SCORES KILLED, CROPS DESTROYED, AS GREATEST DELUGE OF YEARS INUNDATES BALKAN COUNTRY

TROOPS CALLED OUT, BUT UNABLE TO COPE WITH DISASTER

BUCHAREST, June 6.—Floods throughout Rumania have killed scores of persons, disrupted communications everywhere, caused huge damage to crops and property and cut off railway communication between Rumania and Central Europe, following a deluge of rain Saturday and Sunday.

Early estimates place the number of dead at about 100. Forty three are dead in Bessarabia. Towns are partially submerged, cement bridges have been torn away and railroad tracks washed out for great distances.

A church and 23 houses collapsed in Kishinev. The military depot at Visternina was flooded and 800 carloads of timber were swept away. Electric power stations in many places have been wrecked.

Two regiments of troops, dispatched into an especially stricken area, were reported unable to cope with the disaster and additional military units were dispatched to aid them.

The floods are the worst in Rumania since 1918. Most of the crops are believed to have been ruined. Several persons were killed by falling stones.

Uncounted bodies were swept from the inundated towns of Odessa, Patesti and Campineu into the swollen torrent that had been the Mlevo river. Survivors from these towns are now billeted at Fiscani.

In many places along railway lines in the provinces of Moldavia, Buzau and Farel, tracks were swept out of position for thousands of yards.

Dispatches from Orshova tell of an immense avalanche which covered a mile and a half of track and buried highways.

Dr. Hill, a powerful man of 34 years, who was acting as relief guard at the farm, is held in the county jail on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Ziegler. Hill's bond, fixed at $10,000, has not yet been furnished.

Ziegler died from wounds inflicted by a lash or some other weapon and not from natural causes, the report of an autopsy held over the body by Dr. Ernest Wright, county physician declared.

Dr. Wright said there were two deep lashes across Ziegler's back, each one half inch wide and nearly an inch deep. Either was sufficient to bring about the prisoner's death, the doctor pointed out.

FOURTEEN CARS LEAVE TRACK IN DEEP CUT WEST OF POST, BLOCKING SANTA FE TRAFFIC ALL SUNDAY

SIGHTSEERS MILL AROUND SCENE OF WRECK, WHILE RAILROAD MEN LABOR TO CLEAR TRACKS; NONE ARE HURT

Fourteen cars on an east bound Santa Fe freight went off the track in a deep cut on the cap rock nine miles west of Post at 12:42 Sunday morning, and were there all day yesterday, completely blocking traffic on the line. Lubbock was without mail from the east all day, and two southbound passenger trains and a number of freight trains cooled their heels in Slaton while a wrecking crew of fifty or more labored to clear the track.

They were still working at the job late last night. The cars, one oil tanker and thirteen loaded with ore, were thrown against the sides of the cut and three were left sideways across the track. The oil car was jammed into one of other cars. Most of the train, about 25 cars being left on the track, proceeded on its way after the crash. No one was hurt.

Large crowds milled around the cut all day long, looking over the wreck, and taking pictures of it. Much care had to be taken about smoking, to keep the oil car from being ignited. Only a small portion of the oil was spilled.

The exact cause of the wreck was unknown. One Santa Fe employee in Post declared that the oil sloshing around in the tank car as the train went down the grade caused it to go off the track and drag the other cars with it. Claud Miller of Slaton said he was told that part of the gear on the tank car dropped under the wheels.

EIDSON PUTS STILLS IN PULPIT

SAN ANTONIO PASTOR SHOWS FLOCK HOW HOCH IS MADE

SAN ANTONIO, June 6.—While two whiskey stills adorned the platform tonight, Reverend M. T. Eidson, pastor of Beacon Hill Baptist church, assailed sympathizers of liquor law violators.

The two stills made a strange contrast in the pulpit. One of them was a copper apparatus of 250 gallon capacity, while the other was a galvanized tea kettle of one gallon capacity.

An audience of nearly 2,000 smiled and then broke into laughter as immense hooch maker was brought from an ante room by two tons, as Eidson said.

Eidson explained how whiskey was made. At the outset of his sermon, he defied any city or county officer to molest him and challenged any of them to question the facts he purposed to present, and declared he was ready to accept any offer by any officer to make his sermon a personal matter.

"I know a still looks out of place in a pulpit," said Eidson in explaining his purpose in exhibiting the apparatus, "but it is well known that the success of the motion picture business is due to the presentation of pictures on a screen that all may see. And so that you may see with your own eyes how the law is violated in Bexar county, I have brought these stills into the pulpit. These stills were both made in San Antonio and the large one was captured by federal prohibition officers seven miles out. Why couldn't the sheriff have seen it first?"

The Churches Sunday

First Presbyterian Church

In his sermon at the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Jack M. Lewis, spoke in part as follows:

"Keep yourselves in the love of God." (1 John 2:27). Most travelers in foreign countries follow about the same route of travel. They see the same cathedrals, art galleries, and bits of scenery that thousands before them have seen. Once in a long while someone insists on leaving the well beaten routes and exploring less frequented places of interest. It is safe to say that there are many beautiful things in those countries which do not lie along the frequent routes. There are mountains and lakes and brooks—scenes of beauty that cannot be counted—only those who step out of the well beaten paths ever see.

There are well-beaten routes in the Scripture chapters that are read over and over again by the multitude who are content to see and know what the multitude sees and knows. But whoever goes into the unfrequented places finds beautiful things. Here in Jude, hidden away where those who follow the usual Biblical route would never see it, is this "Keep yourselves in the love of God." We should make it a point to travel these unfrequented routes and therefore we desire to examine this unusual text this morning.

This text is short and at the same time full of warning. This verse that we have before us marks the turning point of the letter. For a while the writer hurled a thunder-storm of judgment against certain godless disturbers of the purity and peace of the church, but this seems to spend itself almost abruptly, and the author seems to go to the other extreme. The epistle gathers to a close among the quiet sun-set light of a sky that has been clarified by the storm. The last calm sentences are directly for the saints whom he loves. "But ye beloved building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life." After this climax has been reached he then closes it with his message of love.

1. Keep yourselves in the love of God. Our text places a great duty upon us, the duty of self-keeping. But what is the meaning of the command? It is not a command to love Him necessarily but to keep ourselves in His love, objects of His loving. Do you know how to do it? If one should become sick from overwork or something of the kind and the doctor should prescribe for that one that he work for a short time and spend his time in the fresh air and sunshine, would he know what to do? If he was wise he would do as he was told, he would remember the injunction, "keep yourself in the sunshine." Just so the command that comes to us from our text is just as plain and easy of interpretation as the example I have used.

It is necessary that we keep out of those shadows, those dark damp shadows of life where Satan meets us to drag us down. Keep out of it and keep in the love of God.

There are two sides to this keeping: a human side and a divine side. First we must keep ourselves in the love of God.

2. But our text gives us more than just a definite command laying down a positive duty. It does further and gives us the means of this self-keeping. The two preceding clauses give to us the means—"building up yourselves on your most holy faith," and "praying in the Holy Spirit."

"Building up yourselves on your most holy faith." The Christian character is a slow growth. You have to build by a plan. You have to see to it that each day has its growth, each day its task. You have to be content with laying one brick at a time in the great structure. It is a lifelong task but till the whole is finished. And not until we pass from earth to heaven does our building work cease. Continuous effort is the condition of progress.

Now that is building ourselves up on our faith, but the text reads, "on our most holy faith." What then constitutes the most holy faith? Faith is high and holy in proportion as the object which it believes is high and holy. The higher and holier the object believed, to that degree the faith becomes higher and holier. Jesus Christ is the most holy object of faith, therefore the belief that brings about a right relation to Him deserves to be called the most holy faith. Just so as we build ourselves up on our faith in Jesus Christ do we build ourselves up along every other line.

There is a great source of inspiration which urges us on to build ourselves up on our most holy faith, and to pray in the Holy Spirit in order that we might keep ourselves in the love of God. What is the final goal what is the focal point of all our encouragement in the grand task of our life. Is it to make money? Is it to gain a world-wide reputation? Is it to have honors thrust upon us? No, it is nothing so poor as all of that. The inspiration for keeping ourselves in the love of God, as we read here "Looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life." No other encouragement could be so complete as this. What is mercy any way? Mercy is kindness to the undeserving and in that point it is even higher and grander than grace. Grace is kindness to the non-deserving, to those who have no claim upon it and yet may not be in themselves so unworthy. Mercy is more than that; it is kindness to the sinful, it is kindness to the wicked, it is kindness to the lost. Now we know that we are unworthy we know that we are undeserving and yet we know that we can look for that mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ. We know that we can look up in our blundering and constant way and see that divine yet brotherly compassion which the Lord is smiling down upon us. But my friends the mercy of the Savior goes even further than merely keeping us in our isolation from becoming lonesome. It comes to us when the isolation of death hovers over us and it carries us to the throne of God and to those mansions that are prepared for unworthy recipients. It is the mercy of Christ unto eternal life to which we are permitted to look. It would be inspiration enough if we were only permitted to see what the mercy of Christ does for us in this world, but when we see that this mercy extends on out into eternity it is more than we can comprehend. It places us on the safe side when life's flickering candle is extinguished and it keeps us on that side throughout an endless eternity. Look for the mercy of the Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life as the inspiration of your life.

Now if we are Christian men and women then we must keep ourselves in the love of God. We must keep God loving us. That is, we must be careful not to disobey Him, we must be thoughtful for fear that we will displease Him, we must endeavor to render any service to Him that is possible for us to render. We must keep ourselves in the sunshine of his love. To do this we must "Build ourselves up on the most holy faith and then Pray in the Holy Spirit, using for our inspiration the mercy of Our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life. Your life is powerless unless you are keeping it in the love of God."

First Methodist Church

Regular communion services were held at the First Methodist church, at the evening service, Rev. E. E. White preached one of his series of sermons on the evils confronting America. He chose as his subject: "Religion, America's Chief Asset."

He gave as his text, "For what man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" In opening his sermon he gave several of the assets of America. He further stated:

"In Jeremiah 21, we read, 'Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.' In fact, there are only two ways for individuals or for nations one is the right and the other is wrong, one is life and the other is death. We know that America must take one of these ways. Then danger is which is confronting the nation today is the problem of choosing the right one. Would the text change one word and say 'What is a nation profited if it shall gain the whole world and lose its own soul, or what shall a nation give in exchange for its own soul?'"

"I am here to say tonight that, regardless of America's natural resources and other material assets her asset is religion. The religious ideal of any people is the chief factor in determining the usefulness and length of life of the people. It is well for us to call again the fact that the fall of a nation is due, not to physical causes or outward force, but rather to wrong choices, moral weakness and natural misjudgment. In other words, nations falls from causes within and we must keep in mind that the strength and life of a nation are due to the right ideals, moral valuations and spiritual solidarity. The choice of an ideal is the important thing in the life of an individual in the life of a nation. There are those who have fallen because their ideals have been based on material things. With nations the chief thoughts have been ones of commerce, trade supremacy and military prowess.

"This danger confronts every nation at some time. It is the danger confronting America today. 'What is a nation profited, if it gain the whole world and lose its soul.' The choice of our early American fathers was one of moral and religious ideals, they came to this land in quest of religious freedom with a quest of religious freedom with a deep consciousness of their need for God. These early settlers formed for the most part a dangerous group, with one purpose and one ideal, few factions or groups with diverse views. For the most part, religiously they were pure Protestant stock and Anglo-Saxon blood.

"In contrast to these conditions we now have many conflicting elements. The old central loyalty is gone. In many places there is confusion, friction and loss of national unity. Today, large importance has been placed on employers, associations, labor unions, women's federated clubs, clubs, trusts and combinations and countless other groups and organizations. Special interests, over sided views, sectional projects and states' rights are over stressed. There are more marked divisions in religious interests than ever before in the history of America. Large increases in the foreign element was resulted in rapid growth of Catholicism. The result has been misunderstanding between Protestantism and Catholicism. There has been an attempt in certain localities to legislate against the theory of evolution. All these things tend to deflect the purpose for which they were instituted. Such procedures deal with symptoms and not with causes.

There is only one way to solve the situation and unite the people and that is to bring them under the power of moral idealism and a religious passion. There must be an atmosphere of good will and sympathetic understanding between the people. No one denies but what our wealth is stupendous. Our ideals seem to be to develop our natural resources that we may clothe and feed the world. But we must remember that it was the policy of Babylon, Egypt, Assyria and Rome. The nations fall-ments of commerce and multiplied inventions. Science has given the nations power in war and yet Germany wet down because of the works of science. "Once again, no longer will education work the miracle of our salvation. No sane person will be little education for it has a large place in the world. Wisdom is the application for the glory of God and the good of humanity. "Yet again, no longer will we believe that law can save the world. Our statesmen have been telling us that law held the key for the solution of the problems of peace. But if everything should change, Jesus is the same as yesterday, today and forever. 'Other foundations can no man lay that is land, which is Jesus Christ.' Napoleon said when in exile 'My life once spent with the brilliance of a diadem, but now who cares for me? Caesar, Alexander, and I, dreamed of universal empire. Where are they? I shall soon be forgotten, but Jesus died eighteen hundred years ago after founding an empire of love, and this hour there are millions of men who would die for him.' Ah, the old book stands like Eddystone lighthouse, despite all swirling tides and buffeting storms, casting a steady light over the broad seas. The world has been casting about for something better, but has not as yet found it. Art, civilization, philosophy, theology, statesmanship, science have made colossal strides forward but Jesus stands just where he did two thousand years ago and the world is still at his feet. Yes we have discovered and so has the world, that the only person not needing to be changed and therefore never to be changed is the principles of the Person that isone with the unchanged God."

First Christian Church

"Of old thou hast the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; a vesture shall thou change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end." This was the text of Rev. W. P. Jennings' sermon at the First Christian church yesterday morning. He chose as his subject, "The Changing World."

19th Street Methodist Church

"Revolutions" was the opening sermon of the revival meeting which is in swing at the 19th Street Methodist church. Rev. D. C. Ross preached the opening sermon at the morning service. He gave as his text: "Oh, Lord, I have heard thy speech, and I am afraid." In effect of his talk could be gathered the general idea of the various revivals known to man. There is the physical revival man is made well after a long sickness of accident. There is the moral revival where the man departs from all immoral things. There is the political revival where all things politically used take on new life. There is the revival in art and literature where changes are made for better or worse. Almost every walk of life has a revival some time but the great-est revival known to man is where he throws aside all evil and accepts the word and belief of Jesus Christ. This is the time for all men to renew their hold on life and Christ and turn over a new leaf. The revival starts in the church and ends in the church. The church must bring on the revival and it is the duty of the members to pray that it may bring bountiful results. APPEALS BURGLARY TERM

By United Press. AUSTIN, June 6.—John York, convicted in San Saba county of burglary and sentenced to two years, has filed appeal in the court of criminal appeals.

Sunday night the crowd was very large. Subject, "The Devils Auction." Mr. Wrye read from Matt. 7:13-14 and based his sermon on the Broad way and Narrow way mentioned in those verses. He said in part "that two great beings were bidding on the human family. Satan offers the assurance of sin while on earth, which don't last long. God offers protection and divine joy here and eternal joy forevermore in the realm of the glory land. God has emphasized his strong bid by sacrificing His Son for man's redemption. He has agreed to pardon and remember our sins no more forever. The devils bid is so insignificant that it is sheer foolishness to serve him. Those who are a bid in by Christ have the assurance of earthly protection and helpfulness by the angels, the Holy Spirit, Jesus Christ and God-Almighty.

THE VISION OF GOD—"How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!" Nu. 24:5.

TRUE HEROISM

Often during the stress of unusual circumstances men will perform unusually heroic deeds. During the excitement of battle or a big fire or other catastrophe a man will rise out of his usual timid self and perform veritable miracles of courage and valor. The number of heroic deeds performed in cold blood, however, is relatively few.

Thus the action of seventy United States soldiers stationed in the Philippine islands in offering themselves to be infected with the deadly dengue fever, that their behavior might be studied by medical men with a view to reducing the mortality from the dreaded sickness is to be greatly commended. No bands played, no thunder of guns stimulated their patriotic fervor. Yet calmly and deliberately they offered themselves, real sacrifices indeed upon the altar of progress. They took a terrible chance that mankind might benefit from their suffering, and perhaps death.

It was death that they faced. Not death by shrapnel, bullet or shell, but the long, tortured, lingering death of a tropical disease, isolated from their fellows, alone.

The war department has acknowledged the high order of gallantry thus displayed by citing the seventy soldiers for displaying "a high sense of duty and soldierly conduct worthy of emulation by others."

But this is not enough. Through the suffering of these men army doctors have obtained valuable information for the treatment and prevention of the disease and the infection has been reduced to 20 in every 1,000 whereas in 1924 80 out of every 1,000 in the Philippines suffered attacks of the fever. It was a vain chance that these heroic seventy took. They produced results.

Thus the whole world should unite with the war department in commending these soldiers for the performance of a deed of great courage and valour outside their line of duty.

SEQUI-CENTENNIAL

Naturally the whole nation is anxious to see the sesqui-Centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia be a success. The federal government, several states and many foreign countries are participating in the exposition which features the celebration and the city of Philadelphia is outdoing itself in an effort to make it a huge success.

From the start however plans for the celebration have gone awry. Several states and counties backed out at the last minute, friction developed in the management, construction of the buildings was delayed, on the opening day it rained—in other words everything has gone dead wrong.

However the old saying is that a poor beginning makes a good ending, and in this case it is certainly to be hoped that this is true. We really can't afford to have it be anything but a success, for it will not reflect alone against Philadelphia but against the whole nation. It is an important anniversary we are celebrating at the sesqui-centennial and factional differences should be dropped long enough to insure the co-operation necessary to a splendid exposition.

REGIONAL DISARMAMENT

According to the dispatches from Europe the various nations are quite pleased with the suggestion of the American delegation to the League of Nations disarmament parley that disarmament might well be considered from a regional standpoint. Europe is surprised it is said at the lack of a dictatorial attitude on the part of America, having learned to expect it from the naval disarmament sessions held in Washington.

Europe is particularly pleased at the sensible viewpoint of the American delegation for it is common opinion that there should be an agreement for Russia in Asia and another for Russia in Europe. This is deemed necessary because the armies of China and Japan hold the attention of one section of the Muscovite military forces and the attention of another wing of the Russian army is held by the forces of Germany, central Europe and France. Other situations are easily called to mind where the same idea would prevail.

Regional disarmament then is the thing that America immediately recognized its desirability has done wonders in promoting a completely friendly atmosphere for the coming parley. There is no doubt that the American attitude has done much to better the relations between the United States and the European nations. It has already taken some of the sting out of the alleged dictatorial policy which governed the Washington naval conference as well as the failure of the senate to ratify the Paris peace treaty.

Disarmament is a peculiar problem and one which can not be approached from the scientific angle where everything is subject to mathematical calculation. In disarmament there must be some give and take—and a readily adaptable form of agreement which in itself contains the necessary features to adapt it to the needs of every signatory nation. Disarmament is a good thing. It can not come all at once, but certainly a reasonable and logical attitude on our part, such as has been displayed, will do much to bring the realization of the ideal nearer.

THE NARCOTIC TRAFFIC

It must have been a terrible jolt for the representatives of the various nations participating in the League of Nations advisory committee on the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs when Arthur Woods, former police commissioner of New York city, stated rather testily that there had been too much diplomacy and too little rough shod police action for the suppression of the world's narcotic outlaws. The committee, it will be remembered, is now engaged in its eighth session since 1923 without having produced anything in the way of results except voluminous conversation.

Mr. Woods, with complete justice, deprecated this system and informed the committee that no diplomatic question was involved. The real fight he contends is against the rich, powerful and well organized drug traffickers and there is no doubt that it is primarily a police fight in which international police must act strongly and free from the fetters of diplomatic conversations that are not pertinent to the issue at hand.

There is no doubt that Mr. Woods is right. He had considerable experience in the job of combating the drug traffic and he has learned that action first and talk afterwards is a more effective combination for the elimination of any vice than the program of talking first with very little action afterwards.

Consequently we must somehow get away from this kid glove method of handling drug runners. Opium barons are no better than any other malefactors. In fact they are much worse, for the stuff they deal in dermines the body and the mind—the very soul itself. It destroys morals, aids crime, counteracts every agency for good and degrades the unfortunate victims.

That anyone should profit by such a traffic is abhorrent to a normal person and consequently it is to be hoped that the league's drug parley will adopt a more energetic campaign as a substitute for so much talk.

CONFLICTING INTERESTS

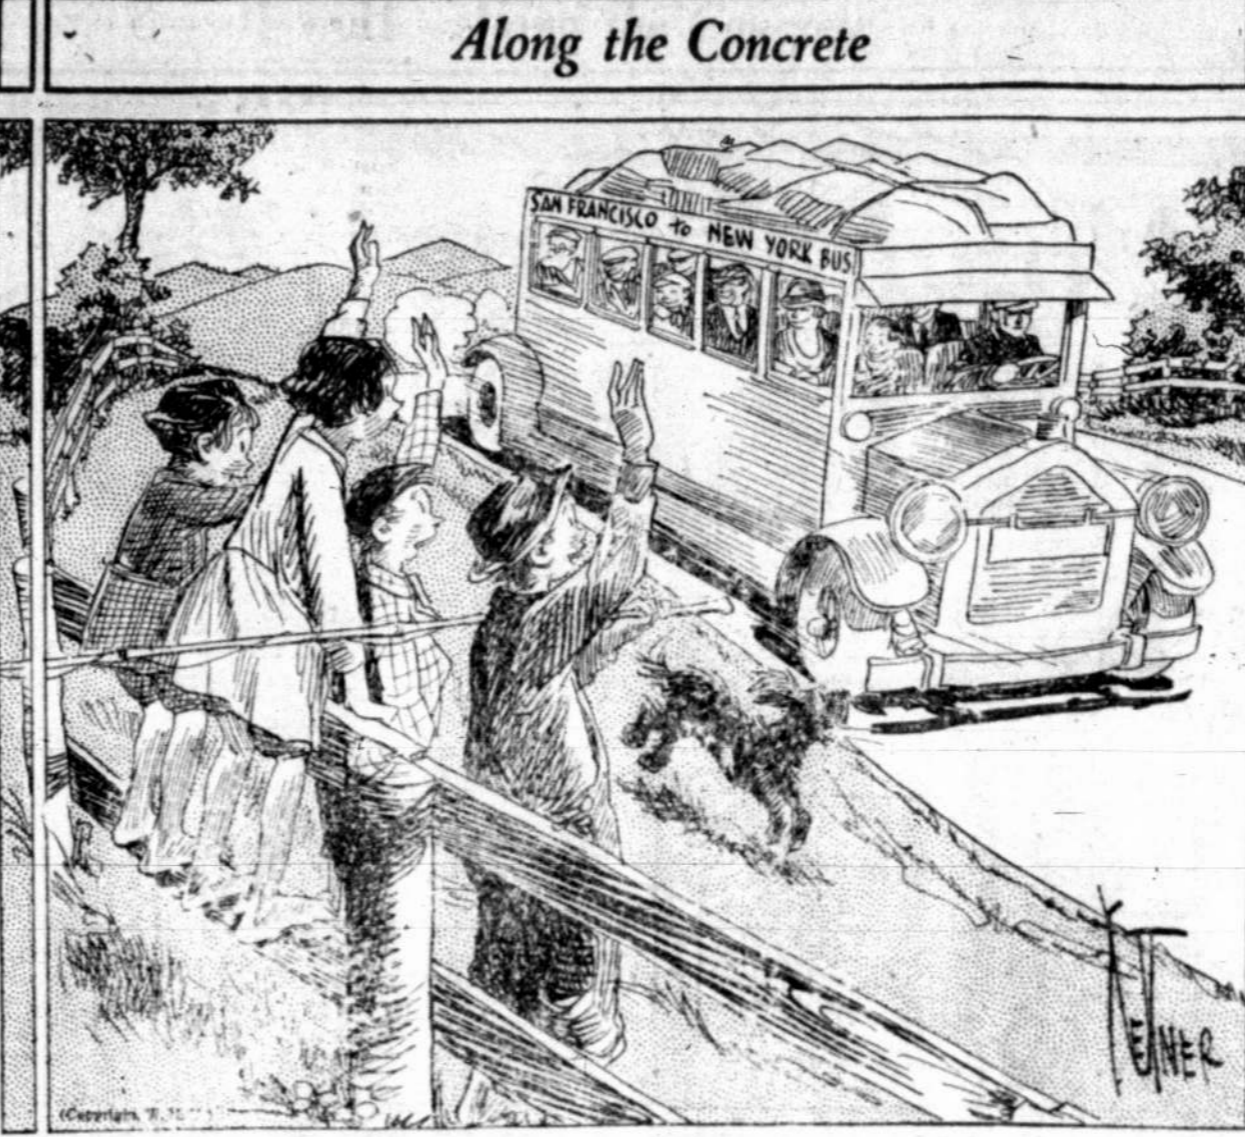

During the discussion of farm bills in the senate several very interesting points developed that carried with them a note of irony. Western farmers are demanding relief, either by direct subsidy or government guarantee earnings on capital involved. Railroad men are demanding 5 3-4 per cent earnings on their valuations. Telephone companies are demanding rates that will permit them to earn at least 8 per cent on capital stock. Big magazines ask the government to pay part of their postage bill on the plea that it is for the benefit of the public. From many sources come demands for increased earnings regardless of the real valuations involved, either by way of tariff protection or direct subsidy. Discussion of these demands in connection with the charge that agriculture also demands a subsidy brought from Senators Watson and Cummins admissions that the farmer is far outside the circle of tariff beneficiaries. Senator Cummins, who has been a leading railroad supporter, and always counted as a staunch protectionist, rather grimly admitted that: "Every time a man pays more for a manufactured article than he would have paid if an import duty had not been laid upon it, he pays a subsidy." With about one-third of all industry directly dependent on agriculture, to say nothing of the necessity for food supply, congress faces a most difficult problem—intensified because of political pressure from other vested interests who assert that the farmer must work out his own salvation. But they don't want him to do it at the ballot box.

CHANGING NAMES

A rose by any other name would smell as sweet, there is no doubt, but the inhabitants of Hicksville, Long Island, N. Y., didn't feel that way about it recently when a considerable section of the village wanted to change the name because of the odium of the word "hick." When the matter came to a vote the whole town voted conservatively to keep the old, time honored, if slightly humorous cognomen. But in this giving way to sentiment and love of the old associations the inhabitants of Hicksville have ignored entirely the psychological advantage of having a name that will convey a sense of the town's importance rather than a name which would inevitably inspire the visitor to say, "Oh, the place where the hicks come from." After all what difference does it make what the name of the place is? It is the place itself and the inhabitants that make it a desirable or an undesirable place in which to live or do business. So we may say that the conservatives who so loyally voted to keep the old name were really cutting off their nose to spite their face. It would have been the same town in any event and if a new name would have increased its material prosperity then it should have been adopted.

PRAISE WOMAN

The women of this country should think well of Sir Charles Higham, visiting British advertising man. He recently declared that "but for women, men would not work. They are the inspiration and the motive force that push us on to great heights. My advice to the men of this country is to watch out or in the next few years, women will be their masters in business as they are in everything else." We do not know whether Sir Charles is married or not but our readers are entitled to guess.

Along the Concrete

So Think We

We think that we would be very much embarrassed for that committee of ladies to come in and "bawl" us out about referring to the dress styles, etc., as we have been told they are going to do, but otherwise, we would still be of the same mind, and believe that short skirts and bobbed hair would be largely responsible for it.

We think about fifty per cent of the women who have bobbed hair would give a lot more to get it back than it cost to have it bobbed, but they just won't acknowledge it.

We think there are more people in this day and time who will not acknowledge the "corn" than ever before in the history of the world.

We think no one should learn to chew tobacco until they have learned to spit at least fourteen feet in the clear. That would very likely save the sidewalks.

We think if all the golf players would put in the same amount of time cutting weeds off their lots in Lubbock, it would be a much cleaner town.

We think there is no particular harm in playing golf, but there are so many other things that could be done with the same amount of energy.

We think that possibly the reason for so many divorces is that the husband had never seen the real face of the bride until after the wedding, and was heartbrokenly disappointed.

We think that no one has any right to criticize people for matching nickles for fun and then go home and play a game of bridge for the same reason.

We think it is no worse for a young man to match nickles for the drinks than it is for his mother to match cards for the prize at the bridge party.

We think that your town is what you make it. Lubbock is just a reflection of your wishes and your efforts.

We think that of all things that are overdone, work stands at the very bottom of the list.

We think that some people can not think a few feet ahead. Take for instance the fellow who drives up and stops his car in the middle of the street and jams traffic—he is a good example.

We think there is one thing about this drug store complexion. If it makes a girl's face look hard, there is the consolation that it is only temporary, and will some day come off, and the sweet soft complexion will soon return.

We think there is a vast difference between a general strike and a strike on generals, but seemingly the country can not get along without a certain amount of both.

We think of a lot of people worry about troubles that are a long way off.

It Is Reported

That the highway connecting Lubbock with Crosbyton and other points in that direction has been all but impassable since the recent rains but that work to drag out the rough places and fill some of the mud hole will be under way early today. A great deal of effective work has been done on the roads in this vicinity which are in such condition as to make motoring enjoyable.

That the boys of Lubbock are enjoying the county park lake, and feel that the county commissioners are at the head of the list of their good friends.

That a number of boy scouts accompanied by their parents went to Post yesterday to see the C. W. Post Memorial boy scout camp.

That with the Texas Utilities company spending half a million dollars on its plant here and the city dads making plans to spend one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the city plant, Lubbock is to become known for being among the high powered cities of the state.

That some of the boys who will be heard in police court today about the charges of speeding made against them yesterday will frown on Chief May's anti-speeding ruling.

That many parents of Tech students will attend convocation at the college this morning, and will have an opportunity to see what a splendid institution has been builded here.

That hundreds of inquiries are being made about the summer school at the Texas Technological college that will open here Friday, and that enrollment will doubtless be much larger than was first expected.

That a visitor to Lubbock yesterday asked if the building activity here is traceable to discovery of oil or some other abnormal development, and registered real surprise when told that Lubbock is making this substantial growth on the wealth of the well founded industries of the South Plains.

That Lubbock merchants are enjoying better business than at this season last year, and that a majority of them are genuinely pleased with conditions. Much of the buying that is being done at this time is due to the confidence held in the continued prosperity of South Plains people. Business will sure enough hum when the bumper crops being grown now are harvested.

HOME EDUCATION

FREEDOM THROUGH OBE-DIENCE

By NELLIA GARDNER WHITE
 "The child's first school is the family."—Froebel.

Earliest childhood is none too soon for us to start building for our children's later freedom. It is necessary for everyone to be obedient to the ordinary demands of living, necessary that this obedience be automatic as mature years come, that the mind may be free to grow unhampered. Obedience is the bugbear of many a mother; not gained early, it daily seems more difficult for the mother to secure and the child to attain.

One of the chief reasons for disobedience is the expectation of disobedience, and this is one of the easiest habits to form. Coming in from play, going to bed, eating all that's on the plate, washing the hands, giving up playthings to others—can't it be true that most people expect children to find these things disagreeable? Do they not expect the little ones to object to them rather than to give a prompt, obedient response? Don't mothers, unconsciously perhaps, prepare to meet objections before they are put into words? Don't they often begin to coax before the children have refused to do what they desire? An expectation that a thing will be performed often goes a long, long way toward the performance itself.

And then there is the "don't" mother. Instead of "John, please come in," she says, "John, I don't think I'd stay out any longer!" It makes an unbelievable difference whether or not we make our commands positive. Do we think before we give a command whether it's necessary? Do we order sometimes just because we're older and in a position to order? Probably over half the commands we give might better never have been uttered—either because they weren't necessary or because we don't see that they are obeyed, once given. There are often occasions when we become annoyed by the inevitable confusion of play. We say, "Don't do this!" and "Don't do that!" until half the joy is squeezed out of the play. And the noise or the laughter or the argument may have been perfectly legitimate to childhood and

Are our tones loud and argumentative in the least wrong or harmful, tentative or quiet and assured of equally quiet responses when we speak? Haven't you seen time and again a mother grow angry because a child used the same tone for reply that she herself had used for reproof? Yes, it does sound different when on the lips of a child. But perhaps not so different to the child. Whatever we're going to demand of the children let us also demand of ourselves.

Above all let us be patient. Ten minutes of patience is worth ten hours of stormy commands and pleadings. Children are but children; do not be surprised if they make mistakes. Even in our maturity we make mistakes, don't we? Think how much longer we've had to learn. An oak does not grow in a day. The perfect freedom may come very slowly but it will be the result of learning lessons of obedience.

THREE MEN ASTONISHED

In October one Pedersen left Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, on a trapping expedition. Nothing having been heard from him, three other trappers set out to his aid and rescue during the latter part of April. Nothing was heard from them after three weeks, although their return was expected within the week.

When Commander Byrd returned from his North Pole flight he undertook to relieve the three trappers and finally caught sight of Miller Point, the last place where the men might be found. Anxious eyes located in the far distance a hut and when the plane was within a mile, a human form appeared, then two more, all waving their arms in great excitement.

Commander Byrd dropped food and supplies to the men and a message and then returned to Kings Bay where his exploit won him a warm place in the hearts of the people. The sight of the great giant airplane, flying over their Arctic refuge, breaking the stillness of the icy waste, must have amazed the three trappers. The airplane made contact with the men in one hour, covering a distance that would have required three or four days' hard sledding.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I've NEVER SEEN A COW

I live upon a New York street,
 Near where the "L" and "cross-town" meet;
 It's not so bad; we have a tree;
 And when the wind blows from the sea,
 We smell the salt—but I'll allow I never yet have seen a cow.

I've seen the lions in the zoo,
 The tigers, camels, zebras, too;
 And other beasts from over-seas
 I see as often as I please;
 It's queer, I think, but yet, somehow,
 I've never, never, seen a cow.

I've seen their pictures in a book;
 They're black, or white, or brown or red,
 With curving horns upon their head;
 And Ma describes them, anyhow—
 When she was young, she knew a cow.

I'd like to live on a farm, I think,
 And have a cow's fresh milk to drink;
 If we were poor, I'd go to Fresh Air,
 Or rich, we'd spend the summer there;
 But we're just middling—yet, somehow,
 Some day, I'm going to see a cow.
 Of course, I know just how they look;

HUBBERS YET UNDEFEATED, DEFEATING HEREFORD INDEPENDENTS YESTERDAY BY SCORE OF 5 TO 0 BEFORE BIG CROWD

And sure enough "Stingy" Hudspeth was tight yesterday afternoon at the Deaf Smith county capital and allowed the Independents of Hereford only two hits. For five sessions Hudspeth went with out being tapped for a bingle. He gathered seven strike outs off of the Hereford hitters. Tate, ace moundman of the Hereford, hurled a neat game, striking out six of the Hubbers and allowed eight well scattered hits.

"Sniper" Connelly couldn't hardly hit the ball. In four trips to the bat he clouted out two for seven bases, a homer and a triple. No one was on base at the time the home run was rapped. He scored Sheppard on his double.

"Alex" Hensley, rightfielder of the Hubber crew, in the 8th slid to first base and broke his foot. Hensley will be out of the Hubber lineup about a month. There were only nine ball players on the trip and Jas. R. Dow finished the game at right field.

Since the first meeting of the Hubber and Hereford nine the Hereford aggregation has improved their club in many respects. They are well seasoned and will show the teams of the Panhandle some real ball playing.

5 Umps, 5 Pitchers, Still Dark Lads Lost to Visitors

The Big Spring Mexicans downed the Lubbock Sluggers 9 to 7, in a tight ten inning game at Merrill park yesterday afternoon. The local dark lads played fair ball but errors was the cause of their downfall. Five pitchers were used by the Sluggers while the brown skins from Big Spring relied on two.

One of the features of the game was the continual changing of umpires. Five different ump's were used and a white man was called finally to squash the arguments. Batteries: Big Spring: Verge, Garcia and Subia; Lubbock: Money, Pirpo, Gibson and Robinson.

GIANTS SLAUGHTER CUBS; YANKS LUCK OUT

A lucky victory for the Yankees at Cleveland and the slaughter of the Cubs by the Giants featured a handful of major leads games Sunday.

Rain ended the New York-Cleveland contest at the end of the 7th inning, with the visitors ahead, 6 to 5. The Indians had just knocked Waite Hoyt from the box, and appeared likely to overhaul the Yankees when the deluge descended.

Three home runs were made in the Polo grounds as the Giants defeated the Cubs, 16 to 3. New York scored 8 runs in the fifth and followed this with six in the sixth, including homers by Kelly and Snyder Harrett contributed the other circuit clout.

Bufileigh Grimes bested Vic Aldridge in pitchers' duel and the Pirates lost a chance to gain on the Reds, submitting to a shut-out, 3 to 0. The Robins made only four hits off Aldridge.

The White Sox made 13 hits six for the Red Sox, but the latter won, 4 to 3.
The Athletics fell a full game further behind the Yanks when Vencidder of the Browns tied them in knots, allowing but 3 hits. St. Louis winning two to nothing.

Kiki Cuyler of the Pirates moved up last week to top of the list of National league batter; with a mark of .370 having made the most hits, 64, and stolen the most bases, 12. Joe Dugan, who has been out of the Yankee line up for some time, leads the American league swatters, with an average of .414.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED with Irene Rich is a picture of this month.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Manning, with Diane Blesse and another couple, are driving to Calkin's Inn after the close of a country club dance celebrating Bob's twenty-first birthday. Bob is at the wheel with Diane leaning over him when the car crashes into a roadster, injuring a woman. The party is taken to a police station, where the sergeant is trying to fix responsibility. Eventually, Mrs. Manning and Misses' Patricia, who is in love with Bob, are following.

"All right, I haven't time for your little history now." A new emphasis came into the sergeant's tones. "But there was something wrong in that car long before you hit the roadster. The motorcycle policeman's report proves it. He trailed you for several miles. He says you were all over the road and nearly in the ditch a dozen times. What I want to know is, who was driving?"

For an instant Theo seemed upon the point of speaking. Then, with an effort, he sealed his lips, opening them only when the keen gaze of the sergeant seemed to bore into his innermost soul, to mutter nervously, ifagrammatically, "It wasn't me, sir, no, sir, it wasn't me."

"Now the stern gaze of the sergeant shifted to rest upon Diane. Bored of her usual coyness and composure, she seemed to shrink, a trembling, terrified girl, under its severity.

"Were you?" he demanded.

Apparently she could not meet his eyes. Her own swept the room as if in frantic search of aid in her plight. Suddenly she shook her head wildly.

"No, no!" she cried. Then, quick as a flash, turned upon Bob, and her accusation rang out unmistakable in its clearness. "He was!"

Again that same air of perplexity seemed to have claimed Bob. At her words he turned towards her as looked straight into her eyes. It was a strange look. There was bewilderment and pain in it. The world had changed so suddenly for him. His happy, care-free life seemed very far away.

But she, who had merely related a fact, seemed to flinch and quail under his glance, the pale and self-assurance which had been such a part of her being forgotten. With never a word Bob turned from her.

And still, as if not fully satisfied with what she had done, Diane turned back to Theo and grew almost hysterical in the persistence of her accusation.

"It was he, it was Bob who was driving! Wasn't it, Theo? You know he was driving, don't you, Theo?"

Under her questions Theo shifted nervously upon his feet, shot a frightened glance at Bob and finally stared at the stern visage of the officer of the law as if fascinated.

"Yes—it was—" His voice trailed off into a whisper.

As if satisfied, the sergeant frowned and gave his attention to Bob.

"If that woman dies, Manning, it will take all of your skill to get you out of this mess."

"Dies!" It was as if Bob could not believe his ears. Indeed, as if there were very much about the situation in which he found himself which he could not reconcile. Now a sudden movement of the sergeant and a sound from the door attracted his attention.

John Manning entered. Plainly shaken by anxiety, his face was deathly white, and he passed for an instant as if to collect himself for the ordeal which was to follow. Then he moved forward, to stop before Bob and gaze into his eyes.

Yet such was his emotion that he seemed at a loss for words. "What thoughts were his at the moment? Inured by the experience of years to similar scenes amidst such surroundings, the meaning of it all must have recurred to him with redoubled force. Here was the machinery of the law erected by the people of the state for their own protection, just as he had been chosen by these same people as their sworn representative in the enforcement of their laws. To him these proceedings had always had a solemn majesty, his part in their equitable application a solemn trust. His to see that the clear course of justice was unswayed, its penalties applied without fear or favor. Yet now, within the very shadow of the law, with its firm clutches poised above him, stood his son—the pride of his heart, the hope of his coming years.

Within him John Manning's high sense of justice, his cold, judicial mind was arrayed against his heart; his professional honor was set off against his parental love. And even more, for there was Eileen, his own beloved, to whom the welfare and happiness of the boy was dearer than life itself.

Under such circumstances it was not strange that John Manning's lips were sealed as he faced his son. What words could express his thoughts? What sentences could picture the battle waging within his breast?

Yet even amidst the turmoil of feeling which shook him he must have taken pride in the bearing of his son. For at that moment Bob carried himself bravely and met the gaze of his father unflinchingly.

Only for a moment did John hesitate before his son. He moved towards the sergeant, his face grim and resolute. Learning towards that official he was again a lawyer, the chosen representative of the people considering the facts laid before him calmly and dispassionately and, most remarkable of all under the circumstances, impersonally.

So he was engaged when again the door was opened and Eileen appeared.

"Bob!" she cried at sight of her son, and—again, "Bob!" Heedless of all else in the room, she rushed towards him with outstretched arms.

He stiffened, flushing hotly at sight of her, but as she reached him and gathered him in her arms he yielded promptly to her embrace.

So she clasped him to her breast, giving expression to countless, inarticulate expressions of endearment and patting him fondly upon the back.

Suddenly she drew back and gazed anxiously into his face.

"You are not hurt, Bob?" He shook his head.

"But in that awful wreck how did you ever manage to escape without a scratch?"

"I don't know," he whispered huskily.

"It was marvelous—it seems almost too good to be true. All the way here I have been thinking, picturing the most dreadful things which might have happened to you, dear—fearing to find you hurt in some awful way. Perhaps it would be just as well if we have a doctor look you over—there might be internal injuries?"

"I haven't a scratch, mother, honestly."

Once more she enfolded him in her arms. Her son was safe and sound. Beside the wonder of her relief over that fact all else mattered little. But now, as she released him, she seemed to give some thought to his surroundings and to her husband at the police sergeant's desk.

"Did you ever hear of such a narrow escape as Bob had, John?" she asked.

"It was marvelous," he agreed, but there was a curious restraint in his manner as he spoke.

"The mere shock of such an experience must have been terrible," she continued.

DOG KEEPS WOMAN FROM SUICIDE

BARKS, AND CALLS HELP, AS MRS. CHAS. NORRIS TRIES GAS ROUTE

By United News.

EVANSTON, Ill., June 6.—A post war romance that bloomed when Vice President Dawes was in Europe as head of the reparations commission, reached a tragic climax here Sunday when Mrs. Chas. Norris, wife of the vice president's former secretary, attempted suicide.

Only the barking of her black police dog prevented Mrs. Norris from taking her own life, which has been a drab affair in recent weeks compared to the joys she once knew as the bride of a secretary to the famous reparations commissioner.

The faithful dog's insistent barking brought neighbors to the door of the Morris apartment just as the gas fumes which the former French bride had released were beginning their deadly work.

A pulmoner squad from the fire department revived her, however, and at the hospital to which she was taken physicians said she would recover.

Details of the motives behind the suicide attempt were obscure due to the refusal of police to reveal the contents of a note which was found in Mrs. Norris' dress pocket. The note was understood to be written in French and addressed to the vice president, but police would not give out its contents, except to say that it indicated marital troubles were responsible for Mrs. Norris' desire to die.

69th Congress Holds Record for Bills

BY THOMAS L. STOKES

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Whatever other fame it achieves, the present congress will set up one record that will probably stand for a long time—the number of bills its members poured into the hoppers of house and senate.

More bills have been introduced this year than in any other single session of congress, according to veteran employes, who have counted them for years.

If all the bills and resolutions were enacted, the treasury would face a deficit of billions of dollars, the country would be dotted with new and strange projects of all kinds, new procedure would be established and the constitution would have a new face.

There have been introduced during the 134 days of this session a grand total of 16,996 bills, an average of 127 a day of which 12,530 have been presented to the house and 4,375 to the senate. This is the record for one session, half of the 69th congress, and it surpasses that for the whole of the 68th congress, which was 15,884. At the present rate, the record for the 69th congress will be 33,910.

To date only 378 bills have been enacted into law this session, slightly over two per cent of those proposed.

Stribling Favored Over Berlenbach

NEW YORK, June 6.—Young Stribling, Pa Stribling, Ma Stribling, Mrs. Stribling and a few relatives arrived in New York Sunday, announcing that the Georgia tribe had come to annex the light heavyweight championship of the world.

Paul Berlenbach, putting the finishing touches to his condition as painstakingly as a prima donna, reported that it could not be done.

The sporting world is becoming aroused over next Thursday's title fight between the Georgia Peach and the Astoria Assasin, which barring the possibility of Jack Dempsey defending his championship next fall, promises to be the best bout of the outdoor season. Tex Rickard is planning for a full house, or ball park rather, with 22 as the top price for seats at the Yankee stadium.

Because of Berlenbach's disappointing showing against Johnny Risko, the Cleveland Indian rubber boy, compared with Stribling's easy victory over the big Austrain, the Georgia youth may be a slight favorite in the betting.

"He shouldn't be," commented Paul confidently. "I'll break him in two with body punches and then we'll see where his speed and box-skill goes to."

Stribling who will be engaging in his 16th professional fight, 66 of which he has won by knockouts, is recognized as Berlenbach's master as a boxer, but the Southerner is a comparatively light hitter, while the champion boasts the heaviest left hand in the ring.

When the pair met in 1924, Stribling was under age and the bout was limited to six rounds, resulting in a draw.

POST BAND WILL ENTER CONTEST AT AMARILLO If diligent practice could carry off honors in a contest our 25 piece band would certainly win honors for every member of our band has practiced music and marching too for the past every afternoon and we are firm believer in the old adage "practice make perfect."

Our band is due much credit for their untiring efforts to win honors for Post and we have one of the best bands in all West Texas so we are not doubtful of a prize for them at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention which convenes this month in Amarillo.

All they need is to show Amarillo that Post is in line is a big delegation of citizens from here to back them. This is the first year that the convention has been held on the plains and we feel that it is as much our duty to go as it is for Amarillo citizens to attend.

The band boys need you so make an effort to go with them. All who are planning to attend the Chamber of Commerce convention in Amarillo, June 21, 22 and 23, call George Samson, Secretary of the chamber of commerce.

LUBBOCK'S CONVENTION PLANS TO GET UNDER WAY EARLY THIS WEEK; "ON TO AMARILLO" IS CRY

All the committees charged with arrangements for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention delegation which goes to Amarillo for the convention June 21, 22 and 23, will be getting under way early this week to start things moving for the banner delegation for the convention.

The steering committee composed of F. A. Norman, E. L. Robertson, Spencer Wells, H. L. Allen, and H. D. Woods, will be busy watching the various committees and assisting in all phases of the work, while the other committees will be working day and night getting their part of the work done. Practically everything is to be accomplished in the next two weeks, according to Norman. Very little action has been taken to this time except the laying of general plans for the crusade. The steering committee have decided upon a number of things and left them up to various committee to be worked out. These committees will get in the collar this week to accomplish this work.

Among the outstanding things that are being worked on are: 1. Lubbock is going to send the biggest delegation to Amarillo of any West Texas city, to make a fight for the 1927 convention. 2. The Lubbock High School Band will be the official band and will be arrayed in gay style for the convention. 3. The Lubbock delegation will enter the parade contest. 4. Lubbock will have a beautiful Senorita in the Spanish Fiesta. 5. Lubbock's special stunts committee will enter the contest for honors in the stunts contests. 6. June 23 is Tech day and a big delegation will attend from the Tech, when special Tech stunts will be pulled.

PROBE BRITAIN'S PANAMA HOLDINGS

SENATE CALLS SECRETARIES OF WAR AND STATE TO TESTIFY By United Press. WASHINGTON, June 6.—The secretaries of war and state were called upon yesterday by the senate through a resolution of Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, to reveal any information they have as to British concessions in Panama. These concessions, ostensibly for mineral rights, would thwart American rubber growers from making developments there, it is claimed, and some of the opponents of the concessions assert that they conceivably even might endanger the safety of the Panama canal. In this dire view, the war and state departments do not share. Senator Willis, Ohio, republican, chairman of the senate territorial committee, has already investigated the concessions and has learned that a British syndicate negotiated more than a year ago to purchase 5,000 acres of land in Panama, some of which borders on the canal property of the United States.

The Panama legislature, Willis said, recently ratified the concessions, which gives the syndicate full ownership of the territory at the end of ten years. This information is similar to that of R. O. Marsh, explorer, and agent of rubber interests who first called the concessions to the attention of the government, but whose claims the government indicates that it does not take seriously.

"TAKE A CHANCE" SAYS COLLEEN MOORE TO GIRLS

By LINCOLN QUARBERG (United Press Staff Correspondent). HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 6.—A diminutive "extra girl" fresh from the middle-west, started the long and difficult climb up the ladder of fame nine years ago. She finally reached the top rung, commanding fame and fortune unsurpassed by any feminine star in moviedom. This week this little star returned to the starting-place of her long journey to fame—back to the little dressing room in the old B. W. Griffith studios, where she played her first picture, called "The Bad Boy."

Sentiment promoted Colleen Moore to install herself in the little old dressing-room. Forced to vacate her beautiful bungalow at the United Studios until the new home of First National Studios is completed in Burbank, Colleen went to the old Griffith studios. She was offered a luxurious bungalow. She preferred, instead, the musty and abandoned shack that nine years ago she regarded as a virtual palace. Between scenes, the little actress, reminiscent, entertained her friends. "It just makes me appreciate so much all the good things that have happened to me, she said. "I never dreamed, nine years ago, I would ever be so famous or make so much money."

"I don't believe in discouraging any young girl with talent to shy from the movies, I believe there's a place in pictures for every girl with the stuff who is no afraid of a few hard bumps and is willing to work." Colleen estimated that she has made approximately 80 pictures since she donned the grease-paint.

Start Search For Alleged Murderers

BY JOSEPH S. WASNEY United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 6.—One of the greatest man hunts in history was started tonight for three De Autremont brothers, alleged Oregon murderers and bandits, by Bob D. Simmons, chief inspector of the postoffice department. Simmons told the United Press that he has enlisted the aid of federal, state, county and municipal law enforcement agencies in a supreme attempt to capture the three young men, charged with murdering four railroad employees at a sensational train holdup, three years ago, more violent than anything since the days of the James brothers.

One military circular describing the murdering bandits have been sent out by the government. The hunt is spurred by rewards of $15,000 in gold for the arrest and conviction of the fugitives. While the government hopes to capture the youths alive, officers have been warned that the men pursued are desperate and hold human life of little value. "Shoot to kill if necessary," is the advice of Simmons.

The De Autremont brothers have been sought by postal agents since the holdup. A new clue, indicating that they are still in the United States, has reopened the search with increased vigor. "These three men, late in the fall of 1923, held up a Southern Pacific passenger train in a tunnel just beyond Siskiyou, Ore.," Simmons said. The mail car was derailed, the mail clerk killed and his body burned in the conflagration by the explosion and brakeman on the train, were down in cold blood. "Conclusive evidence shows that Roy, Ray and Hugh De Autremont, three brothers who lived at Eugene, Ore., committed the atrocious deed. They were unable to obtain loot from the mail car because of the fire, but left behind most of their supplies and evidence of identity."

Tulia Businesses To Close June 22

AMARILLO, June 6.—V. G. Hill, secretary of the Tulia Chamber of Commerce, informs convention headquarters that his city is closing up and coming to Amarillo by special train Tuesday, June 22, with a large and enthusiastic delegation to take part in the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to take place June 21-22-23. Tulia, like its sister cities of the South Plains, is regarding the convention with deep interest and is planning to do all in its power to help Amarillo put it over.

Home Dressmaking

By JEANNE ROLAND (Copyright 1926 by Pan-Art Service, Inc.)

A Frock of Chinese Damask

nothing smarter than the pastel tinted damasks this season. At the sides, below the hips, there are inserted plaits, enabling the skirt to hang in straight, slim lines at the front and back. The dart-fitted shoulders will be of interest to the home dressmaker. It is illustrated in the diagram. In making such a dart cut the fulness into the space as perfectly as possible and make the termination flat, without any unnecessary puckering of the damask. Attach to a slender point, then stitch back to give strength to the stitching line. Tie the ends of the shawl after they have been clipped upon, releasing the work from the machine. This will prevent "creeping" and keep the dart firm. The front is cut to form a very deep V, then filled in with a vest of plain silk. Ribbed silk crepe satin or any desired fabric may be used for the vest, which corresponds with the revers and the cuffs of the long, close-fitting sleeves. Buttons also trim the vest and a snappy feature of the design is the scarf collar of striped silk, tied at one side of the throat, with one end hanging down the front and the other down the back of the dressmaker. So practical is this design, with all of its smart effect, that it will be reproduced in more serviceable materials than the damask silk. In the box tulle and bangles it gives splendid wear.

Dart Stitched from Shoulder Seam.

The A-Line of the New Brocades

Darts at the shoulders and plaits below the hips, make the frock snug and full, respectively, at the points where it should accent saginess and fulness.

A very stunning frock is this fashioned on Chinese damask and its design is so new and simple that any woman would be glad to include it in her vacation wardrobe. It calls for 3 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide and, as everyone knows, there is

FUNNY PARADE WILL BE TODAY

CHILDREN WILL MARCH UNDER AUSPICES OF THE CHAUTAUQUA

Lubbock's funniest parade will be witnessed tomorrow afternoon when the kiddies from 6 to 14 years of age will have the opportunity to enter the parade contest sponsored by the Redpath Horner Premier chautauque, according to Miss Scanland, who will have charge.

Miss Scanland yesterday issued a call for the children to meet at the street intersection at Broadway and Avenue L promptly at 3:30 o'clock and the line of parade will be formed and lead by the local band and will pass through the business section.

Season tickets for the chautauque are to be offered as prizes for the following contests in the parade: funniest costume, most original costume, most attractive feature of the parade and the best advertising feature prepared for the benefit of the chautauque.

Boy scouts and camp fire girls of Lubbock have been invited by Miss Scanland to participate in the parade and to enter the contests.

The boys and girls who can furnish anything to lend to the attractiveness of the parade including a dog team, pony, donkey or even a dilapidated automobile are asked to appear at the chautauque grounds promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

Look for Light Vote In Iowa Primary

DES MOINES, Ia., June 6.—For the first time in a generation the dawn of election day in Iowa finds the state's political talent in doubt as to what the voters will do.

Except in the active camps of the main contestants—Senator A. R. Cummins and Colonel Smith W. Brookhart—predictions on the outcome are as scarce as farm relief appropriations in congress.

The forecast upon which the seasoned political experts agree is that the vote is likely to be light. Iowa is much less interested in its own show than the rest of the country, especially Washington.

Woman Mayor to Reform Seattle

By United News. SEATTLE, Wash., June 6.—A sweeping reorganization of Seattle's municipal government is slated to begin Monday, when Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, leader of the law and order forces, becomes the city's first woman mayor.

'Good Looking Men' Asked As Delegates

Spencer Wells, Ross McWhorter, and N. H. Wright, members of the delegation parade and decoration committee for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce committee will gather for a pow-wow early this week to lay plans to dress the Lubbock delegation up until they can claim a first place in the delegation parade contest.

This committee is depending on the ticket selling committee to get the boys up there and then they'll do the rest.

"Two things we want," the chairman stated Saturday, "Good looking men and lots of them." A number of prizes will be given to the winners of the delegation parade which will be judged on the number of miles traveled, and the general appearance of the parade. The decoration bunch says all that go will be dressed up well.

C. I. A. STUDENTS FIGHT AGAINST FAT

WAR DECLARED ON OGRE OBESITY AT DENTON SCHOOL

DENTON, Texas, June 6.—A bill of rights for those against whom the ogre obesity has waged its work of destruction, has been formulated by students in the College of Industrial Arts.

With vacation approaching "full speed ahead," the visions of beautiful dresses tumbling over one another in the minds of be-chambered clad C. I. A., thoughts turn wearily to the matter of avoidpoids.

Diets! Horrors! That word! But there is no alternative. At least the matter of dieting proves a round of resolving, succumbing, self-blaspheming and re-resolving. But to assist in the heart breaking process a few of the overweight of C. I. A. have combined, hoping for strength in numbers, into "The Reducers, Inc."

The constitution of "The Reducers, Inc.," beginning with a concisely written preamble followed by a warm recent bill of rights, then launches into a tirade of don'ts designed to reduce the stoutest.

The preamble reads as follows: "We, the obese of C. I. A., in order to form more perfect figures, establish fitness, provide for the common benefit, insure domestic possibilities and secure the blessing of comeliness to ourselves and our contemporaries do hereby ordain and establish this constitution of 'The Reducers, Inc.'"

Articles took so enthusiastically to the time-payment plan for automobiles that fears are expressed that there will be an over-extension of car credit.

CHICAGO GRAND JURY WILL BE EMPANELLED TO PROBE ELECTION

CHICAGO, June 6.—The grand jury has become more or less a permanent fixture in Chicago.

Immediately upon the adjournment of the grand jury which had been called to investigate the slaying of Deputy State's Attorney William McSwiggin, a second grand jury was called to investigate the alleged control that the underworld has held over elections.

The McSwiggin grand jury adjourned without deciding who killed the popular "hanging prosecutor." It did, however, recommend that Will Colvin, head of the pardons and paroles board, and Chauncey L. Jenkins, head of the state welfare department be requested to resign.

But just a few hours before the first grand jury had made its report State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe asked for a second grand jury to investigate the charges of Daniel P. Trude, recently defeated for the republican nomination as county judge by one of Crowe's assistants. Trude charged that gunmen intimidated voters and that a reign of terror and lawlessness prevailed on election day.

The second grand jury will be immediately empanelled Monday.
