MISD: Insurance to cover victims

By Richard Acosta
Staff Writer

Midland Independent School District Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. issued a statement Friday indicating the district's catastrophic insurance policy will cover three students severely burned in a Lee High School chemistry class explosion.

The MISD statement reads, "The policy provides secondary coverage where a family already has primary coverage; it provides primary coverage where a family has no applicable insurance. The families will work directly with the insurance carrier in identifying benefits."

The letter indicates the policy will begin covering the students after $25,000 in expenses have been incurred. The policy has a $5 million lifetime maximum benefit for each student.

Baressi said the district has been struggling to find a means in which to help the three burned students.

In his statement, Baressi wrote, "We were pleased to learn that there appears to be some relief for the families involved. We wish that the ($25,000) deductible was not so high, but the policy does offer significant coverage, should the medical costs escalate. And again, we wish the best for our students on their road to recovery."

The Oct. 10 explosion injured three Lee High students: Teran Nix, David Dutchover and Brooke Bagley

In an Oct. 19 letter to Teran Nix's parents, Baressi indicated the district would not help cover medical expenses, but suggested to the parents, "You can call Mike Robinson (MISD director of benefits/risk management) and he will assist you in every possible way to pursue your rights under this insurance coverage."

■ Teran Nix was released from the hospital Friday and is back in Midland. Her wounds are beginning to heal. She will have to return to University Medical Center Wednesday to see the burn doctor and psychologist. Next week her parents will try to enroll her in the homebound school program. It will be several months before she will be able to return to school.

■ David Dutchover was supposed to be back at school by now, but in a checkup at University Medical Center in Lubbock, doctors discovered a staph infection on his upper arms and both thighs. If the severity of the infection decreases, he could be back in school next week.

■ Brooke Bagley was seen by doctors in Lubbock this past week. She is undergoing physical therapy every day. Walking or getting around remains difficult as her foot muscles were badly burned.

Failed bond costs about $220,000 in architectural fees

By Danielle Belton
Staff Writer

The $72.2 million high school bond referendum failed three weeks ago, but Midland Independent School District soon will receive about $220,000 in invoices from architectural firms involved in the project.

MISD Executive Director of Auxiliary Services and Construction Wilson Heidelberg said the money will not go in vain simply because the bond issue failed.

"None of this money will be wasted," Heidelberg said. "We can use everything we've got and it can be used for a future bond issue."

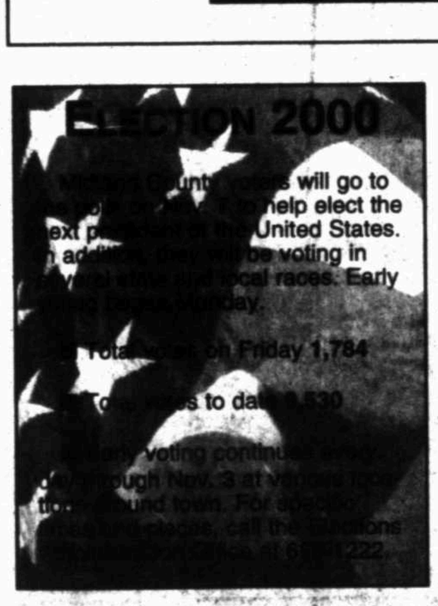

The architectural firms — PBK Architects Inc. in Houston and Parkhill, Smith and Cooper in Midland — were contracted to handle the design and construction of the new Midland High school and renovations to Lee High School.

Heidelberg remains adamant about the usefulness of the architectural firms' work. He said it is basically an investment in future bond issues.

Heidelberg mentioned there had been some concern about the initial designs for Midland High School that included a clock tower, but he said it shouldn't be considered an issue because it wasn't a necessary factor in the building of the school.

Because all of the initial work is done, he said it easily could be used again for

Midland sees record turnout in first week of early voting

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

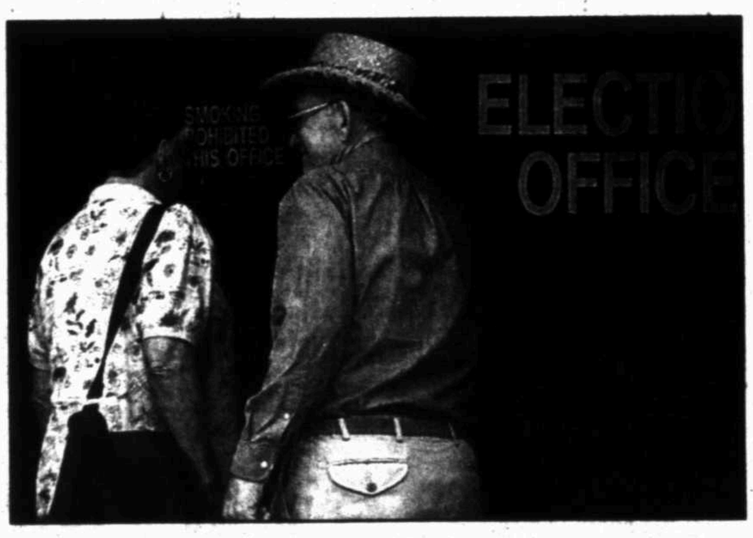

The first five days of the early-voting period in the Nov. 7 general election attracted a record 8,530 Midland voters, Pat Eastup, administrator of the Midland County Elections Administration, said on Friday.

■ Campaign 2000/3A

"I'm delighted (with the turnout)," Mrs. Eastup said after closing of the day's polling in which 1,784 people voted in person at the elections headquarters at 709 W. Washington Ave. Votes in the previous four days ranged from 1,451 to 1,926.

The first five days of early voting in the Oct. 7 Midland Independent School District's $72.2 million bond election drew 6,304 voters. The election's total vote count was 19,495.

MOHRE hires new executive director

By Ian Heald
Staff Writer

The Midland Odessa Health and Retirement Endeavor (MOHRE) has a new executive director.

Tina Kay Walker, a former director of membership at Oklahoma State University, was hired this week. One of 30 applicants for the position, Mrs. Walker was hired because of her excellent track record in recruiting alumni members at Oklahoma State University, said Laura Lyons, vice president of the MOHRE board.

"Clearly she has had excellent experience in recruitment in a university setting," Ms. Lyons said. "She has excellent marketing and fund-raising experience. In the past she's worked with boards of directors for alumni associations. She has a lot of qualifications that we were looking for."

MOHRE is a program sponsored by both the Airport lights shining again; flights resume

By Brian Rogers
Staff Writer

After a dark Thursday night at the airport, runway lights and taxiway lights lit up normally before dusk Friday thanks to team of electricians working feverishly all day, according to Don Shepley, an airport operation supervisor.

An investigation into the cause of the fire is being conducted by the Midland Fire marshal.

A fire at Midland International Airport caused the runway lights and taxiway lights to fail Thursday night, causing the cancellation and delay of several flights.

An investigation into the cause of the fire is being conducted by the Midland Fire marshal.

According to Marvin Esterly, director of airports, the small electrical fire occurred in the basement of the lighting vault, a small building apart from the main termi-

U.S. investigators seek Cole bombing links to Osama bin Laden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Osama bin Laden, the elusive Islamic militant who has publicly pledged to drive the U.S. military out of the Middle East, is a focus of the USS Cole bombing investigation, but investigators have no hard evidence he was behind it, several American officials said Friday.

Meantime, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and FBI Director Louis Freeh appealed in a joint statement for greater cooperation from the Yemeni government. FBI agents have encountered the same problem they had in an earlier terrorism investigation in Saudi Arabia — no direct access to suspects.

The FBI, working with Yemeni authorities in the port of Aden, where the Cole was attacked Oct. 12 by a small boat laden with explosives, has finished examining the crippled ship and scouring various locations in Yemen for physical evidence, Albright and Freeh said. They did not identify the sites, but officials have said they include several houses thought to have been used to prepare the attack.

Albright and Freeh praised Yemen for its "early cooperation." The FBI was given full access to the sites, and it sent key evidence to Washington for detailed lab tests. But they are seeking more access now.

"The next critical phase will require Yemeni and U.S. personnel to work as partners in the collection of information and participants in the interview process of witnesses to this criminal act of terrorism," Albright and Freeh said. "We count on President (Ali Abdullah) Saleh's commitment of full cooperation."

Bin Laden, a millionaire Saudi-born dissident wanted by the FBI in the 1998 terrorist bombings of the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, which killed 224 people, is believed to be living in Afghanistan. Suspicion of a bin Laden link to the Cole bombing arose almost immediately, in part because his Afghan-based organization, al Qaida, is said to have been behind previous bomb attacks on U.S. personnel in Yemen.

The damaged USS Cole, with a 40-by-40 foot hole in its left side, will be loaded Monday onto a Norwegian "heavy lift" ship called Blue Marlin for transport to the United States, said Marge Holtz, spokeswoman for the Navy's Military Sealift Command. The trip home is expected to take about five weeks, she said.

The attack on the Cole as it was refueling in Aden — killing 17 U.S. sailors — has the earmarks of a carefully planned, well-financed operation, and the bomb materials were expertly prepared, U.S. and Yemeni officials have said.

Asked whether a clear link has been established to bin Laden, FBI spokesman Jim Margolin said Thursday, "That's an obvious question that's being looked into. We're not confirming such a link exists."

Margolin said the FBI would not comment further.

Talk about links to bin Laden is "speculation at this point," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Friday.

A senior U.S. intelligence official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that while bin Laden is a "likely suspect," the investigation has not yet established firmly that he had a direct hand in the bombing.

"There are no conclusions made at this point" about who is behind the bombing, the official said. "Bin Laden is a leading candidate but not the only candidate."

Bin Laden, the son of a billionaire Saudi Arabian family, is on the FBI's list of 10 most-wanted fugitives. The State Department says he inherited about $300 million that he uses to finance al Qaida, which he established in about 1990 with Arabs who fought in Afghanistan against the Soviet invasion; he is wanted in connection with the Aug. 7, 1998, bombings of the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania that killed more than 200 people, including 12 Americans.

Vince Cannistraro, a former CIA official and counterterrorism expert, said Friday he firmly believes the U.S.-Yemeni investigation eventually will show that bin Laden was behind the bombing and that Iran or Iraq had a hand in supplying the powerful explosives used.

The Pentagon has declined to comment on the Cole bombing investigation.

Vince Cannistraro, a former CIA official and counterterrorism expert, said Friday he firmly believes the U.S.-Yemeni investigation eventually will show that bin Laden was behind the bombing and that Iran or Iraq had a hand in supplying the powerful explosives used.

"The only two things that are clear to me are that he (bin Laden) executed the operation and he had some state support," Cannistraro said. Among the indications pointing to bin Laden, Cannistraro said, are reports that bin Laden was "on the move" in the weeks leading up to the attack, and his videotaped warning of fresh attacks on American forces. The tape was broadcast on an Arab satellite TV network in September.

CAMPAIGN 2000

GOP group airing pro-Nader ads in hopes of helping Bush

■ New GOP ad campaign featuring Nader ads could backfire.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a pre-election twist, Republicans are buying TV ads promoting Ralph Nader in states where votes for the Green Party candidate might tip the outcome to George W. Bush.

The ads feature Nader criticizing Democrat Al Gore. Republicans hope they will help Bush by persuading would-be Gore voters to back Nader instead.

Democrats suggested that the ads, produced by the Republican Leadership Council, will backfire if voters turned off by deceptive politics learn who is behind them. And the GOP ads could reinforce the argument that a vote for Nader amounts to a vote for Bush.

Polls show Nader, a longtime consumer activist who concedes he can't win, with support of 5 percent or more in a half dozen states including California, crucial to Gore with its top prize of 54 electoral votes. The conventional wisdom is that because Nader is more liberal than either Bush or Gore, his supporters would otherwise vote Democratic.

The new Republican ads are to begin airing Monday in Wisconsin, Washington and Oregon, states that are part of Gore's base and where Nader is polling well. The Republican Leadership Council plans to spend at least $100,000 and hopes to raise more over the weekend to increase the ad buy.

The ads feature clips of Nader from a National Press Club speech on Wednesday. He laid into both Bush and Gore, but the ads only include his criticism of Gore.

"Al Gore is suffering from election year delusion if he thinks his record on the environment is anything to be proud of," Nader says. An announcer interjects: "What's Al Gore's real record?" Nader says: "Eight years of principles betrayed and promises broken."

Nader has been equally critical of Bush, calling him "a big corporation running for president disguised as a person."

Advertising experts say they can't recall another time when a major party organization has run ads backing a minor party candidate.

'I'm sure the two parties in their desperation are now trying to use different people against their opponents. That usually happens. You can't stop it. This is America.'
— Ralph Nader, Green Party presidential candidate

The effort might backfire, said Darrell West, who studies political ads at Brown University and predicted many voters will see it as cynical and opportunistic.

"Even politicians don't want to come across as being too opportunistic," he said.

Still, West noted, many voters won't realize Republicans are paying for the ads, even though they identify the RLC as sponsor.

Bush advisers say they're concerned that the ads will remind voters that supporting Nader helps Bush, and they fear a backlash if voters assume that Bush is behind the tactic.

The Republican Leadership Council, a moderate GOP group, has been helpful to Bush before, airing ads during the primaries critical of challenger Steve Forbes. Many on the RLC board were early Bush supporters. But Mark Miller, the group's executive director, said the Bush campaign had nothing to do with the new ad.

The Gore campaign labeled the ads deceptive. Vice presidential candidate Joe Lieberman said he was confident the public won't be fooled.

"For Republicans to be putting Ralph Nader on television in a paid ad, certainly might lead your average observer to be cynical," he said.

The Gore campaign has been taking Nader more seriously in recent days. Gore addressed Nader's candidacy directly on Thursday, and Lieberman courted Nader supporters in Oregon Friday.

"I ask you to think how you would feel when you wake up Nov. 8 and Bush has carried Oregon," Lieberman told a voter he met in Portland. The voter, Mike Manning, said later that he was unconvinced.

"I understand the ramifications if Bush gets in," Manning said. "It's a matter of conscience."

Nader, running a low-budget campaign, is not currently airing any television commercials of his own and it's possible that the RLC will end up spending more on pro-Nader media than Nader himself.

At a news conference in Des Moines, Iowa, he said only that outside groups have the right to run the ads.

"I'm sure the two parties in their desperation are now trying to use different people against their opponents. That usually happens. You can't stop it. This is America," he said.

Nader has had to repeatedly defend himself against people arguing that his candidacy will help Bush.

"Whether Gore or Bush gets into the White House doesn't mean that much, because the permanent corporate government in Washington is really determining policy," Nader said Friday on ABC.

He hopes to get 5 percent of the popular vote so the Green Party can qualify for federal money in 2004.

The RLC ads will run initially in four markets: Eugene and Portland, Ore.; Madison, Wis., and Seattle.

Nader appears to be hurting Gore most clearly in Oregon, where Bush has a small lead while Nader attracts as much as 10 percent support. Nader is attracting about 5 percent in Washington and Wisconsin polls, although Gore still leads Bush.

He also poses a threat in Minnesota, Maine and Michigan. In this extraordinarily tight national race, one or two states could make the difference in who is elected.

The RLC's Miller said the ads are partly a response to $500,000 in commercials being run by the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League, which argue that a vote for Nader is a vote for Bush.

"Ralph Nader doesn't believe that," Miller said.

Meanwhile, some Nader supporters are getting anxious about the possibility of costing Gore the election. A Web site is urging those who live in swing states to become "Nader traders" by agreeing to vote for Gore if a Gore-supporting friend who lives in another state agrees to vote for Nader.

And groups that support abortion rights, gay rights and the environment are setting out on a five-state tour next week arguing that a vote for Nader helps Bush.

Lieberman warns Nader supporters of risk if Bush wins

PORTLAND — Sen. Joseph Lieberman ran a gauntlet of Ralph Nader supporters during an impromptu visit to a downtown cafe Friday, and in impassioned, unscripted exchanges he challenged them to switch their votes, only to be challenged himself.

Lieberman confronted the Nader dilemma head-on, arguing that voting for Nader would only help the Republican, Gov. George W. Bush, by draining votes from Vice President Al Gore.

Oregon and Washington, carried by Democrats in the last three presidential elections, have become swing states this time around, in part because of the strong appeal there of Nader, who appears to be siphoning some votes away from Gore. The most recent polls have shown Gore leading in Washington, but trailing in Oregon, where Nader gets higher ratings — around 8 percent — than anywhere else in the country.

After ignoring Nader for months, Democrats have begun trying openly to undermine him in the last few days, hoping to recover some traditionally Democratic voters.

On Thursday, Gore mentioned Nader by name for the first time at a campaign event, in Madison, Wis., — another Nader stronghold in another swing state.

Lieberman could hardly have chosen a likelier place for Nader voters than the Bijou Cafe, an organic food restaurant, many of whose regulars share the pro-environment, anti-corporate ethos of Nader's Green Party campaign.

COST: Official says work can be used later

(From 1A)

a different project.

"Everything we're paying for here can be used again," Heidelberg said. "The pay scale would change but programming and schematics would remain the same."

MISD owes both firms for programming and conceptual design work completed for the bond issue. Programming work consists of examining the existing campuses and determining needs of the schools. The conceptual design was a reproduction on paper of those needs and how the building should be designed to best suit them.

Heidelberg said MISD owes Parkhill, Smith and Cooper approximately $135,000 for services up to Oct. 7's bond issue. MISD owes an estimated $85,000 to PBK Architectural Inc.

"This is for the phased contract work where they helped us get ready for the bond issue," Heidelberg said. "Had the bond issue passed they would have finished the design by producing the blue prints."

In the contract MISD had with PBK and Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, the work was set up in five phases. MISD and the architectural firms were in the midst of phase two when the bond issue failed.

"The contract was set up to cut off after the bond election," Heidelberg said. "We knew the concept of the building at that point but the building had not been designed, but we contracted the work up through schematic design."

The schematic design was part of phase two in the contract.

Heidelberg said all pricing was based on percentages outlined in the original contracts given by PBK and Parkhill, Smith and Cooper. The programming costs were one-third of one percent of the total cost for the construction of both Lee and Midland High. According to Heidelberg, the combined construction cost for the high schools was to be approximately $65.2 million — thus the programming costs totaled to an estimated $21,525.90.

The remainder of the costs — approximately $198,474.10 — is made up of charges for the artistic rendering of the schools, conceptual designs and sketches and reimbursables. According to Heidelberg, reimbursables consist of printing costs, professional cost estimates, engineering costs and fees to pay the subcontractors of the architects.

Neither PBK Architects Inc. or Parkhill, Smith and Cooper have invoiced MISD. Heidelberg said he expects to see a bill from PBK in November. Parkhill, Smith and Cooper representative Kyle Womack said all fees for MISD would be determined through the contract signed between them.

PAY: Parents feel MISD could've acted sooner

(From 1A)

Parents of the three children were excited by Friday's news.

"This is a huge burden off my shoulders. The amount of the bills exceeds what I make in four years or more," said Stacey Nix, mother of Teran Nix. "I think from the beginning they should have agreed to cover the expenses. It looks like community pressure came together and helped them see what is right."

David Dutchover III, father of Lee junior David Dutchover, who suffered burns on his face, chest, neck, legs and hand, is pleased with the news, but still angry with MISD.

"The bottom line is the school system should have displayed more concern for the kids," Dutchover said. "They should have been there from the very beginning. I think the almighty dollar played a heavy part in the school's decision in taking care of the kids."

Brooke Balgey's mother, Tanya, had a mixed reaction to the news.

"It took them awhile to figure out what happened wasn't something my daughter asked for. What happened was unnecessary," she said.

VOTE: Early voting resumes today, runs through Nov. 3

(From 1A)

The first week of early voting in the 1992 general election that pitted then-President George Bush against Bill Clinton, drew 3,841 Midlanders. Four years later in the Clinton-Bob Dole race, the first week of early voting pulled in 4,044 votes in Midland.

Early voting resumes today at 7 a.m. at the Elections Office and continues until 7 p.m., takes up there again on Sunday from noon until 5 p.m., and will be held there from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Nov. 3.

Early voting will be held from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. today in the JC Penney court on the west end of Midland Park Mall, 4511 N. Midkiff Road, and will be held there from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Nov. 3.

Times for early voting at Kingsway Mall, 3303 W. Illinois Ave., and at Ike's Rent-to-Buy, 1100 N. Lamesa Road, will be 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Nov. 3.

Of the five-day turnout, Mrs. Eastup said, "All I can say is they've made up their mind.

"They know how they are going to vote," she said and suggested the voters reasoned, "'So, let's just do it and be done with it.'

"And they like the convenience of coming here," Mrs. Eastup said, "although I don't know why this is more convenient than going two blocks to the school that's in your neighborhood (for the Nov. 7 Election Day voting). "We are going to having 35 polling places on Election Day."

Of the 1992 general election, Mrs. Eastup noted that all told, 41,500 Midlanders cast ballots and represented 80 percent of the registered voters. The last day of 1992's presidential early voting drew 3,507 voters.

Four years later, the overall voter turnout was 58 percent of those registered.

"I hope so," she said of more voters turning out in 2000 than did in 1992.

"And it used to be that if 20,000 voted during early voting, then 20,000 would vote on Election Day," Mrs. Eastup said. "And I hope more people vote on Election Day than vote early."

All told, Mrs. Eastup's records reflect about 71,500 registered voters but about only 60,000 are considered active voters.

2 doctors advise women to have regular mammograms

By Judy Serbantez
Staff Writer

Two physicians speaking at Friday's United Way of Midland women's banquet warned about special medical dangers women face.

The program, "The Changing Face of Women's Health," was presented by Dr. Ann Acreman and Dr. Karen Carr.

The doctors fielded questions from the audience, most of which were about breast cancer.

"To lots of women the risk of breast cancer isn't an important part of their lives. But it takes only a few minutes to do a self breast examination every month. Any woman can get breast cancer, and every woman needs a personal doctor or clinic," Ms. Acreman said.

The average American woman over 40 should have a breast examination every year, the doctors cautioned.

Symptoms that should be reported to a doctor or health care provider include:

- A lump or thickening in your breast
- Swelling, tenderness
- Scaling of the skin around the nipple; nipple retraction
- Any change in your breast from what has been normal.

Most often these symptoms are not signs of breast cancer, but only your doctor can make an accurate diagnosis, Ms. Carr said.

She added that a mammogram is a woman's best line of defense.

"Breast cancer in its early stages may not present any symptoms, and a mammogram can find breast cancer very early," Ms. Carr said.

A mammogram is an X-ray of the breast that offers a picture of the inside of the breast. Some cancers can be non-painful, and women should have a mammogram to help detect cancers that are too small to be felt by a woman herself, the doctors suggested. The mammogram also can show changes in the breast that could be a sign of breast cancer in its earliest stages.

When breast cancer is discovered early, women survive, the doctors indicated. Women with questions ought to ask their doctor or health care provider.

The pair of doctors warned that lifestyle issues could be a factor in breast cancer.

"Smoking damages blood vessels, and if you can do something more healthy such as exercising, do it," Ms. Acreman said.

NEW: MOHRE names executive director cities of Midland and Odessa. Its goal is to attract retirees to the region. And getting more retirees to come to the Permian Basin will be Mrs. Walker's main priority.

"It sounds like a very challenging job," Mrs. Walker said. "It's in the line of work I've done previously. Probably the biggest challenge will be to get businesses in the community involved."

Mrs. Walker received her undergraduate degree in history from Oklahoma State in 1992. She received a masters in public administration from Oklahoma State in 1994. Mrs. Walker moved to Midland in August. Her husband, Lance, works for the law firm of Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe and Dawson.

"We love the Midland-Odessa area," Mrs. Walker said. "We've talked about making it our permanent home. It's very family oriented. That's something we desired."

Carolyn Coleman, current director of visitor services for the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is the immediate past executive director of MOHRE. Serving as executive director for four years, Ms. Coleman said she enjoyed the job although it does come with some challenges, including a limited budget.

"The key is spreading the word about Midland and Odessa," Mrs. Coleman said. "We have a wonderful product here. Getting the word out is key."

Mrs. Walker will be introduced to the 25-member MOHRE board at the Nov. 1 meeting. The meeting will be held at 2910 LaForce Blvd. at noon.

AREA BRIEFS

Upcoming concert

Ichabod's Cafe, 4400 N. Midland Dr. #501 will be presenting a new act at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 10. Magda Hiller and Chris Chandler are Over The Counter Culture, a collage of songstress, southern preacher and flying poetry circus. Ms. Hiller has opened for acts such as Bob Dylan and Chick Corea. Chandler has performed at Lollapalooza and has read on stage with Allen Ginsberg and Pete Seeger. Admission is free. Donations will be accepted.

Music City Mall, 4101 E. 42nd in Odessa, will be presenting Over The Counter Culture at 2 p.m. Nov. 11.

Healthfair

The fifth annual hospital Healthfair will be held at Westwood Medical Center, 4214 Andrews Highway, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today. Visitors should enter at the Prompt Care entrance on the south side of the medical office building.

"The Healthfair is to help people take responsibility for their own well being by being better informed, and to seek medical attention when necessary," said Rick Brown, Westwood's director of human resources. All children, especially those born at Westwood, are invited to a birthday party with a cake, clowns, the Space Walk bouncing activity, balloons and other giveaways.

Free blood tests include screenings for cholesterol, triglycerides, and glucose levels. Persons having blood tests should fast for 12 hours before having blood drawn. Free glaucoma and vision screenings, and foot screenings will also be given. Drawings will be held for five free mammograms. Hospital staff will take blood pressures, perform pulmonary function tests, and pulse oximetry.

Information on nutrition, diabetes, hypertension, and the detection and treatment of cancers of the prostate, breast, colon and skin will be available.

For information call Rick Brown at 522-3031.

Art exhibit

Midland Gallery, 1703 W. Cuthbert, is hosting its 13th annual Western Art Show today from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Wayne Baize, Curtis Dykes and Paul Tadlock, three nationally renown artists, will appear in person and have their work on display and available for purchase. The public is invited and refreshments will be served. For more information call 684-4837.

Concert slated

ODESSA — Johnny Bush, singer and songwriter, will perform at the Odessa Brand New Opree in the Globe of the Great Southwest at 7 p.m. today. Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at the Globe box office or by calling 580-3177. Bush will be accompanied by Justin Trevino on bass and the band "In Full Swing" featuring Mike Nelson.

Haunted house

ODESSA — University of Texas of the Permian Basin students will hold a Family Halloween Carnival, especially intended for young children, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. today in the student lounge. The event will feature a haunted house, cake walk, fishing hole, treasure hunt, maze box, dart throw, face painting, hay ride, ball throw, best costume contest, food, drinks and game booths. No admission charged. Tickets can be purchased for the games.

Painting exhibit

Paintings by Merle Burleson Taylor, former art teacher with MISD, will be on display in the lobby of Bank United, at Texas and Big Spring, during business hours for the month of November. The subjects include scenes from McKittrick Canyon in the Guadalupe Mountains, Four Corners area and Whidby Island, Wash.

AIRPORT: Taxiway, runway lights working

nal. Although the fire burned itself out, it destroyed the wiring, causing the lights to fail, which the Midland Control Tower observed at 7:05 p.m.

Several Thursday night flights had to be canceled and early morning flights also were canceled, forcing airlines to reschedule passengers for later flights.

At least one flight Friday night was canceled in case the lights would not be working.

Shepley said about seven electricians worked all day Friday to get the lights working again. He said he was impressed with the effort from the maintenance department at the airport.

"They said they would have the lights working before it got dark. We told people we would have lights before dark, and they did it," Shepley said.

Pentagon revising list of those exposed to nerve gas in Gulf War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is reversing itself on who was exposed to sarin nerve gas during the Persian Gulf War, and who wasn't.

About 30,000 Gulf war veterans are to be notified in the coming weeks that they probably came in contact with low levels of the nerve gas after being told in 1997 that they had escaped exposure. And 30,000 believed to have been exposed will get letters saying they probably weren't.

"These are very low levels — low enough that there is no expectation of a health risk," Austin Camacho, spokesman for the Pentagon's office on Gulf War illnesses, said Friday.

Still, the revision will again "raise questions of credibility" among critics of the government's now decade-long effort to answer health questions of vets who served, said Dr. Vinh Cam, an immunologist and member of the Special Oversight Board for Department of Defense Investigation of Gulf War Chemical and Biological Incidents.

The board's chairman, former Sen. Warren Rudman, said the revision proves the opposite.

"It shows (Pentagon officials) have tried very hard, with all the evidence, to come back and reevaluate," he said.

"Does it mean any more people are ill? So far there is no evidence of this."

The revision in who was exposed is based on better information on such details as weather and troop locations, said oversight board spokesman Roger Kaplan.

The issue in question for veterans is what was the health effect — and how many people were exposed to it — when U.S. forces demolished Iraqi munitions and rockets at the Khamisiyah weapons depot in March 1991. It turned out some of the rockets contained the highly toxic sarin and the even more lethal cyclosarin chemical warfare agents that paralyze the nerves, shutting down the lungs and other organs.

In a review of work done and still under way on a number of Gulf War studies, Pentagon undersecretary for personnel Bernard Rostker, told the oversight board in its last public session Friday that officials in the coming weeks will release a report revising figures on which of the troops deployed in the depot area might have been exposed.

The report is to be announced in mid- to late-November, and letters will be sent the day of the announcement to some 110,000 troops who were in and around the area of Khamisiyah, officials said.

Of that number, some 99,000 were told in 1977 letters that they were believed to have been exposed and 11,000 told that they were not.

Although those numbers remain the same, the specific people believed exposed has changed because the new study uses better information in three areas, Kaplan said.

One is more refined weather information — including which way winds would have carried the toxins. Another is exact locations of units at the time, meaning better information on which units were in the path of the toxins.

Rostker said that the new report changes only the individuals affected and not the overall size of the area affected, nor the amount of time the toxins stayed in the air.

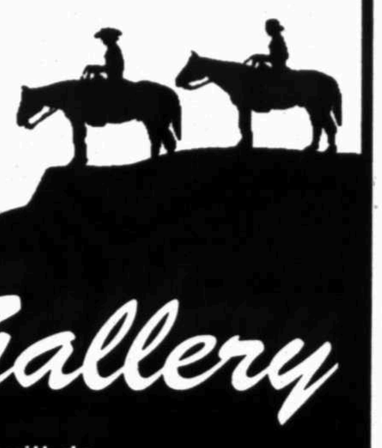

A study last year concluded that vets exposed to sarin and cyclosarin in the war had no more health problems than those not exposed and so the gas isn't necessarily to blame for illnesses reported by thousands of Gulf War vets.

Kirt Love, a critic of government handling of Gulf War illness studies who says he is a disabled veteran from the war, blasted the Pentagon after hearing the news at Friday's meeting.

"They are still concealing records," he said. "What will happen in the future when vets go into an area? Will they be able to trust reported generated by the Defense Intelligence Agency and the government?"

Critics have repeatedly alleged there was a cover-up because after hundreds of millions of dollars and scores of studies, officials say there is no scientific evidence explaining the mysterious maladies vets who served there have complained about and that have come to be called "Gulf War Illness."

Their symptoms include memory problems, nervous system disorders, fatigue and rash.

Judges' campaigns turn into bitter, expensive affairs

By Robert Tanner
Associated Press Writer

The black robes, the high bench, the bailiff calling out, "All rise." The nation's courts send a clear message to everyone who comes before a judge: Seriousness. Impartiality. Respect.

But this election year, listen for another sound echoing through the chambers: that of campaign promises and cash.

Elections for top judges in more than a half-dozen states are seeing surprisingly partisan campaigning and record-shattering spending.

The politicking is spurring complaints that the independence of the courts is being threatened.

"This isn't what judges are supposed to be doing," said Idaho Supreme Court Justice Cathy Silak, who lost a bitter re-election campaign in May and must step down. "Judges are neutral. Judges should be chosen for their background as lawyers, their legal reasoning, their demeanor, their character. But not for campaign promises."

In Ohio, business groups are battling trial lawyers over the re-election of a Supreme Court justice, with the campaign costs climbing into the millions. In Michigan, political parties are out in force for supposedly nonpartisan elections. In Alabama, moral conservatives are asking candidates to state their positions on birth control and school prayer.

Those driving the trend are taking aim at judges they consider too liberal, too meddlesome, too sympathetic toward plaintiffs' lawyers, or too biased toward big government.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the nation's chief business lobby, is weighing in on judicial races with its first ad campaign ever, buying TV spots in Ohio, Michigan and Mississippi and possibly other states. The campaign could run into the millions.

"We're playing within the rules to make sure the voice of small and big business is heard," said Jim Wootton with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Many judicial candidates steer clear of the harshest campaign attacks. But one Illinois candidate accused his opponent of letting "killers walk the streets." And those who campaign aggressively, and get chastised by judicial oversight committees for breaking the ethical codes for judges, are finding their campaign-related speech protected by rulings in Michigan and federal courts in Alabama and Georgia.

The politicking "makes these campaigns indistinguishable from true political campaigns," said Seth Andersen, director of the Hunter Center for Judicial Selection with the American Judicature Society. "It gives the idea that the reason you elect judges is they should reflect your views on political issues, on hot-button issues that get thrust before the courts more and more."

Each state chooses judges its own way. For state Supreme Courts or other top appeals courts, 22 states elect their justices (nine in partisan contests, 13 in nonpartisan ones). Twenty-two states and the District of Columbia choose justices through a merit commission, four have direct gubernatorial appointment and two let lawmakers pick.

The debate dates back to the early days of the nation. Advocates of appointment argue it minimizes politics; those that back elections say politics can never be removed, so it is best to go straight to the public.

This year, only Florida is considering a switch to appointments. But the ballot initiative to end the election of trial judges has drawn strong opposition from women and minorities, who say it will silence the public and give the governor more power.

Across the country, the aggressive campaigns reflect dissatisfaction with the courts.

In Ohio, Supreme Court Justice Alice Robie Resnick's role in striking down tort reform and the state's system of paying for education has drawn fire from business-affiliated groups like Citizens for a Strong Ohio, which so far has spent at least $1.7 million to try to defeat her.

The group argues that Resnick, a Democrat, votes too often for labor and against business. One of its ads asks of her: "Is justice for sale in Ohio?"

Trial lawyers and unions have lined up on her side, cash in hand.

In Alabama's race for chief justice, moral conservatives are backing Republican Roy Moore, a trial judge who has fought to display the Ten Commandments in his courtroom.

When Alabama's Christian Coalition chapter asked candidates to state their views on moral issues, some judicial candidates and the state bar warned that might violate codes of conduct. But a federal judge said candidates who answer the questions shouldn't be punished, so the Christian Coalition's voter guides are on their way to churches.

Silak, the Idaho justice, was criticized for her ruling supporting the federal government in a case involving wilderness water rights. But her critics also alleged she supported gay marriage and partial-birth abortion — issues she said she never ruled on or spoken about.

She refused to answer a questionnaire from the Christian Coalition, saying the topics under discussion could come before her court. Her opponent, however, District Judge Daniel Eismann, declared his opposition to abortion and support for creationism.

The voters should know where judges stand, Eismann said: "They're entitled to know more than you graduated from law school."

Trimble appeals for support on eve of Ulster Unionist vote

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The leader of Northern Ireland's power-sharing government appealed Friday to his divided Protestant party to back him in a high-stakes vote this weekend or watch the peace accord unravel.

In a letter to wavering Ulster Unionist Party voters, David Trimble predicted that the collapse of the fledgling Catholic-Protestant government "would begin immediately" if they back a rival's hard-line plans Saturday.

Both Trimble and his chief critic, Jeffrey Donaldson, want to ensure that the Irish Republican Army starts to disarm in exchange for the Ulster Unionists' willingness to continue governing alongside the Sinn Fein party, which is linked to the IRA.

Donaldson wants to set a Nov. 30 deadline for the IRA to start disarming; if it does not, the Ulster Unionists would withdraw from the government, causing it to collapse. Trimble says that blunt approach would fail.

An opinion poll published Friday indicated surprisingly firm Ulster Unionist support for Trimble. He barely won the last party vote, which endorsed a return to the four-party government created under Northern Ireland's 1998 pact. The coalition has 12 posts shared equally among Protestants and Catholics.

The poll suggested that 59 percent of voters for the Ulster Unionists, Northern Ireland's major British Protestant party, still support Trimble's leadership. Just 29 percent of those polled favor Donaldson's inflexible approach.

But the only votes that matter Saturday are the approximately 860 members of the party's council.

From the start, Trimble has battled to remain at the reins of a party split over the merits of sharing power with Sinn Fein. The IRA's continued refusal to begin disarming has placed Trimble under mounting pressure.

Although Trimble has not yet explained his own plans if the IRA fails to disarm, he has hinted they could include the gradual withdrawal of Ulster Unionists from the coalition's day-to-day activities. Both Sinn Fein and the coalition's major Catholic-supported party, the moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party, warn that Trimble's plans would cause their own problems.

"There is little difference in my view between this position and that of Jeffrey Donaldson," Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams said.

In a letter to wavering Ulster Unionist Party voters, David Trimble predicted that the collapse of the fledgling Catholic-Protestant government "would begin immediately" if they back a rival's hard-line plans Saturday.

"Both will lead to disaster."

Trimble and Donaldson argued Friday in newspaper columns and on Belfast morning radio, with Trimble accusing his challenger of being a thin-skinned hypocrite.

Donaldson wrote that current party policy has not led the IRA to disarm "and shows no sign of achieving it."

In November 1999 Trimble persuaded 57 percent of his party council to form the government after he received assurances that the IRA would gradually disarm in return. When the IRA balked, Britain stepped in to save Trimble's leadership by suspending the administration's powers.

In May, the IRA pledged to resume talks with disarmament officials and gradually puts its arms "completely and verifiably beyond use." Trimble in turn persuaded a narrowing majority — just 53 percent — of his party council to back resumed power-sharing.

The disarmament commission confirmed late Thursday that it has heard nothing from the IRA since a brief phone call in June. The IRA did allow two foreign inspectors, Cyril Ramaphosa of South Africa and Martti Ahtisaari of Finland, to visit three arms bunkers on two occasions, most recently Thursday, to confirm that their contents haven't been moved.

The IRA is believed to have scores of such bunkers hidden across Ireland.

Friday's poll by Ulster Marketing Surveys, published in the Belfast Telegraph, had a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

White tiger cub dies in Indian zoo

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Rejected by its mother, a two week-old white tiger cub died in a zoo in northern India this week despite desperate efforts to keep it alive, zoo authorities said Friday.

Julie was the only surviving cub from a litter of three born Oct. 9 to Glory, a Royal Bengal tigress at the Chhat Bir zoo in Chandigarh, the capital of India's northern Punjab state.

While one of the cubs was stillborn, another died a day later, according to the zoo's director, Vinod Sharma.

Julie survived but was rejected by her mother, perhaps because of her white coloring, Sharma said.

Zoo workers set up an intensive care unit at the zoo and took turns feeding the cub with an infant's nursing bottle and keeping round-the-clock vigil.

The cub did well for a while and zoo workers were optimistic that she would survive, Sharma said.

However, on Oct. 24, Julie's temperature fell and she showed signs of suffering from hypothermia. Zoo officials said they gave the cub a few drops of brandy in warm water and cushioned her with warmed cotton pads. Julie was also given medication intravenously, but her condition worsened and she died that day.

Critics question if Peru's judicial system will take on spy chief

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Vladimiro Montesinos may be Peru's most wanted man, but he hasn't even been formally charged with a crime.

Human rights groups and opposition politicians have accused the former intelligence chief of everything from torture and death squad killings to arms dealing. In a much-televised chase that has riveted Peruvians, President Alberto Fujimori has pledged to bring him in.

But no arrest warrant has been issued, and many are questioning whether Peru's judicial system — widely viewed as being controlled by Montesinos — is up to the job of prosecuting the feared spymaster.

Opposition lawmakers demanded Thursday that Attorney General Blanca Nelida Colan — a Montesinos loyalist — investigate allegations that he amassed a personal fortune worth millions through corruption.

They also accused him of masterminding an illegal arms pipeline that funneled thousands of weapons purchased in Jordan two years ago to leftist Colombian guerrillas.

Separately, Peru's National Human Rights Coordinating Office has filed a criminal complaint saying Montesinos, as de facto head of Peru's government and military intelligence services, was responsible for a decade of torture and killing.

"Even though ... he wasn't necessarily present for each and every act, or didn't directly employ violence over the victims, he had control of the situation," the group's director, Sofia Macher, said in the complaint.

Montesinos, once the president's top adviser, fled for Panama in September after the release of a videotape that showed him apparently bribing an opposition congressman to join Fujimori's party. He returned Monday, plunging Peru into turmoil.

The video's release forced Fujimori to announce that he would step down in July, after new elections in which he would not be a candidate.

The investigation of the bribery case was reopened this week. One prosecutor who reportedly wanted to order Montesinos' arrest was taken off the case last month, before the spy chief left for Panama.

Legal experts say Colan has a history of maneuvering pliant prosecutors into place to shelve any investigation that might threaten the spy chief.

"Colan and the Public Ministry are effectively controlled by Montesinos," said Martin Belaunde, president of Peru's bar association.

For lawmakers seeking a thorough probe of the corruption and arms dealing allegations, it is a discouraging record.

"Colan does not get our vote of confidence, but this time we are demanding that she conduct a real investigation," said opposition Congresswoman Anel Townsend.

In 1996, Colan ignored court testimony from a high-profile narcotics trafficker who said he had paid Montesinos $50,000 a month for uninterrupted use of a jungle air strip.

This week, Colan pushed aside a prosecutor who had been in line to investigate the human rights group's allegation that Montesinos was behind a bevy of torture cases, death squad killings and the 1997 murder and dismemberment of an army intelligence service agent.

The case was reassigned to a prosecutor who quashed an investigation of phone-tapping by Montesinos' intelligence apparatus targeting opposition politicians and journalists three years ago.

Colan did not return phone calls Friday seeking comment.

Also in 1997, Leonor La Rosa, a former military intelligence agent, was left paraplegic as a result of torture inflicted by superior officers who suspected her of leaking information to journalists.

Montesinos "controlled the entire intelligence system in the armed forces and had an office installed in the army's general headquarters, where he spent most of his time," La Rosa was quoted as saying in Friday's El Comercio, Peru's leading newspaper.

Four army intelligence officers were convicted to eight-year sentences for La Rosa's torture, but two of them were later released by Peru's Supreme Military Court.

In a radio interview from a secret location Tuesday, Montesinos denied any involvement in several of the human rights cases.

Vladimiro Montesinos' unexpected return from exile in Panama on Monday, has plunged Peru into political turmoil, and Fujimori was determined to put an end to it, taking personal command of the search for the man who was once his close aide.

'Day of rage' claims four Palestinians, injures more than 150 in continuing Mideast violence

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinians poured out of mosques after midday prayers Friday and clashed with Israeli troops in violence that left four Palestinians dead, more than 150 injured and clouds of smoke and tear gas over cities across the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Islamic militants, chanting "We want a big bomb!" also warned at mass rallies that they would unleash more suicide bombers on Israel.

Friday's heightened unrest, which followed several days of comparatively low levels of violence, could affect efforts by President Clinton to revive peace talks. Clinton has offered to play host to Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat at separate talks in Washington.

"We've got to get the level of violence down before there can be a resumption of negotiations," Clinton told reporters at the White House.

Israel, which has suspended peace negotiations, insists that restoring calm is a prerequisite for new talks. But Palestinian street activists, and some Palestinian leaders, have called for sustained street confrontations as the best way to put pressure on Israel.

Palestinians have declared Fridays, the Muslim holy day, a "Day of Rage" since fighting erupted a month ago.

Responding to the call on this particular Friday, thousands of rock-throwers — and a few gunmen — took part in confrontations across the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

At a traffic circle north of the West Bank town of Ramallah, smoke from a burning car filled the air as Israeli soldiers fired from behind a line of jeeps. Palestinian gunmen at one point fired on Israeli soldiers, who shot and killed a 27-year-old Palestinian.

Three more Palestinians, including a 15-year-old boy, were killed in three separate clashes, two in the West Bank and one at the Erez crossing between Israel and Gaza.

In all, 152 Palestinians and three Israeli soldiers were injured, according to Palestinian doctors and the Israeli military. Thirty days of fighting has left 133 dead, all but a few of them Palestinians.

In Nablus, about 2,000 supporters of the Islamic militant group Hamas marched through the West Bank town. "The only way to respond to Israeli attacks is through military operations," said Salah Darwazeh, a Hamas leader, referring to suicide bombings carried out in recent years by the Hamas military wing.

Scores of Israelis were killed in bomb attacks in markets, on busy streets and on buses during the mid-1990s. Cooperation between Israeli and Palestinian security forces helped reduce the number of bombings in the past few years.

However, Israel has been on high alert for new attacks since several dozen Islamic militants were released from Palestinian jails two weeks ago. On Thursday, a Palestinian rode his bicycle to an Israeli army post in Gaza and detonated explosives strapped to his back, killing himself and injuring a soldier.

Thousands attended his Friday funeral, which was broadcast on Palestinian television. A letter written by the bomber, Nabil Araeer, was read aloud; it called for the uprising to continue.

Jewish areas were not immune to the turmoil.

Gunmen again fired on the southern Jerusalem neighborhood of Gilo, damaging five apartments and a school building. Israeli helicopter gunships later strafed Beit Jalla, an adjacent Palestinian village on the West Bank, and soldiers fired machine guns from their positions in Gilo.

In the Jewish West Bank settlement of Efrat, the main synagogue was desecrated overnight, and settlers blamed Palestinian intruders. The synagogue was flooded — the vandals had turned on water hoses — and swastikas were spray-painted on the walls.

AP Photo

A Palestinian demonstrator throws a rock through a flaming barricade during clashes with Israeli soldiers in the West Bank town of Ramallah Friday.

Efrat Mayor Eitan Golan said security at the settlement, on the edge of the biblical town of Bethlehem, must be strengthened. "Today they spray paint. Tomorrow they could spray gunfire," he said.

Proposed cybercrime treaty raises concern

LONDON (AP) — Critics of a proposed international cybercrime treaty voiced fears Friday that it might allow governments to "wire tap" information passing along the Internet and hamper companies from testing their own security systems.

"There are serious concerns about rights of privacy and the cost of doing business on the Internet," said Alan Davidson, staff council at the Center for Democracy, a private group specializing in human rights issues in cyberspace.

The treaty, drafted by the representatives of the 41-nation Council of Europe in Strasbourg, France, was debated Thursday in meetings at the White House and among representatives of the Group of Eight industrialized countries in Berlin.

Davidson, who attended the White House meeting, described the discussion there as "heated."

The treaty, or Draft Convention on Cybercrime, covers the destruction of data or hardware, such as the havoc ravaged by the Love Bug last May. It also deals with the distribution of child pornography, theft of copyright and intellectual property and other crimes that could be carried out over the Internet.

More broadly, it provides law enforcement authorities with the basis to investigate "any crime for which there is evidence that might be stored on computers."

The agreement would leave it to the governments of member states to define those crimes, said Peter Csonka, an attorney at the council's Strasbourg office who has helped draft the document.

The treaty is far from approval and could face further amendment, Csonka said. It must pass through several layers of committees before being considered by the council, and must be ratified by member states before taking effect.

Because of the global nature of the Internet, even those countries that are not members of the council — such as the United States, China or other nations in the Americas or Europe — would find their companies entangled in its provisions, Davidson said.

Criticism of the treaty falls into three broad categories:

- The requirement that Internet companies provide real-time data to law enforcement authorities, which could be prohibitively expensive.
- Broad powers that governments might use to collect information about citizens.
- Potential restrictions on companies "hacking" or testing their own security systems.

"We are concerned that some portions of the proposed treaty may inadvertently result in criminalizing techniques and software commonly used to make computer systems resistant to attack," read a letter posted on the Web by a group of 80 Internet specialists, including university professors and researchers from high-powered companies like Sun Microsystems and AT&T.

U.S. officials said they were discussing the convention with members of the Council of Europe, but said it was too early to define the American position.

Ivory Coast calms as leaders meet

■ More World news/3C

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — An uneasy calm returned to the Ivory Coast Friday as the new president and his opponents held meetings suggesting a truce in the political crisis that has shaken this corner of West Africa for a week.

A day after politically fueled religious tensions exploded in deadly clashes in the slums and working-class quarters of Abidjan, the president and his main opponent met in an air-conditioned room here, sat on a beige sofa and, as flashbulbs exploded, shook hands.

After the meetings, the new president, Laurent Gbagbo, left his gated villa in a motorcade, past the tanks and AK-47-carrying soldiers stationed in front of his home. After arriving at the presidential palace, he formed a so-called government of national unity that will not include allies of his main opponent, Alassane D. Ouattara, a Muslim northerner who had been barred from running in Sunday's election.

Ouattara, whose demand for a new election had pushed his supporters out on the streets, sounded a less resolute note Friday. He said he still hoped that a new election might take place. But he emphasized that his party's "priority was to mourn our dead and to bury our supporters who died."

After touring the city Friday, officials of Ouattara's party said they had counted 155 deaths, most of them his supporters. The number could not be confirmed independently. But on Thursday some 90 deaths had been tallied over three days.

And late Friday, 40 to 50 young men were discovered dead in a bushy area in Yopougon, a neighborhood north of the city center. Most of them had been shot dead, according to journalists who visited the site, but it was unclear under what circumstances, since the victims did not carry identification.

Ouattara, a former prime minister and deputy managing director of the International Monetary Fund, said his party would not join the national unity government immediately. But he said that he might reconsider after legislative elections scheduled for December.

The other major party, the Democratic Party of the Ivory Coast, which ruled from independence until a military coup last December, said it was immediately joining the national unity government. After his meeting with the new president, the party's secretary-general, Laurent Dona Fologo, said he would not call for a new election. His party received four Cabinet positions in Gbagbo's national unity government, out of 23.

"The people of the Ivory Coast have suffered enough," Fologo said. "I think they are fed up with the indecisiveness of politicians. Now we want to turn a new page with President Gbagbo."

The Democratic Party and Ouattara's party, the Rally of the Republicans, boycotted the election held Sunday after a court controlled by the junta leader, Gen. Robert Guei, had disqualified their candidates. The boycott led to a voter turnout of only 37 percent and a victory for Gbagbo, which Guei tried to annul on Tuesday.

But in the most tumultuous week in this country's history, a broad-based uprising against the general led to his downfall Wednesday. Gbagbo then declared himself the rightful president and — enjoying the critical backing of the French, the former colonial power — rejected calls for a new election. Ouattara demanded one, and was echoed by the United States, the United Nations and the Organization for African Unity.

And so the two men's supporters fought with machetes and clubs on Thursday. The violence was intensified by the ethnic and religious divisions that Guei and Gbagbo himself have inflamed in the last year. Gbagbo and his followers are mainly Christians from the south. Ouattara's supporters are mostly Muslim northerners, many of whom have become targets of official discrimination.

Events Thursday had made clear that the security forces backed Gbagbo; many of them were seen siding with his supporters against those of Ouattara. Gbagbo supporters, backed by paramilitary gendarmes, also attacked Ouattara's house with tear gas and gunfire. Ouattara was forced to take refuge in the home of his next-door neighbor, the German ambassador. Overwhelmed, Ouattara and his supporters had no choice but to give up the street battle.

And so Friday morning, after the nighttime curfew expired and there were no signs of further unrest, people all over Abidjan went back to work, shops reopened, buses and taxis were running again. Other cities where clashes had occurred were also reported to be quiet Friday.

Despite the truce, however, many of the problems behind the week's political crisis persist just below the surface. If Ouattara ultimately decides not to join this government, it will be formed by members of two parties representing mostly the Christian south. Although Muslim northerners from Ouattara's party are bound to be elected in the legislative elections in December, they might be shut out of the all-powerful executive and ministries.

Even though Ivory Coast's population is 40 percent Muslim and 30 percent Christian, the country's three presidents since independence — four now, with Gbagbo — have all been Christians.

In a perfect matchup, Midland Lee's Mark Gonzales dives to try to tackle Odessa Permian's Mark Gonzales Friday night.

Rebels shut down Panthers

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

ODESSA — Midland Lee tailback Cedric Benson has done it again and the Rebels' playoff hopes are beginning to show another flame because of it.

Benson rushed for 313 yards and three touchdowns against Odessa Permian at Ratliff Stadium Friday night to lead two-time defending state champion Lee to a 19-0 District 4-5A victory and probably within a win of entering the state playoffs once again.

It was the second consecutive 300-yard game for Benson as he turned in 335 yards rushing last week against Abilene Cooper. It is the second time in his Lee career that he has had back-to-back 300-yard games and adds a sixth career 300-yard game to his resume to the Texas Longhorns, where he is committed to play next season. He already owned the state record for 300-yard career games.

"That's amazing that Cedric had 300 yards against that (Permian) defense. I swear they put 14 or 15 men on the line and the officials never called it once," Parchman said with a bit of tongue in cheek. "I've been saying it all along. He's the man."

The win, however, didn't seem to come as easily as Benson's yards. Lee led only 7-0 at the half as Permian held Benson to only 106 yards rushing while losing right tackle Heath Jones. Lee had already lost right guard Lorenzo Orosco to a broken leg earlier this

Bulldogs fall short against Cooper

■ Abilene Cooper scores late touchdown, then holds off Midland High for victory.

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

Two interceptions on Midland High's final two drives ended the Bulldogs' chance of knocking off Abilene Cooper Friday night at Memorial Stadium

However, the game was lost before that.

Mistakes aside, a touchdown pass from Jordan Neal to Tony Cunningham with two minutes and 14 seconds gave Cooper a 37-30 shootout win over the Bulldogs in an important District 4-5A game for both teams.

Ab. Cooper	37
Midland High	30

With only two weeks left in the season, Cooper improves to 5-3 on the season. The win puts the the Cougars, not the Bulldogs, in a four-way tie with Midland Lee, Odessa High and Abilene High at the top of the District 4-5A standings. All four teams are 2-1 in loop play.

For all of its improvement offensively, MHS falls to 4-4 and 1-2 in district. The Bulldogs take on Odessa Permian, 0-3 in district, next week.

The back and forth game between the two teams was billed as a showdown between one of the top offenses in the league (Cooper) and the best defense (Midland High). What transpired over the 48 minutes was an offensive showdown.

Midland High and Cooper exchanged the lead four times, and three other times scores tied the game.

With two seconds to go in the third quarter, Lamar Hickey ran a reverse for a score from nine yards out to tie the game at 23-23.

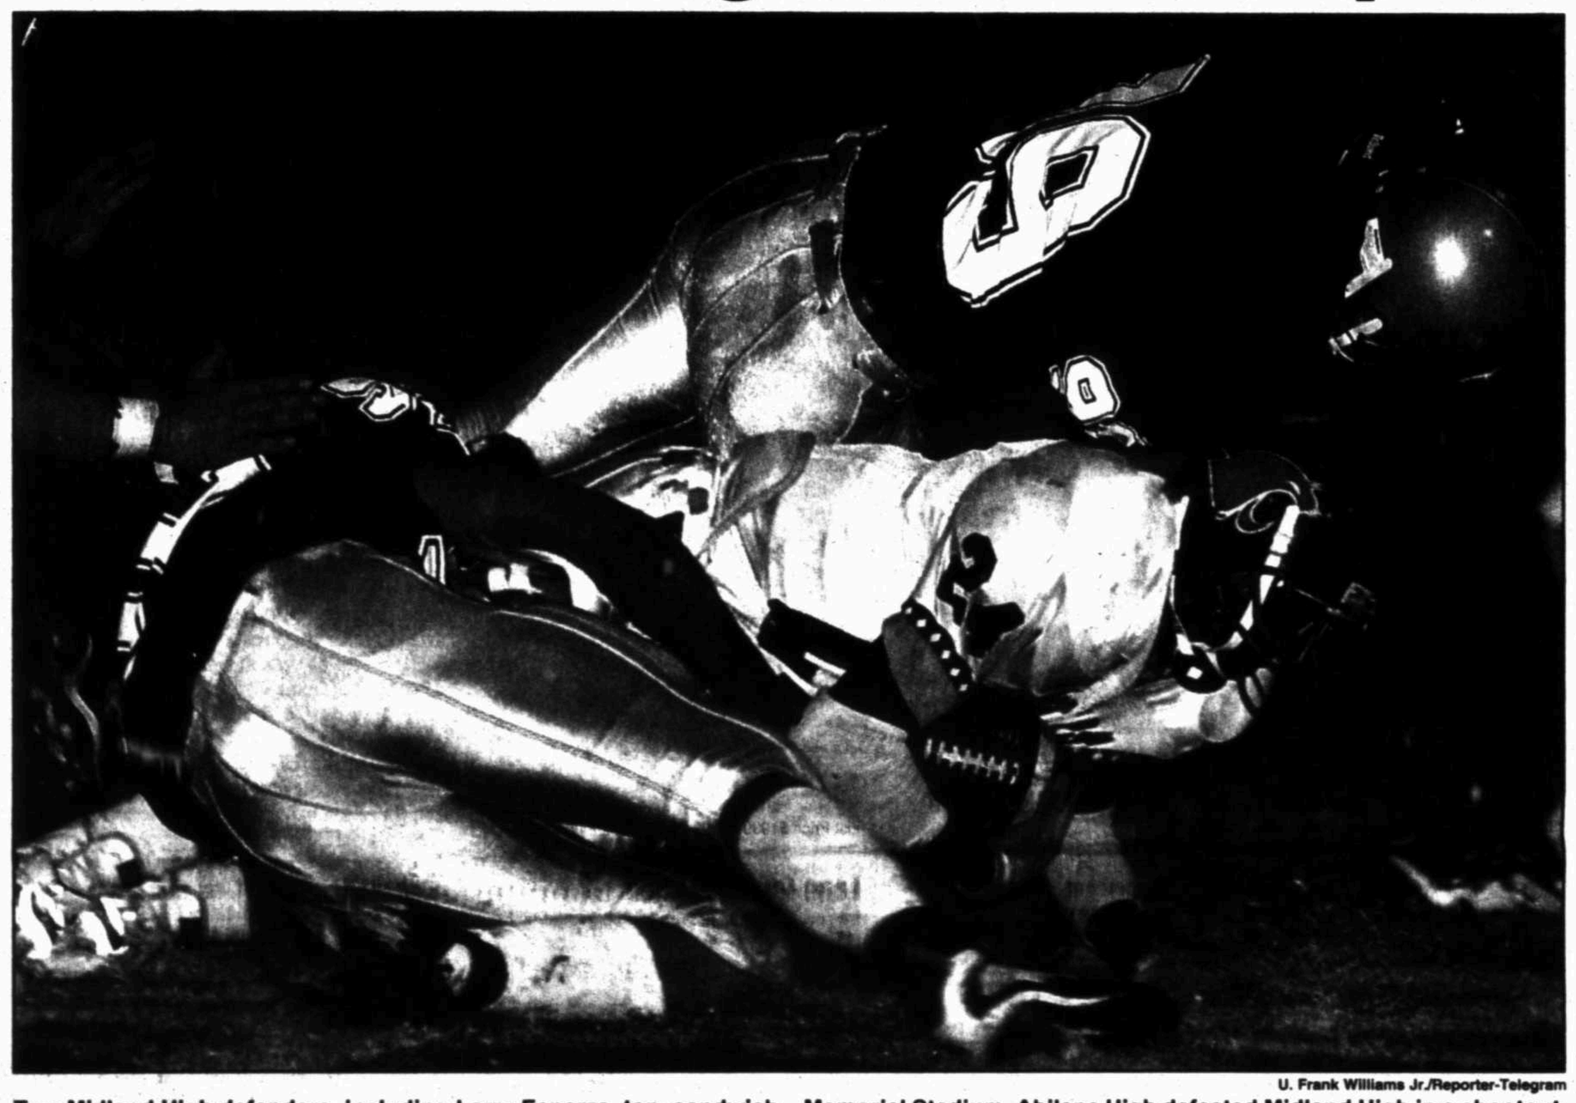

Cooper took the lead back (30-23) with just more than eight minutes to play in the game as Tremaine Diles reeled off a 48-yard touchdown run. Diles broke out Friday night with the best 4-5A game by a back other than Cedric Benson. Diles had 152 yards on 21 carries.

Midland High's offense, which was tied for last in the district coming into the game, answered again. Chris Howard threw his third touchdown of the game, a 65 yarder to sophomore Troy Barber to equal Cooper (30-30). It was the third time MHS tied the game.

Cooper, though, had one more bullet left, and that turned out to be lethal. Neal struck for the fourth time in the game, hitting Cunningham on the game-winning score. It capped a nine-play 66-yard drive.

"It was key that we could answer back each time Midland High scored," Abilene Cooper head coach Randy Quisenberry said. "Our kids fought back,

GAME OF THE NEW CENTURY?

Eric Crouch will lead his No. 1-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers into Norman, Okla. to face the second-ranked Oklahoma Sooners today.

OU-Nebraska is big game again

By Owen Canfield
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. — Oklahoma is in the college football spotlight again, and look what's happened: Ticket demand is up, way up, and this showdown with Nebraska suddenly has a whole new life.

"People can't wait to see it," Nebraska guard Russ Hochstein said. "To be back in that kind of atmosphere, as college players we eat that up. We love every minute of it."

Some people are asking for, and getting, $400 apiece for tickets to Saturday's game between the third-ranked Sooners and No. 1 Cornhuskers.

Nebraska has won the last seven games in this series, including 69-7 in the last meeting in 1997 and 73-21 in 1996, the last game in Norman.

Nebraska (7-0, 4-0 Big 12) is No. 1 in the Bowl Championship Series standings while Oklahoma (6-0, 3-0) is No. 2. It is the BCS standings that determine which teams play for the national title.

Because Nebraska is in the Big 12's north division and Oklahoma in the south, it's possible the teams could meet again Dec. 2 in the conference championship game at Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City, Mo.

The buildup to that game, provided Saturday's loser wins its remaining regular-season games, would no doubt be immense. Such is the case with this game — Oklahoma's media relations office has issued about 600 credentials, four times more than for a usual game.

Mustangs turn back Denton in key battle

By Garrett Luft
MRT Correspondent

An important game in TAPPS 1-4A district play turned into a wild and wooly affair Friday night as Midland Christian defeated Denton Liberty Christian 39-28.

A seesaw battle was fought for most of four quarters until late in the game with Liberty's Warriors leading 28-27. After James Mitchell scored on a 22-yard scamper to put Liberty ahead by a point with 3:53 left in the game, Midland Christian (7-2, 2-0) drove 52 yards to the Liberty 10-yard-line.

Yet on the next play, fullback T.J. Midkiff could not get the handle on quarterback Jamie Beeghley's handoff, and the resulting fumble was recovered by Liberty.

With only 1:17 left, Liberty only had to run out the clock. But after a quarterback sneak and a Midland Christian timeout, Liberty quarterback Cliff Higgs never got the snap from the center, and Mustang tackle Roan Moreno recovered the fumble.

Two plays later, Josh Gunter put the Mustangs in the lead for good with a 5-yard run.

Gunter ran for 129 yards and two touchdowns on the evening.

The Liberty running game was effective also as Mitchell exploded for 223 yards. The junior running back scored all four Liberty touchdowns on rushes of 19, 15, 60, and 22 yards in the losing effort. The Warriors rushed for 303 yards overall.

Golden Tornadoes storm back against Greenwood

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

GREENWOOD — In the first half against the Greenwood Rangers, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes did not look the like the No. 2 team in the state. The second half was a different story.

The Golden Tors erased a 17-6 halftime deficit by outscoring Greenwood 28-0 in the second half en route to a 34-17 win at J.M. King Stadium.

"Our kids responded tonight," said Lamesa coach Tim James. "That's why they play 48 minutes. We turned the ball over three times the first half. Greenwood did a heck of a job, but our defense responded in the second half, and our offensive line did an awesome job.

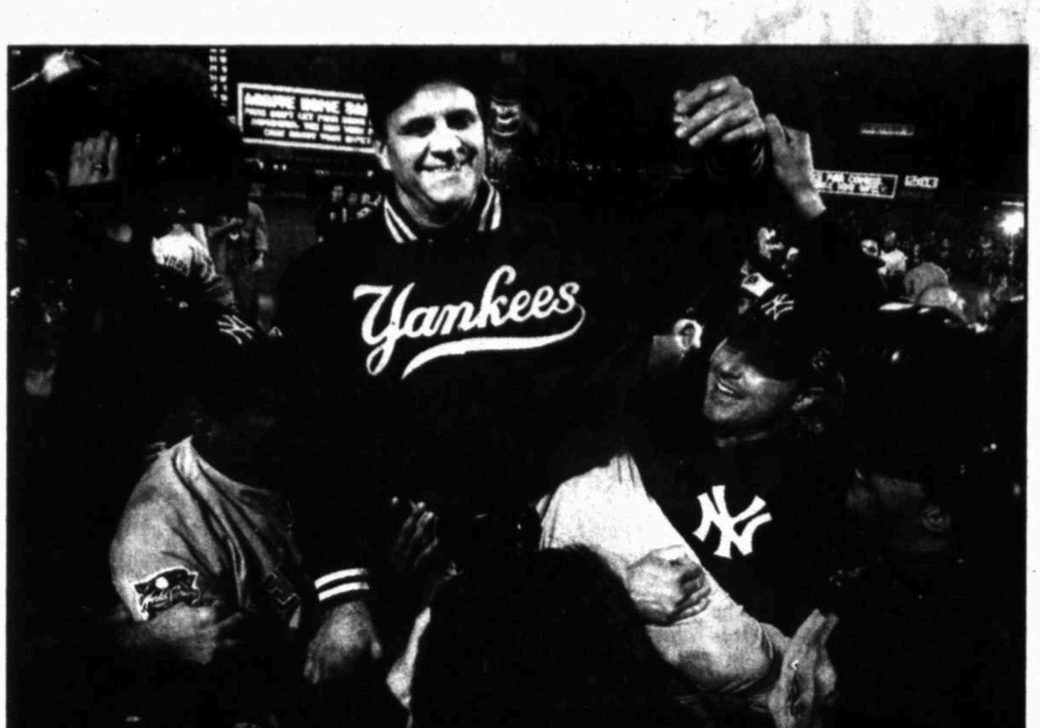

"Things weren't looking good for the Tors, and the kids came out and they expected good things to happen. You never saw finger pointing. They just competed and competed well."

That Lamesa offensive line opened up some holes for Matthew Wade, who rushed for 128 yards on 24 carries and a touchdown, and quarterback Koby Page, who finished the night with 178 yards on 17 carries and four TDs. Page, who was filling in for the injured Waylon Hogg, was 0-for-6 passing with three interceptions, but he let his feet do the talking.

"Koby Page did an outstanding job, even though he did have some turnovers," James said. "He came out there and ran the offense like we have to run it. We're an option team and he

New York Yankees manager Joe Torre gets carried off the field by players Bernie Williams, left, and Roger Clemens, right, after the Yankees won their third straight World Series on Thursday.

Yankees add 2000 Series title to long run of success

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — Even in the final inning, Joe Torre found himself wondering.

"You're sitting there in the dugout thinking, 'How long is this run going to go?'" the Yankees manager said Friday.

Moments later, when center fielder Bernie Williams caught Mike Piazza's bid for a tying home run on the edge of the warning track for the final out at exactly the stroke of midnight, Torre had his answer.

New York City had its champion, and so did baseball. The majors' first threepeat in a quarter-century, four out of five and a record 26 overall.

The Yankees' 4-2 win over the Mets at Shea Stadium in Game 5 Thursday night made it official. Torre rode off the field on the shoulders of teammates, MVP Derek Jeter hoisted the World Series trophy for pinstriped fans to savor and Paul O'Neill toasted with champagne behind second base.

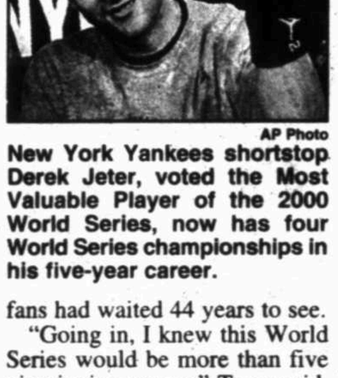

A celebration at the home of their Subway Series rivals, no less.

"This was the best of the four series since I've been mayor," said the Yankees' No. 1 fan, Rudolph Giuliani said. "This was the closest ever."

How close? For only the second time ever and first since 1915 — when Babe Ruth was a rookie as the Boston Red Sox beat the Philadelphia Phillies — no World Series game was decided by more than two runs.

"There were so many balls that could've gone the other way," Torre said.

So while Luis Sojo's grounder sneaked through the middle for the go-ahead single in the top of the ninth inning, Piazza's long drive was hauled in to finish it, ending a Subway Series that city fans had waited 44 years to see.

AP Photo

New York Yankees shortstop Derek Jeter, voted the Most Valuable Player of the 2000 World Series, now has four World Series championships in his five-year career.

"Going in, I knew this World Series would be more than five nine-inning games," Torre said. "It would be 24-hour days."

By Friday morning, though, all that happened this week — punctuated by the Roger Clemens-Piazza bat-throwing episode — was in the past. The final game, having happened just a 14-minute drive away in Queens, already was part of the history books.

Over in the Bronx, the big sign above Yankee Stadium that lists the next home game was being changed to read "26 World Championships." Torre, Game 1 hero Jose Vizcaino and pitching coach Billy Connors drifted into the clubhouse while a few fans stood outside, hoping to greet the champs.

Plans also were being made for a ticker-tape parade Monday up Broadway's Canyon of Heroes. Giuliani invited the Mets to take part, but they declined.

"Our view is that it was a generous offer on behalf of the mayor," Mets general manager Steve Phillips said. "It should be the Yankees' day of celebration for winning the World Series. They deserve the stage to themselves."

And what a platform it is.

The three straight titles matched Oakland's run from 1972-74, though the Athletics' accomplishment came before players began changing teams with regularity.

"The A's were cut short because we ran into free agency," said Reggie Jackson, who starred on those Oakland teams and later led the Yankees to two championships. "We all left. If that nucleus would've stayed together, we would've won another two World Series in the next five years."

Fact is, these Yankees did it.

Only two other periods in baseball can compare — Joe DiMaggio led the Yankees to five crowns from 1936-41, and Mickey Mantle was there for the last three of the Bronx Bombers' six titles from 1947-53.

Jeter, becoming the first player ever to win the MVP of the All-Star game and World Series in the same season, earned his fourth ring at only 26.

"Every year is a different story. We struggled this year. We had tough times, and the wins didn't come easy," Jeter said. "We played the best teams in the playoffs and we're sitting here at the end of the year. This one was a little more satisfying."

Despite the majors' highest payroll at $113 million, the Yankees went into the playoffs with a seven-game losing streak. Their 87 wins were the fewest among postseason teams.

As it turned out, the Yankees' regular-season victory total was the lowest for a World Series champion since Minnesota won 85 in 1987.

"Whether you like us or not, we're winners," O'Neill said. "Everybody was ready for the collapse. Everybody was waiting for us to lose."

Series gets low ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — This Subway Series drew only token viewership.

Fox Sports' telecasts of the New York Yankees' five-game victory over the cross-city Mets produced the lowest-rated World Series in history, drawing big audiences in the Big Apple but in few other major TV markets.

The games averaged a 12.4 national rating and 21 share, down 22.5 percent from last year and 12 percent from 1998's previous record low. Both the rating and share are less than half of what they were in 1986, the last time the Mets played in the World Series. Each rating point represents a little more than 1 million television households; share is the percentage of in-use TVs tuned to a program.

"Our research people are going to have to take a look and see if they can come up with some explanations," Fox Sports president Ed Goren said Friday. "I'm guessing maybe there's something wrong with the national Nielsen sampling. This has been a difficult year for a lot of us."

MHS tennis team moves into semis with two blowout wins

Staff Report

ABILENE — In its first appearance at a regional tournament in 22 years, the Midland High tennis team acted like it belonged.

MHS simply hammered both of its opponents Friday in the first two rounds of the Region I-5A tennis tournament. Midland High opened the day by defeating Flower Mound Marcus 10-2, then beat Weatherford even worse, 10-1.

Those two victories put MHS in the semifinals today at 8 a.m. Midland High will face El Paso Coronado at Hardin-Simmons University, and if MHS wins it will face either Abilene High or Lubbock Coronado in the finals for the right to go to next weekend's state tournament in Austin.

Midland High, which was seeded fourth, didn't break much of a sweat on Friday. Against both Marcus and Weatherford, MHS posted nine of its victories in the minimum two sets.

"We didn't know what to expect," said Midland High coach Tom Heiting of the opposition. "They were both district champions but we came here tough and play hard. Based on the seedings, we felt we could win both matches."

■ Region I-5A Tennis Tournament

No. 1 player Marcos Valdez led the MHS boys. Valdez swept his two singles matches, and against Marcus he also teamed with Jonathan Webb for a 6-1, 6-0 doubles win over Philipp Stompfe and Ryan Cousens. For the girls, No. 4 player Catherine Cobb also swept her matches in straight sets, and teamed with Laura Innerarity for a pair of doubles wins.

But the reward for winning isn't an easy day today for MHS. The bad news for Midland High is that the three teams who were seeded ahead of them are still alive. El Paso Coronado is the top seed, and Abilene High, which is essentially the home team, beat MHS 17-2 last week in a District 4-5A match.

"We're going to have to have our best effort of the year to win," Heiting said. "We've already played El Paso Coronado in a tournament in August and they beat us really bad. We've got nothing to lose at all. The pressure is on them."

Should MHS survive, it will take on the AHS-Lubbock Coronado winner at 1:30 p.m.

Here are the results of Midland High's completed matches on the first day of the Region I-5A tournament. Winners are from MHS unless noted.

MHS, AHS meet for 4-5A title

Staff Report

When the volleyball teams from Midland High and Abilene High meet today to decide the District 4-5A championship, chances are, the match will be close.

When the teams played Sept. 30 in Abilene, AHS won, 9-15 15-11, 15-9. When they met again Tuesday in the MHS gym, the Lady Bulldogs won, 15-7, 13-15, 15-7. On a neutral court — they play at 3 p.m. today at Big Spring Middle School — the outcome could be even closer.

"It will come down to which team is mentally toughest," MHS coach Terri McColloch said. "Both teams are very good. Both teams are well-rounded. It'll be interesting. Hopefully, we'll come out on the good end of it. Both teams want it pretty bad, so I'm sure it's going to go down to the wire. I can't see either team letting up any."

The teams had to add this match because both finished 4-5A play at 11-1 — they split, and no other team in the district could beat either one. Midland High carries a stellar 29-3 record into the match, while Abilene High (21-6) was at one time ranked ninth in Class 5A by the Texas Girls Coaches Association.

They are playing for the district championship, but that's not all. The winner will get the district's No. 1 seed in the UIL playoffs. The team with the top seed has a couple of advantages in this district. First, there's a first-round bye. Second, the top seed's first playoff game will be against a second- or third-place team from El Paso, while the No. 2 seed will play the No. 3 seed from the always-tough District 3-5A in the Panhandle, and that team is often better than any non-district champion from El Paso.

To get that top seed and the district title, McColloch would like to see her players swinging hard at the ball.

"We're going to have to be aggressive on offense," she said. "I felt like there were times on Tuesday night when we were tipping the ball too much, and I guess we were fortunate, because they (AHS) had a lot of hitting errors."

Otherwise, McColloch said that the Lady Bulldogs would have to match their performance from Tuesday in a couple of key areas.

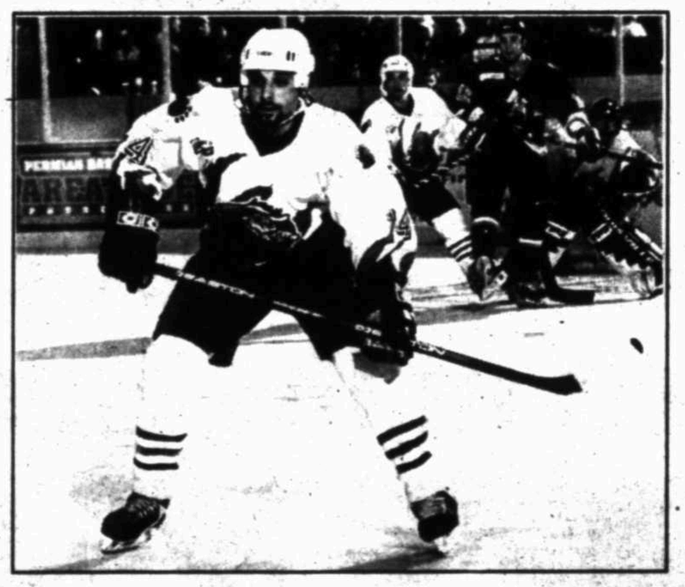

"Our blocks have to be as good as they were Tuesday night, and we have to pass the ball as well as we did Tuesday," she said.

As for Abilene High, coach Didi Pierce said that the Lady Eagles need to correct some of the little things that were a problem Tuesday. They made an uncharacteristic six service errors, and they were called for being in the net eight times.

"I think it'll be a great match," Pierce said. "Our goal will be to work on some of the things that hurt us (Tuesday). We were getting in the net a lot, and we were making service errors that we normally don't make. We've got to overcome some of the things we did."

NOTES: Lubbock Coronado is the team that awaits the loser of today's match. Coronado took third place in District 3-5A with a record of 5-3 (18-11 overall). Amarillo Tascosa won the district at 7-1 (29-4 overall), while Amarillo High was second at 6-2 (26-8 overall).

Texas A&M quarterback Mark Farris, left, will lead the Aggies as they host No. 10 Kansas State today in College Station. The Wildcats still remember losing the Big 12 title to the Aggies in 1998.

Wildcats remember loss to Aggies in '98

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Kansas State was cruising toward a national title in 1998 when Texas A & M ruined everything.

On Saturday, the teams meet again for the first time since A&M upset the Wildcats 36-33 in double overtime in the '98 Big 12 championship game.

And although No. 10 Kansas State (7-1, 3-1) would need a lot of help to get back in the national title picture this year, a win Saturday would keep their conference title hopes alive.

And exact some revenge.

The loss in '98 squelched Kansas State's undefeated season and sent the dispirited Wildcats to a loss in the Alamo Bowl. A&M rallied from 15 points down in the fourth quarter and won the game on Sirr Parker's 32-yard touchdown catch and run.

It was a bitter end to an otherwise extraordinary season.

"It was devastating to our program and to our fans at the time," said Wildcats defensive end Monty Beisel. "When you think back to something that devastating, it's always going to hurt a little bit. But I think we've moved on, and we've moved on pretty well."

That game was played in St. Louis. On Saturday, the teams meet on Texas A&M's Kyle Field, where the Aggies (5-2, 3-1) had a 22-game home winning streak snapped earlier this month with a 26-19 loss to Colorado.

Both teams have a lot riding on the rematch. A Wildcats victory keeps them in the hunt for the Big 12 North division title. The same goes for Texas A&M in the South division.

The Wildcats lost 41-31 to Oklahoma two weeks ago, and a got a scare from Texas Tech in a 28-23 victory last week that wasn't supposed to be that close.

"Sometimes you win ugly and sometimes you win pretty," defensive end Chris Johnson said. "Hopefully, we'll string some of the pretty ones together here real soon."

A win Saturday could get the Aggies back in the Top 25 for the first time since the first week of the season. A&M opened the season at No. 25 but have been unranked since a season-opening loss at Notre Dame.

For now, Aggies quarterback Mark Farris is just worried about the Kansas State pass rush.

While Farris has been sacked just four times this season, the Wildcats have dumped opposing quarterbacks 32 times and have 94 tackles for losses.

"I've been hit a few times, but not that many," Farris said. "The offensive line has done a great job of protecting me."

He also doesn't want to start a losing streak at home.

"I remember after that game (Colorado) it was a weird feeling," Farris said. "Hopefully, we won't do that for a long time."

Baylor dreads another shutout

Associated Press

AUSTIN — It's been nine years since No. 22 Texas shut out two opponents in one season. With moribund Baylor up next, that streak appears likely to end.

The Texas defense already has one shutout this season and allowed its last two opponents into the endzone just twice.

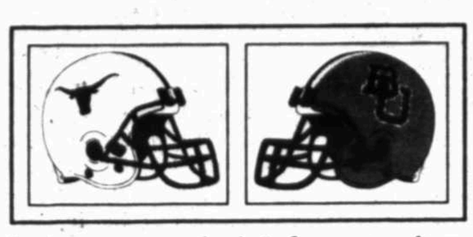

The Bears haven't scored a point in a month. Not a touchdown, not a field goal, not even a safety in three losses. Zip.

Couple that futility with the fact Texas beat Baylor 62-0 in Waco last year, and the question of the game really isn't who will win, but can the Bears break their scoring drought?

"You get down there (near the end zone), you want to put it in so bad that you'll do anything, and you trying to get ahead of yourself. You don't really do your assignment and try to compensate for other people," said Bears center Joe Jackson.

Therein lies the problem.

"When you go through times like this, its almost a situation where they want to do it so bad that they begin to press," said offensive coordinator Greg Meyer. "When you begin to press, you begin to freeze up and you are not able to make the plays."

Since getting torched by Oklahoma for 63 points, Texas (5-2, 3-1 Big 12) has been downright stingy. Colorado and Missouri each scored one offensive touchdown in Longhorns victories.

In five wins this season, Texas has given up just three offensive TDs. One those victories was a 48-0 blanking of Houston. Before Oklahoma, Texas just missed a shutout in a 42-7 win over Oklahoma State.

More efforts like that would go a long way in marching Texas back up in the national rankings.

"Our goal is not to shut them out but to win the game," said Texas defensive coordinator Carl Reese. "Shutouts are hard to come by, and you really got to work for them."

Texas players and coaches insist the Bears are a better team than the one they faced last year.

"They're lining up in the right places, and they're playing real hard," said Texas coach Mack Brown. "They're very competitive in ball games, and each week they get better."

Competitive enough to play Texas A&M to a 10-0 halftime score before losing 24-0. Against Texas Tech, the Bears surrendered one touchdown in every quarter in losing 28-0. Not good, but it's not like every week is a repeat of the 59-0 disaster inflicted by Nebraska.

Last year, when Baylor went 1-10, the Bears surrendered 34 or more points to every Big 12 opponent.

"This is such a different football team," said Baylor coach Kevin Steele. "We don't use last year's team or last year's scores or last year's games as a lesson of what can happen to you."

Texas' offense will be gunning for a couple of records Saturday. Junior quarterback Major Applewhite needs 126 yards passing and 16 completions to become the school's career leader in both categories.

TCU faces last team it lost to: Rice

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Rice could put a real hurt on No. 11 Texas Christian in the last scheduled meeting between the instate rivals.

The Horned Frogs (6-0, 3-0) may have an 11-game winning streak and be one of just five I-A teams still undefeated, but they've lost four straight games to Rice (2-5, 1-3). The Owls were the last team to beat TCU, 42-21 last year.

"I've been on a team that's been undefeated before, and I know what that's like playing each week," said Rice coach Ken Hatfield. "And I also know the other side, where we're trying to have a meaningful season, and this game is important in having a meaningful season for our team."

And maybe ruining TCU's dream season before the longtime rivals part ways.

TCU's chances of being in a BCS bowl are already slim, and would disappear with a loss to Rice. The Horned Frogs are the lowest ranked of the undefeated teams in the national polls and the Bowl Championship Series standings.

"We told our team we are strictly in a defending ourselves mode. Verbally, we can never do it. We can only do it on the field," TCU coach Dennis Franchione said. "We've just got to go play and get ready every week. All we can do is do that. Maybe it will be enough, maybe it won't."

TCU was 13th in the first BCS standings this week, a spot below what is necessary to be considered for one of those four BCS bowls. The Frogs would have to get into the top six for an automatic bid to one of those games.

Rice is coming off a 38-18 victory over Hawaii that snapped a five-game losing streak. Hatfield has declared this as a second season for Rice.

"We have made a step forward because we did play our best game last week," Hatfield said.

The teams may never play again. At least they won't in the near future with TCU moving from the WAC to Conference USA next year and Rice having reportedly backed out of a verbal agreement to continue the rivalry on a non-conference basis.

"There's a lot of guys on our team that want to beat Rice," said TCU's LaDainian Tomlinson, the nation's leading rusher with 182.2 yards per game. "I haven't beaten them since ... never, since I've been here. I certainly don't want to leave here without beating them. I want to be able to say I beat every (WAC) team at least once."

Despite the recent dominance by Rice, including last year and 38-19 in 1997, TCU leads the overall series 40-35-3. The series dates back to a scoreless tie in 1914 and has been played annually since 1928.

Frogs linebacker Shannon Brazzell believes that Rice will be up for this game more than any other on their schedule this season. He said TCU will approach the game like the rest it plays.

"Their whole season was dedicated to beating TCU last year, and after that, they kind of faded away," Brazzell said. "We're going to take this game as another team.

"If we hype ourselves up, try to play off revenge and all that, we'll do the same thing we did last year: we'll lose."

Houston eyes share of C-USA lead

Associated Press

HOUSTON — First-year University of Houston football coach Dana Dimel has seen his team play well in spurts.

If his Cougars (3-4, 2-1 Conference USA) can put it all together for 60 minutes Saturday, they can grab a share of the Conference USA lead by knocking off league power and 14th-rated Southern Mississippi (5-1, 2-0).

"To win on Saturday, we have to play like we've played in different parts of different games for four quarters ... the way we've shown in glimpses this season offensively and defensively," Dimel says.

"I think our offense should be able to move the football if we do the things we do fundamentally well. By no means do I see them as a team that we can't have success against on both sides of the football."

That's not been easy against Southern Mississippi, whose only loss this year was by three points in the season opener at Tennessee. Since then, the Golden Eagles have reeled off five straight victories, primarily on the strength of their defense.

Southern Mississippi has allowed only six touchdowns and six field goals in its six games. Giving up less than 10 points per game, it rates third in the nation in scoring defense and sixth in passing defense, allowing 158 yards per game.

"They are obviously playing some great defense," Dimel says. "As you look at them, their defense has found a way to control the ball game.

The defense also is a good offense, scoring five touchdowns this season, and Dimel knows avoiding turnovers will be important. His Cougars already have 20 fumbles, losing the ball 11 times. There's also been nine interceptions.

The Golden Eagles have interceptions in their last 10 straight games. Rover Leo Barnes has five this season and has returned three for touchdowns, making him the third-highest touchdown producer on the team.

But the heart of the defense is the line, which has accounted for 37 tackles for losses, 15 sacks, an interception, a blocked kick and a fumble recovery. Defensive end Cedric Scott is the leader with 10 tackles for losses and six sacks.

Houston has lost eight straight games against nationally ranked teams. But their last win over a ranked team was when they beat Southern Mississippi 56-49 in overtime in 1996. It's one of only two conference losses for the Golden Eagles in 25 C-USA games.

For Southern Mississippi, the chief task will be controlling Houston quarterback Jason McKinley, who averages nearly 291 yards of offense, eighth-best in the country, and 28 completions per game, No. 3 in the country.

"They are throwing the ball around to a lot of different people and they have been throwing the ball extremely well," Southern Miss coach Jeff Bower says.

The Golden Eagles' offense should get a boost with the return of starting running back Derrick Nix, who missed two games with an ankle injury and then a kidney infection. He spent the past week trying to regain conditioning.

Southern Mississippi also gets a break of sorts by coming off a bye week while Houston needed three overtimes last weekend before topping Memphis.

"We gave the players some time off and, at this point in the season, that was good," Bower said. "It gave us time to get mentally refreshed.

"You know what is in their minds," he says of Houston. "We know that we have bull's-eyes on our jerseys."

GAME: Both teams have perfect records

(From 1B)

The game is being televised to about 80 percent of the country. Networks have been in Norman all week interviewing players and coaches.

"I love this opportunity, to be in this kind of game," Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops said. "But let's face it, we've had a couple already. Texas and Kansas State were pretty special."

It was the Sooners' victories in those games that got them to this point. They defeated Texas 63-14, and the next week went on the road and beat then-No. 2 Kansas State, 41-31.

Nebraska began the year ranked No. 1, but slipped one notch for one week before regaining the top spot. The Cornhuskers have played inconsistently at times — Missouri gained 492 yards against them, Iowa State threw for 346 — but they appear to be rounding into form.

Nebraska beat Texas Tech 56-3 two weeks ago, then tuned up for the Oklahoma game by beating Baylor 59-0.

"I don't think I've been around a team, maybe ever, that has been so confident that we're going to get the job done," senior receiver Matt Davison said.

"It took a few games to get all of the kinks out and really feel comfortable, but I think you're really seeing the team now that we knew we could be."

Oklahoma is equally confident after handling Texas and Kansas State. And, the Sooners were off last week, giving them extra time to prepare for Nebraska.

"I feel we're in better shape mentally, as well as a little more fresh and ready to play this week," Stoops said. "I feel good about our preparation. I really like our plan offensively, defensively, what we're looking at in special teams."

The play of the quarterbacks, Eric Crouch of Nebraska and Josh Heupel of Oklahoma, will be critical in this meeting of contrasting offenses.

Heupel has completed nearly 70 percent of his passes while directing an offense that is rated fourth nationally overall and No. 1 in scoring. The Sooners have run more than they did last year, but prefer to throw — Heupel is averaging 315.7 yards per game.

Nebraska, as it has for decades, will keep the ball on the ground most of the time. The Cornhuskers lead the nation in rushing and are second in scoring. Crouch is the fourth-leading rusher in the Big 12.

But Stoops, for one, says too much is made of schemes and formations.

"Players win and lose for you," he said. "There's a lot of ways to play either offense or defense. It still gets down to blocking, tackling, covering or getting open. It's who executes the best."

Seahawks QB Huard is out

KIRKLAND, Wash. (AP) — Seattle quarterback Brock Huard will miss Sunday's game against Kansas City because of a concussion.

Huard, injured last week against Oakland, was placed on the inactive list Friday.

Jon Kitna will take Huard's place for his 25th start and 27th appearance in the past 29 games. Kitna was benched after a Week 5 loss to Kansas City, but has come on relieve an injured Huard in the last two games.

Andrews 42, Plainview 19

ANDREWS— Andrews scored three defensive touchdowns en route to a 42-19 win over Plainview which kept the Mustangs in contention in District 4-4A.

Plainview drove early against the Mustangs, as Richard Gomez connected with Jouric Wideman for an 8-yard score, but the Bulldogs remained silent until the fourth quarter. Jamie Bueno, who led Andrews (5-3 overall, 4-1 in district) with 123 yards on 20 carries, tied the game with a 70-yard scoring run, but the Mustangs did the bulk of the damage with their defense.

In the second quarter, Josh Hadley returned an interception 44 yards for a score then Eric Edwards returned a fumble 4 yards for a touchdown to give the Mustangs the momentum. In the third quarter, Andres Maltos capped the scoring for Andrews by returning a fumble 18 yards for a score, by which time the Mustangs led 42-7.

Brady Haygood had an interception and a fumble recovery for the Mustangs.

Big Spring 41, Lub. Estacado 7

BIG SPRING— It looked like a disastrous beginning for Big Spring Friday night, but that was all that went bad for the Steers.

After giving up an 80-yard touchdown run only 20 seconds into the game, Big Spring dominated the rest of the way, scoring 41 unanswered points to roll to a 41-7 District 4-4A win which kept them atop the standings and clinched a playoff berth. The Steers clinched because Snyder beat Levelland.

Estacado's Antoine Sheppard raced 80 yards for a score on the game's opening possession to give the Matadors a 7-0 lead, but it was all Big Spring (6-2 overall, 5-0 in district) after that. Jason Woodruff scored on runs of 5 and 3 yards to give the Steers a 14-7 lead at the end of the opening quarter which they never relinquished.

Woodruff led the way with 124 yards on 16 carries while Jaroe Parnell had 89 yards on 17 carries, including scoring runs of 16 and 15 yards. Quarterback Jason Choate ran 40 yards for one score and threw for another.

Big Spring travels to Snyder next Friday.

Stanton 34, Coahoma 6

STANTON— Stanton got back on track in District 3-2A Friday night, rolling to a 34-6 win over Coahoma.

The Buffaloes (6-2 overall, 2-1 in district) had a balanced offensive attack which yielded 368 yards. Jeremy Hull scored three touchdowns, the first two on runs of 36 and 14 yards which gave Stanton a 13-0 lead. After Hull's second score, Coahoma's Cory Hill returned the ensuing kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown, but when the Bulldogs kicked off, Hull answered back with an 80 yard return to make it 20-6 and permanently claim momentum.

Hull had 133 yards on 19 carries.

Clay White scored the last two touchdowns for Stanton on runs of 3 and 28 yards, and finished with 77 yards rushing.

Ty Smith recovered a fumble to stop a Coahoma drive.

Garden City 21, Robert Lee 7

ROBERT LEE— Garden City again put up a stifling defensive effort, holding Robert Lee to under 200 yards and a late score as the Bearkats won a crucial District 9-A game 21-7.

Justin Hillger threw a 40-yard scoring pass to Roger Alvarado in the first quarter and Curtis Eggemeyer scored on runs of 2 and 33 yards in the second quarter to make the difference. But for the Bearkats (6-2 overall, 2-1 in district) the deciding factor was defense. Robert Lee gained a paltry 188 yards on the evening and its only score came on a 53-yard run by Colby Eubanks in the fourth quarter off a fake punt.

Erik Halfmann had two interceptions for the Bearkats. Eggemeyer had 98 yards rushing.

Trinity 48, Lub. Christian 7

In Nathan Pirtle's first game back from a broken foot, he showed he hadn't lost a step, and it was just in time for Trinity to win a district championship.

Pirtle, Trinity's starting tailback, returned to the lineup after a five week absence, gained 155 yards and scored three touchdowns in the second quarter to lead the Chargers to a 48-7 win over Lubbock Christian and clinch the TAPPS District 1-3A championship.

In the second quarter, Pirtle made all the difference, scoring on runs of 25, 33 and 11 yards. Coupled with a pair of Matt Midkiff touchdown passes, the Chargers (7-2 overall, 3-0 in district) roared to a 34-0 halftime lead and the outcome was a formality.

After winning the TCAL six-man title last season, Trinity made the transition to 11-man football this year without much of a problem.

"We're excited," said Trinity coach John Wilkins. "The first year in 11-man football to win the district championship going away is a great accomplishment. But we're not satisfied. We want to play longer."

Clint Adcox ran for 113 yards for the Chargers, while Midkiff had three touchdown passes, two to Dustin Truitt and one to Clint Kitto to open the scoring.

Trinity will host a TAPPS 3A playoff game against either District 2-3A Fort Worth Calvary or Watagua Harvest. The game is tentatively scheduled for next Friday night.

Jacks take advantage of power plays

Staff Report

FORT WORTH — The special teams did the trick for the Odessa Jackalopes Friday night, as they scored three power play goals and killed two major penalties to defeat the Fort Worth Brahmas 5-3.

The Jacks fell behind 3-0 as Fort Worth scored twice in the first period and once in the second, the third goal coming only 27 seconds into the second period by Jason Pain. Only 83 seconds later, though, after a Fort Worth penalty, the Jacks scored their first goal of the game when Derek Laxdal converted on the power play.

Goals by Konrad McKay and Jason Heywood (on the power play) tied the game before the end of the period. The Jacks took the lead for good 5 minutes and 32 seconds in the final period on a goal by Tim Hill. John Bossio, who also had two assists, concluded the scoring on a power play goal.

Making the victory more impressive was that the Jacks killed three power plays when they were at a two-man disadvantage. Goalie Grant Sjerven was stellar over the final two periods, stopping 24 shots.

LEE: Benson rambles for 313 yards

week in practice.

"We did what we had to do and could do," Parchman said. "We were limited in what we could do since we lost the whole right side of our offensive line. We had some inexperienced people in there and they did a good job. Tyler Richardson replaced Jones and did a good job."

Lee gave the ball to Benson 27 times and he put up big numbers once again.

"It really didn't feel like 300 yards, and maybe, it was because Permian came out and played really tough and we had a hard time getting started," Benson said.

Benson got a touchdown in the second quarter on a 4-yard run, but that was the Lee attack in the first half. Permian came storming back, marching to the Lee 20 when Mojo quarterback Justin Whitaker threw an interception to Lee cornerback Tim Norman.

"That was a huge play in the game because our kids felt like they had played a good half of football and had nothing to show for it," said Permian coach T.J. Mills, who was participating in his first Lee-Permian game. "We ran a wrong route on the interception and I had told the kid in the huddle where to go. It should have been a touchdown."

Parchman said, "Norman's interception took momentum away from them. Still, we were only leading by 7-0 at the half and knew we had a lot of work left to do. I thought we did a much better job in the second half."

Benson then broke loose in the second half, taking any worries away quickly. He had TD runs of 22 and 82 yards.

"The long touchdown was just a simple play where we tried to get a body on a body," Parchman said. "And when Cedric gets into the open field, good things happen."

Mills said of Benson, "He's every bit as good as I thought he was. You give a kid like that the ball that many times and it's like a truck running downhill. We put some real licks on him, and thought we held him pretty well for a while."

Benson is having fun while rewriting the record books.

"I'm having a lot of fun," Benson said. "Winning takes care of the yards, I don't worry about that. When my line blocks, the yards will be there. On the long touchdown run, the whole team did a great job of blocking. I was untouched. Now, that's fun."

Oh yes, Benson can now claim another piece of state history. He moved into the top 10 list of Texas high school all-time rushers with the 313 yards. He now has 7,121 career yards rushing, passing Byron "Bam" Morris, who had 6,970 at Class 2A Cooper (1986-89). He just needs 139 yards to move into seventh place on the state's top 10 list. He is already the leading rusher in Class 5A state history.

And while Benson was running wild, the Lee defense was pitching a shutout of its own. And that was good news after being burned by both Odessa High and Abilene Cooper the past two weeks.

"We had a marked improvement on defense," Parchman said. "That was something good to see. Permian moved the ball at times, but we just didn't give up anything big."

Norman's interception may have been the tide turner, but in the second half, linebacker Robert Rogers and defensive end Dwight Washington seemed to be playing in the Permian backfield. Defensive back Paul Gonzales and linebacker Mark Gonzales were also rushers with a mission.

The Lee defense held Permian to 98 yards rushing and 29 passing, while Lee was rushing for 431 yards. Lee has almost dropped its passing game. Quarterback Nick Hand threw only four times, completing one for four yards. Hand, Jernard Lee and Shawn Murphy are taking some of the pressure off of Benson. They also combined for over 100 yards rushing.

Lee is now 6-2 on the year and 2-1 in 4-5A play. Permian is now 0-3 in 4-5A play and is probably out of the playoff race.

Parchman is now 6-0 against Permian. No other team has ever beaten Permian six times in a row.

Asked if he was ever going to lose to Mojo, Parchman said, "Not this year."

showed some poise and hung on to win."

Last week, Cooper fell short of victory in a 49-36 high-scoring shootout with Midland Lee. This time, a more balanced offense (Cooper passed for 204 yards and rushed for 166) did the trick, although Quisenberry sure wouldn't mind his defense stepping up a bit earlier in the game.

"I am sure tired of these shootouts," a hoarse Quisenberry said. "They are wearing me out."

Midland High head coach David Browning has to be growing tired of just missing critical wins. A victory against Cooper Friday or last week versus Odessa High would have been huge for the Bulldogs.

But the Bulldogs showed a little inexperience. Although the turnovers on the last two drives were critical, penalties at the wrong time also hurt.

In the second quarter, MHS was leading 9-7 and threatening. Facing third and one on the Cooper 10, the Bulldogs had a run for a first down negated by a holding penalty. The Cougars' Coby Mavroulis blocked the ensuing field goal attempt by James Gripp.

In the third quarter, another run for a first down, which would have put the ball on Cooper's six-yard line, was negated another penalty. Another field goal attempt again just missed.

"We had two missed opportunities in the red zone, and they were big plays," Browning said.

Still, MHS' offense did have its biggest offensive night in quite some time. Howard threw for 293 yards and three scores. He also topped the 1,000-yard barrier for the season.

Hickey caught five passes for 75 yards and one score. With his earlier reverse, he scored twice.

Also, Barber sizzled in his first 4-5A start. Barber had 177 yards of total offense (102 receiving yards).

Game Notes: Midland High has not defeated Abilene Cooper since 1990. This is the Bulldogs' 10th straight loss to Cooper... Browning-coached MHS teams are 2-3 against Quisenberry's teams at OHS and Cooper since 1996... MHS is 0-4 in games where it has more turnovers than that of its opponent...

ran it pretty well."

Lamesa (7-1 overall, 3-0 in District 3-3A) was plagued with turnovers and costly penalties in the first half, while the Rangers (5-3, 2-1) were fired up and had the No. 2 team in Class 3A on its toes.

Page got the only score in the first quarter with a 33-yard run to put Lamesa up 6-0 thanks to a failed point-after attempt.

Greenwood responded by scoring 17 unanswered points in the second quarter. Byron Wardlaw caught a 10-yard TD pass from Brandon Smith and kicked a 34-yard field goal. Smith also found Nolan Howard on a 6-yard scoring toss.

Lamesa then swung the momentum back to its side in the third quarter. It all started with an interception thrown by Page. Greenwood got the ball at their own 12, but two plays later a fumble gave the ball back to Lamesa at the Rangers' 15-yard line. The Golden Tors wasted little time in converting on the Ranger miscue as Page scored on a 14-yard scamper just two plays after the fumble recovery. Wade added the two-point conversion, and Greenwood only led 17-14 late in the third.

"That was a big play," said James about the fumble recovery. "Our kids fed off that from there."

Greenwood coach Bob Purser said a bigger key in his team's loss was not sustaining a drive in the third quarter.

"I thought we played pretty well in the third quarter, defensively. We just couldn't do anything on offense," Purser said. "That just killed us. Had we been able to have a drive in the third quarter and gain some field position, I think we still could've made it a four-quarter game. But we just couldn't do it."

The Rangers only had one first down in the second half, while the Golden Tors had 11 first downs and piled up 244 of their 343 rushing yards in the second half.

Lamesa's depth eventually wore down the Rangers as the Golden Tornadoes scored 20 unanswered points in the fourth quarter to put the game away.

The Rangers do leave with some positives and are encouraged with what they saw.

"We found out that we could fight with a good football team," Purser said. "We just ran out of gas. I think we played as good a football team as we will see. That was a good measuring stick for us. We held up pretty good for about two-and-a-half quarters. Now, we just need to get our heads back up when we go play Brownfield next week."

MCS: Mustangs win

(From 1B)

Higgs was only 4-of-15 for 102 yards. Fullback Tyler Hartlie was the recipient of all four receptions.

Beeghley added 291 yards of total offense to the Mustang total of 523 yards. Beeghley was 12-of-22 for 193 yards with three touchdowns and two interceptions through the air, while he ran for 98 yards.

Chase Feeler had a terrific night as Beeghley's favorite target. He caught five passes for 160 yards. One of his three touchdown receptions came in the third quarter when receiver Kacy Groves took the ball on an apparent reverse. But instead of passing the ball, Groves lofted a pass to a wide-open Feeler for an 80-yard touchdown.

Midland Christian assured itself of a playoff bid by adding a touchdown with two seconds left. Feeler caught a 25-yard pass from Beeghley. That touchdown gave the Mustangs the advantage in positive points over the Warriors in the district standings.

4-5A FOOTBALL

Abilene 27, Odessa 7

ABILENE — Abilene High ended Odessa High's winning ways in District 4-5A with a 27-7 victory Friday night at Shotwell Stadium.

Abilene High (7-1 overall) moves into a four-way tie for first place in 4-5A with Odessa High (4-4), Midland Lee and Abilene Cooper. All four teams are 2-1 in loop play.

The win for the Eagles was one that many have expected since the start of district. Kevin Goodman threw for 303 yards and four touchdowns, including two to Robert Spells, who had not scored in AHS' previous two district games. Spells, who had 118 receiving yards on Friday, has 12 touchdowns this season.

OHS had 202 total yards, which paled in comparison to AHS' 429 yards.

MC men sit in 4th place

ROSWELL, N.M. — The Midland College men's golf team had a solid day, but it still wasn't good enough for the lead Friday at the Bronco Invitational hosted by New Mexico Military Institute.

Midland College shot a solid 276, as Lyle Wilkins and Billy Houle led the way with a pair of 67s, but that was only good for a tie for sixth place as the Chaps were still seven strokes behind host NMMI for the lead. MC was in fourth place after the first round, with both of Odessa College's teams sitting in front of the Chaps.

Also shooting well for the Chaps were Gerod Black with a 70, Steve Fraser at 72 and Mike Schumacher with a 73. The following are the team scores.

1. NMMI 269; 2. Odessa College 271; 3. Odessa College No. 2 275; 4. Midland College 276; 5. New Mexico Junior College 283; 6. Oklahoma Panhandle State University 291; 7. Grayson Community College 293; 8. Regis University 305; 9. STLC 306; 10. New Mexico Tech 321.

Trinity v-ball has 3 honored

The Midland Trinity volleyball team had three of its players honored by TAPPS District 1-3A. Kelly Griffen was a first team selection while Nicole Kennerly was second team and Leanna Gilles was honorable mention.

Griffen led the Lady Chargers in district with 22 kills along with 52 service points and six aces. Trinity finished 4-6 in district and 16-11 overall.

Soldier's Bible turns up 56 years after it was lost

By Paul Bourgeois
N.Y. Times News Service

BROWNWOOD — Millions of pocket-size New Testaments were passed out to soldiers during World War II, but a special one surfaced recently in Brownwood.

After 56 years, it's a little dog-eared but in good condition.

As best as anyone can figure, David D. Harris Jr. of Brownwood lost it in 1944 near the Battle of the Bulge. He was close to Liege, Belgium, about 20 miles from the German border.

An 11-year-old Belgian boy, Jose Lowette, found it shortly after the war and kept it all these years, until he recently met two American tourists. He asked them to find the owner and return it after they got back to the United States.

Harris returned to Texas after the war and settled in Fort Worth. A retired employee of Rattikin Title, he died in the summer of 1992 at age 72.

"He probably never even knew he lost it," said his sister, Loyce Williams, 71.

A couple of weeks ago, Mrs. Williams received a phone call about that long-ago and far away place.

Mrs. Williams said Lowette, now 66, a retired baker, found the little book in an abandoned tank when he was living in Waremme, Belgium.

"Mr. Lowette said he kept the Bible as a memento because the American soldiers were his heroes after they liberated his town," said Beverly Motley, Mrs. Williams' daughter.

Mrs. Williams said, "Mr. Lowette said he would read the New Testament all the time."

Lowette is involved in a cultural exchange organization in Fleron, Belgium, which is a sister city to Jennings, La., the hometown of sisters Lois Harpin and Dee Dee Stoute.

It was through the cultural exchange, sponsored by the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana, that Ms. Harpin and Ms. Stoute found themselves staying in Lowette's home last summer.

"While we were there, he took it out and showed it to me. I looked and saw it was a soldier from Brownwood, Texas, and Mr. Lowette asked if there was any way we could find this soldier or his family," Ms. Harpin said in a recent telephone interview.

"He kept it as a souvenir. I think they think a lot of the Churches have new men at their pulpits

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

September, traditionally the time for moves and changes and taking up new Sunday school curricula, also marked the arrival of new ministers in three Midland churches. A fourth announced a new arrival Oct. 1.

Although their denominational beliefs differ, the Rev. Jeffrey Lamb, Unitarian Universalist Church; the Rev. Don Childers, Memorial Christian Church; the Rev. Robert Pase, Grace Lutheran, and Mike Vestal, Westside Church of Christ have in common their singleness of calling.

In a world where clergy often come to their vocations after years in secular occupations, Lamb, Childers, Pase and Vestal have known no other careers. All four said they were drawn to Midland by the size of the community and by the vitality and warmth of the churches they were called to serve.

The Rev. Jeffrey Lamb

Lamb, formerly Settled Minister of the Unitarian Universalist Association in Jamestown, N.Y., moved to Midland with his wife, Shara Renfro, in early September. The Unitarian Universalists had been searching for more than a year when they selected Lamb. They first heard him speak as guest preacher in Odessa, then invited him over for an intensive nine-day interview in Midland, a process that Lamb describes as normal, although he admits it was a little daunting.

"But I knew early in the week that this was what I was looking for," he said. "This was the right size congregation, and certainly the right size town. My wife and I had to live in Chicago while I was in seminary, and we hated it. We love Midland."

Lamb said he grew up in West Virginia in a very conservative Christian environment, never really fitting in at the high school he attended. Although deeply aware of religious, ethical and political questions, he said he didn't even know Unitarian Universalist congregations existed.

"Then in college, my American literature teacher, who was very conservatively oriented, told us that we were not to read the Ralph Waldo Emerson chapter in our textbooks because Emerson was a heretic, which of course inspired me to read the Emerson chapter that very night."

Lamb said he read the address Emerson had given to the Harvard Divinity School, and "found ideas that really inspired me. A footnote said that he was a Unitarian minister, so I started doing research, and found myself to be a Unitarian."

He said further research led him to believe that he was a Unitarian Universalist. (According to a Unitarian Universalist pamphlet published in 1995, the Universalists organized in 1793, and the Unitarians organized in 1825. They consolidated in 1961 to form the Unitarian Universalist Association.)

Shortly afterward, he left the community college he was attending and enrolled at Clemson University in South Carolina, where he involved himself in a UUA group on campus and in time became their leader. At this point, he said, the story gets deeper.

"I'm an adopted person, and during this time, my birth mother contacted me, and we started getting to know one another on the phone. At one point, I brought up the subject of religion, and I told her that I was a Unitarian Universalist. It got really quiet on the other end of the line, and finally she spoke up and said, 'Well Jeffrey, I'm Unitarian Universalist also.'"

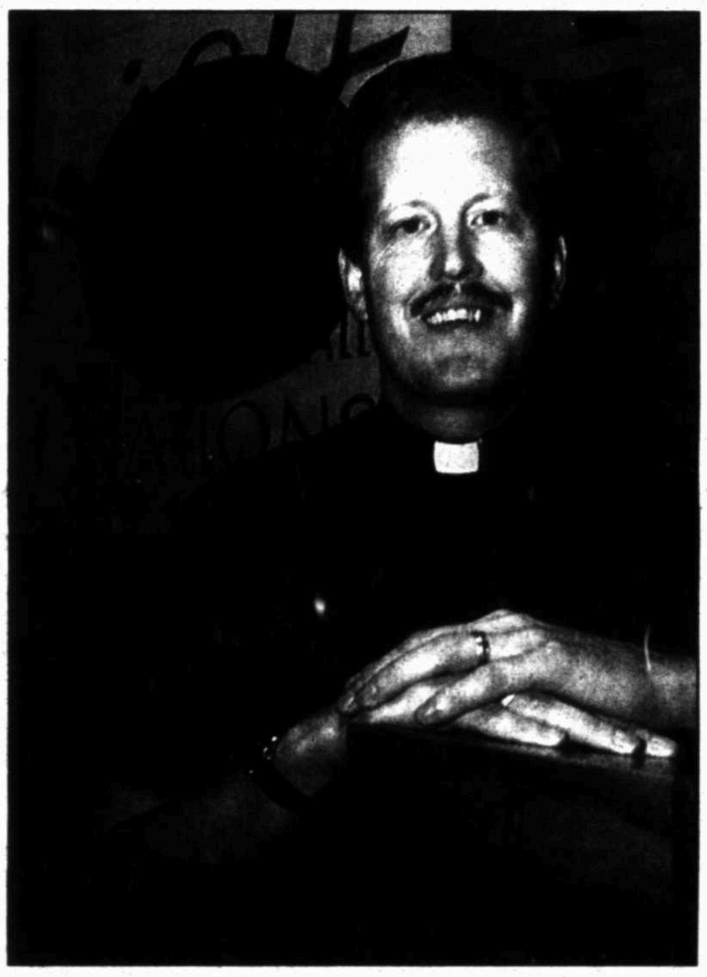

Lamb received his master of divinity from Meadville/Lombard Theological School in 1998.

He said he expects to spend most of his first year in Midland learning to know the congregation, and making himself known to them.

"Worship is, in the Unitarian Universalist tradition, the act of both celebrating and illuminating more fully the ties that bind all together," he wrote in his theological statement. "As we become more fully engaged in the interconnectedness that is the community and the cosmos, our lives become more meaningful for the increased depth and breadth we find in our experiences.

" ... People come to our churches first and foremost to be accepted for the unique precious person they are, challenged to transcend limitations and grow into increasingly more fulfilled person. ... When we face the most difficult days of our lives, the power and love of the many connections to those who care about us are what make the difference. When we face the most wonderful days of our lives, it is the sharing of our joy to those who we have connected with that makes the happiness most real. Providing this web of car-

Jesus rescues those who have trouble following Ten Commandments

Williams

The Ten Commandments of the Williams' household are posted on our refrigerator, along with the consequences of breaking them. For example, "If you don't turn in a school assignment, you'll be grounded from the phone and TV for 24 hours." Or, "If you don't wear your helmet while riding your bike, then the bike is in time- out for a week." Or, "If you do not clean your room by Wednesday night, then no TV for two days."

Rewards are posted, too. Good grades, for intstance, bring in hard cash. As a family, we hammer out both the rewards and the consequences in detail, and we all agree on the fairness before any rule goes into effect.

In looking at the Ten Commandments, I personally think they are a little vague. Not only are the consequences not spelled out, but God didn't ask us whether we thought they were reasonable or not. Just in case God ever forms a committee for revision, here is my two cents' worth of suggestions:

■ If you worship other gods besides God, you may spend hours of fun in your big yacht/mansion/hot rod, but it's amazing how quickly the thrill changes back to the old ache of emptiness; and ultimately you lose out on the big one. You can literally be buried in a pink Cadallac, but you can't take it with you. Contrary to what the T-shirts and bumper stickers promise, people who die with the most toys don't win.

■ If you take the name of the Lord in vain, you will not get zapped by lightning the way your parents told you. No, but cursing only encourages small, unimaginative vocabularies. Worse, you end up with the niggling unpleasantness of having tarnished the Name of the best thing that ever happened to you.

■ If you murder, steal, or lie, and get caught, you have a free ride: the prison system will provide you with room and board and the opportunity to earn a higher degree or learn a trade. Of course, you don't get to choose your roommate, or what he or she likes to do for pleasure. By and large, it's best to follow the rules on these.

■ If you commit adultery ... It's true — trysts are probably more exciting and intriguing than the day-to-day trash duty at home; however, you miss out on the subtler but deeper rewards of finishing the marathon with someone who knows you inside out, and still puts up with your eccentricities.

■ Finally, if you covet — well, never mind. Who hasn't wanted something belonging to someone else? I'm inclined to suggest that this one be stricken from the list.

All silliness aside —"silly," by the way, derives from the Old English word "sillig" meaning "holy"!) ... At any rate, God in His infinite wisdom gave us His laws so that we would know right from wrong. When He discovered that we had trouble living up to the commandments by our own efforts, He sent us Jesus to erase the black marks on our behalf.

As a result of God's grace, we get a new score card and a fresh start every time we ask for one.

✔ Chapel anniversary

ODESSA — The seventh anniversary of the Perpetual Eucharistic Adoration Chapel in Odessa is to be commemorated by a Mass 6:30 p.m. Nov. 7 at St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Catholic Church. Bishop Michael D. Pfeifer is to celebrate the Mass, assisted by priests and deacons from Midland and Odessa. The chapel, located on the grounds of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Odessa, opened its doors Nov. 30, 1993, for the purpose of round-the-clock adoration of the Eucharist, which Catholics believe is the real presence of the body and blood of Christ. Church rules for perpetual adorartion require that at least two persons be present in the chapel at all times. In the seven years of its existence, the chapel has never closed because of lack of participation, said Mary White, who is chapel co-director witjh her husband, Mel. But she said they can always use volunteers, especially during the late-night and early morning hours. Following the Mass, there will be a potluck dinner in St. Elizabeth's cafeteria.

✔ Luncheon

PULPIT: Churches have new ministers

(From 1C)

ing and sharing is one of the most important missions of any congregation and minister."

The Rev. Don Childers

Childers was formally installed Sept. 10 as the seventh senior minister at Memorial Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). A native of California who grew up in California and Oregon, he and his wife, Janice, came to Midland from First Christian Church in Maryville Mo., where he had spent 11 years as senior minister.

Childers said that when he was called to Midland, he had felt from the very beginning that it was a calling God had led, and that he was drawn to the church's maturity and strength, especially in its emphasis on outreach.

"I left a larger church, based on membership on the books, but this congregation is larger attendance-wise, and ministry-wise. This congregation is very involved, and that was really what I was looking for."

Childers said he likes long-term ministries.

" I was at the church in Missouri 11 years, and before that, I served a church in Wichita Falls for nine years.

"I think it takes three to five years to really get to know a congregation and to build trust levels. I don't think effective ministry really begins to show signs of fruition until after about five years. And unfortunately, with churches that experience frequent changes of (clergy) you miss the chance to develop that."

Childers said he was a late bloomer as far as his vocation.

"My commitment to Christ was a development of my teenage years, and was not fully focused until I was in high school. I felt the call to ministry while I was in college at the University of Oregon. I switched schools to Northwest Christian College in Eugene where I finished my bachelor's degree, then went on to seminary. I did my doctoral work 10 or more years after that."

Childers' devotional articles have been published in The Disciple, the national Disciples of Christ magazine, as well as a number of other Christian publications. At the regional meeting of Phi Alpha Theta in 1994, he presented a paper on the peace efforts of American writer Jane Addams. He is a member of Phi Alpha Theta as well as the Disciples Peace Fellowship, a DOC organization whose members work to promote peace and justice.

The Childerses have two grown children, Jacqui, who lives in New Jersey, and Guy, who lives near St. Louis, and a family of dog and cat companions, all adopted from the Humane Society, or rescued as strays. Humane treatment of all creatures is another of the Childerses' causes.

Childers said that despite his coming from a very beautiful and wooded community, he didn't experience a letdown when he came to Midland.

"Janice and I were looking for our next move to be to a city this size, and that's one of the things we're excited about," he said. "It offers the flavor and the challenges of a larger community, but is small enough that you don't get lost.

"We've already been to the symphony and the Summer Mummers, and we really enjoyed them, and people are so friendly here that we just love it.

"No, we don't miss the trees; Midland has trees," he said.

As for goals of the Memorial congregation, Childers said foremost is a plan for continued maturation.

"And spirituality is another goal of our congregational life, altho[illegible] today, with the popularizat[illegible] of spirituality, I think we should emphasize that it needs to be rooted not in ourselves, but in God.

"I think our churches can come forward and offer this deeper spirituality. We've been doing this for a long time, and we can offer a long, rich history through the mystics of the church with their orientation toward God. This is the real spirituality. This is what we need in our lives today."

The Rev. Robert Pase

Pase was installed at Grace Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, on Sept. 10. He and his wife, Jane, accepted a call to Midland after serving the Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Palestine for four years.

Born in Barberton, Ohio, Pase said he knew from his early childhood that he was called to be the pastor of a church.

"From the time I was about 10 or 11, I just knew it in my gut, in my heart, that that was all I ever wanted to be. There was never any doubt in my mind, although no one in my family had ever been in the clergy before. In fact, my father was a welder," he said.

The Pase family moved to Mount Vernon, Ind., when young Pase was in third grade; when he was a junior in high school they moved to Clinton, S.C., where he graduated, then went to Concordia Lutheran College in Ann Arbor, Mich., for his bachelor's degree. He continued his education at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis where he received his master's of divinity in 1989.

Two weeks before his ordination, he married the daughter of a Lutheran pastor. Her father performed the ceremony.

After a honeymoon in Hawaii, the couple came home to their first church — in Lamesa.

Pase says Jane is a very supportive spouse as well as a full-time mom. She's a Lutheran teacher by training and she does some substitute teaching. They have two boys, R.J., 9, a fourth-grader at Emerson Elementary School, and Jake, 7 1/2, a second-grader at Emerson.

Pase, who takes the boys to school and back every day, says his time alone with his sons is something he holds sacred.

"It's so important to me to spend some private time with them, to provide them with time that they can spend with me, tell me things they need to tell me, just to know that I'm always there," he said. "That time, and meal times, when the television is off and we're all gathered around the table, are always going to be very important to us."

Pase said as a pastor, he is committed to the Great Commission of Matthew 28.

"It is my desire that every member of Grace, whether 2 or 102 will live out that commission in their daily lives, not just on Sunday morning, but every day, whether at church or at work or in the market.

"This is what will change Midland and the entire world. I am committed to follow it seriously, and to lead by example."

Mike Vestal

Vestal, who is so new in Midland that he's still figuratively if not actually unpacking, was formerly preacher at a Church of Christ in Tyler, but before that was preacher for 6 1/2 years at Eisenhower Church of Christ in Odessa. He accepted a call from Westside Church of Christ in Midland, and moved here Oct. 1 with his wife, Cherie, a full-time mom, son, David, 11, who's a fifth-grader at Midland Christian School and daughter Caren, 7, a second-grader at Midland Christian School.

Vestal

Vestal, who explained that in the Church of Christ they eschew such titles as reverend or pastor, said that while he and his family loved East Texas, they were all glad to be back to the Permian Basin.

"People have asked us if we're crazy to agree to leave the azaleas and dogwoods to come here, but we felt that this is a door opened by the Lord."

He added that the congregation's hospitality and in fact the hospitality of the entire town is an asset that is evident in the actions of citizens of the community.

"When we had received the opportunity to come to Westside and had accepted, Gregg Fleming (preacher at North A Church of Christ) heard about it, so he wrote me a note to welcome me back to West Texas."

Vestal said as far as plans go, he doesn't see the 270 to 300 members of Westside changing direction to any appreciable extent, since they are already a healthy congregation.

"With God's help and with the wonderful people already at Westside, I believe the future is very bright."

American soldiers in Belgium."

Ms. Harpin said that through several computer-aided searches, they found out Harris had died in Fort Worth and didn't have any children.

"Then we were at a standstill," Ms. Harpin said. "We didn't know if he had any descendants or family, but I figured we might find him through a notice in the newspaper in Brownwood. He had lived there. Somebody would remember him."

Mrs. Williams didn't see the letter the day it appeared in the Brownwood Bulletin.

"But then a friend called and asked if I had seen the paper."

Mrs. Williams called Ms. Harpin the next day.

Ms. Harpin said she and her sister thought mailing the New Testament was impersonal.

"We decided to deliver it in person, and it was a very nice trip to Brownwood. The entire experience was interesting and rewarding. It brought joy to Mr. Lowette, and it brought joy to Mrs. Williams."

... always give thanks to God the Father for everything.
Ephesians 5:20

It seems that fall is finally here!. The leaves are just beginning to turn from dried shades of brown and green to muted splashes of orange, yellow and red. The grass has quit growing quite so fast. The leaves are beginning to fall off the trees.

I used to live in a part of the country where the colors of the fall foliage were much more pronounced. There in the midst of all the color bursting onto the barren winter landscape were trees of vibrant green. . . trees that never lost their leaves... trees that stood faithful and proud and tall among the barren branches of months of winter's cold. These evergreens never succumb to the blasts of winter storms. They remain green in the scorching summer heat; green in the blustering cold of winter; green all year long despite freezing temperatures and long dry spells. The grass withers and the flowers fade, but these trees stand "evergreen."

Paul in writing to the Ephesian Church told them to "always give thanks to God the Father for everything" (Ephesians 5:20) and to do this "in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to God ever the Father." Our thanksgiving is to be for everything. Our gratitude is to be felt and expressed for blessings both physical and spiritual, for those "ordinary" and extraordinary" for those past, present, and future" and even for those things He withholds from us and for things we receive. In spite of Paul's chains and even for those chains, he thanked God (Philippians 1:12-14). He was able to "take pleasure in weaknesses, injuries, hardships, and frustrations" (2 Corinthians 12:10).

How like the plants of the field are we. Some of us resemble those deciduous trees losing our leaves at the first blast of trials. Too few of us are like those stately evergreens giving thanks to God the Father for everything, at all times, and in all seasons.

Our lives ought to be characterized by an enduring thankfulness that is unaffected by the changes around us. When the heat of a pressured week or the deadly cold of pain strikes us ... when the winds of change confront us or the dryness of the season challenges us, what should we do? Stand "evergreen," remaining confident in the constant provision that we have in Jesus Christ.

We invite you to come worship with us each Lord's Day, every Sunday morning, at 10:50 a.m. where we thankfully proclaim God's goodness to us through His Son, our Savior, Jesus Christ.

In Caracas' crowded streets, it's Chavez's way or no way

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Blas Antonio Gomez said "yes" instantly when a sweatshop owner offered him a job paying almost four times the $80 a month he made at a downtown fabric shop.

Selling T-shirts and Bermuda shorts on the streets of Venezuela's capital represents "a deep breath in my life," the 20-year-old said. "I can pay for my studies for technical drawing, pay my own expenses and help my grandmother pay the apartment rent. I have a future."

Like thousands of street peddlers, Gomez has pegged his future on President Hugo Chavez, the former army paratrooper who spent two years in prison for leading a failed 1992 coup and now is widely viewed as a champion of the poor.

Since Chavez's election in 1998, police have stopped cracking down on the vendors, who now number in the tens of thousands. They sell anything from fruit and cakes to electronics, lipstick, art supplies, fax paper, clothes, vitamins, shoes — often counterfeit, and usually cheaper than can be found in stores.

Fleeing an 80 percent poverty rate in the countryside, their numbers have swollen in the capital, clogging sidewalks, alleys and even some traffic intersections. They are part of a migration that has raised the metropolitan area's estimated population by 2 million, to roughly 7 million people. Today, more than 80 percent of Venezuela's 23 million people are city dwellers.

Living in the pestilent smog that occasionally blankets the Caracas Valley, the "buhoneros" — as the peddlers are known — bask in the reflected international spotlight Chavez has drawn to Venezuela. When he denounces the rich, the corruption of past administrations and the evils of predatory capitalism and globalization, they believe he is speaking to them — and for them. They are among his most loyal supporters, largely responsible for his twin elections with an overwhelming 70 percent of the vote.

"I really hope he can do things his way," Gomez said, showing a T-shirt to a customer.

Chavez's appointments of military generals to key government posts, his institution of a new constitution and his control of Congress bother few of the street vendors. After 40 years of neglect by the Social Christian COPEI party and the Democratic Action party, and squandering of Venezuela's vast oil resources, the buhoneros eagerly welcome Chavez's still-to-be-defined way forward — anticipating that, someday, they'll benefit from the redistribution of wealth Chavez has promised.

"All the other governments were run by the corrupt. They left this country in ruins," taxi driver Juan F. Marin said.

"When Chavez attempted his coup d'etat, people knew he'd be president soon."

Ignored on the streets are the $8 billion in capital flight from Venezuela last year, the nearly total absence of traditional opposition parties or the budding migration of many upper-class residents and their businesses to Miami. Thanks to record high oil prices, Chavez has clout — oil earnings surpassed $20 billion this year — and he's spending some of that windfall for those most in need.

Despite economists' warnings about the historical volatility of oil prices, Chavez recently announced $1.4 billion in new spending for health clinics, housing and school buildings. On Oct. 14, he spent nearly $2 billion to settle a festering dispute with oil workers demanding higher pay.

Chavez's gift for oratory has blunted criticism. His speeches are peppered with jokes, often at his own ministers' expense. A typical speech or response during his weekly radio call-in show can include a potpourri of ideas from the art of baseball to 19th century independence hero Simon Bolivar, from Karl Marx to American poet Walt Whitman.

The people listen. The night he disclosed a 100-day plan for his government, Caracas' bustling streets were nearly deserted.

Traditional politicians failed to understand the power of that connection between Chavez and the people, said Teodoro Petkoff, a former Marxist guerrilla and planning minister.

"They paid no attention to the signs coming from everywhere: the old regime was collapsing and something different was coming up. The people picked up someone who appeared like an avenger for their frustrations," Petkoff said.

Whether Chavez can put Venezuela back on the path to development is anyone's guess. Chavez knows he needs to show results.

During a recent four-hour speech about his 100-day plan, he made an apparent slip of the tongue, saying it was intended for the next 100 years.

"I mean 100 days, days. One hundred years ... that, nobody would bear," he quipped.

Two suspects charged with 329 murders in 1985 Air India bombing

TORONTO (AP) — Two men of Sikh origin were arrested and charged Friday with murdering 329 people in the 1985 bombing of an Air India jumbo jet near Ireland.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced the charges — the most murder counts ever filed in Canada — resulting from a 15-year investigation that was one of the largest in Canadian history and cost millions of dollars.

Air India Flight 182 from Montreal to New Delhi went down off the coast of Ireland on June 23, 1985, killing all 329 people aboard. It was scheduled to stop in London.

Canadian investigators have long said they believed Sikh terrorists seeking revenge for India's 1984 raid on the Golden Temple in Amritsar, the seat of faith for the Sikh minority in India, planted a bomb aboard Flight 182.

The same day as the disaster, an attempt to sabotage a separate Air India flight in Tokyo went awry when a bomb blew up prematurely, killing two baggage handlers. A Sikh man is serving a 10-year sentence in Canada for his involvement in the Tokyo explosion of Flight 301.

The police identified the two men arrested Friday as Ripudaman Singh Malik, 53, and Ajaib Singh Bagri.

A police spokeswoman for the Air India Task Force set up to investigate the case, Constable Cate Galliford, said in Vancouver the police force would refrain from releasing any information about the charges or evidence in the case.

The charges involved the planning and carrying out of the bombings of both Flight 182 and Flight 301, she said.

In its Friday afternoon edition, the Vancouver Province newspaper reported one of the men to be charged was a key lieutenant of Talwinder Singh Parmar, a Sikh militant shot to death by police in India on Oct. 15, 1992. Parmar was the founder and leader of the Babbar Khalsa or Tigers of True Faith, a group dedicated to the creation of Khalistan from India's Punjab state.

The other suspect was a Vancouver businessman who belongs to a Sikh fundamentalist group, according to the newspaper.

"We're anticipating future arrests," Galliford said.

Due to the length and cost of the investigation, the police has been criticized for failing to arrest any suspects. In 1998, a team of prosecutors received an initial police report on possible charges. The prosecution team was more than doubled last year.

Legal wrangling rides on over Oscar-winning movie 'Ben Hur'

SAN FRANCISCO — Almost 41 years after Charlton Heston first rode his chariot in "Ben-Hur," legal wrangling rides on over the movie's royalties.

An appeals court Thursday reinstated a dispute between Turner Broadcasting System Inc. and the four children of the late director William Wyler.

The dispute is over whether Turner must pay $1.5 million in remaining royalties to Wyler's children in a lump sum or in $50,000 annual payments, without interest.

Wyler's 1958 contract with Metro Goldwyn Mayer, whose library was subsequently purchased by Turner, stipulated the annual payments. But the children say the contract was designed to spare Wyler an onerous tax burden because large incomes at the time were taxed at about a 90 percent rate.

If the children can prove that in court, they deserve the lump sum, the federal appeals court ruled.

The movie won 11 Oscars.

LONDON — Colin Dexter, creator of the Inspector Morse detective novels and TV series, received a royal award from Prince Charles on Friday for his service to literature.

The mystery writer accepted the Order of the British Empire at Buckingham Palace.

"The Remorseful Day," the 13th novel in the Inspector Morse series, was the last to feature the dyspeptic chief inspector. His TV counterpart will be killed off in an episode to be broadcast later this year.

"I get letters from people who are very fed up and say they are not going to forgive me. But he's been with me for 27 years and I'm going to miss him more than anybody," Dexter said.

MIAMI — Christopher Reeve, Gloria Estefan and retired Gen. Norman Schwartzkopf helped dedicate a $37 million center dedicated to finding more effective treatments — and ultimately a cure — for paralysis.

The Lois Pope Life Center is the new home for the 15-year-old Miami Project to Cure Paralysis at the University of Miami.

NBC anchorman Tom Brokaw emceed the event and was joined by Reeve, paralyzed in a riding accident; singer Estefan, who recovered from a spinal cord injury she suffered in a bus crash; and Schwartzkopf, who has helped raise more than $3 million for the Miami Project.

"The resources are in place," Reeve said. "Every scientist should think about the sense of urgency. Research is not made for research alone but to ease human suffering."

The facility, with a staff of more than 120, was named for the philanthropist wife of the late Generoso Pope, former owner of the National Enquirer.

LOS ANGELES — Former "Happy Days" actress Roz Kelly hit her ex-boyfriend on the head with a cane, and it's going to cost her an extra three months on probation.

Kelly, 58, who played Fonzie's girlfriend Pinky Tuscadero, was also given four months in jail. Kelly, who has been behind since August, was given credit for more than three months served.

Kelly was sentenced to three years' probation after she fired a shotgun at two cars and into someone's living room two years ago after being awakened by a car alarm. She was also ordered to undergo psychiatric counseling for what her lawyers have said is a bipolar disorder.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a joke, people.

Dick Van Dyke, the star of CBS's "Diagnosis Murder," said he was taken too seriously when he said he planned to retire.

"I've been talking about retiring for years," the 74-year-old actor said Thursday. "It's my standard answer to the question, 'What are your future plans?' The truth is I'll always be interested in things that are worthwhile and fun."

In an interview earlier this week with AP Radio, Van Dyke said: "It's time for me to go to pasture." He added that he planned to retire from TV after this season of "Diagnosis Murder."

He starred in "The Dick Van Dyke Show" from 1961 to 1966.

DETROIT — Keanu Reeves is expected in the Motor City this week to film scenes for his new movie, "Hardball."

The locale: Tiger Stadium, the old home of the Detroit Tigers.

The movie is based on the Daniel Coyle book "Hardball: A Season in the Projects," about volunteers coaching Little League baseball amid the violence of Chicago's Cabrini-Green public housing project. Reeves plays a coach.

In the scenes to be filmed in Detroit, Reeves' character brings his team to see a major league baseball game.

"Nationally, filmmakers are beginning to think of Detroit as a viable place to film," said Marilyn Wheaton, cultural affairs director for the city. "That makes us proud. That means people are beginning to see Detroit as a very nice place."

In August, Billy Crystal chose the retired Detroit ballpark to stand in for Yankee Stadium for his movie "61."

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 28, 2000:

Communication gains intensity. Feelings surface a lot more quickly. Go with the flow, and don't cut others off when you become upset. Use care with finances, as your feelings often come out in your checkbook. If you are single, no one can deny your magnetism. Dealing with your intensity takes a strong personality. If attached, avoid power plays involving feelings and money. Talk about what ails you. SCORPIO enjoys swapping ideas with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Someone's intensity could overwhelm you. You gain another perspective because of what you hear and observe. Your unusual energy takes you in another direction. Build on a relationship rather than taking a risk. A talk illuminates your understanding of another. Tonight: With your favorite person.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Make an effort with others. You might be stunned at how far a partner will go out of his way for another. Recognize how important this sharing is to him. Return calls. Accept invitations. A flirtation could be developing into a lot more. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Others clearly want you near them. You might need to spread yourself thin in order to please everyone! Worry less about what others think. Clear out errands and do what needs to be done. Another happily joins your projects. This person just wants to be close to you. Tonight: Relax about who and where.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Someone knows how to make you smile, and vice versa. Don't sell yourself short. You have a lot to offer. Indulging another doesn't have to be expensive. Sometimes a back rub means as much as a gift. Return calls, especially those involving a child. Tonight: Dance the night away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Listen carefully to your feelings and imagine what you would love to do. Let a loved one or family member in on this information, and together you can have a ball close to home. Don't just sit there. Tonight: Just enjoy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Your actions mean a lot to another. Right now isn't the moment to sit back and do nothing. Go right in. You gain because you are forthright. You might be concerned by another's reaction. Don't be. Intensity is the name of the game. Tonight: Out and about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You might be spending in an attempt to toss your frustrations. It actually might work right now, but ultimately it might not bring you the results you want. Think about a decision carefully before you blurt it out. Feelings rise quickly to the surface. Share them. Tonight: Treat another to dinner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ The moon makes you the lead player in your immediate circle. Make decisions, and others will follow. Gather the troops and opt for a spontaneous party. You know what you want. Now make it happen. You could go haywire with spending. Remember, there is a tomorrow. Tonight: Your smile goes a long way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You don't need to do a lot, so lie back. Express strong feelings or preferences. Those around you might not be mind readers. Think through what might be bothering you before verbalizing it. Let go of recent stress. Tonight: You don't have to share the details.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Join friends. Recognize that you might be more upset about an emotional or financial issue than you need to be. Pull back and understand where another is coming from. Lighten up about a change with a loved one. Be especially careful with someone you meet. Tonight: The party is where you are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ A friend might feel a lot more strongly than you realize. Be careful, as he might want a lot more than you do. Handle responsibilities early in the morning so that you can clear your day. Invite friends and family for a little pre-Halloween fun. Tonight: Leader of the gang.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Reach out for another. Make a point of touching base with those at a distance. Write a letter to a far-off loved one. Timing works with you. You might reverse your stand on a critical issue. Think about the implications of what you are doing. Get ready for reactions! Tonight: Where the music is.

Funerals scheduled for two Texans killed in Cole attack

KINGSVILLE (AP) — In one of two funerals held Friday for Texas sailors killed in the terrorist attack on the USS Cole, 22-year-old Ronchester Santiago was remembered by about 400 Kingsville residents as an example of what "America is all about."

They gathered at St. Gertrude's Catholic Church in Kingsville for a morning mass in honor of Santiago, one of three Texans killed in the ship attack. Many wore buttons that showed a picture of Santiago and the words "We love you."

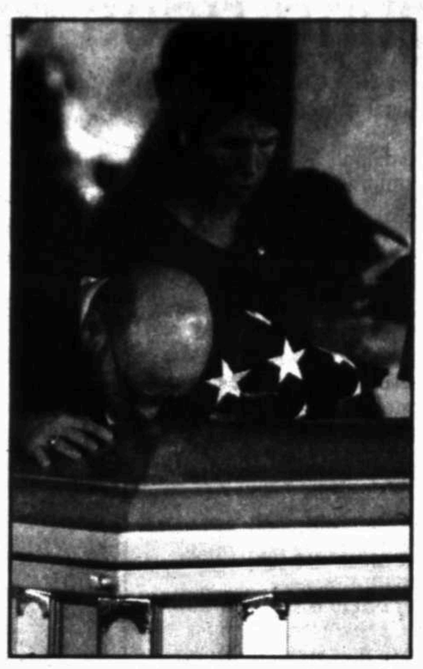

During the mass, Rear Adm. Jose Betancourt, commander of the Navy's Mine Warfare Command, presented Santiago's parents with his Purple Heart.

"Courage and commitment are words that the Navy lives by. Everyone saw these values in Ronnie," Betancourt said. "His spirit lives on in the sailors who served with him. He is what America is all about. He was willing to put himself in harm's way and he did it with extreme pride and dedication. This Purple Heart is a gift for you from a grateful nation."

In San Antonio, about 100 sailors and soldiers attended a service for Gary G. Swenchonis Jr. at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery, where his grandfather is also buried.

The soldiers were present because Swenchonis served as a soldier in the Army for four years before joining the Navy.

Above: Rogelio Santiago Sr., center left, and his wife, Simeona Santiago, leave a funeral mass for their son, Petty Officer 3rd Class Ronchester Santiago, at St Gertrude's Catholic Church in Kingsville, Friday morning. At right: Gary Swenchonis Sr. kisses the casket of his son Gary Swenchonis Jr. while his wife, Debbie, holds the flag that draped the casket Friday afternoon during burial services at the Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio. Santiago, 22, and Swenchonis, 26, were two of 17 sailors, including three Texans, killed in the explosion aboard the USS Cole.

Swenchonis was buried with full military honors, a 21-gun salute and the playing of Taps. Flags were presented to his mother and sister.

His father, Gary G. Swenchonis Sr., said he didn't know what the attackers were trying to prove.

"They didn't accomplish anything," he said. "I'm sure our forces will stay there. All they did was wreck a bunch of peoples' lives."

Santiago, a petty officer 3rd class, had been in the Navy since graduating in 1996 from Keys Academy in Kingsville. He was scheduled to get out of the service in December and planned to study electrical engineering at the University of Texas.

According to the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Santiago's first assignment was aboard the USS Constitution, the historic, post-Revolutionary War ship anchored in Boston. Santiago transferred to the USS Cole this year.

Many of his shipmates from both vessels attended the funeral mass to pay their respects to Santiago's family. They presented Santiago's family with a U.S. flag that once flew on the USS Constitution.

The memorial services came two days after their shipmate, Timothy Gauna, was memorialized in Ennis.

The three were among 17 killed Oct. 12 in a suicide bomb attack on the Cole while it ported in Aden, Yemen to refuel.

At Swenchonis' remembrance, family, friends, community leaders and Navy officers in their dress blues reached out to the Swenchonis family.

"He had a kind heart. He dreamed of seeing the world and sharing those sights with his family and friends," his mother, Deborah Swenchonis, said in a note read by a Navy chaplain at a memorial service Thursday for the 26-year-old sailor.

"He wanted to get married and have a family," she wrote. "The gaping hole in the USS Cole will be fixed and she will sail to fight another day. But the dreams of Gary and the 16 other sailors have been shattered beyond repair."

State gains time to improve Medicaid program for children

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's attorneys have additional time to submit a plan for improving the children's Medicaid program despite a Friday deadline set by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

A federal appeals court last week granted Texas' request to delay the court-ordered plan.

A federal appeals court last week granted Texas' request to delay the court-ordered plan. The ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturns the Oct. 10 ruling by Justice that had denied the state's request to delay the corrective action plan.

The New Orleans-based court granted the delay as the state appeals Justice's Aug. 14 order that Texas does not adequately provide dental care, regular checkups, transportation to doctors or information about what services are available to children in Medicaid, despite a 1996 agreement in which the state promised to make major improvements.

"No date has been set for oral arguments," Tom Kelley, a spokesman for the Texas attorney general's office, said Friday.

The state's attorneys told Justice last month that the Legislature and state officials should be allowed to fix the program without court involvement. But Justice denied the request and had extended the plan deadline to Friday before the federal appeals court ruling Oct. 18.

During Gov. George W. Bush's presidential race, the program has come under heavy scrutiny. Vice President Al Gore referred to the ruling when pressing Bush on Medicaid issues during the second debate between the candidates.

Justice had said earlier that "any delay in compliance with the Aug. 14 order will result in further deterioration of the health and welfare of the program-qualifying children."

The state, in its appeal, had said it improved Texas Health Steps and that participation in the program has increased from 29 percent in 1993 to 66 percent in 1998, exceeding the national average of 54 percent.

Student group opts to scrap off-campus bonfire citing lack of financial backing

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A student-led group at Texas A&M University on Friday scrapped plans to burn an off-campus bonfire this year, relieving administrators who enacted a two-year moratorium on the tradition after last year's deadly log collapse.

The group, called Keep the Fire Burning, said it ran out of time to hold a safe bonfire.

"Another week, maybe two weeks and we were there," group board member Joe Dyson said. "We made a judgment call on whether we'd be rushed or not. Safety was much more important than taking any sort of risk to rush."

Also, the student group wasn't able to raise the money needed to insure the event, said Robert A. Steinhagen, founder of the Dallas-based Keep the Tradition group lobbying school president Ray Bowen to change his mind about making major changes to the 90-year bonfire tradition. Steinhagen is advising the student-led group.

"Former students could not get word out quick enough to build the support financially," Steinhagen said. "We needed to raise $27,000, the liability insurance premium cost, for $35 million in coverage. We came pretty close, but not close enough to merit moving forward."

The bonfire is on hold after the Nov. 18 collapse that killed 12 Aggies and injured 27 others who were building the log pile.

The tradition annually draws thousands to the College Station campus on the eve of A&M's football game against its archrival, the University of Texas. The game typically is played around Thanksgiving.

In June, Bowen announced the tradition might continue, but not until at least 2002 and not without major changes, including greater university supervision and a professionally engineered design.

Dyson said next year's board members of Keep the Fire Burning would decide if the group plans on holding an off-campus bonfire next year.

Texas A&M officials said they were relieved the alternative bonfire effort failed.

Texas Rangers to investigate Loving County voter registration numbers

PECOS (AP) — Loving County may be the least populated county in the United States, but more people have registered to vote there than live in the county and the Texas Rangers have been called in to investigate the discrepancy.

The investigation centers around the number of voters registered for the Nov. 7 general election — a number nearly twice as large as the U.S. Census Bureau's population estimate for the entire county.

"I can confirm that my office has received allegations that person or persons have registered to vote in Loving County in the November 2000 election who are not qualified voters," said District Attorney Randall W. Reynolds, who assigned the case to the Rangers.

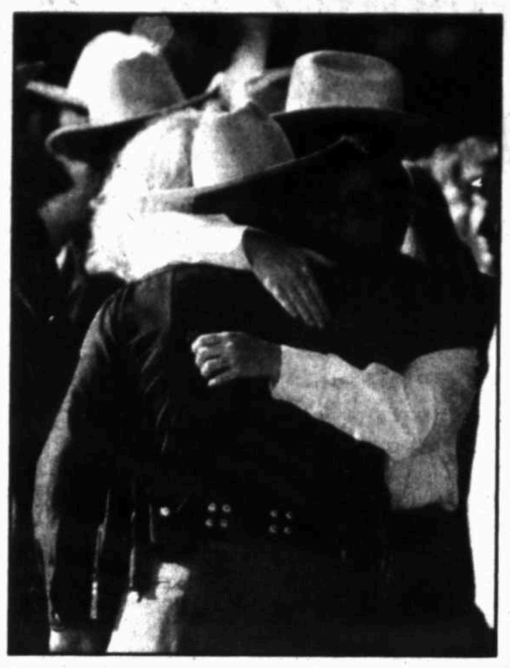

Reynolds is waiting for the Rangers report, which he will present to a Loving County grand jury if it contains evidence that laws were broken.

Loving County Clerk Beverly Hanson said that last year there were about 146 registered voters in the county, while this year the number has risen to 212.

Loving is the least-populated county in the United States, according to the Census Bureau. The most recent census figures put the county's population at only 113 people as of July 1, 1999, while September's job figures showed only 99 people within the Loving County labor force, according to the Texas Workforce Commission.

"I can confirm that one of the requirements for voting in a specified county is that the county must be the voter's county of residence," Reynolds told the Pecos Enterprise.

Contested posts in the November election are for a combined Loving County Sheriff, Tax Assessor and Tax Collector position, Precinct 1 Commissioner, and the county's only Justice of the Peace.

Police officers embrace outside the Metropolitan Baptist Church in northwest Harris County, near Houston, Friday before the funeral for slain Harris County Sheriff's Deputy J.C. Risley. Deputy laid to rest

KLEIN (AP) — More than 2,000 mourners, including 1,000 law officers, attended the funeral Friday morning of Harris County deputy J.C. Risley, fatally shot earlier this week by a deranged elderly man.

After a funeral service at Metropolitan Baptist Church in northwest Harris County, Risley was buried at Klein Memorial Park in Klein.

Risley, a 10-year department veteran, answered a disturbance call Monday afternoon when he was confronted by 70-year-old retired oil worker Jimmy Ross Whitehead. Whitehead shot Risley in the head with his shotgun.

Another deputy who arrived minutes later shot and killed Whitehead, whose family members said had been behaving erratically lately.

Klein is a suburb northwest of Houston.

Judge: Sleeping lawyer no cause to order new trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A sleeping lawyer can be effective counsel as long as he or she does not doze during important parts of the trial, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Friday in a Texas death row case.

The New Orleans-based appellate court overturned a lower-court decision ordering a new trial or freedom for Calvin Jerold Burdine, a death row inmate whose lawyer slept during his 1984 Houston capital murder trial.

Two members of the three-judge panel hearing the appeal ruled Burdine, 47, was unable to show his now-dead attorney, Joe Cannon, slept during critical parts of the trial.

Neither the trial transcript nor a 1995 evidentiary hearing — during which three jurors and a court reporter testified Cannon often napped for as long as 10 minutes — shows exactly when he slept, the majority wrote in a 40-page opinion.

"Accordingly, it is impossible to determine whether, for example, counsel slept during the presentation of crucial, inculpatory evidence, or during the introduction of unobjectionable, uncontested evidence," the court wrote.

The court also scolded Burdine for not raising his claim until 11 years after his conviction, for allowing Cannon to represent him on his first appeal and for never giving an affidavit or sworn testimony that Cannon slept during trial.

"Cannon is not the only person in this case who slept; Burdine slumbered as well — on his rights," Judge Rhesa Barksdale wrote.

Judge Fortunato Benavides sharply dissented.

"It shocks the conscience that a defendant could be sentenced to death under the circumstances surrounding counsel's representation of Burdine," Benavides wrote in a 15-page dissent.

The decision vacates U.S. District Judge David Hittner's 1999 ruling ordering a new trial or freedom for Burdine, and remands it to Hittner's court in Houston for further consideration.

Hittner gave Texas officials 120 days to re-try Burdine or set him free. Prosecutors missed that deadline and Hittner ordered Burdine released March 1. The state appealed to the 5th Circuit, which ordered Burdine to remain on death row while they considered the case.

Burdine was condemned in 1984 for stabbing his gay lover to death with a hunting knife.

Evidence at his trial showed Burdine killed W.T. Wise, 50, on April 18, 1983, while burglarizing a trailer they shared near Houston. Wise, a security guard, infuriated Burdine by asking that he prostitute himself to earn extra household cash, Burdine said.

Burdine has denied killing Wise, but has acknowledged he was at the scene with a 17-year-old accomplice, Douglas McCreight. McCreight served eight years in prison for a lesser crime before he was paroled.

"Today's decision confirms that a jury's verdict will not be overturned unless and until the defendant proves that actual harm occurred as a result of his attorney's conduct at trial," said Heather Browne, a spokeswoman for the Texas Attorney General's Office.

To establish Cannon had been effective, the majority opinion reviewed much of the trial transcript page-by-page, delineating Cannon's actions and responses throughout Burdine's six-day trial.

A friendly Advertising Consultant will help you word and schedule your ad for best results.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

❶ Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.

❷ Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.

❸ Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.

❹ Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson", "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads.

Leading edge: 2001 FORD EDGE PICKUP

RoadWorthy!

By: Ken Chester, Jr.

Leading edge:
2001 Ford Ranger Edge pickup truck

"As the best selling compact pickup truck for 13 straight years, Ranger has a heritage of delivering what customers are asking for – and more. But, the best never rest, and we worked hard to ensure that the 2001 Ranger builds on its solid base and then goes an extra step to deliver even more," said Gurminder Bedi, vice president, Ford North American Truck, Truck Vehicle Center.

Employing an approach the automaker calls Targeted Product Offering (TPO), Ford has simplified Ranger's features to better match consumer needs. The result is more standard equipment with few options and optional equipment packages.

Ford has freshened the entire Ranger lineup for 2001, with a new grill, bumpers and headlamps. The new Edge models receive a new hood and wheelip moldings. The automaker has also sought to make more of an exterior distinction between two- and four-wheel drive models.

Manufactured in Ford's Edison, N.J., and St. Paul, Minn., plants, the new Edge series of models fits in between the entry level XL and top of the line XLT. The Ranger Edge two-wheel drive model is the successor to last year's optional Trailhead equipment group available on the XL model.

The Ranger Edge pickup is available in the following configurations: regular or Super Cab, Styleside or Flareside cargo box and two- or four-wheel drive. Consumers are treated to Ford's sophisticated 3.0L SOHC six-cylinder prime mover bolted to either a five-speed manual (two-wheel drive) or five-speed automatic (four-wheel drive). Buyers upgrading to Edge Plus receive the high output 4.0L six-cylinder mill.

On the road, the 4.0L six-cylinder/five-speed automatic is a solid performer, easy to drive and control at speed – with very car-like handling. Inside the cabin, the driver has a good outward view, with well-placed displays and controls. The cab floor is vinyl covered as opposed to carpet – making the cab easy to clean.

Seating is a 60/40 woven vinyl/cloth seat covering that is comfortable and low maintenance. Rear hinged access doors include two jump seats for short trips. A step bar is standard equipment which facilitates entry/exit.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers for the Ranger Edge pickup are as follow: 3.0L – 150 hp at 5,000 rpm and 190 lb/ft of torque at 3,650 rpm; 4.0L – 207 hp at 5,250 rpm and 238 hp at 3,000 rpm. EPA fuel economy ranges from 18 city/22 highway for the 4.0L/five-speed automatic two-wheel drive to 15 city/19 highway for the 3.0L/five-speed manual four-wheel drive. Both engines use unleaded regular gasoline. Underhood fluids are easy to reach but not clearly marked.

Properly equipped, the Ford Range Edge has a maximum payload of 1,640 lbs and has a maximum towing capacity of 6,070 pounds.

Standard safety/security features include: four-wheel anti-lock brakes, dual front airbags, fog lights and front tow hooks. Optional safety equipment includes a limited slip rear differential (four-wheel drive only) $295.

The base Manufacturers Suggested Retail Price for the 2001 Ford Ranger Edge begins at $14,435 for the two-wheel drive, regular cab up to $23,940 for the four-wheel drive Super Cab model. Destination charge adds $560. Dealers report ample supplies of the Edge pickup. Customers will not be disappointed. Ford is offering $500 to $750 in customer cash that ends on January 16.

Breaking the mold: 2001 DODGE STRATUS COUPE

RoadWorthy!

By: Ken Chester, Jr.

This model year brings more changes to the car side of the vehicle lineup at Dodge. Boring cars are out as the nameplate introduces the all-new Dodge Stratus coupe. As part of the realignment of models and trim levels, the automaker has dropped the Avenger nameplate, applying the Stratus name to coupes as well as an all-new sedan this year. With aggressive, athletic good looks, the new Dodge Stratus coupe makes a statement whether parked or underway.

Built by Mitsubishi Motor Manufacturing for Dodge in its Normal, Ill., assembly plant, the Stratus coupe is available in SE and R/T trim levels. Consumers may choose between two powerplants – an all-new 2.4L SOHC 16-valve four-cylinder or a Mitsubishi-sourced 3.0L SOHC 24-valve V-6. A five-speed manual gearbox is standard for the coupe, with a four-speed automatic with overdrive an $825 option on the SE model.

The optional automatic on the R/T includes AutoStick, a feature that allows driver controlled shifting under full throttle not forced by engine speed.

On the road in the R/T coupe, the six-cylinder engine mated to the standard short-throw five-speed manual transmission is a blast to drive. Midrange throttle response is very strong – a big improvement over the previous model. Rigid body integrity coupled with fewer body joints, a front tower brace, front and rear sway bars coupled with a rigid rear suspension toe link bushing result in a coupe that inspires confidence in the twisties. Beefy P215/50R17 Goodyear Eagle RSA tires provide substantial contact with the road surface.

Inside the cabin, the optional leather seats are very comfortable, with very convenient displays and controls laid out in easy reach of the driver. Two center console powerpoints and two accommodating cupholders are complemented by an armrest that also doubles as a storage area.

Dodge engineers did not neglect rear seat passengers – armrests and cupholders are designed into the sides of the coupe. Rear seat access is very good. A foot mounted seat release in the back of the front passenger seat aids in entry and exit. Front seatbelts are mounted to the "B" pillar, but do not restrict rear seat access. A 60/40 split rear seatback folds down to increase the utility of the large 16.3 cubic feet well-shaped trunk area.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers are: 2.0L four-cylinder – 147 hp at 5,500 rpm and 158 lb/ft of torque at 4,000 rpm; 3.0L six-cylinder – 200 hp at 5,500 rpm and 205 lb/ft of torque at 4,500 rpm. While both engines can use regular unleaded gasoline, Dodge recommends unleaded premium for the 3.0L V-6 to obtain maximum performance. Underhood fluids are easily accessible but not clearly marked.

Standard safety/security features include: battery rundown protection, engine immobilizer system, automatic door locks and dual front airbags. R/T adds universal Homelink, fog lamps, keyless entry with panic alarm and security alarm. Optional safety equipment includes four-wheel anti-lock brakes with traction control ($740) – R/T only.

The base Manufacturers Suggested Retail Price for the 2001 Dodge Stratus coupe starts at $17,810 for the SE and $20,705 for the R/T. Destination charge adds $585. Dealers report improving supplies of the Stratus sedan. There are no rebates.

It takes quite a lot to become a Certified Pre-Owned BMW. But quite the opposite to afford one.

See BRONCO BMW Today for the test ride of your dreams.

6.9% A.P.R.

Certified Pre-Owned by BMW

Before a pre-owned BMW can become a Certified Pre-Owned BMW every inch of it is checked by a factory-trained BMW technician, making it better than some manufacturers' new cars. Of course, the price of a Certified Pre-Owned BMW just adds to mits allure. With affordable financing, great lease rates and Protection Plan* up to 6 years or 1000,000 miles, you can finally drive the car of your dreams. Take a certified Pre-Owned BMW for a test drive and see for yourself. Then you can decide which you love more; its legendary performance or its affordable price.

TOP TEN REASONS TO BUY YOUR NEW VEHICLE FROM A MIDLAND DEALER

1. PRICING: New car dealers buy direct from the manufacturers. Prices are equalized no matter how far the dealer is from the factory. You can be assured that you're getting the best price possible on your new vehicle.

2. SELECTION: Dealers have a tremendous inventory and quick access to a wide selection of models, options, colors and safety features that meet your needs.

3. REBATES: Dealers offer you attractive manufacturer rebates that can bring you substantial savings.

4. SERVICE/REPAIRS: By maintaining your car according to the manufacturer's maintenance schedule you can retain better value and increase the life of your vehicle. Dealers employ factory-certified mechanics.

5. REGULATIONS: Dealers must comply with all federal, state and local laws, as well as standards established by the vehicle manufacturers.

6. WARRANTIES: Dealers employ factory-trained professionals to perform warranty work. Dealers can provide extended factory warranties and other factory sponsored products that protect your investment.

7. FINANCING: Dealers offer attractive financing rates through a number of sources which could result in monthly payments to fit your budget.

8. STABILITY: You can feel confident knowing that they will be available to provide service and support long after you make your purchase.

9. PRODUCT KNOWLEDGE: Dealers and their sales and service personnel are equipped with specialized knowledge of their particular product lines, giving you valuable information on vehicle performance.

10. COMMITMENT: Dealers are committed to the community, employing skilled professionals, generating tax revenues and participating in civic, cultural and charitable activities. They value lasting relationships with customers and a variety of businesses to build your trust and your loyalty.
