Q—How many people attended the Community Prayer Breakfast on July 4?

A—According to committee members, there were 377 breakfasts served. A number of other people attended but did not eat breakfast.

In Brief

More protests

NEW YORK (AP) — Protests and sporadic violence — including the shooting of a police officer — erupted overnight in part of northern Manhattan filled with unrest since the fatal shooting of a resident by police.

By late Tuesday, much of the heavily Dominican neighborhood of Washington Heights seemed to be heeding the mayor's call for peace. But early today, a police officer was shot in the leg outside a restaurant in the Inwood section just north of Washington Heights, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

The wounded officer, William Feliciano, 31, was hospitalized in stable condition. Three men, including the restaurant owner, were arrested, Burns said.

Tucker ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge has ruled that a jury could have reasonably sentenced condemned pickax killer Karla Faye Tucker to death even if an ex-convict lied about whether he had made a plea-bargain deal with prosecutors.

State District Judge Pat Lykos made the ruling Wednesday in a hearing ordered by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which had granted Ms. Tucker a stay of execution.

Ms. Tucker could become the first woman to be executed in Texas since the Civil War.

Judge Lykos denounced claims by Ms. Tucker's lawyer, saying they were ridiculous.

Firm to study landfill options

In lieu of impending EPA, TWC regulations

Council members Tuesday approved a proposal from a Fort Worth engineering firm to evaluate options for future solid waste disposal by the city.

Freese and Nichols, Inc. submitted a proposal to provide professional engineering and planning services to the City of Snyder for a sub-regional solid waste management plan.

The plan would address concerns related to solid waste management and examine options available for future disposal of waste to comply with Subtitle D. Subtitle D includes stringent regulations imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency, which are scheduled to become law in October 1993.

The regulations are expected to cause key changes in landfills, at major expense.

Some options which would be studied by the engineering firm include upgrading the existing landfill, transferring Snyder's solid waste to another regional landfill and contracting for solid waste disposal by an outside entity.

A portion of the study, which is expected to cost about $30,600, would include the feasability of developing the local landfill as a regional facility to serve Snyder, Colorado City, Sweetwater, Roby, Rotan and rural areas within Fisher, Mitchell, Nolan and Scurry Counties.

The Texas Water Commission has submitted a concept paper on Subtitle D and held a review and public comment session two weeks ago in Abilene.

According to Bill Allanach, consulting engineer with Freese and Nichols, the Texas Water Commission is trying to implement a West Texas Exemption for some cities. The exemption would be available to cities that put less than 20 tons of waste per day into their landfill, average less than 25 inches of rain per year and have no other reasonable alternative.

Snyder would not be eligible for the exemption due to the fact that it averages 47 tons of waste per day based on 365 days.

"This is the fastest that cities have been hit by regulations from the EPA that will affect all sizes of cities," said Mayor Troy Williamson at Tuesday's meeting. "It is important to look at all of our options, and this study is a good way to do it."

According to City Manager John Gayle, the approved proposal will be presented to other cities in the area for informational purposes.

UIL event funds ok'd for college

Snyder City Council granted a request for funding of speech tournaments hosted by Western Texas College and discussed sewer rates at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Jan McCathern, assistant professor of speech and drama for Western Texas College, asked the council to consider funding the annual Ben Brock Memorial Speech Tournament and other district UIL tournaments which will be held at the college this spring.

"This is our fifth year to host the Brock tournament, and we have had as many as 23 schools enter," said McCathern, who requested $9,960 from the hotel/motel tax fund to cover costs of the tournaments.

According to a budget presented by McCathern, part of the money spent on tournaments goes to pay contest judges, who receive $15 per round judged.

McCathern said the Brock tournament has been funded by the college in the past, with $2,500 to $3,000 set aside for tournament expenses.

"I figured my request on the largest tournament we have ever had," said the professor. "This is a top dollar figure."

McCathern told council members that the tournament brought in $2,390 in registration fees last year, which went into a speech scholarship fund.

Mayor Troy Williamson expressed concern about the request. He cited that a majority of the costs are to pay for services of the judges and that the revenue is placed in a scholarship fund.

"This is not standard practice," said Williamson. "I would have a problem with funding this if the income is put into a scholarship fund."

Williamson pointed out that to generate the tax funds necessary to replace the $9,000, there would have to be $175,000 spent at motels.

Council member Jackie Greene suggested that the council establish a committee to set policy for this type of situation. "I am uncomfortable with how these requests are handled," said Greene.

McCathern said she will be contacted by participating schools in August concerning whether or not the college will host the tournament in 1993. She added that if her

Seven arrested on indictments

Seven of the 26 people indicted Monday by a Scurry County grand jury were picked up during the past 24 hours by police or sheriff's deputies.

They include 29-year-old Josefina Yescas and 28-year-old Gonzalo Yescas of 1913 Coleman No. 3. They were indicted on May 2 charges of delivery of marijuana. Josefina Yescas was released after posting $15,000 bond. Gonzalo Yescas is still being held on $15,000 bond.

Also indicted on charges of delivery of marijuana on May 2 was 24-year-old Shellie Carr of 1802½ 28th St. She is currently being held on $15,000 bond.

32-year-old Charles Allen King of 3208 Ave. L was indicted for theft by aggregation and burglary of a habitation, dating to June 12 and 13. He is currently being held for $5,000 on each count.

Wayne Melton, 42, of 1900 West Drive was indicted for indecency with a child in a case dating to Oct. 10, 1991. He has been released on $15,000 bond.

Curtis Ray King, 28, of 3208 Ave. L was indicted for an April 10 offense of forgery by passing. He is being held on $3,000 bond.

Also indicted Monday was 34-year-old Mary Villanueva of 4400 Ave. U. She is charged with driving while intoxicated on June 21. She is out on $2,000 bond.

The names of five other individuals indicted Monday are being withheld, pending their arrest.

Among those previously named in indictments were Edward Gutierrez, 25, aggravated assault of a police officer and DWI; Christopher Maurice Thompson, 32, aggravated robbery; Jeffery Allen, 20, aggravated assault; Dartus Hooper, 22, burglary of a habitation and burglary of a vehicle; Ethel Kay Blackwell, 39, burglary of a habitation; Marcus Blackmon, 18, of Lubbock, possession of marijuana; and James Alexander, 38 of Sweetwater, possession of a controlled substance.

Also indicted were David Guerra Jr., Dennis McKee, Henry Carrisalez and Garry Curtis, all for DWI.

Against local man...

DA is considering additional charges

The district attorney's office is studying a case to see if further charges will be filed against a Snyder man who treatened to harm himself and his 11-month-old daughter Monday morning.

"We are reviewing the facts to see if he can, or should be charged further," District Attorney Ernie Armstrong said this morning.

The 25-year-old man is currently out on bond after being arrested for reckless conduct in connection with the incident. Police had first transported him to Big Spring State Hospital, but authorities there refused to admit him. He was arrested on the misdemeanor charge upon arrival back in Snyder, and placed in the county jail.

The man, armed with a knife, had allegedly assaulted his wife before locking her, their 2½ -year-old son and police out of his north Snyder home early Monday morning.

Police said he threatened to harm himself and the 11-month-old girl if they didn't leave. At about 5:25 a.m., after two hours of negotiating with police, the man passed the girl out through a bathroom window to her paternal grandmother. Twenty minutes later, he put the knife down and came out of the house.

Police said that although the wife said she had been assaulted by her husband, she refused to press charges.

Charges which might be filed against the man include kidnapping, aggravated kidnapping, or possibly injury to a child.

Injured two-year-old is stable after mishap

A young Snyder girl is in stable condition in the pediatric intensive care unit at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock today after being struck by a vehicle Tuesday evening.

Two-year-old Kendra Louise Tidwell of 506 34th Street was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room at 8:05 p.m. where she was treated for multiple contusions and abrasions. She was transfered to St. Mary's by Snyder EMS at 10:20 p.m. at the request of her parents.

According to police, the child was struck by a 1984 Ford Ranger pickup driven by her father, Kerry Lee Tidwell, also of 506 34th St. According to a report of the accident, the girl was struck when she ran behind the pickup as it was

Cotton seminar slated Thursday in coliseum

Area producers interested in cotton management are encouraged to attend a seminar Thursday morning in Scurry County Coliseum.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. in Room A.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss management alternatives for late planted cotton as well as May cotton that survived adverse weather.

The program has been approved by the Texas Department of Agriculture for four CEUs for private, non-commercial and commercial applicators.

Dr. Jackie Smith will present a cotton market outlook, "What the Analysts Are Saying," at 8:45 p.m.

At 9 a.m., Dr. Dan Kreig will present management strategies for late planted cotton, including fertility, growth regulators and crop termination.

Sponsors will be recognized at 9:45 a.m., at which time there will be a short break.

At 10:15 a.m., Dr. Jim Leser will discuss the management of aphids and bollworms. Dr. Tom Fuchs will follow at 11 a.m. with a discussion on the management of fleahoppers and boll weevils.

Lunch will be sponsored by allied agriculture companies at 11:45 a.m. Following the meal, producers will go to the Huddleston Farm, 3.5 miles north of Paymaster Gin, for a turnrow meeting.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Success is not knowing whether you're working or playing."

Blame it on the heat, but there seems to be growing violence across the nation.

A woman in California was charged with shooting her husband. She followed him along a freeway for several miles before pulling alongside his car and taking a shot.

Police reports say the incident began earlier in the evening when the husband rolled a gutter ball, causing them to lose a bowling match by six pins to another couple.

There's even a collection of reasons given authorities for shooting another person:

--which country, Korea or China, has the more pleasant lifestyle.

--obnoxiously switched TV channels.

--whether he and his wife should take a honeymoon cruise.

--quality of biscuits they were eating.

--frustration over a backed-up sewer.

--played stereo too loud.

--used his driveway to turn car around.

--criticized for spitting into an ashtray.

--official made bad call during basketball game.

--parked in another's parking space.

--too slow to make a left turn at a traffic light.

--argument over the morality of topless sunbathing.

--upset over poor food service.

--didn't like her boyfriend's gift.

--placed newspaper and mustard on wrong side of his plate.

--interrupted his Bible-reading lesson.

--innocently made the hand gesture of a rival gang.

--dented his new $70,000 Ferrari.

--objected to the way his neighbor mowed his lawn.

--made derogatory remarks about his religious beliefs.

Fat cat donors get 'royal' treatment during convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having trouble finding a hotel for the Democratic National Convention? Worried about New York's pricey restaurants? Concerned the family station wagon won't make the trip?

With a donation of $5,000 or more to the Democratic Party, those fears could be allayed.

Big-money donors will get the royal treatment at next week's convention from free food and drinks at dozens of receptions and hospitality suites to a ride from Washington to New York aboard a "party train."

There'll also be plenty of free entertainment: a New York Yankees game, Broadway theater, exclusive museum trips, shopping and restaurant sprees and a whirlwind tour of the city's five boroughs and the Statue of Liberty.

"We consider this just part of the benefits of belonging to the DNC donor council," said Melissa Moss, the Democratic National Committee's finance director.

Big donors still have to pay for their hotel rooms, but the Democratic party has been glad to help them line one up among the thousands it reserved. VIP seats at the Madison Square Garden also are guaranteed.

And all along the way they will have countless opportunities to rub elbows with party elite like Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, House Speaker Thomas Foley, Party Chairman Ronald Brown and Sens. Jay Rockefeller and Wendell Ford among others — not to mention Bill and Hillary Clinton.

For most donors the bigwigs are the greatest lure.

"It's a coming together and looking the politician in the eye and telling them what they approve and disapprove of ... and here are my ideas," explained Walter Shorenstein, the longtime Democratic donor who's been getting VIP treatment at conventions since 1968.

The Democrats have several classes of big-money donors. Managing trustees have raised or donated $200,000 or more; trustees have raised or donated $100,000 or more. Moss said 182 trustees are attending the convention.

Other donor classes with privileges at the convention include: Labor Council and Business Council donors, $15,000 or more; and Finance Council donors, $5,000 or more.

Republicans will be affording similar privileges to their top donors at the Houston convention next month.

But those who are showered with convention perks insist the VIP treatment isn't a motive for giving. They can afford such luxuries on their own.

"Almost nobody gives a large gift to the Democratic Party because of what rewards they're going to get at the convention. It's because they have strong ideological beliefs," said Bob Burkett, a longtime fund-raiser and one of the Democrats' Managing Trustees.

Giving Back of Shower Prizes Is Cause of Heavy Rumbling

DEAR ABBY: I am a great-grandmother who recently attended a baby shower. The guest of honor (I'll call her Jodie) was the granddaughter of a close friend of mine.

We played three games, and each winner received a very nice prize. When the shower ended, the winners of these games were instructed by the hostess to give their prizes to Jodie. (They were all very nice baby items.)

I was really shocked because I had never heard of such a thing. I was one of the winners who were told to give our prizes to the honored guest.

I think this practice is in very poor taste. If the winners could not keep their prizes, why bother to have prizes at all? I could have given my prize to one of several of my grandchildren. When I was told to give up my prize, I very promptly handed it over, but it ruined my day.

Abby, what do you think of this ridiculous practice? If you print this, please don't use my name or town, as quite a few people know how I feel about this, and I don't want any hard feelings.

UNHAPPY WINNER WHO LOST

DEAR UNHAPPY WINNER: I'm on your side. I've also attended baby showers where this odd tradition was practiced, and I was never able to understand it either. I vote to retire this pointless tradition. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old male in excellent physical condition. I am presently a prisoner in the Jefferson City Correctional Center in Jefferson City, Mo.

I am in critical need of financial assistance in order to hire competent legal counsel, so I am offering to sell one kidney or lung for $25,000 plus all necessary expenses of transplanting said organ. I am also willing to negotiate with respect to other transplantable body organs, tissue or bone marrow.

Thank you for any help you can give me. Please sign me ...

A PRISONER IN NEED

DEAR PRISONER: I contacted Bruce Conway, executive director of the Organ Donor Registry's Living Bank in Houston. His response:

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: With regard to the prisoner who wishes to sell a vital organ:

Federal law makes it unlawful for any person to knowingly sell, receive or otherwise transfer any human organ for valuable consideration for use in human transplantation. The term "human organ" includes any human kidney, liver, heart, lung, pancreas, bone marrow, cornea, eye and skin. Violations are punishable by a $50,000 fine or five years in prison. Virtually all 50 states have similar laws on the books in one form or another.

We receive letters and calls from people, some of them prisoners, and we relay the same information to them.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the cashier making change brought a chuckle as I recalled the two cashiers faced with a disabled cash register who were trying to cope with the problem I had created by offering $1.11 for a 61-cent quart of milk. As they were attempting to work a hand-held calculator, I said, "Just give me 50 cents." She did so, with the comment, "I never was very good at geometry."

Authorities conduct statewide drug raid

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — More than two dozen people have been arrested on drug charges following a state-wide raid by federal and state agents in an attempt to halt two family-run cocaine and heroin trafficking rings.

By late Tuesday, 140 federal, state and local police officers had served 35 arrest warrants, mostly in the San Angelo area. Of those, 28 had been arrested by late Tuesday, said U.S. Customs spokeswoman Judy Turner.

Authorities raided homes and businesses seeking individuals believed to operate the drug rings linked to a Texas prison gang, U.S. Customs officials said.

Michael Valva, resident agent in charge for the U.S. Customs Service in San Angelo, said the raid culminated a one-year investigation dubbed "Operation Los Hermanos," or "the brothers."

The roundup Tuesday crippled drug smuggling operations believed to be operated by the Duran family of San Angelo and the Marquez family of Big Spring, both of which are suspected of supervising drug trade deep into Mexico and South America, Valva said.

Most of the charges filed against those arrested were possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, conspiracy and money laundering, said Finley Soule, a U.S. Customs agent in Houston.

The suspects were expected to appear before U.S. Magistrate J.Q. Warnick in Lubbock Wednesday at 9 a.m.

Brothers Ramon and Augustine Duran Sr., are believed to have led a family-run drug operation that supplied the entire San Angelo area with heroin, said Dick Baker, an assistant U.S. attorney in Lubbock.

Robert Marquez is alleged to have run the network from Big Spring supplying large amounts of cocaine and marijuana throughout West Texas, Baker said.

"The Duran family has arrest records going back 18 years," Baker said.

Judge denies PI's request to exhumate JFK

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has quickly refused to grant a private investigator's request to exhume the body of President John F. Kennedy.

Joe West, who claims to have evidence Kennedy was the victim of a conspiracy, said he wanted to prove conclusively whether there was one or more gunmen involved in the assassination.

The retired investigator filed the motion Tuesday afternoon, but U.S. District Judge Norman Black denied the motion about two hours later.

West said he planned to appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"This is just the first step in the process and I will take it all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary," said West, who has devoted the last several years to the Kennedy case.

Four from Snyder picked for Camp RYLA attendance

Four young women from Snyder will be atttending Camp RYLA, July 12-17 at Camp Summer-Life in Vadito, N.M., along with 78 other young women from West Texas and the Panhandle.

Campers include Stephanie Fambro, Ample Hsien, Minerva Gonzalez and Jennifer Beard.

Participants in Camp RYLA (Rotary Youth Leadership Award) are chosen for their leadership qualities shown in school, church and community activities, their scholarship and their excellent moral standards.

Camp RYLA is a youth program of Rotary International, sponsored by the 57 Rotary Clubs in District 5730. The camp provides an opportunity to make youth aware of the great opportunities for service and accomplishment which they can achieve.

The objectives of Camp RYLA are to provide an atmosphre where future leaders will experience democratic living that will aid them in developing sound values, to promote an environment that will provide each individual with a basis of insight and understanding for the intelligent leadership, to expose the youth leaders to some opportunities and challenge of life in a free democratic society, and to promote involvement through encouraging the participants to think through and arbitrate conflicts of values.

A Bright Spot In Our Hometown...
1992 Home Delivered Meals Volunteers

Volunteerism at its best is demonstrated each weekday in a program that is part of the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center.

Monday through Friday, a hot meal is delivered to an average of 72 persons. Home Delivered Meals is a program designed to serve homebound citizens, 60 years or older. The meals must comply to nutritional standards set out by the Council of Governments and by the Area Agency on Aging.

In addition, Home Delivered Meals acts as a social service by providing personal contact to people confined to their homes. If a person doesn't answer the door, the patron is checked on by an emergency number.

The program began on Jan. 29, 1979 at the Senior Center when Gloria Shaw was the director. Meals served in 1983 averaged 43, and it has grown to 72 today.

Funding comes from donations from recipients or their families and well as gifts from participants. Also participating is Western Texas College, Scurry County, City of Snyder and the West Texas Council of Government and Agency on Aging in Abilene.

The program has grown to two vans in which to deliver meals — one in West Snyder and one in East Snyder. Two volunteers per van — a driver and a "hopper" — load the vans about 10:45 a.m. and leave the center with a hot meal at 11 a.m.

Buster Starnes, one of the most active members of the Senior Center, has volunteered to work in the program since its inception. Starnes is 81, and his 13 years in the program is the longest in terms of service.

Having served Home Delivered Meals for 10 years is James Beckham, 77.

Other volunteers include Pat Cornett, Ben Odorizzi, A.V. "Red" Brumley, Rob Robinson, A.C. Weaver, Dutch Stehley, John Pickering, Zelma Pickering, Marshall Erwin, Potsy Neeper, Pauline Withers, J.B. Lewis and Christie Devers.

Additional volunteers are needed.

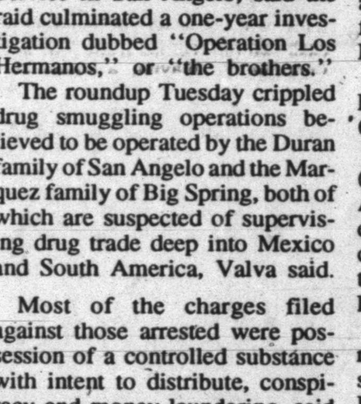

Snyder National Bank salutes the volunteers who serve Home Delivered Meals to shut-ins each weekday. Some 15 volunteers serve an average of 72 meals daily. Pictured are Buster Starnes and James Beckham, two of the senior workers in the program. The Community Service Award for July is presented to the Home Delivered Meals volunteers at the Senior Center.

Commissioners question sheriff's deputy in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — About 100 people attended a commissioners court meeting to hear why a mentally impaired deaf and mute man was jailed for two weeks under the name of a cartoon character before his relatives were notified.

Dallas County commissioners asked a sheriff's deputy on Tuesday why the man, Howard Lee Brice, was listed under the name "Howard The Duck."

Advocates for the hearing-impaired and mentally retarded were among those who attended Dallas County Commissioners Court as a sheriff's deputy again defended his department's treatment of Howard Lee Brice.

Relatives contend that Brice was poorly treated while he spent two weeks in jail on a misdemeanor public lewdness charge. The family is angry that the sheriff's department failed to notify them earlier that Brice was in jail.

Bob Knowles, jail commander and sheriff's assistant chief deputy, contended Brice would have been released sooner if he had cooperated with officers and told them how to contact his family.

Commissioners asked Knowles whether Brice would have been freed if jailers had not recognized him from a newspaper photograph.

"As to the court system, he would have gone through the court," said Knowles. "He would have gotten hold of, gotten an attorney appointed and then perhaps, at some point, he would have become more cooperative."

Some speakers told the commissioners' court that many mentally ill patients end up in county jail. And advocates for the deaf said Brice's experience has happened to hearing-impaired people across the nation.

Jail officials admitted problems exist but said there are too many inmates and not enough staff or money to deal with situations that Brice faced.

Brice was arrested June 20 in a bus station restroom. Vanessa Brice said the family had been calling police every day looking for her nephew.

No pets found in cemetery

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — An excavation team has found no trace of animals buried in a human cemetery after digging for about a week.

Dallas County commissioners ordered the digging last week after awarding American Memorial Park a contract to perform pauper burials.

Bob Wright, who bought the cemetery in 1984, said he knew of no animal burials at the cemetery.

"I really believe the problem is over the contract to bury unclaimed bodies, the indigents," Wright said.

But residents believe that hundreds of animals were buried at the graveyard in the late 1970s.

Establish the key ruff

By Phillip Alder

You are faced with a loser in your hand. And if you lose that trick, you will go down in your contract. What chances might you have to eliminate that loser?

Right! An opponent might revoke. But if you think that is likely, buy one lottery ticket — you're bound to win a major prize.

Realistically, there are two common ways to get rid of a loser. Either you can ruff it in what I like to call the short-trump hand (which is usually the dummy), or you can discard it on one of dummy's winners. Let's look at these possibilities today and tomorrow.

After covering the East-West cards, plan the play in four spades. West leads the heart king.

As the lead has dislodged your heart ace, you are faced with four losers: two hearts and two clubs. You don't have the time to establish a long club on which to discard a heart loser. The opponents will have cashed their four tricks long before you have set up the pitch.

If you can't take a discard, perhaps you can ruff a loser in the dummy. But how can you arrange that ruff when dummy has three hearts too? Well, you can, if you look down the road.

The simplest approach, if not technically perfect, is to duck the first trick, win the heart continuation and cash two top trumps from your hand. Continue by playing a diamond to dummy's queen, overtaking the diamond king with your ace and cashing the diamond jack, while discarding dummy's remaining heart. Now ruff your last heart with the spade king. Finally, concede two club tricks but claim your contract.

Perot luncheon staged to get feedback for political platform

DALLAS (AP) — Pillars of Wall Street sat with farmers from Iowa. Willie Nelson, natty in black with his ponytail neatly tied, dined near former nuclear arms control negotiator Paul Nitze. Scientists mingled with socialites, athletes with academics.

It was the first nationwide gathering of the latest political movement — lunch with Ross Perot, the people's billionaire.

Perot took 340 people to lunch Tuesday to solicit advice for his gestating political platform and map campaign strategy. Volunteers from 48 states flew in to offer wisdom, have their picture taken with the undeclared independent presidential candidate and preview television commercials.

"My initial reaction was 'What is this dog and pony show?'" said Perot's Minnesota state coordinator, Jeff Solem, who admitted to feeling a bit underdressed in a $250 suit. "But when we got down to it, there was a lot of substance. We made a lot of decisions in regard to how the campaign was going to be run."

Rich folks from Dallas found seats at the 34 tables, festooned with red, white and blue flowers, as did a smattering of celebrities and political and social welterweights: Hollywood producer Martin Jurow, football legend Paul Warfield, the Rev. Calvin Butts of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York, Bear Stearns chairman Ace Greenberg, Sun Microsystems CEO Scott McNealey, and former journalist Marilyn Berger.

Just common folks, the Perot people insisted.

"There's no difference between our people and the Elk's convention," media advisor Jim Squires said with a smile as a crowd of curious vacationing Elks watched.

Perot aides said that while they are pleased with high-profile endorsements, they have not solicited celebrities, and insist that they prefer a "cross-section of ordinary people."

"This campaign doesn't speak to the culturally elite," said senior adviser Mort Meyerson.

But the guest list included actress Katharine Hepburn, who might be considered both cultured and elite and has contacted the Perot campaign, even though she was unable to attend. Also invited but unavailable was football star O.J. Simpson. He too has offered support to Perot's independent presidential campaign.

The group — ordinary and elite alike — will lead to the creation of a national advisory committee.

Perot said after the private meetings, which stretched for more than five hours, that he was mostly interested in mapping "the next steps."

"And that's what they're interested in," he said of his collection of volunteers.

One of the next steps is an advertising campaign Perot labeled "Chapter One," which includes three ads — one a biographical sketch of Perot, the other two testimonials from volunteers. "It's really the light at the end of the tunnel, a little bit of hope," a volunteer says before an announcer gives out Perot's toll-free telephone number.

LL stars drop C-City in Area 2 tournament

COLORADO CITY — The Snyder Little League All-Stars took a 5-2 decision from host Colorado City in the second round of the Area 2 baseball tournament Tuesday night.

Snyder's Johnny Pena was the winner, going the distance, striking out five, walking three, including one hit by a pitch, and allowing five hits.

Pena's defense, for the second straight night, was without an error.

Snyder jumped to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but the C-City squad answered with the tying run in the last of the frame.

With the tally still tied at 1-1, Snyder came alive for three runs in the visitors' half of the third, including a 2-RBI shot by Cory Mandrell. An insurance run in the sixth iced the win.

All told, two Colorado city pitchers allowed seven hits and a walk, while striking out seven.

The hosts were stung by three errors.

Snyder hitters included Pena, who doubled, David Smith, who smacked a pair of singles, and Dustin Fish, Kyle Beck, Mandrell and Kelly Gentry, who each lifted a base hit.

Snyder advances to Thursday's semifinal round to face Hamlin, a 12-6 winner over Anson on Tuesday.

Anson held a 6-5 advantage in the top of the last inning when Hamlin erupted for seven runs and the win.

Today's losers' bracket games include Stonewall-Kent taking on Colorado City at 6 p.m. and Rotan facing Anson in the 8 p.m. nightcap.

The winner of the losers' bracket game will battle the Snyder-Hamlin loser at 7 p.m. Friday, with the final berth in the championship on the line.

The title game is set for Saturday at 7 p.m. A second game will be necessary should Saturday's loser only have one loss in the tournament.

Cubs challenge realignment

Lawsuit questions Vincent's authority to shift divisions

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs want a federal judge to stop the baseball commissioner from moving the team to the National League West next season.

The lawsuit, which claims the commissioner does not have unlimited authority to act "in the best interests of baseball," was scheduled for a hearing today before U.S. District Judge Suzanne B. Conlon.

It came just one day after commissioner Fay Vincent realigned the NL, sending the Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals to the West and the Atlanta Braves and Cincinnati Reds to the East in 1993.

"The commissioner can no more order the Chicago Cubs to play in the Western Division of the National League than he could order them to play in the American League," the Cubs said in their 26-page complaint.

The Cubs contend the Major League Agreement excludes the commissioner from deciding issues governed by the National League constitution.

"The Cubs had threatened suit even before I made the decision," Vincent said. "I'm not surprised there is a suit."

Under the NL constitution, realignment must be approved by nine of the 12 clubs, including all teams involved in divisional switches. On March 4, 10 clubs voted in favor, but the Cubs used their veto and the New York Mets also voted no.

But Vincent, responding to the request of several owners, decided to review the issue. He has the power to take action on any "act, transaction or practice" deemed not in the best interests of baseball.

The Cubs challenged Vincent's broad interpretation of this section.

"The commissioner's decision does not explain how the Cubs' longstanding presence in the Eastern Division is an 'act, transaction or practice,'" the lawsuit contended.

"The commissioner's action patently exceeds his authority under the Major League Agreement, and the action is also arbitrary and capricious," the Cubs said.

The lawsuit challenges a series of court cases over the past 60 years that have upheld the almost unlimited authority of the commissioner to act in the best interests of baseball.

This was spelled out in 1977 by U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr of Chicago in a dispute between Oakland Athletics owner Charlie Finley and commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"So broad and unfettered was his (the commissioner's) discretion intended to be," McGarr ruled, "that they (baseball owners) provided no right of appeal, and even took the extreme step of foreclosing their own access to the courts."

The NL voted 10-2 not to join the suit, with the Cubs and the Los Angeles Dodgers voting in favor. The Dodgers didn't sue, but the Cubs did. Chicago denied the suit was motivated by concerns about an earnings decline because of lower broadcast ratings for late night games on the West Coast.

The Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs, also owns WGN radio and television, which carry Cubs games.

"The Cubs would have the same opposition ... if the Cubs' games were not carried on a superstation and if the Cubs and WGN-TV were not affiliated," the lawsuit contends.

"The Cubs are opposed to realignment because it destroys their contract rights, because it destroys traditional rivalries, and because it otherwise can adversely affect the Cubs' popularity in the Chicago area."

The complaint said Atlanta, Houston, Montreal, Pittsburgh, San Diego and San Francisco were in favor of intervention by Vincent, with the other clubs opposed.

Seale, Stehley, Jackson, Evelyn Thomas and Reed were top finishers in the club's June 23 Nassau and Anita Talbott fired a 74 to club champ Luann Burleson's 77 in the June 30 Play 1991 Club Champion.

Stubbs homer sinks Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Franklin Stubbs is carrying the Milwaukee Brewers on his shoulders.

Stubbs broke a 2-2 tie with his eighth homer of the season in the seventh inning Tuesday night, helping the Brewers beat the Texas Rangers 4-3.

"It came at an opportune time," said Stubbs, who has 10 RBIs in his last eight games. "We needed something like that to get us going."

Stubbs has hit in nine of his last 10 games, helping the Brewers stay within striking distance of Toronto and Baltimore in the AL East.

The Rangers for the second time in three days failed to cut into Minnesota's lead in the AL West and remain a season-high 51/2 games back.

Stubbs hit Todd Burns' 3-2 pitch over the left-field wall after the Texas starter had retired 10 of the previous 11 batters. Stubbs hit 11 homers all of last season.

"We're not going to hit a lot of home runs, so we have to make them count when we do," Stubbs said.

The Brewers added the eventual game-winning run off Burns (2-2) on Darryl Hamilton's sacrifice fly to center in the seventh.

"I'm just trying to take it one start at a time," Burns said. "I can't think about streaks; each start I have to deal with something different."

The Rangers made it a one-run game in the bottom of the eighth as Ruben Sierra's grounder to first scored pinch-runner Jeff Huson.

Burns was charged with just two earned runs. He struck out six and walked none, extending his walkless streak to 15 innings.

"I thought Burns threw real well tonight," manager Bobby Valentine said. "Other than the home run, he had a good game. It's just an unfortunate situation."

James Austin (2-2) was the winner in relief of Bruce Ruffin, pitching two innings. Doug Henry pitched the ninth, retiring the side in order for his 15th save of the year.

The Rangers, who stranded 12 runners, scored a run in the second but couldn't take advantage of loading the bases with one out. Rafael Palmeiro opened the inning with an opposite-field single and Dickie Thon tripled him home.

After striking out rookie Donald Harris, Ruffin walked both Al Newman — the No. 9 batter — and Brian Downing. Ruffin, however, struck out Dean Palmer and then got Sierra to pop out.

The Brewers scored a pair of unearned runs off Burns in the third inning.

Pirates drop Houston, 5-3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andy Van Slyke doubled in the go-ahead run and made the majors' first unassisted double play by an outfielder in nearly 18 years at Three Rivers Stadium Tuesday night, as the Pirates knocked off Houston, 5-3.

Steve Buechele had three hits and three RBIs, including a bad-hop two-run single in a three-run seventh. Barry Bonds had a pair of doubles and scored twice for the Pirates.

Bob Walk (2-3) pitched three innings for the victory.

'Pokes coach highest paid

DALLAS (AP) — Jimmy Johnson supplanted Tom Landry in Dallas in more ways that one.

Johnson was the highest paid coach in the NFL in 1990, according to stacks of never-before-made public NFL documents that were released Tuesday. The records showed Johnson earned $1.433 million.

Landry earned more than $1.3 million as the NFL's highest-paid coach in his last season, 1988.

The confidential documents were released by lawyers in Minneapolis at the antitrust suit by eight players against the league.

Johnson, who was hired by his old college buddy, Jerry Jones, was the highest paid NFL coach in just his second season, which followed a 1-15 year as a rookie. He has been 7-9 and 11-5 the last two years, helped by the bodies he got from the blockbuster trade of Herschel Walker to the Minnesota Vikings.

Miami's Don Shula was second, at just under $1.1 million.

Johnson came to the Cowboys as an established coaching star after a highly successful college career in which he won two national championships at the University of Miami, and Jones gave him a 10-year contract.

NL president dishes out punishment

CHICAGO (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds cannot understand how they got the worst of the penalties from a bench-clearing brawl the other team started.

National League president Bill White on Tuesday suspended Reds pitcher Rob Dibble and outfielder Glenn Braggs for four games each for the June 24 fight with the Houston Astros. Both were blamed for "coming off the bench, inciting a brawl and prolonging fighting."

Both players have appealed and are eligible to play until their appeal is heard, not until August.

Houston coach Ed Ott, whose picture was taken under a pile of players with his arm around Dibble's neck, was suspended for seven days and pitcher Pete Harnisch for three days for their part in the fight, which started when Harnisch threw a pitch behind Reggie Sanders after Hal Morris had hit a three-run homer.

All four players also were fined an unspecified amount of money.

'I'm aghast. I really am," said Cincinnati manager Lou Piniella after Tuesday's 3-2 win over the Cubs. "First of all, where did Houston get penalized? They lose a coach for seven days and a pitcher for three, and he (Harnisch) doesn't even miss a start. I could see it if we instigated it, but they instigated it. It's unbelieveable that two of our players get suspended for four days. Something is wrong about that."

Asked if he wouldn't rather lose Dibble and Braggs now than in August if their appeal isn't successful before then, the Reds skipper said, "They've got to appeal. I don't think the decision is right."

Reds general manager Bob Quinn said White had called him Tuesday.

"He said he had to do something about fighting in baseball," said Quinn. "I respect Bill but this is totaly unequatable. He said, 'That's my decision.'"

Cobb, Swoopes named tops in SWC

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference has named Rice's Trevor Cobb and Texas Tech's Sheryl Swoopes as Athletes of the Year for the 1991-1992 season.

Cobb of Pasadena earlier received the Doak Walker National Running Back Award, the SWC said in the announcement Tuesday.

A panel of Texas media representatives chose Cobb and Swoopes of Brownfield.

Cobb was the nation's third-leading rusher, averaging 153.8 yards per game and fourth-ranked in the country in all-purpose yards (167.6 per game).

He ranks 11th all-time in SWC rushing with 3,562 yards and had three 200-yard rushing days in 1991.

Cobb last year set school and SWC records for rushing attempts (360) and rushed for a school-record 1,692 yards and 14 touchdowns.

Swoopes, as a junior, led the Lady Red Raiders to their first SWC regular season and post-season tournament titles as Tech advanced to the NCAA Tournament's round of 16.

She also earned an invitation to the Olympic Trials and was named SWC Player of the Week four times while leading the conference in scoring, steals and free-throw percentage.

Energy-efficient refrigerators goal of utilities' offer

ROSEMEAD, Calif. (AP) — A cool idea could be worth $30 million.

That's the reward offered to a U.S. manufacturer who comes up with the design for an energy-efficient refrigerator that puts the freeze on ozone-killing chemicals.

The reward was announced Tuesday by a consortium of 23 utilities, which serve about 20 million of the nation's 94 million households.

The utilities want a refrigerator that does away with ozone-destroying chlorofluorocarbons while cutting in half the 900 kilowatt-hours of electricity used annually by today's average 18-cubic-foot refrigerator, said Gary B. Fernstrom of Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

Today's refrigerator uses about half the energy of the average refrigerator 20 years ago, said Fernstrom, chief financial officer of the California-based consortium.

Still, refrigerators and freezers consume about 20 percent of the electricity in American homes, and much of that is wasted, Southern California Edison, one of the utilities in the consortium, said Tuesday.

James G. Powell, a spokesman for Maytag Corp., the appliance maker, said more efficient refrigerators are possible, but "it's important that the product be capable of being sold in the marketplace."

For instance, appliance manufacturers say they could improve efficiency by adding insulation, but do not want to change the exterior dimensions of the unit because most consumers want a refrigerator that fits in existing kitchen space.

The winning model also would do away with ozone-destroying chlorofluorocarbons, which are being phased out under international agreements.

CFCs are used as refrigerants and in the foam insulation in refrigerators.

The winning design from a U.S. manufacturer would be chosen by competitive bid in 1993 and could be on the market in 1994. Bids to the Super Efficient Refrigerator Program are due in October, with two semifinalists picked in December.

Judge warns: schools may be closed unless funding deadline met

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge is warning that Texans might face a public school shutdown next year if lawmakers don't meet the state Supreme Court's deadline for fixing the school funding system.

A decision on closing schools ultimately would go to the Supreme Court, State District Judge F. Scott McCown suggested at a Tuesday hearing.

But he asked, "How can the Supreme Court say it's not going to shut the schools down? How can the Supreme Court give any more time?"

For his part, McCown said, "I'm serving notice today to every concerned party ... that I'm not going to move the (June 1, 1993) deadline."

"I'm simply going to let the time run out, and if we don't have a plan, I'm going to enjoin any state money going out, and I'm tentatively taking a position that there's no local tax authority, and there won't be any local money," he said.

McCown asked lawyers to submit arguments on whether school districts' authority to levy local property taxes survives after the court deadline. He indicated that schools still could impose taxes to pay bonds and interest.

The judge said that if only state aid is cut off, property-poor school districts would be "wiped out" while wealthier districts could operate on local money. The school finance case was started by poor school districts seeking to equalize funding.

McCown also refused Tuesday to appoint a court master, as requested by poor school districts, to draw up an alternative funding plan in case lawmakers fail to meet the deadline.

He cited one argument that the existence of a court plan might take pressure off some lawmakers to act. The poor school districts had said they wanted the master's plan as protection, in case the Legislature failed to come up with a constitutional plan.

"At this juncture, why not just shut the schools down? At this point, who cares any more?" asked the evidently frustrated judge.

"We've given people tremendous amount of notice. They know basically two years in advance," McCown said. "My thought is, you get all those parents at home with their children full-time, and there'll be tremendous pressure on the Legislature to create a school plan."

The Supreme Court ruled for the third time in January that a school funding plan approved by lawmakers violates the Texas Constitution. The court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to fix the system.

After the Supreme Court's previous two rulings, lawmakers didn't approve funding measures until after deadlines set by the court.

McCown appointed a special court master to write a school funding plan in 1990, and an expert to update that plan in 1991. The plans never were implemented, since new school funding laws were passed.

Lawyer Al Kauffman, representing poor school districts, said although no one wants schools to close, McCown's statements "will be helpful to us in convincing the Legislature to move."

"He's putting everybody on notice in the public schools that don't be surprised if June 1 comes and, in fact, all funding is shut off," Kauffman said.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, said she didn't know if McCown's statements would move the Legislature to act. She said he emphasized that the deadline is a serious one.

A funding cutoff next summer could be especially significant to school districts using year-round programs. About 45 school districts, of more than 1,000 in the state, are scheduled to use year-round programs on at least one campus in the 1992-93 school year.

President signs bill linking farmers, poor women, kids

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush may not like broccoli, but he agrees that low-income mothers and children ought to get a chance to add it — and lots of other fresh fruits and vegetables — to their diet.

A bill Bush recently signed could significantly expand a program that helps farmers find new markets for their fresh produce while boosting the diets of poor women and children

Now operating in nine states, including Texas, the program provides coupons to low-income mothers and pregnant women that can be redeemed for fresh fruits and vegetables at farmers' markets. The bill would allow any state or territory to apply to receive federal funds to operate the program, and recommends doubling spending in 1993.

The program targets some of the 5 million participants in the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children, or WIC. Regular WIC assistance includes such staples as milk, cheese, eggs, infant formula, cereal and juice.

Computer for Kids awards announced

Awards for the Computers for Kids at Western Texas College were recently presented. Twenty students received Continuing Education certificates.

Jordan Hardin received the Most Improved Student award. This award was given to the student who showed the most improvement on a test given at the beginning and again at the end of the course.

Joshua Hudgins received the Most Creative Award. Hudgins accumulated the highest class ranking on two computer graphic projects.

Best All-Around student was Nicholas Means. He earned the highest number of points in the class to receive this award.

Britt Canada was the instructor.

Two arrested on violations

Two Snyder men were arrested by sheriff's deputies Tuesday on charges of parole violation.

Forty-three-year-old Erinio Botello of Route 3, Box 272 was arrested at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on a blue warrant from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for parole violation.

Arrested on a blue warrant at 9 a.m. was 31-year-old Daniel Perez of 2604 25th St.

According to sheriff's officials, both subjects were arrested from the parole office.

Weather delays shuttle landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rain at the landing site today forced the postponement of the space shuttle Columbia's return by a full day, lengthening what is already NASA's longest shuttle mission.

"It looks like Mother Nature has given you another chance to make a tighter grip on your record," Mission Control's Ken Reightler told the crew.

The shuttle had been scheduled to land at Edwards Air Force Base in California at 9:08 a.m. EDT. But after rain began falling in the area, flight controllers decided to delay the landing by one orbit.

Prospects were no better for the second landing attempt at 10:45 a.m. EDT — the only other one possible today — forcing Commander Richard N. Richards and his crew to spend an extra day in orbit. That will bring the mission to a full two weeks.

The astronauts responded to the news by singing a few lines from the 1960s tune "Stay" — the same song Mission Control played for the crew Monday when Columbia broke the shuttle endurance record. It has the refrain, "Oh, won't you stay just a little bit longer."

"We can tell that you're really broken up about another chance to spend a little bit more time on orbit," said Reightler.

NASA said it would try again Thursday morning to bring the shuttle back to Earth.

NASA prefers the big desert lakebed at Edwards to the single runway at Florida's Kennedy Space Center when the shuttle is loaded with extra weight, in this case Spacelab, and when astronauts have been away this long.

Flight directors said they would consider a Kennedy landing on Thursday only if the weather is still bad at Edwards. Today's rain was attributed to a tropical storm several-hundred miles off the California coast.

Columbia has enough food and fuel on board to stay up until Friday.

More than 5,000 people had gathered at Edwards for the landing. One disappointed spectator, Barney Parkhill, said he would be back Thursday.

Before the landing was scrubbed, the astronauts waited in their flight suits as ground controllers evaluated the weather. Some of them already had prepared for landing by drinking glasses of water to fight space's dehydrating effects.

Earlier today, the astronauts stowed cabin equipment, turned off their experiments and shut down power to the Spacelab module, sealing it off from the rest of the shuttle.

Mission scientist Don Frazier, who is helping oversee the mission on Earth, said he was "ecstatic about the success" of the flight, which began June 25.

Board oks purchase

Scurry County Appraisal board of directors accepted a bid for mapping hardware and approved an alternate member for the Appraisal Review Board during its July meeting Tuesday.

Following the recommendation of Chief Appraiser L.R. Peveler, the four-member board accepted the mapping hardware bid of Freddie Bullard and Company, Computer Solutions, for $5,368. Others bids submitted were Logic Process and Com Tech Data. At last month's meeting, the board accepted a $7,700 contract with CMC for the software program.

Under new business, Chevron employee Doug Foster was appointed as alternate member on the review board. An alternate ARB member is a requirement from the state.

Bills payable were accepted unanimously by board members, Bill Voss, Allen Smith, Walter Stirl and Ross Carroll. Harold Lacik was absent.

Others present at the meeting were County Tax-Assessor-Collector Rona Sikes, Sharla Williamson and Larry Crooks.

The next meeting is set tentatively for Oct. 5 at 8 a.m.

Police handled several other reports Monday, including a burglary, a report of bigamy and family violence.

Tommy Horsely notified police at 10:04 a.m. that someone had entered Room 143 at the Pal-O-Mar Motel and taken a number of miscellaneous items. An offense report for burglary of a business was filed.

At 1:10 p.m., a woman came to the police department to file bigamy charges against her husband. Police said no one has been arrested in the case. Bigamy is a felony in Texas.

At 11:04 p.m., officers were notified of a disturbance in the 2900 block of Ave. O. A woman told officers that she had been assaulted by her husband. She refused to file charges, however. Police made out a report for family violence.

Board rejects pardon of accused priest-killer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles has voted to deny recommending a pardon for a man sentenced in the 1981 killing of a Roman Catholic priest in Odessa.

The 16-0 decision announced Tuesday came despite assertions from a prosecutor who said James Harry Reyos could not have murdered Father Patrick Ryan.

Former ambassador charged with illegally lobbying for war

DENVER (AP) — Former U.S. Ambassador Sam Zakhem campaigned for the U.S. Senate as a patriot who rallied support for the war to oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait.

But what Zakhem failed to reveal in his losing primary campaign was alleged Tuesday in a federal indictment: that he and two others secretly took $7.7 million from Kuwait to prod the United States into the Persian Gulf War.

Zakhem, William R. Kennedy Jr. and Scott Stanley Jr. also were charged with evading income taxes on the $5.7 million of the Kuwaiti money they kept for the themselves.

About $2 million of the total allegedly was used for public relations and advertising to boost support for military action against Iraq.

The three men were charged with failing to identify themselves as lobbyists for Kuwait under the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

Kennedy is a former owner of the now-defunct Conservative Digest, and Stanley is a former editor of the magazine. They were charged with two counts each.

Zakhem, a native of Lebanon who was U.S. ambassador to Bahrain from 1986 to 1989, was charged with 12 counts and faces up to 40 years in prison if convicted.

The government claims the men ran two businesses — funded by Kuwait — between August 1990 and June 30, 1991, to campaign in favor of forcing Iraq out of Kuwait. The first business was called Coalition for America at Risk, or COFAR. The government said the second, The Freedom Task Force, was created after the three men abandoned COFAR because of allegations linking it to Kuwait.

Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, 1990, and were driven out by U.S.-led forces in February 1991.

O'Keefe must handle sex scandal and set new course

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Navy Secretary Sean O'Keefe must restore order to a service embarrassed by a sexual harassment scandal while charting a post-Cold War course that could include lifting the ban on women in combat, military observers say.

"He has his work cut out for him," Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and former Navy pilot, said after the 36-year-old O'Keefe was tapped for the job Tuesday.

"He's going to have to be a strong advocate for carrier aviation," McCain added, noting recent spending reductions voted by the House Armed Services Committee. "They're all at the point if they don't get funded this year, they're in serious jeopardy."

O'Keefe replaces H. Lawrence Garrett III, who resigned last month amid charges of a Navy cover-up in its investigation into a 1991 convention of naval aviators in which 26 women — half of them officers — said they were sexually abused.

O'Keefe, 36, has been Defense Department comptroller for three years, and also served as its chief financial officer.

Topping the problem-filled agenda for O'Keefe is trying to rid the service of sexual harassment and repair the Navy's tarnished image.

"He comes into a boiling cauldron of controversy about the role of women and their status," said retired Adm. Gene LaRocque, who served in the Navy for 32 years.

LaRocque, a consultant with the private Center for Defense Information, urged the Navy to convene a formal court of inquiry, similar to the legal system's grand jury, to determine guilt or innocence in the Tailhook case.

"They can make all the fancy pronouncements they want about not tolerating harassment, but unless the leadership itself shows more concern it isn't going to happen," said retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Jeanne Holm.

request were approved, the funds would not be needed all at once and that the first funds would not be needed until January of 1993.

Greene made a motion to set $9,960 as a ceiling for funding of the tournament. The amount budgeted by the college would be subtracted from this amount.

Greene, Mike Post, J.D. Smith and Vernest Tippens voted in favor of the request. Mike Thornton abstained from the voting due to his affiliation with the college.

Carolyn House, director of customer services, presented figures for sewer rates for the council to study. The rates were figured on a base rate of $6 and a consumption rate of $1.80 per thousand gallons taking an average consumption for December, January and February.

Greene said that he had spoken to a local businessman who expressed concern because those three months are his highest months for usage.

The council discussed other options for setting the rates, such as giving a choice between a rate based on consumption and a base monthly rate and a choice between a three-month or 12-month average. House said that offering all these choices would not be impossible, but would be hard for the staff to keep track of.

No action was taken by the council on the rates, which will be discussed further in a workshop set for Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

In other business, the council voted to approve the closing of a section of 5th Street on the north side of the Spanish Church of Christ at 501 College Ave. The church requested the closing in order to place a storage building on the north side of the church building.

Council members approved the contract for services between the city and Development Corporation of Snyder, with some minor changes in wording suggested by Ernie Armstrong, who serves as legal advisor for the city.

Leroy Brown was appointed to the Board of Electrical Examiners. Brown will fill the unexpired term of Rudy Riojas, and will serve until November of 1993.

The council accepted the resignation of Gary Sisson from the Zoning Board of Adjustments but had no recommendations for a replacement.

Also approved was a request from Western Geophysical to extend its vibreosis survey permit through Aug. 15. The original permit was issued May 7 and was good for a 30-day period.

The council accepted the bid of MWC Enterprises of Atkinson, Neb. for 90 three-yard refuse containers at a cost of $250.25 each, and 50 four-yard containers at $277.03 each. Total cost for the containers will be $36,374. The budgeted amount was $37,500.

SSI Oil and Gas, Inc. submitted the only bid for an oil, gas and mineral lease on city owned land in the Blankenship Addition, Chambers Addition and the original townsite of Snyder. The council approved the proposal, which includes a three-year primary term, $500 bonus consideration and 3/16 royalties.

Also accepted ws a single bid from IBM in Lubbock for an IBM 4234 line printer to be used as a main system printer for the city. Cost of the printer will be $12,512.

Approval of minutes was the only other item of business.

Present at the meeting were council members Thornton, Tippens, Post, Greene and Smith. Also present were Mayor Williamson, City Manager John Gayle and Armstrong. Jack Denman was absent.

Environmentalists blast parks ruling on mountain lions

AUSTIN (AP) — Environmentalists have blasted state parks and wildlife officials for refusing to regulate the killing of mountain lions.

"The message from TPWD (Texas Parks and Wildlife Department) to the mountain lion is 'Drop Dead,' — literally," Ken Kramer, director of the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, said Tuesday.

The Sierra Club, National Audubon Society, and Texas Committee on Natural Resources requested that the state change the official status of the mountain lion so that the killing can be regulated.

Currently, the environmentalists said, the animal is considered a "varmint" and is subject to unregulated hunting.

The animal is found in western, southern and sometimes eastern parts of the state.

Parks and Wildlife executive director Andrew Sansom refused the request to change the mountain lion's status, saying the agency lacked biological information on the animal.

Sansom said the agency would start taking information given voluntarily, review the policy annually, and start an education program on the mountain lion.

Local churches recognize 42 outstanding laypersons

Scurry County churches honored outstanding laypersons Saturday at the fifth annual July Fourth Prayer Breakfast. Most churches recognized an adult leader and a youth leader.

Those receiving special recognition include the following. Unless otherwise noted, the first name listed after each church is the adult honoree.

-Avenue D Baptist Church: A.C. Weaver and John Coffman.

-Colonial Hill Baptist Church: M.J. Merritt and Lisa Duncan.

-First Baptist Church in Ira: Diana Green and Brian Bohannon.

-North College Avenue Baptist Church: S.W. (Red) Trevey and Autumn Pollard.

-Union Baptist Church: Bob Potter and Katie Potts.

-St. Elizabeth Catholic Church: Anita Felan and Benjamin Felan.

-First Christian Church: Brud Boren and Trent Whitney.

-Grace Lutheran Church: Donna Jackson. No youth award was given.

-First United Methodist Church: Melissa Alexander and Mindy L. Robertson.

-First Presbyterian Church: Harding Collins and Emily Hataway, both adult leaders.

-Central Baptist Church in Hermleigh: Clyde Verdine and Donnis McHaney.

-Calvary Baptist Church: Rosemary Burton and Ray Burton.

-Dunn Baptist Church: Jack Almquist and Jason Almquist.

-First Baptist Church: J.M. McPherson and Greg Robinson.

-Primera Iglesia Bautista: Felipe Pena. No youth award was given.

-Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church: Abel Garza, Jr. and Misty Molina.

-St. John Catholic Church: George Mraz and Melinda Estrada.

-St. John's Episcopal Church: Kristine Riojas and Charlotte Irwin.

-Emmanuel United Methodist Church: Juan Duran and Margie Ann Borrego.

-Trinity United Methodist Church: Anne von Roeder and Adam Thornton.

-The Word is Life, Deliverance: Maxine Riggins and Charles Richardson.

-Knapp Baptist Church: Pat Phillips. No youth award was given.

-First Church of God in Ira: Juanita Hester. No youth award was given.

Max von Roeder served as master of ceremonies. Rev. Larry McAden, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, gave the invocation, and Dr. Steve Smith, pastor of First Presybterian, gave the benediction.

Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor of First Christian Church, introduced civic club members. Polly Echols and von Roeder presented the layperson certificates. Brian Earles, Eagle Scout of Boy Scout Troop 27, lead the Pledge of Allegiance.

McDonald's provided the breakfast.

Members of the 1992 Prayer Breakfast Committee include Glen Butler, Debra Cheyne, C.D. Gray, Jack Denman, Echols, Paul Gilbert, Griffin, McAden, Bill McClellan, J.D. Smith, Bernadette Stephens, Pearlene Stewart, Jim Tully, von Roeder, Stan Wilson, William Costigan, vice chairman, and Arlynne Turnquist, chairman.

Youth posed with gun and money taken during robbery

AUSTIN (AP) — A 16-year-old youth posed for photographs with his gun and the money he took from a slain cab driver only hours after the robbery slaying, witnesses have told investigators.

An acquaintance of the youth said he was in the cab when Alvin Bronson III, 25, was shot to death at Pflugerville early Saturday, according to Pfulgerville municipal court records.

Bronson, a University of Texas student, had been driving the cab for about three weeks. He was found dead behind Pflugerville High School in his cab about 7 a.m. Saturday.

Court records say that when the acquaintance asked the youth why he had shot the cab driver, the suspect replied, "Things happen."

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman Tuesday, the acquaintance said that he was about to pay Bronson for the ride from a south Austin motel to Pflugerville when the cab driver was shot in the back.

When Bronson grabbed his radio and broadcast an appeal for help, the youth said, the other youth shot Bronson a second time, court records say.

"I didn't believe it," the youth said. "I never saw anybody shot in cold blood in front of my face. I was so scared I just ran all the way home."

A third passenger also gave a similar account of the incident, according to court records.

A woman identifying herself as the suspect's mother, told the newspaper, "I could never believe my son could do something like that. If I did, I would be less than a mother. I'm devastated."

She said she visited her son at the Gardner-Betts Juvenile Justice Center on Monday. "He said he did not do it. He is very remorseful," she said.

Statements contained in the Pflugerville court records say the suspect, returned to the Ramada Inn after the shooting and boasted he "just got paid."

"I didn't want to shoot the cab driver because he was cooler than a --- ---. ... I put the gun to his neck and just shot him. ... I should have shook his hand, because he didn't fall," the court records quote the suspect as saying.

Witnesses are quoted in the court records as saying the suspect posed for photos with his acquaintances at the hotel with a .45-caliber pistol and about $130 soon after Bronson was slain.

The 16-year-old youth also has been charged in three Austin armed robberies, and police are arranging lineups with victims of five other recent robberies to see if he could have been involved.

The youth, who was a Pflugerville High School freshman in the just-completed school year, was in custody in connection with one of the robberies when the Pflugerville murder warrant was served Monday.

'92 campaign: attack dogs, garbage cans and plumbers

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slack economy, a spirited independent challenge and the lessons of 1988 are combining to turn an already nasty presidential campaign season into an earlier-than-usual three-way brawl.

AP analysis

The mud is flying fast and furious and in all directions. Yet the Democratic Convention doesn't begin until Monday, the Republican convention is a month and a half off and President Bush is still the only candidate with a running mate.

Vice presidential candidates usually bear "hatchet man" responsibilities — a role Dan Quayle has assumed with gusto in recent days.

With Democrat Bill Clinton zeroing in on a running mate, even prospective Democratic vice presidential nominees are facing questions on their negative-campaigning prowess.

"I'm not usually thought of as an attack dog, but I can give a pretty good partisan speech," Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., one short-list contender, told reporters Tuesday.

Clinton and Texan Ross Perot seem to be doing fine in slam-dunk politics without relying on running mates. And Bush isn't leaving all the dirty work to Quayle.

Here's why this year's contest is shaping up to what could be the nastiest ever:

— The failure of the economy to improve, born out by recent unemployment and other statistics, is robbing Bush of what had been his best high-road issue, forcing his campaign to put more emphasis on negative tactics.

— Perot's popularity has prompted a wave of early attacks on his character and record from both parties, especially from Republicans. Perot has shown no reluctance to strike back.

— Clinton seems determined not to repeat the political miscalculation made in 1988 by Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis, who failed to respond quickly to charges hurled at him by the Bush campaign.

Bush senior campaign adviser Charles Black said Bush ads should start appearing between the two conventions. Perot ads may come even sooner.

Meanwhile, Bush campaign officials will send Cabinet members, GOP governors and a variety of other prominent Republicans trooping to New York next week to provide a GOP counterpoint to the Democratic convention.

"We will be a visible presence," said Bush campaign spokeswoman Torie Clarke. "We're very well aware of the fact that Bill Clinton will get a bump out of this convention and his vice presidential nomination."

Much of the slash-and-burn skirmishing is a prelude to television ads to come, suggests Karen Johnson Cartee, a University of Alabama political scientist and a specialist in negative campaigning.

"They want to discredit their opponents before their opponents start attacking them with negative ads," she said.

When Massachusetts Gov. William Weld, a Republican, visited Arkansas on Monday to bash Clinton's record as governor, two Clinton aides sat in the audience to immediately dispute his assault and to criticize Weld's own record.

Clinton followed his aides, blasting Weld as "one of the attack dogs for George Bush."

When reports surfaced last week that Democrats had hired investigators to research Bush's finances and the savings-and-loan dealings of son Neil, Bush grumbled: "Let them muck around in my garbage can. They aren't going to find anything."

But presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater took it one step further.

"The Plumbers are back," Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater later said he didn't mean to equate the Democratic opposition-research investigation and Perot's alleged inquiries with the criminal 1972 break-in of the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate Hotel by a group known as the Plumbers.

Fitzwater probably was wise not to press the point. After all, it turned out that the Plumbers were working for a Republican president's re-election committee.

Dallas fears encephalitis outbreak

DALLAS (AP) — The first probable case of St. Louis encephalitis in Dallas County in five years has been diagnosed, prompting officials to take steps to prevent an epidemic of the mosquito-borne disease.

Officials said Tuesday that a six-year-old boy from suburban Lancaster, Texas, was treated at Children's Medical Center late last month. He has since gone home and is expected to survive.

Dr. Charles Haley, the county epidemiologist, said he is certain that the boy is suffering from St. Louis encephalitis, a virus that causes brain inflammation and can lead to death. Health officials are awaiting test results due in about a week that will confirm the diagnosis, he said.

The case has caused city and county officials to intensify mosquito-control efforts in the southeastern part of the county, where the virus seems to have surfaced.

The Dallas County Health Department also has issued a list of precautions to control mosquitoes and avoid bites.

Officials said it is too soon to begin massive, countywide control efforts.

Health officials said they are concerned because the virus has surfaced so early this summer, indicating that it may already have a foothold in the area. The early appearance also will give the virus more time to spread during the mosquito season, Dr. Haley said.

About the same time the Lancaster boy was diagnosed, officials found that a number of "sentinel chickens" in rural Lancaster and Sunnyvale, Texas, were infected with the encephalitis virus.

Astro-graphs By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

July 9, 1992

You may become involved with a new, small — but significant — social group in the year ahead. Interestingly, however, it could be material chords that bind you to one another.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Subdue the inclination today to take gambles in areas which, if they were to go awry, could cause you grief. You don't get any guarantees with long shots. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important you and your mate are in complete accord today regarding the way in which you want to handle a domestic issue that affects your children.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might not be at your best today when required to perform tedious, mental tasks. Keep focused on what you're doing and don't let your mind wander.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions that affect your finances and security are moving in your favor today. However, operating in haste could cause a costly mistake.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Strive to be self-sufficient today; don't rely on others unless it's absolutely necessary. The best way to get things done is to do them yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a possibility that, in order to achieve your objectives today, you'll make a few mistakes. Don't let this shut you down; these errors can be rectified.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The aspects indicate you should be well-received anywhere you go today. However, nothing is perfect, and there's a chance you may have to deal with one abrasive individual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Major accomplishments are possible today, but your road to success could be a bit bumpy. If you have the will to succeed, you'll find the way.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be mindful today of a recent, painful experience, or else you might be destined to repeat it. The choice is yours, and a replay isn't necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility you could experience some unexpected complications today in an arrangement from which you derive a second source of earnings. Be prepared for adjustments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not take for granted individuals you deal with on a one-to-one basis today. There's a chance those who are usually easy to get along with may be hostile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you lack enthusiasm for your endeavors, the quality of your work will suffer today. Once you take on an assignment, take pride in what you do.

CBS tries to expand shrinking sound bite

NEW YORK (AP) — Politicians have complained for years about the incredible shrinking sound bite, that snippet of political speech that television networks have trimmed nearly into oblivion.

Now CBS News has come up with an old, bold idea: no sound bite shorter than 30 seconds. There's only one problem, network officials say. The candidates don't talk that way.

"Frankly, we're skeptical whether we can keep it up," said Erik Sorensen, executive producer of "The CBS Evening News." "It's very hard to find them saying anything substantive for 30 seconds."

"Sound bite" is a broadcasting term for an uninterrupted segment of speech. "Read my lips — no new taxes," is probably the most famous recent example. It clocks in at about three seconds.

Sorensen said Tuesday that he put out a directive to CBS News reporters and producers about two weeks ago, asking them to make sure that sound bites of presidential candidates were at least 30 seconds long.

No big deal, you say? Critics of network news were left nearly speechless by the change.

"It puts them on the side of the angels," said S. Robert Lichter, co-director of the private Center for Media and Public Affairs in Washington. "What can I say? It's so nice to have something good to say about network news for a change."

Lichter's center studied this year's primary campaign and determined that the average sound bite on a network news show was 7.3 seconds long.

By contrast, the 1968 average was 42.3 seconds, according to a study by sociologist Kiku Adatto. By 1988, it was 9.8 seconds, she said.

Sorensen said he thought those figures might be a bit skimpy. But he agreed campaign coverage had become woefully superficial, and said CBS has been trying to provide greater depth.

The 30-second mandate became necessary to break the ingrained habits of reporters and producers, he said. He added that it might not last.

Although Sorensen denied it, some people suggested CBS News might be lengthening its sound bites in response to competition from talk shows, which have given candidates virtually unlimited amounts of air time this year.

"I think the networks finally figured out that they'd gone too far ... when the candidates found other forums where they could get their message straight to the voters," Lichter said.

Both Ross Perot and Bill Clinton, the two candidates who have appeared the most on untraditional television forums, have complained about sound-bite journalism.

"Let's not sound-bite it," has been the independent Perot's stock response to questions about abortion. And Democrat Clinton has complained that he's a "lousy sound-bite politician."

Other networks don't appear to be jumping on the bandwagon. NBC officials did not respond to a request for comment, but they were quoted earlier in the week as saying they had no sound bite "formula."

Paul Friedman, executive producer of ABC's "World News Tonight," issued a terse sound bite: "We will continue to exercise our news judgment."

A spokeswoman for CNN said the cable network had a new 30-second guideline, but CNN, which does nothing but news, has always used far longer excerpts than the other networks.

Pentgon drafting favorable letter to GD

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Defense Department has given General Dynamics a pat on the back for its efforts to resolve quality control problems with the F-16.

But the letter, following a two-month review of problems on the plane's production line, won't mean the end of General Dynamics' work, said company spokesman Joe Stout.

"We've been monitoring the measures that we agreed upon with the Air Force on quality control," Stout said. "We have done well. And we hope that the Air Force agrees with that."

The review period, in which GD's Fort Worth division was supposed to show improvement in the planes' production, ended Monday.

The Defense Department in April issued a directive complaining of problems with F-16 parts not meeting specifications, unauthorized repairs to parts and failure to correct workmanship problems.

"The letter is being written even as we speak," said Jim Thornberry, public affairs officer for Defense Contract Management District South, a part of the Defense Department.

Thornberry said the letter was expected to be completed and delivered to the St. Louis-based contractor today.

"It is favorable," said Thornberry in Dallas. "We are going to tell them we like their progress to date, and to keep up the good work. But we'll still be keeping an eye on things."

The commander of the Pentagon's defense plant representative office at GD, Air Force Col. Jim Rice, is writing the letter.

Stout said GD workers wanted to continue short-term improvements made in the review period.

"This doesn't all stop now because we get a letter from the Air Force or because we passed yesterday," he said. "We will continue to work on quality improvement because what we have done is to step up a continuous process."

Failure to comply with the Defense Department's directive could have meant millions of dollars in lost government payments to GD and possibly caused the company to shut down F-16 production.

"We have had the same quality concerns all along. But we did not identify anything specific in this last letter as I understand it," said Thornberry. "We will continue to monitor the situation. We don't plan to do anything ugly."

Dr. Gott By Peter M. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes diarrhea to occur within a half hour to one hour after eating in a restaurant? I eat bland foods, no gravies or sauce and still have a problem. It's very annoying.

DEAR READER: You are probably experiencing an exaggerated form of the gastro-colic reflex, a normal reaction that doesn't indicate disease. When the stomach begins contracting to digest food, this triggers intestinal peristalsis that may cause diarrhea.

Of course, you could be allergic to certain foods or be intolerant to lactose (milk sugar), in which case, eating these foods (or untreated milk products) could cause diarrhea. Gastrinoma, a type of stomach tumor, is a rare cause of diarrhea following a meal.

I suggest you describe your symptoms to your doctor. You'll need some detective work to solve the puzzle of why your diarrhea occurs when it does.

Also, you'll have to experiment with ways to treat the problem. For the gastro-colic reflex, you may have to eat smaller portions, chew your food thoroughly and consider prescription medication, such as Donnatal, an anti-spasmodic. Your doctor can advise you further.

Because irritable bowel is a common cause of diarrhea, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter is beginning her fourth month of pregnancy. In the past few weeks, she's had a problem urinating every two or three days and must go to her local hospital for catheter insertion. What is the cause of this?

DEAR READER: Although your daughter's problem is one she should take up with her obstetrician, I'll hazard a guess. During pregnancy, as the uterus progressively enlarges, it may press down upon the bladder, causing frequent urination that is painless.

In rare instances, if the anatomical relation of the bladder and uterus is particularly altered, urination may be difficult. By and large, this harmless annoyance is part and parcel of pregnancy.

Nonetheless, your daughter should ask her doctor about it because preventive treatment may be necessary. Such treatment may include mild medicine to stimulate appropriate bladder contractions.
