12-8 LOSS — The Snyder Tigers had their share of bad breaks Friday night as they fell to Lubbock Dunbar 12-8 in their home field opener. The hometeam failed to score from inside the 1 yard line due to a fumble, then had a pass interception and score called back due to a clipping call. Statistically, Snyder won the ballgame. The Tigers accounted for 233 yards of offense to Dunbar's 166 and got 12 first downs to the visitors' 8. For complete game results, see inside page 10A. Pictured is Tiger Quarterback Mike McWilliams. County fair activity to fillup week

The annual Scurry County Fair will open its doors to the public Thursday at noon, although fair activity will begin at the Scurry County Coliseum and ag annex as early as Tuesday.

All the traditional activities associated with the three-day exhibition are again scheduled — including fair competitions ranging from homegrown vegetables to baked goods and arts and crafts to community exhibits. This in addition to the county domino championship.

The Mule Show, dropped from last year's schedule, has been added to the schedule again. Also returning is the second annual Ranch Competition, which will see hands from county ranches competing for prizes using their working skills.

These will join the annual special events to include the kiddie barnyard, a flea market sale, the children's treasure hunt, the kids wash, a chicken flying contest ("Fly or Fry"), a dog fashion show, a pedal tractor pull plus the attractions of the carnival set up adjacent to the coliseum. Helicopter rides will again be featured.

Other "competitions" will include entries of beef and dairy cattle, breeding sheep, junior livestock to include lambs, steers and heifers, a dog show and the traditional Youth Horse Show held annually on the Saturday afternoon of the fair.

Booths will be set up by local businesses and organizations in the center area of the coliseum and the stage area will be the site for nightly entertainments plus demonstrations.

From Thursday through Saturday, the Scurry County Mountain Men — a group dedicated to preserving the traditions and garb of the famous frontiersmen — will be set up on the coliseum grounds.

Another entertainment planned over two days of the fair will be a professional slapstick comic, juggler and "balloon fun" expert named "Flower the Clown."

Entertainment is scheduled also at the stage area nightly beginning at 8 p.m.

Once the fair opens at noon Thursday, the doors of the coliseum will be open until 10 p.m. nightly and will reopen both Friday and Saturday at 8 a.m.

The following is the complete schedule for the fair from Tuesday through Sunday.

TUESDAY
—8 a.m.: Booth construction begins.
—2 until 7 p.m.: Entries accepted for art exhibits.

State mandates change...

Standardized list for fees provided

A standardized list of county court fees has now been established by area elected officials, and County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth reported the list Friday.

The fees were mandated by state legislation effective Sept. 1. In response to this, county clerks in the West Texas area gathered in Midland to standardize their fees and bring area counties into conformity with the law.

County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth noted that slight variations exist between counties because some fees are set by each county's commissioners court.

For example, the law provides that counties may charge up to $10 in law library fees. Depending on the size of the library and the cost to maintain it, some counties might charge only $5 and others, like Scurry, might levy the entire $10.

Unlike Scurry, some counties use television cameras to record commissioners' court proceedings or other county business. The law allows those counties to access a fee to cover operational expenses.

Commissioners' courts are also responsible for setting fees charged by the sheriff's department. In this county, these fees include $10 for probate cases, $20 for civil cases and $24 for criminal cases and driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrests.

If an individual is arrested by an officer of the Department of Public Safety, the Alcoholic Beverage Commission or the Parks and Wildlife Commission on a criminal charge or for DWI, $10 of the $24 fee must be sent to the state treasurer.

Scurry County fees as of Sept. 1 include probate fees, $63, up from $55; civil fees, $60; civil suit involving driver's license, $40; DWI on bond, $96, up from $88; DWI with no bond, $92; other criminal cases on bond, $96; and criminal cases with no bond, $92.

In all criminal cases, $15 of the assessed fee is applied to the Crime Victim Compensation Fund.

Under the law, an individual must pay $35 to file a cross action and $40 to have someone declared mentally incompetent. To file a claim on a small estate or an affidavit of heirship requires almost $24.

Oilpatch gas danger due classes

A four-hour school related to dealing with poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas (H2S) — a training session which involved 202 local oil field workers Thursday — will be only the first of what Western Texas College officials say will be a continuing and possibly frequent offering here.

Thursday's WTC session was under the the direction of the college's continuing education department and was in response to a mandate by the Texas Railroad Commission which takes effect this Sunday.

The new rule — called Rule 36.6 — requires all personnel working in areas where H2S might be present to be trained in dealing with potential leaks of the deadly gas.

Sunday parade set with annual fiesta

The annual Diez-y-Seis celebration is scheduled Sunday beginning with a downtown parade at 3 p.m.

The event marks the beginning of the revolution which freed Mexico from the domination of France and Spain.

The parade will feature this year's fiesta queen, Christie Valadez, who was to be crowned Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Latin American Center.

Her royal court includes Princess Patricia Casias and Dutchess Sandra Morin accompanied by royal courts from Colorado City and Sweetwater.

Also featured will be floats, mariaches and charros. The parade will start at the county library, proceed around the courthouse and out Ave. R to the Latin American Center at 13th St. and Ave. K.

2 teacher workshops offered here Monday

Two professional development workshops for Snyder teachers — one involving a $30 stipend — will be offered here Monday.

The stipend will be made available as part of a federal grant. It will be offered for those attending a 6 until 9:30 p.m. workshop at the East Elementary cafeteria entitled Elementary Science Explorations.

Teachers in grade levels K-3 are invited to attend. Offering the program will be Dr. Charles Geer of the Texas Tech University College of Education.

The second workshop offered Monday will be from 4:30 until 8 p.m. at the junior high auditorium. It will deal with Special Education Instructional Alternatives.

All teachers may participate, but particularly those who still need to fullfill their special education requirements.

In charge of this program will be LeeNell Gann, director for the Region 14 Education Service Center in Abilene.

School officials note that two additional workshops are scheduled later in the fall, both also entailing a $30 stipend for teachers attending.

These will be offered for science teachers grades 4-6 and math teachers grades 7-12.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Many people aren't actually ill on Mondays, they are just in a 'weekend' condition."

Car dealer Don Adams had by-pass surgery in Lubbock a couple of weeks ago. He's back in Snyder, doing great and has even made it back to early-morning coffee at Stinson Drug.

When his coffee drinking colleagues learned of his surgery, the group all signed a get-well message lifted off one of the drug store's card racks. Everybody signed the card, but no one remembered to mail it.

Another veteran member of the coffee group, Dr. Bob Hargrove, had heart surgery in Lubbock Wednesday. Wednesday morning there was a picture postcard from Hargrove. On one side was a picture of St. Mary's Hospital and on ther other side was a message signed by Doc which read, "I am watching TV, wish you were here."

Then someone remembered the unsent get-well card. The group marked out Don Adams' name and wrote in Hargrove's, along with a notation to be sure and save the card for future Koffee Klatch use. At last report Hargrove is doing fine, but the coffee bunch is still trying to raise 22 cents for postage.

Dr. Jim Howell, pathologist at Cogdell Hospital and native of Lamesa, came in last week to dig us about the erroneous report of the Lamesa loss to Levelland.

It was reported all over the state that Levelland had defeated Lamesa 7-0 in the season opener. Rather, Lamesa defeated Levelland 22-13.

Start of the game was delayed 1½ hours by officials who arrived late, and 7-0 was a first-quarter score, which was reported over the state as a final.

Said Howell, "Lamesa hasn't won many games over the years, so we sure need it right when they win one."

Ask Us

Q. — If high school seniors must now pass a state test to get a diploma, what about people who get a GED?

A. — Laws regarding the GED — the test taken to earn the equivalent of a high school diploma — are unchanged, local school officials say. Regarding this, a senior who fails to pass both aspects of the state's exit exam could still earn a GED if that test was passed. The main difference would involve future requirements for employment or entrance to college.

Bush, Reagan to campaign

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush said Friday that he and President Reagan won't take sides in next year's Texas Republican primary for governor, but they will campaign for the GOP nominee.

"It is important to the Republican party to have a Republican governor in Texas in 1986," Bush said. "The president will be interested in helping."

Bush made the remarks in a brief news conference after arriving in San Antonio to attend a fundraising reception for Republican candidates.

Bush would not specify which candidates would benefit from the $1,000 admission fundraiser at Trinity University.

But he did say that he hoped his work here could lay groundwork for his future political plans.

Referring to the presidency, Bush said, "If I decide to run, hopefully the same people offering support now will offer their support in 1988.

Regarding current debate in Congress about an immigration bill, Bush said the United States has to protect its borders. But he said, "A supply of labor for time-sensitive crops is important.

"You don't want to have rotting agricultural products in the field because of inadequate labor," Bush said.

U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler and former Gov. Bill Clements are the announced candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination. Former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance also is expected to make the race.

Regarding the mounting trade imbalance, Bush said the government "can advocate Buy America." But There are a lot of people that have jobs depending on selling abroad."

"We're not going the protectionist route. We're going to stay on the free trade route and will stop short of quotas and tariffs," Bush said.

Bush planned to visit a ranch in Hebbronville in South Texas on Saturday for another GOP fundraiser.

The level of employed U.S. adults increased by 1.7 percent during the first quarter of 1985. Overall, about 70 percent of all men and 50 percent of all women were employed in the first part of this year.

Opposition party installs officials

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (AP) — The opposition National Action Party, in protest of what it called a "monstrous fraud" in the northwestern border state of Sonora, installed a legislature of its own here Friday.

Nearly 1,000 supporters of the party, known by its Spanish initials as the PAN, attended the ceremony held during sweltering heat about 16 hours after the official winner from the July 7 vote, Rodolfo Felix Valdes of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, took the oath of office as Sonoran governor.

Adalberto Rosas Lopez, the 43-year-old former PAN mayor of Ciudad Obregon who ran one of the most publicized Mexican gubernatorial races in memory, was greeted with cheers as he took the podium as the people's "authentic governor."

"Sonorans ... are tired of living under a party dictatorship and a hereditary monarchy that has elevated corruption, inefficency and extravagence to a superlative degree," Rosas Lopez said.

National Action claims its candidates were robbed of victory in the elections by fraud orchestrated by the Revolutionary Party, or PRI.

The PAN had hoped to break PRI's long domination with gubernatorial wins in Sonora, Mexico's second largest state bordering Arizona, and in Nuevo Leon state on the Texas border. Agricultural Sonora and industrial Nuevo Leon are among Mexico's most prosperous states.

But the PRI, which never has lost a presidential or gubernatorial race since its founding in 1929, proved its persuasive power on July 7 with a near sutout of the PAN.

The conservative PAN, Mexico's major opposition party but still tiny by American two-party standards, had made impressive gains in mayoral elections in recent years, especially in the north. Many political analysts saw the election results as a move by the PRI to put the PAN firmly in its place as a minority party that should not have too many pretensions.

With the installation by PAN of its own, alternative 18-member state legislature, the opposition party hopes to prepare Sonoran voters for the next election in 1988. That vote here will be for mayors, the state legislature and, nationally, for a president to succeed President Miguel de la Madrid.

Carlos Amaya, state PAN president, said the popular government would be the beginning of a "permanent movement" that will be a "great moral force" for reform in the state.

In an interview Wednesday, Amaya said the popular government's assembly would present electoral reforms bills to the official state legislature and be the voice of the people in social concerns.

"Citizens have to understand the importance of the legislature so that in 1988 we will win the elections," he said.

Fugitive wanted on drug charges

GLEN ROSE, Tex.–Most narcotics currently in vogue in Texas are imported into the state.

Cocaine is smuggled in from South America, primarily from Columbia. Heroin is brought in from Mexico, as is most of the marijuana found in the state. Psychedelic drugs such as LSD and XSTACY are usually manufactured in California.

But Texas has one major "home grown" drug--methamphetamine. In the past few years, law enforcement agencies throughout the state have discovered an alarming number of methamphetamine labs operating in Texas.

Due to the noxious fumes associated with the manufacture of methamphetamines, the vast majority of these labs are located in the rural areas of the state.

Gary Ray Campbell, 39, this week's Texas Most Wanted fugitive, typifies the type of person allegedly involved in this criminal enterprise.

Campbell was arrested in September, 1984, when Parker County authorities executed a search warrant at his residence near Weatherford, a small city west of Fort Worth. A methamphetamine lab had been set up in a mobile home behind Campbell's house, Following his arrest, Campbell bonded out of jail. However, he apparently did not alter his "work" habits. Just two months later, on November 22, while still out on bond from the first offense, Campbell was arrested again. This time authorities in Somervell County executed a search arrant on Campbell's residence near Glen Rose, located southwest of Fort Worth. Still another methamphetamine lab was found, this one in a trailer next to his home.

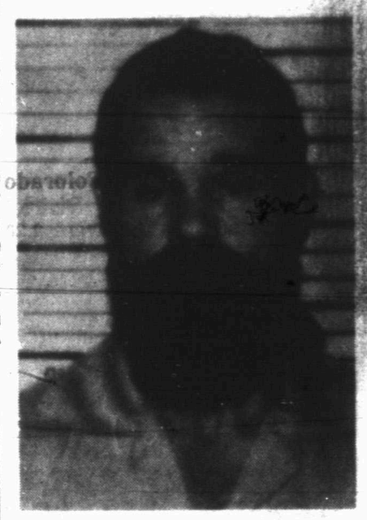
Once again, Campbell bonded out of jail within a day of his arrest.

He has not been seen since.

This week a $1,000 reward is being offered by the Texas Crime Stoppers for information leading to Campbell's arrest.



GARY RAY CAMPBELL

He is described as a white male, 5-6, 130 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. He has several tattoos on his arms, including a wing wheel tattoo on his lower left forearm and a skull tattoo on his upper right arm.

When last seen in Glen Rose, the fugitive was wearing his hair long, pulled back in a pony tail and had a full beard. Campbell owns a Harley-Davidson motorcycle and also has a 1964 black and silver Ford pickup truck with Texas license plates CB-2025.

Investigators believe Campbell has remained in the North Texas area or in one of the neighboring states.

Anyone who might have information on Campbell's whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative program between the Department of Public Safety and Texas Crime Stoppers.

VCRs

Video Cassette Recorders (VCRs), a technology originated in the United States in 1961, but now dominated by Japan, continue to change the home entertainment habits of viewers. VCRs were estimated to be in 15 million homes at the end of 1984, and by 1987 one in three U.S. homes will have a home video recorder.

Retaliation...

Soviets expel Britons

LONDON (AP) — Twenty-five Britons today were ordered to leave the Soviet Union in apparent retaliation for Britain's expulsion of an equal number of alleged Soviet spies on the information of a top KGB defector, the Foreign Office in London announced.

The expected retaliation came three days after Britain's announcement that Oleg A. Gordievski, a Soviet Embassy counselor identified as the KGB's chief spy in London, had been granted asylum in Britain and 25 other Soviet diplomats, officials and journalists would have to leave the country.

A Foreign Office statement said Britain's Ambassador to Moscow, Sir Bryan Cartledge, was summoned to the Soviet Foreign Ministry this afternoon and told the 25 — including members of the embassy staff, businessmen and journalists — also would have three weeks to leave.

The Foreign Office quoted Vladimir P. Suslov, head of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's Second European Department which includes Britain, as charging the Britons had engaged in "activities incompatible with their status," a diplomatic euphemism for spying.

Cartledge replied that the charges were "absurd" and "wholly without foundation" and registered a formal protest, the Foreign Office said.

The Soviet retaliation raised the prospect of further expulsions from Britain.

In background briefings for reporters, British officials said they had warned the Soviets there was a second list of Soviets who would be expelled if anything more than a token retaliation was ordered by the Kremlin.

Department kills policeman's piece

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A gripping, first-person account by a police officer who helped pull bodies from the wreckage of Delta Flight 191 has been killed by police department policy.

After seeing the piece by Officer Roy Burson, Texas Monthly magazine immediately bought it and scheduled it for publication in the October issue.

"It's an excellent article — one of those pieces you read and you don't forget. It's very honest, very close to his own voice," executive editor Dominique Browning said.

But Lt. James Simon of the internal affairs division of the Irving Police Department said the department refused to give Burson permission to publish it.

He said publication would violate a policy that prohibits officers from using information acquired from their job.

"An officer can't write about things he is involved in, whether it be in the criminal, civil or administrative vein," Simon said.

Texas Monthly could have published the 45-inch article anyway, but chose to comply with Burson's wishes, Editor Gregory Curtis said.

He said the story was withdrawn from publication at the last minute because of a distraught plea from Burson.

"He was distraught and upset and wanted to know if I could please not print the story," Curtis told The Dallas Morning News. Burson called last week as the magazine was being sent to the printers, Curtis said.

Val Chavez certified as aerobics teacher

Val Chavez has been certified as a Level I (basic) aerobic instructor following participation in a certification workshop for instructors hosted by Totally Fit, Inc. in Big Spring.

Chavez has taken numerous aerobics classes at Western Texas College and will be teaching an aquarobics class for men and women at WTC starting Sept. 16. Persons who would like to enroll for the class are to preregister by calling 573-8511, ext. 240. Fees are $40 per person.

To apply for certification as an aerobic instructor, applicants must hold CPR certification, score 70 percent or better on a written examination, successfully complete a practical examination and achieve a minimum score of "good" in the fitness categories for strength and cardiovascular fitness as determined by norms established at the Cooper Clinic.

Instructors for the Big Spring workshop were Patrice McKinney, physical education instructor at WTC and Laurie Choate-Churchwell, owner and instructor of the Dance Gallery and Fitness Center in Big Spring and instructor of dance at Howard College in Big Spring. Mrs. McKinney is currently working on her master's degree in sports medicine at Texas Tech University and is a member of the Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness.

136th crash victim dies

DALLAS (AP) — The crash of a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet last month has claimed its 136th victim, a 23-year-old Miami man who was burned over 80 percent of his body.

Gregg LaPedus died Friday afternoon after contracting pneumonia, said officials at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

He has been in the intensive care burn unit at Parkland since the crash of Delta Flight 191, which went down at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport during a thunderstorm on Aug. 2.

LaPedus was on his way to his hometown of Denver when the plane crashed.

CRMWD August revenues under budget estimates

Through August Colorado River Municipal Water District revenues of $8,547,255 were 2.20 percent under budget estimates, but net revenue was running half a million dollars ahead.

This was because total expenses of $4,728,487 were $737,793 under projections, or 13.50 percent. Most of this was due to a savings of $662,060 on electric poser charges of $3,097,518 for the period. While water deliveries were slightly under estimates, more economical pumping from proximate sources contributed to savings. The power bill was 75 percent of operation and maintenance of $4,137,216.

Of the 13,014,890,400 gallons of water delivered, 11,877,965,130 gallons was potable (73.64 from lakes and 17.62 from wells) and 1,137,024,270 gallons non-potable diverted water for quality purposes and which was marketed to oil companies for secondary recovery.

At the end of August combined storage of 237,055 ac. ft. in Lakes E. V. Spence and J. B. Thomas was 34.22 percent of capacity. Lake Spence was 43.28 percent; Lake Thomas only 12.51. Spence was 26 feet under spillway, Thomas 38.5 feet below spillway.

Moves scorned as 'tokens'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Bishop Desmond Tutu and South Africa's main anti-apartheid coalition on Friday dismissed two reform moves by the government, calling them tokens that ignore the key black demand for sharing power.

Tutu called the proposals "a crumb." To the United Democratic Front, they were "favors from the master's table."

Most newspapers cautiously approved a government panel's bid to abolish "pass laws," which keep blacks in tribal homelands and out of white areas, and President P.W. Botha's vow to restore citizenship to 8 million blacks in tribal homelands. Under the homeland policy, blacks lost their South African citizenship when they became citizens of the tribal land.

Liberals welcomed the measures as the first big policy change in 30 years. But they said retreating on apartheid, the white-minority government's enforced policy of race segregation, must be part of a broader move toward equality.

The United Democratic Front, a multiracial alliance of 600 groups claiming more than 2 million followers, issued a statement saying Botha was "maneuvering to blunt the sharp edge of black resistance."

"The right of our people to land, property and full South African citizenship is non-negotiable, and can never be seen as a favor from the master's table."

At a game reserve in eastern Zambia, white South African business leaders held formal talks with officials of the African National Congress, the outlawed guerrilla group fighting from exile to overthrow white rule in South Africa. Botha had said such a meeting would be disloyal.

Gavin Relly, chairman of the Anglo American Corp. mining conglomerate, told reporters later that more talks on South Africa's future "might lead to some fruitful conclusions." Oliver Tambo, head of the ANC, said the meeting made "a very important contribution to the process of seeking ways and means to end the violence of apartheid."

Rioting persisted in black townships around Cape Town and Johannesburg.

In Soweto, a policeman escorting a delivery van Friday shot and killed a black youth in a crowd that attacked the van with rocks, police headquarters said.

OPEC charges non-members with undercutting

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries accused non-OPEC producers Saturday of "systematically undercutting" oil prices and said a price collapse would hurt them more than the cartel.

A statement released by OPEC's secretariat on the 25th anniversary of the oil-producing cartel's foundation said "present oversupply and market weakness" are the result "not only of market forces, but also of the deliberate policy actions of the governments of consuming countries."

The statement charged that "oil producers from outside OPEC have been systematically undercutting OPEC's prices in order to maximize their sales at the expense of OPEC countries."

The statement claimed it was "OPEC's action of reducing production to defend the oil price structure that had been behind the relative market stability of oil."

There was no mention in the oil cartel's statement of price and production quota cheating by some of its 13 member countries.

OPEC's share of world production is now about 30 percent, compared to more than 60 percent six years ago. OPEC members are now estimated to be pumping 14 million barrels a day, down from 27 million barrels five years ago.

OPEC attributed the "sharp and rapid decline" in its share of world petroleum sales to accelerated conservation and fuel substitution by oil consumers, "coupled with a dramatic increase in non-OPEC supplies."

In 1983, OPEC lowered the price of its crude oil for the first time, from $34 to $29 a barrel. The base price is now $28, but spot prices are below that by a dollar or so, depending on the grade.

According to the oil cartel's statement, the price structure would have collapsed without OPEC, "and real chaos would have prevailed in the oil market."

"OPEC has been able to successfully hold the price structure from which other producers are benefiting, but at great sacrifice to its members and at enormous risks to development projects," it said.

The statement said, "OPEC alone cannot and should not be expected to perpetually provide the insurance policy on the stability of oil prices, while non-OPEC countries sit back and enjoy the benefit of this insurance without paying their share of the premium."

Key producers outside the cartel are Britain, Norway and Mexico.

Public is not educated about AIDS

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal government has failed to educate the public about AIDS, to find drugs for treating its symptoms or to provide housing for the victims of the deadly disease, witnesses told a congressional committee.

An AIDS victim, homosexual activists, city government workers, medical professionals and lay people who care for victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome testified Friday before the House subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and human resources.

The most emotional testimony came from Victor Bender, a 39-year-old former guide on Circle Lines sightseeing tours who was diagnosed in January as having acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"I personally hold our federal government responsible for the lack of education" about AIDS, he said. "But there is one man residing in Washington at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, who has to my knowledge never once mentioned the word AIDS in public."

Bender called on the president to appear on television to allay fears that AIDS can be spread by casual contact. He and other witnesses stressed the lack of evidence that AIDS could be contracted by any means besides sexual contact, dirty drug needles or transfusions of infected blood.

White House spokesman Peter Roussel said there would be no comment.

The Reagan administration has requested, and a House appropriations subcommittee approved, $55 million for AIDS public health education for fiscal 1986. The money includes $45 million for the national Centers for Disease Control, up from $23 million this year.

In addition, the House panel approved $141 million for the National Institutes of Health to study the disease, double the administration's request. The current spending level for NIH research is $61 million.

AIDS attacks the body's ability to fight off disease. It is most likely to strike male homosexuals, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs. It has struck 13,074 people in this country; 6,611 have died.

A camera crew from the local CBS station, WCBS, refused to be present during Bender's testimony. Soundman Boris Grgurovic and cameraman Frank Viskup were replaced.

Senior citizens plan booth setup

Senior citizens will be setting up the Senior Center's booth at the Scurry County Fair Tuesday afternoon in anticipation of the opening of the fair on Thursday.

All senior citizens who would like to help set up the booth are invited to join the group for a "Fair Booth Party" starting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Surplus commodities will be distributed through the center on Wednesday. Persons with surnames A-L are to pick up their goods from 9-11:30 a.m. and those with surnames from M-Z from 1-4 p.m. Senior citizens give volunteer time to aid in the distribution of the commodities and can also help people requesting the goods to fill out the required forms.

Marge Sealy will present a program of Christian music starting at 11:30 a.m. Friday in the dining room of the center.

Activities in the center this week include the Golden K Kiwanis Club meeting on Tuesday, the daily exercise class at 11:15 a.m., rehearshals for the Sunshine Choir and the Kitchen band, and square dancing at 8 p.m. on Friday.

Visitors are welcome to tour the Senior Center on weekdays when hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Senior citizens who would like to know more about the center will be put on the mailing list for the monthly newsletter upon request to the office at 573-4035.

KGB officer spied for West for years

LONDON (AP) — Soviet KGB officer Oleg A. Gordievski spied for the West for at least 15 years before he defected in London this week, press reports said today.

The defection strained British-Soviet relations, causing a team of Soviet scientists and international relations experts to pull out of an annual conference in Edinburgh, Scotland, next week.

Controversy also developed over the amount of information the Danes revealed about Gordievski after London announced his defection. Gordievski had served in the Soviet Embassy in Copenhagen from 1966-70 and from 1972-78.

The man himself remained in seclusion. He was believed to be living in a country house near London and undergoing intensive debriefing by British intelligence experts.

Gordievski's request for political asylum was announced Thursday by the British Foreign Office, which said it was expelling 25 Soviet diplomats, businessmen, journalists and technical employees identified by the defector as spies.

The Times of London said he was controlled jointly by Danish and British intelligence for more than 15 years as a "deeply placed 'mole' in the Soviet espionage network."

The Daily Telegraph, also citing intelligence sources, said that Gordievski, 46, who reportedly headed the KGB network in Britain since 1982, "worked for British intelligence ever since he went to Denmark in 1966 as a member of the KGB section which handles Britain and Scandinavia."

Duane Hood named to advisory group

Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services at Western Texas College, has been named to an advisory committee studying postsecondary technical and vocational programs in Texas.

The coordinating board of the Texas College and University system assumed administrative responsibility for the technical/-vocational programs on Sept. 1 and created a new Division of Community Colleges and Technical Institutes headed by Assistant Commissioner of Education Dr. Nellie Thorogood.

"In general, I am asking the (advisory) committee to provide Dr. Thorogood and me with its best judgement about the policies and procedures we should adopt for technical-vocational education at the postsecondary level," Dr. Kenneth H. Ashworth, Commissioner of Higher Education, said.

Matters to be studied by the advisory committee include the allocation of federal vocational funds, program approvals, adult vocational courses, curriculum changes, evaluation and monitoring processess, and faculty qualifications.

Dr. Byron McClenney of the Alamo Community College District has been named chairman of the committee. The committee is to serve until June 1, 1986.

Report tells of 'worst defeat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the worst defeats the Salvadoran Army has suffered at the hands of leftist guerrillas was facilitated when Cuba allowed the insurgents use of its territory to stage a dress rehearsal, a new State Department report says.

The Dec. 30, 1983, attack on the Army base at El Paraiso, which claimed the lives of about 100 Salvadoran troops, was rehearsed in Cuba with a model of the Salvadoran garrison constructed from sketches, the report said.

The equipment used in the attack — explosives, machine guns and ammunition — was sent to El Salvador by way of Nicaragua, the report said, basing its information on the testimony of a former Salvadoran guerrilla who defected recently.

The incident described by the defector, Adin Ingles Alvarado, was part of a pattern of events outlined in the report that the Reagan administration believes substantiates its claim that Nicaragua, with Cuban assistance, poses a clear threat to its neighbors.

The release of the report was timed to counter Nicaraguan claims at the International Court of Justice at The Hague, Netherlands, that the Sandinista government has not violated the sovereignty of its neighbors and is the victim of unprovoked aggression by the United States.

Deliberations at the court resumed Thursday after a 10-month recess.

Discussing the report at a news conference Friday, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, Elliott Abrams, said, "The timing is not coincidental.

"Nicaragua is in the midst of a propaganda blast and they are putting out a lot of lies," he said. "It's time to set the record straight."

The State Department's chief legal adviser, Abraham Sofaer, said the United States decided to boycott the World Court deliberations as a matter of principal.

He said the Nicaraguan claims are not appropriate for adjudication because they deal with issues "expressly assigned by the U.N. Charter to ... the Security Council.

"The action is not judiciable because the World Court lacks the ability to find facts in sitations such as this," he said, adding that the issues raised in the case "would require a massive undertaking far beyond the court's capacity."

The 1983 attack on the Salvadoran army's 4th Infantry Brigade Compound at El Paraiso represented a high point for the guerrillas in their struggle against the U.S.-backed government. For the first time in the war, the rebels were able to seize an army installation. It took 1,000 government soliders to retake the garrison.

The study used testimony of defectors, captured documents and U.S.-Nicaraguan diplomatic exchanges in an attempt to demonstrate that the Sandinistas are responsible for the continuing turmoil in Central America.

Referring to the Nicaraguan case before the World Court, the report said, "It is Nicaragua, and not the United States and its friends, that committed the aggression that led directly to the actions of which the Sandinistas now complain."

Francisco Campbell, minister counselor for political affairs at the Nicaraguan Embassy, said when asked for comment on the report: "Outright falsehood, misrepresentations and distortions are no substitute for serious policy. If the U.S. has any evidence of any aggressive act by Nicaragua, the administration should take these charges to the International Court of Justice."

Plane loses altitude; lands normally

MIAMI (AP) — A pressurization problem forced a Continental Airlines DC-9 jet to drop from 35,000 feet to 18,000 Friday during a flight from Miami to Houston, officials said.

The problem on Flight 107 was corrected within 30 minutes and the aircraft returned to a normal altitude, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Roger Myers.

The pilot radioed the FAA of his problem at 4:35 p.m. EDT as the jetliner flew near Panama City, said Myers.

"He made a routine normal flight and landed normally" in Houston, Myers said.

"It was the air conditioning and pressurization system," said Bruce Hicks, a spokesman for Continental. Hicks said the problem corrected itself and the pilot returned to a normal altitude.

Prepared childbirth classes scheduled

Prepared childbirth instruction will be offered as a Continuing Education course at Western Texas College in night classes starting Oct. 1.

Freda Murray, RN, will be the instructor for the 18-hour course. Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Mondays from Oct. 1-Nov. 5. Fees are $55 per couple.

This class is for expectant mothers with delivery dates after Nov. 5. They are asked to wear slacks to class meetings and to bring two pillows and a blanket to each meeting.

ASAT weapon test successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, trying to redress what officials called a "serious imbalance" with the Soviet Union in anti-satellite technology, successfully smashed an orbiting satellite using a new homing rocket.

The "flawless" test of the so-called ASAT weapon was conducted Friday afternoon about 345 miles above the Pacific Ocean, said Lt. Gen. Bernard P. Randolph, the Air Force's deputy chief of staff for research, development and acquisition.

The ASAT, in its first-ever test against an actual object in space, guided itself after launch from an F-15 jet towards an old Air Force scientific satellite, destroying it through the sheer force of impact.

"From everything that we can tell, it went absolutely flawless," Randolph said. He declined to provide operational details, saying such information was classified.

Friday's success prompted Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to say the United States had taken "a great step forward." It also prompted condemnation from administration critics who said the test was bound to ignite an arms race in space and poison the atmosphere for the November summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Howard Ris, executive director of the Union of Concerned Scientists, which tried unsuccessfully to block the test in court, said: "The United States didn't just shoot down a satellite. We shot ourselves in the foot. The ASAT test could ignite an arms race in space which ultimately will weaken U.S. security."

Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said, "The policy implications of the test are very negative for the future relationship with the Soviets and will destroy the future of arms control."

But Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman said the Soviet Union long has had an operational ASAT system.

"The United States is developing its ASAT capability to redress this serious imbalance; to deter Soviet threats to U.S. and allied space systems, and to deny any adversary advantages rising from the offensive use of space-based systems," Hoffman said.

According to Randolph, the ASAT weapon slammed into its target at 4:42 EDT. That was "a few hours" after an F-15 jet carrying the missile took off from Edwards Air Force Base in California, he said.

After the ASAT weapon was launched from the jet at an altitude of 35,000 to 40,000 feet, it flew into space. There its Miniature Homing Vehicle locked onto the target with infrared sensors and destroyed the satellite on impact.

Spacecraft continues on its journey

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) — While scientists evaluate a mountain of new information, the first spacecraft to cross through the tail of a comet continues on its trip around the sun collecting data on the solar wind.

Heaters on the spacecraft, turned off earlier in the week to conserve power for Wednesday's encounter with the comet Giacobini-Zinner, were activated Friday to prevent a freeze-up of the lines of its steering thrusters.

As it moves around the sun in a deep space orbit, the International Cometary Explorer will experience temperatures near absolute zero — around minus 459 degrees Fahrenheit — which is far below the point at which the craft's hydrazine fuel freezes.

Bread making course is set at local college

A beginning class in breadmaking principles will be offered through the Western Texas College Continuing Education department starting Oct. 1.

Dr. Gil Fleer, who has taught several of these "rolling in dough" sessions previously, will be the instructor. He will offer a class for intermediate students starting Nov. 5.

Participants in the beginners class will learn to make dinner rolls, coffeecakes (fruit, nut, crumb, etc.), and holiday stollens.

There will be a class bake-off on the final night of the class on Oct. 29.

Classes will meet from 7-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays in the kitchen of the First United Methodist Church. Fees are $35 per person for the 15-hour course and this covers the cost of the ingredients used. Enrichment will be limited to 15 persons in each class.

The intermediate classes are scheduled from 7-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays from Nov. 5-Dec. 3.

Persons wishing to enroll in either class are to pre-register by calling 573-8511, ext. 240.

Judge rules for 'white oil' people

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge has thrown out a Railroad Commission order to stop "white oil" production in the Panhandle Field on what the commission's lawyer says is a technicality.

Judge Harley Clark ruled Friday that the commission erred in the way it adopted an order that white oil operators feared would shut down their wells.

Clark held the May 13 order null and void "because it did not follow the 'rulemaking' procedures set out in and required by" the Texas administative procedures act.

Susan Cory, commission general counsel, said the ruling was based on a "procedural technicality" because the commission had treated the matter as a "contested case."

Different rules govern the two types of proceedings.

Attorney Bill Boyd of McKinney, representing white oil interests, described Clark's ruling as a "significant turn of events in the whole controversy."

"It's the first victory of any sort the independents have had in four years," Boyd said.

Ms. Cory said, however, the judge's ruling does not stop the commission from checking white oil wells to see if they meet the test of one or more barrels of oil per 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

Ivan Hafley of Austin, another white oil lawyer, responded that even if the commission retested the wells, Clark's ruling prohibits the agency from shutting down or reclassifying wells on the basis of the tests.

No immediate decision was made on a possible commission appeal of Clark's decision.

At stake in the case is $27 billion in oil and gas reserves in the 1.5 million-acre Panahndle Field in Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth counties.

Since 1978 some independent operators have been using refrigeration, or LTX, units to chill vapors as low as minus-20 degrees to convert the vapors to liquid. The liquid is counted as crude oil to meet the gas-oil ratio required by the commission.

Companies, such as Phillips Petroleum Co., which have gas rights in the field, claim the procedure is an "utter sham" in that white oil operators want their wells classified as oil wells so they can produce gas that belongs to Phillips and others.

Phillips complained to the commission in September 1981, and that date is recognized as the start of the controversy.

Photography course planned

Amateur photographers who would like to learn to make better pictures with their 33mm cameras are invited to enroll in a beginning photography class scheduled by the Continuing Education department of Western Texas College.

Clarence Dubose, an experienced photographer, will be the instructor. Classes will meet from 7-10 p.m. on Thursdays from Sept. 26 through Oct. 31. Fees will be $25 per person and students will provide their own camera and film.

Class members are asked to bring a camera without film to the first class meeting. They will be discussing the operation of the camera itself at that meeting. They will plan to use six rolls of film during the class.

To pre-register for the course call 573-8511, ext. 240. A minimum enrollment of 12 will be required to form the class.

Springs receives probated term

DALLAS (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys running back Ron Springs was given a 45-day probated sentence, fined $2,000 and ordered to pay restitution for a police officers' medical bills Friday following his conviction for resisting arrest at a topless nightclub.

The nine-woman, three man jury deliberated more than two hours before agreeing upon a sentence for the veteran running back.

Christoval takes advantage of injury-plagued Bulldogs

IRA – Christoval got six different players into the scoring column and turned out the lights on Ira's Bulldogs in a non-district six-man game here Friday, 57-12.

"I know when you get beat 57-12 it's pretty hard to be optimistic but we're optimistic," said Coach Mitch Lee. "The reason being was we had four starters out. In six man football if you take four starters off your team you are going to be hurting somewhere."

Among the Ira injured are Michael Martini, OE-DE (sprained ankle), Brent Bearden, OD-DE (sprained shoulder); Donnie Davis, MLB (broken bone in foot); Mark Camire, RB-LB (leg injury); and Rebell Royal, C (missed workouts).

The Bulldogs, 0-2 now, tallied two third-quarter touchdowns. Steve Denson rambled 70 yards on a kickoff return for the first one. Jay Clark got the second on a 12-yard run.

After managing only a 12-yard TD run from Philip Montalvo in the first quarter, Christoval opened the gates in the second stanza.

Joe Lee scored from 3 yards out and Edward Garcia crossed over from 7. Robert Chavez also kicked a 32-yard field goal as Christoval led 28-0 at halftime.

In the third quarter Lee got his second touchdown on a 50-yard scamper. Homer Galindo also scored on a 50-yard jaunt - on a punt return and the visitors were ahead, 44-0.

In the fourth, Jason Ussery shoved over from 1 yard away. The Cougars got the game-ending touchdown when Lee scored on an 8-yard run with 2:55 left to play.

Garcia also kicked five extra-points conversion in the game and Lee ran one.

Christoval is now 2-0 on the season.

"We took it to Christoval in the first quarter, really in the first half, despite getting behind. We just didn't have the talent or experience that Christoval had on the football field. I thought we showed a lot of pride," said Coach Lee. "Really, we feel like we'll turn it around and play good football if we get everybody healthy."

Ira will play Midland Christian at Midland, 5 p.m. on Sept. 20 for its next outing.

WTC golfers gear for conference tilt

Western Texas College opens the 1985 fall golf season with its first Western Junior College Athletic Conference Tournament next Friday.

The Westerners play the 18-hole tourney in Levelland.

The tournament is one of three conference meets during the fall. The others are Oct. 4 in Midland and Oct. 19 in Snyder.

Western welcomes back three sophomores from the 1984-85 season including co-captains Pat Fitzpatrick of Austin and Bo Kay of Amarillo. The other sophomore is San Angelo's Barry Fletcher.

Freshmen are Craig Calabretta, Austin; Scott Sawyer and Frank Schuster, El Paso; Adolph Garza, Stanton; Matt Smith, Austin; Mike Harrison, Pecos; and Brad Jamesa and Ken Livingston, Seminole.

Coach of the team is Dave Foster, WTC athletic director.

WTC Fall Golf Schedule

Nov. 7-10	Bahamas (Bahamas Am Intercollegiate)

Early points nail Coyotes as Three Way wins, 32-14

MAPLE – Three Way jumped out to a 16-point lead, then went on to defeat Borden County here Friday, 32-14.

"We just can't afford to spot people so many points in the first quarter," said Coyote Coach Duke Frisbie, whose team gave up 14 first-quarter points in a 26-24 loss to Dawson last week.

Frisbie said Three Way's offensive scheme confused the Coyotes.

"It was the first time in four years I've seen a spread offense. It was a tough situation for our kids, who had never seen it. And, Three Way did an excellent job of throwing the ball."

The hosts passed for 252 yards in the game.

All-state running back Chris Cooley ran for a 34-yard touchdown and passed to Jerry Green for a 28-yard scoring strike. The senior, who had 206 yards on 27 carries, also booted one two-point conversion.

Brett Stegall led Three Way by running for two touchdowns and passing for another. Stegall found Saul Guillen on a 36-yard scoring toss in the first quarter, then tallied on runs of 13 and 12 yards in the second half.

Guillen scored the game's first touchdown when he punched over from two yards out for Three Way in the first quarter.

Curtis Tucker also had a 22-yard field goal for the winners.

"I have mixed feelings," said Frisbie. "Are we fooling ourselves thinking we have a good team or are we just playing good people? I really have to think we're just playing good people."

The loss left Borden County 0-2 as they prepare for their third straight road game next Friday at Wellman.

Astros make changes; Wagner hired as GM

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Astros owner John McMullen's long promised revamping of his struggling franchise finally has started with the appointment of former Cincinnati executive Dick Wagner as general manager.

McMullen made the announcement at a news conference Friday without detailing the future of Al Rosen, whose five-year attempt at returning the Astros to the National League playoffs, ended in failure.

Rosen reportedly is headed for San Francisco to accept a similar position with the Giants.

The Astros owner said he and Rosen parted as friends but the change came down to the bottom line - winning.

"That (winning) is a tough and harsh task master," McMullen said. "Winning is really the only criteria that counts and that's the way I'm looking at it."

So Wagner, who was fired in 1983 as the Reds' general manager, has been given a three-year contract to put the Astros back in the limelight.

Manager Bob Lillis' contract expires at the end of the current season and his future with the club is in doubt. Wagner said Lillis' status would not be considered until after the season.

Wagner will have key decisions to make involving pitcher Joe Niekro, infielder Phil Garner and shortstop Dickie Thon, whose contracts expire at the end of the season.

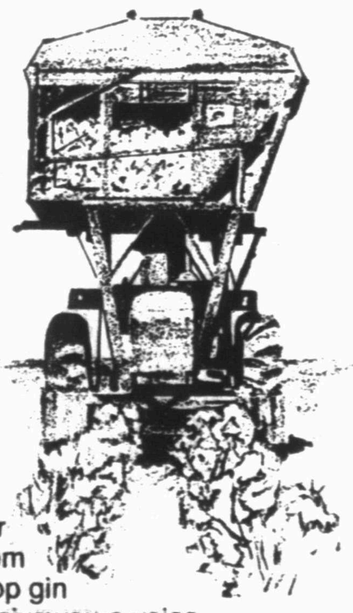
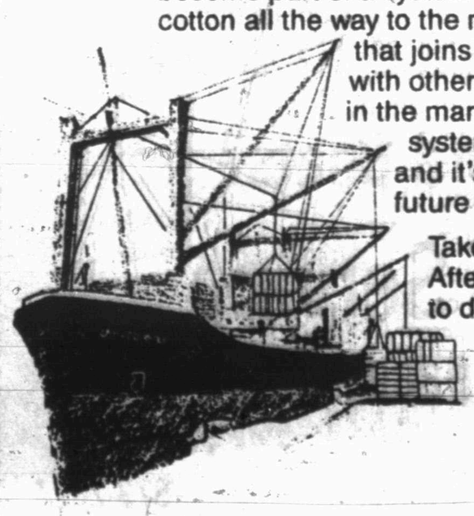
Farmer's Co-Op Gin.
A Good Place To Do Business



It makes sense to stay involved with your cotton after it leaves the farm. That's why taking your cotton to your co-op gin is a good idea—for a couple of reasons:

First, when you take your cotton to a co-op gin, that gin becomes a part of your business. You have a voice in how it's run and you share in the profits. The more cotton you bring, the more it pays.

But, even more importantly, when you bring your cotton to your co-op gin you become part of a system that takes your cotton all the way to the market. A system that joins your local co-op gin with other co-op gins to give you a voice in the market. Being a part of that system is important to you now and it's even more important to the future of cotton farming.



Take your cotton to your co-op gin. After all, it's just good business to do business with yourself.

2-4A grid roundup

Pecos, Lamesa and Monahans remained the only unbeaten teams after District 2-4A faced a rugged schedule Friday night.

Heralded Sweetwater was one of the victims. The state's No. 2 team in Class 4A fell to Abilene High, 18-0. Also taking first-time losses were Snyder, which lost to Lubbock Dunbar 12-8, and Andrews, which succumbed to Midland High 19-13.

San Angelo Lake View is the only 2-4A team yet to find a victory. The Chiefs were defeated in their second outing Friday, losing to Killeen Ellison 21-10.

Pecos kept its record intact by clipping Carlsbad, N.M. 13-7. Lamesa also went 2-0 on the season with a 22-8 win over Brownfield. The other undefeated 2-4A team, Monahans, ripped Hobbs, N.M. 30-6.

Fort Stockton, a loser last week to Crane, got on the winning track by thrashing Alpine 34-10.

In games next Friday, Snyder gets a chance to hand Brownfield its third loss of the season, while Sweetwater should find the going easier at Breckenridge. Andrews will be an easy pick over Levelland while Lamesa will be favored at Seminole and Fort Stockton's Panthers will be a "pick 'em" at home against El Paso Ysleta.

Lake View meanwhile won't find the slate any easier as it buses to meet Lubbock Dunbar.

Monahans and Pecos have the weekend off. While the rest of the loop takes their open date on Sept. 27, Monahans will host state-rated Lubbock Estacado and Pecos will be at Dunbar.

College planning Buffalo Classic

The White Buffalo Golf Classic will be held Oct. 12 and 13 at Snyder Country Club.

Entry deadline for the four-man, low-ball tournament is Oct. 9. Entry fee is $200 per team.

The field will be limited to the first 32 paid entries. Teams will be pre-flighted into four flights, based on the combined handicap of each team.

Anyone interested in participating should obtain an entry form from the chamber of commerce or the Western Texas College pro shop. No phone entries will be accepted.

Shotgun starts will be at 8:30 each day. A chili supper and Whirly Gig will be held at Scurry County Coliseum on Oct. 12.

In 12-8 defensive game...

Dunbar edges Ragin' Tigers

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

That old cheerleader yell, "Look on the scoreboard and see who's behind," will haunt Snyder for awhile.

The Ragin' Tigers won the battle of first downs and yardage, but when the final gun sounded here Friday night it was Lubbock Dunbar who was ahead on the scoreboard, 12-8.

Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin was shaking his head in disbelief after the game.

"The 6-inch line. And we scored on them," muttered the second-year Tiger mentor, referring a pair of key plays in the game. Snyder fumbled away a scoring opportunity at the Dunbar 1-yard line in the first half and had a 53-yard interception return for a touchdown called back on a clipping penalty in the second half.

Statistically, Snyder won the ballgame. The Tigers accounted for 233 yards of offense to Dunbar's 166 and got 12 first downs to the visitors' 8. And statistically, senior tailback Justin Webb countinued to mount up the yardage. He led all rushers - outrushing the entire Dunbar team, in fact - with 150 yards on 20 carries. He now has 317 yards in two games.

But in the record books, the Panthers came out on top.

Dunbar scored first. The Panthers took their opening possession of the game and slammed out 84 yards on 16 plays. Quarterback Steve Curry sparked the march. He hit Danny Lopez on a 17-yard strike midway through the drive, then raced for another 17 himself - both on crucial third-down situations.

Heralded running back Nelson Pearson went for 12 yards on another third-and-eight play, giving the Panthers a first down at the Tiger 7. He slammed for three yards on his next try, setting up Charles Vernon's 4-yard TD run as time ran out in the quarter. Brian Jones' PAT kick was wide, and the visitors led 6-0.

Dunbar was forced to punt away its next possession. Returnman Todd Pollard made a 29-yard bring-back to the Dunbar 10, but a clipping call put the ball at the Panther 38.

It took Snyder just five plays to reach the 4-yard line, but attempting to reach the end zone was much more difficult. Justin Webb bulled to the 1-yard line on first down from the 4 but quarterback Mike McWilliams was stopped for no gain on the next try.

Dunbar's defense battled in response again on third down. The Panthers penetrated the line and separated McWilliams from the ball at the point of the would-be handoff. Dunbar's Jimmy Narvaiz was there to recover it, icing Snyder's scoring threat.

Snyder didn't come up empty, however. On Dunbar's first offensive play after the fumble, quarterback Carl Zamora pitched the ball past Pearson's outreached hands in the end zone. It was all Pearson could do to fall on the ball and prevent a Snyder touchdown. The result was a safety - two points - awarded to Snyder with 2:03 left in the half.

The Tigers got one more shot at the scoreboard when they received Dunbar's free kick at their own 46. A McWilliams to Chris Garrett pass for 20 yards put SHS at the Panther 34. A 4-yard run by Webb and a 13-yard jaunt by Toby Ubando moved the ball to the Dunbar 17. With time running out, however, Snyder was forced to try a 34-yard field goal. Ricky Hunter's effort - at an angle from the right hash mark - was wide left.

The second half was highlighted by two long runs which either set up or accounted for scores. Surrounding the runs was solid defense by both teams.

Dunbar got what amounted to the winning touchdown with 6:27 left in the third period. Pearson, who ran for over 1,000 yards last year and is being touted as a major college back - broke loose on a 47-yard run down the sidelines to set up the Panther touchdown. Snyder's Tony Pineda caught the 190-pound senior at the 2-yard line to momentarily prevent six points.

Dunbar wasn't to be turned away, however. Pearson bulled to the 1-yard line on his next try, then vaulted over the top on second down to give Dunbar a 12-2 lead midway through the quarter. Jones' kick-after try missed again.

Snyder responded with a long strike of its own. The Tigers set up shop at their 31 after Dunbar's kickoff, but managed only three yards in two plays. Webb broke it big on the third try, however. He found an opening behind good blocking, then outran Narvaiz 66 yards to the goal line. With 4:52 left in the quarter, McWilliams passed to Garrett in the end zone for a two-point conversion try, but the ball flew off the tight end's fingertips.

The rest of the game was a defensive battle. Juan Benetiz, Arthur Robinson and Cal Mayfield all got in some good licks on Dunbar's next series. Benetiz accounted for two sacks in the game.

Offensively, Snyder faired no better than Dunbar. The Tigers forced a punt and took over at the 34, but fumbled just two plays later. Robert Watson recovered for the visitors at the Snyder 34.

Credit the Tiger defense for not giving in. Zamora failed to connect on three pass attempts, then gave the ball back when Patrick Malone intercepted him on fourth down at the Snyder 14.

Snyder's defense tried to get into the scoring act on Dunbar's next possession. Defensive back Todd Pollard intercepted a Zamora toss and raced down the sidelines 53 yards for an apparent score. Officials flagged Snyder for clipping on the play though, and gave the Tigers the football at the Dunbar 49.

It appeared as if Snyder had momentum when Webb broke for 12 yards on a fourth-and-three play minutes later from the 42. The run moved Snyder to the 30, but that's when Dunbar's defense got tough.

Scott Lanier was knocked for a two-yard loss on first down and McWilliams was held for no gain on second. An incomplete pass left Snyder with a fourth-and-12 situation. The Tigers set up to punt but went for the fake. It didn't fool cornerback Dewayne Gibson, who cut down Webb after only a three-yard gain.

Snyder got the ball back one more time with 5:53 left in the game. The Tigers moved it to the opponent 44 before plans went awry. A five-yard penalty stalled the drive, and Snyder was forced to give up the ball.

Dunbar chewed up the clock and eventually clinched the victory by converting on a fourth-and-one play with less than a minute to go in the game.

Coach Tomlin said it was the "little things" that beat Snyder.

"The little things in a close game are what's going to beat you," he said, making reference to missed passes, offensive inconsistency in general and problems with the kicking game. Snyder got off one punt that went for minus yardage, and had another blocked, in addition to the missed field goal.

"We had a lack of consistency on offense, but I think a lot of that had to do with Dunbar. They are really quick," Tomlin said. "I hope our kids realize how good Dunbar is. The thing that pleases the coaches about our guys is that we were in a position to win this game against a team that went to the playoffs last year and is picked to go again this year.

"We don't feel good about the loss but we feel good about the effort and the way we came back and took it two them in the second half," he added.

Dunbar managed only three second-half first downs, one of which was on Pearson's long run. He led the Panthers in rushing with 85 yards on nine carries.

Snyder, now 1-1, will bus to Brownfield next week.

DEADLY GAS TRAINING — Pictured above are some of the 202 local oil field workers who registered for an H2S safety training seminar Thursday evening at WTC. As of September 15, new Railroad Commission regulations will require that all personnel working on or near wells with the potiental for H2S production be certified as having completed a course in the handling of the deadly gas. 4 bullet-ridden bodies found

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of a missing Greek and three other men have been found in west Beirut, police said today.

There was no immediate indication the bodies were those of Americans or other Westerners kidnapped in the Lebanese capital.

A police officer said one of the bodies discovered Friday belonged to a 67-year-old Greek he identified as Andreas Toyozakis. The Syrian-born man disappeared eight days ago in Hamra, the main commercial area of mostly Moslem west Beirut, said the officer, speaking on condition of anonymity.

He said there were no documents on the three other bodies. They were taken to the American University Hospital's morgue.

Christian-run Voice of Lebanon radio identified one of the bodies as that of Antoine Baz, a Christian kidnapped in west Beirut several days ago.

The officer's statement was the first indicating that a Greek had disappeared. Greek Embassy officials could not be reached for comment.

The police officer said the other three victims "appear to be Lebanese."

Oilpatch class addresses gas

The training requirement applies to all persons working on oil wells with a potiental for H2S production and those persons employed with independent service contractors.

Tim Parker of Professional Oil Field Safety of Odessa conducted the first training session Thursday. In the future, Jerry Baird, head of adult and continuing education at the college, said they hope to find a local resident qualified to teach the course.

Once that is accomplished, Baird said he expects local classes to be held at least once a month so that new workers hired by oilpatch firms can be certified.

The fee assessed an appeal on a traffic offense fell $3 from $66 to $63.

Monies collected from fees and services, except those sent to the state treasurer, are placed in the county's general fund.

Police work altercations

Police are investigating a criminal mischief complaint filed shortly after midnight Friday.

Kurt E. Dunn of Rt. 2, Snyder filed that report at the police station at 12:54 a.m.

He told police that a rear view mirror had been broken off of his 1983 Ford pickup while he and Daryl Nachlinger were parked at College Heights Shopping Center on College Ave. earlier in the evening.

A disagreement and eventual fight arising from that incident led police to also file a report for Class A misdemeanor assault against two individuals identified by Nachlinger in reference to the incident.

No arrests have been made in connection with either report arising from the incident.

Police also filed a Class C misdemeanor assault report shortly after 11 p.m. Friday in connection with a disagreement among three women at a north Snyder residence.

Again no arrests have been reported in connection with the investigation.

In more routine action, city officers logged five misdemeanor arrests Friday evening — four on alcohol-related charges.

Two men were jailed for driving while intoxicated and two juveniles were arrested at Tiger Stadium for minor in possession of alcoholic beverage charges.

The fifth suspect was also arrested at Tiger Stadium — on warrants issued for unpaid traffic tickets.

Two accidents noted Friday

Two minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Friday morning.

Involved in the first — at 8:08 a.m. in the 3600 Block of College Ave. — were a 1976 Ford driven by Mae Allen Phariss of 610 18th St. and a 1985 Ford driven by Charles Ernest Dabbs Jr. of 1615 Firestone Dr.

The second incident was logged at 11:52 a.m. in the 3400 Block of College.

Involved in it were a 1976 Ford driven by James Nelson of Rt. 1, Snyder and a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Lionel Orosco of 1511 College Ave.

No injuries were reported from either mishap.

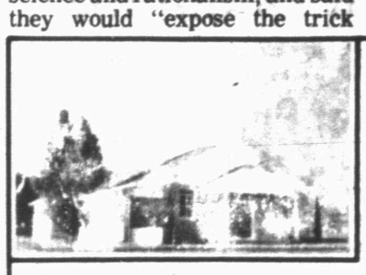
Two men challenge faith

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two apostles of science in a nation renowned for its faith in mysticism pranced over live coals to debunk India's fakirs, whom they called frauds. Fire walking is no big deal, they said, and anyone can do it.

The two men, a journalist and a student, staged the demonstration Friday on behalf of the Indian Rationalist Association, a group which promotes science and rationalism, and said they would "expose the trick behind fire walking" practiced by many Indian ascetics.

The pair strolled briskly back and forth over burning coals, emerging unscathed and with unblistered feet. They said the secret is in moving quickly and not standing in one place for long.

Srini Pathathanam, 26, and Chinogoli Saji, 24, members of the 12,000-member association, performed the feat with apparent ease, although with some perspiration.



UNION UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

"And so I am giving a new commandment to you now— love each other just as much as I love you. Your strong love for each other will prove to the world that you are my disciples." John 13:34,35

AN INVITATION

To all who sin and need a Savior-
To all who mourn and need comforting-
To all who are weary and need spiritual rest-
To all who are friendless and desire companionship-
To all who are strangers and long for a church home-
To all who are afflicted and need the Heavenly Physician-
To all who are in doubt and are seeking for light-
To ALL who wish a place of fellowship and worship-
This Church opens wide its doors and in Jesus' Name says "WELCOME".

Why Leather?

- because genuine leather lasts a lifetime
- because it's an investment in fine quality
- because it grows more beautiful with age
- because it adds prestige to your home
- because it resists fire, tearing and fading
- because it's comfortable in all seasons
- because it's so easy to care for
- because it complements all decors
- because genuine leather is unique...and more!

POSTAL JOBS

CLERK & CARRIER POSITIONS

($9.48/hr to start)

Special announcement for all candidates planning to sign up for the Clerk-Carrier and Mail Handler Examination at the Abilene, Sweetwater and Snyder Post Offices as well as many other Post Offices in the 795 and 796 Zip Code Areas when it is announced. APPLICATIONS ARE BEING ACCEPTED SEPTEMBER 16 THROUGH SEPTEMBER 20 ONLY. (Last given in 1982 - and since it won't be offered again for at least 3 years, don't miss out!)

4-HOUR WORKSHOP

Score 95-100% or Your Tuition is Refunded!

NOW is the time to prepare. The pressure is on to score as high as possible to get the job. Career Postal Workers will now earn a starting salary of $18,532 plus benefits — with an accelerated step increase plan; men and women, regardless of age, are eligible. The first step toward a postal service career is getting your name onto the "Register of Eligibles," which is accomplished by passing this Exam. To be one of the first hired, you need to get one of the higher scores! And to be hired at all during the next three years, you will need to score at least 95%.

This workshop is being offered now, prior to the formal announcement of the examination dates, to give you adequate time to prepare for the test. Many post offices begin testing within a week of the announcement which isn't enough time to prepare properly. By starting now, you'll be ready to attain high scores using our methods when the test is given.

*Come to the workshop. If you don't feel, at the end of the course, that it will help you achieve a score of 95% or better, don't pay for the workshop! Furthermore, if your score is less than 95% on the official exam after using our techniques, we will immediately refund your tuition in full!

WANT TO RELOCATE? We are the publishers of The Postal Alert, the bi-weekly newsletter giving you postal exam dates nationwide. Only The Achievement Center provides this service. Learn how you can relocate to any area of the country you like.

- ★ You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal exam review.
- ★ You may attend as many extra sessions of the workshop as you like (on a space available basis) without additional tuition charge.

WORKSHOP TUITION — $40 (Includes guaranteed 4-hour Workshop, The Corey Guide to Postal Exams [with 6 complete practice tests], a Sample Exam with Answers, Workshop Workbook, "12 Important Steps for Getting Hired into the U.S. Postal Service" Booklet, Follow-up consultation privileges, Achievement Award to high-scorers and Practice Kit containing Six Additional Practice Exams with Answers, Memory Test Flash Cards, and "Simulated Exam" on cassette tape). Please bring two No. 2 pencils with you to the Workshop ANNOUNCEMENT WITH SIGN-UP DATES MAILED TO YOUR HOME.

Seating is limited; pre-registration by phone is advised. Otherwise, you may register by arriving thirty minutes early. Tuition is payable at the door by cash, check, money order, MasterCard, VISA or American Express.

Warplanes strike at helicopter

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduran warplanes shot down a Nicaraguan helicopter and strafed mortar batteries that had fired volleys into Honduras hours earlier, the armed forces said.

Honduras moved 2,000 troops to the border on Friday before launching the air attacks, a military spokesman said. Radio stations said the Honduran army was placed on full alert.

The incident was the latest in a string of border clashes between the U.S.-backed government in Honduras and the leftist Sandinista regime of Nicaragua.

Maj. Ricardo Borjas of the armed forces public affairs office told The Associated Press it was inevitable that the Honduran attack caused casualties. Officials could not provide a casualty count.

In Managua, the Nicaraguan Interior Ministry said it had no information on the reported mortar shelling, and made no immediate comment on the air attack. The foreign minister, Miguel D'Escoto, said the Nicaraguan government was preparing a communique, but refused to comment further.

Honduras said the mortar assault took place at the border village of Espanolito, 1½ miles from the border and about 38 miles southeast of Tegucigalpa.

President Robert Suazo Cordova, calling an "urgent" session of Congress for this morning, said all 82 deputies should attend "for whatever decision they must make in defense of national integrity and sovereignty."

Honduras recalled its ambassador to Nicaragua, Col. Isidro Tapia Martinez, for consultations on the skirmishing along the border, said Antonio Mazariegos, the chief government spokesman.

Sixty people have died in the past six months in border fighting between Honduran and Nicaraguan troops. U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels operate from bases in Honduras and are often pursued across the border by Nicaraguans.

A Honduran military spokesman, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Honduras had sent 2,000 troops to the border after Nicaragua's Sandinista army lobbed mortar shells at a Honduran outpost, killing one soldier and wounding eight others.

"Crimes like this cannot go unpunished because they violate the national sovereignty," said Honduras' deputy foreign minister, Tomas Arita Valle, referring to the alleged Nicaraguan attack at a news conference.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said no Americans were involved in the actions and that the 1,200 U.S. troops based in Honduras have not been put on alert.

"There has been a long record of Sandinista attacks along the border," said the spokesman, Arthur Skop. "This is the first time there has been a Honduran military response. They have a basis to respond to these actions."

Skop said the downed Nicaraguan helicopter was Soviet-made because "they don't have anything else." Skop said he could not identify the type of helicopter.

The Honduran attack was launched at 4 p.m. Friday and was aimed at Nicaraguan batteries across the border from Espanolito which had fired mortars into Honduras at 10 a.m. and again at noon, said a military spokesman, who requested anonymity.

It was not immediately clear if Honduran aircraft crossed into Nicaraguan air space during the attack, he said.

The Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest of the U.S.-backed rebel groups fighting the Sandinista government, maintains bases along the border.

In 1933, a nationwide bank holiday, declared by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, went into effect.

SCS Notes

by SAM BUCHANAN
District Conservationist

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE

Do you know the difference between the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD)? The two organizations closely work together to promote all aspects of soil and water conservation in Borden and Scurry counties, but they are not the same.

UPPER COLORADO SWCD

The SWCD is an independent subdivision of state government with a five person board of directors. They are all experienced farmers and ranchers and each one represents a separate designated zone in Borden and Scurry counties.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

One source of help to the local district is technical assistance from the federal government through the Soil Conservation Service. So, we have the federal government (SCS) and the state government (Upper Colorado SWCD) working together under a memorandum of understanding which outlines working relationships and allows the district to control its local programs.

The Upper Colorado SWCD is a non-profit organization. They depend on donations, contributions and profits from a service rendered to get the money they need to operate locally. The work of the district saves the county a lot of expense on road maintenance each year. Because of that the county contributes some of the taxpayers' money to the district so it can continue to solve soil and water conservation problems. Tax money from the county goes to the local district (SWCD) not the Soil Conservation Service. None of the district (SWCD) funds go to the SCS (federal), but the money is spent by the local district on local programs.

When you purchase stocker fish, the profit from that sale helps the district operate. The conservation awards banquet which is held each year is paid for by district funds. The district pays for the plaques and certificates which go to the Conservation farmer, rancher, teacher and poster contest winners. The annual farm and ranch tour in Scurry County and range tour in Borden County is cosponsored by the district and they pay a portion of the cost.

You see then, that the money from the county commissioners, all donations, contributions and profits are spent locally.

We thought you should know this. We appreciate the continued support of all residents and businesses in the Upper Colorado District.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN THOMAS KRAFT

Pair exchange vows in double ring rites

ALVIN — Carol Jeanene Cox became the bride of John Thomas Kraft in St. John the Baptist Catholic Church on July 20. Father Clarkson officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cox of Alvin and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arvill Cox of Snyder. Her grandparents, Mrs. Cliff Hall Sr. and the late Mr. Hall, were former Snyder residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Kraft of Alvin are parents of the groom.

An arched candelabrum flanked with twin heart candelabras centered the church altar. Baskets of white, burgundy and pink flowers added accents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown accented with lace and pearls and flowing into a cathedral train. She wore a veil attached to a cap of lace and pearls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of burgundy carnations, white roses and pink filler flowers she designed and created herself.

LaGwena Jolly of Alvin was maid of honor with Mary Tripplett of Alvin, sister of the groom, and Karmen Hall of Rising Star, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaids.

The attendents wore burgundy gowns highlighted with lace upper bodice insets and large puff sleeves. Soft belts tied with a large bow accented the dresses in back.

Dressed like the other attendents, flower girl Tanya Stewart of Rising Star, the bride's cousin, carried a basket of flowers. Patrick Glaves of Alvin, the groom's nephew, served as ring bearer. He wore a white tuxedo and carried a white satin pillow.

Todd Dubose of Alvin served as best man. Groomsmen included James Tripplett, the groom's brother-in-law, and Paul Kraft, brother of the groom. Ushers were Winston Cox, the bride's brother, and Carl Kraft, brother of the groom.

The reception followed at the church.

Kathy Hall of Rising Star created the bridal cake. With its top two layers separated by columns, the five-tiered cake was decorated with burgandy and pink roses and featured a miniature bride and groom on top.

A German chocolate cake topped with a comic duck hunter and ceramic ducks belonging to the groom's father was made by the mother of the bride for the groom.

In addition to her own bouquet, the bride created the groom's boutonniere, the bridesmaids' bouquets and all corsages and boutonnieres worn by other attendants, servers and the parents of the couple.

Satin rice bags shaped like roses and arranged in baskets were made by the bride's aunt, Betty Stewart of Rising Star.

After a honeymoon trip to Colorado, the couple have settled in Alvin.

Oh No!
What Will I Do?

How often have you gone to the grocery store and filled a basket full of groceries or gone to your favorite dress or gift shop and selected that perfect something you thought you couldn't live without only to find when you got to the checkout that you used your last check yesterday and forgot to get some more before you left home.. Oh my, what a dilemma!

Well, at Special Moments Gift Shop, we'll help you out by extending "instant credit" to you. For that matter we'll extend "instant credit" to you even if you didn't forget your checkbook. This makes it much easier for you to do business with us as so many of our customers call in their gift selections, expecially for showers.

However, when you charge, we trust you do it with the intent to pay in thirty days. Of course, if you don't pay in thirty days, we're sure you won't mind us tacking on a 1½ percent interest charge on your next bill. After all, it costs us big bucks to send repeated statements. (Our bookkeeper and computer doesn't work cheap) and besides, if you were using the banks money instead of ours, you would expect to pay them interest, wouldn't you?

Well, come on in, we'll take care of you at Special Moments Gift Shop where "honest prices, and friendly service is our theory."

Trauma centers in U.S. saving more lives

NEW YORK (AP) — Bronx launderer Larry Chin died with a bullet in his head. Five minutes later, his heart in a doctor's hand, Chin lived again.

The "save" did not hold: Chin's brain was damaged, and a day later, his heart stopped for good. But Dr. Rolando Sanchez's efforts bespoke the drama, and some of the controversy, of one of medicine's newest specialties.

Trauma surgery, techniques honed on the battlefields of Southeast Asia, is reaching to hospitals across the United States. Teams of surgeons are restarting hearts, sealing slashed veins, replanting torn limbs — cheating death — as never before.

Cases such as Chin's raise questions about the quality of some lives that may be preserved by trauma surgeons, and the issue of when to halt aggressive lifesaving techniques. But most cases, where brain damage is not involved, are celebrations of the lifesaver's craft.

Take Brigitte Gerney: Legs crushed by a capsizing crane, she spent nearly six hours pinned to the ground at a midtown Manhattan construction site in May. Trauma crews sedated her, stabilized her condition, then, when she at last was freed, stopped rush hour traffic to speed her to an operating room.

The prognosis for saving her legs? Excellent, doctors say.

Or Biswanath Roy: Kidnapped as he stepped into his car, tortured, knifed seven times, then dumped into a ditch to die, he arrived at Sanchez's emergency room bleeding so profusely, the doctor recalled, "You could hear it."

"In the car I thought, yes, that's the end of my whole life," says Roy, a 56-year-old gynecologist. "But at the hospital... I thought I was going to make it. I didn't believe I could die here at the hospital. They are expert."

Saving Roy — and the hundreds of thousands of others treated successfully for severe trauma last year — took more than traditional surgical expertise. It also took sheer speed, the principle at the root of trauma treatment.

Any injury, accidental or intentional, constitutes trauma. But when the injuries are serious or numerous they beget shock, and the body, overwhelmed by the damage, quickly begins to shut down.

"Shock is a momentary pause in the act of death," says Dr. R. Adams Cowley, a Maryland physician and early exponent of trauma care in the United States. "If you don't do something about it, the patient is going to die."

Cowley, researching shock for the U.S. surgeon general in 1958, discovered what he called "the golden hour" — the time in which a trauma victim, whether crumpled in a wrecked car or blasted by a land mine, can be saved.

"Within 60 precious minutes, you have to be seen by the right people at the right time in the right place," Cowley says. "Or you won't survive."

His concept, joined with the experience of military surgeons in Vietnam, grew into the trauma care system: networks of ambulances and helicopters ready to speed badly injured people to specially equipped hospital emergency rooms where surgeons are on 24-hour call.

"We went around this bugaboo of going to the nearest hospital because if you go to the nearest hospital and they don't have the stuff to take care of you, you're dead," Cowley says. "In years gone by it was one hell of a battle, because doctors thought it was interfering with their business."

Some of that resistance has softened since Cowley set up a nine-center trauma system for Maryland in 1973. There now are 165 severe trauma centers in the United States — from New York's 11-center system, begun in 1982, to the one at San Francisco General Hospital, founded in 1966.

The spread of the centers has been fueled by studies that show their success. Six years ago, researchers in Orange County, Calif., found that 70 percent of the people who died of severe trauma at hospitals without trauma centers could have been saved. At hospitals with trauma centers, the "preventable death rate" was only 4 percent.

"Nobody believed that trauma centers made a difference until 1979," says Dr. Donald Trunkey, chief of surgery at San Francisco General and a director of that study. "We showed a major reduction in trauma death after the institution of the system."

The figure is significant because of the toll trauma takes on society: About 160,000 people died of it last year, an estimated 20,000 of whom could have been saved by prompt and proper care. For every death, there were two permanently disabling injuries.

"The cost to society is absolutely staggering," Trunkey says. He noted the National Safety Council's estimate that trauma, including medical expenses, lost wages and productivity losses, costs the nation about $250 million a day.

West Germany has proved the point: The government established 27 trauma centers along its autobahn network in 1970, and in the ensuing decade, deaths on the highways fell from 16,000 to 12,000 a year.

Proponents say the value of lives saved by trauma care far exceeds the high cost of the centers, where a patient's bills can reach $70,000 in a few days — the kind of money that fosters competition among some hospitals to be designated trauma centers by state or local authorities.

"Trauma centers make significant amounts of revenue because of the kind of care they render," says Dr. Steve Merson, an associate of Cowley's at the National Study Center for Trauma and Emergency Medical Systems. For that reason, he says, "A lot of hospitals are looking to put up the shingle."

One money problem facing the centers is the cost of caring for uninsured patients. In Maryland, a combination of surcharges on insured patients and state funding makes up the bad debts, which total about 14 percent of the system's $27 million operating budget.

The centers in the United States focus on automobile and farm accidents in rural areas, but turn equally to industrial accidents and assault victims in cities — the so-called "knife and gun club" injuries.

"It's been there all along — whenever there's a war or a Friday night battle, somebody's taking care of the victims," says Sanchez, who works at Jacobi Hospital in the Bronx Municipal Hospital Center. "But it's never been put together and attacked as a single discipline before."

The work starts with ambulances and helicopters, dispatched by computerized radio centers and staffed by medics who can evaluate and stabilize patients. In New York, the average response time for a city ambulance has been cut from 20 minutes in 1981 to nine minutes today.

Before trauma care caught on, "The ambulance service had developed into a you-call, we-haul service," says Dr. Alexander Kuehl, head of the city's Emergency Medical Service. "In smaller towns, the ambulance was really a hearse. The emergency rooms basically were a backwater."

Now, hospital trauma centers are equipped with drugs, blood, monitoring equipment and sterilized tools ready for instant use, whether to measure blood pressure, inflate lungs or pull open a chest.

At the core of the system are the trauma surgeons — many of them former combat surgeons in Vietnam — whose daily experience at handling trauma cases enables them to respond by reflex to the injuries they see.

Picker-sheller use recalled by farmer

By ANNE COOK
The Champaign-Urbana News-Gazette

GIFFORD, Ill. (AP) — When J. I. Case Equipment Co. dropped off its newest harvest contraption at the 1940 Champaign County fair, farmers crowded around to take a skeptical look at the machine called a "picker-sheller."

"It was surely something new to them," said Albert Olson, now a retired Gifford resident.

In those days, Olson managed the elevator at Dailey, and he bought the machine to start a new business venture. Manufacturers said the picker-sheller would dramatically reduce field work and costs. So, after Olson saw it in action, he decided to try it out.

"The Case representative wanted me to buy one to get it started in this area," Olson said. "I went to Rochelle to see it in action and bought one that same day. I paid $750 for it wholesale."

Harvesting corn in 1940 was a time-consuming, two-stage business.

University of Illinois agricultural engineer Donnell Hunt estimated that about 75 percent of the farmers in the area pulled one-row or two-row ear pickers through their fields at a harvest speed of about .75 or 1.5 acres per hour, depending on the number of picker rows. The others still picked by hand.

"Back then, you could still hire labor for about $1 a day, and for some, that was cheaper than buying a machine," he said.

Fieldhands then hauled the corn to ventilated corn cribs.

"The cribs were open, so the air could dry it down further," Hunt said.

Religion helped city to become prosperous

By Jules Loh
AP Special Correspondent

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Driving here, you're not sure whether you're entering hillbilly heaven or just plain heaven.

But you know you're in the Ozarks.

Just outside Bentonville, coming in from the west, you see a big sign on Jug Store Liquors on Little Sugar Creek at Huckleberry Junction — place names in the Ozarks are right out of Li'l Abner — which warns, "Thar's a Dry County Ahead." (In Arkansas, however, dry doesn't necessarily mean bone dry; depends on where you are.) Parked outside the store is a pickup truck and in the pickup is a gun rack and in the gun rack a gun. An Ozark postcard cariacature.

When you get to Eureka Springs, you discover that the whole town is a caricature.

Yes, but...

For one reason or another, a million people a year, year after year, find a reason to journey to this village of 1,989 residents.

One reason is to search for that old-time religion.

Another is to search for that old-time country music. In Eureka Springs, religion and country music blend like grits and redeye gravy.

A third reason is simply to look at, beneath a tacky layer of made-in-Taiwan souvenirs and gaudy tourist hype, a century-old mountain town which must have been quaint when it was young. You hear the word "quaint" a lot in Eureka Springs. Also "historic." Eureka Springs — the whole town — is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Eureka Springs is a bornagain town.

Talk about revival. This town, out in the boondocks of northwest Arkansas, a halfday's drive over skinny mountain roads from the nearest Interstate, has come from the brink of economic disaster, extinction, a generation ago. Today, it couldn't be much different from its glory days at the turn of the century when 10,000 people lived here and it was the third-largest city in Arkansas.

Tourist dollars did it. There's always a price for that, but the permanent residents seem to think it's worth it.

"We would like to get away from the hillbilly image, most of us anyhow," Mary Stockslager was saying the other day, standing at one of the roadside overlooks with the town spread out below like a model railroad village.

Mrs. Stockslager came here from Chicago in 1950 looking for mountain air to ease her son's asthma. It worked. That was back when Mud Street, the main drag, was aptly named. She loved the place, bought some land, and fetched the rest of her family. But she moved off to Texas because at that time Eureka Springs didn't offer much in the way of work, especially for a journalist. A few months ago, still in love with the place, she moved back and bought the weekly paper. She aims to turn it into a daily. Eureka Springs, she believes, is on the move.

"I don't mean," she said, "to belittle what many people seem to like, why they come to visit, but there's much more to Eureka Springs than the Pine Mountain Jamboree and The Statue. This is a polyglot community, a micrometropolis. It's different from other towns in northwest Arkansas."

How so?

"The lady who rents VCR movies both here and over in Berryville says she has a big demand for John Waynes and Elvis Presleys over there and things like 'Reds' and 'Ghandi' here."

Public finds aid meteorite savers

By BEN WINTON
The Mesa Tribune

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Thank heaven for cows, farmers and children, says Arizona State University geochemist Carleton Moore.

Without animals and people, Tempe would not be home to the world's third-largest collection of meteorites, according to Moore, who directs the ASU Center for Meteorite Studies.

Case in point: In the 1840s, a meteorite — now "No. 202sb" in an ASU file — fell in New Concord, Ohio.

It hit and killed a cow.

The incident drew attention to a rock that otherwise might have been part of 10,000 unnoticed tons of meteorite material which fell on the Earth that day.

A farmer, probably upset over his dead cow, turned the rock in to local scientists, who in turn have passed it on to ASU, Moore says.

"We get a lot of our meteorites this way," Moore says. "Usually, some professor will go out to some farmer's home and ask him if he has any interesting rocks.

"The farmer usually will say, 'Nope,' and the professor will ask, 'Well, what's that thing over there holding the trashcan lid down?' "

Drawing his thumbs up to his chest to hold imaginary suspenders, Moore completes the tale: "The farmer usually comes back with, 'Well, don't know. Dug it up plowing a while back.'

"Sometimes it's a meteorite," Moore says.

Finding meteorites is a "human aspect," by Moore's accounts.

In 1969, the same year ASU researchers were analyzing 200 moon rocks brought back by Apollo 9, impoverished youngsters in northern Mexico found a way to make a year's wages in a day — scouring the desert for unusual rocks.

What they found was one of the oldest meteorites known, containing ash thought to have come from the theoretical Big Bang, which supposedly set formation of the universe in motion.

ASU paid the children about $500 for the find, enough to feed their entire family for a year. The university continues to pay for some meteorites researchers consider valuable.

Other meteorites in Moore's cluttered collection are in the shape of anvils, knives and crow bars — some fashioned by ancient Indians, others fashioned by poor people in South America, eager to make use of a metal they would not be able to buy.

Today, ASU houses 1,300 meteorites worth between $4 million and $5 million, Moore says. Many meteorites are kept in unmarked rooms. They are shipped worldwide to researchers hoping to learn more about the universe.

Inside, their chemical composition hasn't changed in billions of years, giving scientists clues to the origin of the universe and planets.

Rocks from Mars share a chemical composition similar to ancient Earth. Other meteorites have carried amino acids from outer space, giving some scientists reason to believe the basis for life was spawned in outer space.

Oral histories often keep family past alive

CARSON, Calif. (AP) — Older parents and other relatives can be a treasure trove of the past but, without a record, their experiences usually die with them.

This doesn't have to be the case, says Dr. Judd Grenier, professor of history at California State University, Dominguez Hills, in Carson, who is an expert on oral histories and how to conduct them.

"It's almost like the old oral traditions of the primitive tribe," he said. "It's the responsibility of the middle generation to take the experiences of their parents and transmit them to their children."

Nowadays, he points out, it isn't necessary to memorize lengthy family sagas to accomplish this goal — a tape recorder will do the job.

But there is more to doing an oral history than just pressing the recording button, says Grenier, who offers suggestions on how to successfully record the oral histories of family members.

Access and familiarity are the advantages of interviewing your parents. They may open up to you more than to a stranger. However, that very informality can cause problems, he notes.

"Parents tend to be condescending to their children, and casual," he explains. "They'll not say things they think you already know. So the best situation is to interview someone you know, but who is not your parent, such as an aunt or a grandmother, to get away from the parent-child relationship."

Before you schedule the interview, write down what you want to discuss and do a nontaped talk with the person, taking notes, to gain an overview of that person's life. Using the notes, you can develop a list of topics to ask about.

There are three general subject areas to tackle in such an interview, Grenier said. First, there are routine personal items such as where they were born, who their parents were, where they went to school and where they worked.

Then, there are common denominator historic experiences: for those born in 1910, for example, the interviewer should ask about their recollections of such events as World Wars I and II, the introduction of the automobile, the Jazz Age, Prohibition, the Depression, the presidents they lived under and where they were during such pivotal occurrences as the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

The third category of questions concerns what is special about that particular person, Grenier said.

"Blend the three types of questions together in a topical outline, and show the outline to the person you will interview, who can then make suggestions on what else to cover. But don't prepare specific questions.

"Then you are entrapped by the questions. You will get stilted, formal replies. You have to be prepared to abandon the interview outline any time something exciting comes up. The outline is just to get you going."

Before starting the interview, become familiar with your recording equipment and make sure it is working, Grenier cautions. If possible, sit across a table from the subject and place the microphone in the middle so the volume and pitch levels will remain constant.

"Try to disguise or hide the tape recorder. People talk to the tape recorder as if it were a camera instead of to the interviewer."

The interview should take place in an informal, relaxed setting with no other people or distractions such as the telephone in the room, he said.

In addition to taping, the interviewer should take notes. This will give you accurate spellings of names and places, Grenier said.

"Don't ask more than one question at a time. Don't ask long questions, which makes the interview more stilted." And avoid questions that can be answered by simple yes or no, since many people will then not elaborate.

"Use the old 'who, what, where, why and how.' Those can't be answered yes or no."

The professor also advises people not to prolong the interview for more than an hour, because the interviewer tends to tire.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sept. 15, 1985

Your financial prospects look encouraging in the year ahead. You will have more opportunities than usual to add to your holdings or earnings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of farming out projects to professionals today, apply your mind and talents. You can do them yourself and save a lot of money. Major changes are ahead for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have an extra quality today that will make you a standout wherever you go. It matters not whether the group is large or small, the focus will still be on you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) Conditions might not start out to your liking today, but everything will end up to your satisfaction. Hold onto this thought with high hopes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be afraid to think in more expansive terms than usual today. In fact, big plans will have a better chance of succeeding than little ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should be quite lucky today where your material interests are concerned. Something could suddenly develop that could increase your holdings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Favorable changes are taking place in your personality and attitude that are obvious to others. Don't be surprised today if you start getting compliments.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be difficult to fool you today because your perception will be exceptionally keen. What you perceive as underlying motives will be accurate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be at your best today if you're involved in some form of social activity. Your presence will have a cheerful and positive effect on others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Chance may put you in the right spot at the right time today to benefit from a material opportunity. It will have something to do with your career.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your chances for success will be greatly enhanced today if you look upon life as a game instead of a chore. The right attitude will put you in a winner's circle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A person with whom you have strong emotional bonds could be a lucky channel for you today and introduce something new and worthwhile into your life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be luckier than usual today in a situation where you are in close association for a common cause. Be "we-minded."

Sept. 16, 1985

You'll be moving into a new social circle in the year ahead, and this will add a touch of glamour to your life. People with whom you'll be associating will possess pizazz and style.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Everything will go smoothly for you today, provided you operate in the open. If you try to get coy or devious, your ploys will backfire. Major changes are ahead for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In commercial dealings today, you may be both shrewd and frivolous. Be careful not to wipe out gains to gratify a momentary foolish whim.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) Top priority should be given today to situations that can enhance your material security. If you're too devoted to playtime, there may be a pay time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're presently in a hopeful cycle where good things can be brought into being. However, don't depend on others; count only on yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a collective venture today it's best that you mastermind the operation. Your way of doing things will be superior to the ideas of your associate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Good things are in store for you today if you're guided by the golden rule. Treat others as you would like to be treated and watch what happens.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today's rewards will be commensurate to the efforts you expend. If you do a good job, you'll be amply paid; if you goof off, it will be another story.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep a watchful eye on your partner in a joint venture today. If he or she starts moving things in the wrong direction, be prepared to make corrections.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone with whom you usually get along rather well could be a trifle testy today. If you're tolerant and forgiving, you'll be able to handle it in stride.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Worthwhile accomplishments are possible today, but you may have to inspire less ambitious co-workers so they don't impede your progress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful today not to play favorites. If you treat one friend lavishly while ignoring another, you might end up losing a pal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Subdue your self-interests today and expend your efforts on doing things beneficial to your loved ones. You'll feel better for it.

German military hero's statue has visitors

DETMOLD, West Germany (AP) — More than a million people, most of them West Germans, drive to the central Teutoburg Forest every year to honor the military leader who drove back the Romans nearly two thousand years ago.

The statue of the hero Hermann, located near Detmold 47 miles southwest of Hanover, is one of the country's most popular memorials, says the Bonn Interior Ministry.

With the Nazi past only 40 years old, the notion of honoring military heroes remains a sensitive issue — particularly since neo-Nazis occasionally try to use Hermann as a symbol for their own political goals.

Yet, the man honored here with a copper statue on a stone base (total height: 176 feet) is much more a symbol of German patriotism and national pride.

"Had Hermann not won the battle with his blond hordes ... we would have become Romans," the German poet and patriot Heinrich Heine wrote in 1844.

Hermann, or Arminius as he was called in Latin, liberated most of Germany from the Roman yoke in long-ago 9 A.D. by defeating three legions — 30,000 men — led by Quintilius Varus in battles believed to have taken place in or near the Teutoburg Forest.

Germans generally credit Hermann with preserving their language and culture by limiting Roman expansion to the northeast in what was one of history's great turning points.

The Romans were forced to halt at the Rhine River after losing to Hermann's united German front. The Romans had hoped to conquer Germany as far as the Elbe River, 118 miles east of Detmold.

Following their trouncing by Hermann, the Romans pushed in other directions and in 43 A.D. began the conquest of Britain.

The empire had been shocked by the Germans' strength, and the Roman historian Tacitus respectfully labeled Hermann the "liberator of Germania."

"He attacked the Roman Empire not in its beginnings as other leaders and peoples did, but at the peak of its power, in battles with alternating success, but in total unconquered," Tacitus wrote. This tribute to Hermann is inscribed on the side of the monument at Detmold.

Historians say Hermann was more or less forgotten during the Middle Ages. But he became a major national hero in Germany during the romantic period.

Charles F. "Chuckie" Rumbaugh died shortly after midnight Tuesday night, the first person in more than two decades to be put to death for a crime committed before he had reached the legal age of 18.

More than 10 years ago, at age 17, he shot and killed an Amarillo jeweler while attempting to rob his victim's store.

Two weeks prior to his death by injection, we and probably every other Texas daily newspaper received a complimentary copy of a paperback book entitled No. 555 Death Row. It is Chuckie's story, dealing in main part from the date he finally screwed up sufficiently to warrant the death penalty.

By Chuckie's own account, he was not a nice person to be around when he was either drunk or high. Also by his own account, he spent the greater part of his waking day doing one or both of these two recreational activities.

Since Chuckie had a Snyder link, we spent a portion of one afternoon browsing through the book. It mostly consists of Chuckie's first-hand accounts of his scrapes with the law.

Chuckie apparently had a good memory, for many years later he recalls the brand names of a wide assortment of cheap wines and sweet mixers he purchased to help wash down his vodka.

One description of a typical day includes staying at a friend's house "getting high until 10 a.m." Then he checks into a hotel room to load up on 7-Up, vodka and "good Mexican weed."

He then proceeds to sip his vodka "straight" until falling asleep, a state that lasts until the late afternoon. Then he spends the evening hours "drinking T.J. Swan Wine, smoking weed and practicing with a set of Num Chuks out in the yard."

With darkness, Chuckie goes out and robs a motel office. He did express some remorse, however, since he forced one of the customers at gunpoint to give him the money out of his wallet.

Chuckie explains he normally "made it a practice" to only rob the business and not the employees. "The owner of the place is usually a fat capitalist that has become rich through the exploitation of the working class people," he wrote.

He was 28 years old when he died and he had spent his entire adult life in jail.

He never married, fathered children, held a job or served either his community or country.

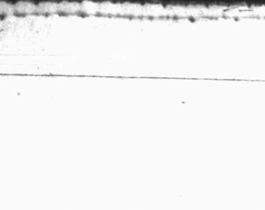
In his final statement, he said "even though you don't forgive me for my transgressions, I forgive you for yours against me."

Chuckie mentions in No. 555 Death Row that he always planned to write a book. He said he tried it "a couple of times," but "ever since I was wounded in the right hand and arm, it's been difficult for me to write."

He was shot by Amarillo police during his arrest for the murder of jeweler Michael Fiorillo.

Now Chuckie has a book written about him — 219 pages worth.

He's a famous guy.



Commentary

By Don Graff

Cesar Chavez hopes that history does indeed repeat. In fact, he's banking on it.

The California farm-worker leader, one of the great folk figures of the '60s and '70s, is on the road again. He is asking American consumers of the mid-'80s for another nationwide boycott of grapes, necessitated, he says, by the breakdown of the California law that his United Farm Workers union won the last time around. That law was supposed to protect their interests but for a number of reasons, he says, it hasn't.

The growers, according to Chavez, have refused to bargain in good faith. They have used violence to break up representation elections. Ballot boxes have been stolen. Workers risk being fired for union activity. Two have been killed.

The special state agency set up by the law and charged with its implementation has proved ineffective. The Agricultural Labor Relations Board, Chavez charges, is under-funded and under political attack by the administration of Republican Gov. George Deukmejian. Its best people have left or been kicked out.

Workers' charges of unfair practices are now "stopped at the door," Chavez says. The filing system has been changed, making it more difficult. The only cases being pursued are some 50 hanging over from the more sympathetic administration of Democrat Jerry Brown.

Where the courts have found for the workers, Chavez says, growers have not been made to comply with compensation orders. He estimates that, with interest, workers are now owed about $100,000.

There is no alternative to resorting to the boycott again, says Chavez, because the growers have turned the very agency created to look out for workers' interests into a weapon against them.

(A board spokesman in Sacramento disputes Chavez' assertions. Wayne Smith, deputy general counsel, admits there has been some reduction in complaints since the Brown administration, but about 45 a year are still being accepted for processing, with 14 currently on the calendar. While "legalistic aspects" of the system can be frustrating to workers with little education, Smith says, "the door remains open." He says the board has collected close to $2 million from growers and turned it over to workers. The problem both workers and growers have with the board is its neutral role, Smith says, which neither likes.

As for the killings, local authorities investigated and found they were not connected to the elections.)

What the workers are now asking is that the law be enforced as written, says Chavez. Plus, they want five pesticides, which are considered especially dangerous to the workers handling fruits and vegetables, banned from field use.

The boycott was called last year but did not really gear up until a few months ago. Support has been "instantaneous," according to Chavez. An estimated 17 million consumers participated last time and, he says, "a lot of them are still there." More than enough to do the job, since a boycott does not require anything close to majority support to have an impact on prices.

Already, he says, the boycott has "knocked hell" out of prices in California.

The boycott is a "high-tech" operation this time, with demographic studies and targeted mailings. Almost 5 million letters have gone out in the last few months.

"It's getting the word out faster, you know. That's what accounts for California," Chavez says.

The last boycott was a five-year effort, beginning before Christmas 1965 and ending July 30, 1970. Chavez doesn't expect it to take as long this time.

"I think three years will do it. But who knows? Maybe sooner."

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
September 8

A slight student gain this year compared to last was counted at the end of the first week of classes for the Snyder system, it was reported Sunday.

The total reached 3,703 — an increase of 29 when compared to last year at the same time.

The month of August produced new construction estimates for Snyder totaling more than $475,000, upping the 11-month fiscal year total to in excess of $6.6 million.

MONDAY
September 9

Motorists who have noticed that the 37th St. and Ave. V traffic light is now working properly were updated Monday on the efforts of local Mike Post, who donated his time and expertise at no cost to the city to repair the troublesome unit.

Total cost of the project was $600, but city officials say replacing the existing system with a ready made unit would have cost more than $4,000.

With Western Texas College beginning its second full week of classes — and with the final day to register next Friday — college officials Monday indicated an earlier goal of 1,100 students this fall now appears doubtful.

No public comment was offered Monday morning during a public hearing for the 1986 Scurry County budget and its related tax rate.

The 1986 operating estimate totals some $11.9 million, a decline of $56,025 in expenditures from 1985. The ad valorem tax expected to be generated from a rate of .1765 cents per $100 valuation is now estimated at $3,859,324.

Snyder city council members managed to duck a 37 percent increase in city-provided employee health insurance Tuesday by bidding out the service to a new company.

At the same meeting, two alternatives for long range computer growth at the city — plus a reaffirmation that something needs to be done quickly — were presented by outside analyst Bill Hicks of Consolidated Software of Big Spring

TUESDAY
September 10

A feature story was included in Tuesday's SDN which related to the scheduled execution Wednesday of 28-year-old Charles Francis Rumbaugh.

The death by poison injection brought to a close a criminal career which included a conviction in Scurry County for aggravated kidnapping.

Snyder school trustees opted to seek a state waiver Tuesday from implementing a state-mandated pre-kindergarten program here this fall — despite information that such a program might be possible if an unexpectedly small first grade enrollment at North Elementary was combined from three to two classes.

At the same meeting, trustees approved bids to install a new boiler system at West and to buy 28 "starter system" microcomputers for elementary schools here.

A $3 million bid was accepted in Austin Tuesday to widen the Colorado City Hwy. (State Hwy. 280) as it links Snyder to the Scurry-Mitchell County line.

The apparent low bidder was J.H. Strain of Tye, bidding $3,015,000.

WEDNESDAY
September 11

Snyder High School senior Lesa Barkowsky was named a semifinalist in the 31st annual National Merit Scholarship program Wednesday. She was among some 15,000 high school seniors honored nationwide.

Snyder police are crediting two local teachers with foiling an apparent burglary attempt Wednesday night at North Elementary.

The husband and wife arrived at North around 8 p.m., heard strange noises and managed to lock two suspects inside a school storage room.

THURSDAY
September 12

A state-mandated exit level test — one which will be the final word regarding if a high school diploma is issued or not in Texas — will be administered to Snyder juniors Oct. 1-2, it was reported Thursday.

FRIDAY
September 13

For the third month in a row, Snyder's sale tax continued to show some improvement this year compared to last — but a whopping loss in revenue reported in June is still keeping the year's total in the minus category, it was reported Friday.

The monthly report for September indicates the 1 percent tax on Snyder sales returned $61,017 this year compared to $60,069 last year.

A new staff position for both in-house and community public relations has been created at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Named to the post is Kathy Minemier, it was reported Friday.

Look Back

By Noble B. Young

10 YEARS AGO

Members of the Templo Bautista Spanish Baptist Misson in Snyder along with other local Baptist leaders gathered at the church Saturday — Sept. 13 — to honor the Rev. E.P. Gonzales for 50 years service to Spanish-American Missions and Churchs in West Texas, New Mexico and Wyoming. Gonzales led the drive to establish the Templo Bautista in Snyder and served as the church's first pastor.

15 YEARS AGO

Retiring Cogdell Memorial Hospital employees honored at a party Wednesday — Sept. 9 — were James Snowden with nine years service in the maintenance department and LVN Myrtle Greene, who has worked at the local institution for 13 years.

20 YEARS AGO

Southwestern Bell today — Sept. 8 — announced the appointment of Cecil Fowler to the position of local manager for Snyder. Fowler, of Lubbock, succeeds Jim Brewer in that position. Brewer was promoted to the position of unit manager in Fort Worth.

SHS cheerleaders leading a city-wide pep rally this evening — Sept. 9 — on the high school parking lot were Sandy Marcum, Kris Stevenson, Kay Pitner, Susan Boren and Sammie Raines.

25 YEARS AGO

Tiger Bowl — at the intersection of 35th St. and the Big Spring Highway — opened for business Saturday — Sept. 10 — with grand opening ceremonies at 2 p.m. Billed as the most modern bowling facility in West Texas, the new facility features all new Brunswick ball return and foul detection equipment in addition to Tel-E-Score units for each of the 16 lanes. D.C. Worley and Joe Bohannan are the owners of the establishment with Bohannan serving as manager and assisted by Grank Minton.

50 YEARS AGO

The Snyder Tigers, under the direction of Coach Red Hill, dropped their first game of the 1935 season to the Slaton Tigers 8-0 Friday night. The local squad also participated in dedication ceremonies for Slaton's new $2,500 lighted stadium. Friday's Tiger lineup included Bobby Mitchell, Otha Lee Clark, Virgil Jones, J.C. Morgan, Finis Webb, J. P. Tate, Charley Morrow, Peewee Wilsford, Ardath Head, Bo Moffett and Johnny Boren.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, Investment Advisory Committee, and staff of the Texas Teacher Retirement System, we want to express to you our sincere appreciation for the part you played in welcoming our group to Snyder. The full page welcome in the Snyder Daily News impressed participants all the way from Boston to Austin.

We had very productive meetings, and as could be expected, Roger Mize provided the gracious West Texas hospitality which we have all heard so much about.

Bruce Hineman

To the editor,

I am writing in regard to the renovations to the WTC president's home. What are they filling the indoor pool with? What is the exact cost of repairing the leaking roof? Does the whole roof have to be repaired or just one area? What is the exact cost for filling in the swimming pool?

As for the house as an investment with our tax money, what was paid for the house originally; what is its estimated value now; and how much will the value of the house decrease when the swimming pool is filled in? Once the pool is filled, what will be the expense to renovate this room into living area?

What is being done to the patio?

I understand these are a lot of questions but as a concerned taxpayer, and I'm sure I'm not alone, these questions must be answered.

The bid on the campus greenhouse is for delivery of materials to Snyder, does this bid include labor, if not, how much is this labor going to cost us?

I would also like to know if it is customary for junior colleges to furnish a home for its president? What is the WTC president's present salary and does he pay any rent for this house or utilities?

I am hoping these questions will be answered in the paper along with this letter.

Gap closing between male, female wages

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It's not always easy to weigh the value of a secretary against the worth of a garbage man, but in Minnesota it's a must.

Minnesota is one of seven states that have implemented pay equity or comparable worth programs for state employees and the first in the nation to require local governments to do the same.

The aim is to close the wage gap between jobs traditionally held by women and those historically held by men.

It mainly affects people like Sue Narikawa, a clerk-typist in the Minnesota Agriculture Department, who credits the state's program with raising her wages about $1 an hour.

Wage disparities between "men's" jobs and "women's" jobs have been built into the employment system, she says.

"You'd pay a boy $5 for mowing the lawn for half an hour, but pay his sister $1.50 an hour for taking care of your kids." She says. "If asked, most people would say their kids are more important than their lawn."

Forty-five states have addressed pay equity in some way, including doing research on the issue, conducting job evaluations or adopting policies promoting the concept, according to Claudia Wayne, executive director of the National Committee on Pay Equity, a clearinghouse in Washington, D.C.

Besides Minnesota, the states currently providing pay equity increases to employees are Idaho, Iowa, New Mexico, South Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin, according to a survey conducted by the committee in May.

"There's an awful lot of emotional feeling about it," says Bill Joynes, city manager in Golden Valley and coordinator of a pay equity job study for about 130 cities and other local governments.

The concept has drawn sharp criticism from the Reagan administration and others who contend it flies in the face of the traditional wage-setting mechanisms. Critics say you can't compare the worth of a clerical worker and a truck driver.

But Nina Rothchild, Minnesota's employee relations commissioner, dismisses the contention that comparing a secretary to a sanitation worker is like comparing an apple to an orange. She points to a sheet that compares the fruits on the basis of weight, calories, carbohydrates and six other factors.

"You can identify common characteristics of jobs," she said. "Whether it's a janitor or the governor of the state, there's a certain amount of knowledge required."

Minnesota lawmakers in 1983 appropriated $21.8 million to increase wages during the following biennium for secretaries, nurses and other employees whose jobs had been identified in a study as being under-paid in relation to jobs primarily held by men. The evaluation system assigned points to jobs based on know-how, problem solving, accountability and working conditions.

About 8,225 of the state's 34,000 employees received pay equity increases during the last two years. All clerical workers and half of the health care employees received about $1,600 each.

A 1984 law requires the state's 855 cities, 87 counties and 436 school districts to evaluate jobs for an estimated 163,000 employees by Oct. 1 and to implement pay equity wage increases by 1987.

Joynes said male-dominated groups such as police officers, firefighters and public works employees felt threatened by the concept of pay equity.

"Peoples' perceptions about the worth of a job really depend on what situation they're in," Joynes says. "If your house is on fire, the fireman's job worth is significantly higher. If your sewer plugs up and you can't flush your toilet, the sewer worker's job is worth more."

Ms. Rothchild says trepidation about pay equity is unfounded.

"Our state program shows that you don't need to harm other employees" when salaries are increased for female-dominated employee groups, she says.

Peter Benner, executive director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 6, which represents more than 17,000 state employees, put it this way:

"Pay equity is not taking away from anybody," he says. "The money is money that would not have been there otherwise."

Three Houston businesses seized

HOUSTON (AP) — Three Houston businesses were seized by officials from the State Comptroller's office for non-payment of about $200,000 state and local sales taxes.

Officials seized the assets and padlocked the premises at Bob's Pawn Shop on Wednesday in lieu of $23,678 in sales taxes. Guy Tooker, the shop's owner, later paid the amount under protest and reopened his shop. Tooker said the amount is the result of a mathematical error and would appeal the collection.

Bill Carter, president of Tee Jay Supply, avoided closure by paying $4,421, officials said. The company, which has been in business since 1980, manufactures electrical equipment and insulation.

The Lamkin Corp. remained closed in lieu of payment of $159,4334 in unpaid taxes, the comptroller's office said. The company manufactures motor bank equipment.

Six businesses have been seized this year statewide, including two Tuesday in Dallas, said John Moore, spokesman for the comptroller's office.

Moore said businesses have from 30 to 60 days to pay their liabilities before the assets are sold at auction.

"We're not taking their money, this is the money they rang up as sales tax and should have sent in immediately," Moore said.

Glen Castlebury of the comptroller's office stressed that seizures are made only as a last resort. More than 1,730 bank accounts have been frozen by the comptroller's this year in an attempt to collect the money owed without having to seize property, he said.

Teen Pulled Between Parents Is Tired of Stretching Truth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my problem is my parents. I love them both and hope they aren't staying married because of me, because I think they both would be happier if they were divorced.

They lie to each other and they both ask me to lie for them. My mother has several boyfriends, and my father has one ladyfriend that I know about for sure. Neither of my parents knows what the other is doing, but I do. They are not being fair to each other, they are not being fair to me and they are not being fair to the friends they are lying to. I don't know how to handle it.

I need some advice, but please don't say where this is from. Sign me ...

TIRED OF LYING

DEAR TIRED: Talk to both parents privately. Tell them that you are tired of lying, and urge them to get counseling so that they can quit lying to each other and asking you to lie for them.

This is a heavy load for you to bear alone, so for the good of all, I strongly recommend family counseling. You are a very intelligent 16-year-old, and I admire you for trying to find a solution to this family problem.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who worries whether the staples used in his vasectomy might trip an airport's security alarm reminds me of my problem.

I've been single-breasted since my 1964 mastectomy. Though I've tried various prostheses, the one I'm most comfortable with—don't laugh—is a plastic bag filled with birdseed, tightly closed and encased in a little cotton pouch. (I buy parakeet seed from the supermarket.) The birdseed shifts with my movements, as my natural breast does. But since I'm an A-cup, it isn't heavy enough to keep from riding up, so I accepted my husband's suggestion and added about a teaspoon of birdshot for added weight.

Query: If I wear this gadget when I fly, will the birdshot trip the security alarm? It would be most embarrassing if it did, so I leave it home, and wear a silicone prosthesis when I travel—which is not as comfortable, especially in hot weather.

Please let me know.

MASSACHUSETTS BIRDSEED LADY

DEAR LADY: The next time you fly, carry your birdseed-birdshot mixture in your purse. If it trips the alarm, you could show it to the inspectors without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: "Cliff" and I have been married for 23 years, and we've had what I consider a good marriage, but something bothers me. Before we met, Cliff was engaged to "Ellen," but he caught her with another man and broke off with her. Soon after, we met, fell in love and were married. Ellen is also married and lives in another state, and Cliff has kept in touch with her all these years. He's especially close to Ellen's son, who is being married next month.

Cliff plans to go to the wedding and says I am welcome to go with him, but I don't really want to go.

This has me so upset I can't think straight. I've always wondered why Cliff has taken such an interest in that boy. I've even wondered if the boy was his.

I don't know what to do. Should I go with him or not? Or should I try to stop him from going?

AFRAID TO DIG DEEPER

DEAR AFRAID: Your signature shows you to be a very perceptive woman. Not knowing is worse than knowing. I think you should share your innermost feelings and nagging doubts with Cliff. You need to clear the air and put your mind at ease. Don't ask him not to go. Go with him.

Mensa chapter founded here 25 years ago

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Some are on welfare, others are millionaires. Some are humanitarians, others are crooks. Some are poets, others butcher English. Yet, they all belong to the same club.

It's Mensa, the high IQ club which celebrated its 25th year in the United States this year. The only requirement for membership is scoring within the top two percentile on a standardized IQ test.

"Sanity is not a requirement," says Margot Seitelman, who has been executive director for 24 years, ever since she answered an ad in The New York Times under "U" for unusual.

Position, looks, manners, breeding, the right schools, money, doesn't count. So while it is elitist in one sense — which often draws ire — it's also democratic. At a Mensa meeting, a garbage man is comfortable talking to an engineer, a corporate executive to a janitor, a Harvard graduate to a high school dropout.

The name Mensa is Latin for table. The idea is that everyone is equal at this round-table discussion.

Mensa was founded in England by two lawyers 40 years ago. But American Mensa Ltd. now has by the far the most members, about 52,000, out of an international membership of some 65,000 in 14 countries.

The two Englishmen had dreams of harnessing brain-power for national emergencies, but, Mensans, it may be said, were too smart for that. They quickly turned it into a unique social club that once in a while dabbles in socially redeeming issues.

Far more popular are the Special Interest Groups, called SIGs, that encompass everything from astrology to philosophy to scrabble, from pagan, occult, witchcraft to holistic health and healing. There are "Egyptology," "Chess for Blood," or "Degenerates," the sub-group which calls itself "a thorn in the side of Mensan pomposity and pretense."

Some people join to find others who can play charades as well as they, some just to meet people with equally quick minds, others to enhance their self-esteem. Many a Mensan marriage has resulted.

"The competition at a Mensa meeting is not who can sound off about the most esoteric subject," says the new chairman, Amy E. Shaughnessy, the first woman to head the organization. "The competition is who has the best new joke."

Ms. Shaughnessy says, "It's a place where a person can be very comfortable admitting total ignorance on a subject. Knowing everything is not important."

Mensa, which has 140 local groups across the country, has a separate arm for research and education projects called Mensa Education and Research Foundation (MERF). It manages Mensa scholarship programs and will provide access to its bank of computerized information about these representatives of the top brains in the country for legitimate research.

Mensa members also are interested in the problems of gifted children and there is a program for Mensans in prison.

Peter Sturgeon, a retired technical writer now living in Vienna, called the first U.S. Mensa meeting in his Brooklyn apartment 25 years ago this fall. Four men and two women who had passed the tests showed up, a ratio that still holds true today.

"We decided to form an American chapter and there were 67 suggestions on how we should go about that and no volunteers to do it," recalls Sturgeon, now 67. "That part of the operation has not changed at all.

"People were very suspicious at first. The Better Business Bureau and the postal authorities wanted to know what we were doing. They thought we were a left-wing organization."

Most of the early members had been in Europe for business or school and had joined over there. Sturgeon's wife, Ines, saw an article about the society and teased her husband into taking the test.

"I timed him while I cooked a goose," she recalls with a smile.

Mensans don't take the test scores seriously. A member who boasts about a score is hooted down. The smart ones say they just squeaked by.

In the history of American Mensa, a non-profit organization, only two people were ever thrown out. They were too obnoxious even for the tolerant standards of Mensa members, who tend to be individualistic and, ironically, non-joiners.

Because she is paid, Mrs. Seitelman is not qualified to belong, although her IQ would warrant it. Her husband and three grown sons are all members.

Ms. Shaughnessy, 42, joined Mensa in 1973 because she simply wasn't satisfied with her social life. She has a master's degree in linguistics and admits, "I was just trying to replicate my group of college friends."

At a Mensa meeting she met her husband, a man she said she would have never bumped into had she not joined the club.

"He was 14 years older than I, had traveled and lived all over the world, and had a high school degree," she says. "I had a master's degree, had never traveled and we simply would have never bumped into each other."

There are relatively few household names among Mensa members, the exceptions being Isaac Asimov,

Antibiotics and prolapsed valve

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have recently been diagnosed as having mitral valve prolapse. Last year I was also diagnosed as having mixed connective disease. I am currently taking 20 mg. of Elavil and have been told I will need to take an antibiotic when I go to a dentist. I know my risk of infection is increased since I have MVP, but I don't understand how it relates to dental work. Could you give me some information on these two diseases? Also, can a side effect of Elavil be depression? I'm 23 years old and female.

DEAR READER — Mitral valve prolapse (floppy mitral valve) is not a serious condition. In fact, it can be considered to be a relatively common affliction in which one of the three leafy portions of the heart's mitral valve become stretched. Then the valve does not close tightly, and an extra heart sound (murmur) can be heard as a small jet of blood squeezes by the weak leaflet. Because any damaged valve is easily infected with bacteria, your doctor is correct in urging you to use antibiotics at the times when bacteria may enter your bloodstream — such as during extensive dental work.

Because heart valves are composed, in part, of connective tissue, floppy mitral valves are sometimes associated with connective tissue diseases. Nevertheless, mitral prolapse commonly occurs in the absence of any known disease, so your valvular problem may be unrelated to your connective tissue disorder.

Elavil is an antidepressant. Although the medicine can cause some sleepiness, it is not ordinarily a drug that causes depression. If, while taking it, you feel more depressed, ask your physician to consider another type of treatment. Either a program of counseling or another type of drug such as lithium carbonate may be useful.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What would cause cracking noises in the joints when a man of 29 gets up to walk?

DEAR READER — Joint-cracking is a normal variation. It indicates that your joints are moving more than the average amount, but you are at no risk for arthritis or other serious joint disorders. Often a program of regular exercise can reduce cracking joints, because toned-up muscles better support the joints.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 68 years old and have been bothered with severe dizzy spells for a year. I spin like a top and feel like I'm going to fly off the bed. I've had a brain scan and EEG tests, which were normal. I suffer from sinus infection, my ears hurt down deep and I have a funny noise in them. I take Cortisone for scleroderma and rheumatoid arthritis, and am also taking Tagamet. What can you tell me about these symptoms? I have had Reynaud's since 1950.

DEAR READER — You are suffering from several troublesome diseases, and the medicines you are using are powerful. Scleroderma and rheumatoid arthritis can affect circulation, and I suppose it's possible that your balance problems may be secondary to circulation disruption. However, the dizziness you describe, called vertigo, can occur in otherwise healthy adults and may have nothing to do with your disorders. Vertigo is often difficult to treat. If you have been checked out by an ear, nose and throat specialist and everything is "normal," I suggest you talk to your physician and ask him about a prescription medicine called Antivert. This medicine will not react with other compounds you are taking and it may help stop your dizzy spells.

Blood cells lead bustling lives

In the course of our normal preoccupation with external happenings of consequence, we seldom take the time to marvel at the truly miraculous events taking place in our bodies every second of every day, year after year. Let me tell you some interesting facts about the prosaic red blood cell, or erythrocyte.

Our blood is made up of about equal parts fluid and cells. A drop of normal blood contains approximately 5,000 white blood cells, large infection-fighters, and more than 5 million erythrocytes. The erythrocytes, each tinier than a pinprick, are red because they contain the oxygen-carrying pigment called hemoglobin. Under a microscope, erythrocytes appear as plate-shaped balloons.

For years, research scientists have puzzled about the method by which these cells maintain their spare-tire shapes. New studies have shown why.

The membranes of the cells are composed of a film of delicate proteins stuck to lipid (fat) molecules. If the sequence of protein filaments is disrupted, red cells will change shape and become less efficient. Sickle-cell anemia, for example, is a disease of erythrocyte protein which causes the cells to take on the form of sickles or commas.

Ordinary tissue-cells, like those in muscle and bone, lie close together and can rely on each other for support. On the other hand, blood cells float freely; they must maintain intrinsic support or they collapse. In erythrocytes, this cellular integrity is provided by something called the "membrane skeleton." Although not a skeleton in the sense of a lobster's hard shell, the membrane is quite an extraordinary accomplishment of nature.

By chemically manipulating red-cell "shells," scientists have been able to document that the erythrocyte membrane is not made up solely of a set of "integral" membrane proteins; it also has a fundamental weblike structure of "peripheral" lipoproteins, a form of skeleton.

Here, then, is a miracle of nature: Trillions of erythrocyte balloons, each invisible to the naked eye, maintain their shape and size by using sophisticated membranes composed of at least a dozen proteins attached to lipids, which form strandlike superstructures with protein filling; these membranes are thin enough to allow free diffusion of oxygen and carbon dioxide in and out of the cells.

But there is more. Each red blood cell is subjected to enormous shearing and turbulence during its 120-day life span. It passes around the circulation about 500,000 times, a distance of almost 300 miles. Every 12 minutes, it circulates through the spleen, the body's erythrocyte filter. In the splenic slits, the erythrocyte must twist, squeeze and bend over double to get through. Those cells which fail to pass this brutal but natural "quality control" are picked up by the spleen, which then squirts out newer, more perfectly formed red cells to take the places of the used-up erythrocytes.

Therefore, the erythrocyte membrane must be exceedingly flexible as well as being tough. Think for a moment, if you will, of the hordes of red cells being rolled and pushed along in the torrent of circulating blood — bumping and crashing into one another, nudging into the backwaters of capillaries, smashing into peninsulas where arteries branch, being compressed, pinched, mauled and — finally — having to run the gauntlet through an Everglades spleen whose job is to fishnet out cells which deviate only a fraction from normal.

I'm exhausted just thinking of the scene. I imagine that the noise, on a molecular level, must be deafening: squeaking, screeching, grating, rasping, rumbling, roaring — total disharmony of the most jangling sort. And in this maelstrom, the lipoprotein membrane skeletons, like the rigging of ancient sailing ships, creak and sing as they first flex, then tense, to keep the cells intact.

Looked at this way, it's easy to understand how researchers can become so absorbed in apparently insignificant events of which the average person is totally unaware. Remember, erythrocytes are simply passengers in the bloodstream. Consider the fascination of scientists who study white blood cells, which have the power, like hungry amoebas, to crawl!

EYES & NUTRITION

"We respond to eyesight degeneration by treating total body deterioration thru nutrition," states New Orleans ophthamologist Robert Azar, M.D. "A change in diet (low-fat, low-sugar) plus vitamin-mineral supplements have led to postponement, even cancellation of costly eye surgery." Jigger nuts are special treat

By TOM KNAPP
Lancaster
Intelligencer Journal

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — At first glance, the concoction appears to be much like any other sundae. Served in a tall parfait glass, it begins with the basics: vanilla ice cream, chocolate syrup or butterscotch and thick marshmallow topping. But that's where the similarity to another sundae ends.

While a typical ice cream vendor might garnish his sundaes with peanuts, almonds, walnuts or candies, The Jigger Shop in Mount Gretna tops its specialty with a heaping spoonful of jigger nuts.

So now, the obvious question is: what's a jigger nut?

The answer: nobody knows. That is, at least nobody who is willing to tell. The jigger nut has been a trade secret since around 1910, and it has mystified customers ever since.

Chuck Allwein, who owns the shop with his wife, Charlotte, wants to keep it that way.

According to Allwein, the recipe has been carefully handed down from owner to owner. Although many people have suggested marketing the nut, Allwein is a lover of tradition and would like to see his shop remain the sole producer of the special treats.

The origin of this unique nut came about when several girls, regular patrons of the small ice cream parlor then known as Myers Pavillion, asked the waitress behind the counter for "something different," and between them they created the new sundae.

After that, they would always refer to it as "one of those jiggers," a popular era term for "thing." It became so popular that by the 1920s, under new ownership, the parlor's name was changed to "The Jigger Shop."

The Jigger Shop has become a popular resting spot in scenic Mount Gretna and has prospered into a major attraction throughout Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin and Berks counties since Allwein bought the shop while still a student at Lebanon Valley College in 1963.

Built in 1895 as a small openair ice cream stand, The Jigger Shop has changed much over the past 90 years, and yet the friendly atmosphere has remained constant. And even though its popularity had declined greatly by the mid-1960s, in the past two decades it has gone through an amazing revival, topping the list of many area residents as a favorite spot to spend an afternoon or evening.

Allwein is the shop's seventh owner.

Dairy products specialty

By JEAN DEVLIN
Stillwater NewsPress

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — When Denise Hancock decided to make dairy products her 4-H specialty seven years ago, she had a poor background for the subject.

She didn't live on a dairy farm.

She had never milked a cow.

And she hated milk.

To make matters worse, what appealed to the Perkins girl about the dairy industry wasn't dairy products, but the fact that one of the older girls she idolized was a dairy specialist who had won awards in the dairy foods category of 4-H.

Despite that less than auspicious beginning, Miss Hancock has managed to thrive in her chosen specialty. She has not only mastered the subject of milk production, but she has developed a keen interest in how dairy products fit into the lives of active Americans.

Two years ago, the state 4-H organization tried to honor Miss Hancock's performance by selecting her as Oklahoma's representative in the "Dairy Foods Record Book" category for the national 4-H competition.

She turned them down.

"I knew I only had one chance to win nationals," she said, "and I didn't think I was ready yet."

The next year, she was ready.

But she wasn't picked.

Suddenly, it occurred to the teen-ager that she might have missed her chance.

That fear, coupled with the fact that she had only two more years of eligibility, spurred Miss Hancock to work even harder this year. She made dozens of presentations on the dairy industry; she dabbled with a variety of recipes using dairy products, and she logged long hours researching the health benefits of dairy foods.

When it was over, not only had she brought her total number of hours spent on her record book over the past seven years to almost 800, she had also won the opportunity to represent Oklahoma in the "Dairy Foods Record Book" category at nationals in Chicago from Nov. 30 through Dec. 5.

Whether or not Miss Hancock is one of the six dairy foods winners in Chicago, she says she will remain a dairy foods advocate.
