'Dig Kids' set to uncover history at museum event

By DEBBIE L. JENSEN
Herald Correspondent

There's almost nothing kids like better than getting dirty.

And that will be a given on Saturday during an "urban archeological dig" at the Heritage Museum, sponsored by the Archeology

PURCELL

Society of Howard and Borden County.

The group has invited children ages 8 to 18 — and interested adults as well — to join "Dig Kids," and help excavate at a pioneer home site north of the museum on Scurry Street. Digging begins at 10 a.m. and continues until 5 p.m., and there is no charge to join in the fun.

"Digging in the dirt has an appeal no matter how old you are," said society president Kent Ivey. "And the digging part seems to be a lot of fun for kids, but there's also the 'hidden treasure' aspect of it."

Those who join "Dig Kids" can expect to find artifacts of all kinds — possibly coins and antique bottles or household items and common tools from another era. All found objects will go into the collection of the museum.

"This is just a neat, hands-on activity," said Beth Purcell, curator of the museum. "Kids can learn about archeology and Howard County history, since the artifacts found will have been from right here."

Digging will center on the water cistern area, which is a good location for finding treasures from the past, Ivey said. And the junior archeologists will use some of the same techniques as professionals.

"We'll have buckets there for them. They will fill a bucket and carry the dirt over to sift through it, looking for artifacts," Ivey said. "There have already been some coins found in that location from 1902, so we know there is much more there to find."

One of the lots north of the museum held a home built around the beginning of the 1900s. It was a family home until the mid-1990s, and was just moved last year to another location.

The Heritage Museum and the Archeology Society are teaming up for this event to celebrate Texas Archeology Awareness Month. There will also be an archeology exhibit inside the museum

'Taste of Home' stirs up fun

Crowd of 400 is informed, entertained

Ten people walked out of the Big Spring Auditorium Wednesday night with a home-cooked dish created at the Taste of Home Cooking School.

"I hope you enjoy the evening and learn new ideas on how to prepare meals for America's favorite pastime — eating," were the opening remarks of John Freeman, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce president.

Home economist Margaret McCutcheon's two-hour cooking presentation demonstrated 10 easy-to-prepare recipes and created tantalizing smells that filled the auditorium. The recipes she created can be found in the 2001 Taste of Home Cooking School Recipe Collection.

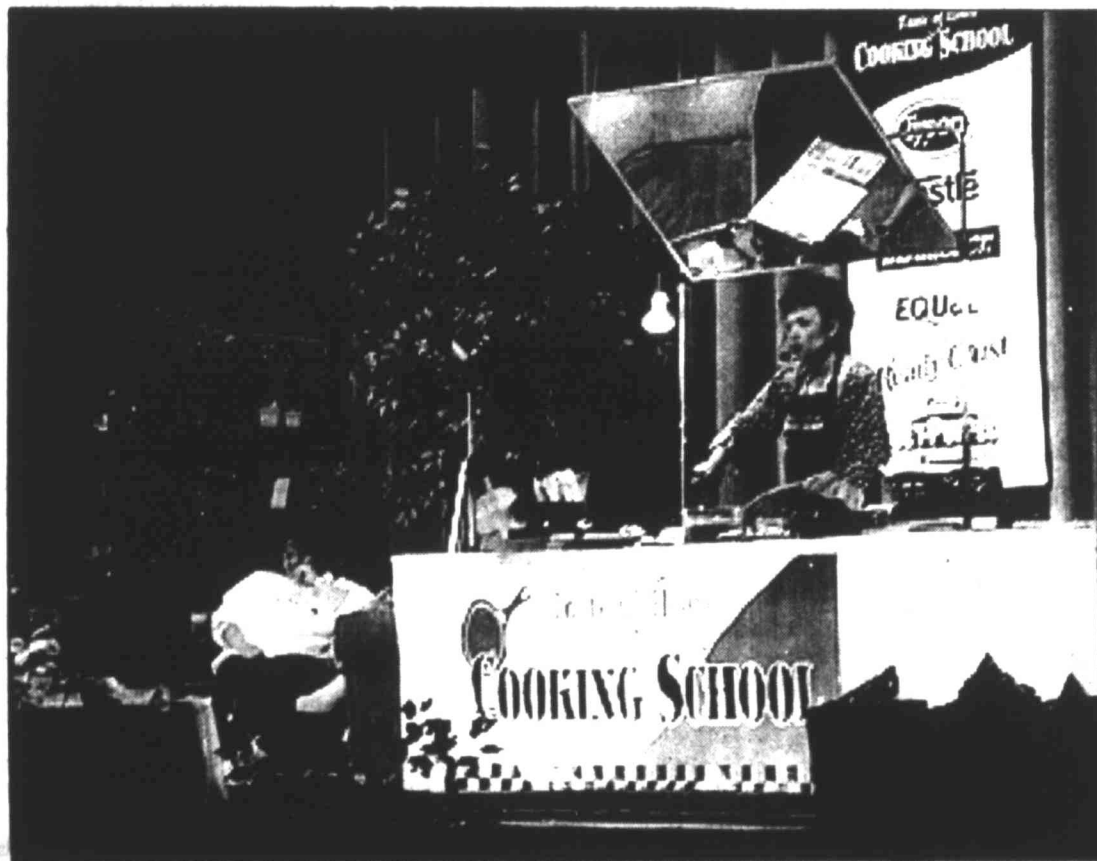

The Taste of Home cooking show was originally set for Sept. 11, but was delayed after terrorists attacked New York and Washington D.C. early that day.

The delay did not keep about 400 people from attending the show to watch McCutcheon prepare delicious recipes, step by step, in a fully equipped kitchen on stage.

A mirror was set over the work area and two big screen televisions were placed on each side of the stage, showing McCutcheon's hand movements up close as she prepared the meals.

McCutcheon offered tips on cooking, explained how to use the different utensils and offered suggestions on alternative ingredients for recipes throughout the evening.

"Some people do not know the difference between a dry and liquid measuring cup, like the ones who are not here tonight, because they know everything," McCutcheon said as she held up the two utensils.

Using a liquid measuring cup for dry ingredients can add more than is necessary for the recipe, she said.

"That is why their cookies or bread are always dry when you go over to visit them," she joked.

Cutting large marshmallows in half for a recipe could be messy, but McCutcheon offered the audience a tip.

"Make sure the kitchen shears are clean, then dip them in water and cut," she said. "This keeps the shears from getting messy."

During the evening, the audience "ahh"ed as the creations came together and McCutcheon brought the audience to their feet when she asked if she should give away the finished products.

"Neither I nor the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce will be responsible for any food muggings in the parking lot," she said.

Council sets recall election date: Nov. 10

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council accepted a petition to recall Mayor Russ McEwen and set the date for a recall election at their meeting Tuesday night.

"We presented the recall petition that the citizens had presented to our office several weeks ago to the council, along with a certificate stating that we have verified that there are at least the minimum number of valid signatures on it," City Secretary Tom Ferguson said after the meeting.

The petition was collected by the group Concerned Citizens for Big Spring. JoAnn Stalcup, the group's spokesperson, said members had verified at least 971 signatures on the document. According to Ferguson, only 443 were required to force a recall election.

After receiving the petition, the council voted unanimously in an emergency measure to set the election for Nov. 10.

During the meeting, McEwen read a prepared statement indicating that he doesn't intend to resign and plans to stand for the recall election.

"I basically said I'm not resigning and I would like for the council to arrange a recall election as soon as possible," he said following the meeting.

McEwen also said that he doesn't believe the accusation upon which the petition is based constitutes "dereliction of duty" as required for recall of an elected city official.

Check theft warning: Protect against forgery

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

The alleged theft of two check books from a residence home resulted in forgeries of more than $34,000 by the time the victim received his bank statement.

"The suspect took some books of checks from the bottom of the box of checks, which is common for forgery cases," said Sgt. Roger Sweatt, Big Spring Police public information officer.

According to Sweatt, the checks were taken near the bottom of the check box from the victim's residence and the suspect allegedly forged about $34,175 within a month's time.

"The victim did not realize it until he received his bank statement," Sweatt said.

Stealing checks from the middle or end of a check book is quite common in these cases, Sweatt said, because victims don't notice the missing items right away.

There are ways to help protect against forgeries.

"You need to make sure your check books are in a secure place," Sweatt said.

Also be careful when someone is in your house, whether it is someone performing work or someone you do not know well, Sweatt said.

"Be very careful not to let people loose in your house," he said. "This is how some

"Fear God and Give Him Glory" — that's the theme of the two-day Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses planned to take place this weekend in Big Spring.

The event, which is expected to draw about 2,500

Spanish-speaking delegates to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, begins at 9:55 a.m. Saturday and will end around 4 p.m. Sunday, said local presiding overseer Eliseo Gamboa.

"We have lots of people come in," he said. "This town is going to get a work-out!"

Present at the all-Spanish event will be district overseer Simon Villarreal and circuit overseer Fernando Doreste. Doreste oversees 21 congregations in the local circuit, which includes Lamesa, Abilene, San Angelo, Fort Stockton, Pecos, Kermit, Odessa, Midland and Sweetwater as well as Big Spring. Villarreal oversees the district which includes about 20 circuits, including the local one.

Gamboa said the public is welcome to attend the program.

"It's strictly Bible talks and Bible counseling," he said, adding that there will be an opportunity Saturday for new members who want to be baptized to do so.

Some of the Bible talk topics include "Draw Ever Closer to Those You Love," "Fear Jehovah, Not Men," "Fear God and Keep His Commandments" and "Dedication and Baptism."

Sunday at 1:30 p.m., Villarreal will present the main address, entitled "Keep on Walking in the Fear of Jehovah."

The theme for the event was chosen by the Jehovah's Witness headquarters in Brooklyn, Gamboa said.

"Every convention has a theme," he said. "It's set by the organization in Brooklyn so that we're united on what we're going to teach."

Gamboa said the circuit holds conventions twice a year, the two-day event in October and a one-day event in April.

Gamboa thanked the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, the Convention and Visitors Bureau and local media for their help in arranging and publicizing the event.

H-E-B grocery store provided the food McCutcheon used for the on-site cooking demonstration while Culligan Water Conditioning provided water used to wash the dishes.

Gaze Crystal Kitchen and Ace Hardware provided some of the appliances used during the event and Elrod's Furniture provide the on-stage sitting area where four participants, who won a drawing at the beginning of the show, sat.

Valverde said the Chamber had many volunteers including the Howard College Diplomats, Loretta Cook, Angela Smith, Terri Johansen, Lee Ann Bruton, Eve Nieto and Meredith Nieto.

Retired and Service Volunteer Program members helped stuff the goody bags handed out during the event that included recipes and coupons from national sponsors as well as gift certificates from local merchants and a Taste of Home cookbook.

"The goody bags will be on sell for $5 at the chamber," Valverde said.

The Taste of Home Cooking School was sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, KBST and the city of Big Spring.

people make their living." Leave off your driver's license number, phone number or address on your checks so sales clerks have to ask you for your identification, Sweatt recommended.

"It may take a little longer, but in the long run it can protect you," Sweatt said.

Sweatt also warns of cases where a suspect has taken bank numbers from statements thrown in the trash and made personalized checks with computer software sold in stores.

The department is working with several convenience stores on "Operation Thumb Print," where customers using a check to purchase goods leave a thumb print on the check.

"It's an inkless fingerprint pad, so it won't get on your clothes," Sweatt said.

Police have been able to make some cases using the thumb print, and the program is used as one way to help cut down fraud.

Forgeries impact the whole community, Sweatt said.

"Forgery victimizes all of us," he said. "This may be taken out of my account, but the store is out that money. The stores will not take the loss and just forget it. They will raise their prices."

derelict in his duty because of his "insensitive refusal to recognize or consider the citizens' adamant opposition to the $60,000 per year (salary and benefits) position of airport manager."

The Concerned Citizens for Big Spring have said they feel that the new position of full-time manager for the McMahon-Wrinkle Airport is unnecessary and wasteful because they believe the current management is doing an adequate job.

McEwen, a staunch supporter of the position, has said that having a full-time manager is vital for the airport's continued success and expansion.

The mayor said at the meeting that, although he believes its allegations do not constitute dereliction of duty, he will not challenge the petition in the courts.

"There are some 900 people in the city who cared enough to sign the petition," he said. "In my opinion, (the recall election is) something we need to do to see how the people feel on this issue."

The council also approved an emergency measure setting the pay rate for the election judge and clerks for the recall election.

According to the ordinance, each judge or clerk will be paid $6 per hour. In addition, the judge, who delivers the election returns will be paid $25 for that service.

The judge both for the election and for early voting will be Shirley White. Delores Pearce will serve as an alternate judge.

In other business, the council:

- Tabled specifications for new laptop computers for the Police Department.

Some of the council members expressed the belief that the specifications were too vague in stating simply "Intel 800 MHz or faster" without specifying a type of processor, such as Pentium IV or Celeron. Councilman Chuck Cawthon also expressed concern that the specs simply called for the computers to have a "video card" without specifying a type or power of video card.

Kerrville PO closed after scare

KERRVILLE (AP) — The anthrax fear is here: The Central Texas post office was closed all day Tuesday after postal workers found a suspicious white powder on the premises.

The powder was found about 9 a.m. Tuesday at the U.S. Postal Service facility in Kerrville, said police Lt. Danny Cortez.

Federal agents descended on the scene, impounded all of the mail in the office and carted it to Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio for analysis. The results are expected Wednesday afternoon or Thursday, Cortez said.

Tests of five postal workers and a Kerrville police officer found that they hadn't been exposed to anthrax. They were placed on antibiotics as a precaution, Cortez said.

Hazardous cargo called threat

DALLAS (AP) — Shippers of hazardous cargo, identified as a possible terrorist target since attacks on the East Coast, are getting increased supervision by law officers in Texas who want to derail any criminal plans and reinforce trucking safety.

The intensified supervision involves agencies at the local, state and federal level.

Dallas Police Department supervisors have talked with all officers about regulations covering hazardous cargo routes. Officers on the department's 12-person team of truck inspectors also are watching for unusual activity, Lt. John Branton said.

Texas has a vast number of state highways and a high volume of hazardous cargo shipments, making attention to security important.

In one year, for example, one gasoline company runs 165,000 loads of fuel through Texas.

North Texas has specified routes that keep hazardous cargo from the urban centers of Dallas and Fort Worth.

Across Texas, state and federal officials several weeks ago started visiting about 1,900 hazardous materials shippers. The Texas Department of Public Safety and the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration began the effort on the advice of U.S. Transportation Secretary Norman Mineta.

No specific threats have been identified, law enforcement officials have said.

New rules tighten bus security

HOUSTON (AP) — Front seats on Greyhound buses are off-limits to passengers under new security rules set by the Texas transportation carrier.

Executives of Greyhound Lines made the change this week in response to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks and the assault of a bus driver on Oct. 3.

Signs on buses that used to ask passengers not to distract the driver now warn them to stay behind yellow lines or face possible prosecution.

Exceptions to the front-seat rule will be made for children traveling alone and for Greyhound employees, said Kristin Parsley, a spokeswoman for the Dallas-based carrier.

She said the changes are "a temporary solution" to protect drivers.

"No bus manufacturer creates an enclosed area for the driver. That would be the long-term solution," Parsley told the Houston Chronicle in Wednesday's editions.

Border arrests sharply down since Sept. 11

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The number of illegal entrants arrested in the nation's hottest point for border crossers has dropped sharply.

The numbers already were declining prior to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks that led to extremely heightened security along the southern border as well as throughout the nation.

Since then, arrests have dropped back even more sharply, the Border Patrol said this week.

Illegal entrant arrests are down 63 percent this month in southeastern Arizona.

Between Oct. 1 and Oct. 22, there were 7,995 illegal entrant apprehensions across the Border Patrol's Tucson sector, down from 21,797 in the same period a year ago. The sector includes all of southern Arizona except Yuma County.

At Douglas, the busiest illegal crossing point into the United States, there were 2,619 arrests, down 67 percent from the same period the year before.

Along all of the Southwest border, arrests of illegal entrants since Oct. 1 have dropped 54 percent in comparison with a year ago.

Confidence in Mexican President Vicente Fox, the U.S. Border Patrol's tightening of the border and the downturn in the U.S. economy were already slowing the immigrant flow prior to Sept. 11. Apprehensions had dropped 25 percent in the fiscal year which ended Sept. 30.

The INS moved 100 agents on Sunday from the U.S. southern border, including some from New Mexico and west Texas, to ports of entry on the Canadian border.

Nicole Chulick, an INS spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., said there were 334 Border Patrol agents stationed along the Canadian border and more than 9,000 along the Mexican border.

Chulick would not disclose whether Tucson sector agents were among them.

Doug Mosier, spokesman for the Border Patrol's El Paso and New Mexico sector, said some agents from his sector were among those being deployed.

Student run over by bus after driver kicked him off

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston school bus driver has been suspended after he ejected a student from the bus and then ran over the boy.

The driver's report indicated that he pulled over and ordered the student off the bus because of bad behavior, said Bonnie Russell, general manager of transportation for the Houston Independent School District.

The driver said the student, Micheal Fuller II, was on the sidewalk when he began to pull back into traffic after a mirror check.

As he was making his way back into traffic, the driver said he noticed in the mirror that the boy was hanging from a window of the bus and then he fell. The dual-tire bus then ran over the boy.

The 14-year-old Lamar High School student remains in Ben Taub Hospital, recovering from his injuries in the Oct. 15 accident.

Russell said school district policy does not authorize a driver to suspend a student's bus-riding privileges.

The driver has been suspended until the investigation is complete. The driver, whose name wasn't released, has been an HISD driver for 14 years, district officials said in Wednesday's edition of the Houston Chronicle.

Houston police did not cite the driver.

The boy's parents said their son's pelvis was fractured in four places and his bowel was punctured.

"His first concern was whether he would walk again," Micheal Fuller Sr. said Tuesday at the hospital, where his son is in the pediatric intensive care unit.

Russell said some of the students were rowdy when they got on the bus at Lamar, prompting the driver to ask a campus official to warn them about proper behavior. Later in the route, Russell said, the driver warned the student several times to behave.

"It doesn't justify what occurred," said the boy's mother, Lanessa Fuller.

Experts: Texas ready for bioterrorism, attack unlikely

DALLAS (AP) — Texas is prepared to deal with a bioterrorism attack, although it's much less likely to happen here than in states with more densely populated areas, several experts say.

Biological attacks are much more successful in cities where large masses of people are constantly exposed to others in cramped subways and close living quarters. Texas' urban areas are much more sprawling.

Dallas has about 2,500 people per square mile, compared with New York City's 66,800, said Kathleen Delaney, said medical director of the emergency department at Dallas' Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Delaney and other health experts gave presentations on bioterrorism Tuesday night at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Foundation's public forum, intended to calm hysteria generated by anthrax mailings on the East Coast.

About 300 people attended to ask questions ranging from whether Osama bin Laden can be rehabilitated to how to tell coffee creamer from white powder containing anthrax. Others worried about the state's supply of antibiotics.

"Antibiotics are not the problem," said Robert Haley, chief of epidemiology at UT Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas. "For any conceivable scenario, we have plenty."

He said the Centers for Disease Control has stores of antibiotics and vaccines called "pushpacks" that can be shipped to exposure sites within 12 to 24 hours. Parkland Hospital alone has enough antibiotics to treat 10,000 people for the first three days, he said.

PROTECT OUR WATER! VOTE YES ON PROPOSITION 19!

In the November 6th constitutional amendment election, we have an opportunity to continue protecting our most vital natural resource -- our water -- and help guarantee future access to adequate water supplies by voting YES on Proposition 19.

Proposition 19 authorizes the issuance of general obligation bonds to enable the Texas Water Development Board to provide loans to communities across Texas for much needed water-related projects like new water towers and wells, as well as water and wastewater treatment facilities.

Consider the following:

- Texas' population is expected to double to almost 40 million by 2050;
- Projected demand for water is expected to increase 18 percent over the next 50 years; an increase of more than 900 billion gallons of water;
- Over the next 50 years, we will need $108.6 billion to improve Texas' water-related infrastructure.

"If our children and our children's children are to enjoy the same access to clean water that we enjoy today, we must plan ahead now."

OUR VIEWS

Teams are source of pride for us

It has been said that good things come to those who wait. That adage clearly applies to coach Traci Pierce and her Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team.

The Lady Steers will bring an end to a lengthy playoff drought Thursday night when they take on Dumas' Lady Demons in a Class 4A bi-district game at Lubbock Monterey High School's gymnasium.

Not since 1985, when the Lady Steers were still competing at the Class 5A level, has Big Spring qualified for bi-district volleyball play.

At the close of last season, many including Pierce, believed the Lady Steers would be a lock for a playoff berth this year. Big Spring, after all, would have five of six starters returning from a team that narrowly missed out on the postseason party in 2000.

But when the current campaign began, the Lady Steers had all but been written off by most observers — a series of circumstances having depleted the Big Spring fold to the point where only one starter returned and one other player with varsity experience could be called upon.

Instead of folding their tents and admitting that bad luck had robbed them of a chance for a stellar season, a younger, less-experienced Lady Steers team took its lumps early, kept working harder and became District 4-4A's Cinderellas by earning a 15-10, 15-13 win over Plainview's Lady Bulldogs on Saturday, claiming the league's third-place playoff berth behind San Angel Lake View and Andrews.

Patience has also been a virtue for Big Spring's Steers tennis team.

While the BSHS volleyball team was claiming its postseason berth in Plainview Saturday afternoon, the Steers netters capped an unbeaten run through the District 4-4A team tennis campaign with a 15-4 win over Frenship's Tigers.

Although the Steers' tennis fortunes haven't been plagued with as many years of frustration as the volleyball team has endured, it has been a couple of years since Big Spring has sent an entry to regional team tennis play.

Having suffered through one close loss after another a year ago, coach Sarah Corse and her Steers turned those frustrations into a perfect run in 4-4A play. As a result, they'll enter this weekend's Region I, Class 4A tournament in Wichita Falls as this district's No. 1 seed.

We here at the Herald want to take this opportunity to congratulate both Big Spring teams in their superlative accomplishments this season. They have represented their school and our community well and we wish them the best of luck this weekend.

All of you have indeed made us proud.

Security at airports still a huge problem

Security screening at U.S. airports remains a huge problem, and Congress may be about to make it worse. The Senate two weeks ago unanimously passed an anti-terrorism bill that would make all airport baggage screeners federal employees. But House Republican leaders oppose the measure — for good reason. It would create a new federal bureaucracy, without insuring more safety. But the Republican approach has a major loophole as well.

The biggest issue with respect to baggage screeners — indeed, with all workers who have access to secure areas in the airport — is that they haven't been properly screened themselves. Last week, the Federal Aviation Administration attempted to deal with this security gap by ordering that one million airport workers undergo security checks. But that will be difficult, if not impossible, for many current workers who are foreign-born.

National Public Radio reported last week, for example, that 87 percent of baggage screeners at Dulles Airport are non-U.S. citizens. As a frequent Dulles passenger, I've often wondered why none of the people screening my bags were American. And, even before Sept. 11, I worried that nearly all of them appeared to hail from countries that support terrorism. Most of the women wear Muslim garb, from simple head scarves and modest suits to the more elaborate chador that covers them head to foot. Although they speak English to passengers, the workers often speak to each other in their native tongue, making it impossible to know if they're even paying attention to the job at hand.

Every single one of these workers may be a law-abiding immigrant who loves America — though I've been struck by the absence of pro-American symbols among these folks, even as their airport co-workers display red, white and blue ribbons, American flag label pins, and other patriotic garb. If I were a Muslim immigrant right now, I'd be anxious, in its time of need, to demonstrate solidarity with the country that provided me a better life and freedom.

But the real problem isn't how foreign-born security workers dress or whether they wave the American flag. The problem is that we know almost nothing about them — or their American-born counterparts, for that matter. The company that hires Dulles security personnel, Atlanta-based Argencbright Security Inc., has been fined $1.5 million recently for failing to run background checks and for hiring convicted felons. But even companies that obey FAA guidelines may not be able to provide us the needed information.

It's extremely difficult to run a thorough background check on someone born overseas. We don't have the resources or the contacts to track down whether the information an immigrant supplies on a job application is complete and accurate. In some cases, we don't even know if the names they use are their own. According to news reports, many of the people being held in the aftermath of the terrorist attack on our nation are airport personnel who were illegally in the United States or who provided false information when they got their jobs.

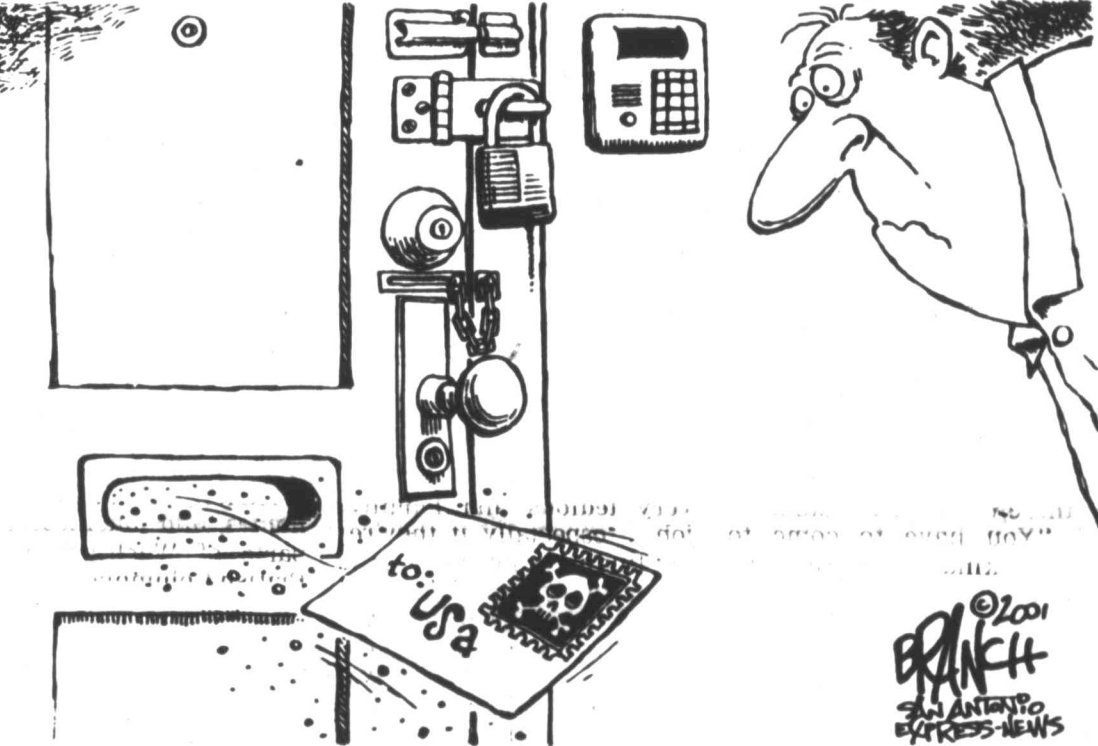

It makes sense that in a job so fundamental to our security we hire only people whose identity, work history — and, yes, loyalty — we can trust.

The one advantage the Senate bill offers is that it will ensure that only U.S. citizens are hired. Federal law currently proscribes non-citizens from being hired by the government, unless the agency seeks a waiver.

But it's also more difficult to fire federal employees or change their duties as needed. Other countries, including Israel, with far more stringent security requirements in place at their airports, have moved away from using government workers in airport security. Government workers proved ineffective at stemming hijacking and other terrorist incidents in the 1970s and '80s, so many European countries and Israel have now moved to hire private contractors to do the job.

But if we're going to hire people through the private sector, it makes sense that we restrict these jobs. In the interests of national security, only U.S. citizens should be allowed to work at jobs in secure areas of U.S. airports. We may need to amend the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act if we want to restrict these jobs. The act currently forbids private employers from making citizenship a job requirement. House Republicans should make sure they plug this loophole in any bill they pass.

Unofficial border crossings

Jim Glendinning of Alpine writes guide books about the Texas mountain country. His latest one is called Mexico: Unofficial Border Crossings From the Big Bend and Copper Canyon.

Jim is certainly qualified to write a book about exploring unique places. He left his native Scotland to literally travel the world with a backpack. He did that for a number of years and stopped when he got to Alpine 15 years ago.

"It's what I was searching for," says Jim. "It's got everything: friendly people who are alert and active, beautiful scenery and a worldliness and sophistication that surprises some people. The sense of freedom here is unsurpassed."

They often have more in common with their immediate neighbors across the border than with their countrymen in the interior. After all, they share the same environment, seasons and food, even if the economic and cultural differences are great.

He mentions three crossings from the Big Bend Park: Paso Lajitas, just across from Lajitas; Santa Elena, just across from Castolon, right in the middle of the park and Boquillas, on the eastern end of the park across from Rio Grande Village. The crossings are made by small rowboats. $2 round-trip.

"You can step back several years into a different world just by stepping into a boat and crossing without any interference of customs or immigration on either side of the river."

Paso Lajitas is nothing like the resort city on the Texas side.

"You find a dusty main street with abandoned vehicles, wandering chickens and straying burros. Two restaurants serve much the same food and exactly the same beer. You can book a room at Ramon's grocery store for a stay in small tourist rooms on the hillside above the store."

Jim's book points out that Santa Elena, population 300, has four restaurants, rooms and a museum.

"A blue sign near the Canon Restaurant advertises cuartos (rooms) with a shared bath, sheets and towels for five to 10 dollars a bed."

The Buzzard's Roost in Boquillas is one interesting place he found.

"It's a bed and breakfast where for 10 or 15 dollars you can listen to people playing guitars for most of the night and share in this unusual border culture."

The village of San Carlos is 18 miles south of Paso Lajitas. A two-hour pickup ride over rough terrain gets you there. In San Carlos you find a rain forest with dripping mountain springs and a deluxe bed and breakfast called La Gloria.

The book tries to make the border invisible.

"It presents the idea of treating our neighbors across the Rio Grande as real neighbors and not as foreigners from a distant culture."

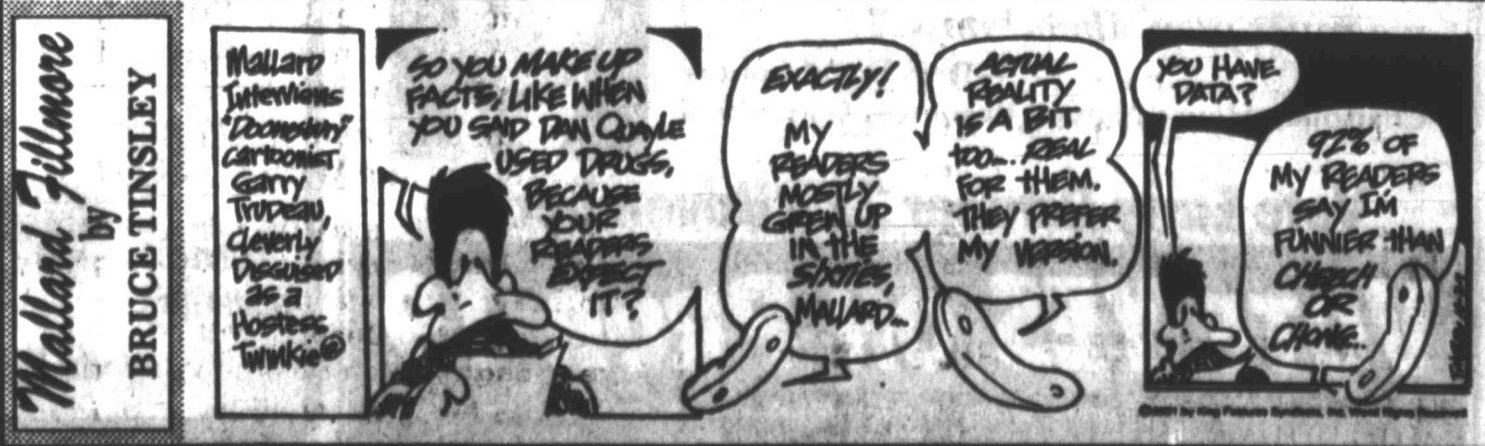

The book is available at Alpine Company Press, P.O. Box 1513, Alpine, 79830 (866/837-1686). The website address is thealpinecompany.com.

Postal official warns no guarantees, but advises mail risk slim

WASHINGTON (AP) — With cases of anthrax growing, the nation's postmaster general warned Americans Wednesday there are no guarantees the mail delivered to their homes is safe but he stressed that the risks to them are slim. The anthrax scare widened to include the White House.

"We're asking people to handle mail very carefully," Postmaster General John Potter told ABC's "Good Morning America." "People have to be aware of everything in their day-to-day life, and certainly, mail in our system is threatened right now."

"There are no guarantees that that mail is safe," he said.

Acknowledging that the public health system is being challenged in unprecedented ways, Surgeon General David Satcher told NBC's

"Today": "I'm worried that we're being attacked and we don't understand the attack."

Asked about the particular risk to postal workers, Satcher said the government should consider vaccinating "anyone who works in a high-risk area."

Federal doctors are working around the clock to determine how many people with suspicious symptoms really have anthrax — in addition to 12 confirmed cases. Three people have died from the disease.

Three more people who had been in the "hot zone" at Washington's central postal facility were hospitalized overnight with flu-like symptoms but anthrax infection had not been confirmed, said Mike Hall, a spokesman for Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md. President Bush declared the White House safe after workers at a mail processing center two miles away at Bolling Air Force Base discovered a small concentration of anthrax spores on machinery that sorts letters headed for the executive mansion.

Investigators say it is possible that some of the White House mail picked up a few spores as it went through a central Washington mail facility where two workers died from anthrax and at least two others have become seriously ill.

"I'm confident that when I come to work tomorrow, I'll be safe," Bush said Tuesday. "I don't have anthrax."

The disclosure came as the administration pledged more aggressive testing of the anthrax trail — and that antibiotics would be given at the first sign to anyone else, especially postal workers, who may have been exposed to anthrax-contaminated mail.

Postal facilities in Washington and New Jersey known to have processed one or more anthrax-tainted letters were closed after environmental testing found the germs lurking inside.

"We're going to err on the side of caution in making sure people are protected," Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson said.

Potter was asked if mail could contaminate people at their homes, and said, "Theoretically it could, but it hasn't yet." He stressed that "the chances are very, very slim, but again, people should do things that are safe and when they handle mail they should wash their hands."

Potter said the Postal Service was working to provide new protection for its workers, including gloves and special masks. "We're going to start on the East Coast, where the threat is, and move through the rest of the country," he said on CNN.

At a northern Virginia hospital, the two seriously ill postal workers were stable and breathing on their own. That's a very good sign, their physician, Dr. Susan Matcha of Kaiser Permanente, told The Associated Press.

saying she was cautiously optimistic.

Matcha was treating the two not only with the now-famous drug Cipro but with two additional medications — clindamycin and Rifampin — in hopes the extra treatment could better battle both the anthrax bacteria and the toxin those germs are pumping into the patients' bodies.

Pentagon vows to flush out Afghan fighters in residential areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is vowing to flush out any Afghan fighters who hide in residential areas to escape aerial attacks even as it acknowledges a few of its bombs accidentally struck civilian sites.

And a Pakistani militant group confirmed Wednesday that 22 of its fighters, including several senior commanders, were killed in Tuesday in the bombing of a house, the deadliest strike known so far against a group linked to Osama bin Laden.

U.S. jets kept up heavy night-and-day bombardments around the Afghan capital, Kabul, with huge explosions Wednesday in the direction of Taliban military sites on the outskirts.

Pakistani officials said they think Taliban infiltra-tors were responsible for the weekend shooting attack on U.S. helicopters in Pakistan.

Rear Adm. John Stufflebeem said Tuesday that forces will go after Afghan fighters who hide in residential areas.

"There is not an intention to open or widen (air) attacks in the cities," Stufflebeem said.

"We will find other ways ... to get at those who might cowardly decide to hide in residential neighborhoods," he said in a reference to possible use of commandos or other ground forces.

He said the two-week-old bombing campaign also was aiming at roads, trucks, petroleum facilities, food and other supplies that Afghanistan's Taliban leaders need to stay in power, but that choking them off "is going to be a very long and slow process."

His warning to Al-Qaida and Taliban troops came as the Defense Department acknowledged stray bombs hit two more civilian areas in Afghanistan.

Late Sunday afternoon, a Navy F/A-18 Hornet dropped a 1,000-pound bomb in an open field near a senior citizens home outside the western city of Herat, Pentagon spokeswoman Victoria Clarke said. She said she did not know how many people were killed.

"As we always say, we regret any loss of civilian life," Clarke said. "We take great care in our targeting process to avoid civilian casualties."

The Taliban had said a strike Monday hit a Herat hospital and killed at least 100 people.

The intended target was a vehicle storage building at an army barracks approximately 300 feet from the home. Preliminary indications are that the weapon's guidance system malfunctioned, she said.

Earlier Sunday, Clarke said, a Navy F-14 Tomcat dropped two 500-pound bombs that mistakenly hit a residential area northwest of Kabul. She said she did not know how many people may have been hurt or killed.

In Karachi, Pakistan, Muzamal Shah, a senior official of the banned Harkat ul-Mujaen, said a U.S. bomb struck a house Tuesday while 22 fighters from his group were meeting there to "devise a plan for fighting against America."

Harakat ul-Mujahedein, or "Movement of the Holy Warriors," is one of the largest militant organizations fighting Indian soldiers in the disputed Kashmir region, was declared a terrorist organization by United States years ago, and was among 27 groups and individuals whose assets were frozen by the United States, Pakistan and other countries after the terrorist attacks.

Many of the strikes Tuesday were on Taliban positions north of Kabul, where so-called northern alliance forces are preparing for a possible push to the Afghan capital.

Pakistan, a key Muslim ally in the anti-terrorism fight, has opposed allowing the alliance to seize Kabul. Pakistan's president, Gen. Pervez Musharraf, said Tuesday he feared "that maybe atrocities (could) start in Kabul" if the alliance took the city.

Pentagon also disclosed new details about an incident during Saturday's commando raids into Afghanistan, in which an airfield was seized and documents taken from a Taliban compound.

An Army MH-47 special operations helicopter struck an unknown barrier while it was taking off from Afghanistan after the raid, shearing off its front landing gear, Clarke said. It continued the flight without incident and returned safely to an undisclosed base.

And the Pentagon also disclosed that on Saturday a U.S. helicopter that had picked up a crippled Army Black Hawk helicopter came under hostile fire while refueling at a Pakistani airfield.

DNA identifies Trade Center victims

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical officials have identified the first victims from the World Trade Center attacks based solely on DNA matches, a process that has involved toothbrushes, hairbrushes and other belongings of those lost in the wreckage.

Eight people were identified after DNA evidence was compared with samples gathered from victims' families after the Sept. 11 attacks, Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said Tuesday.

Marion DeBlase, 44, whose husband James DeBlase, 45, was lost in the attack, gave officials his hairbrush and toothbrush.

The family also submitted cheek swabs from their three sons, and from James DeBlase's parents in hopes there would be a match.

"You have to come to some kind of closure somehow as each day goes by, but it's very difficult to come to terms with it when you have nothing to hold on to," Marion DeBlase said.

She last spoke to her husband just after a hijacked airliner smashed into Tower One of the trade center, where he worked on the 106th floor as a bond broker for Cantor Fitzgerald. The company lost nearly 700 employees in the attack.

DeBlase said her recent visit to the smoldering pile of debris did not give her hope.

"I assume that this is a very tedious and lengthy job ... especially if they're not finding whole persons," she said. "I would love to think that I would have something, but it's horrible to think that's the point we have come to."

The terrorist attack claimed another victim Monday when a Brooklyn woman struck by flaming jet fuel on Sept. 11 succumbed to her injuries. Jeannieann Maffeo, 40, had been waiting for a bus on West Street when the plane struck the tower.

NW windstorm topples trees, cuts power

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Wind up to 60 mph raked the Pacific Northwest, blowing down trees and cutting electricity to about 39,000 homes and businesses in parts of Washington and British Columbia.

Part of a street was closed for a time Tuesday because of flying debris from a construction site, and a seawall walkway and park paths were closed for six hours in Vancouver, British Columbia, as the wind blew down 25 trees.

Thousands of customers lost power in the northwest corner of Washington and southwestern British Columbia, including more than 27,000 in and around Vancouver and Vancouver Island.

Among the casualties early Tuesday on Washington's Whidbey Island were scarecrows erected for a Halloween contest in Coupeville, said Rita Kuller, president of the Central Whidbey Chamber of Commerce.

"There are quite a few of them that are asunder," she said.

Search for assassins leads to bloody clash in West Bank

BEIT RIMA, West Bank (AP) — Israeli forces searching for the assassins of a Cabinet minister entered a West Bank village Wednesday and battled with armed Palestinians. At least six Palestinians were killed in one of the bloodiest clashes in more than a year of fighting.

During the raid on Beit Rima, Israeli forces arrested 10 Palestinians, two of them suspected in the Oct. 17 killing of Israeli Tourism Minister Rehavam Zeevi, the Israeli military said.

The new incursion came despite President Bush's request that Israel withdraw "as quickly as possible" from Palestinian areas it has seized since Zeevi's slaying.

Israeli forces entered Beit

Rima after midnight and encountered armed resistance, the Israeli army said. Israeli military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said six Palestinians were killed, but Palestinian officials said the toll was at least nine.

The military said all the Palestinian dead and wounded were connected to militant Palestinian groups — including the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which claimed responsibility for the assassination; the Islamic militant group, Hamas; and Tanzim, a militia affiliated with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat's Fatah.

The Israeli army commander in the West Bank, Brig. Gen. Gershon Yitzhak, said the militants who assassinated Zeevi lived in the village. A total 10 Palestinians were arrested in the assault, he said. Army spokesman Lt. Col. Olivier Rafowicz said two were linked to the Zeevi killing.

The Palestinian Cabinet issued a statement charging Israel with carrying out an "ugly massacre" in Beit Rima, saying that nine Palestinians were killed and dozens wounded. The statement called for world and U.S. pressure on Israel to "immediately put an end to this continuous aggression and offer protection for Palestinian civilians."

Israeli forces also entered another West Bank village, Deir Ghassaneh, in what the military called anti-terrorist operations.

In other towns held by Israeli forces, four Palestinians were killed Wednesday. Three were ambushed by Israeli soldiers in Tulkarem, Palestinians said.

Just outside Jerusalem, in the West Bank town of Abu Dis, a Palestinian was shot and killed by Israeli soldiers, doctors said.

Texas Bluebonnet Awards provides long book list to choose from Karen McIntyre, Children's Librarian is this week's guest columnist.

The Texas Bluebonnet Awards were started in 1979 to encourage Texas children to read.

They are awarded to authors living in the United States. The books can be both fiction and nonfiction.

Only titles published within the three years prior to the release of the master list are considered. Twenty titles are picked every year.

The library receives these books about March, so if you haven't read this year's selection, now is the time.

Kate DiCamillo's book "Because of Winn-Dixie" is one of the better Bluebonnets this year.

It's the story of a young girl who has lost her mother and has moved with her father, a pastor, to a new town.

Anyone who has moved a lot will tell you sometimes making new friends isn't easy.

But Opal gets lucky when she shops in the local Winn-Dixie and takes home more than just apples.

She saves a dog, who turns out to be the best thing that has ever happened to Opal.

Young and old alike will enjoy this book.

This book is also a Newbery Honor book for 2000.

Three children are spending summer at their great aunt Mehitabel's house on remote Lonely Island in Rebecca Rupp's book "The Dragon of Lonely Island."

The children have no idea what surprises the island holds for them.

The dragon's memory encompasses 20,000 years, so children of the present will meet children of the past and together they will work to save the dragon.

People enjoying fantasy and dragons will like sharing this book with their children.

Another child who must suffer through a move is Morgy in "Morgy Makes His Move" by Maggie Lewis.

Can a child born in California survive Massachusetts? Not only must he learn to live with snow, now he also has to learn a new sport.

Is hockey really that much like soccer?

Discover how Morgy finds himself and learns to enjoy all the new changes in his life.

Andrew Clements' book "The Landry News" finds Cara Landry in a bit of a dilemma.

As a budding journalist she feels she must write the news as she sees it, but does that include costing a man his job?

Especially if that man happens to be a well liked teacher.

But is he well liked because of his teaching style or because he doesn't teach at all?

Cara's problem is one everyone faces at some time; see if her solution is what you would do.

These four along with sixteen other Bluebonnet books may be found on Shelf 51 of the Library.

Having read all of these books I can tell you it will be a hard job picking the winner.

From "Bud, Not Buddy" to "So You Want to be President" these are super reads to share and discuss.

Remember every book is better when shared with a friend!

Howard County Library is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday.

Children's story time usually is every Wednesday at 10 a.m.

The library will be closed Friday Oct. 26 for staff training.

Regular hours will resume on Saturday.

Stereotypes not appropriate when it comes to being a hero

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mark Bingham was a strapping 220-pound, 6-foot-5 rugby player who had fought off muggers on the street and run with the bulls in Spain before taking on the terrorists on United Flight 93.

One of the heroes to emerge from America's biggest tragedy, Bingham has also become a symbol of hope to the nation's gays — a man whose sexual orientation made no difference when lives were at stake.

"I think Mark was always my personal hero," said Paul Holm, Bingham's former partner of six years. "We didn't run around waving gay flags, but we were very proud to be gay and if people asked, he told them."

Flight 93 was en route from Newark, N.J., to San Francisco on Sept. 11 when Bingham, 31, called his mother saying they had been hijacked by three men who said they had a bomb. Bingham, sitting within reach of the cockpit, is believed to be one of those who fought the terrorists and caused the plane to crash into a Pennsylvania field instead of its apparent target in Washington.

Now, liberals and conservatives alike invoke Bingham's name as an example of America's strength and spirit.

California's top politicians presented Holm with an American flag, and San Francisco Supervisor Mark Leno wants to build a Bingham memorial in the city's predominantly gay Castro District.

"If he knew that lives were at stake, I'm convinced with every bone in my body that he would have jumped into action," Holm said. "He was physically fit and strong and guns and weapons didn't bother him."

He fought off muggers in New York and San Francisco, wrestling a gun away despite being hit on the head. Over the summer, he was gored while running with the bulls in Spain.

Bingham, who lived most of his life in Northern California but moved to New York not long before the terrorist attacks, also was a proven leader. He had coached his gay rugby team, the San Francisco Fog, was president of his fraternity at the University of California at Berkeley and started his own public relations firm, the Bingham Group, in San Francisco and New York.

"He was a true competitor, and it went from everything from Scrabble to card games," Holm said.

Recently, after his rugby team was accepted into the straight California Rugby League, he e-mailed a pep talk to his teammates.

"We have the chance to be role models for other gay folks who wanted to play sports, but never felt good enough or strong enough. More importantly, we have the chance to show the other teams in the league that we are as good as they are," Bingham wrote.

"Gay men weren't always wallflowers waiting on the sideline. We have the opportunity to let these other athletes know that gay men were around all along — on their little league teams, in their classes, being their friends. This is a great opportunity to change a lot of people's minds."

Among gays, reactions to Bingham's death are a mix of pride and sadness, frustration and hope.

"I wish people could just understand that wherever they go, they will meet us. It's just very sad to me that it takes a brave young man like Mark Bingham to lose his life so horribly for people to begin to understand that," said Cleve Jones, a gay activist who created the AIDS quilt in San Francisco.

Jones choked back tears as he talked about a soldier boyfriend being shipped out to the Middle East. He said Bingham's heroism should serve as the catalyst that ends the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy on gays.

"I think this would be a very good time for the president to put his name on a piece of paper and end this stupid policy," Jones said. "We are all needed."

The attacks have helped lead to some political change: Republican New York Gov. George Pataki decided that partners of gays killed in violent crimes can get benefits from the New York Crime Victims Board.

"Do you think for a minute that one of those men or women fleeing the towers trying to save themselves... do you think one of them thought for a minute, 'I wonder what the sexual orientation of that fireman is?'" Pataki said. "This is still the greatest country in the world, but we can make it a little better. We can learn a little bit from Sept. 11."

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a supporter of "don't ask, don't tell," wants Bingham and other Flight 93 passengers to get a Congressional Gold Medal, Congress' highest civilian honor.

Bingham, a Republican, had met McCain briefly and wanted to see him elected president. "I may very well owe my life to Mark and the others," McCain said in a tearful eulogy.

Bingham is not the only gay hero to emerge from the attacks. Nine others killed on Sept. 11 were remembered at a memorial attended by nearly 1,000 people at New York's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual & Transgender Community Center.

For many, the testimonials were a profound counterpoint to suggestions by televangelists that God let the attacks happen because of the influence of gays, feminists, abortionists and others.

"One of the things I found most painful of this whole experience is that the trade center is still smoldering and they're still dragging bodies out and Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson can't do anything but go on TV and blame this on the ACLU and gays and lesbians," Jones said.

Falwell later retracted his remarks.

Bingham's mother, Alice Hogland, said she hopes her son educated others by destroying preconceptions.

"He was a very masculine, crazy kid who left his dirty dishes under the bed and dirty clothes behind the door in the bathroom," she said, laughing. "There was nothing about him that fit into any stereotype of what we perceive of as a gay person, which goes to show you we cannot rely on our stereotypes."

American Indian medicine man faces trial on charges of smuggling bald eagles

SEATTLE (AP) — To his tribe, Terry Antoine is a medicine man with the power to purify eagle feathers for sacred ceremonies.

To the government, he's a black-market peddler of eagle carcasses, allegedly selling them in violation of laws aimed at protecting threatened species.

Antoine was scheduled to go on trial Tuesday for violating the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act in a case that pits the religious rights of American Indians against the government's efforts to protect bald eagles.

Prosecutors say he smuggled eagle carcasses from Canada, then sold or bartered them for cash, blankets, beadwork, jewelry and firearms. Antoine, a member of the Cowichan band of the Salish tribe in British Columbia, faces up to nine years in prison and $45,000 in fines if convicted.

His lawyer, Michael Filipovic of Seattle, has not said how Antoine got the eagle carcasses, but said they all apparently came from Canada and that his client gave them to other tribes for use in religious ceremonies.

Bald eagles, a national symbol, are sacred to Indians.

Their feathers are used by tribes throughout North America to make masks, whistles and medicine bundles used in coming-of-age ceremonies, name-giving rituals and funeral rites.

"It means so much to so many different tribes of people," said John Boyd, a member of the Elwhaklallam tribe west of Port Angeles, Wash. "We pray and you have an eagle feather representative of the bird that can fly the highest and get the closest to the creator."

But only religious practitioners in federally recognized tribes can legally obtain eagles in the United States, and the wait to get them can be up to three years.

Canada, which also has laws protecting eagles, has similar restrictions.

More than 5,000 permit requests are pending at the National Eagle Repository outside Denver, which receives about 1,000 eagles a year from federal officers or citizens who find them dead in the wild.

According to court records, the carcasses of 32 bald eagles and one golden eagle were found in a storage locker Antoine had rented in Fife, Wash., in early 1999, soon after Canadian authorities seized parts from at least 124 eagles in Antoine's home in British Columbia.

Wildlife officers gasp at those numbers, but American Indian advocates question why the government prosecutes people like Antoine.

"It (the system) does not accommodate Native Americans' religion interests in a friendly or supportive manner."

Hambrick, Larrimore become latest Cowboys casualties

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys don't want to waste any more time on players that won't be part of their uncertain future.

Linebacker Darren Hambrick and cornerback Kareem Larrimore, starters known as much for off-the-field problems as their play, were released Tuesday.

"There is a lot involved and I'm not going to go into detail," said Cowboys coach Dave Campo. "We made some decisions to keep them earlier in the year and we felt comfortable with that. And now we feel comfortable with this."

Hambrick was vocally upset after the Cowboys offered him only a fourth-year minimum contract of $512,000 during the offseason. The player reluctantly signed the one-year deal after he got no offers from other teams.

Larrimore, a second-year cornerback who was signed through 2002, missed the start of training camp. He was later suspended for the final preseason game and the regular season opener because of a curfew violation during the team's trip to Mexico City.

The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday that two sources said Larrimore had also recently violated the NFL's substance-abuse program. The newspaper didn't name the sources.

"I wouldn't want to get into that, but that shouldn't be interpreted as a yes or a no," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said when asked about that.

Jones said Hambrick and Larrimore, like third-year receiver and kick returner Wane McGarity released three weeks ago, just didn't fit into the "future of where we wanted to go as a football team."

While McGarity was hampered by injuries and his small size, Hambrick and Larrimore were more directly responsible for the problems they caused the Cowboys.

Hambrick last summer missed two of three minicamps, one before he signed the contract and another after that. That angered Campo, who demoted Hambrick to second-string for the first half of training camp behind rookie Markus Steele.

Before the Mexico City curfew, Larrimore had already been fined by the club at least 10 other times — mainly for being late reporting to camp, practice or meetings.

Larrimore missed the beginning of training camp to be with his pregnant girlfriend in anticipation of labor. He called the coaches to tell them of the reason for his tardiness, but that call came too late.

"There are a variety of things that would come into consideration, not one incident or one thing. It could

A long time in coming...

Lady Steers set to make most of playoffs bid

By JOHN A. MOSELEY
Managing Editor

If patience is a virtue, few could claim to be as virtuous as Big Spring's Lady Steers volleyball team.

The Lady Steers will bring an end to a lengthy playoff drought Thursday night when they take on Dumas' Lady Demons in a Class 4A bi-district game at Lubbock Monterey High School's gymnasium.

Not since 1985, when the Lady Steers were still competing at the Class 5A level, has Big Spring qualified for bi-district volleyball play.

The Lady Steers' best chance since that time, a one-game showdown with Monahans' Lady Lobos with a playoff berth at stake came a cropper eight years ago.

When Traci Pierce took over the reigns of the Lady Steers program as head coach six years ago, she began a deliberate process of rebuilding the program.

There have been a number of frustrations along the way, but Pierce and ever-changing cast of players have methodically trusted that hard work would yield rewards.

And this as the year all that hard work as supposed to pay off.

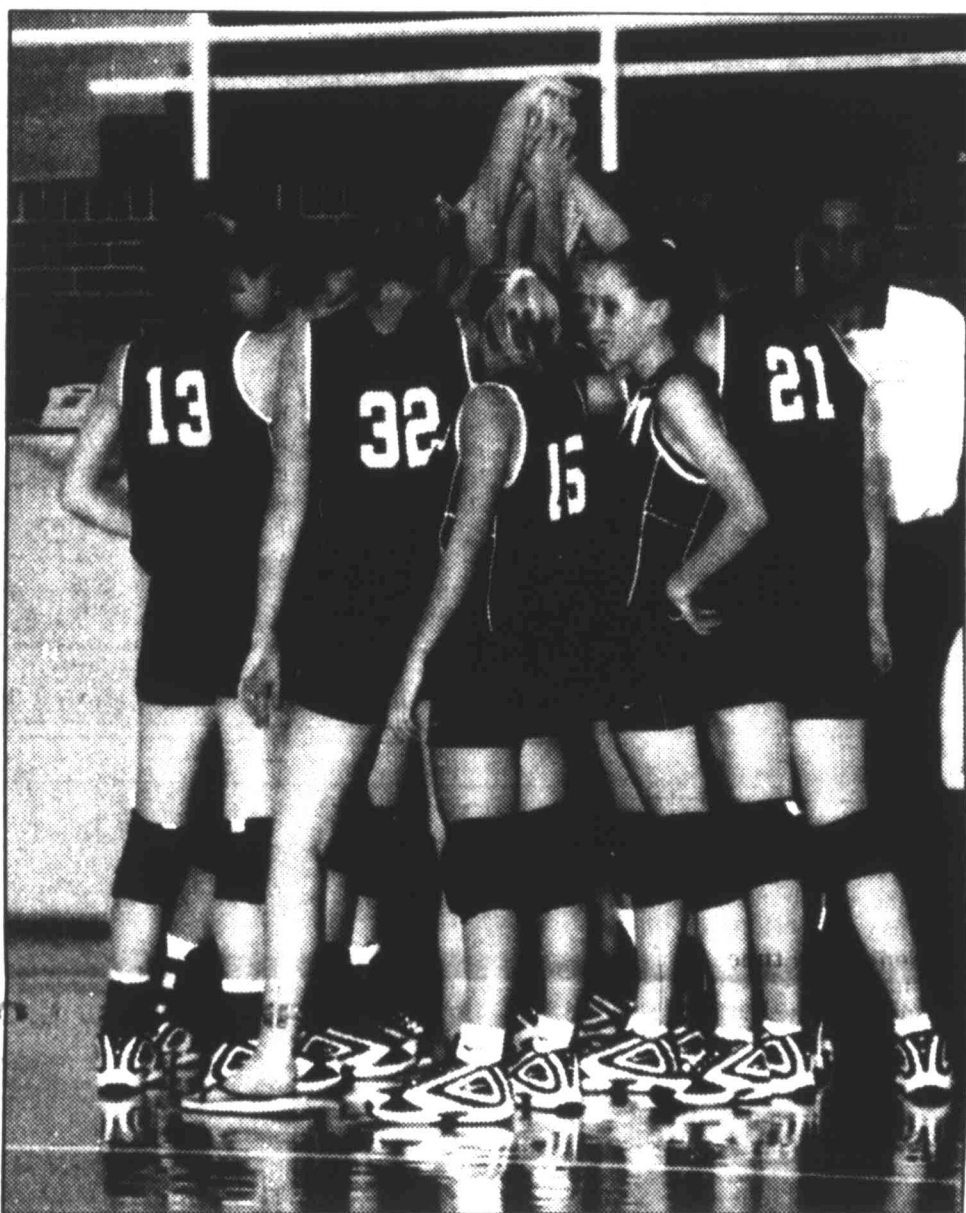

At the close of last season, many including Pierce, believed the Lady Steers would be a lock for a playoff berth this time around.

Big Spring, after all, would have five of six starters returning from a team that narrowly missed out on a postseason berth in 2000.

But when the current campaign began, the Lady Steers had all but been written off by most observers — a series of circumstances having depleted the Big Spring fold to the point where only one starter — sophomore middle hitter LaKenya Wright — returned.

Instead of folding their tents and admitting that bad luck had robbed them of a chance for a stellar season, a younger, less-experienced Lady Steers team took its lumps early, kept working harder and became District 4A's Cinderellas by earning a 15-10, 15-13 win over Plainview's Lady Bulldogs on Saturday, claiming the league's third-place playoff berth behind San Angelo Lake View and Andrews.

"Nobody expected us to do very well," Pierce admitted after putting the Lady Steers through their workout paces Tuesday afternoon. "I asked these kids to step up and play when they weren't really ready to. But we kept switching things around until we found the six or seven people that could really play together and the rest of our kids stepped in to play the roles

Big Spring's Lady Steers prepare to return to the floor following a break in the action during a District 4A game at Steer Gym. The Lady Steers will make their first bi-district playoff appearance in 16 years at 7 p.m. Thursday when they take on Dumas' Lady Demons in the Lubbock Monterey High School gymnasium.

we needed them to play.

"We've had our ups and downs, but we've had a good time," Pierce added.

As a result, Wright was joined by middle hitter Leina Braxton, setters Sterling Burchett and Lindsay Phillips and outside hitters Krystle Long, Courtney Brock and KaRissa Magers to create a core that simply refused to be denied.

The result was a 19-15 season record and a 9-5 finish in district play that included wins in seven of their last nine games.

"These kids deserve a ton of credit," Pierce noted. "They've committed to be as good as they can be by going to summer camps and playing in summer leagues."

"And our junior high coaches deserve a lot of credit for the success we've had this season," she added. "They've made a huge commitment to our program. We couldn't have reached the playoffs without a senior starter if they hadn't."

When the Lady Steers step onto the Monterey gym court Thursday night, Pierce says they'll face a team much like themselves.

"Dumas is good ... they play good solid volleyball," the Lady Steers boss explained. "They look a lot like us. They're not very big ... most of them are 5-foot-8 or 5-foot-9 but are fundamentally sound and compete well."

But a willingness to compete proves to be a key factor in the bi-district playoff, Pierce likes the Lady Steers' chances.

"We were down 11-5 in the second game at Plainview Saturday," Pierce recalled. "We came back to win 15-13. That point when it was 11-5 in their favor was the kind of situation in the past when we always seemed to get down on ourselves. It's hard not to ... you look at the scoreboard and realize that 11 is a lot closer to 15 and you start thinking that it's going to go three games."

"This bunch isn't like that," she explained. "They just refused to lose. And that's what Dumas better be ready for. We're going to give them a battle."

Anderson returning to D-back rotation

PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona manager Bob Brenly wasted little time pulling off his first surprise of the World Series.

Brian Anderson, who lost his spot in the rotation on Aug. 24, will get the nod in the Diamondbacks' first appearance in Yankee Stadium — Game 3 next Tuesday.

Brenly told the left-hander of his decision Tuesday night after the team's workout — which was open to the public.

"It's strange how things work," said Anderson, who has pitched well out of the bullpen in the postseason.

Brenly said right-hander Miguel Batista, the starter in Game 3 in both the division series and the NL championship series, will start Game 4 in New York.

Brenly toyed with the idea of having Randy Johnson start Game 1 instead of Curt Schilling, so the Big Unit would be able to go in Game 5 in Yankee Stadium, where the ballpark dimensions are conducive to left-handed pitching.

But Brenly decided not to change the order that worked so well in the first two rounds of the playoffs, but opted to go with Anderson to put a lefty in the rotation in New York.

"The way the ballpark is configured, obviously it behooves you to have a left-hander on the mound if at all possible," Brenly said.

Anderson recalled the ups and downs of his season.

"I'm in the rotation and a lot of things were expected, then I didn't perform up to my abilities and get taken out of the rotation," he said. "For awhile, I wondered if I'm even going to be a part of the postseason roster. Then all of a sudden the manager pulls you aside and says you're starting the first game in the Bronx in the World Series."

Anderson was 4-9 in the regular season with a 5.20 earned run average. He was moved to the bullpen on Aug. 24 after going 0-3 in six starts. He got two more starts in September because none of the regular starters

One bounce from breakdown, Yankees back in Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Since Derek Jeter grabbed Shane Spencer's throw to nowhere and flipped the ball to the plate to nail Jeremy Giambi, the New York Yankees have been on a pin-striped parade through the playoffs.

The team that looked so old and feeble in losing the first two games to Oakland has won seven of eight, becoming the first winner of four straight pennants since the Yankees of 1960-64 and moving into a World Series matchup with Arizona.

"Sitting on the bench, I saw the ball go over the cutoff man's head," Andy Pettitte said, "and I thought the run was going to score right there. And then Derek came out of nowhere."

Like so many of these moments, they seem like movie scripts, too perfect for reality.

"That," Pettitte said, "was the biggest lift for us."

The three-time defending World Series champions won three in a row against Oakland, ending the Athletics' 17-game home winning streak, and advanced to the ALCS against Seattle.

Then they made the mighty Mariners, the team that tied the major league record of 116 regular-season wins, look like the Devil Rays, taking two games in Safeco Field, winning Game 4 on Alfonso Soriano's dramatic ninth-inning home run and then smoking Seattle 12-3 in Monday night's finale.

Dead dynasty?

Ha!

"They have had so much success that they have got that confidence, and they seem to draw from it," said Mariners manager Lou Piniella, a two-time World Series winner with the Yankees. "They feel that they can win these type of games. I know when I played here in New York, we felt, as a team, as individuals, that we would win big games."

New York beat the regular season's most dominant teams, who combined to win 218 games. Seattle was the first club in 53 years to lead the AL in batting average, fielding and ERA.

Every day brought a different star. Paul O'Neill and Pettitte in the opener, Scott Brosius in Game 2, Bernie Williams and Soriano in Game 4, Williams, David Justice, Pettitte, O'Neill and Tino Martinez in Game 5.

No New York player had more than five RBIs in the series.

That's the way the Yankees put together their run of four championships in five seasons, going 53-18 (.746) in postseason play. Nine players have won their nine postseason

MVP awards. They've won 14 of 15 postseason series since Joe Torre took over as manager, including 11 in a row.

"You need 25 heroes," said Jeter, whose flip made Mike Mussina's 1-0 victory stand up in the turnaround game against the A's.

During the regular season, the Yankees were sixth in the league in batting average and third in ERA. Every year, they come together during their first 7½ months together, forging bonds to pull for each other. And during the playoffs, they find a way to win — usually with the help of their opponent.

Since 1996, when the Yankees won their first World Series since 1978, New York has given up 13 unearned runs. The Yankees' opponents have allowed 46.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, Oct. 25:

Family and domestic life
take on an even higher priority than in other years.
Your subconscious works overtime, sometimes keeping you up at night. Learn to relax, perhaps through a stress-reduction technique.
If you are single, a partnership will become even more important. You could find Mr. or Ms. Right anytime
this year, but this person could be more offbeat than you thought you would choose. If you are attached, you might find yourself being more open to your partner's unexpected ideas.
Go with spontaneity.
AQUARIUS helps stabilize you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-
Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)* Unexpected information comes forward.
Become less uptight with each fact and detail. You accomplish more by relaxing, and then by following through on your plans.
Network and make calls in the morning. Tonight:
Follow your friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)* Choose to see someone as inventive or unusual, and learn to understand a boss or associate. It doesn't pay to judge this person.
Success breeds in an atmosphere of mutual respect. It's time to establish more independence. Tonight: Out as late as you want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
* Take an additional step, but don't make assumptions for others. Try to apply more creativity to your thinking. Think outside the box. How to do this? A brainstorming session would be right about
now. Tonight: Take in a movie.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)* Deal with someone directly. You could be put off by what this person says. Think in terms of becoming more independent. Be wise regarding financial decisions. Do all the research you can, and avoid any wild risks.
Tonight: Listen to someone
let off steam.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
* Don't count on normal behavior from others, and

HOROSCOPE

you won't be surprised.
They will reveal more ingenuity and independence than you might expect from them. Relish seeing this other side. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
* Expect a challenge at work. Your intuition and dynamic insight help you cruise through a problem where others would throw their hands up in frustration. Check out a new diet or exercise program. A total change might energize you as never before. Tonight:
Handle all the work in front of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
* Understand why a child or loved one could act quirky or difficult. Perhaps much of this person's energy comes from a sense of independence and a need to draw stronger reactions.
Let your creativity come out with this person. You could have fun. Tonight:
Why not start the weekend
early?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.
21)* Deal with the unpredictable, knowing that you need to be more flexible.
Not everything is the way you would like it to be, but will it ever be? Scorpios have a tendency to be rigid.
Schedule a checkup for your house very soon,
before the weather changes.
Tonight: Take a break.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)* What seemed like a piece of cake yesterday could become volatile today. You can deal with changes effectively and creatively. Don't take others, or situations, for granted.
Dot your "i's" and cross your "t's." Do not stand on ceremony with others.
Tonight: At a favorite spot with your favorite people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)* Be especially careful when dealing with funds. Count your change carefully. Balance your checkbook, and do it twice.
Make sure you understand what is going on with all your financial matters. You pull the wild card.
Remember, you also could gain. Tonight: Indulge another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.
18)* You might enjoy the unpredictability of the day. Don't push anyone too

Veterinarian says it's not her duty to euthanize pets

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on your reply to "Former
A n i m a l Lover." Her husband was unable to cope with his dog's numerous medical problems,
and this created a lot of trouble in their marriage. The dog was deaf, arthritic, missing all his teeth and urinating all over the house.

As a veterinarian, I was disappointed in your advice that the woman should "talk to the veterinarian and lean on him to do his duty." Please be aware, Miss Landers, that it is not my "duty" to pressure an owner
to euthanize a beloved pet.
My role is to give medical information and advice,
and to support pet owners in what are often difficult decisions. It is possible that many of this dog's problems could be medically treated.

I agree with you that the veterinarian should be consulted immediately, and perhaps the husband will come to the conclusion that the most humane option is euthanasia. But I would never diagnose this case without first examining the pet and talking with the owner. I am surprised and disappointed that you think you can. Catherine O'Keefe, DVM, St. Louis Park, Minn.

Dear DVM O'Keefe:
Thanks for the clobber. I guess I had it coming. You will be pleased to know that I received several letters from your colleagues in Canada and the United States, saying, as you did,
that I should have told the owner to consult a veterinarian instead of suggesting she "lean on" the vet to put the dog to sleep.

It occurred to me, however, that a dog that is deaf, arthritic, missing all his teeth and urinating all over the house is not enjoying life much and would appreciate it if someone put him out of his misery. If those problems could indeed be medically treated, the owner should have taken care of them immediately.
Shame on him for letting the dog suffer needlessly.

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter from
"Family Matters in Florida" (she said we must always remember to help our aging parents), I knew I had to write my first letter to Ann Landers. While I agree in principle, I must ask - how much do children have to put up with when elderly parents become impossible?

My grandmother has made my mother's life a living hell. Grandma has controlled Mom her entire life.
She belittles her constantly,
and pits my mother and her sisters against one another.
We eat dinner with Grandma once a week, and she complains endlessly about everything and everybody. She phones my mother at least twice a day and is so nasty that Mom often ends up in tears.

My grandmother is in reasonably good health. She lives in a beautiful retirement home where they have movies, outings and special events, but she complains constantly that she is bored and lonely. She has told several family mem-

a walk or perhaps simply relax with a good book.

bers that her grandchildren are "no good" and she is going to leave all her money to charities so they can't get their greedy hands on it.

I feel sorry for my grandmother, but I can't say I love her. Please print my letter so elderly parents like my grandmother will stop wondering why their kids and grandchildren don't call or visit very often.

Had it in California

Dear California: Your criticism may be totally valid, but I still say grandchildren should overlook
the onerous and biting
comments of the old folks and do whatever they can to make their lives more pleasant.

Age softens some people,
and makes others mean and hard to get along with. Try to be more compassionate.
One day, you could be hungry for a little compassion from YOUR grandchildren.
I hope you get it, but life gives no guarantees.

your life and turn it

IN HISTORY

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 2001. There are 68 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

One hundred years ago, on Oct. 24, 1901, Anna Edson Taylor, a 43-year-old widow, became the first person to survive going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. (Mrs. Taylor's dreams of fame and fortune failed to materialize, however, and she died in poverty in 1921.)

On this date:

In 1537, Jane Seymour, the third wife of England's King Henry VIII, died 12 days after giving birth to Prince Edward, later King Edward VI.

In 1861, the first transcontinental telegraph message was sent as Justice Stephen J. Field of California transmitted a telegram to President Lincoln.

In 1931, the George Washington Bridge, connecting New York and New Jersey, opened to traffic.

In 1939, nylon stockings were sold publicly for the first time, in Wilmington, Del.

In 1939, Benny Goodman and his orchestra recorded their signature theme, "Let's Dance," for Columbia Records in New York.

In 1940, the 40-hour work week went into effect under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

In 1945, the United Nations officially came into existence as its charter took effect.

In 1952, Republican presidential candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower declared, "I shall go to Korea" as he promised to end the conflict.

In 1962, the U.S. blockade of Cuba during the missile crisis officially began under a proclamation signed by President Kennedy.

In 1987, 30 years after it was expelled, the Teamsters union was welcomed back into the AFL-CIO.

Ten years ago, President Bush used a speech in Washington to blast Congress as a "privileged class of rulers." "Star Trek" creator Gene Roddenberry died in Santa Monica, Calif., at age 70.

Today's Birthdays: Football Hall-of-Famer Y.A. Tittle is 75. Rock musician Bill Wyman is 65. Actor-producer David Nelson is 65. Actor F. Murray Abraham is 62. Actor Kevin Kline is 54. NAACP President Kweisi Mfume is 53. Actor B.D. Wong is 39.

Golf Digest

Ranks Our Trail
Among the Top 50

the only ones

about their scores.

ALABAMA'S
ROBERT TRENT JONES
GOLF TRAIL

1.800.949.4444
www.rtgolf.com

We love it when people say nice things about us. Golf Digest recently listed Alabama's Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail among the top 50 golf destinations in the world!

And in its current Places to Play ratings, Golf Digest gave most of the Trail's 21 courses 4 stars—and some even got 4½. Not bad when you consider that 5 stars only go to those once-in-a-lifetime courses. And all of the Trail's courses got top honors for service.

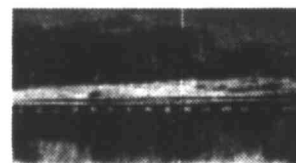

Frequent Flyer Magazine listed us among its top 10 trips in the world and The New York Times called us "...some of the best public golf on earth."

Golf Magazine listed The SENATOR course at our new Capitol Hill location among its top new courses in the country and The LEGISLATOR course in the top 25 newcomers. And wait until you see THE JUDGE!

So, we hope you'll understand when, like all good golfers, we like to brag about our scores.

Call today to book your golf and hotel package and get ready for one of the best golf trips in the world.
