Along The Waterfront

J. D. Gray, Pat Greene and Bill Bardwell, all of Rockport, returned from Falcon Lake Sunday after a two day fishing trip. They caught a large number of big crappie, a goodly number of "popcorn" black bass with a few large ones mixed in and a number of whites. All of their fish were caught trolling bomber baits.

The lake is fairly low but in excellent condition. Gray, Greene, and Bardwell fished from the Mexico side fishing out of the El Falcon Club camp in Nueva Guerrero.

Junior High Chosen For Science Project

Today the Federal government and other research organizations are providing millions of dollars for research designed to develop better science programs for and improve science teaching in the public schools. Past emphasis of these programs has been at the senior high school level. Currently emphasis is shifting to the elementary and junior high school levels based upon the assumption that improvement at one level necessitates improvement of science

No Sea-O-Rama This Year Says Fiesta Organizer

The Sea-o-rama, Rockport's annual festival, will not be held this year, according to Jimmy Kautz, who has been largely responsible for the success of the event since its organization three years ago.

Lack of workers among the people of Rockport and Fulton have placed an unduly heavy burden on those who have been active in promotion of the festival, with the result that it will not be possible to organize one this year.

"We are sincerely sorry," Kautz said, "that business has made it impossible for some of us who have worked in the planning and promotion of the festival since its beginning to do so. In the past, I have paid people to operate my store while I devoted time to the Sea-o-rama. This is no longer feasible.

"Others have devoted a great deal of time and trouble to organization of the parade and other events. They, too, are no longer able to give the time to successful organization of the Sea-o-rama demands. As a consequence, after canvassing local civic clubs and others from whom we have drawn our support in the past, it appears that we cannot hope to stage the festival this year.

"All of us who have worked with past Sea-o-ramas want to extend our thanks to the people and organizations who have helped make them successes. And we hope that at some time in the future it will be possible to revive the festival."

Report Made On Navigation Job

Clem Williams, of the engineering firm of Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam, reported to the Aransas County Navigation Commission Wednesday night that new work at Fulton, expanding the harbor and beach was 75% complete and that the Goldston Construction Co. of Corpus Christi with a month ahead of schedule on the project.

In a breakdown of the progress made on the various projects that have been undertaken by the Navigation District as part of an over-all improvement program, he said dredging was complete on the new entrance to Fulton Harbor; that the seawall in front of Fulton's beach is 95% complete; installation of necessary storm sewers is 85% complete;

Construction of a concrete groin to help control erosion of the shore is 50% complete; casting of the concrete piling to be used in protecting the entrance to Fulton Harbor is 100% and driving will probably start about April 13; while the over-all project is three-quarters finished.

This Williams said, includes the necessary back filling behind the seawall at Fulton, where a beach will be completed.

On Little Bay, Williams told the commissioners, slope protection is 75% complete, dredging of new channels and enlargement of the beach with the spoil started on March 27, and installation of a water line along the beach will start this week.

The Cove Harbor, earthwork has been completed on 820 linear feet of the waterfront and the concrete slabs that will be used in plating the earthwork have been cast.

Library-minded persons who recently attended the one-day Trustee and Friends of the Library workshop in Alice have formed a Round Table of the Texas Library Trustee Association. Mrs. G. E. (Virginia) Dickey, Rockport, representing the Aransas County Library, was named as chairman.

Other officials are: Roy B. Scruggs, a board member of the Pharr Public Library, vice chairman and Mrs. Alfredo T. Garcia, Jr., member of the Alice Public Library board who will serve as secretary.

Fifty-five librarians and 'friends of the library' attended the workshop co-sponsored by the Alice Public Library's Field Services Division for the 27-county area of Texas Library Association District IV.

FLIGHT RIDES TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Flight rides, sponsored by the Tip of Texas Chapter of the 99's, will be given Sunday, April 5, by pilots from Rockport and Corpus Christi at a penny a pound, money to go to the chapter's program of airfield marking.

This Chapter has done 325 markers since organized ten years ago—making all their own money by rummage sales, selling candy, etc., this being their third flight ride. They do all their own work, planning, selecting and obtaining permission to paint on building then laying out and painting the sign. This is done in yellow, ten foot high letters, fifteen inch stripe with a black border seven and one-half inches.

Signs are placed on the most conspicious building in town if possible and can be seen with greater safety than marking on water towers. Not every town has water towers.

Flying will be done by local pilots and pilots from Corpus Christi. Penny a pound per person, $1.00 minimum.

Refreshments will be sold by the Rockport Flying Club members.

Time: 11:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m.

Construction On Key Allegro Will Total $750,000

Construction totaling approximately $750,000 is either underway or will commence before the end of April on Key Allegro, according to Carl Krueger, Jr., head of the group of San Antonio financiers developing a subdivision on Frandolig Island.

This construction will include a new marina, a 48-unit addition to Key Allegro Isle Motel, and Phase Two expansion of Key Allegro Island Estates, already under way, and which Krueger expects to be completed within 120 days.

In this Phase Two project, Krueger says, the contractor is 10 days ahead of schedule in throwing up dykes behind which soil will pumped to raise a second portion of the island to six feet above mean high tide.

The soil for this will be dredged from three canals that will supplement two dredged a year ago. These will wind their way through the Venitian subdivision, furnishing property owners with waterfront along which they can moor their boats.

As part of the project, there will be more than a mile and a half of concrete seawells to be installed, along with streets and utilities.

Construction will begin in two weeks on a marina, to be built immediately south of the motel.

Oak Inn Thefts Are Solved Here

The burglary of Oak Inn on March 26 has been solved by Chief Deputy Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt and Deputy Sheriff T. A. Kilgore, working in collaboration with the San Antonio police department.

Two San Antonio youths, one 21, the other 17, have been arrested, and one is still in jail here, while the other is free on a $2,000 bond.

Oak Inn, on south High 35, was entered by the two men, who broke open the cigarette and bowling machines and the juke box, removing approximately $47 in change, Hunt said.

They were charged with burglary.

Hunt said polygraph tests were made of the two men, Larry Linder, 21, and Charles Bean, 17, from which seven more burglaries were solved. One of these was in Aransas Pass and the other six in San Antonio.

City, Water, 2 School Decisions Will Be Made Saturday and Tuesday

There will be four elections here within the next few days. In three of them opposition has developed, in the fourth, that for county school trustees, Walter Heldenfels and Charlie Garrett are running for re-election.

Dr. H. F. Elliot, long-time president of the board is opposed in his bid for re-election by James C. Cruser and Hillis Dominguez.

There is only one polling place, the administration building at the high school, and everyone can vote for everyone, as the election is not by precincts. This election will be held Saturday, April 4.

In the city race, three people have filed for the office of mayor: Eddie Drummond, Hollis Collum and Leonard LeBlanc.

In Ward One, Wallace Maley is opposed by James T. Little for the place left vacant by recent appointment of long-time councilman Jimmy Hunt to the office of county service officer.

Three candidates are seeking two positions. Glen Ellis is asking re-election to the board; Jack McDavid is seeking a place, and so is M. W. Cochran. Grady West, the other member whose term expires this year is not asking re-election.

All polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. on all four elections.

ROCKPORT CEMETERY ASSOCIATION PLANS ENTRANCE MARKER

The Rockport Cemetery Association has recently established indentification of the community burial grounds by having an aluminum arch with a 11 foot clearance erected over the East entrance.

This marker, "The Rockport Cemetery," has been a project of the Cemetery Association for the past two years, getting prices and making inquiries as to the best material suitable for this climate.

It was designed and constructed by E. G. Woody of Rockport. The grounds are very colorful with spread of red phlox and blue bonnets.

McCLENDONS TO ATTEND MEETING OF ENGINEERS

Mr. and Mrs. William McLendon will attend the regional conference of the Society of Military Engineers Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Corpus Christi. McClendon is completing his third year as a director of the seven-state southwest district of the organization.

A. C. Dawson, Corpus Christi, is president of the Coastal Bend Post of the Society, and Irving M. Dietz, Jr., is general chairman of the conference, which will be climaxed Friday night by the annual banquet, at which the Assistant Secretary of the Navy will be the featured speaker.

CONGRATULATIONS

Dr. and Mrs. Carl Griffin of Corpus Christi are proud parents of a nine pound, 15 ounce boy, born March 20. He has been named Scott Andrew.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Slocum.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Atwood and children of Houston, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Atwood, last week.

What's Going On At Live Oak Country Club

Turf Topic—Desiccation is a "wilting" phenomenon. It occurs when plants are transpiring moisture in excess of that which the roots are able to absorb. When soil is completely or partially dry, saturated or frozen, the roots simply cannot take in enough water to offset that being transpired and the plant "desiccates" or dries up. Although more serious during periods when the soil in "on the dry side," or partially frozen, desiccation on high windswept sites may occur at any time during the winter months.

Golf Tip—Smothering the shot is due to improper grip of the club with the hands turned too far to the right at the address position; the "strong grip" close to the face of the club on the back swing. By turning the hands more to the left, the player can use his wrists properly and still hold the club face square.

Golf Etiquette — Before leaving a sand trap, a player should carefully fill up all holes made by him therein.

Heard Saying—The sprinklers will be turned on soon. All pipe in fairways is in the ground. Another week should complete our watering system. Flo Stellman winning her first tournament, "The Walter Boehnke Trophy."

The men's annual club tournament will get underway with qualifying rounds beginning April 25 through May 2 for all flights. Those wishing to enter Medalist Round register in pro-shop. Medalist round will be played May 2. Tournament matches will begin in all flights Sunday, May 3.

Finals in all flights will be held Sunday, May 17. Championship flight will be 36 match play.

A $5 entry fee will be charged and a $2 charge for those shooting for Medalist honors. Awards will come from pro-shop merchandise. All matches and rules will be set by tournament committee.

Speck Howery,
Pro.

Herbert C. Petry Speaks at Chamber Meeting

Herbert C. Petry, chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, as he spoke before an audience of approximately 200 people at the Sea Gun Restaurant, during the annual banquet of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce. Petry told his audience that more out-of-state people visited Texas last year than during any prior year in history, and that they poured a record-breaking $532,200,000 into the state's economy. The Texas Highway Department's annual survey of tourists indicated that the number of out-of-state visitors jumped to 11,700,000 in 1963, a startling 21% over 1962, and that the volume of income from tourists was made up 12.8%, Petry said. The highway chairman said current improvements to Highway 35 should "assure Rockport of its place in the dynamic market of visitor recreation."

Jean Beranger Early French Explorer In This Area

Jean Beranger, an old Frenchman, explored Aransas and Copano bays more than 240 years ago and in his memoirs relates numerous brutal customs of area inhabitants, confirming the fact the Carancahua Indians were cannibals. Identifiable on the maps with his account were Lydie Ann Channel and island, Copano Bay and Live Oak Peninsula.

Beranger said that Carancahuas "have a very serious look and handsome face. Nevertheless, they are rogues and eat their enemies. Although I gave them presents, this did not prevent them from stripping our men on the beach. The women boldly searched in their pockets and took from them what they had.

"They seemed to me to be very attached to their huts of skin, which they fold like tents and carry them. It is the women who have the trouble of this . . . They have very beautiful canoes, which can carry at least 12 barrels end to end," his manuscript records.

Historians have said their canoes were hollowed from single logs.

Breanger landed on Live Oak Peninsula (which he thought was an island and named after the French explorer Bienville). He was prevented from entering Copano Bay by the shallow oyster reefs across its mouth.

Beranger's men landed to gather acorns and encountered a 15-foot snake (alligator) as thick as a man's thigh. He left a lead plate with the coat of arms of France at the foot of "an easily recognizable live oak tree" and sailed away, but not before they had killed a rattlesnake seven feet and eight inches around.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Haynes and Mrs. Edwin Mundine and children spent the weekend in Rockport with Mrs. John Weber and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mundine, Sr.

Outdoors In Texas

By Vern Sanford

Seagulls are many things. They are a source of entertainment. They are scavengers. And they are fish-finders.

For entertainment, go to the coastal beaches and watch folks tossing scraps of bread crumbs to flocks of screaming gulls. It's fun!

Whether they are flying far out to sea, or over the gulf, or dipping into the bays, or even the large inland lakes, gulls are the "spies" that ferret out schools of fish for the anglers.

Whatever the value of the seagull, it is sufficient that it is on the protected list.

Food waste tossed on the beaches will be cleaned up in a hurry by the gulls. There may be only one gull in sight when the refuse is dumped, but in a matter of minutes, gulls by the dozens will home in from all points of the compass.

It's the same at sea. I've been on shrimp boats far out out of sight of land. Not a gull would be in sight until the net was pulled from the water. Then the birds flew in like rain drops from a summer squall.

Gulls are of paramount interest to fishermen. Or perhaps we should say "to anglers who know how to utilize them."

If you know how to "read" the gulls, they'll find fish for you. Many a good speckled trout-catch in our coastal bays has resulted from anglers "fishing the birds."

It's a type of fishing that calls for a lot of looking on the part of the fisherman. Also plenty of h.p. and fuel—to keep up with the moving gulls.

How does one go about fishing the gulls?

It's simple. Scan the area for gulls. If the birds are flocked up, wheeling in tight circles and repeatedly dipdipping into the water, they're working a school of fish.

I don't mean they are feeding on speckled trout or redfish, or mackerel and kingfish. Instead they are feeding on the small fish chased to the surface by the game fish.

Note the direction in which the birds are working. Open up the throttle and swing ahead of the gulls. Be sure to give them a wide berth when passing so that your motor won't spook the school of fish.

Turn off the motor when you are in line with the working gulls. If the birds are working with the current, anchor until the gulls almost reach you. Then pick up anchor and drift along with the current and the gulls, fishing all around the boat.

You'll find fishing good as long as you don't make any noises to spook the school. Of course, you may also hook a seagull or two. They'll frequently grop your shrimp just as it hits the water.

If you've ever had a gull grab your bait and hook himself, you know what you're in for. But for the benefit of those who have never had the experience, let me assure you that a hooked gull can be a rough customer.

You'll have a battle on your hands trying to real in a gull. Then when you get the bird in the boat, you'll really have your hands full—fending off wings, feet and beak. And all the time the gull will be screaming bloody murder right in your ears.

Then to top it all off, the gull in his frantic fighting probably will imbed your own fish hook in some part of your anatomy.

Best thing to do of a seagull foul hooks himself on your line, is to cut the line and let it go at that.

Even if you don't have a boat, gulls can aid you in surf-fishing. Just keep your eyes on the flocks of gulls standing on the shoreline. If they get up and start wheeling over a certain spot in the surf, make haste for that spot. Chances are there will be a nice school of fish under them.

Don't depend on the birds finding fish for you in congested ship channels or bodies of water where there is a steady stream of boat traffic. You'll find plenty of feeding gulls there. But they'll be feeding on stuff churned up by the props.

Other types of sea birds can help you locate fish. During the spring and summer, mackerel birds will help you find both mackerel and kingfish. Then in the fall and winter, keep tabs on the migrating flocks of white pelicans.

"Fishing the birds" also works on the major lakes within the state—particularly when the white bass or sand bass runs are going full force.

Gulls are quick to locate white bass when they school near the surface of the water. But on the lakes you won't find near as many gulls as on the bays, beaches and offshore.

For something new and exciting, try "fishing the birds." But take along plenty of fuel and be prepared to do a lot of looking.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE ARANSAS COUNTY INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

I am proud of our school system. The splendid appearance and quality of our buildings and the excellent administration and faculty are the result of long-range planning by our board of trustees. This board spends many hours without remuneration striving to improve our schools.

I have served on the board of trustees for 12 years, have been Vice President for 5 years and President for the past 6 years. This experience has given me a broad working knowledge of our school system and its needs and aims in education. I have attempted to be fair and impartial in school matters and have always remembered that better education for the youth of our community is the prime purpose of our school system. Your vote and confidence will be appreciated on April 4th.

The Aransas County High School PTA met Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Preceding the meeting, the executive board met at 7:00 p.m.

A. B. LeFevre, Mrs. Garvin Mitchell and Mrs. Weldon Cabaniss were appointed for the scholarship fund committee and Chester Barre on the auditing committee.

At the regular meeting, officers for the year were elected. President is Mrs. Hugh Morrison; first vice president, Mrs. Ed Drummond; second vice president, Mrs. Raymond Owens; third vice president, Mrs. Don Henderson; recording secretary, Mrs. Oscar Bauer; corresponding secretary and publicity, Mrs. Noah Taylor; and treasurer, Mrs. Jack Sparks.

Mrs. Ed Drummond and Mrs. Cyril Sharpe were elected as delegates to the Conference which will be held at the First Methodist Church on Shoreline, in Corpus Christi April 14-15. Any member wishing to go should contact Mrs. Hugh Morrison.

Program for the evening was a panel discussion "The Family Cradle of Spiritual Strength" with Mrs. Ben Bohmfalk as moderator, and Mrs. Wilson Brumley and Mrs. Volney Cavitt on the panel. Mrs. Bohmfalk said the purpose of the panel is to show that love of God must be the foundation of good family life; to emphasize that religious training should begin in the home at a very early age; and to bring an awareness to parents that our words and actions are patterns for our children.

The next PTA meeting will be May 11 at which time officers for the year will be installed, annual written reports will be turned in, and a life membership will be presented.

LOCAL DOCTOR HONORED ON DOCTOR'S DAY

Dr. L. G. Wood was one of a number of area doctors honored on Monday by members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Southern Medical Association in ceremonies at Sinton.

Mrs. Bill Ewing, president of the San Patricio-Aransas-Refugio Counties Woman's Auxiliary unit, said all doctors in these counties were honored on that date. Each received red carnations, the symbol of Doctor's Day and also the official flower of the Auxiliary.

The idea to observe a Doctor's Day, in which to honor members of the medical profession who by daily devotion to their duty of service to humanity minister to our health and welfare, was suggested by a Georgia physician's wife. The date March 30 was chosen because it also commemorates the day in 1842 when Dr. Crawford W. Long, a famous Georgia physician, first used ether as an anesthetic agent in a surgical operation. Doctor's Day observance plan was adopted by the Woman's Auxiliary in 1935.

Highlight of the day was a party for all the doctors and their wives, held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Ewing.

February Shrimp Landings Lower

Landings of headless shrimp at Texas ports in February amounted to 1,400,000 pounds, according to Orman H. Farley, in charge of statistics for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Texas.

Current landings consisted of 750,000 pounds of brown shrimp, 590,000 pounds of pink shrimp and 48,000 pounds of white shrimp. Farley said the Brownsville-Port Isabel area accounted for 21% of all landings in February, 1964.

Landings of headless for the Port Arthur - Sabine area amounted to 14,000 pounds in February this year, compared to 54,200 pounds in January, 1964 and 1900 pounds in February, 1963.

Other areas along the coast, in the same order, produced as follows:

Galveston, 11,400 pounds, 56,300 pounds and 12,100 pounds; Freeport, 61,100 pounds, 114,300 pounds, 86,-100 pounds; Matagorda-Palacios, 7,200 pounds, 12,500 pounds and 8,900 pounds;

Port Lavaca, Port O'Connor, Seadrift, 7,400 pounds, 17,700 pounds; Aransas Pass-Rockport, 310,700 pounds, 356,900 pounds, and 368,400 pounds; Brownsville - Port Isabel, 984,-800 pounds, 1,180,500 pounds, and 979,400 pounds.

Shrimp trawlers working waters adjacent to the Texas coast made short broken trips throughout February as weather conditions were extremely bad. Catches of both brown and white shimp along the Texas coast accounted for only 20 per cent of the total landings.

Long range trawlers worked the high seas off the Mexican coast as far south as the Gulf of Campeche. Effort was concentrated at and around latitude 24° on Mexico's east coast and north and west of Campeche in the Yucatan area. Catches averaged about 200 pounds per 12 hours effort in both areas.

Farley said landings of blue crabs during February only amounted to about 20,000 pounds. This was a record low for this fishery for any month since 1962, but not alarming in view of weather conditions and expected seasonal variations.

Finfish landings amounted to about 250,000 pounds. Red snapper and allied Gulf species made up the bulk of this catch.

The oyster fishery continued to produce large quantities of excellent quantity meats from the Galveston Bay area, and preliminary figures indicate that February landings were about equal to those in January, with 500,000 pounds of processed meats.

New vessels continue to enter the Texas fleet in both the shrimp and red snapper fishery, Farley said, with more under construction for both fisheries.

Figureheads Tell Tales of The Sea

Sailors, perhaps more than any other men, have measured the distance between life and death in terms of luck, and for luck the prow of Aeneas ship was guarded by figures of Phrygian lions, placed there to propitiate Cybele, great mother of the gods, whose worship originated in Phrygia long before the birth of Christ.

Vikings whittled decorative dragons and pagan figures right from the wood of their longboat's prows, and down to the coming of steam figureheads were believed to bring good fortune and a following wind.

Clipper ships of the last century sported elaborate and minutely carved figureheads. There were carved likenesses of their ships names. Some were likenesses of famous men like Abraham Lincoln and General Gordon; others represented the wife or daughter of the proud owner of the ship. Some were historical or mythological.

Generations after the adornment of shops ceased to have any spiritual significance, and embellishment was greatly moderated, the practice still persisted in varying degrees, and the carver was a factor to be reckoned with in planing any properly finished merchantman ar man-at-war.

Plans still in existence show the frigate "Constitution"—"Old Ironsides," and what was done to typify the dignity of the law and the Union, as it was deemed proper that the ship's figurehead should be an emblem of strength and power. Furthermore, it was decided that the frigate should be appropriately decorated around her stern and cabin.

The Skillings of Boston, famous for their work, were chosen to do the carving and the Constitution's first figurehead was one of Hercules. Later, because Hercules became worn by wind and wave, he was replaced with an effigy of Neptune. Later the classical scroll she wears today was substituted, and she wore that through the frays that won her everlasting glory.

In the minds of the crews, the figureheads took on the personality of their models. In 1800, H.M.S. Royal George, with a likeness of the king for a figurehead, turned tail when outnumbered by some French men-at-war and the bosun, to spare his sovereign the disgraceful sight of a British ship fleeing from an enemy, lashed a hammock around the head—explaining that he was "only securing his peepers."

Sailors chipped off bits of the figureheads to carry as landlubber's carry a rabbits foot, for good luck, and hesitated to sail on ships that has none. A mishap to a figurehead was bad luck. When a part of the head on the carving of HMS Brunswick was carried away by a shot, the captain's cocked hat was nailed on to replace it, and the vessel won the engagement.

Today what figureheads are left are found in the world's nautical museums. Perhaps the greatest of them all is that in the hold of the clipper Cutty Sark, moored in the Thames River as part of the British National Maritime Museum. Among these are Gordon Pasha of Khartoum, the figurehead of the British ship "General Gordon." Amphitrite, bare of covering except for a fig leaf was the mythological goddess of the sea, from the ship of the same name.

A handsome, six-foot Indian chief adorned the vessel of the same name which was built in Quebec in 1877, and today graces one of the walls of the Peabody Museum in Salem, Mass., along with a host of similar figures. Among these are the figure of a kilted Scotch Highlander, a whole bevy of women in various stages of dress and undress, an Elizabeth courtier, a Roman centurion, and a colonial gentlemen.

There are others at Mystic Seaport, Mystic, Conn., where one figure is that of a dark Oriental which may have come from the bow of the American ship Asia about 1855, and there are many more American Indians, the best known of which—Tamanend from the U.S.S. Delaware, is preserved in facsimile at the U. S. Naval Academy. There the ancient figurehead is known as "the god of 2.5" (the Academy's passing grade) and is an object of veneration by the students.

There are figureheads in the National Museum at Washington, and scattered ones elsewhere in this country, but probably the greatest collection in the United States is found at the Mariner's Museum, at Newport News, Virginia. The head of an Arab and a ferocious Moorish pirate adorn the walls of that great museum of the sea; an 18-foot eagle now has a commanding spot in the Main gallery of the museum, dominating the visitor as he enters.

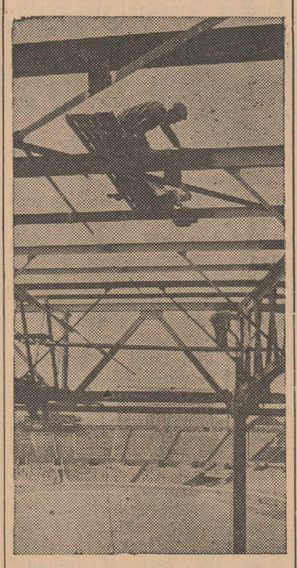

Lady Edmonton was reproduced as a figurehead for the ship named after her, built in Quebec in 1882, and another famous one is that from the bark "The Belle of Oregon," which was carved by Charles Sampson, of Bath, Maine. Queen Victoria's likeness, with orb and sceptre in sand can be seen at the Mariners' Museum; Landy Lancashire is in the Marine Museum of the City of New York; Queen Caroline is preserved by the Buffalo Historical Society, and the Queen of Sheba, a masterful carving, dark of skin with a crown upon her head, keeps Victoria company at the Mariners.

Pets Can Kill In Many Ways

Recent death of a Mexican boy at Reynosa from rabies, snapping at anyone who approached him in the later stages of the disease like the mad dog that bit him, points up the fact that "harmless" household pets carry at least 22 known diseases, most of which are dangerous to people.

Rabies is only one of a long list but, although fear of hydrophobic death has diminished, human fatalities still occur, and 50,000 people a year have to undergo the torture of rabies shots because they have been infected by a rabid animal, which may range anywhere from a "hydrophobia" skunk to animals as large as cattle.

Cat scratch is another, and its symptoms vary widely. One girl was being treated for leukemia until her doctor found out she had been scratched by a cat and pinpointed the disease. A boy was thought to have encephalitis, only to be suffering from the same disease. First discovered by a French scientist, Dr. R. Debre, in 1950, in a 1955-56 survey of population of St. Paul and Minneapolis, it was found that over five per cent had had this disease in one form or another, and this seems to hold true throughout the country. A scratch or bite is the only known means of passing the fever from the animal to a human, but cats as a rule do not have the disease themselves, but merely serve as carriers.

Every pet owner should be aware of the disease pets may transmit. Except for rabies, few illnesses were recognized as pet transmittable until recent years. Now we know that cats, dogs, canaries, parakeets, white mice, hamsters and even turtles can pass illness along to their owners.

Psittacosis is allied to cat scratch fever, and is also called parrot disease because at first it was thought that only those birds transmitted it. Within recent years, it has been found that turkeys and other domestic fowl and birds also are subject to psittacosis and can give it to people. This sometimes resembles virus pneumonia.

Another potentially dangerous disease carried by the 25,000,000 or 30,000,000 dogs and the 21,000,000 or more cats now in this country, is visceral larva migrans, discovered in 1952 by Dr. Paul Beaver and Dr. C. Harrison Snyder, of Tulane University. The roundworms, found in the animals, lay vast numbers of eggs that contaminate food, water and soil which healthy dogs and cats swallow. If a human swallows the eggs, the process is the same. The eggs mature into mobile larva which migrate through the body through blood and lymph streams to the liver, heart, lungs and even to the eye or the brain. But man, unlike the animals, is not a normal host and these larvae become enacted. Patients sometimes show signs of pneumonia and heart failure. Deaths have resulted.

Youngsters who love to roll on the grass and play in dirt and sand where there are pets, and who are careless about what they put in their mouths, including leftovers from the dog's dinner dishes, can very easily become infected. In some cases where the larvae invade the brain, convulsions and comas are produced; in the lungs they produce symptoms of tuberculosis; they invade skin and bone with bad results, and deaths have occurred from overwhelming infestations.

There are two types of rat bite fever. One produces a painful ulcer at the site of the bite, swollen lymph glands, a rash, high fever, vomiting and convulsions. If untreated it may continue for months. In the other type, severe arthritis is produced in the feet, legs, arms and and hands. And it doesn't have to be a rat that bites you. It can be a hamster, a pet squirrel or other rodent.

Dogs transmit leptospirosis, which masquerades as spinal meningitis, flu, pneumonia or typhoid fever. From 15 to 40 percent of tested dogs show that they once had Leptospra canicola, as the disease is also labeled. Another form, Weil's disease, carried by dogs but more often by rodents, may simulate jaundice and kidney inflamation or meningitis.

Salmonella organisms infect cold-blooded animals, mammals and birds and are found in varied pets such as turtles, Easter chicks, and donkeys, to name only a few. There are three main types and they produce typhoid fever, paratyphoid fever, and food poisoning. All are spread by contaminated food and water.

Along with these things, must be mentioned allergies to hairy pets. Some children have harsh reactions to these as well, and unless they outgrow their allergies should not be allowed to have the pets that cause such reactions.

NEIGHBOR DROPS IN ON LOCAL SCHOOLS

Robert T. Menzel, of Ingleside, instead of going to a convention, dropped in on the local school system. The following letters from Robert T. Menzel, of 215 Avenue I, Ingleside are self-explanatory.

Mar. 28, 1964

J. D. Gray, Superintendent
Aransas County Schools
Rockport, Texas
Dear Mr. Gray:

Rather than going to our district TSTA meeting in the Valley the 20th of this month, my wife and I chose to take advantage of the opportunity to visit your school.

We were much impressed with your plant and the wonderful job the Rockport teachers are doing. Both principals, Mr. Barre and Mr. Griffith, did everything possible to make our visit enjoyable as well as profitable.

Mr. Rice and the lady teaching the seventh grade math made unusually good presentations, testified to by the excellent responses from their students.

My wife found her visits to the classes of Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Steele, and the sixth grade reading class of Mrs. Griffith stimulating and most pleasurable.

Many thanks to you and your fine faculty.

Sincerely,
Robt. T. Menzel

Mr. Albert R. Griffith, Jr.
Rockport, Texas
Dear Mr. Griffith:

Friday, March 20, was a very enjoyable learning experience for me.

Having attended many TSTA Conventions in the past; but never before having visited another school; I feel that the visiting was far more profitable to me.

My gratitude to you and to the faculty is sincere and heartfelt.

Please express my thanks to all of the teachers; but especially to those in whose rooms I visited; Mesdames Gilley, Knapp, Snyder, Clymore (substituting that day), Prophet, DeForest, and Eller.

Sincerely,
Robt. T. Menzel

JUNIOR HIGH—

The Aransas County Junior High School has been selected to participate in a project because of our excellent facilities, and organization. This project is a resource unit, self-contained, for the eighth grade with emphasis in the biological area.

The instruction will include lecturing or discussion in the salt water environment as well as letting the students go in the water, ankle deep or so, and practical work and will apply this instruction with the instructor guiding this learning using the live animals in the salt water. If possible all instructions, other than testing sessions, will be a field learning experience done in the salt water by Mr. Gene Wilkins, eighth grade science teacher.

The Galveston schools have also been selected in this pilot project as well as a few schools in the north Texas area. The total number of teachers are 16 seventh and eighth grade teachers and the students being used number 1,050 seventh and eighth graders.

Pre-testing in regard to the project will take place April 9 and 10. The project will then continue for four weeks.
