Puerto Rico residents prepare for Hurricane Hortense

■ Forecasters call eighth storm of Atlantic season "volatile, dangerous."

Associated Press

PONCE, Puerto Rico — Threatening a direct hit early Tuesday, Hurricane Hortense bullied Puerto Rico with wind-whipped torrents of rain, flattening cars with downed trees and leaving thousands without power.

Forecasters called Hortense, the eighth storm and fifth hurricane of the Atlantic season, volatile and dangerous. It comes on the heels of Hurricane Fran, which skirted the Caribbean before slamming into the eastern United States late last week, killing more than two dozen people.

"It's a dangerous situation," Israel Matos, director of the San Juan bureau of the U.S. National Weather Service, warned at a news conference late Monday.

A hurricane warning was posted for Puerto Rico and a hurricane watch was on for the Dominican Republic's south coast. Forecasters said there was a 6 percent chance the coast of Florida could feel the effects of Hortense by Thursday morning.

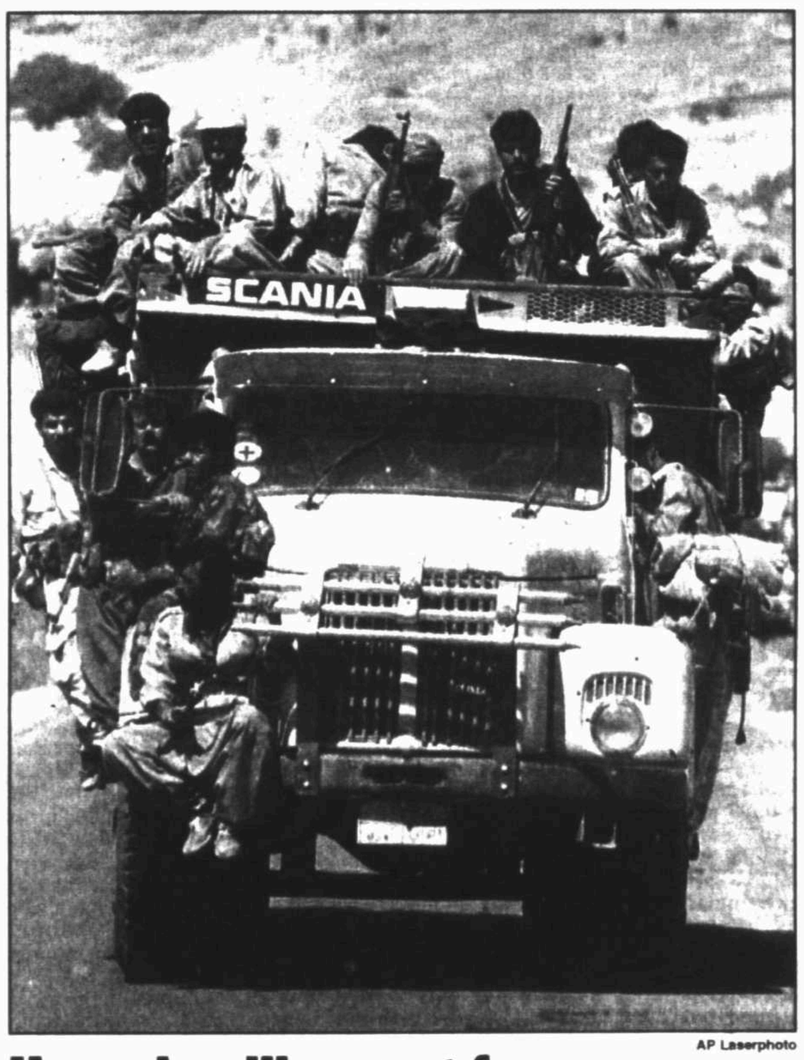

Matos said the hurricane had taken a

President orders tougher security for U.S. airports

■ Republicans call action unnecessary since April passage of anti-terrorism bill.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Promising safer skies, President Clinton issued orders Monday to tighten airport security and challenged Congress to support a $1.1 billion anti-terrorism crackdown. "Terrorists don't wait," the president said. "And neither should we."

Clinton unveiled the proposals in an Oval Office ceremony designed to reassure jittery Americans after last year's Oklahoma City bombing and the explosion of TWA Flight 800 less than two months ago.

"As a result of these steps, not only will the American people feel safer, they will be safer," the president declared of the proposal that came just two months before the election.

The White House Commission on Aviation Safety and Security, which unveiled its recommendations last week, formally presented them to the president Monday. In embracing the report, Clinton:

■ Ordered immediate criminal background checks of airline workers with access to secure areas.

■ Ordered the Federal Aviation Administration to set up a system in selected airports to match each piece of luggage with a passenger.

■ Promised to sign an executive order making the National Transportation Safety Board the point agency to help families of plane crash victims.

■ Announced that the U.S. military will provide several dozen specially trained dogs for security at key airports.

While promising to work with Clinton, Republicans said the action was unnecessary: The president signed a GOP-backed $1 billion anti-terrorism bill in April.

"The administration would be wise to utilize the resources Congress has already provided before it requests additional funding," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Also included in the commission recommendations were the purchase of 54 explosive detection systems to screen baggage, 410 trace detectors to screen carry-on items and 114 new canine teams at U.S. airports.

A $10 million computer system to track passengers with suspicious travel patterns and $31 million to bolster inspection of outbound international air cargo were also proposed.

And the report called for increased FBI staffing to expand investigations of domestic terrorist groups such as right-wing militias at a cost of $92 million.

Some of the ideas are old. The report

MISD board to hear reports on dress code at meeting

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland school board trustees have said they are sticking to the three-inch-above-the-kneecap hem length rule in the student dress code. Although the issue has been approved as policy, many parents said they don't think the problem has been resolved.

Thomas Parkins said some teachers wear shorter skirts than students and that cheerleaders shouldn't be permitted to wear their uniforms to school since they violate the dress code. Parkins, who has four grandchildren in Midland public schools, asked, "Why don't the teachers abide by the dress code? It's the teachers who should be looked up to."

The issue of a staff dress code will be addressed at the Midland Independent School District board meeting set for 4 p.m. today.

Trustees will hear a 30-minute report on "efforts concerning employee dress standards."

Two Midland parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hubbard, will give a five-minute presentation on the dress code.

The Parkinses and other parents in the district have called the Reporter-Telegram expressing concern "that is inappropriate to measure hem lengths in the school hallways."

"We don't need kids making fun of other kids. That starts fights. Why not measure in the office?" Mrs. Thomas Parkins said.

Other parents have said it is unfair for cheerleading uniforms, and other school uniforms, to be exempt from the dress code.

"Making cheerleaders privileged creates an elite club. If you are part of the elite then you are exempt from the rules the masses have to follow," said parent Wayne Dwyer. "So, a cheerleader can wear a skirt up to there, with matching underpants showing, while the other girls in their class get sent home wearing modest walking shorts 3½ inches above their kneecap. What does this teach?"

Parkins also said cheerleading uniforms are inappropriate under the code. "Football players don't wear uniforms to school, but cheerleaders do and it breaks the code. Why can't cheerleaders put

Sales tax rebate up 23 percent from last year for city of Midland

From Staff Reports

The city of Midland has received its September sales tax rebate check for $933,507, which is considerbly more than it received in September 1995.

Last year's check was for $757,760. The 1996 check is a 23.19 percent increase over last year.

The lastest check brings the city's year-to-date total to $8,726,554, an 8.58 percent increase over the first nine months of 1995. Last year's year-to-date total was $8,036,495.

This month's sales tax rebates include taxes collected on July sales and reported to the state comptroller in August by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

The Midland rebates continue to top Odessa's, which may be a continued indication of Midland's retail boom.

Odessa's September check is $751,255; its September 1995 total was $605,287. The 1996 check is 24.11 percent higher than last year.

Odessa's 1996 year-to-date total is $7,110,969, which compares to the 1995 year-to-date total of $6,721,499. That's a difference of 5.79 percent.

Midland County's September figure was $598,478, compared to $456,182 for September 1995. The year-to-date total is $5,087,489, which is 7.47 percent above the $4,733,649 that had been received for the first nine months of 1995.

Totals for area towns are as follows:

Andrews: $65,480 for September; $52,720 for last year; up 24.2 percent; $544,378 for year-to-date; $541,356 for last year-to-date; up 0.55 percent.

Big Spring: $297,156 for September; $249,596 for last year; up 19.05 percent; $2,694,427 for year-to-date; $2,674,623 for for last year-to-date; up 0.74 percent.

WEATHER WATCH

Forecast calls for mostly sunny

Staff Report

The forecast for today calls for mostly sunny skies and a high near 90, with southeast winds at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the lower 60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland. Wednesday should be partly cloudy with a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 63, Monday's high reached 88, compared to the record high for that date of 101 set in 1984. The record low was 53 set in 1956.

STATE

Scattered showers throughout Texas dropped high temperatures into the mid-70s in some portions of the state Monday.

A weak cold front across southern portions of North Texas contained a few thunderstorms, while the rest of North Texas remained clear.

Tempertures across the state generally warmed into the 80s and 90s but reached only 75 in Port Arthur.

South Texas skies ranged from partly to mostly cloudy with heavy rain at Burnet and throughout the Hill Country.

Low-level moisture and daytime heating resulted in isolated showers throughout the Western South Plains. Otherwise, mostly sunny skies dominated West Texas. More of the same was expected through Wednesday with highs in the 80s and 90s.

Temperatures in the Big Bend will climb near 100 Tuesday.

A slight chance of thunderstorms in North Texas Tuesday and Wednesday will provide partly cloudy skies with highs in the lower 90s and lows in the mid 60s.

South Texas will experience much of the same with mostly cloudy skies and highs near 90. Highs will be about 80 Tuesday in rain-cooled areas.

NATION

Thunderstorms marched across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys Monday and showers fell over the Pacific Northwest and the Southwest.

Thunderstorms formed a line through the Ohio and Tennessee valleys all the way from western Pennsylvania through central West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and Tennessee and into northern Georgia and Alabama.

The storms were not severe but some areas were inundated with heavy rain. Up to 2 inches fell in one hour near Erie, Pa.

Rivers already were running high in much of Appalachia because of last week's torrential rain that fell after Hurricane Fran hit land.

Additional flooding was possible across Virginia, Maryland and portions of West Virginia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania.

Showers also were expected to move across much of the rest of the eastern third of the country.

In the Northwest, a few showers fell in upstate Washington. Showers also appeared over southeastern Arizona and southern Utah in the Southwest.

In the Caribbean, yet another hurricane was making waves. Hurricane Hortense was about 135 miles southeast of Puerto Rico by Monday afternoon, heading west and packing wind blowing at a sustained 80 mph.

Hurricane warnings were in effect for all of Puerto Rico and hurricane watches were issued for the southern coast of the Dominican Republic to the Haitian border. A tropical storm warning was posted for U.S. and British Virgin Islands.

Monday's temperatures around the Lower 48 states ranged from a morning low of 29 at Wildhorse Reservation, Nev., and South Lake Tahoe, Calif., to an early afternoon reading of 102 at Palm Springs, Calif.

Father of Bluegrass music dies at age 84

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bill Monroe, who combined fast-picking mandolin, banjo and guitar with a "high lonesome" singing style to create the distinctly American sound known as bluegrass, died Monday. He was 84.

The Father of Bluegrass died at a hospice in Springfield, just north of country music's capital, after suffering a stroke earlier this year.

Monroe influenced bluegrass legends like Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, as well as newer stars such as Ricky Skaggs and Alison Krauss.

"There's probably nobody really on the face of the earth that ever influenced more music than Bill Monroe," Skaggs said. "In all of history, he's the biggest single influence in country music. And he didn't just influence country music, he influenced music in general.

Scruggs, who started his career in Monroe's band, recalled those days as "a wonderful time."

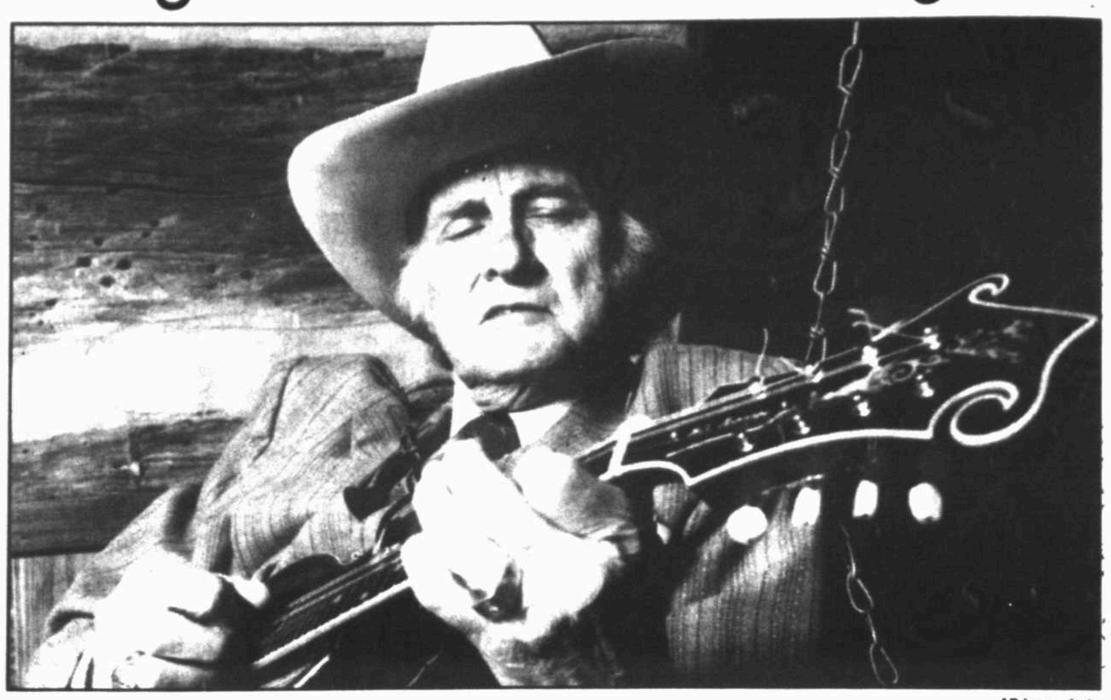

"It was a band that really fit together. We seemed to work off each other's energy," he said. "It was a new sound for that day and time and it's one that he's kept ever since."

Monroe's son, James, checked on him last week before heading for the annual bluegrass festival Monroe started at his Indiana campground, Bean Blossom, and learned of his father's death Monday after he arrived home.

"He looked pretty good, but evidently his heart gave out," James Monroe said.

Monroe's best known song was "Blue Moon of Kentucky," which he wrote in 1946 and which Elvis Presley also recorded in 1954 on his way to stardom. Other records included "Kentucky Waltz," "Mule Skinner Blues," "Pike County Breakdown" and "A Letter From My Darling."

As a singer, songwriter and instrumentalist, Monroe was a headliner around the world and was honored at the White House. He sold more than 50 million records and remained active well into his 80s, despite bouts with cancer, pneumonia and heart trouble.

AP Laserphoto

Bill Monroe, shown in a 1984 file photo, combined fast picking on mandolin, banjo and guitar with "high lonesome" vocals to create a distinctive sound that has influenced many performers.

"I love to play music and hear it," he told the Associated Press in 1989. "I love to put the sounds and notes in there that I want to hear. I want to do the best I can for my friends and fans sitting out there in the audience."

Bluegrass music relies heavily on banjos, mandolins, acoustic guitars and fiddles, with lightning-fast picking and a yodeling vocal style.

It gets its name from Monroe's band, the Blue Grass Boys, and the grass of his native Kentucky.

Monroe could play most of the string instruments but was best known as a mandolinist.

While performing, he nearly always wore a coat and tie, with a white cowboy hat crowning his silver hair.

In the 1940s, he hired Flatt and Scruggs — Flatt on guitar, Scruggs on banjo — and they became two of the most acclaimed musicians in bluegrass history. Monroe, a proud man, was said to have refused to speak to the pair for more than 20 years after they left him in the late '40s.

Monroe was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1970. He played on the Grand Ole Opry from 1939 throughout his career. He won the National Medal of the Arts in 1995.

Monroe was born near Rosine, Ky., the youngest of eight children. He learned to play after he was orphaned at 11 and taken in by his uncle Pendleton Vandiver, a talented fiddler. In tribute, Monroe wrote one of his biggest hits, "Uncle Pen," and founded the annual bluegrass gathering known as the Hall of Fame and Uncle Pen Day Festival.

He performed for several years with his brothers Birch and Charlie before he and Charlie had an early hit in 1936 with "What Would You Give (In Exchange for Your Soul)." After the two split in 1938, Charlie went on to form his own successful band, the Kentucky Pardners.

Monroe lived on a 288-acre spread in Goodlettsville, Tenn., just north of Nashville, when he wasn't on one of his almost incessant tours.

"Bluegrass has brought more people together and made more friends than any music in the world," Monroe said in 1978. "You meet people at festivals and renew acquaintances year after year."

Survivors include his son and one grandson. A daughter, Melissa, died in 1990.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

HORTENSE: Puerto Rico prepares for hurricane northerly twist and threatened to hit land just east of Ponce, a southern city renowned for its colonial Spanish architecture. The eye of the storm could remain over the island for up to two hours early Tuesday, exiting over the western city of Mayaguez, Matos said.

Islanders boarded up windows, lined up to buy water, then rushed to the beaches Monday to watch the waters rise, the winds churn the seas and surfers glory in the challenge.

Hundreds of tourist yachts, sailboats, house boats and government vessels sought shelter in mangrove swamps in bays of southwestern Puerto Rico.

Gov. Pedro Rossello, warning the whole island would be affected, urged people in low-lying areas to evacuate. He said he was concerned that only 550 of the 3.6 million islanders had sought refuge in government-run shelters.

Power was knocked out late Monday for 226,000 of the 1.1 million consumers.

At 11 p.m. EDT Monday, Hortense was centered 40 miles south-southeast of Ponce, according to the National Hurricane Center near Miami.

It was moving to the north-northwest at 9 mph and was expected to gain strength. Hurricane-force winds would spread across the south coast of Puerto Rico overnight, forecasters said.

The hurricane center warned rainfall of up to 12 inches and more could produce life-threatening flash floods and mud slides and strong onshore winds could produce storm surge flooding in Puerto Rico. There was also an isolated threat of tornadoes over Puerto Rico.

At St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands, waves as tall as a house crashed over the 15-foot pier where cruise ships anchor at Frederiksted on Monday. Winds howled and gusted near 70 mph, driving sheets of rain that covered roads with 4 feet of water and flooded homes.

"These storms are crazy. I pray it doesn't veer toward us," Jose Escobar said, boarding up the window of the store where he works in Ponce. He hurried to finish so he could wait out the storm at home with his wife and five children.

Hortense grew to hurricane strength Monday and enlarged to a 470-mile-wide mass, with sustained winds near 80 mph in the center and weaker tropical storm-force winds toward the edge.

Hortense also changed direction, stalling south of St. Croix then drifting in a northwest direction toward Puerto Rico.

At the Tropical Si liquor store in Ponce, people stood in long lines to buy water. Rafael Martinez, 42, waited nearly half an hour.

"This is the last thing I have to do. What will be, will be," he said.

Shelves of rum went untouched since Gov. Pedro Rosello on Sunday banned liquor sales during the passage of the storm. Police said they cited 18 storekeepers for illegally selling alcohol.

Couples with children drove to the beach at the southernmost tip of the city to watch in awe and trepidation as the gusting winds whipped up waves nearly 4 feet high. Surfers gloried in the challenge.

Children on bikes raced from from point to point to watch the waves, and cruising police patrols stopped to check that no one needed help.

Carmen Emilia Rodriguez, 69, was getting ready to evacuate her 84-year-old mother and a 91-year-old neighbor from their tiny beachfront homes. Already, waves were slapping the rocks 10 feet in front of the porch.

She was taking them to a friend's home further inland in Ponce.

"All the garbage and all the driftwood washes up here during each storm," Rodriguez said. "We are going."

Her next-door neighbor, William Torres, 76, wasn't budging. Shirtless in shorts and sandals, he watched the churning surf and said he would stay "until the last minute. Nobody knows what is going to happen.

"Until the sea surges over the rocks, I have no fear."

CLINTON: President orders tougher airport security

(From 1A)

calls for $21.3 million for a study of markers — called taggants — that can be placed in explosive material. The Republican Congress has repeatedly blocked the Clinton-backed measure.

Vice President Al Gore, who chaired the commission, warned against expecting too much.

"There is no silver bullet, or single magic answer," he said. "So we're presenting a combination of approaches — some high-tech, some low-tech, even some no-tech."

Though terrorism is suspected in the July 17 TWA crash, Clinton did not speculate about its cause. "We don't have an answer for you," he said.

The airport safety recommendations would cost $429.4 million. On top of that, Clinton proposed $667.4 million in anti-terrorism measures that are not solely aimed at airport security. They included:

■ $436.9 million to improve security at U.S. facilities in America and around the world. That includes $122.6 million to relocate troops and improve security at military installations in the Persian Gulf after the June bombing that killed 19 American airmen in Saudi Arabia.

■ $114 million to expand and strengthen federal law enforcement agencies, including the FBI, the bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

■ $117 million to protect Americans in the aftermath of terrorists acts, including $93 million to the Pentagon so it can train soldiers about the tactics of terrorists and how to use physical protection equipment.

About one third of the $1.1 billion package will be covered by a supplemental spending bill the administration will send to Congress, the Office of Management and Budget said.

Requesting swift action from Congress, Clinton said, "We need these laws and we need them now before Congress recesses for the year."

Administration officials said the rest of the money would come from current budgets, though they did not say what programs would be cut to pay for the anti-terrorism plans. With an election approaching, it was unclear whether the spending bill had much chance in the GOP Congress.

Help arrives in Fran's wake

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Bertha in July inflicted $179 million to North Carolina's crops, and state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Hurricane Fran — which mostly flattened rather than soaked — could top that.

"What Bertha left, Fran got," said Graham, who joined U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman on a flyover of the state's damaged corn and cotton fields. "And we hope Hortense takes the long way around."

There were no immediate overall estimates of Fran's crop damage in North Carolina. The state, the nation's No. 1 tobacco producer, had already harvested most of its tobacco crop, but some leaves rotted in the barn when blackouts cut power to curing fans.

North Carolina's comparatively small corn crop, mostly hog feed, was ready for harvest just when Fran hit, while most of the state's $800 million cotton crop was in the middle of its growing season.

With some of their cotton knocked to the ground, growers mostly feared infestation by the boll weevil.

Federal Emergency Management Agency teams delivered portable generators to provide emergency power to isolated residents and hospitals.

Saddam-backed Kurdish faction takes control of rival's stronghold

DOKAN, Iraq (AP) — Kurdish allies of Saddam Hussein captured the last stronghold of their rebel rivals Monday, giving the Iraqi leader control over much of northern Iraq for the first time since the Persian Gulf War.

With Iraqi troops trailing close behind, the Kurdistan Democratic Party claimed control of the city of Sulaymaniyah after the crumbling forces of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan abandoned their posts, U.N. workers in the city said.

"The PUK had withdrawn and the KDP walked in," said Stafford Clarry, the head of a U.N. guard unit in Sulaymaniyah, Iraqi Kurdistan's second-largest city.

About 50,000 of Sulaymaniyah's 400,000 people fled in advance of the offensive, leaving the city quiet after its fall, Clarry said.

The United States, which launched missile strikes against southern Iraq last week, made clear it has no plans to take sides in the fighting between the Kurdish factions, who have frequently shifted alliances in the course of their conflict.

The missile strikes appeared to discourage Saddam's forces from taking a direct role in the fighting, but it has not slowed the Saddam-allied KDP.

KDP fighters claimed they entered Sulaymaniyah on Monday evening after residents rebelled to force out a rival, Iranian-backed Kurdish faction and its leader, Jalal Talabani.

The city was the last stronghold left in the hands of the PUK forces after they lost Irbil, the area's de facto capital, on Aug. 31 in a KDP offensive backed by the Iraqi army.

The capture of Sulaymaniyah means Saddam effectively wields control over much of northern Iraq for the first time since the U.S.-led forces established a Kurdish "safe haven" after the 1991 Gulf War.

The town of Dokan fell to the KDP earlier in the day, giving the Kurdish group control of a dam that supplies water and power to the region.

A long convoy of KDP fighters entered Dokan with strips of yellow ribbon — the faction's color — tied to their guns.

Some Dokan residents offered water to KDP fighters and waved yellow flags, yelling "Piroz be!" — "Congratulations" in Kurdish.

As his fighters claimed the town, KDP leader Massoud Barzani stood on a hill just outside, saluting his men as they entered.

"This is the end of the collaborator," he said, referring to PUK leader Talabani's alliance with Iran.

Traveling in trucks, taxis and even old Mercedes-Benz sedans, the KDP troops encountered a few sniper ambushes, but quickly responded with heavy artillery fire.

Vote may indicate whether Bosnia can hold up

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnia's 3 1/2-year war was fought between those who wanted a single country and those who wanted to break it apart. The campaign for the first post-war national elections on Saturday has been fought over the same issue.

If advocates of national unity ultimately prevail, it may be only because of outside pressure and the presence of foreign soldiers.

The Dayton peace agreement and tens of thousands of NATO-led soldiers were supposed to establish a compromise: a weak national government unifying a Muslim-Croat half and a Serb half.

But Serbs — and many Croats — still insist on a separate identity and separate institutions. Most Muslims fought for, and still insist on, a united Bosnia, although they want Muslims at its helm.

About 2.9 million people are eligible to vote Saturday for three members of a joint presidency — one Muslim, one Serb and one Croat. Voters also will elect the lower house of a national legislature. Serbs will choose their own assembly and president of their half of Bosnia. Muslims and Croats will elect an assembly.

Many voters will have to cross the former front lines to vote in their prewar homes.

In the final days of campaigning, it was clear that behind every candidate's stump speech was a single issue: not unemployment or the rebuilding of the shattered nation, but in what form Bosnia will exist.

"These are not elections ... in which people face a dilemma of whether they should turn a little to the left, or to the right," Bosnian Prime Minister Hasan Muratovic said. "This is about the survival of the state of Bosnia-Herzegovina, about the battle for the establishment of its new structure."

Officials of the leading Serb party have done little to ease Muslims' fears. Aleksa Buha, the top official of the Serbian Democratic Party, told a rally that "the former Bosnia-Herzegovina will fall apart after the September elections."

He was a deputy to Radovan Karadzic, who is banned from the elections because he has been indicted for war crimes. Karadzic's party faces plenty of competition from other Serb parties, but few are willing even to suggest that Bosnia could be put back together.

It is not only the Serbs who have pressed for separation. Croats are locked into a federation with the Muslims on 51 percent of Bosnia, but many feel closer to their ethnic brothers across the border in Croatia.

The Muslims want to keep Bosnia whole. But just in case that doesn't happen, they want assurances that if the new government doesn't come together, foreign governments will do business with them.

Ex-military chief to campaign for Israeli Labor Party's top spot

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Deepening divisions within the opposition Labor Party, former military chief Ehud Barak said Monday he will challenge Shimon Peres for the party leadership in hopes of becoming prime minister.

At a news conference in Tel Aviv, Barak harshly criticized conservative Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who narrowly upset Peres in May elections.

"With amateurishness, crudity and record speed he has deteriorated Israel's position in all areas," Barak said. "There are difficulties with the Arabs (and) signs of recession in every corner.

"It's difficult to imagine the depth of the calamity if we go on this way," Barak said, maintaining that he has the best chance of unseating Netanyahu and bringing Mideast peace.

Israel's next general election is scheduled for 2000, but could come sooner if Netanyahu's coalition falls apart. Labor, meanwhile, will hold a leadership ballot next year.

The 73-year-old Peres has suggested he does not intend to step down voluntarily as party leader.

He told Channel 2 TV that Barak had informed him of his decision and "there's no problem." But associates said Peres was upset at the move.

Articulate and popular, the 54-year-old Barak is Israel's most decorated officer and enjoys the image of a soldier-intellectual.

His perceived advantage is similar to that of the late Yitzhak Rabin, another former military hero who was chosen over Peres as Labor leader in 1992 and won elections that year by appealing to centrist voters who like tough talk in peace talks.

Peres succeeded Rabin after his assassination by a Jewish ultranationalist in November.

East was able to get a lead-directing double in during the auction. Thereafter, the fate of the hand hinged on trump control

With 15 high-card points, four trumps and a singleton, North's hand was clearly worth an invitational jump raise. After cue-bids of the red suits, four hearts being doubled by East and redoubled by North to show second-round control, South felt that the good four-card spade suit merited slam.

West dutifully led a heart, taken by dummy's ace. A trump fetched the queen from East, and declarer won the king. A heart ruff was followed by another trump, and when East showed out, the possibility of losing control dawned on declarer.

South tried to rectify matters by ducking the trump to West, but West countered skillfully by returning a trump, preventing declarer from scoring another heart ruff on the table. Declarer drew the outstanding trump, ran five club tricks, then tried the diamond finesse — down one.

South should have taken East's queen on the first trump lead at face value. There are 12 tricks without the diamond finesse — three trumps, two ruffs, two red aces and five clubs — if declarer can collect them.

All South need do is allow East to hold the queen of spades! Declarer rises with the ace on the diamond return, ruffs a heart, returns to hand with a trump and ruffs another heart. Now a club is led to the queen and all is well. Declarer draws the outstanding trumps and runs clubs for 12 tricks.

Dealer Services eliminates hassle of buying, selling used cars

Don Driver's Dealer Services Auto Consignments and Sales is the no-hassle way to buy or sell a used car. They're located on Loop 250 between Illinois and Andrews Highway.

You're in the market for a used car. You drive to the lot. You spend the next 30 minutes dodging salesmen as you frantically look at stickers and features, trying to get a feel for what's there before you start dealing with a salesman. Or, better yet, you go by after closing time.

Maybe you've recently traded in an older car and thought, "Is this really all it's worth? I could've sold it myself and made more than this."

At Dealer Services Auto Consignments and Sales, they understand how you feel as a buyer or a seller. Under the new ownership of Don Driver (please, no jokes about a guy named Driver selling cars...he's heard them all) there is no hassle either way.

If you're buying, just come by the lot and look for yourself. Driver has about 100 cars on the lot right now, with a few RVs as well, so there's plenty of selection. Each car is clearly marked as to its sales price and major features. If you find one you'd like to try out, simply walk over to the sales building and get the keys. In most cases, you may drive the car and even get your mechanic to check it out before you make a decision. You're even welcome to make a lower offer if you think the owner has overpriced the vehicle.

When you and the seller agree on a price, here's all you do:

1. Pay for the vehicle (cash, check, cashier's check or with instructions from the bank concerning your loan),
2. Provide proof of insurance good for at least 30 days
3. Sign the title, title application, "As Is" statement and financing contract (if any)
4. Drive away.

If you're selling, it's just as easy. You start by bringing the vehicle in with about a fourth of a tank of gas (for test drives), give Dealer Services your test drive instructions, sign the consignment form and provide pertinent information on the condition of the vehicle.

Once a week, weather permitting, Dealer Services will have your car washed at no additional charge. Other detailing work is available for reasonable fees.

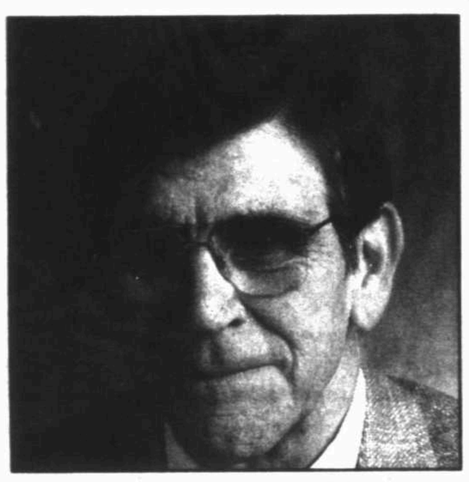

The sales fee structure is very simple: if your car sells for less than $2000, it's a $100 fee. If it sells for $2000 or more, the fee is $200. If your car doesn't sell, lot rent is $25 per month, starting from the day you bring in your vehicle.

While it's on the lot, you retain ownership of the car. Do not bring in your title until they call to say your check is ready. When you have received your check is when you relinquish the title.

"Usually, vehicles sell for somewhere between the wholesale value and the retail value," says Driver. That means the seller makes a little more than on a typical trade-in, and the buyer gets a little better deal, too.

Dealer Services is a consignment sales company located at 1200 North Loop 250 West. Go north on the Loop 250 service road at Illinois without getting on the Loop itself. You'll see Dealer Services under the big billboards just before you get to the Andrews Highway underpass. Call them at 699-7275 if you need more directions.

Can you face the IRS alone?

It's not necessary to battle the IRS alone. Local FTC consultant Bill Judd is ready to help delinquent taxpayers work out their tax problems. He can be reached at 682-7004.

'Do I need help? Checklist

- ❑ The IRS is claiming a large tax deficiency
- ❑ There is a possibility of criminal charges
- ❑ Dealing with the IRS is so stressful I can't even open a letter from them, much less respond to it
- ❑ I have received a "30-day" or "90-day" letter from the IRS
- ❑ I owe taxes but cannot pay.

If you answered yes to the first two questions or face any of the circumstances listed, call FTC agent Bill Judd at 682-7004 or 1-800-382-6337 for a consultation.

Everyone knows that failure to file income tax can lead to legal problems. Fewer people know there is help for those who want to get back into the good graces of the Internal Revenue Service. This is true even for those facing possible civil or criminal action.

Charles Frost, a former Internal Revenue Service officer, founded Federal Tax Consultants to rescue just such people. His local consultant is William F. Judd.

Frost said, "The IRS can criminally prosecute individuals and businesses that do not file income tax or employment tax returns. The law is very specific when it comes to willingly failing to file tax returns."

"While IRS policies and practices are somewhat vague," Judd said, "the Internal Revenue Code (IRC), the law which the IRS abides by, is specific.

For example, IRC section 7203 states that any person required to pay any estimated tax or make a return, keep any records or supply information to the IRS who willfully fails to do so could be convicted of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Even if a taxpayer is not in danger of criminal penalties the civil penalties are usually astronomical. These penalties can lead to great financial strain or even ruin.

"Unfortunately, rather than seeking qualified tax help, some taxpayers file premature bankruptcy. Even worse, others let the IRS prepare and compute the tax for them," Judd lamented. Neither action usually solves the problem.

Since 1988 FTC professionals have helped hundreds of taxpayers in dire circumstances re-enter "tax society."

Frost said, "It's what we call voluntary compliance. We use several little-known IRS policies to help troubled taxpayers. We help them file an Offer in Compromise. This gives the IRS something instead of nothing and it gets the taxpayer out of deep water."

FTC helped one client who owed the IRS $300,000. Judd said that with the Offer in Compromise the client only paid the IRS $10,000.

Frost said there are two main criteria for submitting an Offer in Compromise:

1. The tax, penalty and interest must exceed a taxpayer's net realizable equity and
2. Ability to make a monthly installment agreement with the IRS is minimal.

For anyone facing these or other crushing tax burdens Bill Judd is available for consultation.

Federal Tax Consultants is a tax consulting firm which was founded in 1988 by Charles Frost. Contact local FTC representative Bill Judd at 682-7004 or 1-800-382-6337. The office is open all year to assist with tax matters.

MONEY MATTERS

Q. Will I be able to retire off of my Social Security?
A. Social Security can be a significant source of income for retirees, however, it is not designed to be the sole source. According to the Social Security Administration, only 20% of an average retiree's income comes from Social Security. The maximum benefit that can be received in 1996 is approximately $14,000. The difference must be made up through savings and quality investments.

Jan Vernon of Fastrack Foreign Language uses visuals, games and fun activities to make learning Spanish enjoyable. Call now to enroll in fall classes.

Learn the Spanish, forget the stress

Fall classes enrolling now

With so many companies doing business internationally, few can rely on just speaking English any more. A working knowledge of Spanish has become more important, especially with our proximity to Mexico. It just seems that learning another language can be very stressful.

The whole language approach taken by instructor Jan Vernon actually makes learning Spanish fun. Her Fast Track Foreign Language classes use visual presentations including color-coding, games and learning activities to help with understanding and retention.

"Activities create 'back door' learning," says Ms.Vernon, "which is how a child first learns any language."

Fall classes start this week, so call now to start on the way to stress-free Spanish. Ms. Vernon offers Spanish One and Spanish Two this fall. She can also hold classes at your office on your schedule if you round up a group of 15 or more.

She also offers a Spanish 1 video course using the same exciting and helpful techniques as in the classroom. The video course includes sixteen hours of video presentations, eight hours of audio activities, a 110 page notebook and a picture dictionary.

Jan Vernon is a certified professional teacher with 20 years experience in utilizing the newest language learning technique. Call her at 520-5526 to enroll for fall classes or to enquire about her training video or custom schedules at your business.

Lifetime makes siding more affordable

You've decided that you have painted the exterior of your home for the last time. But the estimates you've received for maintenance-free siding seemed awfully high.

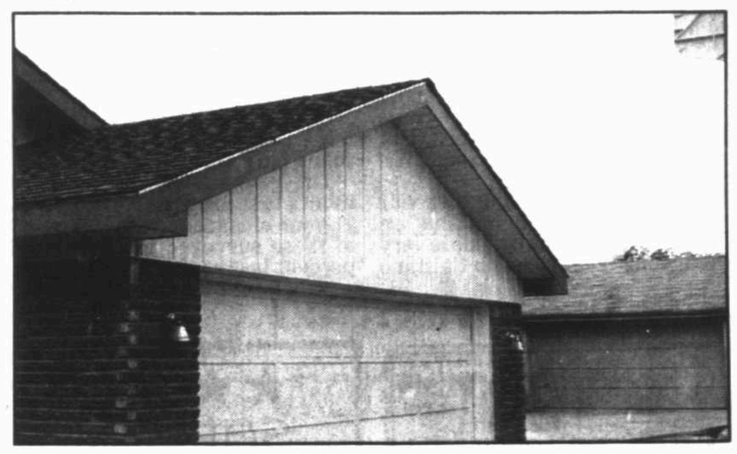

If so, you probably didn't get an estimate from Lifetime Siding.

When you do, you'll see that owner Neil Letkeman's low overhead can save you hundreds of dollars on steel or vinyl siding, soffit and fascia. Lifetime Siding also offers savings on dual glass tilt-in windows with a lifetime warranty, metal carport and patio covers, seamless rain gutters, storm doors and windows.

Spread out the cost by doing some of the job now and the rest later. Letkeman says siding usually pays for itself in 10 years in painting costs alone...sooner, with added energy savings, if they install insulation behind the siding. And from now until the end of September, save an additional 20 percent off Lifetime's already low prices.

Their extensive warranties (lifetime on parts, 15 years on labor) are possible because Lifetime installs with screws and rivets instead of nails. Once siding is installed, you don't have to worry about it any more.

Lifetime Siding has been in the Permian Basin for over 10 years. They specialize in siding as well as storm doors, windows and seamless guttering. Call 580-8125 for a free estimate and a list of references. Financing is available.

After installing this siding, the Futrells at 3715 Humble will never have to paint the outside of their home again. For September, Lifetime Siding offers a 20% discount on their already low prices.

Back for their twelfth season

Miss Cayce's hosts grand opening this Thursday - Sunday

"It just wouldn't be Christmas without a trip to Miss Cayce's." Back for their 12th season, many Midlanders have come to consider Miss Cayce's part of their Christmas tradition.

This year's grand opening will be Thursday through Sunday, September 12-15. Save 10 percent off everything in the store (excluding Dept. 56 Villages) during those four days.

Owners Kathy Harrison and Becky McCraney offer their usual dazzling array of everything Christmassy. Miss Cayce's is the Dept. 56 showcase dealer for the Permian Basin. They have trees, lights, ornaments, ribbons, custom made wreaths and centerpieces, nutcrackers, collectibles from Christopher Radko, Possible Dreams and David Frykman, gifts and soooo much more.

"We enjoy creating a joyous atmosphere to help people get into the real spirit of Christmas," says Becky. "We feel we offer something for everyone," adds Kathy. "Most people are surprised to find the variety in quality merchandise as well as affordable prices. You've just got to come see to believe."

Miss Cayce's Christmas store is located at 3323 Midland Drive, at the corner of Wadley, next to Albertsons. They accept all major credit cards. Layaways are also available. The phone number is 689-7192.

This giraffe and sparkling Christmas tree are the heart of the "Funky Monkey" corner at Miss Cayce's, which opens this week for their 12th season. It's the shopping discovery you'll want to experience over and over again.

Van Pearcy of Edward Jones & Co.

Investing to reduce your tax bill

By Van Pearcy

Last week, on the first Monday of September, West Texans celebrated Labor Day by cooking barbecue in their backyards. How well do you know your other special days? For example, when is Memorial Day or Easter? How about the day when Lee plays Permian in football?

Most Midlanders could probably answer those questions accurately. But there's an even more important date on the calendar year that goes by largely uncelebrated. It's the infamous Tax Freedom Day!

Tax Freedom Day is the date on which the average American begins earning after-tax income. In other words, if you had to pay all of your federal, state and local taxes before taking home any of your wages, Tax Freedom Day is when you would finish paying the government and begin paying yourself.

This year, Tax Freedom Day fell on May 7. That means the average West Texan worked about a third of the year—and spent about a third of his or her income—to pay taxes to Uncle Sam.

Van Pearcy

This may surprise you, but it shouldn't make you feel helpless. There are ways to make your personal Tax Freedom Day come a little earlier. You may not be able to reduce the amount of taxes you pay on your wages, but you can reduce taxes on your investment income. Here's how:

1. Invest for more growth. Some investments pay income, some provide growth of capital and some provide both. Investment income is taxed at the same rate as your ordinary income, which can be as high as 39.6 percent. Capital gains, however, are currently taxed at a top rate of 28 percent. If you are in a tax bracket above 28 percent, you may be able to reduce your tax liability by shifting some of your portfolio into growth investments.

Of course, there are many good reasons to select income instead of growth, regardless of taxes. You should work this out with a tax adviser. However, it makes sense for long-term investors who reinvest dividends and income to invest in stocks or mutual funds that emphasize growth.

2. Invest for tax-free income. Municipal bonds pay interest that is exempt from federal income tax and, in some cases, state taxes as well. This can be especially advantageous for people who pay high state income taxes.

You can buy individual municipal bonds or invest in a portfolio of bonds through a mutual fund or unit trust. These fully managed portfolios offer a kaleidoscope of investment options, including high-yield limited term and select funds for specific states.

3. Invest in a retirement plan. Investing in an employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as a 401(k) or simplified employee pension (SEP), is probably one of the best ways to defer income tax. Contributions to the plan are made before your income tax is calculated. People with earned income who do not have a retirement plan at work can still contribute up to $2,000 per year to an individual retirement account (IRA) and deduct all or part of that contribution from current taxes. In addition to the current tax savings offered by these plans, all contributions and their earnings grow tax-deferred until withdrawn.

4. Invest in a tax-deferred annuity. Annuities are another option for retirement savings. Although annuity investments are not tax-deductible, they do grow tax-deferred until withdrawn. They can be appropriate for people with no retirement plan, those who have put off contributing to a retirement plan or those who have contributed the maximum to their employer plan and IRA but would like to invest more. Unlike IRAs and employer plans, there is no limit on annual annuity contributions.

These are four simple ideas that many West Texas investors can implement easily. There are also other ways a careful Midland investor can save on taxes: tax-swapping, charitable giving, trusts and more.

As a tax-paying investor, you should be aware of the relationship between your investment and taxes. Anything less means more taxes for you.

Susan McDougal reports to federal marshals, vows not to testify

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A defiant Susan McDougal reported to federal marshals today, vowing to go to jail rather than answer Whitewater prosecutors' questions before a federal grand jury.

President Clinton's former Whitewater business partner said she would not cooperate with Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr, who she accused of lying in his handling of her case. She renewed charges that prosecutors had offered her a deal for leniency in return for incriminating evidence against the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"I'm so angry that they hold themselves out to be so full of integrity, so above reproach," Mrs. McDougal told reporters outside the federal courthouse. "They will do anything. There's nothing they won't do" to get the Clintons.

She insisted again that she was getting no assistance from the White House. "If the Clintons have helped me or the White House has helped me, then God help us all because I'm about to go to jail," she said.

Jenniffer Horan, a federal public defender assigned to Mrs. McDougal's case, said a notice of appeal and a request for a stay of the punishment would be filed. But it appeared nothing would stop Mrs. McDougal from being taken to jail this morning for violating a judge's order to testify before the Whitewater grand jury.

On Saturday, Starr criticized Mrs. McDougal and her attorney, Bobby McDaniel, for remarks made at the Little Rock airport on Friday, and on CNN's "Larry King Live."

Starr said they were "brazenly trying to deceive the public" with remarks about dealings with his office.

"Their continued attempts to mislead the public as to the true nature of (a conversation with Starr's staff) are outrageous and unethical," Starr said.

Referring to California's murderous cult leader, Mrs. McDougal said Sunday that "Kenneth Starr calling me unethical is like Charles Manson calling me crazy."

On Wednesday, a federal judge found Mrs. McDougal in contempt of court for refusing to talk to the Whitewater grand jury.

Survey: Two thirds of surveyed parents expect children to try drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of baby-boomer parents who experimented with marijuana as teen-agers expect their own children will do the same, and many say parents have too little influence to stop them, according to a survey released Monday.

The findings, from the first national survey to simultaneously ask parents and teen-agers about their attitudes toward drugs, come just weeks after the government announced a doubling of teen drug use.

"That the baby boomers appear to be so ambivalent and so resigned to drug use by kids is very disturbing," said Joseph Califano of Columbia University's Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, which sponsored the survey. "They should be mad as hell. Instead they're saying there's nothing we can do about it."

But some parents didn't think the poll painted them so badly.

"It's not so much that people are resigned, I think they're realistic," said Barbara Barrett of Rockville, Md., who has a 16-year-old daughter. "Drugs are everywhere and that's hard."

The government reported last month that drug use among 12- to 17-year-olds rose from 5.3 percent of those surveyed in 1992 to 10.9 percent last year.

The new survey questioned 1,200 teens and 1,166 parents of teens, including 819 whose children also were polled.

Almost half of the parents surveyed — 49 percent — had tried marijuana in their youth. Some 46 percent knew someone who uses illegal drugs today, including one-third of parents who have friends who currently use marijuana.

Overall, 46 percent of the parents surveyed said they expect their teen to try illegal drugs.

But when researchers looked only at the parents who had experimented with marijuana, akin to a rite of passage for many baby-boomers, the numbers jumped.

Some 65 percent of parents who used marijuana regularly as teens believe their own children will too.

Testimony begins in murder trial

First police officer at crime scene describes conditions

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Testimony began Monday afternoon in the murder trial of a Midland man accused of killing his wife in the early morning hours of Dec. 23.

Daniel Randolph Jr., 40, was charged in the shooting death of his wife, Wanda Randolph, 44.

District Attorney Al Schorre and Assistant District Attorney Brian Carney will be attempting to prove that the shooting was a deliberate premeditated act on the part of Randolph.

"Nothing happens in a vacuum ... there are things that led up to that fateful morning," Schorre told jurors in his opening statements.

Mrs. Randolph was found lying on her bed with one large-caliber bullet wound in her head, according to testimony from officer Kenneth Emert of the Midland Police Department, the first witness to be called.

Emert was the first officer on the scene following a 9-1-1 call made from the Randolph home at 302 S. Adams St.

Emert testified that he entered the dwelling and made his way to a bedroom where he found a woman lying across the middle of the bed, fully dressed. He checked for a pulse but there was none.

"From the side, I could see a large pool of blood ... under her head," Emert said.

Since her body was still warm, emergency medical personnel decided to take Mrs. Randolph to the hospital, even though she was believed to be dead. She was pronounced dead at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

Photographs were not taken of the victim in her final pose on the bed.

In the kitchen, Emert said he found a semi-automatic pistol with the hammer cocked back in the ready-to-fire position. Upon examination, the weapon was found to have a round chambered and the barrel smelled as if it had been recently fired, he said.

The weapon was found to be a Norinco brand, a low-cost weapon of Chinese manufacture, according to past issues of The American Rifleman Magazine.

Presented in to evidence Monday, the weapon appears to be a replica of the Colt Model M1911, which is commonly referred to as the .45 automatic, according to Emert.

Emert testified that he unloaded the weapon, placed it in a tamper-proof evidence bag and locked it in his vehicle's trunk.

Defense attorney Rusty Wall will be attempt to prove that the shooting was accidental.

A Day in the Life of...

Crossing guard keeps close watch on Midland children

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Driving through Midland on a weekday morning or afternoon likely means slowing down for a school zone and encountering a crossing guard.

At the intersection of Crowley and Hereford boulevards outside Scharbauer Elementary School, Sandra (Jackson) Starks juggles children and traffic at three crosswalks.

"I just enjoy the job. I really do," Ms. Starks said. "It's like my home out here. I miss my kids in the summertime."

A crossing guard for nearly two years, the 26-year-old has been stationed at her current location since February of last year. She dons an orange vest and holds a stop sign from 7 a.m. to 8:45 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Ms. Starks is one of 37 crossing guards employed with Career Path, which contracts with the city to provide the service. When Ms. Starks put in an application at the employment agency, she did so specifically for a crossing guard job.

"I love working around kids. I'd rather be around kids than grown-ups," she said with a laugh. "They're friendly, they smile, they joke. If they have a problem sometimes they come to me."

Ms. Starks said if she comes to work in a bad mood she's guaranteed to leave in a good one — thanks to the children and parents.

Compliments for Ms. Starks are easy to find.

Nine Midland women cited for excellence at convention

From Staff Reports

Nine Midlanders were among 14 Texans who were honored Saturday with "Men snd Women Who Make It Happen" awards during the ninth annual Business Office Symposium Series (BOSS) convention in Austin.

Myra Lee Salcedo, education writer for the Reporter-Telegram, received the award for journalism expertise. She also recently received the 1995 School Bell Award from Texas State Teacher's Association, and the 1995 Silver Apple Award from the Midland Chapter of Texas Classroom Teachers' Association.

Ms. Salcedo was nominated by the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs Inc. for her award-winning stories and for contributions made to the entire community through her work.

Other Midlanders who won were: Delia Polk, owner of the Faith Temple Child Care Center; Loree Clay; Stancel Clay, Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health & Mental Retardation; Shirley Howard, bus driver for Midland Independent School District; Robbyne Fuller; James Fuller; Damita Cornelius; and Iva Boze Community Singers and Spiritual Forces Choir.

The three-day convention's theme was "Partnerships for the 21st Century." The convention's goal was to establish productive partnerships between corporate, government and other business and public entities for small and disadvantaged business enterprises.

Transportation officials look into cyberspace

AUSTIN (AP) — Transportation experts are wondering whether Austin computer consultant Patricia Yockey is the future.

Ms. Yockey, a consultant for Sterling Information Group, couldn't stand the grind of driving through Austin traffic for work. "It wasn't a long commute from a distance standpoint, but traffic was horrible," she said.

Now her daily commute is very short — from the bedroom to the computer room. Like more than 7,000 others in the Austin area, Ms. Yockey works from home.

A statewide study under way by the Texas Transportation Institute is trying to determine how many people are doing what Ms. Yockey is doing, and how that will affect the plans being made to accommodate future traffic.

There are two schools of thought on how "telecommuting" will affect the Austin area's transportation needs.

Hopeful visionaries like Ted Kircher of Information Age Consultants say by 2020 so many people could be working at home that traffic jams will be a thing of the past.

'If people have their druthers, it's not just going to be telecommuting it's going to be teleservices.'
— Ted Kircher, consultant

"If people have their druthers, it's not just going to be telecommuting, it's going to be teleservices," said Kircher, who thinks people eventually will shop, learn and do other daily activities from the comfort of home.

He said local transportation planners should keep telecommuting in mind before making plans for big-money projects such as new highways, passenger

Texas county tired of funding their juvenile detention center

LOCKHART (AP) — Caldwell County wants out of a money-losing proposition: operating a juvenile detention center.

Facing increased competition from private centers, the county has been unable to keep its juvenile detention center in downtown Lockhart filled with youths from elsewhere whose home counties pay $85 a day to house them.

The county is facing a $200,000 loss on the center for the fiscal year ending Sept. 31, officials said.

They are hoping to avoid closing its doors by leasing the operation to a private company that could keep the 24 beds occupied, possibly by expanding services.

"It has a lot of great possibilities," said Jill Townsend, chief juvenile probation officer. "My biggest concern is to salvage some services ... for our county and our kids."

The detention center houses youths who have been arrested and are awaiting release to parents or adjudication by a court. They stay anywhere from a day to a month.

Caldwell County averages about five such cases at any time, Ms. Townsend said. Until last year the county sent them to juvenile centers in Hondo or Victoria.

With its own center, county officials planned on housing local youths close to home and make ends meet by taking in those from other counties.

That worked from the opening in October 1995 until February, Ms. Townsend said. Then competition hit.

A private company called Recor Inc. opened a juvenile detention center in Rockdale, 70 miles northeast, and took a big bite out of Caldwell County's customer base.

Recor provides transportation and charges $73 a day. "I can't compete with that," Ms. Townsend said.

Commissioners discuss several items during meeting

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners Monday debated proposals for health- care claim administration and vehicle/equipment maintenance management, and decided to put the courthouse annex building up for sale again.

In separate items, commissioners discussed but failed to reach any agreement on proposals submitted for third-party administration of health-care claims for county employees, and management and operation of the county's vehicle/equipment maintenance facility.

With 23 proposals from six companies to administer health benefit claims, commissioners were at odds over which proposal would best serve employees.

The county's purchasing agent, Paul Thompson, evaluated the proposals — which differ from bids because services may not be identical — and recommended awarding a contract to Health Administration Services Inc. (HAS). County Judge Jeff Norwood and commissioner Guy McCrary agreed.

Commissioners Louisa Valencia and Henry Goulet differed, favoring Healthcare and Benefits Inc. (HBI). Ms. Valencia said she was partial to HBI largely because company representatives would be available locally for county employees. And that's an advantage in light of claim problems with the existing company, she said.

Commissioner James Brezina essentially ended the discussion by asking the decision be postponed until hearing from the insurance consultant, who was not present but reportedly agreed with the purchasing agent's recommendation.

At the conclusion of the discussion, District Attorney Al Schorre advised the commissioners to "build a record" of dealings with the companies as a precautionary measure. That's because commissioners, in February, agreed than rescinded entering into a contract with HAS without seeking other proposals, he said. A record would help if the contract is awarded to HAS and another companies accuse the county of being unfair, Schorre said.

In another debate of services sought — for management of the vehicle/equipment maintenance facility — commissioners decided to look into a proposal made by the city before making a decision.

Earlier this summer, commissioners had negotiated a contract with Ryder Managed Logistics Systems but rescinded because of a legal error in the contract. Commissioners decided to privatize management of the county's 160 vehicles after the employee who oversaw vehicle maintenance left.

Three new proposals for the job included Ryder, Midland College and the city of Midland. The county's purchasing agent recommended Ryder based on services provided and company reputation.

Goulet urged the court to review a proposal by the city of Midland before making a decision. Because the city is a governmental entity, that consideration doesn't fall under normally required bid practices. As a result, commissioners will review the option.

In other business before the court, commissioners gave the go-ahead to advertise the sale of the now-vacated annex building located on Illinois Avenue downtown. Occupants of the building moved to a new location at Main Street and Texas Avenue in late May.

The county attempted to sell the 55-year-old annex — appraised at $70,000 — about a month ago but only received a $10,010 offer. The county has since received two inquiries about the building.

The 10,500-square-foot building will be advertised the next two Fridays and the Commissioners Court is expected to consider any offers of at least $50,000 in October.

why photographs had not been taken before the body was moved. "It certainly would have been helpful," he said.

Emert testified that he does not carry any photographic equipment in his patrol vehicle. MPD crime scene technicians usually handle photography in a homicide, but these personnel had not arrived by the time the body was moved.

In future testimony, Schorre will be attempting to prove that Mrs. Randolph was sitting on the bed when she was shot, not struggling for the weapon as Randolph reportedly said at the time of the shooting.

Emert testified that it appeared the woman had been sitting on the bed and fell back, with her feet still touching the floor.

Under cross-examination, however, Emert agreed that this was a supposition on his part, as he had no knowledge of the actual events that left the victim in the position in which she was found.

STOP: Guard helps children get home safely

(From 7A)

Career Path has received several calls praising her dedication and the way she treats youngsters and adults.

And in the five years the agency has provided the service for the city, there has been only one letter commenting on a crossing guard. In part, that letter reads: "Sandra takes a personal interest in each child and calls each by name. Even though children and parents frequently travel her crosswalks separately, she knows who belongs in each family. Often, Sandra takes time to comment to a child on how good they are, or who they look like, etc. The children all love her and respect her."

School bus driver Bonnie Drake attested to Ms. Starks' professionalism. "It's good when you a have good cross guard to help the kids and the bus drivers. Sandra does a great job," Ms. Drake said.

Actions also reflect how much school-related people care for Ms. Starks. When Ms. Starks forgot her umbrella during a downpour, a teacher brought one out. And when her car window was broken, the PTA paid for a new one.

Despite her love for the job and the appreciation shown to her, being a crossing guard doesn't go without drawbacks, such as working in the cold and coping with thoughtless drivers.

"Sometimes they act like they don't want to stop," she said. "And I have a lot of them speeding through here, especially the teenagers, and they know it."

But Ms. Sparks doesn't let that get in the way of the reason she's there: to make sure the children cross the street safely. "I treat those kids like my kids. I want those kids to be safe like my own kids," she said.

Ms. Starks has three children at home: Tiffany, 12, Tyrone, 10, and Terrance, 9. And she's a newlywed; she married James Sparks about a month ago.

Ms. Starks' job as a crossing guard is one of four she holds down. She works as provider for the elderly for Nurses Unlimited each weekday, watches abused children once a week and works at Our Savior Lutheran Church day care on Sundays.

At a glance: Sandra Starks

Birthplace: Midland.
Hobbies, interests: Church activities.
Favorite television show: "Leave it to Beaver."
Favorite entertainer: Bill Cosby.
Favorite Food: "Since I'm on a diet, I have to say salad." Otherwise, her favorite is cheeseburgers.
If you could visit anywhere in the world, where would you go? The Bahamas.
If you won the lottery, what's the first thing you would do? Rebuild her grandmother's house and build a play house for children across the street from Scharbauer Elementary School.

JAIL: Detention center ails county

(From 7A)

Bastrop, Lee, Burleson and Washington counties, which previously sent youths to the Lockhart center, switched. The center's daily population dropped from an average of about 14 to six or seven in the past few months.

The Lockhart center's budget this fiscal year is $394,000. By the end of August, it had generated $191,000 in revenue, Ms. Townsend said.

Competition in the juvenile-justice business is something new, one result of increased state money for treatment and detention programs.

"For quite a few years there was a shortage of detention space. Then they all started coming on line about the same time, so there is quite a bit of competition now in some areas," Ms. Townsend said.

Private contractors can operate more efficiently than government, said Tanna Brown, vice president for operations at Recor's Kerrville office. She said her company is "very thin at the top," spends most of its staffing money on people who work directly with youths and, because it is not bound by government purchasing rules, can shop around for bargains in supplies.

HOME: Transportation officials look to future in cyberspace

(From 7A)

trains and airports.

But other transportation planners say that is too optimistic.

Michael Aulick, director of the Austin Transportation Study, said the percentage of people who telecommute in the future is expected to be "pretty modest."

"It's certainly no reason to drop any plans for light rail or passenger rail or other transportation plans," he said.

Aulick hopes the study, and others expected to follow, will provide an answer.

The Denver-based Center for the New West estimated that 43 million people in the United States work out of their home, up from 6 million in 1974. About 7,000 Austin-area residents worked out of their homes at the time of the 1990 census.

But the potential is for more, according to a 1993 study by DBR & Associates in Plano that estimated telecommuting could reduce rush-hour commuting trips in major cities by 10 percent.

Aulick said even if telecommuting accounts for 3 percent to 5 percent of the rush-hour trips, it will help relieve Austin congestion. The Austin Transportation Study in 1994 approved a transportation plan to 2020 that includes policies to encourage telecommuting.

"Our plan is based on a lot of small solutions," Aulick said. Those include car pool lanes and light rail, which also could account for reduction of the commuter traffic.

The Texas Transportation Institute study, which will be released within a few months, attempts to set up a formula for local transportation planners to determine what the impact of telecommuting will be in certain regions.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Traveling or working abroad will lead to new professional prestige. Guard against being extravagant in December. Excellent communication skills are a key part of your success formula. A raise or promotion is likely early in 1997. Diplomacy is essential when trying to cement business alliances. Regular exercise will reduce stress. Attending a wedding gives you an opportunity to meet someone highly eligible. Dress to impress.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Amy Irving, singer Jose Feliciano, Lakers guard Sedale Threatt, actress Jennifer Tilly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You now learn something new about yourself. Alter your approach to work and play. A heart-to-heart talk leaves you feeling better. Live your dreams without feeling guilty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A work-related social event helps you make new contacts. An office problem can be solved by consulting experts. Be willing to pay top dollar for good advice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A neighborhood improvement project may hit a snag. Offer your expertise. Consider taking a trip to your childhood home. Get together with long-time friends to share a casual meal and reminisce about old times.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial matters occupy your thoughts. Think about practicing small economies. An extravagant purchase can wait. Although you want to take a trip, the timing is wrong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your professional contacts are instrumental in your landing new clients. Celebrate good news with a close friend. A compromise is necessary to restore domestic tranquility.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Business partners come through with cash or emotional support. An accountant or banker offers sage advice. Pay close attention. A new relationship will need time to develop.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A romantic dream haunts you. Try to unravel its message. Your needs are no longer what they were. A co-worker's revelations are enlightening. An upcoming trip could change your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Although your personality is great, you may need to pay more attention to your appearance. You and your partner need to resolve some basic differences before making a commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not allow anxiety to cloud your judgment. Do further research before making a far-reaching decision. Discussing your goals with a trusted friend helps you envision the lifestyle you want. Redouble your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New business arrangements require very careful thought. Do not sign a contract unless it contains an escape clause. A friend's party may not live up to your expectations. Try to make a graceful exit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Even casual moments with your family and friends are special. You feel nourished by the company of those you love. Reviewing recent developments will help you decide if you are on the right track.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Learning a new skill could make a big difference to your career. Try to convince higher-ups to foot the bill for your training. Timely research will save a company a bundle of money!

Dog-Gone vision makes dogs gone

Chalk it up to good ol' American ingenuity!

Ray Balfour could well be the next Henry Ford whose idea was right for its time. Right, at least, for regions of the country such as Midland where prairie dogs enjoy digging holes in pastures, yards and any other location they deem suitable — making life more precarious for man and livestock alike, and damaging automobiles and farm machinery.

Balfour has invented a better mousetrap, so to speak. It's a huge vacuum that literally sucks the burrowing rascals right out of their subterranean lairs. Balfour and his partner, Dave Honaker, call their prairie dog vacuum Dog-Gone and not only is it said to be more effective than poisons at eradicating prairie dog infested areas of the furry critters, but it seems to be a more humane method of getting rid of the 'dogs.

Now, we fully anticipate that some beady-eyed environmentalist will try to have this new technology declared cruel and unusual or some equally absurd designation so a few prairie dogs can be spared getting sucked from their dens.

But having lived in a country that boasts more than its share of the hole digging varmints — and knowing from first-hand experience what can happen when an automobile's tires, livestock or some unwary pedestrian falls off into one of the holes — we salute Balfour and Honaker on making this technology available.

Making 'dogs gone this way does no harm to our environment!

Friends of Bill keep faltering at an alarming rate of speed

The Democrats made much of President Clinton's hometown, Hope, Ark., during both the 1992 and 1996 conventions. In the rhetoric of the campaign, Hope is presented as a statement of optimism about the future. It also is presented as a symbol of small-town virtues, suggesting that Clinton brought something special with him to the White House because of his Arkansas upbringing.

What Clinton brought in some cases, however, were old friends and Arkansas associates who let him down. Often, the Friends of Bill brought disillusionment, not hope. ...

The attrition rate among FOBs has been high. Other presidents have lost advisers, aides and top administrators to scandal or ethical troubles. But the number of Clintonites, longtime advisers, old friends and people from the elite group that moved into the White house with the Clintons after the 1992 election is startling.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 10, the 254th day of 1996. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 10, 1813, Oliver H. Perry sent the message, "We have met the enemy, and they are ours," after an American naval force defeated the British in the Battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812.

On this date:

In 1608, John Smith was elected president of the Jamestown colony council in Virginia.

In 1846, 150 years ago, Elias Howe of Spencer, Mass., received a patent for his sewing machine.

In 1919, New York City welcomed home Gen. John J. Pershing and 25,000 soldiers who'd served in the U.S. 1st Division during World War I.

In 1939, Canada declared war on Germany.

In 1945, Vidkun Quisling was sentenced to death in Norway for collaborating with the Nazis.

In 1948, Mildred Gillars, accused of being Nazi wartime radio broadcaster Axis Sally, was indicted in Washington D.C. for treason.

In 1955, "Gunsmoke" premiered on CBS television.

In 1963, 20 black students entered public schools in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile, Ala., following a standoff between federal authorities and Gov. George C. Wallace.

In 1979, four Puerto Rican nationalists imprisoned for a 1954 attack on the U.S. House of Representatives and a 1950 attempt on the life of President Truman were granted clemency by President Carter.

Ten years ago: CBS Inc. announced that embattled chairman and chief executive Thomas H. Wyman was stepping down.

Five years ago: The Senate Judiciary Committee opened hearings on the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the U.S. Supreme Court.

One year ago: A plane carrying members of a skydivers club crashed in Shacklefords, Va., killing 10 parachutists, the plane's pilot and a man on the ground. NBC's "ER" won eight Emmy Awards, but lost best dramatic series to ABC's "NYPD Blue;" NBC's "Frasier" won five awards, including best comedy series.

Character could be Clinton's Achille's heel

President Clinton's little Iraq attack is nothing compared to the character bomb the Dole campaign appears ready to drop on its opponent.

Thomas

The New York Daily News reports that Dole plans to launch a hard-hitting television barrage within a few weeks that may include a "Clinton Hall of Shame," showing pictures of disgraced Democratic aides. Will a 30-second commercial be sufficient to list them all?

Walter Mondale tried the character attack strategy in 1984 -- the "sleaze factor" his campaign called it. It didn't work because, while some members of Ronald Reagan's administration might have engaged in unethical or illegal behavior, voters considered Reagan's personal character above reproach.

Not so with Bill Clinton, who should be known by the company he keeps.

The president knows he is more vulnerable on the character issue than any other. That's why he attempted to preempt it in his acceptance speech in Chicago. He promised he wouldn't talk about other people's character in this campaign. That's because Bob Dole has character, and Clinton doesn't.

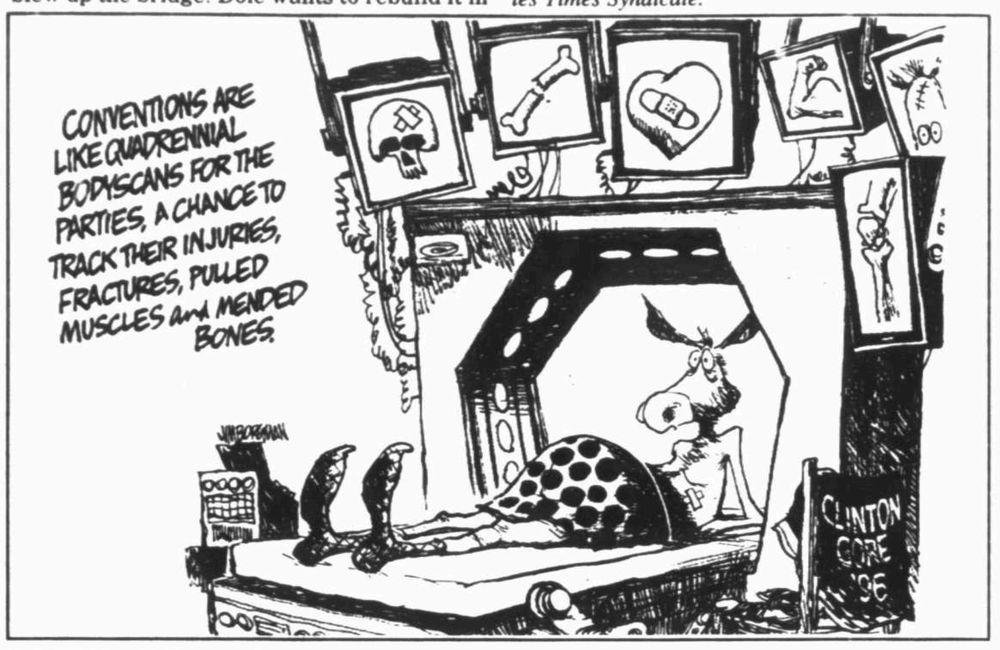

Dole hinted he might travel the character road (the press is likely to call it mud-slinging) in his Sept. 3 speech to the American Legion. Reporters focused on his remarks about Iraq, but later in the speech Dole reminded us that "beliefs," not economics or feeling good, are the foundation "on which American greatness depends."

He said that he and President Clinton have "a basic conflict of vision" and contrasted his and Clinton's approach to government as the solution to our problems. "For Bill Clinton," said Dole, "the desire to help us has become an excuse to rule us .... Our government must not lose its compassion, but it must be forced to lose its imperial arrogance."

Dole said that so much depends on getting the basic things right. That is what he meant in San Diego when he said he hoped the voters would allow him to be a bridge to the past. It isn't about going backward. Clinton's generation blew up the bridge. Dole wants to rebuild it in order to retrieve the values and principles we left behind in our race toward materialism and pleasure. Then, having reclaimed them, we could move into the future with our personal and national priorities straight.

If the Dole campaign decides to lob the character bomb, it must be careful that it doesn't present a "holier-than-thou" attitude. The commercials should focus less on Dole and more on the standard so frequently abandoned by members of this administration and their cronies.

MIKE ROYKO

Slap in face of all concerned dads is recanted

Finally, there is justice for John Jerkins, whom I would nominate for the title of America's Father of the Year.

You may have read or heard about Jerkins, a police sergeant in Stillwater, Okla.

Earlier this year, Jerkins awoke during the night, went downstairs to his living room, and was shocked to find his daughter and her boyfriend, both 17, on the couch, apparently engaging or about to engage in "it."

Royko

The young man sprang to his feet and, while still wearing little more than a condom, walked toward Jerkins.

Jerkins hauled off and gave the lad a sharp openhanded slap in the face.

The boyfriend went home and told his parents about being slapped but lied about why Jerkins did it. The parents reported it to the police.

And because Jerkins is a police sergeant, it became a much bigger deal than it should have been.

Although the local prosecutor decided not to pursue the case, reasoning that it would be impossible to find a jury that wouldn't consider the slap in the face deserved, Jerkins' superiors thought otherwise.

They demoted him from sergeant to patrolman and gave him a paper-shuffling desk job.

The demotion cost him $700 a month in pay and meant that he would lose about $4,000 a year in pension benefits when he retired.

They said the demotion was justified because he would not admit that slapping the young man had been wrong, while they insisted he didn't have the right to smack someone else's kid, regardless of the circumstances.

And they said they could not tolerate a policeman justifying what they considered to be an improper use of force against someone else's child. Even one wearing a condom in the policeman's parlor.

That was last spring, and Jerkins has since refused to back down. He also showed admirable restraint in declining invitations to share his story with Oprah, Sally Raphael, "Good Morning America," "The Today Show" and other peddlers of mass silliness.

He's also received countless letters of support from strangers, and the governor of Oklahoma said that if he had been in Jerkins' house slippers, he would have given the young fellow more than a slap.

This week, the Stillwater city administration finally stopped looking at rule books and law books and decided to get back to the real world.

So it restored Jerkins to the rank of sergeant and his job in the criminal investigations division, although it would still like to suspend him for a week.

Jerkins' experience is another example of how difficult it is to be a parent in these changing times. Especially when you have daughters.

Not only do you get stuck with paying for their weddings. But, if you have any traditional values, you must be concerned with their "honor."

As one whose parental experience has been mostly with sons, I've always been less concerned with their honor than with how noisily they banged on their drums and guitars or with the possibility that they might bring friends home to deplete the beer supply and throw up on the front lawn.

Jerkins' story brings to mind the tale of one of my in-laws, Zeke the city fireman, and his two daughters.

Zeke is an old-fashioned fellow. Rode the rods seeking work during the Depression, a paratrooper infantryman in WWII, a ladder-climbing, smoke-eater in civilian life.

As the father of two very lovely girls, he insisted on certain formalities. When they got to high school and began dating, he required that the young men come to his house so he could meet and approve of them.

The ritual went like this. The boy would arrive to pick up his date. He would be introduced to Zeke, who would offer him a soft drink and say: "Are you interested in trains?" Most weren't. Then Zeke would say: "I collect model trains. Let me show them to you."

Then they would go down to Zeke's basement, where he kept his big train layouts.

One evening, Zeke's wife walked by the basement door, which was slightly ajar. And she heard Zeke's voice. She lingered there and listened. This was what she heard:

Zeke was saying: "Listen, kid, I was a young guy once myself. And I know what young guys think about when it comes to girls. I know that you've got one thing on your mind.

"So let me tell you what I'll do if you try any funny stuff with my daughter. I'll hurt you real bad. I mean, you'll feel terrible pain. Maybe I'll even kill you. Yeah, I'll probably kill you."

I should explain also that Zeke was built something like an NFL middle linebacker — a neck as thick as a fire plug and forearms like 5-pound hams. And all his life he wore a military crewcut. So when someone like that says he will hurt or kill you, it has a sincere ring and makes an impression.

That is when his wife knew why her two daughters were beginning to have doubts about their femininity and desirability.

They had told her that the young men who asked them for dates inevitably turned out to be shy and reserved.

Not one had ever tried to hold their hands at the movies or steal a good night peck when they took them to the door. Always well before midnight.

Now the two daughters knew the reason for all the uncommon shyness — it is difficult for even a colt-like young man to display affection when he thinks that the slightest touch or leer might cause a hulk in a crewcut to leap out of the shadows to inflict torture, pain or even an early grave.

I'm sure that there are permissive parents who will say that Sgt. Jerkins overreacted and that Zeke was too protective.

But as Zeke put it: "I raised very good girls. And I helped their dates be very good boys."

And the boys survived, without even a slap in the face. Maybe Sgt. Jerkins should have developed a little basement lecture of his own.

CHARLEY REESE

Hanky-panky is almost always orchestrated at top

The Immigration and Naturalization Service bosses under the Clinton administration apparently play politics rather than do their jobs.

Reese

Miami INS officials deliberately deceived a visiting congressional delegation and then tried to cover it up.

Border Patrol agents involved in Operation Gatekeeper at the San Diego border have publicly charged that they were ordered to undercount apprehensions, not apprehend illegals and ship detainees to other sectors to make the program look successful.

House and Senate immigration subcommittees have charged that the INS deliberately withheld internal projections to trick lawmakers into thinking legal immigration numbers were dropping. They are not.

It is important to note that both in Miami and in San Diego it was honest INS employees who spilled the beans on their bosses. Generally you will find the workers in nearly all government agencies to be good people doing their jobs. The hanky-panky and the political games are nearly always orchestrated by higher-ups.

Also on the immigration front, the Rand Corp., a prestigious think tank, has reversed an early position that immigrants benefit California. In a new study, the Rand Corp. found that immigrants depress California wages and that the "majority of immigrants are poorly educated and have low English proficiency."

These nuggets of information are collected by the Federation for American Immigration Reform. If you are interested in a good source of information, I recommend FAIR. The addresses are FAIR, 1666 Connecticut Ave., NW, Suite 400, Washington, D.C. 20009 and http://www.fairus.org on the Internet.

Americans need to be concerned about immigration because too much of even a good thing is bad. Congress passed a very bad immigration bill in the 1960s that has had two results. One, it boosted the numbers of legal immigrants to around 1 million a year. Two, it has shifted immigration from Europe to Asia and Latin America.

There is nothing wrong, per se, with immigrants from Asia or Latin America, but many of the Hispanic immigrants are poorly educated, unskilled laborers fleeing the economic misery of their own countries. We have more than enough native-born people who are poorly educated and unskilled. That cohort of our population does not need to grow.

What we are doing, as one economist pointed out, and have been doing since the 1970s, is importing poverty. An immigrant looking for opportunity is one thing; an immigrant looking for a handout is something else. When folks in places like Russia, Mexico and China start to sit around, discussing the intricacies of the American welfare system and Social Security, you know you have a problem.

Sentimentalists should stifle themselves and face the facts. Immigrants, like native Americans, are human beings. Human beings are not all good human beings. Who wants to import bad human beings -- criminals, wife beaters, child abusers, thieves, communists and con artists -- when our own American-born breed of such lowlifes is already a big pain in the keister?

Finally, there is the problem of sheer numbers. Every land has a carrying capacity. Virtually every environmental problem you can think of is a result of too many people. When I was born in the 1940s, there were 150 million Americans. Now there are 262 million.

Soon, if we don't change our immigration laws, there will be 350 million. There is not a single overpopulated country in the world that is not suffering and struggling on a scale we don't want to experience.

Better grab a politician and get his attention before it's too late.

BUSINESS BRIEFING

Prices slip

NEW YORK — Gasoline futures prices fell Monday in a pullback from gains the previous session while traders kept a close eye on developments in Iraq and another powerful storm in the Caribbean.

West Texas Intermediate for October delivery settled at $23.73 per barrel, down 12 cents.

Fighting between Kurdish factions in northern Iraq was reported Monday, but had little impact on trading since the United States has said it has no plans to take sides in those actions.

Likewise, Hortense stalled off the U.S. Virgin Islands after rising to hurricane strength.

Natural gas prices were higher, with contracts for delivery in October settling at $1.898 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 3.5 cents.

Dollar rallies

NEW YORK — The dollar rose to a nearly two-month high against the mark Monday, deriving strength from a sell-off in the German currency on diminished fears of obstacles to Europe's plan for monetary union.

Further gains in the U.S. stock and bond markets following Friday rallies also helped support the dollar, as did remarks by Germany's top banker emphasizing widespread support for a strong U.S. currency.

In late New York trading, the dollar traded at 1.4995 marks, up from 1.4920 marks Friday and the highest level since July 15. The dollar also rose widely against most other European currencies but ended marginally lower against the yen at 109.26, down from 109.32, partly because the mark's weakness also helped strengthen the Japanese currency.

The British pound traded at $1.5570, down from $1.5605.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday: 1.2228 Swiss francs, up from 1.2185; 5.1110 French francs, up from 5.0994; 1,510 Italian lire, down from 1,512; 1.3700 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3732.

Drugstore bid

NEW YORK — Revco D.S. Inc., one of the country's biggest drug store chains, has begun a $330 million hostile takeover bid for rival Big B Inc., while two smaller retailers have announced a friendly merger.

ShopKo Stores Inc., a Green Bay, Wisc.-based discount merchandiser, and Phar-Mor Inc., a drug chain based in Youngstown, Ohio, said they would combine under a new holding company.

The moves announced Monday underscore the increasingly competitive environment in drug retailing. Companies are trying to expand their markets and cut expenses as their profits are squeezed by health maintenance organizations, which demand deep discounts in prescription prices.

Kodak-Danka deal

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Eastman Kodak Co. is turning over sales, service and distribution of its high-volume copiers and printers to London-based Danka Business Systems PLC for about $684 million.

The sale announced Monday will move Danka from a distant third in the copier-service industry to second place with Alco Standard Corp., but it will still remain far behind industry leader Xerox Corp.

Since January, Kodak has been trying to find a strategic ally or dispose of its $1.8 billion copier division because of several years of losses and stiff competition from Xerox.

Likelihood of interest hike increases

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The likelihood that the Federal Reserve will increase interest rates has jumped dramatically following a steep decline in the unemployment rate, in the view of many top economists.

That position was bolstered by comments from Fed Governor Laurence Meyer, who pointed to Friday's unemployment report and various other statistics that showed the economy has developed "considerable momentum."

"We are in a circumstance in which a prudent central bank must exercise heightened surveillance of the inflationary risks and stand ready to respond if necessary," Meyer told the National Association of Business Economists in Boston on Sunday night.

Meanwhile, a prominent group of economists known as the Shadow Open Market Committee that closely monitors Fed policy said Monday that the Fed should move to tighten credit conditions. The members said the action was likely to occur at the central bank's next meeting in two weeks.

"We believe it is appropriate now to take a slight pre-emptive tightening action," said Allan Meltzer, head of the group and a professor at Carnegie Mellon University.

Other private economists said they believed central bank policymakers themselves were preparing, financial markets for a rate increase, the first such move since February 1995.

In addition to Meyer's remarks, they said a number of Fed governors and regional bank presidents who serve on the 12-member Federal Open Market Committee, the group that sets interest rate policy, have spoken about the need for increased vigilance given the economy's surprising strength in recent months.

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan, delivering the Fed's midyear economic report to Congress in July, pledged that the central bank would move quickly to increase interest rates "should the weight of incoming evidence persuasively suggest an oncoming intensification of inflation pressures."

While Fed officials passed up opportunities to raise interest rates at their July and August meetings, believing the economy was beginning to slow, a string of reports since then have called that view into question. Factory orders and housing sales took unexpectedly big jumps in recent reports and then Friday's report showed unemployment dropping in August to its lowest level in seven years, 5.1 percent, down from 5.4 percent in July.

"I think the unemployment report is the straw that breaks the camel's back," said David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. in New York. "We have reached the point where we are likely to see accelerating wage and price pressures and that is what Meyer was hitting at in his remarks."

Stocks soar in upbeat session

■ Optimism rises that inflation, interest rates will stay moderate.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average jumped back near record levels Monday as part of a broad advance amid mounting optimism that inflation and interest rates aren't poised to soar.

The Dow industrials rose 73.98 to 5,733.84, moving within 50 points, or less 1 percent, of the all-time high at 5,778.00, set May 22. It was the biggest point-gain for the blue-chip barometer since early August.

Broader measures posted strong gains as well, with investors continuing to favor blue-chip and other large-company shares over more speculative issues. But analysts said the market's advance was exaggerated by the day's slim trading levels.

"The volume wasn't a blowout like the move in the Dow would tend to suggest," said A. Marshall Acuff Jr., market strategist at Smith Barney. He noted that Friday's surprising strong rally might have been expected to draw some early profit-taking on Monday. "The market didn't sell off and people took heart from that. If you're going to have a couple of good weeks, nobody wants to miss it."

Investors also were cheered on Monday by the bond market's continuing resilience against the recent stream of inflationary signals such as those contained in Friday's report on August payroll and wage levels.

Although the report reinforced the upward trend in production costs, the data fell within range of expectations. That has helped many observers conclude that the inflation-wary Federal Reserve may move to slow the economy by increasing its lending rates, but not aggressively enough to choke off corporate profits.

Bonds started the day almost unchanged, but started rallying by late morning. Stocks rose with bonds as the yield on the 30-year Treasury — a key determinant of corporate and consumer borrowing costs — fell to about 7.06 percent, down from late Friday's 7.10 percent.

"The fears about rising interest rates have somewhat waned. That's adding stability to the market," said Hildegard Zagorski, a market analyst at Prudential Securities. "The consensus is that the Fed will raise rates, but that's already factored into the market."

Higher inflation makes existing fixed-income investments such as bonds less valuable, forcing down prices to increase their yield. Higher interest rates can hurt stocks by slowing consumer spending and raising corporate operating costs.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by nearly a 9-to-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume totaled 310.88 million shares, down from Friday's level.

The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 8.08 to 663.76, and the NYSE's composite index rose 3.61 to 356.28.

The Nasdaq composite index rose 9.32 to 1,148.71, and the American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 1.94 to 561.96.

Banking leaders gather for the introduction of the Integrion Financial Network in New York Monday. Fifteen of North America's leading banks and IBM announced the formation of the network, which will offer a broad range of interactive banking and electronic commerce services to banks in the U.S. and Canada. From left are John Cleghorn, chairman and chief executive of the Royal Bank of Canada; James Dixon, CIO of NationsBank Corp.; Robert Gillespie, president and chief executive of KeyCorp; John McCoy, chairman and chief executive of BancOne Corp.; Louis Gerstner Jr., chairman and chief executive of IBM and Charles Rice, chairman and chief executive of Barnett Banks.

IBM, banks form on-line banking consortium

N.Y. Times News Service

New York — International Business Machines Corp. and 15 big banks launched a home-banking service, hoping to fend off rival services from Microsoft Corp. and other software firms.

The network, called Integrion Financial Network, is the most aggressive move yet by banks into allowing customers to bank from home by computer, after experimenting for years with systems that offer limited services or rely on outside firms for technology. Beginning next year, NationsBank Corp., KeyCorp, Banc One Corp., First Chicago Corp. Royal Bank of Canada and other banks that own the Integrion venture will offer customers account information, bill-paying and other services. The banks will reach their customers by setting up their own online home page, via the Internet or tied into a worldwide network operated by IBM.

"The promise of offering customers the true benefits and convenience of home banking has held allure for more than a decade, and today we finally deliver on it," said Charles Rice, chief executive of Jacksonville, Florida-based Barnett Banks Inc., one of the members of Integrion.

Banks are trying to counter Microsoft, Intuit Inc. and other software firms that have signed up thousands of consumers to home-banking services. These services generate lucrative fees which banks would like to collect themselves — providing personal finance software, paying bills, transferring funds and allowing account access for customers. Roughly 1 million U.S. households pay these fees, averaging $5 to $10 a month, to bank online.

The IBM service counters an even bigger threat — that nonbank competitors will lure away computer-savvy customers with their own banking services.

"If we be dinosaurs as some have suggested, we are today putting our competitors on notice that a new breed has evolved," said Robert Gillespie, chief executive of Integrion member KeyCorp.

Even so, Integrion won't allow access to mutual fund companies, brokerages and other non-bank financial services where consumers park a good chunk of their savings, said David Weisman, a banking specialist at Forrester Research in Boston.

IBM Chairman Louis Gerstner Jr. said the Integrion service goes beyond banking, since airlines, retailers and other service providers will be able to tap into the network to peddle their wares online to bank customers. Though a myriad of services can now be had via home pages on the Internet, Integrion will be the most advanced vehicle yet to sell to tens of millions of consumers in a secure manner, Gerstner said. The new venture's security system using special firewalls and encryption has been developed internally by IBM and the banks.

The Integrion network will reach banks with 60 million consumers, or half the retail banking customers in the U.S. and Canada. Charlotte, North Carolina-based NationsBank and Banc One in Columbus, Ohio, will be the first to offer the service, beginning in early 1997.

Initially, consumers will be able to pay bills, transfer funds between accounts, balance their checkbooks and make inquiries to their bank via electronic mail.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Focus on merit of stock, not ups or downs in price

By Eric Tyson

Q: I bought 175 shares of Florida Power & Light nearly three years ago at about $28 per share. I own the preferred shares, and they've basically gone nowhere. I would like to get out without too much of a loss. Should I sell?

Tyson

A: A lot more goes into analyzing a stock than simply following its current price. I don't think you should base your decision to sell or hold on where the current stock price is in relation to the price you paid for the stock.

However, you do have the advantage of being able to deduct an investment loss on your tax return.

Human nature is to seek to minimize losses, but you should instead focus on the merits of the stock and types of investments you'd like to invest in the future.

Whether buying, holding or selling, the individual stock investor must do a significant amount of research.

If you can't devote that much time on researching your company, then by all means sell your shares and invest in stock mutual funds. If you choose efficiently managed funds, you can actually hire professional investment managers to manage your money at a lower cost than what it would cost you to do so yourself. And, you have the added bonus of not having to research and keep up with the trials and tribulations of individual companies.

You should be keeping up with the company's financial situation and business environment. The Value Line Investment Survey is a solid publication, found at most public libraries, that provides single-page summaries of most individual stocks.

You also can order a 10-week trial to Value Line for $63 by calling (800) 634-3583.

Q: I am heavily invested in Long Island Lighting. I am concerned about its future prospects. We need the high dividends to keep us comfortable but would like to know what we should do with this investment.

A: You need to consider how much time and attention you want to devote to your investments.

You should be careful not to invest too much of your money in one company. I'd recommend that you invest no more than 20 percent in any one company, and that much only for a stock you really like.

Check out the Value Line report for your stock. Read the section that describes the business that the company is in, and make sure you generally understand it. With utilities, pay close attention to the discussion of market competition, as more and more utilities are being subjected to competition.

Look at the company's current price-earnings ratio and its historic P-E during the past decade. Watch out for an above-historic-average P-E; that's usually a sign that the stock is overpriced.

Check out the company's revenues and earnings growth during the past 10 years as well as Value Line's projections for the next five years. While projections can be highly unreliable, Value Line has one of the best track records among investing reference publications.

Value Line also assigns an overall rating to a stock, and those ratings have a pretty good track record as well.

Compare the company's current assets to its current liabilities. A warning sign is if liabilities exceed or are approaching assets.

STORM TRACKER FACTS

While the cooler temperatures in the morning start to tell us that autumn is not far off, the 90 degree temperatures in the afternoon remind us that summer is still here. A strong ridge of high pressure is in control of the weather and that means warm afternoon temperatures and dry conditions. No real changes in the forecast for the next few days. So, weather for the Permian Basin Fair looks OK through Friday.

Win turns Cowboy mood around

■ Dallas team all smiles after righting opening-day shipwreck.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith had big smiles. Nate Newton was telling jokes. Charles Haley actually spoke to somebody.

Peace returned to Valley Ranch on Monday, at least for another week. The Dallas Cowboys showed they still have the capability of a vigorous Super Bowl defense despite the absence of Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek.

"Our goal is to go to the Super Bowl, and that's still realistic," an affable Aikman said on Monday. "We've had three Super Bowl teams in the last four years and a lot of things had to fall in place for it to happen. We are still a very good team, and the chemistry is good."

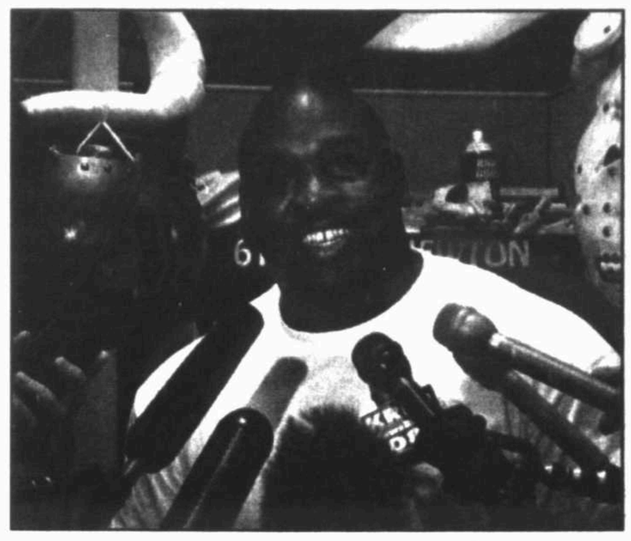

Aikman threw three touchdown passes in a 27-0 dissection of the New York Giants, who could gain only 93 yards against the Dallas defense, 38 of them passing.

The win came six days after the Cowboys played as poorly as they could play in a 22-6 debacle in Chicago.

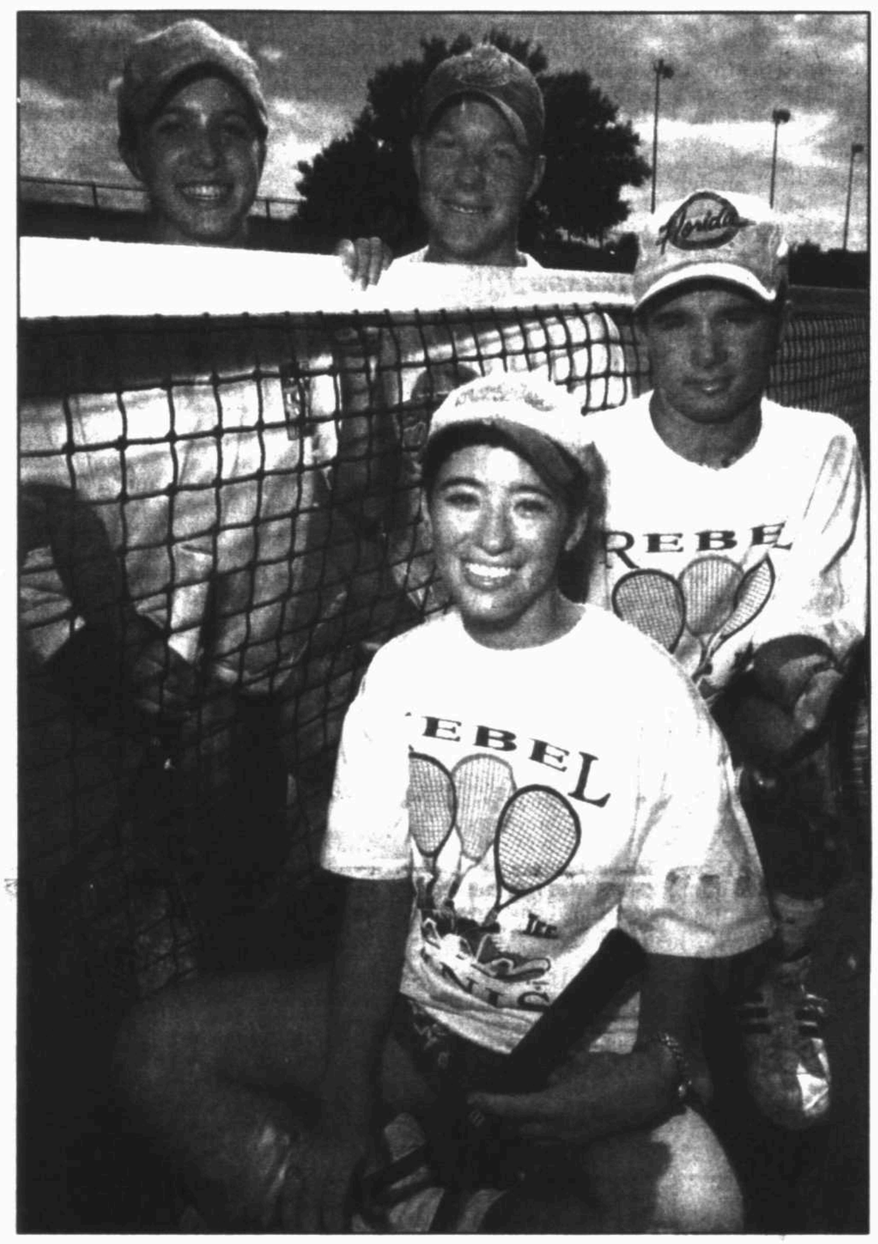

"We needed a game like this after what happened to us in Chicago, where nothing went right," Aikman said. "There is still a lot of room for this team to grow, but we didn't surprise ourselves against the Giants. We know this is the kind of performance were are capable of."

Aikman cited several reasons for the Cowboys' fast six-day revival, including a solid defense, good blocking and the

Lee's tall order: stop MHS, 6-7 No. 1 boy

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

It's not a slam dunk contest. And tennis has no jump balls. For that, Midland Lee can be thankful.

When Lee and Midland High face off to begin their District 4-5A team tennis season today at 4 p.m. at the Lee courts, the most intriguing match by far will be between Lee's No. 1 boys singles player, senior Conner Austin, and Midland High's No. 1 boy, Jan Vanco.

Vanco stands 6-foot-7 and has a college level serve. He could be the cog that drives MHS to a team tennis state championship. Austin is closer to five feet than six. He leads a Lee team that coach Steve Buck calls his best in years.

The two present a study in contrasts. Vanco uses his big frame to rocket service aces and Austin uses his quickness to chase down returns.

"From what I understand MHS has probably the best player in the state in that foreign exchange student," Buck said of Vanco, a Slovakian. "That will be kind of interesting because Conner is so small. Conner is quite limited with his size but he'll sure make up for it with his speed."

Lee is 8-1 after finishing second in the El Paso Ysleta Tournament over the weekend. MHS, who Buck said "should be the best in the state" based on individual rankings, defeated state 15th-ranked Wichita Falls Rider 10-7 over the weekend. The Bulldogs were tied 7-7 with district foe Abilene Cooper, ranked No. 2, when the match was suspended by bad weather.

Lee will pit No. 1 girls singles Deborah Ho against Midland High's Meryl McClung. The No. 2s are Nathan Lawrence and Laurie Haas of MHS and junior Wes Hunt and either Lili Vo or Stephanie Hofer of Lee.

But the focus will be on the No. 1 boys.

Among Midland High and Midland Lee's top tennis players are Meryl McClung and Spencer Ritchie of MHS (top) and Deborah Ho and Conner Austin of Lee.
Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

'From what I understand MHS has probably the best player in the state.'
— Steve Buck, Midland Lee tennis coach

"He's 6-foot-7 and he serves like a 6-7 player should," MHS coach Tom Heiting said of Vanco. "He's really an accomplished player. He's played tennis for 11 years and it really shows in how he thinks on the court and how he conducts a match.

"His game is based around his serve, but for a big guy he has excellent ground strokes. I'd say on a consistent basis that first serve is going in at at least 110 mph when he hits it."

Buck thinks Vanco could go a long way and take the MHS team with him. His presence means MHS has Lawrence, who began the year at No. 1 before Vanco's eligibility was cleared, and the rest of the top boys playing a notch lower. In effect the Bulldogs have a No. 1 playing at No. 2 and the same on down the lineup.

1996 the Year of the Home Run

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

Frank Thomas started the whole thing. Only a few pitches into the 1996 season, he hit the first March home run in history — off Randy Johnson, no less.

That got the ball rolling. Or flying, as it turned out, in what quickly became the Year of the Home Run

Gary Sheffield made it official Sunday when he hit the 4,459th homer of the major league season, breaking the mark set in 1987. In the rush of home run records to fall, his drive in Florida off Montreal's Pedro Martinez became the latest highlight.

No telling the reason for the onslaught, either. Could be smaller parks, maybe it's poor pitching or it might be a juiced ball.

"Obviously, there's a lot of offense this year and a lot of home runs," said Mike Piazza, who hit homer No. 4,458 about 20 minutes before Sheffield connected. "I can't put any particular

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Red Raiders have relied almost solely on the running game for their first two games. Yet Oklahoma State was powerless despite knowing exactly what was coming and who was delivering it.

Byron Hanspard gave the nation another name to consider for postseason awards glory with 272 yards and two touchdowns in Tech's 31-3 victory at Texas Stadium.

The performance was more than enough to earn the tailback Big 12 player of the week honors and accolades from coast to coast as highlights of his 72-yard first quarter scoring dash dominated the airwaves.

Win or lose, Cowboys elicit extreme reactions

Doreen

Oh boy, the Cowboys won a game. You know what that means ... Super Bowl reservations must now be made. Sound ridiculous? You bet it does. But jumping to conclusions by fans and the media seems to be the popular trend when following "America's Team."

Everyone was ready to the bury the Cowboys after what was a less-than-adequate performance (a loss) against the Bears. From Joe Theisman to those other football know-it-alls, they talked about why the Cowboys couldn't even beat Abell Blue.

The shame of the slander was that extraordinary performances were missed.

Deion Sanders' 100-plus plays on both sides of the ball were truly remarkable. "Prime Time" showed more than a glimpse of his ability and maybe proved why he is the most complete football player in the land.

Sanders does have 12 receptions this season. That is not bad for a guy thought of as the best cover man in football.

Emmitt Smith was also nothing short of the best running back in football. On that night, he probably didn't show it in terms of yards gained or touchdowns scored but in another way. The NFL rushing champion proceeded to lay out Bears defenders with blocking efforts not that common among the elite NFL backs.

No one talked about those things but just about what went wrong. Hey, I'm a Cowboy fan that thought the season opener was fun to watch, maybe sadistically so. For one game, the Super Bowl champions were close to looking mortal, and to see them struggle from time to time is as enjoyable as watching Sunday's dismantling of a Giant team.

The one bad thing about blowouts like Sunday's is that they bring false confidence to those that follow. And should another loss happen, heaven forbid, you will hear the Cowboys just are not the same.

Without Jay Novacek and Michael Irvin, that is true. But at least on Sunday the coaches and players were able to make the necessary changes needed to win. That was the key.

In a related note, the New York Giants gained just 105 total yards on Sunday. Word has it that the Texas A&M football team is now trying to get the Giants on its 1997 schedule. After a loss we will refer to as the "Provo Experiment," the Aggies now have powerhouses like Southwest Louisiana, North Texas and Louisiana Tech to look forward to.

Come on R.C. (Slocum, head coach of the A&M football team), are these even Division I teams? Unfortunately, they are. I believe that a tough non-conference schedule will help you in conference play and give the team more respectability in the polls, which the Aggies need right now. It also brings more respect to the conference.

I wonder if Slocum believes that? I would bet that because of his dismal record against top 25 teams that he doesn't.

Next year, A&M is scheduled to play Sam Houston State, Southwest Louisiana and North Texas. It doesn't get much better for Aggie fans until the year 2000 when A&M will crawl out of its shell and play Notre Dame and Clemson in non-conference action. Of course that year, A&M doesn't play Nebraska. Coincidence?

Those Aggies, who want to see Southwest Louisiana this weekend, can see it on Pay-Per-View. I, a graduate of A&M, think that last Friday's Mike Tyson fight will end up being a better buy.

One last thing. Is that the delightful scent of national title hopes coming up from Aggieland or the piercing smell of a spoiled program led by a coach whose expiration date has long since passed?

Hump it Ags, Whoop.

Rangers pad lead to eight

Associated Press

TORONTO — The Texas Rangers matched the biggest lead in team history, extending their edge in the AL West to eight games Monday night with a 4-3 win over the Toronto Blue Jays.

■ AL Roundup

Mickey Tettleton's go-ahead double in the sixth inning sent the Rangers to their fourth straight victory. Texas, the only team in the league that has never made the playoffs, also led by eight games over Seattle on Aug. 25.

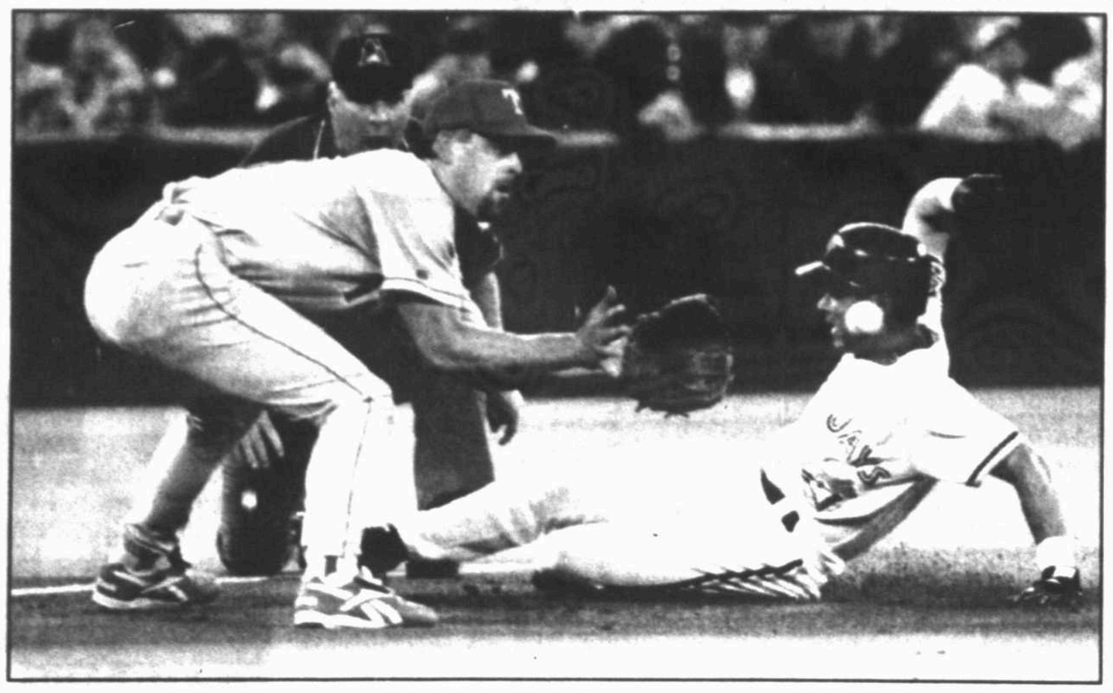

Texas overcame a 3-0 deficit against Pat Hentgen (17-9), who pitched his major league-leading 10th complete game. Hentgen struck out 10, but the Rangers still beat Toronto for the seventh straight time this season.

Kevin Gross (11-8) relieved Texas starter Roger Pavlik with two outs and the bases loaded in the fifth. Gross struck out Alex Gonzalez, who earlier ended his 0-for-33 slump with a home run.

Will Clark led off the Rangers sixth with a single. After Juan Gonzalez looked at a strike three, Tettleton doubled to right-center for a 4-3 lead.

Gross allowed one hit and struck out four in 2 1-3 innings. Mike Henneman pitched the ninth for his 29th save.

Hentgen lost for just the third time in his last 13 starts. He gave up seven hits.

AP Laserphoto

Toronto's Jay Tomas Perez slides into third base with a triple against Texas Ranger third baseman Dean Palmer Monday in Toronto in the Rangers' 4-3 win.

Hentgen was perfect through four innings before Gonzalez, Tettleton and Dean Palmer started fifth with singles. One out later, Mark McLemore hit a two-run single and Darryl Hamilton's RBI single tied it at 3.

Notes: The Blue Jays are 9-2 in their last 11 road games, but 4-12 in their last 16 home games. ... Hentgen pitched in his 150th career game Monday night. ... Texas is 41-19 against AL East teams. ... Texas is 9-1 against the Blue Jays, matching its mark for most wins in a season vs. Toronto. Texas also won nine games against the Blue Jays last season. ... Kevin Elster of the Rangers was hitless in three at-bats, leaving him in an 0-for-23 slump.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles gained ground in both the AL East and the wild-card race, rallying from a four-run deficit to beat Detroit.

Todd Zeile marked his 31st birthday with a three-run homer as the Orioles moved within 2 1/2 games of the idle New York Yankees in the AL East, the closest they've been since June 20.

Baltimore's 27th win in 42 games also cut idle Chicago's wild-card lead to a half-game. The teams are even in the loss column, and the White Sox begin a three-game series at Camden Yards on Tuesday night.

Indians 4, Angels 3

CLEVELAND — Cleveland scored two runs on Albert Belle's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning to beat California.

With the bases loaded and one out, Belle drilled a shot to right-center, where Jim Edmonds made a diving catch. Jose Vizcaino tagged up from third and scored, and Kenny Lofton also scored all the way from second base when second baseman Robert Eenhoorn's relay throw bounced in the dirt for an error.

Brewers 6, Red Sox 0

BOSTON — Scott Karl pitched a six-hitter for his first major league shutout and Milwaukee hurt Boston's wild-card chances.

The Red Sox had won 26 of 35 games before two weekend losses at Chicago. Their third straight loss dropped them five games behind the White Sox, who lead the AL wild-card race. Boston has just 18 games left.

Milwaukee led 2-0 against Tom Gordon (10-8) before scoring four runs in the eighth on Matt Mieske's 14th homer of the season and John Jaha's 29th.

Permian, North Mesquite will play as No.1, No. 2

DALLAS (AP) — North Mesquite vs. Odessa Permian, the matchup high school football fans have looked forward to all summer, officially will be a game between the state's two highest-ranked Class 5A teams.

The Stallions retained their No. 1 spot and the Panthers remained No. 2 when the first regular-season Associated Press high school football poll was released Monday.

Around 20,000 fans are expected to cram into Mesquite Memorial Stadium on Friday night for the first 1-2 game in 5A since Aldine MacArthur and Willowridge opened the 1994 season against each other.

"This matchup is going to be great," North Mesquite coach Mark Elam said. "It's really going to be a fun game to coach in, play in or watch."

Neither team was really in jeopardy of moving in the poll after the way they opened the season last Friday night.

North Mesquite ran up 376 yards of offense and the defense was just as impressive in a 45-7 victory over Arlington. Using a similar strategy, Permian had three running backs each gain 100 yards and also had great defense in a 36-7 victory over El Paso Irvin.

The biggest change in the poll was atop 1A, where Windthorst eked past Granger to swap the top two spots.

Granger lost the No. 1 spot because it only beat Lexington 30-26, while Windthorst stepped up behind the strength of a 46-12 victory over Lindsay.

Elsewhere, defending 5A Division II runner-up Flower Mound Marcus moved into the poll at No. 10 in place of San Antonio Marshall, a tie by Stephenville dropped it from second to eighth in 4A, Cuero dipped to seventh in 3A following a 28-14 loss to 4A's now-No. 4 Corpus Christi Calallen, and Arp and Elysian Fields fell out of the 2A rankings following losses.

Obviously, there could be a big change in 5A next week depending on how things shake out in Mesquite this weekend.

While the teams may be similar on the field, they couldn't be more different off it.

Permian is the definitive perennial power. The Panthers were last year's Division I runners-up, won a state title in 1991 and are among the AP's top 10 for the 146th week since 1981.

The lore surrounding their program was enough to draw H.G. Bissinger from Philadelphia to West Texas to write "Friday Night Lights," which became a national best-seller and soon will be a movie directed by Ron Howard.

North Mesquite, meanwhile, was winless six years ago. The Stallions had never been ranked by the AP before this preseason.

When Elam took over, the program was so thin he had no choice but to send most of his players both ways.

Now, when he chooses to use a guy on offense and defense it's because he believes "it doesn't make sense to leave one of your best athletes on the bench."

Late-inning rally pushes Colorado past Houston, 4-2

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Quinton McCracken's two-run triple keyed a three-run rally in the seventh inning Monday night that led the Colorado Rockies over the Houston Astros 4-2.

■ NL Roundup

The Astros began the day 1 1/2 games behind St. Louis, which played later in San Francisco, in the NL Central. The Rockies were 6 1/2 games back in the wild-card race.

Kevin Ritz (15-10) extended his team record for wins in a season. He allowed two runs and walked none in six innings.

Bill Swift, making his first relief appearance since Oct. 2, 1992, replaced Ritz and pitched a perfect seventh. Bruce Ruffin worked the ninth for his 20th save.

The Rockies won for only the fifth time in their last 18 road games. They split the series at the Astrodome after losing the first two games.

Donne Wall (9-6) took a 2-1 lead into the seventh before Colorado chased him.

Pinch-hitter Eric Anthony walked with one out and Eric Young singled. McCracken tripled off the wall in left-center field, and John Hudek relieved Wall. Dante Bichette, who earlier hit two doubles, delivered an RBI single with two outs.

Sean Berry gave Houston a 2-1 lead in the sixth when he led off with his 15th home run of the season.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the third. Wall had an infield single, took third on Brian Hunter's double and scored on an errant throw by shortstop Walt Weiss.

Bichette doubled home Burks, who had singled and stolen second, in the sixth.

Notes: With his team having its troubles at the plate, Houston manager Terry Collins shook up his batting order. He moved Craig Biggio from second to third, shifting Jeff Bagwell from third to fourth and dropping Derek Bell from fourth to sixth. ... Biggio is in a 2-for-25 slump. ... Bichette is one home run and one stolen base short of becoming the first Colorado player to join the 30-30 club.

Cubs 3, Expos 1

CHICAGO — Kevin Foster pitched a six-hitter for his first career complete game as Chicago defeated Montreal.

Foster (7-3), who has won four of five starts since being recalled from the minors Aug. 20, walked none and struck out two. He lost his shutout when he gave up a homer to David Segui with one out in the ninth.

Jose Paniagua (2-3), coming off a two-hitter against San Francisco, gave up only five hits in seven innings. But his first-inning wildness cost him.

Paniagua walked leadoff batter Brian McRae and then hit Ozzie Timmons with a pitch before Mark Grace's infield hit loaded the bases. Luis Gonzalez then lofted a fly that left fielder Henry Rodriguez dropped, allowing McRae to score, but Rodriguez saved himself an error by forcing Timmons at third.

Mets 6, Marlins 1

NEW YORK — Jason Hardtke, who doubled twice off Greg Maddux in his major league debut a day earlier, drove in three runs with a pair of singles that led New York over the Florida.

Kevin Brown (15-11) had his five-game winning streak stopped. He leads the majors with a 2.00 ERA, but once again got little support from Florida hitters — the Marlins have scored only eight runs in his last six starts.

Lance Johnson became the first Mets player ever to get 200 hits in a season.

RECORD: Hanspard more versatile

(From 1B)

the best in this conference," OSU coach Bob Simmons said Monday, though he added that Hanspard's numbers would have been smaller "if we could tackle."

Tech offensive coordinator Rick Dykes doesn't proclaim to know who the best of the best is either. He said he does know, however, the difference between a great run and a blown defensive play.

"I keep hearing that, and yet he keeps putting those numbers on everybody," said Dykes, son of head coach Spike Dykes and the Dallas-area recruiter, who convinced Hanspard to move west for college.

Hanspard, a 6-foot, 190-pound junior from DeSoto, carried Tech's explosive offense last season. Tech's passing problems this year haven't reduced his output, even though everyone in Irving knew who was getting the ball on some plays.

The difference now is that Hanspard can hit any hole on the field, even where big defensive tackles roam.

"In high school, (outside runs) were all the plays I had to run," said Hanspard, an ordained minister who consistently deflects credit to his teammates and God, whom he has thanked for healing a tender right ankle last week. "I didn't have the plays to run inside."

Hanspard's development from a pure speed back to an all-around weapon has come since the middle of last season, said Dykes, who was the running backs coach until last year.

"I think he has that combination of learning how to set up a block, read blocks and still having that speed," Dykes said. "Plus, he's added about 10 pounds so he can run through some blocks he couldn't as a freshman."

Hanspard leaped above names such as Eric Dickerson, Tony Dorsett and Emmitt Smith with his 272 yards. None has had a better game at Texas Stadium, though each has called it home at one time or another.

Dickerson watched Hanspard break his stadium collegiate record of 241 yards, which he set at Southern Methodist in 1982. The former Mustang was part of the television announcing team.

Packers rout Philadelphia

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers rapper-receiver Robert Brooks followed his own advice one week after giving President Clinton his debut CD titled "Jump Into The Stands."

Brooks caught five passes for 130 yards and two touchdowns as the Packers routed the dazed and outmatched Philadelphia Eagles 39-13 in the first Monday Night Football game at Lambeau Field in 10 years.

Brooks vaulted himself into the end zone seats packed with delirious denizens decked in green and gold after TD receptions of 25 and 20 yards from Brett Favre, who overcame a rough start to throw three touchdowns.

Dorsey Levens even got into the act, doing his version of the Lambeau Leap after a 1-yard touchdown run in the second quarter.

A Lambeau Field record crowd of 60,666 watched their Packers go 2-0 for the first time since the strike-shortened 1982 season, when they won their first three. Philadelphia fell to 1-1.

Brooks had four catches for 116 yards in the first half as the Packers built an astonishing 30-7 lead at halftime against an Eagles team that thinks it can unseat Dallas as ruler of the NFC East.

Edgar Bennett gained 93 yards on 17 carries and also scored on a 25-yard reception when he grabbed Favre's pass in the flat and rumbled his way into the end zone for a 37-7 lead with six minutes left in the third period.

The blowout capped an exhilarating week in Green Bay, which began with President Clinton visiting the Packers at Lambeau Field on Labor Day.

In two weeks, Favre, who was 17-of-31 for 261 yards, has seven touchdowns and no interceptions as the Packers have outscored their opponents 73-16.

But it was the Packers' defense that really spoiled the return of Philadelphia coach Ray Rhodes, who served as defensive coordinator in Green Bay from 1992-93.

The Packers, who had just 16 takeaways last season, already have 10, including four in the first half Monday night that Green Bay converted into 13 points.

Former Eagles defensive end Reggie White and Santana Dotson dropped Rodney Peete in the end zone for a safety with 11:06 left. Peete completed 10 of 25 passes for 142 yards, no touchdowns and three interceptions.

Charlie Garner's 1-yard TD run with 30 seconds left made it 37-13.

The Eagles trailed 23-0 with six minutes left in the first half and were facing third-and-17 from their own 19 when they put together their only good drive.

Green Bay Packers' safety LeRoy Butler tackles Eagle receiver Mark Seay Monday in Green Bay.

After finding rookie tight end Jason Dunn for 18 yards, Peete hit Chris T. Jones over the middle, and he pitched to wide receiver Irving Fryar at the Green Bay 33 as he was being brought down by LeRoy Butler.

Jones was finally caught by linebacker Brian Williams at the 1, and Ricky Watters ran it in from there, pulling the Eagles to 23-7.

If Johnson had stayed, Cowboys may be gunning for 5th straight NFL title

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

■ NFL Trend

When Jimmy Johnson took over in Miami, he fired 24 of Don Shula's high-priced Dolphins and added 24 of his own, many of them no-names. Two games into the season, he's 2-0 and has outscored the opposition 62-20.

OK, so the opposition was just the Patriots and the Cards.

Nonetheless, Johnson's success demonstrates one thing — if he and Jerry Jones hadn't had the decade's loudest clash of egos, the Cowboys already would have won four straight Super Bowls and be heading for five.

The Cowboys have managed to stay on top because of their stars — Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, the suspended Michael Irvin and Deion Sanders.

But their depth keeps dwindling, in part because they've lost 22 of their supporting cast to free agency over three years; and in part because the three drafts since Johnson left have produced one quality player, guard Larry Allen, and he was drafted only at the insistence of Hudson Houck, the respected offensive line coach.

Jimmy's draft in Miami this year has produced a half-dozen instant contributors — defensive lineman Daryl Gardener; running backs Karim Abdul-Jabbar, Stanley Pritchett and Jerris McPhail; safety Shawn Wooden and, most of all, linebacker Zach Thomas, a fifth-round draft choice, who in two weeks has 30 tackles.

Only one shortfall to Thomas: "My middle linebacker always leads my teams in tackles," he said in 1991 after letting go of Jack Del Rio, the same guy he cut to give Thomas the job.

Although Jones took credit for some of Johnson's great low-round Dallas picks (Leon Lett, Erik Williams, Dixon Edwards, Larry Brown, Darrin Smith), he probably can't figure out a way to claim the Miami group.

In other words, Jimmy knows personnel and Jerry knows business.

Personnel wins Super Bowls; two players had clinched spots on the team, Dan Marino and a rookie free-agent linebacker named Larry Izzo. "Call your folks and tell 'em you made the Dolphins," he told Izzo.

Marino, of course, pays off every week.

Izzo paid off Sunday night, blocking a punt that set up Miami's first touchdown in the 38-10 win in Arizona.

Jimmy loves those special teamers.

EARLY OMEN ... The contenders in the AFC East — Miami, Buffalo and Indianapolis — may have an early edge in the race for conference wild-card spots.

Why?

Because the AFC East plays the NFC East, which aside from Dallas might be the NFL's weakest division. So far this season, the Bills have beaten the Giants and the Colts and Dolphins have beaten the Cards, the "3" in the AFC's 3-1 edge over the NFC.

CELEBRATING WHAT? ... There was Keyshawn Johnson, scoring his first NFL touchdown on an 11-yard reception with 31 seconds left in the first half of the Jets-Colts game to cut Indianapolis' lead to 14-7 at halftime.

There was Keyshawn Johnson taking off his helmet in celebration and spiking it while some of his teammates raced off the bench to mob him in celebration.

And there was Keyshawn Johnson, smiling and laughing on the bench at the end of a 21-7 loss.

"It was fun," he said of the TD. "I honestly thought it got us going. I thought we were definitely right there, felt that the energy we all talked about all week long would motivate us."

Huh?

The drive on which Johnson caught the TD pass was mainly the work of Wayne Chrebet, an undrafted free agent from Hofstra, who caught seven passes for 93 yards. Johnson, the No. 1 overall pick from USC, caught five for 53.

But after all, who has more endorsement contracts? Keyshawn or Wayne?

SMILES: Aikman praises Dallas defense

(From 1B)

appearance of a true pass-catching tight end in the lineup.

"It really helped us to have Eric Bjornson play like he did," Aikman said. "With him in the game, we can keep DJ (Daryl Johnston) at fullback. Eric keeps teams honest when he is in the game."

Novacek has a bad back and isn't certain when he can play. Bjornson, whose practice had been limited by hamstring problems, caught four passes for 41 yards going up the middle against the Giants' deep zone defense.

Aikman also praised the defense, saying "they gave us the opportunity to win. They were dominant. Before the injuries to Mike and Jay, I thought we had a chance to be a better team than a year ago, and one of the reasons was our defense was much better. Having a healthy Kevin Smith back at cornerback is a big, big thing."

Smith, who was lost for the year with an Achilles tendon tear in the opener last year against the Giants, intercepted his second pass in as many games.

"It's great having him and Deion (Sanders) at cornerback," Aikman said. "The defense really looks good."

The Cowboys came out of the game without any damaging injuries.

Smith, who was injured in the Chicago game, bounced back with a productive day, rushing for 94 yards on 25 carries and catching three passes of 12 yards, including a reception for a touchdown.

"I feel pretty good today," Smith said. "I took some hard hits out there and survived them."

Newton was proud of the way the Dallas offensive line blocked.

"We had a good day," Newton said. "I don't want to get too excited, though. I really want to look as sad as possible so nobody will think the Cowboys are feeling good about their success. We don't want to act cocky because it might ruin our image."

The Cowboys meet the undefeated Indianapolis Colts on Sunday in Texas Stadium. Dallas was an early 9-point favorite, in part because the Colts had eight starters injured in a 21-7 victory over the New York Jets.

Tinney tied at top of WTGA list

TYLER — Midland's Liz Tinney tied for the top qualifying spot Monday at the Women's Texas Golf Association Amateur Championships being held at Willowbrook Country Club.

Tinney shot a 76 to tie Carolyn Creekmore of Dallas. Tinney, the Midland City Champion in 1994 and Ranchland Country Club member, tied or defeated all three members of the Ladies Amateur Golf Association picked this week to the Team Cup event.

Kents drive in Denver

DENVER — The Midland husband and wife team of Bill and Terri Kent recently drove at the Denver Divisional Winston Drag Racing Series event.

Bill, driver of the Competition Eliminator Dragster, qualified second out of 30 cars in his class and set a national record at 7.695 on an 8.29 index. Bill won two rounds before falling to eventual winner Tom Snyder in the third round.

Terri, driver of the Super Competition Dragster, was not as lucky. She won her first round with a 9.462 on a 9.460 index and then had a bye in the second round. But she had a foul start in the third round and was disqualified.

The team, owners of Team Kent Motorsports, will compete this weekend in the Memphis, Tenn. Divisional Winston Drag Racing Series.

Lemieux to play at least 1 season

CANONSBURG, Pa. — The sigh of relief was audible from the Pittsburgh Penguins' training complex all the way to Civic Arena. Mario Lemieux is back for at least one more season.

Lemieux said Monday he is healthy and motivated enough to play, and is convinced the Penguins can challenge again for the Stanley Cup.

Lemieux, who will be 31 next month, returned from a one-year health sabbatical to win his fifth NHL scoring title and lead the Penguins within one victory of the Stanley Cup finals last spring.

TALL: Lee has 8-1 mark in pre-district

(From 1B)

"When MHS has a kid like that playing No. 1 that just moves everybody else down," Buck said. "It's hard to imagine how strong they are. This state's been won by a lot weaker teams that that."

After Lawrence, MHS' next two boys are Matt Gray and Spencer Ritchie.

"I do think our chances are good this year in district," Heiting said. "I think the guys' side of the team shouldn't lose too many matches this year. I've got 23 state-ranked kids. You can go down to the No. 16 on the guys' side and that player is still ranked."

Midland High's next two girls are Sonia Valdez and Marci Holland. Lee's young team includes No. 3 boy Brian Breithaupt, a sophomore, and No. 4 boy Trent Broach, a freshman. Three sophomores and one freshman are among the top seven players.

"We've got a pretty good, balanced team with good depth," Buck said. "We could easily have a tie in district and I don't think we'll be that far off chasing all of them."

In the loss to Hanks, Lee was trailing 9-8 and had a match point before falling. Buck says Austin and Ho have college aspirations.

"I don't believe Conner's lost a match and Deborah just has one loss," Buck said. "They're great kids and both recruited heavily."
