Odd Bits Salvaged

Ain't it a shame? Ain't it a shame?

It's a shame for those who were agin it, in that more people didn't turn out and vote agin it.

It's a shame for those who were fer it, in that more voters didn't show interest enough to vote one way or another.

It's a shame that less than 200 voters of a municipality can vote over a bond issue that extends over a period of thirty years.

It's a shame that people spend $1.75 each for a poll tax each year, and then don't exercise the privilege which they bought and paid for.

It's a shame that those who don't vote are generally the ones who cuss high taxes, an extravagant administration, or a "do nothing" administration.

It's a shame that those who have the interest of the little town at heart have to carry the big end of the burden, with little or no cooperation from the rest of us.

Last Monday a bond election was held for the purpose of financing a plan to take care of our town's flood waters. It was a question of whether or not bonds in the amount of around $60,000.00 would be issued for this purpose.

It was an election which effects the pocketbook of every property taxpayer in the town.

Last Monday the town, which we like to think has over 2,000 population now, cast a total of 193 votes in this important election.

The bond issue went over with 11 votes over the two-thirds majority required. So Munday has a drainage district, and she will be able to issue bonds and construct a drainage system.

But lots of people who will be paying for it through the years didn't have a voice in the matter.

Anyway, we have some paved streets, a drainage system in the making, an addition to our school building under construction—and we'll get a street sweeper next year. Guess we're making progress!

We have a city hall lawn well supplied with Christmas lights. We have store windows displaying Christmas merchandise and other Yuletide decorations.

We have Christmas coming in about two weeks, with folks kinda catching the holiday spirit.

We have workers with brooms and shovels, cleaning up the curbs. And they plan to have this all done for the Christmas season.

But folks generally agree that the only way to keep our streets clean is to have a street sweeper.

Some have called attention to the fact that curbs along our pavement in the residential section are getting in bad shape, too.

A street sweeper could keep those clean, as well as our business section—but we don't have it.

One fellow got out about two weeks ago and cleaned his curb as well as that of his neighbor. It didn't take him long, he says, "and you'd be surprised how much nicer it looked."

Trouble is that leaves have fallen, along with a number of small limbs, from our paradise trees, and these are cluttering up the curbs.

So along with the curb cleaning in town, this fellow thinks it would be a nice gesture to clean the curbs along our residence property.

It wouldn't take anybody long, he says, and it just makes things look so much nicer. Then we'd have clean streets for Christmas, provided another sandstorm doesn't come along, which it (Continued on Last Page)

Local Church Opens Drive On Building Fund

The drive to secure $18,000 on the building fund of the First Methodist church by January 31, 1949, was opened last Sunday with an inspirational program.

Those attending church witnessed attractive posters which showed the different clubs which have been formed to raise this fund. Dwight Key, chairman, explained the drive and called on four others to explain the clubs.

Melissa Lee, a member of the 25 cents a week club, explained this club for children; Harold Fox, explained the $1.00 a week club for young people; Mrs. H. R. Hicks told of "The Lord's Acre" club for members residing on farms and ranches, while W. R. Moore explained "The Moore Club", which is for all those not affiliated with one of the other clubs.

Following the opening of the drive, the McMurry Male Chorus of McMurry College, Abilene, gave a very inspirational program of religious songs, under the direction of Dr. Williams. Those present agreed that this was one of the best song programs given locally. Mrs. Sue Ratteree was featured as the soprano soloist in the program.

Local People Attend Scout Meet Friday

Several local people attended a very inspirational Boy Scout Roundup and program in Wichita Falls last Friday and came home very enthusiastic about work being done in the Boy Scouts of America.

Clay F. Grove and J. E. Reeves attended an executive board meeting of the Northwest Texas Council at 3 p. m. Friday.

At 6 p. m., the Electra Chuck Wagon Gang served their famous "cowboy stew" to the Clubs, Scouts and Scouters. Approximately 2,500 people attended this event, which was held at the Wichita Boys Club.

The evening meeting was at the municipal auditorium, and this building was filled to overflowing by the enthusiastic group.

Entertainment was given by Zeké Williams of KWFT and his Rambling Cowboys. Mr. and Mrs. Max Kreutz led the group in community singing, and Lindy Berry presented footballs to the Cubs and Scouts.

Main speaker of the evening was Elbert K. Fretwell of New York, chief scout of Boy Scouts of America who has been aligned with Scout work for over 30 years.

Attending from Munday were Mr. Reeves, Mr. Grove, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Croley, David Elland and Jimmy Rogers.

Brazell Garage Damaged By Fire Tuesday Morning

Fire of undetermined origin broke out in the Brazell Garage, operated by E. V. Brazell and located just east of the Wichita Valley depot, last Tuesday morning.

The front of the building was almost enveloped in flames by the time the Munday Volunteer Fire Department arrived on the scene, but the fireboys did quick work in getting the fire under control. Considerable damage was done to the building, as well as the stock of parts. Two cars in the building were also damaged by the heat.

But for the prompt work of firemen, the old wooden structure would have soon been destroyed, as well as building's adjoining it.

Munday Votes For Bond Issue

Munday people voted last Monday to come out of the high water; earlier in the year they came out of the mud!

The $61,500 bond issue to secure funds for a drainage district project went over in the special election by a vote of 133 to 34—approximately 11 votes over the required two-thirds majority.

Proceeds from the sale of bonds, which will carry interest of 5 per cent and payable over a period of 31 years, will be used for construction of canals, laterals, ditches and other drainage structures in west, south and east Munday to hold off inflowing waters and divert them to Lake Creek, southeast of town.

Flash-floods have long been a menace in sections of the town, because of its low-lying terrain. Plans for the drainage call for a canal to be dug along the Throckmorton road to drain the water into Lake Creek.

Plans and specifications for the drainage system were prepared and submitted by a Wichita Falls engineer, after the town established itself as "Knox County Drainage District No. 1" last August 9.

The system of canals will be built to intercept flood waters from the west, south and east, and will join southeast of the town. It is estimated this construction will cost taxpayers approximately $4 on the $1,000 valuation for the first year and graduated down during the remaining years.

Plans will now go forward to ward issuing and selling the bonds and beginning construction on the drainage system.

PLAN FOR MEDICAL PROGRESS

A very interesting program to improve the quality of medical care was presented by Dr. William B. Rawls in his inaugural address as president of the Medical Society of the County of New York. It is indicative of the positive approach toward medical problems that is being taken by thousands of doctors.

Dr. Rawls said that his program was an answer to the advocates of compulsory health insurance, which he described as "medically ineffectual, economically unsound, politically dangerous . . ." According to a New York Times account, some of its main points are: Development of voluntary health and hospital insurance; increased hospital beds, particularly in suburban and rural areas; development of group practice, and the development of a plan for helping the indigent.

There are two particularly important phases to this. First of all, it is designed to give the county better medical care than it now has. Secondly, it is designed to do it through voluntary means—not through compulsion by the government. In other words, it is based solidly on the principle that underlies all real progress in this country—free action by free men to get a needed job done.

Dr. Rawls' goal is to make voluntary hospital and medical care insurance available to everyone in the country. The remarkable progress made by the various plans in the field in recent years is proof that it can be done, and without putting a political bureaucracy in a position of sweeping power over the practice of medicine.

THE STORE AND THE COMMUNITY

The primary function of a retail store is to provide a place where people may buy their food and clothes and hardware and all the rest of the necessities and luxuries of life. The merchant is purchasing agent for the consumer.

Beyond that, retailing serves a highly important and often overlooked function. It is one of the great builders of the community. The stores all compete to attract business—but they pull solidly together in matters that affect civic progress and the creation of a better town. This is good business for them—and good business for everyone.

WHO ELECTED HARRY TRUMAN?

Ever since the election, some of the more prominent labor leaders have been claiming that the unions elected Mr. Truman. According to them, the biggest single issue was the Taft-Hartley Act.

That will take a good deal of proving to anyone who has made even a cursory examination of the final returns. Governor Dewey ran strongly in the industrial states, where the labor vote is proportionately largest, and carried most of them. The President, on the other hand, did extremely well in the agricultural regions where organized labor amounts to a small minority of the population.

Arizona provides the most interesting example. Mr. Truman carried it easily. Yet, at the same time, the voters approved a measure outlawing the closed shop. That certainly doesn't look as if the people want labor to hold the whip hand over the government or the people.

Mr. Truman does not owe his remarkable success to any group or any class. He wasn't elected by labor or capital or agriculture or any other segment of the nation. He was elected by the American people, and he is the President of all the people. He doesn't even owe allegiance to the Democratic leaders—most of them deserted him when they thought his cause was lost, and he won in spite of these unadmirable defections.

Harry S. Truman has a chance to go down in history as one of the great Presidents—as a man who, when the world was torn between slavery and freedom, stood staunchly for the liberties of mankind, and was too big to admit allegiance to special interests of any kind. The whole civilized world hopes that he may measure up to the enormous responsibilities that have fallen upon him. He has a chance now to rise above group prejudice or group selfishness.

Every time a new residential development is opened the stores come in and establish attractive shopping centers. There are chains and independents. That makes for greater convenience for the buyer. And, in addition, it makes for the best possible service, stocks of goods, and the lowest possible prices. If the consumer isn't satisfied with his local merchants, he can drive a few miles to another community and spend his money there. The local merchant must come up to standard or watch his trade dwindle away.

The retail merchant is the foundation of American community life.

'Saving' Feed Will Be Costly This Winter

USE OF AMPLE RATIONS FOR CATTLE URGED BY MANY AUTHORITIES

The old saying, "You can't starve a profit into livestock", has a new slant this winter.

Livestock authorities are advocating not only that enough protein and roughage be fed to prevent starvation, but these relatively cheap feeds be used generously enough to carry livestock through the winter in good condition.

"With cattle and other livestock commanding the prices they do, there is no excuse for winter losses this season", Louisiana's beef cattle specialist, W. T. Cobb, recently said. "A full supply of hay with supplement, and we can come out of the winter with a more thrifty herd of cattle and better calves and more of them."

The need for good feeding is greater than usual in Texas this fall, Dr. W. C. Banks, Extension veterinarian, points out. In average years, beef and dairy cattle "dition after feeding on green grass. This year, however, many cattle are already suffering from lack of green feed; and many cows that are now carrying calves may not be in condition to give birth and take care of their calves. He suggests that, in addition to protein feeding, plenty of good quality hay be available for cattle.

Even in Wisconsin, which must ship in protein concentrates from other states at relatively higher costs, dairymen and other stockmen are being urged to feed liberal amounts of relatively cheap feeds this winter.

"There are good reasons to feed all livestock possible and to feed well-balanced rations this winter", says Dr. Gus Bohstedt, University of Wisconsin authority.

Research, as well as practical experience, proves that it often is costly to attempt to "save" feeds during the winter.

When the Woodward, Oklahoma, Experiment Station fed one group of steers only one pound of cottonseed cake, daily per head, on winter range, 135 pounds of cake per head were "saved". These steers, however, gained 70½ pounds less per head than steers which were fed two pounds of cottonseed cake, daily per head. Steers receiving the two pounds of protein concentrate daily gained 40.9 pounds more per head during the winter, and 29.6 pounds more the next spring.

Feeding early enough, as well as adequately, is important in maintaining cattle and other livestock during the fall and winter, livestock authorities point out. "Caking" on the range, or the feeding of cottonseed meal on the farm, should start as soon as forage is dry or scarce, and continue until green grazing is ample.

Breeding cows that receive ample protein concentrate produce more milk for their calves, with the result that calves are heavier at weaning. The cows also are in

Yes Sir, Insomnia's Contagious!

When Bud Swanson had trouble sleeping nights, and tried to get over it by turning up the radio full blast, he started an epidemic of insomnia all down the block!

Folks finally dropped a hint to Bud that he close the windows or turn the radio a little lower. Bud did—and that was the quickest cure for other folks' insomnia I've ever heard of!

Not that any of us object to the radio, or swing bands, or anything else that helps another person relax of an evening. (Myself, I like a glass of beer with a bit of cheese before I go to bed. I can't speak for you.)

From where I sit, good neighborliness means nothing more than simply respecting the other person's tastes and rights—without forcing your own tastes or opinions down his throat. And that goes for Bud's radio, my glass of beer, or whatever temperate pleasure you happen to enjoy.

condition to produce a better, earlier calf crop the next season.

On the average range or pasture, dry beef cows require about 1½ pounds of protein concentrate, daily; and bred cows about 2½ pounds for 60 days before calving. After calving, feeding 2½ to 3 pounds, daily per cow, increases milk production for the calves.

Feeding 2 to 3 pounds of cottonseed meal, pellets or cake will supply the protein needs for yearlings or older herd bulls or steers during the winter or when forage is short. Older steers wintered on the range for fattening on grass should receive 3 to 5 pounds of protein concentrate daily.

FOR THE STRENGTH OF THE LAND

Conservation under the Agricultural Conservation Program is more than just keeping land from washing or blowing away, says B. F. Vance, Chairman of the Texas Production and Marketing Administration Committee. It is keeping the land productive and where possible making the land more productive. It is a program of restoring, building and improving as well as checking, holding and preserving.

The program is helping farmers maintain and build the fertility and productive capacity of their land as well as to check erosion. The purpose of conservation is to assure the Nation of a sustained, and as necessary an increasing production.

Mr. Vance points out that the most economical way to stop a gully is to farm in such a way that the gully doesn't get started. The relatively high level of living in this country is due in large part to the relatively high ratio of productive soil to population. In many other countries this ratio is too low due to excessive population and loss of arable lands through poor soil management.

Dr. Charles E. Kellogg, Chief of the Division of Soil Survey at the United States Department of Agriculture's Plant Industry Station at Beltsville, Maryland, has expressed this view: "Of course we want a protective cover, but it must be a productive cover. If we want our farmers to improve living conditions it must be even more productive than the original cover. That is why farm planning for sustained production must lay

Jimmy Sue Phillips, 10, of Houston, a patient at Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, visited Governor Ben Buford H. Jester's office as the chief executive signed a proclamation designating the period from Thanksgiving to Christmas as "Gonzales Warm Springs Month."

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

Austin—Tuleremia, or "rabbit fever", is transmitted to human beings through the careless handling of wild rabbits, and according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, every wild rabbit should be handled with extreme care from the time he is bagged, until he is placed on the table.

"If a rabbit is diseased, careless handling can cause tuleremia. This serious disease is transmitted from rabbits to human beings, usually through direct contact with the infected animal or with objects contaminated by the meat or fur," Dr. Cox said. "Each year many persons contract tuleremia because they fail to use proper precautions in the handling of the rabbits which are killed for food."

Dr. Cox said that one of the first precautions recommended is to shoot only the healthy rabbits with enough energy to run away from the hunter as he approaches. A listless rabbit that fails to run is probably sick, and should not be taken by the hunter.

A second important safeguard is for the hunter or the housewife to use rubber gloves in cleaning and preparing the rabbit for cooking. The gloves should be sterilized after using, and the refuse and paper that has touched the rabbit should be burned. Hands should be washed thoroughly after the meat has been set to cook.

Adequate cooking is a final safeguard that should be observed at all times. To destroy any germs that may be present, the meat should be cooked at boiling temperature for at least twenty minutes, regardless of whether it is to be fried or baked later.

By observing these safety rules, Texans may enjoy their rabbit hunts and rabbit dinners without fear of tuleremia.

FARM NEWS

from the County Agricultural Conservation Committee

ELECTED COMMITTEEMEN — INFLUENCE FOR GOOD FARMING

The Farmer committeemen who will be elected next week will administer the 1949 Agricultural Conservation and related programs in counties and communities will take office January 1. B. F. Vance, chairman of the Texas PMA Committee announces.

A total of 5,424 committeemen will be elected this year to administer the 1949 farm programs in Texas. This includes 762 county committeemen and 4,662 community committeemen.

According to Vance, these farmers who will be elected by their neighbors will administer the Agricultural Conservation Program and supporting activities in the counties. Through the conservation program they are key figures in the nation's efforts to encourage soil and water conservation to maintain current and future production.

They are in key positions to pass soil and water conservation methods along to their fellow farmers. They are familiar with both the conservation and production problems in local areas and therefore are in a position to help farmers adapt the Agricultural Conservation Program to local needs. They have available both the technical knowledge from agronomists and soil specialists and the practical understanding from their experience in farming.

THE POPULATION AND THE LAND

The importance of widespread use of soil and water conservation practices is emphasized when the number of people to be fed from the land are considered, says Emmett Partridge, Chairman of the Knox County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The livestock producer thinks naturally of the carrying capacity of his land in terms of animal units but the real problem concerns the number of acres required to feed a person. It is only by keeping up the productivity of the land now under cultivation—to maintain the human carrying capacity—that the needs of an increasing population can be met.

There is hope, the chairman points out, that through conservation farming land is being made more productive. Erosion is being checked and soil built up to resist erosion. Water is being used to help grow crops instead of being allowed to carry away the vital topsoil.

In every agricultural county in the United States and in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands farmers are cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program, to keep the land from washing and blowing away and wearing out. Essentially, the chairman points out, this program is helping to maintain and increase the human carrying capacity of the land so that the people of this country may continue to have enough food.

"Under this program," says the chairman, "farmers are cooperating with the rest of the people of the country to make the land productive and to keep it producing. It's a consumers' program as much as it is a farm program."

THAT WE MAY EAT

This year the Government is helping upwards of 3 million farmers carry out soil and water conservation practices on their farms. The practices include construction of terraces and contour farming which provide barriers to the rapid flow of runoff water. By checking and spreading the water, more of it soaks into the ground and gullies are prevented.

Other practices are the seeding of grasses and legumes to hold the soil and restore humus, and applying lime and phosphate to make the grass and legumes grow better.

In general, farmers carry out practices which meet the conservation needs of their farms and of the area in which they live.

The main purpose of all this activity and this program of soil and water conservation, according to Mr. Partridge, chairman of the Knox County Agricultural Conservation Committee, is abundant production—"not just for this year or next but for all the future."

"The amount of soil from which all people in the country must obtain feed and fiber is limited. Population is increasing. Enough food for the future depends on keeping the limited land we have productive. If it washes or blows away or wears out and becomes unproductive that means that much less land from which the food and fiber must come."

"So," says Mr. Partridge, "the next time you see a farmer applying lime or phosphate, building a dam or constructing a terrace, you can put it down that this means something to all of us. The soil and water conserved through these and similar practices will go a long way to make sure there will be enough to eat."

Knox Prairie Philosopher Wants To Open Up A Private Weather Forecasting Station, For A Fee

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek comes up with a hair-brained idea this week, his letter reveals.

Dear editor:

I was out early Monday mornin seein how cold it got, wonderin

if I was gonna have to break the ice on the hog trough or if the sun would come out soon enough to thaw it out without me havin to go to any extra trouble as I never did believe in doin what you could get nature to do for you for nothin, and it's nature that freezes it over in the first place, and I noticed a copy of the Abilene paper, which the wind had blown against a fence and I pulled it off and took it home and tore off the front page and started a fire with the rest, and sat down and read where a company in Boston is offering to sell weather predictions in competition with the free service the government furnishes.

Accordin to this firm, it has a better service to offer, and for $1500 will notify any city ahead of time when to expect a blizzard. Now I don't want to be enterin into competition with the government, but if they're gonna let the bars down and there ain't no law against establishin a private weather bureau, I might be interested in that myself, if you'll help me line up some business.

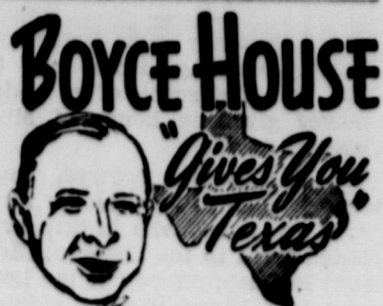

I been lookin for a business where it didn't take no capital and no overhead and very little equipment, and I believe this is it. While I wouldn't pretend to take in the whole United States, I believe I can handle the area around Munday satisfactorily.

I figure with a good weather eye, a habit of noticin signs, a good radio to tell what's on the way, and my wife's corn to confirm it, I can handle weather predictions about as well as anybody else. At least as good say as a scientific expert can handle a election prediction.

If you are interested in this service, just pass the word along and if I get enough response will open up. My rates won't be high. Only a dollar a month, and if I can get 200 people to sign up, on the basis of 100 takin the service one month, the other 100 the next, and I'm right half the time, I figure I can keep 50 percent of the total satisfied and still make more than I do on cotton.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

Some of the favorite touches given by the writers for Western story magazines and for the cowboy movies are treated rather roughly by George Hendricks in his book "The Bad Man of the West", (Naylor Company, San Antonio).

Very few of the famous real life gunfighters actually fired two guns at the same time, nor did they fire from the hip.

Of approximately 250 gunfighters whose records Hendricks studied, Billy the Kid was the only one who preferred the double-action .45 to the single action. To fire the double action pistol, all you do is pull the trigger, the mechanism automatically lifting the hammer, then causing it to grab the brim and salled fall.

With the single action gun, the whipped out his six-shooter and user had to pull the hammer back with his thumb and then squeeze the trigger with his finger. However, the experts usually altered the mechanism so the weapon could be fired merely by pulling the hammer back with the thumb and then letting it fall back, not using the trigger at all. In fact, usually the trigger was fided off.

But it would be almost impossible for the fiction writers to think up situations more exciting or unusual than actually happened, as related in Hendricks' book.

For instance, Red Kelly's final fight. Kelly was credited with having killed Bob Ford, who was the slayer of Jesse James. Kelly and an enemy met at very close range, each went for his gun and each seized the other by the wrist of the gun-hand. As they struggled, each fired three times before they fell heavily to the ground with Kelly on top. His adversary finally was able to free his arm sufficiently to level and fire, killing Kelly; but the victor who so exhausted from the struggle that he could neither throw off Kelly's body nor wriggle from under it but had to ask to be liberated by spectators.

One time, a bad man got the drop on the famous Texas Ranger, Captain Bill McDonald, order "Hands up." McDonald slowly all you do is pull the trigger, the mechanism automatically lifting the hammer, then causing it to grab the brim and salled fall.

the hat into the other's face, then shot him. Captain Harry Wheeler of the Arizona Rangers found himself in an even more difficult position. He was unarmed and two outlaws leveled their pistols on him. "Wait a minute," he said, "while I tie my boot" and, after he had tied the boot, as he was raising up, he threw a handful of sand in their eyes, grabbed a gun and covered them.

Texas farm flock hens laid 175 million eggs during October. This was seven percent more than the 163 million laid in October of 1947.

It's time to weatherproof the farm shop and equip it with a heating stove. Winter is the time for construction and repair jobs around the farm.

Cattle need plenty of water. And be sure the water is clean, easily located, and not too cold during the winter months.

Road Runner Nearly Gets Teeth Shook Out On Road To Rhineland

Rhineland, Nov. 28.—Dentists may do a lucrative trade here in the years to come—provided the "three deuce" highway between here and Munday is not soon paved.

The Road Runner who negotiated it a few days ago will have to scratch his bald pate a great deal to recollect any in his rounds which is worse. It is an elongated wash-board, corrugated deep by wheels of trucks heavily loaded with cotton and cottonseed, with chug-holes filled with fine sand. The day we traveled over it a windstorm had swept away most of the "cushion", leaving chug-holes, potholes, deep road "wrinkles," with sand in low places steering. Henry Rhineland merchant, complains Rhineland people have had to take this sort of road for a long time. It is the only outlet to Munday where most hauling goes and people

WHAT WITCH HUNT?

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

"NO COMMUNIST, no matter how many votes he should secure in a national election, could, even if he would, become President of the present government. When a Communist heads the government of the United States — and that day will come just as surely as the sun rises — the government will not be a capitalist government but a Soviet government, and behind this government will stand the Red army to enforce the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Please read the above quotation again. Could an American have said that? Or does it sound like a message from Moscow? Indeed, everything in that statement is un-American. It was written by William Z. Foster, head of the Communist Party in the United States. This statement is reprinted in large type on the back of a pamphlet prepared and distributed by a Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives. This is the Committee that is accused of "witch-hunting."

A Communist NOR IS the Congress guilty of distributing the sayings of Communists as propaganda for the Soviets. The publication which carries Mr. Foster's sworn statement is very much anti-Communist. The booklet is called: "100 Things You Should Know About Communism in the U. S. A." It is one of a series of five publications "on the Communist conspiracy and its influence in this country as a whole, on religion, on education, on labor and on our government."

By giving Mr. Foster a prominent position on the back cover of this booklet, our Congress hoped to show Americans that native Communists really condemn themselves whenever they open their mouths. In the quotation, there is revealed Communism's greatest appeal: the lust for power.

er, and the urge to dominate others that some people have. There is revealed also its greatest weakness, for people everywhere do not like to be dominated by force. People like to be free.

Apologies THE CONGRESSIONAL Committee to which I refer is the Committee on Un-American Activities. If you have ever listened to the palaver of Communists or the "fellow travelers" (Communist sympathizers), the chances are you have heard this Committee of Congress strongly criticized. Like the committee says, the right answers given in the booklet, by using the facts, must certainly infuriate the Communists. It is true also that many of these right answers will shock the average citizen who has not studied the "ism" closely.

It is not my purpose to apologize for the Committee on Un-American Activities. No apologies are needed. It has done a great service to the American people in a time when light and facts are needed to clear up so much confusion. If the Committee has made minor mistakes in the course of its work, it has at the same time done a glorious job in revealing our people on the American way of life. It has opened the dark secrets of Communist conspirators.

The Communist policy is to break down existing nations any way they can, and in the confusion to seize control. They will promise every kind of "better life," but they have never been known to deliver it. As an American, I am thankful for the work the Committee has done. I say with the Committee: "You know what the United States is like today. If you want it exactly the opposite, you should turn Communist. But before you do, remember you will lose your independence, your property, and your freedom of mind."

shop. Citizens said they wished some of the highway engineers at Austin might have to ride over this stretch for a while—then they'd take some action.

About a mile north of Rhineland No. 222 is paved from the narrow bridge over the Salt Fork of the Brazos River to the Seymour-Benjamin paved highway. It connects also with the Gilliland farm road, which was completed several months ago.

The Goree-Hefner farm-to-market highway has been completed, and Hefner is only about six miles east of Rhineland. It may be extended to Rhineland. Some say Rhineland would have had a south paved connection except for differences between two rival towns in the area. Incidentally, the "222" between Munday and Rhineland is unusually well "marked" with boards, especially those which read—"Slow."—"The Road Runner" in Abilene Reporter-News.

son Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, says that every school should have a definite health program including safe drinking water, good school lunches, proper lighting, seating and ventilating facilities as well as scrupulously clean premises.

"From early childhood to manhood and womanhood, most youngsters are enrolled in school and are under the supervision of school staffs for a substantial part of the day, approximately half the days of the year," Dr. Cox said. "The conditions under which they live in school, the help which they are given in solving their health problems, the ideals of individual and community health which they are taught, and the information and understanding that they acquire are factors which operate to develop attitudes and behavior conducive to happy, healthy and successful living."

To supplement the efforts of teachers, school boards, parent and civic groups interested in promoting school health, the State Health Department's Division of School Health Service carries on a full time program designed to promote and develop a sound basic health program for the school child. This plan consists of attempting the control of communicable diseases in cooperation with local health departments; the minimizing of hearing, vision, dental and other similar problems; providing minimum health essentials in classroom environment such as lighting, seating, and so forth; and adequate physical activity program; stressing education on personal hygiene and local health hazards; nutrition supervision and instruction; and integrating the school health program with the total community health program.

Sunset Home Economics Club Meets Recently

The Sunset home economics club met in regular meeting on December 1. The meeting was called to order by the president, Joy Jones.

Names were drawn and plans discussed for the coming Christmas party. It was decided to buy a tree and place it in front of the windows in our living room during the Christmas season. We are looking forward to a gay time.

Munday Study Club Has Its Regular Meeting Friday

Members of the Munday Study Club held their regular meeting on Friday afternoon, December 3, at the club house. Mrs. Earl Nichols was director of the program on "International Understanding."

Mrs. J. H. Bardwell gave a very interesting discussion on the effects of personal contacts with people over-seas. Mrs. R. D. Atkinson discussed "Progress in Peace." Miss Patsy Ann Matthews gave an enjoyable piano solo, "Malequanea", and Mrs. Nichols gave current events.

A regular business meeting followed the program. The next meeting will be on December 17, at which time the Christmas program will be given.

Miss Patsy Mitchell returned to Galveston last Saturday after spending a month's vacation here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell.

CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely thank all who in thought, work or deed expressed kindness and love at the passing of our loved one, Mr. Crites.

Mrs. E. B. Crites and family, 20-11c.

As it must to all newlyweds, came the time in the life of the Stuarts when the budget first reared its homely head. We worked out an arrangement which included a set sum for running the house and (the best part) a personal allowance for me. For a while everything went fine until house frantically began borrowing from allowance. I discovered that food was the bugaboo in the scheme of things.

With my ears out like antennae, I went back to mother and asked a repeat performance of all the good advice she had given me. She stressed two pearls of wisdom first, food economy starts with wise buying and goes through storing, and second, getting the best quality usually means getting the most for your money.

One smart, important step is to choose foods that come well packaged and thus protected from any contamination. That means savings. Take butter, for instance. The best butter is packed in paraffined cartons which keep out odors of other foods and protect the product from the damaging effects of light and air both in the store and at home. Recent tests will prove what I mean about protective paraffin containers.

Two batches of top quality 93 score butter were compared. One batch was protected only by vegetable parchment. The second batch was packed in paraffin plus a paraffined carton. At the end of five days the butter in the parchment—without the carton—had dropped its score to 89.3 while the cartoned butter went down only half a point to 92.5! That kind of protection against loss of quality and flavor adds up to wise buying in my book of figures. So I not only buy butter packed in a paraffined carton—I keep it in the carton till it's all used up—and it tastes better right to the last speck!

I've a few more economy tricks like the paraffin carton guide up my sleeve and it begins to look as if I'll be able to call my allowance my very own!

Miss Lucille Covey of Haskell, bride-elect of Stephen Harrison of Munday, was honored with a bridal shower at the club house in Haskell last Monday evening.

December 6th, from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

The receiving line consisted of Miss Lucille Covey, the bride-elect; Mrs. Covey, mother of the bride-elect; and Mrs. Terry Harrison, mother of the groom-elect.

The party rooms were decorated with white carnations. The bride's table was covered with a lace table cloth with candles on each end. The center piece was an arch of greenery with holly and a miniature bride and groom beneath the arch and candles on each side.

Plate favors were white napkins with "Lucy and Steve" in gold letters.

Refreshments of cake and punch were served with Mrs. Kieth Cartwright of Knox City, presiding over the punch bowl.

ply only to proposed construction for sale to veterans where VA is asked to give an appraisal of reasonable value before construction begins.

A veteran building a home for his own use may disregard the standards if he chooses, provided the house meets the requirements of the GI Bill that it is "suitable for dwelling purposes" and that the cost does not exceed the reasonable value as determined by VA.

The number of veterans in schools, colleges and universities under the GI Bill and Public Law 16 on November 1 is nearly 60 percent higher than the total for October 1, one month previous.

Minimum construction requirements, designed to assure veterans that the houses they purchase with the aid of GI loans are of sound construction, have been announced by Carl R. Gray, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

The standards, which will become effective December 15, apply

On November 1 figures were 897,569 under the GI Bill and 77,402 under Public Law 16.

The 60 percent increase reflects enrollments for fall and winter semesters.

Questions And Answers
Q. My husband enlisted in the Army December 31, 1946. Is he eligible to receive war service compensation in event of disability incurred in or aggravated by service?

A. Yes. President Truman proclaimed the cessation of hostilities effective 12 noon, December 31, 1946. However, it has been ascertained that records of the Department of the Army, do not show the hour of enlistment. Accordingly, it is presumed that an enlistment on December 31, 1946, was entered into prior to noon on that date. However, the disability must have been incurred in active service before July 25, 1947.

Q. I did not select an optional settlement of my NSLI. In event of my death, is my widow entitled to settlement in a lump sum if she wants it?

A. No. Payment in one sum may be made only if designated by the insured.

Q. Does Veterans Administration give flags to the next of kin of a deceased veteran?

A. Yes. Flags are issued to drape the casket of a deceased veteran and are given afterwards to the next of kin.

Q. What income provision is attached to compensation payable to the widow of an American soldier killed in line of duty?

A. There is no income restriction to compensation paid for service-connected disability or death.

Texans Will Get Savings Bonds As Christmas Gifts

Texans will receive about $5,000,000 worth of U. S. Savings Bonds as Christmas presents and year-end bonuses during December, according to Nathan Adams of Dallas, chairman of the Treasury Department's Advisory Committee for Texas.

He said that the practice of giving those securities as presents has increased, year by year, since the government started issuing bonds in 1935. He ascribed the increase to "the American people's growing awareness that economic security is essential to widespread expression of 'Peace on earth, good will to men' as the true spirit of Christmas."

He said that Savings Bonds are a favorite gift of parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles who have in mind the future welfare of their children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Mr. Adams said that recent years also has seen a substantial increase in the number of business concerns that prefer to give bonuses in the form of Savings Bonds. This practice, he explained, encourages thrift and helps employees acquire "some of the good things of life" in permanent, rather than transitory, form.

Mr. Adams announced that, for the first time since the end of the war, the Treasury Department has supplied banks and other issuing agents with quantities of an attractive jacket to serve as "gift wrapping" for gifts of Savings Bonds.

Supervisors Of Soil District In Knox City Meeting

At their regular Board Meeting last Friday at Knox City the Wichita Brazos Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors made plans to buy 3,000 pounds of native grass seed. This seed will be made available to farmers and ranchers for pasture and range seeding. The District Board will secure the seed at cost. Soil Conservation Service technicians and Soil Conservation Districts in Oklahoma have just completed harvesting one of the best seed crops in history. The harvest of Big and Little Bluestem, Indian Grass and Side Oats Grama is the biggest on record.

This is the first time in years that adequate amounts of seed of these high producing grasses have been available. District co-operators have already made their requests for seed known to the District Board and are making arrangements to seed these native grasses this spring.

On January 8, 1949, a District-wide grass judging contest will be held for the 4-H and FFA boys. This contest is being sponsored by the Wichita Brazos Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors. County Agents and Vocational Agriculture teachers are now making preparation to enter teams from all schools. The Range Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service at Knox City is assisting in collecting and getting information on grass that will be used in the grass contest.
