Kidnap victims freed unharmed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hooded Shiite Moslem gunmen kidnapped about 60 Christian employees of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines today but released them unharmed after about two hours, radio stations reported.

The employees were seized by the gunmen as they headed home from work to the Christian sector of Beirut aboard two airline buses, airport sources, who requested anonymity, said.

The sources said the militiamen blocked the buses on the airport highway south of Beirut and forced them to drive into Shiite-inhabited areas on the outskirts of the capital.

A spokesman at the office of Nabih Berri, head of the Shiite Amal militia, told The Associated Press by telephone that Berri had issued orders for the immediate release of all the abducted employees.

The spokesman, who declined to be named, said the abduction was a reaction to kidnappings of Shiite travelers by rightist Christian militiamen of the Phalange Party in Lebanon earlier in the day.

Israeli troops today freed seven Palestinians from Lebanese Christian militiamen who kidnapped them after their release from Ansar detention camp in south Lebanon last week, Israeli military sources said.

The Christians were quoted as saying the Palestinians were terrorists who could not be allowed to go free, but Israeli troops forced them to release the men, who were among some 4,600 Arab prisoners exchanged last week for six Israeli prisoners of war.

The sources said the Palestinians were seized by the Christian troops while traveling north near the town of Jezzine, intending to leave Israeli-controlled territory for their homes in the central Lebanese mountains.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Marine base was shelled twice during the night and one U.S. peacekeeper suffered a concussion when he fell off a bunker, a Marine spokesman said. It was the fourth attack on the Marine base in two days of spordic clashes between Lebanese army troops and anti-government Druse and Shiite Moslem militiamen in Beirut's southern suburbs and hills.

Cancer patient services given

A reminder was offered Tuesday of services available to cancer patients here through the Scurry County board for the American Cancer Society.

The announcement followed Monday's meeting of the board.

The local cancer board is headed by Mike Banta, who offered a special thanks Tuesday to the Martha Ann Study Club, which hosted a Chalupa Supper recently which netted a $419 donation to the cancer society.

In addition, Banta thanked the Harrell and Beck Roping Company, which donated the meat for the supper.

Persons wishing more information regarding the services available for local cancer patients may contact Banta at 573-4041.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The breadwinner's main trouble today is that his family has developed a taste for cake."

Everybody has a family reunion story to tell--especially when it involves inlaws. But, to maintain marital harmony and in order to keep you from turning the page, we'll spare you the suffering.

Instead, imagine a family gathering where it involves a house packed with Texas Aggies. We normally are not too sympathic with the Burnt Orange, but Bill Schiebel is deserving of it when it comes to family get-togethers.

Bill is distribution clerk at the Snyder post office, and a 1941 UT grad. About five years ago he married Martha Zeck, a English teacher at High School. Martha is a TCU grad, but the rest of the family is Aggie all the way. way.

Martha's oldest daughter, Margaret Edwards, is an Aggie and is married to Capt. Bill Edwards who also is an Aggie. Son Paul Zeck and wife Pam are also Aggies. Youngest son, Paul, attended A&M for two years.

During the first half of the UT-Texas A&M ball game, the Aggies were leading and Bill thought about taking a nap. However, the Longhorns came roaring back to maintain their national ranking. Bill is one who contends they should be the nation's No. 1 team.

Like most teasips, Bill is humble. That's why the burnt orange jersey was promimently displayed from his front porch last weekend.

Bill and Margaret live in Columbus, Miss., but Schiebel made sure he used Ma Bell to reach out and put the orange touch on someone.

Did you hear about the freshman Aggie who was home for Thanksgiving. Concerned that he eat well-balanced meals, the Aggie Mom asked if he had been eating anything green.

"Only the bread," he replied.

Birthday observed today for Snyder namesake

(Editor's Note: This story is excerpted from "Deep Creek Merchant, The Story of William Henry "Pete" Snyder," by Charles Anderson. It will be available in December and is a part of the 1984 Historical Commission's Centennial Celebration. All rights are reserved.)

By Charles G. Anderson

William Henry "Pete" Snyder seemed to have a destiny for making history. Much of his story lies buried deeply in the National Archives at Washington, D.C. or the cemetery at Colorado City, where he is buried beside his wife Nellie and her brother, Augustus Fairclough. Some of his life's story can be found in the records of Mitchell and Scurry County, but little is known of his life before he joined the Union Cavalry in Colorado on Sept. 25, 1862.

Pete Snyder was probably named for William Henry Harrison who was a U.S. Senator from Ohio in 1824. Harrison's name was known throughout that region and the nation in 1836, for he was a candidate for President of the United States that year. He lost the election, but ran again and later was elected.

PETE SNYDER

Ohio was the home state for Snyder's parents. It was also the home state for William Clarke Quantrll, the notorious outlaw whose men Snyder would fight against during the Civil War in Kansas.

When Snyder was born on Nov. 29. 1836, his parents had moved to Carbon County, Penn., which is in the anthracite coal region of that state. Life was hard and rugged, and the Snyder family had its share of hardships.

John Harrison Snyder, Pete's older brother, was born on June 20, 1832, while William Henry Harrison was still serving as a senator from Ohio. The family may have taken Sen. Harrison's name for their older son as well.

The Snyder family was well known in the mining town where they lived. There were seven healthy boys with Pete being next to the oldest and Charles Alfred the youngest. Both Pete and Charles fought in the Civil War for the Union, while their brother Tom served with the Confederate Army. Charles served as a drummer boy for the famous Pennsylvania Regiment when he was only 11 years old. By the age of 15, he was back in New York, a veteran of the war, working for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. Pete Snyder stayed out West after his discharge from the Union Cavalry.

As a young boy, Snyder often dreamed of the adventure of the American Western Frontier. Others had been there and had come back with stories of buffalo, Indians and great adventure. The newspapers and magazines ran stories of the great herds of buffalo roaming the plains of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. He dreamed, as many young boys did in those days, that he might be a part of the great Western adventure.

Charles Snyder states that Pete was the adventurous one of the family. The family looked upon him as one who might get himself into trouble someday, as he refused to settle down in the East like most of the other members of the family.

Bithdates were not really important during the early life of Pete Snyder. He always knew that Nov. 29th was the date, but he did not know the exact year of his birth. His early applications for a Civil

Bad blood sold for 5 years

U.S. District Judge H.F. "Hippo" Garcia could sentence him to up to three years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Dratnol, who now lives in Memphis, was one of four company employees indicted after a three-year investigation by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration into allegations that the center was selling bad blood for profit.

Texas Congressman says...

Printed colored bills contemplated

HOUSTON (AP) — Those familiar greenbacks Americans have been carrying for decades will be replaced by pink, blue and other colors of money if federal officials get their way, a Texas Congressman says.

Besides changing the color, Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, said Monday, the bills would carry a metallic strip running vertically next to the picture of the person on the bill to allow authorities to determine whether huge amounts of money are being taken out of the country.

Plans for the new bills were disclosed to him Nov. 3 in a closed meeting which included the Treasurer of the United States, Katherine Ortega, according to Paul. Also attending the session were representatives of the Federal Reserve and the Secret Service, and members of the House subcommittee on coinage and consumer affairs, of which Paul is a member.

"The solution is not to change the color of our money," Paul said at a Houston news conference. "The inflation, the monetary system, as well as the tax system — that's where the problems are."

In Washington, a Treasury spokesman who would comment only if he remained unidentified said any discussion about changing the color of currency was "very, very premature." The motive for any change would be to foil counterfeiters, he said.

"The point to be stressed here is that while a number of options are under review, there have been absolutely no decisions made," he said.

Paul, however, insisted the change, which he said could come as early as 1985, had "something more to it than just counterfeiting.

"It has to do with what the backing is to our money."

Paul, holding up a $1 silver certificate, said he would like to see the U.S. return to the gold standard.

As for the metallic strip, the congressman said it would violate a citizen's freedom to leave the country.

"Americans must have the freedom to travel out of the United States without any restrictions," he said, calling any attempt at restrictions "outrageous and a violation of our rights."

Paul, a four-term congressman from Lake Jackson who is running for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by retiring John Tower, R-Texas, said federal officials who showed him examples of the proposed money would not allow him to keep the bills. So he had an artist draw renderings of the bills, which he unveiled at the news conference.

The drawings were of a blue $10 bill and a pink $1 bill.

"This is an attack on the system and not addressing the real subject and the real problem of what's the matter with our money," he said. "There's something wrong with our money because what we're getting is script. The only thing we have backing our money is debt."

Construction thefts are expensive problems

HOUSTON (AP) — Despite extensive security measures, Houston construction companies are losing more to equipment theives than they did a year ago.

Police statistics show 564 construction thefts in Houston through August, up from 419 last year, when thefts cost companies $2.26 million. FBI figures show Texas led the nation last year with 2,917 pieces of heavy machinery stolen.

Police and contractors are fighting the theft problems with the use of company identification numbers assigned to equipment. Other companies have electronically bugged their equipment..

Tribble & Stephens Co. of Houston connects a cable from an electronic device on earth movers to the construction trailer. When the cable is cut or tripped, an alarm sounds and police are called.

Cutting the power won't help the would-be thief because the devices have backup battery systems.

"You just can't do too much," says Jerry Hall, who's in charge of security for Tribble & Stephens.

Ironically, police say a very good deterrent is a fence with a locked gate. Although it's merely an inconvenience to a thief, it adds time and boosts the chances he'll be caught, says Jim Baylor, executive director of Construction Crime Prevention Services, Inc., an affiliate of the Houston Chapter of Associated General Contractors.

Law enforcement officials say the dilemma they face is that the construction industry feeds the problem by being a customer for the stolen equipment placed on the black market.

Illusion of motion

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 61 years old and have always been in good health, but I am about 30 pounds overweight. About two months ago I discovered that when I was driving my car and came to a complete stop, my car felt like it was still moving. This also happens when I'm in line at the grocery store or at the bank.

I feel as if I'm losing my balance. I had a complete checkup. My ears were all right. The only thing wrong was that I had high blood pressure. I was put on medicine for it and the medicine helped my blood pressure, but I still have this same problem.

I'm scared to death. It is a very strange feeling. Could I have had a slight sroke?

DEAR READER — You do not have to postulate a small stroke to explain your sensation. You are describing vertigo, an illusion of motion. In people under 50, it most often is caused by an ear problem, such as inflammation of the small balance canals in the ear. But in people over 50, it is more likely to be caused by a disorder in the brain.

That disorder can be any of the changes in circulation that can occur. High blood pressure can be a cause of the changes in circulation, or there may be actual changes in the arteries to the brain.

The sensation of motion and balance is affected by nerves that control position sense, your eyes and your ears. But the signals from all of these sources must be relayed to the brain. Here they are integrated to provide an automatic sensation of normal position and motion or lack of motion. If an area in the brain involved in that mechanism is affected by any disorder or even a medicine, it may cause you to have the illusion of motion.

I have explained the mechanisms involved in balance problems in The Health Letter 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Since you evidently have seen an ear specialist, I would recommend that you consult with a neurologist to evaluate any changes that may have occurred in the brain function that causes your symptoms.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been taking birth-control pills for about seven months now, but a couple of days ago I stopped taking them because I want to become pregnant. I would like to know how long I should wait before becoming pregnant. Would there be any danger of becoming pregnant now, so soon after stopping the pill?

DEAR READER — If you get pregnant immediately after stopping the pill, the probabilities are that nothing adverse will happen. There is no evidence that a woman who has been taking the pill is likely to have a baby with any defects.

The only question is whether you are more likely to have a spontaneous abortion or not. There is some suggestion that women who become pregnant within the first three months after stopping the pill are more prone to spontaneous abortions. This also is true if conception occurs within three months after a normal pregnancy is completed.

Also, it sometimes takes longer for a woman to get pregnant if she has been on the pill than if she has not used the pill.

Welcome to teaching, Miss Stevenson.

Your mission is to teach 26 first-graders how to read. Should you decide to accept the job you will be reinforced by every modern bit of technology known to educaion, including visuals, computers and teaching aids.

You will have the confidence of the parents, the support of the administration and the love of the children. You have nine months in which to accomplish this miracle with three and a half weeks of holidays and an occasional closing of the schools for an Act of God. Good luck.

Oh, just one thing. You won't forget to instill good nutrition habits, teach the gifted, the neurologically impaired, the emotionally disturbed, and develop civic responsibility, will you? Good.

And check for head lice, make sure they have a hot breakfast, collect milk money and arrange their transportation to and from school.

Did I mention eye testing and inoculations and instruction of first aid procedures? It goes without saying you will provide sex education ... in a tasteful way, of course.

By the way, don't forget to maintain birth information and age certification data, be on the lookout for child abuse, and collect money for the repairing of the Statue of Liberty.

And you'll have to make time to build economic awareness, assist in bladder control, stress bilingual development and eliminate sex discrimination.

Just be glad, Miss Stevenson, you aren't in secondary education. They have to assist in career planning, money management, teach kids how to drive a car, counsel them in their career, place them in jobs, identify and solve alcohol and drug abuse problems, and counsel them in pregnancy.

You're fortunate. All you have is bicycle safety, training in pulmonary resuscitation, promotion of physical fitness and metrics, building self-worth and respect, and instilling in them a sense of patriotism.

Teaching them to read, I know, sounds simple, but it's important. But then so is daily fund-raising, protecting students' privacy, following due process procedures, counseling problem children, maintaining discipline, fostering intergration, and teaching the principles of free enterprise.

All we expect from you is to give the public what they want ... a back-to-basics education. Good luck, Miss Stevenson. Miss Stevenson. MISS STEVENSON!

Another one self-destructed. No one wants to teach kids how to read anymore.

Economic recovery bad news?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The economic recovery hasn't trickled down to many of the nation's cities, according to municipal leaders who worry that the focus on the country's improved fiscal health could take the spotlight off urban woes.

"I don't think it's just Congress and the administration that's a long way from responding to the peculiarity of this recovery," said St. Paul Mayor George Latimer on Monday at the opening of the 60th annual National League of Cities convention. "I think it's shared by a lot of us who haven't really come up with an alternative program."

What does a clean filter have to do with saving money?

There are lots of ways to save money. One is to check the filter in your heating and cooling unit once a month.

The filter is there to collect dust and lint. But when it's dirty, your unit has to work longer and harder to heat and cool your home. And that leads to higher electric bills.

If your filter is permanent, clean it; if it's disposable, replace it. A clean filter can help you save money all year long.

And those other ways to save? You'll find them in "The Unhandy Person's Guide" from Texas Electric. If you need one, call us — or ask for one on the comments portion of your bill.

WJCAC game 82-62...

WTC loses in opener

MIDLAND--The WTC Westerners "just couldn't put the ball in the hole in the second half," according to coach Barry Davis and the team dropped its opening WJCAC conference tilt, 82-62, to a hot-handed Midland College club Monday night.

The Westerners played even ball with the defending National Champion Chapparals in the first half with the lead changing hands three times in the first 17 minutes of play. WTC began to cool off with 2:40 left in the first half, however, and allowed Midland to take a 39-31 lead to the dressing room at halftime.

WTC never recovered from the slump which saw the Westerners fail to convert several one and one free throws in the last two minutes of the first half and Midland was able to pull away in the second period for the victory.

The Westerners shot a dismal 33 percent from the field in the second half, but Davis noted that the team managed to achieve several goals they had set for themselves in the game but the inability to hit the basket cost them the win.

The Westerners captured 12 turnovers during the game and Davis was pleased with his team's performance in the categories of steals, assists and turnovers but the shooting percentages fell short.

For the game, WTC shot only 40 percent from the field and 60 percent from the charity stripe.

Navasota sophomore Larry Banks and freshman point guard Anthony Smith led the scoring for the Westerners racking, up 10 apiece in the loseing effort. Freshmen Jeff Gibson and Floyd Singleton were next high scorers for the Westerners, accounting for 8 points each.

High point producers for the Chapparrals included Hennesy, Binns, and Wrightsel who accounted for 42 of Midland's 82 points.

Davis blamed the loss in Midland on mental breakdowns and said Tuesday that "My job now is to get the young men to believe that they can do better...one game does not make a season and we have 17 more conference games to play. If we can get the chemistry right and have some good things happen we are going to be alright."

WTC enters conference action again Thursday evening in Scurry County Coliseum against a South Plains Junior College team that Davis reports to be improved and probably a better team than Midland squad.

Marino passes to Duper figure in Bengal defeat

MIAMI (AP) — The redhot passing combination of Dan Marino to Mark Duper is setting the National Football League on fire and blazing the trail the Miami Dolphins are traveling toward the playoffs.

The Cincinnati Bengals are but the latest victims of the dynamic duo's destruction, yielding a pair of touchdowns to the tandem Monday night during a 38-14 loss to the defending American Conference champions.

"They've got my vote for the Pro Bowl," Bengals wide receiver Cris Collinsworth said of Marino and Duper. "We've been around the league now, and those guys are in a special class at their positions."

Marino, the AFC's passing efficiency leader, threw for 217 yards and three TDs as the 9-4 Dolphins took a two-game lead over Buffalo in the Eastern Division and moved to within a game of wrapping up the title.

Duper, who caught scoring passes of 7 and 15 yards, had five catches for 84 yards, allowing him to maintain a pace that would give him a 1,000-yard receiving season — the first in Dolphin history.

"They're the best defense I ever played against," said Duper, a second-year pro who moved into the starting lineup eight weeks ago. "They really punish you after you catch the ball. Half of my body was numb."

Marino, meanwhile, boosted his record as a starter to 6-2 and a victory over Houston next Sunday will clinch the division crown and send the Dolphins into the playoffs.

"You have to say Marino really kept his cool. He was able to move around and find his receivers," said Miami Coach Don Shula, who earlier in the day signed a new, multi-year contract to remain with the team he's guided to four Super Bowl appearances.

"It's been a good day," Shula added. "First the announcement, and to have that precede an effort like this would have to make you feel pretty proud."

The loss all but eliminated the 5-8 Bengals from the playoff picture, and Coach Forrest Gregg and players agreed they were their own worst enemy Monday night.

Cincinnati, which trailed 17-14 at halftime, lost two fumbles and quarterback Ken Anderson threw two interceptions, one that led to Marino's 3-yard, fourth-quarter touchdown toss to tight end Dan Johnson.

Gregg said errors were the key to the contest, played before an Orange Bowl sellout of 74,506.

"It gets down to this: you can't turn the ball over four times against a team as good as the Dolphins and expect to win," the Cincinnati coach said.

Junior high girls split pair Monday

Snyder junior high girls basketball teams split a pair of games with Coahoma Monday evening.

Coach Roland Herrera's 8th grade gold team ran their season record to 2-0 with a 26-21 decision over a tougher than expected Coahoma squad.

Pacing the local girls was Yolanda Anderson who bucketed 14 points in the effort. Other Snyder girls getting in on the scoring included Lafon Williams with 6, Patricia Casias with 3, Paula Caldwell with 2 points and Denise Overton who hit on a single free throw.

Coach Herrera was happy to record a win but noted that the team was sluggish overall, probably due to the 5-day Thanksgiving layoff, giving up too many turnovers on offense and allowing too many points on defense.

The girl's 7th grade gold team played well in the second third and fourth quarters according to coach Nancy Jones but dropped a close 19-16 game to the Coahoma squad.

Jones noted that the girls started slow, not scoring until the second quarter, but they were able to pull within one point of the hosts during the final period.

Scoring leaders for the Snyder girls included Roseane Shelton with 6, Melissa Williams and Tracey Bollinger who carded 4 points apiece, and Holly Fuller who scored 2 points in the game.

Next action for both the 7th and 8th grade gold teams will be Monday, Dec. 5 when the 7th grade Black and Gold teams take on Big Spring Goliad and the 8th Grade squads try Big Spring Runnels. Play will begin at 4 p.m. with the 8th grade teams taking the floor in the SHS Gym and the 7th grade squads playing at the junior high school.

9th B-team takes loss

The SHS 9th grade B-team fell to the Coahoma 9th grade squad by a score of 59-42 in boys basketball action Monday evening.

Top scorers for the Snyder freshmen were Albert Rodriquez with 16 individual points and Nathaniel Chavez who scored 8.

Next action for the freshman B-team will be Thursday at the SHS gym when they take on the 9th grade B-team from Andrews.

Churchill Downs, the home of the Kentucky Derby, was built in 1874 and the Derby was first run in 1875.

Pitcher Grover Cleveland Alexander, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, had a record 70 victories over the Cincinnati Reds from 1911 to 1930 while pitching for several teams.

Alydar finished second to Affirmed in all three Triple Crown races in 1978, the only horse ever to place in all three events.

In 1931, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees tied for the American League home-run championship with 46 apiece.

Kings sharp-shooter returns to form Monday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, unhappy with the play of Larry Drew, recently sat his normally sharp-shooting guard down for a talk.

"I talked to him just to give him confidence. He was too concerned with setting things up, and because he wasn't shooting well, he began turning down shots," Fitzsimmons said.

The pep talk was effective. Drew, whose jump shots had been flat, was razor sharp Monday night, scoring 26 points, handing out a career-high 17 assists and collecting five steals as the Kings beat the Portland Trailblazers 113-104 in the only scheduled National Basketball Association game.

"Cotton told me I was coming down and waiting on things instead of just making things happen," said Drew, who led the Kings in scoring last season with a 20-point average, but who had dipped to an 18-point-per-game average this season.

Eddie Johnson, who scored 24 points for Kansas City, said he thought the return of reserve guard Mike Woodson, who missed 11 games because of knee surgery, had helped Drew.

Johnson led a surge that made a 94-92 lead in the fourth quarter a 103-96 advantage, scoring four points, assisting on one basket and stealing a pass that led to another.

"He made the play," Woodson, who scored 19 points, said of Drew. "That's what we expect."

The Trailblazers jumped to a 4-0 lead, but the Kings then scored 10 unanswered points and never trailed again.

Tigers to face Eagles tonight

ABILENE--It will be a battle of teams trying to establish some winning momentum when the Tiger varsity basketball team takes the floor against the Eagles of Abilene High tonight at 8 p.m. in Eagle gym in Abilene.

Coach Larry Scott's Tigers, 0-2 for the season, will be coming off a disappointing loss to Abilene Cooper over the weekend while the Eagles, 1-1 for the season, will be trying to bounce back from a tough 63-61 defeat at the hands of the Plano Wildcats.

The Tigers will be attempting to improve on an offense which shot 40 percent from the field in the last game and shore up a defense that yielded 61 points to the Cooper Cougars.

Probable starters for SHS include Willie Greathouse, Paul Tate, Marcus McGlothlin, John Murphy and Chad Peterson.

Standout starters for the Abilene Eagles include forward Kirt Robinson and point guard Greg Lowery who accounted for a total of 28 points in the loss to Plano.

The SHS sophomore and junior varsity teams will also see action in the Abilene gym tonight with the sophomore tipoff set for 4:30 p.m. Tipoff for the JV game is tenatively scheduled for 6:15.

Baylor, SMU produce wins

By The Associated Press

Baylor and Southern Methodist managed to knock off pesky small-college teams as Southwest Conference basketball play entered its first full week.

Baylor, opening its season, committed 22 turnovers to nip Tarleton State 64-57 Monday night, and SMU shook off the disciplined Southwestern Pirates 90-71.

Texas Tech didn't get out of Lubbock Monday, postponing a game with Nebraska in Lincoln because of a blizzard that shut down air traffic in the Midwest.

The Red Raiders and Cornhuskers planned to try again tonight.

Also tonight, Baylor hosts Presbyterian, Rice visits Tulane, Texas A&M hosts Prairie View A&M and Southwestern goes to Texas Christian.

Southern Methodist forward Larry Davis pumped in 22 points and center Jon Koncak grabbed 17 rebounds for the Mustangs.

The victory raised SMU's record to 2-0. The Pirates fell to 3-3. SMU led by only four points at halftime 36-32, but the Mustangs outscored the Georgetown, Texas school 17-6 in the first six minutes of the second half for a 53-38 advantage.

Southwestern managed to close the gap to 11 points, 75-64, before the Mustangs put the game out of reach.

The Pirates, operating a patient offense and shooting mostly from the outside, were led by guard Andra Higgs, who scored 16 points. Jon Koncak also had 17 points for SMU.

Baylor forward Mike Heller scored 15 points and guard James Stern scored seven points during the final 1:14 of play.

Baylor managed to open up eight-point leads twice in the game. The Bears, who led 28-24 at halftime after committing 12 turnovers, hit 41 percnet of their shots during the game. Tarleton connected on 32 percent of its shots.

Baylor 22-14 with six minutrs left in the half, but Bruce Hudlin pumped in eight points as the Texans cut the margin to four.

Hudlin and Jerry King scored a game-high 18 points each for the Texans, 2-6.

Ex-Rice coach with USFL

HOUSTON (AP) — Ray Alborn, who recently resigned as head football coach at Rice University, says he will sign a contract to be defensive line coach of the Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League.

Alborn, who resigned under pressure during a 1-10 season, said he will announce the move Wednesday at a news conference.

"I haven't signed anything yet, but I will Wednesday," Alborn said Monday.

Alborn said he will agree to a two-year contract.

"I'm excited about it," Alborn said. "I think it's an organization that has proven it is going to do things first-rate. I'm looking forward to working with coach (Jack) Pardee."

Alborn turned down an offer from the San Antonio Gunslingers, who wanted him to be their defensive coordinator.

The Gamblers, an expansion team in the 1-year-old league, are scheduled to play their first season this spring.

Rangers to have 'whole new look'

DALLAS (AP) — They may be the same old team, but when the Texas Rangers take to the diamond next spring, they'll have a whole new look.

The players will be wearing new uniforms with a new logo designed to more closely associate the team with the name, "Rangers," the club's advertising director Jackie Sullivan told the Dallas Times Herald.

The old logo was designed in the shape of Texas with a baseball and the letters "T R" superimposed.

The new logo, which also is designed in the shape of Texas, has a baseball and the word "Rangers" superimposed in cursive lettering across the front.

The new logo has created some problems for Arlington city officials who find themselves with about $35,000 worth of outdated baseball souvenirs.

Despite the change in style, city officials said they will still be able to find buyers for the merchandise.

And Rangers owner Eddie Chiles has offered to take any of the surplus plastic helmets and paper products that the city cannot sell, a Rangers spokesman said.

Longhorns to lose star safety Peavy

AUSTIN (AP) — Sophomore safety Richard Peavy will undergo knee surgery this week and probably will miss Texas' game with Georgia in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Peavy suffered ligament damage in his left knee against Texas A&M on Saturday when he was tackled after receiving a lateral from Longhorn safety Craig Curry, who had intercepted a pass.

Dr. Jerry Julian will perform arthoscopic knee surgery, but the operation could develop into major surgery if the damage is severe.

"Richard has been one of our very top football players the last two years," said coach Fred Akers.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Jack Bryant will keep your septic tank working properly

If your house's sewage disposal needs are served by a septic tank, then there are a few facts you need to know about.

When septic tanks are not cleaned periodically they get full of solids which then flow out of the lateral (drain) lines, clogging the perforated joints. Solids may even clog sewer lines from the house, causing sewage to back up in the house.

At this point, the solution is either to clean out drain lines (which is not always successful) and clean the tank; or to lay new lines and clean out the tank.

When you have septic tank trouble, the least worry is the inconvenience it causes; and valuable carpet could be ruined when the lines back up.

Why not save all this expense and worry by maintaining your septic tank properly? Septic tanks should be pumped and cleaned at least every two years and chemical should be put in to dissolve solids.

JACK BRYANT'S septic tank cleaning service can save you money by offering this larger truck for fewer loads. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-2447.(SDN Staff Photo)

Chemicals by themselves usually don't work properly if the tank is already full of solids.

If your tank runs over the lid, you can be sure it needs cleaning. Likely the perforated joints are already clogged up.

The good part of all this is that Jack Bryant and his Septic Tank Cleaning Service can save you money. He is able to do this by using a larger tank truck, since cost is determined by the load.

Jack Bryant can keep your septic tank operating properly. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-2447.

"Pet Semetary"...

King's new novel is unforgettable

PET SEMATARY. By Stephen King. Doubleday. 374 Pages. $15.95.

Ever since he published his first story at age 20, horror writer Stephen King has been churning out a prodigious number of novels, short stories and non-fiction works.

At 36, he is not only far from running out of steam but becoming a better novelist. His new one, "Pet Sematary," is a work of such skill and quality that it transcends the horror genre to become an unforgettable piece of literature about death and bereavement.

The story begins when Louis Creed, his wife, two children and a family cat move from Chicago to Maine. Creed, a doctor, is to become head of medical services at the University of Maine at Orono.

Near their home is an old pet burial ground, marked by an arch of weather-stained wooden boards bearing a misspelled legend, "Pet Sematary." It is bound by underbrush on three sides, and on the fourth by an old blowdown — a jackstraw-jumble of fallen trees that looks both sinister and dangerous.

One night, the ghost of a student who died in a horrible accident during Louis' first day on the job appears to warn him about the blowdown: "Don't go beyond, no matter how much you feel you need to, Doctor. The barrier was not made to be broken. Remember this: there is more power here than you know. It is old and always restless. Remember."

But the warning is in vain. The "Power" gets hold of the Creed family and doesn't let go until...

"Pet Sematary" is a superb dramatization of intense emotions over losing loved ones. And the author's descriptions of all things that go bump in the Maine night evoke an eerily beautiful atmosphere as well as raise goose pimples. A topnotch work.

Proper attire is key to enjoying winter sports

DENVER (AP) — Skiing may depend upon cold weather and the snow it brings, but the sport doesn't necessarily deserve its frigid image, say industry experts.

The key to enjoying skiing, or any winter sport for that matter, they point out, is wearing the right clothes to protect against the elements. Wearing layers, keeping the hands and feet warm, and not smoking or drinking alcohol can add to outdoor comfort.

"The trick to staying warm is to stay dry; the minute the body begins to sweat, it loses its insulation," says Stephen Over, executive director of the National Ski Patrol System based in Denver.

"As long as the skin is dry, it will stay warm. In fact, the body can be warmer on a 10 degree below zero day if the weather is dry than on a day that's 35 degrees and raining," adds Over, who recommends clothing insulation that maintains its heat retention qualities even when damp.

One ski resort operator believes cold hands and feet can be avoided with proper coverings.

"The biggest problem we find," says Copper Mountain's Fritz Opel, "is people who wind up with cold toes because their socks are too tight. Too many socks compress the air barrier between layers. Without entrapped air, all you have are cold bits of cloth inside plastic boots."

Opel also recommends mittens rather than gloves.

"All those fingers next to each other in a mitten generate more heat than gloves will," he explains.

"The more heat given off by the body when exercising, the fewer layers of clothing are required," adds another industry official. "That's why someone riding a chairlift to the top of a mountain needs to be protected with more layers than the cross-country skier who burns up to 560 calories an hour," says Erik Eidsmo, product and marketing manager of Trak, a cross-country ski equipment company.

"Even the average recreational cross-country skier can stay warm enough with an outer shell, a sweater, long underwear and waterproof pants. It's only after they stop moving that the cold sets in."

Clothing for winter sports can usually be found in the closet of any snowbelt resident, the pros note. For cross-country skiing comfortable pants or knickers are a must. Nylon knit jogging suits perform well because they don't restrict motion, and tend to shed snow.

For downhill skiers, Over recommends warm-up pants with a new type of insulation, that is very warm, yet thin enough to allow freedom of movement.

As for drinking alcohol, the National Ski Patrol cautions a few nips may feel better for a short while because the alcohol causes blood to be drawn to the outer extremities.

"But," Over warns, "since the blood is drawing heat from the inner body, the total effect is to reduce temperatures. Clearly, when it comes to winter sports, it's definitely cool to stay warm and sober."

South could count 12 top tricks once his Blackwood bids had discovered an ace and a king in the North hand. He bid seven on the theory that with 12 top winners, he could always find number 13 somewhere.

A quick look at dummy showed that the 13th would be hard to find. He tried a simple pseudo-squeeze by running off all his spades while discarding two hearts, two diamonds and a club from dummy. East wisely discarded his queen of hearts and then continued with three clubs, so West had a perfect count on the hand and knew that he had to hang on to diamonds. West did, and the grand slam was a thing of the past while the rubber continued.

South had overlooked the chance to make the contract by finding the right East-West holdings. The play required risking a two-trick set, but would have worked.

South starts by playing ace-king and a small heart and ruffing high. He finds that hearts have broken 4-3. Then he takes a finesse against West's eight of trumps. The finesse works.

He ruffs another heart high and leads a trump to dummy's nine of trumps. One diamond already went on the king of hearts; his other goes on that last heart. The slam comes home.

Dramatic turn in furniture styling

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If bright colors and showy styles are indications of optimism, then the furniture industry is on its way to recovery from the past few years of bleak sales and little design excitement.

At the recent High Point, N.C., Furniture Market, dramatic — even flashy — furniture was the rule at all taste and price levels.

One way to create excitement is to make furniture that puts the purchaser into a world of fantasy. A number of manufacturers took this tack. One, for example, added exact copies of 27 furniture gems from the great castles of England to an existing collection.

The Baker Co.'s "Stately Homes of England" collection includes examples of furniture from homes such as Longleat, Blenheim Palace, Cliveden and Penshurst.

Not only did Baker copy two fine Adam pieces belonging to the Duke of Argyll and in use at his home at Inverary Castle in Scotland, but the company snagged the duke himself, who as Baker's guest gave a speech extolling the virtues of the copies.

The message was clear: You too can live like a lord with furniture every bit as good as his. The furniture ranges in price from $900 for a mirror to $14,000 for a secretary copied from the original at Howick Castle, which makes it quite expensive.

Others, however, provided an opportunity to re-live the past more modestly. The Pulaski Co. was one of several mining the rich vein of 19th-century Americana with an "Ice Cream Parlor" collection featuring a soda fountain and imitation marble-topped tables, as well as another based on the frontier saloons of the past and complete with player piano, card table and bar.

The same company also offered "Hollywood Stars" — furniture inspired by popular movies. English-style living room pieces are based on the film, "My Fair Lady," and art deco pieces are inspired by "Top Hat."

With 1,300 permanent exhibitors and miles of exhibit space serving the needs of tens of thousands of retailers who attend the semi-annual markets to look at new furniture and place orders for future delivery, the market is never dominated by a single style influence. However, certain styles are more prevalent from one market to another.

This fall, the art deco influence seemed especially strong. Much wood furniture featured rounded forms, even convex and concave sides as well as mirrored surfaces and lighted, glass-shelved cabinets.

Highly polished lacquer finishes — especially in black and almond — were seen in many showrooms. The lacquer look was also emphasized by the introduction of new technology which makes possible a polyester coating said to be more durable than the traditional lacquer finish.

Even manufacturers not usually known for flamboyant furniture got into the spirit of things.

Richard W. Simmons, Jr., president of American of Martinsville whose "Panache" Collection of occasional furniture featured considerable shine, said the industry really could not explain why more sophisticated and sleek furniture seemed to be in demand. However, he added that the current emphasis on individual pieces rather than on complete furniture suites had focused more attention on each item.

The shiny surfaces of wood furniture were duplicated in upholstery. Shiny silk and silklooking fabrics — often in startlingly bright colors like tomato red or even more surprisingly in solid black — were in greater supply.

But the most ubiquitous fabric was a slightly shiny one used first on down jackets. Variously known as parachute cloth and triblend cloth — which usually includes nylon, polyester and cotton — this fabric in both solid colors and monochrome prints was seen in almost every style-oriented upholstered furniture showroom.

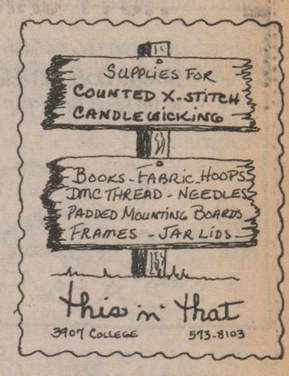

The pulse of the industry is taken at the market in a round of panel discussions, speeches and news conferences given by industry leaders. This time, the importance of affluent customers and the interior designers who serve them was stressed.

Martin Elinoff, past president of the American Society of Interior Designers which now has 22,000 members, said designers placed about 40 percent of the orders for office and home furnishings and represented the fastest growing segment of the furnishings market.

To serve this decorator market, regional showroom buildings have been opened in a number of cities recently. This October, the Southern Market Center got its own design center. Unlike other buildings the design center will be open year-round. Entrance will be restricted to designers, architects and retailers. Consumers may enter only in the company of a designer.

This market offered considerable quantities of useful if not always beautiful furniture. Among product categories that gained were small-scale dining furniture, cabinetry to accommodate electronic equipment and home computers and dual-purpose seating.

Additions to seating-sleeping furniture included several versions of the Japanese futon. The innovation was to provide a wood or upholstered platform to raise the futon off the floor for seating and sleeping comfort.

Dear Abby

Pop-In Visits Leave Woman Ready to Snap

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a fairly competent young woman who can usually handle any given situation, but at this point I am ready to explode.

Once again I have been surprised by my mother-in-law, who lives 125 miles away. She gives me absolutely no notice. She just gets into her car and drives here! Abby, she must know several hours in advance where she's heading. We both have telephones, and it doesn't cost that much to call. She could even call collect and I wouldn't mind.

Lucky for her someone has always been here when she pops in. I wish just once she'd come and find the house locked up with nobody home. It might teach her a lesson. I've begged her to give me a little notice, but she never does.

What can I do? Sometimes I've made plans for the day, and when she surprises me I just can't leave her. Her excuse: "I didn't want you to fuss."

When she's here, my husband (her only son) pays very little attention to her, so guess who has to entertain her? Help me, Abby. I can't take much more of this.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Roll with the punches. When she pops in, if you've made plans, just take her at her word—don't "fuss." Pop out and go about your business. Maybe she just likes to drive.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My wedding invitations went out two weeks ago and the response cards are coming in. Abby, they are throwing me into total panic!

I sent invitations to 31 single people. Nowhere on the invitation did I indicate "and guest," but so far 14 of these single guests have returned cards with the names of their "guests" written in.

Two couples have informed me that if they can't bring their children, they will not attend. I do not want children under 12 years old. And if I allow one, I will have to have at least 20.

Abby, due to space limitations and a tight budget, I cannot accommodate any more than I have already invited.

Please tell me what to do.

CHRISTMAS BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: If you can't personally write or phone those who have informed you that they are bringing a guest (or their children), enlist the help of one or two close friends. Be assured that you are in no way being rude or unreasonable to inform invited guests that due to space limitations you regret that you cannot accommodate their guests or children.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Has there ever been a book written on wheelchair etiquette? If so, I would like to buy several dozen copies and pass them around.

Because of an accident, I am confined to a wheelchair. It is a difficult enough adjustment to make without having to put up with the thoughtlessness and insensitivity of some people.

When I am shopping with my husband, the salesperson will invariably ask my husband, "What size is she?" Being unable to walk does not necessarily mean that I am deaf, mute or of diminished mental capacity.

Also, when I am out with friends, I have had so many coats, hats, pocketbooks and packages piled on top of me that I look like a rolling rummage sale!

And, lest I forget, there's the clown who likes to let go of my wheelchair at the top of an incline, only to run up after a few steps to catch it with a jerk.

Please print this, Abby. I'm sure there are thousands (at least) who get around in wheelchairs who would appreciate it.

Former labor leader doesn't like retirement

POTTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Earl F. Yeargan has been a working stiff and an industrial plant boss, a union organizer and a consultant to management. He is an unrepentant liberal and a respected political strategist who finished dead last the only time he ran for office. He is Pottsville's only private eye.

Yeargan is 61 now, and a veteran of two heart attacks. But a visitor to his modest rural home finds little difference between today's Yeargan and the one who made headlines almost every day in the 1960s as a firebrand labor leader and political gadfly.

His one concession to the rural life is in his mode of dress. The rumpled suits and porkpie hats have given way to jeans and open-collar sport shirts. His face still resembles 40 miles of unimproved Searcy County road; his voice still rumbles like a dozen baseballs rolling around in the bottom of a 55-gallon oil drum.

Yeargan moved to Pottsville in 1978, ostensibly to retire after his second heart attack, but it didn't work out that way. He saw some things that made him mad, so he got a license as a private investigator and went to work. "I handle civil rights cases and labor cases," he said during an interview at his kitchen table.

"There are things that go on out here in the country that wouldn't last 15 minutes in the city. Down at Little Rock, they've got all the watchdog agencies right there and the workers know their rights," he said.

"Out here in the country, you got poor whites who are grateful to have any kind of a job; you got a lot of poor women who have to work to keep the family afloat," he said.

The native of Texas said he had never given much thought to the plight of the working man until World War II, when he was serving with the Army in Europe.

"Old John L. Lewis and the coal miners were raising hell back home, and I was like most soldiers overseas — I thought they were a bunch of slackers," Yeargan said.

"But we had some old boys in my outfit from the coal areas of Kentucky and Pennsylvania, and they got to talking to me about the conditions those men had to work under, and it really opened my eyes. It was hard to believe they were talking about America," he said.

After the war, Yeargan worked in Texas for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., eventually becoming the legislative director of the Communications Workers of America. He was transferred to Arkansas in 1959 and was elected president of the Central Arkansas Labor Council in 1960. Yeargan later worked full time for the International Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Employees Union.

He went to work for Arkansas' first Republican governor since Reconstruction, Winthrop Rockefeller, in 1967 as a labor advisor.

After his first heart attack in 1968, Yeargan set out on a career as a management consultant, advising companies on production and labor relations.

"If a client company asks me how they can keep a union out, I don't mind telling them," Yeargan says. "All they got to do is pay a fair wage and treat their employees like human beings and give them a voice in how things are run at the plant. If they can give their employees all the things that a union would work for, then they've earned a right to a non-union shop," he said.

"Everybody's in the same old creaky boat. I love this country too much to say that one side is all wrong and the other side is all right," he said.

More dogs are hurt by jogging with masters

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Area veterinarians say they are seeing more injured dogs these days — jogging victims.

"Dogs with pulled muscles or inflamed muscles are very common," said Dr. Rick Wells of Tempe Veterinary Hospital Ltd. "A lot of people go jogging and expect their dog to keep up, and it doesn't work."

"Dogs have to work into condition, just like humans," he said. "You just can't take Rover out of the back yard, where he hasn't run more than a few yards for a year, and expect him to go a couple miles."

Another problem, said Wells, is that streets and sidewalks in metropolitan Phoenix get extremely hot in the summer, burning a dog's footpads.

"Then, too, dogs overheat much more easily than humans, so while you may feel OK, your dog may be about to have a heat stroke," Wells said.

Dr. Rick Sampson of Ingleside Animal Clinic, Phoenix, said that while he didn't see a high percentage of dogs with jogging-related injuries, the number had increased noticeably and those he did see had major problems.

"I think the owners believe the dog will recover naturally and when that doesn't happen they bring them in," he said.

Dr. Kenneth Jeffrey of Mesa Veterinary Hospital said, "We are seeing more dogs for emergency treatment for injuries than we did, say, five or 10 years ago. In just about every case the dog was out with a jogging owner."

Jeffrey says most of the injuries he sees are of a twistedleg type, from a dog stepping into a hole.

"Then, too, there are accidents such as a dog running without a leash being hit by a car or getting into unfamiliar territory and tangling with a cactus," he said. "We also see snake bites fairly often, where the owner and dog are running in the desert and the dog gets off the beaten path."

All three vets recommended dogs be kept on a leash while jogging and that the owner pay close attention to whether the dog might be in trouble or need a drink of water.

"Their feet and legs need to be watched carefully," said Sampson. "Dogs are susceptible to joint stress and abrasions of the feet, particularly when running on pavement. The owner must remember that while he has shoes, the dog doesn't."

Wells said he had recently treated a dog with a foot badly cut from stepping on a broken piece of glass. He said dogs also tended to get weed seeds stuck between their toes when running alongside area canals, starting an infection that frequently required surgery.

Dr. Doug Hauser of Sun City Animal Hospital said folks in the suburban retirement community of 50,000 weren't much for jogging, so he didn't see many jogging-related injuries among dogs.

"The big problem here," he said, "is dogs getting injured when they fall off golfcarts, which are utilized a great deal here."

Wonder dog lives on still

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)--The late "wonder dog," lives on--and when a pooch is needed to drive in local parades, Beaver will be there.

Beaver is the son of Buddy, the golden retriever who for years appeared on the "Hee Haw" television show, perched in the driver's seat of a car.

Buddy, local mechanic Bill Williamson's dog who died Sunday at age 15, also appeared in a dozen annual Nevada Day parades thtough Carson City--again in the driver's seat.

Bush zoo lives on in war torn area

RUNDU, South-West Africa (AP) — Along the banks of the crocodile-infested Okavango River, where some of Africa's greatest beasts gathered freely before the region was torn by war, one finds a zoo.

Wire cages at the end of a rutted lane reflect the determination of both civilians and soldiers to persuade tribesmen to reduce their killing of game for food. Despite the pressures of drought and the dislocations of war, the zoo director says, the message of conservation seems to be taking hold.

There is a friendly female lion named Yanna next to a shy cheetah, a red-eyed hyena, two crocodiles, several monkeys, birds, snakes, brawling baboons and a gemsbok, or antelope, named Susan. Susan lost her left horn in a fight with a lion and her right one battling wild dogs.

"Yes, it's kind of a strange place for a zoo, here in the wilderness, looking straight across that river into Angola, and being in the war," zoo director Elric Pretorius said in an interview. Susan follows his steps like a loyal dog.

Pretorius, a trained anthropologist and psychologist from Cape Town, South Africa, came to the banks of the Okavango 10 years ago to work with tribesmen of the same name.

For 17 years, black nationalist guerrillas of the SouthWest Africa People's Organization have been fighting white-ruled South Africa's administration of the territory also known as Namibia. Rundu is in northeastern Namibia, where the river forms the boundary with Angola and where South African soldiers regularly scout for guerrillas moving south from Angolan camps.

When Pretorius arrived, many of the region's 110,000 Okavangos were being caught in the middle. Fighting and harassment by combatants were forcing 95 percent of the widely distributed Okavangos to move to within nine miles of the river.

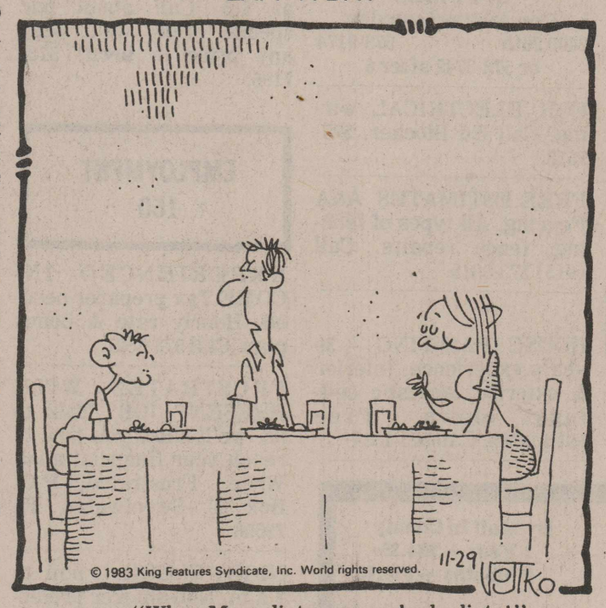

The South Africans were building roads and clinics in the area, and were offering jobs, and there was still plenty of game.

"The Okavangos looked at an animal and they saw lunch. They were killing everything," Pretorius said.

As the chief teacher in Rundu, Pretorius said he tried — and failed — to use the classroom to teach ecology and animal husbandry.

"They still went on killing," he said. "There were more and more people and less and less game. We wanted to show that if they allowed an animal to live, it could reproduce and there would be more game for everyone."

Dog business is slow so discount offered

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)--Richard Ochoa is only 11, but he's already gone to the dogs. And the young businessman hopes to turn a profit in the process.

Ochoa is the president of Dog Walkers, Inc., based in this seaside suburb of Los Angeles.

To announce the opening of his business, he personally handed his neighbors flyers that said: "We'll always walk your dog--in snow, sleet, hail or fog."

His published rates: "Big dogs-80 cents; medium dogs-70 cents; small dogs-60 cents."

Unfortunately, business has been slow, so Ochoa is offering his first discount: small dogs-20 cents.

Airline, pilots resume talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines has resumed negotiations with striking pilots with the help of a mediator, but has rejected mediated talks with flight attendants, officials said.

Continental and the Air Line Pilots Association first met with the mediator, University of California law professor Benjamin Aaron, in Los Angeles a week ago and were to get back together today, Aaron said.

But all sides were reluctant to reveal details of the talks.

"We are not discussing anything regarding the talks," spokesman Bruce Hicks said Monday at Continental's headquarters in Houston.

The pilots' group, which went on strike Oct. 1, has held several meetings with Continental since the airline filed for creditor protection under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law on Sept. 24, but ALPA spokesman Capt. Tom Russell said of the previous sessions, "We didn't feel they (Continental) were being very serious."

Hicks conceded that except for one seven-hour meeting, the other sessions were fairly short.

The pilots' last written proposal, on Oct. 14, would have saved the airline an estimated $30 million a year but was rejected by Continental as inadequate, Russell said.

Continental currently employs 450 pilots — some union members who crossed picket lines and others newly hired — compared to 1,400 before the strike and the bankruptcy reorganization, Hicks said.

Hicks said more pilots are needed, but insisted that if an agreement isn't reached with the striking pilots, others would be hired and trained — a time-consuming and costly process.

Meanwhile, Debbie Powell of the Union of Flight Attendants said in Los Angeles that Continental in a Nov. 9 letter rejected as unneeded a union suggestion that a mediator be brought into that dispute.

Ms. Powell added that company negotiators subsequently met once with the striking flight attendants last Tuesday, the same day Continental and ALPA met with the mediator.

Report more injuries

By the Associated Press

An industry spokeswoman claimed no toy ever "caused this much chaos," as officials reported at least 10 injuries and two arrests nationwide in the clamor for the homely but lovable rag dolls known as the "Cabbage Patch Kids."

A financial analyst said the boom in the dolls is providing a happy Yuletide bundle for their manufacturer, Coleco Industries Inc.

But an international support organization for families separated by adoption Monday charged that the one-of-a-kind, computer-designed doll, which comes with "adoption" papers, "desensitizes kids to the reality of adoption."

The excitement is over 16-inch dolls with yarn hair and outstretched arms that also come with birth certificates, disposable diapers and detailed fingers and toes. Computers design the dolls' features, giving each a unique appearance.

"To the child, it's like a little person," said Brad Meerfield, manager of Toys by Roy in Albuquerque, N.M.

Since the start of the Christmas shopping season Friday, thousands of people have clawed their way through packed department stores in quest of the dolls, the brainchildren of artist Xavier Roberts. Until this year they were available only in limited, hand-made versions costing $125 and up. The doll, which came on the market this spring, sells for between $18 and $25.

Although Coleco plans to ship 2.5 million of the dolls by the end of the year, stores say they're unable to keep up with demand.

Covers taken, glass broken

Two misdemeanor-level reports were filed by police Monday, one involving a theft and the second a criminal mischief incident.

The theft involved two wheel covers reported missing from a 1980 Dodge Mirada parked beside a residence at 2411 Gilmore.

They were said taken sometime between 10 p.m. Sunday and 6:30 a.m. Monday. Value of the missing items were set at $100.

The criminal mischief involved a broken windshield on a company pickup parked at G&G Glass. Damage value was set at $190.

Arrests noted

Arrests reported in the city Monday were both drinking-related.

In separate incidents, a male and a female driver were stopped and charged with driving while intoxicated.

On Aug. 27, 1920, American women were granted the right to vote.

U.S., Israeli officials are conferring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior U.S. and Israeli officials, while saying little about their discussions here, are predicting they will mark a new era of cooperation aimed at resolving the impasse in Lebanon and at stopping Syrian-inspired turmoil in the Middle East.

President Reagan was to meet today for a second time with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to continue Monday's talks, which both sides described as warm and friendly. Shamir also met separately for four hours with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

The two sides agreed to establish two joint working groups that would meet overnight and report back in time for today's meetings. One group was instructed to focus on Lebanon with special emphasis on developing ideas on how to get Syria to withdraw its troops.

The second was told to concentrate on proposals for advancing American and Israeli military cooperation, which is a major subject of Shamir's visit here.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens planned a separate follow-up meeting on the military relationship today.

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported in today's editions that Reagan has approved steps to increase American military cooperation with Israel, including resumption of delivery of American-made cluster-bomb artillery shells.

Delivery of cluster bombs, which scatter grenade-like explosive charges over a wide area, was suspended in July 1982 after Israel invaded Lebanon.

In Monday's meetings, Israeli officials said Shamir stressed that Syria's aim is to dominate the Arab world, using Lebanon as a "test case." An Israeli official who insisted on anonymity said the United States and Israel "see the situation eye-to-eye."

A senior U.S. official said Syria "is going to have to take into account" closer U.S.-Israeli cooperation. The United States reportedly is asking Israel to show iself as a viable deterrent to what the official, who also insisted on anonymity, called the growing "Syrian strength and assertiveness."

Reflecting the current administration view, Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, said after the Reagan-Shamir meeting that the two countries "are in close accord for policy regarding Lebanon, and we will continue to work closely for the goals we all seek in Lebanon."

The administration would like to find a way to bring the American Marines home from Lebanon before the 1984 election. But it needs to have some agreement for a withdrawal of all foreign forces — Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian — before that can happen.

Shamir told reporters he and Reagan had "very friendly and good talks" and he was optimistic.

Sleeping arrangements are new

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — New bunks aboard space shuttle Columbia may end the astronauts' free-wheeling sleep habits while in orbit.

The six men who blasted off aboard Columbia on Monday are the first American astronauts with specific places assigned them for sleeping.

Their slumber quarters are tidy little bunk compartments, stacked atop each other and tucked against the wall of the mid-deck cabin of the space shuttle. The bunks are similar to those found on submarines except that one of the astronauts must sleep facing the floor.

Astronauts in the top and middle bunks will sleep atop their platforms, just as they would on earth. The astronaut in the bottom bunk, however, will sleep on what would normally be the ceiling of his sleeping compartment.

In weightlessness, however, where there is no up or down, it makes no difference.

The compartments are 84 inches long and 22 to 30 inches wide. There's 30 inches of vertical space. Each compartment has a sliding door that can be closed, giving the sleepers some privacy. The doors will block light, since the spacecraft passes through light and darkness during each orbit, and also will help block noise made by astronauts who are working.

Each bunk is equipped with sleeping bags that zip up snugly.

New sleep compartments were needed for Spacelab because half of the six-man crew will be up and working while the other half is attempting to sleep. Spacelab is the first mission with round-the-clock work schedules.

On earlier missions, all of the astronauts slept at the same time and there were no assigned sleep stations. The space fliers tended to pick places that matched their own idea of comfort.

Some slept strapped into the pilot and commander couches, wearing black sleep masks to block out the repeated sunrises and sunsets of orbit.

Snyder's birthday is observed

War pension gave several different years of his birth.

One can find 1835, 1836 and 1837 in many of his records. When Snyder had to get verification for a pension change in 1912, he had to get his relatives in the East to go to the family Bible for his birth record. The most accurate record shows that he was born on Nov. 29, 1836.

However, the records at the First Methodist Church in Colorado City, where Snyder contributed money for two memorial windows, show his birthdate as 1833. His tombstone in Colorado City shows the date 1835 for his birth.

At the age of seven, Snyder was living in upstate New York. We know little about his early years, and our first records of his travels show that he went to Kansas in 1857 to homestead land. It is likely that he traveled with a wagon caravan of people who were going to Kansas to settle. The Kansas-Nebraska bill of 1854 encouraged settlement of that state as Kansas was caught in the middle of the slave and anti-slave forces. Both groups were encouraging settlement there.

Once Pete Snyder left the East, we have no record that he ever returned. We do know that some of his brothers visited him at his home in Colorado City shortly after 1900.

Snyder stayed in Kansas less than two years, and he left to mine gold in Colorado. On Sept. 25, 1862, he enlisted in the Union Cavalry and went back to Kansas to fight against the Rebels and Quantrill's Raiders.

Pete Snyder was 40 years of age when he arrived in Scurry County. The county had just been established by the Texas Legislature that year of 1876, and most of the people coming into the county were much younger. Snyder had traveled to many parts of the West following the buffalo hunters, but West Texas had a special interest to him. The last remaining buffalo and the last of the buffalo hunters were in Texas, and Snyder depended on them for his freight business.

Buffalo hunting ceased shortly after Snyder came into this area. Pete Snyder, J. Wright Mooar, John Mooar and others who had followed the buffalo for a living, found that they must seek other work. Most of them were satisfied to stay close to Scurry County and live out the rest of their lives.

After a short stay along Deep Creek, Snyder moved to Colorado City in 1881. The courts awarded his land to T.N. Nunn in 1884, and Pete Snyder rarely came back to the settlement along Deep Creek which carried his name.

Pete Snyder had come a long way from the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania where he was born on Nov. 29, 1836. He had found a home for himself in West Texas and here he would stay until his death on Oct. 4, 1916.

He was buried in the land that he loved at the outskirts of Colorado City. The Odd Fellow Cemetery was a part of the ranch which he and his wife, Nellie, had given to the cemetery.

This early pioneer had lived a full life and his contribution to the county was the establishment of the town of Snyder, Tx. We will hear much about this early settler during the 1984 Centennial year — Pete Snyder, born 147 years ago today, Nov. 29.

There's No Place Like Home ...For The Holidays!

Shop Snyder

Sure, you can go out of town to do your holiday shopping--but why do it? Snyder retailers have a great variety of merchandise at prices as low (many times, lower) as the big town stores.

And, here's a few things the big town stores can't (or won't) do: Call you by name; Ask about your family; Give you service after the sale; Go that "Extra Mile" to ensure that what you get is really what you want.
