Bill Bars Funds For Quitting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — On a 5-3 vote, a House committee passed early today a bill barring people who voluntarily leave their jobs from collecting unemployment until they have worked six weeks.

The measure sponsored by Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, was sent from the Unemployment Practices Committee to the House floor for debate. Gov. Bill Clements strongly supports the bill.

It provides that people who voluntarily quit their jobs, are fired for misconduct, or who refuse to accept suitable employment may not collect unemployment benefits until they have worked for six weeks and made wages at least equal to the amount of benefit for each of those weeks.

Thermostat Controls Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has lifted the 18-month-old order requiring that thermostats in commercial and industrial buildings be lowered in the winter and raised in the summer.

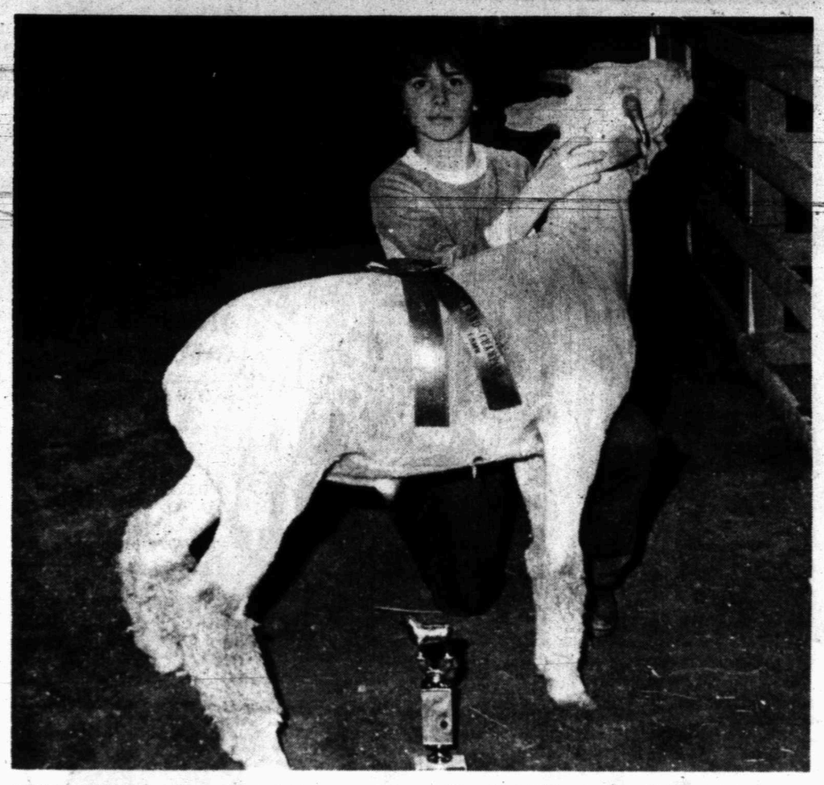

The restrictions, imposed by President Carter on July 16, 1979, required that non-residential air conditioners be set no lower than 78 degrees in the summer and heating thermostats no higher than 65 in the winter.

Reagan said Tuesday that, "although restrictions on building temperatures may result in reduced consumption of fuel, I have concluded that the regulatory scheme designed to accomplish that objective imposes an excessive regulatory burden and that voluntary restraint and market incentives will achieve substantially the same benefit without the regulatory costs."

Tax Cut Plan Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP) — A typical family of four with an income of $20,000 a year would save $1,456 in federal income taxes over the next 3½ years under the tax cut President Reagan will propose tonight — a 28.7 percent reduction.

If approved by Congress, the cut would take effect next July 1 and save the typical family $114 on the tax return that will be filed next year for 1981. The Treasury Department estimates the savings for the same family would total $300 in 1982, $464 in 1983 and $578 in 1984.

Dispute Reagan's Dire Assessment

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan prepares to sell his strong budget and tax-cut medicine to the nation, several leading economists are challenging his assertion that the economy is critically ill.

Recent government statistics pointing toward an improving economy also call into question Reagan's assessment two weeks ago that the nation is in "the worst economic mess since the Great Depression" and that it is threatened with "an economic calamity of tremendous proportions."

A number of conservative and liberal economists contacted Tuesday said they believe the president exaggerated the country's economic difficulties in his last nationwide address to attract the public's attention and mobilize support for the economic remedies he is unveiling tonight.

"It seems to me he painted a picture just as black as he could to serve his political purposes and in the process went beyond the bounds of underlying facts," said Walter W. Heller, chairman of the White House Counsel of Economic Advisers during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

"I think it's fine to point out the country's problems, but I don't think one should overdo it with scare talk," said Heller, now a professor at the University of Minnesota.

Michael Evans, a Washington economic forecaster who endorses Reagan's call for reduced tax rates and budget cuts, agreed the president's Feb. 5 economic assessment was exaggerated, but defended its purpose.

"The man has to say things like that to get the attention of the public," said Evans, who agreed with Reagan's contention that swift and strong action is required to keep the economy from becoming incurably sick.

"This is our last real chance to turn the economy around," Evans said. "Otherwise, we go the way of Britain. And it wouldn't be exaggerating to say that inflation and unemployment are the worst there since the Great Depression."

The SDN Column

Every once in a while we hear complaints that we "don't print enough good news in the paper."

There are times when it is true, but what some readers may fail to consider is that we must offer what is available. Sometimes it seems that everything happening is bad.

Then, of course, survey after survey indicates, and you can confirm this by personal observation, that the average reader will devote his or her attention to the "bad" news much more quickly than to the "good" news.

Nevertheless, don't let anyone tell you that people who work on newspapers prefer bad news over good news. There may be some who do, but not many, just are there are some sick people who relish setting fires or abusing children.

So, it is with some satisfaction that we have the opportunity to present some of what we consider really good news in this column twice within a week. Last Sunday, we commented on a letter which commended the Snyder Police Department for the consideration two officers gave a family that was stranded because of a traffic accident. Today, we have something equally as welcome if not more so.

Here is a statement actually directed to "the manager and staff of the Safeway Store" that was included in a letter we received this week from Mrs. Jack Bishop of Slaton:

"Recently, when visiting relatives in Snyder, I shopped at your store. While there, I lost my wrist watch, a loss which I greatly regretted, not just for the watch, but because it had been a gift from a son and my husband, who is now dead.

"I did not expect ever to see it again. Imagine, then, my delight to have it returned to me a few days ago.

"Such honesty and courtesy are not always found and so you are to be commended. My heart-felt thanks go to the management and staff of the Safeway Store."

So, no matter what some of the headlines say or the commentators lament, there are still some good things happening, and it is encouraging to know that they can and do happen in our town.

Competing for space right alongside the stories of kidnappings, hijackings, hostages and arson are junior livestock shows, clean-up campaigns, amd people who are willing to give their fellow man a hand.

Hermleigh Animals Judged...

Scurry County Junior Livestock Show Opens

With the Snyder, Hermleigh, and Ira stock shows completed, next comes the county show.

The county show begins today with the weighing in of the animals, but the actual judging does not start until tomorrow.

Thursday, hogs will be shown. That judging starts about 4 p.m. Approximately 330 hogs are entered in the competition.

Friday, lambs and calves will be shown. The lamb show starts about 1:30 p.m. and the calf show begins about 7 p.m. Approximately 98 lambs will be shown and about 23 calves will be shown.

The auction will be held Saturday.

All events are taking place at the agriculture annex at the Scurry County Coliseum.

At the Hermleigh livestock show, Greg Kimzey, Jill Roemisch, and Darren Hughes took top honors.

Kimzey, the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kimzey, won first with his calf, a heavyweight Simmental-Limousin cross. He also showed the reserve champion calf.

In the lamb judging, it was Jill Roemisch, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Roemisch, who won first. Hers was a finewool lamb. Showing the reserve champion was Billy Joe Gannaway with a medium-wool lamb.

In hog competition, Darren Hughes, 13, and an eighth grader at Hermleigh, won with his heavyweight Duroc. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hughes. Showing the reserve champion was Ben Smith.

Housing Tops CC Discussion

Rental housing was the major topic at a meeting of Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors Tuesday afternoon.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, reported that a meeting has been scheduled for 4 p. m. Feb. 26 for further discussion of the possibility of a revenue bond plan for financing construction of rental units here.

Lewis Bunch of First Southwest Co., Fort Worth, is scheduled to be here for the session, and representatives of all financial firms and potential developers will be invited to attend, said Warner.

Chamber officials hope that information obtained at this meeting will enable the organization to determine whether it should pursue the revenue bond route. Warner said that anyone interested in tax exempt bonds or in developing housing here will be welcome at the meeting.

On Feb. 27, Warner and members of the chamber's housing committee will present a program at the Senior Center and then launch a survey to determine whether there is interest here in a housing project for senior citizens.

In other business, plans were made for establishing a Past Presidents' Club to evaluate the chamber program. Warner said there are some 22 past presidents of the chamber who still live here and are active in civic work.

Historic Scurry County, Inc., was granted permission to use the chamber's address in a campaign it plans to conduct for moving a Medallion Home to a new location.

Warner announced that a supply of new city maps is now being printed and should be ready for distribution soon.

Truett Bryan, chamber president, presided at the meeting. Other board members attending were E. W. McCants, Tommy Lay, Brian Boswell, Brenda Hedges, David Hines, Joe Flack, Morris Light, Elizabeth Potts and Ernie Armstrong.

To Request End Of Marriage Tax

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Reagan will ask Congress tonight to end the so-called "marriage penalty" tax law provision and approve tax credits for parents of private school students, The Baltimore Sun reported today.

The newspaper, quoting congressional and administration sources, said those provisions will be part of a second tax bill the president will request, in addition to one containing the administration's proposed cuts in personal tax rates and business tax provisions.

The second bill, the newspaper said, will also propose "indexing" tax brackets to keep pace with inflation and lowering federal estate taxes.

The "marriage penalty" forces married couples in which both persons work to pay higher taxes than they would if still single.

russians give ground

Five years ago in Helsinki, Finland, Leonid Brezhnev put his signature to an international agreement pledging the Soviet Union and 34 other nations in Europe and North America to promote the human rights of their citizens.

Predictably enough, the Soviet government has since violated the letter and the spirit of every last human rights provision written into the Helsinki accords.

It follows, then that the Madrid Conference—called to review compliance with the promises made at Helsinki—would prove an uncomfortable experience for Soviet delegates. And it has.

The Russians have found themselves listening to a drumfire of criticism from no less than 30 of the 35 nations that negotiated and signed the Helsinki agreement. The exceptions, of course, have been the Soviet-bloc countries.

But this full-throated chorus of protest might have been reduced to the barest of whispers had not Western delegates in general and American delegates in particular stood fast in the face of Soviet bullying at the outset of the conference.

During the weeks of planning that preceded the formal opening of the Madrid Conference, Soviet delegates threatened repeatedly to scuttle the entire affair if Western representatives insisted on a full four weeks of debate on human rights issues.

It would have been easy for Western diplomats, conditioned to making concessions to the Soviets in the name of "detente," to yield the point and settle for a muffled human rights protest of limited duration before moving on to what Moscow wanted discussed.

Instead, former Attorney General Griffin Bell and Washington lawyer Max Kampelman co-chairman of the United States delegation, refused to allow human rights to be swept under the rug. This demonstration of resolve was rewarded with a heartening display of support from Western European delegates.

Typically, the Russians stonewalled until literally the 11th hour. Not until the night before the conference was to begin did they finally relent.

But they did relent. As a result, the opening phase of the Madrid Conference featured a vigorous discussion of human rights questions.

No one imagines that the Russian delegates will slink back to Moscow and implore Brezhnev and company to dismantle the gulag, end the persecution of political and religious dissidents, or permit such heresies as freedom of speech, press and assembly.

But Soviet leaders have been made to pay a political and diplomatic price for sneering at international agreements they sign and for oppressing their citizenry. If the remaining months of the Madrid Conference accomplish nothing else, Griffin Bell and Max Kampelman will not have made the trip in vain.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Reagan may not have to worry about fulfilling his campaign promise to abolish the Department of Energy — because it might self-destruct under the leadership of Energy Secretary James B. Edwards.

Edwards' inept handling of a politically delicate issue in his first major appearance as head of the department reportedly left senior members of the White House staff discouraged about his future as the government's leading energy strategist.

The occasion was a White House press briefing to explain the president's late-January decision to order the immediate decontrol of domestic crude oil, gasoline and propane.

Because those controls were scheduled to be lifted on Oct. 1 under a phased deregulation plan already in place when Reagan took office, the decision to advance the timetable by nine months was widely viewed as a symbolic gesture.

But Edwards' incompetence in handling questions about the president's action helped to rekindle opposition among politicians who argue that the removal of federal controls will fuel inflation, further enrich the petroleum industry and force consumers to pay higher prices for oil products.

In the course of a half-hour long briefing, Edwards repeatedly misstated the facts, contradicted himself and confessed ignorance about fundamental elements of the administration's action.

When asked to relate the removal of controls to the price of gasoline, Edwards said he expected an increase "in the range between 3 cents and a nickel" per gallon.

But knowledgeable officials in both his department and the oil industry have predicted price hikes more than twice as large — 6 cents to 12 cents per gallon, according to one estimate and 9 cents to 14 cents according to another.

Although decontrol has been widely touted by the Reagan administration and the petroleum industry as an important stimulus to expanded exploration and subsequent production, Edwards was unable to provide any evidence to support that contention.

"We have no estimate of that," he admitted. "The people over in the statistics department...haven't told me."

In fact, drilling activity has soared to record levels in recent months and significant additional increases are not expected in the near future because virtually all available oilfield equipment already is committed or in use.

The most optimistic predictions call for an increase of 50,000 to 60,000 barrels per day prior to Oct. 1, less than 0.7 percent of total domestic oil production of 8.6 million barrels per day.

But the price consumers will pay during the next nine months for that very modest improvement is estimated at $6 billion to $13 bilion. One new DOE study predicts that gasoline will cost $1.48 to $2.23 per gallon by the end of the year.

(In the days immediately following the decontrol announcement, wholesale price increases ranging from 1 cent to 6 cents per gallon on gasoline and home heating oil were posted by Exxon, Shell, Texaco, Gulf, Mobil and Union Oil.)

Edwards praised decontrol as a move toward "the free market" for oil. Yet, prices, nation-by-nation allocations and total supply are tightly controlled by a powerful cartel — the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Moreover, while decontrol may make this country slightly less dependent on other nations for its oil, the move will make consumers totally reliant upon OPEC for the price of oil, both domestic and imported.

That's because the "bottom line" of decontrol is that domestic producers can immediately hike their prices to OPEC levels, currently $37 to $38 per barrel. As recently as 1970, the comparable figure was $1.80 per barrel.

Only time will tell if it's a laundry breakthrough, but for the moment, a combination bar and laundromat in Lawrence, Kans., has given new meaning to the word "suds."

According to a UPI wire story, "Suds 'n' Duds" laundry is the brainchild of a couple of men who figured out that "laundry is just about the most boring thing in the world." So, while the washer is on fill, so is the washee.

I used to know a woman who occasionally nipped to get through her ironing and she ended up one day pressing her tongue.

Heaven knows I'm for anything that makes running a home an equal opportunity employee, but a laundry room doesn't seem to be the place for people who turn ugly when they drink.

My experience with laundromats has been limited to those I frequent on vacations. (Frequent! If you get a card from me that isn't spotted with bleach, it's a forgery.) I must say they're a strange bunch to deal with when sober. I hate to think what they'd be like if they were picked up on a WWI (Washing While Intoxicated). It's probably my own insecurity with things mechanical, but I am intimidated in laundromats beyond belief.

Somehow, I always follow on the heels of a woman who is camping outside of town with eight children and is lugging in a rain-soaked tent and ten muddy sleeping bags. Washers and dryers are her life. She knows everything. She has a pocketful of change, knows what washers work and what dryers overheat. She has five of them spinning at once with the confidence and organization of a high-roller at Vegas. She usually has a small tatoo of a snake on her wrist.

Somehow, you do not want to hear her answer when you ask what she thinks a dryer will do to your V-neck cashmere.

Maybe the "laundry lounge" will work. I have a few reservations about it. Would you want to explain to a man who is sloshed what happens to one out of every pair of his socks and where they go when they disappear? Do you want to see the wife who faded her husband's underwear pink...drink enough courage to go home?

There was one man at the "Suds 'n' Duds" who went to the laundry, drank a little beer, watched a little football on the tube and went home at 11:30. It wasn't until he got into the car that he saw his load of dirty laundry and remembered what he had come for.

On the other hand, a bar would be a nice place to write postcards home.

Let me think about it.

realism optimism

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Because economic conditions are poor doesn't mean they'll always be that way, says John Filer, a hard-nosed businessman who finds reason to believe that optimism is realism.

"At any time we make the terrible mistake of believing that current conditions will exist for all time," said Filer, 57, chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty, which has more than $30 billion of assets.

Current conditions, it is widely believed, are less than what they should be, not just in financial and construction areas, where Aetna is heavily involved, but also in a vast economic panorama.

It may not continue, Filer said. A year ago, he reminded, there was widespread belief the bond market was dead. Now, he observed, corporations and investors are lining up to get back in.

Filer, whose giant enterprise is ranked first on the Fortune list of "diversified-financial companies," almost three times larger than Merrill Lynch & Co., is especially wary of long-term forecasts based on short-term phenomena. He has seen them fail time after time.

Something always intervenes, he said. He is optimistic about solutions to buying and financing homes. He refuses to believe that interest rates are bound to remain high just because they are high now. He declines to bury the whole life insurance policy, insisting that inflation hasn't killed it.

"Whole life is no more dead than the bond market is," he said of the traditional life insurance policy that has, among other benefits, cash and loan value. In the past decade, whole life (or entire life) policies have lost some of their face value and appeal, and many would-be customers have switched to short-term, renewable policies.

And the traditional home mortgage market, given up for dead even by lenders whose chief product it is, may be no more dead than bonds or whole life insurance, according to Filer, the realistic optimist.

Unlike some contemporaries, who fear that to play with the tiger's tail is to invite a thrashing, he believes business can cooperate with government to correct urban disarray. It must be a cooperative effort, he said. What is good or bad for people is good or bad for business.

The changes won't happen suddenly, he suggested, and not without real effort and some fears, too. But again he cautions Americans not to judge the future by what they see today.

"I would not want this company at the moment to be out front with long term, fixed rate loans," he conceded.

But, he added, if confidence is rebuilt, productivity improved and the work ethic restored, "then possibly financial institutions may have money pile in over the transom." It isn't inconceivable, he said.

And if that happens, the suggestion was, the financing of America — its homes and factories, too — might benefit from a more plentiful supply of traditional, stable, affordable interest rates and terms.

Four U.S. Marines probably feel pretty good about themselves this week.

They happened on a car wreck in Lubbock where three people were injured and they helped one of the victims from her car. They complained that Emergency Medical Technicians arrived on the scene before they could pull the other two victims, a man and his wife, from their car.

How very fortunate for that couple! As luck would have it, the young lady who was pulled from her car by the apparently over-zealous Marines was only suffering from facial lacerations.

The two who were rescued by EMT's were suffering from fractured ribs and punctured lungs. The man also had a broken pelvis.

Indiscriminate removal of accident victims from their vehicles can easily result in further, more serious injury. Permanent paralyzation or death could occur.

Many disabled people are in wheelchairs in rehabilitation centers because Good Samaritans pulled, yanked, or carried them to "safety."

A passerby sees an accident and feels he must do something to help so he decides the best thing to do is to get the victim out of the smashed car. A victim doesn't look quite so scary when he's lying on the ground.

While that aid may make the helper feel better, it's no comfort to the victim. An injured person should only be moved if there is imminent danger to them in remaining where they are.

Fire is unlikely in an accident but if there is such a possibility the victim must be removed carefully. Every precaution that time allows should be taken not to twist or unnecessarily jar the person.

It's great that people want to stop and help. But they have to remember that not all injuries can easily be seen. Accident injuries (cervical fractures, broken ribs and internal injuries) are easy to aggravate.

If moved wrong, a person with a fractured rib can wind up with a punctured lung. Someone with whiplash could end up with permanent nerve damage.

There are many first aid books on bookstore and library shelves and if someone really wanted to help they could read those books.

Then if someone happened on any type of accident they might know how best to help the victim — and maybe save a life.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

I am concerned about the indifferent attitude that has surfaced in some areas regarding our school system. The administrators are doing all they can to keep students in school. This is part of their job, and they need the support of every parent.

We have several parents in our community who seem to feel that attendance is not necessary in order to maintain satisfactory grades. They are perpetuating an attitude of irresponsibility in their children. Some parents continually lie for their children so that they will not be penalized. Why should students who miss 12 or 15 days of school each semester be given the same passing grade as one who has not missed a day of instruction? There is something to be said for daily class participation which a student cannot make up.

The Lubbock Schools have had a policy similar to the one that Snyder is trying to enforce this year. They claim to have significantly increased their attendance. Our school system needs this year to make the system work. The state law says that students shall attend 165 days per year. Snyder is being very lenient when they allow a student to miss 20 days per year. When our administrators are backed by interested parents, this system will work. We need the rest of this year to prove it.

Our problem is not compulsory attendance. Our problem is attitude. We must begin to change attitudes toward our schools. Some parents view the school system as their enemy. They should see our teachers as people who are trying to instill honesty, integrity, decency and responsibility into the character of their children. The local community should do everything possible to encourage young people to follow the rules, whether it deals with attendance, proper conduct, respect for property, or respect for authority. We must stop "trying to beat the system."

Our children are our future. We must not waste the time that we have with them each day. We can never recapture the wasted moments. Our schools are providing valuable instruction for every child who will accept it. Let's help our school system instead of hindering it.

Retired Teachers Discuss Pay Raise

Silas Devenport, legislative chairman, discussed the retired teacher's pay raise bill which is before the Texas legislature at Thursday's meeting of the Scurry County Retired Teachers at the Senior Center.

He stated that retired teachers received little help with inflation last Monday when the House unanimously passed a bill raising their monthly check by 5.1 percent. For most, he said, this would only mean $10 to $15 more each month.

It was announced at the meeting that a reduced rate would be in effect for those in the club who wanted to take a Defensive Driving course at the Senior Center March 23-24. The class will meet from 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. each day. Rates for club members will be $4. The regular fee is $6.

A dance program was presented to the club by the students of Debbie Row, director of the West Texas Theatric Arts Center.

Hosting the meeting Thursday were Laura Holladay, Jo Horton, Beth Ownby and Polly Phillips.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here we see a lucky hand for Fisher and Jacoby in the 1966 Olympiad. Their luck was helped by a good play on the part of Dr. John Fisher, who was careful to play his king of hearts on Jim's queen at trick one. Their score was improved when declarer played badly and went down two tricks, instead of just one, at his slightly unsound game contract.

John's king of hearts held trick one and Jim's nine trick two. South won the third heart and decided to try to drop the queen of clubs. When it didn't drop, South decided to tackle spades. Now Jim took his ace of spades, last two hearts and queen of clubs for down two.

Declarer needed four clubs and four diamonds to come to nine tricks. He should have tried diamonds first. Then when he saw the bad diamond break, he would have had no play for his contract at all and could have knocked out the spade ace and settled for down one.

Not that down one would have been a good score for him. Most North-South pairs stopped at three clubs and made it, but when you are sure to be set, you should try to get out for the minimum.

Freak Shooting Fatal

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A 4-year-old girl was shot to death Tuesday when a woman in an adjoining apartment accidentally fired a pistol she was unloading when her dog jumped on her, police said.

The bullet ripped through the apartment wall and struck Donuel Yvonne Dohr in the chest about 12:20 p.m., police said.

The child died in the emergency room of Arlington Memorial Hospital an hour after the shooting in this suburban city between Dallas and Fort Worth.

A 19-year-old woman was released from Arlington City jail under $1,000 bond Tuesday night pending an involuntary manslaughter charge.

Police said the woman told them she was unloading a 9mm pistol in her apartment when her dog jumped on her arm and bit it, causing the pistol to fire.

Donuel was standing on a living room chair and reaching for the telephone at the same moment. Police said the bullet went through the adjoining living room wall, the child's body and another wall before falling on the ground outside.

Eva Dohr said she ran to the neighbor's apartment where her daughter was playing when she heard the shot.

Minh Nguyen, who lives in the apartment the child was visiting, said her brother-in-law, Giao Nguyen, was in the apartment when the shooting occurred.

"My brother-in-law was lying on the couch and Donuel was standing on a chair by the dining room table when he said he heard a boom — kind of like a balloon busting," Mrs. Nguyen said. "After that he said Donuel got off the chair and ran to the couch where he was lying and fell down."

Nguyen took the girl to a neighbor's apartment and called the police, Mrs. Nguyen said.

She said Donuel played with her 4-year-old daughter Bi almost every day.

O'Hair's Son Says Mom Loves Money

HOUSTON (AP) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair claims she is poverty-stricken but is actually in love with money, said her son, William Murray.

Mrs. O'Hair has a new $300,000 home in Austin but does not want her supporters or media representatives to see it, said Murray. He also said she recently wrote that she is an anarchist but accepted funds last year from the Travis County Republican Party for processing GOP material at her American Atheist Center.

"Madalyn Murray does not believe in atheism," he said Tuesday. "She does not believe in anything whatsoever other than money."

Murray said Ms. O'Hair simply cannot accept his 1979 conversion to Christianity. He now leads the Houston-based Murray Faith Foundation.

An objective of the foundation, he said, is to correct things he and his mother instituted through the American Atheist Association. He says he wants to convince Americans that atheism is a misdirected, ill-founded religion.

On Tuesday, Murray distributed a prepared statement he said was prompted by Austin news stories quoting Ms. O'Hair as saying recently she had moved from her home of 15 years because "We had busloads of choir singers singing hymns on our lawn."

"The news conference was called to explain to her employees and supporters why she would not invite anyone to her new home in Austin," Murray said. "She will not even have those at her home who helped to pay for it with contributions to her tax exempt corporation."

She does not want her supporters or the press to see her home, he said, "because of its size and cost."

"The house located in northwest Austin cost over $300,000," he said. "It is one of the largest homes in the most affluent section of Austin. Madalyn Murray O'Hair continues to swear she is in poverty. The home mentioned above has two Cadillacs parked in front of it."

Murray said Ms. O'Hair has sworn she cannot pay legal fees in a pending criminal case but has received Social Security and Veterans Administration benefits.

"If Madalyn Murray O'Hair thought she could get away with it she would apply for food stamps as well," he said.

On his mother's claim that harassment drove her into seclusion, Murray says she "has had no problems in Austin other than those she has caused herself such as physical attacks on the PTA.'"

Doctors Divide Siamese Twins

DALLAS (AP) — Two babies born joined at the base of the spine are now "two perfectly normal little girls" after a 10-hour operation to separate them at a children's hospital here.

The delicate operation was performed when the children were just two months old. It involved separating a common segment of the spinal cord and the nerves that led to each child's bladder, lower legs and feet.

"We really couldn't imagine what it would be like," Dr. Joan Venes, neurosurgeon, said of the operation. "It was a matter of going in and looking."

"They (the parents) have two perfectly normal little girls," said Dr. Ted Votteler who led the surgical team. "We're really pleased about that."

At the family's request the girls were not identified and no information about the operation was made public until the babies had been discharged from the hospital. The parents were expecting twins but doctors had no idea the girls were conjoined twins until they were delivered by Caesarian section.

The separation surgery was performed Jan. 14 and the girls were released to their parents on Saturday.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fainting is a symptom

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last week when I went to church I fainted. I had gone without anything to eat because I was going to take Communion. We had been kneeling and when I stood up I began to feel dizzy. Things began to blur and I had trouble steadying myself. The next thing I knew I was stretched out on the bench. For a while I thought I was going to get the last rites rather than Communion.

My doctor gave me a good examination the next day. He said I had fainted. He didn't say why, only that I had not been able to get enough blood to my brain. That has me worried. I always thought I was in good health. I'm 19 and play on the basketball team and have never had any trouble. Does this mean I have some disease in the arteries to my brain?

DEAR READER — Probably not. It is important for anyone who has an unexplained faint to have a complete medical examination. Fainting is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be caused by blood accumulating in your legs and not leaving enough blood to be pumped to your brain. That is probably what your doctor was telling you. This is particularly apt to occur in people who have been at bed rest for a period of time. A fainting tendency even occurred in the astronauts when they returned to earth from space flights.

Fainting can also be caused when your heart beats too fast or too slow or not strongly enough. There are many things that will affect your arteries, veins and heart, including fright, heat or just standing very still.

The mechanisms involved in fainting are discussed in greater detail in The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting: Loss of Consciousness or Syncope, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Even overbreathing can be a cause.

Fasting increases the chances of fainting. Kneeling and then rising to stand still, in the fasting state, is even more likely to make your head swim. The best defense against that situation is to consciously contract and relax your leg muscles and avoid standing stock still. Incidentally, fainting is fairly common in healthy, young people.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you tell me at what age a female should have a Pap test? I am 22. I read that it was once every three years instead of once a year. Are you for that? Cancer runs in my family and not too long ago my sister had her insides taken out because of cancer.

DEAR READER — The guidelines from the American Cancer Society were that a woman age 20 and over, or under 20 and sexually active, should have an annual Pap test for two negative tests. Thereafter every three years was often enough, until age 65.

I don't entirely agree with that and your question points up the reason. Depend upon your doctor, who is familiar with your family history and your findings. If you are healthy and there are no significant findings, and the family history and other pertinent information is good, then the recommendations might be fine. But not everyone is so fortunate. It is another example where it is important to individualize, not generalize, when you are talking about one person and his or her medical problems.

To Decide Disposal Dump Issue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's up to the House to decide if licensing of new radioactive waste disposal sites should be suspended until June 1, unless the Legisture passes new laws in the meantime.

Under the proposal by Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, there would be a moratorium on new commercial waste disposal sites until 60 days after the effective date of any new legislation or June 1.

Thawing Ice Triggers Floods

By The Associated Press

Thawing ice jams and rushing water from melted snow have triggered a series of floods in upstate New York, leaving one man dead on the third day of spr-inglike weather.

An approaching cold front, meanwhile, was bringing more rain and high winds to the northern Pacific Coast region. Winds on Tuesday felled trees and snapped power lines serving thousands of Californians.

In West Seneca, N.Y., the body of a 68-year-old man was pulled from his flooded basement Tuesday. Officials said frigid water had poured into the cellar after huge ice chunks carried by flood waters from the near-by Cazenovia Creek smashed the wall.

The water left chunks of ice piled up at Cazenovia Park in South Buffalo and carried ice onto lawns in West Seneca.

The flooding came after a third day of unseasonably warm temperatures when an upstream ice jam broke up, suddenly sending ice and water rushing downstream. The waters receded after about 30 minutes.

On the Pacific Coast, high winds left 8,000 to 10,000 customers of Southern California Edison temporarily without power and scattered hundreds of uprooted trees on a Washington highway, trapping 20 motorists.

Volunteers with chain saws worked for several hours to open the road near Sultan, Wash.

Scattered rainshowers early today dampened the eastern Gulf Coast to the mid- and southern Atlantic Coast. Heavy fog blanketed parts of the central Gulf Coast to lower Michigan and northern Indiana.

Minnesota and eastern South Dakota also received scattered showers, as did the Texas Coast.

Showers were expected in the Southeast, with rain also spreading through the Pacific Northwest into the northern Plateau region.

Mild weather was predicted throughout the nation, while temperatures in the southwest deserts and in Florida were expected to hit the 80s.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 27 degrees in Rawlins, Wyo., to 75 degrees in Fort Lauderdale and Miami, Fla.

Hughs Case To Be In Austin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A long-awaited trial to determine the late Howard Hughes' legal residence — a decision worth many millions of dollars to the state that wins — probably will start in six to eight months, says an assistant to the Texas attorney general.

James Nelson made the statement to the Senate Finance Committee during Tuesday hearings on Attorney General Mark White's budget request for fiscal 1982-83.

Rabies Reported In Kerrville

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two confirmed cases of rabies in wild animals has prompted a two-week rabies vaccination clinic that will begin Monday, animal health officials said.

The state health department confirmed last week that two foxes killed in unrelated incidents had the disease. One of the animals attacked a young goat and the other jumped into a pen with some hunting dogs.

An outbreak of rabies in counties west of here could be spreading into more populated Kerr County, health authorities said.

Officials have reported more than 30 cases of rabies in a six-county area that borders the western edge of Kerr County, and a dozen people have taken anti-rabies injections because of possible exposure.

ONE INJURED—Rodney Babcock was injured in a two vehicle accident at 3:20 Tuesday afternoon at the intersection of Highway 180 and Farm Road 1611. The 1972 Jeep driven by Babcock collided with a 1980 Ford pickup driven by Randy Elmore and owned by Shell Pipeline. Both vehicles were moderately damaged. Babcock was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Scurry County EMS and was reported to have suffered a broken pelvis. (SDN Staff Photo)

Bill To Compensate Crime Victims OK'd

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has approved a bill that is supposed to pump about $5 million annually into Texas' undernourished fund for paying crime victims' medical and funeral expenses.

The Senate Jurisprudence Committee's 6-0 vote sent the bill, by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, to the floor for debate.

Since it went into business in January 1980, the Crime Victims Compensation Fund never has had enough money to cover more than a few of the hundreds of claims it receives. Its administrators say it is chronically broke.

Doggett's bill requires people convicted of minor misdemeanors, including traffic offerses, to pay a $1.25 court cost that would go into the fund. The law already imposes court costs of $10 in serious misdemeanor cases and $15 in felony cases.

The bill deals with one problem that has kept money from flowing into the fund by specifying that defendants must pay even if their sentences are probated.

Another feature of the bill requires city and county treasurers to record the court costs paid and remit them quarterly to the state comptroller. If no court costs are collected, a report to that effect would have to be submitted.

Bored Teens Give Away Flowers

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston teen-agers, who said they just got bored delivering Valentine flowers and gave them away to friends, have been charged with felony theft.

Assistant District Attorney Mary Milloy said the 18-year-old girls made a statement to police saying they had trouble finding addresses, got bored with the chore and gave the flowers away.

Shirley Taylor, owner of a Houston florist shop, said she didn't know anything was wrong until late Saturday when customers started calling to complain.

She estimated the value of the missing orders at $500.

Holder Tourney Set Here

Twenty-two teams from eight junior colleges and seven universities will compete in the third annual T.W. Holder Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at the Western Texas Golf Course this Saturday and Sunday.

Southwestern Oklahoma University, Angelo State, Texas Tech, West Texas State, McMurry, Cisco, Cameron, Odessa and Midland are some of the schools to be represented. Western Texas will field three teams for the two-day tournament.

Shotgun starts at 9 a.m. and 1:30 will open both days of the 36-hole event.

WTC Course will be closed to the playing public both days. Spectators are welcome.

Baseball Begins Saturday

Defending 3-3A champion and state semi-finalist Snyder High School begins the 1980-81 baseball season Saturday, scrimmaging Midland Lee at Moffat Field, 1 p.m.

The Tigers, shooting for a District 2-AAAA title this time around, will also scrimmage Lubbock Dunbar here at 3:30 on the 26th and trek to San Angelo for a 1 p.m. bout on the 28th before opening the regular season slate at Midland, March 2.

District play does not begin until March 27, when the Tigers play host to Fort Stockton.

Snyder returns two starters, pitcher Tony Degrate, and pitcher-infielder Mike Roemisch to the lineup. Several other returnees saw action last year.

Coaching the Tigers will be Albert Lewis, who has taken the team to four straight district championships.

Partnership Planned At SCC

Snyder Country Club will host its annual Ground Hog Partnership this weekend, Saturday and Sunday. The tournament had originally been scheduled two weeks ago, but reports of adverse weather caused its postponement.

The tournament will tee off at 12:30 Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday. Format remains the same, with Saturday's round consisting of best-ball, full handicap, and Sunday's round being both balls, full handicap.

Special entertainment will be featured at the clubhouse Saturday evening, beginning at 7.

Entry is $50 per two-man team. For further information, contact Mike Yantis at the Pro Shop, 573-7101.

It's Final, Degrate Signs With UT!

Tony Degrate, 6-4, 250-pound Snyder High School tackle, sat down at 10:40 this morning and officially inked a pact to attend the University of Texas before Longhorn head coach Fred Akers.

Degrate, an all-around athlete for Snyder the past three years, had signed a letter of intent last week after confirming his choice almost a month ago.

Over 60 colleges and universities were interested in the big athlete, who had narrowed his choice to UT, Oklahoma and a handful of other schools before deciding on the Longhorns.

Degrate, who also aided Snyder to the state baseball playoffs last year as a pitcher and threw the shot in the district track meet, had his best football year here in 1979-80.

Coming off knee surgery late in the spring and suffering an injured hand midway through the grid season, neither he nor the Tigers had a banner football year. That obviously did not deter Akers and a lot of other college coaches around the nation. Degrate was named to several coaches' and sports writers' top recruits lists for the season.

"We feel Tony has barely scratched the surface," said Akers. "We think he'll make a fine tackle for us. He would make a fine tackle for anybody, but we think he'll fit especially well with the type defense we run. He's not only big and strong, but he's quick too, and that's the way we like our tackles at Texas," he added.

Under Akers, the Longhorns are rebuilding to become even a stronger force in major college football. A good recruiting crop this season, including the likes of standouts Todd Dodge and Brent Duhon of Port Arthur Jefferson, Bill Heathcock of North Garland and John Stuart of Clear Lake City, is step No. 2 of the plan.

"This is our goal. You've got to have two good recruiting years in a row to make it work," said Akers, who had a banner recruting season last year as well. "We feel like with the young men we signed last year and the ones we are signing today, we'll be on the way to where we want to be."

Degrate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Degrate of Snyder.

DEGRATE INKS WITH TEXAS – Tony Degrate, standout athlete for Snyder High School, signed a letter with the University of Texas in his home at 10:40 this morning. With the 6-4, 250-pound tackle were his parents, Sidney and Gracie Degrate (above), several interested individuals from the community, UT head football coach Fred Akers, and coach John Mize. Dusters Top Tarleton

Western Texas' Dusters ripped, clawed and ravaged TIAA champion Tarleton State University most of the way here last night, then cruised in the final minutes for an 80-75 victory.

The non-conference win avenges a 67-64 loss to the TexAnns earlier this season in Stephenville.

The Dusters, 23-5 on the season, return to Western JC Athletic Conference action Thursday, taking on nationally ranked Amarillo College at 6 in Amarillo. A men's game will follow at 8.

WTC led early, going up 9-6 and later 14-10 on a pair of three-point plays by Stella Bickley and Shari Teal. Better overall hustle and quicker defense eventually increased the lead to 23 points before Tarleton made a late comeback to shave the margin to five.

Mid-first half action was led by freshman guard Cindy Maddox. Valerie Wells, WTC's high point player of the night, stuck up a pair of freethrows and Maddox added a 22-footer for a 20-14 lead. Tarleton's Wanda Byrd answered with a bucket for the TexAnns, but Maddox came back with shots from 30 and 20 to give the Dusters a 26-16 advantage.

Wells showed the way in the early going of the second half as she canned eight points in five minutes, leading to a 50-34 score. Later, Maddox scored on a fastbreak and Jenni Anderson connected on a pair of charity shots to make it 63-46.

Both teams traded buckets again, but Bickley, Joy Guyton and Dorcas Perkins retaliated with six consecutive points for a 23-point, 71-48 lead with just over six minutes to play.

Enter Freda Mayer, who led all scorers in the game with 30 points. Mayer ignited the TexAnns with a steal and score, watched as teammate Roxie Edwards notched a hoop, then added two more of her own for a 71-56 total. Sandra Powell then came up with three points and Edwards bagged another field goal to strip the Dusters' advantage to just 10, 71-61.

Teal finally broke WTC's scoring drought with 2:36 remaining, scoring on a fastbreak after the hosts and escaped Tarleton's fullcourt pressure.

The comeback reached a halt with 0:33 to go, however, when Bickley went to the line and shut the lid of a pair of charity shots. Tarleton was able to trip the lead back down to five points in the final seconds, but never lower.

All the Dusters participated in the contest, and nine put points on the board, led by Wells' 24. Teal came up with 17 Maddox had 12 and Bickley was also in the doubles with 11 points. Rounding out the scoring were Guyton with 5, Anderson with 4, Washington with 3 and Perkins and Lori Watson with 2 apiece.

Mayer paced the TexAnns with 30; Byrd had 17.

Lake View No Problem; Tigers Triumph Easily

SAN ANGELO -- Snyder's Tigers brought out the claws in the second half here last evening to scratch out their 15th straight win of the season and post a 72-47 victory over the Chiefs of Lake View High School.

The victory puts Coach George Byerly's bunch at 18-12 on the season and 6-0 in second round District 2-4A competition. Lake View falls to 1-4 and 11-18.

Snyder continues its bid for a conference championship Friday, entertaining Monahans' Loboes at 8 in Scurry County Coliseum. The Tigers conclude their regular season slate the next Tuesday by traveling to meet No. 7 ranked Andrews.

The Tigers jumped out to a 15-9 advantage in the first period with Eric Arnold and Kris Seale pacing the scoring. Lake View, geared by Stan Laing, trimmed the lead to four points midway in the second stanza, 21-17, but the Tigers came back with six straight points on freethrows and a field goal by Barry Blackmon and a bucket by D.W. Lofton, 27-17, and led at halftime, 29-23.

Snyder put the game under lock and key in the third quarter, outscoring the hosts by a 19-7 count. Arnold got his fourth foul with only 3:58 to go in the period, but Lofton filled in from the bench to keep the Chiefs guessing.

The score went back out to 10, 37-27 on a pair of steals which turned into layups for sophomore guard Curtis Gafford. Both teams then added another basket before Snyder rattled off 10 points to San Angelo's one in the final two minutes.

Blackmon led the march with four consecutive freethrows. John Wilson and Housden notched a bucket apiece, and Blackmon added a field goal with three seconds left for a 48-30 advantage.

A Blackmon two-pointer opened the final quarter with a 50-30 lead for the Tigers, who broke into the 21-point range when Seale hit back-to-back hoops with 5:14 left. Arnold, Wilson and Seale kept pace with the Chiefs until late in the game, when Snyder - using its strength on the bench - came up with six more straight points for a 68-41 advantage.

Seale's 18 points, mostly garnered from passes underneath, led the Tigers. Blackmon canned 14 and Arnold added 13 as all three returning seniors got into double figures. Wilson came up with 9, and Gafford had 6.

Laing's 17 was high for the Chiefs, who travel to Pecos on Friday.

Snyder junior varsity also won last night, tripping the Chiefs 60-54. Riley Kitchens led with 20 points, followed by Trey McWilliams with 16 and Danny Ramos with 14. Whit Parks added 7.

The Cats, who extend their record to 14-11 and also play Monahans on Friday, were behind 29-25 at halftime, but outscored the Chiefs 14-6 in the third period and 21-19 in the fourth to record the win.

Snyderite On Honor List

Kyle H. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jearld Smith, has been named to the dean's honor list at Texas Tech University for the 1980 fall semester.

A senior, Smith is in the School of Engineering and is majoring in architecture. Students on the honor list must have a 3.0 or better grade-point average.

Bill Aimed At Control Of Disruptive Children

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would give Texas school districts state money to set up centers for disruptive children is headed for the House floor, after getting surprise approval in a committee hearing.

The bill, sponsored by Grand Prairie Rep. Carlyle Smith, lets districts with 6,000 students set up a "school community guidance center" for children who have "problems with their education." It gained unanimous approval from the Public Education Committee Tuesday night.

"I was really shocked they passed it through," Smith said after the hearing. "I thought for sure they'd send it to a subcommittee."

Caroline Jacobs, principal of Pasadena's pilot guidance center program, told the committee her center has greatly cut the amount of juvenile crime in the coastal city.

"Daytime juvenile crime dropped 55 percent in January 1973, when the center was opened," she said. "In today's society with mom and dad working, if a student is expelled he has no supervision and becomes a menace to society."

The center has about an 80 percent rate of returning students to normal classrooms, Mrs. Jacobs said.

"I find that students who have a problem with rules — throwing Jell-O in the cafeteria or kissing their boyfriend or girlfriend in front of the lockers — don't like it when they're removed from their friends.

"They don't like it (the guidance center) and their school starts looking pretty good. They go back and participate," she said.

Witnesses for the Texas Federation of Teachers and Texas Classroom Teachers Association, and school administrators also supported the measure. There was no testimony against it.

Officials Of Jr. Colleges Hold Session

Officials of area junior colleges discussed the current legislative program and other items of mutual interest at a meeting Tuesday night at Howard College In Big Spring.

Dr. Al Langford, president of Midland College, who also is president of the Texas Community-Junior College Association, reported that conferences Monday with House Speaker Bill Clayton and other legislators concerning the House Bill's provision for community college funding were encouraging. The House Bill, which was drafted by Clayton, was more than $200 million below the Legislative Budget Board's recommendation and also was well below the amount recommended by Gov. Bill Clements.

Athletic programs and salary scales also were discussed during the session. Odessa College officials indicated that they were moving toward a Rodeo program and Howard College officials said they were looking into the possibility of a baseball program.

Dr. Charles Hayes, president of Howard College, presided. Attending were administrators and board members of Howard College, Midland College, Odessa College and Western Texas College. Representing WTC were Dr. Don Newbury, president-elect; Edwin Parks, board president, and R. C. Patton and Wacil McNair, members of the board of trustees.

Ambulances To Be In New Location

Joy Barnett, operator of Scurry County EMS, has announced that they will begin operating from a new location tomorrow. The new office is located where the Calico Cottage was at 2005 26th St.

Ms. Barnett says the plan is to have someone there at all times and to have a place where people can go by to pay their bills. The emergency phone number will remain the same, 573-3514, but there will be a new business phone — 573-0841.

Ms. Barnett asks that people please use the business phone for all reasons other than emergencies so as not to tie up the emergency phone.

Wayward Mother and Child Find Refuge of Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: In my mail this morning was a picture of a beautiful newborn baby boy. I'm sorry I can't share it with you, but I can share the letter that accompanied it:

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18 years old and want to tell you about a place that is to many a godsend. It's Booth Memorial Residence, a home for unwed mothers-to-be. It's run by the Salvation Army people, and the atmosphere is one of love, caring and understanding. In the five months I lived there, not one girl was turned away. There are no age, race or financial barriers. It provides a friendly family atmosphere for pregnant girls as well as health care, prenatal courses, assistance in schooling and career goals and personal counseling. No girl is ever pressured to give up her baby or keep it.

The residence I lived in is in Omaha, Neb., but there are others throughout the country. I will never forget these wonderful people. I hope one day to return to Omaha to live and work, and when I do, I plan to volunteer at Booth to help other girls who come there for help as I did.

Thanks to terrific counseling, I am content and happy knowing that I made the right decision in giving up my son. The couple who adopted him were ecstatic to receive him, and I know that they will always celebrate Thanksgiving on Nov. 27th, his birthday.

If this letter helps just one girl and her family, it will have been worth the writing. Love and many thanks, Abby.

STARTING OVER IN MO.

DEAR STARTING: What a beautiful letter. God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: A social club of adult women recently had a party for members and their escorts only. Some members indicated that they wanted to attend unescorted. It was ruled that attending a dancing party without an escort was unacceptable because it would put a burden on the other club members' escorts in terms of dancing or entertaining those women who came unescorted.

In today's society, with so much emphasis placed on women's independence and doing their own thing, I totally disagreed with this rule. How do you feel about restricting attendance to only those women who bring an escort?

PERPLEXED IN N.Y.

DEAR PERPLEXED: I think it's discriminatory and therefore unfair. However, the majority rules in most clubs, so you may be in the wrong club.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please inform your readers that the armed forces are not the place for social misfits, or hard-to-handle characters who lack direction and motivation in their lives?

I can't tell you how many times I've heard people say, "A couple of years in the service would straighten out that young man!"

Edit this letter any way you want, Abby, but please let your readers know that the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Air Force is not an alternative to a reform school!

C.W.K.

DEAR C.W.K.: I couldn't have said it better.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. have joined the price war started by struggling Chrysler Corp., and some analysts say Chrysler could get caught in the crossfire.

An hour later, Ford annoinced it would give buyers a rebate of 10 percent of the base price on certain models until March 21. The models for which rebates will be offered account for 56 percent of Ford's sales.

Brothel 'Trick List' Hearing Set Thursday

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A state judge must decide whether a local newspaper's First Amendment rights are more important than the reputations of 3,000 people whose names are on a "trick list" police say they seized from a brothel now dubbed "The Best Little Whorehouse in San Antonio."

The Thursday hearing in District Judge James Onion's court is the latest episode in a controversy that has raged in the nation's 10th-largest city since Oct. 2 when vice squad officers seized the list of names and arrested three women at what police claim is a brothel.

Editors of "El Pueblo," a community newspaper that claims to have a copy of the list, said it includes some of the city's most well-known political movers and shakers — influential businessmen, school board members and even some judges.

"We believe that the people of San Antonio want the names on that list made public," said Antonio Cabral, spokesman for El Pueblo's editorial board.

"We believe that the people of San Antonio want to know what kind of men are legislating laws and then breaking them themselves, what kind of men are sending people to jail when they themselves should be in jail, what kid of men use their wealth and influence not only to control the city but also to promote illegal businesses like a house of prostitution."

Onion issued a temporary restraining order on Feb. 10 forbidding the publishing of the names pending Thursday's hearing, at which El Pueblo's attorneys plan to argue the freedom of the press.
