Reinforced Chinese Army Fighting To Stave Off Japs

Bread Basket Of China Is Goal Of Japanese

Tide Of Battle Still Hanging In Balance But Japs Claim Slow But Steady Gains

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15. (Saturday)—A reinforced Chinese army, fighting savagely to stave off Japanese conquest of the nation's bread basket, was reported today to have recaptured strategic Tsining by storm.

Chinese dispatches said the Japanese captors of the southern Shantung province city were taken by surprise by a furious counter-attack and driven three miles from the city.

ADVANCES REPORTED

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15. (Saturday) (AP) Japanese announced today their forces in Shanghai province had driven through strategic Tsining southward toward the Lunghai railway and had occupied Tangchiakuo.

They said the Chinese 29th army which had defended Tsining was retreating toward Kinsham, 27 miles to the south.

apparently still was in the balance as the Japanese claimed slow but steady advances toward the vital Lunghai railway despite determined resistance of a Chinese army estimated at 400,000.

Independent reports indicated Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, in personal command of the Lunghai front, was concentrating his utmost strength along the railroad, long has been considered China's last line of defense.

Closing In On Suchow

Two Japanese columns were closing on strategic Suchow. Suchow is the junction of the Lunghai and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad which is the Japanese line of advance.

The Chinese have been recruiting new troops and were reported to have enrolled 750,000 in the past six weeks. These men, with only the scantiest training, are being put into action against the some 100,000 trained Japanese troops in southern Shantung and northern Kiangsu provinces.

Howard's Liquor Vote Ruled Dry

(By The Associated Press)

BIG SPRING, Jan. 14.—Package stores and beer dispensaries here were due to close at midnight tonight after District Judge Charles Klapproth today ruled valid a liquor referendum of December 10, under which the county went dry.

Contestants gave notice of appeal but were denied a plea for a supersedeas bond which would have permitted sales pending the outcome of the appeal.

Eastland County Becomes Dry By Court Decision

EASTLAND, Jan. 14. (AP)—Eastland county, where sales of malt and vinous beverages up to 14 per cent has been allowed, today became dry by an appeals court decision overruling motion for rehearing of a case growing out of the May, 1937 election.

Sheriff Loss Woods and deputies notified 50 dealers to cease selling such beverages.

The case originated after the election resulted in a dry victory. The district court held the election illegal and the dry proponents appealed. The case was reversed and dismissed.

Houston County Wets Lose First Round Of Fight

CROCKETT, Jan. 14. (AP)—Houston county wets lost the first round of their fight against a dry status today. District Judge Sam Holland dissolved a temporary order nullifying results of an election Dec. 11 by which the county voted out beer sales.

The court refused to grant an injunction against enforcement of the election madate.

The ruling was appealed.

Attorneys for the wets maintained the election was void because of an improperly drawn ballot and improper arrangement of ballot boxes.

Business World Startled By Holding Companies Edict

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt startled the business world today with an emphatic call for the abolition of holding companies in all lines of industry and finance.

He told his semi-weekly press conference that his ultimate aim was the elimination of such concerns not only, among the power utilities, as now partially provided by law, but in banking and other business and industrial fields.

Wall Street Frankly Amazed

Wall street frankly was amazed. Experts on corporation finance were quick to say that more than half the companies whose securities are widely held are holding companies, in some degree at least.

Of the latter, they said, many actually are operating companies owning outright control of subsidiaries, and thus differ from the pyramided type of holding company to which Mr. Roosevelt has objected in the past in the utilities field.

Might Be Qualifications

So complex was the question posed by the president, in fact, that many financial men said they thought there might be qualifications which Mr. Roosevelt had not mentioned.

Regarding the president's criticism of holding companies in the banking field, and his attack upon "remote control" of local banks, they estimated that four companies control banks having assets of nearly $3,000,000,000.

When or how Mr. Roosevelt proposed to carry out his idea was left to conjecture.

Might Be In Message

Some students of political events thought he might touch upon the subject in his forthcoming message to congress on "harmful" business practices. Others felt specific proposals would not be advanced that soon.

Asked If He Intended

Asked if he intended to use the taxing power, the president replied that he had not arrived at that point yet. However, he said, here were various ways of doing away with holding companies without forcing them into bankruptcy.

Given In Detailed Analysis

Mr. Roosevelt's views were given in connection with a detailed analysis, requested by reporters, of a memorandum left with him November 23 by Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation. His talk with Willkie was the first of a series of so-called "peace" conferences with utility heads, designed to bring about extensive private utility construction.

With a copy o fthe memorandum before him, the president went down the list of the requests made by Willkie.

One of them was modification of the so-called "death sentence" in the holding company act, which became effective January 1 and which forbids the superimposition of more than two holding companies upon a group of operating companies. Enforcement of the clause has been delayed pending a supreme court ruling of the constitutionality of the act's registration provisions.

Not To Be Modified

The president said that under no conditions could the "death sentence" be modified.

He reiterated that owners of $600,000,000 of electric utilities securities controlled most of the total $13,000,000,000 of such securities

Gas Price-Fixing Case Testimony Is Ended

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 14. (AP)—After testimony was completed today in the federal government's gasoline price-fixing case, Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone freed one more defendant, granting a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal for James F. Nagle, Tulsa, Okla., branch office manager of the Skelly Oil company.

Judge Stone then took under advisement similar motions on behalf of the remaining 16 major oil company and 36 individual defendants. When the oil trial started last Oct. 4 there were 23 corporate and 46 individual defendants.

Unless the judge grants all the motions for acquittal when court reconvenes Monday, final arguments in the 15-week-old trial will begin at that time.

All State Candidates Are To Be Quizzed On Education Views

FORT WORTH, Jan. 14. (AP)—Executive board of the Texas State Teachers' association in session here today authorized secretary B. B. Cobb to quiz all candidates for state office this summer on their views with regard to the financing of public education.

Particularly interesting to the school group are the views of candidates on the questions of teacher retirement and por capita apportionment.

Wannamayksumpnuvvit? —That's A Fighting Word

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—When you're in a New York bar and want another drink, you tell the bartender, "Filladuppigen."

If he thinks your pupils look too dilated, he replies, "Yoovadanffbud."

Don't argue, or he might ask, "Wannamayksumpnuvvit?"

That formidable-looking word is defined in the WPA's "1938 Almanac for New Yorkers" as "an invitation to a brawl."

Other definitions of New Yorkese, upheld by the almanac editors as being "at least as fruity and full-flavored as ever proper English could be," are:

Braykidup, braykidup: Policeman's suggestion to any group of loiterers.

Wazzitoyuh? Delicate rebuff to an excessively curious questioner.

Takadiway: "Please remove it from sight immediately."

Dombeeztoopid: Expressiong specific disagreement, with undertones of disparagement.

Ladderide: Warning not to pursue the subject further.

Whyntchalookeryagoyn? Rhetorical expression of relief used (by motorists esp.) after a near-collision.

Citizens Of U. S. Enjoy The Right Of Free Speech, Hull Tells German Ambassador

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Secretary Hull met an official German protest against a bitter anti-Hitler speech by former Ambassador William E. Dodd today with an explanation that American citizens enjoy the right of free speech.

Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, German ambassador, visited the state department to tell Hull that Dodd, who recently resigned from the diplomatic corps after five years as American envoy at Berlin, had insulted Hitler in an address in New York last night.

Aroused By Statements

He was aroused by Dodd's statements that under Hitler "almost as many personal opponents were killed in five years as Charles II (King of England) executed in 20 years of the 17th century," and that Hitler is "now more absolute than any medieval emperor of Germany."

Hull replied that Dodd had resigned his ambassadorship, was now a private citizen and therefore enjoyed the freedom of speech guaranteed him by the constitution.

Explains What He Said

Later, the cabinet member explained to reporters that he naturally told Dieckhoff:

That Americans have all the political rights which the constitution provides and exercises them more or less extensively;

That here, the government does

Even Weather Is Likely To Be A Touchy Topic

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—"Nice weather we're having," said the taxicab driver to his passenger.

"Yes," replied the man, "but the forecast is for bad weather."

"You mean the government-forecast?" inquired the cabbie.

"Yes."

"Aw, them forecasters are a lot of clowns; they never get anything right," snorted the cabbie and then he launched into a long tirade on how dumb forecasters are.

The passenger, listened attentively to the end of the trip and after paying the driver he handed him his card—he was C. A. Donnel, government forecaster.

Mills Damaged By Flames Here

Damage resulting from a fire which early Friday destroyed Economy Mills at Fifteenth street and Avenue B was estimated late that day to amount to between $30,000 and $35,000, according to Clyde Tatum, assistant manager. Claude Tatum is manager.

A fireman, Alfred Parrack, suffered minor injuries but was released from Lubbock sanitarium in a satisfactory condition.

The assistant manager said investigators last night still were unable to give any definite information relative to amount of the loss. He said it was "fairly well" covered with insurance.

He indicated there would be several thousand dollars worth of the equipment and machinery salvaged. The main plant and warehouse and grinding division were lost. Two round-top warehouses, and four storage divisions with capacities of more than 40,000 bushels were saved and the bins in them were "pretty well filled."

Office equipment, including books, records, desks, scales and other miscellaneous fixtures were undamaged.

Fire Chief W. E. Twitty and all available equipment and firemen sought to control the fire, but hazardous roofing and floors, weaken-

'The White Boy Of Nam Hoi' Seeks Secret Of His Birth

(By The Associated Press)

SEATTLE, Jan. 14. — A white youth who became Chinese by adoption in infancy but who came to realize he was not like his friends and neighbors in Kwangtung, stopped here today en route to New York to solve if possible the secret of his birth.

The story of Fung Kwok Feung, "the white boy of Nam Hoi," a village inland from Canton, China, is one of the strangest in American immigration records.

Fung Kwok Keung was born Joseph Rinehart in New York city 19 years ago. But he didn't know that. All he knew was his fair skin and strange restlessness set him apart from the people in Nam Hoi.

He speaks no English and understands no English.

A wrinkled Chinese woman, Lee Kwong, had been his mother since he could remember, although he knew dimly he and she were not of the same blood.

Immigration records indicate Lee Kwong's husband, Lee Quong, merchant of Far Rockaway, N. Y., now nearly 70 years old, never was blessed with children; found the orphaned Joseph Rinehart, adopted him and took him to his wife in China some 15 years ago. There Joseph Rinehart became Fung Kwok Keung.

As he approached manhood he became aware of the mystery of his birth. Finally, two months ago, Fung Kwok Keung could contain himself no longer. With difficulty he located his foster-father in New York, wrote of his desires and the journey money was sent.

Appropriation To Be Sought For Ponds, Lakes

Funds Will Speed Up Program In Panhandle-Plains Area; Action Is Assured

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — Carl Hinton, manager of the Amarillo, Tex., Chamber of Commerce, said today a $5,000,000 appropriation would be sought in congress soon to speed up the pond and lake construction program in the Great Plains states.

He said Chairman Jones (D-Tex) of the house agriculture committee promised to support such a measure.

Would Work Together

The appropriation would be turned over to the Farm Security administration for the purchase of land, equipment and some labor costs, Hinton said, while the Works Progress administration would furnish the balance.

Deputy WPA administrator Aubrey Williams promised Texas Panhandle water conservationists an extensive program would be carried on at once in the Panhandle and part of New Mexico, Hinton said. He said that on the larger lakes the administration would put up 60 per cent of the cost and on the smaller reservoirs the entire amount. The FSA would furnish the remaining 40 per cent.

Can Hire Non-Relief Labor

"The new appropriation would make possible some hiring of non-relief labor," said Hinton. "Otherwise, it would be impossible to build dams in a few sparsely settled counties, because there are not enough persons on relief to do the work.

"However, drouth conditions are becoming worse every day over the area and more and more farmers are going to find themselves up against it to eke out a living. So this work would save them."

Hinton said the group was told FSA engineers from the Amarillo office immediately would begin surveys to determine the suitable sites. He said he would stay here several days to aid in expediting the work.

Fourteen Named In Indictments

A 99th district court grand jury late Friday returned 13 indictments naming 14 defendants. Judge E. L. Pitts dismissed the investigators until March 7, according to information from the office of Burton S. Burks, district attorney, who with his assistant, Victor H. Lindsey, worked with the group.

The jurors had been impaneled Monday released Wednesday night until Friday morning, and after another day's work reported.

Eight Are In Jail

Of the 14 defendants, eight are in the county jail, said Jas. P. Posey, chief deputy sheriff; five posted bond when they were charged but have not made new bonds and the other one never has been arrested.

Indictments charged: one murder, two burglaries, four driving when intoxicated, one attempted burglary, two theft over $50, two forgery and passing, and one aggravated assault.

Murder Is Charged

L. C. Walker, negro, was charged with murder in connection with shooting of Genevieve Brown, negro woman, at Slaton. Bond was set at $1,500. Other counts alleged assault upon Calvin Smith and shooting of the Brown woman when he was in-

Bonnet Is Named To Form Cabinet

GEORGES BONNET

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Jan. 14.—Georges Bonnet, diplomat and financial expert, tonight tried to pull together the shattered remnants of the people's front and form a new government to solve the labor and economic problems that forced Camille Chautemps out of office.

Bonnet, finance minister in Chautemps' cabinet and like him a radical-socialist, promised to give President Albert Lebrun his answer tomorrow. To the president's invitation that he form a new ministry.

To Begin Interviews

Bonnet said tonight he would begin interviews tomorrow in his effort to set up a cabinet to succeed the Chautemps government which resigned early today.

The men he mentioned he would see all are former premiers—Leon Blum; President of the Chamber of Deputies Edouard Herriot; Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense in the Chautemps cabinet; Senator Joseph Caillaux; Albert Sarraut; and Joseph Paul-Boncour.

He declined to answer questions on whether he was maintaining a stand against exchange control. He said they were "inopportune."

Two Others Refuse

At least two other persons refused the post before Bonnet accepted the task of whipping the communists, socialists and radical-socialists once again into the people's front that ruled France for 19 months.

The still spreading wave of strikes and the threat to France's prestige among her already wavering allies in central Europe hastened Lebrun's efforts to obtain a new government.

In the "red region" of northern France, 10,000 workers demonstrated their "vigilance" and support of the communists outside valenciennes metal factories. The communist support of strikers and insistence on foreign exchange control was the immediate cause of Chautemps' downfall.

Guardsmen Patrol Streets

Mobile guardsmen patrolled the streets of Paris.

Diplomats of the United States and Great Britain—linked with France in the monetary accord that sought to bolster the falling franc—watched the situation closely.

French statesmen feared a protracted cries might loosen British—French ties and discourage American sympathy, leaving France virtually isolated amid western European rivalries.

Bonnet was ambassador to Washington until last June when he was recalled to take the finance portfolio in the second people's front government.

He would not disclose any plans he might have to replace the communist support of the Chautemps regime in the event that extreme left wing of the people's front refused to follow his opposition to control of foreign exchange. Exchange control is a communist objective.

Southerners Rap Ickes In Views On 60 Families

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Some Southern senators fighting the anti-lynching bill turned their attack upon Secretary Ickes today and repeatedly hurled to the senate floor a book he had used in his recent speeches against concentrated wealth.

Senator Bailey (D-NC) called the secretary a "renegade Republican" and described as "garbage" the book the secretary had mentioned — Ferdinand Lundberg's "America's Sixty Families."

Bailey threw a copy of the volune into a nearby aisle.

Hurled To Floor Again

Senator Thomas (D-Okla) picked up the book and started to lay it on his desk. Senator Smith (D-SC) quickly grabbed it, and hurled it to the floor again.

The debate continued after Thomas had retrieved the book again and placed it under a nearby desk.

Bailey asserted the secretary of the interior had appropriated "muck-raking" ideas contained in Lundberg's book.

Senator Ellender (D-La) asserted Northerners did not understand the negro problem in the South and should not attempt to force passage of the anti-lynching bill.

Saying there was three times as much negro crime in the North as in the South, he shouted:

"The difference is that we know

Bankhead-Jones Act Praised In Session

HOUSTON, Jan. 14. (AP) — The Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act is the answer to the problem of tenant farmers, Dr. C. H. Hamilton, economist in rural life of the Texas Experiment station, told the annual convention of the Texas Farm Workers association today.

"The farm purchasing program for tenants," he said, "can, if expanded, gradually meet the needs of 25 per cent of the 286,000 tenant farmers in Texas.

"Home ownership is the solution. Home owners are better citizens, better satisfied and help stilmuate business growth.'

Dr. Karl Brandt of Louisiana State university said a "short-sighted psychology on the part of both the farmer and tenant is causing a lot of trouble.

Ralph W. Moore, master of the Texas State Grange, indorsed the government's farm tenancy program.

Conference Hits Snag Friday On Acreage Basis

Bankhead And Jones Fail To 'Trade Horses' After Bill Gets Tentative Approval

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — The congressional conference committee on crop control legislation reached a stalemate today over the basis for determining cotton acreage and adjourned until Monday without agreement on any item in the cotton section.

Leaders said the impasse arose from the failure of Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) and Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee to "trade horses" after conferees virtually had agreed on a compromise between the senate and house bills.

Declines Jones' Offer

Representative Hope (R-Kans), committee member, said Bankhead declined to accept the terms of Jones' offer to allot a state's share of national production on a baleage basis.

Jones asked in return, Hope said, that Bankhead agree to the house provision for a penalty tax of two cents a pound on cotton sold in excess of marketing quotas.

Wants Senate Provisions

The Alabaman, advocate of rigid control, insisted the fine was not sufficiently drastic to insure farm compliance with a control program and held out for the provisions of the senate bill.

The latter, drafted by Bankhead, would penalize the producer 75 per cent of the market price received on excess cotton. Hope said this would figure out at about seven cents a pound.

Would Allot Baleage

Under Jones' offer the secretary of agriculture, at the start of a crop year, would estimate the total number of bales required for a normal supply. The states would be allotted a certain amount of that baleage, based on their five-year average contribution to national production.

In turn the individual states would translate their baleage into acres and pro-rate it to farmers on the basis of their average acreage planted to cotton.

Contention Up On Graves' Seat

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 14. — Eligibility of Judge Harry N. Graves of Georgetown to serve as a member of the court of criminal appeals was questioned today in two motions filed in that court.

They contended Graves was ineligible because at the time of his appointment late in 1937 he was a member of the legislature which raised salaries of judges of the court from $6,500 to $8,500 annually.

Had Been Predicted

Governor James V. Allrud's announcement of the appointment led to the almost immediate general prediction that efforts would be instituted to obtain a court decision on the matter.

The motion attacking his eligibility cited the following provisions of the Texas Constitution:

"No senator or representative shall, during the term for which he may be elected, be eligible to any civil office of profit under this state, which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which may have been increased during such term.

New Mexico May Set A Speed Limit

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 14. (AP) — A top speed limit of 55 miles an hour on New Mexico highways became a possibility tonight as the state highway commission took under consideration recommendations designed to reduce the number of traffic deaths in the state.

State Highway Engineer Grover F. Conroy proposed to establish limits ranging down to 35 miles an hour, varying in different localities according to highway conditions.

The attorney general has ruled the commission may fix maximum speed on stretches of highways, but that the legislature must fix any general speed limit.

Defective Vehicles Contribute To Failures To Get Licenses

AUSTIN, Jan. 14. (AP)—Defective vehicles rather than incompetence of drivers contributed to failure of applicants in obtaining driver's licenses in the two-month period ended Jan. 8, the license bureau said today.

Examiners issuer 28,279 permits, bringing the number of qualified drivers to more than 3,000,000.

Ralph Buell, chief of the license bureau, said the 699 refusals were due mostly to unsafe mechanical condition of applicant's cars.

The Woman's Angle

by Marjorie Tinnin

WE HAVE fun each year as soon as the city directories are distributed checking on our names and those of our friends. We don't know who reads proof on the books, but from our wide experience of writing names of hundreds of Lubbock residents day in and day out we believe we could help them avoid mistakes.

For instance Collier Parris, sports editor, whose sir name is rarely spelled correctly except by his mother, is raging over his name appearing in the directory as "Collie." His wife's name appears as "Doyle," the publishers having substituted an "o" for an "a."

It was no less a personage than Dale Carnegie who said "A man's name to him is the sweetest sound in the English language," and nothing pleases him more, we might add, than to see it spelled correctly.

REMEMBERING NAMES

THE other day we heard of a woman who says she has been introduced to us "formally at least eight" times and still we don't know her. Our informant refused to reveal her name, and it will be our luck to continue not knowing her, we presume, until such an occasion when we are introduced informally or something.

The incident perturbed us no little, but pondering upon it we became somewhat reconciled. Where else besides the receiving line are formal introductions made in Lubbock?

IF we have been introduced to our friend in eight receiving lines, perhaps we can be somewhat excused for our dumbness, or rudeness, for who is expected to remember names, or faces, heard in a receiving line?

Pondering still further—we really regretted not having remembered the woman, for it is our sincere aim to know by name and face every woman in Lubbock—we fell to musing on funny incidents of the receiving line.

OFTEN we are introduced as Mrs. Turner or as another member of our editorial staff; our cohort is introduced by her maiden name or by the name of her husband's former employer as often as by Mrs. Boyd.

We know of a woman who has been married 15 years, yet we heard her introduced all the way down the line by the name of her former husband.

MISS DELIA WILKINSON went down a receiving line once as "Mrs. Astor," because the woman who introduced her said jokingly to the girl next to her, "You know Mrs. Astor don't you?" The young girl in desperation said, "Oh, yes, how are you Mrs. Astor?"

Newspaper reporters have a fault of being pre-occupied when stepping out socially; the reason:

More often than not they are invited to cover the news of the event rather than for their own social grace. So why not excuse them?

Frantically calling the doctor, the father explained what had happened.

"But it seems incredible that a child could swallow a fountain pen!" gasped the medico.

"I know it, but he did it—come quickly, doctor, can you come right away?"

"No," said the doctor, "I'm going into the operating room now, and so I can't reach there in less than an hour. This is really terrible. What are you doing about it?"

"I'm using a pencil," the harrassed father said.

County Demonstration And Four-H Clubs Begin Programs

Growing Salads Is January Subject

Home demonstration clubs of Lubbock county are in the midst of programs on "Growing Winter Salads" and girls' 4-H clubs are beginning a study of work clothes.

At the women's club meetings, Miss Clara Pratt, this month is demonstrating how lettuce, mustard, carrots, English peas, beets, onions and spinach may be planted in a frame garden. She shows the women that the gardens should be constructed of a 12-inch lumber frame and canvas cover and placed in a part of the yard that is protected from cold and sand.

Miss Pratt presented the program at a Caldwell club meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Odie Hamilton.

The club elected Mrs. R. S. Veazey and Mrs. Jack Whittle council members. Attending the meeting were Mesdames Pat Nix, M. O. Pugh, J. H. Snider, Whittle, H. B. Pugh and the agent.

Details Suggested

It was suggested at a Cooper club meeting, Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. George Buckingham, that the gardens be built from six to ten feet wide, ten to 60 feet long and ten to 12 inches high. A wire should be streched across the top of the frame. The club elected Mrs. E. J. Jennings reporter. Mrs. M. L. Kittrell was a guest.

Yearbooks Distributed

Yearbooks were distributed at a Posey Girls' 4-H club meeting Friday afternoon at the school. The assistant county home demonstration agent, Miss Elizabeth Brooks, demonstrated a well-equipped sewing basket and proper selection of patterns and materials for work clothes.

Each girl is asked to try to make a cup towel by the next meeting.

Thirteen girls, including three new members, Misses Josephine Kempf, Annie Mae Bevels and Vernell Campbell, were present.

Officers Elected

The Idalou Girls' 4-H club met at the school Wednesday with Miss Brooks and elected the following officers:

President, Virginia Dacus; secretary, Mildred Fleming; game leader, Tommye Jo Sparks; song leader, Ruth Boyd, and reporter, Mary Gregory. Nineteen members and the high school home economics teacher, Miss Mary Couch, attended.

Ada Williams And K. Rollo Marry

Miss Ada Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Munroe H. Williams, 2123 Nineteenth street, and Kenneth Rollo, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Rollo, 1802 Avenue S, were married Thursday morning in Lovington, N. M., at the home of a Methodist minister.

The young couple returned to Lubbock where they will be at home temporarily.

Mrs. Rollo attended Texas Technological college last fall as a sophomore student. She is a member of D. F. D. social club.

Mr. Rollo, also a former Tech student, is a member of the Silver Key club.

G. C. Barrier, jr., and Miss Ina Bacon accompanied the couple to New Mexico.

Tech Beats New Mexico, 50-40; Westerners Take Sandies In Series Opener

Raiders Sprint Gracefully To Border Win

Pitching "dope" out the window and basketballs through the hoop with accuracy and quantity, the Texas Tech Red Raider cagers, who evidently haven't been reading the papers, machine gunned the Loboes of New Mexico university, 50 to 40, last night to open a Border conference series here.

Coach Berl Huffman's lads, borrowing whole scads of dipsy-do and razzle-dazzle from the football book, but painstakingly laying off the rougher angle of the gridiron, continued merrily in the "reversal of form" that characterized their 48 to 19 victory Wednesday night over the Abilene Christian college quintet.

The teams meet again tonight at 8 o'clock for the second game of the series. Interest whipped up by Tech's last two victories, earned in flashy style, is expected to jam the gymnasium.

Loboes Score, Too!

The Techs simply would get the ball, scamper and pass down the court and fog it in the basket. They did it so often that it would have been monotonous had not the Loboes themselves been quite adept at putting the iron hoop around the ball. As it was, the Raiders had to keep hustling from start to finish. Once Huffman withdrew his regulars, inserted five new men, and the Loboes took advantage of the short interval to score nine points in a hurry. Quick-like, Huffman re-entered his regulars, and they had things under control for the rest of the way.

To big John Henderson, 6-feet-2 forward, and equally big Thel Garrison, towering center, and Captain Paul Morris, brief guard, went the scoring honors. Henderson just couldn't seem to miss 'em. He shot from all angles, over his head, from far out on the court, and close up. Garrison almost duplicated Henderson's scoring stunts. Henderson looped the basket for eight field goals and a free shot to lead the individual scoring, while Morris, sinking five field goals and adding three free shots to take second place in the Tech scoring but third over all. Garrison made six field goals.

Tech Regains Form

Saenz, Lobo forward and one of the Border conference's leading scorers for the last two years, was New Mexico's big threat and a very nifty number. Like Henderson, the short, chunky Saenz dropped in buckets from all angles, and helped make the Loboes look good. He scored 14 points, adding a brace of singles to half a dozen doubles.

Godding, the other Lobo forward and a dangerous scorer, looped five field goals.

The Techs, who seem to have "found" themselves after sloughing around for the first nine games of the season, looked good in all departments. Defensively, the work of Elmer Tarbox and Rex Williams, ex-footballers, was fine, and the passing of the entire team was a revelation to fans who saw it paddle colorlessly through games with T.C.U. and one with A.C.C.

Few Personal Fouls

Captain Morris, always getting in the way of the tall Lobos and upset their passing game, played nicely until he came out under the burden of four personal fouls.

Only 13 personal fouls were called during the entire game. None were called against the Lobos in the first half, and only four in the last half. Tech suffered three penalties in the first period, six in the second, but the raiders batted one thousand in the free goal shooting department, Morris making three and Henderson one of the four shots allowed them.

The lead changed twice early in the game.

Godding led off with a field goal for New Mexico soon after the game opened. Garrison tied it up within two minutes, but Saenz made a free shot to take the lead again and Godding dropped in a field goal for a 5-2 advantage.

Raiders Take Lead

But Tech got going with a rush. Henderson scored from the floor, and Garrison quickly made another, giving Tech a lead it never gave up. To make it more binding, Morris and Henderson added two more field goals, before Burnett scored New Mexico's thir dfield goal. Garrison made another, and Godding

Ten Towns Represented In Golden Gloves Tourney

Golden Glovers from Brownfield, Crowell, Wilson, Seagraves, Hermleigh, Lorenzo, Colorado, Ballinger, Olton and Lubbock are scheduled to fight it out for City championship honors Monday night at the Auditorium, and there is almost equal distribution of talent lined up for exhibition bouts.

Titles in eight weight divisions will be decided in as many championship bouts. Enough exhibition bouts, between picked boxers of the territory, to fill out a fast two-hour card are being arranged.

Titles in eight weight divisions will be decided in as many championship bouts. Enough exhibition bouts, between picked boxers of the territory, to fill out a fast two-hour card are being arranged.

The Monday night card, second of four Golden Gloves events booked at the Auditorium in January and February, promises to be considerably faster and fuller of punch than last Monday night's preliminaries, which seemed to please a crowd of nearly 900 fans.

To Move Along Fast

The same fast handling of boxers, outside as well as inside, the ring will mark the Golden Gloves policy of "keeping the show moving."

Finalists were determined last Monday night in all but two weight events, and only two boxers showed up in each of these groups. Bob Bryant, the big Olton slugger, will oppose Babe Ritchie, defending district and state heavyweight, and Fred Pendleton is to meet J. C. Followell in the 118-pound class finals. Neither was forced to box on the preliminaries, there being a definite shortage of bantamweights.

Bennie Moore, hard-hitting Brownfield youngster, meets Rudy Russell of Crowell and Texas Tech in the 112-pound class finals, with Tommy Coats of Seagraves and Texas Tech mixing with Wayne Penn of the Lubbock CCC in the 126-pound division.

Lovin vs. Nachlinger

Jack Lovin, who won two fights in nearly one minute last Monday night, clashes with Pete Nachlinger of Hermleigh and Texas Tech in the lightweight final, and Buck Gregory of Tech meets Clarence Little of Lorenzo in the welterweight finals.

Ed Morrison, colorful Texas Tech scrapper from Colorado, is booked against Yeats Causey of Ballinger and Texas Tech in the middleweight division finals. Causey drew a bye last week.

Bob Ritchie of Lubbock and Albert Wuensche of Wilson advanced to the finals in the light heavyweight group.

Several classy scrappers, some of whom appeared on the City prelims last week and showed enough stuff to be invited back, will fight exhibitions, Darrell Carpenter of Lubbock and Melvin Reed of Ralls, two midget flyweights, will sling leather at each other in one event. A couple of Texas Tech middleweights, Slim Thetford and Tom Copeland, are tentatively scheduled, along with Charles Gardner and Odell Justice, both of Tech, in the welterweight class. Cloys Mapes and Robert Parks, semi-finalists in the featherweight group, may come back for a "consolation" battle. An opponent is being sought for Lightweight James Stotts of Slaton, who lost a close and disputed decision to Nachlinger in Monday's semi-finals, as well as for Pat Gary, experienced featherweight from O'Donnell, and Thomas Payne, another feather.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for Monday night's fight are moving at a nice pace at three downtown agencies—Sam Rosenthal's Hub Clothiers, Mr. Hilton's hotel lobby, and the Hotel Lubbock drugstore.

All boxers listed for Monday night's program are to report at the Auditorium at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon for weighing in and physical examinations.

Ralls High Defeats Loboes Of Levelland In Twin Bill

RALLS, Jan. 14. (Special)—Ralls cagers, both A's and B's, took both ends of a double-header here tonight with Levelland. The A squad won 30 to 13 and the B group 13 to 12.

The match was the second time the two quintets had met in conference competition and was the second victory over Levelland for Ralls. Reed, center, took individual honors for Ralls with 14 points and Caddell of Levelland as second with a half-dozen.

Ralls will meet Brownfield and Levelland will battle Littlefield next Tuesday night to end this half of the 5B conference race.

Schoolboy Cage Clubs Warm Up

Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 14.—Fifteen thousand Texas high school basketball players had swung into the grind leading toward county and city championships today.

Fifteen hundred teams were registered in the drive that will be climaxed March 4 and 5 with the crowning of a state champion from the eight regional winners to be determined by Feb. 26. County and city champions will be known by Feb. 12 and district titlists by Feb. 19.

Of the eight teams that went to the state tournament last season, only three were given a good chance to repeat, and of the prospetive regional champions most of the talk centered about Abilene, Fort Worth Poly, John Reagan of Houston and Woodrow Wilson of Dallas.

Carey, winner of the title last year, lost all its starting team and was expected to encounter rough sailing against Tell in its own county.

Abilene Looks "Hot"

Of the seven other regional winners last year Dublin was not expected to get past Abilene, Gober to hurdle such teams as Kilgore and Mount Vernon, Fort Stockton to survive against the El Paso quintets and Liningston to hurdle such an outfit as John Regan. Harlingen was accorded a good chance to repeat, Thomas Jefferson to come through in the San Anotnio section and Poly to again represent Region 3, though Woodrow Wilson is in the same section.

Abilene is hailed as the best team in that section in years. Poly returns with five lettermen—the tallest team in the school's history. Woodrow Wilson has ten lettermen and has beaten all high schools played. Regan won the San Antonio invitation tournament, downing Jefferson in the finals.

Other tournament winners have been Kilgore, Princeton, Texas City, Williams, Rosenberg, Neches, Turkey and Huntsville.

Sport writers over the state rate these teams as among the strongest to date:

Pampa A Favorite

SABIN DEFEATS KOVACS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 14. (AP) Wayne Sabin of Hollywood, Calif., stroked his way into the final round of the Nautilus Tennis tournament today with a four-set victory over Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., 6-3, 6-0, 6-4.

Sabin will meet the winner of tomorrow's semi-final match between top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Chicago and Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., in the final Sunday.

New Actors But Same Old Play

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—That familiar tear-jerking tragi-comedy, which for years featured George Herman Ruth, is being dusted off for its annual spring presentation under the citrus trees of Florida.

It's dialogue and gestures are familiar to every baseball fan but, like the long running "Tobacco Road," it still pleases the public.

There is some doubt as to which club will produce it, and who will play hero.

As long as his canary-stem legs carried him around, Ruth played the lead, and did it well, supported by Colonel Jake Ruppert as villain.

Then the Cardinals put on the

JOE HEADS EASTWARD

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14. (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, as full of yawns as a boxcar-load of hoboes, headed eastward today on what he described as a pleasure trip, but don't bet any money that he won't wind up in Col. Jake Ruppert's brewery for a verbal tussle over his 1938 baseball contract.

If the owner of the New York Yankees wants to talk salary terms with his star, outfielder all he has to do is say the word. DiMaggio is primed.

Joe is still working on his first million, whereas Col. Ruppert has arrived financially, but the ball player knows he has something the man with the money bags wants.

show, with Dizzy Dean drawing warm support and hisses going to Branch Rickey. Last spring it was a double-header for Ruppert came back with Lou Gehrig essaying the old Ruthian role.

Dean sort of sacrificed his usual role when he quit baseball last summer. He might not be the box office draw he has been.

Gehrig could go again. And Ruppert might substitute Joe Di Maggio or even Red Ruffing. The Cardinals are not out of the picture, for Rickey could retaliate with Joe Medwick.

Ruth, Ruppert Co-Authors

Ruth and Ruppert not only wrote the dialogue, but arranged the scenery and divided the play into three acts.

It went something like this:—

Act 1 found Ruth and Ruppert in the Colonel's New York brewery

NOW IT'S STARTED

BRADENTOWN, Fla., Jan. 14. (AP)—Dizzy Dean's 1938 St. Louis Cardinal contract was delivered to him today. He sealed it in another envelope and said he would return it because it called for only $10,000, "which is $15,000 less than I received last year."

He said he did not have to pitch this season for $10,000 and wouldn't. Dean won 13 and lost 10 last season, a poor record in comparison to his better years.

"I expected a cut," Dizzy said, "but not such a big one."

office. Ruppert, who owned Ruth under baseball rules, was endeavoring to force Babe to play for a paltry pittance, a hardly livable wage only equal to that of the President of the United States. Ruth was magnificent in his refusal. The gullible public was shocked and heartbroken at the thought of Babe slaving for such chicken-feed or of leaving baseball to live on his measely income of two or three thousand dollars a month. The act ended with the Colonel, tight-lipped and stern-faced, saying "no" to Ruth's pleadings, and with Babe, sad-eyed and broken in spirit, climbing aboard a Pullman for Florida to play golf.

Act 2 found the Colonel dauy denying Ruth's requests, pointing out what an ingrate the Babe was and intimating there were a lot of other guys he could get. Ruth, in Florida, came in now and then with effective off-stage bitter whispers.

The Happy Ending

Act 3 found the set changed to a sunny Florida scene. By chance Ruppert drifted to the Yankees training camp. Quite by accident he and Ruth met under the palms. And, by strange coincidence, photographers and sports writers gathered around the same table. Suddenly the atmosphere had cleared, smiles wreathed the faces of the former antagonists. Ruth and Ruppert scrawled their signatures on a contract under the flashing of camera bulbs. (It mattered not that the real contract had been signed weeks before in New York.) Ruth grabbed a bat and rushed out to the Yankee camp.

Rickey and Dean inserted some new wisecracks to brighten the script. From Florida Dean flung charge after charge at Rickey. From St. Louis Rickey replied that Dean was a dumb yokel and he didn't care whether he played or not. Dean injected another angle by applying for retirement.

Ruppert sneaked in a new stunt last year, too, by buying Babe Dahlgren from Boston and threatening to have him replace Gehrig. But, like the Ruth-Ruppert interpretation, the Dean-Rickey and Gehrig-Ruppert versions climaxed in scenes of love and kisses.

Maybe the cast this year will change a word or two and slip a Big Apple routine into the show.

Mustangs Beat Longhorns In Exciting Go

DALLAS, Jan. 14. (AP)—J. D. "Sniper" Norton's sharpshooting cleared the way tonight for Southern Methodist university to open its home season with a victory over the University of Texas in a thriller, 29 to 26.

The Mustangs won with a comeback drive in the last few minutes, after their ability to toss in free throws gave them an edge in offensive work.

Trailing 26 to 23, Norton rammed in a field goal and Chelsea Crouch intercepted a bad pass, dribbled the length of the floor, and sank what proved to be the winning basket.

For good measure, tall Billy Dewell, center, dropped in another shortly before the whistle.

Norton led the scoring with five field goals and six free throws for a total of 16 points.

The Mustangs sank 7 of 11 free throw chances in the last half. They led at the half, 14 to 12.

The game was the debut in Dallas of Forrest "Whitney" Baccus, former S. M. U. all-conference basketeer, as coach of the Mustangs, who dropped the season opener last week to Baylor.

ALSO, WHERE IS HE?

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14. (AP)—Billy Evans, director of the Boston Red Sox farm system, asked today: "Who is Tommy Reed?"

A recent Houston dispatch said that Reed, a Houston amateur baseball star, and highly regarded as a football prospect at the University of Texas, had withdrawn from the University to play baseball with the Boston Red Sox.

"I never heard of him," Evans said today, "and if he had been signed by the Red Sox, I would have known about it."

BUDGE, MAKO LOSE

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 14. (AP)—Don Budge and Gene Mako of California, today were defeated by Australia's Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich, 6-0, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Shreveport Is Eyeing Texas Loop Spot

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 14. (AP)—Shreveport took its first definite step today to regain membership in the Texas Baseball league when a committee of business men obtained a verbal option from J. Alvin Gardner, president of the circuit, to purchase the Galveston franchise.

Gardner said the league has an option until Monday to purchase the Galveston holdings and agreed to wait until Sunday for a decision from the local committee.

$55,000 Are Necessary

Gardner, summoned to Shreveport by Henry A. O'Neal, president of the chamber of commerce, informed the local committee that the Galveston franchise can be purchased for $23,000. This includes about fourteen ball players, one-eighth interest in a league fund of $42,541.32 invested in government bonds, and paid up membership for one year in the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Shreveport learned that a fund of about $55,000 will be needed to resume Texas league operations. Part of this includes cost of erecting a grandstand to replace the one destroyed by fire six years ago, when Shreveport surrendered its holdings in the Texas loop. The league owns about seven acres formerly used as a ball park and has agreed to sell this ground at cost, about $18,000, on long terms at six per cent interest, minus rent.

Two Others Ready

President Gardner said that Wichita Falls and Corpus Christi are also anxious to take over the Galveston franchise.

"We feel certain we will be in a position to exercise our option by Sunday night," said O'Neal. "Seven persons who are interested in the return of organized baseball to this city were unable to attend today's meeting."

O'Neal appointed a committee to contact several interested parties and report back Saturday evening.

Business Men Interested

The committee attending today's session learned that $8,000 will be paid for concessions at the ball park and radio rights will gain another $5,000.

B. A. Hardey, local oil man, who sponsored a Class "B" club here several years ago, and is interested in obtaining the Shreveport franchise, agreed to take $5,000 stock in the company. It is believed the stock will be spread out among a half dozen business men, if the deal is consumated.

Traynor Sees Pirates As No Weak Sister In '38 Race

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 14. (AP)—Pie Traynor, wrinkling the deep "crows feet" around his eyes for a squint into the future, predicted today his Pirates would be bad medicine for the rest of the National League—even without the benefit of a major trade.

"We have strengthened our club where we were weak with some desirable recruits," he observed. "It would be foolish for me to say we will, or might, win the pennant. But we finished third last season and I believe we will be better."

Rain Forecast For Start Of Crooner's Tourney

DEL MAR, Calif., Jan. 14. (AP)—Golfers and movie actors alike kept a weather eye on low-hanging clouds today as they completed preparations for Bing Crosby's second annual $3000 invitation tournament tomorrow.

The official forecast was rain tomorrow but rain or shine, Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. V., defending champion and Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, winner of the recent Los Angeles open, were the favorites in the 36-hole event which ends Sunday—weather permitting. Snead shot a 68 a year ago.

Most of the country's leading pros will compete, along with a sprinkling of Hollywood's golfing actors.

Lubbock High Wins Big Five Tilt 36-21, Over Amarillo Quintet

By TOM MILLER
Avalanche Sports Staff

With lank, cotton-topped Robert Allen cramming in 16 points before he was ejected on personal fouls in the fourth quarter, and Henry Ford and L. D. Venable contributing their part to the scoring, Lubbock High school defeated Amarillo at the high school gymnasium last night, 36 to 21.

Allen was the big gun of Western point-making, hitting the basket with marked rapidity throughout his tenure in the game. Ford bagged five field goals for 10 points for runner-up honors, while Bechtol, little Amarillo forward, had four goals from the field and a charity toss to lead the Sandies with nine counters.

Westerners Score First

Venable sank seven points. Dutchy Cawthon and Harold Parsons confined their play almost exclusively to fine floor work, although the latter netted three points.

Mauldin, Amarillo center, Williams and Moore, substitute guard and forward, respectively, showed well along with Bechtol.

With Allen and Ford dropping in field goals early, the Westerners drew first blood. Bechtol slanted one in for the Sandies, and Allen looped in two more. Baskets by Mauldin for Amarillo and Ford ended scoring for the first chapter.

Sandies Pull Close

The Sandies pulled up close in the second quarter to trail at halftime, 15 to 11. Parsons' free toss was matched by Childers, and his and Ford's court shots were covered by Bechtol and Mauldin.

Venable, Allen and Ford warmed up to the situation to start the second half, the former two to caging two and Ford one before the Sandies counted. Moore substituted for Childers in the Sandie lineup and stopped the monotony with a basket. Venable made another to give the Westerners a third period advantage of 27-13.

Allen sank four field goals before he fouled out late in the game, and Venable bagged another in the fourth period. Four gift shots and field goals by Moore and Williams ended Amarillo scoring.

Weak Under Basket

Westerner sharpshooters cashed in on only two of 10 chances from the free throw line, and at times they looked off form under the goal. Ford, however, was on every rebound from both backboards.

Amarillo's B team shellacked Lubbock's B squad in a curtain raiser, 30-15.

Cooper High school and Coach Walker Nichol's Cowhands lead off the hostilities at the high school gymnasium in a game starting at 6 o'clock tonight. The B teams of Amarillo and Lubbock get the second spot, with the Westerners and Sandies completing the card.

The AP's Mr. Frank B. Noyes

ANNOUNCEMENT was made the other day by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Washington Star, that at the conclusion of his present term this spring he will no longer be able to serve as president of the Associated Press.

Mr. Noyes, who soon will be 75 years old, began his official connection with the Associated Press during his thirties. For the past 38 years he has served as the organization's president; as its calm, deliberate, but able guiding hand; as the Associated Press membership's voice with its employed executives and workers. Truly, his long tenure of office and his outstanding record therein have written a saga of world journalism.

With the possible exceptions of the late Victor Lawson, who as editor of the Chicago Daily News was the originator of the Associated Press; and of the late Melville E. Stone, its first general manager, Mr. Noyes, more than any other one man has been responsible for the upbuilding and the workings of the Associated Press. In his unusual position, Mr. Noyes has left his stamp not only upon world journalism, but upon the daily lives of countless millions of newspaper readers everywhere — even though few of them realize the fact. For Mr. Noyes, in many respects, has been "The Associated Press" for a period approaching a half century.

Mr. Noyes' great contribution to news handling and dissemination will never be forgotten. History, especially as regards the newspaper field, can never overlook him. He is one of those largely responsible for what is universally agreed to be the finest and best in news services and the principles of Mr. Noyes are mirrored in the accepted fact that "By The Associated Press" on a news story is like "Sterling" on silver. The great AP's marvelous efficiency, its inherent dignity, its almost miraculous accuracy and its undenied fairness are also the talents of the man who soon retires from its presidency after a laudable career.

Someone else, of course, will take the place of Frank B. Noyes as active president of the Associated Press.

But no one will ever take his place in the history and in the foundation of that far-flung institution which with religion, education and government has become a keystone of our civilization.

His opportunity was greater than that of many other brilliant newspaperman, but so was his grasp of the task given over to him.

He has served long and faithfully not only the Associated Press and his colleagues in it, but his country and the world, as well.

Still Another Good Record

SOME time ago The Morning Avalanche editorially commended Internal Revenue Collector Frank Scofield, of Austin, head of South Texas' District No. 1, for the fine record his organization is making.

We said we were—and we still are—always glad to bring to the attention of the public good work done by government officials.

Yesterday we discovered that Mr. Scofield is not alone in doing a good job for Uncle Sam in the matter of revenue collections in Texas. We find that the chief of the second, North Texas, district, William A. Thomas, of Dallas, likewise is having a successful tenure of office. Therefore we hasten to let the South Plains public in on the good news.

Mr. Thomas has been the North Texas collector now since August of 1933 and, we are informed, has been highly efficient, has improved the standing of his district and, in general, is getting the job well done.

No citizen is more delighted than The Morning Avalanche to learn that we have two well administered tax collection agencies and to Mr. Thmas, as well as to Mr. Scofield, goes our boundless commendation.

We are told that there is a friendly, good-natured rivalry between the North and South Texas districts and that is both fine and as it should be. But we are disinterested in the competition between them, in which collects the most, or which has any sort of an edge over the other.

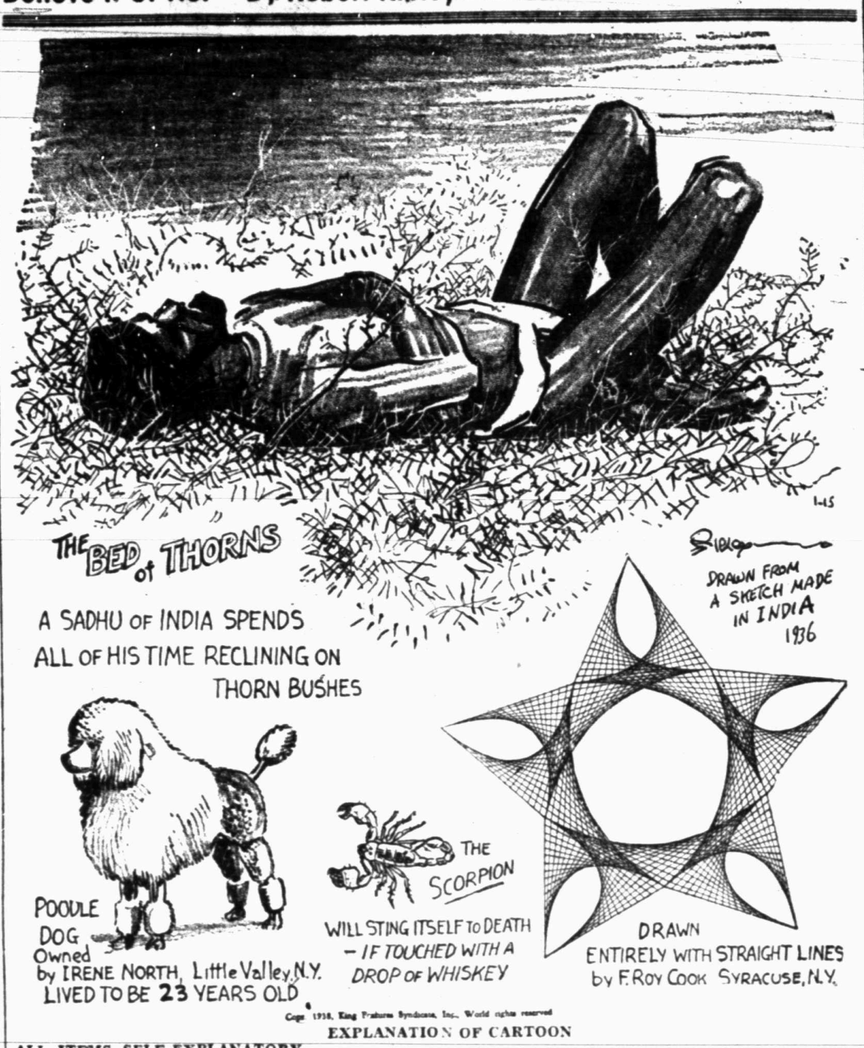

What we are interested in—and what we believe the Texas public is interested in—is that both districts are doing good work and that both Mr. Thomas and Mr. Scofield are efficient in their administration.

To them collectively and individually we offer a salute!

We are a brave and idealistic people, quick to join the right side if it seems sure to win.

LINDA BENTON — Heroine, daughter of a famous singer.

CAPT. BARRYMORE TRENT — Hero, flying "daredevil."

MIRANDA TRENT—Barrymore's grandmother; a "strong woman."

Yesterday: Barrymore takes Linda in his arms. Their romance has begun, but Linda could not know how soon it was to be tested.

CHAPTER IV

Except for the light bandage around Captain Trent's left wrist, everything at the breakfast table next morning seemed much as usual.

From time to time, Barry, as usual enlivened the meal with bursts of song, in spite of his grandmother's somewhat perfunctory remonstrances. His repertoire consisted mainly of spirited sea-going ditties, whole lines of which he hummed because he regretfully professed to have forgotten the words.

When Linda began in her warm, gentle voice, "I can't tell you, Mrs. Trent, how sorry I am about your jar," the old lady cut her off with a gracious gesture.

"Don't give it another thought, my dear Miss Benton," she commanded. "My grandson assures me it was entirely his fault. Since his early childhood he has been forbidden to approach that cabinet . . . just," she added dryly, as Barry greeted the arrival of fresh toast with a wholehearted round of melody, "since childhood he has been forbidden to sing at mealtime . . . I'm sure I can't imagine, Barry, what Miss Benton must think of you."

Linda, who knew that the old lady did not care in the least what she thought, smiled faintly. In spite of old Miranda's assumption of disapproval, it was so obvious that she was enjoying herself immensely . . . This, Linda gathered, was all as a Trent male should be—high-spirited, irrepressible, devastating — "a sweetheart in every port," for instance.

And of course, if she guessed anything about last night, that is just what she thinks I am, Linda thought wryly, just another sweetheart in another port . . . And after all, how could she be sure she wasn't? . . . Was Barry ever entirely serious?

"I'm sure I hope Miss Benton won't believe I'm as black as you paint me, Duchess," he said now with mock solicitude, his eyes seeking Linda's in a twinkle of amusement. "She must be a very well-brought-up young woman, herself, or you wouldn't think so highly of her opinion."

He took up the morning paper and opened it.

In a moment he said so sharply that his grandmother looked up startled from her mail, "I warned him—the blithering idiot! Well, he's down."

"Just who is down—and where?" asked Mrs. Trent calmly.

"Old Rust. And the devil of it is that no one seems to know just where." Barry was reading on rapidly. "The pilot of the big plane carrying the supplies lost him in the fog and turned back . . . Last radio signals from somewhere over Nicaragua early this morning . . . I told him that if he cracked in that jungle he had as much chance of being picked up as a needle in a haystack. But he wouldn't listen to me."

"And when," asked his grandmother dryly, "have you begun listening to good advice?"

But Barry was reading on, his laughing mouth a straight line . . . He was serious enough now, Linda thought.

When old Miranda rose from the table, she said, "Those parcels must really get off this morning, Miss Benton. Take George and the car. I shall not need you until after lunch. And no doubt you have some errands of your own to do."

Barry did not follow them from the dining room. He hardly seemed to know that they were going.

Linda did have some errands of her own; and it was an ideal day for Christmas shopping—clear and cold, with a crisp fall of snow that made dazzling arabesques of the over-arching trees along the avenue, and crunched delightfully under foot.

Everywhere people were going about their errands with shining faces. Already some of the doors and windows showed holiday wreathes. In the church next to the Court House a choir of children was rehearsing Christmas carols, their high young voices rising shrill and sweet on the frosty air—"Noel! Noel! Noel! Noel! Born is the King of Israel!"

Linda, waiting at the crossing for the traffic, did not realize that she was singing with them, softly but clearly, until a round-faced, dark little man who was standing beside her turned to smile at her, a gamin smile that crinkled his face absurdly.

"Bravo!" He spoke to her with a faint twist of inflection that was not quite an accent. "Excuse me, Miss Benton, but that is a voice to pack 'em in the aisles."

Linda frowned faintly. She did not remember ever having seen the man before.

"Oh, no, you do not know me," he went on with his funny puckered smile. "But I heard you sing once before. It was in a hotel in New York—for charity . . . and I have never forgotten you. Such freshness—such purity—such power—and you standing there so straight and young, like something out of a story book . . . It was the kind of singing one does not forget."

Linda remembered now. That was the one occasion when her aunt had allowed her to sing before a public audience.

The little man was so wistful and friendly standing there that she smiled back at him. After all, it was Christmas week.

"Thank you," she said. "When you love to sing, it is nice to know that someone has liked to listen—and remembers. You were kind to tell me."

Linda made her purchases at the town's little gift shop—the knitting bag for Mrs. Trent, some trifles for the servants, and a book for Barry.

She was paying for the book when two elderly women advanced upon her. She recognized one of them as Miss Lydia Chattam who came to see old Miranda sometimes—always bursting with news . . . Miss Lydia was a plump, pasty woman, with a nose that always looked cold, and pale, sharp eyes.

"Ah, just a minute, Miss Benton," she began now, "I hear that Captain Trent is at home for the holidays."

"Why, yes," Linda answered. "He came last week."

"Isn't that just like Miranda Trent?" Miss Chattam turned to her companion. "Keeping him to herself all this while. I heard the other day—" she lowered her voice.

One of a group of smart looking younger women gathered at the book table turned to stare at Linda. As Linda picked up her bundles, she heard the woman ask in a careless, throaty drawl, "And who might the little dresden shepherdess be?"

"His grandmother's maid, I suppose," said her companion negligently. "Did you see her blush? Well, Barry always did have a way with the lower class . . . By the way, Rita, did you know Barry was to be here?"

"Naturally," murmured the one called "Rita." She was tall and lithe, with a warmth of copper-colored hair, a full red mouth in a pale, too-narrow face, and heavily lashed sultry eyes which swept Linda covertly from head to foot.

"I wondered why you got home ahead of schedule," said the other, and laughed significantly.

Linda fled with burning cheeks . . . So Barry had a way with the lower classes!

At lunch that day Mrs. Trent observed, her eyes trailing curiously over her grandson's face, "I hear that Rita Blanchard's back."

"Our dear Miss Lydia is still faithful, I see," said Barry smoothly. "And where had Rita been?"

"Here and there. No grass has grown under her feet, I do assure you, since her divorce was granted."

Barry's eyes danced wickedly over his grandmother's face; and Linda sensed undercurrents that she did not understand. She began to understand later in the day when she found old Miranda at the telephone.

"Of course, my dear Rita," she was saying, "I will tell the captain you called . . . Ah, you must mean Miss Benton . . . Indeed? But she has been with me for some time . . . Yes, very charming to look at, is she not? We both—the captain and I—" the old lady's face broke into what in any one else would have been a grin of gamin malice—"find it very pleasant to have such youth and freshness about the house."

Rita Blanchard, Linda reflected, must be at least 30.

But what, she thought, has Mrs. Trent against this Mrs. Blanchard that she's ready to use even me as a weapon against her?

Resume Of Business Is Given To Club

A resume of business conditions in the light of the present recession, was given American Business club members yesterday noon by Mr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the department of economics and business administration at Texas Technological college.

John W. Broome, jr., second vice president, was in charge in the absence of President William Collins, who was ill. John Vickers was presented as a new member. Bert Pinson and J. E. Maisen were co-chairmen, the former presiding.

"If I knew where business was going, I wouldn't be here in Lubbock—I would be in Wall Street," Dr. Ellsworth said by way of introduction. Lubbock and this area, he pointed out, is "so far away from our industrial and financial centers," and yet, "we are closer to Shanghai now than we were to Amarillo, say 25 years ago."

During the past four months there has been "a general business decline," he said; however, this particular area has not felt the general recession. "Are we facing a general business decline, or are we tentatively in a recession, which is to be over in fact very soon?" he asked. He added that the chances are "eight to one" we are in a temporary recession rather than a depression. Absence of certain factors that precede a general depression, were cited. By the end of 1938 prices may be higher than at the beginning.

Need of business men, especially young business men, for training in salesmanship, was emphasized. "Most young business men go broke," he pointed out. "Most men go broke on the way to success."

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

"I don't think the President realized what he was doing when he boasted that he voted for Theodore Roosevelt against the regular party nominee in 1904," ruminated a highup Democrat on Capitol Hill who, against his better judgment, is scheming to subdue party mutiny.

Southerners particularly resented Mr. Roosevelt's revelation. To them it brought bitter memories of the 1928 cat-and-dog fight when the President, as Al Smith's champion, shoved a wet Tammany man down their dry throats without thought of consequences below the Mason and Dixon line. Scores of Congressmen risked their political skins for the sake of party regularity instead of taking a walk, as Mr. Roosevelt did when he couldn't stomach Alton B. Parker's gold standard philosophy.

The President's only chance to jam his program through Congress, especially the wage-hour bill, lies in an appeal to partisan pledges and obedience. Now he has furnished every recalcitrant with an alibi which all are anxious to use—on the floor and back home. They're shutting their ears to "Jim" Farley's plea of "Stand by the boss."

SARDONIC: Every Democratic politico except the inner circle blinked when he scanned the National Committee's latest financial report to the clerk of the House. The expenditure of a million dollars in a non-election year seemed to justify a Congressional investigation of such high financing.

A quiet inquiry by interested persons has disclosed that this sensational off-year outlay was spent to discredit and undermine Democratic Senators hostile to the court reform plan. It financed pamphlets, speakers, newspaper releases extolling the President's proposal and attacking party members who opposed it. Ironically, Democratic money paid the expenses of two Republicans in their cross-country attacks on regular Democrats. The G.O.P.-ers who enjoyed junkets at the expense of their victims were Secretaries Ickes and Wallace.

What hurts most is that a dozen Senators selected for slaughter by the subsidized Ickes and Wallace paid $100 each to attend the Jackson Day dinner in an effort to wipe out the deficit the G.O.P.-ers incurred. The two cabinet members, as dinner speakers in the Old Hickory celebration, ate free. That's politics.

LIMITED: Brash young Robert H. Jackson has discovered that it's only a few steps—or speeches—down from the diamond horseshoe of politics to the doghouse. "Bob" is the most unhappy man in Washington these days.

The assistant Attorney-general has committed two serious blunders if he entertains political ambitions—and he does. He placed all his eggs in one basket when he blamed monopolies for all our economic woes, and some of the eggs were slightly—well, ancient. He should have made sure that he could buy a new supply from the White House. Secondly, he stuck his chin out too far and too soon when he announced his gubernatorial candidacy. Every second-rate rival will take a poke at him.

Master Politician Roosevelt's failure to tutor "Bob" more skillfully has revived a Penrose anecdote in Congressional cloakrooms, where the A.A.G. is none too popular. In joshing the Philadelphia podesta about a protege who wasn't making the grade, a friend said: "But, Boies, he says he learned all the politics he knows from you." "Yes," snorted Penrose, "but I didn't tell him all I know."

SCHEME: The revelation that two used cars are sold for every new shiny motor placed on the highways has sparked another bright idea among members of the official economic rescue squad. They are angling to persuade the President to pass their scheme along to the auto magnates.

Under the new theory the industry would voluntarily agree not to sell a second hand car to anybody earning over $2,000 a year. It's their idea that this system would force people of more ample means to go into the market for a brand-new vehicle, and thus unclog the production jam responsible for recessions like the present one. They estimate that quadrennial purchases by the present number of car owners would "standardize" the industry.

The scheme may die of suffocation in the President's desk drawer; he mercifully kills off at least two proposals a week of this nature. But it indicates the intensity of the hunt for methods to achieve some sort of "planned production"—or "planned purchasing."

SCRAPER: Friends who have heard of Joseph P. Kennedy's last act as Maritime Commissioner are calling him "Barnacle Joe the Sailor" at farewell parties celebrating his promotion to the London ambassadorship.

The ingenious Mr. K. heard in a roundabout way of a new Swedish process for scraping barnacles off ship bottoms in half the time and at half the cost of any other method. With characteristic energy he phoned his new boss—Cordell Hull—and asked him to rush a State department representative from London to Sweden for a preliminary investigation. Mr. Hull complied gladly—and smiled at his recruit's enthusiasm.

Mr. Hull hopes that the Boston man will invent a process to scrape barnacles off the ship of state. "Joe" probably will.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

PUBLICATION of large executive salaries paid by corporations in 1936 discloses that a number of presidents and chairmen were paid less than vice presidents in the same companies.

The income tax explains most of these apparently cockeyed discrepancies. In many cases, heads of companies get the major portion of their income from investments rather than salary. They therefore often find it wise to reduce their own official compensation in order to stay below an income bracket which would greatly increase their involuntary contribution to the government's internal revenue.

Intentional or not, it was sweet timing by the House Ways and Means committee to divulge before the echoes of the layoff of 30,000 workers had died away that General Motors pays nine of the 13 salaries of $300,000 or more drawn in the whole country.

KINDER?: A subtle change is coming over the psychology of many utility leaders—though not all. The Supreme court's validation of federal grants and loans to municipalities for the purpose of building competing power plants was a solar plexus wallop—and it looks as if there is worse to come. It's an odds-on bet that the government will win both its suit to compel Electric Bond & Share to register under the Holding Company act and its defense of T.V.A.'s constitutionality.

With the line of judicial resistance apparently broken down, some power chiefs are wondering whether it wouldn't be smarter to accept the inevitable and register columtarily with the S.E.C. instead of waiting to be forced into it by the courts.

They figure the commission might be kinder to volunteers than to conscripts. The companies which have already registered have no cause to complain of undue harshness in the S.E.C.'s interpretation of the law.

BACKBONE: A few of the hardier souls in the industry are determined to hold out to the end. Their one hope is that the Supreme court will find that the Holding Company act is separable—i. e., that the registration section may be found constitutional without validating the rest of the law. In that case they would still be free to contest the "death sentence" in the courts even after they had registered. Voluntary registration would cut off this possibility, as it would imply acceptance of the act in full.

Reports that United Corporation, the giant utility super-holding company, is going to register are a trifle premature. Such action is being considered by the powerful financial interests behind the corporation, but an understanding is sought with the S.E.C. on several intricate problems involved before a final decision is reached.

If United does register, the backbone of resistance to registration will be broken and the New Deal will have scored one of its greatest triumphs.

Side Glances---By George Clark

"All right, if you don't let us use your pony we won't let you play mounted police with us."

The Plainsman Says:

That Girl on Broadway says you aren't really old until your age is accepted as an excuse for bad manners.

It's a funny thing, but a girl with cotton stockings never gets scared of a mouse!

NOW that the parking meter vote has passed into history and all of us have had time to digest the returns, it begins to look like the meters are neither as popular as the City commission thought they were, nor as unpopular as some of their opponents expected them to be.

What happened was just what The Plainsman said months and months ago when they were first put in on that "trial" basis. We aren't howling "I told you so," but we said then that if considerable time elapsed before an election was called the meters would stay in. We pointed out that people would get used to them, just as a fellow will get used to taking castor oil, if he makes a habit of it, or used to hitting himself on the head with a hammer if he does it often enough.

This column was not surprised either at the meters being retained by vote, or by the narrow margin in the returns.

With only 20 votes difference in a total of 1,034 cast, it is our guess that the meters were retained on the strength of votes cast by city employes.

We say that not unkindly, because city employes have as much right to vote as anyone else.

But the majority of city employe voters — if not all of them — voted for he meters. Many of them doubtless were personally in favor of the meters. Many others doubtless were not, and admirably voted for them out of loyalty to the administration.

Had all city employes voted their own desires, forgetting the laudable trait of loyalty, doubtless they would have been split in the same ratio as the other voters.

And that split would have beaten the meters.

Not counting wives' ballots, there are approximately 175 voters in the employ of the City of Lubbock.

HOWEVER, as one too lazy and disinterested to amble down to the City hall and cast a ballot, The Plainsman certainly has no kick coming.

In spite of the meters' bad points and the fact that their $58 price is outlandish, the machines have their good points and the writer is as satisfied as anyone else over the outcome of the election.

Now if we can only find some gadgets which will automatically enforce our all too numerous traffic law violations — down town and over the residential districts—we'll be all right.

They'd be worth $58 a throw!

Note to the Petersburg reader who seeks the name and address of the girl recently commented upon as seeking a husband:

(The Plainsman's lawyer says this column might get into trouble by passing such information along. If you'll drop in to see me next time you're in Lubbock I'll be glad to go into the matter with you.)

That Man on Avenue Q says great leaders are born. You can't learn the knack of running things without seeming to be bossy.

Dirty jokes used to be called "smoking room stories," but the smoking got out into mixed company and the stories followed!

THE PLAINSMAN has been sitting back waiting to hear some reactions to a portion of President Roosevelt's Jackson Day speech — that portion in which the Chief Executive boasted that he had bolted the Democratic party in 1904. That year Mr. Roosevelt voted for Republican Presidential Nominee Theodore Roosevelt, a cousin far removed, over Democratic Nominee Alton B. Parker.

Reports on the reaction have started drifting in and we are not surprised to learn that many, if not all, of the Southern Old Line Democrats in Washington are boiling as a result of the President's remarks.

The writer, who bolted the party once — in 1928 — and has publicly said on numerous occasions that he'll always vote for whom he pleases when he pleases, has no criticism of the president for doing the same thing.

But the President's boast — or, if you please, his admission — of party irregularity is going to be talked about a lot in 1940 and before.

A lot of Old Line Democrats who have been voting for New Dealers simply because of a meaningless party stamp now have a beautiful "out" and don't think they won't take it!

The President's admission of bolting will do him untold harm in the South.

FURTHERMORE, for the first time a word from the President, himself, has added unmistakable testimony to the oft-heard charge that the New Deal wing of the old Democratic party is not the Democratic party at all, but instead is the Roosevelt party.

Mr. Roosevelt's "bolt statement" indicates the truth of the charge that he doesn't give a hoot about the Democratic party, just as his espousal of Republicans over Old Line Democrats in elections and in the cabinet have indicated.

His admission was bold; perhaps courageous.

But he hasn't heard the last of it, especially in the South.

Incidentally, with the exception of a few senators still loyal to the President, that $100-per-plate Jackson Day dinner in Washington was largely attended by federal jobholders.

Many of them are on modest salaries and an arrangement has been made to permit them to pay for their dinner on the installment plan.

HERE AND THERE: J. W. Gamel, former Lubbock merchant, did the first preliminary work in getting The Morning Avalanche and The Evening Journal into a consolidation in 1926. . . . Prior to that they were run separately, The Journal being in a handsome building on the southwest corner of Tenth and Texas and The Avalanche being in the downstairs of the present Avalanche-Journal structure . . . The consolidation resulted, about a year later, in The Journal's purchase of the interests of James L. Dow, former Avalanche owner and for many years a doughty South Plains editor. . . . It's true what they're saying b' Austin . . . State Senator G. H. Nelson, of Lubbock, tells The Plainsman he's seriously thinking about running for lieutenant-governor. . . . There's considerable talk that Hockley County Judge Alvin Allison, of Levelland, a former Tech student, will run for the legislature . . . And the grapevine says there will likely be candidates from Crosby and Lynn counties, too. . . . If you ask The Plainsman, state senate and house memberships constitute the most important offices of all as far as us "common people" are concerned.

TARZAN'S QUEST. No 162 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"This is the tunnel," Jane cried; "I know it." Now Ydeni said solemnly: "Go your way, Tarzan of the Apes, nor ever return to the land of the Kavuru." The ape-man answered: 'If the Kavuru commit another crime, Tarzan will return to mete out punishment!"

Soon the party emerged into the forest, safe and free. There Muviro was reunited with his daughter, and Tibbs stuttered his joy. But not the least happy was the little monkey Nkima, who leaped ecstatically into the arms of Jane, his beloved mistress.

Southward trekked the happy band, with Tarzan and his mate in the vanguard. These two walked in silence, for no words were needed to establish the subtle harmony of their souls. And Jane's mind was filled with delightful visions of her jungle home with Tarzan.

"It is too bad," Annette murmured to Brown "that you could not get the secret of eternal youth from Kavandavanda. It would be worth a great fortune in America." "Listen, kid," the aviator grinned, "I got a fortune. You look like a million bucks to me!" THE END

Ask The Master Psychologist

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success, being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear . . . than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours. Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking You can win and hold the love of the one you want So if in doubt, ask the man who knows

ENJOY UPWARD REVERSAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (AP)—Selected stocks enjoyed a mild upward reversal in today's market, but numerous issues were in the losing column at the close.

Utilities, rails, motors, steels and aircrafts took turns at rallies and favorites eventually converted early losses running to a point or so into advances of as much. Profit realizing at the finish, however, chipped off top marks in most cases.

Transfers totalled 845,900 shares compared with 971,570 yesterday. It was the smallest 5-hour volume since Dec. 31. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 47.

The list got off to a poor start but comments of President Roosevelt at his press conference were interpreted as friendly to operating utility companies and shares in this division at once attracted a following.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14. (AP)—Small but persistent liquidation orders and realizing by recent purchasers kept cotton prices on the downgrade in today's session and the close was 5 to 8 points net lower.

Brokers continued to watch Washington for farm bill developments and were unwilling to enter the market on either side pending some definite incentive.

Foreign markets were steady but failed to exert any influence in early dealings.

Washington advices said the conferees on the farm bill had reached an agreement to fix the 1938 crop at 10,500,000 bales and added that agricultural department officials had fixed the middle of February as the deadline on farm legislation to affect the current crop.

Buying during the day was limited to scaledown purchasing by the trade and a little covering by shorts. The January position expired at noon at 8.65, or 5 points over the previous close.

The French financial and cabinet crisis had a bearish tendency on prices and the market closed at the bottom. March contracts finished at 8.62@8.63, May at 8.70, July at 8.75, Oct. at 8.81 and Dec. at 8.84.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 8.56 cents a pound; for the past 30 market dayr 8.36 cents a pound.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (AP)—Cotton sagged today under commission house liquidation and smaller demand. March opened at a high of 8.58 and closed at a low of 8.50, with final prices 7 to 8 points net lower.

The market opened unchanged to 4 points lower in sympathy with disappointing Liverpool cables and under hedge selling and liquidation. January trading expired at noon at a price of 8.46, or 8 points net lower. A steady flow of small selling orders through commission houses was considered largely responsible for the downward trend.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—Virtual refusal of the Livestock wheat market to follow yesterday's sharp upturns of prices this side of the Atlantic led to material setbacks here today.

Value Placed On Green's Estate

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The gross value of the estate left by the late Col. Edward H. R. Green, including his trunks of rare stamps and coins and the eleven automobiles at his Massachusetts home, was set by an administrator today at $40,144,229.73.

The appraisals were accepted in evidence by Special Master John Spaulding Flannery of the United States Supreme court, who heard further testimony in the legal battle of four states for the right to tax Green's properties.

Four States Seek Taxes

Representatives of Texas, Massachusetts, Florida and New York heard Wilbur K. Potter, Green's secretary and a will administrator, cite some of the late financier's possessions in various states claiming the colonel's domicile.

Col. Green maintained an elaborate home at Star Island, near Miami, Fla. Documents have been introduced in an attempt to show that he claimed Texas as his domicile.

Special Master Flannery ruled other possessions could be included in the appraisal later.

Mills Are Burned

ed by fire and made slippery by ice, made climbing impracticable.

Parrack, 32, apparently suffered only a blow. He had no abrasions.

According to his own version of the mishap, Parrack and an unidentified person who went into the building to assist him with the nozzle of his hoseline remained in the danger zone until the walls began caving. They retreated slowly before the fire and, when they saw a blower pipe leading from the thresher to the main plant, about to break and fall they attempted to run, but bumped each other, Parrack falling to the floor. He rolled to prevent the heavy 14-gauge iron elbow from falling on him, but was struck on the back.

Discovered By Cleve Cobb

The blaze was discovered by Cleve Cobb, special officer for the Santa Fe railroad, sometime after 4 o'clock.

Firemen, rushing to the place with all equipment possible, had water running within a few minutes, but the fire had gained great headway.

An explosion, evidently of dust, shook the blazing structures sometime about 5 o'clock. It was then Parrack was injured.

Greatest Loss Since Last May

The blaze represented the greatest loss since the approximately $100,000 Higginbotham-Bartlett fire at Avenue H between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets May 2, 1937, said the chief, recognized by firemen as the greatest that ever resulted here.

Ice that formed where water had been thrown made for patent danger. A chill six-mile wind blew out of the northwest. Ice coated oilskins of fighters and nozzles of hoselines.

Smoke Is Smelled

Smoke was smelled in the mills Thursday morning, said Tatum.

"We found where a small fire had started from the hammermill, caused by friction of steel striking," said Tatum, "but believed we had extinguished every vestige of it."

Firemen were not called at the time, he said.

Peculiarly enough, when the structure was destroyed in 1934, a fireman, Scott Hollingsworth, was injured in the same place as Parrack—in the back. He suffered a severe sprain when he fell. Other than nail hurts, no other injuries were reported.

Chief Twitty said this morning of the 1934 blaze the damage evidently had been caused by static or spontaneous combustion. An explosion, as in the fire today, was set off then.

Economy Mills was established here in 1925 and serves West Texas and a great territory in New Mexico. It grinds dairy and chicken feed, as well as various other products, said Tatum.

Gin At Cotton Center Is Destroyed By Fire

(Special To The Avalanche)

HALE CENTER, Jan. 14. — Fire Thursday night destroyed the Starnes gin at Cotton Center 14 miles southwest of here. Cause of the blaze late today had not been determined.

All machinery and 10 bales of cotton were lost. The gin was in operation when the fire was discovered by workmen and it burned to the ground in 40 minutes.

Lack of facilities hampered efforts of volunteer firemen to battle the blaze.

The residence of the owner, Gill Starnes, and a cotton house and gin office nearby were not destroyed.

The plant had ginned 2,400 bales of cotton this season.

A cooperative plant there was out of line of flying sparks and escaped the blaze.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Senate Filibuster

how to handle the negro problem in the South. We don't make the negro feel he is the equal of the white man. When the negro gets into trouble is when he tries to rub elbows with the white man socially."

The Louisiana senator asserted there had been "tons and tons of propaganda" issued in favor of the anti-lynching bill.

"They label it an 'anti-lynching bill,'" he said, "but it is as far removed from anti-lynching as I am from the North Pole."

Ellender contended the bill "will not prevent lynchings—you will have more lynchings."

Saying the South is curtailing the number of lynchings, he asserted that demand for the bill came primarily from a "small group of negro politicians."

tending to kill Smith.

Three Lubbock youths, Archie Wagoner, 19, Osby James, 19, and Elmer Dean, 17, were made defendants in two indictments alleging burglary of residences of W. F. Merchant and S. C. Strawn. Bonds of $1,000 each in each case were set. The boys were arrested early this week.

Held In Car Theft

A negro charged as Ivory Cobb, was charged with theft of an automobile from T. G. Wallis. He is being held in lieu of $1,000 bond. Dick Miller, Dallas negro, also was indicted for theft of an automobile. The automobile allegedly was taken from M. L. Taylor. Similar bond was set for him.

John Vandever, about 50, of Alabama and Roy Rasberry were indicted on charges of forgery and passing. Vandever's bond was set at $1,000 and Rasberry's at $1,500. The indictment alleged Vandever forged and passed a $15 check on A. L. Manking. Rasberry was indicted in connection with forgery and passing of several drafts on the Thomas gin at Grassland.

If White Sox Want To Argue Over Salaries, They Must Pay Own Way To Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—Lou Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, hung the "No Chicago Excursions" sign out today.

Emphatically, the Sox magnate stated Catcher Luke Sewell and First Baseman Zeke Bonura, two of the club's more persistent salary-hagglers, have been informed the club will not pay their expenses here for a contract conference.

"If I started having players in for financial tete-a-tetes, every fellow on the club would stall around until they got a trip which would vary the monotony of winter."

Sewell, it is understood, wants about $15,000. Bonura has been offered an increase over his $12,000 but is insisting the increase isn't big enough.

Ratio Of Age To Youth Will Be Far Greater In 1980 Than At Present, Charts Point Out

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. (AP)—Employment and social security problems affecting national economy were linked today to the national Resources committee's attempt to forecast population changes over the next 40 years.

Population charts prepared for the committee indicated that by 1980 the ratio of age to youth will be far greater than at present, outstripping the comparative increase in the population as a whole.

On the basis of medium birthrate and medium mortality, the age groups from infancy to 25 years will decline in numerical strength while the age groups beyond 25 will gain.

A subcommittee on population problems, headed by Edwin B. Wilson of Harvard university, is studying the conclusions and recommendations for national planning to be based on the population charts.

Question On Graves

were precedents for Graves' appointment to the court to succeed the late Judge O. S. Lattimore.

The constitutional question was raised in motions for rehearing of two cases which had been affirmed by the court ince Grave became a member. One was that G. D. Snow, sentenced to two years for burglary, and the other of Nell Medlock, fined $150 for selling whiskey. Both originated in Ellis county.

The motions claimed the court which affirmed the case was not a constitutional one because it had only two members whereas it should have three.

Arguments on the motions for rehearing will be made February 16.

News Briefs . .

Dendelions, growing wild and in this season of the year, were discovered on the Texas Technological college campus Thursday. Just north of the administration building, in a clump of dry grass, Mrs. Edna Lyles, associate professor of clothing, found several wild dandelions waving in the breeze, which is something unusual for this time of year.

Funeral services are to be held today in Collinville, for Sam Gray, 70, a former Lubbock Cotton buyer, who died of a heart attack at Seagraves Wednesday. He had been living in Seagraves for about a year or more. Gray entered the cotton business in Fort Worth in 1910. He went to Claude in 1921 and came to Lubbock about seven or eight years ago. Three sisters, Mrs. W. L. Bruce, Collinville; Mrs. A. Lloyd, San Francisco and Mrs. A. T. Canfield, Kansas City, survive.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Thrash of Hotel Lubbock left Friday morning for Fort Worth after receiving notice of the death of Mrs. Thrash's father, Albert Goodman. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Arlington.

The mystery of the disappearance at Sweetwater Nov. 20, of Jess Pendergrass, 69, who was en route to Lubbock and Meadow from Nashville, Tenn., had not been solved Friday night. Abilene police informed Grady Harrist, Lubbock deputy sheriff, a man had been found dead at Hamlin who might have been Pendergrass, as he was believed to have suffered from amnesia after his arrival in Sweetwater. Pendergrass was 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighed 160 pounds. The man found dead at Hamlin was not so tall and weighed less, said estimates of an undertaker. Pendergrass left Nashville Nov. 17 to visit Meadow relatives, said Sheriff Tom Abel.

Jack Fowler, about 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Fowler of 2205 Fifth street, suffered a sprained right ankle when he fell at his home late Friday. He was given emergency treatment at West Texas hospital about 8:30 o'clock Friday night.

Joe Burch, 28, of Lusk, Wyo., late Friday was reported to be in serious condition as the result of a head injury suffered when struck by an automobile late Thursday afternoon in the 700 block Broadway, according to attaches of Lubbock Sanitarium.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prater of Hobbs, N. M., are parents of a daughter weighing 7 pounds 9 1-2 ounces born at 9:30 o'clock Friday night at Plains hospital. Prater is a druggist at Hobbs.

An eye of Billy Snodgrass, about 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Snodgrass of Odessa, was removed Friday at Plains hospital. The boy had been transferred here Tuesday night for observation. He suffered the eye injury last Saturday when he shot an airgun and the pelt rebounded and struck him in the eye.

Numerous Minor Charges Filed In Courts Here On Friday

Numerous minor charges, most of them in county court, were filed Friday as result of recent infractions.

Charles Cecil Richardson was charged with theft of a $40 suit of men's clothes and a $5 jacket from Harold C. Franklin. Sheriff Tom Abel said he would go to Abilene today to accept custody of the man. Richardson was arrested there Friday.

Bascom Allen, charged with violation of state liquor laws, was expected to post bond of $250 set by Judge J. J. Dillard upon the defendant's plea of not guilty.

Mrs. L. J. Cook of Slaton was named defendant in a charge of aggravated assault upon Mrs. V. P. Williams, also of Slaton. According to the charge, Mrs. Cook "inflicted serious bodily injury" upon Mrs. Williams by striking her with "her fists and with a large stone set in a ring on her finger." Ragan Reed, Slaton constable, swore to the complaint.

Two Tahoka young men were placed behind bars by police who had released one of them a brief time earlier after payment of a drunkenness fine.

One of them, 22, had in his possession $73.58 and a quantity of tools in his automobile, said police.

outstanding. He likened this to a 96-inch dog being wagged by a four-inch tail.

A reporter asked if he was leading up to elimination of all holding companies. He replied that he was.

"Does that mean those of the first degree?" he was asked. He replied with a question: Why have any at all?

Tech Cagers Win

duplicated it for the Loboes. Saenz got his first field goal, and the score was 12-11, Tech.

But Morris and Tarbox took care of that with a couple of nice field goals, and after Saenz repeated, and so did Morris. The Loboes crept up again, Lopez making two field goals and the score 22 to 21.

Then, in the fastest scoring flurry ever recorded at Tech, the Raiders shot, bang, bang, bang! and at the half, the score was 28 to 21.

Garrison Bags Two

The Raiders picked up in the second half just where they left off in the first. After Henderson's field goal, Morris sank three free shots in a row. Garrison added two fast field goals, Henderson plopped in one, and Garrison another, and the score was 41 to 21, the visitors having been held scoreless for the first five minutes while Tech made 13.

Huffman sent in five rookies then, and the Loboes scored nine points in a row while the Raiders looked on. The first stringers returned, and Morris and Henderson quickly added three points. Hannett and Burnett made four in a row for the Loboes before Henderson scored again, and for the rest of the game they swapped out, the Loboes scoring, then Tech scoring, until they finished on even numbers, 50 to 40.

Freshmen Beat Civies

The Tech Freshmen, cached by Broadway Browning, defeated the Littlefield CCC team, 48 to 27, in a preliminary game. The Frosh play Cooper High in the 7 o'clock opener tonight.

Between halves the crowd was entertained by Rufe Davis, the "Mountain Music" man of the movies who happens to be visiting in Lubbock.

Girls basketball teams of the women's physical education department played a ten minute period of basketball after the motorboat and airplane acts by Davis.

Three-Line Reference Is All That Germans See

BERLIN, Jan. 14. (AP)—A three-line reference to the protest of the German Ambassador Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff to Secretary of State Cordell Hull was all that was permitted to be printed here today concerning the anti-Hitler speech of William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany.

The item carried by the semi-official news agency, the Duetsches Nachrichtenburo, merely stated the German ambassador had protested against Dodd's "insulting references to Germany and their Fuehrer," in New York last night.

REA Session Is Held At Tech

How electricity will save time, labor and money for farmers was demonstrated and explained yesterday at the rural electrification conference at Texas Technological college by experts on the opening day's program.

Today farm women will learn how electricity will save many, many steps, do the work easier and better, not to mention at less cost, as women explain the details of household equipment. The morning session will be of particular interest to the women.

Program Well Attended

Yesterday's program were well attended. More than 80 had registered, not including students of Texas Technological college, where the meeting is being held.

A scheduled demonstration was not held yesterday, as part of the equipment failed to come in time, said H. P. Clay, agricultural engineer, who is handling details. A number of small pieces of farm equipment were demonstrated, however, in the lecture room.

Farmers carried away with them many booklets and pamphlets on labor saving machinery. Many types of equipment were shown in these papers.

Today's Program Full

Today's program includes a sound slide film for the opening number, talks by W. H. Crenshaw of Texas-New Mexico Utilities Co., Miss Clara Pratt, county home demonstration agent and Miss M. Howell, landscape architect, will preside this morning.

At noon a luncheon is to be given in the Hilton hotel with Dean A. H. Leidigh presiding. President Bradford Knapp will talk on "Sociological Aspect of Rural Electrification."

W. W. Yocum, genetics and fruit culture instructor, presides during the afternoon. A sound film will be shown. Talks will be by William Helwig, instructor in electrical engineering at the college; Ben Jenkins, local dairyman and P. T. Montfort.

Montfort talked twice yesterday afternoon. A talking movie was shown and talks were made by Frank White, electrical contractor and John Shewmake, Texas-New Mexico Utilities Co.

R. L. Burdette, vocational agriculture teacher in Lubbock High school gave a brief history of the local program in the county. Harry N. Roberts, engineer, outlined the organization and its responsibilities. Montfort gave a sound slide film on water on the farm and also talked on planning the most profitable use of electric service.

Prof. C. V. Bullen, of Texas Tech, spoke on "When Lightning Strikes," and Montfort talked on adequate farm wiring, just before noon recess. H. P. Clay, agricultural engineer, presided.
