Muenster High School commencement exercises took on added significance with the appearance of Linus Wright as guest speaker last Friday night. Among many positions held during his long and outstanding career in education are former Superintendent of the Dallas Independent School District and former United States Under Secretary of Education. Wright addressed the graduating class of 1991 and a standing-room-only audience on four key areas in education and life: leadership, character, values and service. Wright said, "In the values we hold, everything relates to the education we receive." He cited belief in respect, justice, love, charity and the work ethic as essential in developing responsibility and leadership in making the earth a better place for those who follow us. He said service to others is necessary to find real happiness and contentment in life.

Preceding the address by Wright, the Salutatory address and Valedictory address were delivered. Mindy Graham is the 1991 Valedictorian of Muenster High School. She is the daughter of Gerald and Donna Graham of Muenster. Mindy finished her senior year with a grade point average of 7.0142. Melissa Bayer is the 1991 Salutatorian. She is the daughter of Danny and Mary Alice Bayer of Muenster. As Salutatorian, Bayer received scholarships to the Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas; the Mary Josephine Cox Scholarship from Cooke County College; and the Bluebonnet Extension Homemakers Club.

She plans to study nursing at Cooke County College and Texas Woman's University.

MHS Principal Jerry Metzler presented awards to many of the graduating seniors including many Mary Josephine Cox scholarships to Cooke County College. Metzler then presented the Class of 1991 to the school board and each graduate received his or her diploma from School Board President Dennis Hess. Members of the Class of 1991 from Muenster High School are: Kimberly Marie Anderle, Jason Shawn Ashley, Jana Marie Baxter, Chad Allen Bayer, Jennifer Kaye Bayer, Melissa Lea Bayer, William Paul Black, Charles Keller Colwell, Tim Alan Erwin, Douglas Winfield Evans, Terry Lee Felderhoff, Gaye Lanette Fisher, Jon Patrick Fleitman, Mindy Renee Graham, Sherry Kay Hacker, Amy Dawn Hoenig, Scott Michael Hudspeth, Jane Marie Klement, Kristen Anne Klement, Jefflyn Denise LeFevre, Quinton Bradley McDaniel, Troy Ray Pagel, Karri Lynn Ramsey, Brian Albert Reiter, Darrin Joseph Russell, Sherilyn Eleanor Sicking, Raymond Arthur Stewart IV, Richard James Tuggle, and Marcia Kay Vogel.

Addressing the crowd from the center podium is Robert Speake, Texas Representative to the National Home. First Communicants (right) placed red carnations on the graves of all the soldiers.

Local veterans are remembered with traditional memorial services

With memories of the Persian Gulf Conflict still fresh in the minds of United States citizens and it being the first war for many younger people to experience this Memorial Day was celebrated across the U.S.A. with a new spark of patriotism. Locally the VFW Post No. 6205 and its Ladies Auxiliary held their annual Memorial Day Services on Sunday, May 26. On Monday students of Sacred Heart School held a program featuring patriotic songs and skits to celebrate the day.

Members of the VFW and Ladies Auxiliary attended the 8 a.m. Mass at Sacred Heart Church. Father Sebastian Beshoner was the celebrant of the Mass which was offered for all living and deceased veterans.

Liturgical Readings were given by Frances Bayer and Linda Knabe, auxiliary conductress, read the Prayers of the Faithful. V.F.W. Commander Arthur Hennigan and Quartermaster Don Eckard presented Offertory Gifts at the altar.

VFW and Auxiliary members who served as Eucharistic ministers were Paul and Dorothy Fisher, Norb and Mary Ann Walterscheid, Regina Pels, Lucille Hesse and Lorena Taylor.

Following the religious services VFW and Auxiliary members, children from the First Communion class, and members of the community led by the VFW Color Guard and Flag bearers and Rifle Squad, processed to the Sacred Heart Cemetery.

At the cemetery the group paused at the Crucifixion Group where Father Sebastian offered a prayer and Frances Bayer, Auxiliary chaplain, placed a Memorial wreath in honor of all of the deceased of Sacred Heart Parish.

The group then proceeded to the Soldier's Plot where Janet Barnhill, Auxiliary president, and Josephine Schilling, Auxiliary vice-president, placed a memorial wreath and buddy poppy wreaths in memory of all deceased veterans. Single red carnations were placed on each veteran's grave by members of the First Communion class.

Robert Speake of Gainesville, Texas Representative to the National Home, gave the Memorial Day address. Father Sebastian led the group in prayers for the men who gave their lives for their country. A 21-gun salute was fired by the Rifle Squad in honor of these heros and "Taps" was played by Ronnie and Tina Weinzapfel.

Members of the VFW Color Guard were Don Eckart, James Hess, Don Hellman, and Pat Knabe. Rifle Squad members included Don Fisher, Willie Fisher, Bernard Hesse, Johnny Rohmer, Gilbert Hess, Meinrad Yosten, Virgil Henscheid, and Arthur Bayer conducted.

Auxiliary members also participating were Armela Cler, flag bearer; Julie Cunningham, banner bearer; Juanita Knabe, Bonnie Hess, Hilda Sicking, and Daryl Ferber, color bearers. Linda Knabe conducted.

First Communicants participating were Elliot Klement, Jonathan Yosten, Brandi Gilbreath, Nicholas Taylor, Kenneth Grewing, Holly Hartman, Charlie Moster, Megan Hennigan, Jessica Koesler, Keith Felderhoff, and Crystal Lutkenhaus.

Attending from out of town was past state commander Andy Stelzer of Post, Texas.

On Memorial Day students of Sacred Heart Elementary School grades one through six presented a Memorial Day program to parents and the community at large. Sister Genevieve McConnell organized the production.

The program opened with the presentation of the Flag by the Boy Scouts. Grade one led the assembly in the Pledge to the Flag, followed by "God Bless America." First graders sang and mimed "Memorial Day."

"Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "It's a Grand Old Flag" was sung by the third grade.

A poem recited by Nicholas Yosten, a fourth grade student, was followed by the singing of "America" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Fifth graders dramatized the pop song by Bette Midler, "From a Distance." The boys were dressed as soldiers from different eras of history. Costumed soldiers in-

Explosion claims life of Kenny Walterscheid, 39

Kenneth M. Walterscheid, 39, died Friday, May 24, 1991, about 3:15 p.m. when a 55-gallon drum exploded.

According to police reports, Walterscheid had apparently been attempting to cut the bottom out of the barrel with a cutting torch when it blew up. "It was an empty 55-gallon drum that had contained a diesel fuel additive," reported Cooke County Sheriff John Aston.

The accident occurred in the yard of Felderhoff Bros. Drilling Co. at 510 E. Eddy in Muenster. Officer Bob Stovall of the Muenster Police Dept. was the first official to respond to the 911 call.

Others responding to the emergency call were Police Chief Helen Tompkins, Officer Bill Bivin, Muenster Volunteer Fire Dept., Cooke County EMS, two units from the Cooke County Sheriff's Dept., and McCoy Funeral Home. Walterscheid was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Dorothy Smith.

Western Cooke County remains with Williamson

by Elaine Schad

The western part of Cooke County, including Muenster and Lindsay areas, is expected to remain in State Representative Ric Williamson's Texas House of Representative District following action by the Legislature.

Grand Avenue in the City of Gainesville will form the east-west boundary line for a split of Cooke County into two separate districts in the Texas House of Representatives for final legislative action. The entire county is expected to remain in the 30th Senatorial District of Steve Carriker (D - Roby).

The Texas House has approved a state redistricting plan on a 90-57 vote. If the governor signs the legislation, the boundaries are expected to remain, unless challenged, at the federal level, said Ric Williamson, (D - Weatherford), Cooke County's present state representative in District 63.

The realignment will split the City of Gainesville in half, with all Cooke County residents west of Grand Avenue remaining in Williamson's district, which will change to District 61. Williamson will retain Wise and Parker counties under the plan.

Cooke County residents living east of Grand Avenue will be in District 62, where Representative Curtis Seidlits is now serving his third term. Seidlits' district also includes Grayson County.

In a telephone interview, Williamson said that he does not expect the realignment of Cooke County to change. "For us, the decision came down to cutting Denton County four times or Cooke County once," said Williamson. He said federal guidelines recommends that counties be divided the fewest number of times.

An optional plan had called for southern Cooke to be aligned with northwest Denton County, including parts of the City of Denton, said Williamson. "I am personally pleased with this arrangement because it does preserve a community of interest," said Williamson. "The people in eastern Cooke County have far more in common with the people of Grayson County than with the City of Denton."

Williamson said he plans to continue to assist anyone in Cooke County, regardless of where they live. "We get along well and we work well together," he said of Seidlits.

Seidlits is in his third term in the House of Representatives. He is an attorney with the law firm of Redwine, Seidlits and Mabary of Sherman.

New census is changing county precinct line

by Elaine Schad

A redrawing of Cooke County's four precinct boundaries is expected to affect where some people will vote in the future and could change their commissioner or justice of the peace representation, officials said.

Cooke County Commissioners are expected to hold a workshop within two weeks, then will give direction to the Austin law firm Allison and Associates as to how the precinct lines will be redrawn, officials said.

The commissioners have met once with the firm to hear a preliminary report on county population figures and how the population is apportioned along the present four county precinct lines.

Based on current growth, precincts 1 and 2 in the south and east could lose territory or population to precinct 3 in the southwest. Precinct 4 could remain virtually the same, officials said.

The county has basically two options, said Precinct 2 Commissioner Kenneth Alexander. All of the reapportionment could take place within the city limits of Gainesville, the largest population center, or the rest of the county could be redistributed.

"It's a headache, that's for sure," said Alexander of the process which carries a host of legal requirements which must be met as each county in Texas realigns precincts following new census figures.

Among challenges facing commissioners is a federal law which requires counties to have four justices of the peace if the population exceeds 30,000. Cooke County now has three peace justices. The law also requires that county voting boxes coincide with city voting areas when possible, something that does not always occur in Cooke County, officials said. A further challenge will be the redistributing population for equity sake while retaining the equal amount of county roads for which each precinct commissioner is responsible.

Cooke County's population has been set at 30,777, meaning that each of the four precincts should have about 7,694 people. Since most of the county's growth has taken place in the southern and eastern sections the past 10 years, Precinct 1 Commissioner Danny Knight, who represents the east, has about 9,000 people in his precinct, while Precinct 2 Commissioner Alexander, whose district lies to the south and east, has more than 9,000 people.

Precinct 3 Commissioner Jerry Lewis, who represents southwestern Cooke, has 5,600 people in his precinct, while Precinct 4 Commissioner Virgil Hess, who represents western Cooke, is about the only one who is close to the proper population figure with about 7,400 people.

Gwen Trubenbach, principal of Kindergarten through grade five of Muenster ISD, paid tribute to two of her retiring long-time teachers, Carol Dyer and Jane Weinzapfel, at the close of the 1990-1991 school year.

Of Carol Dyer, she said: Carol is the wife of Edgar Dyer. They are parents of Lenzy, Lou and Lyle. Their family also includes a son-in-law, Ted Heers and a beloved granddaughter, one-year - old Laura Ann.

Carol received a Bachelor of Science degree in 1956, majoring in Business, with a minor in Social Science. From 1956-1960 she was secretary to the President of East Texas State University. Her salary was $200 per month, huge in those days, and it enabled her to begin paying into the Teacher Retirement Fund.

In 1959 Carol Dyer earned a Master's degree in Elementary Education. Carol tells how she withdrew her Teacher Retirement of $500 and purchased a house full of furniture to furnish a home in what is now the Muenster Museum.

In 1965 she taught Remedial Reading at MISD and in the Fall of 1965 she began teaching third grade and is now completing 26 years in Muenster.

Students will remember her skill with chalkboard erasers...her piercing whistle...her love of basketball and football...field trips to Fischer's Market...popcorn pictures...her ability to hang on to soccer balls. This year Carol retired the ball Mr. Cash had given her.

Parents will fondly recall her caring and firm hand, and her ability to get the best from their children, and to keep them informed of a child's progress. Her colleagues recall her medicine chest; ability to detect a fake cry from real hurts; her high standards; her ability to get the job done; and, with delight, her end - of-school dance down the hall.

Of Janie Weinzapfel, Gwen Trubenbach said: Janie is the wife of Henry Weinzapfel. They are parents of Ronnie, Millissa, Robert and Joe. Their family also includes a daughter-in-law, Tina, and a granddaughter Christina; and a son-in-law, Chuck, and grandsons Charlie and Willie.

Janie is a 1956 graduate of East Texas State Teacher's College at Commerce, with a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics and a minor in Communication. She also attended Cooke County College and the University of North Texas. Her professional life since 1957 has included teaching in the elementary grades, high school and Vocational Homemaking.

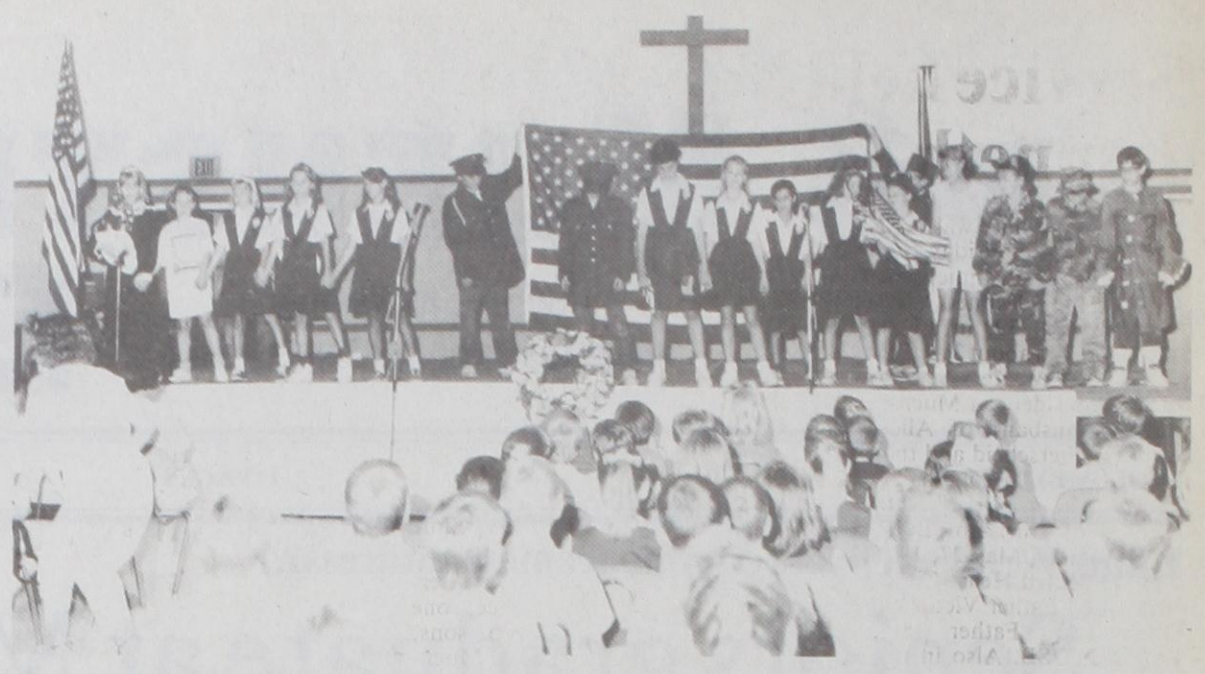

From 1956 to 1958 she taught at Sadler-Southmayd. In January - May 1959 she taught at Sacred Heart School. In September 1959 she began teaching Home Ec at MHS and through the years has taught fourth, fifth, sixth and second grades. She now completes 30 years.

Janie Weinzapfel will return in the Fall of 1991 to teach Remedial Reading. Students will remember her warm sense of humor,...her pink tattle-tail... the ½ Smiley...her timer to teach time-management... hatching baby chicks...making butter...trips to the dairy...partner reading... and faith that all children can learn.

Parents will remember her willingness to treat every child as she wanted her own treated. They will recall her concerns and ability to pin-point her students' needs and her willingness to let them know at the first sign of difficulty.

Her colleagues will remember her understanding, caring, loving attitude towards fellow teachers, her team spirit and ability to get things done on time. Janie, ever gracious, turned in her records last this year so all could beat her just once! This is the first year Janie finished a school year without having lesson plans and papers run off for the first week of school.

Gwen Trubenbach concluded: Jane Weinzpafel and Carol Dyer set the standards for MISD - all other teachers used them as a measuring stick to go by. They shared happiness, smiles, tears and joy with MISD staff, parents and students. They rejoiced when MISD triumphed and ached when we faltered. Jane and Carol have been the cornerstones - building blocks for these many years - they will be missed.

Fifth and Sixth graders led the assembly in singing "God Bless the U.S.A."

Holly Hartman, a second grade student, recited the famous poem, "In Flander's Field," written by John McCrae a World War I soldier. He died of pneumonia before the war ended.

"Keep Our Banner Waving," and "Dance Around the Maypole," was sung by the second grade class. This was followed by the Maypole Dance performed by the entire second grade class.

Long streamers of red and white cascaded from the top of the pole. Girls, dressed all in white, picked up the ends of the white streamers. The boys in white shirts, red vests, and dark trousers held the red streamers. As they danced to the music the ribbons were woven over, under and around the pole making interesting patterns down the pole.

The program concluded with the assembly singing "World Peace Prayer" led by the sixth grade.

COOKE COUNTY APPRAISAL DISTRICT
TAXPAYER INFORMATION
(817) 665-7651

Cooke County Appraisal District Board of directors, the Appraisal Review Board and staff, sincerely want every property owner who receives an "Appraisal Notice" from the Appraisal District to understand the significance of the notice and know how to respond to it.

The following flow-chart briefly summarizes steps for all taxpayers to follow to insure that they receive due process under the law.

1. Appraiser appraises property and mails appraisal notice to taxpayer showing property appraised value and estimated taxes for the current year.
2. Taxpayer receives appraisal notice and feels the appraised value is excessive.
3. Taxpayer calls appraiser who appraised the property and tells the appraiser why the value is excessive and presents evidence to prove same. (Also requests the value to be lowered.)
4. Appraiser then sets up an appointment to meet with the taxpayer to go over taxpayer's evidence and discuss the value.
   - 4A. After taxpayer meets with appraiser and reviews the evidence presented, the appraiser adjusts the value to the value the taxpayer thinks is fair. -ISSUE RESOLVED.
5. After reviewing taxpayers evidence and the appraiser feels evidence doesn't warrant adjustment to value, then advises taxpayer to protest the value with the A.R.B. and assists taxpayer in filling out the Protest Form. (Completing the form, etc)
6. CCAD staff schedules the taxpayer an appointment with the A.R.B. and later notifies him/her of the time, date and place of appointment.
7. Taxpayer appears before the A.R.B. at scheduled time and presents evidence that would support his/her value. The appraiser also appears at the same time and presents CCAD information that would support the appraiser's value.
8. After hearing all evidence presented, A.R.B. makes their decision in open meeting, explaining what the board's decision is and why it was made while the taxpayer is present.
   - 8A. A.R.B. Decision - grants taxpayer all relief he/she asked for. Sends taxpayer a certified letter explaining the A.R.B.'s decision -PROTEST RESOLVED
9. A.R.B. decision goes against taxpayer and supports the appraiser's value. The taxpayer receives a certified letter in mail explaining to him/her that if not completely satisfied with the A.R.B. decision, that he/she has the right to appeal the decision to District Court within 45 days. (Can't file case after 45 days)

Telcard: the new calling card

Muenster Telephone Corporation is proud to announce the availability of its new long distance calling card the "TELCARD." The TELCARD, will keep most long distance and local charges on one bill, and works with all of the major long distance carriers and many smaller ones. You no longer need a card from each long distance company to place calls on their network. You only need ONE card, the TELCARD.

Muenster Telephone Corporation is offering the calling card in response to changes in the telecommunications industry. With the choice of long distance carriers and formation of alternative operator services, it has become increasingly difficult for people to use their calling cards to make calls. The Muenster Telephone Company TELCARD, because most of the major long distance companies honor it, can be used in more places to complete your calls. The TELCARD can be used in practically any location nationwide.

The TELCARD also retains the familiar telephone number format that your current calling card has. The PIN (Personal Identification Number), however, will now be secret to help keep unauthorized people from using your card.

Alvin M. Fuhrman, President said, "We believe this card offers distinct advantages over other cards. For example, the card will allow our customers to use almost any long distance carrier. They could even switch carriers depending on the time of day to get a better rate."

"Another advantage is that in most instances customers will receive one combined bill for long distance and local charges. With other cards, they could begin receiving separate bills. Research shows that customers definitely prefer a single telephone bill."

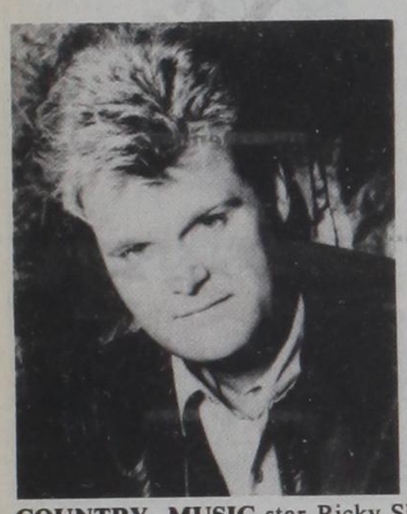

Fuhrman added that customers also like a calling card issued by the local telephone company. He said customers have developed a personal relationship with Muenster Telephone Corporation and would have more confidence dealing with it.

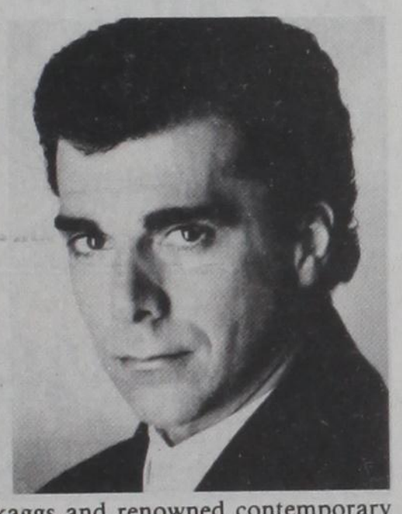

Muenster Telephone Corporation of Texas will be mailing its customers a form for the new card in the June 1 billing statements.

For more information on the TELCARD, please contact: Muenster Telephone Corporation of Texas at 817-759-2251 or from Valley View at 817-726-3333.

Muenster history to be auctioned at SH Picnic

A Muenster Sky-way regular visible gas pump globe, used to sell gasoline refined in the Muenster Refinery, will be sold in the Sacred Heart Parish Picnic auction June 9, to the highest bidder. Remnants of the refinery are barely available today. A huge steel tank, used to store crude oil, and a few of Babe Schilling's buildings east of the city park are all that remain at the old refinery location.

Don Flusche purchased two globes, the other to be placed in the Muenster Museum, in the estate of Mr. Tom Hutton in Gainesville. Tom's father was a long-time operator of the refinery. The globes were found in the original cardboard boxes.

The Muenster Refinery was owned for many years by A.G. Hutton. E. Jack Hunter bought the business, but gave up his lease in the summer of 1938 because of a shortage of crude. Hutton resumed ownership, running the stills at scattered intervals. Every month he secured gasoline from other refiners to supply his market.

In February of 1939 G.A. Mattson joined Hutton and an agreement was made to get oil from the Barney Voth field. This lease produced a high octane gasoline superior to the normal straight run gas of the area.

In March of 1939 the refinery secured a permit from the Ethyl Corp. to distribute a "leaded" gas and made arrangements to handled "cracked gas." By May a new 2,000 barrel tank and two 1,500 tanks were under construction. The next month a new tube still was installed and the refinery became an outstanding industry of Muenster.

In August a decree by the Railroad Commission to halt oil production in Texas for 15 days, along with a 20 cent reduction in price, slowed productions. In late August, 1939, retail pumps for straight run white gas, as well as lead bronze gas, were installed.

The next year information about the plant was not to be found until early June of 1940, when, due to financial reversal, the refinery shut down. Hutton filed bankruptcy on September 11.

In December of 1940 the refinery was purchased by local stockholders and managed by John W. Ezell.

(This information was researched from past issues of The Muenster Enterprise.)

Don Flusche knows the potential value of the globe after conducting an auction in Dallas several years ago to sell a large collection of service station memorabilia. The prices for the globes ranged from $100 to $3,500 each.

A wood block, made by Chris Walter, allows the globe to stand as a lamp, or it is removable to be used in any way.

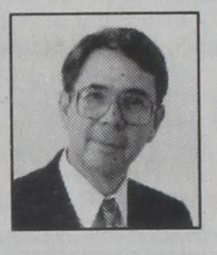

What do you think the globe would be worth? Come to the auction Sunday, June 9, and make your bid. You too can own a piece of Muenster history.

MR. and MRS. THOMAS KEVIN KELL

The wedding of Angela Lynn Barr of Denton and Thomas Kevin Kell of Fort Worth was held in Sacred Heart Church of Muenster on Saturday, May 18, 1991. Father Victor Gillespie, OSB, officiated the double ring candlelight ceremony at 3 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Barbara and Bob Nickelson of Richmond, Texas and Randy Mac Barr of Sugarland, Texas. She is also the granddaughter of Louise and John Fisher of Muenster, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nickelson of Houston and Mr. Henry Hardy of Houston.

Escorted by her father, Randy Barr, and her grandfather, John Fisher, before an altar decorated with arrangements of Rubrum lilies, pink snapdragons, pink tulips and white Fuji mums, with candelabras holding lighted candles, the bride was wearing a formal white wedding gown by Eve of Milady. The sculpted bodice was appliqued with white lace encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent paillettes. The gown was fashioned with a square portrait neckline, long sleeves shirred and puffed at the shoulders and tapered to the wrists, and a full cathedral-length train.

She carried a cascading bouquet of Rubrum lilies, bridal pink roses, white roses, lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Silver candelabra, lighted candles, and flowers matching the bridal bouquet were used to decorate the serving table. Swags, ficas trees with myriad tiny white lights and flowers in the bride's chosen colors decorated the reception area.

I've been searching the law books,
Looking for a precedent set,
regarding a man turning 40,
And the legalities it represents.
Yet, still to this day, I haven't discovered the answer to this final truth...

"Am I at the Youth of Old Age" or
"Am I at the Old Age of Youth?"

CCC announces scholarship for real estate, insurance, finance majors

Meeting educational expenses won't be a concern for many future Cooke County College students seeking careers in real estate, insurance or finance thanks to a new scholarship program established through the CCC Endowment Foundation by longtime Gainesville businessman Ed Wright.

"Actually, Mr. Wright first began donating funds for CCC scholarships back in 1973, so this scholarship isn't technically a 'new' one," explained Dr. Artie Thrash, foundation executive director, "but recent additional gifts have now increased the fund balance past $10,000 - qualifying it for status as a 'fully endowed' scholarship.

"The corpus of such fully endowed scholarships are never touched, and awards are made only from the interest proceeds. It was Mr. Wright's wish that students thus be enabled to benefit from the fund in perpetuity."

Thrash said applications are now being accepted for the Ed Wright Scholarship, which pays $250 per semester, and interested students should contact Kay Moody at 817/668-7731, Ext. 230, on campus for information about eligibility and how to obtain an application form.

Born in San Angelo, Wright has been a Gainesville resident for more than 40 years and has been involved in real estate, insurance and investments throughout his long business career. A graduate of Texas Christian University, Wright went on to earn an MBA degree at North Texas State, and he is a strong believer in the value of higher education.

"Hard work, dedication and determination are just as important as ever to anyone trying to build a career and achieve success," he said, "but in today's business world, those qualities are not enough in and of themselves. A good academic preparation is absolutely essential.

"I'm hopeful that this scholarship can help deserving students acquire the good ecuational foundation they must have to achieve success in the career fields that have been so good to me and my family."

Members of Wright's family obviously share his enthusiasm for education. His wife, Ona, is a longtime member of the CCC English faculty and chairperson of the college's Department of Communications & Fine Arts. A daughter-in-law, Crystal Wright, is a part-time history instructor at CCC. Wright himself has served as a part-time real estate instructor at the college for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright also have two sons - Ed Wright III, a Dallas attorney, and David, a partner with his father in a Gainesville insurance agency. They have two grandchildren.

An Air Force veteran who served in the South Pacific, Wright is an elder at First Christian Church of Gainesville where he also teaches an adult Sunday school class and serves as chairman of the building committee. He is a director of the Gainesville Area Chamber of Commerce, a participant in the Chamber's Leadership Gainesville program and a member of the Chamber's Industrial Foundation.

In addition, Wright is a former president and campaign chairman for the local United Way, advisory board member for the Longhorn Council of Boy Scouts and a scoutmaster, former president and trustee of the Gainesville Hospital Authority and former president of both Kiwanis and Toastmasters.

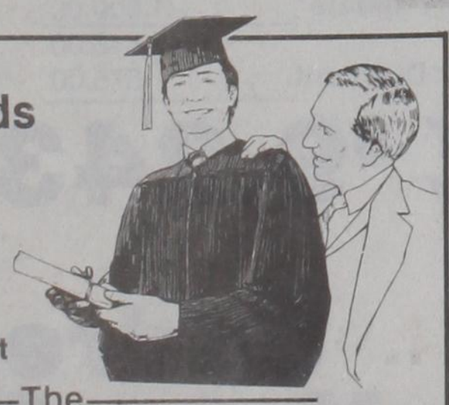

"Mr. Wright also is a very active member of our CCC Endowment Foundation board of directors," said Thrash, "so he has also been very generous with his time. We are so very grateful to him for what his contributions mean to students at Cooke County College - not only those attending today but also those who will enroll in generations to come."

Persons wishing to learn more about this and other scholarship programs available through the CCC Endowment Foundation and those who would like more information about how to contribute should contact Dr. Artie Thrash, Office of Institutional Advancement, Cooke County College, 1525 W. California Street, Gainesville, TX 76240, telephone 817/668-7731, Ext. 205.

Show business veteran shares experiences with CCC acting classes

by Steve Bonin
Cooke County College

Those who believe young people don't pay much attention to their elders these days should have sat in one of Cooke County College speech and drama instructor Paul Hutchins' recent classes. They would have seen a group of student actors focusing intently on every word uttered by an 81-year - old veteran of 69 years (and still counting) in show business.

Risking understatement, Hutchins referred to the visit by Vaudeville-medicine show - repertory theater-circus-silent movie house performer Dale Madden as "an opportunity that doesn't come along too often."

Fielding questions from students and Hutchins, Madden recounted his first entry into the world of show business - as a silent movie theater organist back in the Iowa cities of Des Moines, Fort Dodge, and Cedar Rapids. To prepare for this $2-a-night job, he often received only an outline of the film's plot beforehand and had to do a lot of improvising as he went along.

While it was as a musician that Madden entered show business, it was as a Vaudevillian and repertory actor that he was chiefly occupied during a performing career of nearly 50 years on stages and in tent shows throughout the country.

Theatrical historians, in fact, say his masterful portrayal of the folk theater character Toby is a true classic. Known variously as Toby Tyler and Toby Tolliver, the character was mischief personified, but in a harmless, funny way.

According to Emmy-winning writer John Igo of San Antonio, it was a case of "not the song but the singer" that made Madden's Toby so memorable. Igo writes that in plays such as "Clouds and Sunshine," Madden:

"...taps onto powerful folk sources and creates a universal figure that everyone - plain folks, education city folks, kids, women, old folks - can respond to. His Toby is larger than life, homey, irreverent, genuinely and warmly funny, a generous spirit."

Last fall, Madden dusted off his Toby character as part of a special free entertainment for a group of CCC dorm residents. Delivering a monologue from his organ bench - what he called an "organlogue" - he demonstrated Toby's mischievous nature through the telling of a story in which he cleverly used an audience member's name and a detail about cow manure.

In time, the Madden family formed the Madden & Stillian Circus, retaining the name attached to their old tent show repertory company. After a later stint with Cody's Pioneer Circus in Garland, Madden and his wife accepted the invitation of friends to move to Gainesville, and they settled in an area on the southwest side of town where a number of community circus people lived.

Hutchins commented that the practical experience of show business veterans like Madden can teach young performers more than volumes of textbooks.

"Mr. Madden is a true professional, one of those rare performers who transformed his craft into true art," he added, "and we're so grateful to him for sharing his rich experiences and practical insights with us. He's a real treasure."

MHS seniors enjoy Career Day

On May 17, M.H.S. Seniors enjoyed a chance to visit various professional offices, potential employees and colleges. Senior students were encouraged to spend the day in activities that were related to possible careers and areas of interest. All 31 seniors participated and the day was considered time well spent, according to the students' comments.

Eight students participated in a field trip organized by Rudy Koesler and they visited several industrial sites in the area. Students visited the Cooke County Electric Co-op., Sanders Manufacturing in Gainesville, Paxton Lumber Company in Fort Worth, and Acme Brick in Denton. The trip was designed to give students an inside look at the various phases of the construction process.

Other students spent the day at Cooke County College and the University of North Texas. They took the opportunity to visit with admissions counselors and tour the campus of UNT. Since the Spring semester had ended, students were able to move around more easily and they enjoyed the visit.

Several students stayed in Muenster and dedicated their day to community service by helping in area business. Students spent the day as volunteer receptionists, clerk, computer operators, florists, teacher aides, and jack - of-all trade workers. Some students worked in areas they are considering as career fields, whereas others helped out their current employers. For these students, May 17 was a day to use as a way of saying thanks to the Muenster Community while gaining some realistic and valuable business experience. Two students spent their day working in very interesting fields. Doug Evans spent the day in County Attorney August Boto's office. Doug had the chance to see a law office in operation and he returned even more convinced that he wants to work toward a degree in jurisprudence. Tim Erwin spent the day with a Gainesville police officer and he saw police procedures from an "inside" view. Tim enjoyed his day and is now even more determined to fulfill his ambition to work in law enforcement.

The 1991 Senior class designed their day on an individual basis. Each student, along with their parents, planned his or her activities and made the necessary arrangements. The faculty and staff at Muenster High School are extremely proud of these students for using their time wisely, and the plan is to continue this new "tradition" again next year.

Sixty homemakers attend luncheon May 14

Sixty Cooke County Extension Homemakers and guests met at the pavilion of Leonard Park in Gainesville on May 14 at noon for the annual May luncheon.

The Muenster Bluebonnet Club and Callisburg Club hosted a "Mexican Fiesta." As guests arrived each was given a questionaire to discuss with others as a mixer, and also to see how much members know and understand about their neighbors to the south.

A traditional Mexican meal of enchiladas, beans, an assortment of salads, "Armadillo Eggs," chips and a variety of desserts was served for lunch, using bright colorful dishes and table decorations. Mexican-type decorations, colorful pot holders, plants in clay pots, and pinatas were used on the tables and later given as door prizes.

Several ladies, while blindfolded, attempted to break a pinata with a long stick.

After lunch, Maryann Fleitman of the Bluebonnets Club gave an interesting reading: "A Glimpse of Mexico." and Mary Wambaugh of the Callisburg Club read: "Pinatas and Paper Flowers" telling of many Mexican holidays.

Before adjournment, Betty Flynn held a brief business session and gave booklets of the State By - Laws to each club member.

Special guests were Evelyn Yeatts CEA, Cassie Bullock CEA and several husbands of Texas Extension Homemakers Association members.

A meeting of Muenster Extension Homemakers was held May 8 in the home of Dorothy Yosten, when Lucille Lutkenhaus presented a program on "Recycling Practices At Home."

In her talk, she put several questions before the members attending. One of the surprises was "Did you know you spend eight months of your life opening junk mail?"..."Do you know how to recycle your aluminum, paper and glass waste?" Just carry your own shopping bag when you go shopping, and save using plastic bags. Most people are familiar with saving aluminum cans, but saving different kinds of glass takes more thought. Many more interesting items were brought out.

Inspiration, read by Jaci Bilderback entitled "Why Not Some Other Day?" was a letter written to God asking that Sunday be changed to a day that wasn't so busy. It was signed by "I'm too busy."

Fourteen members were served cherry cake and coffee by Mrs. Al Yosten, and adjourned until June 12 to meet in the home of Lucille Lutkenhaus.

Teacher Appreciation
by Kim Cler

The school year is coming to an end and the teachers have been working very hard. To show the teachers how much they are appreciated, the Sacred Heart Student Council prepared a special luncheon for them.

This dinner took place on April 5 in the Homemaking Room. Members of the Student Council gathered at the homes of Steven Nasche and Dawn Knabe on April 4 to prepare the meal, which consisted of homemade spaghetti, garden salad, garlic bread, homemade pies and cakes.

Student Council selects a chairperson for each project. Jenny Yosten was chosen as chairperson for this particular project. She was in charge of getting ingredients for the meal and getting volunteers to help with the project. Other persons helping with this project were Dawn Knabe, Kim Cler, Sharon Fuhrmann, and Jayna Hofbauer.

Twenty-four teachers and school personnel attended the meal.

Weight Room is Repainted
by Jason Endres

For most people, Spring Break is a time to relax, take it easy and spend time doing what they like. But during Sacred Heart's Spring Break, Coach Nasche, with the help of Chris Hess and Bill Parks, spent his week off from school fixing up the Sacred Heart weight room.

They started Monday by cleaning the carpet in the room. Then they sanded all the workbenches, weight equipment and racks. The next day they painted all the equipment black. They let the paint dry for a day and then put another coat on the equipment. Future plans for the weight room include getting the equipment repadded with red coverings.

Now that the weight room is painted and cleaned; it looks sharp! Not only does the new paint job look nicer, but it will also keep the equipment in better shape and it will last longer. Thanks are in order for Bill, Chris and Coach Nasche.

Economics Field Trip
by Jayna Hofbauer

As many are well aware, Springtime means the closing of school. Some things that are brought about by the end of school are the field trips the students go on.

This year the Economics class at Sacred Heart took a field trip on Thursday, April 11. Chaperoned by parents Mrs. Linda Vickers, Mrs. Jeannine Flusche, Mr. Chris Walter, and Mr. Joe Caserta, teacher, the students enjoyed a very full and informative day.

During the day, the first place visited was the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas where they toured the facilities. At Reunion Tower they viewed the city of Dallas from the top of the tower. The students then walked to the JFK Exhibit at the Texas School Book Depository. The junior members of the class went to the sixth floor while the senior members walked to the West End Market Place.

Accompanying the juniors and seniors in the class were the three visiting ladies from Germany, Daniela Groger, Reinhild Skibo and Nicole Steffen, the foreign exchange student from Japan, Hiroko Miura.

They will celebrate their grand opening this Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m .Knight Furniture was founded in Sherman in 1912.

Muller-Herr reunion draws 120

In its 31st year of drawing relatives together on the Memorial Day weekend, the Muller-Herr reunion was attended by more than 120 descendants of the two pioneer families.

Everyone attending brought covered dishes for the feast and Arnold Schilling and Pete Hellinger Jr. had their smokers going early.

Joining Muenster, Lindsay and Cooke County area residents were a number from out of town, including L.J. Bernauer of New Mexico; Evelyn and Bernard Nachtman of Florida; Andy and Rosemary Stelzer of Post; Mr. and Mrs. Holt Price and two daughters of Mineral Wells; Leonard Gottlob of Azle and his son and grandson, Frank and John Gottlob; the Paul Yostens and Stan Yostens, all of Fort Worth; the Clyde Mullers of Bedford; and the Don Mullers of Denton.

TDA approves use of sodium chlorate as aid

AUSTIN - Texas winter wheat farmers may use sodium chlorate as a preharvest aid to protect their winter wheat crop from broadleaf weeds, Rick Perry, Agriculture Commissioner, announced recently.

The crisis exemption authorizing sodium chlorate use applies to counties east of U.S. Highway 181 and east of Interstate Highway 35/35W, from San Antonio north to the Texas-Oklahoma border. If any portion of a county falls within these boundaries, the entire county is eligible to use sodium chlorate. About 150,000 acres of winter wheat are expected to be treated because of this exemption.

Without special permission, it is illegal to use sodium chlorate to treat broadleaf weeds. The targeted weeds are dicotyledonous weeds such as wild mustard, pigweeds, and sunflowers.

The exemption says treatment is justified when weeds in the wheat field exceed the height of the wheat canopy or equal or exceed one plant per four-square feet.

Exemption provisions state that only sodium chlorate products that contain a fire retardant may be used, a 24-hour worker re-entry interval shall be observed, and that a seven-day pre-harvest interval be observed.

Additional provisions prohibit:

*Applications by air within 500 feet of any fish-bearing waters;

*Any application method within one mile of fish-bearing waters containing an endangered species; and

*Applications where run-off is likely to occur or drift is likely to occur to aquatic habitats.

Questions about additional provisions for using of sodium chlorate or other special registrations may contact TDA's pesticide registration program in Austin at 512/463-7544.

TDA, TBIC join forces to increase Texas beef exports

AUSTIN - Embarking on a new promotional partnership, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Beef Industry Council recently announced goals to increase beef exports from Texas, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

The joint goal is to increase beef exports by an average of 10 percent per year over the next decade. The Texas BIC administers the Beef Check-off Program in Texas, which is a mandatory check-off program approved by the nation's beef cattle producers.

"It has been too long since TDA and the Texas BIC have cooperated on projects to increase the profit potential for Texas beef producers," Perry said. "We have a staff of marketing specialists who are involved daily in helping open new markets for our Texas livestock." Texas can add value to U.S.-produced beef products simply by promoting itself.

"Commissioner Rick Perry's pledge to add value to Texas products dovetails with Texas beef producers' desires to become major exporters," said Anne Anderson, BIC director. "After all, exports already add $79 to the total value of the average Texas fed steer and $10.52 per hundredweight to calf prices. Each 10-percent increase in exports will improve these figures. We feel we have a reachable goal because our growth potential around the world is unlimited."

Perry cited a recent government task force study that estimated each 5-percent rise in the value of shipments by Texas food processors increases the total output in the Texas economy by $2.5 billion, ups income by $500 million and adds 30,000 new jobs.

Even during starvation, mother cow will deprive herself to save fetus

Animals will naturally shut down their reproduction systems to stay alive. But if a female has already conceived, she will literally "give up her body" so the fetus can survive.

Scientific studies of cattle, sheep and swine "show incredible tenacity to hang onto a fetus — even when the mother is just about starved to death," said Thomas Dunn, researcher at the University of Wyoming. "Once the fetus has become established, the animal will go to extensive mobilization of her own tissues to keep the fetus alive and growing."

That's because her pituitary stops producing gonadotropins — follicle stimulating hormone and luteinizing hormone — that keep the animal in a reproductive mode. But the pituitary keeps producing plenty of growth hormone to help the mother survive.

Dunn said he has been reviewing studies of animal nutrition and reproduction "to better understand the mechanisms by which nutrient deficiencies affect reproduction. "When the female is emaciated," Dunn said, "her estrous cycles stop."

"If the female is carrying a fetus, the animal will keep producing hormones vital to the fetus' survival."

Dunn said recent studies of livestock show body fat is key to good reproduction.

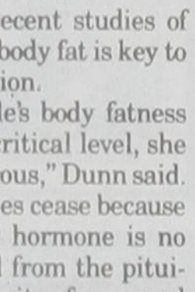

"If the female's body fatness drops below a critical level, she becomes anestrous," Dunn said.

"Estrous cycles cease because the luteinizing hormone is no longer released from the pituitary gland, in spite of a normal ability of the pituitary to secrete gonadotropins.

"Although the pituitary content of gonadotropins is not reduced in the situation, there is apparently an inhibition of release of the hormone.

"Similar hormone relationships regulate the onset of puberty, annual breeding seasons and duration of postpartum anestrus."

Wheat is a domesticated grain that is older than written history. It usually is the dominant grain crop in Texas according to acreage, total yields and dollar value. But per acre wheat yields were rather low for many years. An average per harvested acre yield in 1900 of 18.4 bushels was unequaled until 1944, when average production increased to 18.5 bushels.

That record was not exceeded in Texas until 1958, when average yields were 21.5 bushels per acre. Besides the weather uncertainties, wheat producers also coped with a variety of disease and insect problems.

Development of high-yielding semidwarf wheat varieties by The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station boosted rapid yield increases after 1960. These varieties were adapted for both irrigated and dryland production, but they were particularly suited for high-fertility irrigated production conditions where lodging had previously limited yields.

A second dramatic Texas wheat yield jump has occurred since 1979. Favorable rainfall and development of a second series of semidwarf hard red winter wheat varieties, including the TAM (Texas A&M) wheats, are major factors in increased yields. Texas farmers first broke the 100-bushel-per-acre barrier with these TAM wheats that were developed and released by the Experiment Station.

Station entomologists have developed strategies for better control of insects in at least three areas of research: cultural, resistance or tolerance in plants and chemical.

Diseases are another crop hazard. Wheat is subject to a number of diseases, including rusts and smuts. Resistance or tolerance to wheat diseases is sought by Station pathologists and plant breeders for incorporation into varieties they are developing.

Gains from this improved technology are readily apparent and easily measured. Economists estimate that the improved variety, Tascosa, increased production over best previous varieties by 54 million bushels, worth $82 million.

Station scientists continue to seek improved quality and nutritive value and other subtle gains in wheat. Producers and Station economists, also recognize and attempt to measure these gains.

Horn Fly Control

Horn flies are important pests of beef cattle for many Texas ranchers. These blood-sucking flies reduce weight gains and milk production in mother cows with calves. Weight gains worth $2 to $8 have been measured for every $1 invested in horn fly control. Horn flies spend most of their time on the cow, the females leaving only for the few minutes it takes to lay eggs in freshly deposited manure. A single fly may feed up to 20 times a day.

Horn flies can be successfully controlled with insecticides because the flies spend so much time on the cow and are soon exposed to lethal doses. Insecticides can be applied with self-treatment devices such as back rubbers, the LiquiDuster® , and ear tags or as sprays, boluses and feed supplements.

Ear tags have been commonly used because they combine a very effective insecticide, a pyrethroid, with a slow-release device, the ear tag, which results in several months' control. However, these very factors that make the tag so effective have led to their widespread use and the selection for pyrethroid resistance in horn flies.

Resistance occurs as season-long use of the same insecticide kills the insecticide-susceptible horn flies, leaving only resistant flies to reproduce. Soon, resistant flies dominate and the insecticide is no longer effective, often after only two seasons of use.

Allen Knutson, Extension Entomologist, offers the following suggestions for horn fly control. Horn flies have become resistant to tags containing permethrin, fenvalerate and flucythrinate when used continuously on a ranch. All of these are of the pyrethroid class of insecticides. Another, more effective pyrethroid, lambda cyhalothrin, is now available in the Saber® ear tag. Although the Saber® tags have been very effective, it is expected that horn flies will rapidly become resistant to this new tag if it is used in large numbers through successive seasons.

Other ear tags contain the organophosphate insecticides diazinon (Terminator® and Optimizer®) or pirimiphos methyl (Tomahawk®). Resistance in horn flies to these organophosphate tags has not been documented in Texas.

The following practices can help avoid or delay the development of horn fly resistance.

1) Alternate pyrethroid tag with an organophosphate tag every one to two years.

2) Apply tags or treat with insecticides only when horn fly numbers reach 200-300 per head. Research has indicated that fewer than 250 flies per animal rarely cause economic losses.

3) Remove depleted tags at the end of the horn fly season.

4) Use an organophosphate insecticide spray or dust or bolus to kill pyrethroid-resistant flies.

These practices allow some susceptible flies to survive and reproduce in the spring and fall, helping to dilute the resistant genes in the population. Tolerating a few horn flies actually helps slow resistance, making insecticides like pyrethroid ear tags effective when they are most needed.

Unlined, rubber gloves should be used when applying ear tags.

Certain insecticides in feed additives and boluses also control horn flies. The active ingredient is an insect growth regulator called methoprene that passes through the cow into the manure and kills the developing horn fly larvae (maggots). Methoprene is neither an organophosphate or pyrethroid and therefore is effective in managing horn fly resistance by rotating insecticide classes. The Inhibitor® bolus is applied once at the start of the fly season. An insecticide spray can be used to kill adult flies present at the time boluses are administered. Animals should be observed after dosing to insure that if boluses are regurgitated, the animal is retreated. Flies migrate between herds so fly control in bolus-treated herds is improved if horn flies are controlled in adjacent herds.

Always read and follow label instructions before using any insecticide on livestock. The Extension Office has two bulletins B-1306, "Suggestions for Managing External Parasites of Texas Livestock and Poultry" and B-1633 "Self-treatment Devices for Horn Fly and Lice control on Beef and Dairy Cattle," for more informatin.

Vaccinate before breeding...

Ticks carry anaplasmosis

From The Farmer's Friend

Anaplasmosis is an entire-herd problem and must be handled as such. Outbreaks occur when carriers are kept with or close to non-infected cattle, or when anaplasmosis-carrying ticks infect the herd.

Cattle herds that have contracted anaplasmosis in the past need to be vaccinated before being bred, reminds Larry Rice, Oklahoma State University Extension veterinarian.

Initial inoculation requires two doses one year apart. Booster shots are given every other year thereafter, although bulls require yearly vaccinations. Both blanket vaccinations and individual tests and treatments are used to prevent anaplasmosis.

"One major problem with blanket vaccinations is every animal inoculated will test positive for the disease," says Rice.

Individual tests and treatment are referred to as a "clean-herd" program. Each animal is tested and problem animals are isolated for treatment until they test safe.

Symptoms of anaplasmosis become apparent in adult cattle when more than 10 percent of circulating red blood cells become infected. Symptoms include depression, fever, anemia, rapid respiration, dehydration, constipation and sudden death.

"Some animals become so anemic and have such a reduction of oxygen to the brain that they become disoriented," says Rice. "Producers who walk their pasture should take care. Disoriented cattle often will charge suddenly."

Conversely, cattle suffering from anaplasmosis may be so depressed that they quietly stand in one place and allow the producer or veterinarian to treat them.

A producer's local veterinarian is the best bet for learning how a cattleman may best control potential anaplasmosis problems in his herd, reminds Rice.

"Local veterinarians generally are in the best position to discuss management requirements and cost-efficiency of various control programs," says Rice. "They can view the cattleman's operation first-hand, and make specific recommendations based on the producer's particular situation."

In some situations, the veterinarian may recommend feeding one of the tetracycline drugs in a feed supplement or salt mineral mix instead of using a vaccination program.

Women landowners!

Business management workshop June 24 - 25

WANTED - Woman landowners who are interested in learning about writing leases and saving taxes. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold a 2-day workshop at the Sheraton Inn, 100 Central Expressway in Wichita Falls on June 24-25.

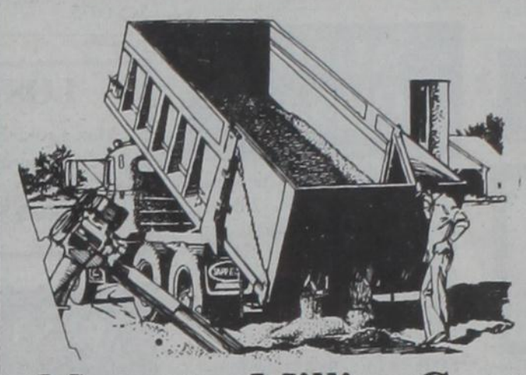

"Many Texas women find themselves thrust into land - owning situations for which they have very little training or background," says Wayne A. Hayenga, Economist and Attorney with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Frequently a woman is 'in change' of property upon the death of her husband or after inheriting land." The entire 2-day workshop will be an opportunity for women to explore income generating and tax saving opportunities for their farms and ranches.

The first day of the seminar will be concerned with minerals under the land. Items to include in a lease, both of an economic and legal nature will be addressed. Topics as how to run your business - should it be a corporation or partnership, will be addressed for both income tax and estate planning considerations. Estate planning for both married couples and single people will be addressed for landowners. There will also be a discussion of planning ideas to make estate administration easier.

The registration fee of $60 per person includes all seminar materials and lunches for both days.

For registration information contact your Texas County Extension Agent or Wayne Hayenga or Carol Sabo at the Agricultural Economics Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843-2124, Phone: (409) 845-2226.

Typical tractor slips too much

From a Farmer's Friend

The typical tractor slips too much, and that costs a farmer plenty in wasted fuel and efficiency, according to a University of Missouri-Columbia agricultural engineer.

"We figure the average farmer could save 225 gallons of fuel a year by proper weighting (ballasting) of his tractor," said Don Pfost.

MU studies show a typical properly ballasted tractor can disk 12.3 acres per hour - one acre per hour more than a tractor with improper ballast.

"That's a big difference, especially when a farmer is trying to get fields prepared for planting and is running out of time," Pfost said.

Counties added to Africanized bee quarantine

COLLEGE STATION - The Texas Apiary Inspection Service announced recently that three counties have been added to a quarantine restricting the movement of commercial bee operations.

Maverick, Zavala and Dimmit counties were added after an Africianized honey bee swarm was found at the Southern Pacific Railroad Station in Eagle Pass.

Because the AHBs were found at a railroad station and because the Mexican government has not monitored the bees' presence in the area that borders Maverick County, officials are trying to determine if the AHBs were accidentally brought into the country on a train rather than through natural migration.

The addition of three counties brings to 12 the number now under quarantine. They are: Brooks, Cameron, Dimmit, Hidalgo, Jim Hogg, Kenedy, Maverick, Starr, Webb, Willacy, Zapata and Zavala.

The quarantine attempts to prevent to spread of Africanized bees by prohibiting the movement of commercial bee operations out of this zone.

Sacred Heart Journalism Class

Teacher Appreciation
by Kim Cler

The school year is coming to an end and the teachers have been working very hard. To show the teachers how much they are appreciated, the Sacred Heart Student Council prepared a special luncheon for them.

This dinner took place on April 5 in the Homemaking Room. Members of the Student Council gathered at the homes of Steven Nasche and Dawn Knabe on April 4 to prepare the meal, which consisted of homemade spaghetti, garden salad, garlic bread, homemade pies and cakes.

Student Council selects a chairperson for each project. Jenny Yosten was chosen as chairperson for this particular project. She was in charge of getting ingredients for the meal and getting volunteers to help with the project. Other persons helping with this project were Dawn Knabe, Kim Cler, Sharon Fuhrmann, and Jayna Hofbauer.

Twenty-four teachers and school personnel attended the meal.

Weight Room is Repainted
by Jason Endres

For most people, Spring Break is a time to relax, take it easy and spend time doing what they like. But during Sacred Heart's Spring Break, Coach Nasche, with the help of Chris Hess and Bill Parks, spent his week off from school fixing up the Sacred Heart weight room.

They started Monday by cleaning the carpet in the room. Then they sanded all the workbenches, weight equipment and racks. The next day they painted all the equipment black. They let the paint dry for a day and then put another coat on the equipment. Future plans for the weight room include getting the equipment repadded with red coverings.

Now that the weight room is painted and cleaned; it looks sharp! Not only does the new paint job look nicer, but it will also keep the equipment in better shape and it will last longer. Thanks are in order for Bill, Chris and Coach Nasche.

Economics Field Trip
by Jayna Hofbauer

As many are well aware, Springtime means the closing of school. Some things that are brought about by the end of school are the field trips the students go on.

This year the Economics class at Sacred Heart took a field trip on Thursday, April 11. Chaperoned by parents Mrs. Linda Vickers, Mrs. Jeannine Flusche, Mr. Chris Walter, and Mr. Joe Caserta, teacher, the students enjoyed a very full and informative day.

During the day, the first place visited was the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas where they toured the facilities. At Reunion Tower they viewed the city of Dallas from the top of the tower. The students then walked to the JFK Exhibit at the Texas School Book Depository. The junior members of the class went to the sixth floor while the senior members walked to the West End Market Place.

They had lunch at the Old Spaghetti Warehouse before walking to the Lou Starrett Center to view several court cases. They ended the day at the Hard Rock Cafe.

Accompanying the juniors and seniors in the class were the three visiting ladies from Germany, Daniela Groger, Reinhild Skibo and Nicole Steffen, the foreign exchange student from Japan, Hiroko Miura.

Muller-Herr reunion draws 120

In its 31st year of drawing relatives together on the Memorial Day weekend, the Muller-Herr reunion was attended by more than 120 descendants of the two pioneer families.

Everyone attending brought covered dishes for the feast and Arnold Schilling and Pete Hellinger Jr. had their smokers going early.

Joining Muenster, Lindsay and Cooke County area residents were a number from out of town, including L.J. Bernauer of New Mexico; Evelyn and Bernard Nachtman of Florida; Andy and Rosemary Stelzer of Post; Mr. and Mrs. Holt Price and two daughters of Mineral Wells; Leonard Gottlob of Azle and his son and grandson, Frank and John Gottlob; the Paul Yostens and Stan Yostens, all of Fort Worth; the Clyde Mullers of Bedford; and the Don Mullers of Denton.
