

FIVE NEW MEN INCLUDED

1967 Mustang Coaches To Attend School

Football season this year--as it does every year--will begin earlier for coaches than for players.

Head Coach Don Beck, accompanied by his six-man staff, will leave Olton Sunday to attend Coaching school in San Antonio.

Local coaches will join approximately 5,000 football, basketball and track instructors from high schools and college throughout the nation and the world for what Beck called the best school of its kind anywhere.

The men's heavy schedules during the four-day session will include classroom lectures from 8 a. m. to noon.

The lectures, delivered by some of the top experts in the country, will continue from 1 to 3:30 p. m.

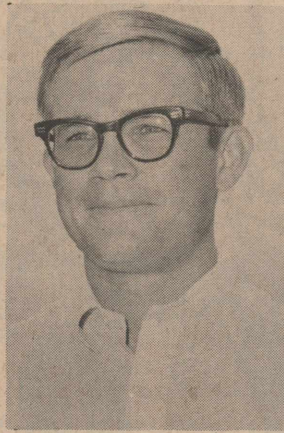

This will be followed by two hours of live field demonstrations of plays and procedures mapped out in the classroom.

Films of special play patterns will be shown at night. Courses will include seven lectures on football, three on basketball, and one on track, Beck said.

Two nights of the strict routine will be lightened however, as the "coaches-turned-students" view the Coaches All-Star Football Game at Alamo Stadium next Thursday night following a basketball game in the city coliseum Wednesday.

Five of the men accompanying Beck this year are new to the Olton coaching staff. Four of them are new to coaching. New coaches include Bud Brock, Curtis Campbell, Ed Miller, Charles Saul, and Ken Splawn.

They will swell the local coaching staff to seven--one more than last year's, replacing Raymond Kaufman, Gary Taylor, Tommy Lester, and James Cagle.

Brock, 22, is a May graduate of Wayland Baptist College in Plainview and has a BS degree. He will be assistant backfield coach this season. He recently moved to Olton with his wife Carolyn and is from

Campbell, also 22, is a native of White Deer and will be an August graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon with a BS degree. He, too, will be an assistant backfield coach. Miller is a 23-year-old native of Jacksboro and a 1967 graduate of Texas Tech in Lubbock. He will serve as both assistant line coach and basketball coach next year. His wife's name is Marilyn.

Saul, 23, is the only new member of the staff with previous coaching experience. He was head junior high school basketball coach in Idalou for a year following graduation from Wayland Baptist College in 1966.

He will be an end coach for the Mustangs. He is a native of Kress and his wife's name is Doris.

Spawn, also 23, is a native of Muleshoe and is a 1967 graduate of Wayland Baptist College.

Line coach Grady Sharp, 23, is a native of Muleshoe and is a 1967 graduate of Wayland Baptist College.

County Answers Voters' Charges

Reply Defends Hospital Ballot

Two Lamb County officials Monday defended the validity of the new Earth-Springle Hospital District against claims by 22 voters that the May 27 election creating the district were "irregular" and "improper" and should be called again.

The document, filed in 154 District Court in Littlefield, replied to allegations set forth in a July 2 petition before the same court.

County Judge O. J. Mangum and County Attorney C. R. Wilkenson, specifically named in the suit, challenged dissatisfied voters to substantiate their charges of election misconduct, pleading that the burden of proof in the matter rests squarely with the petitioners.

The original petition alleged what it termed "so many and such grave irregularities" in the election that it was impossible to determine true results.

It went on to ask the court for an injunction against the district's directors which would prevent them from conducting business on behalf of the hospital.

Invitational Golf Meet Set

Golfers from throughout the area--and practically anywhere else may vie for prizes totaling nearly $1500 in the 9th Annual Invitational Tournament at Olton Country Club Aug. 4-6.

Competition in the 54-hole medal play will be divided into a championship flight and one other flight in which contenders will play according to handicaps.

Money received from the 17.50 entry fee will be shared among the first 12 place winners in the handicap flight. Woods, irons, and other golfing equipment will go to championship flight winner.

Golf pro Fred Pendergrass estimated from 70 to 100 players will be on hand for the three-day meet. He said this year's event, like last year's, would probably draw golfers from outside the state in addition to local and area contenders.

1966 first place winner Max Hickey of Pampa will be back to defend his title and players like Jack Williams of Plainview and Bubba Brook of Lubbock will be there to try and take it from him, Pendergrass reported.

Hickey toured the 72 par course last year in rounds of 71-65-72 for a five under par total of 211 to take top honors.

Deadline for entries is 8 p. m. next Thursday.

City All-Stars Fall

Onions Could Mean Tears For Grower

Some farmers say that many crops in Lamb County this season are so bad that they could make a person cry. Yet, there is one good crop being harvested just outside Olton that has the same effect--20 acres of onions!

Approximately 100 laborers were in L. L. Ray's field about eight miles northwest of town this week pulling, topping, and bagging the tear-jerkers for market.

The field, though small when compared to other crop acreage, represents a notable portion of the 300 acres of onions in the entire county.

Ray said he expected to harvest from 400 to 500 bags from each acre but was unable to say how much profit they would bring.

The market changes so much on them that it is hard to name a price," he said.

Ray added that, although his crop had not been hailed out like those of many of his neighbors, onions suffered from their own brand of woes.

Weather, the sometimes enemy of all crops, had taken its own toll with this one, he said. Blight, common to the plants, was spread by the rains. Water also beat down the tops and retarded growth.

He conceded that this year's crop would probably be below par because of unfavorable weather conditions since they were planted last April.

"The fields stayed so wet that onion growers could not get to them," he added. This delay allowed the onions to ripen into jumbos--or extra large onions--which have now flooded the market.

"You're really better off with medium-sized ones," he said.

Ray characterized onions as being just as easily a "crash" crop as a cash crop.

"One year you come out with a good profit and the next you don't," he observed casually. You could sink $1,500 pretty quickly and get nothing."

Lions To Open Tourney Today

Andy Andrews will be putting his title on the line--or is it link?--for the third straight year today as the Annual Lions Golf Tournament is tied off at Olton Country Club.

Andrews has topped the entire field of fellow lion golfers for the past two years.

At least 21 local chapter members will be out this time to take the title and the trophies away from him.

Competition will be divided into three flights, with a trophy going to winners in each. Contenders will play their handicaps.

An 18-hole putting contest will also be staged during the regular tournament along with driving competition. Prizes will also be given in each of these events.

C-CA SEEKS AIRPORT AID

Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture this week took two giant steps on the road to financing proposed improvements to airport facilities for the city.

Members of the special airport committee received application blanks for securing money from the state-wide unclaimed aviation fuel tax.

They have also talked with Federal Aviation Agency representative Ray Biscamp to gain advice concerning standards the airport improvements would have to meet to qualify for federal assistance in their construction.

C-CA members have asked interested local residents to contact manager Charles Polk.

Olton Little League All-Stars missed victory by only a couple of inches in its second game of the Area A Tournament here Friday night.

Local hopes were dashed when a Plainview National center fielder picked off a would-be grand slam homer by Keith Workman as it headed for the fence in the sixth inning.

If the Plainview player had missed the catch, as he nearly did, Olton would have picked up four game-tying runs. Instead, the local team lost the game 10-7 in the single elimination tourney.

A home run by Dwight Adams in the sixth inning set the stage for the tense plays to come. Marlos May joined the act with a single, followed by Tim Givens who advanced to first after being struck by a pitch.

Plainview National advanced to the final round Saturday night only to go down in defeat to Plainview American who took the tournament win 17-3.

The winning boys apparently had their sights set on victory from the start. They took the tournament opener away from Muleshoe last Thursday 9-0.

The capacity crowd attending Olton's second baseball match in two weeks were given ample indication of things to come as they watched Plainview American slam five home runs in that first contest.

Muleshoe was held to only four hits.

Plainview National rolled toward its eventual meet with Olton as it eliminated Amherst-Sudan in a close 5-4 ballgame.

Olton surprised many fans in the third game last Thursday--especially their competition--as they batted Littlefield around for six innings.

Olton pitchers Dwight Adams and Pete Samarrappa touched off the hard hitting in the first with singles. Both then capitalized on a passed ball to advance on the bases.

Tim Givens was struck by a pitched ball and loaded the sacks. From then on, it seemed the local boys could not miss the ball. Olton chalked up 14 hits before leaving the diamond for the day.

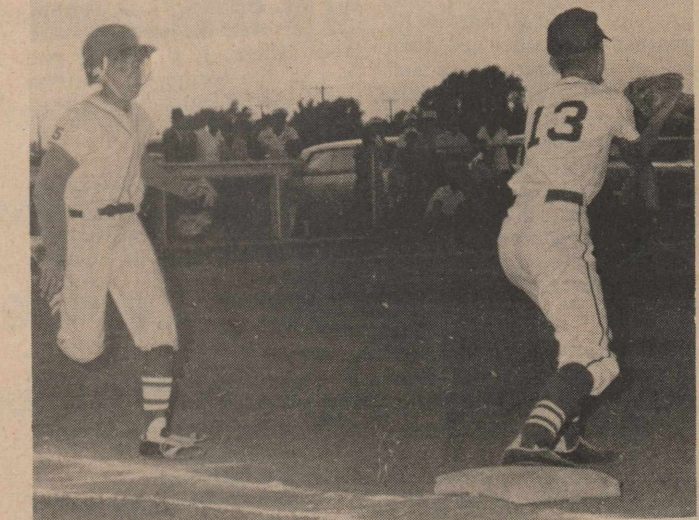

Littlefield, in turn, was credited with only three hits. Its seven runs came mainly from errors, walks, and one balk. The boys fought back hard in the sixth inning to gain four runs, but they could not close the gap.

Olton hurler Dwight Adams struck out 10 men and walked six while working the entire game.

Plainview American picked up their second win of the tournament in Friday's first game by defeating Anton 15-3. Anton had drawn a bye in first round competition. Plainview National took an early lead in the final--and fatal game for Olton Friday night, scoring three runs in the first inning.

Olton took up the offensive in the second when Marlos May singled, Tim Givens was safe on a fielder's choice, Keith Workman doubled, and Vic Allcorn singled to swell the bases all the way to home plate. The home town team added three more to the score board when Newt Wheeler made it to second and Pete Samarrappa brought him across the plate with a homer.

Score after four was Olton four, Plainview 3, but the Nationals went ahead in the fifth with seven runs that not even Olton's fancy playing in the sixth could overcome.

AROUND WE GO--Here is some of the Little League baseball action seen here last week as Olton hosted the Area A District Tournament. This scene is from Friday night's game between Olton and Plainview National.

Mrs. Jaffa Zakka Examines One Of Her First And Most Favorite Dolls

FOR LOCAL MERCHANT'S WIFE

Home Now Doll House

A doll in the hands of a little girl can bring hours of enjoyment, but Mrs. Jaffa Zakka has been playing with them for years and says she does not plan to stop any time soon.

Her colorful collection of more than 150 works makes her home at 1103 W. 9th St. the biggest doll house in town. "I love dolls," Mrs. Zakka explained simply as she carefully arranged the life-like pieces on glass shelves lining her dining room wall. "Nothing else makes me as happy as a new one."

During the past 13 years, the silent little family of figures has grown to include representatives of about 60 countries visited by the Zakkas. Like members of any other family, they vary considerably in size and character, but all are artistic, all are authentic, and all are realistic reflections of peoples in other lands and often from other times.

The dolls stood frozen as if at attention as their keeper nodded their way and called out their homelands.

A dancer from Holland stood poised on tip toe while a Spanish bull fighter at her side bowed tense for action. A Lebanese farm laborer held his reaper tight in human-like hands.

"This one is from Bethlehem," Mrs. Zakka explained. Her sweeping hand paused in front of a replica of a servant girl in a plain black dress with a brightly embroidered front.

"You can tell what village the people there are from by the embroidery on their clothes," she explained. "Each town has its own kind."

"And the people still carry water from far away," she added, carefully lifting a miniature pottery vase from the doll's tiny fingers.

Mrs. Zakka stressed that, while the figures were robed in the true national costumes of their respective lands, much of the dress was historical and no longer in general use.

"Some of the dresses are from Christ's time," she said. "These up here are from Scotland," she continued after a moment, pointing to a pair of dolls on a higher shelf. The red-kilted couple looked like they might have come straight from the Scottish Highlands.

The exactness of detail in their facial expressions made it easy to forget that they stood scarcely more than five inches tall.

Larger Japanese Gisha girls--about 15 inches tall--looked on from their perch on the top shelf.

"These are the first ones that I had," Mrs. Zakka said, reaching for one of the large but delicate dolls.

She explained her hobby began in 1954 while living in Aden, a small country on the Red Sea near Yemen.

"Aden is especially noted for its dolls," she said, noting it was not uncommon for people of all ages to collect them there.

She recalled one old woman there who had covered every wall of her house from ceiling to floor with dolls. Even the woman's husband shared an enthusiasm for the pastime.

Mrs. Zakka, who spent most

Connally Sets Safety Week

Governor John Connally has proclaimed July 23-29 Farm Safety Week in Texas and called on rural residents to give attention to safety "as part of every occupational and recreational activity."

The Governor noted that accidents on Texas farms and ranches "continue to exact a painful human and economic toll each year" and called attention to the observance of National Farm Safety Week which has been proclaimed by President Lyndon B. Johnson, and coincides with Farm Safety Week in Texas.

Theme for the state and national observance is "Think and Act Safely." The Texas observance is being sponsored by the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. Other groups interested in farm safety, such as the Texas Farm Bureau and the Texas Electric Cooperatives, Inc., are participating with these two groups in coordinated safety programs for the July 23-29 observance.

County judges throughout the state will be making local proclamations in observance of Farm Safety Week, and most county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents will take part in local programs.

Community Deserves Praise

There are quite a few people here that deserve a pat on the back!

We are speaking of the people who made it possible for Olton to be such a gracious host to the Little League and Babe Ruth Tournaments.

A number of people have worked for the past six weeks or so very diligently in order to make our tournaments the big success they were.

There were men who gave of their time to coach the boys, women who gave of their time to bring the boys into practice and games and give them support from the sidelines and just lots of people who worked in the background and probably were never seen during a ballgame.

One of the hardest working women in the whole group no doubt was Mrs. Mozelle Trotter, who was official score keeper during regular play and also during the tournament.

Concession stands were in the hands of Mrs. Clinton Billingsley and Mrs. Denver Offield. They were in charge of ordering supplies and seeing that someone was there to work during the games. Without the help of numerous mothers and young girls, their job would have been impossible.

The coaches and umpires are to be commended for the fine spirit of fair play which they instilled into their boys.

There were farmers who came in with their equipment and helped ready the fields for play after soaking rains had fallen.

Among Oltonites who gave of their time toward the tournaments were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Trotter, Tommy Ballard, Royce Collins, Leo Bleeker, Jim Melton, Charles Polk, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Offield, Johnny Hodges, Dr. Lynn Fite, Bill Collins, R. V. Allcorn and Gerald Allcorn.

K. Y. Givens deserves a special note of thanks for his part in supplying ice for the tournaments, ordering special amounts for the occasion. Other businessmen who donated of their time and resources were the McClains at the Dairy Mart, Raines Food Store, who donated the ice machine truck for one day, and Leon's Food Store, who opened up one night (after the concession stand had sold all their hot dogs) and let them get some weiners and buns.

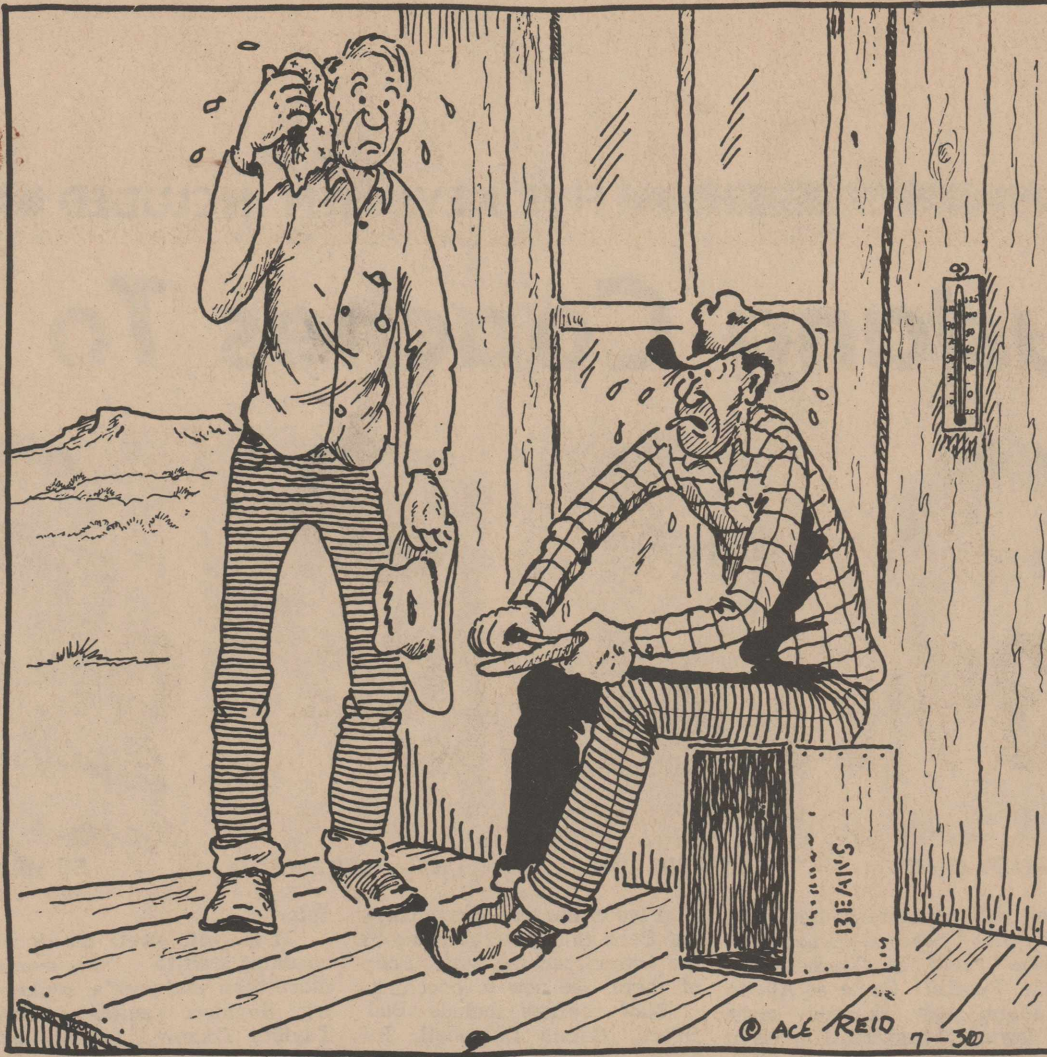

This was truly a community-supported affair and the whole community can be proud to know that they had a part in the tournaments.

If we overlooked anyone, please understand that those who were mentioned were only a FEW of the MANY MANY people of Olton, Halfway and Earth who helped to make this event a successful one.

We say Thanks, for a job well done!

who moved here last year from Pampa to become a line coach rounds out the staff. The 1963 graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon has a wife Shirley and a son Trent, 22 months.

Coach Beck is a relatively newcomer to the Olton football--although he is hardly a newcomer to the game.

He moved here a year ago from a coaching position in Wellington but calls Canyon his home.

Under his leadership--and with the help of his nine year's experience--the Mustangs finished third in the district in 1966.

"I feel extremely lucky to coach with six guys such as these," said Beck of this year's coaches. He predicted an improvement over last season's won-loss record with their help.

Beck was confident the Coaching School sponsored by the High School Coaches Association would prove to be of definite value to his men and himself. This trip to the annual school will mark the 11 for the Olton head coach, but he said he always learns something new and valuable every time he went.

"Football is like space or aerodynamics," he observed. "Everything changes so much from one year to the next." He estimated a football coach with 20 years experience would be lost to the techniques of the game if he retired for four seasons.

"In the last 10 years," he said, "I have seen five major offensive changes and four major defensive changes in football."

He said the importance of the Coaching School was that it kept coaches--new and experienced--abreast of changes in game practices, plays, and procedures. "Basically, there has been no change," said Beck, "but technically there have been great changes."

Sue's Views

No Place Like Home

BY SUE CANNON

Why is it that ANY place is better to be than home, when you're young--then when you get older, it's the ONLY place you want to be?

Now take my youngsters, for instance. At this time, my oldest son is in Washington, D. C. visiting with my brother and his family and my twelve-year-old is in Friona visiting with the Kenneth Moore family. Of course to hear them tell it, they never get to do anything or go anywhere. They've only been to see their grandparents for a two-week vacation at the beginning of the summer and then off to church camp for a week and now gone again!

This being "on the go" isn't limited just to my older ones. No siree, my two youngest boys, ages 4 and 5 take off with their grandparents every once in a while for a couple of weeks visit in Sunray.

Then my two girls are active in Girl Scouts and off to day camp and Camp Rio Blanco they go during the summer. I only went to church camp to take the boys up there and I was pooped for a week afterwards.

It may have had something to do with the fact that I took my two little boys, ages four and five, along and boy--are they live wires!

Four of us mothers went out to take our boys to camp, which is located in the mountains close to Las Vegas, N. M.

We left Saturday morning and got out to Santa Rosa, where we got rooms for the night and decided to let the kids go swimming in the motel pool.

There we were sitting out in the hot sun watching the kids playing in the cool water when all of a sudden, my four year old got off in water over his head. In spite of my yelling at the others in the pool, I was not heard--so--into the pool I went--clothes, and all!

You talk about being a nervous wreck! That did it! I decided if I ever got home with all my family safe and sound I was going to stay home!

Now here my son is in Washington, D. C., very close to where all the race riots are and I am not at all happy about that. I'd feel much better if he were home.

I guess it just boils down to one thing.

I am one of the older ones.

pital until the election contest has been resolved.

The reply labeled the petition as an attempt at "invalidating the election upon an accumulation of the general and vague grounds alleged to have been previously set forth."

County officials, in essence, found the previous allegations both too general and too vague in fact or law to warrant a new vote, and asked District Judge Pat Boone Jr. to ignore the election and injunction request.

Petitioners claimed so-called "improper conduct of the election" resulted in approval if the district only because many eligible voters were denied the right to vote while at least 60 ineligible voters were not.

A proposition for creation of the district and allowing annual taxes for hospital construction and operation carried by a 266 to 223 vote. A second proposition to issue hospital bonds and levy taxes for the payment carried by a vote of 258 to 225.

County officials countered that, while petitioners alleged voter malpractice, they failed to specify who or why rightful voters were barred and did not name supposed illegal voters.

The reply contended there was no reason why persons were unable to vote at the designated ballot box.

The petition had alleged the single ballot box, located at the Earth-Springlake High School, made voting impossible for some eligible persons who were scattered throughout the 500-square-mile area included in the district.

The new hospital district encompasses an area bounded on the east by the Lamb County Line, on the north by the Castro County line, to a point north of Circle, on the south by the first dirt road south of the Sand Hills, and on the west by a line running two miles west of FM 1055, north three miles, then west to the Bailey County line and back to the north border of Lamb County.

The reply also blasted petitioner's various allegations of Texas Election Code violations as "a general pot shot which puts an unfair burden on contestants unless they are given notice of the exact nature and extent of the real complaint."

The document concluded the original election was ordered "in exact conformity with the statute authorizing the calling of the election, that the same was fairly conducted and that the results thereof were properly canvassed and established."

$9,150.00.

The rural accident summary for this county during the first six months of 1967 shows a total of 47 accidents resulting in three persons killed, 16 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $62,970.00.

The number of traffic deaths in Texas continues to rise. For the first six months of 1967 there have been 1,476 traffic deaths compared to 1,396 traffic deaths for the first six months of 1966. This six per cent increase is very alarming, and chances are it will become very critical because of vacation months and holiday periods still ahead to intensify the magnitude of the accident picture.

This alarming increase of accidents can be reduced by drivers knowing and obeying traffic laws, being a defensive driver and being a courteous driver. The Sergeant stated, "Courtesy is contagious--try it."

'Disaster' To Occur August 8

A "disaster" will occur in Lamb County Aug. 8, predicts Olton fire Chief Tom Smith.

Ironically he was among the men who met in Littlefield July 14 to make certain that it did.

Smith, along with fire chiefs and assistant fire chiefs from towns throughout the county, met with County Judge Jim Mangum and Civil Defense Coordinator Gene Campbell of Amherst to plan a monthly program of simulated emergencies which would give county fire fighters needed experience in handling real problems.

According to the plan drawn up, the fire department in each town will be charged with formulating its own "disaster" to which other departments will be summoned each month.

The date was arranged in order to avoid conflict with required department meetings, Smith explained, but only the department conducting the program will know the nature of the mock emergency before other departments are summoned.

Smith said the advantage of such a plan was that it required each department to become familiar with the layout and facilities of other towns to which they are called. He said this familiarity might be vital in the event of an actual disaster.

The nature of the surprise mock test might range from a simulated airplane fire to a tornado.

He added that the public would not be actually involved in the practice since none of the programs would involve actual disaster conditions.

MRS. ANNIE CAMPBELL

Bedfast, But Busy

Mrs. Annie Campbell, mother of Mrs. Pat Franklin and Mrs. Gordon Thomas of Olton, was born Nov. 26, 1878 in Kaufman County and moved to Randall County in 1890. She was married Feb. 4, 1899 and lived there in Canyon until 1947 when she moved to Olton.

She and her husband were engaged in farming and ranching having two farms or ranches as they were called then. One was located six miles from Canyon and another was 13 miles east of Canyon.

Mrs. Campbell remarked that there were not very many close neighbors in those days.

Asked if there was anything in particular that she remembered about her childhood, she quipped, "No, I was just an ordinary common kid."

She recalled having been snowbound at a neighborhood dance once, when she was in her teens.

"We had gone to the dance on Friday night and it began to snow but we just kept dancing. The snow got so deep that we couldn't get home. Saturday night some boys went over about two miles and got some coffee, and we drank coffee and danced and drank more coffee and danced some more. We didn't get home til Sunday," she said.

"Our parents weren't too worried about us though. They knew what kind of people the Huffmans were. They were the ones who were giving the dance."

Mrs. Campbell has been bedfast the past two years, having suffered a stroke about five years ago. However, that hasn't hampered her efforts at making herself useful.

She has knitted 12 sweaters and nine pairs of house shoes in the past year. Her current project is crocheting a bedspread, which she has completed half of already.

Other children besides the Olton women include Henry Campbell, Edmon, Okla., Glen Campbell, Houston, Roy Campbell, Clovis, N. M., Nig Campbell, Newport, Birch Campbell, Melrose, N. M., 17 grandchildren, 3 deceased, and 29 great-grandchildren.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VERN SANFORD

AUSTIN, Tex.—Newspaper readers throughout Texas soon will be seeing long columns of type about important issues as Secretary of State John Hill begins to advertise the six proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on November 11.

Fourteen additional amendments will be on the 1968 ballot.

Eight of the 20 amendments are of interest mainly to special groups (e.g. legislators or state employees). Eight others would provide local governments with new powers or duties. Only four of the group directly affect most Texans.

Amendments to vote on this year will appear on the ballot in this order:

No. 1, House Joint Resolution 3, to permit counties to put all tax money in a single general fund rather than dividing income in specified amounts among separate funds for earmarked purposes as is now required.

No. 2, HJR 37, allowing cities and other governmental units within hospital districts to levy taxes for participation in mental health and mental retardation community centers.

No. 3, HJR 17, reviving the veterans land program and authorizing a total of $400,000,000 in bonds to finance continued purchase of farm and ranch land by veterans, including those who have served in Southeast Asia during present hostilities.

No. 4, HJR 6, authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor and hospital bills of county law enforcement officers injured in line of duty.

No. 5, HJR 12, authorizing a $75,000,000 state revenue bond issue for the development of state parks and recreational areas. Bonds are expected to be financed by a small admission fee.

No. 6, HJR 27, permitting state officers and employees to hold non-elective positions under the state or U. S. governments where there is no conflict of interest and where the state might benefit.

That's all for '67. Top interest in these amendments doubtless will center on the park bond proposal and the veterans land amendment.

Hospital mental health and mental retardation groups will emphasize the importance of Amendment #2 to the new community center approach of treating mental patients close to home.

Calling the 1967 election for Veterans Day and a Saturday, undoubtedly, was to assure a large voter turn-out for the land fund amendment. A substantial campaign to urge its passage already is taking form.

Gov. John Connally is the principal backer of the parks bond issue. Last December he unveiled a 10-year plan for acquiring and developing 150,960 acres of recreational lands and historical sites. This would more than triple present state park acreage and open a variety of new facilities for outdoor recreation.

Only opposition to the amendment to date has been based on the $1 a car park-entry fee, initially proposed by Connally to finance the vast program; and scattered complaints that facilities included in the governor's master plan do not adequately serve some areas of the state.

He is expected to spearhead an intensive fall campaign supported by parks, recreational and outdoor groups to put over the bond issue.

The veterans land amendment would add another $200,000,000 to state bonds previously authorized and through which 35,300 veterans have purchased farm and ranch properties at low interest rates spread over a 40-year pay period.

This amendment would raise the amount which could be borrowed under the program from $7,500 to $10,000. The program was initiated in 1949. Additional bonds were approved by voters in 1951 and 1956. Amendments to enlarge the bond authorization were rejected at elections in 1963 and 1965. Opposition came mainly from Dallas and Houston.

Proponents emphasize that, while thousands of veterans have benefited from the program, it has cost the state no money and actually has turned a profit of $2,500,000 a year while providing an expanded land market.

Opposition has adopted the argument that it is not the function of the state government to engage in the loan business and that veterans have had plenty of time to participate. Some also contend that "cheap money" invites purchases of land not needed and which will not be put to productive use.

Amendment #2 specifies that the legislature, in providing for creation of hospital districts, does not have to require that the districts assume full responsibility for community mental health and retardation centers and services. It would permit cities and counties to levy taxes and issue bonds for such services. Subdivisions within existing districts would be authorized to do so unless statutes creating the districts expressly prohibit.

An attorney general's opinion held that the constitution does not allow political subdivisions within the boundary of a hospital district to levy taxes for medical and hospital service. Under that ruling, cities and counties located in such districts were restricted from participating in establishment of community health centers. Therefore, only hospital districts could establish such centers, a key part of the mental health program.

Amendments #3, #4 and #5 are self explanatory and apparently non-controversial.

Amendment #6 is aimed primarily at permitting educators, who are paid from state funds, to serve on federal advisory boards.

The Day Death Rode The Fender With Me

By D. L. Keeney, Jr., As told to Del Deterling
(From The Progressive Farmer, Feb., 1967)

It was such a beautiful day. Warm, sunny. A quiet, peaceful day, as only Sunday in June can be. And a very special day at that, because it was my wife's and my thirteenth wedding anniversary.

But our happiness on this special occasion was overshadowed by thoughts of an even happier event coming. Next Friday would be Barbara's birthday. She was going to be five years old.

As we pulled out of the gate, Barbara shouted about the noise of the tractor engine. "Daddy, are you going to get me a bicycle for my birthday - just like Chippy's?"

"Yes, darling, I'll buy you a bicycle this week," I shouted back. "You'll have it in time for your birthday."

We are spending the weekend on our farm - my wife, my daughter and I - just as we did practically every weekend the weather permitted. Chippy, Barbara's six-year-old friend, was also staying with us.

Usually we would be in church at this time. Barbara never missed Sunday school. Except today. . . Chippy was there, and they were having so much fun, and the time seemed so short. . . well, today, for the first time in a long while, she didn't go.

I didn't go either. I'd been sick the previous week and hadn't gotten as much done as I hoped. We'd just had several heavy rains, and grass and weeds were really growing. I wanted to keep the place looking nice.

It wouldn't take me long - not with that brand new tractor and rotary shredder. I had gotten an early start and by ten o'clock I was nearly finished. Just needed to make a couple of passes along the road leading to the house and I'd be done.

I mowed one side of the road, then pulled up to the house to remind my wife to have lunch ready early, as we had to deliver some cattle right after noon.

As I got ready to pull out again, Chippy ran up and cried, "Let me ride. I want to ride."

"What are you going to do? He was almost in tears. "All right," I agreed. "Climb on and we'll finish mowing along the road."

My daughter was standing off to the side drinking a soda pop. Chippy called over her, "Come on Barbara, let's ride the tractor."

Barbara didn't really want to ride. She hadn't finished her drink and didn't know what to do with it. The boy kept begging her, so I said "Come on Barbara, set the soda pop down and let's go. We'll be right back."

I lifted her up. She made Chippy get off the left fender and over on the right. "This is my fender, Daddy, isn't it?" She was an old hand when it came to riding the tractor.

I guess I'm typical of lots of weekend farmers. We live in Dallas. I own an office equipment company that I built up from nothing - starting out forty years ago with $44.

I was even president of the National Office Machine Dealers Association some 10 years ago. I really do love my work.

But we always looked forward to the weekend - to spending all Saturday and Sunday together in the country, looking after our registered Angus cattle, plowing and mowing, working hard, and getting close to the soil. Boy, that's the life.

I threw the shredder in gear and the blades bit into the soft, pithy weeds. The ditch is fairly wide and not too steep. It was a smooth ride.

I looked proudly at my daughter. She looked very pretty in that brandnew dress, one of our country neighbors had given her for her birthday.

"Aren't we having fun, Chippy?" Barbara called out. "Isn't it great to ride on the tractor?"

And then it happened.

I didn't see the hole the rain had washed out until just before the front wheel was about to hit it. I'm not sure what happened next. Either I stamped on the brakes or the front wheel hit the hole. Barbara lost her hold on the fender and flipped forward head over heels. I just knew that giant wheel would crush her.

It didn't. The wheel just missed her. It ran over her feet; but with those big new treads on the tire, it didn't crush her.

"Thank God," I breathed. "It missed her."

I must have been in shock already. In my relief that the wheel hadn't caught her, I never once thought about the shredder only feet back that would hit her a split second later.

Somehow I got the tractor stopped, and just sat there - the world spinning about me.

I don't know how much time elapsed, but I remember Chippy, still on the other fender, screaming, "It killed her! It killed her!"

What do you tell a mother as you carry the lifeless body of her daughter into the house? How do you drown out the screams of the most precious possession you ever had echoing in your ears night after night?

I've had a lot of time to reflect on what has happened. I've gained new respect for tractors - and other farm machinery as well. Maybe what I have learned will be of value to other farmers - weekend or full time - who never give much thought to accidents. I never did, and I've run a tractor for 14 years.

Review those rules of safe tractor operation. And above all, keep the kids off the tractor. (Tractors aren't toys. Sure, they're easy to drive and fun to ride, and youngsters are just naturally attracted to them.)

Those fenders serve a useful purpose, but they are not designed for kids (or adults) to sit on, regardless of how convenient and attractive they look. I've started a personal campaign to get every tractor manufacturer to post a warning on each fender: "Danger! Do not permit children to ride on fenders." Two manufacturers have consented to place such a warning on their equipment.

Do you know that Barbara was the third child in a 60-mile radius of our ranch that was killed in a tractor accident within a 90-day period? We've had letters from parents all over the country who have lost a child through tractor accidents.

But there is no one who can stop this senseless tragedy from reoccurring except the tractor operators themselves. It won't be too long until a whole year will have passed since it happened. Most memories gradually fade away, but this kind never leaves you. Every time you stumble over an old toy, run across a photo in the family album, or hear the laugh of a happy child, the pain returns.

The weather will be warming up soon, spring rains will fall, weeds will be growing. Tractors, shredders, and mowers will be humming again.

People, without thinking, will be eager to ride a child, grandchild, friend, or relative on a tractor.

They always look so cute - the little things on that big tractor. I thrills the child and it thrills the parents and grandparents.

But in one brief, terrifying second, a thrill can be turned into a kill. Just ask me, I know.

DOLLS

of her life in the Middle East, said her collection began to grow when she and her husband began their move to this country in 1963.

The journey took them through much of the Middle East and most of Europe - and at each stop, a new doll joined the troop.

"You can look at these and remember all the countries," Mrs. Zakka observed, casting a proud eye back along the shelves.

She admitted her collection probably would not have grown as large as it did had it not been for her travels.

"I was fool enough not to collect them when I was in Eden and could get them cheap," she said with a laugh.

The group is now valued at well over $800. But the look in her eye as she scanned the crowded rows showed clearly that, like her real family, this one that is not really real has no price tag to her.

She conceded her selection had not grown as much as she had expected it to since she moved to America.

"You can't find dolls like these here," she said in exasperation.

Yet Mrs. Zakka is not about to abandon her hobby. She said she had located a doll shop in Lubbock and expects to add 50 more to the shelves by the end of the summer. She has also enlisted the help of her husband and two sons, Richard, 18 and Ramsey, 15, who buy her additions wherever they find them.

"I will not quit until I have enough dolls to go around the walls of the whole dining room," she said with obvious determination.

Mrs. Zakka clearly plans to "play dolls" longer than the average girl; and with her, playing the game means serious business.

DELAYED HART CAMP

Ladies of the Baptist Church met Monday morning at the church for their weekly meeting. Mrs. M. W. Wheeler was in charge of the program which was from the Royal Service magazine, "Facing The Communist Challenge in Cuba, Panama and Indonesia."

Three City Firemen Attend A&M School

Three members of Olton's volunteer fire department went to school last week to learn to be better fire fighters -- and to share new knowledge with fellow firemen back home.

The trio, including asst. fire chief Harold Jordan, city fire marshal David Maxey, and fireman Leonard Sanders Jr., enrolled in three of 16 courses at the 38th Annual Texas Firemen's Training School on the A&M campus July 16-21.

They were among 2,200 firemen representing 565 towns, 29 states and several foreign countries.

Jordan studied water pump maintenance to learn valuable skills in repairing local equipment. Maxey took courses to determine the origin and prevention of fires. Sanders was shown firefighting techniques, the use of small tools for forcible entry, and maintenance of basic firefighting equipment.

The men will share their new-found knowledge with the other members of the 31-man volunteer squad at the next regular firemen's meeting.

The 30-hour courses included instruction in firefighting, using actual fires of various types; fire marshal training; fire department officer training, armed services and specialized fire protection, and several others.

The experienced instructors were drawn from the liquefied petroleum industry, the Texas Department of Public Safety, fire and arson investigators, and guest instructors from fire departments, industries and the armed services from throughout the United States.

Henry D. Smith, chief of the school, stressed the greatest benefit gained from the classes is a reduction in fire losses through more efficient methods of firefighting learned during the training.

Olton Fire Chief Tom Smith also pointed out that the city receives a five percent key rate credit on insurance rates due to the local men's participation in the program.

This is the highest credit rate possible under the fire school plan.
