Windfall profits tax ruling celebrated

By The Associated Press

A federal judge's decision calling the so-called windfall profits tax unconstitutional is "way past due" and will be a boon to the oil and gas industry if the ruling holds up through the appeals process, Texas oilmen and state officials say.

U.S. District Judge Ewing T. Kerr in Cheyenne, Wyo., on Thursday ruled that the tax — which specifically exempts oil produced in Alaska — violates a constitutional requirement that all taxes be applied uniformly.

Kerr said the more than 30 plaintiffs in the suit should get back the windfall profits taxes thay paid between March and December 1980, but added the government should continue collecting the tax until a higher court reviews his decision.

Rep. Kent Hance, a Lubbock Democrat whose bill to repeal the windfall profits tax is pending in Congress, cautioned that the oilmen's fight is far from over.

"Now we reach the second stage," he said. "You know the government will appeal it, and if we continue to win, you know there's going to be members of Congress that will re-introduce the windfall profits tax to apply it to all states, including Alaska.

"Then comes the true colors of President Reagan, who campaigned in Texas that the tax should be abolished. Because if a new law is passed by Congress, he will have an opportunity to veto it. And I would hold him to that promise," he said from Austin, where he was attending a dinner.

Julian Martin, executive director of the West Texas Oil and Gas Association, which is involved in the suit, said the ruling is "a realization that the tax is an unfair special excise tax."

"We welcome this as great news. Lifting the tax will release money for exploration and development at a time when we really need it," he said. "Our industry has joined the recession with a vengeance, and this ruling will help turn that around."

For J. Frank Stringer, president of Stringer Oil and Gas in San Angelo, the news was so good he said he could hardly believe it.

"It will stimulate exploration activity," he said. "It will put money in the pockets of not only the producers, but the landowners, ranchers, farmers — everybody."

Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said the ruling was "way past due." The association joined with the Independent Petroleum Association of America and other organizations in filing the suit.

Also pleased were Attorney Gen. Mark White and his staff, who had taken an active role in seeking to have the tax ruled unconstitutional. White and an aide flew to Cheyenne in June to argue in Kerr's court on behalf of the plaintiffs.

"We're ecstatic, of course. We are delighted that the district court had the courage to say the Constitution means what it says," said Andy Keever, head of the energy division in the attorney general's office.

"So often, a lawsuit of this magnitude is very difficult to win, simply because the courts are unwilling to disturb a huge regulatory scheme," Keever said.

U.S. unemployment surges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate climbed to 10.4 percent in October as joblessness among blue-collar and full-time workers shattered the post-war records set only a month before, the Labor Department said today.

Nearly 300,000 people joined the jobless rolls last month, swelling the unemployment total to 11.6 million.

Overall, the department reported, seasonally adjusted unemployment rose 0.3 percentage point, from September's 10.1 percent to 10.4. Since the economy fell into recession in the late summer of 1981, some 3.7 million people have lost their jobs.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics' survey of some 60,000 households showed that hardly a segment of the population escaped the deteriorating employment picture.

Blue-collar workers, hard-hit by business failures, plant closings and slumping sales, registered a 15.9 percent unemployment rate, up 0.3 percentage point from September and the highest since such figures were first compiled in 1948.

Joblessness among full-time workers spurted from 10.1 percent to 10.5 while the rate for part-time workers stood at 10.1, down from 10.5 percent.

"We have never had the rate for full-time workers exceed that for part-time workers," noted bureau analyst Deborah Klein. "I think that's clearly a sign of the recession and its impact on the durable goods (manufacturing) sector."

The jobless rate among construction workers alone reached 23 percent, a new high.

For other population categories, new jobless peaks were reached for:

—Adult men, 9.8 percent, up from 9.6.

—Adult women, 8.6, up from 8.3.

—Whites, 9.3, up from 9.0.

—Hispanics, 15.2, up from 14.6.

—Married men, 7.6, up from 7.3.

For blacks unemployment held steady at the record 20.2 percent reached in September.

Teenage unemployment rost 0.3 percentage point, to 24.0 percent, matching previous record highs.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan is "sympathetic and concerned about the difficulties of those

New mailbox system installed

Residents of the 100 block of Oak Street have become the first Hereford Post Office customers to receive a new, innovative way of receiving their mail according to local Postmaster Nolan Grady.

Grady said that "Neighborhood Box Units" have been installed on the block, the first of their kind in the area.

Each box, of which there are three on the block, contains 11 customer boxes and one "outgoing" box. Each boxholder has a key to operate their box, much like the boxes located at the post office downtown.

Grady says the new format of delivery has several advantages, including ridding sidewalks of mailboxes, which have caused safety hazards in the past to children playing.

"Residents can remove the unsightly boxes from their curbsides or sidewalks and make the block look nicer," Grady said.

"These new boxes also do away with delays in mail delivery," he added, explaining that mail is not delivered to residential boxes on the curbs if vehicles are parked in front of them blocking the

State's jobless rate dips a bit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' unemployment continued to set records, but dipped slightly in October to a seasonally adjusted 8.3 percent, the Texas Employment Commission said today.

The state's September rate, a seasonally adjusted 8.4 percent, was the highest figure recorded in the 12 years officials have been keeping comparable unemployment figures. The October rate is the highest ever recorded for the month. For October 1981 the unadjusted figure was 4.7 percent.

National figures, also released today, showed a jump in joblessness across the country with a seasonally adjusted October rate of 10.4 percent, up from 10.1 percent in September.

Texas' actual rate was 7.6 percent, compared with an actual unemployment rate of 8 percent for September.

Labor officials agreed the small change was insignificant.

"I really don't think this says anything about the Texas economy very much," said TEC economist Terence Travland. "It seems to say

Election disappoints Tower

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, who in January will be the only Texas Republican holding a statewide office, says he isn't surprised to be alone, although he is "terribly disappointed."

In the Nov. 2 election, Bill Clements, the first Republican Texas governor in 105 years, was trounced by Democrat Mark White; U.S. Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas, who hoped to join Tower in the Senate, was smashed by incumbent Democrat Lloyd Bentsen; and so on down the list.

Voters gave the Democrats every statewide office. Republicans consoled themselves with picking up a few local slots.

"I'm terribly disappointed we didn't re-elect our governor," Tower said Thursday in an interview with The Associated Press. "And I'm very disappointed about the others. I think we had the finest slate of candidates we've ever had.

"It was a setback," he conceded. "But it wasn't a major setback. I think we'll continue to organize, continue to grow. We'll raise money and recruit good candidates. I don't think we'll have to rebuild.

"I had hoped to have a lot of company," he said. "But no, I wasn't surprised that Collins lost. Bentsen has been senator for 12 years, and he's perceived by most Texans as pretty well reflecting their views."

He said he had spent the last 3½ weeks campaigning for Republicans, and had not had time to analyze the results to see exactly why Republicans lost, although he noted that Democrats were well-organized this year, and the traditionally Democratic black vote turned out in large numbers.

"They (Democrats) were somewhat better organized

Off duty cop arrests driver

He had just finished dinner with his family when he heard the distinctive sound of metal slamming.

He promptly called the police department for a patrolman to investigate the wreck.

Then, peeking out a picture window with his two and four-year-old toddlers, he was amazed to see a car jump the curb and climb the steep incline into his yard.

Grabbing the children away from the window in time to witness the car fly within feet of the house and inches of the garage, he saw a honeysuckle vine and rose garden succumb to tires.

The next to go was a telephone pole, the amok auto clipping it at the ground.

When the car rested in the alley, the resident simply walked over and introduced himself to the driver.

"I'm Sgt. Ted Langgood with the police department and you're under arrest."

A note to parents: Don't stop to figure up how much it costs to raise a child!

Some expert on a television program gave the figures last week. He said it cost something like $226,000 to raise a son to age 22. It was more for a girl – $247,000.

His figures were based on a survey of 20,000 familes and included extra food, clothing, schooling, transportation, etc. In other words practically everything that could be accounted for in having an extra body around the house, or in college.

The majority of that money was needed between the ages of 16 and 22, according to the "expert". The figures were also based on today's dollars – which we all realize does not purchase near as much as some years ago.

I'm sure the per-child cost is cheaper by the dozen, although we didn't hear all the program. With two boys, it apparently more than doubles the grocery bill. It's difficult to think that many folks could afford more than $10,000 a year, but they manage.

Crewman buried after 15 years

STOCKDALE, Texas (AP) — The city hall flag was draped to half-staff and stores closed in mid-afternoon as residents paid their final respects to the first serviceman from this South Texas city to die in the Vietnam War — and the last to come home.

The body of Petty Officer 2nd Class William Braxton Jackson was released recently to the United States by the Vietnamese government — over 15 years after he died during a helicopter rescue mission on July 19, 1967.

Jackson was one of four crewmen who died while trying to save a pilot downed over enemy territory. Jackson's helicopter was hit by a surface-to-air missile, the crew of another helicopter reported.

Jackson was never heard from again, but his loved ones knew he was dead.

"We knew he was killed in a helicopter crash," said his widow, Jan Jackson of Imperial Beach, Calif. "Our thinking was just that there were no remains."

Shortly after Jackson disappeared, memorial services were held in both Stockdale, located about 45 miles southeast of San Antonio, and Imperial Beach, where a church library was named in Jackson's honor.

His mother, Ella Jackson Hawk of Stockdale, said she was thankful for the honors accorded her son, but remained uneasy because his body had been deprived of a Christian burial.

"We prayed for it," she said Thursday. "I thought if we just got his body back it would be so much easier. After that many years, you almost think it's the end."

On Oct. 14, Navy officials informed Jackson's relatives that the bodies of three of the four crewmen from the ill-fated helicopter were being returned and there was a possibility Jackson was among them.

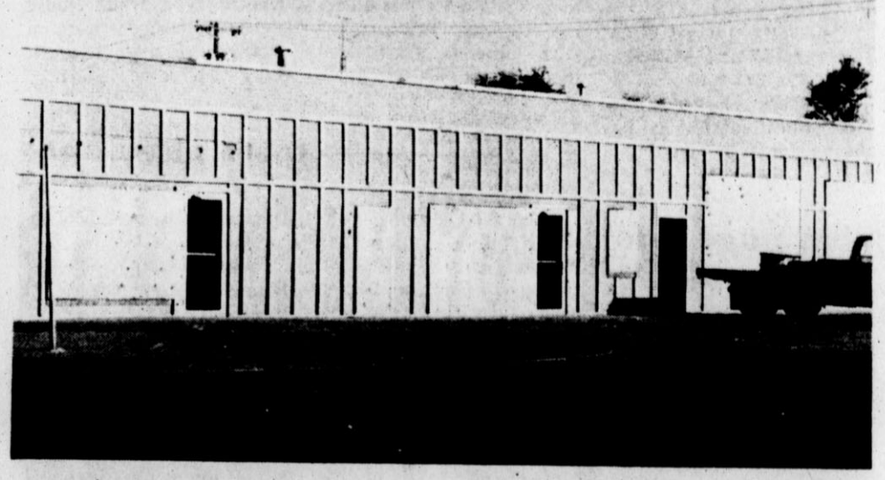

"I couldn't have stood it if they came back and said his was the body that was not found," Mrs. Hawk said.

But Jackson was identified and the residents of Stockdale turned out once again Thursday to honor him.

Jackson was a career Navy man who joined the service in 1953 at age 17, according to Mrs. Hawk.

"He wanted to go when he was 16, but we wouldn't sign the papers from him," she said.

After Thursday's service at the First Baptist Church of Stockdale, Mrs. Hawk said, "It seems like it's over now. We've got him back."

Question: I don't remember ever seeing a list of write-in candidates placed in the voting booths during an election before. What laws or regulations provide for such a practice?

According to a check with Secretary of State David Dean's office in Austin, the practice is covered by two articles of the state election code.

Article 6.06b, sub-division 5, requires providing presiding election judges with copies of a list of names of write-in candidates, and that each presiding judge will post a copy of that list in the same locations where instruction cards are posted.

According to Art. 8.03, instruction cards must by posted conspicuously near the distance marker, and in each voting booth where it can be read, or in plain view at the place prepared for voters to make out their ballot.

Both the voting done on the day of the election and done before hand during absentee voting are covered by the regulations according to a spokesman with Dean's office.

Woman dies while visiting grave

LIBBY, Mont. (AP) — A 74-year-old woman who died while visiting the grave of her husband at the Libby City Cemetery apparently had been run over by her own car, authorities said.

Lincoln County officials said they were told by an anonymous caller at 12:20 p.m. Thursday that a car without a driver was running circles in reverse, knocking over tombstones.

Deputies found the Lincoln Continental still running in reverse when they arrived and stopped it. Sixty feet away in the cemetery roadway, they found the body of Elizabeth Sedwick.

The sheriff's office said there were no known witnesses, but it appeared the woman was struck by her own car. An autopsy was ordered to determine whether the woman, who had a history of heart problems, may have suffered a heart attack.

Patrolman Dean Walston said some grave markers and street signs were toppled.

Task forces to report to Lame Duck

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Twenty-one state task forces have come up with proposed solutions to some of Texas' biggest problems, but now they will report to a governor who won't be able to do anything with the proposals.

About 600 volunteers selected by Gov. Bill Clements have spent several months researching the problems. The governor planned to base his 1983 legislative package on the task force reports.

But voters decided Tuesday they don't want Clements around for the Legislature. Democrat Mark White upset Clements in the gubernatorial race.

"We'll make the reports available to Gov.-elect White and he can do with them as he chooses," Jim Kaster, Clements' legislative aide, said Thursday.

Mary Hardesty, White's press secretary, said the governor-elect has not decided what to do with the reports.

Clements had three task forces at work before the 1981 session. He was so impressed with their work that he now has 21 such panels in operation.

Kaster said the reports could be valuable to White.

GOP loss in state house winds up at one

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Republican win in a tight state House race has left the GOP with a total loss of one seat in the 150-member House.

Democrats wound up with a 114-36 edge in the 1983 House as a result of Tuesday elections.

The GOP avoided a bigger loss thanks to Gwyn Clarkston's tight win over Democrat Jim Scoggins for a seat from Irving. Clarkston won by a 8,921-8,874 margin. The seat is now held by Bob Davis, a Republican who did not seek re-election.

Republican strength in the House peaked at 38 during the 1981 session. However, the resignation of Mike Martin of Longview dropped the number of GOP seats to 37. Martin pleaded guilty to charges stemming from a scheme to have himself shot.

Michel says house election puts burden on Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Leader Robert H. Michel says the 103-seat majority House Democrats gained on Election Day means they no longer can "just sit there and carp and criticize" President Reagan's economic program.

But Michel, who barely survived a strong Democratic challenge in a district plagued by unemployment and a sagging economy, also says he will be looking to the White House for some new economic initiatives.

The Illinois Republican said the results of Tuesday's House elections make it clear the administration will have to modify its economic program and take a different view of what can be expected from Congress.

"I'd like to see the administration give us help with their resources to develop some initiatives and not to just sit flat there and say 'everything's going to come out all right,'" Michel said in a telephone interview from Peoria, Ill.

Michel also said he has spoken with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and that they have agreed to tell the president that the GOP leadership on Capitol Hill needs to have more say in the administration's economic policies.

"We want to be able to have some input into the administration's position ... before they wrap up their budget that they send up to the Congress, before they get everything in concrete and then expect us to produce for them," Michel said.

He said the increased majority Democrats won places a burden on them to come up with new ideas for solving the nation's economic problems.

"I think there's more of a responsibliity on the part of the Democrats now," Michel said.

Democrats no longer can "put themselves in a position of roadblock, or a negative postion" and "just sit there and carp and criticize. You can't do that unless you have an alternative," he said.

Michel, who was first elected to the House in 1956, won his re-election bid in Illinois' 18th District by only 6,100 votes out of nearly 189,000 cast in a race that focused on Reaganomics.

But he said his race and the results of other House contests are not a repudiation of the president's economic goals.

It's "baloney" to think the public was saying "we want to forego the third year of our tax cut," or that federal spending should be increased, he said.

In Tuesday's balloting, 26 incumbent Republicans were turned out of office and the Democrats gained a 103-seat majority. Coincidentally, the net Democratic gain also comes to 26, although three incumbent Democrats were ousted.

Going into the election, Democrats held 241 of the 435 House seats, the Republicans held 192 and there were two vacancies, which had been in the Democratic column before they became vacant.

The new House which convenes next year will have Democrats in 269 seats and Republicans holding 166.

All the figures for the incoming House assume Republicans do not win a Nov. 30 election for two normally Democratic seats in Georgia.

Soaring federal deficit 'A terrible dilemma'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials, conceding the federal budget deficit could approach $200 billion in 1984, say they don't know how to eliminate much of the red ink without higher taxes and military spending cuts.

In a post-election confession they were unwilling to make until after Tuesday's voting, officials said they are searching for ways to make significant progress against the deficit without violating President Reagan's rule against defense cuts.

So far, they have no solutions. "It's a terrible dilemma," said one official.

The officials, asking that their names not be used, acknowledged that preliminary estimates put the deficit for fiscal 1984 somewhere between $150 billion and $200 billion.

Budget director David A. Stockman, who has until mid-January to produce a new budget plan, has been described as perplexed over how to whittle down so huge a deficit unless Reagan changes his opposition to further tax increases and major reductions in his Pentagon budget.

Progress on the budget was delayed by a White House decision to postpone work on politically sensitive program cuts until after the election.

Troubled economy puts crimp in designer fashion industry

NEW YORK (AP) — Mirrors and chrome gleam in the Fifth Avenue showroom where celebrities like Bianca Jagger and Lauren Hutton view Halston's new collection. But the designer has his eye on J.C. Penney shoppers.

Anne Klein is nipping prices as well as waistlines for spring and is developing a line for the "working girl."

At Carol Horn's, spring clothes are being offered in one-color groups rather than the usual three or four color selections.

Hemmed in by a troubled economy and even more troubled shoppers, top fashion houses are reaching beyond their usual markets or retrenching to wait for better times.

But there are no immediate signs that better times are coming.

The Conference Board, an independent economic research organization, says consumers are more disenchanted than at any point in the 15 years it has been surveying consumer confidence — an indication of the public's buying mood.

"The message is unmistakable. There's a tremendous amount of restlessness and uncertainty and unhappiness. Things have been lousy too long," said Fabian Linden, executive director of the Board's consumer research center.

Sales in the $88 billion-a-year apparel industry reflect the mood, and they are up only 4 to 5 percent over last year — not enough to keep up with inflation.

The industry is hoping for a turnaround in 1983, but apparel manufacturing firms are continuing to fail and industry jobless figures run higher than the national average.

Inflation is being held down, but prospective shoppers are cautious because of high unemployment.

"The consumer is able to spend money, but he chooses not to. The consumer's net worth is rising, but he lacks confidence because of the high level of unemployment," said Monroe Greenstein, an analyst with Bear, Sterns & Co.

All this has unsettled fashion houses where, at shows each spring and fall, designers try to sell their new collections to store buyers.

Big names like Halston — whose products bring in $200 million annually — still spend lavishly to showcase designs for the fashion elite. But even he is reaching further for the mass market.

Earlier this fall, it was announced that Halston will design moderately priced women's, men's and children's clothing and home furnishings for J.C. Penney, the nation's third-largest retailer.

Halston Enterprises will take in an estimated $1 billion over the life of the six-year agreement, according to Michael Lichtenstein, Halston's managing director.

"Halston has always felt he wanted to reach a broader public than he has been able to with the prices he has," said Lichtenstein.

Analyst Greenstein puts it another way: "The real big money is made in the mass market."

Designer Carol Horn found other ways to cope with the economy. Her spring show was not the lavish production that many houses staged last year. There were fewer outfits and they were in fewer color selections.

"The buyers don't have much money to spend," she said. "I'd rather put my money into something else."

That something else, she says, would be a leisure sportswear line or at-home wear that would be practical and sell in higher volume than couture products.

Anne Klein, for example, is thinking of lower priced sportswear to "reach a more working woman that can't afford couture prices," says Bob Vehlow, Klein's vice-president of sales.

"It'll be a different market — the working girl who's not a lawyer and not an actress, and who makes $400 a week," he said.

Prices usually increase by about 10 percent from one year to the next, but Anne Klein — like other designers — is cutting prices. A jacket that would have been marked $185 will bear a $175 ticket for spring.

"It has nothing to do with our business. It's how much a woman can spend," said Vehlow. "Last year she would maybe buy three outfits. This year, she might buy only a couple of pieces."

Shoppers who do venture out will find sales and promotions in nearly all the major retail stores, which are competing not only with each other but with "off-price" discount houses that are popping up across the country.

"It's extraordinarily competitive. Yesterday we had a major coat promotion, today a major handbag promotion. That's our response," said Jack Schultz, executive vice-president of Bloomingdale's.

Retailers are also promoting "investment dressing" to get consumers to buy clothes that may cost a little more but will carry the wearer many seasons. That too, may be promotion gimmickry.

"The lifeblood of fashion is change, not planned obsolescence," said Norman Chesler, vice-president of marketing at I. Magnin's San Francisco headquarters.

Chesler says investment dressing is "easy for the consumer to spend money on" but stores cannot survive by marketing that type of clothing alone.

"If there is no interest or excitement in fashion, the outfit you have in your closet is as good as the one in the store and the whole thing grinds to a halt," he said.

The bureau said that total employment plunged by 630,000 in October, to 99.1 million. The proportion of the population with jobs — at 56.6 percent last month — has declined by almost 2 percentage points since the recession began. The jump in the overall unemployment rate to 10.4 percent happened even though some 340,000 people entered the labor market in search of work, the department said.

Tiny girl gets specially made miniature furniture

GONZALES, Calif. (AP) — Mindy Wells is learning to live in a world she must always look up to, but the doll-sized 5-year-old can now sleep easy in a scaled-down bed to match her Lilliputian dimensions.

Mindy — just 31 inches tall and weighing only 15 pounds — suffers from a rare birth defect that will keep her a dwarf forever. She must use a stool to climb onto her parent's furniture.

But a civic group helped her family buy a home where one room could be modified for Mindy, and enlisted an amateur woodworker to build a diminutive four-poster bed.

When she first saw the bed, Mindy climbed on top, crossed her arms and hugged herself. "It's her little gesture of saying, 'This is mine,'" said her mother, Pat Wells.

"She sits on it, stands on it, pulls the bedspread off ... She really understands that it was built for her," Mrs. Wells said.

Mindy, who is unable to speak and attends a school for handicapped children, suffers from a chromosomal disorder called "46 XX 4R," that affects about one child in a million. The disorder is a form of dwarfism, and the few known sufferers tend to be among the smallest dwarfs, said Dr. Luigi Luzzatti, director of a birth defects program at Stanford Medical Center.

Mindy uses a primitive sign language to communicate, and her mother says the girl understands much of what she hears.

"We don't know whether she'll ever be able to talk, but you can tell what she wants just by looking at her face," Mrs. Wells said. "And she studies peoples' faces, she reads people really good."

Mindy graduated from crib to bed three weeks ago, at the same time her parents moved into their new three-bedroom home in this community about 14 miles from Salinas in northern California.

Unable to convince their landlord to modify part of their rented house for Mindy, Pat and Mike Wells began thinking about buying a home last year.

But Wells, who operates a forklift seven months a year during lettuce season, could not qualify for a loan because of his seasonal earnings. Mrs. Wells has not been able to work since Mindy was born because the little girl requires full-time supervision.

But the Salinas Lions Club found a government-assisted mortgage program, "helped arrange papers and cut through some red tape," Mrs. Wells said.

At the same time, the Lions enlisted Paul Dollarhide, a retired businessman and an amateur woodworker, to build Mindy's bed — just 18 inches off the floor, so she can get in and out by herself.

Others have donated small furniture to match, and some well-wishers sent stuffed animals that loom over Mindy's tiny bed.

Mindy also has a tiny rocking chair made by a relative and lots of stepstools so she can reach normal-size furniture. "She's learning to adapt herself to larger things, and she'll try anything once," her mother said.

Mindy loves to play with other children and after school follows her normal-sized 10-year-old sister Michelle everywhere.

"Michelle is her idol, she wants to do everything she does," Mrs. Wells said.

State ——— from page one things have not worsened any. We usually see a reduction between September and October. It really doesn't seem to reflect much about the underlying economy."

The number of unemployed stayed unchanged at 611,000. Total employment grew from 1.7 million to 1.71 million.

"I place no economic significance at all on that change," said Bryan Richey, regional commissioner for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Dallas.

Hardest hit by layoffs in October was the Mexican border region of the state, where businesses are hurting because of recent peso devaluations and the deteriorating Mexican economy, Richey said.

"What we're seeing is a spread of unemployment, I believe centered in the border areas," Richey said, estimating that the Rio Grande Valley unemployment rate could soar above 20 percent.

"I would not be surprised if it were 20 percent or higher in those areas," he said. "That's really obscene."

Richey predicted that the statewide unemployment rate will drop for November if interest rates continue to fall.

Tower is used to being the lone Republican. He came out of almost nowhere: a 35-year-old Wichita Falls government professor and former disc jockey who won a special election from a field of 71 candidates in 1961 to fill Lyndon Johnson's empty Senate seat when Johnson became vice president.

Tower then was the first Republican to win statewide office since Reconstruction. The only other office he had ever held was that of Republican precinct chairman.

Many Texas Democrats didn't take him seriously at the time. The liberal Democratic bi-weekly, "The Texas Observer," urged its readers to vote for Tower over his run-off opponent, Dallas millionaire Democrat Bill Blakely.

The theory was that Blakely was unacceptable — he was more conservative than Tower — and Tower would be easy to throw out in the next election.

He held on. Fiercely. Now Texas' senior senator, he's the chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee and a realist about his party's effort to establish itself in the traditionally conservative Democratic state.

Republicans don't have a long history in Texas, which even now is not a true two-party state, he said.

"The modern Republican Party in Texas dates back to 1952, when we started to broaden ourselves a little bit," Tower said. "And we're definitely a minority party, still. People who identify themselves by party are about 2-to-1 Democrats.

"We lost statewide visibility in this election, but we did win those county offices.

Simms Study Club visits greenhouse

Members of the Simms Study Club met Wednesday morning and travelled to Johnson's Greenhouse in Vega, where Edith Johnson took them on a tour of two greenhouses and gave them tips on caring for plants.

She discussed fertilizer, watering, and humidity needs as well as other items of interest, and then answered members' specific questions about plants.

After the tour, the group stopped for lunch at the Vega Dairy Queen, where they held a short business meeting after eating.

The Chirstmas meeting, to be held in conjunction with the Simms Lions Club at 7 p.m. Dec. 2 in the Simms Community Building, was discussed. Each member will bring a covered dish and is asked to bring a homemade gift for a gift exchange.

Charlene Hughes, Brenda Meiwes, and Denise Teel will serve as hostesses for the December meeting.

Members decided to meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 9, to paint tables at the Simms Community Building.

Those making the trip to Vega were Ms. Teel, Willie Roberts, Elaine Brorman, Kay Rhodes, Ms. Hughes, Sherry McKibben, and guests, Julia and Juanita Perrin.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb,M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 52-year-old male and in generally good health. Recently I found (rather by accident) that I have gallstones. I have never had any symptoms or any discomfort from my gallbladder.

My physician advised that I have my gallbladder removed now before I bave any problems with it. Another physician advised the opposite. He said I may never have a problem with it but if I do that would be tbe time to have the operation. What would you advise?

DEAR READER — I'm not surprised that you obtained two different answers. There are different opinions regarding which is the best course. And there is very recent information that bears on what to do about gallstones.

First, in a person like yourself who does not have and never has had any symptoms and really has silent gallstones, the likelihood that you will ever develop problems from the stones is small. In a recent study at five years only 10 percent of patients in that group ever developed problems. By 10 years only 15 percent, and after 15 years or more only 18 percent had. Stated another way, that study indicates that you have a better than 80 percent chance of not having any problem from your silent gallstones for 15 years or longer.

Only 2.5 percent of the entire group developed acute cholecystitis (acute gallbladder attack) or pancreatitis.

Hypertension a major health concern

COLLEGE STATION - Hypertension, or abnormally high blood pressure, is one of the most prevalent health problems in the United States and is also one of the major contributors to heart attacks and strokes, reports Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Although progress has been made to increase public awareness of hypertension and to develop effective ways of treating it, the problem still remains a major health concern.

"High blood pressure often has no clear signs or symptoms and a person can have it and not know it. That's why it's so important to get your blood pressure checked regularly and, if it is high, to follow the treatment your doctor prescribes," Shirer says.

Leaders of an industry-funded symposium on nutrition and blood pressure control recently gave these guidelines concerning hypertension. They recommended that people:

1. Define their risk status, including diabetes, obesity, and family history of the disease.
2. Check blood pressure regularly, whether or not they are in a high-risk group.
3. If pressure is normal, continue present lifestyle.
4. If pressure is slightly high, begin a program of moderate exercise; lose weight, if needed; and reduce salt intake as necessary.
5. Stop smoking and cut down alcohol intake.
6. If over 40, get a doctor's advice on exercise and take a stress test.
7. Do not drastically alter your diet by cutting out all fats or all salt-containing foods, or by following only a high fiber diet. If you cut out dairy products because they contain salt, you will also lose calcium, whih is essential to blood pressure regulation.
8. If sodium-sensitive, follow a prescribed medical diet. Persons with normal blood pressure need not restrict their salt intake, but prudent use is advised.
9. If your doctor decides that you don't need medication, don't insist on it. It's better to regulate blood pressure through diet and exercise than with chemicals.

Dressing for success

COLLEGE STATION Does a woman's appearance really determine how successful she will be in her career? According to many "dress for success" authorities it does, reports Becky Saunders, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A recent study funded by a major beauty products corporation photographed potential employees "before" and "after" makeovers.

According to the study, the recommended changes in hairstyles, makeup and clothing definitely improved the woman's possibility of being hired. Their salary estimates were also higher.

In response to the question, "what should a female manager or executive look like," the employers answered "confident, organized, in charge, serious, intellectual and career-oriented."

Eye contact and a direct smile were also considered very important by those who answered the questionnaire.

Hairstyles noticeably influenced employers, Saunders says. Shoulder-length or shorter styles were favored. In addition to being easy to care for, shorter hair also draws attention to the eyes and creates a more approachable and friendlier image.

Women who were chosen tended to have natural hair color and makeup, and selected conservative jewelry and clothing.

Chapter members enjoy Thanksgiving dinner

A Thanksgiving covered dish supper was held for members of Alpha Alpha preceptor chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Tuesday evening in the home of Jan Walser.

Liz Warren created table centerpieces, filling wicker baskets with pears, apples and fall leaves, with a candle in the center of each. One guest at each table was the winner of the centerpiece at her table.

After the meal, a short business meeting was conducted. It was announced that Friday is the deadline to turn orders in to Mary Jean Gore for the ways and means project.

Minutes from City Council were read and members were reminded that Rituals will be Nov. 17 at the Community Center. Alpha Iota Mu will serve as hostesses for the meeting.

The Valentine Ball is scheduled Feb. 5 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The queen will be chosen by the Lubbock City Council and announced at the ball.

Other members present were Janey Allmon, Sharon Cramer, Pam Fogo, Ms. Gore, Vida Grady, Margaret Godwin, Jean Holbert, Toni Jones, Barbara Kendall, Karen Ruland, Earline Schneider, and Geneva Summers.

Bluebirds hear safety program

The first grade Bluebirds from Northwest School met this week for a program on safety. A policeman came in his patrol car to talk with the girls and then they made posters to put up in their school.

The girls wrote cards thanking their school safety patrolman for working with the school children. The Bluebirds are completing requirements for a safety patch.

Their candy and wrapping paper sale began Thursday and will continue until Nov. 22.

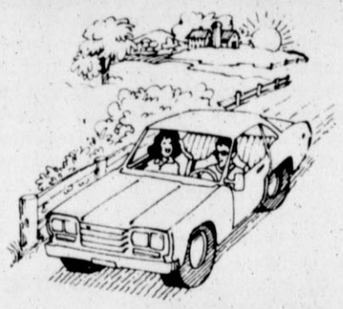

Thursday evening they had a supper for their study of food culture. It was the second supper they have had for this study.

The turkeys we eat at Thanksgiving are not the same breed as those enjoyed by the Pilgrims.

Coronado derails Whitefaces, 38-0

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK – Halloween came four days late for Hereford, disguised as a devil in Red.

But, the real culprit may have been the white-clad Whitefaces, who fell victim to seven turnovers as Coronado stunned them, 38-0, Thursday night here to all but end any playoff aspirations this season.

Those seven turnovers (those most in any game this season for Hereford) led to 24 Mustang points – more than enough to secure victory.

A crowd of 2,500 in Lowrey Field watched in almost disbelief as Coronado, a team which has been on a roller-coaster ride all season, made the 38-point win look almost easy.

Hereford's offense, which came into the game averaging 29 points and 374 yards, was completely overwhelmed by a bigger, more-aggressive Mustang defense.

The Herd managed 124 yards total offense. It's running game, which had averaged 290 yards a game, was totally throttled, managing 104 yards on 33 attempts – a 3.1 average per try.

But, it was Hereford's passing game which led to the eventual downfall.

Quarterback Charles McDowell, a model of consistency throughout the first nine games of the season, suffered through his poorest showing. He completed one of 13 for 11 yards, but suffered four interceptions.

Tailback Alfred Ball, who had gained 1,016 yards rushing, was completely bottled up, managing 22 yards on eight carries.

Coronado, which ended the season 5-4 overall and 5-3 in district, rolled up 196 yards on the ground and added 90 through the air for a total of 286– the most any team gained against Hereford this season.

Mustang quarterback Mike Meeks was superb. He completed 11 of 17 for 90 yards and two TDs. At one stretch, he completed seven straight.

Chris Moore, the sophomore tailback who more resembles a bowling ball on wheels, gained 131 yards on 23 carries.

Hereford, which ended the season 8-2 (6-2 in District 3-5A), simply couldn't get untracked.

The Whitefaces' first possession started at the Coronado 32 with 9:35 left in the opening period. But, that possession, like all the others, came up dry.

Coronado's first two possessions started at its 6 and 9.

Hereford's first turnover, a fumble by wingback Glen Phibs with 6:33 left in the second period, led to the Ponies first score.

They went 57 yards in seven plays. The payoff came when Meeks scrambled away from a big rush and hit Greg Dellinger in the end zone from 11 yards out.

Dellinger was well covered by McDowell and Brian Taylor, but simply outjumped the two Hereford defenders for the TD with 4:08 left in the half. Lane Cochran's first of five PATs made it, 7-0.

Moments later, Coronado got the ball back at its 46 following a Hereford punt. Six plays later, Meeks threw 14 yards to Donnie Courtney with 23 seconds left in the half and the hosts had a 14-0 lead.

Courtney gathered in the short pass in the left flat, and raced in, untouched. No Hereford defender was within 10 yards of him.

But, the play that, for all intents and purposes, ended things for Hereford came midway through the third period.

Dan Gainey stepped in front of a McDowell pass and returned the interception 31 yards to extend Coronado's lead to 21-0.

After that, the Herd never threatened, and made only three first downs the rest of the game.

Moore scored on a 7-yard run to cap a three-play, 13-yard excursion following another interception early in the final period as Coronado made it, 28-0.

Meeks sneaked over from a yard out to complete a 10-play drive which covered 68 yards, following a Hereford punt, to give Coronado a 35-0 cushion with 1:32 to play.

But, they still weren't through.

Ball saw the ensuing kickoff bounce off his chest, and Coronado recovered at the Hereford 13.

After missing connections on two pass plays, a delay of game penalty and a short run, the winners settled for a 27-yard field goal with 40 seconds to go to complete the scoring.

The win was Coronado's first in this series since a 10-7 triumph in 1976, and only the third Mustang win in 13 tries.

And, needless to say, it was the widest margin of victory by either team in the series. Hereford had won by 32 points (46-14) in 1972.

Hereford's only chance to make the playoffs now would be for Plainview and Monterey to lose tonight. The Bulldogs host Caprock, while Monterey is at Palo Duro.

Should Plainview lose to Caprock (and in view of what happened Thursday perhaps anything is possible) then Hereford could still gain a playoff berth.

Spurs edge Portland on last-second shot

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mike Dunleavy's belief in the three-point goal was vindicated Thursday night.

He made a 26-foot field goal shot with seven seconds left in overtime to give the Spurs the three points they needed for a 108-107 National Basketball Association victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Dunleavy said later, "I believe in the three-point shot. I always have ... It is a devastating weapon if you use it right. But if you overdo it, it can turn on you."

Mychal Thompson of Portland made a tip-in with 18 seconds left in regulation to send the game into overtime at 95-95. He finished with a team-high 22 points.

San Antonio took a 34-22 lead in the first quarter then remained ahead until the final period.

Mike Mitchell of San Antonio led all scorers with 27 points, and teammate George Gervin made 24.

Portland was four points ahead in overtime when Gene Banks scored four in a row for San Antonio. Baskets by Jim Paxson of Portland and Mitchell tied the score at 105.

Thompson's field goal with 15 seconds left put Portland ahead 107-105 before San Antonio's time-out and Dunleavy's three-point shot.

San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck endorsed Dunleavy's enthusiasm for the long-distance goal and said that, when the final one fell Thursday night, "Our bench exploded ... It can cause heartbreak for an opponent, or for you if you depend on it too much."

Albeck noted that David Thompson of Seattle shot "an almost impossible" 28-foot three-pointer with two seconds left Wednesday night to give the SuperSonics a 109-107 victory over the Spurs.

The Spurs took their third victory Thursday night in four games this season. Portland has lost all four of its contests.

"We played well enough at times to win," Ramsay said. "It will turn around for us. We just hope it does so as soon as possible. I think we have passed the hurdle of our first few games."

Portland got 20 points from Paxson, four of them in overtime, and 17 from Calvin Natt.

Johnny Moore had 13 points and eight assists for San Antonio.

Torres' FG gives Stanton win

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Rodney Torres' 34-yard field goal with nine seconds left to play lifted Stanton past LaPlata, 16-14, and gave the Doggies an undefeated season as both 9th grade teams completed their season Thursday afternoon at the stadium.

Torres' winning field goal sailed through the uprights, completing an 11-play drive which began at the Stanton 37 following a punt with 4:08 left to play.

Torres earlier had given Stanton a 7-0 lead when he and quarterback Stephan Hacker hooked up on a 69-yard pass and run play late in the opening period.

LaPlata, which took a 14-13 lead early in the fouth quarter, controlled the ball much of the game. The Mavericks, who ended their season 5-3-1, rolled up 219 yards rushing and added 15 passing for 234 overall.

Stanton, which won the district crown, finished the season 7-0-1. The Doggies rushed for 72 yards and threw for 116.

LaPlata tailback Danny Castillo gained 152 yards on 33 carries to lead all rushers. Allen Dudding had 68 yards on 20 carries to pace Stanton. Hacker completed five of nine passes for 116 yards for the winners.

After Torres' 69-yard TD reception had given Stanton the lead in the opening period, LaPlata mustered a 13-play, 74-yard scoring drive in the second period.

The payoff came on a "swinging gate" play.

All but two players lined up about 10 to 12 yards from the ball, which was at the 9.

Doug Watts flipped the ball to David Ankeney, who raced into the end zone for the TD with 2:39 left in the half. Bobby Martinez ran for the two-point conversion to give the Mavericks a 8-6 lead.

On LaPlata's first possession of the third period, Martinez' punt was blocked by Stanton's Daniel Mankins. Frankie Villegas recoverd at the 5, and two plays later Dudding scored from a yard out as the Doggies regained the lead, 13-8.

LaPlata's go-ahead TD was set up when Rex Baxter recovered a Stanton fumble at the Doggie 47 with less than a minute to play in the third period.

The Mavericks drove 47 yards in eight plays, and Castillo capped the march with a 2-yard run with 8:16 left to play.

A 21-yard pass from Hacker to Torres, with just under four minutes to play, gave Stanton a first down at the LaPlata 42.

With Dudding doing most of the work, Stanton moved to the Maverick 18 setting up Torres' winning kick.

Elsewhere Thursday, Hereford's junior varsity closed its season with a 6-0 win in Plainview. That triumph left the JV with a 5-5 record.

Hereford's sophomores dropped a 13-8 decision to Amarillo at the LaPlata field. The loss left the sophs with a 5-4 season.

Rivera wins 3rd straight cross country championship

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Defending champion John Rivera of Texas A&I narrowly won a third consecutive Lone Star Conference cross country title Thursday, as Abilene Christian edged out Southwest Texas for the team title.

Rivera, a senior from San Antonio Burbank, beat Abilene Christian's Doug Jones by three seconds. Rivera had a time of 31:58, while Jones finished at 32:01.

Players reject owners' latest offer in strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Donlan rang the dinner bell. "Come and get it!" he hollered.

Ed Garvey checked the menu and said, "No thanks; I'm not that hungry yet."

On the 45th day of the National Football League strike, Donlan, the owners' chief negotiator, waved a $60-million carrot in front of the 1,500 striking players, an attempt to induce them to approve a collective bargaining agreement immediately.

The players across the country will never get a first-hand look at the carrot. Garvey, the union's executive director, waved it aside with disdain. "We have no interest in this proposal whatsoever," he said.

But Jim Kensil, president of the New York Jets and a member of the owners' executive committee, warned the union to think twice before saying no. "I guess you could call this an effort to save the season," he said. "I don't know of any other offer we're prepared to make."

Except for the timing, the offer wasn't much different from management's Sept. 8 "career adjustment bonus" — the one the union called a bribe.

"You would think that seven weeks into a strike they would learn what we're striking for," said Joseph A. Yablonski, the union's chief counsel.

What they are striking for is more than money. "I hope the people in the NFL don't get the idea that putting a certain amount of money on the table will solve all of our problems," said union president Gene Upshaw. "When we started this process we started it in an atmosphere of fairness, one in which we were out to gain our dignity. We're still on that course."

"As a practical matter there is no difference between this offer and the last one," added Yablonski. "Nobody thought it would be as inadequate as this."

The money on the table, beyond the yet-to-be-determined salaries for this fractured season and the owners' $1.31-billion package for 1983-86, is worth $60 million.

For any vested player — one on the roster three games or more into his fourth season — the payoff for approving a collective bargaining agreement is $60,000. For rookies it's $10,000; second-year players $20,000; third-year vets $30,000.

The offer and almost immediate rejection came at the end of a day in which Garvey and Donlan, flanked by their negotiating teams, paraded before the cameras and microphones to castigate each other and reaffirm the distance between each other.

"There's a tremendous difference between our proposal and theirs," said Garvey.

College grid picks

Georgia favored over Florida

BY HERSCHEL NESSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Now that Election Day is out of the way, the college football folks can get down to the business of deciding some races of their own.

And this is the weekend for which most everyone has been waiting with no less than four head-to-head battles between members of the Associated Press Top Twenty - Georgia-Florida, LSU-Alabama, UCLA-Washington and North Carolina-Clemson - plus some other interesting contests as well.

As expected, Georgia is sitting atop the Southeastern Conference, but Alabama, which was supposed to make it a race to the wire - and perhaps end up in a tie because they don't play each other - stumbled against Tennessee.

Meanwhile, LSU has emerged as a bona fide contender and the Tigers will go to the Sugar Bowl if they beat Alabama and Mississippi State and either Florida or Auburn knocks of Georgia. Florida nipped Auburn with one second to play last week and prevented the War Eagles from moving into a first-place tie.

For the 1982 renewal of the worlds' largest outdoor cocktail party at Jacksonville's Gator Bowl, third-ranked Georgia is a four-point favorite over No. 20 Florida. The last two meetings of this heated rivalry have both ended 26-21 Georgia. Time for a change .. Florida 26-21.

Last week's score was 35 right and 14 wrong for a percentage of .714. On the year, it's 315-100-11 for a percentage of .759. Against the spread, the count was only 15 right and 16 wrong last week for a .484 percentage. For the season, it's 117-119 - .496.

Notre Dame at No. 1 Pitt favored by 10½: Two of the nation's top-rated defenses, but Notre Dame's offense leaves something to be desired .. Pitt 24-10.

No. 2 Southern Methodist 23½ at Rice; Out of the frying pan and into the fire for the winless Owls, who lost 24-6 to unbeaten Arkansas a week ago and now "entertain" .. SMU 37-12.

Oregon State at No. 4 Arizona State 30½: Last week, nationally ranked Southern Cal; next week, nationally ranked Washington. Winless Oregan state is "the only game on this week's schedule," says ASU Coach Darryl Rogers .. Arizona State .. 35-7.

No. 5 Arkansas 12½ at Baylor; The Razorbacks have not allowed a touchdown in the last two meetings .. Arkansas 24-12.

Oklahoma State at No. 6 Nebraska 27½: Two of the nation's leading rushers in OSU's Ernest Anderson No. 1 and Nebraska's Mike Rozier No. 5, but the latter has a better supporting cast .. Nebraska 37-14.

North Carolina State at No. 7 Penn State (21): The Nittany Lions have gotten tailback Curt Warner untracked to complement Todd Blackledge's passing . . . Penn State 34-14.

No. 11 LSU vs. No. 8 Alabama (7) at Birmingham: The Bayou Bengals have beaten up on three winless teams and their opponents have a combined log of 13-37-1. Now they'll find out if they're for real. Upset Special of the Week . . . LSU 24-21.

No. 9 UCLA at No. 10 Washington (pick 'em): Stanford's John Elway picked the Huskies apart last week and now they face the nation's top-rated passer in Tom Ramsey. Strictly on the home field advantage . . . Washington 21-17.

No. 12 Florida State (12) at South Carolina: FSU's Bobby Bowden is proving again how good a coach he is . . . Florida State 28-14.

No. 18 North Carolina at No. 13 Clemson (pick 'em): The Tar Heels will be snorting after last week's loss to Maryland . . . North Carolina 21-14.

Kansas State at No. 14 Oklahoma (16): K-State has a chance to finish 7-3-1. The Wildcats are 5-2-1 and can win their remaining two games after . . . Oklahoma 33-14.

No. 15 Michigan (7½) at Illinois: The Big Ten is no longer the Mediocre Three; now, it's the Big One (Michigan), or is it? Second Upset Special . . . Illinois 27-21.

California at No. 16 Southern California (17½): The line may be a little too high with USC quarterback Sean Salisbury out for the season . . . Southern Cal 27-17.

No. 17 West Virginia (no line) at Temple: Don't be surprised to see the Owls give the Mountaineers all they can handle . . . West Virginia 24-17.

Miami at No. 19 Maryland (7 1-2): Miami catches the Terps between North Carolina and Clemson, but the Hurricanes are down to a third-string quarterback . . . Maryland 21-14.

Vanderbilt (6½) at Kentucky: Wildcats have only scored 66 points in eight games, but Jerry Claiborne's teams are always sound defensively. Third Upset Special . . . Kentucky 17-14.

Tulane vs. Mississippi (7) at Jackson: Ole Miss came unglued against LSU, and remember the old adage about a nonconference game in the middle of the league schedule. Fourth Upset Special . . . Tulane 24, Mississippi 20.

Iowa State (11) at Kansas: Cyclones are looking ahead to Nebraska, Jayhawks are coming off a 52-0 shelling by the Cornhuskers. Fifth Upset Special . . . Kansas 20-14.

Ray Knight is named Astros' most valuable player

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston infielder Ray Knight, who led Astros hitters with a .294 average, 179 hits and set a club record with 13 sacrifice flies, was named the club's most valuable player Thursday by the Houston chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Knight, who split the season between playing third and first base, beat out pitcher Joe Niekro, who posted a 17-12 record and led Astros pitchers in five categories.

Second baseman Phil Garner, who led the team with 83 runs batted in and 13 home runs, and pitcher Don Sutton, who compiled a 13-8 record before he was traded to Milwaukee on Aug. 31, also received votes in the annual balloting by local BBWA members.

Knight, who shifted from third to first base in mid-June, also led the Astros with 36 doubles and 609 at bats. He contributed 72 runs batted in, hit six home runs, struck out 58 times and drew 48 walks.

Knight's 13 sacrifice flies broke the previous club record of 11 by former Astro Bob Watson.

Niekro led the Astros pitching staff with 17 victories, a 2.47 earned run average, 16 complete games, five shutouts and 270 innings pitched. He struck out 130 batters and walked 64.

Mike Ferraro picked

Tribe names boss

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Ferraro says he didn't mind waiting in line to become manager of the Cleveland Indians.

The former New York Yankee coach was Cleveland's second choice to replace Dave Garcia, who has retired after 3½ years as manager. The Indians first sought Billy Martin, fired last month by the Oakland A's, but were unable to sign him.

"I think it might be a little bit of a tribute to be considered for the same job Billy was considered for," Ferraro said Thursday after receiving a two-year contract with the Indians. "Billy's a tremendous manager."

Ferraro, 38, coached third base and first base for the Yankees the past four years. A former New York player, he also managed in the Yankees' minor league system for five years, finishing first three times.

"As a matter of fact, I gave him his first managerial job at Oneonta in 1974," said Indians President Gabe Paul, who was formerly president of the Yankees. "I was thrilled to see a Class A team, the lowest class team, execute fundamentals as well as any team in the major leagues. At that time, I put in the back of my mind that here was a future major league manager."

Paul characterized Ferraro as a "firm disciplinarian."

"I hope I can bring enthusiasm and a little bit of discipline to this team," Ferraro said. "One of the gripes I have with players today is they sign long-term contracts. If they go 0-for-4, they don't get upset. If they have a little stomach problem, they don't play. In my day, if you went 0-for-4, you got upset. I think the money players make today should motivate them."

Ferraro received national attention during the 1980 playoffs, when he was coaching third base for the Yankees against Kansas City. Yankee Willie Randolph was thrown out on a play at home plate after being waved in by Ferraro, and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner was angered enough to move Ferraro from third base to first base.

"He's the owner. He had a right to get upset," Ferraro said.

The Yankees released Ferraro from a three-year coaching contract so he could accept the Indians' offer, Paul said.

"I think there's some talent here," said Ferraro, who is taking over a team that has not been an American League contender since 1959. "As far as the ballclub as a whole and why it hasn't done too well, I don't think I can make any observation at this point."

The Indians retained Johnny Goryl as third base coach and Dennis Sommers at first. Pitching coach Mel Queen will be replaced by former San Francisco pitching coach Don McMahon. Coach Tom McCraw's replacement has not yet been named.

Wilkison tops Gullickson in tennis tourney

HONG KONG (AP) — Tim Wilkison defeated Tim Gullickson 5-7, 7-5, 6-3 in the Hong Kong Tennis Classic.

Tom Cain defeated Frenchman Guy Forget 6-4, 6-2. Tom Gullikson was beaten by American Martin Davis 6-3, 6-4.

In women's competition, Vicki Nelson edged Dana Gilbert 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 to reach the semifinals.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court

OPINION POLL

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will respond to the voters and taxpayers of our county concerning our portion of the proposed SPECIAL EVENTS CENTER. Our portion would be the auditorium-banquet hall at an estimated cost of $4 to $5 million.

We neither support nor oppose the project and the bond issue it would require.

We are asking registered voters to indicate "Yes" or "No" on whether they want us to pursue this issue.

We should point out that operating and maintenance costs would require taxation in addition to bond debt requirements.

PLEASE INDICATE YOUR OPINION IN THIS UNOFFICIAL POLL.
MAIL OR RETURN THIS FORM TO: DEAF SMITH COUNTY COURTHOUSE, COUNTY JUDGE'S OFFICE, HEREFORD, TX., 79045.

YES ☐
I want the county to pursue this project and call a bond election.

NO ☐
I do not want the county to pursue this project and call a bond election.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman who could not sign her name in front of anyone gave me the courage to write to you. I have no trouble signing my name, but I do find it impossible to urinate in front of others when I use the men's restroom.

I am a well-educated young man and not ashamed of my body, but for some reason I just stand there waiting and nothing happens. Over the past few years I have resorted to using the stalls. Is this a physical problem, or is it psychological? Will I ever be able to correct it? -- Still Waiting in Rochester

DEAR S.W. Your dilemma has appeared in this columm before. The advice I gave then is still good.

First, the trouble is in your head. If it were anywhere else, you wouldn't be able to urinate privately. Second, you say you are not ashamed of your body. No conscious shame, perhaps, but you have a hang-up that goes back to childhood.

If this problem is so troublesome that you are willing to spend the time and money to talk it out with a therapist, go ahead. But unless you have a burning desire to urinate for an audience, the stall arrangement seems to be the perfect solution.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiance and I plan to be married in the near future. With part-time jobs and student loans we have put ourselves through college. We get along beautifully. The only problem is his parents.

They are both 50 and alcoholics. They haven't worked in five years and live on money from relatives. There is never any nourishing food in the house - only pretzels, potato chips and booze.

I come from a hard-working family and am not accustomed to moochers. Realistically, the burden will fall on us somewhere down the road. My fiance says he has an obligation to them, no matter what, because they are his parents. What can you suggest? -- No Free Handouts.

DEAR N.F.H.: Your letter brings to mind an old Chinese saying: "If you give a man a fish, he will have food for one day. If you teach him how to fish, he will eat for the rest of his life."

Your fiance's parents need to become self-sufficient. I recommend Alcoholics Anonymous. If they won't go, your fiance and you should join the Al-Anon and learn how to deal with the problem because, as you said, it will be yours "Somewhere down the road."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a runaway. I was happy you told the child to go home. Runaways are targets for rape, robbery, drug dealers and beatings much more severe that what they would get if they went home.

Most parents are thrilled to get a call saying their child is safe and will not be abusive when the child returns.

Please, if you are a runaway or if you know a kid on the run, refer to the telephone book for the nearest runaway shelter or hotline. If you are in danger of abuse, there are appropriate referrals for that, too. Don't take a chance on the streets. The national runaway hotline is free. Call 1-800-621-4000. (In Illinois call 1-800-972-6004).--Someone Who Cares

DEAR SOMEONE: You wrote an important letter today. Many heartfelt thanks.

Youth writing workshop set

Area students are invited to participate in the second annual Junior High and High School Writing Workshop and Contest sponsored by Texas Press Women, District 15, from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Nov. 13 in the Ordway Auditorium at Amarillo College.

Workshops will be conducted by experts in the areas of news writing, feature writing, headline writing and page layout. Students will be able to participate in two workshops or one workshop and a tour of the Amarillo College radio and television studio.

Competition will be held for both junior high and high school students in news writing, headline writing and feature writing. Students may enter one contest each with first and second place certificates to be awarded.

To conclude the half-day event, participants will hear a short presentation and be able to direct questions to a panel consisting of experts in radio and television news, photography, advertising and public relations.

A $3 registration fee will be collected at the door.

For further information, contact Teresa Johnson, publicity chairman at 374-2861 or 352-3271.

Today In History

Today is Friday, Nov. 5, the 309th day of 1982. There are 56 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 5, 1605, the so-called "Gunpowder Plot" by Guy Fawkes to blow up Britain's houses of Parliament was uncovered.

On this date:

In 1940, President Franklin Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented third term.

In 1962, Saudi Arabia severed relations with the United Arab Republic.

In 1970, the Vatican reformed the Roman Catholic mass.

In 1979, Iranian militants seized the British embassy in Tehran and U.S. embassy hostages began their second day in captivity.

Ten years ago: The polls predicted a landslide reelection victory for President Richard Nixon over Democratic challenger George McGovern.

Five years ago: The Soviet Union declared a limited amnesty for prisoners in honor of the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, but apparently excluded political dissidents.

One year ago: The Canadian government and its nine predominantly English-speaking provinces reached agreement on a new Canadian constitution.

Today's birthdays: Cowboy actor-singer Roy Rogers is 70 years old. Singer-composer Paul Simon is 40.

Dallas Engineer calls for ban of bypasses

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Industry officials say bypasses used to route natural gas around meters in need of repairs are necessary safety devices, but a Dallas engineer told a Railroad Commission panel that the bypasses can be used to steal gas.

D.E. Brown, who has spent several years looking into the use of the bypasses, testified Thursday there is no legitimate use for the devices.

"Anything relating to a bypass ought to be eliminated, period, unless there is an exception granted by the commission," he said.

Three commission examiners listened to testimony on proposed revisions in rules on gas measurement. Brown wants bypasses banned. He said the gas run through them and not metered could cost the state $100 million in taxes, in addition to cheating royalty owners.

"I don't know of any installation where the bypass line is either needed or justified. If there is, I'd like to see it," said Brown.

Michael Cooper, Brown's lawyer, said, "These types of devices present the opportunity for gas to go into the purchaser's pipeline without its being accounted for to the seller."

He said "a significant amount of gas is passing through the bypass underneath the meter" even when the valves to the bypass are closed.

But Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association witnesses said the bypasses are vital safety measures, needed to reroute gas when meters need servicing.

"You could not inspect the (meter) without this so-called bypass," he said, adding that shutting a line down to check a meter could damage wells or facilities on the line.

He said it cost "several thousand dollars" to bring back a Beeville well that was shut down during servicing of a meter on a line without a bypass.

As many as 3,000 bypasses now are in use in the state, according to Mid-Continent witness Carl Hester of Exxon USA.

The bypasses allow meters to be checked and services with "closing in oil and gas fields," said Hester.

Brown, a 30-year veteran of the gas business, first discovered a bypass on a line from his property 10 years ago. He said he recently traveled the state with an official from the state comptroller's office and found many bypasses in use.

He called for a Railroad Commission survey to determine how many bypasses exist.

The three commission examiners will review the testimony and make a recommendation to the commission.

Ag Commissioner-elect promises early action

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Hightower, agriculture commissioner-elect, says his administration "will hit the ground running" after he takes office by working for a new national farm policy and helping improve Texas farm markets.

Hightower said he got 63 percent of the vote, over Republican Fred Thornberry, and carried all but 17 counties.

"To me this was a loud message the voters have sent saying they want us to do something, they want to get this department active, they want to get state government active on the economic problems our people are having," he said Thursday.

Hightower said he had talked with current Commissioner Reagan Brown, who was defeated in the Democratic primary, and was working on transition plans.

He said his first efforts as commissioner would be to work for a new national farm policy and to beef up marketing efforts by the State Department.

Hightower said he would go to Washington if necessary when the new farm legislation comes before Congress to work for a moratorium on farm home foreclosures and for a new farm bill that includes higher target prices for crops and higher loan rates.

A small staff would be set up in the commissioner's office to keep up with federal legislation and work with Texas' officials in Washington, he said.

Hightower said another staff would be developed to work on finding new international markets for Texas farmers and ranchers.

Professor tackles murders - via nuclear reactor

IRVINE, Calif.(AP) — Most of the time, Dr. Vincent P. Guinn teaches chemistry at a local university. But he has also investigated some of the country's most notorious crimes, all with the help of a nuclear reactor.

Guinn, who gave expert testimony in the assassination of John F. Kennedy and the Juan Corona mass murders, uses a technique called neutron activation analysis, which he pioneered in the early 1960s.

He bombards evidence samples with neutrons so they become radioactive, then places them in a gamma ray detection device that shows what elements, including impurities, are present. Such impurities — including silver, arsenic, copper and tin — vary between batches of ammunition so that they essentially serve as fingerprints.

"You can analyze and compare known samples recovered from a suspect's gun and can tell whether a bullet used in a crime was made from the same melt of lead," said Guinn, a professor at University of California at Irvine.

In the case of Juan Corona, a farm labor contractor recently re-convicted of the murders of 25 migrant farm workers in Northern California, Guinn examined a bullet taken from the only victim who was not stabbed, as well as a hair sample thought to be Corona's that was taken from a shovel.

During the retrial, Guinn took the witness stand and disputed testimony from the first trial linking the evidence to Corona, saying the previous analysis had been bungled.

"I have no way of telling whether Juan Corona is guilty or innocent," he said. "But what I did was present a lot of evidence in the record and I didn't encounter any evidence that proved his guilt."

Guinn has testified at more than 80 trials, some as far away as Canada and South Korea, during the past 13 years.

"The Ivory Tower (of university life) tends to shield you from reality," he said. "If you're going to do research in forensic chemistry you must get involved in criminal cases."

Perhaps the best-known case he's worked on is the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Guinn was asked to examine the bullets that killed the president and injured then-Texas Gov. John Connelly and to testify before a speeial committee of the U.S. House of Representatives when it held hearings into the matter in 1977.

Guinn told the committee that the bullets from Lee Harvey Oswald's rifle were the only ones that hit the presidential motorcade moving through downtown Dallas.

"All I can say is the only one who hit anybody was Oswald," Guinn said, referring to theories that there was more than one gunman.

"There may have been 50 people shooting. But what is clear is if there were other people shooting, they didn't hit anybody or anything in the car."

Guinn has also testified that Symbionese Liberation Army leader Donald DeFreeze did not put a bullet through his own head during a shootout with Los Angeles police in 1974 after the Patty Hearst kidnapping. And he took the stand to say that a Riverside County deputy sheriff slain during a shootout after a 1980 Norco bank robbery was not killed by a fellow officer's gun.

He admits that working for a university rather than law enforcement allows him to be selective about what he investigates.

"I'm fortunate that I don't have to take every case," said Guinn, who says he chooses only cases that are particularly difficult or unusual.

Judge talks defendant out of acting as lawyer

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal magistrate has agreed to appoint attorneys for two men indicted in a $15 million extortion-bomb plot after dissuading one of the men from acting as his own lawyer.

U.S. Magistrate Frank Waltermire chose a lawyer for Michael Worth, 34, Thursday and promised to find one for John McBride, 46, after agreeing that neither could afford to hire counsel.

A third defendant, Theodore McKinney, 45, told Waltermire he already had retained a lawyer.

The three Durango, Colo., men are among five people indicted on charges they tried to extort $15 million from Gulf Oil Chemicals Co. by threatening to blow up a refinery.

McBride, the alleged mastermind of the extortion attempt, first asked to be allowed to represent himself. But he accepted Waltermire's offer to appoint an attorney.

"The technicalities involved in the federal rules of evidence ... are burdensome for some very good lawyers. I hope you will consider that," Waltermire told McBride.

He then asked McBride if he would accept an attorney.

"Very definitely, your honor," McBride said.

Waltermire appointed Houston lawyer George McCall Secrest to represent Worth.

The magistrate kept the bond for each of the trio at $1 million each.

Two other Durango residents — Timothy K. Justice, 30, and Jill Renee Bird, 34 — are charged in the 12-count indictment.

Dried apple delights

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — My apple-growing aunt has just given me a large quantity of dried apple slices. They are very tasty just eaten as it, but I'd like to know if I can use them in recipes calling for fresh apples — pies and cakes for example. How should I prepare the apples before using in these recipes? — CHRIS

DEAR CHRIS — Lucky, lucky you to have an aunt that lavishes such wonderful bounty on you! I'm envious. Of course, they won't have the texture of fresh, raw apple slices, but you can reconstitute dried apples and use them in cooked apple recipes like pies, cakes, turnovers, breads, etc. Put as many slices as you need in a bowl and add just enough boiling water to cover them. Let the apples soak for several hours or until tender. Any soaking water not absorbed into the fruit is full of flavor and vitamins so don't throw it away. If you can't use it as juice in the recipe you're preparing, save it for mixing in other fruit recipes or add it to other fruit juice. Stewed dried apples are good, too. Cover with boiling water and simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. Serve warm or chilled, sweeten to taste if necessary. For a special treat, float a little light cream (or heavy cream if you're in the mood for a real splurge!) on top of each serving. It's an old-fashioned treat that is full of heavenly flavor. You might also do a little research in the cookbook section of your public library for recipes for dried apple pie — there are some marvelous old recipes around that would be worth giving a try. Have fun! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My family loves canned apple chunks, so every year I have a lot of apple peelings to use up. I bake them as you do baked apples. Lay them out in a baking dish, dot with butter, pour a little cream over them, sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon and a tiny bit of water to provide a little juice. Bake until tender. We all love them, and I love not wasting all those apple peelings. A bushel of apples goes twice as far. — PATSY

DEAR POLLY — A piece of black elastic works fine as a watch band. Make sure the elastic is as wide as the watch. Loop through each side of the watch and sew the ends together. Looks good and is cheap. — MRS. M.

DEAR POLLY — Serving popcorn to guests has become a problem lately with some people not allowed salt. I save clean plastic one-pound cartons from cottage cheese and use them as individual serving dishes. Each person can have salt or not, have butter or not, just as they like. — E.B.

DEAR POLLY — Need a substitute for expensive nuts? Use rolled oats. Brown the oats in a small amount of butter or margarine and use as you would nuts. — DOTTY

DEAR POLLY — Save on hairspray by spraying it onto your brush instead of your hair. A little spray goes a lot further. FERN

DEAR POLLY — Here's a way to turn a long string of pearls or other beads into a choker. Put the unhooked necklace around your neck, looping one end around your neck to fit as desired. Then wrap the long hanging end around the part wrapped around your neck so that the result is an intertwined double strand. Adjust so the two ends meet and you can close the catch. Makes a unique and unusually attractive necklace. — D.D.

FAITH WILL GIVE YOU PATIENCE FOR TODAY'S WORLD

In this age of instant foods and virtually everything else, we often clamor for the immediate fulfillment of all our wishes as a matter of course. Patience has nearly become a lost art because we seem to have so little need of it in this push-button era. However, faith in God will not only help you regain your patience, but will let you know if the rapid results you have come to expect are really worthwhile attaining. There may be no such thing as instant success, but there is an instant faith which will direct you toward it in the proper manner. It's as near as your Church.

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing."
— James 1:4

He that has patience may compass anything.
— Francois Rabelais
