Food Costs Show Dip For June

By The Associated Press

GROCERY bills took a slight dip last month, reflecting recent drops in wholesale prices, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. But the outlook for the rest of the year is clouded by factors including oil price increases and the truckers' strike.

The AP drew up a random list of commonly purchased food and non-food items and checked the price on March 1, 1973, at one supermarket in each of 13 cities. Prices were rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The government has been predicting that the rate of increase in food prices would slow during the second half of the year. A boost in pork supplies was expected to help make up for the decline in the amount of beef coming to market — a decline that has sent meat prices soaring.

(Food Prices In Lubbock Show Slight Drop, Page 5, Sec. A)

Pork supplies are increasing — there are 16 percent more hogs ready to be marketed from July to September than there were a year ago. New problems have developed, however. A strike by independent truckers seeking more fuel at lower prices has disrupted food shipments, and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has announced another boost in the price of crude oil. Both actions are expected to add to grocery bills.

Among the highlights of the latest AP survey:

•The marketbasket bill increased during June at the checklist store in six of the cities surveyed and declined in seven. On an overall basis, the bill was seven-tenths of a percent lower at the start of July than it was a month earlier. The drop compared with an increase of one-tenth of a percent during the previous month.

The declines generally reflect lower prices being paid to farmers, but recent government studies have shown that the marketing portion of the food bill — the amount spent on processing, transportation and retailing — is increasing, meaning that drops in farm prices are not always fully reflected at the supermarket.

•Comparing today's prices with those at the start of the year, the AP found the marketbasket bill had risen an average of 3.8 percent in the first six months of 1979. That compared with a 5.6 percent boost in the first half of 1978.

•Butter and eggs declined in more cities than any other item. The price of a pound of butter dropped at the checklist store in six cities, while eggs declined in seven cities.

Bolivian Vote Leaves Three In Top Race

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Former President Hernan Siles Zuazo, a 66-year-old populist who spent years in political exile, won a plurality of the popular vote in Sunday's presidential election but faces a tough runoff vote in Congress.

Siles Zuazo's left-wing Popular Democratic Front failed to get the absolute majority required for direct election, according to unofficial results announced Monday with 65 percent of the votes counted.

Bolivia's 114 congressmen, also elected Sunday, will choose among Siles Zuazo and two other former presidents, Victor Paz Estenssoro and Hugo Banzer Suarez. Paz Estenssoro, 71, heads the centrist National Revolutionary Movement and the 53-year-old Banzer is a right-wing, retired general who ruled with a military junta for seven years.

Silez Zuazo had 37.3 percent of the vote, Paz Estenssoro 29.3 percent and Banzer 18 percent. Five other candidates trailed well behind.

The final official count will not be announced until the end of the month, by the Supreme Electoral Court.

No results of the congressional elections by party were aailable.

The victor will be Bolivia's first elected president since Paz Etenssoro was overthrown by a military coup in 1964.

Sunday's election was the second in

TEARFUL WELCOME — Terre Fleener, a 24-year-old American released after spending 20 months in an Israeli prison for a spying conviction, is hugged by her grandmother, Rose Guerrero, right, as she returns home to San Antonio Monday. Arab 'Spy' Returns To Texas Hometown

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Convicted spy Terre Fleener returned home after 20 months in an Israeli prison Monday, receiving a tearful embrace from her 67-year-old grandmother and flowers and champagne from friends.

"It's been very difficult, but I'm very glad to be back," the 24-year-old Miss Fleener, who was convicted of spying for Arab terrorists, told reporters at the airport after being met by Rosa Guerrero, the maternal grandmother with whom she lived most of her life.

Miss Fleener, a former stewardess on Kuwait Airlines, was arrested and charged in 1977 with taking photographs and collecting information for Palestine Liberation Organization terrorists during a 1976 trip to Israel. She was convicted in January 1978 after a one-day, closed-door trial and sentenced to five years in prison.

Miss Fleener, the first American ever jailed in Israel on security charges, had her sentence halved last month, reportedly because of pressure from the United States. She became eligible for parole last week and was released Saturday.

"I am very, very grateful to the American government," she said as she walked to a car, arm-in-arm with her grandmother and surrounded by three airport security guards and reporters.

Tactics Discussed

On the plane trip from Israel to Rome, Miss Fleener told The Associated Press that the PLO's terrorist tactics were "the only route available to them" and said she still believes "very strongly in the Palestinian people's struggle."

But at Monday's reunion, she was asked if she still supported the terrorists and replied, "That's a tough question to answer. It's quite involved. I don't condone it or condemn it. I would rather explain it."

She refused to elaborate, saying, "I'm afraid I'm just a little overwhelmed right now. This is a complicated issue. I don't think I can handle that right now."

Press Conference Planned

Catherine Edwards, Miss Fleener's former political science professor at the University of Texas at San Antonio, and a witness at the trial in Israel, said there would be a press conference in Washington "in about a week."

Miss Fleener, appearing nervous and much thinner than the 155 pounds she weighed at the time of her imprisonment, wore jeans and a checked sleeveless blouse.

She tearfully hugged her grandmother for several minutes and was overheard telling her, "I feel pretty good."

Airport security officers had originally told Mrs. Guerrero that Miss Fleener had not boarded the flight in New York. Neither Mrs. Guerrero nor reporters left the gate, however, and Miss Fleener came walking into the lobby a few moments later.

"I feel wonderful, excited, nervous and tense and I'm about to cry," Mrs. Guerrero said as she awaited her granddaughter. "I just want to take her home and let her get her feet on the ground. I'm going to let her do what she wants to do and give her a lot of love."

Asked about her immediate plans, Miss Fleener said, "I just want to go home and be with my grandmother." She has said she might enroll in college in California.

People Parade, Other July 4th Events Planned

"A PEOPLE parade" will highlight the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's July 4th celebration, as Lubbock prepares to celebrate the Independence Day holiday Wednesday.

A patriotic sing-along, an early settler's reunion, a "Happy Birthday, America" cake that will feed 2,500 and various activities at the Ranching Heritage Center will round out the day's activities.

Thirty-five local organizations already have signed up to march in the parade, but spectators alonge parade route are encouraged to join the parade as it passes by, Jim Douglas, parade coordinator, said.

"We want everybody in Lubbock to be a part," Douglas said.

The parade, a new addition to the Chamber of Commerce's July 4th activities, will assemble at the Civic Center parking lot by the Mahon Library at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. at Avenue M and continue down Broadway to the Texas Tech University campus, Douglas said.

Organizations that wish to participate in the parade are urged to notify the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Parade marshal is U.S. Rep. Kent Hance. Also participating in the parade are Col. Richard Ingram of Reese Air Force Base and the reigning Miss Lubbock-USA.

Patriotic speeches and a sing-along will follow the parade in the parking lot of the University Center. The 2,500-person birthday cake will be cut at that time, parade chairman Morris Wilkes said.

An early settlers reunion, open to the public but honoring the settlers of the South Plains will be held in the University Center at noon. The Ranching Heritage Center will offer old-fashioned games and exhibits from 5 to 9 p.m.

High Court Renews Support Of Busing

Judicial Desegregation Power Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court strengthened the power of federal judges Monday to order massive busing plans to racially desegregate public schools in northern cities.

In a separate decision, the justices gave trial judges broad discretion to lock out the public and news media from traditionally open pretrial hearings to ensure an unbiased trial.

The court also, in a brief order issued at mid-afternoon, let stand a federal appeals court ruling that said the Carter administration may deny government contracts to companies that fail to follow the administration's voluntary wage-price guidelines.

Only three of nine justices voted to hear arguments by the AFL-CIO that Carter lacks authority to enforce the program. The votes of four members are needed to grant such a review.

In what may be their last day on the bench until next October, the justices announced several other important decisions and orders. But rather than end its 1978-79 term for the summer as it has in past years, the court said its current term will last until one day before the next one begins.

No explanation for the unusual action was given.

The court's new guidelines on school desegregation were supplied in a pair of decisions involving Columbus and Dayton, two Ohio cities.

By a 7-2 vote, the justices cleared the way for a systemwide desegregation plan that will require Columbus public schools to bus more than 37,000 of their 89,000 students.

By a 5-4 vote, they upheld a racial desegregation plan under which some 18,000 students in Dayton public schools have been bused for the past three school years.

Power Supported

Writing for the court in both cases, Justice Byron R. White made it clear that federal judges are free to order desegregation steps for an entire school district when they are convinced that a school board's racial bias had systemwide effects.

Civil rights leaders had feared that the justices would use the Ohio cases to restrict federal judges' authority to order district-wide busing remedies.

But White's opinions instead reinforced a landmark 1973 ruling in which the court used a Denver schools case to say that school board policies in northern cities could establish the same unconstitutionally segregated school system as state laws had established in southern communities.

Racial segregation in public schools, and by extension in other aspects of American life, was outlawed in 1954 in one of the Supreme Court's most famous decisions.

In the Columbus case, White said: "We have discovered no reason to disturb the judgment of the court of appeals ... that the (school) board's conduct at the time of trial and before not only was animated by an unconstitutional, segregative purpose but also had current segregative impact that was sufficiently systemwide to warrant the remedy ordered by the (trial judge)."

In the Dayton case, he said: "The Dayton board had engaged in many post-(1954) actions that had the effect of increasing or perpetuating segregation."

In both cases, White said, systemwide remedies were appropriate.

Justices William H. Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. dissented in the Columbus ruling. It was Rehnquist who last August postponed the effect of the desegregation plan ordered by the lower courts.

Rehnquist and Powell were joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Potter Stewart in disagreeing with the Dayton decision.

"We couldn't be happier," said William Taylor of the Washington-based Center for National Policy Review, whose organization had urged the court to uphold the desegregation plans.

Activists Pleased

" I think today's rulings provide a continuing spur to desegregation efforts and may vindicate lower court rulings in school cases from cities such as Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis," Taylor said.

The decisions also were hailed by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, where spokesman Jack Greenberg said the court's rulings "will have a major and positive effect on the 50 active school desegregation cases currently on our docket."

But in Columbus, school board member Steven Boley said, "I continue to believe the Columbus public schools were not ever intentionally segregated." Day-

Thunderstorms Dent South Plains Heat

A-J News Services

THUNDERSTORMS marched across the South Plains Monday night, buffeting the area with gusty winds, heavy rains and marble-size hail.

The storms began their trek about 9:30 p.m., when National Weather Service radar reported heavy thunderstorms in Lamb and Hockley Counties and southern Terry County. By 10 p.m., the storm front had reached Lubbock and Lynn Counties.

Winds preceding the thunderstorms at Lubbock International Airport gusted up to 48 mph, while the Hockley County Sheriff reported strong winds and marble-size hail in the Levelland area.

Churning dust, kicked up by the front as it passed through, reduced visibility to less than one mile in areas.

By 11 p.m., weather radar indicated an area of scattered to numerous showers and thunderstorms over western and central counties of the South Plains, however the weather service reported the storms' coverage and intensity was slowly decreasing.

In the wake of the storm, which dropped Lubbock temperatures 10 degrees in an hour as it passed, today's weather should continue the pattern of scorching temperatures and sunny skies.

An almost stationary low pressure system along the New Mexico/Texas border, however, will cause a slight chance for scattered afternoon showers over the northwest portions of the South Plains and the Panhandle as daytime heating combine with the front's moisture.

Forecasters predict temperatures to soar into the middle 90s today and Wednesday — slightly cooler than afternoon highs recorded near 100 earlier this week.

Monday in Lubbock the mercury nudged the 100 mark with an afternoon high of 99.

Monday's winds should shift from the south to the southwest today and continue blowing at 15 to 20 mph.

Seasonal temperatures with highs in the 90s should continue across West Texas through Saturday, although the chance for thunderstorms in the northern half of the region should increase.

Court Ruling Backs Integration Here

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PROPONENTS OF systemwide integration in Lubbock public schools are encouraged by Monday's Supreme Court desegregation rulings, but an anti-busing group contends it is not licked yet.

The nation's highest court upheld a systemwide desegregation plan for Dayton, Ohio, public schools by a vote of 5-4 and for Columbus, Ohio, schools by a 7-2 decision.

Writing for the majority, Justice Byron R. White said lower court proceedings in both the Dayton and Columbus cases proved that the school boards had been guilty of racial discrimination.

Lubbock Case Forerunner

Parties involved in Lubbock's desegregation case — now before the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals since an April 10 hearing — believed the panel of appeals judges was awaiting the Dayton and Columbus decisions before ruling in the Lubbock case.

Lubbock Independent School District officials had hoped a ruling upholding a limited desegregation remedy in Dayton would eliminate further appeals in the Lubbock case.

LISD attorney Tom Johnson cited the Dayton case as a major point in his final argument last year before U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward who ordered a limited desegregation plan for Lubbock.

Johnson said at the time of the appeals hearing in Dallas that the spirit of the Dayton case was implicit in Woodward's order.

Government Case "Stronger"

Attorney Jessica Silver, who argued the Justice Department's appeal to overturn Woodward's order, said Monday from Washington, D.C., that the high court's ruling appears to support the government's position in the Lubbock case. "I think it makes the Lubbock case stronger for the government," she said.

She said she did not know when the Fifth Circuit would rule in the Lubbock case, but said, "I think they were waiting for this decision."

Johnson said Monday morning that the appeals court could rule right away, but that probably "it would be at least a couple of weeks."

He said he will have to read the Supreme Court's ruling in the case before he knows whether the decision will prove favorable or unfavorable for the school district's case. He added that the high court's holding and opinions within that holding could have two different ef-

Americans Write About Skylab

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I know this might sound crazy, I mean, an 11-year-old kid suggesting something to the president," said a letter from a boy named Clayton. "But I think I know how to save Skylab."

He went on to suggest that the United States send up an Apollo spacecraft, "have it attach a tow line to Skylab and have it pulled right back into orbit."

A lot of people like Clayton are writing to Washington about Skylab while the once-magnificent space laboratory comes closer to an ignominious end as a shower of space junk.

Some of the writers try to be helpful, some are angry, many are fearful. A great many suggest using a missile to blow up the 77.5-ton hulk, not realizing that such a move would allow more debris to survive the plunge to Earth.

All letters are referred to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which answers each one.

"I'm scared about me sleeping some night and having a 5,000-pound piece of metal crushing our home or walking down the street and having a 10-pound piece of metal land on my head," a high school student in Madison, N.Y., wrote the president. "Just think, one of these pieces might land on the White House."

NASA says the odds against a piece of Skylab hitting the author of that letter are a mere 600 billion to one. The laboratory will break up when it hits the atmosphere, and 500 pieces big enough to cause injuries will survive.

The latest prediction is that the Skylab's final plunge will occur between July 10 and July 14, with a 50 percent chance it will be before July 12.

A physician in Yucca Valley, Calif., suggested sending up an astronaut to boost Skylab into a higher orbit "where it could wait until the crew of our space shuttle got to it."

He didn't say how the astronaut would be transported since the United States has no spacecraft for such an assignment.

"Can you tell me if Modesto, Calif., is in the path of the orbit, and if so, would you recommend a better location?" asked a man from, guess where.

The space agency replied that Modesto, like all the United States except Alaska, is under the Skylab orbit at one time or another. "An individual is 3,000 times more likely to be struck by lightning," the man was told.

"These days the left-wing radicals are all blaming you and your

Health Sciences Officials Play Down Problems To New Residents

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Health Sciences Center Hospital's new medical residents got the traditional "welcome aboard" speeches Monday, as well as assurance that the hospital is not going to fold.

"Health Sciences Center Hospital is going to survive," assistant administrator Charles Roberts asserted, and his statement was echoed by Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president of Health Sciences Center. The orientation for new residents comes just a week after the county hospital district's executive director was dismissed by the board of managers.

Lockwood mentioned Bosworth's dismissal, saying that he thought the change in administration was unfortunate. He spoke highly of Bosworth, but added that associate director of operations George McGowan will do a good job.

"I think that what we are going through here is little different from any other teaching hospital in the country," Lockwood said. He echoed Roberts' speech, saying that the hospital will survive its current administrative flounderings and financial crisis.

But Lockwood warned the residents against completely detaching themselves from the problems of the hospital, even though they are technically affiliated with the Texas Tech School of Medicine.

"It's your problem as well," Lockwood stressed. He discussed the partnership between the county-supported teaching hospital and the medical school as well as their mutual dependence.

He urged the new residents to study the problems of their own hospital, as well as the problems of the whole hospital industry.

Lockwood said after his speech that he wasn't aware of any real concern from residents on possible closing of the hospital. However, he stressed that he hopes to move the residents away from their usual preoccupation with the strictly clinical aspects of their stay at the hospital.

Other doctors made reference to the hospital's shaky financial status, including Dr. Wayne Heine's joking remark that the hospital's "death notice was premature."

But another doctor warned against the residents becoming too embroiled in what he called the hospital's "politics." The residents should remember they are at the hospital to become competent doctors, he said.

Of the 32 new residents expected during the next few weeks, 22 have already started their duties at the hospital. Many departments, such as surgery and internal medicine, are receiving their first residents after gaining recent certification.

In most cases, a hospital residency takes about three to five years to complete. Health Sciences Center Hospital is paying the salaries of the resident physicians, though hospital officials have been pleading with the Legislature to pick up the costs.

It has been estimated that it takes about $15,000 per year to train each resident physician.

Brazil has received a $93-million loan from the World Bank to assist in financing a major, low-cost housing project.

U.S.-Mexico Marijuana Traffic Down

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Smuggling in the one-time "marijuana capital" of the nation has fallen dramatically, officials say, partly because ever more sophisticated American users have lost their taste for simple Mexican grades.

"Now everything is Colombian, or from Hawaii," says Mike Cochran, deputy director of the Arizona Drug Control District.

"Let's call it a fad or social phenomenon among people who are disposed to do those things," Cochran said. "Whether you're a dealer or a user, after you've tried it, you're disposed to look for a bigger and better product."

Cochran compared the pattern to that experienced several years ago by the U.S. wine industry, when novice wine tasters graduated from sweet wines to drier and more expensive products of the vine.

Today, Cochran said, Colombia is the Napa Valley of the marijuana industry, and the big-time smugglers have moved to the shores of Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas.

"We look at Tucson more as a community of users now instead of a smuggling enclave," he said. In years past, legislators and law enforcement officials alike dubbed the city the U.S. "marijuana capital."

Marijuana smuggling has been "pretty slow for a good 18 months," Cochran said.

In the year from July 1, 1976, to June 30, 1977, Arizona narcotics agents confiscated 42,000 pounds of marijuana. But in the following year, only 3,200 pounds were rounded up. Arizona's catch then rose again in the last six months of last year, with 3,300 pounds being confiscated.

In comparison, Florida authorities "don't think they've even done a day's work unless they confiscate 40,000 pounds," Cochran said.

Other factors may also have played a part in the demise of marijuana traffic across the Arizona border, Cochran said.

Publicity over the spraying of the herbicide paraquat on Mexican plants has scared off some potential dealers and users, he said.

Inflation also has played a part in cutting smuggling, Cochran said.

With the wholesale price of high-grade marijuana up from $85 a pound in Tuscon two years ago to $300 a pound now, smugglers can afford to make fewer trips across the border and deliver smaller loads while netting the same profit.

In addition, Cochran said, more sophisticated investigative techniques have given Arizona a tough reputation with deaiers. Instead of border surveillance, agents rely more on informers for tips on drug-ring operations.

The Central Arizona Regional Narcotics Enforcement Unit investigated fewer than a dozen cases last year, infiltrated six drug rings and made 49 arrests.

INDEPENDENT ISLAND

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (AP) — This 150-square mile island in the eastern Caribbean will be declared independent from Britain on Oct. 27, exactly 12 years after it became a British Associated State, Premier Milton Cato has announced. British officials said they were unable to agree to the first independence date, Jan. 22 of this year, because the British government would not have had enough time to prepare for the event. Further delay was caused by the eruption of La Soufriere volcano in March, causing the evacuation of about 10,000 St. Vincent residents.

Malaysia Accepts 623 Refugees As Favor To French, Rejects 1,050 Others

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia turned away 1,050 more Vietnamese refugees and towed them to sea Monday, still saying it is up to other nations to accept them. But it relented in the case of another boatload — 623 people — and let them stay as a favor to the French.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington meanwhile lambasted Vietnam as the source of the problem — and the nation that should do the most to solve it.

"The policy of systematic expulsion which Vietnam is pursuing places responsibility for the current crisis squarely on Vietnam's shoulders," Vance said. "We have called upon Vietnam, publicly and privately, to change the conditions and policies which are forcing hundreds of thousands to flee, and tens of thousands to die."

Vance, at a meeting of Southeast Asian foreign ministers in Bali, Indonesia, pledged "continuing American help in dealing with the refugee crisis," and said the Carter administration supports establishment of more refugee centers in Southeast Asia.

But that proposal differs from Malaysian suggestions — whose essence is that Vietnam, along with the United States and other Western nations, should be the sites of refugee centers that would take the burden off the Southeast Asian nations to which they now flee.

Last week, President Carter said the United States will double its intake of Vietnamese refugees from 7,000 a month to 14,000, but that drew criticism from Singapore as too small to make much difference.

Some 300,000 Indochinese refugees, most from Vietnam and many of them ethnic Chinese who say they are fleeing Vietnamese persecution, have reached other Southeast Asian nations, and as many as 1.5 million more are expected.

The United Nations has estimated that 30 to 40 percent of these "boat people" drown. The host nations say the refugees create immense problems they cannot handle, and for which they are not responsible.

On Monday, Malaysia continued to dramatize the problem by towing away three more boatloads of people intercepted by naval patrols — one with more than 950 passengers that was the second biggest boatload of refugees to have reached Malaysian waters since the war between North and South Vietnam ended in 1975.

The biggest load — 2,500 Vietnamese refugees — was aboard the 1,500-ton coastal freighter Hai Hong, which anchored off Port Klang, 20 miles west of Kuala Lumpur, last Nov. 14. Several Western nations, including the United States, agreed to take in the Hai Hong's passengers after Malaysia threatened to tow it out to sea.

Those rejected Monday brought to 57,513 the number of "boat people" known to have been towed to sea from Malaysia in 347 vessels since Jan. 1, and to 15,513 the number towed out in 80 boats since June 18.

That was the day Malaysia, already sheltering some 76,000 refugees, began to refuse any more. Its new policy is to give new arrivals food, water, fuel and other necessities, then tow them back out to international waters in hopes they will go elsewhere.

Despite the new policy, Malaysia agreed on Monday that 623 refugees who landed at the Pulau Bidong camp June 24 could stay on. It was the first known acceptance of refugees since June 18.

The reason was a personal request from French diplomat Olivier Stirn, who visited Pulau Bidong Sunday and was told by representatives of the 42,000 Vietnamese in the island camp that soldiers were looking for new arrivals and saying they would be taken to another camp.

Tech Students Paid For Athlete's Foot

Having a healthy case of athlete's foot can be profitable these days instead of a social embarrassment.

Pfizer, a pharmaceutical company, is conducting a study on athlete's foot in cooperation with about ten universities around the country including Texas Tech University.

Eighty Tech students with athlete's foot are either being treated with a new Pfizer remedy or "the old standby we have been using for years," said Alicia Gordon of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine Dermatology Clinic.

The consolation for the six week test —$100 a patient. And possibly a cured case of athlete's foot.

Dr. Criag Urban of the Tech School of Medicine said 60 students have already completed the test and Pfizer has asked Tech to process 20 more cases for further study.

"Most people have been getting good results with both the new product and the old one," he said. Students must come in to the clinic every other week for check-ups and have two samples of blood drawn to complete the test, Urban said.

"But it's totally painless," Urban said.

Pfizer gets it's test results from the study, students get an easy $100.

For providing the 80 students and processing 80 cases of athlete's foot, Texas Tech will probably get a grant from the pharmaceutical company, Urban said. He said the money is usually used to buy new equipment or books for libraries or experiments.

"And it's nice to be in on something like this," he said. "If you do a good job, the drug companies are interested in working with you again. And that can mean extra money for the department."

Opry Tickets Go On Sale

Tickets went on sale Monday for the eighth KLLL West Texas Saturday night Opry, slated for 8 p.m. July 21 in Municipal Auditorium.

The opry has been held in the Civic Center, which seats 1,400, but ticket demand was so great the popular event was moved to the auditorium, which seats more than 3,000.

All proceeds from the July 21 show will be donated to the Lubbock chapter of Easter Seals to purchase rehabilitative equipment for the handicapped. The equipment will be located in St. Mary's Hospital.

To date, the seven previous events have raised more than $15,000 for local charities, including Meals on Wheels, Girlstown U.S.A., Baseball for the Blind, Multiple Sclerosis, Handicapped Children's Center, Toys for Tots and Treehouse Village.

Scheduled to perform on the next opry are Don Caldwell, Jim Fullingim, Cecil Caldwell, South Plains Bluegrass, Tommy Arnwine, David House, Johnny Ray Watson, Tommie Anderson, Brian Morris, the Angle Sisters, B.W. Briggs, the Maines Brothers, Margaret Jordan and Eileen Durham. Steve Sever will emcee.

All seats are reserved and tickets are $3 each. They may be obtained at Luskey's Western Wear or at both locations of Flipside Records. Tickets for the last opry sold out in less than three days.

AN EDITORIAL:

Put Stop To Stop-Go Politics

WHILE THE government periodically has launched the fiscal and monetary restraint necessary to curb inflation, it also has reversed itself each time that approach produced an economic slowdown.

The result, according to George Hagedorn, chief economist of the National Assn. of Manufacturers, has been the "stop-go economic pattern" of the past one and a half decades. Says Hagedorn:

"The acceleration of inflation has not been a smooth, steady process, but has come in a series of waves...cresting respectively in 1966, 1969, 1974 and 1979."

As each crest approached, government shifted toward more restrictive fiscal and monetary policies which, after a lag, resulted in some subsidence of the inflationary wave but also a general economic slowdown.

"IN THE CASE of the past three inflationary waves, government switched at that point in the cycle," Hagedorn says, "to highly expansionary fiscal and monetary policies, thus starting the process which eventually led to the next wave of accelerated inflation."

The wavy nature of our 15 years of inflation hasn't protected us from the economic deterioration always produced by inflation. "In fact," says Hagedorn, "the instability and uncertainty resulting from stop-go policies has aggravated our inflation-caused problems."

The slowdown in productivity growth surely is connected with this instability and uncertainty.

EVEN OUR energy crisis is in part the product of our more general economic policies of recent years.

It is significant that the Arab boycott on petroleum shipments in 1973, the OPEC quadrupling of oil prices in early 1974, the further OPEC price increases announced last week, and the present gasoline shortages all occurred at or near the crest of one of our inflationary waves.

Although each past wave of inflation subsided after its crest, each crest was higher than the one before. And each of the recessionary setbacks which followed the successive inflationary crests was worse than the one before.

Clearly, the stop-go approach has been a cumulative national disaster. So, the important question for our long-term economic future is whether we are going to continue this ruinous stop-go pattern into the 1980s—and beyond.

AN EDITORIAL:

No One Wins Talmadge Case

THERE WON'T BE any winners in the Senate Ethics Committee probe of financial misconduct charges against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., regardless of the outcome.

It doesn't matter, at bottom, whether you believe Talmadge, a 23-year veteran of the Senate, or his chief accuser, a former top aide named Daniel Minchew who now has turned on his old boss.

Somebody in a position of public trust indisputably played fast and loose for years with taxpayers' money and with campaign funds and did so with a cavalier disregard of the laws against such finagling.

It's too bad it took a press investigation, rather than internal checks, to bring the whole scheme to light.

THE COMMITTEE has accused Talmadge of converting campaign contributions to his own use, and of responsibility for at least $37,000 in illegitimate Senate expense claims, The AP reported.

Talmadge initially dismissed charges as "trivial" and "petty," scarcely worth comment let alone rebuttal. However, he changed his mind last week, yielding to a formal committee "request" (not subpoena) to testify when hearings resume Monday, July 9. His lawyers contend the committee has gathered so little evidence that it is needless for them to call any witnesses, but Talmadge says he plans to, anyway.

Four of the six panel members tentatively have concluded there is enough evidence to recommend censure, AP sources indicated. A censure recommendation would go to the full Senate.

BLAMING THE staff is a hoary tradition on Capitol Hill, the last bastion of feudalism in modern America. Labor laws, civil rights laws and the like do not apply to congressional workers.

The result can be pleasing and protecting the boss even if it means cutting a few corners now and then—or accepting blame where none is really due.

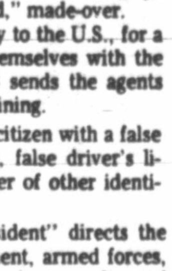
Even Minchew, the ex-staffer who broke the code, still pays lip service to it. It was Minchew who handled all the dirty work. He did so, he testified, in order to "insulate" the senator and give Talmadge "deniability" in case the business ever came to light.

"I probably would have done so (taken the fall)," the former aide claimed, if Talmadge had asked him instead of turning on him and calling in the Justice Department.

Whether your sympathies lie with Talmadge, Minchew or neither, it's a mundane tale of petty chiseling, arrogance and deceit of the kind that has given politicians in general such an unsavory reputation.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Hamstrung CIA Can't Keep Up With Soviets



PRESIDENT CARTER is scrapping America's spies.

Today seven Congressional committees must be notified in advance of Central Intelligence Agency operations. We might as well be without our Air Force as lack a strong, alert worldwide CIA.

President Carter has so hamstrung our CIA that we have the weakest, most inefficient intelligence apparatus of any of the world's major powers. The loss emaciates the CIA's proper functions.

Behind the scenes, CIA morale is so low that at least 300 senior and middle-level officials are asking CIA Director Stansfield Turner for early retirement. But America simply cannot lose these absolutely indispensable operators.

THE CIA finds it absolutely impossible to carry forward America's worldwide anti-Soviet and anti-China policies. We have every right to doubt whether World War II's victory could have been won without U.S. intelligence arms breaking the Japanese codes and, working with the British and the "little black box," the Nazi codes.

Actually, the Soviet secret police, the KGB—to say nothing of China's—spends more each year on intelligence and is larger than the U.S. intelligence operations.

Since 1976, hangman Uri Vladimirovich Adropov, 64, has been chief of the dreaded Komitet Gosudarstvennoi Bazopasnosti. President and First Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev absolutely and directly commands the KGB.

In 1973 Brezhnev made Adropov, his lackey, a member of the Soviet's ruling 17-member Politburo, the first so elevated since Lavrenti P. Beria was executed in Moscow's Lubyanka dungeon.

ADROPOV HAS organized the KGB into 15 directorates. The U.S. being the only nation that the Soviet really fears, the American Section is, overwhelmingly, the largest.

Gen. Alaksandr M. Sakharovsky commands the 1st Chief Directorate. It alone employs abroad at least 10,000 secret agents, compared to about 4,000 that our CIA employs.

The KGB relies heavily on "sleepers." It thinks nothing of obtaining a recruit, completely training him, sending him to another country and then finally using him actively "in place" 10 or 12 years later.

The KGB trains most agents at its secret center near Kutchchinsk, outside Moscow, and then supertrains the most promising agents at Barkov on the Vereyka River, 40 miles from Moscow.

THE KGB PUTS great store in its foreign agents, calling them "regroomed," made-over.

It first sends them abroad, say to the U.S., for a year to carefully familiarize themselves with the target country. Then the KGB sends the agents back to the USSR for further training.

It turns the agent into a U.S. citizen with a false passport, false birth certificate, false driver's license and an astounding number of other identification documents.

The KGB's Washington "resident" directs the agents into America's government, armed forces, scientific centers, atom bomb plants, radio and television news media, defense industries, communications networks, etc.

A deceased CIA director had a positive genius for uncovering enemy agents. He stated:

"THE PRIZE—and priceless—information every nation needs is: What are the enemy's intentions and capabilities?

"Enemy agents penetrate every major government. Intelligence services assume that the U.S. is penetrated. The sole question is: To what extent?

"During World War II, the Soviet had at least 40 high-placed agents in Washington's departments and agencies. That many were uncovered, but we do not know how many remained undetected."

Today this means penetration at President Carter's White House decision-making, policy-making level.

And to any intelligence expert it is inconceivable that you would find "in place" in Washington fewer than 40 enemy agents.

Reader Has Grave Doubts About Nuclear Power, Use

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

There will never be a safe place to dump the waste from nuclear power plants. It is extremely dangerous to transport. Trains derail, trucks wreck, planes crash, etc. Nuclear plants are subject to damage by cyclones, earthquakes, floods, fires, mechanical and human errors. They will never be imperishable.

It is naive to equate the danger of nuclear fallout with other accidents. The risk and danger of nuclear fallout is forced on human beings and it is not optional.

Cyclones, earthquakes, fires, floods, etc., are sometimes very catastrophic. However, they are minor comparable to the disastrous results of a major nuclear plant accident. The fallout could kill or contaminate millions of people, including unborn babies, for many years. It could destroy all living matter. The risk is not fair to future generations.

We should explore every source of energy, including solar, alcohol, etc. to supply the energy shortage.

Certainly, it is a time for calmness and unemotional discussion and research of this extremely serious matter. It could mean the survival or destruction of humanity. Survival would be much worse than total destruction. There are many opinions pro and con, which is a healthy situation.

We are pampered and spoiled and not willing to give up our luxuries and easy way of living. Probably, 50 percent of energy could be conserved if traveling for pleasure was curtailed or eliminated. Perhaps, it would restore home-life and home would be more than just a place to hang our hat. According to Biblical prophecy, man will become wiser and weaker. Apparently, that has already happened.

I am not a pessimist or fanatic but am only facing facts, based on the wisdom and weakness of man. If Gov. William P. Clements Jr. has his way concerning the building of additional nuclear plants in Texas, we had better start praying and digging like Hell.

I would like to go on record as one of those stupid freaks, (as we have been branded) as strongly opposing the building of more nuclear plants and destroying all existing plants, if that is possible. God forbid that we haven't waited too long to do that. It might be later than we think.

Ace Gets The Message, 'Too Loud And Clear'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Note to television owners and/or managers: Your overly loud commercials are driving me away from the tube, not to mention out of my mind!

Your medium is not unlike others in our society, such as newspapers and magazines, and the like. You must have the revenue engendered by the advertisers (commercials) in order to turn a profit.

Whenever I turn on my set to watch a program and then adjust the audio controls of the set to suit my hearing, I find it disconcerting to say the least to have to get up and readjust the audio mechanism whenever the commercials, which, incidentally, tend to be from about 5 to 10 decibels higher in audio transmission than the program which the commercials embody, come on.

P.S. By the way, all sports commentators, from Cosell on down, yak entirely too much! Where are the likes of Red Smith who used to announce an entire baseball game and not say more than three, maybe four dozen words?

Reader Says America Must Protect Citizens Abroad

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

An Open Letter To The President of The United States of America:

Dear Mr. President:

There are those of us who are frightened; so much so, that we seem unable to give voice to our fears. Hidden deep in the recesses of our hearts and minds are some of the memories that serve as the basis for these fears...Pueblo, Bay of Pigs, Mayaguez, China and Taiwan, Russia and SALT...

How do we deal with our fears? By overeating, smoking too much, drinking too heavily, and telling ourselves that the inevitable will not happen in our lifetime.

But today, we feel enough anger to overcome the fright for a moment and speak of the proverbial last straw.

An American named Bill Stewart, whose only "crime" was the recording of history, has been viciously and hideously murdered before our very eyes. Our leaders have responded by voicing their displeasure and requesting an explanation. And somewhere, a man sits behind his desk, smiling as he surveys his power and counts his money. He is pleased that he has shown America and the world that he can indeed get away with murder. The saddest part of the bad joke is that perhaps America helped make him what he is today.

We would ask, Mr. President, that you give us, if only for a moment, the pride we had in our country when, as children, we read our history books and sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee".

Demand that the murderers be punished. Remind this laughing man and the world that any threat to our country or its people will be dealt with harshly; that retaliation can be expected whenever necessary.

Give us justice. Give us America!

Couple Laments Closing Of Texas Children's Homes

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

In regard to the recent articles carried in the Avalanche-Journal concerning Bro. Lester Roloff and his children's homes, I think two points should be stated emphatically.

1. Not one penny of taxpayers' money was used to finance his homes. They were privately owned and operated, Christian institutions.

2. Many, although not all, of the children in his care were placed there by their parents—not the State of Texas—and these parents were given no voice in deciding whether or not Bro. Roloff retained custody of their children.

Bro. Roloff specialized in helping young people who were considered hopeless by others. And who has benefited by the closing of his homes? Certainly not the young people he was helping. Anyone directly acquainted with Bro. Roloff or his work knows that charges of cruel punishment are simply untrue. He loves those young people. It would be interesting to have a newspaper story about some of the young people who were raised in his home and are now young adults. I believe the results compared with those of similar state-licensed institutions would be surprising to many.

Has the State of Texas benefited? Hardly. Bro. Roloff has saved the taxpayers of Texas many dollars by helping young people become useful citizens who might otherwise be criminals, drug-pushers, prostitutes or unwed mothers with children on welfare.

Have we the citizens of Texas benefited? No. By closing a private, religious institution government has once again infringed on our rights. What will be next? Licensing of Christian schools? Who will decide the criteria? Who will be allowed to teach? What will be taught?

Perhaps those people who smugly congratulate themselves on the defeat of Bro. Roloff should take a second look. As Gov. Clements was quoted as saying, it is indeed a "sad day."

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bratton, 7005 Ave. S

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Poor Ol' Congress

THERE IS A growing sentiment among disillusioned citizens (and Jimmy Carter is probably one of them) that it's time to put Congress on a part-time basis.

Formally, that is. The members of that august group already put themselves on half-time years ago, although they pay their press agents (out of tax dollars) to keep reminding us how hard their jobs are.

The truth is, Congress is getting too expensive for us. Keeping 535 legislators in office (including all their perks and junkets and other extras) costs several hundred million a year, and they're just not worth the money.

For openers, they don't spend any more time on the job than they absolutely have to. A good chunk of every year is devoted to what they euphemistically refer to as "non-legislative adjournments."

That, friends, is double-talk for "vacations," and they sneak one in every chance they get.

ACTUALLY, THAT'S more or less what the Founding Fathers had in mind all along. Running the country wasn't supposed to take up all a man's time.

The lawmakers were expected to meet long enough to settle the affairs of state and then get back to clearing their fields, planting cotton, curing their tobacco and fighting Indians.

Historians have characterized it as "a peculiarly rural and makeshift form of government," and point out that even President John Adams spent every summer at home in Massachusetts.

Early legislators didn't do much, but they didn't earn much, either. Think what we could save nowadays if we put ours on a part-time schedule—and paid them by the hour.

The gentlemen don't waste any time in Washington during the August hot spell, either. That's when they scatter for their "official" vacations.

They usually straggle back after Labor Day and manage to make it through to October, when they disappear for a week in honor of Columbus, who was pretty good at getting lost, too.

A few weeks later they adjourn again for Thanksgiving and stretch that one out through Christmas and New Year's. Then there's Lincoln's Birthday, Easter and Memorial Day and anything else they can sneak in.

QUORUMS THIS winter and most of next year will be hard to come by since a goodly number of the fellas will either be running for President or out politicking to get sent back to never-never land.

They won't call it that, of course. Congressmen head for their home districts to "confer with their constituents," but what they'll be conferring about is how many constituents they can count on come November, 1980. (And if they're of the Democratic persuasion, how far they have to disassociate themselves from Carter to keep the voters happy.)

Not that we malcontents mind having them out of town. The more they're gone, the less they do. And this particular Congress is winning brownie points (everywhere except the White House) for its reluctance to do much of anything.

It has already approved cuts in deficit spending from $33.4 billion this year to $23 billion in 1980. Not by cutting spending, you understand, but by raising their guesses on how much they're going to get from us.

GENERALLY THEY'VE been busy proving how independent they are. They like to think of themselves as young mavericks who are not shackled by anything so out-of-date as party loyalty or blind obedience to Senate and House leaders.

And so they killed the President's gas rationing plan...kept him guessing on SALT I...voted down in commitee a bill to "reform" campaign financing...curled their collective lip at Carter's proposed cuts in Social Security benefits...and complained that the President never tells them anything.

But they showed they weren't so different from other Congresses, after all. Ever so quietly, without a peep from their press agents, a House panel recently okayed a seven-percent (remember the guidelines) boost in Congressional pay.

It was a hurry-up kind of thing. No debate. And when it was over there was a recommendation that Congress vote itself another raise, this time from $57,500 to $61,525.

BUT WAIT. On the floor is a bill to freeze Congressional pay at present levels. It is shouted down as quickly as it appears. Suddenly an amendment is offered to cut the seven-percent increase to 5.5 percent. That is approved.

Hold on. There's another vote. The whole thing is rejected.

There it was, finally: not frozen, but not increased. And good judgment would tell you that the matter just might come up again.

Congressmen, naughty boys that they are, are trying to avoid being caught at the cookie jar they created, but keep the cookie.

Awhile back they passed a law to protect themselves from the inflation they were inflicting on the rest of us.

Under that law, they will get 12 percent raises on October 1, unless they vote it down. And they don't think you and I would like them to have 12 percent. Oh, agony!

What I would propose in this dilemma is to gear Congressional raises to how little they legislate. Not passing a bill is worth something, and repealing existing legislation should be worth more.

On this basis, a million-dollar-a-year Congressman would be a bargain.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

NUMEROUS MATURE wives nationwide secretly feel their husbands cheat them, not by going out with other women, but by swift and careless unconcern in romantic matters at home.

Our Love and War man says it is among the commonest of personal complaints, though rarely voiced except to the scientific researchers. What's odd about this finding is how it compares to research on college campuses.

When asked if they like to kiss and cuddle at great length on dates, the large majority of young women say no, definitely not, and the men almost unanimously say, you bet, that's great. Then come the years, and turnabout.

Q. Which food utensil came first, the knife or the fork or the spoon?

A. None of the above. The ladle turned up first. Then the knife. After that the spoon. Much later the fork.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JULY 3, 1979

PHYSICAL

Criticals: 2, 14, 25, 37, 48, 60, 71 ....Don't be daring
Highs: 1, 15-24, 38-47, 61-70 ....Prime time physically
Lows: 3-13, 26-36, 49-59, 72-75 ......Your resistance is down

EMOTIONAL

Criticals: 3, 17, 31, 45, 59, 73 ....Temper fit possible
Highs: 4-16, 32-44, 60-72 ....You're all you can be.
Lows: 1-2, 18-30, 46-58, 74-85 ....Down in the dumps

INTELLECTUAL

Criticals: 11, 28, 44, 61, 77, 94 ......Accident prone, watch out
Highs: 1-10, 29-43, 62-76, 95 ....Trust your judgment
Lows: 12-27, 45-60, 78-93 ....Mental minus day

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

$2 Bills Rated About As Popular As $100 Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor Thomas Jefferson. Does he deserve such a fate?

Jefferson's likeness is on the once-ballyhooed, but now popularity-starved $2 bill.

When the $2 bill was reissued on April 13, 1976, lines of buyers sought the new currency at many banks.

The Treasury Department predicted the note would replace half the $1 bills in circulation and save the Bureau of Engraving and Printing as much as $7 million annually in printing costs.

Backing up its projection, Treasury printed 525 million of the bills.

Three years later, 300 million of them remain under expensive lock and key in Federal Reserve bank vaults across the country.

"The demand for $2 bills is about the same as for $100 bills," says Peter Daly, assistant director of the bureau. That equals about 4 percent of all currency in circulation.

Why the failure?

"Habit," says Daly. People were used to $1 bills. Retailers couldn't figure where to place $2 bills in their cash registers. Purchasers often discovered, with chagrin, that the dollar they thought they paid out was a $2 bill.

Despite the setback, Treasury officials haven't given up hope the $2 bill will catch on.

"Just because we haven't printed any new bills doesn't mean we've removed them from circulation," says Daly.

"If demand picks up, we'll print more," he adds.

Daly suggests the introduction Monday of the Susan B. Anthony $1 coin may boost the fortunes of the $2 bill. If the new coin proves popular, it may replace the $1 bill, leaving the paper field open to the $2 bill.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to think about what your greatest enjoyments are and to make plans to pursue these activities, but not at the expense of other interests.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Plan to spend as much time as you can with associates that mean the most to you and get excellent results. Be poised.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are able to handle the work which requires precision and get good results today. Be wary of one who bickers too much.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A time to engage in creative activities and get much accomplished. Show more affection for the one you love.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A fine day to come to a complete understanding with associates. Study new outlets that could add to your abundance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Confer with a trusted adviser who can help you solve a puzzling problem. More care to your diet is important at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your possessions and try to improve them in some way so they are more valuable. Avoid the social tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to gain the assistance of others now in order to promote your most personal desires. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze whatever is puzzling to you and come up with the right answers. Strive to have more rapport with mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to please your friends more and gain their good will. Take no risks with your health. More exercise is fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in civic work that can give you added prestige. Go directly to those who can help you gain your personal aims.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get an early start in new activities that could bring you greater advancement. Take no risks in motion at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Take an inventory of your property and see if there are any improvements to be made. Handle your money wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be one who can easily gain the favor of others. Teach the principal of what is most enjoyed and retained is earned by own efforts.

OFFICIALS CHARGED

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Norman Berkowitz and two Detroit consultants were indicted Monday on charges of bilking the state by claiming they designed Michigan's 1976 award-winning red, white and blue license plates. The two-count federal indictment charges Berkowitz, Morris Gleicher and Theodore Petok with mail fraud and conspiracy. The indictment says state workers within the prison department did all the design work but that the trio collected $1,260 under a state contract.

July 4th Fireworks Cause Eye Injuries

NEW YORK (Special) — Careless handling of fireworks will cause eye injuries this July 4th as it has in the past, the Better Vision Institute has predicted.

Despite admonishments from many to be careful with fireworks — and the fact that fireworks are outlawed in many states — the Institute predicts that hundreds of children — and some adults — will again suffer accidental injuries to their eyes, faces and hands as a result of carelessness this July 4th.

The 50-year-old Institute recommends that parents take their children to supervised, public fireworks demonstrations and not stage their own fireworks at home.

Clip 'n' Cook

ZUCCHINI 'N RICE BAKE

3 cups shredded zucchini
(about 1 lb.)
3 cups cooked rice
1½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup finely chopped onion
Grated peel and juice of ½ fresh lemon
⅛ tsp. pepper

In large saucepan, parboil zucchini in boiling water for 3 minutes; drain well. In large bowl, combine zucchini with remaining ingredients, blending well. Pour zucchini mixture into shallow 1½ quart baking dish. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 40 to 45 minutes. Garnish with lemon cartwheel twists, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings (about 6 cups).

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please explain the function of potassium in the body. — Mrs. L.J.

A pretty technical question, but surely one that must enter the mind of many readers and patients who take potassium supplements.

Potassium is found in nature in adequate quantities. It is essential for total nutrition. Like vitamins and certain proteins, everyone's diet must include potassium because the body cannot produce it.

Most of it finds its way to the interior of cells (like red blood cells or muscle cells). Without it, cells are not able to do their work — taking in energy (as glucose) and using it to make new cells.

The average daily diet contains plenty of potassium, so supplements are seldom needed. Bananas and orange juice are rich in it. In excess it can be damaging.

Potassium got "publicity" with the increased use of water pills (for high blood pressure). There is danger of losing too much potassium along with the liquid loss. So supplements are used.

If there is a lack of it (as measured by blood tests) the patient complains of weakness, heart rhythm problems and poor intestinal function. Some water pills (diuretics) may contain a substance that avoids potassium loss. Certain other conditions cause a potassium deficit — diarrhea, vomiting, and adrenal gland problems, but the average person need not worry about getting less than his share with a normal diet.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is surgery of any kind ever needed to cure high blood pressure? If so, what kind? — Mrs. P.T.

Except in rare cases surgery has taken a back seat to drugs in controlling high blood pressure. Years ago sympathectomy (surgery on nerves to relax arteries, etc.) was common. Surgery may still be necessary for selected patients, to correct arterial problems that might be contributing or to remove tumors on certain glands.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have written before, but have seen no response. I will try again. Are you only interested in the simple questions? I asked why the bottoms of my feet burn? They feel like I'm standing on a hot stove. I'm looking forward, but not too confidently, for your answer. — "Hotfoot."

There are so many causes for hot feet that I couldn't begin to list them, much less discuss each individually. They range from diabetes (nerve involvement) to tight shoes, poor circulation and fabric sensitivity (nylons). The symptom is not to be ignored, especially one as dramatic as yours.

Many people complain about hot burning feet with REDNESS, and often no specific cause can be found. A fancy name for it is "erythromelalgia." A patient of mine had the burning only after he got into bed. His answer was to stick his feet out of the covers. Simple, but effective. Some even use fans. The booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet" may fill in other gaps in your knowledge of this subject. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been dieting for a few weeks and have lost about 10 pounds. Do you know of some exercises that will reduce the "saddlebags" on my thick thighs? No matter how much I diet, I cannot seem to lose them. I take large amounts of vitamins. Am I getting enough for my body? I am 5-7 and now weigh 115 pounds. — D.L.

Sorry, I can't congratulate you on your successful weight loss because from the statistics you give me you may be below normal weight for your age and height. Dieting to remove unwanted weight in specific parts of the body puts you in the position of the cat who chases its tail, not an inappropriate comparison in your case.

You're getting closer to the solution when you speak of exercises, as you do in another part of your letter (deleted). That is a long and sometimes unrewarding effort, but worth the try. Finally, remember that man does not live by vitamins alone, so I do hope you are also including some substantial food nutrients in whatever diet you are on.

Dear Dr. Ruble: If you have a blister, for example one on the foot, should you puncture it, or let it break on its own? — Mrs. O.R.

Best not to puncture blisters. One may not be ready broken, in which case it can create a messy situation. The fluid inside the blister is an ideal medium for growth of bacteri infection, so if a blister breaks it should be cleaned and covered with a bandage immediately. Give it the same care you would any cut or open sore.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We had so much fun welcoming our new baby home with a genuine birthday party.

Before our baby was born, I bought and wrapped one small gift for my two children. When baby and I were in the hospital, Daddy took our little ones to the store to buy their gifts for baby.

The day we got home, we sat around our new bundle and watched her, touched her and celebrated her birth by exchanging presents and eating birthday cake which Daddy had made.

What a tremendous bonding of love we experienced as we all welcomed our new baby home. — Pam

How sweet! Give that little one a big hug from me to add to all those she is getting. Such a good way to introduce baby to older brothers and sisters. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm so excited over my discovery, I must let others know about it who have the same problem I do — keeping the thimble on when doing hand sewing.

I've tried everything, wetting my finger, wrapping it with cotton, tissue and what-have-you.

Then while scrounging in my sewing basket, I came upon some corn plasters. Voila! Just place it over the base of the nail, and that old thimble really stays put.

The plaster comes off easily and the goo comes off with a little alcohol and soapy water. — O.R.

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found that if you will peel bananas and put them in a jar with a tight fitting lid, they will keep for several days.

Try it! — Mrs. Pat V. Bates

I did! They do! And were delicious, I might add.

We also tried leaving the peeling on and putting them in a covered jar and liked it even better. Try our way sometime and see what you think. Love you for writing. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Why not start the fad of the "walking stick" in the United States? It is so popular in Europe and elsewhere...I found out what a help they are after a leg fracture.

Now I use mine often when Mr. Arth Ritus visits me. I call it my "security stick," it is such a comfort.

I see so many elderly people with walking problems and they seem too embarrassed to use a cane, when it would help so much.

Let's make it the "in thing" to use a cane. — Marj

DEAR HELOISE:

An easy way to clean the racks of shelves of your oven is to put them into a large, plastic trash bag.

After putting them in the bag, spray them heavily with oven cleaner.

Tie the bag shut and let sit somewhere for 12 to 24 hours.

All you have to do then is wash off the oven cleaner. Anything that has been burned on or sticks comes off with very little rubbing.

Mine look like new! — Sandra Veritel

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Last night, I made chocolate chip cookies and added half again as many as the recipe called for.

But you know, the last spoonful of dough STILL didn't have any chips in it! — Mrs. B.

DEAR HELOISE:

When traveling, especially with small children, I carry a box of foil wrap. When stopping to use a public restroom I tear off a piece larger than the commode seat and slightly mold it to fit, then tear a hole in the center.

We have a clean seat to use — and a cover that will stay put! — P.R.D.

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's one especially good for parties, etc: Don't throw away your old, bent-up muffin tins!

One never seems to have enough ice cube trays when many iced drinks are served. So, go ahead and fill the tins with water (about three-fourths full) and freeze.

When ready for use, I call these my Flying Saucer ice cubes. — Claire McClelland

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's the way I mend the knees of my son's jeans.

I rip out one side seam (most jeans have a straight seam, not flat-felled) on the outer leg and have an easy to reach, flat surface, to sew the patch to.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our home was burlarized last week. We lost a great many valuable items — family heirlooms, jewelry and silver.

Several years ago you ran a letter written by a convict who was serving time for a series of break-ins. He told people how they might protect themselves against being burglarized. I read that article with interest. I should have torn it out and memorized it.

It's too late for us, but I'm sure it would help a great many people if you printed it again. Will you, please? — Heartsick In Winnetka

Dear Win: Yes, I will. Sad to say, the topic is as relevant now as when it first ran seven years ago. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: As you can see from the letterhead, I am in jail in Indianapolis, Marion County. I am not asking for help. I am writing instead to offer some help.

As a person who has made a fortune in burglaries and robberies, I have some advice for your readers. Perhaps I can save them some trouble and money.

People spend money on burglar alarms, pick-proof locks and watchdogs, but they encourage break-ins by leaving open garage doors that lead into the house. An experienced burglar knows how to deal with alarms and locks. A hunk of meat or a blast of mace will quiet the dog.

You might think it unbelievable, but I have ransacked many a nightstand while the owner slept less than one foot away. Burglars have discovered that the nightstand is a gold mine of wallets, credit cards, checkbooks, jewelry — and guns.

Once in the wee hours, I actually had to crawl under a bed while the sleepy victim got up and went to the bathroom. When he returned and resumed his snoring, I ripped the place off for a couple of watches, a handgun and $125 in cash.

One thing that worries a burglar is a light in the bathroom. Most burglars do not wish to risk a confrontation with a person coming out of the bathroom. If you want to discourage an intruder, keep the bathroom light on all night and the bathroom door ajar. If you are not at home, the ploy still works — provided you remember to rumple up the bed so it will look as if someone has been sleeping in it.

The important thing to remember is this: if you are in bed and you hear a stranger in the house, stay in bed. Pretend you are asleep. Don't try to be a hero. Most burglars travel in pairs these days, and they are usually armed.

If a confrontation does occur, keep cool. Remember that about 75 percent of all break-ins today are by people who are high on drugs or pills. They are desperate for money and will kill you if they have to. Don't argue or scream. Don't try to get to a button or a phone. The smart thing to do is fake a faint and stay "unconscious." Nothing you own is worth getting killed for.

The judge has already said I should spend from one to 10 years with the Indiana Department of Corrections for my misdeeds. From where I see it — at the age of 21 — the immediate future isn't too rosy. I hope when I'm free I'll still be worried about your house. — Sincerely, D.P.B., Cellblock 3-G

Dear D.P.B.: So do I. In the meantime, thank you for a most informative letter.

Clothing Specialist Gives Sewing Tips

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Solve common sewing problems such as puckered seams or skipped stitches with minor machine adjustments. Or, simply check for correct threading and needle size or condition, advises Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Puckered seams may result from too tight thread tension, a damaged needle, too heavy pressure on the presser foot, improper threading, or too heavy thread for fabric, the specialist explains.

Skipped stitches may occur from a damaged needle, needle inserted incorrectly, or the wrong type needle for the fabric. Other causes include incorrect presser foot pressure, incorrect threading or too heavy thread for needle and fabric. Avoid these problems by checking several items first, Miss Rhoades recommends.

Before sewing, be sure the machine is threaded correctly — both the machine head and the bobbin. Also, make sure the thread is not crossed and flows easily through tension discs.

Check the condition and size of the needle. Coordinate size with weight of fabric. Use a size 9 (65) needle for very fine, delicate fabrics, a size 11 (75) for lightweight, a size 14 (90) for medium weight, a size 16 (100) for medium heavy and a size 18 (110) for heavy fabrics. In general, use sharps for woven fabrics and ballpoints for knits. Or, use a universal needle — the correct size — for either. For leather or vinyl, use a wedge needle.

Be sure the needle is smooth — free of burrs — and is not bent. Change needles often — synthetic fabrics dull needles quickly.

Coordinate thread size with fabric weight. Use thread designed for light weight fabrics (size 80-150), regular size (40-60) for medium and medium heavy fabrics, and heavy duty (size 20-40) for heavy fabrics. Also, use the same type thread in the bobbin used in the needle.

Check thread tension by stitching through a double layer sample of the fashion fabric. For balanced tension and a smooth seam, the thread should lock between the layers of the fabric. If the stitch locks on the top side, loosen the top tension. If the stitch locks on the bottom side, increase the top tension.

If the seam still puckers, the bobbin tension may be too tight. To correct, loosen the bobin tension and adjust the top tension accordingly.

Different fabrics require different amounts of pressure on the presser foot. In general, soft, sheer fabrics require light pressure while heavy, dense fabrics require heavy pressure. Other fabrics fall in between.

If your machine does not have self-adjusting pressure, adjust the pressure dial or screw until you have a smooth seam with even stitches. To increase either tension of pressure, turn the dial or screw clockwise or to a greater number. To decrease, turn counter clockwise or to a small number.

Do not be afraid to adjust the tension and pressure. The dials or screws were put on the machine specifically for that purpose. They may need readjusting each time you change fabric type or weight.

Subject Matter Nothing New, 'Vanities' Mixes Humor, Despair Effectively

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

At the close of the first act of the Texas Tech University Theater's opening night production of "Vanities," Jack Heifner's play which follows three close friends from cheerleading days at a small Texas high school through college and on to a fateful reunion, a woman seated on row E stated loudly, "Cheerleaders are really like that. The Dallas Cowboys still have cheerleaders, and I'm sure they all have mentalities like this." She then went on to discuss the "low East Coast mentalities," never seeming to realize that the play might very well serve as a mirror.

Heifner depends on this sort of reaction, by making us laugh at three small-town bumpkins and allowing us a good, hard look at their shallow minds and catty personalities — their vanities — before developing the characteristics into future tragedy. It is a play in which chuckles mesh into despair, relationships become masked and bitterness soon reigns.

But by no stretch of the imagination can one call it a courageous effort, as picking on dumb cheerleaders and hypocritical sorority women is a common practice and treads a thin line which can never open up for universal relevance. Audiences will too often wind up like the aforementioned woman: associating such negative goings-on with an already labeled social minority. Still, Heifner's play is effective in that spectators are devastated by the realization that not only are there no truly likeable characters, but the only one which even comes close is plainly the most naive, blind and stupid.

The play is presented in three acts: the first set at the girl's high school gymnasium in 1963, the second at a sorority house in 1968 and the third at an apartment reunion in 1974. The opening act is a finely-tuned comedic introduction to Joanne, Mary and Kathy, played respectively by Jane Ann Cummings, Susanne Barnard and Susan Fortenberry. All three are completely believable as high schoolers: complaining about curfews, labeling all twirlers as "easy" and bemoaning the student body's lack of "pep."

Yet just beneath the comedy are our first introductions to ego and pettiness. We learn that popularity is the only common goal and that, though words like "let's stick together" are bandied about, there is already a bit of one-upmanship involved. Heifner also brings his title into cruel focus at the end by presenting the girls' rather callous reactions to President Kennedy's assassination in Dallas.

A-J THEATER REVIEW

Political leanings (or rather, the lack of them) come out again in Act Two. "Let Lyndon Johnson handle the war," one says as she worries about sorority rush, and later adds, "The Viet Cong aren't bombing this campus." Again, these women are involved with image. But Mary is already changing, leaning more toward personal rather than group image. The three still speak of sharing, but their inner feelings are becoming more visible.

Richard Weaver's direction cannot be faulted, as he brings every ounce of humor and despair out of the script. He also makes sure the music fits the time period, and localizes things a bit by dressing the high schoolers in Monterey High School outfits. By mere blocking, Weaver also manages to reveal the two-person teams throughout this three-way friendship. In Act One, for example, Mary and Joanne seem somewhat alienated from Kathy. In subsequent sorority seenes, though, Mary and Kathy actually laugh behind Joanne's back, a situation carried to extremes a bit later.

Jane Anne Cummings gives a very consistent performance as Joanne, the rather dippy old-fashioned girl who is cause for a lot of laughter in early moments and later manages to earn our pity rather than respect. "This didn't turn out right," she says at the reunion and, when told the truth about her husband's infidelity, refuses to accept it. Like the war, like political atrocities, this tragedy will not exist if she refuses to accept it.

Susan Barnard, though perhaps a bit too haughty in the third act (quite a character transformation from the thick accent and chumminess of Act One), is very good as Mary. Though her relationship with her parents is never fully explored by Heifner, making a final exclamation of hate somewhat ineffective, she does a fine job at baring a disturbed psyche.

Miss Fortenberry had a rough time on opening night, muffing far too many lines, mistakes amplified by the intimate nature of the three-character play. Still, she was the mysterious element which piqued our interest. Kathy holds herself above the others in the first act, but becomes our reason for hope in Act Two by doubting the direction her life is taking. The mere look in her eyes, devious and always guiltily shifting, in Act Three tells us all we need to know about her transformation.

Indeed, Miss Fortenberry underplays her role quite well, a situation which can only improve when she grows more comfortable with her character.

But audiences are not meant to be comfortable with these characters. Instead, we view these women as strangers, and there remains an air of mystery at the end. Despite the numerous hints offered, we are never really sure whether Kathy, like Mary, is currently betraying Joanne's trust.

All we're certain of is that these young girls' hopes of sharing have taken on a new corrupt meaning in adulthood and, with all three baring vanities as defense mechanisms, there's no turning back...

"Vanities" is being staged on alternating nights with Tech's other summer repertory plays: "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," "The Shadow Box" and "Company." "Vanities" will be staged at 8:15 p.m. Friday and July 10. Call the University Theater box office at 742-3601 for reservations and ticket prices.

Niehous Doubts He Could Recognize Any Of Guerrilla Captors

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Owens-Illinois executive William F. Niehous said Monday he doubts he would be able to recognize any of the South American guerrillas who held him captive for more than three years in Venezuela.

"I never saw a face uncovered. I never saw anyone without a mask," the 48-year-old Niehous said at a news conference, Monday, in the living room of his home in a fashionable Toledo suburb.

Shorn of the shoulder-length hair he came back with, the executive was dressed casually and answered questions with composure.

Niehous said he maintained his sanity by having faith in God and keeping up to date with current events. His captors supplied him with newspapers and magazines and discussed politics with him.

He said that during his captivity he was moved from place to place in the thick jungle. He said he was not surprised that he was not found sooner. "There are groups that have been in the jungle for 10, 12 years," he said.

Niehous said that athough he talked politis with his captors, he never agreed with them. "They are of the ultra-leftist Marxist revolutionary group," he said.

"They gave me the opportunity to express my opinion. They expressed their opinion. I can honestly say we never agreed," he said, adding that his captors "do not believe in anything except the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Niehous, former director of Owens-Illinois' glass-manufacturing operations in Venezuela, was kidnapped from his home Feb. 27, 1976, as he and his wife prepared to go to a party.

Rescued Saturday by Venezuelan police who were looking for cattle rustlers, he was whisked away from the country and flown to Toledo, where he met his family at Toledo Express Airport, early Sunday.

In the more than three years he was a prisoner, he said he wore the same pair of boots and only changed clothes when his garments wore out.

Iranian Government Announces Budget

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's first post-revolutionary budget will amount to $34.8 billion, about 25 percent less than the last budget prepared by the government of the deposed shah, the new budget minister announced.

One of the biggest cuts was in defense spending, down to $4.3 billion from $10 billion.

U.S. Files Suit On Gaines Farm Trio

A federal law suit alleging that three Gaines County residents defrauded the U.S. government out of more than $175,000 in cotton support payments in 1973 was filed Monday in U.S. District Court.

The suit, filed by Justice Department attorneys in Washington, D.C., accuses Charles Medlin, B.A. McFarland and B.E. McFarland of subdividing a Gaines County farm in 1973 in order to receive more than the $55,000 per year payments offered under provisions of the Upland Cotton Price Support Program.

The suit alleges that because of reconstitutions of the farm, owned by Medlin and farmed on a tenant basis by the McFarlands in 1973, the trio received $175,282 in unauthorized cotton support payments.

In early June, the Justice Department filed five similar suits, naming a total of 12 defendants accused of defrauding the government of more than $3 million in support payments.

The Upland Cotton Price Support Program was created in 1971 and designed to maintain the production of upland cotton through government price support payments to eligible producers.

The program, which was ended after the 1973 crop year, authorized a $55,000 annual payment limit to persons designated as authorized producers.

Under the program's regulations, farms could be divided or combined to establish new farms at the operator's request, but such reconstitutions, if made primarily for the purpose of establishing eligibility to transfer cotton allotment payments to the new farms, were prohibited.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices moved higher in very active trading on the Chicago Board of Trade today after three consecutive declining sessions last week.

A major portion of the sharp jump in wheat prices was attributed to a major downward revision of the Soviet wheat harvest.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization announced in Rome today that because of the poor growing weather it has reduced its estimate of the Soviet harvest to 192 million metric tons from a previous estimate of 210 million tons. The Soviets consequently will have to buy more grain from abroad.

After the close of business Friday the Agriculture Department announced the sale of 1.14 million metric tons of wheat and 725,880 metric tons of corn to unknown destinations and most traders felt the Soviet union was the ultimate destination.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market Monday was slow. Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate and demand was moderate.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations declined 25 points for grades 52 and lower. All other grades advanced 25 points.

Mixed lots brought growers around 675 to 875 points over 1979 loan rates.

Texas Land Included In 'Hopper Control

More than a million acres of Texas rangeland have been included under a national cooperative program to control the worst infestation of grasshoppers in more than two decades.

Nationwide, the federal-state-rancher grasshopper control effort has been expanded from 4 million to 5 million acres to keep pace with the hungry pests, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Texas acreage under the program jumped from 400,000 to 1.3 million.

The USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) listed Texas among the five states with the largest amounts of infested acreage, in some areas reaching 100 hoppers per square yard. The other four states are: New Mexico, 600,000 acres; South Dakota, 879,000; Nebraska, up to 1 million; and Oregon, 1 million.

Treatments to halt the worst hopper infestation since 1958 are underway in most of the 15 affected states west of the Mississippi River. Oklahoma has 130,000 acres and Kansas 44,000 acres in the program.

"Infestation is totally dependent on the weather," said Scott Campbell, APHIS plant protection director in San Antonio. "If we have a cool, wet spring, usually we don't have a grasshopper problem, but if it's hot and dry we have 1.3 million acres infested."

James O. Lee, APHIS deputy administrator, said, "The grasshoppers were bad last year, when we had to treat a total of 836,000 acres, but that hardly compares to the magnitude of this year's problem.

"A number of environmental factors makes this year favorable for a grasshopper population boom," Lee said. "There were a great number of eggs laid last fall, they were protected by snow cover this past winter, and there was not enough rain this spring to promote development of natural disease that can effectively control grasshopper populations in most years."

The objective of the cooperative control programs is to reduce range grass feeding damage done by the voracious hoppers, which pound-for-pound eat more than a cow, and to prevent their migration to crop areas.

Rangeland acres are considered for treatment when grasshoppers reach population densities of eight or more per square yard. Under the cooperative federal-state-rancher control program, the costs of the aerial treatment of privately owned rangeland is equally divided three ways.

Requests for control come through already existing local grasshopper control committees and are scheduled in treatment blocks of sufficient size-starting at a minimum of 10,000 acres — to provide effective control on an area basis.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

AN AUTHORITY ON THE WORLD COTTON situation anticipates at this time a world crop in the 1979-80 marketing year of 63,762,000 bales, up from 59,473,000 produced in the poor growing season of 1978-79.

Neil A. Mearns of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Fibreco Division of Valmac Industries, expects 1979-80 consumption to total 62,890,000 bales, compared with the previous year's 62,785,000.

Mearns, speaking at a cotton conference sponsored by ContiCommodity Services, Inc., here last weekend, said the world carryover next July 31 is likely to be about 20,844,000 bales, down from 24,156,000 a year earlier.

Under the crop and offtake projections for 1979-80, the carryover would climb to 21,716,000 bales on July 31, 1980.

IS A CARRYOVER OF THIS SIZE, which is approximately a four-month supply, sufficient?

"I frankly believe a carryover of anywhere from 20 million to 25 million bales is sufficient," Mearns said. "I make this statement because most of the largest consumer countries are also producers. Also, logistics are such today that cotton can be containerized and moved to export markets in 10 to 12 days."

Mearns pointed out also that merchants carry stocks in consuming countries.

Projections on the 1979-80 U. S. crop, Mearns said, point to an output of 12.8 million bales. He said domestic offtake again is expected to be 6.2 million bales and exports are likely to be 6 million bales. This would leave a carryover on July 31, 1980 of 4,702,000 bales, or 22 percent of the world total.

The U. S. carryover on July 31, 1978 was 5,347,000 bales, Mearns noted, and the crop came in at 10,855,000 bales. He predicted 1978-79 domestic consumption will be 6.2 million bales and exports will total 5.9 million, leaving a carryover this year of 4,102,000 bales.

SEVENTY PERCENT OF WORLD COTTON, Mearns pointed out, is grown in five countries: the United States, the Soviet Union, China, India and Pakistan.

"Unpredictable factors can have a devastating effect on world production," he commented. "Climatic disasters, lack of essentials, such as insecticides, fertilizer, lack of irrigation water, labor problems could — and do — have their effect on productions."

In countries with free economies where government does not dictate policy, he added, pricing has its effect. The soybean, he noted, has become a big factor. For example, he added, Brazil in the last 10 years has moved from a 1-million-ton soybean producer to 12 million tons and will plant sufficient land this year for a 14-million to 15-million-ton crop, to the detriment of cotton.

Of the big fiber producers, he pointed out, China is the only one that consumes more than it produces. This, he observed, necessitates imports of about 2 million to 2.5 million bales annually.

It would seem that China will slowly increase production, Mearns said. However, he added, the increased planting of protein "may be more political at this time." But certainly, he said, China will continue with a big buying potential. "To clothe 1 billion people is a major undertaking in any country," he remarked.

EIGHTY PERCENT OF WORLD COTTON production moves to market from September-December each year, Mearns said.

In the past 10 years, Mearns said, world cotton production has increased by 10 million bales. Offtake, he added, also has increased by that amount. Why? Mearns cited two major reasons:

— Developing countries have the needed labor for cotton.

— Expansion of cotton textile industries in these countries has allowed the export of yarn and cloth as well as of raw cotton. Therefore, he said, labor and technology also are being exported. "All this brings in much needed foreign exchange," he said, "and also raises living standards by producing plentiful and cheap clothing."

Developing countries, Mearns said, can be split into two categories. These are the Eastern Bloc European countries that have controlled economies and the developing countries of Asia and Latin America.

The Eastern Bloc European countries, Mearns said, are importers and textile manufacturers who "have been to us rather a gray area for some years." With the advent of added tourism from the West to those countries, he said, their peoples have demanded more textiles. This, in part, has improved their standard of living, he said. "So in these areas we are seeing up to a 6 percent increase in textile consumption per year," he said.

Most of the developing countries of Asia and Latin America have been raw cotton exporters, he said. In some of these countries today, he said, the textile business is the largest single employer. Latin America now rivals Europe in size as a textile industry, he said, and it is growing each year.

"The accent is on growing bigger cotton crops to export more cotton but also to export yarn and cloth," he said. "For example, a goodly percentage of terry cloth and toweling you buy in the United States and in Canada is made in Latin America for U. S. finishers."

COTTON FUTURES GAINED 67 to 36 points in the more active months Monday on speculative buying sparked by firmness in Midwest grain futures.

The trade, a moderate seller during the morning, was a buyer shortly before the close in October, which settled at 64.43 cents, two points below its high.

Floor brokers said activity was sporadic as the market geared for the Independence Day closing Wednesday. Volume was estimated at 6,050 contracts.

Only 317 bales were traded on Telcot. The system converted to the 1979-80-crop loan and the cotton brought an average of 728 points over the new loan for an average price to farmers of 51.59 cents.

SMALL-FARM PROJECTS PLANNED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department intends to underwrite farm projects in six states in a program designed to help small-acreage farmers increase income and production. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said conservation, anti-pollution efforts and technical education will be stressed as part of the program. The projects the government will underwrite will be in Nevada, Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, New Mexico and Rhode Island. Bergland said the six were chosen from among 46 proposed projects.

Live Cattle Futures Close Lower, Volume Curtailed

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 15 to 107 lower led by October on 18,191 contracts Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Volume was curtailed as trading was suspended for 70 minutes due to a computer malfunction.

Selling continued from Friday on increased cattle arrivals and weakness in prices coupled with slow beef demand. Winding down of the truckers strike was making for freer movement of meat.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 105½ to 107 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $1.50 with the best top $69 per hundredweight at Omaha. Slaughter was 116,000 head. The major terminals are expecting about 8,500 today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 45 to 95 points lower led by November. Prices were lower from the start, skidding 130 in March. Sales totaled 2,940 cars.

The market ran into profit taking and other selling after two limit gains in a row. Slower demand for beef and expanded production last week weighed on futures as did resolving of most of the truckers problems.

Cash feeder cattle were up $3 to off $2 with the best top $131 per hundredweight at Oklahoma City. About 1,400 head are expected today at the major markets.

Hog futures closed 95 higher to 80 lower on 4,590 lots. The market ranged from 110 lower to 105 higher in erratic trade.

Prices fell to the lowest in almost three weeks before stiffening. Early losses in cash hogs on reduced arrivals brought carryover selling as did continued weakness in pork products. Nearby contracts, however, recovered on discount of futures to cash and reports of increased packer demand for hogs.

Wholesale hams were off 3½ to 6 at 66½ to 67¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were off $1 to up $1 with the best top $43.25 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill was 311,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 30,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 107 lower to 47 higher on 6,834 lots. The market was up 165 to down 147 in erratic action. New season's lows were posted in July and August with February equalling its low.

Outset selling spilled over from a limit level loss Friday and followed increased production last week and weakness in cash. Support developed on heavier bacon slicings and reduced storage stocks.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 4 at 31 to 35 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the lowest since 1974.

Putting up a new building too often means paying more than you expected and taking longer than you thought.

The most frequent reason? No one person is clearly in control. That can cause a basic communication breakdown among all parties involved, resulting in confusion, cost overruns and missed deadlines.

But we offer you a team of construction professionals capable of controlling your entire project ...concept to completion.

We can handle all the details—planning, rights-of-way, permits, construction, even landscaping. We'll make sure you get your building on-time and on-budget. And we'll do it using construction methods and building systems that can cut up to 40% off some conventional building timetables.

So if your next building has time and budget limitations, call us. We'll give you both the building and the control you need.

Mart Drops Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped sharply Monday as a report that Saudi Arabia would boost its oil production failed to ease traders' worries over a recession.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.94 points to 834.04 as declines led advances by a 5-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume slipped to 32.06 million shares from 34.69 million Friday.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 36.54 million shares.

Saudi Arabia provides 10 percent of U.S. oil imports, and its oil minister had said before the latest Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting that an increase in output had been considered.

Monday's losses "were pretty broad" through the list of institutional favorites, Lefevre said, with IBM off 1 to 72⅜, AT&T down ⅜ to 57½ and General Motors off ½ at 58⅞.

Harnischfeger led the NYSE most-actives, dropping 6⅛ to 18⅝.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues at Consolidated Tape close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

State RRC Gaining Better Image With Public

By BILL KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — One of the standard explanations given about Texas State government concerns how it's massive oil and gas industry has come to be regulated by an agency known as the "Railroad Commission."

These days, the Railroad Commission has little to do with railroads, although it is involved in a study of the Texas rail system, and sets rates for hauling of various commodities within the state.

The three commissioners spend most of their time dealing with oil and gas matters, exhorting and preaching the gospel of increased production, and denouncing Federal officials for failing to do the same.

Thus far, the RRC seems to be enjoying greater public confidence during the present gasoline shortage than was the case six years ago — when the commission was blamed by some as, somehow, having some part in a suspected plot to withhold oil from the market to bring about deregulation and higher prices.

Those were, Mack Wallace agrees, "very dark days...we were being blamed for the shortage" — and for shortages of natural gas in South and Central Texas.

Now, he says, "I think the commission is perceived by the public in a better light than in many years."

"I think the agency as a whole is to be credited," Wallace adds. "And frankly, I'm proud of the change in attitude. It took a great deal of work."

And while the RRC probably can't claim all the credit for Texas' expanding economy, "I know who would be blamed if that weren't true," Wallace says.

Wallace's two colleagues will be running for office next fall — and already are getting some opposition, although it's far too early to assess how serious that opposition is.

"I didn't even know any races were shaping up," Jim Nugent commented when he was asked about public attitudes and potential opponents.

Nugent also feels that RCC is viewed favorably by the public, saying any public anger seems more at inflation and high rates than at the agency.

"The reaction I'm running into on my travels throughout the state is excellent," Nugent says. "There have been...virtually no complaints of any character that I remember so far..."

Efforts by the RRC to overhaul procedures in setting natural gas rates for consumers, as has been done by limiting the amount of fees put into a rate base for experts and attorneys, may be a factor in improved public feeling, he speculates.

Utility-rate changes recently have been in the seven to eight per cent range, Nugent says, "well within the inflation factor."

Any opponent he may have isn't likely to be able to question his independence, Nugent adds, "I carried a refinery tax when I was in the Legislature.. Coming over here doesn't mean I've lost my independence."

The third commissioner, John Poerner, also sees the RRC as enjoying public confidence, and being more responsive to the needs of the public.

Poerner, like his colleagues, doesn't have much to say about potential challengers, except to comment that anyone seeking the job needs to be a workaholic.

The RRC, he says, used to be one of the top jobs in the state.

"There's no glory over here — it's an administrative job now," he says.

Two candidates already have announced for the election.

John Thomas Henderson, who financed his own campaign for the RCC in an earlier race against Wallace, will face another commissioner, while his fellow Austinite, editor Jim Hightower, says he may run against both Poerner and Nugent.

Hightower contends the RRC is industry-dominated, and hasn't been making decisions in favor of the consumer.

Over the next campaign season, there's likely to be considerable discussion on that point.

But so far, there's no lynch mob forming around the RRC offices.

The question for 1980 may be whether a mob will form -and if so, whether they can get gas to get to town

Pork Rustlers Empty Pigsty

A South Plains thief literally brought home the bacon Monday — about a ton of it — when he stole 24 pigs from a farm north of Reese Air Force Base.

Artis Davis, owner of the farm, said the two dozen young porkers, which weigh about 80 pounds each, were taken Sunday and Monday.

Davis told police he found fresh footprints and tire tracks near the area where the pigs were kept.

Ten of the pigs were solid black, Davis said, and the rest were marked with black, white and red.

A commercial forklift was knocked over Monday as it sat in the 2200-block of Fourth Street, causing several hundred dollars worth of damage to the street, the curb, and a GTE telephone cable, according to police reports.

When the forklift fell onto its side, it hit the cable, loosening wires but not doing any severe damage, police said. The forks embedded in the street about five inches deep, and the weight of the tumbling vehicle cracked a section of curb.

Police said they have no idea how the forklift, which weighs about a ton, could have been knocked over.

A burglar, perhaps trying to do something about the heat wave sizzling the city, reportedly stole several parts from an air conditioner mounted in the alley of Sax Auto Parts, 1702 Texas Ave. Mike Tomlinson, an employee, said the missing parts were worth about $285.

Bryan Pruitt of 5201 19th St. said someone entered his home over the weekend and took a camera valued at $500.

Police reported two incidents of vandals breaking windows Sunday night.

M.S. Craig of 2402 Colgate St. told police someone had broken out four windows at a house at 2719 55th St. The four window panes were valued at about $400, he said.

Felix Zarazua of 405 36th St. said someone damaged a tractor parked at a construction site at Ivory Avenue and Itasca Street by throwing rocks through the windows. Loss of the glass was estimated at several hundred dollars.

A 23-year-old Lubbock man was arrested early Monday after police said he threw a fire bomb into a house at 3219 Emory St., resulting in more than $1,000 damage.

The resident, Anita Rodriquez, was not at home when the blaze erupted in the living room shortly before 4 a.m., according to reports.

A neighbor of Rodriquez' told police he saw a man go up to the house three times and throw something through the front window. On the third throw, the house burst into flames, the witness said.

He said he could not douse the blaze with a water hose and called the Lubbock Fire Department and the fire was put out within minutes.

Police arrested a man for suspicion of arson in the 3200-block of Emory Street about 4:40 a.m. The suspect reportedly matched the description of the man seen earlier at Mrs. Rodriquez' house.

In other activity, police Monday were attempting to locate three suspects in a Sunday afternoon shooting which sent two men to Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Patrolmen arrived at the scene of a one-car accident at 23rd Street and Avenue Q about 4:45 p.m. and found one of the passengers shot in the back.

Lucio Garcia Valdez, 20, of 2903 Colgate St. was treated at HSCH for a single gunshot wound and later was released.

Valdez was the passenger in a car driven by Robert Torres Villaneva, 21, of 1903 21st St., who told police he lost control of his vehicle and rammed into a telephone pole after he and Valdez were shot at.

Villaneva, also treated and released at HSCH for injuries suffered in the car accident, told police he was traveling in the 2200-block of Avenue Q when three Mexican-American men drove up next to his car and a man in the back seat fired a gun twice at his vehicle.

Valdez was struck by one of the bullets and Villaneva suffered a chest injury when he lost control of his vehicle and rammed into pole.

An 18-year-old Lubbock woman said a man attempted to rape her about 3:45 a.m. Monday after he climbed through her opened window.

The woman said she awoke to find the intruder in her bedroom. The man allegedly began choking the woman and threatened to kill her if she did not have sex with him.

Reports, however, state the woman told her assailant, "You might as well kill me," and then bit him on the arm.

The complainant said the would-be rapist then ran from the apartment. The suspect was described as black, between 18 and 25, and heavy built. He was clad only in pants, reports indicate.

A 19-year-old waitress told police that about 5:30 p.m. Sunday she was raped by a gun-wielding man at her residence.

Reports allege the man forced his way into the apartment, struck the woman in the mouth with a blue-steel revolver before assaulting her.

Beauty Practices Yoga

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Patricia Pineda Chamorro, a dark-eyed beauty who is Nicaragua's representative in the Miss Universe contest, is practicing yoga every day to take her mind off the death and destruction that surrounds her in this war-torn Central American nation.

The 19-year-old brunette and her mother fled from the town of Rivas, about 20 miles north of the Costa Rican border, when fighting erupted there two weeks ago, and have taken refuge in the Managua Yoga Institute. She hopes to leave Tuesday for Australia, site of the beauty contest.

Told of an Australian newspaper report that she might have been killed in the heavy fighting, Miss Pineda said, "As you can see, I am very much alive."

"The yoga is good exercise for the mind and body," she said in an interview Monday at the institute, five blocks from President Anastasio Somoza's national guard headquarters.

"I particularly needed the yoga when I could hear the bombs exploding and the machine guns firing," she said.

She was referring to a battle that ended last week in Managua's eastern slums. The anti-Somoza guerrillas retreated last Thursday but there is still sporadic firing at night.

Miss Pineda said she and her mother left behind her younger twin sisters in Rivas. The 17-year-old girls wanted to wait until the fighting stopped but now are trapped in the town because the highways leading out of it are closed, she said.

She said she spoke with them by telephone Sunday and they told her the fierce fighting ended late last week.

The 5-foot-8 Nicaraguan beauty queen appeared calm and relaxed during the interview, conducted on an institute tennis court.

She said she has been studying interior decoration at Oberthausen, a school in Puebla, Mexico, and that she hopes to return there in December to resume her studies.

Miss Pineda, who will be traveling to Sydney alone, said she has been dating a 24-year-old doctor who has been working long hours at one of Managua's hospitals, which are overflowing with the wounded and with sick refugees.

City Man Charged In House Burglary

Billy Joe Garrett, 23, of 3822 E. Erskine Ave. was charged Monday with burglary of a habitation in connection with the Sunday afternoon break-in at an Elgin Avenue residence.

Garrett is accused of stealing a tape deck and tapes, together valued at $950, from the residence of Larry Dale Watkins of 6302 Elgin Ave., No. 25.

The Criminal District Attorney's Office recommended a $10,000 bond for Garrett, who remained in the Lubbock County Jail Monday night.

Wallace died at 10:20 p.m. Sunday in Methodist Hospital following a brief illness.

He had lived in Lubbock since 1947, moving here from Waco. He was a retired carpenter.

Survivors include his daughter, Mrs. James Brannon of Lubbock; a daughter-in-law, Hillene Stone of Cleburne; three grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Two Charges Filed Against City Man

Two charges of aggravated assault have been filed against Durwood Eaton, 49, of Lubbock in connection with two incidents Thursday afternoon.

The Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's Office recommended bond of $10,000 and $5,000 for the two counts.

Eaton reportedly went to an Avenue M residence about 4 p.m. He allegedly quarreled with the couple inside and attempted to enter the house by cutting through the screen door.

The victim was treated and released at St. Mary's Hospital for a 14-inch knife cut across his back.

Eaton had not been apprehended by late Friday afternoon.

Governors Given New Gas Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter on Monday granted state governors the power to shift up to 5 percent of a state's gasoline supplies from rural areas to cities.

The move was aimed at correcting imbalances created by federal gasoline allocation rules, which Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said "put the gasoline where the cars are not."

Carter, during an afternoon of meetings with his advisers, also asked networks for broadcast time at 9 p.m. EDT Thursday to address the nation on the oil shortage.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter would "discuss with the American people the short-term and long-term energy crisis, the reasons for it, and the steps we will need to take to deal with it."

It would be Carter's third major broadcast address on energy since taking office. Powell said the president would not announce specific policy initiatives during the speech, but would work closely with Congress to draw up measures to curtail oil imports.

Powell refused to say what measures are being considered to carry out Carter's pledge, made at the seven-nation economic summit meeting in Tokyo last week, to hold U.S. oil imports to 8.5 million barrels a day or less through 1985. That level is lower than the present daily import level.

Powell said Carter had called the governors of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, where gasoline lines have been particularly severe, to inform them of the change in rules allowing them to shift gasoline supplies around within their states.

He said he didn't know if they would use the new authority, but added, "I would assume they would welcome the added flexibility."

Earlier Monday, Schlesinger, in a mumbled exchange picked up on tape recorder microphones, told Carter that federal gasoline allocation rules were giving rural areas more gasoline — relative to actual demand — than urban areas.

The rules give supplies to gas stations based on their past sales. But the shortage has caused many urban motorists to curb their driving into resort and rural areas where they had once bought gasoline for return trips.

Shifting Demand

As Schlesinger explained it to the president: "What it does is to put the gasoline where the cars are not. Puts it in the rural areas where the people are no longer going on weekends."

The new ruling would allow governors to request refiners to shift up to 5 percent of the state's gasoline supplies from areas of greater supply to areas of shortage.

This would be in addition to the 5 percent "set-aside" which governors already may allocate to meet priority needs.

Administration officials said refiners have always had the authority to make such shifts, but have been reluctant to do so for fear of being sued by the government for violating gasoline allocation rules.

The new ruling makes clear that refiners may shift supplies within a state without fear of legal action from the government, if they rely on a request from a governor.

This would not increase a state's total supply of gasoline, however. But the department's ruling said refiners may also shift supplies across state lines to balance shortages. To do so, however, refiners would need more proof of a severe shortage in a particular state than a request by the governor.

President Speaks

Carter's statement came at the start of two meetings on energy which Carter called following his return from Asia. Because of the growing energy problem, the president skipped a previously planned vacation in Hawaii to return directly to Washington Sunday night.

At one meeting Carter, while reporters and photographers were still present, said he wanted a "bold and forceful program" to send to Congress to carry out that pledge.

The president said, as he did in Tokyo, that he believes current shortages and the "tremendous" increase in the price of imported oil have now aroused the public and Congress to action.

Powell refused to discuss what proposals Carter would send to Congress, but indicated that some of them may look similar to proposals which Congress has rejected in the past.

"As you know, the president has presented proposals over and over again," Powell said. "If those proposals had been accepted, we would be in much better shape than we are now."

Carter proposed in 1977 such things as a "gas-guzzler tax" on automobiles with poor mileage and a standby tax on gasoline, all rejected by Congress.

Justices Support Integration Here

fects on Lubbock's case. "I've got to see what they've done," he said.

Robert Davidow, a member of a group working for systemwide desegregation, sees a pro-government effect, if any, on Lubbock's case.

The Tech law professor, speaking for CASS (Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools), said, "If there's any effect at all, it would be to strenghthen the position of the government" in the Lubbock litigation.

CASS Pleased

Davidow, former attorney for the group, stressed that he spoke as a member, rather than as an attorney. He added that CASS is pleased with the Supreme Court's decision.

The attorney said he would reserve further comment on the ruling and its implication for the Lubbock case until he can read the court's decision.

But the president of the local chapter of a national anti-busing group says that anti-busing forces may have a congressional ace up their sleeves no matter what the effect of the Supreme Court Ohio rulings.

Dan Seale, president of NANS (National Association for Neighborhood Schools) says a constitutional amendment that prohibits busing for desegregation purposes is moving closer to becoming a reality.

He said that, in a rare move, members of the House of Representatives have signed a discharge position that could force the amendment out of the House Judiciary Committee where it has remained for some time.

If the amendment is approved by a two-thirds majority in both the House and Senate, it would have to be ratified by 34 state legislatures to be included in the Constitution.

Rep. Ronald Mottl of Ohio has been attempting to force an anti-busing amendment out of committee for four years, but it has been ignored by committee members.

See Light At Tunnel End

The amendment would prohibit mandatory busing of public school students out of their neighborhood schools. It is scheduled for a House vote July 23.

"We feel good about it (the amendment)," said Seale. "The light at the end of the tunnel is a little brighter."

Seale said the situation for anti-busing proponents "looks very good regardless of the ruling that came down today." He said the group will wait to see the effect of the high court decision, but added, "It's not long before the rulings won't mean anything because we'll have laws to prevent forced busing."

Continued Seale, "We may have some legislation this year to put a stop to this nonsense of wasting our kids' time and educational abilities and wasting gas and money."

Monday's Supreme Court decision reaffirmed the 1973 Keyes vs. School District 1 landmark decision that has served as the foundation of desegregation efforts in the past.

The ruling, concerning busing in Denver, Colo., said that if a judge finds intentional segregation by school officials in a substantial portion of a school district, there is then a "presumption" that other segregation within the district did not occur by chance.

Thus, school districts shoulder the burden of proving that other segregated schools within the system were not intentionally segregated. If that burden is not met, district-wide busing is permitted.

In the Dayton case, a district judge originally ordered limited integration in the district. The Justice Department appealed to the Sixth Circuit Court who upheld their appeal.

The Supreme Court, however, affirmed the district judge's original ruling.

The district judge then threw out the case, saying the government never proved its charges of segregation, and the case ended up back at the appeals court level where systemwide desegregation again was ordered. The Supreme Court Monday upheld that Sixth Circuit Court-ordered plan which currently is in effect in Dayton.

Bolivians Divide In Top Race

less than a year for the 1,875,634 eligible voters in this coup-prone Andean nation. Banzer had called the election held July 9, 1978, but the vote count was snarled in a massive scandal and a week later Gen. David Padilla seized power and decreed Sunday's election. Congress will be installed in August and will vote on the top three candidates. If none receives a majority on the first round, the race will be narrowed to the two top contenders in the second round to pick the winner of a four-year term.

Politicians and newspapers praised the orderly voting.

"Yesterday's elections have demonstrated the maturity of the Bolivian people," the Roman Catholic newspaper Presencia said. "There have been some accusations of abuses and irregularties, but they are not sufficiently serious to alter the election results substantially."

The three-way contest is similar to one decided in Chile's Parliament in 1970. The late Marxist Salvador Allende was elected president by Chilean legislators when the right-wing National Party and centrist Christian Democrats could not agree on a candidate. Some Christian Democrats then voted for Allende. Allende was ousted by a coup in September 1973, and that country is still ruled by a military junta.

Banzer and Siles Zuazo are old political enemies. It was Banzer who forced Siles Zuazo into exile for nearly seven years. He returned in March 1978 to run in last year's elections.

Banzer also expelled Paz Estenssoro in 1974, accusing him of being a "disturber."

Siles Zuazo and Pas Estenssoro once were political allies. They led a 1952 revolution that brought major reforms to Bolivia, including land redistribution, universal suffrage and nationalization of the tin mines.

Paz Estenssoro was president from 1952-1956 and 1960-1964, while Siles Zuazo served from 1956-1960.

They headed the National Revolutionary Movement, but Siles Zuazo left when Paz Estenssoro collaborated with Banzer in the first years of his dictatorship. A logical alliance would be Siles Zuazo and Paz Estenssoro, both of whom now firmly oppose Banzer. But Banzer's congressional followers could back Paz Estenssoro to keep left-leaning Siles Zuazo out of office.

Socialist leader Marcelo Quiroga Santa Cruz, who finished fourth in the presidential race, was expected to support Siles Zuazo.

Mexican Vote Brings No Big Surprises

Mexicans cast ballots Sunday for the expanded 400-seat lower house, but no official count has been reported. The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, which has governed Mexico for a half century, was confident of an overwhelming victory. It held 196 seats in the outgoing 237-member Chamber of Deputies.

The election was only for deputies to four-year terms, with the next senatorial and presidential elections, for six-year terms, to be held in 1982. Seven parties entered 2,800 candidates.

Luis Anton Rodriguez, president of the federal election commission, said, "Not even 50 percent of the vote has been counted" and declined to release initial results.

There were estimates that as many as 70 percent of the 32 million registered voters went to the polls, compared to about 50 percent in 1976. Voting was by paper ballot rather than machine.

One reason for the substantial increase in turnout was the addition on the ballots for the first time of three parties, including the communists. A reform bill passed last year gave official approval to the Communist Party, the Socialist Workers' Party and conservative Mexican Democratic Party to enter the race.

Although all of the parties joined in, the communists dominated the street-poster and wall-slogan campaign here. Municipal workers were out Monday, tearing down the posters.

North Korean Radio Rejects Unity Plan

TOKYO (AP) — A North Korean commentary carried Tuesday by Pyongyang radio appeared to reject three-way talks on Korean reunification proposed by the United States and South Korea.

It said, "The Korean reunification issue is an internal problem of Korea and it should be solved by Koreans themselves without intervention by external influences. The United States has no right to intervene in our country's domestic affairs."

The statements were contained in a commentary by Rodong Sinmun, organ of North Korea's Communist Party, on a U.S.-South Korea joint communique issued Sunday.

The proposal called for talks with North Korea to ease tension and realize the long-pending peaceful reunification of the divided peninsula.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told reporters Sunday at the end of President Carter's two-day visit to South Korea there were "some indications" North Korea might accept the invitation issued by Carter and South Korean President Park Chung-hee. But he said the process would be "a long, hard road" even if that happened.

The North Korean commentary was distributed by Pyongyang radio in a Korean-language broadcast monitored here.

The article was the first North Koean comment on the joint initiative by Carter and Park. It said, "What the United States should do in connection with the Korean reunificatin problem is to stop its intervention in internal affairs of Korea and to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea, which are preventing the country's reunification.

"If there is a problem for the United States to talk with our side (North Korea), it is not the reunification issue but it is to change the Korean armistice agreement to a peace treaty."

The commentary urged the United States to abandon its "Two Korea" policy and pull out all U.S. troops.

High Court Affirms Mass-Busing Policy

ton School Board Chairman William Goodwin said the court's ruling amounts to "legal segregation." He predicted the decision would increase the flight of the rich to the suburbs. In other school cases Monday, the justices:

- Left intact a ruling that may lead to massive forced busing for racial desegregation of public schools in Austin, Texas.
- Cleared the way for the busing of some 3,000 first-graders to achieve greater racial balance in Louisville, Ky., area public schools.
- Refused to free Minneapolis schools from a federal judge's racial desegregation order for constitutional violations he first cited in 1972.

The court's closed-courts ruling came on a 5-4 vote. The majority said that judges — with a defendant's consent — often may close their courtrooms to the public and press during pretrial hearings to make sure an impartial trial jury later can be selected.

In a related case, the court left untouched Pennsylvania laws authorizing criminal trial courts, at a defendant's request, to bar the public and press from pretrial hearings.

In other matters Monday, the justices took these actions:

- Struck down by an 8-1 vote a Massachusetts law requiring unmarried females under 18 to obtain the consent of their parents or their judge before undergoing an abortion.

The court did say, however, that states may require a pregnant minor to obtain some consent to an abortion.

"We conclude ... that ... every minor must have the opportunity if she so desires to go directly to a court without first consulting or notifying her parents," the court said.

William Baird, operator of an abortion clinic who challenged the state law, said afterwards the ruling "shows once and for all that teen-agers are not chattel, they're not property, they're not owned by their parents..."

Tearing Fabric

But Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the U.S. Catholic Conference, said the ruling "goes a long way toward tearing apart the fabric of the family and does profound damage to the strength of the nation."

A pro-abortion group, the National Abortion Rights Action League, saw the decision as a costly victory at best. "While the Supreme Court has struck down the discriminatory Massachusetts law it has taken a step backwards today for minors' rights by sanctioning laws that are equally burdensome to teenagers," a spokesman said.

"By allowing a third party...to interfere in this personal decision, the court has once again narrowed the circle of women who have access to the constitional right to abortion," it said.

- Ruled by a 6-3 vote that Indians in the state of Washington are entitled to one-half of the state's annual catch of salmon and steelhead trout.

fine team of technical geniuses for the eventual doom of Skylab," a man from Buena Park, Calif. wrote Carter. "Your true and faithful followers like me know that it was Congress' fault."

A woman in New York City had this enterprising idea: set up a national lottery, 25 cents a chance, on where the debris will hit Earth. The purpose: to raise money to reimburse people for possible damages done by Skylab.

From a woman in North Phoenix, Ariz.: "I am very upset. I would like more warning than 24 hours so I could go somewhere out of the path 96 miles wide, 4,000 miles long and be safer."

To get out of harm's way, she could go to northern Germany, Britain, the Soviet Union, Sweden and northern Canada, or even Tierra Del Fuego. The South Shetland Islands and Greenland are good bets, too.

Italian Leader Hesitates At Forming Government

ROME (UPI) — President Sandro Pertini called on Premier Giulio Andreotti Monday to form Italy's 42nd government since the fall of fascism in 1943.

The five-time premier, who will face major problems in getting the parliamentary majority needed to govern, told Pertini he could not accept immediately and wanted to assess the political climate first.

Political analysts said even if Andreotti does accept, his chances of putting together a workable government were slim. His Christian Democratic Party has less than 40 percent of the seats in parliament, and no other party is willing to join him without imposing harsh conditions for partnership.

"I was given the task of forming a new government and I reserved my acceptance," Andreotti told reporters outside the presidential Quirinale Palace.

"I am fully ready to continue working," Andreotti said. "But under the condition that we can have a government with the concrete possibility of continuing the national and international recuperation that we have achieved." Looming in the background is the powerful Communist party, which is determined to oppose any government in which it does not participate.

The Communist Party, stunned by a June election loss of 4 percent, has already announced it "will be in the opposition against any type of government of which it is not a part."

The party's Central Committee gathered at its Street of the Dark Stops headquarters to vote a formal move into the opposition after three years of supporting minority Christian Democratic cabinets.

Andreotti, 60, said he would immediately contact leaders of those political parties that might enter into a coalition with his ruling Christian Democrats. Since losing a senate vote of confidence March 3 and calling new elections, Andreotti has led a caretaker government. His minority government coalition of Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Republicans had been formed only March 20 after the Communist Party pulled out of the government's parliamentary majority.

Italy's June 3-4 parliamentary elections only continued the indecisiveness. The Christian Democrats won 38.3 percent of the vote, the Communists 30.4 percent and the third-ranking Socialists 9.8 percent.

REPORTER BEATEN

LONDON (AP) — A British reporter investigating reports that Pakistan is developing a nuclear bomb was beaten by between seven and eight men on a street in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported Saturday. Chris Sherwell, a BBC radio reporter and correspondent for the Financial Times, said in a report from Islamabad that after the attack he was taken to a house where police interrogated him and accused him of "looking for girls," and he was then released.

Nicaraguan National Guard Opens Assault On Guerrilla-Held City Of Masaya

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's national guard launched a major attack on the guerrilla-held city of Masaya, a guard spokesman announced, Monday, and the sound of bombing runs by guard aircraft could be heard in Managua, 20 miles to the north.

The Sandinista guerrillas claimed victories farther south, along the Costa Rican border.

The Carter administration summoned newly arrived Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo back to Washington for urgent but unexplained consultations. The United States, which is trying to force Somoza to resign, also persuaded Israel to suspend the sale of two naval patrol boats to his right-wing government.

In Managua, the Red Cross reported increasingly desperate shortages of food and medicine for 150,000 homeless refugees.

On the Atlantic Coast in Bluefields, employees of Somoza's fishing company, Pesca-Nica, and dockworkers took over three Pesca-Nica vessels. "The workers revolted and captured the crews of the three ships and are holding them hostage," a source said, adding that the fishing boats — like three vessels captured two weeks ago from Somoza's commercial line — would be turned over to the provisional government appointed by the Sandinistas.

In the battle at Masaya, reports in late afternoon indicated the guerrillas had confined the fighting to the countryside around the city. Government troops were supported by a DC-3 airplane firing a .50 caliber machine gun, and by an armored car, reporters there said.

National guard spokesman Col. Aquiles Aranda Escoar announced the opening of the major drive against Masaya, held by an undetermined number of well-armed Sandinistas. A guard-operated radio station reported Sunday that guard warplanes had bombed Masaya and quoted an informant there as saying 80 persons were killed.

The sound of aerial bombardment in Masaya could be heard here Monday morning.

Guerrilla strength in Masaya may have been bolstered last week when Sandinista troops pulled out of their stronghold in Managua's eastern slums. There were fewer national guard troops than usual in the streets of Managua on Monday, a likely indication that more forces had been sent south to Masaya.

Tennis Scalpers' Business Good

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Scalpers, some of whom get $109 for a ticket to the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships, stood in line with the tennis fans overnight to buy tickets Monday for the second week of the top tennis tournament.

Most center court and No. 1 court seats, the only ones inside here, are sold by ballot months before the tournament begins. But some are held back and sold at 6:30 each morning to those in line. Those highly-prized tickets, regularly $10, are sometimes resold to foreign tourists for as much as $109.

Most of the 30,000 tennis fans who pack the All England Club daily pay $3.25 general admission, which allows them to elbow their way to the sides of the outside courts where they may or may not see some tennis.

Commissioners To Take Bids On Building

Bids for the construction of a $1 million-plus Lubbock County Youth Center and appointments to a Lubbock County Hospital District financial advisory committee will be considered at a 2 p.m. special meeting today of the Lubbock County Commissioners Court.

The bids will be opened at 2 p.m. in the central jury room on the fourth floor of the courthouse. The project on a nine-acre tract at Loop 289 and North University Avenue is scheduled for completion about a year from now.

Architect Lamar Youngblood of Austin said Monday he expects seven construction companies to submit bids. There will be one general contract with the contractor sub-contracting some of the work, Youngblood said.

County commissioners have been working on setting up a financial advisory committee for the district after district board members told them several weeks ago that a tax increase would be needed to keep the Health Sciences Center Hospital financially afloat.

The commissioners refused a tax increase but agreed to appoint the committee.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw said Monday that 21 persons had agreed to serve on the committee but that a chairman still had not been found.

"Several people have said they wouldn't mind serving, but they didn't want to be chairman," Shaw said.

EXPENSIVE BLAST

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Damage may total as much as $1 million from a weekend explosion that tore through a riverfront tavern and damaged at least 30 other buildings in an industrial area, authorities said Monday. No injuries were reported. The blast early Sunday leveled Kalamity Kate's, a one-story cement block building that had reopened only eight months ago after it was rebuilt from an earlier explosion. The blast on July 3, 1977, caused $90,000 damage.

Bacon Leads Food Price Drop

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Grocery prices dipped slightly in this month's survey of local marketbasket prices by The Avalanche-Journal, with bacon the biggest money-saver.

Total price for a selected group of items checked each month was $21.13 today, compared to $21.59 on June 1.

A one-pound package of store-brand bacon cost $1.29 this month, compared to last month's price of $1.73. The last time bacon registered a comparable price was in October 1978, when it also was $1.29.

A supermarket spokesman warned, however, that the $1.29 price was a special which has been in effect for the past two weeks. But Gene Mathai of Texas Tech's department of agricultural economics said that the dip may indicate a trend in bacon prices.

A buildup in the number of hogs at the farm level has caused a drop in farm and wholesale prices of pork, during the past two months, Mathai explained. "We've expected retail prices to follow," he said, "but until now they've been lagging behind."

Other Lubbock grocery price fluctuations were within a 10-cent range, with sugar, chicken and laundry powder down slightly and potatoes, frankfurters and lettuce up.

Though an Associated Press marketbasket survey showed twice as many items unavailable this month as last — due to the strike by independent truckers, Lubbock grocery shelves so far have not been affected.

"As of yet, we're still in pretty good shape," Randy Green, manager of Furr's at 302 University said this morning.

Perishables, such as produce and meat will be the first items affected by the strike here, but Green explained "about 90 percent of our merchandise comes in on rail anyway," he said.

The United States is the world's largest consumer of coffee with three billion pounds of green coffee roasted in this country every year.

'Schoolgirl' Austin Stuns Billie Jean

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Tracy Austin, the schoolgirl, mastered Billie Jean King, the grand dame, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 in a tennis classic Monday and reached the Wimbledon semifinals for the first time.

"It was one of the best wins of my career," the 16-year-old Californian said after a pulsating two-hour battle that swayed back and forth and enthralled the 17,000 fans on the center court.

Martina Navratilova, the defending champion, came back from a slow start to defeat Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 2-6, 6-3, 6-0. Miss Austin will face Miss Navratilova in the semifinals Wednesday.

Chris Evert Lloyd outstroked Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-3, 6-4. Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia snuffed out Britain's hopes by hammering Virginia Wade 6-4, 6-0.

Now its Tracy Austin against three experienced stars who have all won the title. Evert Lloyd has won it twice, Miss Navratilova and Mrs Cawley once each.

Mrs King, 35, won the Wimbledon women's doubles title with Karen Hantze in 1961, the year before Austin was born. She has won the singles crown six times.

She played with all the guile she has learned in 19 years of Wimbledon campaigning. She volleyed with her old authority and had her young opponent scampering in vain after angled shots and heavily spun drops.

But in the end, miss Austin's steadiness and quiet temperament won the day. While the "old lady" fussed and fumed over line calls and shouted encouragement to herself and beat the ground with her racket, the kid on the other side of the net never lost her cool.

All three sets see-sawed, with breaks and counter-breaks. King saved three set points before Miss Austin sealed the first set with a superb cross-court backhand.

In the second set, Miss Austin lost her service three times, and broke back each time. In the tiebreaker, Mrs King kept her nose ahead throughout and won it by seven points to five.

Mrs King led 2-0 in the third, but Austin broke back with fine backhand returns and levelled at 2-2.

The match teetered in the balance in the vital fifth game, in which Mrs King served and had four points for a 3-2 lead. But each time as she pushed forward eagerly for the kill, Miss Austin passed her at the net.

Finally the game went to Miss Austin. After missing the baseline with lobs throughout the match, she hoisted a perfect one that dropped on the line and left Mrs King stranded up court.

The youngster's confidence was sky-high and Mrs King did not win another game. The last fw rallies were played from the baselines, and Miss Austin's steadiness was decisive. Mrs King had two break points, but Miss Austin serenely fired away and beat them off.

Mrs King said afterwards she did not go to the net often enough.

"I stayed back when I should have been more aggressive," she said. "Physically I could have played three more sets today, but mentally I could not sustain anything."

Miss Austin had been coached by Mrs King for Wightman Cup matches but had never played against her in a tournament before.

"I just had to keep control of myself and get out of my mind that she has won everything there is to win," she said.

The Greening Of Wimbledon

IT WAS JUST ten years ago — how time disappears.

Eleven summers back, the big tennis tournaments had the good guys as headliners. The pros, the Other Guys, were bouncing around, hitting one-night stands in poorly lighted arenas and a few lesser tournaments, making about enough cash to make it to the next city.

Meanwhile, the amateurs were playing Wimbledon, Forest Hills, the French, Italian and Australian tennis championships — and, in many instances, making more money under the table then the announced professionals.

But, a year later (1968), it all changed. And tennis as a world-class game, has not been the same. The explosions have rocked the athletic world.

All because of money — and partially because of the folks behind the greatest tournament around, Wimbledon.

George Richey, the San Angeloan who not only gave the game a championship brother-sister duo in Cliff and Nancy but also is one of the top teaching pros in the state, looked back on it — and remembers the change well.

THE MAJOR CHANGE had nothing to do with metal racquets, synthetic surfaces, or Jimmy Connors. It had nothing to do with Davis Cup or colored tennis balls. A color was involved, however.

Green.

Money came into the game ten years ago, with the switch from amateur to open tennis tournaments.

"The open tournaments: They started the change," George Richey commented Monday from his home in San Angelo, "and tennis has been growing ever since.

"Money caused the change. When they opened it up (to the pros), then people like Ken Rosewall and Rod Laver got to play in the big tournaments like Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

"Before then, they were pushed into the background.

"But, Wimbledon was the one (tournament) benind the open era," recalled Richey. "And it's rather unbelieveable, too, since they're so staid. But, they just wanted the best players, and the best players were pros."

Maybe the year sticks in George's mind, because one of the first big tournaments was All In the Family.

'That was the year (daughter) Nancy won the French Open. She beat Billie Jean King (in the semifinals) and Ann Hayden Jones in the finals.

"I don't think that was the first open tournament; seems like some smaller tournament — not Wimbledon — in England was first. But, it was one of the first big ones."

NOW, IT'S TRULY an international game, whereas for many years it was just a United States-Australian monopoly. Not any more. In Wimbledon, the only Australian still alive is Evonne Goolagong Cawley; there are no Aussie men on the tennis horizon.

"The Australians dominated for so long," said Richey, "but, I'm told that the Australian crowds, at one point (a few years back) didn't come out and watch because it was so one-sided (all Aussies).

"They tired of seeing their own players winning all the game. Then, too, when (famed coach) Harry Hopman came to the United States, there was no one to look for talent like he did. He was behind Rosewall and those great players, and he was also always scouting for young players.

"But, it (Astralia's loss of tennis prestige) was sudden — just like turning off the water."

WHILE THE U.S. Open has been moved from Forest Hills, Wimbledon remains Wimbledon, and the money isn't all behind its continued success.

"Tradition," said Richey — and he didn't stutter. "It's always been considered the premier tournament, and that tradition is pretty hard to erase.

"It (Wimbledon) makes the youngsters quake. Put them in the same tournament and call it the Essex County Championships, and a lot of them would play well."

Wimbledon is the grestest, and tennis is booming.

"But, it's not a fad (this surge in tennis interest)," asserts Richey. "It started coming in '68, and it's still growing."

"People are finally finding out what I knew 35 or 40 years ago: This is a helluva game."

Qualifying Continues For Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Their cars safely qualified for Wednesday's $208,000 Firecracker 400, Darrell Waltrip and Bobby Allison went out for a game of golf Monday before taking some practice time on Daytona International Speedway.

Grant Adcox went fishing and it was hard for him to believe it was possible.

Adcox, 29, has been driving here since 1974 and never before was mentioned along with Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, Allison, Cale Yarborough, Waltrip and the other stars.

Out of the blue, Adcox qualified his Oldsmobile fourth fastest Sunday at 192.046 miles per hour and will start in the second row on Independence Day.

Drawing unaccustomed media attention, Adcox said his rise to top-drawer level was simply a decision to spend a wad of money on a first-class engine and reduce to six the number of races he'll enter this year.

His team bought a race-ready engine from the W.I.N. racing group, which prepared Baker's car that won the pole with a 193.196 mph clocking.

"I'm going fishing," Adcox announced after taking a few warmup laps. "It's the first time I've been able to do that here. Other years, I always had to worry about qualifying on the second day."

Rookie Dale Earnhardt led second-day qualifying for 21st through 30th starting spots. He turned a lap at 187.966 mph in his Oldsmobile.

Veterans Dave Marcis and Donnie Allison also qualified at better than 187 mph and rookie Joe Millikan did 186.941.

The final 11 spots will be filled today.

Now that they are in the field, Earnhardt and Millikan are planning to continue their battle for rookie of the year honors with Terry Labonte, who qualified Sunday at 190.457.

Labonte blew an engine in practice Monday, spinning off the 31-degree banked first turn to the bottom of the track and damaging some of his front suspension. But his crew immediately began replacements.

Firecracker Set For Brownfield

BROWNFIELD (Special)—The oldest road race in West Texas will highlight the Independence activities here. Sponsored by the West Texas Running Club, the 11th Annual Firecracker 10-mile and 3-mile race will be at Colonial Heights School.

A 1-mile race for youngsters will be included.

The one miler begins at 8:45 a.m. and the other races begin at 9 a.m. Registration is at 8 a.m.

The entry fee is $1 for members of the West Texas running club and $2 for non-members. Interested persons can join the club during registration. Tournament officials expect 200 runners to trek across the flat asphalt course.

The competition will be organized into divisions for each race. The youngsters 1-mile run will include the 7-and-under, 8-9, and 10-11 age groups. The 3-mile race features an open, 15-and-under, high school, 20-39, and 40-and-over age groups. A ladies 16-24, 24-and-over and 16-and-under divisions also will be included.

The 10-mile run features the open, high school, 20-39 and 40-and-over and a ladies open division.

Former Tennessee Star Pleads Guilty To Charge

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A former University of Tennessee football player pleaded guilty Monday to assault and battery in the beating of a coed who lost an eye in a fight over a parking space last year.

Criminal Court Judge Joe Nigro ordered a suspended sentence of 11 months and 29 days on the Knox County Penal Farm for Rick Powers after the reserve linebacker on Tennessee's 1977 squad entered the plea.

FATHER AND SON — Richard Petty and son Kyle relax by their trailer early Monday as qualifications continue for the July 4th Firecracker 400 race at the Daytona International Speedway in Daytona Beach, Fla. Richard celebrates his 42nd birthday today while his son turned 19 June 2. The younger Petty was eliminated from Wednesday's race after a smashup on track. (AP Laserphoto)

Rangers Silence Orioles

By The Associated Press

Jim Sundberg doubled twice and drove in both runs as the Texas Rangers beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 in a battle of American League division leaders.

Steve Comer, 8-6, scattered seven hits, striking out two and walking three. He outdueled Baltimore's Dennis Martinez, 10-6, who allowed six hits, struck out three and walked two.

Richie Zisk doubled to right in the third. John Grubb walked and Sundberg drove them both in with his drive to deep center.

Sundberg doubled in the fifth with none out but Martinez retired the next three batters to end the threat.

It was Martinez' third straight loss after winning 10 consecutive decisions from April 22 through June 20.

The Rangers backed Comer with three double plays and two Oriole runners were cut down trying to take an extra base.

EXPOS 5, CUBS 4

Steve Rogers scattered eight hits and Ellis Valentine drove in two runs to lead the first-place Montreal Expos to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Rogers, 8-5, gained his fifth shutout and eighth complete game of the season as the Expos picked up their fifth victory in seven games on their current road trip, including their triumph in a suspended game in St. Louis.

Montreal scored off loser Dennis Lamp, 5-4, in the first inning when shortstop Ivan DeJesus lost Gary Carter's infield pop fly in the sun. The ball fell for a double with Andre Dawson, who had singled, scoring.

Singles by Tony Perez, Valentine, Larry Parrish and Chris Speier gave the Expos two runs in the sixth and Valentine singled in two more in the seventh after the Expos loaded the bases on singles by Warren Cromartie and Perez around a walk to Dawson.

Bill Buckner had three of Chicago's hits.

Rogers gave up single to Buckner in the first, Barry Foote in the second and to Lamp in the third but was never in serious trouble until the sixth.

With one out in that inning, Buckner singled and Dave Kingman walked. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch but Rogers got Jerry Martin to foul out and Steve Ontiveros to ground out.

TWINS 7, MARINERS 0

Darrell Jackson and Mike Marshall combined on a sixth-hitter and Glenn Adams had three hits and drove in two runs to lead the Minnesota Twins to their fourth consecutive victory 7-0 over the Seattle Mariners.

Jackson, 1-0, who joined the Twins in mid-June from their Toledo farm club, allowed five hits, struck out two and walked three in eight innings. Marshall pitched the ninth and allowed the final hit.

The Twins sent 10 men to the plate in third inning as they scored five runs, three of them unearned, against Odell Jones, 2-8.

INDIANS 8, TIGERS 4

Jim Norris' bases-loaded triple in the 11th inning broke a 4-4 tie and the Cleveland Indians went on to defeat the Detroit Tigers 8-4.

The Indians loaded the bases in the 11th on a walk, a fielder's choice and a single before Norris delivered his game-winning hit. Norris came home with the final run on a sacrifice fly by Mike Hargrove.

Victor Cruz, 1-5, got the victory while John Hiller, 1-7, took the loss.

Norris led off the Indians' first with a single and scored on Andre Thornton's two-out double. Dave Rosello hit his third homer of the year with one out in the second to give Cleveland a 2-0 lead.

YANKEES 7, RED SOX 2

Tommy John survived a pre-game accident and became the American League's first 12-game winner, holding Boston to five hits and riding home runs by Jim Spencer and Reggie Jackson to a 7-2 victory over the Red Sox.

John, 12-2, was struck on the neck just below the right ear by a thrown ball while taping an interview behind first base during batting practice. John was given ice treatments for the injury but seemed untroubled by it once the contest began.

He gave up an unearned run in the third inning. After one-out singles by Gary Allenson and Rick Burleson, Yankees catcher Thurman Munson permitted a passed ball that allowed the runners to advance. Allenson scored when shortstop Bucky Dent was unable to handle Larry Wolfe's grounder cleanly and passed up a play at the plate for the out at first.

PIRATES 5, CARDS 4

Tim Foli's second hit of the game, a single to right field, snapped a tie in the seventh inning and boosted the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Foli's game-winning hit came after the Cards had battled back from a 4-0 deficit in the sixth on Tony Scott's two-run double and George Hendrick's two-run single.

St. Louis left-hander Darold Knowles, 2-4, retired Pirates pinch-hitter Manny Sanguillen to start the seventh. Omar Moreno then sliced a double down the left field line and scored easily on Foli's single — his 11th hit in his last 21 times at bat.

PHILLIES 6, METS 2

Manny Trillo's first home run of the season, a three-run fourth-inning shot, triggered the struggling Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets.

The Phillies trailed 2-1 when Greg Luzinski singled with one out in the fourth, extending his hitting streak to seven games. After Mike Schmidt walked, Garry Maddox singled but Luzinski was thrown out at the plate by center fielder Lee Mazzilli.

That brought up Trillo, who socked the first pitch from loser Dock Ellis, 0-1, over the left field fence for a 4-2 Philadelphia lead. The Phillies added two runs in the fifth on a walk to Larry Bowa, who stole second and scored on Pete Rose's single, and a steal by Rose followed by Luzinski's RBI single.

The Mets took a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning off Phillies right-hander Nino Espinosa, 7-7, who now has three triumphs over his former teammates. Joel Youngblood opened the game with a walk and scored on Rich Hebner's fifth home run of the season.

Miss Fromholtz broke service at the start of the second set, but then the match turned around. Miss Navratilova began to play her serve-and-volley game with more confidence and finally was a convincing winner.

Mrs Lloyd outstroked Miss Turnbull from her baseline in a match that lacked variety. Mrs Lloyd is the only one of the four semifinalists who has not yet lost a set.

Mrs Cawley, who could be the first mother to win Wimbledon in 65 years, was a winner all the way against Miss Wade. The British player served erratically and knocked up a steady stream of half-court lobs that fed the Australian's smash.

In 18 years of playing at Wimbledon, Miss Wade, 34 next week, had never lost a set to love before.

Seaver Grabs Player Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds has been selected Player of the Week in the National League for the week ending July 1, the league announced Monday.

Seaver started two games during the week and won them both, defeating the West Division-leading Houston Astros 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants 2-0, allowing only three hits in each game.

Darkhorses Eye Semifinal Spots

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Two American darkhorses — virtual unknowns in English tennis circles — bid today to reach the Wimbledon semifinals.

Bill Scanlon, who had never advanced past the first round before this year, and Pat Dupre, who describes himself as " a horrendous grass court player," have been the biggest surprises of a topsy-turvy Wimbledon.

The two men who have forged through to the last eight of the world's premier tournament are far down in the world rankings. Dupre is ranked 37th, scanlon63rd.

The former NCAA champion faces the mighty Jimmy Connors.

Dupre, a 24-year-old born in Belgium, reared in Birmingham, Ala., and now living in La Jolla, Calif., upset Vitas Gerulaitis in the first round. To reach the semis, he must beat another unseeded player, Italian Adriano Panatta, who always has voluble support from London's large Italian population.

The two other quarterfinals feature defending champion Bjorn Borg against veteran Dutchman Tom Okker and big-serving Roscoe Tanner against giant-killer Tim Gullikson, the man who ousted John McEnroe.

The Wimbledon crowds love an underdog and Scanlon is certainly that.

The Texan with the polished volley only turned professional in 1977 and has only one tournament victory to his credit. That was last year in Maui, Hawaii, where he got into the tournament as a lucky loser. His victims included McEnroe and Peter Fleming.

But since then Scanlon's form has been spotty, and he has reached the Wimbledon quarters without beating a seed.

Like Scanlon, Dupre enjoyed his greatest successes as a junior.

He was ranked No.1 in the National Boys' 18 singles in 1973 but admits: "I never made the progress I should have."

Now Dupre, who says "I have never achieved anything on grass," has a chance to achieve plenty there.

U.S. Takes Early Lead In Pan American Games

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Ken Sutton, a roller skater from Muskegon, Mich., won the first gold medal presented in the VIII Pan American Games Monday and the United States took an early — but unimpressive — lead in the medals race.

After the first morning of actual competition, the Americans had gained three gold medals and six overall. But they were being hard-pressed by Canada and Argentina, each with two gold and five overall.

There was the promise of better things to come for the deep, strong American forces that are again expected to dominate these hemispheric Olympics.

The swimmers were off to a great start in the first qualifying heats. All Americans advanced. And there were, as expected, some records set.

In morning swimming qualifying, spectacular Tracy Caulkins, a 16-year-old from Nashville, Tenn., set a Games record in the 200-meter individual medley — one of the four world marks she owns — and American men twice broke the Games standard in the 200-meter freestyle.

Caulkins won her heat in 2 minutes, 21.29 seconds.

David Larson, Jesup, Ga., first broke the old 200-meter freestyle record at 1:53.34. It lasted only until the next heat, when Ambrose Gaines, Winter Haven, Fla., was clocked in 1:53.25.

Finals in those two events, plus the men's 100-meter backstroke and breaststroke, the women's 400-meter medley relay and the women's 3-meter diving were scheduled Monday night.

Both the American men's and women' basketball teams — each favored to win the gold medal — also opened their schedules, Coach Bobby Knight's men's team against the Virgin Islands and the world champion women's team against host Puerto Rico.

Tarkanian Removes Himself From Lakers Coaching Job

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian, considered a leading candidate to replace Jerry West as head coach of the professional Los Angeles Lakers, said Monday he will remain as head coach at Nevada-Las Vegas, at least for the time being.

Tarkanian, in a statement released by the university, said he wanted to remain in Las Vegas tosee his court fight with the NCAA to a conclusion.

"I owe i to my family and all o the Las Vegas fans who ave faithfully supportd me to stay at UNLV until the NCAA matter is resolved through the courts," the coach said in his brief, three-paragraph statement.

Tarkanian had been seen as a top candidate to replace Lakers coach Jerry West, who has decided he wants to get out of coaching and will not lead the Lakers for a fourth season.

Tarkanian, said to be the "winningest" coach in the country, has compiled a 143-32 record in six years at UNLV.

But his tenure here has been controversial, as it was at Long Beach State.

Tarkanian has been under fire from the NCAA for alleged recruiting violations, both here and in Southern California when he headed the Long Beach team. The case has provoked a court fight between Tarkanian and the university and was a major factor in the Congressional hearings last year on the association's dealings with major schools.

In 1977 the NCAA placed UNLV on probation and wanted Tarkanian suspended. But the coach fought the edict and obtained a court order blocking the suspension.

The university, apparently seeking to placate the NCAA, appealed to the Nevada Supreme Court which reversed the original ruling and sent the case back to Clark County District Court in Las Vegas where it currently rests.

The high court ruled that the NCAA should have been a party to the original suit.

Tarkanian said he was only one of several persons being considered for the Lakers job, although he is the only one known to have been interviewed for the post.

Dodgers Gagging; Little Help In Sight For LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite the fact that only 80 games have been played, it has already been the longest of seasons for the Los Angeles Dodgers, the proud, two-time National League champions.

As the Dodgers began a 13-game road trip Monday night, they were in fifth place in the National League West, a mere .003 from last place, 16½ games behind the front-running Houston Astros.

From the Dodgers' standpoint, all the numbers are dismal. They've lost six straight games — all at home, 14 out of their last 19, and have just concluded a month in which they were 7-20, the worst June for a Dodger club since 1936.

On the road, the numbers are no better. Los Angeles is 11-25 away from Dodger Stadium and the club plays 20 of its next 27 games on the road.

Although the team has been deep in a hitting slump in the past week, the main reason for the collapse seems to be pitching, long a Dodger strength. Leaders of the National League in team earned-run average eight of the past nine years, the Dodgers have a team ERA of 4.20.

The Dodgers no doubt miss Tommy John, the ace of the past two years who turned free agent when the team wouldn't meet his money demand. He is now the mainstay of the New York Yankees.

Manager Tom Lasorda, who last year joked about the Big Dodger in the Sky, says, "I read in a paper last night the quotation, 'Put everything in the hands of the Lord.' That's the way it stands.

"Game after game, night after night, I can't believe this happening. Night after night, it's tearing my insides out.

"I've tried everything...The rest of the way? I've got to look for a winning streak. That's all I can do. All we can do is hope and pray that tomorrow's the day we turn it around."

There has been criticism of the Dodger front office for not entering the free agent hunt more vigorously. Despite the loss of John and off-season arm surgery for relief ace Terry Forster, the Dodgers signed only sore-armed Andy Messersmith during the off season.

As early as last winter, the Dodgers knew Forster would be slow in recovering. Although he's finally pitching, he's been ineffective, not the man who saved 22 games last year. He has a 1-1 record, a 4.10 ERA and only one save.

Time and time again, the Dodgers have led or been tied going into the late innings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Only four players have worn the New York Yankees' pinstripes longer than Roy White — Mickey Mantle, Lou Gehrig, Yogi Berra and Babe Ruth.

White doesn't want to move farther up the list.

"I've lost interest in playing here, even if they said, 'Hey, the job is yours, you can play until the end of the year.' I just don't care to play here any more," the left fielder said Sunday after making one of his rare starts this season.

Considered one of the best left fielders in Yankee history, the 35-year-old White has become a part-time player — mostly a bench-warmer.

But Sunday, White started the Yankees' 6-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox and hit a two-run homer. And, although he's sporting only a .174 batting average, he has made his hits count.

"I guess it doesn't matter that I have 19 hits and 16 RBI," he said.

Lately, White has been used a pinch runner, a role he dislikes intensely.

"I read last year where George (owner Steinbrenner) told Billy (Martin, Yankees manager) never to bring in Catfish Hunter to mop up because Catfish had had such a great career. I guess it's all right for me to have to come in and pinch run.

"I think I've done a lot for the Yankees in my time. After being around 14 years and being a very productive player, it's embarrassing to pinch run for somebody. But I guess it's all right for me to embarrass myself."

Usually the quiet man amidst the controversy that has surrounded the Yankees the past three years, White is sixth on the club's all-time list for at-bats, right behind Joe DiMaggio. He has scored more runs than Bill Dickey, Tommy Henrich and Phil Rizzuto; is second in stolen bases with 231; ninth in total hits, 10th in doubles and 12th in runs batted in.

But that's in the record book, not today.

"I know what my status is," he said. "My status is — White sits on the bench until everybody gets hurt. I don't like sitting around waiting for somebody to get hurt before I can play. It's not that easy sitting around and playing once in a while.

"I want to leave. I just don't care to play here any more, period. Other guys get traded. Jay Johnstone. Cliff Johnson. Bob Watson went from Houston to Boston. The Cubs traded Bobby Murcer. I don't see why I'm any different."

Martin said he was sorry White wants to be traded.

"I haven't given up on Roy," the manager said, "but I can only play three outfielders at a time."

JACK BURRUS

Burrus Still Area Warden

The rolling plains of northwest Texas are quite familiar to Jack Burrus, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game warden assigned Childress and Hall counties.

Burrus has been with the P&WD for some 17 years and has been stationed in Childress since graduating from P&WD game warden school in May of 1962. Burrus and his wife, Martha Jean, and three daughters, Sabrina, age 15; Shelley, age 18; and Sharece, age 15, reside in Childress.

Childress and Hall counties furnish local anglers with some good largemouth bass opportunities although the dry period last summer slowed that activity. Baylor and Childress lakes are small, but have yielded some large bass each year.

Both counties were affected by the drought and lack of wildlife cover last hunting season, but according to the P&WD representative, they appear to be making a comeback this year. The deer herd is stable and the area is well known for excellent quail hunting.

The excellent hunting opportunities in the two counties attract many hunters and a few hunting violations occur. The game warden listed shooting from the road and hunting without a license as the two biggest offenses.

Burrus is in constant radio contact with both the P&WD and local law enforcement agencies.

Dream Comes True For Gene Segrest

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For Gene Segrest, being the starting pitcher in the North-South All-Star baseball game last week, was a dream come true.

In fact, the Coronado ace couldn't describe in words the excitement he felt before he threw the first pitch to the plate.

But it took less than an inning before he had plenty to say about the experience.

Before Segrest could settle down, he gave up two singles and a 3-run homer.

"I hung a curve to David Fry (of Port Neches-Groves) and he sent it out of the park over the left field wall," recalled Segrest. "I thought the Astrodome was supposed to be a pitcher's ballpark. But boy, he really hit it."

Playing in the Coaches All-Star game is just one of the ways Segrest is keeping in shape this summer as he works towards his first college season. He is also pitching for the Lubbock Hubbers (winning a game Saturday).

A check of the Mustangs' statistic book reveals that Segrest finished the District 4-AAAA season with a 7-4 record with a 1.24 ERA. So, what is Segrest trying to improve?

"It's just little things," said Segrest. "(Former Monterey players) Larry Horn and Jim Shankle have been helping me."

Horn, who played in the Montreal Expos farm system before returning to Lubbock, has been instructing Segrest on kinds of pitches to throw in different situations.

"It really is a case of studing the batters more," said the righthander. "It's just a way of helping me build my confidence."

Shankle, who spent time in the Boston Red Sox farm system, has modified Segrest's pitching form.

"Jim has been getting me to bend a little more," said Segrest. "It's helped my control and delivery."

When Segrest's name wasn't inked on the Hubbers' lineup card at the pitcher's spot, he plays third base. When Segrest was pitching for Coronado, he played shortstop.

"The main difference between the two positions is that at third base you have to be quicker," said Segrest. "It really doesn't matter if I play third or short."

Segrest throws a fast and curveball. The hard throwing righthander is trying to master a changeup and knuckleball.

"I've thrown the changeup before," said Segrest. "But I just don't have the confidence in the pitch."

Segrest, who hopes to break into the starting rotation at Tech next season, believes the changeup and knuckleball are necessary to keep batters offstride.

And if he didn't know it already, the All-Star game in the Astrodome made Segrest aware of the quality of talent he's going to face over the next four years.

"It was extremely humid down there," said Segrest. "I think that hurt me a little bit, because I just wasn't aware of that kind of climate being from Lubbock."

Also, Segrest got some experience playing on an artifical surface, which he'll face a few times next season during the Southwest Conference race.

"One of the singles before the homer shot through the infield extremely quick," said Segrest. "I really believe it could have been fielded on grass."

Now, though Segrest wasn't able to dominate the action like he so often did during the his 4-AAAA career, the All-Star game wasn't a total fiasco for the righthander.

Segrest is quick to tell you that after the 3-run homer, "I only allowed two other hits, and struck out four without walking a batter in three innings of work."

Peachtree Road Race Draws Thousands

By PEGGY WALSH
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Some people may think it's cray. On the nation's birthday, 18,000 people will don their running shoes and face 90-degree wether for the 6.2-mile annual Peachtree Road Race. And all for a T-shirt, and the pleasure of running.

Race officials say an estimated 18,000 persons — ranging in age from 6 to 80 — are expected to register for the 10th annual race. Fifteen thousand already had registered by Sunday.

Participants come from as far away as New Zealand to run the grueling course and receive the traditional Peachtree Road Race T-shirt awarded to persons who finish in 55 minutes or less.

For some the race is an opportunity to test endurance for future races and even the Olympics. For some, it's merely recreation — a way to show that their afternoon jogging has paid off. And for others, the few who complete the race in wheelchairs, it's a way to show that they, too, can compete.

Jeff Galloway, a local runner who won the first Peachtree race in 1970, views it as a "fitness parade."

"For the first three years, the field was small, mostly track runners competing in a strictly time-oriented field," said Galloway, a member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team.

"After '74, the race started appealing to thousands of everyday runners," said Galloway. "It's become a great recreational run — a kind of fitness parade. People use it as a demonstration of their own training and fitness."

The race participant figures are testimony to Galloway's views. In 1973, 548 persons finished the race. In 1974, 765 competed and the number grew to 962 in 1975, 2,300 in 1976, 5,700 in 1977 and 12,000 in 1978.

Mike Roche of Cranford, N.J., who won last year's race with a record time of 28:59, is slated to compete this year, despite a recent liver illness. Mary Decker of Eugene, Ore., who set the women's record last year at 33:52, has a conflicting commitment and is not expected to defend her title.

"It's amazing the way this simple act of putting one foot in front of the other down Peachtree Road can assume such major proportions," sad Bob Varsa, this year's race director.

"This rivals anything I know of as far as a foot race is concerned or just a participatory event," he said. "It's quite a thing."

Apparently, Tim Wyn Harris of Waipukurau, New Zealand, agrees.

He'll be 45 on July 4, and a letter he wrote to race officials indicates he plans to spend his birthday perspiring on Peachtree Road with 17,999 other people.

Varsha says Harris' enthusiasm isn't unusual.

"Runners are a touching, feeling group," he said, "and they like to experience things for themselves. They are coming here to see what it is about Peachtree that makes it so good.

And then there's the T-shirt.

"The Peachtree T-shirt is a coveted item all over the country," said Varsha.

"Just the fact of owning one means you've done something," he said. "If you've got one, you know you ran and you did it."

Owens Wins Raquetball Contest

The first West Texas Invitational Raquetball tournament concluded last weekend with Dee Owens, from Amarillo, defeating Odessa's Simon Alavarado in the finals of the mens open division.

In other finals, Ben Summerlin of Reese AFB defeated Lubbock's Billy Wilt for the mens B division title and D. Sledge of Odessa downed Lubbock's Don Stevens for the mens' novice division.

In the womens' competition, 15-year-old Liz Alvarado, the only nationally-ranked player in the tourney, won the open division. The Odessa native defeated Gail Randle, of Lubbock, in the finals.

YMCA Sponsors T-Ball Tourney

The deadline for entering the YMCA sponsored T-ball league is July 6.

The league is open to all boys and girls who, as of 1979, are in kindergarten, first or second grade. Entry forms are obtainable from the YMCA headquarters.

An organizational meeting for parents and coaches will be July 9 beginning at 7 p.m. at the YMCA. The T-ball season begins July 16 and ends August 16. Teams will be organized according to neigborhood schools.

T-ball is a form of baseball for children that doesn't require a pitcher. The players hit the ball from batting tees. Otherwise, the league follows official baseball rules.

"T-ball is a great, safe game that helps develop a child's eye coordination," said an official at the YMCA.

Registration in the summer league will cost veteran players $10 while new participents, who are members of the YMCA, will pay $13 and non-members will pay $15. For more information contact Dal Burrows at 793-2333 or the YMCA office at 762-0588.

Coaching Changes Bring Openings

BORGER (Special) — Ray Murphree, assistant basketball coach at Borger High for the past eight years, has accepted the position of head basketball coach at Sweetwater High, according to Borger basketball coach Duane Hunt.

As a result of the move by Murphee, Borger High School is now accepting applications for an assistant basketball coach. Contact Duane Hunt at (806) 274-4721 or after-hours his home number is 273-2419.

Another coaching position is open at Lorenzo High School where the school is looking for a coach to assume the head track and assistant football coaching duties. The applicants must also be qualified to teach history.

Cycle Crash Fatal To Elderly Pedestrian

FITCHBURG, Mass. (AP) — An 83-year-old Fitchburg man died after a pack of cyclists peddling furiously for the finish line in a 50-mile road race Sunday slammed into him as he crossed the race course.

The man, identified as Joseph Lynch, died in Burbank Hospital a half hour after being struck, and four cyclists injured in the ensuing pileup were treated and released from the same hospital, said authorities.

"It happened so fast," said police officer Brian Lorion, "it seemed all the racers split in all directions."

The medical examiner, Dr. Charles W. Sauter, said Lynch died of a heart attack.

The cyclists were racing at least 45 miles per hour for the finish of the 20th annual Longsjo Memorial 50-mile national road race when Lynch walked across their path, said police Lt. Joseph Carbone.

Carbone said one cyclist, Rob Lea of Cambridge, spilled head over heels over his handlebar.

Carbone said he was questioning witnesses to determine the details of the accident.

TAAF Records

Fifty-three records were set at the regional TAAF (Texas Amateur Athletic Federation) Track and Field Meet at the Coronado High School Track Saturday.

Lubbock competitors accounted for four of the records. Kris Williamson established a new mark in the junior girls' division with a time of 2:35.7 in the 880 yard dash. The Lubbock Striders' mile relay team in the intermediate boys' division set a record of 3:47.34. Arthur Hanna won the long jump in the senior boys' division with a record-breaking leap of 22-8. Curtis Conaway of the Lubbock Striders set a new mark in the mile run of the men's open division with a time of 4:24.3.

The top two finishers in each event earned the right to compete in the state meet July 27-28 in Waco.

What's Old Milwaukee Double Header Time?

Old Milwaukee
12 CAN PAK

It's when thirsty men go for two!

A special time. A time of the year when you're at your hottest and thirstiest. A time of the year when you deserve more of the great taste of Old Milwaukee. So remember to look for the Old Milwaukee Double Header Time display at your neighborhood store. Go for two!

Go for this Wilson Bat & Ball set, and save.

Here's a bat and ball set from a great name in sports, Wilson. They have a retail value of over $22.00 and they're yours at a special price of $13.59. So clip this coupon, or pick up an order form wherever you pick up Old Milwaukee.

Old Milwaukee Beer tastes as great as its name.

The bat is made from seamless, hard-hitting aluminum, and the softball is Wilson's best. Both meet official specifications, and they're both emblazoned with the name of your favorite beer—Old Milwaukee.

THE PATENTED SPRAY SICKLE RECIRCULATING SPRAY CYCLE

Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works.

The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever — (Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

'No Crude, No Food' Idea Has Some Holes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

"No crude. No food."

That's the theme of a popular song and it is a theme that appeals to many gasoline-starved motorists.

The theory goes like this: Why should we give the oil-producing countries low-cost food when they keep boosting the price of petroleum?

The theory sounds good, but it's got some holes.

In 1978, the United States exported about $2.5 billion worth of agricultural products to the 13 nations which make up the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. That represented less than 10 percent of our total agricultural exports last year.

With two small exceptions, those exports were not in the form of aid. The grains and other farm products were sold — at regular market prices through regular commercial channels. They brought in money badly needed to help our balance of trade.

Even the exceptions did not involve the countries which most Americans think of when they talk about OPEC. They involved Indonesia and Ecuador. Neither is in the Middle East; neither is an Arab state.

Why don't we simply raise the price of food every time the OPEC countries raise the price of oil? Again, there are several problems.

Doubling the price of wheat, for example, might force the oil producing countries to pay more, but it would also boost food bills for American consumers. And, said Jerry Bange of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the United States does not produce enough of the world's wheat to allow us to raise the price unilaterally. In 1978-79, for example, world wheat production was 437 million tons; U.S. production was 49 million tons, or a litle more than 10 percent of the total. OPEC, in contrast, produces 36 percent of the world's oil.

The idea of "getting even" with OPEC by denying them food seems to be a popular one, however. Bange said he had received several calls from people asking why we didn't halt our food shipments to the oil producers.

"Cheaper Crude or No More Food" is the name of a current country and western song. Bo Weaver, a Trenton, N.J., disc jockey, drew cheers from listeners when he locked himself in a studio at WTTM and played the song repeatedly for 10 hours. Some authorities said the song may have helped touch off a series of violent demonstrations in Levittown, Pa., across the Delaware River from Trenton.

Some people, meanwhile, want to sell the oil producing countries more food, not less. Allan Grant, the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, says he is planning a trip to Libya in an effort to swap "food for crude." Grant said the Libyans "are interested in agricultural and dairy and poultry production ... They think they can get what they want by going directly to the farmers."

Our biggest agricultural customer among the OPEC nations last year was Iran which purchased $493 million worth. Venezuela was the second-biggest buyer — $387 million worth.

Other OPEC countries and the amount of agricultural exports we sold them are: Indonesia, $317 million; Saudi Arabia, $315 million; Nigeria, $300 million; Algeria, $143 million; Iraq, $139 million; Ecuador, $81 million; United Arab Emirates, $30.9 million; Kuwait, $21 million; Libya, $12.9 million; Qatar, $5.4 million; and Gabon, $1.1 million.

The Indonesian total included $6 million of direct aid and $100 million in food shipments purchased at a discount. The Ecuador total included $2 million in direct aid.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My husband is 28. I am 26. Our combined annual income is $24,000. He is recently out of school and we are just coming to the point where our debts are paid off and we can start saving to buy a home.

In March 1978, we each purchased a $10,000 whole life insurance policy. In September, he took out $25,000 additional insurance — $7,500 term, the rest whole life. Do you think it is worthwhile for us to pay $55 a month for all this insurance?

I'm beginning to think the money could be used better elsewhere. The dividends on our insurance will be used to buy additional paid-up insurance. But will the life income we will be able to start receiving at age 65 be worth the money we are expending now?

A. I doubt that it will. The insurance company is pledged to start paying you a fixed number of dollars for life — most likely on a monthly basis — beginning at that far-off time.

But, because of the unhappy fact of inflation, the dollars you will receive then won't buy but a small fraction of what dollars buy now or will buy — in ever-diminishing amounts — in the years ahead.

You have made the all-too-common mistake of confusing insurance with investments. Because of inflation and its high cost, whole life insurance is a mighty poor investment.

That's why this column always recommends that people buy term life insurance — which is much less expensive — for protection and invest elsewhere.

In your case, the money you save in insurance premiums — by buying term rather than whole life — could be used to save toward that house down payment. Home ownership is the best investment the average family makes.

Now I can brace for another batch of angry mail from insurance people who like the high commissions and profits of whole life.

Q. My mother, 60, has approximately $10,000 invested in an "income" mutual fund, which returns her about 8 percent annually. Her only other income is $260 a month from Social Security. She plans to sell her house and probably will realize about $60,000.

We would like to generate about $10,000 a year for her. Should she continue to hold that mutual fund?

A. You had better double-check the yield on that mutual fund. The one you named in your letter has been paying dividends resulting in a current yield — dividend divided by market price — of less than 2 percent. That's certainly not the right kind of investment for someone in your mother's position. She should cash in those fund shares and put her money to work in a higher-yielding investment.

On $70,000 — the $10,000 from the mutual fund and the $60,000 from the sale of her home — your mother would have to get 14.3 percent to have $10,000 a year coming in. That kind of yield just isn't available with any kind of safety.

If, after Social Security — $3,120 a year — she needs additional income of $6,880, that works out to 9.8 percent on $70,000. Some stocks and bonds produce such yields. But I don't think your mother's money should go into things that might fall in market value.

My suggestion is to look at annuities. At her age, an annuity will return more than 9.8 percent. Be sure that she and you understand that, with an annuity, part of the money she would receive would be income and part would be her own money being returned to her.

Q. When our son was born eight years ago, a well-off friend asked what kind of a gift to give. I suggested stock, expecting something worth something. He gave 10 shares of a stock I had never heard of and which I found out was then worth $2 a share. A broker now says we'll be lucky to get 10 cents a share for it and that the commission on the sale would be $25.

Any suggestions?

A. Hang on and hope. And next time you're asked for a gift suggestion, say "a kitten or a puppy." Then you won't get one of Wall Street's cats or dogs.

Bush Begins Trip To Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and CIA director, said on Monday a continued strong American role in the Middle East peace effort is essential.

Bush, an announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said in a statement issued as he left for a five-day trip to Egypt and Israel that he would be paying particular attention to the effect of the recent oil price increase on the politics of the region.

"I fully supportd President Carter's accomplishment of bringing together Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for the purpose of working out a peace treaty between these two Middle East countries," Bush said.

"And it is essential that the United States maintains strong relations with these two Middle East powers and continues to work toward bringing other nations — particularly the moderate Arab countries — into the process," he said.

Bush was scheduled to arrive in Egypt Monday for a two-day visit and then spend three days in Israel where he is to be the keynote speaker at the Jonathan Institute's Conference on Terrorism.

Building Fund Goes Over Top

TULIA (Special) — Surpassing their goal for fund raising by about $71,000, residents of Swisher County met requirements to receive a private grant to help construct Phase II of the Swisher County Memorial Building.

The Swisher Memorial Board had collected $335,000 by the Saturday deadline, $71,680 more than the goal of $263,320 needed to receive a matching $200,000 grant from the Mabee Foundation of Tulsa, Okla., notes Tulia Mayor W.V. Swinburn.

Swinburn said he expects more money to be contributed for use in building the facility. The Memorial Building was begun in 1976, with construction of a library, meeting rooms and civic offices.

Phase II of the project involves construction of a museum and senior citizens' center.

Groundbreaking for Phase II is set for 2 p.m. July 14.

Funds collected in excess of the goal will be used to cover additional expenses and effects of inflation, which has increased the building's cost by about 15 percent since original estimates were made, said Swinburn.

Carter's Popularity Drops Below Nixon's

NEW YORK (AP) — President Jimmy Carter's popularity has sunk below the lowest rating Richard Nixon ever got during his troubled presidency, according to an ABC News-Harris Poll released Monday.

Carter's latest rating for overall job performance was 73 percent negative, 25 percent positive, with two percent not sure. It was the worst job performance rating ever given a president in a Harris poll.

Carter's marks in a May poll were 70 percent negative, 29 percent positive and one percent not sure.

Harris said the previous presidential low was a 71 percent negative rating given Nixon in a poll released five weeks before he resigned in 1974.

In a category called inspiring confidence in the White House, Carter dropped nine percentage points from May to a 74 percent negative rating, with 20 percent giving him positive marks and six percent undecided.

Nixon's figures for inspiring confidence remained the lowest ever — 86 percent negative in the June 1974 survey, Harris said.

Carter received negative marks of more than 80 percent for his handling of the economy and energy.

Postmaster Assumes Littlefield Duties

LITTLEFIELD (Special) — Ronal O'Connor, 38, assumed duties Saturday as new postmaster

O'Connor, a native of Levelland, was serving as officer-in-charge at Denver City several months before his appointment. He also was supervisor of the Levelland office.

He began his postal carrier as a substitute carrier in 1959 at Levelland and has taken more than 300 hours in specialized postal service training.

O'Connor graduated from Smyer High School and attended South Plains College in Levelland.

Pretrial Press Exclusion Wins In Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a one-vote margin, the Supreme Court on Monday gave judges practically a free hand to bar the news media and the public from pretrial criminal proceedings to ensure an unbiased trial.

In a 5-4 decision, Justice Potter Stewart said, "The Constitution nowhere mentions any right of access to a criminal trial on the part of the public." The right belongs to the accused, he said.

In a case that pitted the right of a free press against that of a fair trial, Stewart said judges have broad discretion to prevent prejudicial publicity from being made public.

"Publicity concerning the proceedings at a pretrial hearing ... could influence public opinion against the defendant and inform potential jurors of inculpatory information wholly inadmissible at the actual trial," Stewart said.

"Closure of pretrial proceedings is often one of the most effective methods that a trial judge can employ to attempt to ensure that the fairness of a trial will not be jeopardized by the dissemination of such information throughout the community before the trial has even begun."

The ruling was denounced as inflexible by the court dissenters and by representatives of news organizations.

The organizations said that 90 percent of criminal indictments are settled in pretrial hearings and therefore the Supreme Court was opening the way to excluding the public from the overwhelming majority of criminal cases.

The ruling upheld the New York Court of Appeals and a trial judge who barred reporters and the public from a pretrial hearing in 1976 on a defense motion to suppress evidence against two men accused of killing Wayne Clapp, a former policeman in Brighton, N.Y., a suburb of Rochester.

Such hearings on suppression of evidence traditionally have been open to the public.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, in the dissenting opinion, said the court had established a rule "that if the defense and the prosecution merely agree to have the public excluded from the suppression hearing, and the trial judge does not resist — as trial judges may be prone not to do, since non-resistance is easier than resistance — closure shall take place."

Blackmun added, "The result is that the important interests of the public and the press in open judicial proceedings are rejected and cast aside as of little value or significance."

The case was brought by the Gannett Co., a major newspaper chain, which has its headquarters and two newspapers in Rochester.

The case stemmed from the death of Clapp, who was reported missing on July 18, 1976. Three days later, Kyle Greathouse, 16, and David Jones, 21, were arrested in Michigan and returned to Rochester to be arraigned. On Nov. 4, 1976, Seneca County Judge Daniel DePasquale granted a defense request, with the prosecution agreeing, to exclude all spectators from the courtroom.

The pretrial hearing examined the admissibility of confessions given by the two suspects and Clapp's revolver. Greathouse led police in Michigan to the place where he had buried the gun.

Greathouse and Jones eventually pleaded guilty, without standing trial, to reduced charges of first degree manslaughter and were sentenced respectively to 20 years and five years in prison.

After they pleaded guilty, a transcript of the pretrial suppression hearing was made public.

The New York Court of Appeals ruled 4-2 that a judge may presume that pretrial publicity may violate a defendant's constitutional right to a fair trial.

In Monday's ruling, Stewart rejected the dissenters' recommendation that a judge permit the public and the press at pretrial hearings "unless a defendant carries his burden to demonstrate a strict and inescapable necessity for closure."

Stewart said, "Because of the Constitution's pervasive concern for these due process rights of the accused, a trial judge may surely take protective measures even when they are not strictly and inescapably necessary. It may be difficult to measure with any degree of certainty the effects of such publicity on the fairness of the trial."

The majority did not decide whether there were cases when the press and public could not be barred from an actual trial.

But Stewart said that during a trial, it is much easier for a judge to keep prejudicial information from the jurors by ordering them from the courtroom and preventing them from seeing or hearing news of the case until they return their verdict.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., one of the five in the majority, said the ruling does not give arbitrary power to judges. He said, in a separate concurring opinion, that he intended to monitor cases like this in the future to guarantee that judges act properly within their discretion.

Stewart said the ruling did not grant absolute control over pretrial proceedings to judges, since in the Clapp case in New York the transcript was made available once the defendants had pleaded guilty.

But to some critics of the court, who regard the decision as the latest in a series of setbacks, there was little solace.

Jack C. Landau, who heads the Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press, said the court had approved "judicial censorship of the rankest kind." Landau said the ruling meant judges could act on "whim ... to decide what is newsworthy."

Allen H. Neuharth, chairman and president of Gannett Co., said in Rochester: "This decision to permit the courts to lock the public out of the courtroom is another chilling demonstration that the majority of the Burger court is determined to unmake the Constitution .... It is the Supreme Court saying that the judiciary is a private Supreme Club, which can shut the door and conduct public business in private."

In a related case, the high court dismissed an appeal by news organizations challenging the constitutionality of Pennsylvania state law authorizing criminal trial judges to bar the public and press from pretrial hearings at the defendant's request.

The majority drew a distinction between Monday's case and a 1976 decision involving a Nebraska murder trial, which held that news media may not be barred from publishing or broadcasting information obtained in open court.
