COUNTY LOWERS TAX RATE

Revaluation Makes 5% Cut In County Tax Rate Possible In Coming Fiscal Year, County Judge John Wendell Says

Completion of the revaluation survey by Thomas Y. Pickett and Company and the ending of hearings by the County Board of Equalization, have made it possible to lower the county tax rate by 5% during the next fiscal year, County Judge John D. Wendell said this morning.

"There has been a misconception of the whole program in the minds of a few people," Judge Wendell said.

"The purpose of the survey was to equalize values, not to raise taxes. After Pickett and Company arrived at the valuations and the Board of Equalization met, we spent approximately two days going over things called to our attention. In some cases we felt that there was an inequity and we remedied it; in others, we did not.

"But the net result of the whole thing was a 5% drop in the county rate. From the $1 per $100 necessary last year, the rate will be lowered during the coming fiscal year to 95 cents per $100.

"Moreover," he continued, "the county is in the best financial shape in years. The auditor's financial statement, soon to be published, shows only $275,000 of bonded indebtedness. This is for the badly-needed courthouse and jail we built four years ago, and outside of that we don't owe a cent.

"Roads in both the county and the City of Rockport are in good shape. Considerable paving has been done and we are operating well within our budget. Actually, county operations consume only 76 cents out of every tax dollar. The other 24 cents goes to retiring the courthouse bonds."

Final valuations in the county, Judge Wendell said, totaled $19,787,117, or approximately $287,000 more than last year, and would have been higher except for the fact that 16 Aransas County oil wells were closed down for good this year.

For assessment and taxation purposes, 20%, or one-fifth of the valuation is used.

Previous studies by firms and individuals have shown, he stated, that assessments ranged from 14% to 27.7% of the 100% value. Now, after the study by Pickett, these inequalities have been removed, and the assessment rate is set at a flat 20% on utilities, industries, pipelines, real and personal property, and all sources from which the county draws its tax money.

And while this has upped some assessments, it has lowered others, the Judge said, and for the first time in many years, assessments in the county are on an equable basis

This action also satisfied large taxpayers in the county, who had previously told both the county and the school board that—unless such equalization was achieved—they would refuse to pay their taxes, thus robbing the two agencies of a large portion of their income which could only be regained after long and expensive law suits.

Despite this, many small taxpayers actually had their valuations reduced, and the number of protests amounted to only a very small percentage of the people to which 4,200 tax notices were mailed after the revaluation had been completed, Judge Wendell said.

Employment of an outside firm, with no ties in the community and immune to pressure from tax-conscious citizens, was considered the fairest method for all concerned, he said. And he pointed out that the contract price for the survey included two years of service by the valuation engineers, allowing inadvertent inequalities to be ironed out over a period of time.

With costs of labor, materials, and equipment constantly rising, taxing units from cities and schools to the Federal government have all been faced with the same problems, the Judge stated, and most of them have met it in the same way.

Revaluation programs have been carried out within the past year or two by school districts like those at Victoria, Mission Valley, Cuero, Ingleside and Aransas Pass, and are now going on in most of the counties of the Coastal Bend.

"Actually," he said, "we feel like we are to be congratulated. In Victoria, the school district has already served notice on tax payers that their taxes will be 9% higher than they were last year, and the school district, county and city are engaged in a series of lawsuits, trying to collect personal

Along The Waterfront

Roy Swann, in the Corpus Christi Caller-Times has this to say about Rockport's fishing:

Aransas Bay was almost dead calm as Harry Lee Mills headed the charter boat away from the dock at Mills' Whaft and before the boat reached the Introcoastal Canal we had spotted several schools of fish, their travel marked by sea gulls feeding over them.

"The big bay is full of those little trout," Harry Lee said. "You can get a boatload of them just by following the birds."

He reached the Intracoastal and headed south to locate a shrimp boat working the channel. We loaded the bait well and then Harry Lee told us what he had in mind.

"Let's go on up to the Second Chain of Islands," he suggested, "and look for some big trout or redfish. Maybe we can leave these little ones behind."

An hour later, we moved through Ayer's Cut and into the upper end of Mesquite Bay, actually the borderline between Mesquite and San Antonio Bay.

Harry Lee let the boat drift up to one of the small shell banks or islands that create a chain running diagonally across the bay, Three of us soon had boated tiny speckled trout.

And someone naturally wised off . . . "sure glad we left the little ones behind." Up came the anchor and we eased to the end of the island.

This time the stop paid off in a few trout barely larger than the first ones and a small drum or two. We moved again.

The third stop put us so we could cast to the point of one of the links of island. In short order I put a nice trout in the boat Harry Lee tangled up with a redfish that eventually weighed in at eight pounds even and we were in business.

Paul Stallings was next to tangle with a big redfish, but in his excitement the fish broke his line. He rigged up again and soon had the best fish of the day, an 8¼ pounder.

We spent the rest of the morning right there, hauling in rat reds averaging just about two to three pounds each, a 2-pound drum, and occasionally a nice trout. We had left the small ones behind. Only Kazuyoshi Gunji and I failed to get a big redfish.

Our total catch, aside from the small, throw back trout, amounted to 52 fish.

The fishing, perhaps was just an example of the various types you can find in the Rockport area and the kind Mills' Wharf and Rockport charter boats put fishing parties into.

The bays offer everything from reef fishing to wade fishing the reefs and even surf fishing, if you want to nose into Cedar Bayou and walk the quarter-mile to the beach.

When Cedar Bayou was first reopened last year, Harry Mills—Harry Lee's dad—and I fished the pass several times. We found all sorts of fish in the channel itself and also worked the surf.

During other trips, we've waded the shell banks such as those making up the Second Chain of Islands. That's the sure way to stay with those big red and rat reds that haunt the shallow water—water you can't all the time reach if you stay in a big inboard.

There also are man-made fishing holes. Around the oil wells in Copano Bay, the Mills' have

AIRPORT ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETS

The Aransas County Airport Advisory Committee met with County Judge John D. Wendell this week to elect a chairman and to discuss needs of the airport.

The group, after electing Joe Slocum chairman, decided that a survey of airport possibilities would be made as soon as possible, in order to formulate a plan of action.

Other members of the committee are Walter Heldenfels, Jack McCready, Dick Picton, and Paul Clark Sorenson.

Sacred Heart Parish to Honor Msgr. O'Doherty

A celebration will be held by the Sacred Heart Parish of Rockport next Thursday, July 28, honoring the Very Reverend Monsignor Gerald J. O'Doherty, who was honored by Pope XXIII this morning in ceremonies at Corpus Christi Cathedral, along with nine other South Texas priests, when he was elevated to the rank of Papal Chamberlain.

A solemn High Mass will be held at 4:30 p.m. on the 28th, with the Most Reverend M. S. Garriga, D.D., L.L.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Corpus Christi, presiding.

Celebrants, besides Msgr. O'Doherty will be the Reverend William Kelly, deacon; Reverend Adrian McKenna, subdeacon; Reverend John Killeen, master of ceremonies; and Reverend William Daly and Reverend James Hamilton as acolytes.

All of the celebrants attended at the Irish seminary at the same time as Msgr. O'Doherty, and were his classmates.

The Sacred Heart Choir, directed by Mrs. Jerry Wendell, will furnish music.

The Most Reverend M. S. Garriga will preach the sermon.

A public reception for Monsignor O'Doherty will be held at the Aransas County Woman's Club at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the Mass and the reception.

Woodsboro Orchestra To Play for Teenage Dance Saturday Night

A teen-age orchestra from Woodsboro, the Klews, will play for the teen-age dance at the Youth Building Saturday night, according to Bob Morrison.

Morrison said that the group had been here once before, playing in the Aransas County Auditorium earlier this year, and meeting with much praise from those who heard them.

There were seventy-five at last week's dance, he said, and sponsors are hoping for that many or more this week.

Admission will be 75 cents per person, he stated.

Fourteen Teachers Attend Workshop

Fourteen local teachers and administrators were among the 120 enrolled in the Phonetic Keys to Reading workshop, held in Gregory early this week.

This workshop, taught by Josephone Crossfield of Ponca City, Okla., was designed to help primary teachers use a phonetic approach to reading. It is an effort to help children become independent readers by giving them the "tools" to attack new and unfamiliar words.

The phonetic principles taught are designed to make reading successful and enjoyable for the student.

Several other teachers in the Aransas County Schools are attending school or taking part in workshops around the country.

CITY SECRETARY RECEIVES LETTER ON ROCKPORT CENSUS

Mrs. Jeane Tuer has received a letter from Stnator Lyndon B. Johnson on Rockport's census.

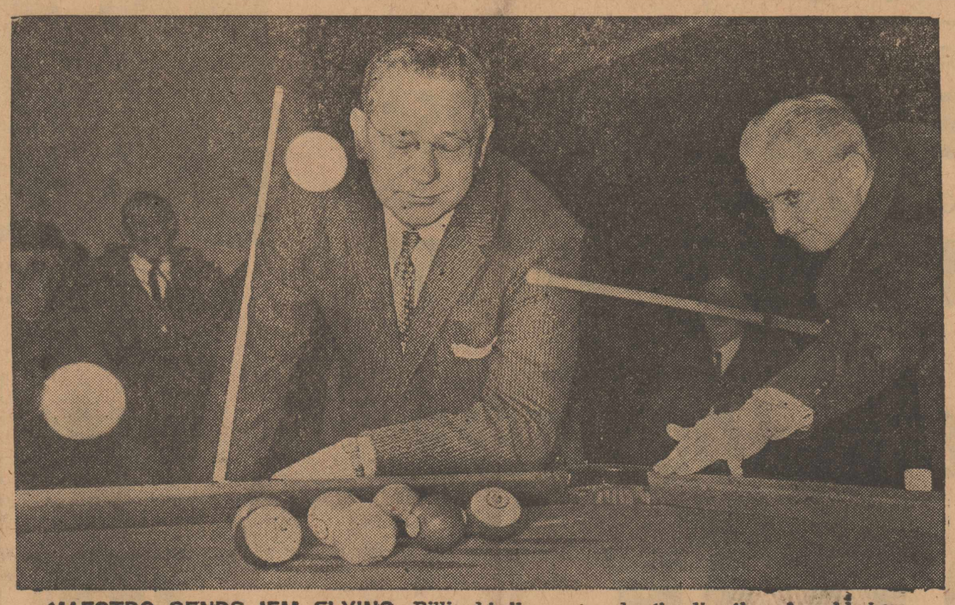

It says, in part:

"I am at once contacting the officials of the Census Bureau about the 1960 census for Rockport.

"As soon as I have some official statement on the matter, it will be furnished to you."

813TH ERECTS SIGN

Men of the 813th AC&W recently constructed a new sign on the highway at their access road. The sign was constructed by personnel of the 813th AC&W and bricks were donated by a local contractor. The sign was painted by A2C Harold G. Seaman, who paints signs locally in the local area in his off duty time.

Coastal Bend Citizens Invited to Attend Airport Apening Aug. 6-7

When the City of Corpus Christi opens its brand new airport with a two-day celebration August 6-7, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famous World War I aviator and Chairman of the Board of Eastern Air Lines, will make the dedicatory address and Billy Parker will give an exhibit of flying as it used to be in his 1912 model pusher biplane.

Opening ceremonies begin at 9:30 a.m., with a concert by the United States Navy Band. At 10 a.m. will come the introduction of guests and Captain Rickenbacker's speech.

The ribbon cutting will take place immediately afterwards and visitors will then be able to enter the new $6,500,000 airport and terminal facilities.

Airlines will have displays; and there will be between 75 and 100 aircraft of all types on display to the public, according to an announcement by Homer C. Innis, Chairman of the Industrial and Airport Board of Corpus Christi.

Of real interest to almost everyone will be the flight of Billy Parker, manager of aviation sales for Phillips Petroleum, in his flimsy, open-air pusher biplanes.

Parker and his model 1912 and 1914 planes which he built when he had scarcely entered his teens, have been friends over a span of years which almost equals the lifetime of powered flight.

During the years since then, he has kept them, and they have became sentimental heirlooms. He flies they only on rare occasions such as the airport opening, but they are still safe and steady, and can do about 60 miles an hour. They take off from a small area, and climb at a good rate.

Once airborne, however, the pushers leave the rest up to the pilot, for they have no instruments—not even a tachometer.

According to Innis, all citizens of the Coastal Bend are cordially invited to attend the opening ceremonies and to inspect the new facilities.

BARBARA BARNARD HELPS PUBLICITY WITH PICTURE

Barbara Barnard has joined the ranks of Rockport lovelies whose picture has been used in publicity for the city. Her picture appeared in last Saturday's San Antonio Express, and will appear in other periodicals throughout the state from time ti time.

SQUARE DANCE TO BE FRIDAY

There will be an adult square dance at the Fulton Elementary school on Friday at 8:00 p.m., according to Mrs. H. H. Dick who urges everyone to come. She said they did not have much of a turnout from Rockport last time, but had a nice crowd from Refugio.

Rev. Lang was in Kerrville Monday and Tuesday to attend the funeral of an aunt. He brought another aunt home with him for a visit.

Judge Wendell Says Disaster Plans Made

Hurricane precaution folders mailed to every post office box holder in Rockport and Fulton this week complete plans for handling such an emergency if it strikes Aransas County, County Judge D. Wendell said this morning.

In a meeting attended by Rockport and Fulton fire chiefs, Dick Fox and Buddy McLester, Red Cross Disaster chairman, Charles Ankele, Aransas County Emergency Corps President Steve Atwood, and Judge Wendell, evacuation plans were laid to go into effect in case of a major blow.

Using U.S. Geological Survey contour maps, the group mapped low areas from which people would be removed, and charted high points at which they could seek refuge with safety.

"Our course of action at any time can only be determined after the Corpus Christi Weather Bureau gives us wind and tide information," Judge Wendell said. "Depending on the state of the tide, it is very possible that there will be some cases where the majority of the people in an area will be asked to evacuate it completely.

"I do not anticipate anything like this except in case of a major hurricane like the one in 1919, when tides and wind velocities were terrific.

"But it may be that we will have to take this precaution, not knowing what to expect. Our greatest hazard is that people may wait too long to move, because a four-foot tide will completely isolate this area. It will not necessarily cover everything, but there are low areas north and south and west that will be under water if the tides reach that level.

"The Weather Bureau can keep us safely informed from three to four hours ahead of time, before disaster strikes, and in time to move everyone from threatened areas. If citizens will heed this warning, which will be distributed through the Emergency Corps and the Sheriff's office, I feel that everybody can safely be evacuated, either to the high points in the area, which range from eight to twenty feet, or completely out of the county."

The judge said that rains like that which fell recently in the Port Lavaca-Tivoli area, combined with only a small tide, could easily isolate Live Oak Peninsula on which Rockport and Fulton stand. and could make it impossible for residents to seek safety elsewhere, should this become necessary.

In the folder mailed to county residents, the following hurricane precautions are outlined:

1. Keep your radio or television on and listen for latest Weather Bureau alerts, warnings, and advisories. If power fails, use your car radio.
2. Pay no attention to rumors.
3. Get away from low-lying beaches or other locations which

Turkeys Aren't What They Used To Be

Turkeys that strut and gobble down Cuero streets November 10-12 in the world-famous Turkey Trot, will be little like the birds that took part in the first one 48 years ago.

In fact the difference between those early birds and the present ones is greater than that between ladies' dresses in 1912 and the toreador pants which the modern female generation adorns.

When Jack Howerton thought up the idea for the event almost half a century ago and plugged it through the columns of his little country newspaper, turkeys were long, lean and speedy, like the wild forebears from which they sprang.

At that time, Cuero was Texas' chief marketing center for the birds, but transportation was a problem, and the turkeys had to walk to the shipping point.

Local buyers would start in at distant points in DeWitt county, purchasing turkeys from farm to farm and adding them to their growing flock. Oak trees along the roads provided roosting places at night, which the drives, which covered from 20 to 30 miles in some instances, lasting for days.

The birds fed along the way, and by the time they reached Cuero where buyers were waiting from the north and east, the flocks often reached 12,000 to 15,000 birds. They were racy, of doubtful tenderness, just as a steer that has been trailed to market leaves something to be desired by the gourmet.

However, as turkeys became a more and more important part of the program on thousands of farms and ranches, the various breeds were improved, with men like S. J Wallis and his son Jack, whose ranch is near Westoff.

Largest raisers of the birds in DeWitt County, they have developed a short-legged, heavy-breasted bird known as the Wallis' strain. This matures a month earlier than the stock from which it was originally bred, and birds from this strain are as little like earlier ones as are modern beef cattle like longhorns.

As a result, their turkeys are in great demand for breeding stock, so great in fact, that they sell more than 150,000 eggs in an average year.

Back in 1940, Mr. Willis saw some turkeys at the Luling Foundation, known as the baby beef bronze, the foundation stock came from the Wagon Wheel Ranch in California's Valley of the Moon.

"In those days," Jack said, "eggs of this strain were selling at 85 cents each. Breeding toms brought from $35 to $50.

"Dad bought 80 eggs from the Luling Foundation and we hatched them under chickens. Out of the bunch we got about 16 laying hens, our 1940 laying flock. We won the grand championship at the Turkey Trot that year."

The next year they had 365 birds hatched from eggs laid by those hens, which was more than they had counted on or had room for. Jack solved the problem by keeping the babies in his room until quarters could be provided.

Today that little foundation flock has grown until the present laying flock is comprised of about 7,000 hens, and the feed bill runs well over $100,000 a year.

Besides the eggs, the Wallis ranch produces turkeys for breeding stock and others to go to market at Thanksgiving and Christmas, to furnish dinners for 5,000 or more Texan families.

Since the introduction of the broad-breasted bronze, turkey breeders have continually sought to improve the quality of their flocks. They are particularly interested in increasing the percentage of meat and bone.

As a result, most producers now start with young turkeys of proven merit from breeders, and this is where the Wallises come in.

Just as many cattle breeders produce only purebreds whose chief value is improving the breed, so do Jack and his father raise turkeys. And their supply has never kept up with the demand, for Wallis birds present some marked advantages over the average turkeys.

In the first place, they're big. Hens everage 18 to 21 pounds and gobblers run between 35 and 38.

Next, by careful selection and testing, a flock has been built up that attains full growth one month earlier than the original stock. This means one month less of feed bills, and an additional profit to the growers, who gets more weight per pound of feed.

Moreover, these birds differ from most broad-breasted turkeys in that their breasts are long as well as wide, with more white meat. They can't fly, and their legs are so short they almost waddle.

They are kept less than 200 yards from the big Wallis ranch house under glaring floodlights, for Texas has something new under the sun: The turkey rustler. Watchdogs help to control these, however, for they are always close at hand. And some of them have been trained to herd the turkeys like sheep dogs herd sheep.

With so many birds around, do the Wallises eat turkey often?

"Only once or twice a year," Jack says, with a twinkle in his eye.

Cheapside Ghost Town Today

Today, Cheapside is a ghost town—a tiny community of a few houses and an abandoned store—set among rolling hills in Gonzales County, close to the DeWitt County line, but far from the high road.

But there was a time, nearly 70 years ago, when high hopes were held for the settlement named for a London district by some of its early residents, many of home were English.

In 1895, when it was 21, the Cuero Star published a "Historical and Pictorial Edition" in which the town was headlined as "Charming Cheapside: A Busy Town Surrounded by Fertile Lands—And Industrious People."

According to the paper, which is owned by Mrs. H. F. Sheppard, the town was located on an elevation overlooking the valley of Fulcher's Creek, "a fine stream whose banks are shaded by spreading oaks and lovely little valleys indent the surface of the rolling prairie like dimples on a maden's cheeks."

In those days the town consisted of a general store, hotel, drug store, post office and a busy gin and mill. Just to the north of town was a church where union services were held and demoninational discords were unknown, while a commodious school building was located conveniently near to the thriving little city.

Joseph and Arthur Carter were merchants, the sons of Thomas Carter who settled in Cheapside in 1890 as a farmer, stock raiser, and extensive land owner.

Other leading citizens in Cheapside where Dr. George Case Milner who owned the drug store, a 200-acre farm and a beautiful country home; George Lord, one of the prisoners of Perote who took part in the drawing of the beans; and Frank Baker, a stock raiser.

"Fine farms environ the village," says the Star, "and handsome country residences are seen on every hand."

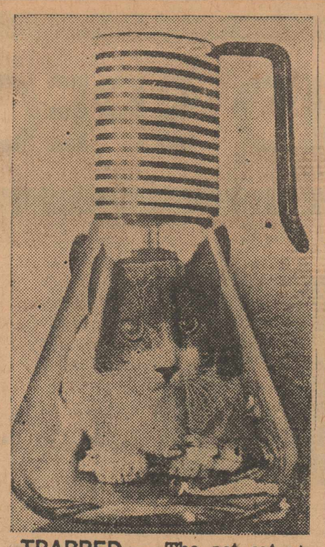

For miles in every direction the land was remarkably fertile, crops of all kinds were unusually prolific, and no portion of the state raised better cotton, while fruit, cereals and vegetables were grown in great abundance.

"Although far from rail facilities, the beauty, health and fertility of this valley have attracted a considerable population. It is essentially an English settlement and the people are intelligent, educated and refined."

Fine land could be purchased at from $6 to $12 an acre, and the Star assured homeseekers that they would never visit a fairer spot.

"Cheapside," it said, "lies in its beauty and wealth of natural resources awaiting the advent of the iron horse, when as if by magic a thriving city will rise to take the place of this thriving and prosperous settlement."

But alas! The railroads were either unaware of Cheapside's plight, or else didn't care a hang about it, for the iron horse never came and the community dwindled to a mere handful of people, too small even to be mentioned in the Texas Almanac, and almost unknown today.

Miss Barbara Cummings Is Bride of D. Q. Squyres

Baskets of white gladioli and fern decorated the altar of the First Baptist Church in Aransas Pass for the wedding Saturday of Miss Barbara Jane Cummings and D. Q. Squyres III.

The couple exchanged vows in a candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Cummings of Rockport, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. Q. Squyres Jr. of Aransas Pass.

A dress of Chantilly lace and silk organza was chosen by the bride. The lace of the bodice was softly scalloped at the neckline and edges of the short sleeves. A cummerbund accented the waist. The circular skirt of silk organza fell in soft folds from the waistline.

Her tulle, shoulder-length veil was caught by a headpiece of tiny pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of write orchids.

Miss Barbara Gooding and Clarence Squyres, the groom's brother, attended the couple. Miss Gooding wore a dress of light mint green crystalline fashioned with a full skirt. Her bouquet was pale yellow carnations.

Charles Starcick and James Cummings, brother of the bride, ushered.

A reception at the fellowship hall followed the ceremony. The table was laid with a white lace cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and fern.

The bride and groom were graduated from Aransas Pass High School. She is a graduate of South Commercial College, and he is attending Del Mar College.

The will make their home in Aransas Pass.

TAX RATE LOWERED—

property taxes on cars and other similar property. And if the City of Cuero didn't own its own municipal electrical distribution system taxes there would be doubled.

"Few counties are fortunate enough to have their taxes lowered by 5 per cent."

School Board members contacted unofficially, say that it is the hope of both school administration and board members that a slight reduction can be made in the school rate this year. All of them emphasized that the change, if there is one, will be in the rate and not in the assessment factor, which has been 25% of the total value for the past several years. Of course, they said, the final decision depends on the total final valuation for the school district, which will be available at the budget hearing in August.

Landings in Coastal Bend area for purpose of comparisons with June 1960:

June, 1960, 198.2; May, 1960, 301.4; June, 1959, 207.1; June, 1958, 1,251.7; June, 1957, 1,114.9.

A contributing factor for the large production drop during June 1959-60 may be in part explained as a result of the Bays being closed to commercial shrimping. The small shrimp, (spring run of brownies) usually taken in large quantities, did not enter the commercial markets, except as bait.

Prices appear to be from 5c to 11c higher during the past three day period preceding July 19, than the corresponding period last year.

Winston Weber, accompanied by his roommate John Hickman, both students at A & I, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Weber over the weekend. Hickman is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Troy Hickman of Austin. Rev. Hickman was formerly the Methodist minister in Rockport.

U. S. Deeds Rodd Tract to V. G. Gwynn

The federal government yesterday deeded 316.05 acres of Rodd Field to V. G. Gwynn of Rockport for a sale price of $142,-538.55.

The deed was filed in the Nueces county clerk's office.

Gwynn bought the tract at the former auxiliary field of the Naval Air Station during an auction April 25, 1960.

Other buyers took buildings and other tracts of the 900-acre field at the auction, with a total sales amounting to $504,393.83.

Restrictions in the deed to Gwynn included those on flying activities, height of buildings to be erected and electrical apparatus.

These were due to the construction of a radar tracking station by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on adjoining property.

The station is one of 17 being built around the globe to track America's astronauts.

Gwynn's property was obtained with all improvements but did not include easements of roads, drainage ditches and public utilities, or an undivided one half royalty interest in mineral rights Gwynn purchased in April for $10,000.

DISASTER PLANS MADE—

may be swept by high tides or storm waves. If passage to high ground is over a road likely to be under water, leave early. Don't run the risk of being marooned.

4. Be alert for high water in areas where streams or rivers may flood after heavy rains.

5. If you house is out of danger from high tides and is well built, then it is probably the best place to weather the storm.

6. Board up windows or put storm shutters in place. When you board up, use good lumber securely fastened. Makeshift boarding may do more damage than none at all. Have strong bracing for outside doors.

7. Get in extra food, especially things which can be eaten without cooking or with very little preparation. Remember that electric power may be off and you may be without refrigeration.

8. If emergency cooking facilities are necessary, be sure they are in working order.

9. Sterilize the bathtub, jugs, bottles, cooking utensils, and fill with drinking water, as city water service may be interrupted.

10. Have flashlights and/or other emergency light in working condition and keep them handy.

11. Be sure to have gasoline in your car. If electric power is off, filling stations may not be able to operate pumps for several days.

12. Check on everything that might blow or be torn loose. Garbage cans, garden tools, signs, porch furniture, awnings, and other objects become weapons of destruction in hurricane winds. Store them all inside if possible.

13. Be sure that a window or door can be opened on the lee side of the house—the side opposite the one facing the wind.

14. If the center or "eye" of the storm passed directly over, there will be a lull in the wind lasting from a few minutes to half an hour or more. Stay in a safe place. Make emergency repairs during the lull if necessary, but remember the wind will return suddenly from the opposite direction, frequently with even greater violence.

15. Be calm. Your Ability to meet emergencies will inspire and help others.

After passage of a hurricane, the following safety measures will prove valuable:

1. Seek medical care for persons injured during the storm at disaster stations or hospitals.

2. Don't touch loose or dangling wires. Report such damage to the light and power company, or nearest police office.

3. Report broken sewer or water mains to the water department.

4. Guard against spoiled food in mechanical refrigerators if power has been off any length of time.

5. Take down shutters and save the lumber. Store in a handy place for future use.

6. Unless you are qualified to render valuable emergency assistance, stay away from distaster areas where you may hamper first aid or rescue work.

7. Drive automobiles cautiously. Debris-filled streets are dangerous so keep your eyes on the road. Along the coast, soil may be washed from beneath the pavement, which may collapse under the weight of vehicles.

8. Be alert to prevent fires. Lowered water pressure makes fire-fighting difficult after storms.

CATCHING CRABS PROVIDES FUN FOR FAMILIES

Austin.—Crabbing as a family affair is fully described in the July issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine.

This time the crabbing is the art of catching this interesting food crustacean on the Texas coast. A. C. Becker, outdoors editor of the Galveston News, tells how his children fish for crabs in Galveston area.

"Crabbing's a cinch way to turn junior into a fischerman, and the rewards are long-range, too," Becker writes. "When dad's hair starts thinning out junior is a nice guy to have around to do the menial chores of launching the boat, rigging the tackle for a trip."

Tackle requirements for crabbing are simple and there's not too much know-how involved, according to Becker. All you need is a piece of string, a chunk of meat and a dip net.

When a crab takes on the piece of meat you move him in slowly and shake him into a handy tub or sack. They also can be caught with drop nets.

An then, Becker warns, don't let one of the crabs bite your fingers.
