Loraine Council Updates Maps

Extra sewer connections were discussed and approved when the Loraine City Council met Monday, March 1 for their regular monthly meeting.

The city sold Herschell Williams salvage equipment; a dump truck bed.

The Council held a long discussion of building permits for the city and decided to proceed with the old policy at the present time. They agreed to do some research for future reference, with the possibility of changing the policy at a later date.

They rearranged the old and new city ordinances by the year and discussed the possibility of deleting for the older ones.

An applicant for a new water superintendent was discussed as the applicant was unable to attend, but no decision was made on this matter. They also updated the city water maps, along with taking care of the regular business of approving the financial statement.

...And Justice For All! How true are the words? Personally, I really don't know.

I know that most of the news medias publicize "The not so fair cases," and they are some that I've based my opinion on.

I heard on a large news network, a while back, of a boy who confessed he killed his girlfriend and was feeling guilty. He went to the authorities and confessed his crime and told them where he had buried her in a wooded area. They searched but were unable to find anything. He went out with them and took them straight to the place he had buried the body. They found the dead girl in the exact place he told them.

To make a long story short, he was set "scott free" because he did not have a lawyer present.

Call me narrow minded or whatever, but it seems it should have been a cut and dried case. For him to confess and take them to the grave, and then be set free, how could that be justice?

In a case a little closer to home, as I am a mother, a man confessed he had beaten his infant to death, because "he lost his temper." He actually got off with a fine and a probated sentence.

But in yet another case, some old men in a retirement home were busted for playing poker with a great big pot of $24. They, on the other hand, were taken to jail for a time in jail, along with a $75 fine.

Some said he must have had a good lawyer, but is Justice only for the ones that can buy them the right to do whatever they want?

I thank God for the Judicial System with a conscience and morals, but unfortunately there are still those who help the degenerate to go "scott free" and give them the chance to commit still another crime.

Something else that really makes me boil, along with the unpunished murderers, are the "pushers." The ones getting our kids hooked on the stuff.

I feel as a parent, I can only do so much to teach my children what is good and bad, but there will be See COLUMN Page 3

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with rule 052.01.00.043(a) of the Public Utility Commission of Texas' Rules of Practice and Procedure, Continental Telephone Company of Texas announces it has petitioned the Commission for increased rates to offset costs associated with a change in accounting for inside station connection costs.

The increase is the result of an order by the Federal Communications Commission, directing telephone companies to expense certain station connection costs in their accounting procedures. The increase in rates to result from the accounting change will produce an increase of less than one half of one percent in gross intrastate revenues of the Company. The increase will not affect monthly recurring charges but will be reflected as an additional element to nonrecurring service connection charges when a premise visit is required.

In a separate action, Continental Telephone Company has petitioned the Public Utility Commission to amend its tariff by adding a $7.50 service charge for each check returned to the Company unpaid due to insufficient funds. The new service charge is intended to offset costs of administering unpaid checks and will affect gross revenues by approximately $35,000 annually.

The effective date of these rate changes will be based upon approval by the Public Utility Commission.

Letter To The Editor

This was provided to the Colorado City RECORD by a concerned parent of a Robert Lee School student:

Notice To Parents

The following information has been brought to our attention. We urge you to take notice. Your alertness and proper education of your children could keep them from serious damage or even death.

We have been informed that a form of tattoo transfer called "Blue Star" has become readily available in neighboring states and communities and may very well be here. This is a small sheet of white paper containing numerous blue stars the size of a pencil eraser. Each star is impregnated with L.S.D. and can be removed from the paper and be placed in the mouth. Absorption can also occur through the skin by simply handling the paper or tattoo.

There are also brightly colored paper tabs resembling postage stamps in size, which have pictures of Superman, Mickey Mouse (dressed as a sorcerer's apprentice), Dopey and possibly other Disney characters.

The stamps are packed in a red cardboard box with a picture of Mickey Mouse wrapped in foil in a clear zip-lock type bag. They come in five inch square sheets with one hundred perforated 1/2 inch square stamps.

This is a new way of selling ACID. A young child could happen upon these and have a fatal trip. It is also feared that little children could be given a free "tattoo" by older children who want to have some fun at someone else's expense. It is important that all parents and students be alerted in case their children or brothers and sisters become involved in such a scheme, even in an innocent way.

Parents, this is particularly for your information. Please be on the alert. This message is not intended to alarm anyone, simply to ALERT and INFORM. Our children are our most precious possessions.

a time when they will be very vulnerable and these "pushers" may have the opportunity to push their money making dope on them.

Recently I read an article that was being widely publicized in the news medias and schools warning parents and children to be on the look-out for tattoo transfers that were laced with LSD (acid).

It stated that the transfers which were blue stars, Mickey Mouse, Dopey and Superman, as well as many other Disney characters, for the kids, were becoming readily available in neighboring states and communities.

The LSD could be removed by licking and could also be absorbed through the skin by simply handling the paper or tattoo.

This was said to be a new way of selling Acid, of course there is the possibility of an older child giving it to a younger one and the results could be fatal.

Who do we, they or anyone else punish? the kids or only puppets of the "pusher" and a sad thing is, they probably have children of their own.

How could anyone look at themselves in the mirror, knowing they are cheating so many children, soon to be adults, out of any kind of real life?

THE NEW TAX-DEFERRED INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS-IRAs.

You'll be putting in years of hard work between now and retirement. And when you finally retire, you shouldn't have to struggle just to make ends meet.

Social Security can help. So can a company pension. But an insured Individual Retirement Account—or IRA—managed by the professionals at our FULL SERVICE BANK® could help provide the financial security that can make you truly independent.

For the first time, new government regulations allow our FULL SERVICE BANK to offer IRAs to almost everyone. Including individuals already covered by a company pension or profit-sharing plan.

And because our FULL SERVICE BANK'S IRAs are tax deferred, you deduct your IRA investment from your taxable income every year. So you'll pay no federal taxes on your IRA until you start withdrawing funds (minimum age 59½).

Then, when you retire, you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket, paying lower taxes.

But more importantly, your total deposits at our FULL SERVICE BANK are insured by the FDIC up to $100,000. While many other places promoting IRAs can't offer you this kind of insurance.

So, with an insured IRA at our FULL SERVICE BANK, you'll have fewer taxes to pay today. And less to worry about tomorrow. Plus, you'll be able to keep that gold watch.

Every Michelin 'X' tire is backed by a 40,000-mile warranty for tread wear on domestic cars. That's just about twice the mileage you'd expect from a conventional tire under the same driving conditions. Also, because of its radial design the Michelin 'X' rolls with less road resistance than conventional tires, and that means you can save up to 10% on your present gas consumption (pretty good considering today's fuel crisis). Plus, every Michelin 'X' tire gives you all the distinctive radial tire advantages over conventional bias-ply tires: smoother ride, easier handling, better traction and firmer road holding. And, they add up to a lot of comfort and safety. Invest in better driving. Stop in and have a set of Michelin 'X' radials installed today.

A New Lent

Rev. Ronald Hamby
Pastor
First United Methodist Church
Colorado City

The Christian season of Lent calls us to pause and consider our own lives in the light of God's love in Christ. It calls us to take time to count the cost of discipleship, to see if we are really serious about living a Christ-like life or if we simply want to use the name Christian. We are reminded that essentially the Christian Faith and life is one not of glory, but of a cross. We are called to prepare for Easter by participating in Lent!

The closing prayer was given by Marie Helm. Attending the covered dish luncheon and meeting were Mrs. E. H. Winn, Myrtle Womack, Mrs. L. A. Strain, Marie Helm, Phyllis Glover, Elizabeth Elliott, Ora Fisher, Della Fox, Betsy Davis, Mrs. H. L. Jamison, Wilma Reynolds and the hostesses, Mrs. L. A. Keith, Mildred Morgan and Lil Brown.

Water Task Force Seeks Public Opinion

The Governor's Water Task Force and the Texas Department of Water Resources have scheduled 13 statewide public forums to obtain citizen input for amending the State's comprehensive planning document, the Texas Water Plan. Upon completion, the amended Plan plus recommendations relating to long-range solutions and financing Texas' water needs will be forwarded to the Governor and members of the 68th Legislature.

Upon request, An Overview of Texas Water Resource Problems and Water Resources Issues relating to securing public input for amending the Plan is available for study and comment. Each of the 11 issues identified in this document is written with an introductory paragraph providing background for each issue. The issue is stated and described, and important questions relating to each issue are asked. Public officials need citizens, community leaders, and business leaders to present their views about the choices and priorities they feel are best for the citizens of our State.

Forum dates and locations in the surrounding areas is March 18, Thursday, in Midland, Region 18, Education Service Center, Conference Room Laforce Blvd and Midland Regional Air Terminal.

March 23, Tuesday, in Abilene, Hardin-Simmons University, Moody Student Center, Room 208, 2200 Hickory.

April 1, Thursday, in Lubbock, Texas Tech University, Home Economics Auditorium West Broadway.

All forums will convene at 7 p.m.

The Texas Water Plan and supporting documents have been placed on reserve for public review in 50 libraries. Copies are also available for inspection in each of the 14 Texas Department of Water Resources District Offices. A list of these depositories is enclosed.

The Governor's Water

Task Force and the Department welcome you to make a statement at one of the 13 public forums. As an alternative, we invite you to submit statements by mail. You may also telephone the Department between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, by phoning

(512) 475-0223. With your permission, telephone statements will be recorded and transcribed so they can be reviewed and considered. Please direct your comments to the Texas Department of Water Resources, Attn: Bobby Whitefield, P.O. box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas, 78711. We would appreciate having your comments by April 1.

The Colorado City RECORD has a copy of "An Overview Of Texas Water Resource. Problems and Water Resources Issues" for anyone who would like to come in to our office and examine.

Texans Still Have Independent Spirit

By JIM COLLINS

"The independent spirit Texans developed during our years as a Republic lives on today," Congressman Jim Collins, candidate for the U.S. Senate, said from Washington in observance of Texas Independence Day.

Texas is the only state in the union that was once its own nation. For nine years, from 1836 to 1845, Texas existed as a Republic. On March 2, 1836, Texas declared its independence from Mexico.

Then, four days later, 187 brave Texans died at the Battle of the Alamo, but they bought enough time for the army of the Republic of Texas to regroup. A month and a half later, Sam Houston led the Texas army to victory at San Jacinto.

"Two of the heroes of the Texas Revolution—Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin are now honored by statues here in the United States Capitol," Collins said.

Collins said that Texans are "still industrious people and we have one of the lowest unemployment rates in the country."

"Today, America needs the type of leadership provided by the early Texans in the days when Texas was founded. Lloyd Bentsen has not provided the type of conservative leadership Texas deserves."

"Lloyd Bentsen voted to give away our Panama Canal, voted to give aid to the Marxist government in Nicaragua, he voted 'no' only twice out of 145 spending bills and he voted to end the filibuster against the Windfall Profits Tax which assured the passage of the tax."

"Lloyd has proven that he is a liberal. Texas needs another conservative Senator who will work to put this country back on a strong fiscal foundation and who will work to restore our national defense second to none," Collins said.

Chaney Dies Wednesday

Jake D. Chaney, Sr., 85, a retired farmer, died at 5:20 p.m., Wednesday at Root Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services were held Friday at 2 p.m., at Kiker-Seale Funeral Home with Roy Horn of Phoenix, Arizona, officiating, assisted by Elmo Edwards of Plainview.

Burial took place at the Colorado City Cemetery.

Born January 23, 1897, in Italy, he married Mary Jane Horn, August 16, 1923 in Bloomington. She died June 10, 1976. He had lived in Colorado City since 1969 and was a member of Nathaniel Primitive Baptist Church.

A son, James E., died June 23, 1944 in World War II.

Survivors include three daughters, Mae Montague of El Cajon, California, Evelyn Trant of Houston and Margaret Welch of Andrews; three sons, Gilbert and Jake D., Jr., of Colorado City and Floyd of Odessa; three brothers, Wes of Athens, Charley of Stamford and John of Dallas; 14 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

His grandsons were the pallbearers.

By Aaron Carpenter

Q. I've been experiencing some really odd noises from my car's rear end. What should I look for first?
A. Since you didn't describe the noises, here are some common sounds and causes. A clunking sound may indicate a U-joint problem. Get the car up on a lift, grab the drive shaft near the U-joint and try to move it back and forth. If there is any play in the joint, replace it immediately. A groaning or humming may be caused by a differential which needs greasing. The differential should be checked every time you service the car. Good multi-purpose synthetic grease is proving very serviceable in differentials. A broken pinion gear in the differential will sound like steel teeth gnashing very loudly. Also, check the tension bars located above the spare tire in your trunk. They're there to keep the trunk lid functioning correctly, and they commonly get jarred or moved, causing a very irritating thumping.

Senior Citizens Beware Of Fraudulent Deals

By MARK WHITE
Attorney General
Older citizens, many of whom are on fixed incomes, often face special consumer problems. It is critically important that every dollar spent by this group is protected.

Retired persons have a right to get full value for their money and fair treatment in the marketplace.

But retired persons can find themselves in a double bind. Their income may not be enough to maintain the same standard of living which they enjoyed while working full time, yet it may be enough to tempt unscrupulous persons into using various means to obtain what they can from that income.

Although mail order purchases are a great convenience for older persons, some mail order offers are fraudulent or deceptive. Persons who want to purchase through the mails should deal with a reputable, established mail order house that provides written guarantees on items. Claims for health cures or medical devices should be checked with a doctor before purchase. An investment offer that looks attractive should be checked with a banker, attorney, broker or other knowledgeable person. Land purchases or retirement homes should be seen in person before money is invested, and the purchaser should have an attorney handle the details of the sales transaction.

Any extra income plans offered through the mails should be examined carefully. Never send money before receiving detailed information about such a plan. Beware of an offer which requires a sizeable investment of cash before you will be sent materials or instructions and which offers no assurance that the investment will make a profit.

Home improvement is another area in which older citizens can be misled. Be sure to ask for a description in writing of the work to be performed, and do not pay money in advance for such work. Again, deal only with established firms or businesses with a good local reputation, not with itinerant home improvement salesmen.

Older persons with these or other consumer problems should contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division or your local Better Business Bureau.

1982 PETROLEUM REVIEW

A Salute To The People Who Are Involved In The Growing Oil Field Business

The RECORD Salutes You

By LULU TURNER
"Oilfield Trash" may have once been a phrase used when referring to people working in the oilfields, but today the oilfield or persons working in oil related industry, have taken on a new place in our society. This is not surprising since they play such a vital role in our economy.

Thanks to these people in the oil industry, Mitchell County's economy is holding its own. With the prices of cotton being so low in 1981 and following a drought in 1980, the oil industry has played an even bigger role in our economy.

The nation may be facing a high unemployment rate, but the oilfield is the place that anyone can make a living and a good one at that. That is of course, if they are willing to put a little sweat and muscle in to it.

"Oilfield Trash" may have been given to them because of the dirt and maybe they were assumed to be uneducated, but I have found the oilfield business is a unique and hard job, that takes a special kind of person with exceptional persavrance to withstand the pressures and backbreaking duties, they must face every day. Also, the industry is not as simple as it might seem. There is a lot of hard work involved. There is lots of work to find the oil, get it to the producing stage, upkeep of the site and transporting it, this is even before it gets to the point it is refined for our use.

Hard work, will power and determination are three musts for the oilfield worker and anyone with these qualities deserve some recognition and hopefully this Petroleum edition of the Colorado City RECORD will bring them that long awaited recognition they deserve.

A special thanks to so many for taking me to oilfield locations for pictures and sitting down and explaining the basic procedures of what it takes to get gas to the gas tank.

Proclamation

WHEREAS: Oil is the Nation's leading source of energy, and WHEREAS: Mitchell County produced over 17,000 barrels of oil a day in 1980, and
WHEREAS: The Oil Industry supplements the majority of family income in Mitchell County,
THEREFORE: I, Elmer Martin, Mayor of the City of Colorado City, do hereby proclaim the week of February 21 through 27, 1982, as "Oil Week" and urge the citizens of this community to recognize the tremendous contribution to the Nation's energy source made available by the Producers, Royalty Owners, and Oil Field Workers of Mitchell County.
Mayor Elmer Martin

Stenholm Sends His Regards

I appreciate this opportunity to offer my congratulations to the entire oil and gas industry of Texas and, particularly those portions of the industry that serve Mitchell County.

There are approximately 700,000 royalty owners in the State of Texas and, along with the thousands of workers employed by the industry throughout the state, they each look carefully to Washington and monitor activities of Congress that will directly affect their lives and livelihood.

I would encourage a continuation of this active interest, particularly with plans for the deregulation of natural gas now in the discussion stages.

It is my belief that a gradual decontrol of natural gas is in the best long-term interest of the U.S. and that government should let the market allocate gas supplies as it now lets the market allocate oil supplies.

However, I would certainly caution any swift action on the part of natural gas producers as they might find themselves in the same predicament as did the oil

Servicing Plays Major Role

Acidizing

Acidizing and surfactant treatment comprise a major portion of chemical treating solution used in service industry presently. In most instances they are used simultaneously.

Successful acidizing in limestone and dolomite formations depends on a productive drainage pattern formed by the action of the acid. This may be accomplished by one, or a combination of the following methods by which acid invades a formation: entering natural existing crevices, entering crevices caused by hydraulic fracturing and entering the interstitial permeability of the formation.

The extension of an effective drainage pattern into a productive zone will require deeper penetration with some formations regardless of whether the crevices are naturally existing or artificially made. Penetration is dependent upon the permeability porosity, oil saturation, amount of productive interval, formation pressure and depth of zone.

Surfactants, even in very dilute concentrations in the solution, change the surface properties of the liquid, surface tension and interfacial tension values are latered measurably by these agents because they concentrate at surfaces and interfaces.

Well problems in which water blocks, oil water emulsions, or water sensitive clays are restricting production are the best examples where the application of surface chemistry enters into the design of a treating solution.

Cementing

Virtually any well, whether it be oil, gas, water, geothermal, disposal, injection, or storage needs to be cemented. Cementing is the common term for the process of placing a slurry, usually formed by combining a cementitious material with a liquid, into the annulus between the outside of the casing in the hole and the wall of the hole. Placement is usually done by pumping.

Cementing a well accomplishes several things: bonds and supports the casing, restricts fluid movement between formations thereby helping to prevent, for example, contamination of fresh water zones by hydrocarbons or saltwater, protects the casing from corrosion due to subsurface mineral waters and electrolysis from the outside, protects the casing from shock loads when drilling deeper and seals lost-circulation of their zones.

Cementing to accomplish the above objects is known as primarily cementing. Another type of cementing operation is usually remedial and is known as secondary cementing. It involves operations performed after the producing zone has been reached.

The most common remedial operation is known as squeeze cementing. This is the process of applying hydraulic pressure to force or squeeze cement slurry into a formation void or against a porous zone.

Squeeze cementing is commonly used to help accomplish segregate a hydrocarbon producing zone from those producing other fluids, control gas and oil ratios, control excessive water and repair casing leaks, to name a few.

Fracturing

Hydraulic fracturing is the parting of a desired section of formation by the application of hydraulic pressure. The fracture made in this manner may be extended from the wellbore by continued pumping. Extended distance will depend on several factors such as injection rates, formation characteristics, fracturing fluid properties and injected volume of fluid.

Selected particles, added to the fracturing fluid, are transported into the fracture. These act as propping agents to hold the fracture open when the applied pressure is dissipated, thus leaving a channel of high flow capacity connected to the wellbore.

Initially, fracturing was applied primarily to old wells but now a majority of the treatments performed are on new ones. Many new fields and field extensions have resulted from the application of this production stimulation technique.

Research dealing with theory, methods and materials has resulted in a wide selection of fracturing fluids, additives and equipment to satisfy the many well conditions encountered.

Crude Oil Prices Reach 2 1/2 Year Low

Domestic crude oil prices, reflecting a weakened worldwide market, have tumbled to their lowest level in two and a half years with no end to the trend in sight, a petroleum industry trade publication reported recently.

The Oil Daily said the latest round of price cuts—the second within four days for some producers—knocked prices of sweet, or low-sulfur, domestic crudes down to the $34 per barrel range.

These sweet crudes have not been available as cheaply since October 1979, it said.

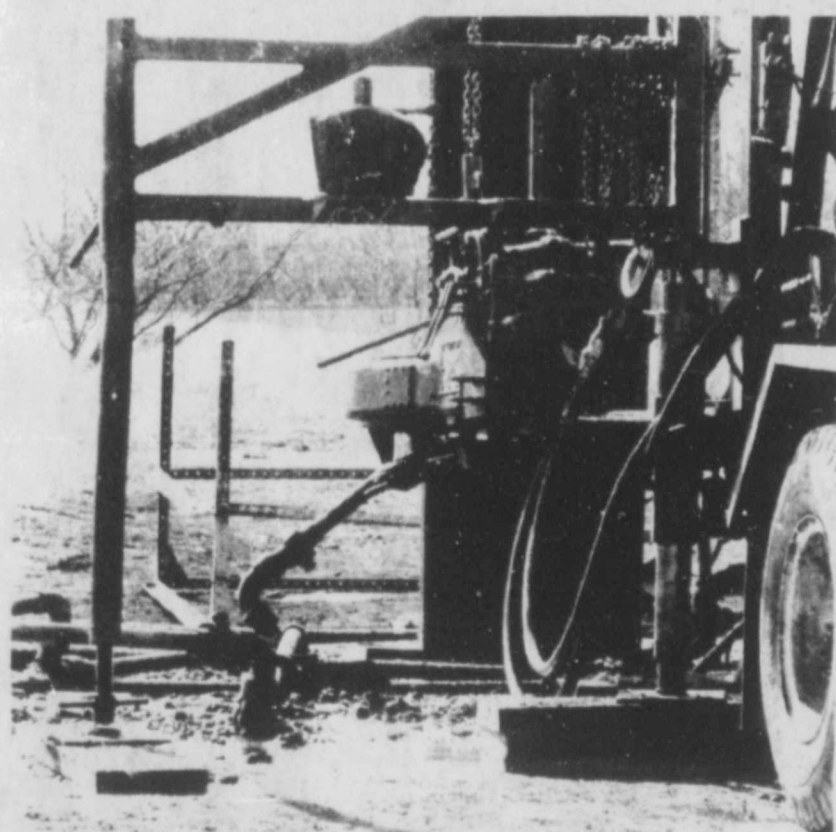

One trader told the Oil Daily that the worldwide decline in prices was likely to boost U.S. oil imports because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "will be in total disarray by April or May and will have to lower its prices."

U.S. independents that made their second price cut in four days were Marathon, Tosco and Koch. Joining the movement to lower prices were Conoco, Cities Service, Chevron, Exxon, Mobil, Shell and Texaco.

The president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries urged the 13 nation cartel to hold an urgent consultative meeting to agree on a reduction of production levels.

Mana Said al Otaiba ruled out a reduction in OPEC's benchmark price of $34 for a barrel of Saudi Arabian light.

Basic Formation Testing

The basic formation testing procedure was first introduced to the industry by Heilburton over one half of the century ago. Constant improvement of formation testing equipment and techniques, as well as new developments, have kept pace with advances in the drilling industry to provide economical and practical testing operations at the greatest well depths, leaving the wellbore and drilling fluid in good condition.

Because of the value of the results obtained, formation testing in both open hole and casing has become one of the more useful services available to the oil industry.

Formation testing procedure is a method to help determine the potential productivity of a subsurface formation in either an open or a cased hole. The testing procedure requires the opening of a section of the wellbore to atmospheric or reduced pressure.

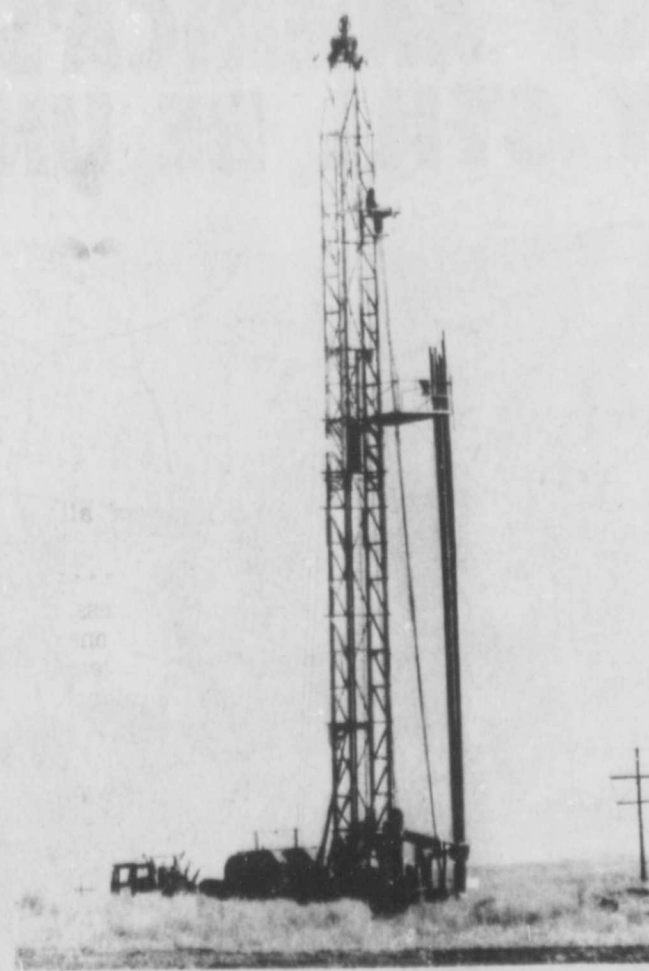

The testing string is lowered into the hole on drill pipe with the tester valve closed to prevent entry of well fluid into the drill pipe. With the packer expanded to provide a seal above the zone to be tested, the tester valve is opened. The packer then supports the hydrostatic pressure load of the well fluid. The formation below the packer is relieved of this pressure and is exposed through the open tester valve to the atmospheric pressure in the empty drill pipe so that its ability to produce fluid can be determined.

Formation fluid recovered during the test can be removed from the drill pipe by reverse circulation before the pipe is removed from the hole. Formation pressures are recorded throughout the test by a subsurface pressure recording device included in the testing string.

The formation testing procedure helps provide a more accurate evaluation of a formation than any other known method except the actual production of a completed well.

Russians Will Run Long Pipeline Soon

The Russians will be getting their pipe for the Siberia to Western Europe Gas Pipeline from two German companies. They'll deliver 1.2 million metric tons over the next two years. And, Mexico, apparently, is ending a six-month hiatus from buying oil field supplies from American import permits for deliveries to Pemex. That's good news for the American suppliers since the U.S. boom is cooling off somewhat.

Profits by major oil companies in 1981 compared to 1980 were generally down. Exxon was down 1.5 percent, Mobil off 13 percent, Standard of California down one percent, Gulf down 12 percent, Getty off 1.7 percent and Marathon down 9.5 percent. Those with increases include Standard of Indiana up one percent, ARCO up less than one percent, Shell up 10 percent and Union up 22 percent.

And, a decision is expected in June on the lawsuit against the so-called Windfall Profits Tax on oil. The U.S. District Judge is expected to rule on a motion for summary judgment at that time.

In the Permian Basin our rig count is 483 and one year ago it was 377.

What It Takes To Hit 'Pay Dirt'

By MARK HOLLOWAY
& LULU TURNER

All of the land at one time has been seismographed, to determine some of the more favorable drilling locations. After a well is drilled and is a producing well, then they can usually determine the flow of the well and are able to find more producing locations.

First, there must be a lot of paper work completed and filed with the Texas Railroad Commission in Austin before the actual drilling operations begin.

Next, the operator has to decide on the company he wants to drill and also, at this time, the location and access to it must be completed by dirt contractors. It is not uncommon for some sites to run in the neighborhood of $50,000, depending on the roadway and location.

Once the operator decides on the drilling company, (usually, they will use the same one they have always used), they set the casing. This is a requirement of the state to protect the freshwater table.

Sometimes this rule is waived in shallow wells, but if completion is attempted, some kind of casing will be required. If the hole is dry, then it must be cemented in or plugged.

When the actual drilling begins, several tests are run to help the operator determine whether a completion attempt is needed or not.

Core analysis, DST's (drill stem tests), SDWL cores (sidewall cores), and electric logs are a few of the methods open to the operator.

After the drilling is completed, the operator must decide whether a completion attempt is needed or if the well should be plugged. If the operator decides to plug the well, a representative of the Railroad Commission must be on hand to be sure it is done properly to protect the land.

If the well is determined to be "good," then casing is run. The completion attempt may be "open hole" (a space left between the bottom of the casing and the bottom of the hole) or through perforations (holes shot in the casing).

Stimulations such as acidizing or fracturing may or may not be required. Every well is different, so engineering may play a major roll here.

Even after all of these procedures have taken place, the well may or may not produce.

If it is economically unfeasible to produce the well, it is then plugged. If the well appears to be a producer, various tests are used to determine exactly how good it is. The tests are different, depending on whether the well is oil or gas.

After all of the tests are run, the results must then be filed with the Railroad Commission. Only then can the oil or gas be sold legally.

Governor Clements Pays Recognition To Oil Industry

We Texans live in a petroculture. Our petroleum industry employs over 130,000 Texans, pays wages annually of some $7 billion, and pays 20 percent of all state taxes.

this Session of Congress. The oil industry is one of the state's largest economic bases and perhaps as no other industry, contributes to our relatively secure economy in Texas.

For this contribution, the industry has my heartiest congratulations for past successes and best wishes for the coming year.

Sincerely yours,
Charles W. Stenholm
Member of Congress

Oil and gas taxes provide nearly 30 percent of all state funds spent for public education. Since 1928, Texas has been the leading oil producing state, producing over a third of all the nation's oil.

But, we are also the number one energy consuming state with concerns about the price and availability of energy.

In 1979, I joined other Texas elected officials and energy experts to formulate a Texas Position of Energy. It calls for a national policy of immediate and maximum production of oil and gas.

The effort should be stimulated by accelerated ing decontrol and requiring that resulting above-normal revenue be plowed back into all forms of domestic energy production.

We called for maximum use of coal through conversion of facilities using oil and use in new plants; for establishment of reassuring safety standards for construction of nuclear plants and to ensure safe disposal of radioactive wastes.

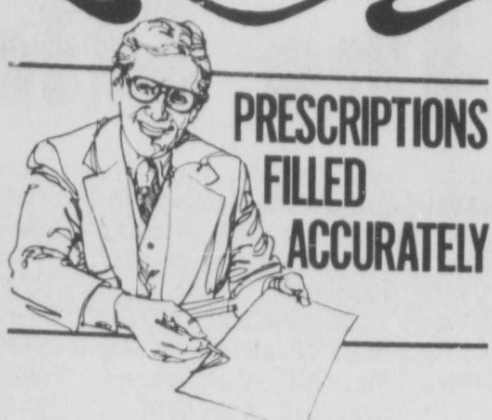

We urged review and necessary revision of federal environmental and land use rules and more research and development of alternative energy sources.

We stated a need for developing precise goals for domestic energy production as the main effort to cut oil imports and called for continued development of strong federal-state conservation policies, emphasizing conservation through market forces.

More than thirty of the nation's fifty Governors have put their stamp of approval on it. I fully believe that you can't accomplish this if we have regulated prices and windfall profits taxes.

Texas must support the energy industry. Through a new spirit of cooperation between the energy producing states

County's First Well Drilled In 1907

By Lulu Turner

The first oil producing well in the Permian Basin was the Abrams No. one, drilled in 1920 two miles north of Westbrook. The first actual well drilled in the Basin, was drilled in 1867.

The Brahmans No. one had a potential of producing 129 barrels a day and even now, the well, now owned by American Petrofina, is the site of a polymeraugmented waterflood. Polymer is a synthetic that is added to water and forced into the formation which pushed the oil out of it.

Steven Owen, a wildcatter or oil prospector in Sec. 33, Block 28 T & P Survey, drilled the well and was owned by Standard Oil Co. The well was 2,978 foot from strike depth of 442.

From this well H. L. Lockhart, in 1922, constructed the first pipeline in the Permian Basin, which is the richest petroleum area in the world covering 18,160 square miles.

Now the well is expected to increase the production by 1.7 billion barrels.

In 1923, Col-Tex Refining Company, a California syndicate, bought the rights to the potential oil lands. Additional discoveries led to the drilling in Colorado City of the Basin's first refinery.

Evidence of oil deposits in the county were noticed as early as 1907 when a syndicate was formed in which they leased a large part of the land west of the Colorado River.

First using water well equipment for drilling purposes, they began drilling in Iatan but the endeavor failed when the wooden derrick was completely destroyed by a fire.

The W. L. Foster Well No. One was drilled in 1916 and plugged in 1923. The well was drilled by the percussion method by operators using second hand cable tools and propulsion machine consisting of a small, single cylinder, horizontal steam engine with steam supplied by a boiler, fired by coal. This well was located and the place now referred to as

"Rattlesnake Gap."

This Foster No. one well was the first paying producer of oil completed in the Permian Basin, but the discovery of the Abram No. one well in Westbrook first proved the presence of commercial oil in the region.

Pump Jacks Are Scattered Across The Country Side

Petroleum Is Highest Taxpayer

The Texas petroleum industry was the largest single taxpayer to the state governments in 1981. Payments in oil and gas production (severance) taxes amounted to $2.2 billion, approximately 28.3 percent of total state tax collections.

The petroleum industry was the largest single taxpayer at the local level as well.

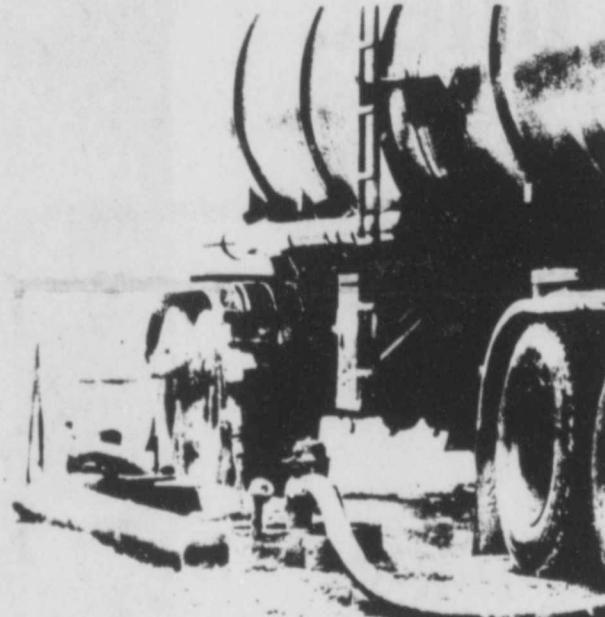

In 1980, the last year for which data is available, the Texas petroleum industry paid approximately $938.6 million in ad valorem (property) taxes to all local jurisdictions, counties, school districts and citizens; accounting for slightly more than 22 percent of that year's total collections throughout the state.

In 1981, the Texas petroleum industry paid $11.7 million in a well servicing tax and an additional $2.3 million in an oil and gas regulatory tax.

These state and local tax payments have provided the foundation for governments in Texas to meet their social and educational commitments. Moreover, the availability of ample energy resources has allowed Texas to experience its greatest period of economic growth and development. Due in large measure to direct tax payments by the petroleum industry, which last year totalled more than $3.2 billion. Texans enjoyed no personal income tax, no cooperative income tax, one of the lowest per capita tax burdens in the country and the best business climate in this nation.

Making A Connection

Sun's Texas Fields Producing The Most

Eighty years after Spindletop, Texas fields still account for more than half of Sun Gas's drilling activity.

In 1981, Sun Exploration and Production Company's Gas Division drilled 44 development wells in Texas—52 percent of Sun Gas's nationwide total. This represents a greater concentration of activity in the Lone Star State than the industry average of 32 percent reported by Hughes Tool Company.

Oklahoma ranked second in Sun's drilling activity, with 19 wells—22 percent of the 85-well total. Nine wells were drilled in Louisiana and 13 wells were divided among five other states: Colorado, Kansas, Mississippi, New Mexico and Ohio.

One of the nation's leading suppliers of natural gas and natural gas liquids, Sun Gas is a division of Sun Exploration and Production Company.

Wells Must Be Serviced

Bentson's Comment

To The Citizens of Mitchell County:

I want to join you in congratulating the Colorado City RECORD on publication of its First Petroleum Edition.

The oil and gas industry of Mitchell County is impressive, producing over 17,000 barrels every day in 1980. The county's total production of much more than 115,000,000 barrels to date has gone a long way towards making our state what it is today: the most prestigious producer of energy in the nation. The $156 million value of Mitchell County's reserves is testament to the county's, and to Texas's, continued energy leadership.

It is important that officials in Washington know that the people of Mitchell County, indeed the people of Texas, will go out and produce the energy that our nation so desperately needs, when given the proper incentives. Each of you can rest assured that I will continue to fight for those incentives—for producers, royalty owners and all involved in the energy business—at every opportunity.

Congratulations again to the RECORD on publication of this First Petroleum Edition. This is certainly a noteworthy milestone. Sincerely, Lloyd Bentson

Petroleum Industry Under Attack By Government

By ARDEN GROVER, PBPA President

There are at least 15 different proposals to fix the petroleum industry, ranging from eliminating all the tax incentives in 1981 Tax Act to putting price controls back on crude oil, domestically produced of course.

Bills already in the hopper range from the Clean Air Act changes to market Divorce; from the Powerplant and Industrial Fuel Use Act to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and from the Superfund to Emergency Preparedness. The Second Concurrent Budget Resolution will be picking up everything from Eagleton's (D-MO), amendment to throw out all the incentives to Hollings' (D-SC) support for eliminating the Royalty Owners $2,500 exemption.

From both sides of the aisle the domestic petroleum industry is under continuing attack. There is loose talk about further reducing percentage depletion and a change in the handling of intangible drilling costs.

Additionally, some state offices are calling for increased severance taxes on oil and gas, with provisions by the Federal Government that they cannot be passed on to the customer.

Further, federal agencies will be holding hearings on Cleanair improvement needs; National drinking water improvement; Oil theft and Royalty Management Elimination on cutbacks in the Department of Energy, (the one bright spot); the Natural Gas Policy Act and about a dozen others.

Texans Getting Short End Of The Stick

A day of reckoning has come for Texas. We saw it in the recent cold wave that hit most of Texas, causing curtailments of natural gas service throughout the state.

And yet we have heard much recently about all the activity in the oil patch. The good news of this increased activity makes the irony of curtailments all the more cruel.

There were more rigs running in Texas, in December of 1981, than at any time in history. Oil and gas well completions in 1981 were running ahead of 1979-80 levels. Oil well completions were 27 percent ahead of 1980 and an incredible 84 percent ahead of 1979. Gas well completions are up slightly over 1979-80 levels.

When final figures are in, 1981 will almost certainly prove to be the year when more footage was drilled in Texas than in any previous year.

The happy end of this feverish activity appears to be some leveling of our state's oil and gas production trends—a far cry from the steeply reduced production trends of the mid to late '70's.

The leveling of production for both oil and gas stems from two federal actions: the removal of federal controls on crude oil and a relaxation of some controls on natural gas.

However, these favorable developments are overshadowed by some serious problems caused by other federal policies, mainly the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 (NGPA).

The January cold wave was the real-world test of what I have been saying for some time, namely, that federal laws have delivered Texas natural gas surpluses into the hands of buyers in the Midwest and Northeast.

Curtailments caused school closings from Hunt County in East Texas to San Angelo, including the Dallas Independent School District, the state's second largest.

Based on all the information we can obtain, we believe that Texas was harder hit than the rest of the nation, in spite of much more severe and prolonged weather conditions throughout the Northeast and Midwest.

We have witnessed the specter of Texans living in the midst of rich gas fields and unable to get adequate supplies while factories in the North, operating with Texas natural gas, run without restraint.

This is just the leading edge of what I believe will be an increasingly severe problem in the years ahead. It will be a problem not only of adequate supply but of fair price as well.

Price controls placed on "old" Texas gas sold to the out-of-state market will make that gas cheaper than the old Texas gas purchased by Texans.

The Department of Energy estimates that the average cost of old gas sold out-of-state will be $1.01 in 1985. The same gas sold in Texas will cost $3.27. (These figures are both in 1979 dollars).

This price advantage provided under federal law, will allow the customers in the Northeast to purchase their gas at a cheaper average price than that paid by Texans. They will then be able to outbid the Texas purchasers for new gas supplies while still keeping their cost low.

The result of this subsidy is that Texas consumers will pay more for the gas produced in Texas and end up getting less of it in the process.

The Department of Energy believes this will happen. A recent D.O.E. study estimates that half a trillion cubic feet of gas will be transferred from the intra-to the interstate markets in 1985 under the current NGPA scheme.

This situation must seriously offend fair minded people.

There is another factor which compounds the problem.

Not only will interstate customers have privileged prices, but they will continue to have privileged access to new supplies as well.

With few exceptions, once gas is placed in the interstate market, it is forever committed to that market.

Further, federal rules effectively stop Texas in-state pipelines from buying gas produced from the Outer Continental Shelf, and in recent years large quantities of OCS gas have been discovered.

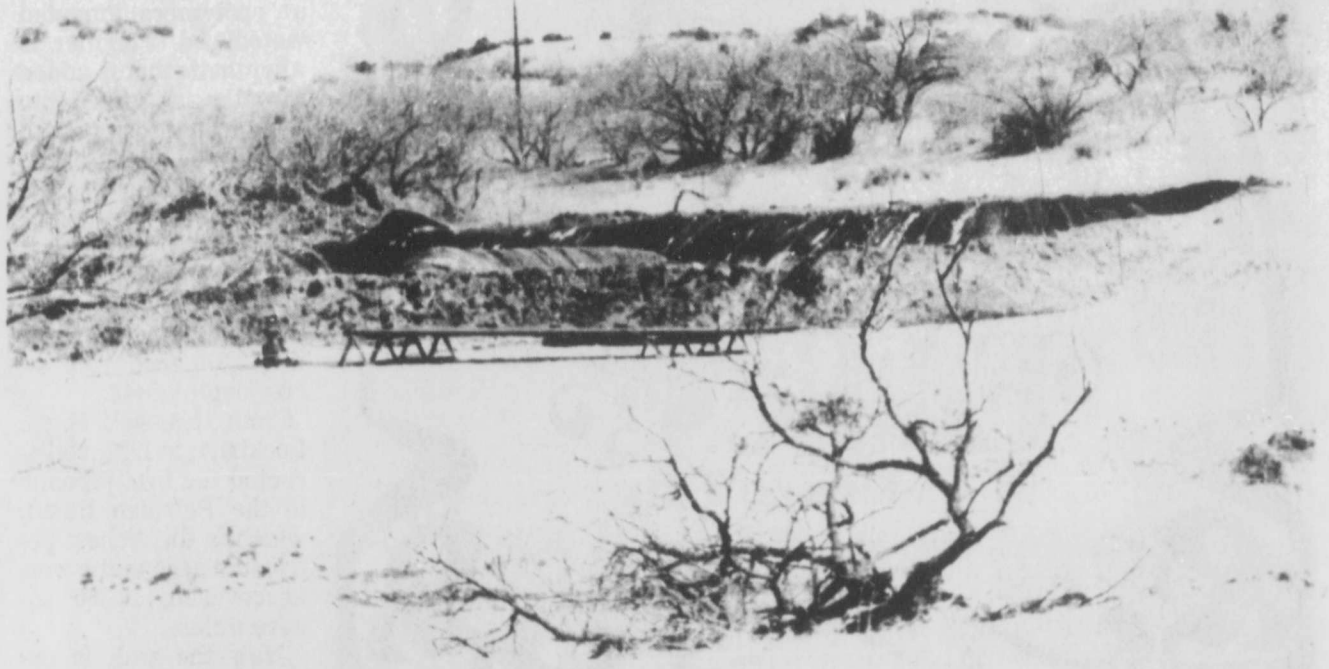

We are seeing the first consequences of these biased federal policies

now. In 1985, when the full effects of these policies are felt, Texans may suffer even greater hardships.

The federal NGPA must be altered to see that all customers—in Texas or out-of-state—are placed on fair and equal footing in the competition for gas supplies.

Texas energy users and producers must prepare now if we are to meet this challenge.

You may be sure that we at the Railroad Commission of Texas will continue to do our part. James E. Nugent, Chairman, Railroad Commission of Texas
