GIANT MASS MEETING TO PROD COTTON ACTION

Chilean Rebels Leap Into Sea As Government Airplanes Bombard Fleet

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

What happened when Leonardo (we suppose it was Leonardo da Vinci) injected arsenic into a peach tree?

Talker wants to know so that he can have some understanding of an allusion to that incident by G. Francis Beck in an article on "The Economic Anarchy" in the current issue of "The Thinker" when he concludes "Chaff can bear no fruit and have no effects beyond weighing down by its own weight, and that is slight. But Leonardo once injected arsenic into a peach tree. And thereby hangs a tale . . ." We infer that the chaff is "popularized Freudanism," "a series of popularized biologies, popular biographies and popular 'what-nots'" which Beck had mentioned in the same paragraph.

Talker hopes some of his readers will tell him about Leonardo, arsenic and the peach tree, so that he can grasp at this tale. His own ignorance does not surprise him but when he asked the staff of this newspaper and no one could tell him about the incident he was disappointed.

But there are other things Mr. Beck says which Talker thinks he understands. Mr. Beck disagrees with the economic experts who tell us such periods of overproduction and unemployment are absolutely inevitable and fated. Mr. Beck says: "We do not believe that man must get scarlet fever, typhoid fever and tuberculosis because there is no way around these things. Which leads me to believe that those of our prophets who declare this present world-wide depression to be the necessary prelude to further and more devastating eras of misery and uncertainty, are trotting out the old bogey which has served superstition so well in the past, and are trotting him out under the respectable name of economic determinism. That the present mess was inevitable we will sorrowfully admit. That the next is likewise a necessary tribute we must slip into the burning belly of Moloch is a wicked and blasphemous superstition more detrimental to actual progress than the witch trials of the darkest middle ages."

Even a lowbrow like Talker wonders why an intelligent people will accept such things as inevitable and fated and why in such a civilization there is no leadership to show us the way around such conditions, or courageously and forthrightly remove them from our path.

Whatever other emotions and thoughts are provoked by the Russian experiment, are we not stirred by the spectacle of a people making an idealistic effort, no matter how crude and violent this effort may be? Mr. Beck chuckles at the sight of it. "In Russia alone," he says, "people seem happy with some immense creative labor and purpose, have forgotten about their individual miseries, are content to suffer for a great cause and have gotten entirely away from themselves, in an effort to lift the life of the masses into the sphere of greater material security."

A friend of Talker's has offered to pay the expenses of a mutual friend to Russia if the latter will agree to remain there three years, But both are bluffing.

Cigaret smokers contributed $260,242.70 in taxes to the state treasury during the first 12 days of the operation of the cigaret tax law. One half of this amount goes to the public school fund and one-half to the general revenue fund. At the rate of the first 12 days this tax would yield $7,915,755 during a year of 365 days. Estimates of the tax yield before the law went into effect ranged from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000 annually.

The tax so far has been collected at very small cost to the state and while it is not yielding as much revenue as many expected, it is yielding a considerable sum and those who buy their cigarets ready-made may as well reconcile themselves to the tax for a long time to come. Many, however, will not reconcile themselves to paying five cents more for a package of cigarets on account of a three cent tax. The competition of the "roll your own" brands can be expected to eliminate the extra two cents that is being charged in Wichita Falls and other places over the state.

SURRENDER OF SHIPS CLAIMED AFTER ATTACK

Conflicting Reports Leave Details of Victory in Question

SUBMARINE DISABLED

Loyalists Launch Bitter Offensive by Sea and Land

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6. (AP)—Government airplanes began to bombard the rebel Chilean fleet at Coquimbo late this afternoon on order of General Vergara, it was announced late today.

Early reports reaching here said sailors from several ships already had leaped into the water and were trying to save themselves, so expert was the fire of the machine guns and the aim of the bombs dropped from the airplanes.

The submarines surrendered, the announcement said, as soon as the firing began and are now in charge of the Loyalist commanders. The government expected the balance of the fleet would surrender soon.

Sub Disabled

The bombardment by the airplanes lasted 15 to 20 minutes.

One of the submarines, temporarily withholding its surrender, was disabled, and the crew of the other jumped overboard, swimming to shore.

Further bombardment the government said was being withheld until the government heard whether the crews of the battleship La Torre and the rest of the fleet would surrender. The crews were apparently hiding in the lower part of the ships, it was said.

The ships did not return the fire of the airplanes during the bombardment.

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS VICTORY

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6. (US)—The government tonight issued an official bulletin claiming the surrender of five of the rebel warships stationed in Coquimbo harbor. At the same time contradicting advices stated the fleet at Coquimbo had broken off negotiations toward surrender and steamed northward to sea.

The government communique declared the rebel ships had surrendered voluntarily. It stated:

"Due to erroneous reports, it was stated that the loyal forces had dominated the rebels, taking the Forst, Vergara, Valdivia, Yerbas Buenas, and Renacio.

Prisoners Taken

"The fact is they surrendered voluntarily and the error is gladly rectified. We congratulate those who

Carol's coronation has been delayed due to failure to effect a reconciliation with his divorced wife, Queen Helen.

Discovery of Powers' Murder Loot In Wife's Home Entangles Women

Relatives Protest Ignorance While Officers Uncover Rope Victim's Clothing Hidden in Residence

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. (US)—West Virginia authorities, loath to take the wife and sister-in-law of Harry F. Powers, bluebeard slayer of two women and three children, into custody, after finding two truck loads of murder loot in their combination grocery store and home, questioned the women for several hours today and declared themselves more mystified than ever.

Dresses, silk underwear, fur coats, silverware, bedclothing and other personal effects of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher of Park Ridge, Ill., widow and Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., were found in the house last night after repeated denials of Mrs. Luella Strother Powers and her sister, Eva Bell Strother that they knew nothing of Powers' comings and goings either in business or pleasure.

Today other bits of incriminating evidence a chest of silver belonging to Mrs. Eicher; a floor plan of Powers' slaughter house garage built with money furnished by the wife and letters from Miss Strother to a Boston, Mass., matrimonial agency—were uncovered. Wife and sister still insist they know nothing.

It was also brought out in the questioning of the sisters that they were aware that Powers was transferring a sum of money to their credit in a Clarksburg bank but they did not know how much. Powers' attorney, J. Ed Law, the sisters said, told them about the transfer the day the love racketeer was taken into custody, a week ago last Thursday.

The sisters also admitted they attempted to institute civil suit against Powers on the day he was arrested to regain $1,600 his wife maintains is coming to her on loans to her husband.

CITY TO REST ON LABOR DAY

Officialdom Closes Shop for Celebration

Absence of working men, public officials and bankers from their usual posts will constitute the city's observance of Labor day Monday, according to information obtained Sunday by The Record News.

Officials of labor organizations stated that no celebration of the day had been planned, but that numerous individuals were planning out-of-town holiday trips, and picnic expeditions in this community during the day.

With the exception of law enforcement offices, the courthouse, Memorial auditorium and postoffice, will remain inactive Monday. Offices of the sheriff and constable at the courthouse will be kept open throughout the day, but other departments plan a holiday.

There will be no delivery of mail in the city other than special deliveries, it was announced by Postmaster O. P. Maricle. The downtown and Monroe Street postal stations will be open, however, from 8 to 9 a. m. Monday, with all departments functioning save that of money orders.

The commissioners court will defer its usual Monday meeting until Tuesday morning and trial of criminal cases in the county court at law scheduled for this week will not begin until Tuesday morning. All banks will be closed.

Business District in Panhandle Town Wiped Out by Blaze

CHANNING, Texas, Sept. 6. (AP)—Swept by high winds and fought by the town's entire population, a raging blaze virtually destroyed Channing's lone business block this afternoon.

Seven buildings, including the postoffice, were demolished by the flames, and the damage was estimated at about $80,000.

Channing's population is estimated at about 400 people.

A bonfire in which trash was being burned in a downtown alley was blamed for the blaze. For three hours the flames raged.

The Dumas fire department was called and after a 30-mile run in 37 minutes gave substantial relief. Three buildings were saved in the business section of the city.

Virtually helpless in the face of the disaster, with a loosely organized volunteer fire department the town rallied its entire citizenry to battle the sweeping flames.

A bucket brigade was formed and women and children aided in the spectacular battle.

The biggest damage was done at the Horn and Allen general store, which was destroyed at an estimated loss of $60,000.

Militiamen Go Into Fields To Enforce New Tubing Order

KILGORE, Texas, Sept. 6. (AP)—The giant East Texas oil field, accepting the state railroad commission's yoke, gave forth its oil today in compliance with the commission's order setting a maximum of 225 barrels per well daily.

Militiamen still were under call to collect evidence in event of violation, but military headquarters reported everything was progressing without incident.

Operators, however, were slow in reporting yesterday's production. Although they were ordered to do so by noon today, and to follow the same plan on each succeeding day, 50 per cent of them had not complied tonight. Authorities warned tardy producers they must come in with the figures on time hereafter. They thought most of the delay was the result of misunderstanding.

A number of wells yesterday slightly exceeded the 225-barrel limit, incomplete reports made today showed, but that had been expected, to some extent, due to the difficulty of shutting off the flow at the exact moment. All producers were ordered to "shoot as closely as possible to the mark."

Brig. Gen. Jacob Wolters of the martial law area, was in Houston, it was reported unofficially, for a conference with Gov. Ross S. Ster-

LONDON, Sept. 6. (AP)—A crowd of several thousand persons engaged in a demonstration in Hyde park today, while political leaders were preparing for opening of parliament this week.

The crowd announced its intention to attempt to see Prime Minister MacDonald at the house of commons Tuesday to protest against cuts in the "dole" and in wages.

The crowd was made up of members of the Independent Labor party and a contingent under the National Workers' movement. It converged on Oxford circus from all parts of London and, headed by a band of unemployed men, marched to Hyde park, bearing banners inscribed "No Wage Cuts!" "Stop This Starvation!"

All legal bureaus and ministries would be incorporated with the attorney general's office.

Graf Zep to Moor at Friedrichshafen Today

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 6. (US)—Returning from its cross-equatorial trip to South America, the Graf Zeppelin sighted the European mainland tonight at 9 o'clock (4 p. m. eastern daylight time) when she reported by radio her arrival over Cape Finisterre, Spain.

During the afternoon the Graf's position was given as latitude 40:15, longitude 12:45 west, approximately 600 miles off the coast of Portugal. The air ship is expected to moor here Monday.

Racing Flier Leaps From Blazing Plane In U.S. Aerial Derby

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 6. (AP)—A near fatal crackup, the fastest race of the meet and the women's free for all championship put thrills into the national air races today.

Walter Hunter, Sparta, Ill., was forced to jump from only 200 feet when something went wrong with the gas line of his plane and it caught fire. Hunter escaped with minor burns, but his plane, which he was testing for the Thompson trophy race tomorrow, was wrecked.

The Sunday crowd of 64,000, the largest of the week-old races, did not see Hunter "bail out," but they saw last year's time for the Thompson trophy race bettered by 20 miles an hour and watched Miss Maude Tate, of Springfield, Mass., win the annual aerol trophy race with a speed of 187.574 miles an hour.

In addition, Capt. Bert White, Rockhill, S. C., unofficially broke his own world's record for altitude parachute jumps when he stepped out into 52 degree below zero weather at a height of 27,000 feet. He landed safely in a cornfield 13 miles from the Cleveland airport.

The fastest closed course race ever run in the national air races was won by Robert Hall of Springfield, Mass., in a black and yellow Gee Bee monoplane at a speed of 222.5 miles an hour. The same plane was flown by Lowell Bayles also of Springfield at 286 miles an hour with a 20-mile wind last Tuesday and is a favorite to win the Thompson trophy race tomorrow, the climax of the program.

Tomorrow Bayles will take the ship and attempt to break the world's record for land planes of 276 miles an hour made by the late Adjutant Bonnet of France.

A similar attempt will be made at the same time by Major James H. Doolittle, who hung up a new transcontinental speed record of 11 hours and 15 minutes Friday.

Another entry in the Thompson race, the larger of two "mystery ships," from San Francisco, was damaged when the engine died at 40 feet while it was being landed by Ray Moore, of San Francisco. Moore had just won a 25-mile closed course race with an average speed of 185.097 miles an hour.

Ralph Lahere, Cincinnati, won a parachute jumping contest, landing 98 feet and six inches from the mark. Shirley Raumer, also of Cincinnati, was second.

THREE DIE IN CALIFORNIA CRASH

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., Sept. 6. (UP)—Three persons were killed when an airplane fell into Monterey bay, 100 yards off the Santa Cruz beach, today.

Thousands of persons who came here from hot interior valleys for the holidays screamed as the hydroplane wavered in its flight and then nosed into the water at the mouth of San Lorenzo river. Many ran from the beach, fearing that the craft might crash into the sand.

The pilot, George H. Robertson, 33, of Berkeley, was drowned. His safety belt held him in the cockpit which was under water. Two passengers, Annette Kaiser, 16, and her sister, Catherine, 11, died in a hospital, 15 minutes after the accident.

The father of the girls, M. J. Kaiser of Sangor, brought them here from Fresno county for the week-end and permitted them to go up in the plane, which had been used for pleasure trips all summer. They were taken from the wreckage of the partly submerged plane by a beach lifeguard and several volunteers.

Robertson was piloting the plane over the bay at an altitude of only 100 feet when his motor apparently stalled and the ship went into a nose spin.

The plane, a $15,000 Curtiss four-passenger flying boat, is owned by Hal Halloway of the Western American Air Express at Los Angeles.

Last Rites Held for Plane Crash Victims

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, Sept. 6. (AP)—Funeral services were held here today for Virgil Pylant, 23, student flier.

The body of Travis Boggs, 26, pilot, was carried to Dublin, Texas, for burial.

Boggs and Pylant were burned to death one mile north of here last night when the plane in which they riding nose dived to the ground and was destroyed by fire. Witnesses said the plane seemed to careen out of control as Boggs sought to land. It plunged to earth, its motor running wide open.

The program is an experiment in the transmission of difficult objects. The jewelry will be worn by Natalie Towers, of the Columbia Television studio.

GANG MURDERS NEAR SOLUTION

Two Men Arrested in South Texas Slayings

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Sept. 6. (UP)—The law tonight approached solution of a series of gang murders that have stirred South Texas during the past week.

Ferdinand J. Steinbach, Cincinnati, Ohio, arrived here today and immediately identified a skelton found last Tuesday as that of his son, Alfred Steinbach.

Two local men were lodged in the Nueces county jail immediately after Steinbach's identification. Tomorrow the elder Steinbach will go to Houston to attempt to identify a Dallas oil man held in jail there as the man who tried to swindle him.

The Dallas oil man is being held in connection with the slaying of C. A. (Keggy) Jones and his wife last week in their Houston apartment. Jones' brother, A. J. Jones, has been charged with the murder of John Cherris, Dallas bank robber suspect, whose gunshot-riddled body was found in the Brazos river near East Columbia following the Jones killings.

Cincinnati detectives who accompanied Steinbach here said the man's son disappeared shortly after he had been heard to threaten an oil man for swindling his father.

The younger Steinbach's body was found by a Mexican cowboy on a lonely bluff 10 miles south of here. He had been beaten to death.

Identification was made by means of dental charts and X-ray photos of a deformed arm.

Murray's Daughter Opens New Bridge

DURANT, Okla., Sept. 6. (UP)—The free bridge crossing the Red river and connecting Durant and Denison, Texas, opened only after Gov. W. H. Murray had declared martial law on the span, will be dedicated formally here Labor day Monday with the executive's daughter, Jeanne, as guest of honor.

Governor Murray is in Chicago where he will make a Labor day address.

Delegates from Oklahoma and Texas will meet in the center of the bridge, dedicate it and participate in a picnic celebration.

Miss Murray will break a bottle of Red river water on the bridge railing.

Governor Murray acted in violation of a federal injunction when he opened the free bridge, taking business away from the nearby toll span.

Wets to Call Roll on Beer as Solons Gather

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Immediately the next congress convenes, every senator and representative will be called upon to state where he stands on the growing movement for restoration of 4 per cent beer, anti-prohibition leaders announced today.

Undisturbed by the "paper" majority of the drys in congress the anti-prohibition forces confidently believe that they have a good chance for modifying the Volstead act next winter.

Alfalfa Bill Tells Chicago All About Oil, Beer and Politicians

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

CHICAGO, Sept. 6. (UP)—"Alfalfa Bill," called also "Cockleburr Bill," "Bolivia Bill," "Dollar Bill," "Gas Bag Bill" and "Battling Bill," came to town today.

"But I think my best nickname is 'Alfalfa Bill,'" Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, told the United Press after he had unfolded his lengthy legs and settled himself in a Congress hotel chair which he indicated was much too soft for real comfort.

"'Alfalfa Bill's' a real descriptive name," continued the governor, chewing a large cigar and tugging simultaneously on the end of his celebrated and exceedingly bushy mustache. "I taught the farmers down in our state to quit growing 'taters at a loss and to start raising alfalfa at a profit. And I campaigned to make the pretty blossom of the alfalfa plant Oklahoma's state flower, instead of the mistletoe. The mistletoe isn't a flower, anyway."

The governor wore his "work clothes" to Chicago to make a speech before a Labor rally tomorrow. "I'm going to have a busy day," said he, explaining the why for his old gray coat, his crumpled tan trousers and his faded purple necktie, which was slightly askew.

"Clothes don't worry me much, anyway," he added. "I'm more interested in the laboring man get-

CALL TO BRING THOUSANDS TO AUSTIN PARLEY

Sterling Issues Formal Order for Special Session Tuesday

MEASURES STUDIED

Defeat of Long's 'No Cotton' Plan Anticipated After Caucus

AUSTIN, Sept. 6. (AP)—Texas assumed the position of leader in the South-wide cotton curtailment movement today as Gov. Ross Sterling issued a call for a "farmer's session" of the legislature Tuesday to enact cotton conservation laws.

To speed action, the legislators will be prodded into immediate action by a giant mass meeting, expected to attract between 20,000 and 30,000 farmers from all parts of the state, here Wednesday night within a few blocks of the doors of the Texas capitol.

Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana accepted an invitation today to address the meeting. He will fly from Baton Rouge Wednesday morning. The invitation to Governor Long was extended by Gov. R. S. Sterling and J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture.

Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, also will speak.

Call Issued

The proclamation of Governor Sterling calling the legislature into session was filed and sealed by Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, early today. Copies were dispatched by registered mail to the members.

Governor Sterling's call stated the legislature was being convened "to enact such legislation as will adequately provide for soil conservation and alleviation of the conditions of agriculture in Texas and establish a policy which other agricultural states may follow."

Twenty-one senators and 110 house members have been pledged to support the acreage reduction plan, McDonald said.

Several bills were being drawn for presentation at the start of the session. That the "Long no cotton in 1932" plan was doomed to almost certain defeat was regarded by a majority of observers as certain. A majority of the members of both houses have expressed opposition to this plan, passed by the Louisiana legislature, and favor some 50 per cent plan of reduction.

Bill Favored

It was believed the agricultural blocs in both houses will concentrate on one bill to be introduced in the senate by Senator Oliver Cunningham of Abilene and in the house by J. J. Olsen of Abilene.

A preliminary caucus of senators was held here today. Senator Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock said the bill would be presented in the senate by Cunningham. The draft of the measure was not completed today.

Senator Walter Woodward also was reported to be drafting a bill.

A bill by Cunningham, that would have made it a misdemeanor to plant the same land in cotton on successive years, was defeated in the special session. Two previous attempts to regulate cotton acreage were defeated, once in the 41st session and again in the regular session of the present legislature.

Meeting Called

McDonald and other leaders in the movement confidently expected that other states would follow the

GAS ISSUE PUT BEFORE VOTERS

Wellington Citizens to Decide Tuesday

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 6.—The largest vote in the history of Wellington's city elections is expected to be polled Tuesday when voters here will decide whether or not the city shall operate a public owned gas plant. Interest in the election has been growing steadily the past 10 days and supporters of the $65,000 bond issue have been increasing in number as they acquire information concerning the profit-making possibilities of such a plant and as they digest the information of the report concerning the investment and earnings of the Northern Texas Utilities company in Wellington, present gas distributors.

Murray Airs His Views in Chicago

ting a job and the oil men getting a fair price for his oil."

The governor said he was sure his military shutdown of the Oklahoma oil fields would bring the price of oil to his $1-a-barrel level.

"It may take a little longer, now that Texas isn't cooperating any longer on this oil shutdown," he said, "but I know I'm going to win. The oil's still in the ground and it isn't going to waste. It's going to stay there, too, until the refiners will pay a fair price for it."

Murray said he was disappointed because the United Press had not asked him about his views on prohibition and whether he planned to run for president of the United States.

"Those are questions they ask me everywhere I go," he growled, diving into a capacious pocket and bringing out two typed statements, "but since you won't ask the questions here are the answers anyway."

One statement said that his battle cry was for "bread and butter; bacon and beans," and not for beer.

The other said that Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln had their own troubles while they were in the White House. "Were I to become a candidate," the statement added, "the most vitriolic attack ever known in American politics would be turned loose on me. Therefore, unless I am convinced that the people intend in 1932 to nominate the president, I should not desire such a stinging reward for my ambition."

"Certainly those statements are specific," said Murray, in answer to a further question about beer and the presidency. "And anyway, that's all I've got to say about that."

When Murray disembarked from a Chicago and Alton train, with one battered suitcase at his side, Col. George Gaw, Chicago's official and rotund "greeter" introduced him to the locomotive engineer.

"Tsk, tsk, tsk," said Murray while Greeter Gaw led him off to the official white greeting automobile, "think of that, that engineer brought me all the way here and he didn't know who I was."

The greeter gave the governor a gold medal and took him a wild ride through the busy loop, with two officers on white motorcycles screaming their sirens to clear the way.

"That sure was a fast ride," said the governor to the greeter upon arrival at the hotel, "but I think we should have stopped at all those red traffic lights!"

English Labor Secretary Denied Party Support

LONDON, Sept. 6. (US)—J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, today followed his leader, Prime Minister MacDonald in being repudiated by his local Labor party for participating in the emergency three-party government.

The general council of the Labor party of Derby, Thomas' constituency, voted to withdraw their support from Thomas' parliamentary condidacy, 103 to 48. Informed of the council's action, Thomas said: "Time will show who was right. I believe my action saved the working class from something ruinous. I have not been asked to resign immediately. I shall run as an independent Laborite at the next elections.

Oklahoma Orders 10-Cent Fee at River Pay Bridge

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 6. (UP)—A toll reduction of 15 cents, setting the fee at 10 cents, will be placed in force this week over the Lexington-Purcell pay bridge. The decrease was ordered by the state corporation commission following a hearing.

Close-Up of Britain's New "Government of Individuals"

By MILTON BRONNER
European Manager, NEA Service

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A poetic minded book lover . . . a former engine cleaner . . . a romantic adventurer who as a boy ran away to sea on a tramp steamer . . . a partial cripple . . . a famous sportsman. . . . These are among Great Britain's new "government of individuals" selected by Premier Ramsay MacDonald to pull the nation through its financial crisis.

Here are brief personality sketches of the new British cabinet composed of Laborites, Liberals and Conservatives.

1—Stanley Baldwin (Conservative), lord president of the council, is a poetic-minded book lover, who often takes the role of the Puritan in his orations, with his sense of duty, moralizing and classical allusions. Nervous, he puckers his brow and works his face strangely while speaking, but has a graceful delivery. He is subtle, humorous. His eyes are blue, his skin ruddy and clear. He likes to walk in the country or watch a rowing match. His ancestors started a tiny iron foundry which today has grown into the powerful Baldwins, Ltd. He went into the business at 21 and stayed there for 20 years. He was first elected to the house of commons in 1908.

2—Lord Reading (Liberal), foreign secretary, is known for his colorful personality and adventurous career. Born plain Rufus Isaacs, son of a merchant, he ran away to sea on a tramp steamer at the age of 18; failed as a London stock broker at 26; studied law one year and became a barrister at 27; rose to the British attorney generalship at 50; became lord chief justice of England at 55, viceroy of India at 61 and foreign secretary at 71. He is suave and famed for his unruffled coolness.

3—Lord Sankey (Labor), lord chancellor, has never been a member of the house of commons, nor has he ever associated himself with politics. He served as lord justice of appeal in 1928-29, and for 14 years previous he was a judge of the king's bench division. He is widely known in adult educational work. His hobbies are traveling and walking.

4—Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister (Conservative), president of the board of trade, is a son of the late Col. Y. G. Lloyd-Greame, but assumed his present name in 1924. He was admitted to the bar in 1908 and served in the army from 1914 to 1917. He served as president of the board of trade in 1922-23 and has held other important posts. He prefers golf and shooting for recreation.

5—Sir Samuel Hoare (Conservative), secretary of state for India, is an authority on Indian affairs. He is an author, expert tennis player and skater. He has held many important posts. Educated at Oxford, he has served as colonial secretary, secretary of state for air and was active in electoral reforms. His publications include "A Flying Visit to the Middle East" and "India by Air."

6—Neville Chamberlin (Conservative, secretary for health, was trained for business, but he may yet outstrip his distinguished, monacled half brother, Austen, in politics. While Austen was already prominent in parliament, Neville tried to make a go of a plantation in the Bahamas. Finally giving that up, he returned to England and went into business. In 1916, he became director general of national service, his task being to find men and women to carry on during the war the great key industries of munition making, agriculture, mining and shipbuilding. He entered parliament only 12 years ago. Since then he has been postmaster general, twice minister of health and chancellor of the exchequer.

7—J. H. Thomas (Labor), secretary for dominions and colonies, who now eats soup and fish off gold plates at state affairs, is the same Jim Thomas who once fried his bacon on an engine shovel. Going to work as an errand boy at nine, he was cleaning engines at 15. He boasts he wiped the engines so clean that a white handkerchief could be passed over them without being soiled. He sponsored his first strike when the boss tried to cut down his regular cleansing tallow allowance from three to two lumps—and he won. He became a fireman, engineer, union leader and, finally, an influential politician known as British labor's "sharpshooter."

8—Sir Herbert Samuels (Liberal), home secretary, is cautious and correct, but beneath his outwardly somewhat cool manner he conceals a zeal for social betterment and a deep-rooted attachment to English Liberalism. He first entered the cabinet in 1909 and the outbreak of the great war found him a prominent member of the government. He was secretary for home affairs in 1916 and gained fame for his impartiality in settling disputes with the Arabs while high commissioner of Palestine for five years.

9—J. Ramsay MacDonald (Labor), prime minister, is generous, kind, self-educated, intellectually independent and has a deep, melodious voice. Born of humble fishing folk in a tiny village in Scotland, he wanted to go to sea as a fisherman, but was put to work in the fields. He went to London and tramped the streets penniles, then got a job as a bus conductor, at 19. He studied nights, but his health broke. Joining the fledgling independent Labor party at 28, he became known as Labor's greatest intellectual asset. He is one of England's best-read men and owns thousands of books.

10—Philip Snowden (Labor), chancellor of the exchequer, is a fiery debater, with an acid style that burns. A master of lucid expression, he revels in figures. He is credited with having originated the phrase, "The idle rich." Son of a poor weaver, he early developed an aptitude for books. Largely by his own efforts, he educated himself and entered the government's civil service. An accident, while riding a bicycle, broke his frail body when he was 29, and now he goes through life supported by a pair of canes. He is a pacifist and, during the world war, lost political prestige because he wasn't afraid to express his views.

Pure-blooded Indians constitute more than 33 per cent of the entire population of Mexico today.

TEXAS TAKES COTTON LEAD

Sterling Issues Formal Session Call

lead of Texas and enact legislation that would be co-ordinated. McDonald has urged that Texas be conservative and constructive in its action.

The mass meeting was arranged at a conference between McDonald and his advisory committee. It was the concensus at the meeting that no state agency would be needed to enforce any cotton acreage reduction law and each farmer would be compelled by public opinion to abide by the dictates of the legislature. The call was written by A. A. Allison of Corsicana.

Questions as to the constitutionality of a cotton acreage law have been temporarily shunted aside. McDonald, however, said he believed the courts would uphold the law in the event it was attacked. The verbiage of the bill will be such that the law will be based on conservation of the soil.

Commissioner McDonald will preside at the mass meeting. Governor Sterling will present Governor Long. Short addresses will be made by Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt and Fred Minor, speaker of the house. The call for the meeting was signed by approximately 200 cotton farmers from all parts of the state.

Proclamation

The governor's proclamation:

"To all to whom these presents shall come:

"Whereas, the voice of the people is resounding through the South in a clamor of distress, seeking relief from their gravest agricultural crisis of modern years, cotton prices are lower than the cost of production, and over-production threatens an even greater demoralization of the market. Meanwhile in the background looms the black shadow of soil deterioration, mencing oncoming cotton farmers with the ruinous heritage of worn out land, such as has already blighted agriculture in older states; and

Thousand Petition

"Whereas, facing financial ruin cotton farmers throughout Texas have been holding mass meetings and adding their concerted voices to the rising tide of pleas for legislative relief. Thousands have petitioned the chief executive to call a special session for enactment of laws to aid them, particularly by means of cotton acreage reduction. The welfare of cilization rests upon the shoulders of the farmer, and the burden is ever a trying one. The government should be eager to extend him any reasonable assistance that he might deem necessary. If legislation can help Texas agriculture in its present emergency I believe it my duty to convoke the legislature in the interests of the state generally, as well as the tillers of the soil. I have waited and investigated until I have become convinced that a majority of Texas cotton farmers and their legislative representatives desire an emergency law, and I am now ready and glad to act in their behalf.

Aims Outlined

"Now therefore, I, R. S. Sterling, governor of the state of Texas, do, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution and laws of this state, hereby call a special session of the 42nd legislature to be convened in the city of Austin, Texas, commencing at 12 o'clock noon, on Tuesday, Sept. 8th, A. D., 1931, for the following purposes:

"1—To enact such legislation as will adequately provide for soil conservation and the alleviation of the conditions of agriculture in Texas and establish a policy which other agricultural states may follow.

"2—To consider and act on such other subjects of public importance as the executive may, from time to time, during the session, submit by message or otherwise.

"R. S. Sterling,
"Governor of Texas."

BAYLOR AND KNOX DIFFER

Knox county farmers generally favor the Long plan, calling for a year's cotton holiday, whereas Baylor county farmers feel a reduction in acreage is the best solution of the cotton problem, according to Senator Ben G. Oneal, who returned Sunday from a tour of the two counties to sound out the farmers' viewpoint.

Senator Oneal said he planned to visit Seymour Monday before continuing to Austin for the special session, which convenes Tuesday.

surrendered. The capture of the Telcahuano arsenal by government forces cost the rebels many prisoners.

"At Coquimbo, the naval rebels offered the government a new basis for surrender, but the government replied it would only accept unconditional surrender. The government will maintain the firmest attitude until it has achieved defeat of the rebel movement. The rest of the country is quiet."

Announcement of the surrender of five vessels of the fleet came ten hours after the government had ordered a smashing offensive by land and air against the rebellious navy, determined to starve or batter it into submission by dawn.

Battle Toll Heavy

Rebel raiding parties were repelled at Valparaiso, Coquimbo and other coastal points during the night and today the army's bombing squadron took to the air, reportedly under instructions to attack all war vessels until the movement is quelled.

Government sources today confirmed earlier reports that between 250 and 500 port workers at Talcahuano were slain in the government offensive yesterday that drove the rebels out of the important southern naval base.

Unconfirmed reports state the armored cruiser General O'Higgins has been crippled by the bombing planes and that the Captain Prat, coast defense battleship, was retaken from mutineers when Talcahuano was recaptured. The Captain Prat's guns, the report added, were then turned on a rebel destroyer which was sent to the bottom.

An official bulletin issued by General Carlos Vergara, minister of war and commander in chief of all government forces, stated this mroning that the campaign plans decided on Saturday are being carried out.

Club to Can Food For Orphan's Home

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 6.—Realizing that the biggest family to be fed in Southwest Oklahoma this fall and winter is the Tipton Orphans home, with more than 200 children, members of the Tipton Community Farm Women's club decided at a recent meeting to devote several days of the week beginning Sept. 7 to canning vegetables for that institution. Jars are being furnished by the home.

Peas of various kinds have probably been grown more abundantly in Tillman county this season than any other kind of vegetable and an effort will be made to can as much of them as possible. Those who have more peas than they will need are urged to give the surplus to the home. If those with surplus peas who reside near Tipton, and have no way of taking them to the home will notify Mrs. Tom Johnson or Mrs. Raymond Lovejoy, some one will get the peas.

Members of the Tipton Community club will do the canning.

New Floods in China Add Million to Death Toll

SHANGHAI, Sept. 6. (US)—New floods menacing a fertile and populous section of China in Kiang-Su province along the Grand canal and the old bed of the Yellow river with almost complete destruction, are believed to have added in the last two days at least 1,000,000 to the list of drowned in stricken Chinese areas.

A new survey in the light of this latest disaster, made by associated charitable organizations now places the total of China's flood destitute who must have help to live this winter at more than 180,000,000. In this crisis the expected supply of wheat from the United States is regarded of utmost importance.

British Peer, Scion of Ancient Family, Goes on Dole List

LONDON, Sept. 6. (US)—Sir Charles Burnett Buckworth-Herne-Soame of Coalbrookdale, Shropshire, whose title dates to the days of King Henry VIII, today was revealed as the first baronet forced to accept the unemployment dole for the support of himself and his wife.

Sir Charles, who is 36, is now receiving the British equivalent of $3.25 weekly from the government as an unemployed worker and a pension of $2.50 a week for services in the world war.

Crippled as he has been by his war wounds, Sir Charles has twice tried unsuccessfully to make a living by his hands, and is not ashamed of being a government ward, although he will not accept the charity of his friends.

Title Meaningless

He held his head high in the little four-room cottage in Coalbrookdale today as he talked. His pretty wife worked behind the little place in the gardens while Sir Charles Frankly discussed how fate decreed that he should inherit a baronetcy when he was drawing the jobless dole. He said:

"The title I inherited a week ago on the death of my father means nothing to me. Instead, it is a handicap. I may be a baronet and have a crest on silver—if I had any—but the cold hard fact is that I am a plain laborer who has had to appeal for the dole because I cannot get work. I dislike receiving the dole, but I can't find work—can't find a thing.

"I had worked as a laborer at the restoration of build was abbey at a shilling an hour, but even when they cut us a farthing, my wife and I could still live.

Asks Chance

"But when that job stopped, I tried everywhere to find employment without success. My father did what he could for me, but he was a poor man and couldn't help much.

"The day my father died, reluctantly I was forced to seek the dole to prevent my wife's and my starving to death.

"I am a good laborer. All I want is an opportunity to use my hands and remove my name from the roll of the jobless."

Sir Charles is the sole surviving male member of his family, and 11th of the name to hold the title. His story is akin to that of many other famous English families, whose fortunes, amassed in the days of Britain's domination of commerce and trade, dwindled slowly with the changing conditions.

The founder of his title lived in Manorial state in the time of Henry VIII, and other ancestors held high court posts. But the present titleholder is penniless, seeking work that does not exist.

Mayor Walker Escapes Injury in Train Crash

MACON, France, Sept. 6. (AP)—The train on which Mayor James J. Walker of New York was returning to the Riviera from Paris was in collision here tonight with a locomotive in the station. Three train hands were hurt and a score of passengers were bruised, but there was no indication the mayor was injured.

It was believed the wreck would delay the mayor's journey to the Riviera since some time would be required to clear the track.

The year book of the National Recreation association shows that 980 communities in the United States and Canada spent $38,518,194 for recreation during 1930, a year of depression, a gain of $5,000,000 over the previous year.

BANDITS LOOT BURK STATION

Thieves Get $275 From Strong Box

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Sept. 6.—The Gregg filling station lost $275 here last night when the cash drawer was robbed while the attendant served a customer outside.

A strong box in which the money was kept in a desk was taken with the money in it. About $120 was in currency, the remainder was in checks. After serving the customer the attendant returned to the filling station office to find the money gone.

The quickness with which the cash box was obtained led police to believe that the robbers were familiar with the filling station and the place where the money was kept.

Members of the sheriff's department from Wichita Falls are working on the case.

Guards Watch as Etex Wells Flow

ling. He was expected to return to Kilgore tomorrow with the governor's orders for a partial evacuation of the field, which is expected by the middle of the week.

Wells Checked

Under tentative plans no more than 60 men and a few officers will be kept here indefinitely. The remainder of the army of occupation, numbering 709 men, will soon return to civil life.

The unwieldy field went under martial law Aug. 17. Overproduction in this area, usually about 800,000 barrels daily, was charged with virtually destroying the nation's market.

Thus far militiamen have not resorted to a patrol of the field to enforce the new proration order, relying instead upon the reports of producers, refiners and consumers of crude as a check against any violation of the order. Today, however, a number of troopers moved into the field checking the number of wells not equipped with tubing required in the railroad commission's order. Information procured from the check will be forwarded to authorities in Austin. Militia headquarters emphasized today's activities were not to be considered as a patrol of the field. Officials characterized the tour as an inspection. It is the only one attempted since the resumption of production.

Authorities believed the danger of fires had passed. They were apprehensive because of the tremendous amount of gas pressure which accumulated during the shutdown.

The military area was quiet, and about the only development was the issuance of a statement by Col. J. Lewis Thompson, expressing dissatisfaction with the proration order and charging Commissioner Lon A. Smith with "slamming the door in the faces" of a delegation from the association which went to Austin to confer with the commission about the order. Thompson said Smith was chiefly to blame "for the present serious, if not devastating status prevailing in the oil field."

A number of independent operators, among them Thompson, have charged the commission's order was not fair to the small producer who can not compete with the major companies in drilling operations.

The price for East Texas crude remained posted at 68 cents a barrel today. It had fallen as low as five cents prior to the advent of martial law.

More and Briefer Marriages Listed In U. S. Census Report for Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (US)—Marriage is more popular than ever, but it doesn't last so long, census bureau figures revealed today.

Divorces in the nation more than doubled between 1920 and 1930, though there was a marked increase in marriages.

All records for divorces were broken in 1930, when 1,062,726 men and women were living in a post-marriage state, compared with 508,588 in 1920.

In percentage of total population over 15 years old, it was 1.1 per cent in 1930, compared with sixtenths of one per cent 10 years before.

Report Quoted

The census bureau reported:

"At the census of 1890, the earliest date for which we have statistics of marital condition, 53.9 per cent of the men and 56.8 per cent of the women were reported as married.

"At each census since 1890 the percentage married has shown an increase in both men and women."

Thus, it was inferred that the institution of matrimony is far from headed for the rocks.

The greatest percentage of married men in proportion to population was found among rural nonfarm population, which includes residents of many suburbs. More farm women were married than any other class.

California Leads

California led all states as the home of divorces. The report showed 59,586 divorced men and 58,567 divorced women in that state in 1930.

Though the "divorce mill" at Reno, Nev., attracts the marriage-weary from all over the union, the record revealed that this state had but 1,574 divorced men and 911 divorced women living there.

The divorce population of other states was given as follows:

New York, 22,117 men, 30,596 women; Pennsylvania, 21,287, 24,360; Michigan, 28,261, 25,259; Illinois, 35,562, 40,186; Missouri, 18,442, 21,162; Nebraska, 5,645, 6,072; District of Columbia, 1,808, 1,992; Virginia, 5,801, 7,765; Tennessee, 8,269, 13,026; Texas, 2,808, 37,182; Washington, 14,876, 13,701.

POCKET 'MIKE'

New Radio Device Makes It Easy for Bashful Speakers

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. (US)—Public speakers no longer have to remain in front of the "mike" to have their voices effectively projected over loud speakers.

A new microphone, small enough to be worn in the lapel of a speaker's coat or concealed in a breast pocket, has been devised for his convenience.

Feminine Demo Leader Protests Clubs' Pamphlet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (US)—Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, today called upon the General Federation of Women's clubs to withdraw its recent George Washington bi-centennial pamphlet.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

One columnist Sunday told of all the gold in the hands of France and of the United States; of all the riches Uncle Sam owned; of other countries bankrupt and old families broken.

Then we overheard two men talking of the farming situation. "Farmers," said one "are not like the workingmen who have been used to being out of employment at times and who do not mind a dole. Farmers are the most independent people on earth. They will revolt."

This column is in too light a vein to follow up the thoughts we heard expressed. And somehow, we feel that writing of such things does no good. If a man is out of a job or if a woman is homeless and has a family dependent on her, she has a right to be depressed.

But why should those who have not yet felt hunger and whose hearts and homes have held together be among the multitude crying "down with the established order." Somehow we have faith to believe that the courts and the laws will work yet before it is too late and that a Moses will rise as one has always risen in America.

And in the meantime, let us remark that if women ruled the land, we fell that things would have been done when the first child began to suffer. Women are mothers when there is trouble.

Loving the men of our family as much as any wife and mother—and finding much pleasure in the company of intelligent men at any time, we are yet a holder of briefs for women.

When a man sees a car driving in curves before him and says "I bet it's a woman," our ire rises. We thought of the countless times we had heard the phrase the other day when at the corner of Tenth and Taylor we came on two cars parked side by side almost at the intersection of the streets. There was room for only one car to pass them.

One man had gotten out of his car, leaving his small daughter in it, and was parked on the running board of the other, having a heart to heart chat with his friend. It made no difference to them if some one coming out of Taylor street might have to back up to get out of the way of Tenth street drivers.

Even women would have been more considerate.

It peeved us, but nearer town we saw a sign on a porch column that interested us so much we regained our usual sweet frame of mind. It read "Apartment for People;" simple as all that. But we are wondering yet what it would be for if not for people.

CHURCH HOLDS LABOR SERVICE

McKenney Addresses Workers in Special Sermon

Modern problems of the laboring classes and also of those who employ labor were discussed Sunday night at the First Methodist church by the pastor, Dr. S. S. McKenney, before a large audience which included many members of the laboring forces present in answer to the invitation extended by the church to attend that service.

Dr. McKenney chose from Acts 18:3 the following text: "And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and wrought; for by their occupation they were tentmakers." The following is a condensed resume of his address:

"We are living in the midst of depressing times. This condition obtains not only in our city and country, but largely throughout the civilized world. The past year has witnessed millions of men out of work, unable to secure the necessities of life and seeking help at the hands of various relief societies. Neither have these been chronic loafers, but in many instances, sober and industrious citizens who were willing to do any kind of labor and yet unable to find it. The United States department of labor reported a decrease of employment in our country of three-quarters of a million men between October, 1929, and January, 1931, and a total of more than six millions of unemployed persons in our country last winter.

Jobs Found

"During last year the city of New York undertook, through what was known as the Prosser committee, to meet the challenge of unemployment in that great municipality. William H. Matthews, at the head of a charitable organization of that city set to work to find out what could be done to supply a great army of 25,000 men with "made work" which should be paid from the funds contributed toward charity, and he found many such tasks as the improvement of parks, the cleaning of streets, the clearing of vacant lots, the repairing and renovating of unkept public buildings, and many other useful tasks for those who were willing to lift themselves above the level of public charity. They were allowed a maximum of $15 for a three-day week for such work which not only kept them from starvation but also gave them a sense of independence in self-support. As something like $8,269,000 was raised and expended in this manner. Other American cities found it profitable to follow the example of our great metropolis, such as Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Philadelphia and Cleveland. Perhaps almost any community might find here a suggestion that would help, in some degree, to solve a local situation.

"Our text shows how Paul wrought as a tentmaker at Corinth. As a pioneer missionary without a church or mission board to back him such a course was a necessity. Moreover, with quacks and frauds and imposters about him, such as Simon and sorcerer and the damsel who "brought her masters much gain," his course was for expediency. Yet, most of all, as he desired to reach men with his gospel which could best be done in such centers as Thessalonica, Ephesus and Corinth by joining the gospel of work with the gospel of worship, he did it for an opportunity. Yet, he also held that 'they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel' while here making himself 'chargeable to no man!'

Service Call

"From his life of sacrifice and service we may learn that life is not divided into sacred and secular pursuits, but all life is sacred. 'Whether, therefore, ye eat or dring, or whatsoever ye do: do all to the glory of God!' Jesus taught the same lesson and found the symbols of His great kingdom in every task. Of the farmer and the fisherman, the shepherd and husbandman, he said in his various parables 'The kingdom is like that!' He spent ten times as long in private as in public life that we might learn this same lesson, and God has given us six days to work with one day for worship in order to teach the same truth.

"The call to service is universal. 'All things come to those who wait'? No, but to those who work! 'The gods sell all things to men for labor!' Workers should cooperate, organize, unite. Also, capital and labor are mutually dependent and essential to each other. And, too, nature cooperates with the worker in winds and waves, gravity and electricity. Finally, the true worker is a co-partner with God: 'My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.' How honorable is honest toil! It is immortal! 'God buries His workman, but carries on His work!'"

The special Labor day service marked the reopening of the work of the church in all departments following a vacation period of comparative inactivity. The full choir, with Mrs. Pearl Calhoun Davis, director, again participated in the service.

Chest to Complete Organization For Fund Campaign This Week

The second week of detail preparation for the 1931 appeal of the Community Chest opens today. So brief is the time remaining in which leaders may organize the various teams and committees that will participate in the movement that the utmost advantage is being taken of every day.

As the past week saw the appointment of leadership for the various committees and divisions of the campaign, so this one will see these leaders devoting their attention to the selection of assistants and the preparation of plans leading up to the official opening of the movement Sept. 21.

Meeting Called

A meeting of an advisory committee appointed last week by Chairman Walter D. Cline is scheduled for Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The initial session of this group will be held at campaign headquarters, 713 Eighth street.

Frank E. Jaynes, who will be charged with the direction of the speaking program for the campaign, arrived in Wichita Falls Sunday. Mr. Jaynes will be remembered for his many addresses in behalf of the Chest movement during the campaign last year, when he appeared before every service and luncheon club and delivered a series of addresses in offices stores and industrial establishments.

Mr. Jaynes first address in Wichita Falls this year will be made at the advisory committee meeting Tuesday.

Reviewing the progress of the campaign during the past week Walter D. Cline, general chairman, stated Sunday:

"We have covered more ground during the past week than we were able to cover in twice the period last year. The fact that we are more familiar with our organization program each year makes progress increasingly rapid. This is an accomplishment which is very much to be desired because of the fact that all of our committee work and soliciting is done by volunteer business men and women. Their time is valuable and we wish to conserve it just as much as possible.

"This year we face an emergency in the administration of our various agencies and it is most important that success crown our efforts. To this end we invite the participation of every resident of the community able to devote a portion of his or her time to the cause. Success this year, more than ever before will depend upon the generous support of every resident in both time and money."

Hoover Predicts 100,000 Federal Building Jobs by January 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (UP)—A report by President Hoover on the progress of the $700,000,000 federal building program showed today that 39,000 men are employed, directly of indirectly, thus making a dent of less than seven-tenths of one per cent in the country's army of 6,000,000 unemployed.

The president said that by Jan. 1, it was estimated 100,000 men would be at work on federal construction projects. This figure represents slightly more than one and one-half per cent of the total number of unemployed.

While it showed real progress toward effecting a gigantic program, the report revealed the difficulty of putting to work even an appreciable number of the men and women thrown out of work by the business depression.

Since the last report on Jan. 15, of the progress being made on the federal building program, more buildings have been completed, the president said, than during any whole year since 1927.

In his July 15 statement, the president said that a total of 57 projects had been completed since May, 1929. Today's statement said that the total now of projects completed since May, 1929, was 121. He added that three were completed between Aug. 1 and Sept. 1. Hence, apparently 61 projects were completed during the 16 days between July 15 and Aug. 1.

Wichita Falls Musicians Leave For Washington Land Development

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Ramage, residents of Wichita Falls for about eight years, and McGregor Brown, whose activity as a baritone soloist has made him well known here during the past year, left early Sunday morning overland for Washington, D. C., where the Ramages plan to make their home in the future.

Mr. Ramage has made himself a factor in musical circles in this city as a connoiseur of stringed instruments, particularly the violin, and by his ability as a violin maker. His violin manufacture and repair shop, located at 1002 Eighth street, was extensively patronized by residents of this section of the country. During the past two years he had given part of his time to investment sales.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramage also enjoyed a wide acquaintance because of their interest in artistic and other cultural activities, and their familiarity with dramatic, musical and social phases of national life in the United States. They plan to make their home in Washington, and Mr. Ramage will be engaged in the development of a large tract of land which he owns on the banks of the Potomac river.

Mr. Brown conducted the public singsongs presented by the city park department during the past summer, and has appeared in many local churches as baritone soloist. He is a civil engineer, and will be associated with Mr. Ramage in his new enterprise near Washington, it was announced. Mr. Brown expressed his intention of returning to Wichita Falls early in 1932.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas ranks third among the states in production of winter wheat, its 58,720,000 bushels for 1931 being only 50,000 bushels behind Nebraska, which holds second place, but a long way behind the 223,000,000 bushels raised by Kansas in first place.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

That all possible speed will be used in starting actual construction on the 115 federal building projects in Texas is the word brought back from Washington by a Fort Worth architect and a welcome bit of news to the nearly 115 Texas towns and cities with federal appropriations authorized, for practically all of them involve the expenditure of more than $100,000 and several of them run well into the millions. . . . Evidence of the speeding up is seen in the announcement that contract for clearing the site for the $750,000 federal building at Texarkana has been let; that architects have been selected for the $650,000 Beaumont structure; that final approval has been given plans for the $750,000 building at Wichita Falls; that contract has been let for the $329,000 building at Brownsville and that sites for postoffices at Pampa, Jacksonville and Breckenridge have been accepted at prices of $25,000, $23,000 and $13,500 respectively. . . . A new federal project in Texas, location of which is yet to be decided, is fish hatchery, for which several West Texas towns are expected to apply. Abilene withdrew from the contest when it considered one requirement—that of 300 million gallons of water annually to be furnished free; but San Angelo is showing sites to the locating committee with the Concho capable of supplying any amount of water needed. . . . Federal buildings are under construction in a score or more Texas cities, with major projects under way outside of postoffices being the $4,500,000 narcotic farm at Fort Worth, the $6,500,000 veterans' hospital at Waco, the $400,000 federal prison at El Paso, the $400,000 immigration station at Galveston, the $10,000,000 Randolph field at San Antonio.

Athletic Star Made Coach at Mangum

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 6.—Theo Powell, one of the best athletes ever to perform in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association, has been elected director of athletics for Mangum High school. Mr. Powell will fill the vacancy left by Raymond Swartz, coach last year, who resigned last week to accept a similar place at Central State Teachers college at Edmond.

After winning 15 letters in four sparkling years at Abilene Christian college, Powell has had three successful years of coaching in the high schols at Abilene, Marlin and Brady, Texas.

Powell's home was originally Ralls, Texas, where he was a four-sport star in high school before going to Abilene. Mrs. Powell is the former Dorothy Davis of Mangum. They will make their home with Mrs. Powell's father, B. E. Davis, secretary of the Mangum Chamber of Commerce.

The farm board traded off surplus wheat to Brazil for some coffee the other day. Now the board only needs to trade somebody something for some doughnuts.

No Honor in Crime

IF THE outlawed element of society could be given enough rope it would hang itself undoubtedly. But in the process it would destroy entirely too many innocent bystanders. When one gang makes war upon another, in the sinister fashion of the underworld, it is sounding a warning to cemetery sextons to get busy. However, these self-dug graves are always surrounded by slim green plots of innocent victims.

New evidence of this has come from the Michigan state prison at Marquette, where three gangsters, foiled in an attempt at escape, and one confederate, committed suicide. The three desperadoes realized that they would be captured. They twisted Patrick Henry's challenging words, "give me liberty or give me death," to their own crooked needs. They weren't game enough to meet their conquerors. So they killed themselves.

But as they started their attempt at freedom they shot the prison physician. It was a cowardly act. Even gangsters sometimes are better sports than that. The three men pretended they were ill. They appealed to Dr. A. W. Hornbogen for medical attention which was granted immediately. Probably laughing to themselves at their own cleverness the crooks cold-bloodedly killed the physician.

Blood thirsty enemies of society can scarcely be called men. They are motivated entirely by beastly motives, and if another is in their way, he must die. Not because he has wronged them. Just because he happens to be there. With so many finer interests in the world it is regrettable that society must spend so much of its time and money in destroying a human element that cannot be controlled in any other fashion. This element must be stamped out before people will be free to pursue more pleasant lines of interest.

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are all endangered today. More so, because the criminal-minded have access to the same scientific knowledge that the protective element has. Desperadoes, at heart, are cowards. The Michigan men were. When they were defeated they killed themselves rather than face the consequences. A good old-fashioned scare may not convert a desperado but it will protect an innocent man sometimes.

Gandhi's Girl Discipline

NILLA CRAM COOK, the 21-year-old American girl, who has joined Mahatma Gandhi's movement in India, is putting the trend of modern womanhood in reverse. The average American girl, rejoicing in her freedom, has no desire to tie herself up with anything that might affect her independence. She wants freedom and action. And the girls of other nations have been catching her spirit.

But Miss Cook has sacrificed lipsticks, powders, Empress Eugenie bonnets, jazz, chiffon hose—all the other accoutrements of the modern girl. Undoubtedly she is sincere in her action. Otherwise the spectacular side of her act would not compensate for the hardships that attend it. Whether she is making an unnecessary gesture or not is a matter of opinion. But she deserves credit for her courage.

The Cost of Carelessness

HIT-AND-RUN drivers, people who carelessly start forest fires, those who leave loaded weapons within reach of children are included in the category of those who are responsible for much of the loss of human life. These very people frequently lament that organized gangster warfare hasn't been thwarted. They do not seem capable of realizing that they themselves belong to an army that is very much more effective.

The two little children, who were buried in a potato patch, with wet sacks over their faces, to save them from suffocation in a forest fire not long ago bear evidence that innocent people are endangered by unintentional carelessness as well as by organized concentration of law-breakers.

Echo of Other Days

WHEN the new bonnet was tossed into the fashion ring not long ago, it produced a pandemonium of excitement. Doubtless it has been given as much publicity as any gangster shooting or political revolt could ever hope to obtain. It has changed the tempo of the age a little. It is going to slow it down, those who know, are saying.

Life will become more dignified, more formal. Women will be demure. They will be sweet rather than smart if they must make a choice. And now it has been announced that the dance is tuning its music to the dear, dead days, also. A new dance, the America, is keeping step with the hats.

It would seem that when a bonnet enters the fashion ring it has as much influence as a glove in the political arena.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

It must be a genuine thrill for a guy like Elmer Rice . . . I mean it must be swell to be Elmer Rice and write a classic like "Street Scene" for the stage and then, when Hollywood wants it for the camera, to be able to say to them, "If you want my play then I must write the screen version!" . . . No wonder it is such a masterpiece! . . . And that Sylvia Sidney person! . . . She herself . . . So Sylvia Sidneyish . . . And Beulah Bondi, Collier Jr. and Estelle Taylor are a few of the other Worth-Whiles in the large troupe . . . No more human and compelling manuscript has been jotted down than this very fine moving picture . . . It tugs at your heartstrings so . . . It toys with your tear-ducts and chucks you under the chin, too . . . It is middle-class New York skillfully painted by Elmer Rice Rembrandt, that's what it is . . . The Gershwin-touch is lifted for the incidental melodies, and when they are violin'd and cello'd against the skyscraping sector it lifts you out of your chair a little . . . I'm going to see "Street Scene" again, and learn something about black and white art . . . There will be critics, I suppose, who will point out that Hollywood has again triumphed over Broadway, and offer the movie version of "Street Scene" as a reminder of the fact . . . A stiffer reminder, I think, would be for Broadway and the stage to remind Hollywood that "Street Scene" was a smashing hit as a play, and, for that matter, all the stage wallops eventually became camera-made achievements It is a remark of someone that genius does what it must, but talent does what it can.

It might make a funny sequence for a movie, I think . . . That scene in that Long Island roadhouse undressing room the other midnight, I mean . . . When the squaw of a prominent Long Beach man walked into the place and banged a cutie right on her kissables . . . But such a punch! . . . Then the wife whose man was a no-goody nonchalantly walked away . . . The terpsichorine, it appears, had just received a huge bouquet of posies from the two-timer, who ankled into the night club after the "big scene" . . . He didn't know that his wife had been there and struck his sweetheart . . . So he was offended terribly when the girl ignored him . . . So he gave her a slap on the nose, too—thinking she was ritzing him after sending her all those nice flowers and everything . . . Wonder what happened to him when he got home? . . . Nearly all the gangsters you meet aspire for higher things . . . They want to rise above themselves, after they make their catch, but simply do not know how . . . That bandit last night, for instance . . . He was discussing the horror of success . . . "When we all lived on the sixth floor of an Eighth avenue tenement," he was saying, "everything was swell. Soon as we moved to Fifth avenue, three of my brothers got killed—and on the first floor, too!" . . . Oh, well. That's Africa!

A better flippancy is the one which is aimed at two chorus girls who were the sweethearts of the same man . . . But they didn't know it . . . "That's what you call a couple of Broadway sisters-in-law," observed a cynic . . . Wonder if it is true that every time Edward G. Robinson, the clever chinema actor, is the guest of honor at a dinner that he always responds with the same speech he delivered during the banquet in "Little Caesar?" . . . I'm still laughing at the breeziest quip of the day from Fanny Brice, who vowed that she didn't remember its source . . . Well, no matter—An optimist is a guy who leaves his door open all night—hoping that his wife will walk out!

She probably will have her neck bruised, I'm afraid . . . That former night club girl who is desperate for coin and is shaking down former bosses and others for money . . . She is getting away with it, too . . . She phones them and says: "I didn't tell the cops all I knew about that shooting—so you'd better kick in with plenty" . . . And they are kicking in heavily . . . She phones married men she saw out with show girls and puts the touch on them in the same manner . . . No good can come to the cutie—and if she persists with some of the less yellow ones—she most likely will be running around like a chicken with its alimony cut off . . . To hear them explain it in the darker corners the reason that Atlantic City chieftain was knocked off is that he was one of Mr. Capone's more able representatives in the East . . . And that by killing all of Capone's Biggies—it might prevent him from coming into New York . . . The theory being that when the heads of the outfits are stifled it breaks the morale of the gang . . . The papers confirm the argument that most of the trouble is arranged by the smaller fry . . . The mighty ones have coin and want to enjoy it.

Mae West in "Constant Sinner" is due any day now, according to the drama columns . . . "Dirty plays hath September," etc.

That book, "Windfall," by Robert Andrews, would make a grand camera amusement . . . What a plot . . . A man leaves 10 million dollars to 10 strangers, whose names were selected out of the directory . . . They drew a million each, and the only proviso in his will was that, at the end of two years, they all must see his lawyer and tell him what they had done with the money . . . All but two of his heirs found happiness with the coin—the others misery and tragedy . . . There always will be a barrier between critics and actors and managers, I guess . . . You can toss a posey at them for 20 years and they'll call you a Grand Person . . . But toss them a scallion on the 21st year and you're still a Baddie . . . It is amusing, indeed, to hear the reports of the "Vanities" troupe, who disagree with this spectator's observations . . . The old alibi used to be that critics huddled between acts and conspired against them . . . The "Vanities" lads, however, have a new attack . . . "His pal wrote sketches for the 'Follies' so what can you expect?" . . . Aristotle said it in fewer words—that the guest and not the cook is the sole judge of a dinner!"

EXPLANATION OF LAST SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE FEATHER BED GRAVE—Mr. J. D. Mitchell, an old cotton planter and slave owner of Auburn, Ala., was buried in a feather bed under which his shoes were placed. During an illness of several years Mr. Mitchell became so fearful of the time when he would die and be buried that he extracted a promise from his family and slaves that when he died he would not be buried under the ground, but on top of it in a bed on which there must be a feather mattress. His shoes also were to be placed under the bed at the foot just as he always had them while alive.

"MARY FAITH" by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Mary Faith, comely, young orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy business man. She gives up her position to marry Kimberly Farrell, shiftless, young lawyer. Mary Faith believes that loving a man hard enough will make everything come out all right in the end. It was this confidence that enabled her to marry Kim after he had once broken their engagement. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his jazzy friends, Clair and Jack Maidon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blond secretary. That night, he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Mary Faith, heartbroken at this turn of affairs, decides not to tell Kim of her coming motherhood. She and Mrs. Farrell decide to struggle to keep the home for the coming baby. Mary Faith obtains a position as typist. She refuses to accede to Kim's request for a divorce and asks him to wait six months before carrying out his desire.

As the bells are ringing in the New Year, Mary Faith's son is born. Kim, informed of this event, returns home and becomes, for a time, a proud and happy father.

Kim is restored to his own position which he had lost due to money irregularities. When his salary is increased, Mary Faith tells him to buy new clothes.

Mary FaRh sees Kim walking with a girl from the neighborhood library. She accuses him of being a fast worker.

Clair Maldon tells Mary Faith that she should step out and be gay if she wants to hold Kim's affections. Kim again begins his visits to the Maldon flat.

Kim returns late one night, wet and ill. Mary Faith realises he has been on a wild party.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The people in the outer office looked up curiously as the two of them came out of the little room and started down the stairs that led to the first floor.

Mary Faith barely saw them. No one truly existed for her at that moment but Kim. Her thoughts flew ahead of her to Dr. Thatcher's tall old-fashioned house in Bleeker street, where Kim lay ill.

"I could have driven you out in my car," she heard Mark Nesbit say to her, but it was a minute or two before his words carried any message to her brain.

"The taxi's all right," she said then, and as she spoke she saw it drive up before the building and heard the scream of its brakes as the driver jammed them on. "But thanks—you're very good."

At the door of the taxicab she spoke to him again. "You don't know how sorry I am about—all this, Mr. Nesbit. I've told you before that you're the kindest person I've ever known. Only, you see—"

"I see. I see, Mary Faith," he said to her and helped her into the cab. Through the frosty glass of the window she saw him smile and nod his head as the car rolled past him. And when it turned the corner a minute later he was still standing on the snowy curb looking after it.

Kim lay in a big carved walnut bed in a big high-ceilinged bedroom in Dr. Thatcher's house. His fingers were looked across the top of his broadchest, and his gray eyes, a bit sunken but brilliant as always, went from Mary Faith who sat beside his bed to his mother who stood at the foot of it.

Mrs. Thatcher, in a housedress made of elephant's breath gray voile, was doing most of the talking. She had spent 20 minutes telling Mary Faith how she had been taking care of Kim for the past three weeks, and now she was explaining just why she had sent for her.

"Doctor had Kimberley's chest X-rayed about six weeks ago—just a while before he came down with this pneumonia," she said solemnly and impressively. As Mrs. Thatcher she tried to be much more impressive than she had ever tried to be during the days of her widowhood and grass-widowhood. "And Doctor wasn't very happy about his health then. But now that he's been so ill he's downright uneasy about him, with the cold weather coming on and all, don't you know? He's just afraid of what might happen if Kimberley stayed here. He might develop into a regular invalid—or even worse things could happen."

Mary Faith's big frightened eyes widened.

"Doctor thinks—in fact, Doctor says that he's got to get right out of this climate right away," Kim's mother continued. "He thinks he'd better go to New Mexico or Arizona—one of those dry climates. A winter there will put him into fine shape, he says. He're sure of that. Only you see, Mary Faith, we just don't know how to manage it. Kimberley's not well enough to work, and we aren't rich enough to pay his bills out there and provide a nurse for him too . . . and he'll have to have one for a little while. We thought perhaps you could find something to do out there—something to earn a little money."

She gazed at Mary Faith questioningly and then remarked, "I'd go with him, but I don't see how I can leave Doctor for so many months. Ella said she'd go but you know she hasn't any money. . . . We can scrape together the railroad fare for two people, but that's all we can do, Doctor and I."

She turned and lumbered toward the door, bumping against the marble-topped table in the center of the room as she went.

"I'll let you two talk it over," she said, and closed the door very slowly as if she meant to make as little noise as possible. Kim raised his head a trifle and watched it swing shut, a frown between his eyes.

"She's taken awfully good care of me, but she makes me so doggone nervous!" he said irritably. "You know—she's all over the place at once. And she drops things and makes more noise than a mule on a tin roof."

"Kim, she's your mother and she loves the very air you breathe," said Mary Faith. "You shouldn't talk about her. She can't help making noise. She's a large person and she's not as young as she once was."

He moved his shoulders impatiently against the pillows. "Nobody loves the very air I breathe. Nobody but you," he said drily. "You notice she's not going out West with me, don't you? She's staying right here with Doc. And you're elected for the job."

"You know how willing I am to take it, Kim. But how about you? How do you feel about going out West with me?"

"If I didn't feel all right about it do you suppose I'd have let them send for you today?"

He grinned up at her suddenly. His quick flashing grin that instantly made him look his reckless debonair self.

"You still worrying about Claire Maldon?" he asked. "If you are you can cut it out. I haven't seen her for a couple of months. I haven't even thought of her—very often. They refused her a divorce here and she's gone out to Reno to try to get one there."

He got up on one elbow. "You know what I've been thinking of the last week while I've been lying here, Mary Faith?—Remember those snapshots that Jean Bartlett sent you? The pictures of those mountains out in Arizona with all the fields lying along the base of them—and the pepper trees and the acres and acres of vegetable gardens?—Well, I've been thinking it must be a pretty grand place to live in. I'm sick of soot and smoke and office buildings, Mary Faith. Maybe if we go out there I can get a job after a while, and we won't want to come back here—"

And then Mary Faith was on her knees beside him, with her arms tight around him and her tears warm against his cheek.

"Kim, I just knew you'd want me back again sometime—like this," she said huskily. "I told you six months ago that you would, didn't I? And you thought I was wrong, but I was right, wasn't I?"

"Sure, you've been right about everything, and I've been wrong. I've wondered a thousand times, lying here, how you could have taken me back so many times after I'd left you and stayed away from you for months at a crack. . . . Gosh, there's not another woman in the world who'd do it, Mary Faith."

"Oh, yes, there are. There are millions of women just like me, Kim." She pressed him down upon his pillows and smoothed his hair back from his forehead. "Don't you suppose there are other husbands who get tired of their wives every now and then, and tired of all their responsibilities? And don't you suppose their wives take them back? Of course, they do."

She laughed a little shakily. "And you'll probably get sick and tired of me again, Kim. But it won't terrify me the way it used to. I'll just wait for you to come to your senses. . . . I'll know that sooner or later everything will be all right again, just as it is now."

For her everything was all right then. Without any work in sight or any way of earning money, without any real plans for the future, with nothing but the promise of two hundred dollars' railroad fare for herself and Kim and the baby, she still knew that everything would be all right. She would make things come right, somehow or other. . . .

"Kim," she said, "I think I'll run downstairs and telephone a wire to Jean Bartlett to tell her that we're coming out to Phoenix. She's been wanting me to come out—and she'll probably be glad to take us in until we find a place of our own."

Mrs. Puckett, too. Mrs. Puckett would probably lend them some money and they would surely be able to pay it back after a while. . . . Mary Faith felt power and hope stirring within her as she braced herself for the long struggle ahead.

She got up from the floor and walked across the room on her way downstairs to the telephone. At the door she turned for a minute and glanced back at Kim who lay watching her with a look of utter contentment on his face.

"'By faith the walls of Jericho fell down,' Kim," she said to him. "That was a long time ago—but it's still happening every day."

And she closed the door and went away while he wondered just what Mary Faith had meant by that.

THE END.

Q.—Can leprosy be transmitted from a pet rat to a person?—S. S.

A.—The public health service says that there are no records of leprosy having been transmitted from rats to human beings either by bite, association or any other means. There is a disease of rats known as rat leprosy, but it has not been shown conclusively that it is the same leprosy that affects human beings. If a pet rat appears to have any disease, either rat leprosy or any other affection, it is believed that it is to the best interest of all that the animal be killed.

Q.—Which state has only three counties?—G. D.

A.—Delaware.

Q.—Is the practice of liming soils of comparatively recent origin?—L. L. S.

A.—The practice of applying lime to soils to increase crop yields has been more or less common in many parts of this country since its first settlement. It has been followed in many parts of Europe for centuries, and dates back more than 3,000 years.

Q.—Have the smooth-looking seals on the rocks off the coast of Maine any hair?—F. H. W.

A.—All seals have hair. The coat of the hair seal is quite different from that of the fur seal in that the hairs are of the same length and lie down very closely and smoothly to the skin. Being of a uniform color, the hair seal's coat therefore looks very much like skin when wet.

Q.—What relation to Louis XIV was Louis XV?—H. T.

A.—Louis XV was the great-grandson of Louis XIV and succeeded to the throne in his early childhood.

Q.—Is electricity manufactured or only released from certain materials?—F. P.

A.—The bureau of standards says that electricity is not manufactured. It is produced by the conversion of one form of energy into another, as chemical into electrical or heat into electrical.

Q.—Where is the unusual home of Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect?—S.

A.—It is "Taliesin," Spring Green, Wis.

Q.—Where does the Delmarva peninsula get its name?—A. R.

A.—It is so named because within its confines are the state of Delaware, part of Maryland, and two counties of Virginia.

Q.—How much coal does a railroad engine carry?—G. F. C.

A.—Modern locomotives have a capacity of from 16 to 30 tons of coal.

Q.—Did the late Henry Cabot Lodge ever hold any other office besides that of United States senator?—C. V. B.

A.—Senator Lodge served in the Massachusetts legislature and in the lower house of congress before he entered the senate.

Q.—What is the oldest church in London?—F. T.

A.—That of St. Bartholomew the Great.

Q.—What is lithographic ink made of?—W. S. A.

A.—Lithographic ink is made of the dry color and linseed oil. It is generally sold stiff so that the printer can soften it with varnish to the consistency he requires.

Q.—When was it first demonstrated that gases could be liquefied?—D. E.

A.—The exact date is not known, but it was toward the close of the eighteenth century. Sulphur dioxide is said to have been the first gas liquefied.

Q.—When a tide reaches its highest point does it remain so for a length of time or does it turn immediately?—J. B.

A.—The coast and geodetic survey says that the tide begins to fall immediately after reaching its highest point, but the vertical motion is so slow at the time of both high and low waters that the change of elevation is not usually perceptible until some minutes later. The apparent stand of the water at these times depends largely upon the range of tide and is independent of the distance from the equator. The smaller the range of the tide the longer is the apparent stand at the times of high and low waters.

Selecting Food Economically

The present depression is accompanied by problems of low wages and unemployment. Fortunately for the consumer the price of most of our staple commodities has been reduced to the lowest point within a number of years. This, however, works a hardship on the farmer, who in many cases cannot obtain enough for his produce to pay him for marketing it.

There have been many attempts to alleviate the unemployed problem, and one which was fairly successful for a time was the selling of apples by the unemployed on street corners. This not only helped the unemployed but also the apple growers. A similar plan could probably also be done with any other crops which the farmer is having difficulty in moving. For example, wheat recently sold for the lowest price in the history of the Chicago grain exchange. If people learned what a fine, wholesome food cleaned whole wheat is when it is soaked over night and boiled until it breaks open, I am sure there would be a demand for wheat. One can hardly buy a cheaper food at present prices considering the nourishing properties of the entire wheat grain.

The unemployed problem is not new. In fact Eve probably started the apple idea. You know that in the first place she had the unemployment problem of Adam lying around the rouse all the time, and the apple idea came in at about that time and solved the unemployment problem, because, when Adam and Eve ate that apple, they had to get out and work.

In selecting foods from the standpoint of economical buying it is not alone important to select food because it is cheap, but one should also remember to select the type of foods which will bring the greatest health value. Most housewives will go out and buy foods that fill up well, and make one feel stuffy after meals. You know the menfolk often feel comfortable when stuffed and think they have had a very fine dinner.

About two years ago, when everybody was complaining about the high cost of living, I figured out a menu which several of my staff lived on for several months. We found that one could live well on 27 cents a day. That was at a time when prices were much higher than they are now. I still have some copies of this menu on hand, and, if any one is interested in obtaining a copy, they can receive it by writing to me in care of this newspaper, asking for a copy of Inexpensive Menus. Be sure to enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Children and Radio Annoy

Question—"Sleepy" writes: "I am engaged in night work and what with the noise of radios and children have a hard job to get a few hours sleep; consequently my nerves are frazzled. Is there any device I can obtain for my ears to keep the noise out?"

Answer—It might be a good plan to try stuffing the ears with cotton or use some of the rubber ear plugs which are used for swimming and are obtainable at any drug store. This will lessen the effect of the noise, and, if your room is kept dark, I believe you will be able to rest.

Foods for Wilderness Trip

Question—"Foot-loose" says: "I am going into the wilds of British Columbia before very long and will be away from all source of supplies for at least six months. This means packing in six months' food. What kinds of foods would you suggest for such a trip?"

Answer—Some of the foods which would keep and yet be of a sufficient variety to maintain one in good health are as follows: Dried and canned meats, smoked ham and bacon, canned tomatoes, dried and canned vegetables, dried milk or klim, wholewheat flour, dried peas, potatoes and dried fruits. To this list you could add any other foods you desire for variation.

Ex-Diabetic Wants More to Eat

Question—A. C. I. writes: "My brother had diabetes with a blood sugar of 280 a year ago. He has been following your diet for one year and his tests are about normal. Please advise me how much longer will it be necessary for him to remain on the diet?"

Answer—Your brother may gradually return to a well-balanced diet, but I would suggest that he have tests occasionally, and, if sugar is found, he should use the fast again and return to a carbohydrate free diet.

Reconstruction of Cotton Oil Mill in Rule Gets Underway

Special to The Record News.

RULE, Texas, Sept. 6.—Work has started on rebuilding the Rule Cotton Oil mill, which was partly destroyed by fire several weeks ago. New and modern machinery in every way is being installed.

The Rule Cotton Oil mill is one of the pioneer business firms of this city, coming here when the town was in its infancy. Throughout the years it has meant much in a financial way, as the annual pay roll runs something over $27,000. The tonnage by railroad and by trucks of cottonseed runs up into thousands of tons.

This gives employment to a large number of truckmen as well as tonnage to the railroad on the cottonseed shipped in and the manufactured products shipped out. The crushing capacity of this mill is 70 tons per day.

The mill has a feed lot sufficient to accommodate 3,000 head of cattle and employs more than 75 men per day during the operating season.

The owners, officers and directors of the Rule oil mill are C. M. Frances, Stamford, Texas; J. H. Chancellor, Smithville, Texas; Sam Williams, Elk City, Okla.; R. K. Wooten, Chickasha, Okla.; T. P. Hornback, Rule, manager; J. L. Kincaid, Rule, cashier; W. T. Averitt, Rule, day superintendent, and Fred Hodges, night superintendent. It is expected that the mill will be finished in time to take care of the seed crop.

FLORRID HOLDS BUCCANEERS TO SIX HITS AS SPUDS WIN, 3 TO 1

VICTORY ENDS ISLAND SERIES

Russ Cromer Pounded by Spudder Bats

Special to The Record News.

GALVESTON, Sept. 6.—Five hits off Russ Cromer were bunched, three in the fourth for two runs and two in the sixth plus a base on balls for one run as Wichita Falls ended the last series with the Galveston Buccaneers, 3 to 1, here tonight. Galveston's tally came in the first when Ballew tripled and went home on Florrid's balk. Florrid fanned seven and allowed but six hits.

Cromer caused the first three Spudders to go down in order. In the Buc's half Ballew tripled and went home on Florrid's balk. Three straight infield roller-outs then retired the side. The second produced nothing for either side.

Three straight fast outs retired the Spudders in the third. Florrid whiffed Wilson and Cromer and gave a walk to Ballew, who was caught trying to steal second.

After two were out in the fourth, Gerken singled to center and went to second on Speer's error. Hungling's double to left scored Gerken and Fuss' triple down the third-base line scored Hungling. Scharen rolled out, Wilson to McGhee, to retire the side. The Buccaneers went down in order.

Cromer fanned Euller and Florrid and caught Garms' pop fly to retire the Spuds in order in the fifth. For Galveston, McGhee singled and got to third on Molesworth's infield single, but April's line drive was taken by Euller and turned into a double play with a throw to Gerken to catch Molesworth off first. The play was almost a triple play, McGhee barely beating Euller to the third sack. Wilson rolled out. In the sixth, after Allday had popped to April, Badgro singled, went to second on Gerken's sacrifice, Hungling walked and Fuss singled to bring Badgro home. Scharein's fly out to speer ended things. Three straight outs ousted the Bucs.

Three straight outs was Wichita Falls' dish in the seventh. Galveston's chance to score on Bell's single and McGhee's being hit by a pitched ball after one was out was nipped in the bud when Molesworth hit into a double play, Scharein to Allday to Gerken.

The eighth produced nothing for the Spudders. McGhee's one-handed catch of Allday's foul fly was sensational. Wilson's single was all for Galveston.

Hungling's left field single off Thurman, who had relieved Cromer after the latter had gone out for a pinch hitter, started the ninth. Scharein also singled but both hits died on base. Bell's scratch infield hit was all for the Buccaneers.

Bailey-Moline Beats Sullivan Team, 11-5

Bailey-Moline took the opening game of the three-game series with Sullivan's Grocery at Katy park Sunday afternoon in a weird 11 to 5 battle. The two teams will play a bargain bill this afternoon at Katy park with the first game starting at 2:30. Ten Sullivan's errors proved costly and Bailey-Moline had little trouble in piling up a big lead. The City league champions got away to a four-run lead in the first inning, but Sullivan's came back to tie the count, then the hardware men pulled away in the late innings, scoring almost at will.

Lois Anderson, the Sullivan speed king, was the big noise of the day at the bat, getting four singles in five trips to the plate. Cy Hills was touched for 13 hits, but he kept them well scattered. Cotton Eubanks hurled nice ball for Sullivan's, but streaks of wildness and poor support kept him in hot water. Both clubs displayed brilliant fielding in spots with Modie Eubanks standing out for Sullivan's Grocery and Jess Coker the outstanding star in the Bailey-Moline lineup. Both clubs will have their regular lineups in the field this afternoon and much better baseball is being expected for the Labor day turnout. About 200 witnessed the game. Score:

CUBS SUSPEND HACK WILSON

Slugger Off of Pay Roll for Breaking Rules

CHICAGO, Sept. 6. (US)—"Hack" Wilson, colorful home-run hitter of the Cubs in years past, was suspended from the team for the remainder of the season today.

The suspension is without pay.

As the Cubs clambered off the train that bore them home from their sixth straight defeat at the hands of the Reds in Cincinnati, Manager Rogers Hornsby turned to the pudgy outfielder and said:

"Report to Mr. Veck at noon today. He wants to see you."

"Hack" obeyed. He was met in the Cubs' office by Mr. Veck, the president of the club, who notified him of his suspension, for "infraction of the training rules."

The Cubs' idol protested. But Mr. Veeck was firm.

"Hack" has been in a batting slump since the first of the season. Manager Hornsby, it is understood, has blamed his downfall upon his failure to obey the training rules. "Hack" denied this, protesting from time to time that he would soon regain his batting eye.

Whatever the trouble, there has been constant ill feeling between "Hack" and Hornsby. It was climaxed last week in Cincinnati, when Vince Barton was forced to leave the game. Instead of sending "Hack" to the outfield to replace him, Hornsby sent Buddy Teachout, a pitcher.

"Hack's" salary is estimated between $30,000 and $32,000 a year. At the close of last season, when he was at the height of his career, he was offered a two-year contract, but he declined, believing greater success and consequent greater financial reward was in store for him.

He therefore signed only a one-year contract, which William Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, announced recently would not be renewed. Accordingly, Chicago fans have probably seen "Hack" for the last time in a Cubs' uniform.

It is rumored that a deal is afoot to trade the slugging outfielder to Brooklyn, if the Robins can be persuaded to part with Babe Herman.

Graham High School Has Bright Prospects for Powerful Grid Team

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 6.—Early prospects indicate that the Graham High school Steers will start the season with one of the strongest and best balanced teams in the history of the school.

The team, under the direction of Coach Fred (Pat) Kneiff, Assistant Coach Floyd Deacon, and John Burleson, S. M. U. regular who is conditioning with them, spent last week in a camp on the Clear Fork near Eliasville. The week has been given over to strenuous drills, and a little practice at booting and passing the oval. The boys have been getting acquainted with the new coaches and their methods, learning the fundamentals and beginning the conditioning grind.

Seven letter men from the 1930 team are on hand and show promise of being even better than last year. There are also a number of squadmen from last year's team, as well as new men from junior high and the rural schools. Among the most likely candidates for the line are Jarnagin, Kimbral, Bingham, Caldwell, Holcomb, Dickson, and Daniels. Dickson shows promise of developing into a first class end; he is tall and rangy, being about six feet three inches tall and weighing 185 pounds. The most likely prospects for the backfield seem to be Parsley, Starbuck, Wheeler, and Nicklas from last year's team and McCluskey and Kennedy, two first year men who show promise of developing into real stars.

The Graham Lions club sponsored the training camp and hopes to give the boys a better chance to get in condition for the season. The committee consists of Wallace Price, L. G. Cook, Mac Williams, Chris Stoffers, and H. G. Eddleman. Houston Crump, boys' work director, was camp boss and had control of the cooking and sanitary conditions about the camp.

Those in attendance were Clark Jarnagin, Carl Nicklas, Jack Wheeler, James Kimbral, Dempsey Parsley, Edgar Bingham, "Cotton" Starbuck, Lloyd Daniels, Clifford Dickson, Ervil Kennedy, Norman McCluskey, Walter Caldwell, Terrell Holcomb, Eugene Sparks, Terrell Watson, Sebe Parsley, Rex Repass, Raymond Stone, George Atwell, Gail Melton, Charley Golden, Howard Hamer, Charles Hamer, Thomas Cook, Glen McQueen, Wallace Rhodes, Charlton Rhodes, Graham Street, Loren Green, James Green, W. H. Weber, "Stubby" Stephens, Rufus Bryant, Bill Shaffer, Bill Whatley, Roland Turney, J. T. Butler, and Coaches Kneiff, Deacon, and Burleson.

Reds Have Perfect Week Against Cubs

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds put together their longest winning streak of the season and enjoyed a perfect week at the expense of the Chicago Cubs. But the only benefit their feat brought was for the New York Giants.

Hopelessly sunk in the cellar, the Reds won six straight games from the Cubs and dropped them neatly out of the race for second place while the Giants turned in one of the greatest seven-day performances of the season to take a safe lead over Chicago and become a serious threat to the St. Louis Cardinals. The Giants did everything right as they won nine games out of 10.

The New Yorkers slapped out 100 hits for 49 runs while holding their opponents to only 15 runs in 10 games. They also topped the circuit with four homers.

In the American league, New York made almost as complete a triumph for the week which ended Saturday. The Yanks won six games and lost only two to wind up only a half game behind the second-place Washington Senators. Washington tied with Detroit for second place with five victories and two defeats.

The Yanks also led both leagues in scoring and in home runs as they tallied 60 times, making nine four-baggers. The Senators outshone all rivals in the field with only one error charged against them in seven games. The Philadelphia Athletics, who slumped to fifth for the week with four games won and as many lost, compiled the best American league defensive record, holding their rivals to 22 runs.

Soviet Pushes Factories To Supply New Clothing

MOSCOW, Sept. 6. (US)—Waging a large scale campaign to give its cities the clothing denied them during the first arduous years of the five year plan, the Soviet government monopolies during the third quarter of 1931 manufactured 24,000,000 pairs of shoes, 18,000,000 pairs of rubber overshoes, and 470,000,000 articles of clothing.

Most Soviet citizens have been wearing last year's shoes and clothing. Even some pre-revolutionary overcoats are sported, their tatters sewn together, so great is the shortage.

ARMY TEAM NEEDS ENDS

Graduation Takes Away 1930 Wingmen

Note—This is the first of a series dealing with the football prospects of major college teams.

By EDWARD NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 6. (AP)—While a military band blasts out martial airs on the parade ground and officers swing their companies back and forth in the famed precision of West Point cadets, Major Ralph Sasse drills his tiny band of football warriors in a corner of the lot and wonders where Army is going to get enough ends to go round this fall.

Big Ed Messinger and Carl Carlmark, for the past couple of years as fine a pair of wingmen as any college team in the East could boast graduated into the regular army this spring, leaving behind the biggest problem Sasse will have to conquer.

Army has only one tested end. He is Dick King, a 190-pounder from Georgetown, S. C. Dick Sheriden, from Agusta, Fla., and a couple of big plebes from last year's freshman squad have possibilities. Last year's subs and drafties from the backfield and tackle will form the rest of the end squad.

But what Army lacks in ends is amply made up in ball carrying talent. From the double wing back formations that were powerful enough to beat Harvard last season, and hold Notre Dame to a one point victory, all but one of the 1930 backs will be running again. Wendell Bowman has graduated, but Ray Stecker, who galloped to victory over Navy; Tom Killday, who tied Yale; Ken Fields, Ed Herb, Henry Sebastian, Bill Frentzel, Joe MacWilliams and Rosy Carver are still in Cadet harness.

Army faces another testing schedule. Ohio Northern opens here Sept. 26, with Knox college visiting Oct. 3. Oct 10 comes Michigan State, conqueror of Colgate last season, and Harvard Oct. 17. Army visits Yale Oct. 24 and entertains Colorado college, a possible tartar, Oct. 31. Louisiana State Nov. 7; Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh Nov. 14; Ursinus Nov. 21; Notre Dame in New York, Nov. 28, complete the schedule.

Grandfield Solves Bad Road Problem

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 6.—Experimenting with placing discarded oil from the Bell Oil and Gas company refinery, near Grandfield, on roads in that locality has led Frank G. Patterson, county commissioner from that district, to believe that it is the most economical method of providing all-weather highways for his district. The oil is obtained free from the refinery. A section of the road two miles south of the refinery and a mile on the highway west of Grandfield have been treated to several applications of this oil recently, building up a base of from two to four inches.

Patterson expects to continue this oiling during September. He has had equipment built for this purpose, a discarded county truck being fitted up and another one bought for $80, the tank of which was made from an old gravel bed. When the oiling season is over, these trucks can be again used for hauling or replacing large tractors, Patterson said. His figures show the cost of oiling a mile of road not to exceed $80.

CLASS HONORS ORAL JONES

Kay Group Hears Tribute to President

Tribute to Oral Jones, for 10 years president of the Kay Bible class, was paid by Roy J. Daniel, teacher of the group, as a preface to his address Sunday morning.

Unselfish service to others as an avenue to happiness was extolled by the speaker in his discussion of the lesson, which was in part as follows:

"You may not be glad to see me back but I want to tell you that I am glad to be back with you after an absence of three weeks. While away, I have been traveling around in quite a number of Texas cities and I feel somewhat like the darky who said, "Bout de only difference between places is de railroad fare.' I feel like about the only difference between Texas towns is the expense of buying gasoline and oil to get to them. Calvin Coolidge, this summer, advised the American people to take vacations and said that to do so would get the cobwebs out of their brains but I have an idea that old silent Cal wanted the American people to try to forget for a little while this depression that we are in and to try, if possible, to make American people stop whetting their knives upon the political grindstones.

History Told

"I may have told you before that my favorite study is biography and if I have not I want you to know that such is the case. During my absence from you I have been studying biography a little and I want to bring to your attention this morning a few facts about a noted man of our community whose good work has been little noticed during the passing of the years. I am going to tell you about this man and see if you can guess who he is. This man was born on June 13, 1886, at Adamville, Tenn. When only 4 years of age he showed good judgment and demanded that his parents move to Texas. They settled at Allendale and later moved to Holliday, Texas, where they lived for several years. This man moved to Wichita Falls in 1901.

"He attended for one year the old Polytechnic school at Fort Worth. At Wichita Falls he was a member of the high school graduating class of 1905. While in high school at Wichita Falls he played on the famous football team of 1904. In his young days he was catcher on the Wichita Falls baseball team. It might be mentioned that he helped work his way through high school as a janitor for one year at the old school building located at the corner of Tenth street and Scott. On June 25, 1906, he went to work for the City National bank and has been there continuously ever since, rising from one position of honor and trust to another, until now he has almost reached the top. In his school days this man was popular with his classmates and schoolmates and bore the popular nickname of 'Doc,' but among you the same popularity and appreciation is given to Oral Jones.

Lesson Scene

"The scene of today's lesson was the old and ancient city of Antioch. Paul and Barnabas went to the city of Antioch and on the Sabbath day went into the synagogue and sat down. It was customary in that day and time for the rulers of the synagogue, after the usual reading of the law by the rulers, to invite any visitors to speak. Resulting from the invitation Paul made a short talk and invited the people of Antioch, both Jews and Gentiles, to come back on the following Sabbath to hear him. On the following Sabbath a great crowd appeared and the fact that a great many Gentiles came aroused the jealousy of the Jews. And after Paul's address, in which he stressed the point that the Gospel was for the Gentile as well as for the Jew, the Jews raised a great outcry against Barnabas and Paul. The Jews stirred up a lot of devout women in Antioch against Paul and Barnabas and the result was that Paul and Barnabas left the city of Antioch and went to Iconium.

"Paul said that he was indebted to the Greeks and Barbarians and to the wise and to the unwise for things that had come into his life and that is just as true today as it was in the days of Paul. None of us ever get anywhere by ourselves. It is only from what we learn from others that we find out how to win success. If it is friends in this world that we want, then we must first be a friend. If we wish to be served, then we must first learn to be a servant to others. If it is kindness and consideration that we long for, then we must first show kindness and consideration to others. In other words, the world gives us just what we give the world. You remember that the Good Book says, 'Let him who would be master be a servant to all.'

"'Life is the mirror of both king and slave,
'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.'"

Today
At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann," with Ruth Laird's Revue, a peppy 15 minutes of song and dance as vaudeville feature.

STATE: "An American Tragedy," with Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Frances Dee. Johnny Farrell in "Fore."

GEM: Clive Brook in "The Lawyer's Secret," with Buddy Rogers, Fay Wray and Richard Arlen. Comedy, "Mickey's Rebellion."

The trials that draw the largest crowds are trials that tell of the muddied streams of life. Seeing the enormous crowd that went to see Theodore Dreiser's "The American Tragedy," we are led to believe that it is the muddied streams that draw the largest theater crowds.

The grip of a sordid environment the overwhelming clutch of oppressive fortune with which the boy Clyde Griffiths is unfit to struggle; the magnificent acting that shows traits of mental and moral cowardice—these are thrown on the screen to perfection if one wishes to study a sad social drama.

Male youth without opportunity; shorn of all its brightness, male youth that yielded to the appeal of love in the spring-time and tired of that love in its autumn; a girl who loved and gave too much and dared to ask protection from her lover; they are here.

Magnificently staged, the glimmering water that ripples across the screen and draws into its maelstrom every pebble thrown on its bosom is a suggestion of the story. Clyde Griffiths is caught and held and sucked down by his environment.

Phillip Holmes is perfect in his part; his grim face when he determines not to murder the girl whom he had betrayed and the smile with which he sought to comfort his mother as she listened to his death sentence are marvels of expression.

Sylvia Sidney as the pretty mill girl who is first of Clyde Griffith's loves and Frances Dee, who plays the pretty society girl loving him and loved by him, are two splendid additions to the screen. Sylvia Sidney is a charming, unsophisticated little country girl; innocent, but drawn into a swamp by love. A smile can light her face into complete happiness.

A character who should be stressed in the cast is Irvin Pichel as the district attorney. He is for the third time recently so excellent a a character actor that he wins hatred. One must be good for that.

People will flock to see "The American Tragedy." Young love is a beautiful thing and even illicit love loses the tatters round its glory when lovers are true. Children have no right to see the play. A coward and a clamoring mob in a courtroom and a mother who gives up her son when he tells her he is guilty of swimming away when he might have saved his sweetheart, are not for children's eyes. Mothers' loves last to the grave and mothers will save even guilty sons.

The time has not come for such productions. The audience is not ripe for its lessons. Let those who will go to hear the gripping tragedy, the hints of ugly passions and the denial of manhood. As for us, we like stories like that of "Merely Mary Ann" at the Majestic and humor like that we look for in the story of Will Rogers in "Young as You Feel."

Power of Paul's Preaching Told In Martin's Class Lecture

"Jesus Christ taught the world that religion is a distinctly personal thing which can be prescribed by no man nor set of men for another, but in which each must make his own choice," said Judge P. A. Martin before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

The apostle Paul attracted "almost the whole city of Antioch" to hear him because he preached Christ living, crucified and resurrected, Judge Martin said. He concluded by declaring that "the preacher who most earnestly and consistently presents a crucified and risen Christ to the world is the one most likely to draw an entire city to hear the word of salvation."

Address Quoted

The address in part was as follows:

"There was a synagogue in Antioch, in Pisidia, that was frequented by both Jews and Gentiles. The synagogue was a place of common worship and a place of common resort. On each Sabbath day the people came together to exchange ideas about religious matters in much the same way that we gather in our Sunday schools at this time. It was the custom of the Jews to have a Bible reading from the law and the prophets, after which there was a more or less free discussion among those present. So one Sunday, (or Saturday, rather, as this day was the Jewish Sabbath), two strangers came into this particular synagogue and quietly sat down, listening attentively to the reading of the Old Bible, extracts from both the law and the prophets being read by the rabbi, who then invited any one who had a word of exhortation to 'say on.'

Paul Speaks

"Then Paul stood up and preached Christ, from the prophecies and of His life, His death and His resurrection and ascension. It was a notable sermon, and even many of the Jews were convinced. They departed to their homes without much comment, but after they left, the Gentiles gathered around the preacher and besought him to stay and preach the same things the next Sabbath. He and his associate, Barnabas, gladly arranged to do so and on the next Sabbath, the lesson says that almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God. And the Jews were filled with envy and immediately set up an opposition which finally drove the evangelists from the city, but not before they had firmly planted the seeds of the gospel throughout the whole region of the city.

Lesson Pointed

"I think the central thought of this lesson is contained in the saying of Paul to the Jews who did not believe:

"'Seeing that ye put it from you and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.'

"Jesus had commanded His apostles to preach His gospel first to the Jews. His apostles followed the injunction. Some of them everywhere believed but most of them deliberately and voluntarily 'put it from them' and thus passed upon themselves a judgment of unworthiness for the things of the kingdom. Upon careful reflection you will see this judgment is a common one. Every man decides this vital question for himself. We read and hear a great deal about the 'judgment day,' when a final decree shall be entered and a final accounting made for the deeds of this life. We gather the idea that it is a day in the far distant future, beyond the grave, over the river, so far off in fact that the soul of man has every chance to escape the judgment. The Bible teaches of a second coming of the Christ; of a general resurrection and a final separation, it is true, but it also teaches that a man may pronounce judgment upon himself here and now and does do it when he deliberately decides to do the wrong thing and sin against God and his fellow man.

Life Promise

"'The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life.' The one is a wage, a payment, a deserved recompense for a service performed; the other is a gift, a matter of pure grace, not, a recompense for any good act or deed or service performed, but a free element in the world of men, like light and water and the air we breathe, ready for immediate appropriation by the beneficiary. So both life and death begin right here and now and walk side by side, just like the believers and the unbelievers, walked side by side out of the synagogue in Antioch of Pisidia in the long ago, each with a judgment of his own choosing hanging over him; and in the same way, life and death walk side by side up and down the streets of our own city today.

"Another significant statement in the lesson, is that Paul and Barnabas persuaded the Jews and proselytes who did believe to 'continue in the grace of God,' indicating that their acceptance of the gospel that day, did not assure their religious status the next day or the next year. Their free will remained free. They could reverse their judgment later on; believe and live or sin and die.

Religious Changes

"Religion, as it affects humanity, has gone through several distinct changes in its development. At first it was a tribal or family matter. The patriarch of the tribe decided for the tribe. It then became a national affair. The King decided for the nation whether it should be Jehovah or Baal or Isis or Osirus. The prophets of the old Testament had a vision of better things to come and of a personal responsibility, while the priesthood built up a system founded upon rites, ceremonies and the letter of the law.

"But it remained for Jesus to teach the world that religion is a distinctly personal thing; a thing that no man or set of men can prescribe for you or for me, so that whether we be Jew or Gentile, white or black, bond or free, learned or unlearned, we must make our own choice. Life and death, sin and grace, righteousness and unrighteousness, are ever present, inviting the choice of man and in the making of that choice he fixes his own judgment. If he deliberately sins he carries with him the burden of a living death which can only be removed by divine grace. This is the teaching of the lesson.

City Drawn

"You will note another fact. After this sermon by Paul he was requested to repeat it the next Sabbath and 'almost the whole city' turned out to hear the return engagement. It was nothing but a presentation of the Christ and Him crucified. I have always believed that character of preaching to be the most attractive preaching in the world. Men say they don't like to hear words that express their eternal doom, but they come again and again and the 'old, old story' finally prevails. The preacher who most earnestly and consistently presents a crucified and risen Christ to the world is the one most likely to draw 'almost the whole city' to hear the word of salvation.

She Is Going Shopping . . .

WILL SHE VISIT YOUR STORE?

Mrs. Housewife has many interests competing for her attention. She can devote only a small part of her day to shopping. Obviously she cannot visit ALL the stores in an effort to shop to her best advantage.

Therefore she selects those stores which have given her advance information through the advertising columns of her daily newspaper. She has learned that it is always more efficient, and usually more economical, to do the greater part of her shopping right at home with her Daily Times and Record News.

It is not enough for you to give better values or service in your store. You must let Mrs. Housewife know about them. It is not enough to employ good salesmen. You must do your preliminary selling in Mrs. Housewife's own living room. The wise, modern shopper reads the Daily Times and Record News for guidance. Is your message there?
