DC-8 disaster

Japanese rescue workers haul the shattered nose of a Japan Airlines DC-8 away from the body into which it telescoped on impact early today in a crash into Tokyo Bay just short of the Haneda Airport runway.

24 persons killed as jetliner crashes near Tokyo airport

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 with 174 people aboard hit a series of light poles as it came down for a landing and slammed into shallow water at the edge of Tokyo Bay today, killing at least 24 Japanese passengers.

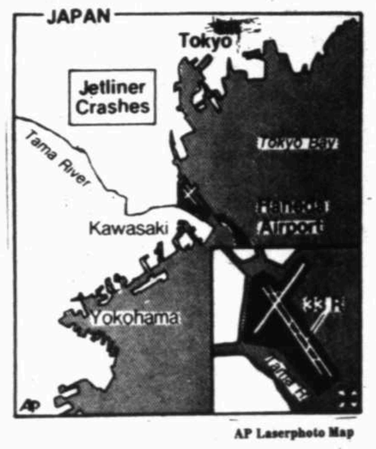

The airline said 122 other passengers and all eight crew members were hospitalized or in hotels with injuries, five passengers went to their homes, and the whereabouts of 15 others were not known. Spokesman Jim Weatherly said it was possible they "just walked away" in the confusion.

The only foreigner aboard was a South Korean, who was slightly injured.

Seventeen minutes before the crash, Capt. Seiji Katagiri reported he was entering normal descent patterns as he neared the end of a domestic flight from Fukuoka, in southwest Japan. The sky was cloudless and head winds were moderate. But the jetliner clipped several stanchions extending out into the bay with landing approach lights and pancaked into the water at 8:47 a.m.

The nose section of the jetliner broke off and was partially submerged under the fuselage, which came to rest, comparatively undamaged, in the muddy water.

"There was a great shock and the front part of the plane was gone," said a surviving passenger.

A Japanese jetliner on a domestic flight crashed early today in the shallow waters of Tokyo Bay, about 1,000 feet short of the runway (inset).

Eight hours later, the last person aboard, a crew member who was not immediately identified, was rescued from the crumpled cockpit. Although all eight crew members survived, the pilot and co-pilot were seriously injured.

Although the plane was apparently too low as it came in to land, officials said the reason was not known. They speculated it could have been due to malfunction in the steering gear or the airport's instrument landing system, a sudden turbulence or pilot error.

About 500 rescue workers using vehicles, helicopters and boats converged on the plane and the debris around it. Rescue operations were hampered until 3,000 gallons of fuel were pumped from the plane to minimize the danger of explosion.

Most of the seriously injured apparently were in the front of the plane. Many were covered with mud and sludge when they reached rescue stations.

Surviving passengers said there was nothing unusual about the approach and no warning of trouble until there was a "sudden jolt" and the plane hit the water.

Nobuchika Shikada, 20, of Fukuoka, said people screamed but the stewardesses immediately took charge and told people to remain in the cabin.

"I was afraid it was going to sink, but it stayed level for an hour until I was rescued," he said. "I never want to fly again."

Haneda Airport, built on reclaimed land about 15 miles from central Tokyo, has been used primarily for domestic flights since the new Tokyo International Airport opened in 1978 at Narita, 45 miles to the northeast.

It was the first major plane accident in Japan since July 30, 1971, when a mid-air collision of an All-Nippon Airways Boeing 727 and an Air Self-Defense Force jet killed 162 people. JAL had not had a fatal accident since Sept. 27, 1977.

Midland County to lease city's Taylor Park

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners on Monday opted to lease the four-block Taylor Park in the economically-disadvantaged window pane area in south central Midland from the city of Midland and to build a day-care center on the park.

The city has not yet signed the proposed joint agreement, which calls for a 99-year lease.

In other business, the commissioners in a 4-1 vote, in which Commissioner Charlie Welch cast the dissenting vote, agreed to permit city-hired hydrologist Joe Reed to drill holes in the county road rights-of-way and to take water samples, agreed in 3-2 vote to hire a secretary-clerk for the personnel director, consulting engineering and housing director coordinator; and OK'd the advertising of bids for road equipment.

By using federal funds, the county is planning to build a $300,000 child day-care center to be operated by the Midland County Child Care Corp. (MCCCC).

"I'm not sure I like the name of it," offered Commissioner Durward Wright. "It's a bit cumbersome."

MIKE WILLIAMS, a county-retained attorney who is working out the legal work in the county's federal Community Development grant, and Kim Modisett, former executive director of the Human Relations Counsel, came up with the "cumbersome" name.

"We do appreciate the work you've done for us and the city," County Judge Bill Ahders told Williams.

The proposed multi-purpose day care center is among the first projects to get under way in the county's $1.6 million, three-year grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's Community Development program.

The county proposes to rehabilitate houses in need of repair and to raze dilapidated houses, to put in water and sewer lines, and to gutter and pave streets in upgrading the area which is surrounded by the city but which is not within the city limits. However, the city has indicated that it may annex the area, which covers about a three-quarter-square-mile area, after the improvements have been made and property valuations have been increased.

Williams' presentation to the commissioners came while 21 "intellectually-gifted" students in Greenwood School's Frontier Program were observing the commissioners in session.

IN ACTION APART from the HUD program, the commissioners:

—Discussed getting new and repairing worn heavy equipment operated by the road and bridge department, which is headed by Superintendent Albert Stewart.

"I'd like to authorize him (Stewart) to do whatever is correct," Welch said.

"What's that?" asked County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry, the court's recording secretary. The proposal was to place the winch bed from one truck on the

Mauro denies 'mud-slinging campaign'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

After going through the rigamarole of reading the same press release he's recited in the past 20-something cities, Democratic candidate for land commissioner Garry Mauro denied Monday he is running "a mud-slinging campaign" and pledged to avoid any conflict of interests if elected.

Mauro is fighting four other candidates to gain the Democratic nomination in the May primary. His competitors include W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, George Fore of Paducah, Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Jerry Sadler of Grapeland.

In his prepared text presented at a news conference in the Granada Club, Mauro concentrated on possible conflicts of interests by other candidates.

"Neither I, nor members of my immediate family nor members of my law firm will have any dealings, directly or indirectly, through so-called 'blind trusts' or third cousin schemes with the general land office. Nor will we be involved, in any way, in oil and gas production on state lands."

Continuing, the Austin lawyer said, "I also believe it is a sad day for Texas when one of the candidates for land commission has been in Austin for so long that he truly believes it is not a conflict of interest that he makes profit from the public lands administered by this office. At the time my major opponent announced his candidacy, he disclosed that he receives over half of his income from a family-owned oil- and gas-producing company. This company holds almost one third of its 50 leases on the very public lands administered by this office."

The "major opponent" Mauro referred to is Snelson, who served 20 years in the State Legislature, first as a representative and then as a senator. Snelson also is involved in a family corporation, known as the 6-S Co., which owns oil- and gas-producing leases. Last week, Snelson denied his involvement would be a conflict of interest, saying that the leases couldn't be changed by the land office.

Although Mauro never referred to Snelson by name in his prepared text, he added, "...a candidate must decide whether he wants to manage public lands for the people of Texas or develop the public lands for the benefit of himself or his family."

Questioned about his references to Snelson, Mauro replied that he is running "a positive campaign."

The 33-year-old Democrat said that Snelson "has been a fine senator but I don't think he thought much about his potential conflict of interest. He can remedy this by telling people what he's going to do in the future."

If he ultimately wins the race, Mauro claimed that he would "spend more time on zero-based budgeting to see if we need more employees. A lot of people in the state don't think they're getting enough attention from the land office," and mentioned that it takes almost a year to get a loan through the Veterans Land Fund.

Labeling the land commissioner's seat a "non-political office," Mauro said it should be operated like a business. "I understand management by objectives."

Mauro, a Texas A&M University graduate who obtained his law degree from The University of Texas in Austin, lists as his government service a two-year term as executive director of the State Democratic Party. He also served as special consultant to Robert Krueger, former congressman and former ambassador-at-large to Mexico, and as deputy comptroller of tax administration under Bob Bullock.

He chose to leave the law firm for the campaign trail, he said, "because at Texas A&M I discovered that making money didn't satisfy me personally. I preferred public service."

Mauro denied being a liberal and said that people "who call you a conservative or liberal haven't really looked at the problems."

To date, Mauro has gathered about $300,000 for the campaign, and he hopes to get another $300,000, he said.

Reagan's budget backers busy battling bad reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's top economic strategists are campaigning hard on Capitol Hill to reverse the bitter reaction the president's deficit-ridden fiscal 1983 budget has caused in Congress. So far, they've won no converts.

President Reagan, meanwhile, was scheduled to visit legislatures in Iowa and Indiana today as he stumps to build public pressure on a reluctant Congress.

Before flying to Minnesota Monday, Reagan formally sent Congress a $757.6 billion budget that projects record deficits of $98.6 billion this year and $91.5 billion for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

That left administration officials shuttling around Capitol Hill, briefing legislators and testifying before congressional panels.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, budget director David A. Stockman and Murray L. Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, were to make a joint appearance before the House Appropriations Committee today to explain the administration's spending plan.

Prior to that, Regan and Stockman planned to brief House Republicans. A meeting with conservative Democrats was scheduled in the afternoon.

Before leaving Washington, Reagan defended his budget proposals, saying they are "the second step...in our program to try and bring government spending back in line with government revenues."

Budget cuts could boost role of land office, Snelson says

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, a Democratic candidate for land commissioner, Monday said federal budget cuts for education will increase the importance of the General Land Office, which administers two major school funds.

Snelson, who is challenging former Democratic Party Executive Director Garry Mauro, Rockdale Rep. Dan Kubiak, George Fore of Paducah and Jerry Sadler of Grapeland in the Democratic primary, said the Reagan administration has proposed some $2 billion in cuts in federal school aid for fiscal year 1983, plus an additional $1 billion in current Department of Education funds.

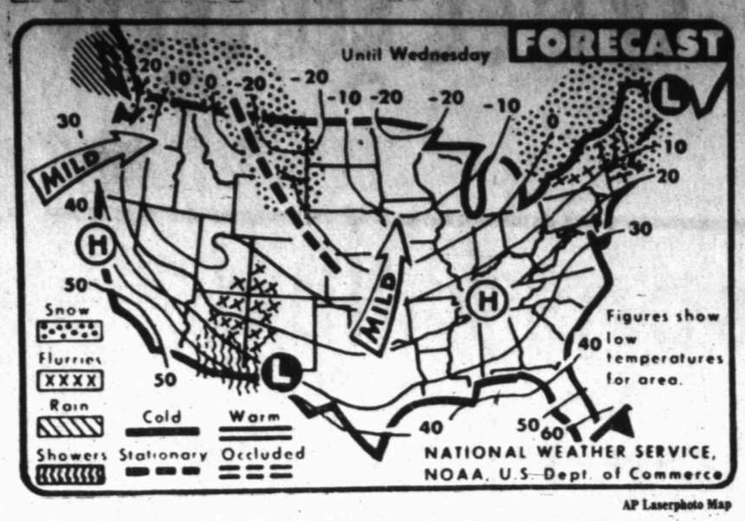

"The proposed federal budget cuts mean one thing: If the states wish to maintain the quality of their educational systems, their citizens will be asked to pick up the tab," Snelson said. "No longer will states be able to rely on the federal government for education support, which means they may have to rely more on the taxpayer."

The General Land Office, headed by the land commissioner, administers the Permanent University Fund and the Permanent School Fund, and Snelson said that duty will assume increased importance as federal funds for schools and colleges decline.

Revenues generated from public lands flow into the PUF and PSF. "These revenues must be managed carefully to insure a minimum amount of taxpayer burden," Snelson said.

He added that every dollar earned by the funds is one less dollar required through taxation.

Low in mid-20s expected tonight

Cooler temperatures with partly cloudy skies will return Wednesday.

After a sneak preview of spring-like temperatures in the low 70s Monday, today's expected mid-40 reading reminded Midlanders cold weather is still here.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the low tonight will plunge to the mid-20s with southeast winds decreasing to 5-10 mph.

However, the mercury will escalate to the mid-50s Wednesday with skies continuing to be partly cloudy.

Gusty winds that brought in a cold front Monday night have decreased and should blow southwesterly 15-20 mph Wednesday.

Monday's high of 70 fell 10 degrees short of breaking the record high of 80 set in 1963, and the overnight reading of 21 was 9 degrees warmer than the record of 12 set in 1936.

Police investigate theft from Shakey's

Police are investigating the reported theft of $140 from Shakey's Pizza Parlor at 3305 Andrews Highway.

An employee told officers she was counting receipts at a desk in the kitchen about midnight when she left to wait on a customer. When she returned, she discovered that seven $20 bills were missing.

Police who followed footprints at the scene of a house burglary Monday recovered the stolen items but were unable to make an arrest.

Jesus Rodriguez of 305-A E. Louisiana told officers he returned home from job hunting about 6 p.m. and discovered someone had entered his house through a bedroom window and taken a TV set, stereo equipment and other goods.

The footprints led to a house across the street occupied by four men. One of the occupants let police inside, where the items were found. The man denied knowledge of the burglary, however, saying one of the other occupants, who was not home at the time, apparently had taken the items. An investigation is continuing.

Police Roundup

In another burglary complaint, Dennis Brewer of 1300 W. Tennessee Ave. said $1,085 worth of stereo equipment was missing from his home after someone entered it through a front window Monday night.

The Midland College respiratory therapy program has received a respiratory machine from the American Lung Association of Texas, the "Christmas Seal" People.

Texas Tech cardiologist to speak

Dr. Don J. Young, a cardiologist from Texas Tech University health services center, will speak to the Midland Memorial Hospital medical staff at noon Wednesday.

His topic will be "Ischmic Heart Disease, VEA and Sudden Death."

Young has been an assistant professor of medicine at Texas Tech since June 1981. He is also a consultant in

He was born in Norwalk, Ohio, and was in private practice there for several years before moving to Texas.

chassis of a better-conditioned dump truck.

The commissioners discussed repairing a Galon road-grader for about $25,000 rather than spending $120,000 to $150,000 to buy a new grader. "You'll end up with a better piece of machinery (in a reconditioned road-grader) than a new one," said Wright.

The county has nine road-graders, otherwise known as motor-graders or maintainers, as old as 1964 models.

The commissioners also hashed around the proposal to buy double-axle rather than single-axle dump trucks.

"We may be using false economy" in keeping the single-axle trucks, which haul fewer cubic yards of material than the double-axle trucks, which may carry up to 16 cubic yards of material.

—Considered a countywide master plan proposed by Bill Harral, the county's consulting engineer. "I think it's an excellent idea," said County Attorney J. Scott Henderson.

—Listened while Commissioner Win Brown told of the newly-created County Officials Advisory Committee to the Governor. Brown, who is on that committee, said the committee is to assist county governments statewide in a concerted effort to effect favorable legislation. Heretofore, "Each county pushes for its own little-bitty part of the world," Brown said. He noted that President Ronald Reagan "is shifting power from the federal government to local (governments)."

—Approved Geo-Search Corp.'s request to do some seismographic work on and along County Road 1218-South in Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis' Precinct 3 after drawn-out discussion. "They don't like to whomp that thing next to a butane tank," noted Henderson. The recorded reverberations are used in the exploration from minerals, including oil and gas. The data-gathering service in Midland is a "very lucrative" field, noted Wright.

Welch had expressed concern over the invading of rights of mineral owners who may have sub-surface rights below the county road and right of way.

"It's no different than getting information (from car tags) on downtown streets" in Midland, suggested Henderson.

—By a 3-2 vote, the commissioners' court voted to hire a clerk-secretary to serve Personnel Director Jerrie Ann Westmoreland, Consulting Engineer Bill Harral and Betty Sheeler, who is coordinating work in the window-pane area. Commissioners Welch and Wright cast opposition votes.

—Considered a presentation by Western Data's George Singleton for a computer system for the District Clerk's Office.

—In a 4-1 vote, the commissioners' court sanctioned the drilling of test holes by hydrologist Joe Reed. The holes, which are to be drilled on the county road rights of way in the Midland Draw area, are to allow Reed to get samples of ground water to determine if Midland's effluent waste water has polluted or otherwise filtered into the ground water.

Henderson noted that the city, which is ordering the water sampling, will indemnify the county or any owner of underground water which may be damaged by the drilling. "If they (the hydrologist) mess up a water formation," Henderson said, the city may make compensation in the wake of a lawsuit.

Reagan says Democrats offer no alternative budget

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Reagan, going on the attack against his critics, says Democratic demagogues are preparing "horror stories" about his 1983 budget but offer no reasonable alternative.

Reagan was taking his sharpened sales pitch to the Republican-controlled Iowa legislature today where he was expected to continue the ad-libbed slashes he began Monday in Minneapolis at the start of a two-day, Midwestern trip.

THE PRESIDENT was wrapping up the promotional tour at Indianapolis later today. Similar outings through the West and Deep South are planned for next month.

"You have to get about 50 miles at least from the Potomac River and the District (of Columbia) to get back to the real world," Reagan told an approving crowd in Minneapolis.

"In the days ahead you are going to be submerged in demagoguery about the '83 budget," Reagan continued. "You're hearing all kinds of horror stories about the people who are going to be thrown out in the snow to hunger and die of cold and so forth."

Reagan fired his impromptu remarks at a rally for Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said some of the barbs were written on the flight from Washington but that Reagan thought of most of them as he spoke.

"THEY CAME FROM the heart," Speakes said, thumping himself on the chest for emphasis.

Reagan said Democrats are accusing him of cruel budget cutting when he actually has not reduced the budget at all. He said total spending in 1983 will be higher than in 1982 and that this year's total is higher than 1981 because of automatic escalation created by Democrats.

"We have been reducing the rate of increase that has been built in," Reagan said.

The president complained that while Democrats criticize his budget because of the $91.5 billion deficit it projects, they have nothing to offer themselves except higher taxes.

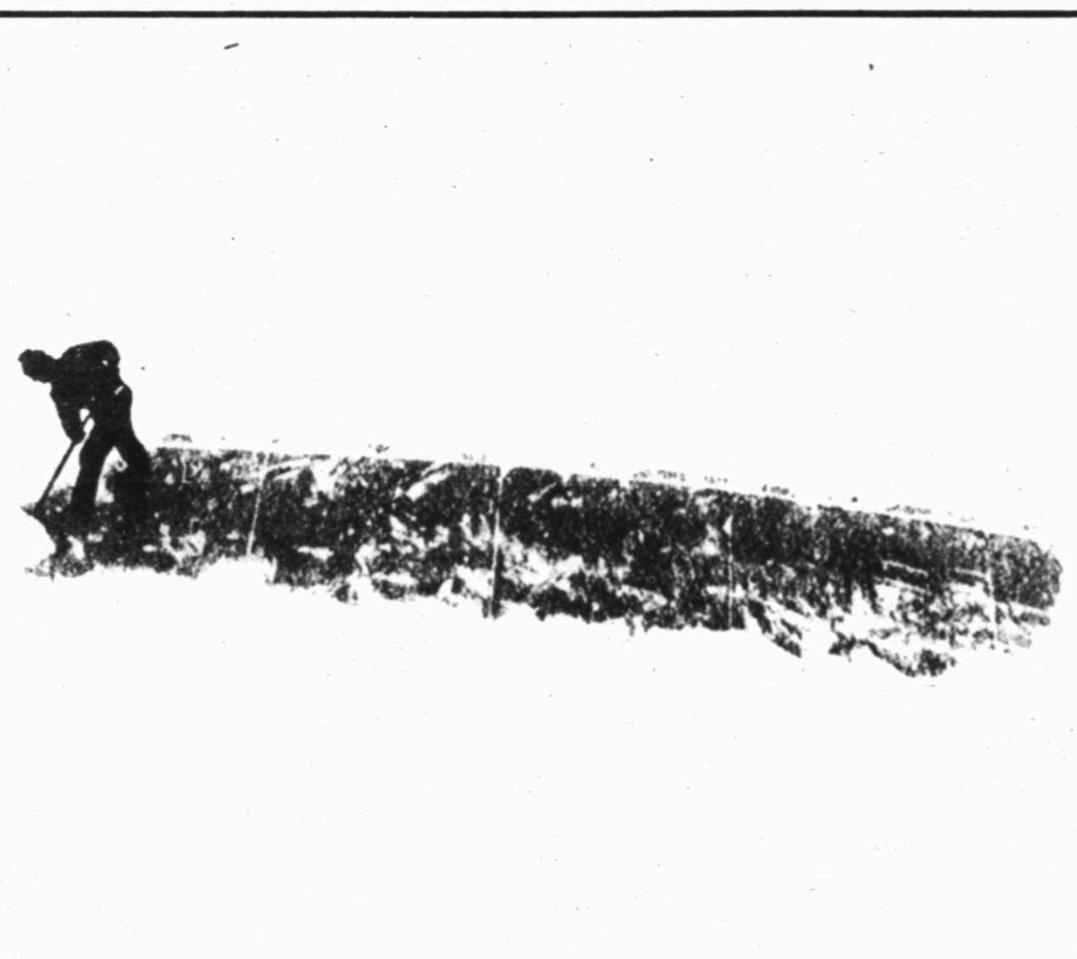

"They're horrified by the thought of a deficit," he said. "And so, therefore, they say that we must increase the taxes, forget this business of the tax cuts that we put into effect, and that we must do this because we must not have that unbalanced busget.

"We've only balanced one budget in the last 20 years, and their party has been in power almost uninterrupted in both houses of the legislature for the last 40 years," Reagan said.

Reagan said he will not back down on his plans for greatly expanded defense spending despite suggestions that Congress, especially the Democrats there, will insist on some cuts.

"It will take us into the middle of the 1980s before we can even begin to come close to what the Soviet Union has built up to threaten us with," he said.

IN HIS SPEECH to Iowa lawmakers, Reagan insisted he expects his tax cuts to rescue the economy in the long run.

Kleine seeks re-election

William D. "Bill" Kleine announced Monday that he would seek re-election to the Midland College Board of Trustees, Place 5, in the April 3 election.

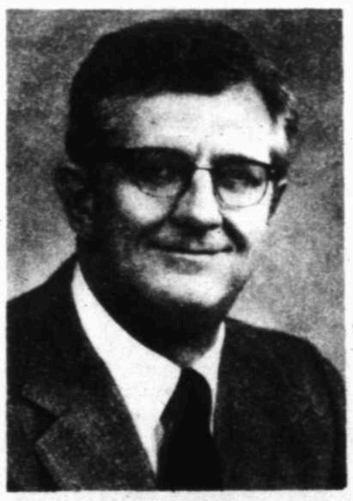

Kleine was appointed to the Midland College Board of Trustees on Nov. 18, 1980, to fill the unexpired term of Murray Fasken, who resigned from the position in August 1980. Trustees on the Midland College board serve six-year terms and receive no salary for their service.

"I was very honored to be selected to serve on the Midland College Board of Trustees," Kleine said. "With my association previously on the college's Foundation Board, I had some appreciation of the work done by the trustees.

"This has been a rewarding, yet demanding, position as the college has been growing at a rapid rate. We also replaced the founding president, Dr. Al Langford, after he decided to retire. I would like to continue my work on the board and assist Dr. Jess Parrish in his role as president, as he seek to implement several new or expanded educational programs.

"With the growth of this community during the past few years, and the expected growth during the next decade or longer, I feel that Midland College's role will continue to be important in serving the community's educational needs. In fact, I feel that Midland College is just now becoming fully accepted in the community for its many contributions in serving the academic, vocational and continuing education needs.

Inmate to claim self-defense in murder of 2 prison officials

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys trying to prove inmate Eroy E. Brown acted in self defense during a fight in which two prison officials were killed say they plan to call the accused convict to the witness stand today.

Defense attorney Craig Washington told jurors Monday the fight that led to the killings started when officials thought Brown, 31, was about to "snitch" on them for stealing tires from the prison.

Ellis Unit Warden Wallace M. Pack, 54, and prison farm manager Billy Max Moore, 49, both threatened to kill Brown before and during the April 4 scuffle, Washington said.

At one point during the struggle, Washington said, when Brown threatened to tell federal officials he was being mistreated Moore said: "We'll see if you can talk from the bottom of the Trinity River."

Washington quoted Pack as saying, "Get the handcuffs, Billy, and we'll see if he can swim down at 'the bottoms' with the handcuffs. We'll see if you can talk from the bottom of the Trinity."

"The bottoms" is a lowland area where prisoners have alleged they were beaten by guards. Prison officials have denied such conduct.

Washington said Pack threatened Brown with a handgun held close to the side of the inmate's face.

Pack was found drowned in a drainage ditch near the Ellis Unit and Moore was shot to death. Brown is charged with capital murder in both deaths, but currently is on trial for the Pack slaying.

The trial was moved here from Huntsville on a change of venue.

Washington told reporters after Monday's session he intended to call Brown to the witness stand after Levi Duson, 39, steps down.

Duson, one of two inmates who testified as eyewitnesses for the state, was recalled Monday as the first witness for the defense.

Washington challenged him on several points of his previous testimony. But Duson, a convicted burglar, repeated his story — that Brown shot Moore in the head as he knelt in front of Brown and that Brown then chased Pack over an embankment leading to the nearby ditch where the warden's body was found.

Washington's version was significantly different.

Local man elected to board of Salk Institute

Hubert L. "Sonny" Brown Jr., an independent oil operator in Midland, has been elected to the board of trustees of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in San Diego, Calif.

Brown, who has a deep interest in scientific research in the health sciences, previously served on the National Council of the Salk Institute.

"We are very pleased that Mr. Sonny Brown, with his deep interest in furthering research in the biological sciences, has joined the board of the Institute," said Dr. Frederic de Hoffmann, president of the Salk Institute.

The Salk Institute for Biological Studies is one of the world's largest independent centers of biological research, with much of its work focused on the areas supporting the health sciences. A major goal of the institute is to provide the basic biological knowledge to maintain health.

Salk Institute scientists study the smallest element of life, cells, and their interaction with each other and the environment as a principal concern. Continuing study of this interaction, institute scientists believe, will provide understanding in many areas where there are serious scientific and medical challenges, including cancer, diabetes, growth and development defects, immunology and the structure and function of the nervous system.

Brown studied petroleum engineering at The University of Texas in Austin, receiving a B.S. in 1951, and an M.S. in 1952. He received an M.B.A. degree in finance from the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia in 1954.

Guerrillas attack buses

By EDUARDO VAZQUEZ BECKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Masked young guerrillas staged hit-and-run attacks on buses in three cities, sending at least a dozen people to the hospital for treatment of hysterics, police said.

Witnesses to some of at least 22 incidents in San Salvador Monday said guerrillas forced passengers off the vehicles at gunpoint and then shot up the tires. No injuries were reported.

A police spokesman said other buses were firebombed in the capital, there were similar attacks in Santa Ana and San Vicente, and a bomb explosion started a fire in a San Salvador bus terminal.

Monge has majority

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — President-elect Luis Alberto Monge's National Liberation Party is assured of a legislative majority with 33 members elected to the 57-seat Chamber of Deputies, nearly complete election results showed.

The votes cast Sunday in only 332 of the 5,306 precincts remained to be counted today.

The runner-up coalition Unity Party of outgoing President Rodrigo Odio Carazo won 18 seats. It had an edge of 27-25 over the National Liberation Party in the last congress.

Liberals considering negotiations

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal Senate Democrats are urging President Reagan to consider a negotiated end to the Salvadoran civil war, warning that otherwise U.S. combat troops might be needed to block a leftist victory.

But a high-ranking State Department official ruled out such talks Monday, saying a negotiated settlement that gives a share of power to leftist guerrillas would amount to "handing over" El Salvador to the communists.

Thomas O. Enders, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, cited Nicaragua as a recent example of a coalition government that he said was gradually taken over by leftist elements and turned into a Soviet ally.

ENDERS' testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came in response to calls from Democratic Sens. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts and Christopher Dodd of Connecticut for negotiations involving all sides of the Salvadoran conflict.

Saying the administration's current policy of stepped-up military support was leading the United States into a Vietnam-style "quagmire," Tsongas said the "answer to this is a negotiated settlement."

"In other words, senator, we hand it over," said Enders.

"If that's the attitude of policymakers in this administration, then I'm very troubled," Tsongas responded. "This will become at the very least a drain on our Treasury and ultimately a drain on our personnel."

Enders also clashed with Dodd, who called on the administration to "face realities" and seek a settlement to the war while the guerrillas are still willing to talk.

WHILE REJECTING calls for a negotiated settlement, Enders refused to rule out the possibility of sending U.S. combat troops to the Central American country.

Enders said the administration's goal was to achieve a "political settlement" based on elections and social reform.

He said leftist guerrillas still can participate in talks setting up the details for next month's elections to select a national assembly, but added that, if they fail to participate, they risk being left behind by a country moving toward democratic reform.

The guerrillas have refused to take part in the elections, claiming their candidates would be killed if they campaigned openly. Instead, the insurgents have urged a negotiated settlement of the war followed by elections.

In other testimony, Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary of state for human rights, said that under U.S. pressure, the Salvadoran government has made progress on reducing human rights violations committed by its forces.

But he acknowledged that abuses "of a most serious kind continue."

He said that while cutting off U.S. aid to the Salvadoran government "looks like a quick, low-cost option" to the problem of abuses by government troops, it actually would result in increased violence because the insurgents would step up their attacks and the military would adopt a "siege mentality."

"OUR OWN ability to influence the military, to counsel restraint with some success, would be entirely forfeited," Abrams said. "The blood would flow at a vastly increased rate."

Abrams and Enders cited figures compiled by the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, which they said showed the number of political murders decreasing from 9,000 in 1980 to 6,000 in 1981.

"Our conclusion about the declining rate of violence is an honest one," Abrams said. "It has not been manufactured for this certification."

However, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said the use of the figures disturbed him.

"The whole gory business reminds me of the Vietnam War, when we had discussions of body counts," Pell said. "In Vietnam, we wanted a higher body count. Here, we want a lower body count."

Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., pressed Enders on how much the administration expects to spend to prevent a leftist military victory and asked for assurances that El Salvador "isn't a leech that's attached itself to our country."

Japanese investigating hotels' safety

TOKYO (AP) — Officials began safety inspections today at 960 hotels, a day after 32 people were killed, including an American, in a quick-spreading fire in a 10-story hotel.

More than 300 people were in the Hotel New Japan when the fire broke out. Sixty people, including two other Americans, were hospitalized. Sharon Poff, 33, wife of a U.S. Air force officer stationed in Okinawa, was in "stable" condition this afternoon, her husband, Capt. James Poff said.

Congress not helped in cutting defense budget

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen interested in trimming President Reagan's 1983 defense budget as a way to attack record deficits are getting no help from the Pentagon in their search for the most plausible places to cut.

Several times during a hearing Monday, members of the Senate Armed Services Committee pressed Deputy Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci to identify areas where cuts would do the least harm.

But Carlucci replied in one exchange with Sen. J.J. Exon, D-Neb.:

"Since the ink is barely dry on the budget, I don't think it's appropriate for me to come out and say we'll accept this, that or the other thing. Our position is that the cuts already have been made."

The Pentagon official said if it were not for an array of reforms instituted by the Reagan administration defense spending would need to be $8.4 billion higher in the budget year starting Oct. 1 and $51 billion higher through fiscal 1987.

He cited changes in procurement practices, administrative operations and proposed caps on civilian salaries and pensions as helping keep budget increases to a minimum.

Carlucci was carrying the same message to the House Armed Services Committee today to promote the Defense Department's $215.9 billion spending plan, a peacetime record 15.9 percent jump in outlays.

The military's operations and maintenance account, which pays for readiness and other day-to-day activities, would be the easiest target for cuts because nearly all of its funds are spent in a single year.

By contrast, major weapons are paid for in a different account over a period of several years.

Carlucci said he and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger gave the highest priority to operations and maintenance and "will argue vigorously" if Congress dips into those funds.

But Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., said he thought the administration had an obligation to give guidance on where trims could be made, because if it didn't "we'll have about 535 defense policies floating around here" in Congress.

Quayle and a fellow conservative, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., were joined by liberal Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., in voicing doubts that the U.S. economy could pull out of the recession if the government posts deficits of nearly $100 billion this year and next.

To that, Carlucci replied: "I, for one, cannot believe that our country cannot afford a national defense that is adequate to its needs."

Carlucci did find some support for the budget proposal. Committee Chairman John Tower, R-Texas, said: "In presenting a budget of this size amid rising economic controversy, the president has chosen the statesman's courageous course, reaffirming that our level of effort will be tied to those requirements necessary to meet the threat."

Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi, the panel's ranking Democrat, gave a general endorsement but suggested that a revival of the draft would reinforce U.S. resolve to potential aggressors.

Heinz counts on little help from his friends

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The campaign treasurer of Pennsylvania Sen. John Heinz says he's devoted to making sure the millionaire Republican doesn't spend "one penny of his own money" on his re-election bid.

Stuart Dalzell, who heads Heinz's fund-raising effort from Philadelphia, said he hopes to raise at least $2 million so the senator can pay expensive television advertising costs regardless of who challenges him this year.

Heinz is expected to face no Republican opponent in the primary and only token Democratic opposition in the general election.

"My financial operation is devoted to making sure that Heinz should not spend one penny of his own money in this year's campaign," said Dalzell, who headed Heinz's 1976 senate race.

Of the $3.1 million Heinz spent in that hotly contested race five years ago, $2.6 million was his own money.

This year, Heinz is counting on wealthy friends he made while raising money for 1980 Senate candidates to help him reach his own $2 million campaign goal.

Contributors from California to New Jersey are pitching in to fill the campaign coffers. So far, about 190 out-of-state contributors and 560 Pennsylvania donors have raised $1.1 million for the senator.

Dalzell said most of the senator's contributions are coming from an in-state direct mail campaign.

Investigation clears suspicion of GAO 'mole'

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate intelligence committee is looking into allegations of security problems at the General Accounting Office despite the FBI's conclusion that secret information obtained by a Soviet attache was readily accessible to the general public.

"We did an investigation and there was nothing to conclude there is or was a 'mole' in the GAO," FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said Monday.

Earlier, Charles A. Bowsher, comptroller general and head of the GAO, had assured Sen. William V. Roth, chairman of the Government Relations Committee, that there was no problem involving classified national security documents issued by the congressional watchdog agency.

But Senate Intelligence Committee spokesman Spencer Davis said, nonetheless, "We're certainly looking into it."

THE CONTROVERSY surrounds a Soviet naval attache — no longer assigned to Washington — who visited the GAO on Jan. 19, 1979, requesting copies of unreleased and classified studies done by the agency.

Federal investigative sources who asked not to be identified publicly said Monday that the Soviet agent asked for documents not available to the public.

These sources said the fact that the attache had a list of such classified documents raised fears he had gotten inside information from someone in the GAO.

The sources said the FBI investigation found it was possible for the public to get access to a posted list of pending GAO studies — but that the attache, Vladimir Kvasov, never had come into actual possession of the documents.

SEN. ORRIN HATCH, R-Utah, contended last week that Kvasov obtained at least five classified or secret reports, including documents on weapons systems and the readiness of U.S. military forces.

Ralph Sharer, a former GAO auditor, has asserted that security at the GAO remains lax in the face of indications the Soviet naval attache had inside information enabling him to seek classified documents.

In a Jan. 27 letter to Roth, R-Del., Bowsher confirmed that the Soviet attache "... requested by number several reports, some of which had not yet been issued, and, of these, two were classified."

Bowsher, who succeeded Elmer Staats as head of the GAO, said "...a unit supervisor (GAO) noted the peculiarity of this request at the time."

IN A FEB. 3 letter to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the intelligence committee, Roth said he was upset about "... attempts by a foreign intelligence officer to obtain classified GAO reports."

Roth said he felt the security questions might best be handled by Goldwater's panel.

"As you know, Senator Roth is a member of our committee, and his wish is our command," spokesman Davis said. But he also said the matter hasn't yet come to the attention of the committee members.

In a Jan. 22 letter to Bowsher, Roth had said he was disturbed by assertions that security problems are still being corrected at the GAO and said he wanted to know "why it has taken this long to implement necessary changes."

BOWSHER RESPONDED by outlining a host of security precautions taken since the 1979 incident. But he acknowledged that installation of a computerized "magnetic card entry system" at the GAO will not be complete until sometime this spring.

Copies of the exchange of letters were obtained by The Associated Press.

Bowsher said — and the federal investigative sources confirmed — that following the investigation in 1979 by the GAO and the FBI, security procedures were tightened at the agency. These steps included a reduction of public access to GAO offices, Bowsher told Roth.

Elevator company fined

DALLAS (AP) — An investigation into an accident that killed one man and injured another when an elevator platform fell 28 floors has resulted in a $24,000 fine for alleged safety violations by a Mississippi company, officials say.

Dover Elevator Co. of Horn Lake, Miss., was cited for six violations of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 in connection with the Nov. 11 accident, said Les Gaddie, a spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Dallas.

Charles Grace, 27, of Hillsboro, was killed and Lonnie Norman, 24, of Dallas, was seriously injured when an elevator platform carrying the two men fell 320 feet to the ground. The two men were working in a high-rise building under construction in downtown Dallas.

Maximum fines on the violations were levied after OSHA investigators determined that the company did not adequately protect workers from hazards that were likely to cause death or serious injury, Gaddie said.

OSHA officials contend the elevator scaffolds were not properly maintained, serviced and tested. Their report also alleged that safety lines were not connected properly and no emergency brake was installed.

Agnew appeals ruling

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A ruling that ordered Spiro T. Agnew to pay $248,735 for kickbacks he allegedly accepted while governor of Maryland was based on self-serving, untrustworthy statements, his attorney told the Court of Special Appeals.

Thomas R. Harrison, lawyer for the former vice president, said Monday that the statements from four of Agnew's associates should not have been admitted in the civil suit heard last April in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court.

Diana Motz, an assistant attorney general, told the judges they should uphold the ruling and send a message to both public officials and citizens that elected officials are "answerable to the people."

Judge Bruce C. Williams ruled in the civil suit last April 24 that Agnew accepted $147,500 in kickbacks from consulting engineers. Williams ordered the former Maryland governor and vice president to pay the state the amount of the kickbacks plus $101,235 in interest.

Harrison argued Monday that the decision was based largely on statements from four associates whom he characterized as "untrustworthy on their face..."

Harrison also told the court the state did not meet its obligation to show that Maryland taxpayers suffered financial damages because of Agnew's actions when he was governor in 1967 and 1968.

Agnew did not testify or attend any of the court sessions in the civil trial and did not attend the appeals court hearing Monday.

The U.S.-Canada tie

No two countries in the world have a relationship quite like that existing between the United States and Canada. The current effort by Canada to establish more economic independence has led to harsh words between Washington and Ottawa, but even that strain is in a class by itself. This seems more like a disagreement within a family than a quarrel between neighbors.

That, of course, is the root of the problem. Canadians complain that too many Americans, especially in the business world, regard Canada as a stepchild of the United States, or a 51st state. Americans are not willing to recognize that the dominant role of U.S. trade and investment in the Canadian economy is frustrating Canada's sense of independence.

For seven years a Foreign Investment Review Agency has been screening new foreign investment to assure that it serves Canadian interests. The resentment of American investors toward this regulatory hurdle boiled over last year when Canada announced a National Energy Plan aimed at bringing its burgeoning oil and gas industry — now largely controlled by U.S.-based multinational oil companies — under a 50 percent share of Canadian ownership by 1990.

Not unexpectedly, the Reagan administration is crying foul, accusing the Liberal government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of tactics of nationalization and protectionism with an anti-American flavor. Ottawa responds that we are asking Canadians to acquiesce in a degree of foreign control of their economy that we would never tolerate in our own country.

The latter point is well taken. U.S. representatives at a recent colloquium on Canada at the University of Southern California emphasized that our quarrel is not with Canada's goals but with the measures being taken to attain them.

While it may be debatable whether the Canadian policies are unfair, as many Americans contend, it is obvious that the policies can be self-defeating.

Pursuing "Canadazation" too aggressively will only drive away the capital investment the country needs. Already, the National Energy Plan has led to a sharp drop in exploratory oil and gas drilling in Canada while it is booming in the United States. The $400 billion in "megaprojects" for resource development which Canada hopes to carry out in the next two decades must rely heavily on outside capital.

History, geography, and a common cultural heritage are more responsible for the unusual Canadian-American relationship than the policies of either of our governments, past or present. This offers the hope that the current political strain can remain within the framework of a family quarrel — with full respect for the political independence and separate national identity of Canada.

Americans enjoying an open door for trade and investment to the north must accept the fact that Canada is coming of age — that a greater share of ownership and control of business and industry in Canada must pass inevitably into Canadian hands. On their part, Canadians can hardly deny that their country has prospered through its relationship with the United States. At this stage of its economic development, Canada is not unlike a son who is old enough to assert his independence but still relies on money from home to get through college.

Indeed, a Canadian official at the USC colloquium declared that Canada has come this far as a nation of miners and lumberjacks and is now determined to enter the technological age on its own resources. That is indisputably Canada's destiny, but the United States will have more than a little to do with seeing it fulfilled.

An apostle of peace

The spiritual leadership of Pope John Paul II continues to hearten the citizens of his native Poland, and to inspire the free world to continue its protests against Communist tyranny. In a recent appearance in St. Peter's Square he championed the rights of Polish workers and students:

"In the name of freedom, I firmly believe it is necessary to give back the working men their right to organize in independent, self-run unions and students the right to organize in associations."

The Pope allied himself with the aspirations of the Polish people, and promised to fight on for human rights until justice is done:

"I want to assure my countrymen that their wishes are also mine. The church, together with all men of good will, will continue working until the rights of man and the rights of the nation as a condition of peace in the contemporary world are respected."

A Polish people in deep trouble will fight the harder, and despair not, because the Vatican's apostle of peace is so deeply and devoutly committed to their side.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Oil chief, congressman locked in combat

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that a congressional leader and a corporate tycoon wind up snarling at each other in public. The usual procedure is for their aides to get together on the sly and work things out to mutual satisfaction.

Jack Anderson

But when you have two guys like Mobil Oil's chief executive William Tavoulareas and House Energy and Commerce Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., all bets are off.

These two antagonists have been locked in mortal combat since 1979. Dingell started the feud by accusing the Mobil Oil president of helping his son, Peter Tavoulareas, create and operate the Atlas Maritime Company without telling Mobil stockholders about it.

The elder Tavoulareas, a hard-driving, ruddy-faced, diminutive man with a griddle-hot temper, traced news leaks of his son's alleged misbehavior to Dingell. In a fury, Tavoulareas marched into the congressman's office and demanded a written apology — written, that is, at Mobil headquarters.

Dingell is an unreconstructed curmudgeon, with a quarter of a century of congressional brawling behind him. He is not about to be intimidated, therefore, by a red-faced oil executive.

For two years, the two tigers have been clawing at each other — with neither gaining any visible advantage. Last Nov. 20, Tavoulareas wrote Dingell: "After nearly two years involving meetings and letters between us, I have reluctantly come to the following conclusion: That you in your capacity as a member of the House of Representatives have deliberately misled a citizen who was rightfully trying to defend his reputation ... "

The Tavoulareas letter then made a series of erroneous accusations against one of Dingell's aides, Peter Stockton — allegations that were subsequently fed to The New York Times. As a sort of peroration, Tavoulareas chastised Dingell by saying: "Finally, you said that you would admit being wrong if I were cleared by the SEC. This has now occurred, as you know, but I have had no word from you."

It turns out that Tavoulareas wasn't exactly "cleared" by the SEC. Internal documents uncovered by my associate Tony Capaccio show that the SEC failed to act on the allegations concerning Tavoulareas' son because of technical details in the agency's regulations, not because it disputed the facts in the case.

Here's what an "Action Memorandum" by the SEC staff had to say on July 7, 1981: "The staff believes that Mobil Corporation's disclosure of the subject matter to date has been incomplete, even if one accepts Mobil's version of the facts."

Dingell had alleged that the oil company executive gave his son's company preferential treatment without telling Mobil shareholders about it. On this point, the SEC staff wrote: "Mobil never disclosed to its stockholders the amount of control it exerted over Atlas" (the son's company) "at least during 1975 and 1976. During this time, given all the facts, one could reasonably conclude that Atlas was a de facto subsidiary of Mobil Corp ... "

After press inquiries, Mobil in 1976 finally issued a letter to Mobil stockholders explaining its relationship to Atlas. But an earlier version of the SEC staff memo concluded that "William Tavoulareas was the primary source of information for the shareholders letter. He knew that the information contained was false and misleading."

Far from eliciting an apology from Dingell, the SEC staff's findings are likely to continue the toe-to-toe battle between the congressman and the oilman.

Footnote: Said a Mobil spokesman: "Mobil believes the SEC investigation exhaustively examined and completely refuted Dingell's past allegations."

MOSCOW GOLD: The repression in Poland is proving costly to the Soviet Union. It has been selling gold on the world market to keep the Polish economy afloat, according to intelligence sources. The Afghanistan aggression and domestic production failures have added to the financial pinch.

"Moscow gold" — a buzzword used in the 1930s to explain the subversion of political leaders and parties by the communists — is today a carefully watched yardstick of the Soviet economy's strength or weakness. For this reason, the Russians keep their transactions as secret as possible.

But the CIA is able to glean some nuggets of information on Soviet gold sales. Witness these excerpts from the agency's top-secret documents:

— "Soviet gold sales ... were made on the Swiss market and earned Moscow some $400 million."

— "A 'huge' stock of Soviet gold is reportedly now at the Zurich airport awaiting sale on the Zurich market."

The CIA's information comes primarily from Consolidated Gold Fields, a gold-mining financial house.

Other sensitive information comes from the Soviets' own Wozchod-Handelsbank in Zurich, which markets much of Moscow's gold. South Africa and the Soviet Union supply about 80 percent of the gold that is sold in the world.

The commissars are as canny as any capitalists when they market their precious metal, trying to sell when prices are high and hold on when prices are low. But the needs of their political adventuring can upset this prudent policy, the CIA reports.

"Moscow increased the volume of sales during periods of rising prices and cut back when prices fell," a top-secret document states. "In the long run, however, Moscow probably will have to sell gold when prices are at or below current levels."

INSIDE REPORT:

Mubarak's 'no' marks new low for U.S. Mideast influence

WASHINGTON — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak's polite "no" to the Reagan administration's humiliating appeal for a "declaration" that would have had Egypt selling out on the Palestinian problem marks a new bottom for U.S. influence in the Middle East.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Mubarak's refusal had been made patently clear to Secretary of State Alexander Haig during his two highly-publicized trips to Cairo, so much so that President Reagan did not press him during their arms-length talks here last week. If he had, Reagan would have been asked a question for which there is no answer: What is the administration's Palestinian plan?

Bankruptcy of Reagan's Mideast policy is now indicated by the refusal of both Israel and Egypt to do what the U.S. beseeches. This focuses the general decline in U.S. influence and is close to par for Reagan's track record: threats and bombast but meager action over Cuba's intervention in Central America, fueled by Moscow; tough talk about Poland, but inability to persuade NATO allies to come along on sanctions.

Nowhere is the decline so apparent as in the Middle East. Blocked on the one hand by Israel's refusal to give the Palestinians the "full autonomy" promised by Prime Minister Menachem Begin at Camp David, Haig turned to Mubarak in desperation. What he wanted was Mubarak's signature on a "declaration" dealing in vague terms with the autonomy issue. Haig freely conceded to Mubarak that the "declaration" was incomplete, but surely it could be polished up sometime later.

Likewise with the question of mushrooming Jewish settlements on Palestinian land. Haig suggested postponing it, but Mubarak reminded him that the late President Sadat had been hoodwinked on the settlements issue during the Camp David talks more than three years ago.

Mubarak and his aides left Washington with disturbing impressions about the murky prism through which their hosts view the Palestinian issue: that Arab East Jerusalem is not an important problem; that the centrality of the Palestinian issue was partly created by previous administrations.

Mubarak was studious in drawing a contrast between the warmth of Sadat's relationship with Reagan-Haig and his own relationship — correct but arms-length. His advisers were dismayed during Haig's two visits to Cairo that the secretary failed to understand, as one Mubarak intimate told us, that Sadat was "both leader and president" of Egypt, but President Mubarak has not had time to prove his leadership. Sadat could risk intimacy — until he was assassinated. Mubarak could not.

So he kept his distance here and would not even consider putting his signature on an empty autonomy "declaration." Intimacy with Reagan, coupled with a sellout on the West Bank, could gravely undermine him with Islamic militants and other enemies at home. Mubarak's aides left Washington wondering if Reagan and Haig understood.

But Mubarak left with another impression. Despite his resistance to putting his signature on an autonomy paper, Reagan did not use Mubarak's request for more and faster U.S. military aid as a pressure point. Similarly, the new $1 billion Egyptian-French deal for advanced Mirage aircraft (to be financed by Saudi Arabia) showed that Egypt is not wholly dependent on the U.S. That undercuts U.S. influence, but during his talks in the White House Mubarak felt no displeasure.

The private consensus in the Mubarak camp as he left here would not make cozy reading in the president's morning news summary. It is that Reagan's inability or refusal to deliver the "full autonomy" pledged Sadat at Camp David shows a fear of Israel's political power in the U.S. certain to further cancel out American influence far beyond the Arab Middle East.

Yet Reagan made a deep personal impact on Mubarak — an impression of decency and kindliness, but not of great strength and consistency, supposedly the hallmarks of Reaganism.

Mubarak went home to develop Mubarakism: closer ties with the Arab and non-aligned worlds; no retreat on a fair deal for the Palestinians; a discreet new distance between Cairo and Washington. He knows what he wants, but the question grows louder: Can Ronald Reagan say the same?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 9, the 40th day of 1982. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 9, 1849, Rome was proclaimed a republic under Giuseppe Mazzini.

On this date:

In 1964, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant made an urgent appeal to Ethiopia and Somalia to end hostilities in which hundreds had been reported killed.

In 1967, about 100 fatalities were reported in an earthquake in the South American country of Colombia.

In 1971, an earthquake in the Los Angeles area killed at least 64 people.

And in 1978, Canada ordered 11 Soviet diplomats and officials expelled, accusing them of a plot to penetrate the security apparatus of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Ten years ago, President Richard Nixon said the United States and Soviet Union had decided on the outline of an interim agreement on strategic arms limitation.

Five years ago, it was announced that diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Spain would be restored, ending a breach that began with the start of the Franco regime in 1939.

One year ago, the Polish Communist Party dismissed Prime Minister Jozef Pinkowski and named Defense Minister General Wojcieck Jaruzelski to replace him.

Today's birthday: Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk is 73 years old.

Thought For Today: Loneliness and the feeling of being unwanted is the most terrible poverty. — Mother Teresa, Nobel Prize-winning, Yugoslav-born Roman Catholic nun-missionary (1910–).

CHARLEY REESE

Each person responsible for own life

If I had to choose just seven words which offered the best hope for turning this nation around, I'd choose these: "I am responsible for my own life."

Charley Reese

The physical growth of the welfare state has caused a concurrent growth of a deadly intellectual disease — endemic buck-passing, the pernicious notion that we can survive in a sort of no-fault state and that responsibility for our welfare rests with someone else.

Let's suppose I am an auto worker and I'm laid off. That's bad news. I don't want to be unemployed. I don't want to have to change my occupation. I don't want to have to move to another part of the country. But, who is responsible for feeding my family? I am. Not the auto industry. Not the world economy. Not the federal government.

So I should do what I have to do to find productive work. In an earlier time, this was so ingrained in people that nobody thought twice of doing it. If the soil went bad, you moved on; when the gold ran out, you moved on; when the trees were cut, you moved on. When cars replaced horses, you gave up harness-making and blacksmithing and became something else.

If our forefathers had adopted the modern attitude that their welfare was someone else's responsibility, they would still be in Great Britain and Europe and wherever else they left to come to this new land.

I hear complaints about the elderly having a hard time making ends meet and I'm sympathetic to that, but whose responsibility is it to make provisions for our old age? Ours. It's not the responsibility of the government. It's ours. Every elderly person today was once young and had decades in which to prepare for an event they knew with certainty would come.

Take the young man on the street with no education and job skills. Whose fault is that? It's his. Every human being has a choice. Every human being in this country is presented with opportunities — opportunities for education and opportunities for learning marketable skills. And it is his responsibility to take advantage of those opportunities. We can't force people to be responsible, but we could and we ought to allow them to suffer the consequences of their own decisions.

Now, of course, there are those among us who are stricken by disease or accident or just bad luck, and I doubt if there is a single American in this nation who would not willingly share with those people to cushion their misfortune.

But sharing and charity are quite different from obligations and demands. No one has the right to demand that another person assume responsibility for his life. No one has the obligation to assume that responsibility yet this is the very idea that has been fostered on the American people and which too many of us are beginning to accept.

Too many Americans are becoming envious cry-babies. They covet other people's possessions, resent other people's good fortune. These are the human worms necessary for a socialist state.

Your standard of living has nothing to do with my standard of living. Whether you have a yacht or a dingy has no effect on whether I am earning what I think I should be earning. Yet, you hear people complain about parties in the White House as if there was some relationship between the social affairs at the White House and the standard of living in Opp, Alabama. If government spending needs to be cut, it needs to be cut whether the Reagans drink California wine or tap water. My economic welfare depends on my decisions; not on the dining habits or recreational past-times of David Rockefeller.

If American Telephone and Telegraph records huge profits measured in billions, am I supposed to complain about my $12 a month telephone bill? Not if I have any sense, because I should recognize that profitability of AT&T is one of the reasons I have a telephone which is exceptionally reliable and reasonably priced.

I am responsible for my own life. We ought to paste those words all over America and put them in every schoolroom. Accepting responsibility for our own lives is a pre-requisite for liberty. No one is free who is dependent on another.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which plunged 17.60 points Monday, inched up 1.04 points to 834.47 at noon.

But the number of stocks falling in price held a 2-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .24 to 66.08. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.22 at 275.03.

Three-month Treasury bills, which fell below 10 percent in early December, traded above 14 percent today.

American Electric Power topped the NYSE active list, unchanged at 16⅛, in trading that included a block of 129,000 shares changing hands at 16⅜ a share and a block of 175,000 shares crossing at 16¼.

Energy issues were mixed. Although international oil prices falling, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, was quoted by the Saudi Gazette as saying the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would stick to its plan to maintain a $34-a-barrel benchmark price through this year.

Loyal workers can't stop sale

LONDON (AP) — Sir Freddie Laker's bankrupt airline empire went up for sale today after a group of banks and a legion of loyal employees failed to rescue the cut-rate travel company.

The most profitable pieces of Laker's business — the Arrowsmith and Laker Air Holidays package tour companies — were the first on the block.

William Mackey, one of four receivers named to take over Laker Airways' financial affairs when it crashed Friday, said he hoped to have the two businesses sold by tonight.

Next to go will be Laker's 11 DC-10s and three BAC-111 Airbuses, worth about $370 million. There was speculation that Sir Freddie would try to buy back some of them for a new start with a charter airline.

Orion Royal Bank, a subsidiary of the Royal Bank of Canada, tried but failed to put together a $65-million rescue package. Mackey, who had termed that attempt "unrealistic," said, "The best financial brains in the banking world have failed to find a solution."

Orion vice chairman Christopher Chataway said his bank had hoped to inject new money, stave off creditors and reschedule Laker's $502-million debts.

"What foiled us in the end was the particular structure of the creditors. We did not foresee the speed with which the receivers would have to act," Chataway said.

Earlier, 2,000 Laker Airways employees, including busloads of pilots and stewardesses in Laker's red and black uniforms, marched through London to the Houses of Parliament and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's 10 Downing Street residence to petition her to save the airline Laker founded in 1967.

The government, however, stressed it would not put up taxpayers' money.

The employees collected the equivalent of $5.55 million from themselves and thousands of Britons who used Laker's low-fare Skytrain service.

"It's a pity people's hopes have been buoyed up," said Mackey, adding that the campaign never had a chance.

Laker made his first public appearance Monday since the collapse when he attended a High Court hearing in his suit for access to his 4-year-old son. The child lives with his mother, Laker's estranged American third wife.

"I'm overwhelmed by all the support I've received," Laker told reporters.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Delay opening IRA investment long enough to find best deal

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Some people advise waiting a few months before investing in an individual retirement account. Do you agree?

A. The only good reason to delay opening an IRA is to shop around and study what's available. There are lots, including IRAs offered by banks, savings and loan associations credit unions, mutual funds, insurance companies and brokerage firms. There are even U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds. But steer clear of them. They've been about the worst IRA investment.

Doyle

Every working person has until April 15, 1983, to open an IRA for 1982 and put away up to $2,000 a year — $2,250 in a spousal IRA, if your wife or husband is not employed.

But once you have picked an IRA investment, you should open your account as soon as possible. The reason is simple. The interest and/or dividends in an IRA are free of income tax until you withdraw them. So the sooner you open your IRA, the sooner you'll start getting tax-sheltered interest and/or dividends.

Q. I am a married man, 32, and plan to start an individual retirement account in either a money market mutual fund or some other type of mutual fund. The returns on these kinds of investments have been huge and are difficult to shy away from.

Naturally, I don't want to lose the money I put away for retirement. That would be catastrophic. What sort of calamity would have to happen for me to lose all my IRA money in a mutual fund?

A. Assuming something such as a nuclear war doesn't destroy this nation and its securities markets, I can't imagine anything that would result in the loss of ALL the money you put into a mutual fund. No such calamity has happened, to date.

If you pick a mutual fund investing in stocks or bonds, the value of your investment will go up or down in line with the market values of the securities your fund holds. Most such funds have been good long-term investments. But there have been periods in which they fell. Many bond funds are now down from their levels of a few years ago.

No mutual fund, however, has ever lost all its value — even in the stock market crash of 1929.

With a money market fund, of course, you would greatly reduce your risk. Money funds invest in short-term money market instruments and use valuation methods aimed at keeping their share values constant. There has been only one case in which money fund investors lost money. And that was only seven cents on the dollar.

If you want to avoid all risk for your retirement nest egg, open your IRA at a bank with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage or at a savings and loan association with Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. coverage.

Q. I have read that mutual funds are not good IRA investments, because you don't get the advantage of daily compounding and lose the advantage of the low tax on long-term capital gains. I disagree with those arguments. If I feel I will have a greater gain in value with a mutual fund than with other IRA investments, I say that is the most important consideration. What do you say?

A. I'm on your side, assuming the mutual fund you pick as an IRA investment does produce greater long-term growth in value than you would get by investing your IRA money elsewhere. Just remember, no one can promise you it will.

Most mutual funds declare dividends either quarterly, semi-annually or annually. But all the money you leave in the fund remains at work for you. Money market mutual funds declare dividends daily, resulting in daily compounding.

Most mutual funds make long-term capital gains distributions once a year. That money comes from a fund's net profit from selling securities it has held at higher prices than the fund paid when it bought those securities.

The maximum tax on long-term capital gains is now 20 percent. So when you own mutual fund shares outside an IRA or a Keogh plan for the self-employed, you never pay more than 20 percent on the long-term capital gains distributions you receive.

When you withdraw money from an IRA or Keogh, you pay income tax based on the tax bracket you happen to be in. So you might end up paying more than 20 percent on the capital gains you left with the fund.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Budget-remedying options becoming few, far between

NEW YORK (AP) — The answer to deficits is economic growth, said the president in presenting his budget. But the economy shrinks. The gap grows. And the options evaporate.

One possibility for reducing the gap would be tax increases, but the economy already is in sorry shape. To raise taxes might be to risk pushing the teetering economic vehicle off the cliff.

Perhaps, then, even more can be cut from the budget. Perhaps, but only at the risk of an uproar from aid recipients and elected officials. Cut defense then? The president himself would object.

Maybe the Federal Reserve could be induced into easing credit, setting off a revenue-building spending spree. But, the Fed objects, that would mean a return to inflation, one area where success has come.

WHAT THEN? Live with the budget gap, says President Reagan, foresaking what was once the most basic of all his goals, and demonstrating at the same time that he had little or no choice.

Reagan has been forced by the realities of life to make almost heretical changes in his formula for success, not just in terms of budget balancing, which now isn't a goal at all, but in other essentials.

Whereas a year ago he portrayed the options as clear and attainable, his budget this year demonstrates how ephemeral and elusive they are.

It is now conceded that there won't be a sharp recovery, even if the budget writers suggest it. Their own numbers show it. Real 1982 gross national product isn't expected to total even 1 percent, and percent, which ranks it as unremarkable.

Interest rates are likely to stay in double digits into next year. And over the next several years, concedes the president, rates "will fall less rapidly than we had originally anticipated."

As was conceded earlier, the unemployment rate is likely to rise rather than fall, to as much as 10 percent of the workforce, before improvement can be looked for.

Miscalculations? Yes. Neither the big deficits nor the recession were foreseen. The excuse sounds lame. "...it is impossible in a short period of time to correct the mistakes of decades," said Reagan.

IF THE economy grew smartly it would resolve a lot of the conflicts. But it isn't, and that removes the keystone from the plan. The transfer of economic power to the private sector isn't likely to be swift.

It is in this area that intense arguments are bound to develop. Some of the president's strongest supporters in private industry argue that the deficits will prevent them from embarking on expansion.

In essence, their argument is that the capital pool is insufficient for the administration to finance big deficits without denying industry its share or, at least, forcing interest rates to prohibitive levels.

The administration contends that not only will there be sufficient money, but that business and individual savings resulting from tax cuts will permit a rapid buildup of capital formation for expansion.

Private sector economists and business people already have expressed doubts, and have even ridiculed such assumptions.

Assuming little change in Federal Reserve policy, they say, borrowing costs are likely to remain high or even rise if they must compete for money with government.

The answer to deficits, said the president in his budget message, is "indefatigable efforts to control spending and borrowing" combined with "economic growth."

WITH THE president committed to reducing government as a factor in the economy, the growth he seeks must then come from the private sector.

And nothing, it has been demonstrated, chokes off business like high interest rates.

Van R. Brandon, a former Army medic, claims authorities kept two sets of records, one accurate and one false, on personnel exposed to radiation. Brandon said the "hot books" were locked up after each day's use by high-ranking officers and he does not know what happened to them. He suffers from a spine ailment.

Medic's account untrue, federal official responds

By The Associated Press

A former medic's account that Army records were faked to conceal high levels of radiation received by soldiers who witnessed atomic testing in the 1950s "doesn't ring true," a federal official says.

David Miller, a spokesman for the Department of Energy in Las Vegas, Nev., on Monday said former medic Van R. Brandon "may be remembering incorrectly."

Brandon, a retired postal worker from Sacramento, Calif., said Sunday that exposure records on thousands of soldiers who observed atomic blasts in the 1950s were phony and the real records were kept secured in a "hot book."

On Monday, Miller said the military might actually have been keeping two lists of participants: one with those who had received the maximum dose of radioactivity and the other with names of those who could receive more exposure.

Miller said if Army officers were doing something wrong, such as overexposing troops, "It would be crazy to keep a record of that. That just doesn't ring true."

Many of the tests were conducted at the Nevada Test Site, 75 miles northwest of Las Vegas by the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission. The Department of Energy now directs underground testing.

In Washington, Army Maj. Chuck Suits, a Pentagon spokesman, said, "The Defense Department is involved in an investigation right now. ... It is following up on the charges made by Mr. Brandon."

Meanwhile, a national veterans organization and a group of Canadian veterans on Monday pressed for action on Brandon's charges.

In Burlington, Iowa, the head of the National Association of Atomic Veterans said she hoped other soldiers would come forward and discuss their experiences with atomic testing.

"This confirms what we've always believed," said Wanda Kelly, head of the association, which says 250,000 soldiers were exposed to radiation during atomic tests after World War II.

"We are hopeful now that other veterans, like Mr. Brandon, will break whatever bonds of secrecy they signed and come forth to tell the truth," Mrs. Kelly said.

Woman battles Army to higher court

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former Army Pfc. Wendy L. Wickham will take her battle against a court martial to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

A federal Judge ruled Monday that Mrs. Wickham, 21, should be tried by a court martial on Army charges that she faked a pregnancy to fradulently obtain a discharge.

But Mrs. Wickham had argued that any trial must be in federal court because she was discharged in 1980 and the Army does not have the right to court martial a civilian.

U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon said there was "merit to both sides" and it was "a close decision," but he issued a summary judgment Monday in favor of the Army.

However, Shannon aggred to stay his formal ruling to give Mrs. Wickham's attorney, Stewart Alexander, time to appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"I take the position that this lady should be tried in federal court, if at all," said Alexander. He said a 12-member civilian jury must render a unanimous verdict, while only a majority must vote for a conviction in a three-member military court.

He said Mrs. Wickham must be considered guilty before a trial for a federal court to force her to give up her civilian rights and undergo a military court martial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Pat Hovlin argued the precedent-setting case "strikes at the heart" of the military's ability to prevent fraudulent discharges.

Williams' parents cited for contempt after calls

ATLANTA (AP) — The murder trial of Wayne B. Williams escalated to a series of angry clashes by prosecutors and defense lawyers, while the judge cited a star defense witness and Williams' parents for contempt of court.

Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper cited Homer and Faye Williams on Monday for two telephone calls they made to a radio talk show to discuss their son's trial. Cooper said the Friday night calls violated his order barring lawyers and witnesses in the trial from discussing it with the news media.

Cooper also issued a citation Monday against Dr. Daniel Stowens, a New York pathologist who testified as an expert for the defense and admitted granting two interviews about the case in December.

Stowens and Williams' parents were told to appear at a hearing after the trial to answer the charges of criminal contempt of court.

The gag order was issued by Cooper in August, shortly after Williams, 23, a black free-lance photographer, was indicted for murder in the deaths of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

THE TWO WERE among 28 young blacks whose deaths during a 22-month period have been investigated by a special police task force. No arrests have been made in the 26 other deaths.

Testimony by Stowens and Donald Wright, a former Atlanta police recruit, brought lawyers for both sides repeatedly to their feet Monday. In earlier proceedings, most objections were argued privately at the bench.

Wright's testimony was aimed at discrediting prosecution witness Nellie Trammell, who had said she saw Williams driving a green station wagon on March 30, 1981 with Larry Rogers slumped in the front seat.

Rogers, whose body was found April 9, is one of 10 blacks whose deaths prosecutors contend make up a pattern of killings. Williams is not charged in any of the 10 deaths, but prosecutors say the slayings of Cater and Payne fit the pattern.

Wright, who was assigned in 1981 to the task force investigating the killings, testified Mrs. Trammell told him in March she had seen two black children slumped in a blue car driven by a black man.

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Lewis Slaton, Wright was given several pictures to examine. He picked one as looking "like Mrs. Trammell," but Slaton said it was of a "Mrs. Trimble," the mother of a task force member.

WRIGHT VOUCHED FOR the veracity of an earlier defense witness, Ken Lawson, another former police recruit who testified Mrs. Trammell was known around the task force office as a self-proclaimed psychic who called every time a body was found, seeking to relate her visions.

When Slaton asked Wright if he knew about Lawson using the drug Demerol, defense lawyer Alvin Binder objected vigorously, contending there was nothing in the record on which to base such a question.

"It's about to get in there," Slaton quipped as he walked to the bench to argue against Binder's objection. Cooper eventually told the jury to disregard the question about Demerol.

Earlier, Slaton tried to ask Wright if he ever had been involved in a theft. Binder objected. As Slaton argued against the objection, Cooper motioned for the lawyers to approach the bench.

When Slaton continued to argue in open court, Binder loudly protested. The district attorney told the judge he wanted to wait until Binder "cools off" before proceeding.

Mrs. Charles Moncrief, left, and her mother, Mrs. James A. Chapple, recall memories of the Catoico train that Mrs. Moncrief wore as Midland High School's Catoico queen in 1950. The train was hand-embroidered in 1929 by a French dressmaker especially for Mrs. Chapple, then Victoria Fabrega, who was queen of "The Celebration", a Panamanian Mardi Gras festival. Later, Miss Fabrega married the young intern, James H. Chapple, who escorted her to the festival. They moved to Midland in 1936 and Mrs. Chapple donated the train to MHS for use in all of the Catoico coronations when her daughter was named queen.

DEAR ABBY

If host calls 'thief!' he may be crying wolf

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You blew it when you advised "Long John Silver" not to make a fuss about the two pieces of silverware that "disappeared" right off the table during a formal dinner at his home.

What do you mean, "The embarrassment wouldn't be worth the price of the silver"? Have you priced silverware lately?

I would have first announced to all the guests that some silverware was missing, and if nobody "fessed up," so help me, I'd search every man and woman thoroughly before they went home. —NO DUMMY

DEAR NO DUMMY: It takes all kinds. Try this for size:

DEAR ABBY: You were right to advise the host and hostess not to be too hasty in announcing that some silverware had disappeared, and would the guilty party please come forward and produce it.

This is what happened to me last October: A friend asked if he could bring his friend to my home for a dinner party. I, too, said, "Of course."

At the end of the evening, a sterling fork was missing. I looked through the trash, on the floor, behind the draperies, in the utensil drawer — everywhere. No fork!

Well, last week I found the fork! Because I recycle my used jars, I always sterilize them in my dishwasher first. It seems that the label from one of those jars got stuck up under the front of the inside of my dishwasher. In removing the label, I felt the fork, completely hidden from view. Had it not been for that label, I never would have found the fork.

Go look, John. It happened to me. — ST. LOUIS HOUSEWIFE

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were transferred to Tucson, Ariz., with the Air Force, and we love it here. All of a sudden we get a call from an old Air Force buddy of my husband saying that he and his wife are coming to Tucson "sometime in March" and they'd love to stay with us!

This all took place on the phone, Abby, and I was so shocked I can't even remember what I said.

They are nice people and we have nothing against them, but we don't feel comfortable with anyone else in our home. I suppose it sounds terrible, but when we go out of town we never stay with friends, and we don't want anyone staying with us. They know we have a two-bedroom house, so we can't say we don't have room. If we say we aren't going to be in town, they'll ask when we will be in town and arrange to come when we're home.

We've been stalling because we don't know what to tell them. One thing is certain, we don't want them staying with us! Help! — TRAPPED IN TUCSON

DEAR TRAPPED: Either call or write and tell them you will be glad to make reservations for them at a convenient motel or hotel. You are not obligated to tell them why they can't stay with you. And don't feel guilty. It's your home and you don't have to cave in to guests who invite themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a shampoo girl. I get only $1.75 an hour, which is practically peanuts.

Please let people know they should tip their shampoo girls. Unless, of course, I'm wrong. — DISH-HEAD HANDS

DEAR DISH-HEAD: Nobody should tip anyone unless he or she wants to show appreciation for a job well done. An extra-special shampoo usually delights the customer into tipping well and cheerfully. If you aren't trying to satisfy each customer by determining what kind of shampoo she wants (heavy? light?), try it.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

A knot marks the pre-treatment spot

DEAR HELOISE:

We've all taken clothes from the dryer at one time or another only to discover that a garment has a stain that needed pre-treatment prior to being put into the washer.

To avoid this, as soon as you or other family members take off a garment that's stained, tie a knot in the general area of the stain before putting it into the hamper.

It will be easily noticed by Mom and can be treated with a stain remover when needed.

Alert all family members to this system, and everyone will be happier after washday (which is everyday at my house). — Mrs. Charles Purifoy

NO MIX-UP

Dear Heloise: Before I begin mixing a cake, cookies, bread, etc., I put all the ingredients needed for the recipe on the counter.

As I use each item, I put the ingredient back in the cupboard.

In doing this, I not only have less picking up after I have completed the mixing, but I make sure I haven't forgotten to add an ingredient called for in the recipe.

To help me remember the cups of flour, sugar, etc., I put tiny squares of paper (from margarine wrappers, napkins, whatever) near the mixer.

As I add each cup, I remove one piece of paper. No guess work should I be distracted or called away for a minute. — Mary Grace Kirby

+++

Good way to insure the recipe turns out right too. — Heloise

GARDENING TIP

Dear Heloise: Hold on to all those two-liter plastic soft drink bottles.

When planting time gets here, cut out the bottoms of the bottles and you have great hot caps for those young plants.

They stack easily for storage, and are easy to put over the plants, as well as remove.

You can use them year after year. — Donna Kinnick

JEWELRY BOX

Dear Heloise: I'm not one to throw out anything that's pretty, and it really hurts to discard those lovely bath powder boxes.

After washing the container and the big fluffy puff, I turn the puff upside down in the box and use it for an attractive jewelry box.

Great for long pearl or crystal necklaces, or for keeping matching sets together. — Doris Hill

DOUBLE BOILER

Dear Heloise: Always place a jar ring or marbles in the bottom part of your double boiler.

The rattling sound will signal if the water has boiled away. — Dorothy Denney

EATIN' OUT

Dear Heloise: When going to a restaurant with small children, I bring some pencils and paper for them to use for drawing.

It keeps them occupied while waiting for their food, and they don't annoy other patrons with shenanigans brought on by boredom.

They love to leave their little drawings for the waitress too. — Ann Davaris

PLANT MISTER

Dear Heloise: An empty pump bottle of hair spray makes a good mister for my potted plants. — Agnes Hall

AT WIT'S END

She's a worrier

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm a worrier. Especially when the weather is bad and I'm housebound.

Like, where are the Nielsen families and why do they watch all the shows I turn off? They're the most well-kept secret since Judge Crater. Not only have I never seen a Nielsen family, I have never known anyone who has ever seen a Nielsen family or even gotten a Christmas newsletter from them.

In my mind, I visualize them as a family of pale, hollow-eyed TV junkies where the "Daddy" carries the TV knob around in his pocket. "Daddy" likes women with good posture, a good car chase, and has seen more Bowls than the latrine officer at Ft. Dix.

My ultimate aim in life is to be offered a television series called "The Nielsen Family" so I could turn them off.

And where is Mrs. Tucker's Inn? My husband and I have been looking for a whipped cream experience in some little lodge off a country road for a long time. It has to be the only restaurant in the world with an unlisted phone number.

And what in the world do all those anchorpersons do with those papers they shuffle around all the time? Dan Rather slides his one at a time to a faceless person off camera. Jessica Savitch marks things on hers. John Chancellor straightens his like he's putting them back in a ream, and Roger Mudd folds his and takes them with him when he goes.

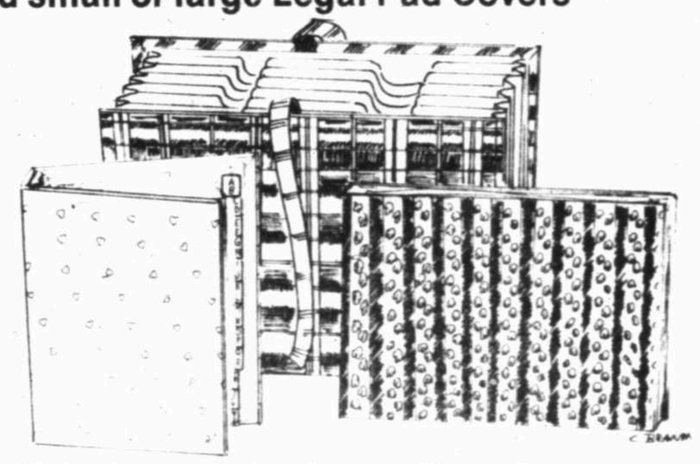

The news is on a teleprompter, so how come they fiddle with all those sheets of paper?

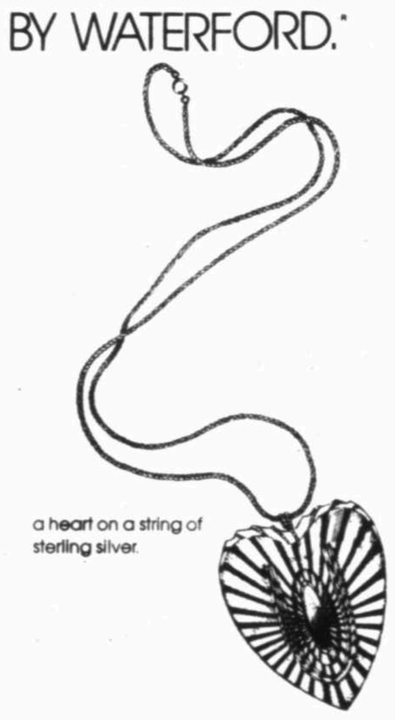

And what's going to happen to the test-tube babies when they grow up and ask the time-honored question, "Where did I come from?" Have you any idea how that is going to confuse the answer of sex-education experts like myself who said, "You come from Ohio"?

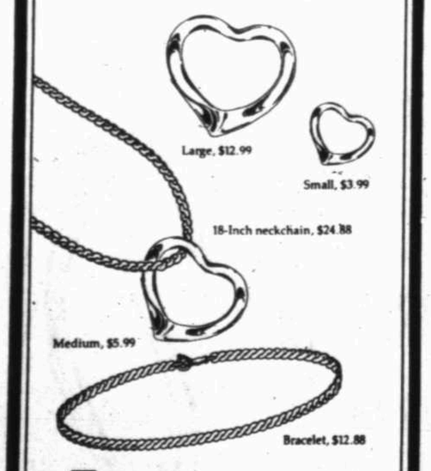

I suppose I'm borrowing trouble, but where is our vice president, George Whatshisname? I haven't seen hide nor hair of the man since he attended a wedding . . . or was it a funeral? No, I remember now, it was the inauguration. Some say he's keeping a low profile. Sandra Dee keeps a low profile.

He was a nice-looking man, as I remember him, and spoke well of his job. I certainly hope he's all right.

I'll be glad when spring comes. I worry less in the spring.

Maria Schrallhammer gestures during her final day of testimony Monday at Newport, R.I., in the trial of Claus von Bulow who is charged with twice having tried to kill his wife 'Sunny' with insulin injections. Ms. Schrallhammer, the maid of Mrs. von Bulow, testified for the prosecution and a letter she wrote to a friend was entered into evidence in which she said she and the defendent were "at daggers' points."

Doctor said von Bulow 'obviously' overdosed

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The first doctor to examine Martha "Sunny" von Bulow after she collapsed into her coma called her condition "obviously an overdose," a rescue worker has testified.

Lt. Paul Ripa, head of the Newport Fire Department rescue squad, testified Monday he took the diagnosis from Dr. Gerhard Meier, Mrs. von Bulow's physician, as she was treated in the emergency room of Newport Hospital.

"When Dr. Meier came over, he took one look at her and said 'This is obviously an overdose,'" Ripa said. "I included that in my report."

Danish-born financial consultant Claus von Bulow, 55, is on trial on charges he twice tried to kill his wife of 16 years with insulin injections during Christmas visits to their Millionaires' Row mansion here in 1979 and 1980.

Meier himself was scheduled to take the Superior Court witness stand today as the first of a number of people to testify about the treatment of Mrs. von Bulow at Newport Hospital for what have since been diagnosed as two hypoglycemic comas.

Under questioning by prosecutor Stephen Famiglietti, Ripa said he answered a report of a woman who fell in the von Bulow's mansion, Clarendon Court, on Dec. 21, 1980.

Ripa said he found Mrs. von Bulow covered with a fur robe, face down on the cold marble floor of her private bathroom, her nightgown hiked above her waist and mens' socks on her feet.

"I noticed that her pulse was very slow and her body temperature was very cold," said Ripa, adding that dried blood marked a cut on her lip.

With von Bulow riding in the ambulance, she was rushed to Newport Hospital, Ripa said.

Shortly after arriving, Mrs. von Bulow's heart stopped and physicians gave her cardiovascular resuscitation, Ripa said.

In the 13 months since, Mrs. von Bulow, 50, has been in a coma in a New York City hospital. Doctors give her little chance of recovery.

The prosecution alleges that von Bulow, motivated by love for a former actress and impatience to inherit his half of his wife's $30 million utilities fortune, secretly injected Mrs. von Bulow with insulin, trying to fatally lower her blood sugar.

The defense says Mrs. von Bulow brought on both comas herself through drug abuse and indulging in alcohol and sweets.

Judge Thomas Needham recessed court an hour early Monday to allow lawyers to gather the originals of Newport Hospital records of emergency room treatment given Mrs. von Bulow Dec. 27, 1979 and Dec. 21, 1980.

Sentencing of Williams postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Abscam sentencing of Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., postponed for two weeks when he underwent an emergency hernia operation, was put off for a third week Monday so he can more fully recuperate.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt said he granted the one-week delay, from Tuesday to a week from Tuesday, after the New Jersey Democrat's lawyers asked for a two-week delay and the government opposed any further postponement.

He could be sentenced to up to 15 years in prison.

Williams, who has been in the Senate for 22 years, is one of seven members of Congress convicted in the Abscam operation, in which an undercover FBI agent posed as an Arab sheik willing to pay for influence.

Williams was convicted last May of conspiracy, bribery, conflict of interest, receiving a criminal gratuity and interstate travel in aid of racketeering.

Jury views tape as brutality trial begins

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — After seeing a videotape of three former McAllen policemen kick and punch a drunk prisoner, a federal jury must decide whether the officers' conduct was appropriate or "brutal."

Jurors viewed the five-minute tape Monday as the trial began for the former officers charged with violating a prisoner's rights on Oct. 23, 1978, at the McAllen police station booking desk.

A monitoring camera routinely taped activities in the booking area as a precaution against future harrassment compiaints against officers.

Defendants Tom Carter, 32, Jaime Contereras, 28, and Alfredo Saldana, 27, face up to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor charge. U.S. Magistrate William Mallet is presiding at the trial, which is expected to last three to five days.

The men's major defense argument is that they were provoked by the unruly prisoner and used force required to subdue him. Prosecutors contend the kicking and slugging was "brutal and totally uncalled for."

Another officer present during the incident testified the other policemen's actions were unnecessary.

"It (force) was more than what was required," Capt. Gary Miller said. "It wasn't necessary."

Miller said he and Contreras arrested Dennett on a drunk driving charge and brought him to the police station. A breathalyzer test later showed Dennett's blood alcohol to be .27 percent. A level of .10 under Texas state indicates intoxication.

A grim-faced jury watched the tape on two television monitors installed in the courtroom. Dennett refused to stand against the wall, tried to kick one of the officers and was thrown to the ground.

He was slapped, punched in the chest, lifted by the belt and slammed against the booking desk. Jurors heard loud screaming when officers held Dennett's arm behind his back before placing him in a holding cell.

Special Prosecutor Ross Connealy then replayed the tape, stopping it at times to let Miller identify those depicted.

Under cross-examination by Nelson Sharpe, Carter's lawyer, Miller acknowledged he had sworn in a deposition last year that he never saw excessive force used by other officers.

Operators stake six wildcats, complete two gas discoveries

Six wildcats have been staked by operators in Andrews, Lynn, Midland, Pecos Ward and Winkler counties. Also, gas discoveries have been completed in Pecos and Sterling counties.

ANDREWS WILDCAT

The No. 2 Marshall Winston will be drilled by Quanah Petroleum Inc., Dallas, 16 miles northwest of Frankel City.

The scheduled 7,800-foot wildcat spots 660 feet from the north, and 1,754 feet from the west line of section 6, block A-29, Public School Lands survey.

It will also be drilled as a test to the Stump (Abo) field at 7,350 feet.

The site is 1,980 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 38, block 8, EL&RR survey.

MIDLAND SEARCHER

A 12,700-foot wildcat has been staked by TXO Production Corp., Midland, 1/2 miles east of Odessa.

The No. 1 Parkes Estate is 1,980 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 27, block 41, T-2-S, T&P survey.

The prospector will also test the Hallahan (Strawn) field at 10,260 feet and the Headlee (Devonian) gas field at 11,948 feet.

The total depth is 8,622 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set on bottom.

It is 660 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 28, block 13, SPRR survey.

Nigeria oil production bounces back after near disaster

By CHARLES T. POWERS
(c) 1982, Los Angeles Times

LAGOS, Nigeria — Last July, when world oil supplies reached glut proportions and oil income here was cut nearly in half, many people were predicting disaster for Nigeria.

The disaster has not come, and now some of those who were most pessimistic say that Nigeria may have learned a valuable lesson. Oil production has bounced back, and the Nigerian government has cut back somewhat on its massive development plans and is budgeting more conservatively to guard against future falloffs in oil prices.

At the beginning of last year, Nigeria, a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, was selling its high-quality, low-sulfur crude oil at $40 a barrel, along with the North African producers Libya and Algeria, whose oil is of similar high quality. At that price, Nigeria was producing about 2 million barrels a day.

By July, production had dropped to about 500,000 barrels a day, and after an OPEC meeting in August, Nigeria cut its price to $34.50 a barrel. Sales picked up. And in December Nigerian oil production was back at 1.8 million barrels daily.

The nation's oil production is currently running at only 75 percent of normal as a result of recent damage to a major oil pipeline in southwestern Nigeria. The pipeline, owned by a joint venture between Shell Nigeria and the Nigerian National Petroleum Co., was damaged during a dredging operation in late January. During repairs, expected to take about two weeks, production has been cut an estimated 400,000 barrels per day.

Nigerian oil is now priced at $36.50 a barrel, but to customers who pay in cash within 30 days the Nigerian National Petroleum Co. offers discounts that can bring the price as low as $33.75.

The drop in Nigeria's oil revenues last year was about 30 percent , a serious decline for a country that derives 90 percent of its foreign exchange — and 90 percent of government income — from oil. Those who predicted grave problems for the country — and they included Nigerian government officials, diplomats and businessmen — had genuine cause for alarm.

The reason for the alarm was simple: Nigeria spends its money about as fast as it makes it.

This does not make Nigeria unique among nations, but Nigeria, with a population estimated at 80 million to 100 million, is one of the world's largest democracies. It is also one of the world's youngest — and most precarious — democracies.

The civilian government of President Alhaji Shehu Shagari was elected, by the narrowest of margins, in 1979 after nearly a decade of generally inept military rule, which had followed a decade of strife capped by the disastrous Biafran civil war. Even now, 21 years after independence from Britain, deep divisions in the country are evident.

Mark Products reports record year-end earnings

HOUSTON (SWN) — Mark Products, Inc. has reported unaudited earnings per share of $1.21 for the 12 months ended December 31, 1981 up from $.77 during the same period a year ago.

Mark's net income was $9,605,000 on revenues of $69,270,000 during the 12 months of 1981 compared with net income of $6,134,000 on revenues of $42,276,000 during the same period in 1980.

For the fourth quarter ended December 31, 1981, the company's net income was $3,198,000, or $.40 per share, on revenues of $20,532,000 compared with a net income of $1,753,000, or $.22 per share, on revenues of $13,167,000 during the comparable period in 1980.

Wayne E. Tabor, president and chief executive officer, attributed 1981 record results to strong demand for the company's products and increased production capacity at its manufacturing facilities in Houston.

Tabor went on to say that growth in the seismic industry may moderate during 1982. As exploration budgets are tightened, the resulting demand for seismic equipment may increase at a lower rate than the industry has been experiencing in recent years. In an environment of lower industry growth, the replacement market and new technology should become more important.

It is estimated that, on the average, one-fourth of all existing geophones and one-half of all cables and connectors must be replaced every year. Because of the increase in the total number of crews since 1979, this replacement market should provide a supplementary sales base.

Tabor also stated that the company has increased its research and development program to provide for future expansion of the company's product lines.

Mark Products manufactures and markets a wide range of geophysical data acquisition equipment and specialized cables for the oil and gas exploration industry.

Flare, Inc., reports record earnings for 2nd quarter

Flare, Inc. has reported record earnings and revenues for the second consecutive quarter. Pre-tax earnings from continuing operations for the second quarter were almost seven times those for the same three months of the prior year. Profit margins for both the current quarter and six-months were substantially above those achieved last year.

Increases were attributed to the continuing growth of Flare's sales of proprietary seismic data to oil industry customers.

Earnings from continuing operations for the quarter ended December 31, 1981, were $823,837, or 12 cents per share, on revenues of $2,447,459, compared with earnings from continuing operations of $237,767, or four cents per share, on revenues of $779,551 for the last three months of 1980. Net earnings for the quarter were $690,761, or 10 cents per share, compared with net earnings for the 1980 quarter of $298,991, or five cents per share.

Flare earned $1,312,821, or 20 cents per share, from continuing operations during the six months ended December 31, 1981, compared with earnings from continuing operations of $383,203, or six cents per share, for the same period of the prior year. Net earnings for the six-month period in 1981 were $1,046,905, or 16 cents per share, compared with net earnings of $476,482, or eight cents per share, for the last six months of 1980.

Monthly sales of seismic data reached the million-dollar level for the first time in December, according to Frank E. Lasater, Jr., executive vice president. He said that the company also sold its contract drilling subsidiary in December, enabling management to devote its energies and attention more substantially to the seismic data business. In addition, the subsidiary was not operating at a satisfactory profit level.

During the quarter, Flare began receiving its first income from a major seismic data program in the Central Michigan Basin of the Lower Peninsula of the state of Michigan. Scheduled for completion late in the 1982 calendar year, it is expected to encompass approximately 1,500 miles at an estimated cost of some $8 million. Approximately 300 miles of the program were completed during the past quarter, and Flare has already received more than $1 million from sales of this data.

The company is also conducting seismic programs in North Texas and West Texas to develop seismic data for subscribers to the programs and for subsequent sale to others in the petroleum industry.

Flare finances acquisitions of seismic data primarily through advanced subscriptions from firms and individuals interested in a particular area, and to a lesser extent, from internally generated funds. After the geophysical information has been obtained and made available to advance subscribers for an exclusive period, however, it becomes available for resale to others.

OIL INDUSTRY NOTES

DALLAS (SWN) — The LTV Corporation has reported record earnings for both the fourth quarter and full year of 1981, reflecting primarily the strength of its energy-related activities.

Net income for the 1981 fourth quarter was $115.9 million, or $2.22 a share fully diluted, on sales of $1.83 billion, compared with net earnings of $59.5 million, or $1.28 a share fully diluted, on sales of $1.57 billion for the final three months of 1980.

For the year, LTV had consolidated net income of $386.3 million, or $7.59 a share fully diluted, versus net income of $127.9 million, or $2.96 a share fully diluted last year. Sales and revenues for 1981 and 1980 were $7.51 billion and $5.74 billion, respectively.

Results for the fourth quarter of 1981 reflect a reduction in the annual effective tax rate to 20 percent from the 25 percent rate provided for in the first nine months of the year. The reduction in the tax rate resulted principally from the realization of foreign and energy tax credits not previously anticipated.

****

HOUSTON (SWN) — Shell Oil Company has reported its earnings increased in both the fourth quarter and full year of 1981.

President John F. Bookout said the company earned $458 million in the fourth quarter, an increase of $49 million from the same 1980 quarter. Net income for the full year was $1,701 million, $159 million higher than 1980. These preliminary results are subject to audit.

Pre-share earnings were $1.48 for the quarter and $5.51 for the full year, compared to $1.32 and $4.99 for the respective 1980 periods.

On a segment basis, earnings for both the quarter and year were higher in oil and gas exploration and production and in oil products (refining, transportation and marketing), but were lower in chemical products.

Bookout said Shell's capital and exploration spending reached $4.1 billion for 1981, an increase of $.9 billion over 1980 spending. For 1982, he said, spending plans call for $4.3 billion, with about 70 percent targeted for the exploration and development of domestic energy resources.

Revenues were $5.2 billion for the fourth quarter and $21.7 billion for the year, compared to $5.1 billion and $20.0 billion for the same 1980 periods.

Earnings amounted to 7.8 cents of each revenue dollar in 1981, compared to 7.7 cents in 1980.

Earnings in oil and gas exploration and production increased $63 million to $425 million for the quarter and $316 million to $1,547 million for the year.

"The most important factor in this earnings growth was the increase in the prices of domestic crude oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids," Bookout said.

However, much of the benefit from higher crude prices was offset by higher Windfall Profit Tax, he added.

Bookout said crude and natural gas production were moderately higher due to increased crude output from Shell's Kernridge properties in California and new and increased gas production in the Gulf of Mexico.

The oil products segment earned $121 million in the quarter and $360 million for the year, respective increases of $42 million and $40 million. Bookout said that the fourth quarter gain in Oil Products earnings arose from improved margins as compared to the same quarter last year when selling prices lagged behind increases in raw material costs.

For the full year, selling prices and a higher valued sales mix essentially offset the negative impact of lower sales volumes, and increased raw material and other variable operating costs. Earnings growth benefited from higher investment tax credits largely associated with refinery modernizations in California.

The chemical products segment had a loss of $11 million in the fourth quarter, compared to a profit of $18 million for the same period in 1980. Full-year earnings were $24 million, a decline of $104 million from 1980.

"However," Bookout noted, "the chemical segment generated funds from operations of $313 million in 1981. This compares with $395 million in 1980."

Bookout attributed the declines to poorer than expected economic conditions in 1981 that resulted in reduced demand and underutilization of major facilities in the commodity businesses such as olefins, aromatics and solvents. Other factors were competitive pricing, higher raw material costs and greater fixed costs associated with new facilities.

Unallocated corporate costs for the fourth quarter and year increased $24 million and $87 million, respectively, from the same 1980 periods.

Total company earnings increased 12 percent for the quarter and 10 percent for the year.

Looking at trends, Bookout said, "Domestic crude oil prices remained nearly level in the fourth quarter at a little more than $31 a barrel and we expect little change in domestic crude oil prices during the next few quarters. Natural gas prices increased from quarter to quarter during 1981 at annual rates somewhat above 20 percent per year, and continuing increases are expected."

Discussing the outlook for oil products, Bookout said, "Competitive pressures on selling prices, that intensified late in the fourth quarter, have been narrowing margins, and this condition may persist well into 1982."

As for chemical products, Bookout said, "We expect improvement in this segment when normal growth in economic activity resumes."

Firm interested in dump's methane gas

HOUSTON (AP) — A firm wants to siphon methane gas from garbage buried in a sanitary landfill and sell it to heat homes.

Don Fitch, a spokesman for Browning-Ferris industries, declined to identify the interested firm but said talks were active and promising.

The 400-acre landfill, which was closed in 1978, could yield 8.4 million cubic feet of gas per day, researchers estimated. Statistics show that would be enough to heat 8,400 homes.

Currently, a number of landfills around the country are being tapped for gas.

Dr. Jack Matson, a University of Houston professor and member of a research team that investigated the area in 1975, said a large gas pipeline running by the landfill makes the site particularly promising for production.

Matson said gas from landfills typically must be "scrubbed" to reduce the amount of carbon dioxide. But he said the garbage gas could be fed into the pipeline, where the huge volume would dilute the carbon dioxide to negligible levels.

"That could be an added economic incentive to produce gas at this particular landfill," Matson said.

His team sank a "wildcat well," driving a one-inch plastic pipeline 60 feet into the wastes, and struck gas that was about 60 percent methane.

Matson estimated a well sunk in the Browning-Ferris landfill could produce about 8.4 million cubic feet of gas per day for 15 years.

He also contends removing the gas could eliminate potential problems of uncontrolled natural seepage of the gas.

Matson said that another city-owned 300-acre landfill near the Browning-Ferris site would likely have similar potential as a gas producer.

Gary Abernathy, city solid waste director, said he had preliminary inquiries about methane recovery two years ago but was unable to follow them up because of more pressing problems.

Better landmen goal of new program

A certification program designed to improve the petroleum landmen's profession is "probably the most important thing the American Association of Petroleum Landmen has ever undertaken," said D. Calvin Blue, president of the AAPL.

Speaking before a large audience of landmen at Midland Center recently, Blue said the certification program, tied with a code of ethics will help eleminate disreputable members of the profession. "It will also help us insure that our members are capable, qualified landmen."

The certification program is somewhat like those used by other professions, such as accountants, Blue explained in an after meeting interview. He said he hopes it will help to raise the level of professionalism amongst landmen to that of accountantants and other strictly controlled professions.

Harry Sprinkle, executive vice president of AAPL, added to Blue's remarks. "The professional landman has always felt like a professional," Sprinkle said, but because of the recent influx of new people into the business the overall level of competency has declined.

During the 1950s and '60s, Sprinkle said, not many new landmen took up the profession. Following the Arab oil embargo, and the following increase in domestic petroleum industry activity, there was a sudden swelling of the landmen's ranks.

"We're trying to teach a lot of people a hell of a lot in a short period of time," said Sprinkle.

Blue and Sprinkle were among the many in Midland early this week for the AAPL mid-year conference at the Hilton. The AAPL's mid-year conferences, conducted a different cities around the nation each year, offer landmen professional training and education.

The topic of Blue's speach was professional ethics. He said the certification program would be of great help as the AAPL attempts to weed from its ranks landmen whose conduct is unethical, immoral or inapropriate to the profession.

Establishing standards of professional conduct and enforcing them, Blue said, will help the landmen avoid government regulation. Regulation is often the result of wrong doings by professionals and businessmen, he said.

For years, Blue said, a man's word was his bond, a handshake was all that was needed to close a deal, but today old standards of honesty seem to no longer hold. As a result, a great deal of government regulation has been heaped upon business. Landmen could very well be regulated also.

The AAPL has 11,000 members, Blue said. Dishonesty isn't a big problem within the association. "The vast majority are good, solid, honest, hard-working people."

Blue said only 17 members have been accused of dishonesty in the two years the dertification program has been in force. Of these, most were dropped as baseless.

However, Blue assured, every effort would be made to "weed out" the dishonest, and to protect the interests of those who conduct themselves professionally.

UNC Resources acquires Swiftships Inc.

FALLS CHURCH, VA. — UNC Resources announced recently that it has completed the acquisition of Swiftships Inc., a privately-owned builder of aluminum and steel marine vessels headquartered in Morgan City, La.

The transaction involved, among other things, the issuance of debt securities having a face value of $15.2 million and convertible into 1.4 million shares of UNC common stock. The two principal executives of Swiftships, who have agreed to stay with the business, may also be entitled to contingent payments based on future earnings.

Swiftships is the world's leading producer of large aluminum marine vessels (over 100 feet in length), and also produces steel vessels and provides vessel repair services. Its ships are used primarily in offshore oil service and military applications, but also find use as tugs, tankers, ferries, pilot boats and research vessels.

"The acquisition of Swiftships is a major further step in UNC's program to broaden its activities and become less dependent on a single market or costomer," said Keith A. Cunningham, UNC's president and chief executive officer. "We expect that 1982 will be a good year for UNC, with Swiftships a major factor. In the five months ended last October 31, the latest period for which results are available Swiftships had pre-tax earnings (unaudited) of more than $3.8 million on revenues of $25 million. It expects revenues of approximately $100 million in 1982 as its new facilities come on line.

"Besides greatley strengthening our position in the growing offshore oil and gas service field, it brings us new elements of customer and geographical diversification. Its vessels serve domestic and international defense programs and its proposed Singapore operation will open up the growing markets in the Far East," Mr. Cunningham added.

Swiftships currently employs about 900 workers in four locations on the Louisiana and Texas coast and is planning a fifth facility in Singapore under a joint venture arrangement with a foreign company. Its largest production facility is in Morgan City, La., 85 miles from New Orleans. This yard specializes in the construction of high speed aluminum vessels up to 145 feet in length and steel vessels up to 150 feet.

A second yard in Lafitte, La., eight miles from New Orleans, produces aluminum vessels up to 125 feet length. The Lafitte yard will also provide repair and maintenance facilities.

A third yard in Houston, Texas -Mangone Swiftships, Inc. constructs steel vessels from 150 feet to 250 feet in length for use as offshore oil service vessels, ocean tugs and mini-tankers. During 1981, Swiftships established a major facility in Freeport, Texas, to provide maintenance and repair services for a variety of vessel types.

Northwest Pipeline seeks natural gas sale approval

SALT LAKE CITY — Northwest Pipeline Corporation has filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) for approval to make a sale of up to 325 million cubic feet daily of natural gas to Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation and its subsidiary, Transwestern Pipeline Company and to construct new facilities to deliver the sales volumes.

The project will require a $210 million expansion of the Northwest Pipeline transmission sustem consisting of 243 miles of additional pipeline along its mainline from Rangely to Igancio, Colorado, a new compressor station at Cortez, Colorado, and an additional compressor unit at an existing station.

The project will also require the construction of a new pipeline to connect the Northwest Pipeline system at Ignacio, Colorado with the transwestern system in central New Mexico.

The new pipeline will cost $124 million and will consist of 162 miles of 30-inch diameter pipe. A new company, Continental Divide Pipeline Company, to be jointly owned by subsidiaries of Northwest Pipeline and Transwestern, will own the new pipeline. Completion of both the Northwest Pipeline expansion and the Continental Divide Pipeline are currently scheduled for 1983. The Continental Divide Pipeline will enable gas to be delivered through interconnecting pipeline systems to markets in Southern California and along the East Coast.

The sale to Texas Eastern/Transwestern will enable Northwest Pipeline to take a higher percentage of Canadian natural gas available under approved export aurhtorizations and will provide a reduction in cost of service to present customers by more fully utilizing existing transmission capacity.

Westcoast Transmission Company Ltd. of Vancouber, British Columbia has agreed to increase its deliveries of gas to Northwest Pipeline by 60 million cubic feet per day to a total of 869 million cubic feet per day at the Sumas, Washington import point when Northwest Pipeline commences the sale to Texas Eastern. Westcoast has also agreed to immediately enter into negotiations to extend the present contract, which expires October 31, 1989, for an additional 10 years. The Companies are currently negotiating the contract extension and are expected to file with appropriate regulatory authorities in the U. S , and Canada in the near future. Northwest Pipeline has agreed to a minimum purchase obligation of 192 billion cubic feet of gas per year, or 65% of annual authorized exports contringent on commencement of the Texas Eastern/Transwestern sale.

CPI to sell eight prospects to Marshall Exploration

Consolidated Petroleum Industries, Inc. has announced the sale of eight exploration prospects to Marshall Exploration, Inc. by its operating unit, Tierra Petroleum Corp.

CPI will receive $1,370,000 for the leases in these prospects from Marshall Exploration, a private oil and gas exploration company based in Marshall, Texas, upon completion of title clearance. The company also retained an eight to 11 percent working interest after payout of well cost on each well.

The prospects sold by Tierra Petroleum include six onshore prospects in the Texas Gulf Coast area and one prospect each in East Texas and northern Louisiana. Marshall Exploration plans to spend approximately $8 million to drill test wells on these prospects during 1982.

Consolidated Petroleum Industries, Inc. is engaged in the exploration for and production of oil and natural gas, domestic contract drilling, oil field services, gathering and refining crude oil, marketing and distribution of petroleum products and the generation of

Melton Drilling Co. announces completion of Garza field well

Melton Drilling & Exploration Co. has reported it has drilled two wells so far on a 1,120-acre lease in Garza County.

One of the wells, Post Estate No. 1, is currently producing five barrels of oil per day and the other, Post Estate A No. 2, is being completed.

Melton Drilling & Exploration is operator and owns a 25 percent working interest in each of the development wells, drilled to the Glorietta Foermation at a depth of about 3,500 feet. The lease is adjacent to the Post N. W. and H & L Fields southwest of Lubbock.

In Lea County, southeastern New Mexico, the company recently participated in the drilling of two development wells on an 80-acre lease.

One of the wells, Arco Federal No. 1, flowed at a rate of 86 barrels of oil and 30,000 cubic feet of gas per day in production testing.

The other well, Arco Federal No. 1, is being completed. Both wells were drilled to a depth of about 5,000 feet, testing the San Andres Formation. Melton Drilling & Exploration owns a 12.5 percent working interest.

Joe M. L. Melton, president, said the company will participate in the drilling of a well in Howard County, Texas, east of Midland, and a well in Hockley County, west of Lubbock. The Howard County well, on a 976-acre lease, will be drilled to a depth of about 8,800 feet, testing the Penn Reef.

The Hockley County well will go to a depth of about 5,000 feet, testing the San Andres Formation.

Melton Drilling & Exploration owns a 25 percent working interest in each well.

The company was formed in October 1980 and became publicly owned in July 1981 through a public offering in which 40 million shares of common stock were sold at 10 cents per share.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1981, Melton Drilling & Exploration reported net income of $841,905 on revenues of $2,879,858.

Most of the revenues consisted of income from contract drilling operations. The company operated three drilling rigs, two of which can reach depths of 5,000 and 7,000 feet and a new rig that can drill as deep as 12,500 feet.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Stage great Judith Anderson, opera singer Leontyne Price and actor Robert Wagner celebrate this birthday with you. Also born on this date: Physician-author Alex Comfort and restaurateur Elaine. Creativity is your key to greater financial success this year. Those of you with children will be very proud of them. Foreign transactions require very special handling in late February, March. Career progress is linked to your self-discipline.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confusion regarding a career or business matter requires careful handling. An unexpected visitor brings welcome news. Teen-ager asks for help; give it, but refrain from adding "I told you so."

Plan the play of the hand before you commit yourself to the first trick. By doing so, you might be able to emulate what today's declarer had to do to land his four spade game.

After his partner opened one no trump, North used the Stayman Convention to probe for a 4-4 major fit. He then invited game by raising his partner's major. Since South could hardly have more for his opening, he accepted with alacrity.

West led a trump and, when dummy came down, declarer realized that he was in danger of losing a trick in each suit. Since he could not afford to have East win the first trick and shift to a diamond, declarer chose to give up on the trump finesse. He rose with the ace, and took care to play the ten from his hand.

Since he wanted to get rid of dummy's diamond, the jack of clubs was led at trick two. West won the ace and reverted to a trump. Declarer dropped the jack under East's king, preserving the seven. East made the expected shift to a diamond, but declarer rose with the ace, cashed the king-queen of clubs, discarding dummy's remaining diamond, and now had to go about setting up dummy's hearts.

He led ace and another heart. West won the king and cleverly continued with a low diamond. However, declarer did not have to risk running this to his queen. He ruffed in dummy, ruffed a low heart with the queen of trumps to set up the suit, and could now cash in on his earlier unblocking plays in the trump suit.

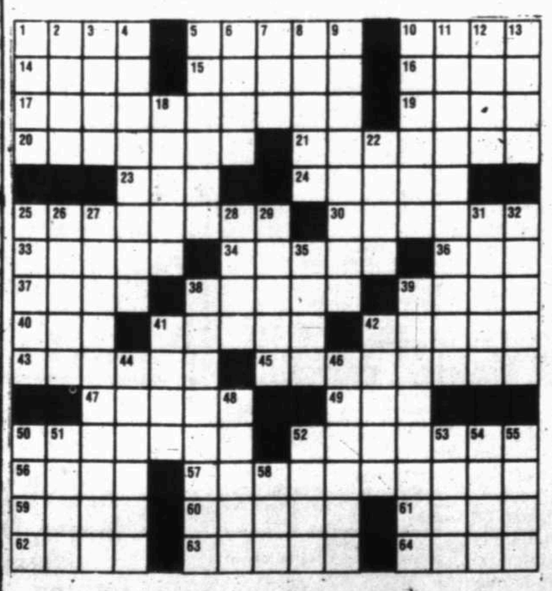

Declarer was able to cross to dummy with the seven of trumps to the nine. That drew the last trump and at the same time provided the entry to the board to cash the long hearts and bring home a well-played contract.

Chaps pad cage lead

AMARILLO — The Midland College Chaparrals increased their lead in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference to two full games here Monday night, but they followed their usual wild script in gaining an 88-86 win over Amarillo College.

Amarillo entered the game with a chance to tie the Chaps for first place, but fell two points shy of doing so as the Chaps grabbed a 17-point lead early in the second half and ended up hanging on by the fingernails. Nothing unusual for the 21-5 Chaps, who now own a 12-1 conference mark. AC, the only conference opponent to defeat the Chaps this year, fell to 10-3, losing their third game in a row. They are now 18-3 on the season.

The reason the Chaps couldn't keep this one put away throughout the contest was that Puntus Wilson, Lance McCain, Jerome Crowe and Chester Smith all had four fouls early in the second half, and the Chaps are thin on players anyway.

Still, Wilson, who fouled out, led the way with 27 points while Spudd Webb had 23 and Smith 22 in a potent three-pronged scoring attack. McCain ended up with 12 points.

The Chaps started slowly as Amarillo jumped to a thin early lead, but MC was back in control at the half with a nine-point 41-32 lead. They quickly built a 17-point lead in the second half only to see it whittled to the bare bones in the late stages of the game as the Badgers found success with a full court press.

Anthony Chennault of AC took scoring honors with a 30-point performance while Robert Dickerson added 26, Tim Price 17 and Nicky Jones 11.

Despite the two-game lead, the Chaps are not out of the woods just yet. They have a murderous five games left, with third place Howard College coming to Chaparral Center Thursday night breathing fire. The schedule also has Frank Phillips, Odessa College and Clarendon all on the road and Western Texas College at home. Runaways have been scarce for the Chaps this year, but the two-game margin is some much needed padding.

Bizarre SWC race continues

By The Associated Press

Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf called it a "big-break night."

However, the biggest break in the latest bizarre evening of Southwest Conference basketball came for three of the five teams deadlocked in third place in the league standings.

Metcalf watched in dismay Monday night as Texas Tech whipped his Aggies 91-82 to join Texas, Texas Christian, Houston and Baylor — which are all tied at 6-5, a game behind second place A&M.

Arkansas, 8-2, reinforced its position at the top of the SWC, whipping Texas Christian 79-69 to take a two-game edge over the Aggies.

"It was a big-break night," sighed Metcalf, whose Aggies lost in overtime after four key players fouled out during regulation play.

"We had to work so hard to get back in the game we didn't have enough left at the end. We got a little shorthanded ... we don't have much depth beyond seven or eight players," he said.

Former Hobbs High School standouts Steve Smith and Jeff Taylor combined for 45 points as Texas Tech exploded for the overtime win.

Joe Washington hit 12 of 15 points as Tech raced ahead to clinch the victory during the extra period.

Smith led all scorers with 24 points, with Taylor adding 21 despite fouling out with 7:48 remaining in regulation play.

The Red Raiders led by as many as 12 points in the first half but a sticky Aggie press helped trim the margin to 40-36 at halftime.

A&M rallied to tie the game on two 15-foot jump shots by Gary Lewis and Claude Riley in the last 42 seconds of regulation play.

The Aggies claimed their only lead, 82-80, when Milton Woodley sunk a short jumper early in overtime.

Houston won its third straight game with a 77-63 decision over Texas, Southern Methodist slipped further into the cellar after being dealt a resounding 70-59 defeat at the hands of Baylor.

Terry Teagle led the Bear scoring blitz by pumping in 23 points before he fouled out with 3:20 remaining.

But Craig Kaiser and Jay Shakir took over in the final four minutes making four free throws apiece. It was Kaiser's best performance of the season.

"It was great to see the other guys carry on out there while I was out," said Teagle "Our entire team played well, top to bottom."

SMU suffered a devestating 17 turnovers, while Baylor coughed up the ball just nine times.

Houston's Rob Williams' hot hand singed the Longhorn nets for 29 points as he led the Cougars to an easy 77-63 win over Texas.

Williams turned a slim halftime advantage into a rout before the Longhorn's home crowd in Austin.

Texas has lost five of its last six games since forward Mike Wacker went out for the season with a knee injury.

"It was nice to not have Wacker in there," said Houston's Clyde Drexler, who scored 23 points in the Cougar's winning effort.

Houston took advantage of an unexpected plus, when Texas' LaSalle Thompson picked up his fourth foul and sat on the bench with 14 minutes left in the game and finally fouled out with 19 seconds remaining.

"We came in at halftime and worked on getting the ball inside because of the foul problem they had with Thompson," said Houston coach Guy Lewis.

After the game, Texas coach Abe Lemons reflected on the critical loss of Thompson, who led Texas with 24 points despite the fouls.

"We depend on certain people to get our points and when they don't we've got lots of problems," he said.

Arkansas had to fight for its victory over pesky TCU. The Horned Frogs pulled ahead of the Hogs midway through the first half and again at the start of the second half.

"We came out flat and were down 20-11 when our defense took over," said Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton. "We jumped into the lead and had a chance to move ahead by 10 at the half, but couldn't quite get over the hump."

Banquet set for tonight

The fourth annual Midland Sports Banquet is scheduled tonight at Green Tree Country Club.

Master-of-ceremonies for the festivities will be Bobby Bragan, former Texas League and National Association president. The roster of sports celebrities will include Dallas Cowboys' assistant Ernie Stautner, a Hall of Fame tackle in a long playing career with the Pittsburgh Steelers; San Diego Padres manager Dick Williams, who has managed pennant winners at Boston and Oakland; Houston Astros catcher Alan Ashby; Al Unser and Johnny Rutherford, the three-time Indy 500 winners; Gordon Goldsberry, new chief of the Chicago Cubs minor league system, and John Cox, assistant to Chicago GM Dallas Green; Texas Ranger pitcher Danny Darwin and outfielder Billy Sample.

A social hour at 6:30 p.m. will precede the 7:30 p.m. banquet.

LA sends Lopes to Oakland A's

OAKLAND (AP) — Second baseman Dave Lopes was hopeful about the future following his trade from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the Oakland A's for minor league infielder Lance Hudson.

"I had said one time during the course of my career that it was inevitable that I would be traded someday," said Lopes, a four-time National League All-Star who has played all his nine years in the majors with the Dodgers.

"My main concern was once I was rejected...that someone else wanted me," he added after the trade was formally announced Monday. "Oakland showed a tremendous amount of interest in me, and I'm extremely thankful for that. I will pay them (back) for wanting me here in Oakland, believe me."

Lopes, 35, is the first member to leave a Dodger infield that has played together for a record nine years, an infield that includes himself, Steve Garvey, Bill Russell and Ron Cey.

Referring to a recent dinner with Russell, Cey and Steve Yeager, Lopes said, "That was a very difficult situation...at the dinner it got quite emotional and we had to cut it kind of short."

He said he would miss playing for the world champions, "but I'm looking foward to establishing newer relationships here in Oakland and doing whatever I can to help this team win a world championship...that's my concern right now."

Steve Sax had been expected to vie for second base this year with Lopes, who hit only .206 with five home runs, 17 runs batted in and 20 stolen bases in 58 games last year. Lopes said he had three years on his contract, reportedly worth $325,000 this season, $350,000 in 1983 and $425,000 in 1984.

Sax, 22, led the Texas League in hitting last year with a .346 average before being recalled by the Dodgers. In the Texas League, he had eight home runs, 53 RBI and 37 stolen bases. After Lopes was injured, Sax hit .277 with the Dodgers with two home runs, nine RBI and five stolen bases in 31 games. After the season, he was named the most valuable player in the Texas League.

"This is just another step in our efforts to inject youth into our lineup with our veterans," said Al Campanis, Dodger vice president. "We wish Davey well in his new endeavor."

Lee girls roll past Big Spring

The Midland Lee girls basketball team kept its District 5-5A title hopes burning at Chaparral Center Monday night with a 66-56 romp over the Big Spring Steers, and Midland High's upset over San Angelo added fuel to the fire.

Lee is now left hoping San Angelo will drop one of its last two games on the road against eihter Abilene High or Odessa Permian. Lee and San Angelo tied for the first half title, but San Angelo still has a game edge on Lee in the second half. The Rebels need Abilene High or Midland High to win or tie for the second half crown to force the district playoff. San Angelo can still gain the playoff by winning their last two district games.

However, all of the possibilities of 5-5A race did little to hamper the efforts of the Rebels against the Steers Monday. Coach Shirley Stephenson's squad was blessed with a big early lead, which made it possible for the bench to see plenty of action. Fifteen Rebels got into action and 11 of them came away with points.

"It's always nice when you get to play a lot of people. That's what it is all about. All the girls have worked very hard this year," Stephenson said. "We got out to that big lead, but we didn't shoot very well in the third quarter and the game got pretty close. We had our shots in the third quarter, but they just didn't fall. Big Spring is not a bad team, so I thought we played very well over the stretch."

Shun Harris led the Rebel scoring attack with 14 points while Yshun King and Maudie Akins each had 10 points. Those were the only Rebs in double figures, but seven others scored points as Lee nailed down their 20th victory of the season against only nine losses. Lee is now 3-2 in the second half. Big Spring fell to 12-17 and 1-4.

Shell Rutledge and Shirley Dixon led the Steers with 11 points each while Elise Wheat added 10.

However, it was Lee's incredible first quarter that turned the tide away from Big Spring. Lee jumped to a 24-7 first quarter lead by hitting nine of 18 shots from the field and six of 10 from the charity line. The Steers made only one of 13 shots in the first period and five of nine from the free throw stripe. It was a defecit the Steers could never overcome and Lee never trailed in the game.

To Big Spring's credit, the Steers never folded. They trimmed the margin to 40-29 at the half and pulled to within 40-33 early in the third period. However, Lee went on another scoring binge and was up by 19 early in the fourth period before the reserves came in force.

Harris scored eight of her 14 points in the first period to set the Rebs rolling and Akins five of her 10. Rozena McCabe ignited the Lee spurt in the third period with five of her seven points. Suzanne McGaha hit an evenly distributed eight points and sophomore Felecia Farias came off the bench for six points. Big Spring's Dixon had a hot hand in the second period with eight of her 11 points, but she hit only two points in the second half as the Rebels adjusted.

Lee now travels to Odessa Permian Thursday in a night that will decide if the Rebels still have title hopes. Abilene High plays San Angelo Thursday also.

Big Spring took victories in both the sophomore and junior varsity games. The Steers won a 49-48 decision in the JV contest when Lee's buzzer shot fell short. Teresa Smith led Big Spring with 20 points while Paula Spears had 18. Stacy Harman led Lee with 11. Big Spring won the sophomore contest, 44-29, as Allen hit for 15, Clemons 13 and Correa 10. Eilena Duran led Lee with eight.

Pack, Rebs are key features in 5-5A's 'As the Mess Turns'

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

As we last left our beloved nighttime soap, known as "As the Mess Turns", we were appalled to learn that our local heroes were suffering through two District 5-5A basketball losses to last second killers that shatter souls, but in tonight's continuing saga, we will learn how the locals will cope with another set of disasters.

In Saturday's last episode, Midland Lee saw Alvin Dunson's 30-foot shot at the buzzer rim out for a 50-49 loss to Abilene Cooper while 6-6 center Kenneth Brown was on a football visit to Oklahoma State. And then the Rebels, when last seen, were sitting on a broken down bus between here and Abilene.

Meanwhile, the Midland High Bulldogs were suffering their eighth loss of the year when Abilene High's 5-10 Brett Enzor made a shot over 6-5 Preston Robertson at the buzzer, handing Midland High a 62-61 loss, their sixth loss of the season in the last five seconds of the game. In all TV soap history, never was there a stunt performed on the scale of Enzor's last shot — hanging in midair, not facing square to the basket, yet putting the shot up and in under the arms of a beleaguered Robertson, who had a 31-point performance negated.

AND WHEN our story continues tonight in prime time at 8 p.m., we hope the following questions will be answered. Does Midland High play to lose against San Angelo at Chaparral Center in a effort to stall Abilene High's quest for a second half title? Can Lee comeback against Big Spring, a team that has beaten both Abilene High and San Angelo this year, on foreign hardwood? And do the Rebels have a bus that can make the two-way trip of 80 miles? Can Abilene High stand success by defeating Odessa High, a team that beat AHS in the first half? Which team — Abilene Cooper or Odessa Permian — will stay in the second half chase?

Whatever the answers, fans of "As the Mess Turns" are advised to keep hankies close by as our tearful story mounts to a nearing climax.

In a nutshell, that is the scene around District 5-5A basketball and it looks like CBS made a mistake making the "White Shadow" series. That show never produced a drama like what is happening in our own backyard.

Midland High's last shot loss to Abilene High Saturday brought up the question if MHS is now in the position to play to lose tonight against second half leader San Angelo (3-0) in order to win. You see, Midland High, 1-2 in the second half, can not afford to let Abilene High (2-1) win the second half title outright. Lee, also 1-2 in the second half, is in the same boat, but they don't have San Angelo to play again. San Angelo is 3-0 and if the Bobcats win the second half outright, MHS, Lee and AHS are all still alive because they shared the first half title and a district playoff would be forced.

MHS COACH Jack Stepehenson, however, says his Bulldogs are not ready to play to lose. "At some point in time for some team, playing to lose is a possibility, but not for us at this point," Stephenson said. "The way things have been going in this league this year, we still feel like we are in the second half race. And for us to keep in that race, we have to beat San Angelo. We still think that is to our advantage. San Angelo still has Abilene High and Lee to play. And Lee still plays Abilene High. Also you can't count out Cooper and Permian. But right now, we're playing to win our remaining four games.

"We've lost eight games this year by a total of 19 points, and six of those losses have come in the last five seconds of play. I'll bet there is not another team in the state that has had those kinds of breaks. Maybe we're due some breaks to go our way late in the season."

And Lee coach Paul Stueckler can't help but think that Mother Nature played a dirty trick against his Rebels this week.

"If we had played Friday night against Cooper, we would have had Kenneth Brown with us. He's averaging 15 rebounds a game, 17 in district and has had 53 rebounds in his last three games," Stueckler stated. "Maybe if Kenneth played Saturday, he would have had a bad game, but you would think that he is worth at least two points."

BROWN, WHO is being recruited in football, had planned a football visit to Oklahoma State over the weekend. This was his last chance for a visit since the signing date is Wednesday. If ice and snow had not hit Friday, Brown could have been in the lineup. Stueckler had made arrangements for Brown to leave on Saturday before the game was pushed back from Friday to Saturday.

"We kept putting off Kenneth's trip, and it would have worked out fine if the weather had been nice Friday," Stueckler said. "Still, we nearly won the thing. Dunson's shot at the buzzer from around 30-feet just rimmed out."

To complete a miserable night for the Rebels, their bus broke down on the way home and they didn't get back to Midland until 5 a.m. Sunday. "It wouldn't have been that bad if we had won the game, but we didn't. I got in bed at 6:30 Sunday morning by the time I had gotten all the kids home. We think it was a clogged fuel filter, but we don't know for sure since we had to come home in another bus."

And Stueckler doesn't think Big Spring is a break in the schedule either. "I saw them play Permian Friday, and they led the whole way until the end. They've also beaten Abilene High and San Angelo this year, so that doesn't sound like a break to me."

And Stephenson summed things up for both coaches, "I just haven't seen anything this wild in my coaching career. It is a real mess."

MHS knocks Angelo out of first place

SAN ANGELO — The Midland High girls basketball team continues to be a thorn in the side of the San Angelo Bobcats this year as the Bulldogs defeated San Angelo here Monday by a narrow 50-49 count.

San Angelo has lost only two district games this season and both have been at the hands of MHS. But this upset proved even more costly for the Bobcats than the other since Midland High is now back in the second half race with a 4-1 reading. Another slip by San Angelo, also 4-1, would also vault Midland Lee back into the picture.

The Bulldogs, however, still need another loss by San Angelo to keep title dreams alive along with a loss by Abilene High, who took over the second half lead Monday with a 54-47 win over Odessa High. The Lee Rebels need only worry about San Angelo, the Rebs can get into a district playoff by Abilene High winning the second half title outright.

Janice Littlefield, who had 10 points, and Missy Larremore, the game's star with 19, sealed the Bulldog victory Monday. Littlefield gave MHS a 48-47 lead with 32 seconds left and Larremore got two more free throws 15 seconds later to nail down the win. San Angelo's Lisa Champlin made it 50-49 with four seconds remaining, but the victory was wrapped up by that time.

San Angelo led at one stage, 24-17, before the half, but MHS charged back to take a 27-26 lead at the half as Littlefield hit a 20-footer with 20 seconds left. Larremore, however, was the big difference. She entered the game with a 5.5 points per game average, but came out of the game with the biggest point total of her career in a single game. Missy hit seven of eight free throws and six field goals in the victory.

San Angelo won the JV outing by a 68-38 margin.

Midland High hosts Odessa High Thursday in the MHS gym and ends regular season play against Abilene Cooper next Monday.

In the only other 5-5A game played Monday, Odessa Permian defeated Abilene Cooper, 63-57.

Chisox win two, lose one

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox struck out in their salary arbitration duel with pitcher Steve Trout, but two other Sox players lost their cases.

Trout, a left-hander who compiled an 8-7 record in last year's strike-shortened season, was awarded the salary he had sought from the Sox — about $235,000 — in arbitration hearings Monday. The American League club reportedly had offered him $175,000.

But shortstop Bill Almon and reserve outfielder Bob Molinaro each lost in their arbitration sessions.

Almon, a non-roster tryout in 1981 spring training who subsequently won the shortstop job and hit .301, reportedly was awarded about $205,000 instead of the approximate $325,000 he sought.

Molinaro, who hit .262 in a pinch-hitting role last year, was given the club's offer of $120,000 instead of the $165,000 he is said to have pursued.

Originally, nine players had indicated they would go the arbitration route to settle salary disputes, a Sox spokesman said. But pitchers Ross Baumgarten and Richard Dotson agreed to terms last week.

The cases of pitcher Dennis Lamp, infielders Greg Pryor and Tony Bernazard and outfielder Wayne Nordhagen were still to be decided.

Trout's case was only the second the White Sox have lost, the first one being reliever Ed Farmer, who recently signed with the Philadelphia Phillies after becoming a free agent.

Trout's and Molinaro's cases were decided by Stephen Goldberg. Arbitrator Richard Mittenthal rendered a decision in Almon's case.

College wars take wild turn

By The Associated Press

Colgate was playing for a tie. Mississippi Valley State was playing for anything but.

Colgate, playing a slowdown game against Northeastern Monday night, fell behind 36-34 when forward Mark Halsel scored on a 10-foot jump shot with 4:05 to play. The Red Raiders held the ball for the next four minutes, hoping for a last-gasp basket that would force an overtime. But one shot missed, the next was blocked at the buzzer and the Huskies' two-point edge held up.

Mississippi Valley State managed one overtime against Southern University. And another ... and another ... and another ... and another ... and another. It wasn't until senior center Bryant Johnson, the Delta Devils' scoring leader with 29 points, sank three free throws in that sixth extra period that Mississippi Valley trudged off the court with a 73-72 victory.

It matched two 1950s games as the second-longest in National Collegiate Athletic Assocation Division I history. Last Dec. 21, Cincinnati needed a record seven overtimes to defeat Bradley 75-73.

"We were looking to send the game into overtime," Colgate Coach Mike Griffin said after his strategy failed and the Red Raiders dropped to 7-14. "Northeastern is a very strong team ... We were not going to run with them. We were going to work for the kind of shots we could make."

Griffin's last-shot strategy succeeded last Jan.26 when Colgate, trailing Princeton by a point, held the ball ... and held it ... and held it ... before Eric Jones' jumper with seven seconds to play beat the Tigers 25-24.

This time, though, Paul Hoogenboom, the game's high scorer with 15 points, missed a shot with four seconds left. And when teammate Kevin Halloran grabbed the rebound, Northeastern's Dave Leitao blocked his shot at the buzzer. Halsel shared scoring honors for the winners, 21-5, with 10 points.

Mississippi Valley State led 40-24 at halftime, but Southern rallied a 60-60 tie after regulation play. Neither team scored in the first five-minute extra period, they managed to remain deadlocked through the next three — and neither scored in the fifth overtime, either.

With 3:10 gone in the sixth, one Johnson free throw put MVS ahead 71-70. Anthony Bryant's 12-foot jumper gave Southern a 72-71 lead before Johnson hit his decisive foul shots.

Overtime hasn't been the friendliest of places for South Alabama this season. Dan McLaughlin's 15 points led Jacksonville past the Jaguars 75-72 — the fourth time this season they've been beaten in overtime.

The Top Twenty

Oregon State, ranked sixth, moved into a first-place tie with Washington in the Pacific 10 Conference as the Beavers rode Lester Conner's 20 points to a 57-50 victory over California. OSU is 10-1 in the Pac-10 and 17-3 overall.

Oregon State held a 32-20 halftime lead, but Cal's Mark McNamara, who had 23 points and 17 rebounds, led a charge as the Golden Bears closed within four points with 2:46 to play.

No. 14 Memphis State grabbed the lead at the start, widened it to as many as 16 points in the closing minutes and held off persistent Ball State 75-64.

Keith Lee has 24 points, 18 rebounds and three steals for the winners, 16-3. Ray McCallum led Ball State with 23 points.

Georgetown, No. 20, trailed 39-34 before catching fire. The Hoyas, 19-5, stayed hot after the intermission, taking a 71-51 lead en route to their 96-79 pounding of Syracuse.

Eric Floyd and Pat Ewing combined for 23 of Georgetown's 49 points in that stretch, when the winners outscored the Orangemen 37-12. Floid finished with 27 points and Ewing added a career-high 22 plus 13 rebounds.

Unranked Teams

Marshall lost an early 19-point lead and had to rally to beat East Tennessee State 98-96 in the Southern Conference on LaVerne Evans' 7-foot jumper with 1:10 remaining.

Junior guard Anthony Hicks' 26 points led Xavier University, the Midwestern City Conference's defending champion, to its first conference victory this season, 72-53 over Butler. Xavier is 1-7 in the MCC and 6-15 overall.

Guards Brian Kellybrew and Terry Long had 14 points apiece as Lamar University beat Louisiana Tech to record its 53rd consecutive home victory. And Sedale Threatt scored 40 points as West Virginia Tech rolled to its 22nd consecutive home-court victory, 111-93 over Bluefield State.

Virginia Cavaliers vault to No. 1 spot

By The Associated Press

Virginia Coach Terry Holland, his team now No. 1 team in The Associated Press weekly college basketball poll, believes there is virtually nothing separating his Cavaliers, or other teams in the top five, from a lot of other teams.

"I think you've got right now in this country probably 15 or 20 teams playing well enough to win a national championship. There may even be some others out there that are playing that well that we just haven't heard about right now," Holland said Monday.

A 74-58 victory last Wednesday night over second-ranked North Carolina, coupled with then-No. 1 Missouri's 67-51 defeat Saturday night by Nebraska, vaulted the 22-1 Cavaliers from third to first. Virginia received 57 of the 60 first-place votes from a panel sports writers and sportscasters.

Virginia received 1,197 of a possible 1,200 votes. North Carolina, 18-2, held the No. 2 spot with 1,090 votes, just eight more than DePaul, 20-1, which got two first-place votes.

The other first-place vote went to Missouri, 19-1, which got 1,004 points to 990 for Iowa, 17-2, which remained in the fifth spot.

Others in the top 10 were Oregon State, 17-3; Tulsa, 16-3; Arkansas, 17-3; Minnesota, 15-4; and Alabama, 17-3. Both Oregon State and Tulsa moved up four spots from last week, while Arkansas gained six spots. Minnesota fell from sixth and Alabama from eighth.

"I think it's flattering, but ... this is not the end of the season, and the end of the season is when you would like to be the No. 1 team in the country," Holland said.

Virginia moved to the No. 1 spot for a while last season, winning its first 23 games and running a two-year winning streak to 28 before bowing to Notre Dame 57-56. The Cavaliers wound up 29-4 and finished third in the NCAA tournament.

Holland conceded he would vote Virginia No. 1 if he had a vote.

"I think I probably would right now because we have played a tough schedule and we've played well against that schedule. Certainly that could change within the next week, so I think you'll see teams bouncing around all through the spots for the rest of the season," Holland said.

As for Virginia, he said "I think our team is playing well. I do think we're a young team, and I do think that we can play better than we're playing. Of course, that's also true of the people that we play against. They're capable of playing much better."

Holland sees nothing negative about being ranked No. 1.

"I just don't think there's that much difference between being 3 or 4 like we were last week and being ranked No. 1.

"I know every opponent we play from here on out will be ranked below us, unless of course, our bracket changes very drastically in the next few weeks, which means all those opponents will have a psychological edge in terms of knocking off Virginia and having a chance to make a name nationally."

Making up the second 10 were West Virginia, Kentucky, Idaho, Memphis State, Kansas State, Wake Forest, San Francisco, Fresno State, Washington and Georgetown. San Francisco fell from seventh last week and Texas and Tennessee dropped out of the Top 20. The newcomers were Washington, for the first time, and Georgetown.

Last week's second 10 consisted of Tulsa, Texas, Wake Forest, Arkansas, Idaho, Tennessee, Fresno State, West Virginia, Kansas State and Memphis State. The last two tied for the 19th spot.

Pastore loses pay battle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Pastore lost his wage dispute with the Cincinnati Reds when an arbitrator ruled that the baseball team's offer of $95,000 would be the pitcher's salary this year.

Arbitrator Richard Mittenthal ruled in the dispute Monday.

Pastore's agent, David Sloane, had said last week that Pastore would win his demand for $175,000 and that he planned to enjoy spending the Reds' money.

Maruk fights Star jitters

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Dennis Maruk will be playing in his second National Hockey League All-Star contest tonight, but the previous experience hasn't alleviated his pregame jitters one bit.

"I was nervous when I was chosen in 1978, and I feel the same way now," Maruk said prior to the game in Capital Centre, "and playing before the home fans will make it worse. I lot of the fans here have heard my name or have seen me play."

Indeed, Maruk has become well known throughout the league the past two seasons while performing for a Washington Capitals' team that seems destined to miss the postseason playoffs for an eighth consecutive season.

The 5-foot-8 center scored 50 goals in 1980-81, and is currently ranked third with 41 after turning in his 11th career three-goal hat trick at home Sunday night against Quebec.

Maruk won't be the most imposing or most publicized center on the ice, but he'll have the solid backing of the Capitals' fans among an expected 18,130 sellout in an arena that his been filled only once this season.

MARUK WILL be playing for the Wales Conference, which won the first five All-Star games under the format adopted for the 1974-75 season before the Campbell Conference prevailed 4-1 last year. No game was held in 1979 because of the Challenge Series with the Soviet Union.

In terms of fame, if not in crowd backing, center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers figures to be the most prominent player on the ice. Fans will want to see if the scoring whiz can continue his magic against the best performers in the game.

Gretzky, well on his way to a record-breaking 100-goal and 200-point season, is one of four Edmonton youngsters on a Campbell squad that includes 13 of the 20 first-time All-Stars and the game's only two rookies — goalie Grant Fuhr of the Minnesota North Stars and center Dale Hawerchuk of the Winnipeg Jets.

Fuhr, at 19, will be the youngest goalie ever to play in an All-Star game and he'll be backed by Minnesota's Gilles Meloche, at 31 the oldest All-Star this year. Hawerchuk, 18, is the youngest on either squad.

The goalies for the Wales Conference will be Michel Dion of the Pittsburgh Penguins and Don Edwards of the Buffalo Sabres.

Minnesota, last season's Stanley Cup runnersup, joined Edmonton as the only teams with four All-Stars. The Stanley Cup champion New York Islanders, the Montreal Canadiens and the Chicago Black Hawks had three apiece.

MEMBERS OF the Professional Hockey Writers' Association picked the starting players of both teams, with coaches Al Arbour of the Islanders and Glen Sonmor of the North Stars naming the remainder of the 20-man squads that must include at least one player from each of the 21 NHL teams.

Arbour coached the Campbells to their first All-Star victory last year but under a realignment of the conferences, he will direct the Wales this time.

The realignment also means that Detroit left wing John Ogrodnick, who scored the only Wales' goal last year, and left wing Bill Barber of Philadelphia, the lone 1981 Campbells' goal-scorer returning, have switched conference teams.

That shouldn't bother the pros, for whom the game is the thing.

"Playing with the players you always play against, and getting to know them better, is a thrill," said Maruk. "But the competition is always there. I don't like to go through the motions anytime I go out on the

TAX TIPS

Gain on sale of residence may be tax free

This is the ninth in a series of tax tip articles sponsored as a public service by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. My wife and I are 60 years of age. All of our children are grown and gone and we are considering selling the house that we have lived in for the past 20 years. Our real estate agent said that it is worth $150,000 and I do not want to sell it and pay tax on this gain. Is there a way I can avoid this tax?

A. For taxpayers at least 55 years of age (in the case of a married couple filing jointly at least one of the spouses must be 55 years of age), a portion of the gain on the sale of a personal residence may be tax-free. There are two principal requirements for this tax-free gain:

1. Taxpayers are entitled to a once in a lifetime exclusion of the gain on the sale of a personal residence. The property must have been actually used as their residence for a total of three years during the five-year period ending on the date of its sale.

2. If the sale took place on or before July 20, 1981, the maximum gain that may be excluded is $100,000 ($50,000 each for married individuals filing separate returns). For sales taking place after July 20, 1981, the excluded gain is $125,000 ($62,500 for married individuals filing separate returns).

Q. My company transferred me to the Dallas/Fort Worth area this year from California. When I sold my house in California, I made a $50,000 profit. Is this $50,000 profit taxable?

A. The Internal Revenue Code permits, under certain circumstances, the gain on the sale of a personal residence to be postponed, perhaps indefinitely. This postponement — or deferral, as it is called — works this way: John Doe buys a house in California for $60,000, lives in it for five years and sells it for $110,000 upon his transfer to Dallas/Fort Worth by his employer/company. If he spends $110,000 or more on his new residence, the $50,000 gain will not be taxable this year. The gain is used to reduce the tax basis on the new residence. This means that John Doe, when he sells his newly-acquired residence for more than $60,000, may then be required to pay tax on any gain unless he reinvests the proceeds in another new residence. The only restriction on John in these situations is that he cannot defer the gain on more than one house per year.

For more information on this and other tax questions, attend the "You and Your Income Tax" class sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants. The class, scheduled for Thursday from 6:30 to 10 p.m., is presented as a public service.

Classes will be held at Midland College in the Allison Fine Arts Building. A $2 per person fee will be charged. Participants are encouraged to pre-register, although walk-ins will be accepted.

Jazz pianist has stroke

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Jazz pianist Thelonious Sphere Monk was reported in critical condition in a coma early today after suffering a stroke, officials said.

Monk, 61, considered one of the most important figures in modern jazz, was rushed to Englewood Hospital Friday night, said a nursing supervisor, who declined to give her name.

"His condition is unchanged, and he is in intensive care," the supervisor said.

Monk had been in retirement, having last played publicly in 1978, according to James Browne, a disc jockey at WBGO-FM, a National Public Radio station in Newark.

Monk's health had been failing in recent years, Browne added.

Monk, a composer and arranger, was born in Rocky Mount, N.C.

Daniels went down to Nashville to steal show in state legislature

Daniels

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer and fiddle player Charlie Daniels, given a standing ovation by the Tennessee Senate and House, broke into tears when he was honored with a legislative resolution.

"I think that tonight for just about the first time in my life that I've got caught without anything to say," Daniels said Monday, his voice breaking. "This is the finest honor in my life."

A lawmaker from the rear of the chamber yelled: "Sing it, fella."

The resolution called Daniels "a shining inspiration to the citizens of this state and nation."

"I never thought that some of these people that love Tennessee as much as I do would present me such an honor," Daniels said. "I've got to say that it's good to be in Tennessee."

Daniels recently received another state honor when Gov. Lamar Alexander proclaimed Charlie Daniels Day.

Daniel, whose hits include "In America," and "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," wore his outsized cowboy hat in the House chamber and was accompanied by his wife, Hazel.

Swit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "M-A-S-H" star Loretta Swit and five other Hollywood actors made a plea to state lawmakers to help lost pets that end up as part of painful research experiments.

The stars spoke Monday in support of a bill which would prevent pounds from giving stray animals to research laboratories.

"The heartbreak of losing a pet should not be compounded by the fear that it remains alive suffering somewhere in a laboratory experiment," Ms. Swit said.

Gretchen Wyler and Steve Kanaly of "Dallas," Betty White of the "Mary Tyler Moore Show," Earl Holliman of "Policewoman," and actress Gloria DeHaven also spoke at the Statehouse.

Ms. Wyler and Ms. White said pound animals are attractive to labs because they can cost more than $100 less than an animal raised for research, but Kanaly said there are "hidden costs" involved in using strays.

Holliman, president of a group called Actors and Others for Animals, said allowing pounds to sell or give animals to laboratories "undermines public confidence in the (animal) shelter system."

NEW YORK (AP) — A year-long celebration of the 100th anniversary of home telephone service was kicked off by actor Don Ameche, star of the 1939 movie "Alexander Graham Bell."

New York Telephone Co. said that in 1882, the first Western Electric magneto wall phones were installed in Connecticut.

Ameche said home service "changed the face of the world."

The 73-year-old actor told a gathering at New York Telephone headquarters that "because of the telephone the whole world is a tiny place. It use to take weeks to get word to Europe. Now it takes seconds."

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig, accustomed to tense diplomatic meetings with heads of states, had a confrontation of a gentler sort when he played tennis with former Wimbledon champion Manuel Santana of Spain.

Officials said the doubles match Monday pitted Haig and Santana against Brazilian tennis player Edison Mandarino and John Bligh, commercial attache of the U.S. Embassy in Madrid.

Officials declined to give the final score of the match, played at the Real Madrid Soccer Club.

Haig was in Madrid to attend the European Security Conference.

Striking nurses vote to return to work

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Striking nurses from Ashtabula General Hospital, feeling "exhausted, mentally and physically" from the nation's longest nurses' strike, have voted to return to work.

"I really and truly believe what we did was the right thing," said Mary Runyan, president of the Ashtabula General Nurses Association. But she added, "We didn't get everything we wanted."

The 570-day strike, which began July 21, 1980, ended Monday night when the 96 nurses remaining off the job approved a hospital offer to return them to the positions they worked before the walkout.

Exact results of the secret-ballot vote were not disclosed.

The nurses had rejected the same offer in a vote Jan. 4, claiming the proposed contract did not provide for union security.

The two sides met once after the January vote, but no new proposals were made.

"We agreed when we had the last vote that we would go back to the bargaining table. We did that, and there was nothing there," Mrs. Runyan said. "We have definitely come to the feeling that we all need to go back and try to make it work."

Nurse Dave Cunningham said the experience of such a long strike was indescribable.

"After something like this, no matter what happens, everybody knows that he has sisters and brothers that will never let him down," he said. "How many people have you talked to that have been on strike for 18½ months? This should be done all over the country. The problems that we struck over are the problems of nurses nationally."

Hospital Administrator Floyd Farley said he was not surprised by the outcome of Monday's vote.

"I think we all expected it would be settled ... because they got together on their own this time," he said.

But some bitterness lingers, union leaders said.

"There is a whole new sense of apprehension. These are the same administrators and trustees that were there when the strike started," Mrs. Runyan said. "Nobody is fooling themselves.

"We're all exhausted, mentally and physically," she added.

The strikers will return to work in groups of about 25 beginning Feb. 22. They will be reoriented to hospital procedure before returning to their former positions.

Nurses now working in those jobs will stay on, letting attrition work the staff back to manageable size, hospital officials said.

The nurses, who organized into a 171-member bargaining unit in the spring of 1980, fought to win their first contract with the 234-bed private hospital in Ashtabula, a northeastern Ohio city of 23,000.

The strike closed the hospital for six weeks in July and August of 1980.

Thousands of vets expected to make trips to hospitals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is gearing up for hundreds of thousands of hospital visits by veterans who believe radiation in post-World War II atom bomb tests or the use of the herbicide Agent Orange in Vietnam imperiled their health.

Medical statisticians for the Veterans Administration estimate a new law requiring the VA to treat veterans for ailments they attribute to radiation or Agent Orange could lead to 612,000 hospital visits and 17,000 hospitalizations.

Estimates of the impact of the new law, which requires the VA to offer treatment even though the agency may not concede that exposure to either radiation or Agent Orange damaged the health of servicemen, appears in President Reagan's new budget for fiscal 1983, starting Oct. 1. The law was enacted last November.

Under guidelines drafted to implement the law, the VA must offer treatment and examinations unless its doctors establish that the condition complained of co uld not have been caused by exposure. Conditions such as tuberculosis or appendicitis are ruled out.

For three years, the VA has given examinations to Vietnam-era veterans who seek physicals out of fear their health was damaged by herbicides. Some 70,000 have been examined.

But the VA position was that neither atomic radiation nor Agent Orange caused health damage other than a possible skin condition attributed to herbicides.

So veterans were not given medical treatment or disability payments because they could not show that their ailments resulted from something that happened to them in the service.

Julius Morrison, a VA spokesman, said the estimates of 612,000 visits and 17 ,000 hospital admissions may turn out to be high.

Organizations representing Vietnam veterans say many of the 2.4 million Americans who served in Southeast Asia during the war may have been exposed to Agent Orange.

The National Association of Atomic Veterans estimates that 250,000 veterans were exposed to radiation during 235 nuclear explosions between 1945 and 1963.

On Sunday, Van R. Brandon of Sacramento, Calif., said that while an Army medic in the 1950s he falsified records of the degree of exposure to radiation by soldiers who witnessed atomic tests.

Merritt named controller for MMH

Bill Merritt has been named controller for Midland Memorial Hospital.

Previously, he was controller/assistant administrator for El Paso's Southwestern General Hospital, a division of Lifemark Corporation.

His responsibilities at Southwestern involved staffing all fiscal departments, training personnel and implementing established accounting policies. He also reviewed all leases and contracts entered into by the hospital and provided statistical and financial information for reports and financial statements.

Prior to his move to El Paso, Merritt served as a reimbursement consultant for Lifemark Corporation in Houston. His responsibilities included the filing of cost reports and reviewing Lifemark hospital's general ledger entries to all third party related accounts.

Merritt attended the Lawrence Institute of Technology in 1969 and transferred to the Detroit College of Business where he received a B.S. in Accounting in 1976.

His wife and two children will be joining him in Midland within the next few months.

MMH hires director of volunteers

Kim Modisett has joined the staff of Midland Memorial Hospital as director of volunteers.

Mrs. Modisett had been employed with the Human Relations Council where she served as executive director since 1979.

Through her work at the council she was responsible for Midland Awareness and Christmas in April. She worked extensively with volunteers in fund raising projects and community action activities, SPARK and TIP.

These two programs involved bringing community volunteers into the public schools to make special presentations on health and good grooming, employment opportunities and a variety of special events unique to the Permian Basin.

From 1976 to 1978 she served as public relations director for St. John's Hospital in San Angelo, where she was also coordinator of "Sunrays," the hospital's junior volunteers. Her duties included producing the hospital's publication and coordinating the information to the media.

A native of Cisco, Mrs. Modisett graduated cum laude from Angelo State University in 1976 with a B.A. in journalism and management. She resides in Midland with her husband, Bill.

President of CBS News announces he'll 'step down,' become consultant

NEW YORK (AP) — William A. Leonard, whose term as president of CBS News included Walter Cronkite's retirement as "Evening News" anchorman and the introduction of network TV's first Sunday morning news show, will leave the post March 1, the network has announced.

Leonard, who would have been required to step down June 1, will continue past his scheduled retirement as a "long-term consultant" for the network in Washington, CBS said Monday.

Van Gordon Sauter, who has been deputy president of CBS News since November, will succeed Leonard.

"This seems about the right time for me to turn over the reins officially," Leonard said in a statement. "Van Sauter and his new team are firmly in place, and doing well."

There had been indications Leonard was unhappy with the long transition period between Sauter's appointment and his own retirement, so the announcement from CBS was not unexpected.

Leonard said in a telephone interview, however, "I haven't had the slightest difficulty in working with Van Sauter and his people, nor, I think, they with me."

Leonard succeeded Richard S. Salant as president of the news division in April 1979. Salant was forced to retire at the age of 65, but when Leonard reached that milestone last year, the network waived its mandatory retirement rule.

FCC votes not to use lottery system to award disputed broadcast licenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — A law giving the Federal Communications Commission authority to award broadcast licenses in some cases on the basis of a lottery is so flawed it is unworkable, the agency says.

The FCC decision not to use the lottery system to grant licenses when two or more stations want to use the same frequency came Monday in a 5-1 vote.

The commission also refused to draw up draft lottery rules, even though some House members involved in passing the law last summer contended it must do so whether or not it elects to use the lottery system.

"It's up to them to carry out the law as written by Congress; they are not independent actors," said Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, chairman of the House communications subcommittee. "I think Congress will be extremely interested in having the FCC comply with the law as written," said the Colorado Democrat.

"In view of the fact that the Senate initiated this, we are certainly disappointed the FCC has not been able to implement it," added Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee. "But we do want to a look at why they reached this decision and see what we can do."

Tennis class offered

The Parks and Recreation Department is offering a women's beginning tennis class, which will start March 8 and continue for five weeks.

Father's suspicions may be related to his hearing loss

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it usual for people to become more suspicious as they grow older? This seems to be the case with my father, who is 75. He never used to be a suspicious person, but now he oftens says that people are talking about him. Except for a slight hearing loss, he is in good health. Do you have any suggestions? — Keith, Columbia, Mo.

Dear Keith: The answer to your father's suspiciousness may be contained in your question; that is, it may be related to his hearing impairment. Dr. Philip G. Zimbardo, of Stanford University, reports that paranoia sometimes goes together with hearing loss in elderly persons.

You do not indicate whether your father's hearing impairment has been evaluated. I suggest he be seen by someone experienced in geriatric medicine. The hearing impairment may be subject to correction. Further recommendations will have to come out of that initial assessment.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter had a spontaneous abortion with her first pregnancy. Now she is pregnant again. What are the chances of another spontaneous abortion? Is it more likely because she already had one? — Mrs. C.P., Duluth, Minn.

Dear Mrs. P.: A first spontaneous abortion is usually not very significant since they occur rather often. However, additional spontaneous abortions increase the chances that the next pregnancy will also terminate in an abortion.

Dr. Alfred Poindexter, of the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, says that after one spontaneous abortion, there's a 24 percent chance of another in the next pregnancy. This increases to 55 percent for a third pregnancy, and to 60 percent for fourth. However, three-fourths of women who have had three spontaneous abortions will eventually be able to have a successful pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If a woman has genital herpes, does that mean she'll get cancer of the cervix? — Millie, Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Millie: There is no direct association between genital herpes and cervical cancer. However, genital herpes may be indirectly linked to cancer of the cervix by combining with some other factor not yet identified.

A high-risk patient — for example, someone with many sexual partners or a history of venereal disease — should be monitored frequently so that any pathological condition can be detected and treated at any early stage.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have to have a hysterectomy, and I know it can't be avoided. But I would like to have as small a scar as possible. Would a better surgeon leave a smaller scar? — Tina, Madison, Wis.

Dear Tina: I would not suggest you rate a surgeon on the length of the scar he leaves. In fact, one of the biggst mistakes a surgeon can make when performing a hysterectomy is to make the incision too small.

Cosmetic appearance is important, but a successful outcome for an operation is even more important.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

This series of photographs brought out of Poland by a reporter shows a Dec. 16 confrontation between Polish government troops and miners at the Wujek coal mine in Katowice, Poland, following the martial law government's outlawing of strikes by Solidarity members. Upper left, workers place a wounded coworker on a stretcher. Left, another worker is carried from the scene. The photo above shows members of the military gathered at the perimeter of the mine. At least seven miners were killed in the fighting.

Philadelphia Daily News reporter Ursula Obst carried the photographs out of the Poland in the lining of a coat.

Haig decries crackdown to conference members

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

MADRID (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. accused the Soviet Union and the Polish military government today of "a willful violation of solemn international accords" because of the martial law crackdown in Poland.

In a blistering attack on the two countries, Haig objected to talking in Madrid about improved relations between East and West when past agreements have been violated.

"We cannot pretend to build up the structure of peace and security here in Madrid while the foundation for that structure is being undermined in Poland," he told the 35-nation European Security Conference.

"We would be threatening the future peace of Europe if we ignored this dramatic attack on international principles," Haig declared.

Both the Soviet and Polish delegations were in the audience as Haig spoke.

Haig said a "forcible suppression" of freedom and self-determination is under way in Poland, where martial law was declared Dec. 13 and the independent union Solidarity suspended.

"The generals of this war against the Polish people are none other than the Polish regime itself, acting under the instigation and coercion of the Soviet Union," he declared.

Haig accused the Soviets of seven specific violations of the 1975 Helsinki accords, which committed the 35 nations meeting here to respect human rights and national sovereignty in Europe.

The meeting here is a follow-up session to the Helsinki accords and members have been at work on a new pact aimed at easing East-West tensions in Europe.

But referring to events in Poland, Haig said, "Nothing endangers security and cooperation in Europe more than the threat and the use of force to deny internationally recognized rights."

Before Haig delivered his address, there was last-minute jockeying to avoid blocking tactics by the Polish chairman of the conference, who said he did not want the meeting to discuss the situation in his homeland.

West Germany's foreign minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, said, meanwhile, that the allies had put off a decision on how long to allow the conference to continue.

The U.S. delegation had proposed initially that the session be recessed at the end of the week to protest events in Poland. But West Germany and Britain favor continuing the meeting, which they believe is an important forum for East and West to discuss their differences.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said that raising the Polish question at the Madrid conference was like setting a mine under the negotiating table.

"It does not matter how the (Western) organizers of such provocative sorties cover themselves by noisy propaganda. The people easily see how they are trying, in spite of reason, to set a mine under the table of the Madrid meeting and turn it into an instrument of interference into the internal affairs of other states," Pravda said.

Poles look to socialists for help to offset sanctions

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's martial-law boss says he is counting on the other Communist countries and Western Europe for raw materials, industrial supplies and employment to offset American sanctions.

"We are counting on further aid from the socialist countries to help strengthen certain sections of the economy," Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski told a conference of provincial governors and mayors Monday.

"We are counting on deliveries of raw materials and industrial supplies and on being able to employ our citizens in construction in the socialist countries.

"We are also counting on a positive approach from those Third World countries sympathetic to us and from those capitalist states which have not joined in the economic blockade of Poland."

His speech was reported by Warsaw television.

Jaruzelski, who also heads the Polish Communist Party, stressed Poland must produce more in its own factories and become self-sufficient in food production.

He said the United States is trying to weaken the Soviet Union and the entire socialist community in an attempt to change the East-West balance of forces.

Jaruzelski charged that the aim of the economic sanctions imposed by President Reagan on Dec. 24 was to provoke the serious internal conflict he said Washington expected before the imposition of martial law Dec. 13.

"This had to be prevented by all forces — economic, political and moral — so as to emerge from the crisis," Jaruzelski said.

Meanwhile, the military government said bread rationing may be necessary because farmers are not delivering nearly enough grain to the government mills. The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said the 19,000 tons a day is needed to supply the government bakeries, but the farmers are only delivering 20 percent of that.

The government also indicated that when the independent labor federation Solidarity is allowed to resume operations, it would be tightly controlled to prevent political activity.

"An independent, authentic and self-governed representation of occupational and social interests...should be harmoniously connected with the primary aim of consolidation of the state and socialist democracy," the Council of Ministers said in a communique.

Western observers said the wording was tougher than that of a resolution on trade unions adopted three weeks ago by the Sejm, the Polish parliament. That measure called for free trade unions to be restored as soon as possible along the lines of the 1980 Gdansk agreements that recognized Solidarity.

Poland's 10 universities reopened to first-, second- and third-year students Monday for the first time since the crackdown two months ago, and 131,000 students reportedly returned to class. No incidents were reported in Warsaw. The situation at campuses elsewhere could not be checked due to the communications blackout imposed between cities since martial law was declared.

University seniors returned to class earlier.

Mostly empty hotels filling slowly, mainly with Poles

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The combination of winter, always a quiet tourist season in Poland, and martial law is keeping Warsaw's hotels nearly empty and hunting for money.

Some are closed. Some have become police dormitories. Some are hoping to organize art exhibits and other cultural exhibits to fill their public rooms. Some are offering rooms to flood victims.

"We wish we had more guests than we have," said an official at the Victoria, on Victory Square. "But it's not too bad."

The Victoria, considered Poland's best hotel, has some 80 guests in its 300 rooms. Five weeks ago the imposition of martial law had cut the guest list to 37, nearly all of them foreign correspondents. Now businessmen are beginning to join the journalists.

Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski closed the borders on Dec. 13 when he imposed martial law, and foreign tourists have been turned away since then. The only Arabs in Warsaw, which last summer was full of travelers from Libya and the Middle East, are students.

Many of them live in the Forum Hotel, which can accommodate 1,500 guests. Now it has 200 to 300, concentrated on its lower floors.

"We hope to have more foreign guests, beginning from April 1, because foreign tour groups will be allowed to come to Poland then," one official at the Forum said. "Individual tourists from the West will be allowed to come beginning May 1."

However, government officials said those dates are still tentative.

The newspaper Zycie Warszawy reported that several hotels — dingy, cheap and catering to Poles rather than foreign tourists — were being closed for alterations.

The Dom Chlopa, or Peasant House, is closed to the public and appears to be housing a brigade of police. Visitors to the Warszawa and Solec, the latter once a stronghold of the independent labor federation Solidarity, report police officers are occupying most of their rooms.

Some hotels are supplying meals to nearby offices or doing laundry for government institutions. Some are sending their staffs on "overdue holiday," Zycie Warszawy said.

"As not many foreign tourists are expected, Polish tourists could probably get better welcome and better treatment in Warsaw hotels," the paper added.

Despite a martial-law ban on most travel between cities, Poles seem to be getting around the country for winter vacations, at least in organized tours.

The dingy, gray Grand Hotel on Krucza Street reports it is 75 percent full, with "almost normal movement all the time," said one official. "The only exception is the lack of foreign tourists, so the hotel is losing hard currency."

An official at the Europejski reported similar occupancy but said the increasing numbers of flights from abroad meant more foreigners for it.
