Free Bridge Assured—Burkett

Youth Drives 30 Miles With Dead Body Beside Him

He Shoots School Teacher And Props Corpse In Automobile Seat

FINALLY LOSESE IT

Murder Charges Are Filed Against Boy As a Result

LAMONTE, Mo., Aug. 12.—(AP) Everett Adams drove for more than 30 miles with the dead body of Aden R. Clawson, Lodi, N. Y., school teacher, propped up beside him, before depositing the body in a ditch along a lonely road three and a half miles southwest of here today.

This is the belief of officials investigating the case since the finding of the body early today.

All indications are, officials said, that the 17-year-old Wilmington, O., youth shot Clawson while he was driving his car near Otterville, Mo., 30 miles east of here, propped the body up in the seat beside him and then drove through Sedalia and LaMonte to the culvert on the little traveled road where the body was found.

Places Coincide.

Otterville officials said it is the only place that coincides with the youth's description of the scene of the slaying, as given in his confession of the crime to officials at Garden City, Kan. It is the only point on highway number 12 between Jefferson City and LaMonte, where there is a "detour to California" sign at the foot of a steep graveled hill, such as the youth described.

B. F. Parker, LaMonte undertaker, said the blood had settled to the legs of the body which indicated it had been in a sitting or standing posture for some time after death.

Clawson's body was found at 8:30 o'clock this morning by George F. Myer, a farmer living about a quarter of a mile from the scene. Myer found the body when he went to investigate a stench in the ditch by the side of the road. He notified officials. Myer thought the body that of a negro because of its blackened state and said he had not heard of the Clawson murder.

Body Identified.

Many articles of identification were about the body. In a leather pouch in the coat pocket were found a book of travelers checks, amounting to $270 made out to Clawson; a life insurance policy on his life and a deed of sale to the automobile he was driving. The peculiar gold fillings in the teeth would have made identification possible even without the other evidence, according to Parker.

The body was brought to LaMonte where an inquest will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m.

MURDER CHARGES ARE FILED IN SEDALIA

SEDALIA, Mo., Aug. 12—(A.P.)—Charges of first degree murder were filed late today against Everett Adams, 17, of Wilmington, Ohio, in connection with the slaying of Aden R. Clawson of Lodi, N. Y. The charges were filed by Roy Rucker, Pettis county prosecutor. Preliminary hearing probably will be held Friday, Rucker said.

THE WEATHER

"I had a good joke on Mama out on the lawn last night, all right. I told her it was a snake I put in her lap, and it was just a fuzzy worm."

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.

He says to me, he says, says he,
"When winter's here, and ice is thick,
Before the lake or river's free
You surely get almighty sick
Of ice and snow along the shore—
In August that you holler for.

"In August then we long for snow,
In January want the sun.
Although a lot of folks I know,
I never yet knew anyone
Who had the thing he wanted bad—
Or, rather, wanted what he had.

"And yet, at that, we want 'em both,
The hot and cold, the wet and dry.
I tell you, brother, on my oath,
We'd weary of a cloudless sky.
We're better off for sorrow's touch—
If it don't hang around too much.
"Instead of seeking August ice
Or January roses, I'm
A-trying hard to think they're nice,
But nicest in their proper time.
Sorrow and joy, it stands to reason,
Like fruit, won't hurt you—not in season"

DROUTH-DRIED TEXAS POINTS ASK FOR HELP

Immediate Aid Will Be Sought Through I. C. C. At Washington

WANT LOWER RATES

Plans Discussed Thursday At Austin by Gilmore And Committee

AUSTIN, Aug. 12.—Plans for giving immediate relief to drouth stricken Texas counties by reducing freight rates on intrastate shipments of feedstuffs and planting seed were discussed late today by Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman of the Texas railroad commission, with Chairman W. D. Ferris, Ennis, and Secretary A. L. Reed of the permanent citizens' committee for drouth relief. Results of the conference were not disclosed.

Will Petition I. C. C.

Earlier in the day the citizens' committee had agreed to petition the interstate commerce commission to send a representative to a general conference looking toward obtaining of a 50 per cent reduction of freight rates on feed stuffs and planting seed from intrastate points, and had also agreed to file an application with the Texas railroad commission asking that the commission force intrastate railroads to give a 50 per cent reduction on feed stuffs and planting seed to the druth stricken counties, in the event the intrastate roads refused a request that is to be made them for the reduction.

Makes no Prediction.

Chairman Gilmore refused to predict what the action of the Texas commission would be, should the intrastate roads refuse the reduction. "Let's give the railroads a fair chance to come to their decision on the matter," he said.

Mr. Gilmore said the commission had well defined views on the whole question of drouth stricken are relief and was doing everything possible to expedite relief.

PLANES RACE AGAINST ARCTIC WINTER

MacMillan Finds Aerial Base In Icy Wilderness

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Covering in a few hours territory which explorers a few years ago might have labored over for month, the airplanes of the MacMillan Arctic expedition have spotted a likely location for an intermediate base between Etah, Greenland, and Cape Thomas hubbard.

Two trips over the icy mountains of Ellesmere island in weather that chilled to the bone were necessary to find the landing place. The first of these trips last Saturday carried the planes over rugged country never before traversed by civilized men.

The second journey yesterday, although made difficult by low flying clouds was successful in disclosing at Bettetad Fjord, 100 miles from Etah, what appeared to be a suitable location, and the planes was scheduled to move to that point late last night.

The necessity for working rapidly was explained here as due to the rapid approach of colder weather in the region where the planes are to do their exploring. Little more than two weeks of the fairly good weather remains for this purpose, before winter begins to tighten its frigid grip on the Arctic.

Judge Offers to Send Women Home as They Laugh at Scott Trial

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 12.—"One more break like that and I'll send all you ladies home to get supper."

Such was the adjurgation late this afternoon of Judge Emerick when a pronounced titter came from the court room packed with women at the divorce hearing of Congressman Frank D. Scott and his wife, Edna James Scott. The laugh was started by the manner in which Scott handled a flimsy dressing gown of his wife's when he took the witness stand.

Keyhole peeking by a house detective; alleged misconduct of Mrs. Scott; liquor drinking in Washington congressional circles; alleged intimidation of witnesses—all of which brought vigorous denials from both sides marked today's session of the hearing.

The Scotts, husband and wife, told their conflicting stories of martial discord: Frederick Sikes, a Washington house detective, pictured parties in Mrs. Scott's Washington apartment, with an alleged bootlegger as her companion; Charles Tremaine of Detroit, described the much-press ugented parties at Lake Orion, Mich., where Mrs. Scott was said to have taken part in liquor revels.

Tremaine who described the gatherings at the lake to which reference

SONS OF THE SHEIK :-: :-: :-: by E. M. Hull

Romance, Political Intrigue, Arab Thievery, the Witchery of Desert Days and Nights—All Woven Together in a Master Drama. Read the Synopsis, Turn to Page 4 and

ALL was not well with the scattered, nomadic tribesmen in the sandy, wind-swept wastes of Algers.

Ahmed ben Hassan, strong, domineering, but polished and capable Arab chieftan, loyal to the French rule that encompassed him, sought the meaning of the unrest. From his luxurious desert camp he had scouted for, incognito—disguised as wandering holy man, beggar, groom and what not. He had learned some sinister foreign power was spreading propaganda against France—and in the learning he had once suffered bodily harm.

But recently he had returned to his camp and his wife.

Diana, mother of his two twin-sons; a flower of womanliness, lithe, athletic, regale, brave, worshiped by her Arab slaves, deeply loving of and as deeply loved by her husband, received him with passionate joy. She had worried for the long months he had been away—and she dreaded the separation she knew would come again when it should be necessary that he go again on his dangerous mission of ferreting out the ill that beset the country.

But she worried silently over other things.

Ahmed, her son, cast in the same mould and fashioned of the same timbut as his father: Ahmed had been gone six weeks. His headstrong confidence in his 20-year youthful strength had carried him afar before and brought stormy scenes with his father. But he had returned. Now, though his mother was beset with a vague uneasiness. And she did not know that a passing love fancy had taken him far from camp through a territory beset with thieves and robbers; she did not know that while he drank the love of a wandering desert maiden he had chanced upon in a dingy cafe one night he had been struck down by a trio of thieving murderers. Nor did she knew that he had been subjected to an inquisition by the trio who sought to learn of his knowledge of the political situations. He had, however, escaped bodily torture and death by the arrival of his two personal bodyguards, Ramadan and S'rir who leapt through a window of his prison and cut the fetters that bound him.

There was another worry for Diana. The other twin, Caryll, had left her at the age of five to go to his grandfather in England. The grandfather—her husband's father, and her husband—his son, were estranged. The lad had been sent to fill an arbitrary vacancy in the lineal scheme. He was trained at Eton; versed in all the modes of the wealthy inglishman; used to the lavishness that all money could buy. And now he was returning to the desert camp of his father and mother, not because he or they wanted it, but because business necessity demanded.

Caryll and Saint Hubert were on their way to Algiers and were quartered in a small hotel in Touggourt. They awaited a note from Diana giving explicit instructions as to the location of her camp. While there Caryll excoriated his father while Saint Hubert suffered silently. The latter, a sort of liason officer between Ahmed ben Hassan and his English kin, was a secret lover of Diana. He had relinquished her to Ahmed and rejoiced in her happiness. Without envy, without malice, he had labored secretly that both might sup their own cups of joy.

Now he was returning to them with their son—the one who had not seen his mother since he was five, and who even now was berating his father as a hybrid desert wanderer, unfit to associated with.

Saint Hubert was in a reverie, worrying over the forthcoming visit with Sheik Ahmed and Diana. He was aroused by Caryll, exclaiming, "Hubert, I wish you were my father."

Golden State Gasoline Leggers Blamed For Refined Market Slump

CALIFORNIA TIPS MARKET ONCE AGAIN

Pacific Coast 11-cent Gas Delivered at Bayonne For 13 Cents

BIG SURPLUS

Mid-Continent Gasoline Excluded For East by High Freight Rates

In 1923 when there was an overproduction of crude oil in southern California the crude oil market could not stand the strain and it broke. Now in 1925 California is again threatening to wreck the market. This time it is gasoline. Refineries situated in California are reported to be manufacturing more gasoline than that and all other Pacific coast states can consume, so the surplus is being shipped by tank steamer through the Panama Canal to the Atlantic coastal states. Gasoline of U. S. motor specification is made at the California refinery for 11 cents a gallon and delivered at Bayonne, N. J., for 13 cents.

This fact, according to Mid-Continent refiners, explains why the tank wagon and service station prices of gasoline in New England, New Jersey, Atlantic and Louisiana territories have been reduced lately. The influx of California gasoline is forcing the market down. So far the reductions have had no effect in the Mid-Continent for it has been over a year since any gasoline from the five Mid-Continent states reached the Atlantic, New Jersey or New England territories, due to higher freight rates.

Mid-Continent refiners are curtailing gasoline manufacture as much as possible and the situation in the five states is reported in good condition.

The daily average production east of California was 1,463,700 barrels, an increase of 18,800.

Oklahoma shows a daily average production of 445,700 barrels, a decrease of 100 barrels; Kansas 106,650; an increase of 1,300; North Texas 80,100, a decrease of 50; East Central Texas 95,100, a decrease of 2,550; West Central Texas 75,000, a decrease of 4,100; North Louisiana 49,550, a decrease of 500; Arkansas 258,800, an increase of 17,200; gulf coast 96,700, an increase of 1,300; Southwest Texas 44,500, a decrease of 650; Eastern 105,000, an increase of 1,000; Wyoming 86,850, an increase of 4,550; Montana 12,500, an increase of 450; Colorado 4,000, an increase of 850; New Mexico 3,550, an increase of 100; California 675,500, an increase of 6,000.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the week ending Aug. 8, were 177,143 barrels compared with 135,571 for the previous week and 183,964 for the four weeks ending Aug. 8. Daily average receipts of California oil at Atlantic and gulf coast ports for the week ending Aug. 8 were 62,143 barrels compared with 55,714 and 75,143 for the four weeks ending Aug. 8. Pennsylvania crue was cut 25 cents and now is quoted at $3.65 a barrel for Bradford district; all other grades being quoted at from $3.20 to $3.55.

No other changes were reported for the major district. Gulf coast crude is quoted at $1.50 for grade "A" and $1.25 for grade "B." Mid-Continent crude oil is quoted at $1.40 to $2.68, according to gravity. California prices range from $1.25 to $2.40, according to gravity.

Roxana Opens New Horizon at Garber

Another new producing horizon at Garber-Covington (Oklahoma) has been uncovered by the Roxana Petroleum corporation, making probably the fifteenth pay area there. The newest horizon appears at this moment to be one of the best that the Garber-Covington field has yielded.

The No. 2-W Schroeder has limy pay at 4,130 feet, and at 4,145 feet it began to flow and five feet in the flow icreased to 15 barrels an hour. There was a break from 4,150 to 4,155 feet which yielded 8,000,000 feet of gas. At that depth to 4,158 the big pay occurred and this resulted in an initial flow of 137 barrels an hour. Drilled to 4,163 feet the production settled to 120 barrels an hour and held.

Officials of the Roxana company declared that the new producing horizon was unquestionably the first break in the Mississippi lime, making it 160 feet above the silicious lime, where the Roxana's No. 1-W Wolfe, in the southeast of the southeast of the northwest of 13-22-4w, had the first gas showing.

Oil Gossip

Roy I. Carter telegraphed from Seattle yesterday that the going was fine except for punctures. Mr. Carter is expected back in north Texas in about two weeks. His family is with him.

Bert Cranfill is in Colorado.

Seen yesterday: Office manager of one of the larger independent companies here whiling away a lazy hour between 1 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon at a downtown picture show. Explanations are the vogue now.

The granting of permission to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad to construct an extension from its present Enid-Billings branch into Ponca City means that both the Marland Refining company and the Empire Refineries, Inc., will go ahead with plans to double the capacities of these plants. This is the word that comes semi-officially from all parties concerned.

The Marland Refining company plant is now able to run 15,000 barrels of crude oil a day, and it will be increased to 30,000 barrels, making it one of the largest in the Mid-Continent. Construction work is to start early in September.

The Empire plant, owned by the Doherty interests, and where it now runs 8,000 barrels a day, it will be enlarged to run 16,000 barrels. The lubricant plant will be doubled, the cracking plant rebuilt and the crude stills increased in number.

"I plead guilty to justifiable homicide," replied the haberdasher.

"You killed the man, didn't you?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir," replied the haberdasher frankly. "I hit him over the head with a chair with all the force at my command."

START WORK ON SAMSON HALL AT TEXAS U

$350,000 Classroom Named For Former Head Of History Dept.

AUSTIN, Texas.—Garrison hall, $350,000 classroom building of Texas university now under construction, in addition to providing enough rooms to accommodate several hundred students in the building during any given hour, will provide offices for faculty members o fthe social science group, E. J. Mathews, registrar, said. The basement offices will be assigned to members of the government department faculty; first floor offices will go to the history department; second floor to the philosophy and psychology departments, and the third floor to the economics and anthropolgy faculty members.

"The new building will fill a long felt need, as it will represent the most modern ideas in classroom construction, and the offices are to be commodious and advantageously located," said the registrar, who has a large part in drawing up the classroom and office assignments.

At its July meeting, the Texas university board of regents decided to call the new classroom building Garrison hall, memorializing Dr. H. C. Garrison, who until his death in 1910 was for 20 years head of the history department of Texas university. Dr. Garrison was considered one of the outstanding authorities on the history of the southwest. He was a native of Scotland and received his doctor of laws degree from the University of Edinburgh.

Indian Rajahs Travel Expensively

LONDON.—Occidental millionaires in all their golden glory seldom travel in such expansive and expensive style as the fabulously rich Indian rulers, several of whom are now enjoying holidays in London. The maharajah of Jodhpur, one of the first of the native princes to reach London for the social season, brought along a polo team, several wives and a vast retinue of servants, settling himself in a veritable mansion just outside London. His entertainments have been on a scale much more lavish than those of the royal families of Europe.

This week the maharajah of Patiala with his consort and an enormous suite, disembarked at Marseilles and hired a special train to convey his party across France to the English channel. The entire floor of 100 rooms in London's largest hotel is being occupied exclusively by this potentate and his entourage, while part of another floor is devoted to their baggage. In the court yard of the hotel are several limousines which stand all day ready for immediate use.

Two bedrooms have been converted into kitchens where the maharajah's own chefs cook rice he brought with him from India and flavored meat and seafood dishes. Later the maharajah is going to Geneva to represent the potentates of India at league of nations headquarters.

New York Merchants Start Police Department of Their Own as A Precaution Against Repeated Loss

Mounting Cost of Burglary Insurance Results in Employment of Special Officers, Sharpshooters, Guards And Night Watchmen

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—While the national crime commission is arousing public opinion to the end that New York may be made safer for New Yorkers and their professions and the Fifth Avenue association is clamoring for 2,000 additional police, there is an economic factor that is working over time to the same end. This is the mounting rate for burglary insurance.

The immediate result has been to cause many financial houses and merchandising establishments to set up defenses of their own. For obvious reasons not much is said publicly about this private protection, but a tour through that part of Manhattan south of Times Square reveals and extraordinary situation and suggests that the business of robbery and burglary in the future may be as hazardous a risk for criminals as it has been for the insurances companies.

The most notable departure has been that on the par of the Furriers' Security Alliance, the members of which have been especially hard hit. Two recent robberies each netted the thieves loot of $150,000. Insurance companies have in some cases cancelled policies on fur stocks.

The alliance has organized a squad of sharpshooters composed of ex-service men and these supplement the patrol of the wholesale fur district lying generally in the vinicinty of the Pennsylvania station. Silk and velvet dealers on Madison and Fourth avenues have added to the number of their private watchmen and in addition almost without exception have connected their establishments by electrical alarm signals with private agencies who maintain automobile patrols to respond to signals.

Elsewhere store rooms and vaults are crowded with merchandise of inestimable value the same elaborate precautions have been taken. Private detective agencies are reaping a harvest by furnishing special guards for jewelry firms in the theatre and shopping districts.

In the score of major robberies during July five successful attacks were made on cashiers or clerks returning from banks with the week's payroll and there were seven hold-ups of jewelry stores or salesmen. Steel armoured cars long in use for the transfer of cash securities and other valuables, are more commonly seen on the streets than before. The bolder of the highwaymen seem to have turned their attention from cigar and candy stores to ticket booths in subway and elevated stations.

PARADISE OF COLUMBIA

According to the reviewer of the Royal Bank of Canada, there are few store houses of untouched and measured wealth to compare with the resources that remain to be developed in the republic of Columbia. In this South American country twice the size of France, and with only one-third of its territory inhabited, there lie vast stretches about which little is known.

Columbia has a national debt of less than thirty-five million dollars. This amount is less than the debt of many medium-sized cities in other parts of the world. Canadian capital is being invested in Columbia. Columbia produced $46,000,000 worth of coffee last year. Columbia is a large producer of bananas, tobacco, cattle, vegetable ivory, emeralds, platinum and gold. Columbia has one of the longest rivers in the world, the Magdalena, which is navigable for 930 miles. Cattle is the leading industry, although there are other products such as sugar, rice, cotton and corn that represent real wealth to the country.

Moreover the best mild coffee in the world comes from Columbia and in order that the high quality of the product may be retained rigid rules have been established concerning seed importation. Columbia invites homeseekers from all parts of the world. Columbia invites capitalists who are investors from all climes.

Italy has a surplus population of fifteen millions, Great Britain has a surplus population of fifteen millions. Germany has a large surplus. Columbia stands with outstretched hands with a glad welcome to all comers who are willing to obey her laws and better their economic fortunes.

It is said that the Japs have an eye on Columbia but a Japanese invasion of any one of the South American republics would be frowned upon by the powers that be. Thousands of Italians are migrating to Argentine; thousands of Germans are going to Brazil.

Fifty years hence the Latin American republics, if federated, will be one of the most powerful nations that time has known. It is written this way in the big book of Destiny.

RUBBER TAKES A TUMBLE

Rubber has taken a tumble. John Bull controls the crude rubber market of the world. There was a jump in a very short period in the price of crude rubber from 36 cents to $1.15 a pound. Then the price dropped seven cents. Regardless of the protests of American business men who are the greatest consumers of rubber in the world, Mr. Bull promises to continue his grip on the commodity and restrict its sale.

And then there is coffee. Americans are the greatest coffee drinkers in the world. Brazil is the largest producer of the coffee bean. Now the coffee producing states of Brazil are organized as one man and the price of coffee for Americans will be fixed by the Brazilian government. Now what would happen to Birmingham and Manchester and the other great industrial cities of England if the United States government restricted the sale of cotton to foreigners and fixed the price of the commodity? It would reduce British spinners to poverty and British wage workers to pauperism.

Regardless of this, business is business. American cotton is the only product in the world on which the producer is denied the right of price fixing. He hasn't a voice. He furnishes the land, the seed, the labor and the gamble is all his. He never has fixed the price of the fleecy staple. This has been fixed for him by foreign spinners who in other years have worked hand in hand with the spinners of New England.

Mexico should be made a large producer of rubber. There was a time when Brazil was a large producer. This was before the coming of the auto age. Many of the Philippine Islands could be converted into rubber producing lands. Henry Ford is a billionaire. He is going to try out Florida as a rubber producer. Harvey Firestone is a multimillionaire. He is working hand in hand with Henry Ford.

In the coming years Mr. John Bull's rubber monopoly will be broken. In the coming years the Brazilian coffee monopoly will be broken. This is the American way.

WHEAT CROP OF THE WORLD

Wheat production in the seventeen principal grain producing countries estimated by the department of agriculture at 2,110,000,000 bushels, a gain of 55,000,000 bushels over last year. Hungary and Bulgaria and Roumania showed an increase of 42 per cent over last year. Roumania will have a surplus of 25,000,000 bushels available for export.

It is wiser to raise wheat than it is to raise hell and the Roumanians have made the discovery. Hungary will have for export ten million bushels. All the wheat producing countries of Central Europe have been blessed with bumper crops.

After eight years the peasants of Europe are not only finding themselves but they are feeding themselves. History is merely repeating itself.

AN OPTIMISTIC BISHOP

Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal diocese of New York makes the prediction that the churches of the world, including the Catholic church, will eventually work in interdenominational union with one another. He predicts that in the union the Church of England will not be destroyed but will continue stronger and greater than ever. Then the Milennial dawn must be approaching. All the denominations have not been doing it in the by gone centuries. They are not doing it today. They pray to the same God and right there they come to the parting of the ways.

ASHES TO ASHES

A survey says that in the United States 618 homes burn daily or one every three minutes and that the total fire waste for the past four years was $322,000,000. Americans are the most careless people in Christendom.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Wrong Roads.

In a part of one of the desert districts of western America, the motorist will come upon a fine hard road, leading away out of sight into the distance.

The road on which he is traveling when he makes this discovery is sandy and uneven.

He has been longing for some score of miles for good going under the wheels of his car.

Naturally when he comes upon this fine paved thoroughfare he is all for taking it. If he does take it, defying the sign which tells him that his own sandy road will lead in the right direction, he will discover after five or six miles that the road isn't going anywhere.

It was built to a mining development which proved a failure. At its end is a collection of melancholy deserted shanties, and the foundation of a mill—nothing more. So back he takes his way to the old track over the desert, and jolts along over it with the realization that a bad road, that takes a man where he is going, is far better than a good one which takes him to nowhere at all.

In ordinary life a young man will find many good roads like the one that temporarily brightens the hopes of travelers on this western desert.

Many of them are easy going and smooth, but if they do not lead to destruction, like the broad road mentioned in the Bible, they lead to places so far out of one's way, and which one has no occasion whatever to visit.

It is often harder traveling on the right road than on the wrong ones, but the right roads have the merit of being direct, and of ending in some destination that is worth attaining.

In an office where I spend some time are a number of young men who constantly complain about the going they find.

Yet for some of them the road they are on is the right road, and even if it is unpleasant and uncomfortable, it will be worth their while to follow it to the end.

For others it may be, and quite probably is, the wrong road.

But it does not follow that any of the more pleasant highways which they look at so longingly are the right roads.

One must know a great deal about roads before he can surely pick the right one. He must know a great deal about life before he can be certain that the destinations at their ends are worth reaching.

But of one thing he may be sure.

In business no right road is easy, and most wrong roads are.

No employment, which offers easy hours, long vacations and light work, will either bring a man to happiness, or develop in him the ability that is necessary to important achievement.

Water may rush along the easiest ways, find its way to the bottom of all hills, and rise once more into the clouds and perform the cycle all over again.

But human beings have no kindly sun to pluck them out of the depths and carry them to the skies again.

If they take the easy roads, following as does the river the line of the least resistance, they will stay at the bottom when they get there.

LARGEST OFFICE BUILDING IN THE WORLD.

New York is to have the largest office building in the world. It will cost 19 million dollars. It will be built opposite the Grand Central station. It will rise thirty stories above the street level and will go down seven stories in the solid rock. It will be completed before March 1, 1927.

Greater New York invested more capital in buildings the first six months of 1924 than any six months in history. It must be true that the growth of the city in population is so amazing that the prophets who predict a city of twenty million before the coming of 1950 know whereof they speak.

There is no city like it in the world. There is no city with a future like New York's. It is the financial capital of the world. It is one of the great manufacturing cities of the world. It gives more to charity than any other city in the world. It gives more to the cause of education than any other city in the world.

This for the croakers as well as the revilers of Gotham and its institutions and its people.

PACKERS GIVEN A JOLT.

A federal judge has decided that the big packers of Chicago must open their books to the agents of the federal government. This should be easy. Why not a set of books for the agents and another set of books for the edification of the packers and their employes? Is packing a public business or a private industry? If it is a public business this federal judge ruled like a Solomon. If it is a private industry then he ruled like a Dogberry.

Gone are the sleuth hounds of the Wilson administration. All the members of the federal trade commission are opposed to government in business. All the members of the federal tariff commission are for a protective tariff as high as the sky and these commissions were created for the protection of the people and not the protection of the select few.

Politics is an interesting game. Big business is in the saddle. Now don't damn big business. In 1920 by a majority of six million the people voted for a return to power of big business. In 1924 they repeated the dose by a majority of eight million.

MR. BULL'S CHILDREN

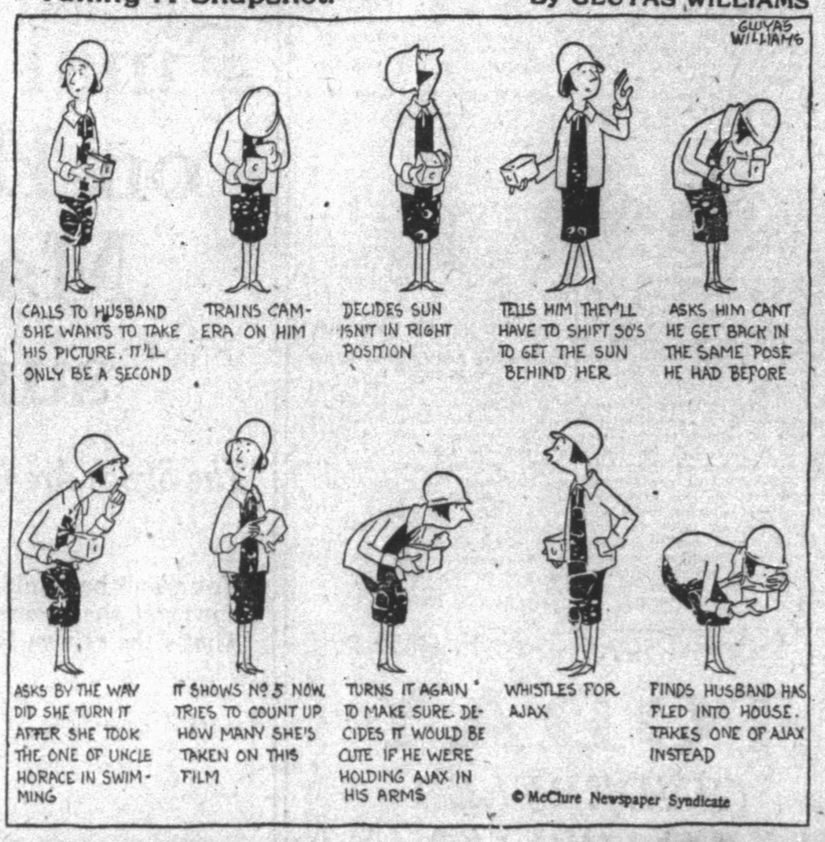

English manufacturers are demanding repeal or drastic modification of the restriction of exports of crude rubber from Malay and Ceylon. They say that the monopoly which has the support of their government threatens to ruin the manufacturers in England. It appears that the shoe pinches at home as well as in America. This year Americans will be taxed $400,000,000 instead of $200,000,000 as in 1924 but the howl that has ascended from the throats of British manufacturers should be pleasant music ever ringing in the ears of Americans who must pay the additional $200,000,000.

NOT THE SON OF HIS FATHER

Philander Knox was a great lawyer, a great senator and a very successful secretary of state. He ever voiced the conscience of the amalgamated wealth of Pennsylvania. He left behind him a son, Philander Jr. Philander Jr. is in the divorce court. His wife says that he is a drunkard, a woman beater and that he will not provide for his children and that he has deserted his family. This is a wicked old world but it is the best world that we know anything about. Mrs. Philander picked a lemon; that's all.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects are much less complex and more continuous than those of yesterday. They denote an exceptional spirit of optimism and a resoluteness in the face of difficulty, coupled with a courage that will not permit obstacles to stand in the way of success. It is an auspicious occasion for the launching of any enterprise, or the making of any change, about the desirability of which you are convinced, but from which you have held back for fear of consequences. In the evening, the signs portend less activity, but a benign and tranquil condition of mind, which, of course, presages happiness and contentment, "after the day's work is done."

Children born today, regardless of sex, are destined to enjoy similar physical conditions—given equality of care and environment—but will have entirely different temperaments and characters. They will suffer very little from infantile ailments, but will need much vigilance and attention during the "growing up" period. In disposition, the boy will be tractable, obedient, and submissive.

This does not mean that he will be a sissy boy, it does, however, denote that he will possess an innate sense of discipline, even though it may be imposed by others, or by himself. The girl, on the other hand, will chafe at all restraint or restrictions, be self-willed, and difficult, and always have a chip on her shoulder.

If today is your birthday, you possess very high ideals, and your ambitions and hopes are not only worthy, but practical. Many things are, however, put over on you, because you, in negotiations or association, always give credit to others for the honest motives that animate you. All the cards on the table, face up, is your motto and your practice. You always forget that your opponent may have a hidden ace.

You never attempt anything without meaning to succeed, and, no matter what difficulties may be encountered, you persist, through good repute and bad, until the goal is attained.

You are both emotional and sentimental, loyal to your kindred, and devoted, above everything else in the world, to your family. This great affection is, fortunately, reciprocated, as your sympathetic and whole-souled nature commands love, admiration and loyalty.

Successful people born on this date are:

Mrs. Lucy Stone, reformer.
Henry L. Abbot, military engineer.
Felix Adler, educator and reformer.
Arthur S. Hickley, inventor.
Morris Jastrow, philologist.
Emma Eames (Story), opera singer.

AMMUNITION ON FIRE.

Lightning Strikes Explosives in Norfolk Yard.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 12.—An explosion caused by lightning that struck either a loaded shell or a pile of hand grenades, relics of the world war, last night set fire to a big ammunition store warehouse at the Pig Point ammunition depot on Hampton Roads, six miles from Norfolk and practically destroyed the structure.

Portsmouth firemen who with a fire boat responded to calls for help said so far as they knew nobody was hurt.

HE USES MACHINE GUN.

Private Fires on Wife, Then Kills Himself.

EL PASO, Aug. 12.—Private Melvin Graves, stationed at Fort Bliss, yesterday shot his wife with a machine gun and then turned the weapon on himself, inflicting wounds from which he died shortly afterward. Mrs. Graves, who was wounded in the left shoulder, said she knew of no reason for her husband's act.

Electra Making Use of Library

ELECTRA, Aug. 12.—The Electra public library which opened a little over two months ago is progressing by leaps and bounds and the people of Electra are responding heartily to the call for more books, as shown by the number of books donated to the fund during the month of July.

The order of the Knights of Columbus of America and the Catholic ladies of the Catholic chusch of Electra, responded nicely to the call for more books in the library, by donating "Catholic Encyclopedia," an international work of reference of the constitution, doctrine, discipline and history of the Catholic church, in 16 volumes.

J. M. Skinner and wife and daughter Ruth, of Ballinger, are visiting Dr. F. D. Shepherd this week, combining the pleasure visit with business. Mr. Skinner, who is a half brother of Dr. Shepherd, was operated on at the hospital last Friday, and at present is convalescing nicely.

Mrs. J. H. Mowery of Childress, is visiting in the city with her sister Mrs. J. M. Skinner, during the operation and convalescence of the latter's husband at Electra hospital.

Mrs. A. G. Gardener of six miles out of town on the Bridge road, who underwent an operation at the Electra hospital a few days ago has so far recovered as to be moved to her home.

J. A. Jenkins of Waggoner-Texhoma lease, who had a broken rib in an accident a few days ago has so far recovered as to be able to go on an outing to recuperate.

HOW IT STARTED

"The Staff From the Wheat"

"To separate the chaff from the wheat" is a phrase that is frequently heard in modern speech to express distinguishing between the false and the true, the worthy and the worthless.

Chaff is the straw and other waste in wheat and grains which, by threshing and winnowing, are sifted down, and removed to purify and prepare are harvest for the process by which it becomes the "staff of life," the bread on our table. The first step is "separating the chaff from the wheat," the refuse from the food kernel.

From the parlance of the farm the term found its way into general speech where the mediator in an argument, in an effort to sift the matter of useless talk and get down to fundamental facts, will sometimes say: "We must separate the chaff from the wheat."

Vanderbilts Make Wedding Plans

NEWPORT, R. I. Aug. 12.—Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, younger daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt II, will be married in New York early this winter to Earl E. T. Smith, according to official announcement made at Beachmound, the Vanderbilt summer home, today.

A spokesman for Mrs. Vanderbilt said it was her intention to announce the engagement from Beachmound today, where Miss Vanderbilt is convalescing from a recent operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Vanderbilt is in Saratoga attending the races.

DIVORCE GRANTED.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth O'Hara Kieswether was granted a divorce today from Louis F. Kieswether. They were married at Columbus, Ohio, April 20, 1897.

IRRIGATION

The doctrine or law of riparian rights is an old one. It was originally a part of the English law and even before that was recognized in the Roman law. It came to us as many other laws have, from England.

The riparian rights of an owner of land on a stream allows him to use the waters for his cattle and for domestic use. He owns the land on which the water flows as far as the center of the stream if it is one of the boundaries of his holdings. If it is wholly within his tract, he owns all the bed.

He can use the water of the stream for any purpose he sees fit so long as he does not injure the water for use of the owners below or diminish it in amount.

In many of the western states, riparian rights have either been abolished or greatly modified. The state as a rule claims all the waters in the state as its property.

Here in Texas we are between these extremes. Riparian rights still exist but are modified where ever irrigation is undertaken.

In the contract between Mr. Waggoner and the irrigation district, there is a clause covering Mr. Waggoner's riparian rights, as follows:

"Party of the first part (Mr. Waggoner) reserves all riparian rights now existing in him in the lands not actually submerged by the water impounded in said dams, and in the river bed adjacent to such lands."

Nothing has been said before in the contract about giving the district any of the riparian rights. The appropriation of water for irrigation covered this, but Mr. Waggoner was not taking any chances.

Stricken Towerman Stops All Trains

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 12.—Facing death from a sudden illness early today, Kavanaugh Jacobs, night operator for the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad at Monongahela, near here, threw on the red signals to stop all trains a few minutes before he fell across his key, dead from an attack of acute indigestion. Trains on the division were halted for more than an hour until another operator could be sent to man the wire.

Jacobs' body was found at his desk by police who went to the station in response to an appeal from divisional headquarters of the railroad to investigate the failure of the operator to answer his call. Earlier in the night Jacobs had summoned a physician, but had declined to leave his post.

Baby Is Born By Side of Road

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Deserted by her husband and father and evicted from her home, Mrs. Anne Cooper, 19, gave birth to a child as she lay on the roadside in the village of Phoenix, southwest of Chicago.

The baby died a few hours later in an infirmary where it and the mother were taken in a hearse because no ambulance was available. Physicians attributed the death to exposure and premature birth induced by the sight of a pistol in the hands of the evicting constable.

An investigation by the coroner will be asked and an inquest held. The mother is in a serious condition.

GIRL IS FOUND.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—A young woman about 18 years old was found with her hands and feet bound on a road near the Union Ridge cemetery here today. Highway police took the girl, who was unconscious, to a hospital. She was not identified.

Always he dreaded them—as he was dreading the forthcoming visit now, coward and fool that he was! Abruptly he dragged his mind to the present, wondering how long it was since Caryll had spoken, wondering if his agitation had passed unnoticed.

Afraid of himself, afraid of a situation that had become emotionally tense, he realized that a trivial answer was the only one possible. He forced a laugh which, though somewhat shaky, sounded natural enough. "That would have made you a Frenchman, you hidebound John Bull," he said lightly. "I'm flattered, of course. But don't make rash statements you may be sorry for. Wait until you have seen your own father first." His sincerity, and the deep admiration expressed in his voice, was unmistakable, and Caryll growled inarticulately as he moved over to the open window and stood looking out with his hands plunged deep in his breeches' pockets.

"There must be some good in him, I suppose," he said at last, rather ungraciously, "since you have stuck to him all these years. But you're his friend, of course you're biased. You can't see him as I see him, as others see him. Heaven knows I don't want to judge him unfairly. But there is a lot that seems to me to need explaining. I know so little. I only know that for some reason, best known to himself, he has lived all his life in the desert, as an Arab, amongst Arabs. That he met my mother there and married her. But even if he chooses to pose as an Oriental potentate and rule a rabble of unwashed, unsavory, thieving scum, he can't get away from the fact that he has obligations and responsibilities outside of Algeria . . ."

"He recognized those obligations when he sent you to England to take his place," interrupted Saint Hubert. "You can hardly quarrel with him for what has made you considerably the gainer."

"But, good lord, that's just what I do quarrel about," retorted Caryll quickly. "It's wrong, it's fundamentally wrong. He's Glencaryll, isn't he? Hasn't he duties at home that come before his beastly Arabs?" and he flung round indignantly, scowling at Saint Hubert, who had gone back to his seat near the table.

"He was older than you are now, Caryll, before he knew that he wasn't an Arab, before he had ever heard of Glencaryll," replied Saint Hubert. "He was born in the desert and reared in the desert, and he had learned his duty to his tribe long before he had another inheritance. The knowledge of it came too late to influence him. By every instinct he was an Arab, and love for them and early training have kept him faithful to the people amongst whom he was brought up. If you think the job has been an easy one, you're mistaken. The tribesmen of the ben Hassan are very different from any Arabs you have seen yet. They are a headstrong, fighting people, and it takes a man to rule them. Your father's life is an arduous one. And even if there had not been—er—reasons why he has not cared to visit England, I doubt very much whether he would have found it either wise or politic to leave his people for so long."

Caryll's sullen face expressed the scorn he felt.

"Can't trust 'em I suppose! Nice kind of environment to live in," he ejaculated contemptuously. "But given all that, I presume the same restriction hardly applies to my mother?" There was an odd mixture of defiance and pathos in the hard young voice that made Saint Hubert realize, even more fully than before, how deeply rooted and how bitter was the resentment Caryll nourished towards his parents. He found his own position more than ever difficult.

"Her life has also been a very busy one," he said, slowly, torn between a passionate desire to vindicate the woman he loved, and a fear that his vindication might only give further offense, "busier than you can possibly imagine. She has worked indefatigably to better the state of the women and children, and improve the conditions under which they live. For instance, it is due entirely to her that ophthalmia has almost been stamped out amongst the tribe."

"Her own son being beyond the scope of her activities," interposed Caryll bitterly.

Saint Hubert's face flushed with sudden anger. "Be fair, Caryll," he said sharply. "If there had been any real need, any physical reason for it, your mother would have moved heaven and earth to get to you. But you're never had a day's illness in your life. You're are strong as a horse and twice as healthy. And that being so there has never been any cause for anxiety about you. And don't think that your mother has never wanted to see you. This separation has been the one sorrow of her life. But she has not been a free agent," he went on more slowly, and with all embarrassment he was unable to hide. "Your father is wrapped up in her. And he has, perhaps, naturally, the instincts of the people amongst whom he lives. He has never been able to bring himself to—that is—I mean—he has not found it possible to . . ." he was stumbling badly now, and Caryll took him up with caustic swiftness.

"Don't beat about the bush, Uncle Raoul, you mean he refused to let her go."

Sain Hubert smothered a sigh. Unwilling to prolong a discussion that had already gone far enough and averse to further excusing what in his heart he had always condemned, he replied only with a curt nod of acquiescence, ignoring the succeeding comment of "selfish beast" that, muttered very low, was still loud enough to be audible.

Deeply attached to Caryll as he was, and fully recognizing the difficulty of his position, Saint Hubert was beginning to feel the strain of a situation that, from the first, had not been easy.

The young man's intolerance and insular prejudices had been restrained out of courtesy to his host, during their brief stay in Paris. Once in Algeria, however, they had broken out unreservedly.

During the train journey to Biskra and the subsequent somewhat dreary ride to Touggourt he had made no secret of his feelings, criticizing and condemning freely. He found no beauty in the country, he seemed to have an inborn hatred of its inhabitants. Under their picturesque exterior he saw only the dirt and squalor that made him shrink from them fastidiously and avoid, as much as possible, any close association with them.

And now, almost as their journey's end, his attitude had become more markedly hostile.

The enforced wait at Touggourt, fretting his already overstrained nerves, had strengthened his prejudices and heightened his intolerance. He had been reserved and not particularly cordial with both the French military authorities and the local Arab chiefs who had been eager to make his acquaintance, and there had been occasions when Saint Hubert's tact and patience had been strained to the utmost to bridge difficulties and smooth appearances.

And it had not eased matters that, the first interchange of hospitalities over, Saint Hubert had had to leave him very largely to his own devices.

It was not only the need of accompanying Caryll that had brought the Frenchman back to Africa. He had come also in furtherance of an enterprise that lay very near to his heart, and, immersed in work connected with this undertaking, he had shut himself up in his room for hours at a time, writing industriously, and receiving a steady stream of native callers who had ranged from chiefs and marabouts down to wandering beggars whose rags and filth had moved his adopted nephew to the utmost pitch of disgust. And solitary ramblings in an uncongenial environment, for he did not consider as companions either Saint Hubert's Arab servant or the hotel runner who had accompanied him, had neither reconciled Caryll to his surroundings nor improved his temper. And it was the thought that he must leave him again to solitary brooding that was troubling Saint Hubert while he collected his papers and slipped them into a portfolio which he locked, and then tossed on to a side table. Since his outburst Caryll had relapsed into moody silence, sitting huddled on the cane chair to which he had returned.

He neither moved nor lifted his head when Saint Hubert went to the open window and, leaning against the jamb, spoke with his back half turned to the room.

"I'm sorry I've got to leave you again, mon cher, but I've an appointment this afternoon. And tonight I am dining with the Caid and his son who came to see us yesterday. I knew you wouldn't want to go. And as the Caid has no French, I made your lack of Arabic a sufficient excuse."

His effort to ignore the previous conversation met with scant success. Still sore, and obstinately hugging his grievances, Caryll's sarcastic rejoinder was an open invitation to further discussion.

"Does my Arab brother look like that young blighter?"

Almost at the end of his patience, Saint Hubert found his own temper rising, but amusement was mingled with annoyance as he mentally contrasted the vigorous, athletic frame and healthy, handsome face of the younger Ahmed ben Hassan with the gross and debilitated figure of the young Caid whose pallid cheeks and sensual kief-drugged eyes had made so unpleasant an impression on him yesterday.

"I haven't seen the boy for nearly two years," he said, shortly. "And as I said before, why not wait until you can see and judge for yourself. And why pitch on that, wretched youth as a type? There are degenerates in every nation. Even you must admit that, since you have been in Algeria, you have seen plenty of Arabs of superb physique who would be a credit to any country. Don't make more obstacles, Caryll. I know you are hating the whole thing. I know it is all very difficult for you. It is probably going to be very difficult for them also—your people, I mean. I might also add that it is—difficult for me."

Caryll's hand shot out in swift contrition.

"I'm a beast, a peevish beast," he mumbled. "Why don't you kick me instead of arguing with me? But it's all too utterly beastly. I can't get used to it, and it's no good trying. I hate the country and I hate the people. You want a muck rake for the one, and a hose pipe for the other!"

Saint Hubert laughed, and came back into the room.

"Don't be too sweeping," he said good-humoredly, "there are some clean ones amongst them."

"I haven't seen one . . ." began Caryll and then stopped abruptly, his face flushing crimson.

But Saint Hubert, who was searching for a letter he had mislaid, did not notice his confusion, and he stood silent until, the missing letter found at last, Raoul peered short-sightedly at his watch and gave a whistle of dismay.

"Damn!" he ejaculated. "I had no idea it was so late. I shall have to run for it. I'm sorry to leave you alone this evening, Caryll, but it can't be helped. I have reasons for not neglecting the Caid. If you are very bored after dinner, why not have the patron up? He's a decent little soul, and plays a very good game of piquet. I know the cafe maure has no attractions!" he added teasingly. And with another laugh and a wave of the hand he left the room.

And again the hot blood poured in a dark wave over Caryll's face, and he jerked his head angrily as he stood staring at the door that had closed behind Saint Hubert.

But it was not with Saint Hubret that he was angry. It was the knowledge of his own inconstancy, the knowledge of a newly awakened interest that was contrary to his vehement assertions, that was moving him so strongly. And, yet, strictly speaking, he had not deviated from the truth, he argued with himself. It was correct what he had said just now, almost every word of it. But while sincerely hating the country and its people, surely it was still possible to feel pity for one member of the race who, different from the others, had become intriguing by reason of that vry difference. It was the vivid contrast that had compelled his attention and excited his interest.

And it was only pity he felt, the same pity that inspired him when he watched the dumb suffering of a tortured animal. What else was she—poor little ill-used kid! His face flushed again with honest indignation as he remembered their first meeting.

It was little more than two weeks ago.

He had ridden out one morning, accompanied only by his English manservant, towards Temacin, and, tiring of the flat, uninteresting road, had made a detour on the return journey.

JAPS HAVE BUT LITTLE FAITH IN AMERICANS

Speaker Says Altruistic Views Held Here Hurtful to Country

WILLIAMSTON, Mass., Aug. 12—Thinking men in Japan consider America's diplomacy uncertain and not deserving of much reliance, Motosada Zumoto of Tokyo, editor of the Herald of Asia, said in an address at the Institute of Politics here today. Speaking on American foreign diplomacy in the far east he said also that well informed Japanese did not believe China's proposal for abolishing extra-territoriality was in line with the regeneration of that country.

Influenced by Missionaries.

Mr. Zumoto said the American people were influenced more by the sentiments of American missionaries and cultural workers in China than by the views of men with economic interests at stake. He recalled incidents in recent diplomatic history which purported to show that the executive branch of the United States government labored under "unfortunate constitutional handicaps" in forming a proper foreign policy.

Sympathies With China.

"We Japanese warmly sympathize with the Chinese in their fight for the recovery of their judicial autonomy," he said. "We are ready to help them to the best of our ability. But we fail to see any logical connection between consular jurisdiction and the internal disorders in that country. To be perfectly frank, China's malady is more fundamental. It is in the people themselves. It is in their history and their civilization. They now are beginning to realize that something is wrong with them. There is, however, reason to doubt whether their diagnosis of their own trouble is really accurate enough to insure the adoption of a right remedy."

The new tariff provides for conspicuously high rates on foodstuffs and various categories of industrial products.

Danger Signals Of Indigestion

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system is "let-down" in tone and vigor on account of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us. 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Ferraline, nature's great stomach treatment that has given relief to thousands. Ferraline immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including your stomach, liver and bowels. Ferraline makes your digestion "perfect and complete. You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Ferraline today at any drug store. Ferraline is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the owners have instructed every druggist to refund you the purchase price, one dollar, if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous. Get Ferraline today from your druggist. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

GOTHAM MOBS PREPARING FOR FINISH FIGHTS

Rival Gangs in Underworld Arming For Outbreak Of Trouble

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Rival gangs in New York's underworld are arming for war, News of the impending trouble is contained in a confidential order to the detective division of the police force.

The order, said to be without precedent in the history of the department, does not give the cause of the trouble between the gangs, but says:

Mob vs. Mob.

"One is known as the Neary mob which hangs out along Seventh and and Eighth avenues between 27th and 34th streets. The other is the Diamond mob. They have fallen out and have sworn vengeance on each other for some reason and it is rumored that they are in automobiles looking for a chance to kill members of opposing mobs.

"It is said the Diamond mob has imported a mob of gunmen from Detroit to help them. The Neary mob is said to have 'amalgamated with the Linky Mitchell mob who have promsied to stick to Neary."

The "Neary mob" referred to in the order is believed to get its name from John F. Neary, a former policeman, who was arrested July 28 on a burglary charge. At that time detectives asked reporters to withhold the news because it would "lead to a couple of murders."

And Still Another.

The "Linky Mitchell mob" holds forth along the Hudson street and parts of Greenwich Village, where the now extinct "Hudson Dusters" ruled years ago.

The "Diamond mob" comes from Harlem. Its leader, Joseph Diamond, was found slumped over the steering wheel of an automobile at 106th street and Fifth avenue on the night of July 1 with 64 pellets from a shot gun in his head and a .38 caliber revolver bullet in his head. He was released from the hospital last night.

Tong Warfare Over Country Feared By the Authorities As a Result Of Opium Smuggling Revelations

Arrest of Veteran Narcotic Agent Said to Have Started Preparations for Nationwide Battles

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Possible national ramifications and fear of tong warfare as a result of the narcotic investigations which resulted in the arrest of Colonel Will Gray Beach, veteran chief agent, and a score of raids in Chinatown, occupy the attention of federal and police officials.

Clews have been uncovered indicating that the illicit drug industry with headquarters here did a nation-wide business. Connections also was seen between the inquiry here and recent investigations of a drug syndicate in Cincinnati.

Police on Edge.

Measures against an outbreak of tong warfare have been taken by the police. Reserve squads patrol Chinatown where members of the On Leong Tong see mechinations of the rival Hip Sings in the fact that all of the raids Monday night were against resorts run by On Leongs.

Federal agents and policemen have seized more than 50 revolvers in searches of members of the rival bands who, they believe, were ready for a break in the truce arranged a few months ago.

Patrick Roche of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau, who directed the arrest of Beach and three of his operatives, admitted a vast amount of valuable information had come from Chinese informants, but he refused to say it had come exclusively from Hip Sings.

Opium Peddlers Seld.

Nine Chinese, alleged proprietors of opium dens, were arraigned yesterday on charges of selling narcotic drugs and released on bonds of $1,500 each.

Also released on bail was Beach after a day of questioning during which he was closely guarded to prevent any suicide attempt. Roche denied that Beach had made any confession or disclosed a secret cache where $250,000 worth of narcotics were stored, but said he had made "damaging admissions."

On the other hand, Beach, deprived of his necktie and belt, said, "I suppose they will try to make a goat out of me. But I'll never be convicted to face a possible ten-year penitentiary sentence."

ROCK ISLAND PURCHASE OF SLSF HALTED

I. C. C. Asks That Final Steps in Deal Be Held Up

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Recommendation that the Rock Island railroad project for the purchase of complete control of the St. Louis Southwestern which it now practically owns be held pending further consideration was made to the interstate commerce commission today by C. V. Burnside, the commission's assistant director of finance.

The Rock Island's application for authority to complete the purchase should be dismissed, Mr. Burnside proposed, but without prejudice against resubmittal.

Objections of Mr. Burnside were based on the fact that the commission's tentative plan for general road consolidation provides for a fusion of the St. Louis-Southwestern with the St. Louis-San Francisco system. The Rock Island under the commission's plan would become a part of the outhern Pacific. The commission itself must pass upon the proposed report before the ruling becomes final.

BOB OSBORN IS DRIV EN OUT IN FIFTH INNING

Williams Takes up Mound Duties; Fitzgerald Is Injured

SRREVEPORT, Aug. 12.—Two home runs by Jay Kirke featured the Sports' 8 to 2 victory over the Spudders in the final game of the series this afternoon. Thompson on the mound for the locals, kept the Spudder blows well scattered, while Osborn was driven from the mound in the fifth after Kirke's homer number two. Williams relieved him.

The Spudders played without the services of Howard Fitzgerald, center gardener, and Skipper Tanner took his place in center field. Fitzgerald hurt his ankle Tuesday afternoon, and will be out of the lineup for a few days, according to Tanner. Jonnard is on the bum with an ailing hip, and Sutherland has been placed on the sick list. With this small army of wounded ball chasers, Tanner has a very crippled club to open a home stay in Wichita Falls Thursday. Dick Morgan to the hill with Beaumont.

One in Third

The Spudders counted one run in the third inning. A single by Query, Osborn's sacrifice, and Metzler's double shoved over the run.

Westerzil beat out a slow roller, took second on Ostergard's single to right. Kirke hit a home run over the right field fence scoring Westerzil and Ostergard ahead of him.

A triple by McGaffigan and a single by Rowland scored another for the Sports in the fourth. Westerzil's triple, a sacrifice fly, and Kirke's second home run, gave Morgan the showers and Williams took the hill, and gave Shreveport two more in the fifth.

Two in Sixth.

Two more were scored in the sixth by the Sports. Tanner fumbled Bonowitz's drive to center. McGaffigan walked. Rowland smashed a single off Bodie's knees, filling the bases. Thompson came through with a timely blow scoring Bonowitz and McGaffigan.

The Spudders scored their final run in the ninth. Bodie doubled to left and scored on Callaghan's single to center.

The Chicago mauler has arrived several pounds over Duke's weight, coming up with a total count of 166 pounds, while Duke topped the scales at only 147. With this difference in the weights, Duke refused to meet Mahoney. The Chicago boxer claims he can get below 155 by 2 o'clock this afternoon. If Mahoney gets below 155 in that period of time he will be in no real condition to fight. Promoter Don Wofford claims that Mahoney is a real fighter, and will locate some one to meet him for the following week's card.

Varner vs. Duke.

For tonight Wofford has arranged for Walter Varner to meet Duke in the final fight. Varner is the boy from Baird, Texas, who fought some time back at the lake. Varner has whipped several well known glove artists, and some of the heavyweight type. Varner has beaten Vicente Aguilar, Tommy Marvin and Dago Ryan twice. He has lost but one fight this to Paul Parrish, Oklahoma City boxer, but Parrish outweighed him 11 pounds. Wofford believes that Varner will make a mighty good match for Duke, and several of the fans are of the same belief.

In the semi-final bout between Wilder and Granite is promised a good scrap from start to finish. Granite claims he will get Wilder, and Wilder is of a different belief. Granite will fight Bobby Vincent next Tuesday night in Oklahoma City for the lightweight championship of Oklahoma.

Murdock Wants Rivers.

Young Murdock is wild to get started in his battle with Johnnie Rivers in their six-round battle. Murdock fought in Vernon Tuesday night and defeated Cliff Castleberry. Murdock stated that he was in the best of condition and looked it, but the battle will be no snap, and Murdock will have to swing a wicked pair of paws to whip the fast little Cowtown Mexican.

The preliminary bout is a grudge bout that should be interesting. Recently Masters and Sullivan hooked up in a fist fight on the street and the issue was not then settled so it was brought into the ring in a winner-take-all fight. Masters has been slugging his way through in the last few weeks and is a big favorite to take the battle.

PIRATES TAKE SECOND FROM GIANTS, 5-3

Poor Base Running Leads To Downfall of Wavering New Yorkers

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Pittsburgh made it two out of three in the series with New York by winning today, 5 to 3, and now lead the Champions, in the National league flag race by five and one half games. Yde, left handed Pirate pitcher, was hit hard, the Giants collecting 12 safeties but poor base running in the fourth inning nullified three successive hits. After Meusel and Kelly singled, Terry singled to center and Meusel was held at third but Kelly ran him off and a double play resulted. In the mixup Kelly and Traynor swung at each other, but as no damage was done they were allowed to stay in the game. Jackson hit a home run in the sixth with none on base. Virgil Barnes and Fred Fitzsimmons divided the pitching burdens of the Giants.

Cats Score Six In One Inning; Win By 8-6

DALLAS, Aug. 12.—Dallas believed it had finally won a game from the Cats until the sixth inning, when Fort Worth amassed six runs, over-hauling the five-run lead of the Steers, and winning, 8 to 6. The Fort Worth total was materially benefitted by Moore's home run with the bases full. The Bovines threatened in the sixth, but Ats pulled Head who had relieved Johns, and sent in Pate. Pate was safe until the ninth when O'Brien poled one over the fence, with the bases empty. Both teams fielded brilliantly, clipping off a total of six double plays between the Stormy Davis, Fort Worth centerfielder, made three flashy catches, each shutting off possible scores.

Bell Beats Chicago Boy in Hot Match

CHICAGO, Aug 12.—(AP)—The upset of the day in the junior singles of the national junior and boys tennis tournament came when Emmett Pare of Chicago was beaten by Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas, 2-6, 6-2, 9-7.

Pare was strong at the start of the match but faltered under a barrage of hard forehand drives and for the second time this year was beaten by Bell. Pare took the first three games in the final set but the pace was too strong and he lost after a hard fight.

In the boys division, Walter Thomas, of Elmora, N. J., seeded number one in the draw and favorite to win the championship had a narrow escape from defeat, by Junior Coen of Kansas City. Coen, who is only 13 years old, won the opening set 10-8, but Thomas spurted in the second, winning the set 6-2. With hard drives down the side lines Coen ran into a 6-5 lead in the final set and had two matched points on Thomas when the eastern boy showed his tournament experience by finally pulling out the set for the match 12-10.

Favorites in the junior play came through to the fifth round but the coming champion found the road rough.

Dempsey Looking With Favor on A Fitzsimmons Fight

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—(AP).—Jack Dempsey threw his weight behind Floyd Fitzsimmons' efforts to obtain the right to stage a Dempsey-Wills fight for the heavyweight championship with two declarations made here late today. The first was:

"Fitzsimmons has made me a better offer than any likely to come from any other promoter and he has my signature to a contract."

The second statement, given with an air of finality that seemed to eliminate all chances of Tex Rickard staging the bout in New York was brief and unqualified:

"I will not fight in New York state."

A third remark concerning statements that Jack Kearns still has managerial power over Dempsey's engagements and that he intended to sign for a Dempsey-Wills fight, also was brief and unqualified. It was:

"I'll do my own signing. Let Kearns sign if he wants to, but what good will it do him?"

Dempsey closed the announcements by saying that he was open to consider all offers to fight Wills, no matter whence they came, except any bout in New York.

Athletics Make It 3 in Row From Browns, 5 to 2

Mackmen Give Jack Quinn Brilliant Support And Hit in Pinches

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics won their third straight game from the St. Louis Browns here today by a score of 5 to 2. Though out-batted the Athletics gave Jack Quinn brilliant support at critical moments and by spectacular fielding held the Browns in check from start to finish. The Mackmen made all their hits, Jack Quinn scoring two runs with a single in the sixth after Cochrane was purposely passed to fill the bases.

BOSTON 7, DETROIT 2

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Erratic fielding by Detroit coupled by steady Boston pitching, resulted in the Red Sox making it two straight over the Tigers, 7 to 2 today. Ross was forced to retire in the fifth inning as the result of a hurt from a line drive off Woodall's bat. Catches by Fothergill and Manush, and Prothro's steal of home in the fifth, were plays that stood out. The score:

YANKS 2, WHITE SOX 0

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Southpaw Herb Pennock snapped the Yankees' five-game losing streak by blanking the White Sox today, 2 to 0, limiting the visitors to two hits. The only safe bingles off Pennock were a single by Mostil in the sixth and a scratch hit by Collins in the ninth. The Chicago players were abel to get no further than second base. It was Ray Schalk's thirty-third birthday, but he failed to do anything to celebrate the event. Babe Ruth was still on the bench with a strained back. Veach patroled the right field. The score:

More Truth Than Poetry

ON DISARMAMENT

The lobster only fights because
He has a pair of brutal claws,

The tiger would be quite polite
If he lacked teeth with which to bite.

The bear would back in calm repose
Had he no paws to crush his foes.

In peace the gnu, from night till morn
Would sleep, excepting for his horn.

The eagle would be mild and meek
If he had not a strong bone beak.

* * * * *

The clam lies quiet in the sea,
No rude belligerent is he—

He's unresisting, kind and tame,
But people eat him, just the same

The oyster's mild and gentle, too,
But he is often in a stew.

The cow would do no creature wrong,
Yet she don't live so very long.

* * * * *

So if I knew I had to be
A creature of the wood or sea,

Although perhaps it isn't right,
I'd rather have the means to fight.

Germans Seeking Return of Goods

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—A formal communication pressing for the return of German property seized by the United States during the war has been presented to Secretary Kellogg by the German ambassador.

No comment was available at the state department beyond admission that such a communication has been received and was being considered. The text has not been made public, but the memorandum is understood to point out that in view of the status of the operation of the Dawes reparation plan and the benefits to be derived from these payments by the United States the time appears appropriate to take up for settlement the question of German properties still held by the Washington government.

The policy of the United States at the time the peace treaty with Germany was put through, was clearly stated so far as the sequestered property was concerned. A joint resolution adopted by congress and made part of the treaty declared his property should be retained by the Washington government until all private claims of American citizens against Germany arising out of the war had been settled satisfactorily.

Stock Feeds To Cost Heavily

SNYDER, Texas.—It cost $50,000 a month to buy feedstuff for the livestock of Scurry county during the first six months of this year, bankers here estimate, while the county has produced an average of 27,000 bales of cotton the last three years, or the equivalent of $3,000,000. Under the present conditions, dry weather prevailing, little feedstuff has been raised in this section and bankers claim that it will take considerable money to supply feedstuff for the livestock until another crop is made.

A 35 per cent increase in cultivated acreage in Scurry county in the past five years has augmented the acreage to about 125,000. It is estimated that even if dry weather continues, between 18,000 and 20,000 bales of cotton will be produced in 1925 in Scurry county.

The most popular adjective used to describe the word "car" is "good"—undoubtedly

No cars—new or used—that are not good, can compete for favor. The struggle for existence is over, and the fittest have survived.

"Good" is the word that applies to the cars marketed in the classified columns of the Record News under "Automobiles"—meaning service-giving and satisfaction-giving. They are worthy of your investigation—and subsequently choice of one of them.

MARKETS

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NE WORLEANS, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today and although there was a decline during the first half of the morning which carried prices down 12 to 13 points from yesterday's closing levels, the market rallied quite sharply later on, recovering 43 points from the lows and reaching a level 30 points above the previous close.

Prices eased off moderately from the high points on profit taking by scalpers and the close showed net gains for the day of 18 to 21 points.

At the start Liverpool was about 10 penny points lower than due and the local market opened easier in sympathy although the opening trades did not show a full response to the drop in the foreign market being only 11 to 12 points below the previous close. The market rallied after the start mainly on reports of dry weather and high temperatures in the belt and October was soon trading at 23.01 and December at 23.26 or one to four points above the previous close.

The weekly weather and crop report was considered favorable showing the crop had made fair progress during the week. This caused a renewal of selling which finally carried October down to a new low at 22.84 and other months practically to the earlier lows. The market soon recovered, however, on the receipt peratures in the belt and reporting the crop deteriorating rapidly not only in the West but in Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana as well. The buying advanced prices rapidly to 23.27 for October and 23.30 for December or 43 points up from the lows and 30 to 31 points above yesterday's close. The market eased off about 10 to 12 points from the highest in the late trading on realizing.

Exports for the day totaled only 3,900 bales.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Erratic fluctuations characterized today's irregular stock market two of the most contrasting features being the weakness of the oil shares and the strength of the rails, particularly some of the southern and southwestern carriers. ¼

One of the most violent price movements in recent months took place in general railway signal, which opened five points higher at 290 and quickly mounted to a new record price for all time at 319½, then collapsed to 276 and finally bounded upward to 300. This stock opened at 144 when it was listed on the "Big Board," two months ago. General Electric also made stock exchange history by touching a record peak at 321, or a full point above the highest price recorded before the segregation of the Electric bond and share holdings. Mixed movements took place in other so-called "rich men's" stocks. American Can attained record top at 236 and then eased to 234 for a net gain of 1½ points. Mack Truck showed a net loss of 2½ at 98, after having sold 3 points above that figure. S. S. Kresge which enjoys the distinction of being the highest priced stock on the exchange, closed nearly five points higher at 465.

New low prices of the year were recorded by the Pan-American "A" and "B," Standard Oil of California, Union Oil of California, Barnsdall "A," Tidewater, Maracaibo, Producers and Refiners and Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil. Atlantic Refining broke nearly seven points to 96¾ and then rallied to 98, but some of the others recovered their earlier losses and closed fractionally higher on the day.

Buying of the rails centered in Chesapeake and Ohio, which attained the best price in its history at 106, and Wabash common and preferred "A," which touched new high levels at 40¾ and 72¼, respectively. Frisco common, Western Pacific and Bangor and Aroostook also broke through their previous high levels.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent and then dropped to four. Time money rates showed a moderate stiffening, 60 to 90 day funds being quoted at 4¼ to 4½ and the longer maturities at 4½ to 4¾. Prime commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Fluctuations in the foreign exchanges was extremely narrow an dirregular. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.85½ but French francs and Italian lire were slightly lower at 4.67 and 3.60 cents, respectively.

had been made, said that the only liquor he saw there was a small bottle of whiskey and some "very bad beer" which had been made at home and which he was certain in no wise violated the prohibition law.

Mrs. Scott was not intoxicated on either occasion, Mr. Tremaine said.

Most of the interest of the day centered in the reading of the Sikes deposition.

Sikes' testimony dealt with that period during which Mrs. Scott resided at Lee House, Washington, in 1923, after the Scotts had separated.

Mrs. Scott, Sikes deposed, went about at night openly with Gilbert Bensinger whom Sikes said he supposed to be a bootlegger. Mrs. Scott was visited in her apartment at night by Bensinger, the deposition continued, and the two sat close together with bottles of liquor and glasses on the table near them.

These things Sikes said he ascertained in some instances by peeking through the key hole of Mrs. Scott's apartment.

"I have peeked through lots of key holes," he asserted in answer to one question.

Optimistic Boys Home 'Parents' Heard Yesterday

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moore, "father and mother" at the Optimists Club boys' home at 2210 Ninth Street, were guests of the club at their luncheon at the Kemp hotel yesterday noon. The Moores expressed their appreciation of the interest that was being shown by the club members in the home and requested an occasional visit there.

It was the suggestion of J. D. Bright, who, with W. G. Bralley, juvenile officer, has charge of placing the boys in the home, that books and a few pictures might make the house much more of a home than it was now. Solon R. Featherston pointed out that the place was not to be a charitable institution but a real home for under-privileged Wichita Falls boys.

Irrigation Heads Will Contest 60 Foot Syphon Rule

The irrigation district is making preparations to contest the recent ruling of the county commissioners that the siphons for carrying water under the county's highways must be constructed at least 60 feet in length and with head walls on the property lines of the property adjoining the road, it was learned here yesterday.

In the past it has been the policy in building these siphons to make them wide enough so as not to impair traffic. This practice is based on a legal opinion held by the irrigation district that the county commissioners are without power to make them make the siphons longer. The longer siphon is 50 per cent or more expensive than the short ones, the irrigation engineers claim. They point out that the expense is unnecessary, since 30 to 40 feet is plenty of room for traffic on the road.

ceedings in the district court Thursday at 2 p. m.

The elder Sternandl was alleged to have been struck by A. Feldman of Houston, relative of the Englers, when the latter sought information from the aged German blacksmith.

BROTHER OF SLAIN WOMAN RETURNS.

HOUSTON, Aug. 12.—A. Feldman returned today from Austin where he took a leading part in the running down of clues to the slaying of his brother-in-law, C. E. Engler, Mrs. Engler, and their adopted daughter, Emma, at Moore's Crossing, a small community in Travis county.

Mrs. Feldman who is a sister of Mrs. Engler, learned only today of the triple tragedy. The news was withheld from her because of her illness.

Wanted Plans.

The most likely motive for the killing was a desire to get hold of plans of Engler's recently patented cotton chopper or to rob him of money believed to be in a small steel safe with the patent designs," he said. "As a matter of fact, Engler kept little or no money in the safe, but it was common knowledge in the community where he lived that the Englers were people of some means.

"On my last visit to Moore's Crossing I warned Engler that the safe might cause him trouble. 'Some one is likely to think that you have a lot of money put away in this safe, and there might be an attempt to rob you,' I told him," Feldman said.

The prosecution announced that it would try to prove a case of first degree murder, holding that Dorothy's act was deliberate and premeditated. The defense hopes to convince the jury of seven women and five men that the girl was insane when her mother was killed. Both sides agreed that the testimony probably would be finished by Friday afternoon.

Fake Oil Promoter Who Specialized On Preachers to Jail

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—William E. Rutledge, 60, former Baptist minister and publisher of the Preachers' magazine at Kirkwood, Mo., a suburb, was arrested late today on a charge of using the mails to defraud through an alleged "wild cat" oil scheme. Preliminary hearing was set for September 4.

In response to a summons from Postoffice Inspector C. B. Uttley, who has been investigating the case, Rutledge returned from San Antonio, Texas, today and furnished bond of $3,000.

While the warrant on which he was arrested specifically charges him with making false and fraudulent representations in the sale of oil stock to George L. Newkirk, Warrensburg, Mo., United States District Attorney Curry said that approximately 2,000 persons throughout the country invested almost $400,000.

Federal authorities said Rutledge organized the Economy Oil company of Kirkwood, and through his magazine induced preachers, who formed 90 per cent of the stockholders, to purchase stock to obtain money to send their children through college.

United States attorneys declared he failed to fulfill representations that dividends ranging from 100 to 1,000 per cent would be forthcoming soon. Some of the stock was sold to church congregations through the influence of local ministers, it is charged.

Denver and Santa Fe Engineers Bet Two Boxes of Cigars on Cost Of Building New Plains Extension

PLAINVIEW, Texas, (AP)—Two boxes of cigars are wagered on the total construction cost of 202 miles or proposed extensions the Fort Worth and Denver City is seeking to build, one branch line to run from Estelline in Hall county to Dimmitt in Castro county and the other from Silverton in Briscoe county to Lubbock in Lubbock county. Application of the Denver to build these lines was heard here July 20-25 before C. E. Boles, examiner of the interstate commerce commission. Protests of the Santa Fe, Texas, Panhandle and Gulf, Quanah, Acme and Pacific and Gulf, Texas and Western against the Denver proposal also were heard. Decision of the commission will be announced this fall.

The wager of the cigars is between M. C. Blanchard, Chicago, chief engineer of the Santa Fe, and R. C. Gowdy, Chicago, chief engineer of the Fort Worth and Denver City. The bet was placed just after the two had been on the witness stand. Mr. Gowdy gave detailed figures in which he estimated the total cost of the proposed extensions of the Denver would be $6,268,000. He estimated the cost of the rails laid on the Caprock would be $65,000 a mile and the cost of laying the rails on the level prairie would be $25,000 a mile.

Mr. Blanchard testified that, in his opinion, should the Denver use as high type of material as the Santa Fe would employ for the same proposed construction, the cost would run at least half a million dollars higher than the estimate made by Mr. Gowdy.

After leaving the stand, the two engineers engaged in friendly discussion in an anteroom of the big auditorium where the hearing was conducted.

"I just want to bet you a box of cigars that if the Denver gets the permit to build those extensions it will cost at least half million dollars more to build the lines than you estimate," said Engineer Blanchard of the Santa Fe with a smile.

"I don't smoke; but make it two boxes," retorted Engineer Gowdy of the Denver with a broader smile.

Former Beer Cellar Houses Mushrooms

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Stone arched vaults, built three score years ago for storing beer, today house the largest mushroom plantation in the country. From malt and hops to a table delicacy in a few years was the "mushroom" metamorphosis of the ancient brewery. Between changes it was an ice plant for a time.

Built many years ago, the brewery was operated until the advent of prohibition, when it was converted into an ice plant, like so many others.

A casual remark, perhaps suggested by the dank interior of the underground vaults used for storing and aging beer before the day of artificial refrigeration, that it was a good place for mushrooms, brought about a change three years ago.

Experts were brought from Italy under the direction of L. F. Lambert of West Chester, Pa., and an authority on mushrooms laid out the plantation. The beds were first located in the high-ceilinged vaults.

If He Can't Eat It; He Cans It

LINDALE, Texas.—Up here in this portion of Northeast Texas, a farmer usually hitches up his farm to a canning factory. Thereby he brings about the cuorious, apparently anomalous the curious, apparently anomalous that he cans what he can't eat and yet eats some of the products that he cans.

First he cultivates 4,000 acres of blackberries hereabouts, which makes it apparent that Lindale has some claim to horticultural distinction. But when Lindale learned it had that acreage in black caps, it arose as one man and proclaimed to the world that it was the blackberry capital of the earth. To date there is no record that it is disputed.

Scene from "The MAN IN BLUE" With HERBERT RAWLINSON and MADGE BELLAMY

Herbert Rawlinson and Madge Bellamy make a good stellar team. They come to the Mission today in one of those motion pictures which suggests throughout a story taken from real life, "The Man in Blue," a Universal-Jewel. True, it is not the real life with which most persons have had personal experience, but it is the manner of life most persons know of through reading the newspapers, and articles on the immigration problem.

But this does not mean that the picture story is lacking in dramatic intensity nor in thrills, for it teems with both, which fact coupled with its impression of realistic portrayal, is one more evidence to prove the old saying that truth is stranger than fiction.

The story from which the picture was adapted is by Gerald Beaumont. It was published in the Red Book Magazine as "The Flower of Napoli." Before he became a successful writer of short stories Beaumont was a newspaper reporter, and it is generally understood that nearly all of his fiction is based on facts encountered "in the old days."

However, "The Man in Blue" affords Rawlinson and Miss Bellamy a choice vehicle. The supporting cast, while it is composed of persons not so very widely known in screendom, achieves well enough to convince that its individual members were selected for their ability to act natural and then put into roles that were very natural for them.

ACID POURED ON CLOTH IN OPEN SHOPS

Dissatisfaction Increases In Chicago Garment Centers

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—A series of attacks on open shop taloring establishments, in which armed men entered several shops, lined up the employes and then scattered acid over the garments on the tables, resulted in a raid on the headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers by the police late today, in which 62 members were arrested and an assortment of blackjacks and brass knuckles confiscated.

The attacks are believed by the police to be caused by a conflict of long duration between union workers and open shop garment manufacturers. The union members are being held as instigators of the attack.

Using Acid.

Last night there were three acid attacks and two bombings.

The attack of acid throwers on non-union taloring establishments today extended northward to Waukegan, which has been prevalent in Chicago for several days.

Two armed men invaded the shop of the Golstein Clothing company and, holding several workmen at bay with pistols, poured acid over hundreds of bolts of cloth. The damage was estimated at $20,000. The men fled in an automobile.

Tonight county authorities, business men and civic organizations held a meeting and pledged a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party.

ECZEMA
You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!
MANY people imagine that eczema or tetter needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.
We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact! Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.
S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.
S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Fair Grounds In Duplicate For Film At Palace

"The Mirage" Has Georgeous Scenes of County Exposition

The front lawn of the Regal Culver City studios was converted into a "county fair" ground, one evening during the filming of the Producers Distributing corporation release "The Mirage," which shows at the Palace today.

Two hundred and fifty "extras" were there in their "dress up" clothes, and peanuts, popcorn and pink lemonade were much in evidence. Concession tents were built and the concessions were in full swing during the filming of many of the big dramatic scenes of this sequence. Balloon venders wandered in and out among the crowd; African ball dodgers performed; Oriental ladies danced and a fortune teller told weird tales of the future.

George Archainbaud, the director, wanted accuracy in this scene and the youngsters were only too pleased to give him realistic portrayals of children eating the goodies that a "fair" provides.
