint Mary's College, in San Antonio, where he received his law degree. After that, he returned to the University of Houston, where he received his graduate degree.

It was these credentials that Morton brought to West Texas, when he joined the faculty of Odessa College. Over the years, in addition to his duties as a teacher, he would hold a number of administrative positions with the college, including the office of Director of Admissions.

Luis M. Morton

His experience taught Morton two things. First, there were the skills necessary to administer an institution of higher education, skills that he would use when he left Odessa College in 1975, to become President of Central Texas College, in Killeen.

"It was new. They hadn't finished building the school yet" he said, adding that, once again, his achievement was a pioneering one. "I can't be completely certain, but I may have been the first Hispanic college president in the United States. But there may have been someone else, like in California. I was certainly the first Hispanic college president in Texas."

It was the beginning of another long and successful association with an institution of higher education. After his retirement from Central Texas College, Morton remained in Killeen with his wife, where he continues to live to this day.

Whether it was as a student, or as a teacher, as an administrator, or a citizen and leader of the academic community, Morton has studied the education process from a variety of perspectives. And he has come to know, first-hand the opportunities that become available with an education. It's a lesson he learned early, during his childhood in Laredo. And it's a lesson he is always willing to share with young people today.

"Well, all I can say is something my mother always said when I was child. And that is, an education can open up a whole new world. I know that's what it did for me."

La Educación – Abrió Las Puertas de un Nuevo Mundo Para Luis Morton

Por Amarante Cordova

La comunidad académica del Oeste de Tejas a jugado un papel importante en la carrera de Luis Morton, una carrera que cruza el Estado de Tejas, y cubrirá una variedad de hechos notables de los pioneros.

Vine al Colegio de Odessa, para enseñar gobierno, en 1955," recuerda Morton, quien hablo vía telefónica desde su casa en Killen, Tejas. "Fue un buen sitio para estar, un buen sitio para enseñar."

Morton fue el primer profesor Hispano en el Colegio de Odessa. En aquel entonces, el Colegio de Odessa era una de las pocas instituciones de su tipo en esta parte del Estado. No solamente sirvio para la ciudad de Odessa, y al Condado Ector, pero a ciudades y condados alrededor del área. Para miles de muchachos del Oeste de Tejas, muchos de los cuales eran la primera generación de sus familias que asistían al colegio, esta fue la primera experiencia con educación elevada.

Nativo de Laredo, Tejas, Morton recibió su titulo de la Universidad de Houston. Luego asistió al Colegio de Saint Mary's, en San Antonio, donde recibió su titulo en leyes. Después de eso, el regreso a la Universidad de Houston, donde el recibió su titulo de graduante.

Estas fueron las credenciales que Morton trajo al Oeste de Tejas, cuando el se unio a la facultad del Colegio de Odessa. Sobre los años, adicionalmente a sus tareas como maestro, el a sostenido numerosos puestos administrativos con el colegio, incluyendo la oficina como Director de Admisiones.

Sus experiencias le enseñaron dos cosas. Primero, tener la habilidad o destreza necesaria para administrar una institución de alta educación, destreza que el uso cuando el dejo el Colegio de Odessa en 1975, para ser Presidente del Colegio Central de Tejas, en Killen.

"Fue algo nuevo. Ellos todavía no terminaban de construir la escuela" el dice, añadiendo a eso, una vez mas, su realización fue pionera. "No puedo estar del todo seguro, pero tal vez fui el primer Hispano como Presidente de colegio en los Estados Unidos. Pero a lo mejor hubo alguien antes que yo fuera, como por ejemplo en California. Pero en el Estado de Tejas, de seguro que fui el primer Hispano como presidente de colegio."

Fue el comienzo de otra larga y éxitosa asociación con una institución de alto nivel educativo. Después de su retiro del Colegio Central de Tejas, Morton se quedo en Kileen con su esposa, donde el sigue viviendo hasta ahorita.

Si como un estudiante, o como un maestro, como un administrador, o un ciudadano, y como líder de la comunidad académica, Morton a estudiado el proceso de educación desde una variedad de perspectivas. Y el a venido a saber, en primer plano las oportunidades que están disponibles con la educación. Es una lección que aprendió desde el principio, durante su niñez en Laredo. Y es una lección que el siempre esta dispuesto en compartir ahora con la gente joven.

"Bueno, todo lo que tengo que decir es algo que mi madre siempre me decía cuando era solo un niño. Y era que, la educación puede abrir las puertas de un nuevo mundo. Se que eso fue lo que hizo por mi."

Health Tips

HOUSTON — Taking the children out for a "quick bite" does not mean forsaking good nutrition, says a nutritionist at the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center.

"Parents can help their children make wise choices, be it fast foods or more traditional fare," said Dr. Corinne Montandon, an assistant professor of nutrition at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Although many fast food restaurants are notorious for foods high in fat, salt, and empty calories, Montandon believes parents can steer their youngsters to more nutritious offerings.

Instead of a cheeseburger and fries, she suggests a grilled chicken sandwich or broiled lean meat hamburger. Add lettuce and tomato but hold the high fat toppings such as bacon, mayonnaise and special sauce, she said.

To round out the meal, choose low fat milk or juice, and as a grand finale, treat the crew to low fat frozen yogurt or animal cookies rather than a fried pastry, she added.

Pizza and Mexican food are also popular with the young set.

If the clan opts for pizza, Montandon recommends a thin crust version topped with ground beef or mushrooms, green peppers and other vegetables instead of high fat toppings like sausage and pepperoni. Some places even offer part skim milk cheese.

The best bet for Mexican includes dishes made from soft corn tortillas instead of fried or flour tortillas. Chicken fajitas, rice and green salads — not to be confused with high-fat taco salads are also healthy choices. For dessert, Montandon recommends flan instead of sopapillas. If possible, forego the premeal chips, she added.

At cafeterias, Montandon urges parents to pass on the fried dishes and help their children select broiled meats, grilled fish, baked chicken and steamed vegetables. Young children tend to enjoy moist foods so parents might consider casseroles, meat loaf, baked salmon croquettes or macaroni and cheese.

Even though gelatin and whipped cream parfaits, pies and cakes look inviting, remember, they are loaded with sugar and fat. Fruit salads are a healthier choice.

Montandon encourages parents to look past the "child's menu."

"Restaurants tend to load their 'kid's corner' with high fat foods such as corn dogs, fish sticks, french fries, and chicken nuggets," she said. The list of appetizers may offer better selections as well as small portions. Parents can even ask for an "extra" plate and share their meal with young children.

Montandon urges parents to keep their family's overall eating habits in mind when dining out.

"Fast foods in moderation will not sabotage an otherwise healthy diet," she said. "If parents teach their children to enjoy a variety of foods, they will be able to make wise food selections and enjoy a lifetime of healthy eating."

Aviso de Salud

HOUSTON — Durante el verano los niños juegan más y asi necesitan más bocaditos que proporcionan mucha energia' dice una nutricionista del Centro de Investigación de la Nutrición de los Niños del Departamento de Agricultura.

"Los padres pueden reforzar los buenos hábitos de comer al ofrecerle a sus niños una variedad de bocaditos saludables," dice la Dra. Corinne Montandon, una profesora de nutrición en el Baylor College of Medicine en Houston.

Si consideran cuáles bocaditos deben de seleccionar, Montandon cree que los padres pueden satisfacer los requisitos dietéticos de sus niños al miśmo tiempo que comunican un mensaje nutricional positivo.

En vez de llenar la cocina de papas fritas, tortas, sodas y otras comidas de conveniencia, ella recomienda los siguientes bocados para el verano:

- yogurt helado bajo en grasa
- fruta y jugo fresco
- tajadas de naranja o banana y uvas heladas. (Las uvas y otras comidas pequeñas no deben ofrecerse a los niños menores de 5 años porque pueden atorarse.)

-batidos de leche hechos oon leche baja en grasa o jugo de fruta
-porciones pequeñas de vegetales crudas frescas
-pedazos de apio con relleno de manteca de cacahuate
-queso blanco bajo en grasa
-pizzas pequeñas
-pedazos de fruta o queso envuelto en una tajada de carne fria
-paletas de fruta natural helada galletas hechas de granos enteros, galletas tipo "graham" o galletas en forma de animales ("animal crackers").

-cereales sin azúcar o ligeramente azucaradas

Montandon sugiere que se fije una lista de selecciones de bocados en la puerta de la refrigerador o indicar un lugar especial en el refrigerador o la mesa de la cocina donde se pueden encontrar.

De modo que se puedan alcanzar fácilmente, Montandon recomienda que se coloquen los bocados en estantes accesibles, que se usen bebidas de una sola porcion' y que se almacenen las comidas en envases de plástico que se pueden abrir fácilmente.

Montandon también recomienda que los padres discutan las horas apropiadas para comer los bocados.

"Para evitar que los bocados interfieran con las comidas regulares, se deben servir de una o dos horas antes o despues de una comida grande," dijo Montandon.

La mayoria de los niños necesitan tres comidas y tal vez dos bocados para satisfacer sus requisitos nutritivos diarios.

Community Interests attract local to MHCC

Charlene Romero Wurtz

By Amarante Cordova

Becoming more involved in her community, in order to learn more about it, and serve it better, led one Midland woman to become an active leader of the Hispanic community in West Texas.

"Midland has always been important to me. And when I first came here, there was something that I saw, that interested me," recalled Charlene Romero Wurtz. "A lot of it, of course, was that I wanted to know the Hispanic background in this area. I never did get an answer on, 'Yes, we have it,' or, 'No, we don't.' And that's one of the reasons we started NuevaVista, to make sure that we do know, and to let everybody else know that there is a Hispanic community."

It was this interest that led Romero Wurtz, who was then managing Webco Printing, of Midland, to become active with the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. In 1989, John Castro, who was Chairman of the MHCC Board, became a City Councilman. He vacated his position at the Chamber in order to devote more time and energy to his new office, and Romero Wurtz was elected to fill his remaining term, becoming the first woman to serve as Chairman of the Board for the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

"You basically oversee the operations of the whole Chamber," explained Romero Wurtz, describing her duties as Chairman of the Board. "You make sure that each vice-president is taking care of their responsibility, and you oversee all the different committees that are in each area. You get various reports from the city, and from other chambers, and you try to tie-in and work together with them."

After serving the balance of the Castro term, Romero Wurtz would be elected to a second term in her own right, and then a third term. It was a position that carried more than it's share of challenges.

"Well, number one was being accepted. I think, being a woman, you had to prove yourself," said Romero Wurtz. "And I was real fortunate in knowing that a lot of leaders in Midland already felt very confident with the fact that I could go ahead and do it, and represent them well."

"I think another challenge was trying to get the chamber on track on some issues, such as education. I always felt that the challenge of education was not being met, and that we had to improve upon that."

It was a commitment to the youth of Midland that was important, not only to Romero Wurtz the community leader, but also the parent.

"We did several things with the high schools, there were scholarships, and Step Up To Success," she said. "And just being out there, and making sure that the students knew that we were there."

"We had to take care of our future, and our future was our youth. And that, of course, involved education."

In the course of her service as Chairman of the Board, Romero Wurtz would be recognized as 'Volunteer of the Year' by the Volunteer Center of Midland. During her second term as Chairman, the Chamber as a whole was named 'Small Chamber of the Year' by the Texas Association of Mexican American Chambers of Commerce.

"That was a surprise to me," recalled Romero Wurtz. "But being recognized as the outstanding chamber, as a whole, and being the leader of that chamber, was something real rewarding."

But with the awards came the knowledge that people recognized the active role the Hispanic Chamber took in the development of Midland, and the role Romero Wurtz played in directing the Chamber.

"We proved that we were a viable force, and a key player in the area," she said. "And it was good having people associate you with the Chamber, having them reward us, and knowing we were working hard for everybody."

It is a commitment that Romero Wurtz has pursued to 'this day' even after her final term as Chairman of the Board expired. It is a commitment that she and others in the Chamber make, not just to themselves, but to their families, and to the future of their community.

"I wanted to know more about Midland, and I wanted to get involved. I wanted my children to be raised in an area that I knew, and that I was comfortable with," said Romero Wurtz. "And that's exactly what I've come to, is that Midland is my home. I've made it my home, and I want to get involved!"

Ciudadana Local Atrae la Atención a la Comunidad

Por Amarante Cordova

Involucrandose cada vez mas y mas en su comunidad, con el fin de aprender mas acerca de esta, y servirla mejor, dirige a una mujer de Midland para que sea una líder activa de la Comunidad Hispana en el Oeste de Tejas.

"Midland siempre a sido importante para mi. Cuando por primera vez vine aquí, habiá una cosa que yo veía, que me interesé," recuerda Charlene Romero Wurtz. "Mucho de esto, desde luego, fue que yo quería saber los antecedentes de los Hispanos en esta area. A mi nunca se me dio una respuesta al respecto, ni se me dijo 'Si, si los tenemos' o 'No, no los tenemos.' Esta fue la razón que nosotros comenzamos NuevaVista, para estar seguros que nosotros si sabíamos, y para darle a saber a todo el mundo que aquí hay una comunidad Hispana."

Este fue el interés que dirigio a Romero Wurtz, quien estaba en ese entonces administrando Webco Printing, de Midland, para que influyera en una determinación mas activa con la Camara de Comercio Hispana de Midland. En 1989, John Castro, quien era el Presidente del Consejo de la Camara de Comarcio Hispana de Midland, fue nombrado Concejal de la Ciudad. El dejó su posición en la Camara con el proposito de dedicar mas tiempo y energía a su nueva oficina, y Romero Wurtz fue elegida para que ella llenara el resto del plazo que le quedaba a Castro, siendo la primera mujer en servir como Presidenta del Consejo para la Camara de Comercio Hispana de Midland.

"Usted basicamente superentiende las operaciones de toda la Camara," explica Romero Wurtz, describiendo sus deberes como Presidenta del Consejo. "Usted se asegura que cada vice-presidente esta al cuidado de sus responsabilidades, y usted superentiende todos los diferentes comités que hay en cada area. Usted obtiene varios reportes de la ciudad, y de otras Camaras, y usted trata de quedar bien y trabajar junto con ellos."

Despues de servir el resto del período que dejo Castro, Romero Wurtz sería electa un segundo período por su propio derecho, y luego un tercer período. Fue una posición que lleva una carga mas pesada que es parte de los desafíos.

"Bueno, número uno es ser aceptada. Yo pienso que siendo mujer tiene uno primeramente que provarse a si misma," dice Romero Wurtz. "Yo fuí muy afortunada de saber que muchos líderes en Midland ya se sentían lo bastante confiados con el hecho de que yo podía ir hacia adelante y hacerlo, y representarlos de una manera correcta."

"Yo pienso que otro desafío fue de acomodar a la Camara en la posición correcta en algunos casos, tal como el de enseñanza escolar. Yo siempre sentí que el desafío hacia la enseñanza escolar no había una propia existencia y que nosotros teniamos que mejorar sobre eso."

Fue un compromiso a la juventud de Midland muy importante, no solamente para la léder de la comunidad Romero Wurtz, pero también para los padres de familia.

"Nosotros hicimos varias cosas con las Escuelas Secundarias, hubo becas, y Un Paso Hacia el éxito," ella dice. "Y solamente estando allí, y estando segura que los estudiantes supieran que nosotros estabamos allí con ellos."

Nosotros teniamos que cuidar de nuestro futuro, y nuestro futuro es nuestra juventud. Y eso, desde luego que, envuelve a la enseñanza escolar."

En el transcurso de su período sirviendo como Presidenta del Consejo, Romero Wurtz sería reconocida coma la 'Voluntaria del Año, por el Centro de Voluntarios de Midland (Volunteer Center of Midland). Durante su segundo período como Presidenta, la Camara en su totalidad fue nombrada 'La Pequeña Camara del Año' por la Asociacióndе Camaras de Comercio México Americanos de Tejas (TAMACC).

"Esto fue una sorpresa para mí," recuerda Romero Wurtz. "Pero siendo reconocida como una sobresaliente Camara, en su totalidad, y siendo la líder de esa Camara, fue algo realmente muy recompensatorio."

Pero con los premios se obtiene los conocimientos que la gente reconoce en el papel activo la Camara Hispana tomo para el desarrollo de Midland, y el papel que jugo Romero Wurtz en la dirección de la Camara.

"Nosotros provamos que era una fuerza vital y una parte importantisima en el area," ella dice. "Y fue bueno tener a gente asociandola a uno con la Camara, teniendolas a ella recompensandonos, y dandonos a saber que estabamos trabajando duramente para todos ellos."

Es un compromiso que Romero Wurtz a perseguido hasta este momento (ahorita), aun despues del final de su período como Presidenta del Consejo. Es un compromiso que ella y otros en la Camara hicieron, no solamente para ellos mismos, pero que hicieron a sus familias, y para el futuro de la comunidad.

"Yo quería saber mas acerca de Midland, y yo quería estar involucrada. Yo quería que mis hijos crecieran en un area que yo conociera, y en la cual estuviera cómoda ," dice Romero Wurtz. "Y eso es exactamente a lo que vine, es que Midland es mi hogar. Yo la he hecho mi casa, yo quiero estar involucrada!"
