TO FILL QUOTA LOCAL CAMP SOON

Enrollment New Men Slated For Last This Month

Despite the fact that the boys at the CCC Camp as yet have no projects to work on, they are by no means idle, and are busily engaged in beautifying the camp grounds.

Although the rains have handicapped them somewhat in this work, it is going forward, and soon the camp will be much more attractive. The men are welcoming the opportunity of making the place presentable, and are in hopes they can complete the work before they begin their work on the soil conservation program.

Captain W. W. Spurlock, new Sub-District Commander, is a new addition to the staff at headquarters. Capt. Spurlock, who served in the World War as a captain in the chemical warfare division, is in charge of a subdistrict, with Memphis as headquarters.

Lieutenant Richardson, formerly second in command at the local camp, has been transferred and placed in command on the Palo Duro Camp near Canyon.

As yet, no successor has been named for Riley W. Carlton, who resigned as education director of the camp to accept a place with the local school faculty. It is expected that a new man will be assigned in this capacity in the near future.

Some rather interesting information has been gathered, as to the pay of the men who make up the enrollment at the local camp. Uncle Sam says it costs the government approximately $1200 per year for each man in the camp. This includes clothing, food and salary.

The basic pay for the men is $30 per month. At the local camp, 80 per cent of the men are receiving this amount. Due to a difference in the class of work done by the men, however, 15 per cent of them are getting $36 per month and 5 per cent receive $45 per month.

Each man must sent $22.50 of his salary home, and the balance he can spent as he sees fit. Many of those who have no dependants are letting their salaries accumulate with the Quartermaster, and thus accumulating a reserve.

At the present time, there are 150 men enrolled at the camp. This is not their full strength, which will be built up to not less than 200 by enlistments the latter part of this month.

Homer White, a local man, was enrolled yesterday. While enlistments are not open now, White had filed his application quite a while ago, and he was ordered enrolled at the local camp immediately.

Long Calls Legislature

By Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 7—Louisiana legislators were informally told today to assemble a special session tonight, to enact more of Senator Huey Long's statutory decrees into law.

The major purpose is understood to be the enactment of legislation designed to help in New Orlean's financial troubles.

OPERATED ON

Mrs. G. H. Hattenbach received a message from Mrs. Sam Weaver yesterday that her father, John A. Wood, underwent an operation at the Baylor Hospital at 9 o'clock and was doing as well as could be expected. Mr. Wood was taken to Dallas Thursday in a King ambulance, accompanied by Carl Wolf and L. D. Priece. Mrs. Weaver and daughter, Rebecca Ray, went to Dallas Friday.

Texas Town Swept by $100,000 Flood

Parnell Oil Test Will Be Drilled by Different Crew

Other Acreage In County Gets Play

Oil interest seems to be picking up in the southwest corner of the county, with one change in contractors being made on a well already spudded in, and several blocks of acreage being assembled.

TheKnoffp No. 1 near Parnell, which was recently spudded in by W. T. Davis and associates, is about to change contractors. Davis who promoted the test, was apparently unable to do more than spud the well in, so owners of the land under lease practically forced a change.

The entire block of acreage, totaling about 1200 acres, has been transferred from Davis to Virgil Payne, of Turkey, and Mr. Payne is arranging to turn the acreage and equipment over to some experienced drillers.

A phone conversation with Mr. Payne late yesterday afternoon disclosed that no deal had been made yet for completion of the well. He said, however, that terms had practically been agreed upon with the Johnson-Kermitz Drilling Company, of Oklahoma, and that this concern would probably take over the test and begin operations at once.

Information from Turkey is that several blocks of acreage are being completed near that city, and that at least two tests are expected to be commenced in the near future.

It is reported that the Phillips Petroleum Company has leased 8000 acres near the Parnell test, making a total of 16,000 acres this company now has under lease in the southwest part of the county. They have had three geological crews busy in the Turkey country for the past several weeks, and are evidently much interested in oil possibilities in that section.

Kenneth F. Wilson, E. B. Zuber and Mr. Maddox, of Oklahoma City, were at Turkey last week, checking up on the geological reports on the acreage blocked west of that city.

Without a doubt, there is going to be quite a play for the black gold south of the river in the near future.

Grand Jury Returns Four More Felonies

CLOUDS OF WAR ARE LOOMING CLOSER

Italian Consulates Ordered Closed In Ethiopia

By Associated Press

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 7.—At the orders of Mussolini, Italian Minister Vinci today ordered all Italian consulates withdrawn from Ethiopia by Septerber 15.

Diplomatic observers feared that the closing of the consulates meant that Mussolini had determined to go to war with Ethiopia, despite the efforts of the League of Nations council.

GENEVA, Sept. 7. — The League Council today asked Italy and Ethiopia not to resort to force, pending efforts to reach a peaceful solution of their differences.

The bills returned were one each for bribery arson, burglarly, and drunk driving.

Their report to Judge Fires was as follows:

"We, your Grand Jury, duly empanelled for the September Term, A. D. 1935, of the District Court of Hall County, Texas, submit this, our final report:

We have been in session for five days and have, during our labors, examined many witnesses; we have returned into open court heretofore twelve bills of indictment, and we herewith return four bills of indictment, all felonies. AUTO SAFETY SUGGESTIONS

STOP SIGNS MEAN "STOP"

Stop signs are so few in this city that if you stop at all of them, as is intended, they will not seriously inconvenience you.

They are placed at intersections and their purpose is to bring the vehicle to a stop, so that the driver may have time to see that no traffic is coming on the main traffic lane, before he crosses it.

Some of the most serious accidents results from a failure to observe the stop signs. A driver barges right onto the street and is struck by an oncoming car which has the right-of-way and whose driver naturally expects to have a clear track.

Next time you approach one of the red stop buttons, STOP.

JUST A PART OF THE AMBITIOUS PROJECT FOR MEMPHIS SCHOOLS

The WPA project submitted for the improvements to the Memphis Public School system, is one of the most interesting of those submitted from this county, and will prove of great benefit to both the schools and the city.

Embracing, as it does, the improvement of the grounds at all the school buildings and the creation of a community center at the old East Ward building, the cost of the project, $9,000, is remarkably low. The only cost to the city will be the salary of a supervisor to direct the work.

Improvements contemplated on the grounds of the various school buildings include the placing of 500 loads of dirt to level up the grounds of the West Ward and Junior High buildings, for proper drainage.

Fifty evergreen trees, 300 Chinese Elms, and 2,000 hedge plants will be planted on the grounds of the various buildings, and 1200 feet of water pipe and hydrants installed, for watering same.

Where the project will show up the most is in the metamorphosis of the old East Ward building. This is to change from a weather-worn building of solid structure, but in bad repair into an attractive and most useful Community Center.

The building is to be placed in repair and modernized. Some of the interior partitions will be changed, to suit the building for its new purpose.

The grounds around the building will be leveled and graded, lawns will be seeded, and an ornamental six foot cobblestone will be built entirely around the property.

The present lavatories will be razed and modern equipment installed instead.

Four double tennis courts with clay surfaces and steel wire backstops will be built.

Exhibit booths and a stock judging ring will be erected, making it an ideal place for exhibits, fairs and other similar attractions.

The building will be equipped with a shop for the new Vocational Agriculture department, and will also be equipped as an ideal meeting place for Boy Scouts, Hi-Y Club, 4-H Club and other like organizations.

Mr. W. E. Burke, of the district WPA office, stated while here the first of the week that this project was one that he could unhesitatingly recommend, and that he felt sure it would be approved.

P. T. A. MEETING IS PLANNED HERE

Importance of Body To City To Be Stressed

A joint meeting of the three Parent-Teacher Associations of the city, West Ward, Junior High and High School, is being arranged for Friday, September 13. It will be held at 7:30 p. m. at the High School auditorium.

The school faculty and board will be the honorees, and the purpose will be to acquaint everyone with the P.T.A. and the school program in general.

There will be an out of town speaker on the program, who will speak on what the organization means to both school and community.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Gold Medal Band and the Rhythm Band of the West Ward, and refreshment will be served.

Every father and mother in the city is urged to plan now to attend, wheater they have children in school or not. In fact, everybody in the city is cordially invited to attend.

Superintendent Davis says he wants to see the auditorium jammed and packed on this occasion.

STORM VICTIM'S BODIES BEING BURNED

Move Was Necessary To Avoid Serious Epidemic

By Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 7.—Sheriff Coleman, directing the rescue operations on the Lower Keys, reported that the Red Cross today was burning the bodies of Monday night's storm victims.

The first match was applied to the oil-soaked pyre of bodies after daylight this morning.

Governor Sholtz had issued the cremation order on the recommedation of the state health authorities, as a precaution against a serious outbreat of pestilence.

It appeared likely that but few of the bodies would be buried, on account of the difficulty of digging graves in the coral formation of the keys.

Relief workers, wearied and sickened by the sights of horror, are proceeding as rapidly as possible in the disposition of the bodies, which are in an advanced stage of decompostion.

Governor Sholtz will go to Washington next week, to personally deliver to the President a report of the casualties and property damage, the matter of possible rehabilitation, and charges that the U. S. Weather Bureau failed to give storm warning in time to evacuate the men from the keys.

The storms, in the meantime, has moved farther eastwart, and warnings have been posted from Sandy Hook, New Jersey, to Boston.

The BLUE DOOR

by Rachel Mack

© 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

RUTH WOODSON, a pretty, high-spirited girl of 19, an orphan, lives with relatives, the LAWRENCES. Feeling herself hated by her cousin, LETTY LAWRENCE, Ruth impulsively takes a bus for the mid-west in hope of finding work. Running out of money, she is put off the bus in a small town just as a storm is breaking. She seeks refuge in a big, gloomy stone house with a blue door, and faints from hunger.

She is carried upstairs by the old housekeeper and a young man, JOHN McNEILL. The old housekeeper has mistaken Ruth for ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Ruth allows the mistake to stand, in order to enjoy the good meal and comfortable bed which she needs. The old woman says to her, "Please call me Penny, like you used to do."

Elaine Chalmers, meanwhile, at school at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her first sweetheart, John McNeill.

Ruth resolves, with regret, to quit the old house early next morning.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Ruth did not realize her own exhausted condition. When she sank into a deep, dreamless sleep it was not to waken at day-break, as she had planned, but in response to a knock on her door hours later.

Sitting up in consternation, she cried, "Come in!" and there entered the old woman with the bent back and peering eyes.

"Oh!" cried Ruth. "I meant—" She stopped abruptly, for, of course she could not say, "I meant to run away before you caught me!"

"I was worried about you, Miss Elaine. Are you feeling better? And will you take your breakfast now?"

Ruth thought, "Now I'm in it up to my neck." Yet a lilting happiness mingled with her dismay. She would have to spend another day here and another night! In this situation there were blended three elements that cheered her; adventure, a little respite from her wanderings, and (most important of all) the chance of seeing once more the young man named John.

"Oh Lawsy!" exclaimed the old woman. "Are you too sick to talk, Miss Elaine?" She came to the bed and put her hand on the girl's forehead. "Where do you hurt most?"

Ruth laughed. "I don't hurt at all, Penny, and I'm not sick. Just tired and stiff and sort of jumbled in the head. I was so surprised to find myself here that I couldn't answer you."

Penny said, "When your letter came Tuesday, sayin' you were comin' to the old house for a rest I didn't think you'd be followin' it so soon. I thought you said you'd be here in a couple of weeks. My eyes are terrible bad. I reckon I read it wrong."

"Don't you ever wear glasses, Penny?" asked Ruth scoldingly.

"They don't help, Miss Elaine. I think it's cataract. I'll end up by bein' stone blind, I'm afraid."

"Oh," said Ruth, "I'm sorry!" She impulsively took the old woman's hand and held it for a moment against her cheek. Here was another human being with troubles as deep as her own, and without the hope of youth to help her bear them. "Poor Penny!" she murmured.

"Not that I can't see to take care of the house!" the old woman declared hastily.

"Oh, no!" agreed Ruth. "Did you say breakfast, Penny?"

"Yes, Miss Elaine. There's plenty of fresh eggs. I still keep chickens — white leghorns, the same as when you were a child."

"I'd like a couple of your white leghorn eggs, Penny," Ruth said with enthusiasm, "and a cup of coffee. Some toast, too, if it's not too much trouble."

"It's not," Penny said. "You've changed a lot, Miss Elaine. You never used to think whether a thing was trouble or not." She went out, shaking her head in wonder.

* * *

After breakfast the girl amazed the old servant yet further by making her own bed and tidying her room. "I don't want to cause you any extra work," Ruth explained. "You've enough to do as it is."

"I can manage the work fine," the old woman declared positively. "I hope you'll tell your mother and stepfather that, if you get a chance. I don't want to be pensioned off, not till I drop in my tracks."

Ruth saw that the old creature had a horror of giving up her place. She longed to reassure her yet she felt that such deception would be cruel in the end. As she thought of the old woman's troubles, her own schemes took second place. The impulse came to tell Penny, then and there, that she was not entertaining "Elaine," but just a tramp girl who had wandered in for shelter.

"Penny," she said, "I've something to tell you. I'm not—"

There came a knocking at the front door and Penny said, "Tell me later, Miss Elaine. It's young John McNeill came to ask about you. He carried you upstairs when you fainted last night. He was worried—"

She went hobbling down the stairs to open the door, while the knocking continued, with some impatience.

Presently Penny called, "Will you come down, Miss Elaine?"

Ruth made a quick survey of herself in the mirror, added a discreet touch of lipstick and went down. Her heart was pounding with both panic and pleasure.

The young man was waiting at the foot of the stairs. John McNeill just missed being handsome, but Ruth's eyes, in their hasty survey, saw that he had the rare quality of distinction. He looked up at her quizzically and Ruth thought, "He'll know I'm a fake, I shan't have to confess."

But he said, "Good morning, Elaine," and held out his hand.

She was surprised to find herself saying, "John McNeill!" and putting her hand in his.

* * *

There was a little silence between them after they had shaken hands, but it was not an awkward silence. Penny, who was observing them like a benignant owl, remarked curiously, "Do you find her much changed, Mr. John? I can't depend on my eyes any more—"

"Changed for the better" John McNeill answered coolly.

Penny remarked. "She hasn't made as big a woman as I thought she'd make. She was always an over-tall child, and well filled out too."

John put his head on one side, considering this. "Let's see—how old were you when you visited here last?"

"Twelve," Ruth replied grimly. To herself she observed, "Bright girl! I know the answers—so far."

"And I was 16," John McNeill said thoughtfully.

"I was in love with you," Ruth remarked audaciously. "You were too old to notice me much, but I was crazy about you just the same." (she thought, "Whatever made me say that!")

Penny said with a cackle, "Yes you were, Miss Elaine! You used to follow him around everywhere, makin' eyes at him. Such airs as you put on, to get him to notice you!"

John McNeill laughed and joined Penny in looking back through the years. "But I noticed she was a good-looking kid," he confessed.

"I remember I said to my mother, 'Give Elaine Chalmers four or five years and she'll be a professional heart-breaker. She's got something—' "

"It seems to me her hair looks darker," Penny stated. "Her mother's hair turned dark that way, too, though not so noticeable."

Ruth thought, "Why have I gotten into this thing! In just a minute something's going to be said—something's going to break—"

But nothing was said, and nothing broke. John McNeill turned the conversation from the past to the present, as if that alone interested him. "I'm on my way to work now," he remarked, "but all days must end. Could I invite myself to dinner tonight, Penny, if I brought a steak and cooked it myself."

Penny said, "Why, yes, Mr. John. But shouldn't you bring your mother, too?"

"Mother's out of town," he answered, "visiting Aunt Sarah in Scranton," (Ruth realized she had been holding her breath). "So you see it's pure charity for you to take me in."

* * *

As he left he said to Ruth, "No more fainting! Promise?"

She laughed. "I was just like a gay nineties heroine last night, wasn't I? I can't imagine what made me do it!"

He looked at her curiously. "You seemed pretty tired," was all he said.

After he had gone Penny seemed to want to talk, but Ruth set about evading her. John McNeill's visit had caused Ruth to abandon all thought of confession she had been on the verge of making. She thought, "It would spoil the little party tonight. It would spoil everything. I'm going to be Elaine for a few hours longer. It's the nicest thing that ever happened to me!"

So when Penny said, after a while, "Excuse me, Miss Elaine, but does your stepfather, Mr. Deal, say anything more about selling the house?" Ruth replied cannily, "I think it's best for us not to discuss things like that, Penny."

She felt contrite when she saw how rebuked the old creature looked, so she exclaimed hastily, "That funny nickname 'Penny'! How did you get that? I've forgotten."

"Why," the old woman answered, diverted, "It happened when you were just a little tot. I gave you pennies for your bank because you had a fancy for dropping them in. Every time you dropped in a penny a little iron man stepped out and saluted. So you called me 'Penny! Penny!' "

Ruth laughed absently, but she was looking at her hands. "I meant to ask you, Penny—have you any turpentine? I've got blue paint on my hands. It must have come off the door last night. I didn't realize it was freshly painted when I was pounding on it—"

"Oh!" cried the old woman reproachfully. "You've scarred the door!"

She looked so striken that Ruth said quickly, "If I have, I'll repair the damage. Have you any paint left?"

"Oh, yes," Penny said queerly. "But the quarter moon's past. I'll have to wait now—"

That was the first intimation Ruth had that the old woman was "touched," that mystery as well as pathos dwelt under this roof . . . Penny hobbled quickly to the porch and Ruth could see her, through the prismatic glass of the side panels, rubbing the door with her sleeve and squinting at it anxiously.

Daily Workouts Rapidly Developing Cyclone Squad Into a Real Threat

FIRST SCRIMMAGE IS HELD THIS WEEK AND MEN SHOWING UP WELL

With high hopes for one of the most successful seasons since the organization of the Interscholastic League, the Cyclone squad of 26 men is now entering their third week of practice, under the able guidance of Coach "Chesty" Walker.

With cool weather prevailing, the coach is drilling his men rather strenuously on fundamentals, but last Thursday he found time to switch over, and they indulged in a hard scrimmage.

During this first scrimmage of the season, several of the boys showed up well, considering the short time they have been at work, and gave promise of an aggressive and polished team as soon as the rough spots were smoothed off.

Especially encouraging to "Chesty" was the defense work of Deason in the backfield, Ben Scott at end, and "Country" Adcock at defense halfback. These men are, however, by no means the only fighters in the squad. The entire 26 men are trying to secure a regular berth on the first string, and before the first game there will probably be many changes in both the line and backfield.

Davis, a letter man of last year, was welcomed back to the squad and will be eligible to compete this year. He is an end of no little reputation, and has his eye on cinching one of the flank positions on the first string. However, he is not the only man with his eye on that place, and the man who finally gets the call will be well worth watching as the season goes on.

Coach Walker is having his troubles in filling up the holes left by his graduating regulars of last season. He is drilling Winfred Swift and Fred Sanders in punting, and he states that these two men are picking up fast and will probably develop into splendid kickers early in the season.

Powers is spending quite a bit of time in learning to heave passes, and according to the coach, is improving rapidly.

The squad works out every afternoon after school, and they don't call it quits until it gets too dark to see the ball. They are utilizing the new stadium field for practice, which, since the rain is in good shape, and seems to be benefitting from the trampling of the boys. The individual clumps of grass are sending out runners, and these are tramped into the ground by the squad in practicing, where they take root and improve the sod.

Forty additional men, besides the 26 first string prospects, are working out daily under the direction of Assistant Coach Symers, a newcomer in the local schools. These boys are a trifle light for places on the regulars, but in a few years will form the backbone of the Cyclone. With the experience they are receiving now, they will be wonderful material for "Chesty" when he goes to pick a team in a year or two.

Football in the Junior High School is expected to get under way next week. The boys will all be decked out in new uniforms. They will go through regular practice sessions, have scrimmages, play a few games among themselves or against boys of the same age. In other works, they will be football players in their own right.

The Best Ever

Gangway! Here comes Dave Smukler, huge Temple junior who Pop Warner says will become the greatest back of all time.

SMUKLER CREAM OF THE CROP SAYS POP

Temple Back Better Prospect Than Nevers-Thorp

Glenn Scoby Warner, "Pop" to all football fans, now head coach at Temple University, comes out flat-footed and proclaims Dave Smukler, Temple back, as the grestest backfield man who ever put cleated foot to gridiron.

Having developed Jim Thorpe of Carlisle and Ernie Nevers of Stanford, admittedly two of the greatest backs the game has ever seen, Pop's statements has lots of weight.

According to Warner, Thorpe was one of the most versitile players he ever coached, while Nevers was the most dependable and consistent. In Smukler, he says he has a man who combines all the good qualities of both of these famous gridsmen.

"I really believe," said Pop, "that Smukler will prove to be the greatest player I have ever coached, and one of the best the game has ever seen. Dave weighs 220 pounds and does not have a weakness. He can hit the line, run the ends, punt and pass, and is the best man I have ever seen backing up to the line on defense. He loves the game, is reliable and consistent, and seldom gets hurt. He has two more years to play."

In the light of Warner's statements, the work of Smukler for Temple this season will be watched with a great deal of interest by the football fans of the nation.

Local Boy On W. T. S. T. C. Team

Ezell Champion, Memphis boy who starred at Quarter on last season's West Texas State Teachers College gridiron squad, is prominently mentioned as an outstanding candidate for the position again this year.

Champion's heady work at the key position last year, and his generalship and clever handling of both offense and defense, make him almost a certainty to again be the field general for the Canyon team.

WHY Does Memphis Need a Chamber of Commerce ?

One might just as easily ask why do ships need sails, or why do horses need legs, or why do automobiles need wheels?

Memphis does not need a Chamber of Commerce IF we are satisfied with our city as it is. But, if we want to GET SOMEWHERE we must have a means of locomotion.

The Chamber of Commerce is that means.

It is the propelling force that makes a village of a hamlet, a city of a town, a metropolis of a city—or, if you prefer, it makes a GOOD town out of an ordinary one.

Civic clubs, service clubs, social clubs—all play their part in the community, but none takes the place of the Chamber of Commerce because it is an organization in which citizens of EVERY type may meet on common ground for the general good.

The Chamber of Commerce has no substitute, no counterpart. Excluding churches and schools, no organization is of greater importance to any city. And its usefulness is measured only by the power placed behind it through individual memberships.

This is the first of a series of four advertisements, paid for by firms whose advertisements surround this message, designed to acquaint the people of Memphis with the value of the Chamber of Commerce.

GOOD OLD TEXAS

SOME folks contend that California is the finest state in the Union, and some hold out for Florida. As for us, Texas looks mighty good.

In Southern California, last year, an earthquake devastated block after block of several coast towns and cities, killing hundreds. If the quake had come earlier in the afternoon, before schools were out for the day, thousands would have been the toll.

This week in Florida, a hurrican swept the state, wiping whole villages off the map and killing and maiming untold hundreds. Ships were tossed about like chips in a mill pond, and railroad trains shattered like a child's toy.

California and Florida may have their oranges, grape fruit and other tropical products. The sun may shine there more than it does here. The winters may be milder and the summer nights cooler.

But, all in all, give us the good old Lone Star State, drought or no drought. We may not get the rains just when we want them, the winters may make us shiver sometimes, the dust may blow . . . but, at least, we can go to sleep at nights without any fear of the house falling on us, or of being swept into the sea by a hurricane.

GOOD NEWS

FARMERS tell us that the recent rains are going to increase the feed crop in Hall County by more than half.

This is the best of news. Cotton may be a little light, compared to the years before the drought, but if feed is plentiful Hall County will come back with a bang.

Our farmers have had to buy feed to feed their livestock for the past two or three years. If conditions had been such that feed would have to be purcased again this year, it is doubtful if some of them could have found the money to do so.

But we're going to have plenty of kaffir and milo and feterita, and the other breakfast foods so prized by the bovine and equine races, and everything is going to be alright.

The drought period is over, and another year will see good old Hall at the top of the heap again.

A Ruthless But Life-Saving Sermon For the Man in the Driver's Seat

. . . and Sudden Death

By J. S. FURNAS—Repri... mission of "Reader's D...

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has ordered 1000 reprints of the complete article of which the following is but a resume, and will distribute them to local motorists.

* * *

In Boston, following its appearance in "Reader's Digest," traffic offenders were given the option of paying a fine of reading the entire article.

* * *

Like the gruesome spectacle of a bad automobile accident itself, the realistic details of this article will nauseate some readers. Those who find themselves thus affected at the outset are cautioned against reading the article in its entirety, since there is no letdown in the authors outspoken treatment of sickening facts.

* * *

Publicizing the total of motoring injuries—almost a million last year, with 36,000 deaths—never gets to first base in jarring the motorist into a realization of the appalling risks of motoring. He does not translate dry statistics into a reality of blood and agony.

Figures exclude the pain and horror of savage mutilation—which means they leave out the point. They need to be brought closer home. A passing look at a bad smash or the news that a fellow you had lunch with last week is in a hospital with a broken back will make any driver but a born fool slow down at least temporarily. But what is needed is a vivid and sustained realization that every time you step on the throttle, death gets in beside you, hopefully waiting for his chance. That single horrible accident you may have witnessed is no isolated horror. That sort of thing happens every hour of the day, everywhere in the United States. If you really felt that, perhaps the stickful of type of Monday's paper recording that a total of 29 local citizens were killed in weekend crashes would rate something more than a perfunctory tut-tut as you turn back to the sports page.

* * *

An enterprising judge now and again sentences reckless drivers to tour the accident end of a city morgue. But even a mangled body on a slab, waxily portraying the consequences of bad motoring judgement, isn't a patch on the scene of the accident itself. No artist working on a safety poster would dare depict that in full detail.

That picture would have to include motion picture and sound effects, too—the flopping, pointless efforts of the injured to stand up; the queer, grunting noises, the steady, panting groaning of a human being with pain creeping upon him as the shock wears off, it should portray the slack expression on the face of a man, drugged with shock, staring at the Z-twist in his broken leg, the insane crumpled effect of a child's body after its bones are crushed inward, a realistic protrait of a hysterical woman with her screaming mouth opening a hole in the bloody drip that fills her eyes and runs off her chin. Minor details would include the raw ends of bones protruding through flesh in the compound fractures, and the dark red, oozing surfaces where clothes and skin were flayed off at once.

* * *

Anything can happen in that split second of crash, even those lucky escapes you hear about. People have dived through windshields and come out with only superficial scratches. They have run cars together head on, reducing both to twisted junk, and been unhurt and arguing bitterly two minutes afterward. But death was there just the same—he was only exercising his privilege of being erratic. This spring a wrecking crew pried the door off a car which had been overturned down an embackment and out stepped the driver with only a scratch on his cheak. But his mother was still inside, a splinter of wood from the top driven four inches into her brain as a result of son's taking a greasy curve a little too fast. No blood—no horribly twisted bones—just a gray-haired corpse still clutching her pocketbook in her lap as she had clutched it when she felt the car leave the road.

On that same curve a month later, a light touring car crashed a tree. In the middle of the front seat they found a 9-month-old baby surrounded by broken glass and yet absolutely unhurt. A fine practical joke on death—but spoiled by the baby's parents, still sitting on each side of him, instantly killed by shattering their skulls on the dashboard.

* * *

Flying glass—safety glass is no means universal yet—contributes much more than its share to the spectacular side of accidents. It doesn't merely cut—the fragments are driven in as if a cannon loaded with broken bottles had been fired in your face, and a sliver in the eye, traveling with such force, means certain blindness. A leg or arm struck through the windshield will cut clean to the bone through vein, artery and muscle like a piece of beef under the butcher's knife, and it takes little time to lose a fatal amount of blood under such circumstances. Even safetly glass may not be wholly safe when the car crashes something at high speed. You hear picturesque tales of how a flying human body will make a neat hole in the stuff with its head—the shoulders stick—the glass holds—and the raw, keen edge of the hole decapitates the body as neatly as a guillontine.

Or, to continue with the decapitation motif, going off the road into a post-and-rail fence can put you beyond worrying about other injuries immediately when a rail comes through the windshield and tears off your head with its splintery end—not as neat a job but thoroughly efficient. Bodies are often found with their shoes off and their feet all broken out of shape. The shoes are back on the floor of the car, empty and with their laces still neatly tied. That is the kind if impact produced by modern speeds.

* * *

But all that is routine in every American community. To be remembered individually by doctors and policemen, you have to do something as grotesque as the lady who burst the windshield with her head, splashing splinters all over the other occupants of the car, and then, as the car rolled over, rolled with it down the edge of the windshield frame and cut her throat from ear to ear. Noted Hereford Herds to Exhibit at Tri-State Fair

Noted herds, especially Herefords, from practically every state, are exhibited each year at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo and at the 1935 exposition, September 14-21, which wil be the largest in Texas, will be seen the same herds shown at the American Royal in Kansas City or at the International in Chicago.

Last year's Hereford show at the fair was rated by foremost livestock breeders as the thrid largest in the United States and the most up-to-date.

The Texas Centennial Commissioner has alloted Fort Worth $250,000 for its proposed memorial to the livestock industry of Texas in 1936. The Fort Worth people are planning to make the livestock show the greatest in history in points of number of displays and attendance. The headquarters unit for the Centennial will be at Dallas, and other units will be built at historical points, such as San Antonio where the Alamo stood; at Houston where the San Jacinto battle was fought for Texas independence, etc, A regular World's Fair, that's what it is going to be.

When descending in the cool of late afternoon the frigid atmosphere caused their gas to contract and they lacked ballast to throw out and lighten the load of the gondola to compensate for the decreased lifting power of the gasbag.

Hence they began to plunge rapidly earthward, unable to check their speed. So great became the velocity of descent that the gondola was torn from the balloon and fell like a rock.

In the "glider-straostat" this danger will be wholly eliminated when the scientists have reached their maximum height they will pull a lever which will detach the glider from its supporting bag. Then the craft will volplane earthward like any other glider.

It is estimated that if the glider cuts loose at a height of 20,000 meters, the pilots will be able to maneuver into any airport within a circle haveig a diameter of 250 miles—thus giving them a wide range of selecturity. Grordousky has calculated the glider should land within 1 hour and 42 minutes.

Futher safety in case of accident to the glider is assured by an appartus, operated by a lever from within the cabin, which causes the wings to drop off the craft simultaneously with the opening of a giant parachute which would lower the cabin gently to earth. As a last resort, the scientists themselves will be equipped with individual parachutes.

FINE KAFFIR CORN EXHIBITED BY KESTERSON

A head of black husk Kaffir Corn brought into the Democrat office Friday afternoon by Bill Kesterson is one of the best we have seen.

The head, well matured and filled out, was 13 inches high and 18 inches around, with full, meaty grains.

It was raised on Mr. Kesterson's place near Newlin, and Bill said it was just an average head from the field, and not picked as one o fthe largest.

Mr. Kesterson says that the recent rains have increased the yield of feed on his place by at least 60 per cent, and had helped cotton a great deal.

The Canadian Record reports that Frank Bryant recently sold his 240-acre farm in Hemphill County, to G. C. Johnson for $12,000. Not only was the deal for "spot cash," but the Record says the price of $50 and acre was one of the highest ever paid for land in that county.

* * *

A profit of $937,79 was made by Richard Winters, 13-year-old 4-H club boy of McCullouch County, by feeding 24 Hereford calves for seven months. The animals were fed in self-feeders the first four months, and were hand fed the remainder of the time.

A yellow seed variety of sorghum, a cross between milo and kafir, may compare favorably with milo maize as a feed crop in West Texas, if an experiment new being worked out by the College is successful.

Corn, red top cane, seeded ribbon cane, hegari, kafir, milo and a few more such crops are going into trench silos in West Texas this month.

BACK-TO-THE-FARM— Tarrant County has experienced a back-to-the-farm movement during the last four years. The farm census shows that on April 1, 1931, the county had 3,366 farms. Figures January 1, this year, listed 4,058, a gain of 692 farms.

IMPORTANCE OF MORE FREQUENT DELIVERY OF CREAM

It is very necessary that cream be delivered as often as possible for two important reasons: (1) cream under 4 days old possesses a natural aromatic flavor that is very desirable and which disappears with age; (2) holding the cream too long results in the development of many off flavors which tend to lower the quality of the products. These two points should be discussed separately.

In regard to the first one, that is, the natural aroma and flavor possessed by cream when it is fresh, it is very important that this virtue of the cream be preserved. Butter made from cream less than 4 days old and which has been properly care for, will possess a distinctive natural flavor which cannot be duplicated by any means of processing. 4 day delivery coupled with our present method of grading by taste, smell and sediment tests, would be desirable due to the fact that we would receive the fresh cream with its natural flavor preserved without having any off flavors or odors, and without being grossly contaminated by extraneous matter.

In regard to the second reason for frequent delivery of cream I would like to discuss briefly some of the flavors which develop from holding the cream too long. The discussion of these developed flavors is taken partially from Extension Bulletin No. 109 of the Michigan State College of Agriculture.

High Acid or Rancid Cream: Such cream is very sour and often bitter in taste. It is caused by use of unclean milk pails and dirty separator, by lack of proper cooling, by mixing warm and cold cream together; or by holding at a high temperature.

Yeasty or Foamy Cream: Such cream has a characteristic yeasty pungent smell and fluffy, foamy body. This defect is brought about by uncleanliness, by failure to hold the cream at a low temperature and by exposure of the utensils and cream to dust laden air.

Cheesy Cream: Cheesy cream has the taste and smell of an aged cheddar cheese. Such flavor in cream results from unclean utensils, dirty separator, low butterfat content and to holding the cream for a long period of time. Bitter Cream: Bitter flavor may result from storing cream at low temperature for a long time or may be a flavor carried over from the milk.

Tallowy Cream: This flavor results from unclean production and holding for a long period of time at a low temperature and especially in the presence of light, particularly the direct rays of the sun.

Fishy Cream: This flavor develops in cream held for a long time at a low temperature and is very objectionable.

Many cream producers have the mistaken idea that holding cream for a long period of time tends to increase the butterfat content. It is true that the butterfat test on a batch of cream held over a period of time will be higher, but this increase in test is due to the evaporation of moisture from the cream and does not mean that the butterfat content is any greater. The butterfat rontent will remain the same, although there will be a variation in the weight of the cream itself due to evaporation. Delivery as often as possible, at least every 4 days, will pay the producer dividends because his cream reaching the market will be of high quality and in such condition that a true representative butterfat test can be made on the same.

SOVIET BUILDS NEW TYPE OF PLANE

Believed Foolproof For Stratosphere Flights

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
United Press Staff Corespondent
By United Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 7.—A "glider-statostat" which will combine the best safety features of heavier- and lighter-than-air craft in exploring the skies is being built by the Soviet under the direction of P. I. Gronovsky, a well-known aircraft designer.

No date has been set for the first ascent of the strang hybrid machine, but if work progresses satisfactorily it may rise before the end of the year.

Perhaps prompted by the death of three Soviet scientists in the "Syrius-Osoaviakhim" who were killed in 1934 when their gondola broke away from its gas-bag, Gronovsky is designing a craft which he expects to be virtually "fool-proof."

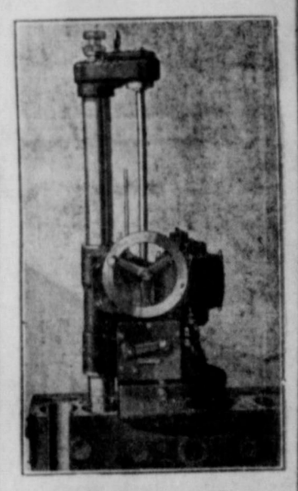

Cabin Really Is Glider

Beneath a gas-bag with a capacity of 25,000 cubic meters (a little larger than the "USSR-1-BIS" which ascended recently) will be suspended a hermetically-sealed cabin glider. It will have places for two occupants, each being supplied with control gear.

The motorless machine will be equipped with scientific apparatus for registering temperature, altitude, atmosphic pressure and other stratospheric conditions on the ascent.

In past stratostat flights scientists have encounterel their greatest difficulty while descending. The men in the "Syrius-Osoaviakhim," for example, in their eagerness to reach a great height released too much of their blast.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?
Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION:

What do you thing about the East Side School Building project?

THE ANSWER:

E. N. HUDGINS: My impression of the project is a very favorable one. If that old school house, which has been abandoned and let disintegrate, can be put into active use through the means of a WPA project, I think it will be a very useful bit of work. The originator of the scheme is to be complimented for his foresight and thoughtfulness. I believe Supt. Davis is the man responsible, and I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the way he has taken hold of the school problems here in Memphis and has started one of the liveliest school years in our history. But all this is beside the point.

No plan has ever been devised that met the approval of the entire citizenship, and this plan is no exception. The criticism I have heard is in relation to its location. It is true it might not be centrally located and in a sort of an out of the way place, but even at that it will be better to have it there than no place at all. Figuring on the project itself, it will give work to the unemployed and create additional employment. More important, however, is the lasting benefit it will give the whole county, and just not Memphis, because it is situated in this community.

Also, I have heard some talk about the immediate environment of the building. Who can answer this—it is too bad we are all not financially able to live in the best districts of the city. If an appeal was made to the residents of this section of Memphis, asking for their co-operation and were given the responsibility of watching out for the care of the building, I know, there would never be cause for complaint.

Memphis has for a long time needed such a building for the purpose intended, and a building that could be used as a public meeting place, i. e., an auditorium.

The only cost, as I understand it, will be for a supervisor to be in charge of the building at all times. This is necessary and at the same time is trivial in comparison to the good of the project. We are practically getting something for nothing, so we ought to reciprocate gladly, and I think there is no question, but what the people of Memphis will be glad to do this—if the project is acted on favorably—and I don't see how it can miss.

REV. T. J. REA: The rejuvenation of the East Side building would certainly be a decided advantage for the town and the entire county. A meeting place, under the guidance of an able leader, where our children could hold their regular weekly or monthly gatherings would be a fine and worthy project. If this plan needs the assistance of the citizens of Memphis to complete it, or help to have it passed on favorably, then the entire city should respond 100 per cent.

Such a meeting place, where the children will have the desire to gather every time an occasion will present itself, would tend to keep them out of petty trouble and mischief. This in itself would more than compensate for the building and its cost. We can not make too many sacrifices for our children—the future men and women of our community.

If this project is approved it will help considerably to round out the beauty of the city—and complete field of activity.

Seth Parker Is In Trouble Again

By Associated Press

HONOLULU, Sept. 7—Coast Guard patrol boats today rush to the rescue of the schooner Seth Parker, 600 miles southeast of here, after the battered and leaking vessel had radioed for help. The message said that the vessel was leaking badly, the pumps were not working, and there was no food for the crew of 15.

Nudists hold congress in New Jersey. It probably was difficult to gauge the popularity of various proposals, mosquitoes undoubtedly being responsible for much of the applause.

Young Folks Enjoy Picnic At Hedley

Mr. and Mrs. Thom McDougal made charming host and hostess when they entertained a group of young people with a picnic at the new park near Giles Thursday evening. The guests met at the McDougal home where the eats were packed and punch made. After arriving at the park a fire was made and the expert coffee makers, Richard Longshore and Thom McDougall, strutted their stuff. Much amusement with Ewell Whittfield as master of ceremonies prevailed when the sandwiches were unpacked and spread on the table. Lois Longshore and Lloyd Richerson amused the others by looking for their favorite sandwiches. One of the most difficult tasks was the job of Thom McDougal and Lloyd Leggitt when they tried to convince Hazel Stewart that the coffee was the best ever.

Those enjoying the evening were Misses Jack Leach, Lloyd Richerson, Opal Hess, Jessie Mildred Culwell, Hazell Stewart, Nettie Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Longshore, Virgil McPherson, Lance Leggitt, Ewell Whitfield, Maxie Shaw, Lloyd Leggitt, Mr. and Mrs. McDougal and Tommie Irene McDougal.

WHEN a bird of prey is flying easily, it keeps its wings slightly bent. But when climbing fast, it straightens them out, and spreads the primary quills, which separates the feathers from each other over a length of a fifth of the wing. Some airplanes have made use of this notch design to aid in gaining altitude swiftly, without stalling.
