Visitors apparently are coming to Texas at a faster rate than ever before, according to the Texas Highway Department, and most of them apparently are coming up from Mexico, or down from Arkansas and Oklahoma. The department checked records of its tourist bureaus and found that in 1972 the number of visitors entering the state at Laredo was up 69.7 per cent over 1971, while the figures at Texarkana were up 41.9 per cent and those at Gainesville were up 39.2 per cent. All told, the number of visitors logged by the tourist bureaus has increased by 63 per cent since 1968, the year of the HemisFair.

These figures represent another reason that Texans are particularly concerned about energy shortage talk. That means, of course, that Texas is interested on both ends of the situation—production and consumption.

Speaking of statistics, etc., some of those reported by high school counselors to the school board the other night were interesting, especially those which charted opinions of students who have completed their public school work and are now out in the world, or else in college, and have had an opportunity to reflect objectively upon their high school education.

Paradoxically, boys who have gone into college after graduating from Snyder High School, listed English as a course that helped them most and least. It also was listed as helping both most and least by boys not attending college, but all girls put that subject near the top among courses that helped them after they left high school.

The local school offers courses which many of them did not take but now wish they had. These include advanced biology, chemistry, physics and economics. And some now see where courses not offered in the local schools would have been a help. These are topped by psychology and also include calculus, German, Mexican-American History and swimming.

Is Scurry County the center of the state's greatest concentration of high school basketball power this year?

The Ira High School girls team already has won its bi-district title and now is poised to enter regional playoffs.

The Hermleigh High School boys team won its district championship in the Class B ranks and has defeated a Class A district champion while waiting around for its bi-district match.

And the Snyder High School Tigers definitely have established themselves as the top contender for the District 4-4A championship, going undefeated in the first round of play and continuing without a blemish on their record with only two games to go in the second round.

So far as we know at present, no other county has done that well this season.—WACIL McNAIR.

Wholesale Prices Rise In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose sharply in January for the second straight month, largely because of increases in prices of farm products, the government said today.

The report presaged large increases in consumer prices. Likely, the sharp advances in wholesale prices will be reflected soon in the Consumer Price Index.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the Wholesale Price Index went up by 1.3 per cent in January on an unadjusted basis and 1.1 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis. Despite the huge increase, the rise was less than the similarly sharp increases in December.

The BLS said that prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds rose by 3.3 per cent, or almost 40 per cent at an annual rate. With the seasonal factors taken in, the rise in prices of farm products was 2.9 per cent.

Despite the big increases in farm and food prices, the report showed that prices of industrial commodities rose less sharply. The industrial commodities index is regarded as one of the most sensitive gauges of inflation in the economy.

According to the report, prices of industrial commodities went up 0.5 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 0.3 on a seasonally adjusted basis.

But this was still an acceleration from the rise in prices of industrial commodities, and represented the largest one-month rise since November.

The BLS said that consumer finished goods went up 1.6 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 1.4 per cent on an adjusted basis.

The report was the first issued since President Nixon dropped most mandatory wage-price controls on Jan. 11. But the administration had expected some bulge in prices in the early part of its Phase 3 wage-price restraints.

The BLS said the increases in farm products could be blamed on "the effects of severe weather and exceptionally strong export demand..."

The rise in farm products alone was 4.9 per cent, reflecting higher prices for livestock, fresh and dried vegetables, live poultry, plant and animal fibers, eggs, milk and wheat.

The only declines were for fruit and oil seeds and grains other than wheat.

There were substantial increases in the wholesale prices of such processed foods as meats, poultry and fish. Also, manufactured animal feeds, dairy products, cereal and bakery products were up sharply at the wholesale level.

Nixon Calls For New Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, urging Congress to act promptly on 19 backlogged bills to promote the environment and the nation's natural resources, said today the costs of fighting pollution should be reflected in consumer prices and "not in the federal budget."

At the same time, Nixon said in a special message that "because there are no local or state boundaries to the problems of our environment, the federal government must play an active, positive role." He continued:

"We can and will set standards and exercise leadership. We are providing necessary funding support. And we will provide encouragement and incentive for others to help with the job."

After calling for enactment of 19 measures he proposed in the last Congress, dealing with topics ranging from safe drinking water to disposal of hazardous wastes, the President called for a basic new farm bill that would reduce federal subsidies and leave more decision-making to farmers.

"We must reduce the farmer's dependence on government payments through reduced returns of sale of farm products at home and abroad, "he said, and termed presesent dairy supports and wheat, feed grain and cotton allotments "drastically outdated."

Setting forth guidelines for the fashioning of programs in the environmental-natural resources area, Nixon said the first need is to "strike a balance" between ecological and conservation interests and economic growth.

This was the President's second statement in two days on the environment.

Senate Rejects Kirkpatrick

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Senate rejected today the appointment of State Insurance Board chairman Ray Kirkpatrick, blocking Gov. Preston Smith's final attempt to get someone he wanted to take charge of the board.

The vote was 13-17 in a public session after senators beat back 15-15 an attempt to open up the debate on Kirkpatrick's qualifications. A two-thirds vote was needed.

Confirmed was the controversial appointment of Sherman Fricks Sr., business agent for a Deer Park labor union, to the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission that is to select a possible site for a deepwater port for supertankers.

100% Allowable Set 12th Month

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable for March at 100 per cent today, marking the 12th straight month for all-out production.

The commission order was in response to requests from major buyers for 3,764,459 barrels of oil a day next month, a decrease of 17,003 from February.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines forecast for March demand for Texas crude is 3,460,000 barrels a day, a decrease of 50,000 from this month.

Exceptions once again to the 100 per cent allowable will be East Texas field 86 per cent, Kelly-Snyder 76 per cent, and Tom O'Connor 70 per cent and several other fields at 80 per cent.

Chairman Jim Langdon reported some "good news and some bad news. The good news is that even with heating oil stocks at a critical low point, it looks as if we have made the winter without any tremendously serious shortages, but now for the bad news, we are approaching the gasoline consuming season with gasoline stocks being 19.2 million barrels below last year in the United States."

Also, Langdon said, crude oil stocks are 19.7 million barrels below last year, and total crude and products stocks in the United States are 70.2 million barrels below last year. "It appears," said Langdon, "the petroleum industry has managed to get out of the frying pan but now is in the fire."

Nominations by major purchasers of Texas crude oil for March, in barrels per day, with changes from this month in parentheses:

Amoco 320,000
Atlantic Richfield 170,000

Antihijacking Pact Is Inked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers today signed an agreement with Cuba aimed at curbing hijacking of airplanes and ships. The agreement was to be signed simultaneously in Havana.

Rogers signed the agreement in his office in the presence of Jaroslav Zantovsky, minister of the Czechoslovakian Embassy in Washington.

The agreement provides for the prosecution or extradition "of any person who hereafter seizes, removes, appropriates or diverts from its normal route or activities an aircraft or vessel registered under the laws of one of the parties and brings it to the territory of the other party."

The person charged with hijacking will be tried "for the offense punishable by the most severe penalty according to the circumstances and the seriousness of the acts."

If there are no punishments under existing laws, "the party in question shall be obligated, except in the case of minor offenses, to return the persons who have committed such acts ... to the territory of the other party to be tried by its courts in conformity with its laws."

Another provision, and one sought by the Cubans, calls for each country to "apply strictly its own laws to any national of the other party who, coming from the territory of the other party, enters its territory, violating its laws as well as national and international requirements pertaining to immigration, health, customs and the like."

The United States retains its right to accept what it considers to be political refugees under the agreement. The text provides that each party "may take into consideration any extenuating or mitigating circumstances in those cases in which the persons responsible for the acts were being sought for strictly political reasons and were in real and imminent danger of death without a viable alternative for leaving the country."

However, this provision does not apply if such a refugee attempts to extort money or threatens physical injury "to the members of the crew, passengers, or other persons."

Another section of the document, which constitutes an executive agreement and does not require U.S. Senate approval, provides that each party "shall try with a view to severe punishment" any person who conspires to hijack an aircraft or vessel coming from or going to the territory of the other.

The agreement goes into effect immediately and will be effective for five years. It is not retroactive.

U.S. insistence on retaining its traditional policy of accepting political refugees had been a problem in the 2½-month-long negotiations, but the policy will remain in effect.

US Planes Escalate Laos Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. warplanes have sharply escalated their bombing of Communist forces in Laos "because of increased enemy activity" and further appeals for help from the Royal Lao government, the Pentagon announced today.

Maj. Gen. Daniel James, a top Pentagon spokesman, said U.S. warplanes this week have been flying an average of about 380 sorties a day over Laos. This is an increase of about 100 a day over last week. A sortie is a single flight by a single plane.

"The United States continues to hope and expect that a cease-fire agreement will be achieved in Laos," James said.

He acknowledged that U.S. air operations also were flown Wednesday in Cambodia, saying that they were "at a very low level." This amounted to "a few tens of sorties," James said.

The Air Force general refused to discuss specific targets or areas in Laos being hit by American bombers, including heavy B52s.

He said he had no information on any U.S. losses beyond an EC47 electronic surveillance plane which went down in Southern Laos last week with a crew of about eight men now listed as missing.

Texas Legislators Honor Women

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators honored the women of Texas today, in fact turned the legislature over to them for half an hour.

"It is the living women we honor today," said Speaker Price Daniel Jr. in opening remarks for Susan B. Anthony Day, which was observed by both the Senate and House by special resolution. All women employes of the legislature were special guests for the program honoring the woman sufferage leader of several decades ago.

"It is because of Susan B. Anthony and many women like her that women can now vote, that the equal rights amendment to the United States Constitution is near ratification," Daniel said.

All women senators and representatives had a part on the program. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby sat on the stage as an observer.

"There has never been a time of greater opportunity, or of greater need for contributions from every one," said Mrs. Dolph Briscoe, wife of the governor, "We women can make a significant contribution to the future of this great state."

Mrs. Briscoe, with wives of the lieutenant governor and the speaker, accepted an oil painting of Susan B. Anthony that will hang in the Capitol.

Before the special program the House finally passed and sent to the Senate, on voice vote, a bill that would make state and local governments liable for property damage caused by official vehicles up to $10,000. Local governments could either buy insurance for protection or pay damages out of ad valorem taxes.

Also passed to the Senate, on a 118-3 vote, a bill that would let about 15 school districts in the state borrow money to replace federal aid that has been withheld for impacted areas.

Also sent to the senate was a bill that would let cities with more than 5,000 population issue bonds without voter approval to improve city-owned ports.

Wally Cox Found Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Wally Cox, television's shy "Mr. Peepers," was found dead today in his Bel Air home, city firemen said.

Firemen said they found the 48-year-old comedian dead about 7:45 a.m. after being summoned to the home. The cause of death was not immediately known.

A private security agency for the exclusive neighborhood received an alarm from the Cox home and dispatched a guard to the home. Cox was slumped over on his bed, clad in his pajamas and slippers. A spokesman for the agency theorized Cox may have sounded the alarm in an effort to obtain help. Fire Capt. John Cresto said he found no evidence of foul play.

Dollar Sags In Exchanges

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar sagged on foreign exchanges, and the price of gold reached new peaks today amid widespread doubts over the stability of the world monetary system following devaluation of the American currency.

The dollar opened lower in most centers, but there were signs the decline toward its new official parities was slowing.

Sales of dollars, relatively heavy Wednesday, appeared to be slowing also. But dealers reported no indication speculators had begun buying dollars to reap the profits from the huge amounts of yen, German marks, Dutch guilders or Swiss francs they bought feverishly last week.

The price of gold climbed to new peaks in bullion markets everywhere. Dealers said this was partly a reflection of the upvaluing of the money of South Africa, the world's largest producer of gold, and partly an indication of the uncertainty of small speculators over monetary stability.

Senate Okays LBJ Holiday

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a bill today that would make former President Lyndon B. Johnson's birthday, Aug. 27, a state holiday.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, now goes to the House.

A committee amendment to the bill substitutes Johnson's birthday as a holiday for that of Jefferson Davis, June 3.

Sen. O. H. Harris, R-Dallas, asked Ogg why he no longer wanted to celebrate the birthday of the president of the Confederacy.

Ogg said the comptroller estimated the cost of a state holiday to the state at more than $4 million, and he was sure Harris was for economy. Rather than add another holiday, he said, it was better to cut one, and Davis' was the least objectionable.

Give your married man his walking papers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a very wealthy married man for the last three years. I was married when we started seeing each other, but I got a divorce because he said if I were "free" he would divorce his wife and marry me.

He told me that he had not laid a hand on his wife for five years, now all of a sudden she's pregnant! [He explained it by saying he had to give her something for their last anniversary!]

I am wondering now if I am foolish to wait for him? He has children, and so have I. I quit work to be available to see him during the day, but there are days I never see him, and I am getting bored. He takes good care of me financially, but I am a young woman yet and need to know the future is secure.

I have had offers of dates with other men, but have stayed true to him. Please tell me if you think I'm being played for a fool. Or should I wait out his wife?

TIRED AND IMPATIENT

DEAR T. AND I.: Why don't you give HIM something for his anniversary? His walking papers. If it's security you're after, you won't find it with him.

DEAR ABBY: When you go to a restaurant and order a sandwich, and it comes with a few slices of pickle on the edge of the plate, are you supposed to eat the pickle? Or is it just there for decoration?

We took a survey at our school. Out of 125 students, 75 rejected the pickle, and 50 ate it [mostly with their fingers]. Can you just imagine all the pickles that are wasted in the city of New York alone? How would you vote, Abby?

IN A PICKLE

DEAR IN: With the pickle eaters.

DEAR ABBY: You have absolutely made my year! I have had 21 years of moans and groans because of the name I gave my youngest daughter. And then you come along and print a letter from a girl who at age 18 actually CHOSE that very name out of all the names in the world!

My thanks to you, and to Bethany Lyn Brown from the mother of another Bethany Lyn.

MRS. HULL

DEAR ABBY: I have read that the quality of one's voice changes with age, and I'm sure it's true. And that is my problem because my husband said to me the other day: "I can't help it, but your voice just grates on my nerves!"

I have always been considered a good conversationalist and my personality has been described as "bubbling." But now I am so self-conscious about my voice I don't talk any more than I absolutely have to. And when I do talk to my husband, I try to use different tones and pitches so as not to irritate him.

I would be very grateful to you or to any of your readers if this condition of mine could be improved. Thank you.

UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: On the chance that your problem is medical, first you should see a throat specialist for a complete examination of your vocal chords. If you are healthy, a speech therapist or a voice coach might be very helpful. Your local college [speech or drama department] can make recommendations. And good luck!

POW Says Consider Source

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — Statements against the Vietnam war by American prisoners in Hanoi "were made from prison" and "we should consider the source," a senior American POW said today.

Air force Col. Robinson Risner of Oklahoma City, Okla., who had antiwar statements attributed to him by Hanoi Radio, made the comment in answer to a question at the first news conference given by any of the prisoners released Monday.

Risner and Marine Col. John H. Dunn of Jacksonville, Fla., both prisoners of war for seven years, met newsmen for 15 minutes. They avoided questions about prison life on grounds that their answers might be detrimental to the men still held.

Risner, 48, did not directly deny that he made the statements attributed to him. But he said: "At no time during my imprisonment have I failed to support my President and my country and my President's policy."

Several guilty pleas have been entered in county court this week.

This morning, Rosalio Gutierrez pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. He received a 3-day jail term and a $100 plus court costs. He was arrested Oct. 21, 1972 by Highway Patrolmen.

42 Liberated POWs Have Arrived At Travis

By JACK SHCREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The second group of 20 repatriated U.S. prisoners of war returned to mainland America today. Their spokesman called them men who "have lived with loyalty."

Navy Capt. James B. Stockdale, 49, of Abingdon, Ill., stepped down from the giant StarLifter jet to the cheers of about 100 well-wishers and said, "It's hard to believe we have come home."

He thanked the people for their loyalty, adding: "The men who follow me down that ramp know what loyalty means because they have been living with loyalty, living on loyalty, the past several years."

It was, he said, "loyalty to each other, loyalty to the military ethic, loyalty to our commander in chief."

His eyes filled with tears as he talked and he hesitated between phrases.

The first of two flights today followed Wednesday's joyous arrival of 20 men held captive in Vietnam for as long as eight years.

Twenty more men were in another plane approaching the California coast after the long flight from the Philippines.

Stockdale was shot down Sept. 9, 1965 on a bombing mission over North Vietnam.

All 20 on today's first flight were scheduled to fly on to military hospitals near their homes.

Joy was the theme of Wednesday's welcome of the first POWs.

"For over seven years that I was a prisoner of war, I never shed a tear. In the last two days, I've shed many tears — not of sadness, but of joy," was Lt. Col. Harlan P. Chapman's homecoming comment.

The Fremont, Calif., officer, the first returning Marine, was among the first planeload of former POWs to arrive Wednesday at Travis, the jumping-off point for 2.2 million fighting men over the past decade.

Two other former prisoners arrived home Tuesday under less happy circumstances — to go to the bedsides of seriously ill mothers.

It was a subdued, military-like but emotional homecoming at this sprawling base 50 miles northeast of San Francisco on Wednesday — the low-key reception President Nixon had requested.

A cheering, flag-waving crowd of 2,000 — mostly base personnel and military families — greeted the homecoming plane from behind rope barricades.

Three of the former prisoners embraced their wives as they stepped from the plane.

60 POWs To US Friday

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — Sixty more released American prisoners of war will fly home to the United States in three flights Friday, official sources said today.

The C141 StarLifter flights were tentatively scheduled to depart at 9:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Philppine time, for the 15-hour flight to Travis Air Force Base in California.

This will leave at Clark 20 of the 142 POWs flown here from Hanoi and South Vietnam on Monday. One other, Richard G. Waldhaus, a Pittsburg, Calif., civilian released in South Vietnam, was flown home from Saigon today on a commercial flight.

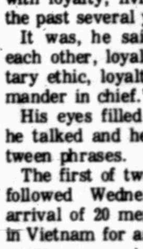

The names of those to be flown home Friday have not yet been released.

Officials said they will have no word when the next 20 prisoners will be released by Hanoi.

Theft Cases Are Reported

Thieves stole a coin box from a candy machine at Denson's Gulf Station, 300 East Highway, Wednesday night, according to a City Police report.

Officers also are investigating the theft of a box of tools from the 1962 Model Chevrolet pickup of Floyd Glasscock, Route 2, while the vehicle was parked at Cogdell Memorial Hospital's parking lot between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Wednesday. The loss was set at $50.

Labor Leaders Hit Phase 3

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Labor leaders voiced increasing resistance today to President Nixon's Phase 3 economic program, which continues a 5.5 per cent annual ceiling on wage hikes.

Paul Burnsky, president of the AFL-CIO Metal Trades Department, said he doubted that the federal wage guidelines would hold up in this year's coming big contract negotiations covering some 5 million workers.

One large union, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, already has breached the Phase 3 wage guideline with a three-year contract providing an 8 per cent pay boost this year and 6 per cent more in each of the following two years.

President Louis Stulberg of the ILGWU said he expected no trouble from Nixon's reorganized Cost of Living Council, which now allows wage hikes to go into effect without prior clearance until challenged by federal officials.

If other big unions follow suit, it could set off a labor stampede for wage increases above the federal limit, union officials said.

"If the General Electric workers or the auto workers get an increase like that, we'll have to start screaming too," said Edward Carlough, president of the Sheet Metal Workers Union.

Carlough's union is one of 16 AFL-CIO building trades whose wage hikes are covered by Nixon's separate Construction Industry Stabilization Committee.

Nixon left tighter wage controls on the construction unions, whose pay increases have fallen from some 18 per cent to less than 6 per cent per a year under two years of federal controls.

In another development, leaders of the 500,000-member Communications Workers of America said the wage-price control program has favored big business at the expense of workers.

They urged Congress not to renew Nixon's authority to control wages and prices when the present law expires April 30.

That would remove what Nixon has described as his "stick in the closet" to use against unions or companies that try to exceed Phase 3 limits.

Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz, who has been conferring with AFL-CIO President George Meany here the past two days, warned: "Effective wage-price stabilization must and will be pursued with full vigor to curb inflation and protect the value of the dollar."

Meany has not committed himself on Nixon's Phase 3 program beyond calling it "a step in the right direction."

The Weeders Guide

Roadside environment can hurt trees and other vegetation and home owners planning to landscape such areas must consider the effects of traffic, highway structure and maintenance.

With the proper varieties, planting and care, plants can withstand roadside hazards. Steady watering is recommended.

Dr. Walter Banfield, University of Massachusetts, reports that exposure to sun and wind, lack of shade and ground cover upset the moisture balance of trees. Unprotected trees, he noted, lost nearly three times as much water as trees in the forest.

"Construction and improvement of roads normally involves grading that covers some roots and cuts off others, hindering the tree's ability to feed itself," he says.

The first tree to show symptoms of drought is the roadside tree, he relates.

Deicing salt and auto engine fumes are contributing factors, but their effects may be reduced, the U.S. Highway Research Board says, by planting trees 30 to 50 feet from the edge of roadways. This also aids visibility and safety.

Salt-resistant plants that can be planted near the street include pfitzer juniper, creeping juniper and Adam's needle. Fairly tolerant to salt are privet, tartarian honeysuckle and black locust. Less tolerant are thornless honey locust, most oaks, forsythia and weigela.

Other factors to be considered include soil, rainfall and general plant health.

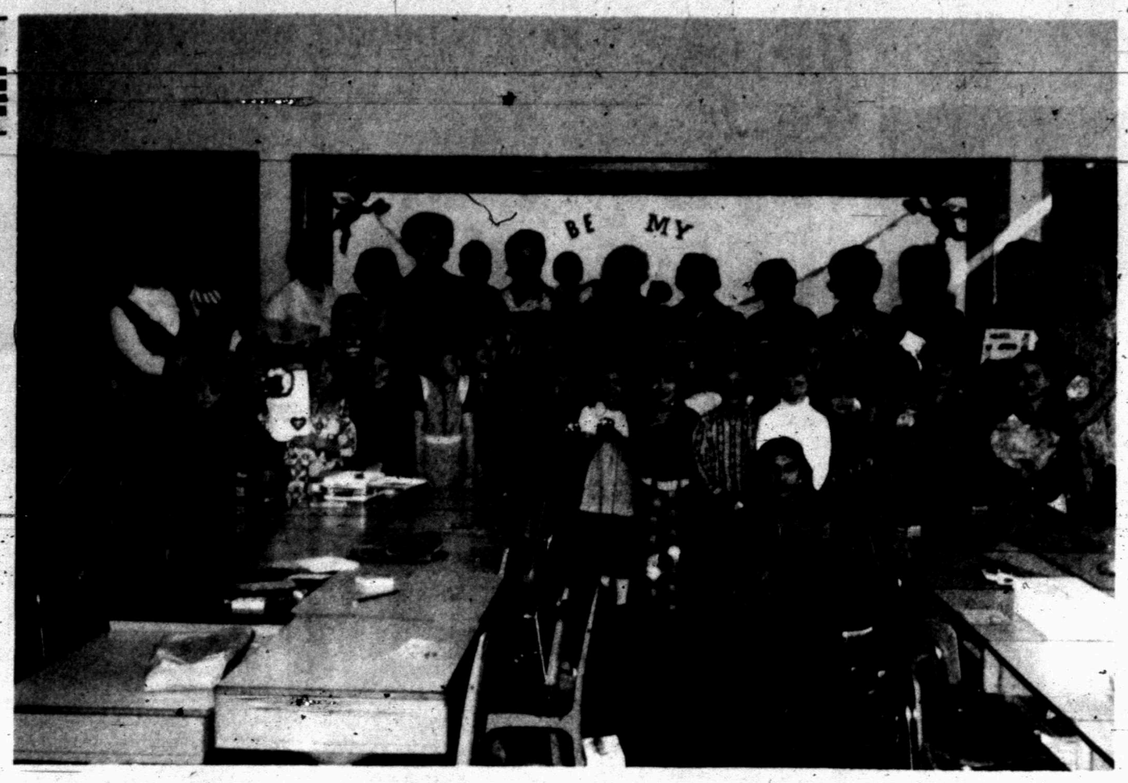

The Highway Research Board reports the most salt tolerant species of ornamental trees are black locust, honey locust, Russian olive, squaw bush and tamariz. A little less resistant are silver buffalo berry, golden willow, ponderosa pine and green ash.

Listed as the most tolerant grasses are Bermuda and fescue species.

Physical damage, as from autos and high winds, permits disease to start. There could be root destruction by excavation, burying root system by fill around the tree and scarring of trunk or loss of food.

Plant upslope from the highway if possible and erect fences or barriers around trees and shrubs threatened by bicycles, wagons or cars.

Pure flavoring extracts are made by dissolving the aromatic essential oils of flavorful foods in pure alcohol. Pure vanilla extract, for example, is made from selected vanilla beans.

ENJOY VALENTINE PARTY--Mrs. W.J. Frost and Mrs. B.H. Hibbs entertained the West Elementary kindergarten students at their first school Valentine party held Wednesday at the school. Stripes Predicted For Spring

COLLEGE STATION--Spring's fashion separates will flaunt stripes, one authority predicated.

Marilyn Brown, consumer education-clothing specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, indicated that much "stripe use" is due to versatility.

"Stripes can make almost any fashion statement from bold to quiet.

"Simply looking at the upcomingfashions, one would think that designers had spent time in old-fashioned prison garb'," the specialist quipped.

From pin stripes to racing stripes, designers are featuring th.em in vertical, horizontal and diagonal designs.

"Especially new for spring are the half-and-half treatments," Miss Brown continued. "Look for T-shirts seamed diagonally in half racing stripes and half solid color.

"Cardigan sweaters also are available in similar designs--such as one side striped and the other not. Sometimes panels of striping are done against color panels."

Color schemes likewise vary from bold to quiet--from navy with bright yellow to lavendar and white.

Classic combinations--navy and white, or red, navy and white--also appear in the season's garments, she concluded.

Dollar Devaluation To Bring Much Speculation

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As the 10 per cent dollar devaluation is examined in critical detail over the next few weeks you will hear much speculation on why "it just won't help improve our economic condition."

How much truth, if any, there is in each argument is hard to ascertain, but for certain there is the semblance of reason and logic and fact — enough perhaps just to get you into a good argument.

These are among the reasons that will be offered:

—American customers of foreign products will rush to buy imports that already are contracted for or are in stock in hopes of beating price increases.

In so doing, they will add to the inflationary pressures that still exist in the economy and which were among the factors that led to the dollar crisis.

—Americans have enough money so that they can afford to ignore higher import prices, especially if they have developed brand loyalty, such as to Japanese and German automobiles and cameras.

Some imports succeed because they are considered superior to what is available domestically.

If Americans ignore the higher prices — and some people today can easily do so — the desired affect of reducing imports could be delayed or reduced.

—The higher prices for imported raw materials will mean that the price of domestic manufactures dependent upon imports also will be forced higher, adding to the problem of inflation.

—Devaluations don't help restore a trade balance. If that was the case, what happened to the promised improvement in the U.S. trade account after the devaluation of December 1971?

The 1972 deficit didn't decline; it jumped to $6.4 billion. Many analysts foresee another deficit this year, the third in a row since 1971.

There is room for discussion, for opinions, for arguments in all these propositions, but most authorities consider certain asumptions to be unassailable. They follow:

—Inflation is the enemy of an international payments balance. A nation whose currency is weak from dilution of its real value cannot hope to compete against nations whose currency is stable.

Inflation causes goods to be overpriced, and thus is competitive. At the same time it makes currency available domestically for those who wish to buy imports. As a result, money flows out.

—The enemy of inflation is rising productivity. The word "productivity" is probably the most important word in the entire devaluation story.

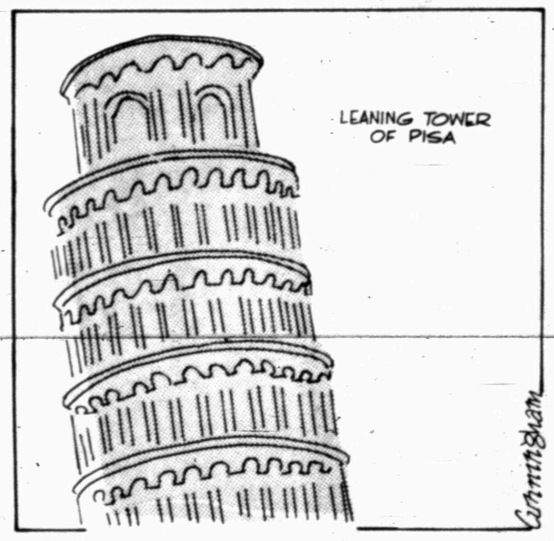

A country that continues to manufacture goods for less and less cost per unit is a country growing stronger, more competitive.

Echeverria To Visit 6 Countries

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria is going to visit Canada, England, France, Belgium, the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, he said Tuesday.

The trip will be made in March or April, although he did not give any dates.

Junior Editors' Quiz on TOWER OF PISA

QUESTION: Was the Leaning Tower of Pisa ever vertical?

* * *

ANSWER: The Leaning Tower of Pisa, the famous Bell Tower of Pisa, Italy, was constructed in the years 1174 to 1350. It began to lean during construction, after the first three stories were built. The ground beneath the Tower started to sink, and this pushed the tower. Measurements, begun on a yearly basis in 1918, show that the Tower has increased its lean, on an average of about one millimeter a year. By the middle 1960s, the Tower was about 14 1/2 feet out of alignment. Engineers do not consider it in danger of toppling. It endured the bombing raids of World War II.

The Leaning Tower is a great tourist attraction. It is built of marble and, with its columns and arches, is a fine example of Romanesque architecture. It is 179 feet tall with the bells housed at the top. An inner staircase of 300 steps leads to the top, which affords a view of the surrounding area. The Leaning Tower has been a marvel of the architectural world since its construction. It has been considered one of the Seven Wonders of the modern world.

Handout Man Is Fine Actor

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The handout man hasn't been around today. He wasn't here yesterday. But you can bet he'll be around tomorrow—or the day after, for sure.

Sooner or later each week, and sometimes twice in a week, a shadow will fall across my desk, I'll look up and standing there will be the finest actor I've ever met—the handout man.

And unconsciously, I'll reach in my pocket and hand out two one-dollar bills to him.

The handout man isn't a professional actor. He's a middle-aged panhandler, growing old ungracefully, who has been haunting me for 20 years. In that time I figure I've handed him out may $1,500—enough to keep me in cheap cigars in my own old age.

I've known my handout men in my life, but none who has had the lasting quality shown by Jack, an itinerant Homer who acts out the roles he creates.

The main trouble with Jack isn't the money he takes from your pocket but the time he takes from your busy day while he tells his story and gives his performance. You break his heart and lower his dignity if you won't listen to his story and watch his performance before giving him his $2.

Each time they are different.

One day he comes in dressed with the distressed charm of an oil salesman whose well has just run out of oil. This is when he tells you of the big job he almost landed but just missed, usually because of a conspiracy by his enemies.

The late Lon Chaney was known as "The man with a thousand faces." I think Jack has him beat by at least one role.

This day he's on crutches, other day on a cane. Last week his daughter became a drug addict, and he's trying to get her off the habit. This week his son will probably break his arm—again. Next week his wife will have another female operation, and the week after that he himself will have to have his 25th—or is it 26th—operation for a hernia.

Jack has a regular route of 25 to 50 clients, and plods it as conscientiously as a mailman. He has the persistence of a bloodhound, and if you play hide-and-seek from him successfully one week, he simply makes two calls next week.

A number of us have tried to help Jack. But what good would we do if—an unlikely event—we did succeed in reforming him?

We'd only wreck the career of a fine actor—and good acting is scarce enough in America as it is.

Ft. Worth Recycling Program Is Success

FORT WORTH (AP) — Dallas-Fort Worth residents have redeemed over five million pounds of discarded all-aluminum cans since Aluminum Company of America's "Yes We Can" program was started in November 1970.

This makes the Fort Worth-Dallas recycling program the highest volume project among the 1,000 existing aluminum reclamation sites in the United States.

"The five million pounds represents some 110 million aluminum cans collected and payments of $500,000 made to the concerned people of this area for their efforts," said Gary Biviano, Alcoa's local coordinator for reclamation and recycling.

Alcoa pays 10 cents a pound for crushed all-aluminum cans returned to any of its 17 reclamation centers in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

During 1972, 2,657,000 pounds of aluminum cans were redeemed locally, a 35 per cent of all the aluminum cans being sold in the Dallas—Fort Worth area are being redeemed for recycling through the "Yes We Can" project.

"The reasons why people are collecting all-aluminum cans are simple," said Biviano. "Individuals, church groups and civic organizations find aluminum can collecting an easy way to raise money while helping to keep this area clean.

PRODDED BY SPEAKER DANIEL

House Committee To Reconsider 'Bribery' Bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Prodded by Speaker Price Daniel Jr., the House Rules Committee voted today to reconsider a measure that would weaken his bill to make certain kinds of legislative arm twisting a crime.

The committee unanimously decided to restudy its Wednesday vote that approved a watered down version of the "legislative bribery" bill.

The committee is expected to report a stronger bill to the floor at a Monday afternoon meeting.

"I am going to be working this weekend with the legislative council and some lawyers to prepare an amendment ... that will restore or bring back the thrust of the original bill," said Rep. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, committee chairman.

Vale said he did not understand how badly the bill had been weakened until he read it in his office after Wednesday's vote was taken.

Daniel called Vale after learning of the committee action and asked for reconsideration.

The committee voted Wednesday to stand to the floor a complete rewrite of Daniel's "legislative bribery" bill, sponsored by Rep. Bob Hendricks, D-McKinney.

In place of Daniel's detailed listing of acts that would constitute "legislative bribery" in behalf of speaker candidates, the committee bill refers only to bribery in the sense of money, gifts or promises of employment. Penalties would range from two to five years in prison.

Daniel said he was unaware of the committee action until The Associated Press asked for comment.

"The committee is going to reconsider its vote on Monday and take another look at it...I hope that the revised bill will be stronger than it is. I hope to get back what I had originally," Daniel said in an interview.

He added that he planned to "lobby the members of the committee between now and Monday."

Daniel's original bill was designed to stop the use of a speaker's or other representative's power over legislation to secure votes in speaker races—a major criticism of former Speaker Gus Mutcher's administration.

House members choose one of their own number as speaker at the beginning of each legislative session.

The original bill would have prohibited anyone from offering, threatening or agreeing to cause a legislative action, such as passage or defeat of a bill, in return for votes for speaker. It also would have forbidden deals that would "confer any economic benefit on any person in exchange for votes for speaker."

Rep. Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas, tried to delay action on the substitute bill for a week.

A voice vote on tabling his motion was taken. The "ayes" and "noes" sounded about equal, but Vale quickly declared, "The ayes have it," and the postponement was blocked.

Wilson In Middle On Big Thicket Proposal

LUFKIN, Tex. (AP)--Lufkin's freshman congressmen, Rep. Charles Wilson, expects to find himself between a rock and a hard place when it comes time to introduce a Big Thicket National Park proposal, he said this week.

The rock? Conservationist groups. The hard place? Lumber companies.

Wilson said he is working toward a Big Thicket park proposal that he hopes to have completed by the end of this month.

He inherited the controversial Big Thicket issue when elected to Congress in November. The thicket is in his district.

"I am getting an enormous amount of desire expressed on behalf of my colleagues and constituents at home who think we should have a Big Thicket park and that I should take the lead in it," he said in an interview.

Though Wilson said his thoughts about what the park proposal should include are far from being complete, but his current ideas are a compromise of proposals already made.

Wilson said he will request that 69,000 to 100,000 acres be set aside but is undecided about what areas that will include.

"It will most certainly include the Lance Rosier unit the old Saratoga triangle," he said. "The major source of disagreement other than size has been the corridors along creeks and rivers.

"My feeling at present is to include the Neches River corridor but not Village, Turkey or Big Sandy creeks."

Though lumbermen and conservationist groups say they are willing to make concessions, Wilson said he doesn't expect to please both sides.

"The opposing forces are so demanding in their viewpoints that I don't know that I'll ever be able to accomplish any concensus but I am certainly trying," he said.

"I'm hoping for a compromise, but all I'll probably accomplish is make everybody mad," Wilson added.

The conservationists want a 100,000-acre park with the major portion along the stream corridors.

Lumber companies favor a proposal by Wilson's predecessor, Rep. John Dowdy, for 35,000 acres scattered throughout the thicket area and representing different ecological habitats.

The Dowdy proposal is known as the "string of pearls."

Cernan Praises Space Program

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)--The commander of the Apollo 17 moon mission said Wednesday that the nation, by landing men on the moon, gained more pride in itself and more respect from aboard.

Eugene A. Cernan told a joint session of the Arkansas Legislature that it was "very difficult to put a price tag on such a significant achievement." He said the accomplishments of the space program have been a symbol of the courage, dedication and sacrifice of the American people.

Cernan and his companions on the last moon voyage--Navy Capt. Ronald Evans and Dr. Harrison Schmitt--appeared before the legislature as part of a goodwill tour of the nation.

The three presented mementoes of their December flight to Gov. Dale Bumpers that included a small replica of the Arkansas flag and an Apollo patch that was taken to the moon. Bumpers designated the three Arkansas Travelers.

Cernan said the United States had thrived because it accepted new challenges and had never "turned inward and felt sorry for itself."

"That's the reason I believe in the space program and what it has accomplished today and what it will do in the future," Cernan said.

Schmitt said the principal motivation for starting the program was political, but that science had become the chief beneficiary. He said exploration of the moon had shown that the moon was "a window, albeit a pitted and dusty window, into our own past."

Evans said the cost of the space program was about $16 per American each year and this was less than the nation spent per person annually for tobacco, liquor and dog and cat food.

He said "You don't have to be a businessman to realize" that the investment in the space program was worthwhile. "I think it was worth it," he said.

The astronauts gave the Senate a photograph of an "earth rise" as seen from the moon. They gave the House a photograph of the earth taken from deep space.

312 Convention

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston had 312 conventions in 1971 and the 447,206 persons attending spent $65,377,206.

The Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council's report showed 66,000 more convention-goers in 1971 and that they spent $7 million more.

The report said 173 conventions have been booked in Houston for 1973 and that 30 to 50 more are expected.

The booked conventions have promised 403,000 visitors who will spend an estimated $61,489,195.

Tons Of Marjuana Seized

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)--Customs agents seized eight tons of marijuana from the Mexican freighter Don Miguel Wednesday in what they called the largest marijuana seizure ever in the United States.

Three persons were arrested in the seizure and crewmen aboard the 150-foot freighter and a tug which brought it to Los Angeles harbor from Mazatlan were ordered to remain aboard the vessels.

Both vessels, under Mexican registry, were impounded by customs agents, a spokesman said.

The Don Miguel was once known as the USS Reluctance when it was used in filming a segment of the television series "Ironside."

Customs agents said about 7,000 bricks of marijuana weighing 2.2 pounds each were found in 384 wooden boxes marked "coffee."

The ship and tug had entered the harbor Tuesday after a stop in Ensenada, Mexico.

Customs agents said the seizure topped a five-ton haul made in San Francisco about two years ago.

Mazatlan is on the Pacific coast of the mainland of Mexico and Ensenada is a Baja California port about 80 miles south of San Diego, Calif.

Two Teens Asphyxiated

SAN ANTONIE, Tex. (AP)--Firemen blamed a faulty natural gas heater today for killing two teen-agers and putting five others in their family in hospitals.

Police responding to a disturbance call received no answer Wednesday night when they knocked on the door, and they looked through a window to find all seven lying on the floor.

District Fire Chief Jesse Renteris said they were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes from a hallway heater in the home of Fred G. Biglicky, 39.

Two daughters of Biglicky and his wife-Teresa, 13, and Debbie, 16-- died before reaching a hospital.

Attendants said Biglicky was in critical condition but his wife Mary, 40, was in fair condition.

Three other children were treated and sent to the county child shelter. They are Anthony, 3, David, 9, and Patricia, 6.

Stewart Named Top Male Vocalist

LONDON (AP) — Rod Stewart has been chosen the world's top male pop vocalist by readers of Disc, a leading British entertainment weekly.

The weekly announced on Wednesday the winners of its readers' poll. Stewart also was named top British vocalist.

The American Alice Cooper group won the award as top international group, and its "Schools Out" was named the top single of 1972.

Keith Emerson, organist with Emerson, Lake and Palmer, was named top musician. America's Melanie was named top international female vocalist.

Onion-A-Day Keeps Man, 92, Fit And On The Job

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)--A 92-year-old steelworker who has no plans to retire says he stats fit by eating an onion a day.

"I love to work, so why should I retire?" says Ricardo Basques, who signed on at the Bethlehem Steel Corp. plant here at the age of 62 in 1943, when the World War II labor shortage was at its height.

Since the United Steel Workers' contract with Bethlehem sets no mandatory retirement age, Basques has just kept on working.

"Of course we encourage most of our people to retire at 65," said Edward Frank, district public affairs manager for Bethlehem. "But Mr. Basques seems to be unique."

On workday mornings, Basques rises at 4:30 a.m. at his home near the plant for a breakfast of bananas and milk. Then his wife, Guadalupe, 61, drives him to work in time for the 7 a.m. shift.

Basques' job is to take 20-pound steel bars as they come out of a metal straightener and stack them in piles for further processing.

He earned about $10,000 last year, Basques said in an interview.

"He functions like an aristocrat with a sense of humor," said one of his two work partners, Ray Ridgeway, 56.

"He will be standing up there catching bars--we always stand up--and he will make like he's picking away at a guitar."

On one recent eight-hour shift, Frank said Basques and his partner's handled 8,200 bars, an unofficial plant record.

Basques, a native of Mexico who speaks little English, listed his birthdate on his original application for employment as April 7, 1880, Frank said. An article in a recent issue of the union paper, "Steel Labor," said a baptismal certificate from Mexico had confirmed that date.

Basques said he came to the United States in 1919, worked on a Montana sugar beet ranch for many years and arrived in San Francisco in 1943.

After a coworker drives Basques home at the end of each workday, Basques says he and his wife relax and occasionally have a shot of whisky.

He disclaims any secret explanation for his longevity and endurance, except for one special habit.

"I eat a whole onion every day," Basques said. "Every day of the year."

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I. (AP) — Prince Edward Island residents 60 or older can take any course this year for free. The University of Prince Edward Island says elder citizens also will not have to provide educational or other prerequisites. It's one of several UPEI projects for the Centennial Year.

Bank Robbed

LIBERTY, Tex. (AP) — The Bank of Liberty in Liberty in Southeast Texas was robbed this morning as employes were preparing to open the institution.

The bandit fled in an old car with an undetermined amount of money.

Liberty is about halfway between Beaumont and Houston.

AGGIE BAND SWEETHEART--Becky Lofton of Snyder has been named 1973 Sweetheart of the Aggie Band at Texas A&M University. HEW Unit Giving Hair A New Look

DALLAS--Officials of the Health, Education and Welfare Office of Civil Rights indicated that Washington is taking a new look at a non-compliance charge against Kimball High School which developed over complaints about length of boys' hair in the school band.

The Washington civil rights office had mailed a letter in January advising Dallas school officials that the school district was in "non-compliance" with the Educational Amendments Act of 1972 prohibiting sex discrimination.

"I think you would say Washington is reconsidering the matter," said Dorothy Stuck regional civil rights director, who said the Washington officials had taken the position before looking over the Dallas School District's dress code. She said copies of the dress code would be sent to Washington for examination and comments, but in no way would such examination imply that the investigation would include aspects of the dress code other than hair.

Six Kimball High youths had complained that the school district was discriminating on the basis of sex because girls in the Kimball band were permitted to wear their hair longer than boys.

The youths, booted from the band last fall because the length of their hair failed to comply with the dress code, sought a court injunction, but U.S. District Judge Eldon B. Mahon refused to grant the injunction. An appeal is pending before the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

★★★

Q. How can I tell if I'm eligible to use the short form 1040A?

A. Basically, the short form 1040A may be used if all your income was from wages, salaries, tips and not more than $200 in dividends and $200 in interest and you do not plan to itemize deductions.

If you receive the short form in the mail, it was sent to you based on the return you filed last year. If you did not receive a short form 1040A in the mail and want to use it, a copy may be obtained at any Internal Revenue office and most banks and post offices, or you may use the order blank in the form 1040A package to obtain a copy.

Q. Is every taxpayer who is eligible to use the short form 1040A required to do so?

A. No. Use of the short form is optional. If you had sizeable expenses for such items as medical and dental care, interest, taxes, contributions, alimony, child care, etc., it may be to your advantage to itemize deductions. This can only be done on Schedule A of your Form 1040 and not on the short form.

A formula for determining whether or not you should itemize deductions is found in your tax for instructions.

Q. I should receive a refund when I file my Federal income tax return. Can I still designate $1 of my tax towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A. Yes. Every individual (other than a nonresident alien) may participate in the Presidential Election Campaign Fund if he has a tax liability of $1 or more ($2 or more for joint return filers).

In addition, completion of Form 4875 in your tax forms package to designate the check-off will not change any of the figures on your Form 1040 or Form 1040A.

Q. Have the filing requirements for older taxpayers been changed?

A. Yes. If you are unmarried and 65 or older, you do not have to file a return unless you have a gross income of $2,800 or more. For married persons filing a joint return, the filing requirement is $3,550 if either husband or wife is 65 or older, and $4,300 if both are 65 or older.

However, if you are self-employed, you must file a return if you had net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, regardless of your age.

Q. I'm retired and eligible to receive the retirement income credit. Will the IRS compute it for me?

A. Yes. If you elect to have the IRS compute your tax and you have a retirement income credit, the IRS will also compute this for you. Just follow the directions in your tax form instructions.

How do I go about ordering free IRS tax publications?

A. Just fill in the order blank on the back of your tax forms package, choosing the form or free publication that you want from the list shown, and send it to the IRS office shown on the package.

Q. Are there any limits on how much you can deduct as a charitable contribution?

A. Yes. In general, contributions to most charities, such as churches, educational organizations, hospitals, etc., may be deducted up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, contributions to certain private nonoperating foundations, veterans organizations, fraternal societies, and cemetery organizations are limited to 20 percent of adjusted gross income. The organization itself can tell you which of the two categories it falls into.

There are also certain limitations on contributions of property, such as stock. For details, see IRS Publication 526, "Income Tax Deduction for Contributions," available free from your IRS-district office.

Can you name the one single record album which has outsold all others, including any Broadway musical, movie musical or whatever? That would be the sound track from 20th-Fox's all-time film grosser, "The Sound of Music", starring JULIE ANDREWS. They They made a deal that if she actually did gain the 45 pounds, she would get the role. On the appointed day, she arrived at the studio for the confrontation with Allen who had a giant scale brought into his office for the official weighing-in. Shelley got on the scale which registered a gain of 51 pounds--6 pounds "over-weight." Shelley Winters is one gal who is also heavy on talent.

Grid Suit Is Dropped

NEW ORLEANS (AP)--U.S. Atty. Gerald Gallinghouse says he is dropping prosecution of former New Orleans Saints quarterback Karl Sweetan and his cousin Wayne Boswell in an alleged pro football playbook sale scheme.

Saints Coach J.D. Roberts reported to National Football League authorities last June that Sweetan and Boswell had offered to sell the 1971 book of game plays of the Los Angeles Rams, for whom Sweetan had also played.

The NFL turned the matter over the the FBI, and agents arrested Sweetan and Boswell. They were accused of transporting stolen property across state lines and using telephone lines in a scheme to defraud.

76ers Defeat Bucks 106-104

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia 76ers are still having trouble putting the ball in the basket, but that doesn't stop them from winning a game once in a while.

Losers in their last 20 contests, the National Basketball Association's worst team finally came up with a victory--but needed a goal-tending call to do it Wednesday night.

"Tremendous," shouted a jubilant Kevin Loughery, the 76ers' coach, after his bunch defeated the Bucks 106-104 on a goal-tending call against Milwaukee's Dick Cunningham with 16 seconds left.

The winning goal, credited to Fred Boyd, sent the 76ers charging into their dressing room amid shouts and hoops. It appeared that they had won the NBA title.

"We beat a real good club, too," added Loughery, who took over the wobbly team this year after Roy Rubin was fired. "Leroy Ellis was unbelievable. He scored 36 points and did everything a basketball player could do. And he even blocked their last shot."

In the other NBA games Wednesday night, the Chicago Bulls nipped the New York Knicks 100-98; the Boston Celtics trimmed the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 104-101; the Baltimore Bullets stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 107-106 and the Phoenix Suns smashed the Buffalo Braves 124-107.

Western, Texans Tangle Tonight

The Western Texas College Westerners face a monumental task tonight. They take on the league-leading South Plains Texans at 7:30 p.m. in Levelland in a Western Junior College athletic Conference basketball tilt.

The Texans are flying high. They own a 24-3 record and are 12-0 in conference play. WTC, on the other hand, is 14-9 for the season and 7-5 on conference play. It will be a matchup between the first place team and the third place team.

About a month ago, these same two teams tangled in Snyder and the Texans came out on the top end of a 100-91 score.

"We'll have to play real good to win," declared WTC Coach Sid Simpson.

He listed probable starters as follows: Ronnie Allen, freshman from Fort Worth North Side, at center; Walter Hanibal, sophomore from Fort Worth Kirkpatrick, and Harold Ward, freshman from Passaic, N.J., or James Houston, sophomore from Charlotte, N.C., at forward; Fred Allen, freshman from Little Rock Central, and Danny McDaniel, freshman from Little Rock Central, or Steve Sparks, sophomore from Krum, at guard.

"Kent Horsley missed the Tech game due to the flu, but he worked out yesterday and probably will be available," said Simpson.

Other Westerners ready for action are Jimmy Hill, sophomore from Amarillo Tascosa; Eric Grant, freshman from Hondo; Joel Dyess, sophomore from South Garland; Luis Blanco, freshman from Ft. Stockton; and, James Batteau, freshman from Hondo.

The Texns had four men to hit in double figures against the Westerners in the first game. They are Ron Powdrell, George Pannell, Charles Hutchings and Ray Tillman. Pannell and Hutchings are both guards while Powdrell is a forward. The other forward for tonight's game probably will be Robert O'Neal with Kenny Bacon at center.

Powdrell, Pannell and Hutchings all are averaging 20 points or more per game. Powdrell also is the leading rebounder on the club.

Hospital officials said President Nixon sent a telegram Wednesday, saying he was rooting for Frisch and hoping for a full recovery.

College Living Styles Changed

Editor's Note: The days when a college student had a choice only between a dormitory and a boarding house are gone. Today's student has more options and more freedom to choose. His home away from home may be a luxurious apartment suite or a frugally furnished room with a mattress on the floor. Dormitories are losing out.

By CHRIS HARTE
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Student living styles at the University of Texas at Austin range from expensive to cheap and from private to communal.

"It's a real smorgasbord," says Dorothy Dean, an administrator who helps students match their housing desires with what her voluminous files tell her is available.

"The only place I haven't heard of anyone living is in a houseboat on Town Lake," she says. "But that will happen, too, before long."

Fewer than 7,000 of the university's almost 40,000 students live in university housing, while the rest choose from a myriad of off-campus facilities.

Almost half of the students wind up in apartments, by far the most popular option for everyone except freshmen.

Swimming pools, modern kitchens and party rooms are standard equipment in the apartments favored by students. Some have luxuries such as saunas and tennis courts.

"I wanted to get away from the hugeness and impersonality of Jester (dormitory)" a sophomore apartment dweller from San Antonio says. "It's not as private as I'd like, but it's a lot better than a dorm."

The advent of the shuttle bus has opened whole new areas to student living. Students pay a flat fee each semester and then can ride the shuttle whenever they want. The shuttles have made possible large student communities miles from the campus.

Dormitories are kept filled mostly by freshmen. Two-thirds of all freshmen live in dorms, but they gradually move out until by senior year only 7 or 8 per cent of UT students remain in the dorms.

"I was from out of state, didn't know much about my options, and they told us to get our reservations in early or we might not get a room—so I did," says Sean Summers, a freshman from Georgia, explaining why he entered a dormitory.

"My parents wanted me to be in a dorm and have regulations," a freshman girl from Fort Worth says.

Dorm regulations irritate most residents. Rules that forbid men visiting in women's rooms or women in men's except for certain hours on weekends get the most criticism.

"No one follows all these rules," claims a transfer student from California. "If they did, this would be a miserable place to live." But others say the rules are enforced on their corridors.

Women have a curfew—unless they are 21 or have a parental exemption from it—requiring them to be in their dorms by midnight on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends. Men have no curfew.

The dorms work to keep up with off-campus lifestyles. Jester Center, a mammoth complex housing about 1,800 men and 1,200 women, recently went partly coed. Most floors now have men and women living in separate wings.

But, says Robbie Anderson of Fort Worth, "What they call coed is not really coed," pointing to the arrangements in private dorms like Dobie or some of the co-op houses, where men and women live in separate rooms randomly interspersed along a hall.

Dobie Center, a high rise owned by a Chicago financial institution and run by a California food service management company, typifies the private dorms, which often set the lead campus dorms must follow.

Dobie not only offers the staffing and program that could be expected in a dorm—on a recent evening atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair talked to students in one room while the Campus Crusade for Christ held a meeting nearby—but also has no visiting hour and curfew regulations, and has men and women living next door to each other.

The fraternity-sorority system is on the upswing again, with fraternities reporting interest in rush up this year for the first time since 1968.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Charles Porter says 750 students rushed this year and 650 pledged. "We've now got more men in the fraternity system than any other college in the country," he says.

The resurgence of fraternities and sororities is attributable to new leaders and new involvement in campus life, Porter says. "We had to get away from hazing and thousand dollar summer rush parties, and get active in campus politics again," he said.

About 800 students live in 12 university-owned and 13 private co-operative houses, a rise of 30 per cent in the last two years. Students in most of these houses do almost all their own work, from major repairs to cleaning up to cooking.

"Basically, students like the co-ops because they don't have anyone telling them what to do," says Ernie Eden, a recent graduate who heads a loose confederation of co-ops.

The small size of most co-op houses—20 to 30 persons is average—and the fact that residents have to get to know each other to keep things going are cited by others."

"I know more people here after one week than I knew in the dorm at the end of the semester," says Dana Pettiet, a junior transfer student who just moved to Theleme House.

One of the ways the co-op houses keep their costs down is through food co-ops. Buying in large quantities from wholesale markets in San Antonio and from small farms near Austin, the Austin Community Project sells food to neighborhood co-ops and the co-op houses at prices it says are 30 to 50 per cent below those in grocery stores.

Collectives and communes are not a major factor in UT housing now, but those who live in them think they are growing in influence.

Rick Ream, who lives in the Peace Energy House collective with two other men, three women, and a 3-year-old boy, says the collective differs from a co-op in decision-making, which is by consensus rather than by majority vote. "If one person strongly objects to anything, then we don't do it," he says.

He lived in a commune last summer, where residents pooled their income and had common ownership of all possessions, but says it broke up because of personality differences. "In Jester you might not even know the person next door," he says, "but if you're going to live in a commune you'd better know each other real well and be communicating and sharing all the time, or it won't work."

Negligence Bill To Floor

AUSTIN (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has approved for floor action a bill to repeal the law that keeps drivers from collecting damages in accident cases if they were even slightly negligent.

A similar bill was passed by the legislature in 1971 but was vetoes by then Gov. Preston Smith, who said it would raise auto liability insurance rates.

Favorable committee action came Wednesday night on an 18-0 vote, with four absent.

Under present Texas law, juries in accident cases are asked if the plaintiff, as well as the defendant, was negligent. If lawyers for the defendant—or his insurance company—can convince the jury that the injured party committed a negligent act that contributed even slightly to the cause of the accident, he cannot collect money damages.

The bill, by Rep. Jim Nugent, D—Kerrville, would require a jury to divide the blame between the two parties on a percentage basis. If the plaintiff, for instance, was found to be 10 per cent to blame, his award would be reduced by 10 per cent.

The Texas Trial Lawyers Association, composed of plaintiffs' attorneys, has lobbied hard for passage of the comparative negligence bill.

SWTS Names Miss Black

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — Gwen Thomas, 20, a junior English major from Bryan, was crowned Miss Black Southwest Texas State University Wednesday night.

Renee Harris, 18, a fashion merchandising major from Kingsbury, was first runnerup. Miss Harris is a freshman.

Miss Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thomas, will advance to the Miss Black Texas Pageant.

Her selection from a field of eight contestants highlighted the fifth annual "Black Awareness Week" at Southwest Texas.

Directs Job Fair

HOUSTON (AP) — Andrew L. Knight, 46, employment manager of the Boeing Co. here, will direct the 1973 Job Fair, Mayor Louie Welch said Monday.

Alcholism As Subject Is Urged

HOUSTON (AP) — The medical director of the National Council of Alcoholism says alcoholism as a subject "should be taught in every level of medical school" to better prepare doctors who treat alcoholics.

Dr. Frank Seixas said that while some medical schools touch on the subject in their courses, it should be taught in greater depth.

Seias estimated there are 9 million alcoholics in the United States.

He told a meeting of the Houston Regional Council on Alcoholism that the disease affects a greater cross section of the populance than any other.

"Only two to five per cent of the nation's alcoholics are down—and—out bums," he said.

He said that with more funds and better facilities for treatment, the number of alcoholics could be reduced.

He said the alconolism council, headquartered in New York, operates on a yearly budget of $1 million obtained largely from donations by private individuals and industries.

Family Attends Texas Tech

LUBBOCK (AP) — When Camille Batterley arrived at Texas Tech from her home in Spearman, she found a ready-made family already here.

Camille is the youngest of four Baggerleys at Tech. The family includes Karen, big brother Steve, and his wife Becky. And just to round things out, Becky's younger sister, Cissy Bean, is also a Tech student. The Beans are from Tularosa, N.M.

Cissy Bean and Camille Baggerley live in dormitories on the campus. Karen lives in an apartment with three sorority sisters. Steve and Becky live across town.

Even though they live apart, the Baggerleys are a close family. The girls said they see each other frequently, but seldom manager to get all five together at one time. "We're close, but we all lead our separate lives too," said Karen. "About the only time we all really get together is when we are home for a holiday.

Steve is the big brother of the Baggerleys. Cissy Bean says he is her big brother, too. His record for repairing broken stereo sets and cajolling cranky cars has given him the title of Mrs. Fixit.

The Baggerleys are pursuing different majors. Steve is a senior majoring in mechanical engineering.

Becky is a junior majoring in elementary education.

Karen has completed two years at Texas Tech as a major in microbiology. She is now in the nursing program at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Camille is a freshman majoring in special education.

The last member of the family, Cissy Bean, is also a freshman. Her major is clothing and textile engineering.

Such diversified majors make textbook trading very difficult, agreed the Baggerleys. "But," said Camille, "Steve sure is handy to have around when it comes to helping me with chemistry."

The Western, or Wailing, Wall is the sole remnant of the Temple, the lodestone of Judaism, National Geographic says. Built by Solomon and destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, restored by Herod and razed by the Romans, the Temple in Jerusalem once contained the Tablets of the Law, the Commandments given to Moses.

WE'RE IN THE MONEY--It may be an old song, but it's literally true for Susan, Darrell and Bryan Porter as they visit the showroom at Mal Donelson Chevrolet. They're inspecting $200 in coins that will be involved in a "hay hunt" for children Saturday at the grand opening of Mal Donelson Chevrolet. Parents of the three youngsters are Mr. and Mrs. R.B. Porter.

A DREAM COME TRUE

Chevrolet Dealer Slates Grand Opening Saturday

Saturday is celebration day for the Chevrolet dealership in Snyder. Malvin Donelson is the new owner, after buying out Les Francis last December.

The changing of ownership of a auto dealership is not an uncommon happening these days. However, there are a few aspects of this story that are of special interest.

Mom used to say, "Son, work hard, save your money and someday you'll make something of yourself." No one had to say that to Mal Donelson some 20 years ago, as he worked washing and greasing cars for an automobile dealer in Sweetwater.

"I can remember," he related, "Sitting in the cars in the showroom and saying, 'Gee, just imagine owning a dealership!' "

During his teenage years he continued working in and around automobile dealerships. His family moved to Lubbock, while he went from washing cars to working in the parts department.

After graduating from Lubbock High School, he attended Texas Tech for two years, majoring in psychology. Then he went to work for Graham Paper Company in Dallas as a salesman and public relations consultant.

Nine and a half years later, he knew that he had reached a point in life where a change had to come. "I made up my mind," he said. "I didn't like the paper business and I still had that bug. I still wanted to own my own dealership and sell new cars."

MAL DONELSON
...ambition realized

With that, in 1962, he left his $12,000 a year job for a $250 a month guarantee and a sales position at Modern Chevrolet in Lubbock. In 1965, he shifted to a Ford (which he refers to as foreign cars) dealership until 1967 when he came to Les Francis here.

He became the general manager here until the opportunity arose to buy out Les Francis. This Saturday's celebration will mark a dream come true. According to Donelson, coffee, soft drinks, donuts and cookies will be served all day starting at 9 a.m. and continuing all day.

During the afternoon two special events are scheduled. From 3 to 3:30 p.m., a hay hunt for children age six and under will be held. Donelson has deposited $200 in coins in a hay-filled pen and children are welcome to play finders keepers. At 6 p.m. a drawing will be held for persons registered, age 16 and over for a 1960 Corvair. This Detroit "gem," according to Donelson comes with an Oklahoma guarantee. If it breaks in two pieces they're both yours.

"When you are as young as I was," said Donelson, "you don't realize that your dreams can come true." It might be argued that 'Horatio Alger' stories are not uncommon. However, proportionately few make that rocky path to success.

The numbers of farms in Austria declined by 34,000 or 8.5 per cent between 1960 and 1970.

Turkey Growers Told To Hold Production Down

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)--The Cost of Living Council, despite prospects of the biggest food-price increase in 22 years, has approved a recommendation that turkey farmers hold down production in 1973 in order to get higher prices.

The Agriculture Department advised turkey growers Wednesday they should not increase production this year more than 1 per cent above the 1972 record of 128 million birds if they want to avoid low prices.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter, who oversees marketing programs, said the council readily approved the recommendation.

"It's purely a matter of getting some balance in the supply," Yeutter told a reporter. "I'm sure the council approved because we are calling for an increase. If we had recommended a reduction so that the supply for the year would have been less we'd have had some flak."

In most market situations, lowering the supply tends to increase prices.

Two weeks ago Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz announced that the Agriculture Department would no longer issue "marketing guides" to farmers without council approval.

The turkey guide was the first since the review was initiated by the administration as part of an attempt to hold down rising retail food prices. Other guides--which advise farmers how best to increase their earnings--are issued during the year for such items as broiler chickens, eggs, vegetables and potatoes.

Turkey, along with broiler chicken, is a favorite alternative of housewives plagued by high prices for beef and pork. Experts claim more cattle and hogs will go to market next fall and thus reduce part of the need for more poultry.

Meantime, the Agriculture Department announced Tuesday that supermarket food prices are expected to rise between 6 and 6.5 per cent this year, the most since an 11-percent gain in 1951.

William E. Cathcart, poultry economist in USDA, says wholesale turkey prices also have risen and in January averaged about 42 cents per pound for young toms, compared with 36 cents a year ago--an increase of nearly 17 per cent.

Cathcart said he could not accurately predict what turkey prices might be by next Thanksgiving. He said a lot depends on what growers do, how much beef and pork goes to market and whether feed costs remain high.

Indians are thought to have lived in what now is western Kentucky as long as 15,000 years ago.

Midland Asks Radio Permit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission Tuesday announced receiving this application:

Midland, Tex.—Midland Broadcasting Co., construction permit for a new FM station.

Letters To Editor

To The Daily News:

It is not my intention to appear ultra-religious, but I am pleased to comfort the soul of any person (we well know the soul or spirit of man cannot be physically seen or touched). Usually a joyful spirit in man is caused by a clear conscience. Man must have a clear conscience before God and man. I might fool you but I cannot fool myself. Results, my spirit or inner man is disturbed. Some years ago, in East Texas, a man in our neighborhood (he was doing well, owned his own farm), in cotton harvest went at night and took some of his neighbor's cotton to fill out his own wagon. He was found out and paid for the cotton, but his spirit wasn't free. So, he sold his farm and moved away. His conscience moved with him.

The only thing that would have cleared his conscience was to stay where he was and prove to others he had repented and had learned a lesson and wanted to be a good neighbor. At another time, one of our neighbors said he was losing some of his corn from his barn. He devised a trap just inside his barn door so anyone going inside the door would be caught. Who do you think got caught? Yes, you are right. The man who set the trap. Let's not set any traps we might be sorry for. Remember, anything done or said is forever, and though we never forget we can clear our conscience.

Let's just plant some flowers along the way, so others may get the fragrance and we can enjoy them, too. Be good if my neighbor, finding fault in me, would tell me. Maybe I'll do better and win his confidence. We say we have grown up, but can we forgive like a child even? Now, we say the Lord has forgiven us, can we forgive others? I am trying.

Fragrance doesn't just come from flowers only.

John D. Curtis Sr.

To The Daily News:

To the people that would like to own land and find the land values too high and too scarce, I wish to give you a few facts and figures on land deals. The Southern Pacific Railroad Co. owns nearly four million acres of land and the minerals on another one and one-third million acres. This is timber and grazing land with a little of the minerals developed. At today's prices, the land alone would be more than the stock costs.

The Canadian Pacific Railroad owns over nine million acres of land in Canada. It has been carried on the books at a value of 10 cents an acre. At today's market, there is no telling what it would bring. The Texas Pacific Land Trust Co. owns nearly five hundred thousand mineral acres and over one and one-half million acres of land which is mostly grazing land. I don't sell stocks. I don't recommend your buying these. I merely wanted to let you know the facts.
