She was preceded in death by her parents, Walter R. and Katy Jewell Emmons; and by a daughter, Coenetta Kay Mecher.

Survivors include her husband, Buck, of the home; two sons, Jim McDaniell of Lincoln, N.C., and DeWayne Mecher of Tulsa, Okla.; two sisters, Billie Harvey of Pampa and Edna Parks of San Antonio; a brother, Don Emmons of Pampa; five grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be to Hospice of Brownsville.

JAMES F. MURPHY

PALESTINE — James F. Murphy, 79, died Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1998. Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Bailey and Foster Chapel with Danny Sidders and Archie Waldrum officiating. Burial will be in Roselawn Park under the direction of Bailey and Foster of Palestine.

Mr. Murphy was born March 27, 1919, at Sabinal, Texas, to the late William and Mary Murphy. He was a maintenance supervisor with Phillips Pipeline Company, retiring from the company after 30 years of service. He was a member of Court Drive Church of Christ and was a U.S. Army veteran, serving with the 79th Infantry Division during World War II.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Bettie Jane Owens Murphy; five sisters, Lynda Richey, Elizabeth Clements, Margaret Durbin, Ruth Hart and Judy Cook; and three brothers, Graydon Murphy, Thomas Murphy and Bobby Murphy.

Survivors include a daughter, Cindy Taylor of Round Rock; a son, Mike Murphy of Plano; and four grandchildren.

The family will receive visitors from 7-8 p.m. today at the funeral home and requests memorials be to a favorite charity.

BLANCHE TOLBERT OSBORNE

MIAMI — Blanche Tolbert Osborne, 80, died Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1998. Services will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in First Christian Church of Miami with George Lundberg, minister of Church of Christ in Miami, officiating. Burial will be in Miami Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Mrs. Osborne was born April 15, 1918, at Miami. She married Lowell "Scoops" Osborne in 1938 at Pampa. The couple farmed and ranched from 1938-53 in Roberts and Gray Counties prior to moving to South Dakota where they continued to farm and ranch. She returned to Miami in 1975. She served on the Roberts County Museum Board of Directors and attended First Christian Church of Miami.

Survivors include three sisters, Ina Seuchs of Miami, Lola Simpson of Tyler and Mary Wold of Arlington, Wash., and three brothers, Bill Tolbert and Jimmy Tolbert, both of Miami, and George Tolbert of Hamilton.

The family requests memorials be to Roberts County Museum or to First Christian Church of Miami.

TREE

she added.

Funds from the Tree of Love are used to purchase medicines and medical equipment and to provide personal care and support for Hospice of the Panhandle patients and their families, McCavit explained.

"Our primary source of funding is direct payments from Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance," she said. "However, in 1997, more than $63,000 was spent to care for patients and insurance, families for whom we would receive no reimbursement. This was covered through memorials, donations and through fund-raisers like the Tree of Love."

"So you can see, our work with the terminally ill of this community is dependent on the generosity of others," McCavit said.

Investigator: Controllers lost track of plane that crashed, killing four CHICAGO (AP) — When a federal air traffic controller took a break, he failed to tell his replacement about a small plane he was tracking, a federal investigator concluded. It crashed, and nobody noticed for 13 hours.

All four people in the plane died in last year's crash, including the one man who an autopsy determined was alive after the crash.

Controllers at the Federal Aviation Administration's Terminal Radar Approach Control center in Elgin simply "lost sight of the aircraft," National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Matthew Furman told the Chicago Tribune.

The NTSB's lead investigator, David Bowling, concluded that the controller tracking the Piper Saratoga took a break and failed to mention the plane to his replacement.

FAA officials declined to comment until the NTSB closes its investigation.

The plane, carrying two couples returning from a five-day vacation, crashed Dec. 22 in a remote area of Kane County after ice collected on its wings.

The plane's owner and co-pilot, Clyde

"The holiday season is a special time of caring, sharing and celebrating life," she added. "At Hospice of the Panhandle, we celebrate life every day by working to make each day of life the best possible for our patients and their families."

For a $10 donation, a light is placed on the Tree of Love in honor of special persons in donors' lives. The honoree's name will also be painted on an ornament and placed on the Tree of Love in the Post Office.

All donations will be acknowledged to the donor and to the honoree or honoree's family if the address is provided, McCavit said.

Anyone wishing to "Light Up A Life" on Hospice of the Panhandle's Tree of Love may send donations to Hospice of the Panhandle, PO Box 2795, Pampa, TX 79066. For more information about the Tree of Love or about hospice care, call (806) 665-6677.

Huntington, died partly due to hypothermia, according to a pathologist's report, which noted that his injuries appeared to be "not immediately lethal."

The Tribune said the findings have prompted changes at the 2-year-old, $95 million facility, where controllers keep track of one of the world's busiest air corridors.

Now every conversation between outgoing and incoming controllers are recorded in an effort to encourage detailed briefings. Such recordings are routinely used at other air-traffic control centers.

Controllers are also required to make detailed records of each plane's approach and landing to ensure planes are not forgotten.

Brian Heimberg, the lawyer for the estate of Huntington, 50, and his wife, Christine, 49, who also died in the crash, said the couple's relatives don't think faster emergency response would have saved his life.

"They feel that (even) if the plane had landed next to a fully stocked ambulance there would have been nothing different in its outcome," lawyer he said.

The Antigone Club of Panhandle will host the Panhandle Annual Tour of Homes from 2-5 p.m. this Sunday. Included in the tour is the home of Billy Van and Carole Crawford, above, at 201 Maple.

Antigone Club of Panhandle to host its annual Tour of Homes

PANHANDLE — The Antigone Club of Panhandle will host the Panhandle Annual Tour of Homes, "Homes for the Holidays." The date for the tour is Sunday Dec. 6 from 2-5 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from any Antigone Club member at $5 per person, and are also available at each house. Maps of house locations are printed on back of tickets. The tour will include 611 West 5th St., 201 Maple, the home of Weldon and Marilyn Grisham five miles east and south of Panhandle and the home of James and Reba Reining 6 1/2 miles southeast of Panhandle. The Grisham residence appears to visitors to be an ideal country home. Now encompassing approximately 2500 square feet, the home has gone through a number of changes.

Walter Amelia Lill, Marilyn's grandparents, built a frame house on the site in 1913. Before construction began on the original brick home in 1943, the Lills moved the existing house a few yards away and lived in it until the new home was completed. The frame home was then relocated to another farm in Carson County.

Marilyn and Weldon Grisham moved into the Walter Lill home in the fall of 1987. The original brick home contained approximately 1500 square feet. The first winter, following the design by Marilyn's brother, Michael Gilkerson, AIA, of San Diego, the couple renovated the kitchen.

In July, construction started on the first addition, also designed by Michael. The contractor for the addition of the master suite and utility room, gallery/foyer, and covered porch was Eldon Berry of Amarillo.

The master bedroom features vaulted ceiling with cove lighting and a fireplace. The room is furnished with custom-made southwest style furniture. The bath features double sinks, jacuzzi tub, and separate shower. Ten foot ceilings and a glass block window over the tub create a feeling of light and space. Triple full length mirrors hide the master closet and other storage.

A glass block wall replaced the solid wall that separated the kitchen from the old utility porch. The porch was transformed into part of the new foyer, and a new utility room was added. The old and new parts of the house were joined with a spacious, covered porch.

During the summer of 1990, the couples son, Scott added an octagonal deck to the eastside of the house. The deck surroundings an outdoor fireplace made of petrified wood, which was built by Marilyn's grandfather and used for outdoor cooking.

The summer of 1996 saw the renovation of the bunkhouse, which in the past housed the teacher of the old Hobart School. The original bunkhouse was cedar paneled, but had no plumbing. The closet was converted into a half bath, and gently used furniture was added to make the bunkhouse into sleeping space for extra guests during the holidays and hunting season.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:
The Facts (Brazoria County) on judicial appointments in Texas:

Late in the campaigns leading to the Nov. 3 election, a flurry of TV ads described one candidate as "the laziest judge in Texas." Another ad suggested another candidate received many and large campaign donations from interests with litigation pending in his court.

Many ads impugned the ability or integrity of judges. Often these appeared too late for an adequate response to a false accusation.

This practice is bad and will get worse. It means that regardless which candidate wins, that person will enter office with a tarnished image, and the system of justice itself is tarnished. There is a perception that much of this system is for sale, particularly in noting the vast cost of ads repeated through the day, the week, the month, on all media.

Much of the abuse is due to political parties wanting control of the machinery and the philosophy of state government. While the vicious nature of some advertising is new, the problem of partisan influence is not. Some years ago, a new appellate court was created in Houston, and all six of the judges appointed by Republican Gov. Bill Clements were Republicans. At the next election, five of the six were replaced with Democrats solely because of their party affiliation.

For several years, concerned organizations have urged changing the way Texans choose judges, particularly at the appeals level. Last Thursday, a bill by state Sen. Robert Duncan addressed this problem. His SB 59 might go a long way toward reducing purely party influence on the judiciary.

Under Duncan's proposal, all appeals court judges and justices would be appointed. They would serve six-year terms. As the term end approached, they would have to request that they be retained. They would go on the general election ballots for a "yes" or "no" vote. If they got a majority vote they would stay in office. If not, the office would be declared vacant and would be filled by appointment.

Another provision: That vote would be non-partisan. Those voting a straight-party ticket would have to vote separately on the retention election.

District judge elections would be different. The ballot would have competition between district judge candidates. But they must be voted on separately by voters: A straight-party vote would not include a vote for that party's candidate for district judge. And write-in votes would not be accepted.

This is a compromise. There is a popular reluctance to giving up choices by election. But voters seldom know enough about the qualifications of upper-level judicial candidates, and therefore vote by party or name recognition.

Before SB 59 can take effect it must be preceded by a constitutional proposal for having appellate judges and justices appointed by the governor. If this is done in the 76th Legislature, and SB 59 is approved, it would take effect in January 2000.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on libraries and the Internet:
We admire libraries that provide Internet access to patrons. This is a good example of the outstanding services that community libraries provide, and it demonstrates the many ways that taxpayers can benefit from libraries.

But we sympathize with Internet-providing libraries for the difficulties that they face in dealing with one tricky aspect: how to keep children who use the library from visiting pornographic sites on the Internet.

Software that is designed to block access to X-rated Internet sites has appeared to be the best method of dealing with the problem up to now. But the American Civil Liberties Union filed suit on behalf of some of the blocked sites, and a federal judge ruled against the libraries.

U.S. District Judge Leonie Brinkema ruled that libraries in Loudoun County, Va., must not violate the right to free expression if they offer Internet access.

Here in Texas, the ruling did not deter the Plano city council from planning to block Internet access to X-rated sites at its four city library branches. The council also plans to put up signs warning library patrons that viewing pornography on library terminals violates city law.

We do not object to citizens' accessing pornography on the Internet if that is what they choose to do with their time. But we feel that they should do it in the privacy of their own homes. They should not expect libraries or any other governmental institutions to provide pornographic Internet access to them.

Judge Brinkema's ruling, which prevents libraries from blocking Internet sites from adults, is sure to be challenged — as will the Plano city council's policy.

But we applaud Judge Brinkema for offering alternatives for libraries. She suggested that libraries could have different computer terminals for adults and children or that computers could be installed with filters that could easily be switched off when adults were using the computers.

Both of the alternatives make good sense and would allow adults free access. It may yet be possible for libraries to protect children — or should we say "prevent" — from accessing pornography while they are within the library walls.

At their convention in New Orleans recently, Republican governors were keen to avoid one subject. Education was on the table, along with tax cuts and big government. But whatever you do, participants were cautioned, don't bring up the Big I.

Bill Kristol, editor of The Weekly Standard, actually scolded the governors for their ostrich stand on impeachment. "As we sit here," he reminded the group, "the House Judiciary Committee is considering whether the president of the United States should be impeached. That is not an insignificant thing, and we shouldn't be saying, 'Oh let's not talk about that,' let's talk about education and other important issues."

Most Republicans would dearly love for the whole matter to simply go away because they do not wish to seem "judgmental" before an electorate that is intolerant only of intolerance.

For months, I have tried to understand the attitude of millions of my fellow Americans who, faced with unrebuted evidence of presidential law breaking, shrug their shoulders and say, "Let's move on." If I've heard one, I've heard a hundred callers to radio and television programs say, "What the president did was intolerable. But it wasn't impeachable. So drop it."

In other words, what the president did was intolerable, but let's tolerate it.

Perhaps the most charitable way to interpret the attitude of voters is this: If Candidates A and B are having a debate, and Candidate B accuses Candidate A of being a rotten person, while Candidate A insists upon rising above such name calling to address the issues, most voters are going to conclude that the more seemingly course is to reject the name caller. No one wants to reward the politics of personal vituperation.

But to continue our thought experiment, suppose Candidate A really is an uncommonly rotten person. Suppose he has cheated on his income taxes, embezzled funds from his law firm and contributed money to the Ku Klux Klan?

By the logic of President Clinton's defenders, all of that is irrelevant. We must only ask, we are instructed, about Candidate (or President) A's policy positions.

The president's champions further claim that only acts "affecting the state" are fit subjects for impeachment. If so, then a president who slandered, assaulted or raped someone could not be impeached on those grounds. That is plainly ridiculous.

Surely we have not abandoned altogether the notion that our political leaders — in order to merit the honor of making our laws — be decent human beings. But we do seem to be confused about where to draw the line.

One would think that giving Clinton a "bye"

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday Dec. 4, the 338th day of 1998. There are 27 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 4, 1783, Gen. George Washington bade farewell to his officers at Fraunces Tavern in New York.

On this date:

In 1816, James Monroe of Virginia was elected the fifth president of the United States.

In 1918, President Wilson set sail for France to attend the Versailles Peace Conference.

In 1942, U.S. bombers struck the Italian mainland for the first time in World War II.

In 1945, the Senate approved U.S. participation in the United Nations.

In 1965, the United States launched Gemini Seven with Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell aboard.

In 1978, San Francisco got its first female mayor as City Supervisor Dianne Feinstein was named to replace the assassinated George Moscone.

In 1980, the bodies of four American churchwomen slain in El Salvador two days earlier were unearthed. Five national guardsmen were later convicted of murdering nuns Ita Ford, Maura Clarke and Dorothy Kazel, and lay worker Jean Donovan.

In 1996, the Mars Pathfinder lifted off from Cape Canaveral and began speeding toward Mars on a 310 million-mile odyssey to explore the Red Planet's surface.

Ten years ago: The government of Argentina announced that hundreds of heavily armed soldiers had ended a four-day military revolt. In Venezuela, former President Carlos Andres Perez was declared the winner of the country's presidential election.

Americans should be thankful

Vice President Al Gore made an asinine speech at the Asian economic summit, injecting himself into the internal affairs of Malaysia at a time of crisis. Even American allies were embarrassed by his childish performance.

Perhaps we ought to get over our superiority complex. I do not mean by that we should join the leftist hate America crowd. I mean we should recognize that America owes its wealth and power not to superior people but to ordinary people in superior circumstances. I mean that we should recognize that other people are our equal in intelligence and industry.

Gore and many American officials act like those old British imperialists who looked upon the rest of the world as an inferior collection of little brown, black, red and yellow people eager to be told how to live by their self-appointed masters. Wake up and look around: There is no British empire. Those little brown, red, yellow and black people destroyed it.

We owe our fortunate circumstances to those American ancestors the left loves to hate as slaveholders and Indian killers. They carved out for us the very best part of the North American land mass. Canadians were left with the frozen tundra; Mexico was left with deserts in the north and rain forests in the south.

Americans, on the other hand, had an enormous expanse of forests, incredibly fertile topsoil, great rivers, fine natural harbors, a kings treasure of minerals and fossil fuel resources and a temperate climate. Nor should we forget the protection of two oceans. We enjoy the prosperity and power that we have today because of what those people in the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries did. It is a lousy human being who wallows in the fruits of their labor while condemning them.

I hope Americans are not so ignorant that they do not realize that it was necessary to defeat the French, defeat the British, defeat the Spanish, defeat the Mexicans and defeat the Indians in order to create this country as we know it.

Geography, one of those forgotten subjects it seems, plays a critical role in human history. It makes a big difference whether you are an island nation, like England, or a continental nation, like Poland, astride the main invasion route between the two continental powers, Russia and Germany.

Caesar and William the Conqueror successfully invaded England, but no one else ever did so, including Napoleon and Hitler, both of whom marched through Poland on the way to Russia and again on the way out of Russia. Geography matters — a lot.

While we emerged from World War II with our land mass and industrial base untouched, Europeans had to live through the devastation of war and in the east emerged from Nazi conquest only to be swallowed by communist conquest. (Remember, 55 million people died in World War II and only about 300,000 were Americans.)

Eastern Europeans are not poorer than we are because they are stupid or lazy. They have lived through hard and bad times that test the very soul. The same goes for the people of Asia who have had to contend with forces and events from which fortunate circumstances spared us.

Americans in the 20th century have more reason to be humble and thankful than to be proud and arrogant. I have serious doubts that we Americans living today, and I include myself, would have what it takes to come to the North American continent as a wilderness and create a great nation. It was a hard, often a cruelly hard task, and it made a hard people.

One English writer described the American frontiersman as "a loner and a killer." Maybe so, but we owe him our present good fortune.

INMATE

"You had to get pretty close, 5 or 10 feet," Humphrey said. "Not a lot of it was out of the water, mainly his hands."

"Unreal. Couldn't believe it" "From his hands to the wrists, they were sticking out of the water, and his face," Smith said. "That was all we saw."

"It was kind of a sick feeling."

"We never had any piece of evidence that took the inmate away from our perimeter or containment area," Wayne Scott, executive director of the prison system said. "We work on that rule of thumb and it paid off for us."

"We're the professionals. We've done this before. It's very unfortunate these things occur. But there's no prison that's escape-proof."

"I think we're relieved," added Gary Johnson, director of the prison system. "This was an issue of public safety. We knew as long as we had a death row inmate outside our compound that there was a potential of public risk. We know now that public risk has ended."

Hundreds of officers on horseback, following dog teams and in mobile and aerial patrols scoured the snake- and mosquito-infested woods and swamps around the prison 15 miles northeast of Huntsville since late Thanksgiving night.

That's when Gurule, 29, condemned for a 1992 robbery in Corpus Christi in which two people were killed, joined six other convicted killers in trying to break out.

His six colleagues stopped at a pair of 10-foot-high chainlink fences topped with coils of razor wire when guards in towers 200 feet away spotted them and opened fire. Gurule kept going, using the homemade body armor to blunt the punctures of the razor wire, then raced across a road along the prison perimeter and dashed right by warden's house as he disappeared into the dark and foggy night.

Dog teams hustling after him minutes later lost his scent on a road just outside the prison.

Authorities speculated Thursday he hid under a bridge over rain-swollen Harmon Creek, but was forced into the swift water when the sound of the howling dogs and officers on horseback neared.

"It was clearly the intense pressure put on him by search teams and dogs and horseback that forced him to swim Harmon Creek," prison spokesman Larry Fitzgerald said.

Word of the discovery swept Thursday night through the cottages, trailer homes and near the prison. People who live in the shadow of death row and claimed to be unconcerned about the escape were quick to express relief.

"We slept with a gun next to our bed," said Paula Ginkens, who has lived for six years down the road from the prison. "It was a loaded shotgun."

"I guess he wasn't as smart as many thought he was," she said when told of his death.

"We were asked all week long by a lot of people: 'Why would you think he's still here? How could he possibly still be anywhere in the area?'" added Johnson, the prison chief. "And we told you our philosophy: Until we have evidence that he's not here, we assume he's here."

Drowning was suspected as the cause of death. An autopsy was scheduled. Fitzgerald said preliminary results could be known as early as today.

"We still haven't determined if there was a bullet wound in the man," Fitzgerald said after tearing up a "wanted" poster of Gurule. "I think that is the important question at this point."

The discovery came the same day Gov. George W. Bush ordered the Texas Rangers to find out why and how Gurule was able to flee. That's in addition to a prison board probe into the breakout.

"I'm upset about it," Bush said. Officials also had posted a $5,000 reward for information leading to Gurule's arrest and had pursued dozens of tips phoned in by the public, some of them from hundreds of miles away.

All seven inmates involved in the breakout had belonged to a unique work program that uses death row prisoners to make cloth goods for the Texas prison system. The program has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigations. They had used a hacksaw blade to cut out of a fenced recreation area on their prison wing.

Authorities said they hoped the prison, which was on lockdown to keep death row inmates confined at all times to their cells, would be able to return to more normal procedures now that Gurule had been recovered.

"This was not a fun time for anyone," Scott said.

It's time again for Central Baptist's annual presentation of "That Night."

Holiday spectacular starts Saturday

Central Baptist Church presents its annual Christmas spectacular, "That Night."

The choir and cast of 130 people have been preparing since August for the pageant presentations. The format remains the same as in years past, but as always, there are new songs, new characters and new scenes to celebrate this holiday season and the true meaning of Christmas.

Each year, the program is presented as a gift to the community by Central Baptist Church. The congregation invited Pampa and the surrounding area to share the Gift of God's Son through a full dramatic presentation of the Life of Christ, with authentic costuming, beautiful music and pageantry.

The presentation will be in the church auditorium, Starkweather and Browning, Saturday-Tuesday, Dec. 5-8 at 7 p.m. Pre-pageant music begins at 6:45. Each person attending needs to have a ticket, available at no charge, by calling (806) 665-1631.

Hanging of the Greens services Sunday at 10 a.m.

First Christian Church will present the 21st annual "Hanging of the Greens" the Second Service of the Advent Season. Services will begin at 10 a.m. Dec. 6 at the church, 1633 N. Nelson. The public is invited to attend, according to the Director of Membership Shirley Winborne.

All of the youth of the church will participate in this special service. Co-chairmen this year are Vicki Hayes and Lisa Crissman. The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Fred Mays, will present the special music.

Green wreaths will be hung on the columns by the youth as the older children hand garlands the young children will bring in huge poinsettias and place them on the chancel. More than 60 poinsettias will be brought forward. Some will be given in honor of a special person, Sunday school teacher or friend.

Also participating in the service will be the Bell Choir under the direction of Robbie Pepper.

One of the highlights of this worship service will be the lighting of the Christmas tree with ornaments handmade by the women of the church through the Christian Women's Fellowship of which Carolyn Smith is president.

At 11 a.m., immediately following this service, the Chancel Choir will present the Choir Cantata directed by Mays and accompanied by Lora Lee Cooley.

You could buy a non-upgradable $599 computer, or Give your kids a better school system.

The Compaq Presario Creative Learning Series PC.
Available only at RadioShack.

Better software

A PC without software is like a car without wheels. Most $599 bargain PCs come with just enough software to "start the engine," but not enough to "go anywhere!" A Compaq Creative Learning Series PC doesn't just have a couple of beginner programs and a game or two. You get over 15 educational, reference and productivity programs. You get what you need without having to spend hundreds of additional software dollars.

Better hardware

Bargain PCs typically use past-generation processors. Our Compaqs feature next-generation sophistication and power. What about memory? They may claim 64MB of RAM, but they don't tell you some of it is unusable by programs! Our Compaq PCs feature separate high-speed video memory, so all of the system RAM is available to run your software. Want to upgrade some day? You'll find those bargain PCs aren't easily expandable. With Compaq you have room to grow!

Better value

When is a bargain not a bargain? When you don't get what you need. When you shop for a computer for your family, consider not only the price, but what you get. A Compaq Creative Learning Series PC gives you state-of-the-art technology, exclusive software, the ability to expand when you want to, and unparalleled support and service. It's an investment in your family's future, and that's probably why you wanted a PC to begin with.

The software

Preloaded with educational software from trusted names like Disney, The Learning Company and Broderbund, these PCs can give your kids the edge they need to do better in school so they can do better in life.

The hardware

You get a fast 333MHz processor with high-capacity 6.0GB hard drive. The 64MB SDRAM and 4MB 100MHz video RAM team up to provide smooth, speedy Internet graphics. Get fast downloads with its 56K ITU V.90 modem.

RELIGION

After the fire is out...

Sal's face burned like he'd spent an exposed day in the sun and the window's light stung his eyes. His chest was sore and the in and out of each new breath was more painful than the one before.

He shut his eyes and inventoried his toes and legs, then arms and hands. He turned his head a bit side to side. Besides his aching face and crying lungs, his body was uninjured.

Smoke hung about him and he remembered the flames boldly burning his tiny apartment. He remembered he didn't know what happened to Ally.

Sal's thumb pressed the plastic call button which lay by his side. The sweaty anxiety of not knowing made him dread and long for the nurse's appearance.

She bustled in, round and kind. Her name tag read Elizabeth.

"You're awake. Good. How ya' feelin'?" she asked in a slow easy drawl.

She peeked into his eyes. She listened to his chest with the stethoscope from her pocket.

"Where's Ally? What happened to her? What happened to the baby?" Sal asked.

Briny tears slide down his red cheeks but after raising a hand to touch his face, he realized it hurt too much to wipe the drops away. "Let me get the doctor. He can talk to you," she answered softly as her hazel eyes dodged his.

Elizabeth turned away a bit too quickly and Sal was terrified. In the movies, getting the doctor meant only bad news.

The nurse was gone 30 minutes before a young doctor appeared.

"Sal, my name is Dr. Ellis. I saw you in the emergency room when you came in this morning," the man said.

"Where is Ally? What happened to her?"

Sal asked.

"Sal, Ally will be okay. Physically, she will mend. But there are some things you have to know," Dr. Ellis answered.

"What happened? What about the baby?"

"It's her face, Sal. I have to tell you about her face. Apparently, when she trying to get out, a burning plank fell. It hit her face - the left cheek. There is a burn nearly as wide as my hand. I've called a plastic surgeon," the doctor said.

"But what about the baby?"

"Sal, your baby is fine. At least for now. Ally has been seen by an obstetrician and the baby's heart beat is strong. But you have to help her. This burn on her face - there will be scarring. You have to be prepared for that," Dr. Ellis said.

Sal turned away from the doctor's eyes and face. He didn't know what the older man was trying to say.

The fire of the early morning was a hard memory for him. The smoke, the choking, the burning door - and Ally - how did she get out? Sal knew he hadn't stopped to help her.

Again tears slid down his cheeks.

Community breakfast Saturday

There will be a community breakfast at St. Mark CME Church, 406 Elm. It will be on Saturday Dec. 5 at 9 a.m. For a donation, come have pancakes, bacon, sausage, eggs, coffee, juice, fruit and fellowship with us.

Video series starts Sunday

Hobart Baptist will be sharing a video series from Focus on the Family with our Sunday morning Bible study. It is entitled "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women." We are inviting the public to attend and learn from America's foremost counselor, Dr. James Dobson, on husband and wife relations. Bible study begins at 9:45 each Sunday. A nursery is provided for children at each service.

Dial a priest...

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Scared to go to confession? Been away from the church for a while? Need a little religion in your life?

Just dial 1-877-BLESS-ME. Priests are waiting by the phones.

The Archdiocese of Philadelphia has launched a new toll-free, confidential advice hotline in hopes of bringing people back to their faith. More than a week after a $225,000 media blitz was launched with a string of television and radio commercials, hundreds of callers have flooded the church's three phone lines with prayer requests, sob stories and questions about divorce, abortion and suicide.

"They can call us about anything," the Rev. Charles V. Devlin said Wednesday. "And believe me, they do. They find security in anonymity over the phone."

About 140 priests from the city and surrounding suburbs have volunteered to work on their days off to answer the estimated 100 calls each day.

Devlin calls the hotline the diocese's new kind of confession since priests have gotten calls from people whose first words on the phone are, "Bless me, Father, for I have sinned."

Community worship service at 6 p.m. Sunday

First Presbyterian Church, located at 525 Gray, is hosting the First Sunday Community Worship Service at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6 in the sanctuary of the church. This Community Worship Service will feature Advent Hymns of praise and worship and a lesson in the history of the Advent season, lighting of the Advent candles, a liturgy of worship and a time of prayer.

First Sunday Community Worship services are held in different churches each month of the 1998 year to acquaint participants from participating churches with differing styles of worship. The sponsoring churches conduct worship in their normal manner and the visiting participants are invited to participate fully in the worship service. The service at First Presbyterian is a continuation of the Advent Meditation Services that are normally conducted at the church each Sunday evening during the four weeks prior to Christmas.

All area residents are encouraged to come and worship this Sunday.

Dr. Cooley, pastor of the church, is a native of Amarillo, a graduate of Texas Technological College (Texas Tech), an accountant in government and industry and in private practice for many years, an educator and now a pastor. He earned both the master of divinity and the doctor of ministry degree from Columbia Theological Seminary at Decatur, Ga. He and his wife, Lorelee, have lived in Pampa for three and a half years.

Don, Mary Lynn Case join Son Shine Ministries

Don and Mary Lynn Case, long time residents of Pampa will be leaving this city to become a part of Son Shine Ministries International. She was a teacher at Pampa High School from 1970 until her retirement in 1993.

After coming to Pampa, Don Case worked for Beacon Supply, Frito Lay, and Cabot R&D before he entered the ministry in 1993. At that time he joined the staff at Trinity Fellowship Church as the Administrative Pastor.

He has resigned that position and will be moving to the international headquarters of Son Shine Ministries in Azle, Texas. He and his wife will serve as staff members of that organization and participate in outreach ministry while they train and study to complete the world missionary course.

Son Shine Ministries International is an inter-denominational organization dedicated to spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ around the world. Their two key themes are: "Jesus is the Answer" and "Pray About Everything". In addition to their missionary program, Son Shine Ministries provides a wide variety of seminars, retreat programs, counseling services, and correspondence courses, all emphasizing the Lordship of Jesus Christ. These programs are available to all churches and organizations at no cost.

The Cases say that they will miss their many friends here in Pampa and the surrounding area, but they are looking forward to the challenge and are excited about the new opportunities to help spread the gospel wherever the Lord leads.

Accurate Medical History Can Help Save Your Life

DEAR ABBY: I work in a hospital emergency department in a suburb of Cleveland. Because your column is printed in newspapers across the country and beyond, I thought it would be the best way to get an important message out to the public.

Many patients come to the ER because they're in pain, confused, unresponsive, or have been subject to serious injury. Sometimes patients come to the ER because of what they feel is a minor problem. Then, after testing and examination, we find a more complicated problem that requires hospitalization. Many times finding the cause of the patient's situation can be difficult because of inadequate information.

The three most common areas of misinformation are medications and dosages the patient takes, medication allergies and past medical history. Occasionally no identification can cause a problem. Taking medications like Coumadin, Lanoxin, Dilantin, Depakote, digoxin, theophylline, phenobarbital and others requires blood samples to check the amount of the drug in the bloodstream. These medications, among others, can be responsible for anything from severe bleeding to seizures, severe lethargy, weakness, fatigue, abnormal heart rhythm and blurred vision. Unfortunately, these can also be symptoms of problems like gastrointestinal bleeding, epilepsy, meningitis, strokes and lethal arrhythmias.

Patients will say, "You have my

Abigail
Van Buren

SYNDICATED

records here." However, hospital records are not a reliable source of the patient's current medications, because the medications and/or dosages often change.

The bottom line is: Know your past medical history (i.e., appendix removed, heart attack, high blood pressure, diabetes, etc.). Know what medicines you are allergic to. Know what medications you take and the dosages. Think of it as "H.A.M.D."

History, Allergies, Medications, Dosages. And last, but not least, write your name, medical history, drug allergies, medications and dosages on two pieces of paper. Put one in your wallet or purse, and one on your refrigerator, kitchen counter or bathroom medicine cabinet. This way, you will have them with you — or someone a paramedic can find them — in the worst situation. It's for your benefit.

RICK GEISHEIMER, R.N., MENTOR, OHIO

DEAR RICK: Thank you for the potentially lifesaving reminder. For most of us, making such a list will take only a few minutes. Readers, do it now — don't procrastinate!

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is being married next year. We are planning an elegant evening reception. Her fiancé insists that we invite his divorced sister's four young children to the reception. The children are extremely active, with short attention spans. We do not want children running around and annoying our guests. His mother and sister have put pressure on him, and he is in the middle.

My husband and I are paying for the wedding and feel very strongly about this. We are not inviting any children from our families. These people do not seem to fully comprehend the type of affair we are planning and that children do not belong everywhere. I think it's very rude and in poor taste to press this issue. How should we handle this?

MOM IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR MOM: You are the host and hostess, and you control the guest list. Be firm in relaying the message, that the reception is for adults only.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

SUNDAY, DEC. 6, 1998

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You and others might be out of sorts from holiday pressures. Change plans, to make them work for you. Confusion surrounds a friend, you could easily wonder what he wants. Communications excel later; clear up problems then. Tonight: Let someone indulge you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* Do, rather than talk. Sometimes you think too much. Responsibilities challenge you. Take time with a parent or loved one you adore. Plan on a special outing with family and your significant other. Doors open because of communications. Tonight: Content in your castle.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Expenses get out of whack. You could be misreading a situation. Someone who is at a distance has many plans and objectives; be clear about your role and the costs. Meet a friend for a bite, or browse a favorite store. Tonight: Chat up a storm.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* You are a powerhouse, full of personality. Still, others won't accede easily to your desires. Confusion surrounds a key relationship.

Could you be misreading this person? Complete errands, then talk about needs with your partner. Tonight: Your treat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Give yourself permission to fizzle out and enjoy a lazy day. You might be wary of canceling plans, but you need to take care of yourself. You are baffled by a partner's desires; what does he really want? Open up talks, and see what develops. Listen to a child or loved one. Tonight: Do your thing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

* A partner might not agree with you and lets you know. Your energy could be off, your pace uncertain. Communications flourish. Connect with friends, reach out for others and listen to instincts. An intimate chat needs to happen. Tonight: Time to vanish.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Maintain a higher profile. A partner continues to be contrary and difficult. Don't let him ruin a fun project with a child or loved one. Talk, but only when you are ready. Get together with friends; being together relaxes you. Tonight: Where your friends are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Take an overview even if others cannot. You might need some time off from the hectic pace. Do what you want, but understand that you are the one who will have to carry the flag to the finish line. Remember an older family member. Tonight: In the limelight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You suffer from fatigue. Why not take some time off? A partner might expect more from you than you can give. Communications are out of kilter; keep trying. Don't let anything be vague. A premonition is grounded. Make escape plans for the future. Tonight: Off to the movies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Others seek you out, yet you don't have much enthusiasm. Use caution with spending; you could make a costly error. Others don't understand your need to withdraw. Make an effort toward a partner who has always been a tremendous source of solace. Tonight: Share what is ailing you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

* Use your imagination, but recognize that it might be hard to carry through some of the ideas you hatch. Your enthusiastic energy could become misdirected. A friend has wonderful news that you feel like celebrating. Go to it! Tonight: Where your friends are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Money might be scant, but you make up for it if you brainstorm and let your ingenuity take command. You are unsure of how much you can do. Talks with a respected friend give you better insight. Make a schedule for the next few weeks. Tonight: Get a head start on tomorrow.

FOOTBALL

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Patrick Jeffers ran a post route over the middle, caught a bullet pass from Troy Aikman, and outran a defender to complete a 67-yard touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings.

Many Dallas Cowboys fans were wondering: "Who is that guy?"

The 6-foot-3, 218-pound Jeffers had been languishing on the Cowboys scout team, where he had been making a favorable impression after being obtained from Denver on Aug. 30. He had played in 10 games in two years for the Broncos and caught three passes.

A season-ending injury to Ernie Mills gave Jeffers his chance in the Seattle and Minnesota games, and he showed the Cowboys good hands and surprising speed.

"He's done a great job of learning our offense," said Dallas coach Chan Gailey.

BASEBALL

PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona just doesn't stop spreading the big bucks around.

After spending $95.6 million to overhaul their pitching staff, the Diamondbacks had more money left and were on the verge of signing center fielder Steve Finley to a four-year contract worth at least $20 million.

"Maybe this was supposed to happen," Finley said Thursday. "Arizona wanted me over there real bad."

Finley's agent, Tommy Tanzer, said San Diego's offer was a little more than half of Arizona's — and the lowest of the six he received. A source said Thursday night that the Padres' offer was three years plus a vesting option, which would have paid a total of $16 million if the fourth year kicked in.

"I think San Diego wanted me here, but they wanted me under their terms," Finley said from his home. "It was unfortunate that it's the way it happened, but the game's a business."

After helping San Diego reach the World Series for the first time since 1984, Finley was surprised the Padres offered him only a three-year contract worth about $12 million.

"If I can't be in San Diego, Arizona is the next-best option," Finley said. "If San Diego doesn't contend the next few years and Arizona does, I want to play for a winner. That's where I'll be."

Tanzer said the deal was pretty much together but details couldn't be completed Thursday. Owner Jerry Colangelo was at the NBA labor talks in New York (he also owns the Phoenix Suns) and general manager Joe Garagiola Jr. was at the baseball owners' meeting in Chicago.

Finley hit a career-low .249 this year with 14 homers and 67 RBIs. Two years ago, Finley set career highs in batting average (.297), doubles (45), home runs (30) and RBIs (95) and won his second straight Gold Glove.

"My year was not a bad year, it was inconsistent," Finley said of 1998. "I expect to be back up to my peak level. I do a good job of keeping my body in shape."

Arizona was looking to replace the hole created when Devon White agreed to a $12.4 million, three-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Diamondbacks' offseason improvements caught the eye of Finley, who visited Arizona on Nov. 23 but expected to stay with San Diego. On Tuesday, he called Tanzer and said, "Did you see what Arizona did?"

Arizona reshaped its rotation by signing Randy Johnson to a $52.4 million, four-year contract, Todd Stottlemyre to a $32 million, four-year deal and Armando Reynoso to a $5.5 million, two-year contract.

Canadian is underdog in semifinals

CANADIAN — Harris Ratings is picking Canadian to have its toughest test of the playoffs against Omaha-Paul Pewitt.

Omaha is No. 4 in Class 2A with a 10-3 record while Canadian at 12-1 hasn't made it into the top 10 yet. Harris has the Brahmas favored by 10 points over the Wildcats.

The two teams tangle at 7 Saturday night in a Class 2A Division 1 semifinal game in Memorial Stadium at Wichita Falls.

"Omaha is fast, real fast. They don't do anything fancy. They run out of a wing-t and use a 5-2 defense, but they do it very well," said Canadian coach David Flowers.

The Wildcats could have the momentum in their favor going into Saturday's clash. Canadian kicked Sonora, 42-7, to claim the regional championship last weekend. Meanwhile, Omaha had to struggle to get past No. 10-ranked Boyd, 38-32.

Canadian's defense, led by linebacker Rex Lovelace and end Jose Morales, converted five Sonora turnovers into touchdowns in the lop-sided contest.

"Our defense has been able to get us good field position," Flowers said. "That's been the case the last three games. In fact, the defense has scored points for us the last three games."

Against Sonora, Lovelace returned a fumble 32 yards for a touchdown and Morales sacked quarterback Bryce Williams four times.

Canadian continues to deal out a potent offense. Running back Ty Dickinson rushed for 144 yards and scored a touchdown against Sonora. Quarterback Derek Derek threw for 64 yards, including a 31-yard TD pass to Luke Farrar.

Canadian's win over Sonora set a school record for playoff victories in a season. It's the first time the Wildcats have ever reached the state semifinals.

The Wildcats will be missing fullback-linebacker Eric Hall from Saturday's lineup. Hall recently had ankle surgery and is out for the remainder of the season.

Fullback George Peyton has been slowed by a groin injury and won't start against Omaha.

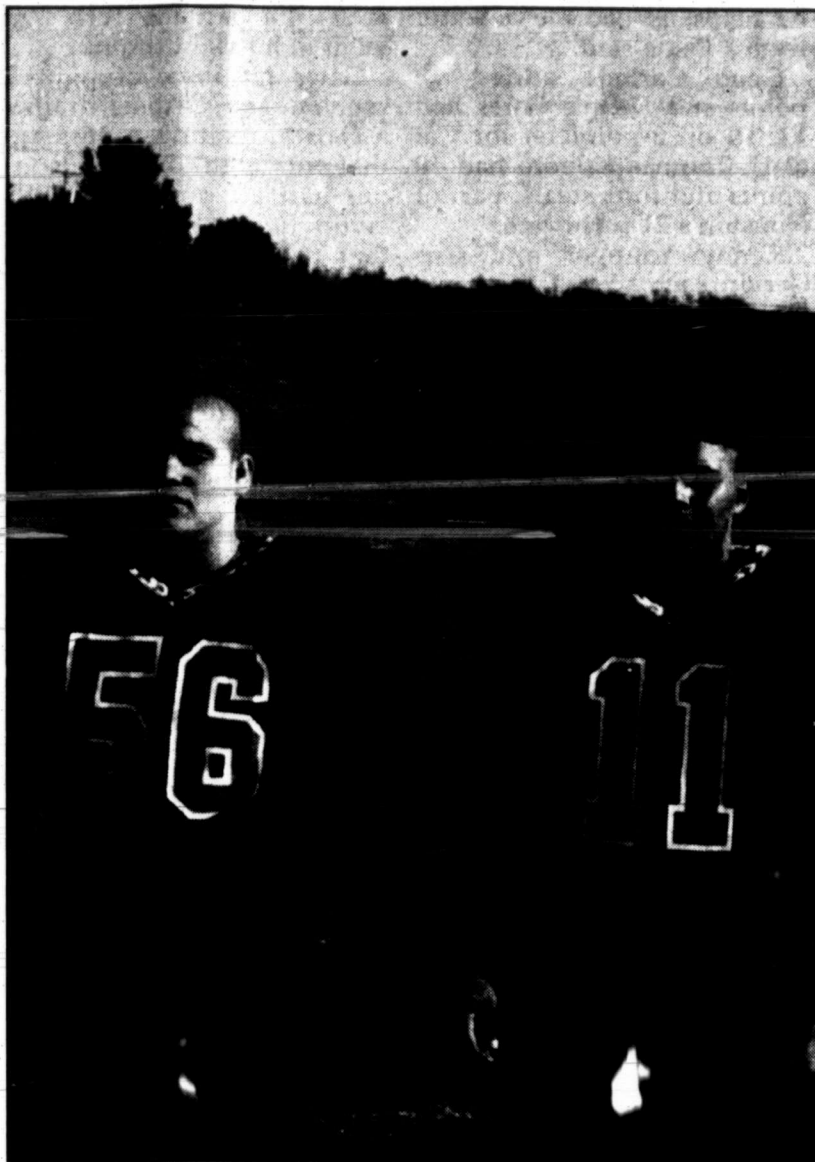

Canadian's probable lineup for Saturday night's game is as follows:

Offense

Defense

Cornerbacks: Justin Billenwillms, 160 senior and Todd Ridgway, 160 senior; Safety: Farrah; Ends: Morales and Laurent; Linebackers: Dickinson, Lovelace and Sanchez; Tackles: Francis and Pesch; Noseguard: Davina.

Canadian seniors Jose Morales (11) and Javier Sanchez will be in the starting lineup against Omaha-Paul Pewitt.

WD wins opener

MIAMI — Suni Jo Petty scored 20 points as White Deer slipped past Trinity Fellowship, 61-60, Thursday in the opening round of the Tomahawk Classic.

Thompson tossed in 28 points for Trinity.

The score was tied 20-all at halftime. The Does led by four, 40-36, going into the fourth quarter.

Pampa junior varsity took on Spearman in their first-round action and lost by a score of 63-30.

Kristin Beedy had 16 points for Spearman and Jennifer Lindsey led Pampa with 13.

Miami fell to Dumas JV, 57-25.

Amy Black paced Miami in scoring with 12 points. Hendricks had 11 for Dumas.

In other girls' division games, Booker beat McLean, 71-30; Claude won over Samnorwood, 72-27, and Borger JV defeated Follett, 52-40.

The tournament continues today through Saturday at the Miami High gym.

All-Region 1 team named

PAMPA — Five Groom players have been named to the Region 1 All-Regional First-Team Six-Man Football Team.

Representing Groom on first-team offense are senior center Jamie Shuck, senior end Wyatt Weinheimer and junior running back Wade Ritter. On the first-team defense were junior lineman Dusty Crump and junior linebacker Evan Crowell.

Junior kicker Trey Rogers of Miami was a first-team offense pick.

Named to the second-team offense were senior quarterback Josh Evenson of Groom and senior end Shane Thompson of Miami. Named to the second-team defense were junior linebacker Brian Fuller of McLean, junior lineman Chris Ollinger of Groom and junior lineman Frankie Sparling of McLean.

Groom finished the season with a 12-1 record and advanced as far as the state quarterfinals. The Tigers are coached by Jim Reid.

Billups gets a tough test

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Terry Billups spent so much time on the practice squad it came as something of a shock when he finally got to play in a real NFL game.

Injuries to the Dallas Cowboys secondary meant Billups, a rookie free agent from cornerback, was needed on Thanksgiving Day against the Minnesota Vikings.

Deion Sanders was already out and the Cowboys' other starting cornerback, Kevin Smith, suffered an injury on a second quarter punt return.

All of a sudden not only was Billups, who had been on the practice squad seven weeks, playing cornerback but he was also returning punts.

"It was really something to be a game," said Billups who wasn't even a starter his senior year for the North Carolina Tarheels. "There I was in my first NFL game on national television playing against Minnesota. You just couldn't beat the feeling I had."

Billups broke up a pass and got some praise from coach Chan Gailey who said "he wasn't a bust. He made some plays."

Billups said he wasn't intimidated by Randy Moss and the other Vikings receivers.

"Going against Michael Irvin and Billy Davis in practice every day got me prepared," Billups said. "I just had to make sure I knew all the plays and was ready to go. It was all a little overwhelming but nobody knew who I was so I figured I didn't have anything to lose."

Billups is a former roommate of the Cowboys No. 1 draft choice, defensive end Greg Ellis.

Heady stuff: New rule gets coin flip right

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — With the NFL's new rule, it looks easier to make heads or tails of the coin toss.

The St. Louis Rams won the first coin toss Thursday night under rules revised to avoid a repeat of the flap that happened between Pittsburgh and Detroit last Thursday.

Rams captain Ricky Proehl made his call — tails — before referee Bernie Kukar flipped the coin prior to the game against the Philadelphia Eagles. As required by the new rule, back judge Bill Leavy and field judge Tom Sifferman observed the toss.

"Tails is called," Kukar said. "Tails it is."

The Rams opted to receive, and the Eagles defended the south end zone.

The flip also was observed by a herd of photographers and TV cameras. Eagles mascot "Swoop" carried a large sign with flip sides reading "heads" and "tails," as well as an oversized coin that looked like a hubcap.

Co-captains Tony Horne and Todd Lyght of the Rams were in on the toss, as were Kevin Turner, Barrett Brooks and Bill Johnson of the Eagles.

The NFL changed its coin flip rule for the first time in 22 years after the Thanksgiving Day fiasco in which the Steelers said they were robbed of possession in a 19-16 overtime loss to the Lions.

Steelers running back Jerome Bettis said "tails" on the coin flip for overtime. But referee Phil Luckett heard "heads." The Lions won the toss and the Steelers never got the ball as Detroit drove for Jason Hanson's game-winning 42-yard field goal.

Luckett explained later he heard someone say "heads" before Bettis said "tails." Bettis and Camell Lake, the other Steelers co-captain at the toss, both denied that.

On Monday, commissioner Paul Tagliabue announced a rule change that requires the visiting captain to call heads or tails before the referee tosses the coin, instead of when the coin is in the air. Also, the back judge and field judge must stand by the captains throughout the coin toss ceremony to make sure there is no confusion over the call.

"Our new procedures should make certain that the Thanksgiving Day incident is not repeated," Tagliabue said.

There were no controversies on Sunday as players and referees paid close attention to the once mundane pregame tradition. In St. Louis, Atlanta's Jessie Tuggle showed up for the opening ceremony with a sign that said "heads" so referee Ron Winter would have no confusion.

Before 1976, the coin toss was held 30 minutes before kickoff and a symbolic re-enactment was held moments before kickoff.

KC vows not to repeat ugliness of last game

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

One of the NFL's best rivalries deteriorated in its most recent renewal when several Kansas City Chiefs lost control. Don't expect it to happen again on Sunday in Denver.

Three weeks ago, in a 30-7 loss to the Broncos, a flurry of late-game personal fouls against the Chiefs led to the suspension of linebacker Derrick Thomas and the firing of linebacker Wayne Simmons. Chiefs management expressed its embarrassment with the conduct.

Coach Marty Schottenheimer promised there would be no repeat of the facemask-pulling and late hits, and even spoke with Denver coach Mike Shanahan about the string of incidents.

"You go back to some of the things that happened, we both agreed that we'd rather not see them happen," Schottenheimer said. "We don't think anybody's out to get anybody. But it has become a very competitive thing, because of the quality of play."

Broncos tight end Shannon Sharpe, who admitted his chattering helped ignite the late-game ugliness, was more contrite this week. In fact, he seemed repentant before turning silent.

Sharpe said the incidents in Kansas City were "really childish ... on both of our parts" and that "maybe I shouldn't have said some of the things I said (to Thomas)."

"I would hate to let one incident ruin eight years of friendship," he added.

The Broncos have other things on their mind, anyway, such as an unbeaten season. They can become only the third 13-0 team in NFL history with a win, and they just don't lose at home: the Broncos have won 22 straight at Mile High Stadium.

Stadium.

A Denver victory secures home-field advantage for the AFC playoffs.

Schottenheimer understands what kind of challenge his Chiefs (5-7) are facing.

"The game is going to be played and it will be a physical, hard-fought contest," he said. "That isn't going to change. It doesn't matter what the point differential is or anything else. For us to have an opportunity to beat Denver, we have to play at our very best. That means no fouls, no personal fouls."

Among the teams on the verge of clinching playoff berths this weekend are Dallas, which is at New Orleans; Green Bay, which plays at Tampa Bay on Monday night; and San Francisco, which is at Carolina.

Also on the schedule is Buffalo at Cincinnati; Detroit at Jacksonville; Indianapolis at Atlanta; New England at Pittsburgh; San Diego at Washington; Seattle at the New York Jets; the New York Giants at Arizona; Miami at Oakland; Baltimore at Tennessee; and Chicago at Minnesota.

On Thursday night, Philadelphia spoiled the return to Veterans Stadium of former Eagles coach Dick Vermeil by beating his St. Louis Rams 17-14. Vermeil — who came out of retirement last year — took the Eagles to the Super Bowl after the 1980 season, then quit after 1982.

If the Cowboys beat the Saints, they earn a playoff spot. If the Cardinals lose to the Giants and Dallas wins, the NFC East crown goes to the Cowboys.

Both Green Bay and San Francisco get in with a victory or a loss by Detroit.

Minnesota can take the NFC Central title by winning, or if Green Bay loses.

Flint angler has record catfish

FLINT, Texas (AP) — Here's one that didn't get away.

An East Texas man has caught a state-record 98 1/2-pound catfish in Lake Palestine, just south of Tyler.

James Laster, 65, of the small town of Flint says he took 30 minutes to reel in the flathead cat Wednesday, using a rod and reel loaded with 16-pound test line.

He was using minnows while crappie fishing near a bridge when he felt a strong tug.

"Well, I knew I had something big," he said Thursday. "I was just thinking, Lord, just let me get it up and see what it is."

At 53 inches long and 40 inches around, the fish beats the state record by a half-pound, said Jinger Knight of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's angler recognition division in Tyler.

"We're keeping it alive," she said. "It'll be offered to an aquarium, but if there are no takers, it'll be returned to the lake."

For now the fish — which Laster named Taylor after his 9-year-old grandson — is in the Texas State Fish Hatchery in Athens.

Ms. Knight also said the catch will be submitted to the international sanctioning body as a world record catfish caught with 16-pound test line.

California tames Cougars

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Sean Lampley and Francisco Elson showcased a formidable front line for California and it could be getting even better.

Lampley matched his career-best with 21 points and Elson had a career-high 13 as California defeated Houston 87-72 Thursday night. The two also totaled 27 of Cal's 50 rebounds, including a career-high 18 for Lampley.

"I thought the front line was the key to this game," Cal coach Ben Braun said. "Any time you have these guys combining for 27 rebounds and 34 points, you know they made huge plays for us."

The game also marked the debut of Cal's highly regarded 6-11 freshman Solomon Hughes, whose eligibility was restored on an appeal to the NCAA. Initially, he wasn't allowed to play because he had originally signed a letter of intent with Tulane but that was overruled by the NCAA's National Letter of Intent Appeals Committee.

Hughes, battling a fever and a sore throat, played only two minutes but recorded a blocked shot.

"He worked hard even without knowing what his fate was," Braun said. "The ironic part about it, his first game back, he gets sick but there was no way he was going to miss this game. What's great, in the first 20 seconds in the game, he gets a blocked shot. You're going to see a lot of Solomon as the year goes on."

Elson said Hughes' addition provides more depth inside.

"Having Solomon back takes a lot of pressure off me. Now we have several solid guys who can play there and he helps us become a better team," Elson said.

Geno Carlisle added 18 points and Dennis Gates had 12, all on 3-pointers, for Cal (3-1). Thomas Kilgore had 10 points and four steals, part of Houston's 21 turnovers.

Kenny Younger and Gee Gervin each scored 16 points for Houston (3-3). Moses Malone added 13 points off the bench for the Cougars, led by Clyde Drexler, the former NBA great who returned to his alma mater to coach.

"I thought our turnovers were way too frequent," Drexler said. "We gave them too many opportunities. They wore us down. They have a lot of depth."

Playing from behind for most of the game, the Cougars pulled to 53-49 on a bank shot by Gervin.

The Golden Bears ran off six points, starting with a dunk off an alley-oop pass by Lampley, who registered his third-straight double-double since missing the season opener with a partially torn ligament in his right thumb.

Gates hit three straight 3-pointers and Carlisle drained a fourth, igniting a 16-5 run that put Cal in control. Elson's one-handed jam and Gill's layup finished off the spree that put the Bears up 75-57 with 6:17 remaining.

Cal led 43-33 at halftime, scoring the last 10 points of the period.

The Cougars, down by as many as 11 points early in the game, came back to tie it at 33 on Gervin's 8-foot runner in the lane with 3:03 in the period.

But Carlisle connected on a 3-pointer to break the deadlock and then drove in for a layup and hit another 3-pointer over the final couple of minutes.

Young paces Tech win

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Rayford Young scored 28 points, including nine of 10 free throws down the stretch, as Texas Tech held off Southern Methodist 91-80 on Thursday night.

The Red Raiders (4-1) also got 15 points and five assists from Mario Layne and 17 points and nine rebounds from Cliff Owens, who fouled out with 4:23 remaining.

Andy Ellis replaced Owens and hit a key bucket, giving Texas Tech a 76-66 lead with 2:40 left. Stan Bonewitz and Young were a combined 10-for-10 from the line in the final minute. Bonewitz scored 10 points to go along with nine assists and eight rebounds.

SMU (1-2) was led by Chad Elsey with 27 points, while Jeryl Sasser added 23 and Damon Hancock 15. Elsey hit seven of 10 from 3-point range.

Report: Lewinsky agrees to $664,000 interview with British television network

LONDON (AP) — Monica Lewinsky has agreed to do an interview with the British television network Channel 4 for a reported $664,000.

The interview, to be taped in the United States for broadcast in February, will be transmitted "within a few hours" of the interview the former White House intern already has agreed to with ABC's Barbara Walters for U.S. television, Channel 4 said Thursday.

The network said Ms. Lewinsky had agreed to talk about "her life and the events of the past year, including her relationship with President Clinton."

Channel 4 did not announce the amount it was paying for the interview, but the British national news agency Press Association reported the sum was $664,000. ABC is not paying for its interview with Lewinsky.

Also in the works from Ms. Lewinsky is a book, to be called "Monica's Story," penned by Princess Diana biographer Andrew Morton. The book is expected to be in stores by summer.
