Senator's Death May Mean End Of Court Bill

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 14—The sudden death of Democratic Leader Robinson upset today the administration drive to enact a substitute for the Roosevelt court bill.

The Arkansas senator not only was directing the drive to push the compromise measure through the senate but was the principal author of the substitute.

He had been given a free hand by President Roosevelt to negotiate a bill the senate would pass.

The immediate effect of Robinson's death was to interrupt the furious debate which has been proceeding in the senate for more than a week. What the ultimate effect might be, no one was willing to forecast immediately.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), after expressing regret at the "untimely passing" of a "political and personal friend" predicted the court controversy might be exterminated speedily as a result of the leader's death.

"I beseech the president to drop this court fight lest he appear to fight against God."

The last part of the remark of the opposition leader to the court reorganization bill was a quotation from the Old Testament.

"If it had not been for this court fight," Wheeler continued, "Joe Robinson would be alive today."

There were others in the senate who could step into the leadership in Robinson's place, but there were few who had the personal following and could muster the loyal support of the Democratic membership of the senate to quite the same extent.

Even under Robinson's leadership the line-up was so close that enactment of the compromise measure was definitely endangered at the time he died.

Claim Small Margin

Even friends of the measure only claimed a margin of two or three votes over the required majority.

All three of the Democrats most prominently mentioned to succeed Robinson as senate leader—Senators Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of South Carolina and Barkley of Kentucky—have come out for the court measure but none of them participated in its drafting or has been in very close contact with the negotiations to rally support for it.

Speculation Arises

Speculation arose in some quarters that President Roosevelt might withdraw his demand for the legislation and contend himself, perhaps, with a constitutional amendment for compulsory retirement of judges. Administration spokesmen gave no hint, however, of the course to be followed.

Robinson's death came within a few hours of another major blow to the court bill—a vigorous declaration of opposition from Representative Sumners (D-Tex), chairman of the powerful house judiciary committee.

Sumners, veteran chairman of the house judiciary committee, surprised his colleagues late yesterday by an impassioned plea that the senate abandon "what I think is an unnecessary piece of legislation."

Retirements Expected

There will be additional retirements from the supreme court, he predicted, "when we take the lash off the judges."

He indicated his committee would do its utmost to keep the bill from reaching a vote in the house.

Supporters of the measure, however, promptly discussed getting up a petition to discharge Sumners' group from further jurisdiction. Signatures of 218 of the 435 members would be needed.

At the same time, the administration picked up a vote in the closely divided senate. Senator Murray (D-Mont) joined those pub-

The project is a new one, involving grading, drainage and caliche base on highway 84 from Brownfield to west county line, a distance of 16 miles. Work to start about July 25, will require about six months for completion, and will give employment to 91 men.

The Terry county project was described by officials here as one of the most important in the entire Lubbock district. At th present time, work is being completed from Brownfield on the same highway to the east country line a distance of 11 miles. There it connects with a project extending from a point west of Tahoka in Lynn county to the Terry county line, a distance of 18 miles.

Officials here said today they had just been advised that the state highway department has let contract and will start asphalt topping of the 11-mile project in the near future, while contract for similar work on the Lynn county unit probably will be let late in September.

FLIERS SHORT OF GOAL

Carlsbad Caverns' Bats Happy As They Battle Grasshoppers

(By The Associated Press)

CARLSBAD, N. M., July 14—Overweight bats of Carlsbad caverns warred happily today on crop-ruining grasshopper hordes in southeastern New Mexico.

Colonel Thomas Boles, superintendent of Carlsbad caverns national park, was confident his bats would vanquish the invaders.

"Give them time," he said, "and they will get rid of them all."

The activity of the cave dwellers was discovered by park rangers who noticed the bats were fatter than usual. Dissection of several showed their stomachs well filled with what appeared to be remnants of grasshoppers.

The bats fly from the mouth of the caverns at dusk each day over a radius of several hundred miles foraging for insects. Colonel Boles said it had been estimated that eleven tons of insects were consumed each evening by the bats.

Northeastern New Mexico's grasshopper scourge recurred with new intensity today. Motorists reported flights so heavy that vision was obscured. The movement—in its 36th hour—continued unbroken in the general direction of the feeding grounds of the bats.

"The grasshoppers are conducting a trench warfare against our farmers," the park superintendent declared. "But I believe the aerial attack of the bats will rout the enemy."

Japs' Military Forces Are Mobilized Today

(By The Associated Press)

TOKYO, July 14.—All the military forces of Japan were being mobilized in feverish haste today after the government rejected China's demand that Japan ease the present crisis by evacuating her troops from the battle area west of Peiping.

The mass movements of Japanese reinforcements bound for the conflict continued unabated.

Previous to the government's rejection of China's demand a spokesman said that Japan unalterably opposed any foreign intervention to settle the increasingly tense crisis in Sino-Japanese affairs. The foreign office spokesman said the government would consider suggestions of international consultation but any proposal that partook of the nature of intervention certainly would be unacceptable.

Fighting Between Opposition Forces Is Halted Today

PEIPING, July 14. (AP)—Fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops was halted this morning after a battle near Nanyuan airdrome, eight miles south of Peiping, had lasted until almost dawn. Shortly after the engagement ended, the gates of the ancient city were opened and rail service to Tientsin was resumed.

American travelers, including 150 army and navy officers and their families stationed in China, were on the first train to leave the city.

Rush Reinforcements

The Japanese high command utilized every available motor car in Tientsin, in addition to a supply of motor trucks recently brought from Manchoukuo, to rush 2,000 reinforcements to the Peiping battle area after the Chinese army had been victorious in yesterday's encounter.

At the same time, however, Japanese sources here announced their troops had evacuated the Wanpinghsien village area near the Marco Polo bridge where the first clash occurred.

The Japanese sources described the withdrawal as "indicating a desire to effect a settlement." This latest development caused another lull in the tension but seemingly did not end the crisis.

Naval Search Nearing End

(By The Associated Press)

HONOLULU, July 14—Naval authorities directing a vast aerial search along the equator for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, missing 12 days, reduced the number of searching planes today and indicated the hunt would be ended Saturday.

Fliers of the aircraft carrier Lexington awaited passing of a tropical storm today before resuming their "last chance" search for the aviatrix and Frederick J. Noonan, who disappeared on a flight from New Guinea to tiny Howland island.

Storm Halts Hunt

The storm forced cancellation of an afternoon flight yesterday after 60 planes had fruitlessly scanned 21,000 square miles of the South Pacific during the forenoon.

"Somewhere" in the 265,000 square miles encompassed by the greatest search the navy ever has attempted, the pair were forced down, out of fuel, after missing the small coral islet which lifts itself but two feet above the ocean.

Meanwhile the minesweeper Swan and the coast guard cutter Itasca were ordered to search six islands in the southeastern part of the Gilberts. The islands are the Arorai, Nukunau, Tamana, Onotoa, Peru, and Tapetuea.

Navy officials estimated the Swan and Itasca should reach their allotted search area tomorrow.

Daring Soviet Trio Down At San Jacinto

Huge Trans-Polar Plane Lands In Pasture This Morning; Gasoline Tank Has Leak

(By Staff Correspondent)

SAN JACINTO, Calif., July 14—The Russian transpolar airplane landed at 6:30 o'clock this morning in a pasture three miles west of this Riverside county mountain hamlet. The three fliers were safe.

The gasoline tank was leaking a stream of fuel when the big monoplane was brought down at a point 90 miles east of Los Angeles.

Aid Sent Fliers

Word was sent to March field, the army headquarters of the first wing G. H. Q. air force, and officers were immediately dispatched to the scene.

The plane was reported undamaged in the pasture landing.

The landing marked the longest air flight on record, a distance a little short of 8700 miles in a little over 62 hours flying time.

Heading For March Field

San Jacinto is nested in the eastern edge of the San Jacinto mountains, 25 miles from March field, which the fliers evidently were attempting to make.

The intrepid Russians were unable to talk to the country folk, but peace authorities immediately communicated with March field, and a cordon was established about the

No Typhoid At City Pool! But Summer Gossips At It Again

It is just an old summer custom in Lubbock.

Once more the rumor has been circulated that typhoid fever has been traced to the city swimming pool.

And once more city officials and all others having to do with operation of the pool deny in most emphatic terms that there is anything of truth to the rumors.

Further than that, K. N. Clapp, city parks board chairman, extended an invitation to anyone so desiring to satisfy themselves that the reports are wholly without faundation.

"If there is any place in Lubbock through which typhoid, or any other disease, is NOT being spread, then that place is the city swimming pool," he declared. Its thorough chlorination and the constant observation under which the water is kept, together with the fact that water is changed twice weekly, forbids the possibility of contamination, he added.

The fact that the rumors are somewhat more widespread and are of more extreme nature than

Heart Attack Is Fatal; Body Is Found In Home

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 14—Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic leader since 1922 and the president's chief senate adviser, died suddenly today in his capital apartment home.

Robinson's body was discovered at 8:15 a. m. (EST) by the family's negro maid, Mary Jasper.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said his death was due to heart disease.

Doctor George W. Calver, capitol physician said Robinson apparently had left his bed about midnight and had gone to the bathroom where he fell face downward.

Calver said Robinson, who was 64 years old, had suffered several heart attacks in recent months.

Cut Address Short

The physician said that when Robinson made the address which touched off fiery senate debate on the court issue he became very pale and apparently cut his address short.

"I did not see him at the time," Calver said, "but many who were there noticed he became very pale and apparently cut his speech short. Senator Copeland rushed to his side when he stopped speaking."

Tentative plans were made to send Robinson's body to Arkansas tomorrow evening.

Many Go To Home

As word of his death spread over the capitol, many of his colleagues went to the Robinson home.

The first to arrive were Senators Harrison (D-Miss) and Walsh (D-Mass).

"I am shocked beyond expression," Harrison said as he departed. "Senator Robinson's death was most tragic, coming, as it did, in the midst of one of his greatest fights and just before he was to be honored to a place on the supreme bench."

The Arkansas house delegation also called in a group at the Robinson apartment. Senator Hattie Caraway, Robinson's colleague from Arkansas, announced she would accompany the body home.

To Suspend Business

Both senate and house made plans to suspend business immediately after convening at noon out of respect to the dead leader.

The sudden death of the senate leader shocked the capital and threw the administration's legislative program into turmoil.

Robinson, Democratic leader since 1922, was personally in charge of the administration's two major legislative campaigns to enact President Roosevelt's bill to reorganize the courts and the executive departments. His colleagues generally had expected his appointment to the supreme court to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter.

Although Robinson's health had not been quite as good as in former yeayrs, his sudden death was a tremendous shock to his senatorial colleagues and all of official Washington.

Working Hard On Bill

The Democratic leader had been working with terrific energy during recent weeks in an effort to devise a compromise court bill for which he could obtain senate approval. The substitute measure now under debate was drafted under his direction.

He also had given close personal attention to the government reorganization program. Two or three weeks ago he personally introduced a compromise bill to carry out the chief executive's reorganization program and had called his committee to begin work on it today.

Some of the Arkansas senator's closest friends, however, had been disturbed by his physical condition.

Missed Several Days

He had missed several days from the senate during recent weeks due to the strain on his physique.

After attending a strategy conference with his chief lieutenants on the court bill yesterday morning, Robinson returned to his home instead of attending the senate session because he did not feel up to par. There was no indication, however, that his illness was serious.

Robinson's home, where he was found dead today, is directly across the capitol plaza from the senate wing of the capitol. He was temporarily living alone as Mrs. Robinson had gone home to Little Rock, Arkansas.

Speculation Is Aroused

The sudden death of Robinson gave rise immediately to speculation over his successor as Democratic leader. When talk of his possible appointment to the supreme court began, three major possibilities were mentioned for leader—Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, Harrison of Mississippi and Barkley of

Science Still Seeks Brain Fag Cause

AMES, Ia., July 14 (AP)—Have you ever felt "tired and dopey" after eating a heavy dinner?

The reason, says Earl C. McCracken, Iowa State college biophysicist, isn't because your blood rushes to your stomach after you've eaten.

"As a matter of fact," he explained, "the brain gets more blood than it ordinarily does for circulation is speeded up greatly following a meal."

He said scientists don't know just what causes the "brain fag" in spite of the fact physiologists for many years maintained it was caused by blood rushing to the stomach.

McCracken added that tests he conducted recently upon dogs showed conclusively "circulation to every part of the body is speeded up greatly during digestion."

If the photographer was asking Judy Canova to register disapproval for this picture, it's almost a cinch the scene won't have to be made over. The film also calls on Judy for a bubbling bathtub scene, but of course she doesn't have to wear the new hat in that.

New Route Is To Be Sought

DIMMITT, July 14.(Special)—Reorganization of Highway 51 association to seek a new paved highway from Dalhart to Brownfield was perfected at a meeting at which new officers were elected here Tuesday.

President for the association will be Glenn Burgess, manager of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, vice-presidents, County Judge A. R. Allison of Levelland and County Judge R. A. DeFee of Channing. T. A. Singer, owner of the telephone company at Dimmitt was selected as secretary-treasurer.

Guests Of Lions Club

Delegations from Dalhart, Channing, Hereford, Littlefield, and Levelland were guests of the Dimmitt Lions club at the invitation of Judge K. E. Turner of Dimmitt.

Due to other urgent business, delegates from Brownfield and Vega were unable to attend.

Reports from the various delegations were that the right of way for this highway was already obtained in Lamb, Castro and Deaf Smith counties. Hockley has easements for the right of way to the Terry county line and is working on the route north to the Lamb county line. Grading and drainage structures are practically complete in Deaf Smith and Castro counties with at least 15 miles in Lamb completed. Oldham and Hartley counties are waiting for definite locations from the state highway department. Terry county reports the right of way can be obtained when definite locations are made in that county.

Tentative Plans Made

The state highway department has made some tentative plans for this north-south highway. On December 22, 1936, the road was placed back on the state system. Some preliminary surveys have been made in practically all the counties concerned, but no final plans have been completed.

Highway No 51 will begin at the Oklahoma state line and run south to Dalhart, Channing, Vega, Hereford, Dimmitt, Littlefield, Levelland Brownfield. At Brownfield it will connect with the present Highway No 51 with a possibility of connecting Brownfield with Lamesa also. It was pointed out that this road would link together ten east-west routes, would carry much of the Colorado Tourist Traffic and much of the traffic from West Texas to El Paso that is now going to New Mexico.

This road will be approximately 200 miles in length and will be unusual in that only one major bridge will be needed. At old Tascosa, the only expensive structure will be needed. This bridge will connect Amarillo with Channing over a new route and will span the Canadian river at the most historical crossing in this part of the Southwest. It is the site of the Old Tascosa Trail, known to all the old settlers of the west and the modern historian. The plainsman will also encounter some beautiful scenery between Vega and the Canadian.

Olton Is Planning Rodeo Aug. 5-7

OLTON, July 14. (Special)—Olton is arranging details of a seventh annual stampede rodeo to be held Aug. 5-7, Curley Daugherty, manager, said the arena and chutes were in condition and that advertising is being mailed fans in six states.

Steer riding and calf roping will feature Brahma bulls and calves exclusively, Daugherty said. Some of these bulls have defied all cowboys who have attempted to ride them and still retain their reputation for being unridden, he said.

Daugherty's herds of wild cattle will be augmented by wild herds from New Mexico. Last week Daugherty purchased a "catalo," an animal that is half buffalo and has never been ridden. It will be used in the steer riding events.

Saying he has the best string of broncs that he ever assembled, Daugherty is inviting cowhands and the public in general. Last year there were more than 75 contestants in the various events.

Cash prizes totaling $1,200 will be awarded. In addition, there will be special trophies including a $100 roping saddle, chaps, spurs, etc., Daugherty said.

Check On Pension Records Awaited

Records were expected at the county clerk's office momentarily which will disclose how many persons in Lubbock county who drew state old age pensions in June may have been removed from the July rolls.

Such records, listing the names of each of those on the pension rolls and the amount paid, are supplied to each county clerk. However, the county clerk has nothing to do with the determination of pensioners nor the amounts paid.

While no official communication had been received on the subject, intimation from Austin was that several names on the pension rolls last June will be dropped from the July lists.

July Checks Mailed Tuesday

Press dispatches from Austin said that the July checks were to be mailed Tuesday, two weeks later than scheduled. They are mailed direct to pensioners.

Rolls for the state as a whole, the dispatches said, were reduced from 127,858 to 123,675 names, a cut of 4,183 names, or approximately 3.3 per cent.

Should the same ratio be applied to Lubbock county, it will mean a reduction of approximately 22 names. Records supplied to the county clerk showed that 653 persons in the county received June pension checks totaling $10,743.

Gly-Cas Restores Lady's Health

Mrs. Franklin Can Now Enjoy Her Meals Without Distress Afterwards; Kidneys Regulated, Sleeps Good. "No Medicine Gly-Cas Equal," She Declares

"There is no medicine on the market today an equal of this new Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Era Franklin, Rt 4, Waco, Texas. "For years my stomach and kidneys had caused me awful distress. Each meal I ate meant only suffering. Gas would form in abundance, bloated and would become so short of breath that I soon lost my appetite. My kidneys soon became disordered, was up many times during the night and sleep was out of the question. I was growing worse each day, medicine after medicine repeatedly failed in my stubborn case. It was terribly discouraging in my condition for all I could see ahead of me was continued suffering. But finally I began Gly-Cas and found it the first medicine I had ever taken that did not disappoint me."

"Gly-Cas is certainly a blessing to all suffering people," continued Mrs. Franklin. "My stomach and bowels were regulated almost at once, the poisons removed from my system and today I am feeling fine. I can eat the foods I wish without any ill effects afterwards. My kidneys are now functioning properly, sleep good the entire night through and it is a pleasure to do my work feeling as I do today. I now understand perfectly why Gly-Cas receives so much praise—it deserves it all and more too."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. Adv.

Texas Project To Be Talked

WASHINGTON, July 14. (AP)—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas said today the proposed Possum Kingdom dam on the Brazos river, 18 miles northwest of Mineral Wells, Tex., will be discussed next Tuesday with budget bureau officials.

Sheppard said Texas representatives from districts along the Brazos river, John A. Norris, general manager of the Brazos River Conservation district, and a special committee of district board members will confer with the Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell.

Following the hearing, Sheppard added, a conference will be held with President Roosevelt, who personally ordered a survey of the project by reclamation bureau engineers because of the difference in cost estimates as submitted by district and army engineers.

Figures Differ

District engineers estimated the costs two and a half years ago at $3,100,000 and that amount was actually allocated by the Works Progress administration. Before work could be startred, WPA officials asked army engineers to estimate the cost of the proposed dam. Figuring on a different type of structure, they placed the figure at $6,600,000.

Although a report of the reclamation bureau survey has been turned in to the president, its recommendations have not been made public.

District engineers recently increased their estimate to $4,100,000, according to Representative W. R. Poage of Waco, Tex., who said thde increasing labor and material costs in the past two years was responsible. He said the additional $1,000,000 will be asked if the president favors the district's construction plans. Army engineers made their estimate February 12.

VICTORIT, B. C., July 14 — The Doukhobors are in hot water again.

The turbulent sect of some 20,000 Russian religious zealots which has amused, horrified and diverted western Canada for many years faces its most serious threat since its leader, Peter Veregin, escaped deportation by a hair's breadth in 1934.

This time Veregin faces a three-month sentence for "drunkenly abusing peaceable passengers on the King's highway," and the sentence has been confirmed by County Court Judge W. A. Nisbett.

Clothes And Propriety

Western Canada's annoyance with the picturesque sect whose practice it is to shuck off all clothing whenever they wish to make a protest was well expressed by Judge Nisbett, who said in passing sentence:

"It is pretty hard for me to understand how a man with your record and admitted mode of life can continue to retain the respect and belief of the members of the sect which goes under the name of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood."

There is never a dull moment among the Doukhobors, and hasn't been since their founding 200 years ago in Czarist Russia as the "Spirit Wrestlers." They were so turbulent that even the Russians drove them out. Led by Peter Veregin, they came to Canada, and were provided with lands and exempted from military service on promise to obey the ordinary laws of the country.

A New "Ruler"

However, even in Canada they were continually in squabbles with the government when their schools were continually burned, and adjoining railroad property damaged. The disorders culminated when someone blew old Peter Veregin to his reward with a bomb as he was riding on one of the hated railway trains.

The present "ruler" of the Doukhobors is his nephew, also Peter Veregin. He came over from Russia when news filtered there of the untimely end of Veregin the first.

But under Peter the second, disorder and trouble continued. Doukhobor women continued to shuck off their voluminous clothes every time the sect came in conflict with the secular arm, and the blushes that spread over the cheeks with these conflicts would have painted all the Doukhobors' barns with ease, with a couple of blushes left over.

After several brushes with the Doukhobors, even the provincial police became convinced that they were splendid farmers, for the way in which their broad acres were cultivated left little room for criticism. But their ways with the daily routine of British law were deplorable. They undressed on the slightest provocation, or, as the British looked at it, too frequently.

Deportation Fails

The time came when the government tried to deport the present Veregin, but Doukhobors came flying from the length and breadth of Canada to prevent Peter's deportation. Despite troubles with his secretary, Ammeter, who charged that Veregin deprived him of earned wages, Veregin was jerked back practically from the pier, and saved from deportation. He once claimed to have amassed an estate of $750,000.

But the western Canadians have always looked on the Doukhobors with a feeling mixed with romantic horror and righteous revulsion. Their community farms, fat with produce, were always a source of dissension among western Canadians, their peculiar moral eccentricities an equal source of disapprobation.

May Predict End

It is freely regarded in western Canada as a possibility of the beginning of the end that Peter Veregin has actually been sentenced to jail, for thus far the heads of the strange sect have been oddly exempt from the ordinary processes of the law.

There are financial difficulties today, mortgages long overdue, foreclosure proceedings imminent, the possibility of the split-up of huge communal properties into individual ownership. All these things argue the eventual split-up of the strangest communal colony that has taken root on the North American continent.

The sentence of Peter Veregin for "drunkenly abusing passengers on the King's highway" may be the beginning of the end for Canada's picturesque Doukhobors.

Mexico's New Prelate Laughs At Trouble In His Nation

HIS HUMOR COMES IN HANDY

MEXICO CITY, July 14 (AP)—A big part of Monsignor Luis M. Martinez' stock in trade as he confronts Mexico's still ticklish church problem is good humor.

The new head of the Catholic church in Mexico laughs easily and often. His wit is quick.

The prelate, who was named to replace the late Archbishop Paschal Diaz last February, feels things are better with the church here than they have been for many years.

President Cardenas' policy of tolerance and moderation, the new archbishop believes, is gradually improving long-strained relations between church and state.

Teams Prepare For Judging Contests

Training periods were in progress today for entomology and livestock judging teams of 4-H clubs in preparation for statewide contests next month at Texas A. and M. college, according to information given at the county agent's office.

The entomology team has a schedule of identification work that calls for considerable knowledge of insects, Homer E. Thompson, assistant county agent in charge of the club work said yesterday.

Must Give Data On Insects

Contestants must be able to do the following; give the common name of at least 25 out of a possible 71 insects; tell which of them are of the biting or the sucking kind; tell the plant on which they live or are harbored; the kind of control methods used to destroy them.

The boy with the largest collection of insects, neatly arranged, will receive up to 500 points. His collection must not include over four of one species.

A collection of six orders out of a possible 19, must be labelled, properly, showing the date of it being secured and other information.

Practice Session Held

Workout in identification of retail cuts of meat was held by the county 4-H club meat identification judging team yesterday afternoon. Work was done at the Furr Food store, Broadway and Avenue Q.

Allen Gamble, Woodrow, member of the team, will write a 500-word thesis on "Building a Balanced Diet Around Meat; Junior Burleson and Harvey Glenn, also Woodrow, will write on "What May Be Learned In a Visit to a Retail Meat Market."

The boys must also identify some 30 cuts of meat and tell whether the cut is beef, pork or lamb. Swift & Co. Chicago is offering a trip to Chicago to the winning team at the state contest at College Station.

Another training period is set for July 23 and still another in early August. The contest is August 16-19.

Romance

It's amazing what natural talent for romance these sailors have. Certainly there's no course in kissing at Annapolis, yet Gordon G. Matheson, just graduated to his ensignship, shows a flair for spectacular embraces. That is Martha Withers, home-town sweetheart from Columbia, S. C., who's walking on air.

Paralysis Claims A Third Victim

AUSTIN, July 14 (AP) — Austin recorded its third fatality from infantile paralysis today as Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, announced 69 cases had been reported in Texas this year.

Meanwhile Dr. A. G. Gilliam of the United States public health service arrived to aid in the local situation at the request of the city health department. Thirteen cases have been reported.

Others Are Claimed

The third victim in eight days was Jimmie Cummings, 10, son of Mrs. James Cummings, a city employe. The disease had claimed a Hyde Park youth and a Fiskville girl.

Dr. Cox, who said incidence of the disease was far below epidemic proportions, urged that every precaution be taken.

"Direct contact between persons is regarded as the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis," he said.

He said early symptoms were headache, fever, vomiting, bowel disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. He explained that preventive and control measures could be used only when prompt medical care and early recognition and reporting of the malady were brought into play.

Texas Project To Be Talked

WASHINGTON, July 14. (AP)—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas said today the proposed Possum Kingdom dam on the Brazos river, 18 miles northwest of Mineral Wells, Tex., will be discussed next Tuesday with budget bureau officials.

Sheppard said Texas representatives from districts along the Brazos river, John A. Norris, general manager of the Brazos River Conservation district, and a special committee of district board members will confer with the Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell.

Following the hearing, Sheppard added, a conference will be held with President Roosevelt, who personally ordered a survey of the project by reclamation bureau engineers because of the difference in cost estimates as submitted by district and army engineers.

Figures Differ

District engineers estimated the costs two and a half years ago at $3,160,000 and that amount was actually allocated by the Works Progress administration. Before work could be startred, WPA officials asked army engineers to estimate the cost of the proposed dam. Figuring on a different type of structure, they placed the figure at $6,600,000.

Although a report of the reclamation bureau survey has been turned in to the president, its recommendations have not been made public.

District engineers recently increased their estimate to $4,100,000, according to Representative W. R. Poage of Waco, Tex., who said thde increasing labor and material costs in the past two years was responsible. He said the additional $1,000,000 will be asked if the president favors the district's construction plans. Army engineers made their estimate February 12.

Doukhobors In Turmoil As Chief Goes To Jail For Tipsy Antics

Small Field To Start Play In Lubbock Open Golf Tournament Today

LUBBOCK EVENING JOURNAL

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, JULY 14, 1937

SPORTOGRAPH

by COLLIER PARRIS

Copyright, 1937

THE CITY OPEN is on ,in case you'd forgotten. (And about forty golfers of the town seem to have forgotten, at that). Quality, however, makes up for quantity this time, and there's be some hot matches in that championship flight. A few are missing who should be there, notably Jo Dick Slaughter of Country club and Alfred Holton of Meadowbrook, but there'll be some heated contests anyway and some very nice golf.

We nominate for our dark horse this year one Bill DeGarimore, a virtual newcomer to Lubbock golfing ranks. If Bill, of the Montgomery Ward force here, does a practice round today, postponing his first round match until tomorrow, he's our choice. And we'll tell you why. We don't know how long Mr. DeGarimore has been playing golf here, but he popped up with a 64, which is six under par at Meadowbrook, for his qualifying score in the City Open. Moreover, he toured the course again Monday, going slightly over. He goes again yesterday, and shows a better card than he showed Monday. A quiet sort of fellow, youngish looking, short and of middleweight proportions, he has a nice swing, good form and better than fair control of his putter. Look out for Mr. DeGarimore.

Kay Bradshaw a former City Open champion who turned pro but who has just about lived that down, is still swinging his wicked woods and fixing a dead eye on the pin from niblick ranges. His 63 in the qualifying round brought him the medal, and he's the favorite, of course. But watch out for Edgar Doherty if he gets his putter working, and don't forget his "little brother," Donald, who had a snappy 68 for his qualifying round.

The Meadowbrook boys shouldn't feel untoward toward Country Club in this tournament, regarding number of entries. True enough, the Country Club boys didn't turn out for the tournament in large numbers. Neither did those of Meadowbrook. But check it all up and you won't find many Country Club guys missing who would compete in the tournament were it being conducted at their home course. The majority of them are not tournament players.

Slaughter would be in there had he not let a screwdriver get the best of him the other day and jam him in the eye, slashing the eye-ball seriously. Cotton McAfee, Glenn Smith, W. F. Helwig, Clyde Williams, E. B. Wheelock and Ted Tipps, all of Country Club, and Garland Allen, Country Club caddy, qualified for the tournament. Tipps was forced to withdraw. We don't know what happened to Ralph Trolinger, the 1936 City Open medalist, or to Don Mitchell or one or two others who should have entered, but the Country Club turnout is about all it would have been had the tournament been held at the Country Club course.

There'll be attractions for galleryites, as well as competing golfers, at Meadowbrook this week and for the finals Sunday. It's free, so take it in.

Joe Bihl, former Meadowbrook champion, and John Bell, who has fired some mighty fine golf for Lubbock High, Texas Tech and Meadowbrook, are back in the running this year after a year's lapse. Bihl qualified with a 73, but is capable of shooting better golf. Bell, who has been away to college, came in with a 71, and you may watch out for him. He's a "natural" golfer.

THE GOLF SCENE and sex changes next week, as Lubbock Country club is host to the second annual Women's Invitation tournament. One of the entries is Elinor Jones, an exciting miss (from a golf standpoint, until we've seen her) from Albuquerque, N. M., who holds the New Mexico state women's championship and who won the recent Big Spring women's invitation tournament.

The Country club girls are doing their darndest to put on a good tournament this year, and they deserve credit for a lot of work they've already done and praise for their generous attitude they've taken towards prizes, entertainment, etc. A gang of downtown business men also get a cut-in on the deserving list for cooperation.

TECH-KIWANIS-KNOTHOLE GANG GOING STRONG

Papa Dutchy Smith is busy these days teaching the rudiments of end and guard play to young Dutchy jr., but never too busy to throw out a suggestion for a paragraph when you catch him off home duty. Being a new father himself, it's natural that Dutchy should suggest, for instance a few lines about kids. So he discusses the Tech-Kiwanis-Knothole Gang.

At their Friday morning convocation, upwards of 315 young sprouts of the city will receive identifying caps and pasteboard tickets, indicating they are members of the Knothole Gang and subject to privileges of that club. These privileges include (1) free "tuition" in various branches of sports, drawn down to kid size, at the Texas Tech campus every week day morning, and (2) guest admission to all Texas Tech home football and basketball games and track meets during the ensuing season.

Helping Tech bear the financial grief of this annual summer program is the Kiwanis club, of which Dutchy is a member with dues paid, and to this club we offer an expression of gratitude and appreciation. They're doing a fine work, the Kiwanis boys, in offering these privileges to the kids, many of whom are under-privileged and who would not gain this fine treatment and liberal education were it not for the sponsoring civic club.

Dutchy suggests that posies be passed in particular, to Elbert (Hi-Pockets) Overton, Tech football man who is the ringleader in athletic events and the sing-song; to President B. Sherrod and the Kiwanis committee on children's work; K. Klett, Dr. Allen Stewart and Parker Prouty for their beneficial interest; to Preston Smith and W. O. Bearden of the Tech Theatre for having the entire Knothole gang as guests at a movie recently, and to Photographer W. L. Daniel of Daniel Studio for presenting each member of the Knothole Gang a picture of the entire company. Dutchy should have included himself for the Tech Athletic department recently provided an ice cream party for the Gang.

And, in passing, it may be mentioned that the Lubbock Baseball association will present each member of the Knothole Gang a pass to one of the double header baseball shows during the Avalanche-Journal tournament next week, the day to be announced later.

THIS IS WEDNESDAY so there'll be wrestling tonight at the Auditorium. Should be plenty hot, too, with Panther Joe Kopecky tangling with the despised Buck Lipscomb. Kopecky may be the fellow to tame this wild Indiana boy.

Couple of newcomers on the supporting card, and they're said to be quite good. The wrestling show is recommended. If you miss it, don't say we didn't warn you. They've started mixing it up in these Auditorium fights, and if you have been among the missing lately, you've missed a lot of fun.

Australian eucalyptus trees often exceed 450 feet in height, and are larger than California's big trees.

Kopecky Faces Test Tonight

The burden is on Joe Kopecky, the East Texas cotton-picker tonight. The burden is always on the guy who fights Buck Lipscomb, although the Lipscomb foe generally shares the burden with the referee. Buck the Bad, after fixing up Jack Hagen and Tony Piluso in successive main events here, will find the going a bit rougher against the veteran Panther Joe tonight, and things may happen.

After using everything from eight penny nails to bath towels in defeating well-liked Tony Piluso last week in the main go, Lipscomb considers himself just about "tops" in the local ring. Kopecky, who has always believed himself the cock of the walk, tangles with the Hoosier Hotshot in the first "natural" to be seen here for more-than-a-few Wednesday nights.

All in all, it's another rough house card tonight. That is, if Ollie Erickson succeeds in arousing the smoldering Jack Hagen in the thirty minute, one fall, semi-windup. The Shreveport lad has been on edge for the past three weeks, after being kicked loose from a vertebra by Lipscomb. Hagen has been angling for another go with the Indiana fighter, but somehow Lipscomb has steered clear of the cleanly built Southerner, who would like to send, the rowdy lad back to Indiana, where he would get together in the twenty minute preliminary, John Nemanic of Colorado takes on Gust Johannson, who is said to bite like Tex Watkins, throw towels like Danny McShain, and make uglier faces than Rod Fenton. Nemanic's record is as unblemished as an old maid's diary, and he may get into hot water with the tough cookie from Minnesota.

Baseball Managers To Gather Tonight To Plan Tournament

The "Who's Who" of the Seventh Annual Avalanche-Journal Invitation Baseball tournament, as well as the "what's what," is to be determined tonight when managers and team representatives meet to iron out difficulties and draw for first round situations. The tournament is scheduled to start Sunday at the local ball park, with at least eight clubs competing for the prize money and the glory that goes with winning the Lubbock tournament.

Expression from several managers were heard yesterday when contacted regarding the tournament, and the meeting tonight, previously scheduled for drawing for first round positions, was made to include a round-table discussion.

The tournament committee, having formed the previous plans after frequent discussion with managers of teams, expressed itself as more than willing to listen to advice and suggestions, and it is hoped that a suitable plan can be worked out tonight.

The meeting is called for seven o'clock, mezzanine floor, Hilton Hotel. After a plan has been decided upon, the usual drawing for first round games will be held. One official delegate from each will receive a ticket to tonight's wrestling show here.

It is extremely urgent that all managers of teams desiring to enter the tournament have a representative here, or notify the sports department so that other arrangements for drawing may be made.

Elinor Jones To Enter Golf Tourney In City

Lubbock Country club's women's golf association received the entry yesterday of Miss Elinor Jones of Albuquerque, reigning champion of New Mexico women golfers for the second annual women's invitation golf tournament starting here next week. Entries from numerous other cities including golf centers of West Texas already have been counted.

The tournament gets underway next Wednesday with the qualifying round. However, on Tuesday the tournament field will be paired with men golfers of the club in a mixed foursome event.

Prizes Rounded Up

Miss Jones' entry lends added color and importance to the second annual joust here, which is expected to attract the best of West Texas feminine golf. Entries are assured from Big Spring, Amarillo, Midland, San Angelo and Slaton, and invitations have been issued to golfers in all other West Texas towns. It is possible that at least one Fort Worth golfer, Mrs. R. E. Winger, West Texas Women's Golf association champion, will compete.

The finance and prize committee reported last night that local merchants and business men had been generous to the extent of donating prizes and checks for prizes, and that the trophies, most of which have already been lined up, will be on display at Anderson Bros. Jewelry store.

While it is only the second annual affair of its kind, the local tournament is expected to be the best and biggest women's golf event in this part of the state this year.

Pan-American Games Start On Thursday

DALLAS, July 14 (AP) — A star-strewn field of world, Olympic and national record-holders will perform at the four-day Pan-American games starting here Thursday as part of the Pan-American exposition.

Track and field events Friday and Saturday will witness 10 Americans with national or world marks pit their abilities against athletes from 21 Central and South American nations. The entire program will be staged at night in the Cotton bowl on the exposition grounds as a free attraction.

Soccer Tournament Set

Argentina's soccer team will start an international tournament with the Trenton, N. J., Highlanders, American champions, in the initial event Thursday with Canada's Winnipeg Irish club as a third contender.

Earle Meadows, U. S. C. sensation and a native Texan, has warned officials to provide pole vault standards of sufficient height when he attempts a 15-foot ceiling. He holds the world record at 14 feet, 11 inches, with Bill Sefton, a team mate. Competition will include George Varoff, American record-holder, and Cornelius Warmerdam, another sky-reacher from Fresno State college.

To Renew Rivalry

Also spotlighted will be a 1,500-meter classic renewing the rivalry between Glenn Cunningham, famed miler, and Archie San Romani, his fellow-Kansan of Emporia (Kas.) State Teachers. Cunningham conquered Romani when the latter fell in a recent duel.

Elroy Robinson, Fresno's crack half-miler, will tangle with John Woodruff, lean Pitt negro, whom he robbed of the 800-meter world record at Randall's Island, N. Y., in another stellar event.

The entry list also included such brilliants as Jack Weierhauser, Olympic club American 200-meter title-holder; Davis Albritton, Ohio State, and Cornelius Johnson, U. S. C., co-holders of the world's high jump record; Alton Terry, Hardin-Simmons university's American javelin king, and Ken Carpenter, American and Olympic discus champion.

Old Heinie Manush Is Still Pounding Apple

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

The calmest man in Flatbush when Henry Emmett Manush was left off the National league's all star team was Henry Emmett Manush.

Brooklyn thought Henry Emmett (Heinie to you), a National league "rookie" after 14 seasons in the junior circuit, richly deserved a place on the honor squad. At 35—he'll be 36 next Tuesday—Heinie might not be quite so fast as in 1926, when he won the American league batting championship, but at least he was powdering the ball.

Heinie just went on about his business, such as the ninth inning home run yesterday that gave the Dodgers a 2-1 decision over the Bees.

Yesterday's was only Heinie's fourth home run, yet, with 38 runs batted in, he leads his nearest teammate, Cookie Lavagetto, by six. He is tied at .335 with Joe Moore, the Giants' thin man who, after his five for six yesterday against the Phillies, is top slugger among the second place Terrymen.

Moore was the big gun in a 20-hit Giant attack that required ten innings to nose out the Phils' 11-10. The last of Jo-Jo's five singles drove home the winning run.

In the only game in the American league, the Indians backed up Dennis Galehouse's 7-hit pitching with some snappy field to edge out the White Sox, 2-1.

The Cards and Pirates, only other National league entries scheduled, were rained out.

Beaumont Streak Is Snapped By Tulsa

(By The Associated Press)

Tulsa snapped Beaumont's eight-game winning streak while San Antonio mauled the loop-leading Oklahoma Indians to feature last night's play in the Texas league.

The five-hit hurling of Lefty Milstead of the Oilers, coupled with a home run by Morris Sands to break a 1 to 1 deadlock in the eighth, blasted the Exporters out of the win column with a 4 to 1 defeat.

The high-flying Indians suffered a 9 to 1 walloping by the Missions who capitalized on the wildness of Ash Hillin, a former team mate, to rush over four scores. The victory evened a two-game series.

A ninth-inning run through Jim Stroner's second-base error and Chuck Hostetler's single gave Galveston a 5 to 4 victory over the Fort Worth Cats. Eddie Cole pitched four-hit ball for the winners.

Houston's Buffs swept a short series by administering a 5 to 3 beating to the tail-end Dallas nine when Manager Ira Smith rushed to Johnny Stevenson's rescue to halt a Steer rally.

Sports Gossip Over Nation

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP) — Don't let anyone kid you into betting there will be a Max Schmeling-Joe Louis heavyweight title match this year. . . . Possibility is remote — even if Max changes his mind and comes down to earth in his financial demands. . . . Here's why: Before Louis and Tommy Farr were signed for the Yankee stadium, Aug. 26, Jacobs had booked Louis into London against either Len Harvey or Jack Doyle. . . . Jacobs sent his personal attorney, Sol Strauss, to England to square things with Arthur Evlin, Wimbledon stadium promoter.

Evlin was a good sport . . . He stepped gracefully aside, saying he wouldn't think of standing in the way of another British boxer (Farr) getting a shot at the title. . . . In return for this sportsmanship, Jacobs guaranteed Louis would go to London in September to fight either Harvey or Doyle under the Evlin banner. . . . So Herr Schmeling must wait until next year, all because he was too arrogant to bother to reply to cables and letters. . . . How does it feel back there behind the eight ball, mister?

Collapse of Hal Schumacher's arm recalls that Doc Scanlon, old big league pitcher, now a Brooklyn physician, predicted Schumacher's career would be short because of his unorthodox delivery. . . . Jimmy Braddock told a Brooklyn sports carnival he'd be ready for another fight in September. . . . And hopes it will be against Max Baer again.

Rumor has it next year's National league contracts will contain a clause making it mandatory for players selected to appear in the all-star game . . . Suspicion is, some of the boys have been giving the game the old duckaroo. . . . Leo Kelly, who fights "Tiger Jack" Fox here tomorrow night is a deacon in the St. James Baptist church in Los Angeles.

IS AUTHOR'S BROTHER

MORTON, (Special)—Mrs. Mary E. Foster, author of "Matches", is the sister of Charles Taylor, Morton druggist. The novel, which is historical, has a setting around Goliad.

Several Stars Will Appear On Schedule

A disappointing field of 38 golfers will start the quest for honors and prizes in the annual Lubbock City Open golf tournament today, but the quality of golf in the championship flight should make up for the lack of quantity. Torrid battles leading to the championship are anticipated, beginning today and lasting through Sunday.

J. K. Bradshaw, former City champion, remained in the favorite's shoes through yesterday's final qualifying. His 63, shot last Sunday, remained high. Bill DeGarimore, a virtual newcomer to local golf, claimed second place with a 64.

Bradshaw's 63—seven under par at Meadowbrook—gave him top [illegible] in the pairings and he is scheduled to meet Bob Hale, Texas Tech star golfer, in a first round match. Hale blew himself to a 72, two over par, but is capable of beating perfect figures at Meadowbrook nearly any day he unloads his war-clubs.

One "77" Gets In

Even with several of the town's leading hotshots missing from the field, a score of 77 or better was required to "make" the championship flight. Only one score of 77 got in under the wire in a draw for places. Four who shot 77's landed in the second flight.

Two complete flights of 16 each, and an abbreviated flight of six were paired off last night preceding the Calcutta party, at which time Bradshaw's favoritism was even more pronounced.

Seven of the first sixteen had medal rounds of par 70 or better. Six were below par. At 66 were Weldon Counts and Edgar Douherty, winner of the Meadowbrook Open last year and a former City champ. Donald Doherty and J. R. Farmer posted 68's. Garland Allen, Country club caddy, had a 70. John Bell, returning to local tournament wars after considerable layoff, had a 71 in the qualifying.

Clyde Williams blew up on the back nine, after posting a sub-par first nine score, to finish with a 78, out of the championship running. E. B. Wheelock, H. J. Patterson, W. F. Helwig and Raymond Marshall posted 77's but were consigned to the second flight.

Match play begins today, and two

Students Find Life Easier

VIENNA, July 14. (AP)—Life has become easier for thousands of Austrian school children because 14-year-old Frie dlKlein had his ears boxed.

The boy took the matter to court and, because his eardrum had been broken, won a suit for $177 against the instructor.

The case brought to a head years of agitation for reforms in the Austrian secondary schools, whose discipline and standards have been the pride and despair of parents and pupils.

Reforms Are Decreed

With a fine disregarded for half-measures, the ministry of education decreed these reforms:

Teachers may not punish pupils by giving them written tasks, such as copying "I have been a bad boy" 100 times.

There must be no home work in chemistry, religion, history, nature study, introduction to philosophy, drawing, singing or gymnastics.

It is forbidden a teacher to dictate assignments.

Examinations must primarily be oral; quick, short tests in limited time periods are to be avoided; written examinations can be given only once a semester—and then only if there are many pupils in the class and with the principal's consent.

Teachers must teach only what is culturally and economically useful to the child.

City Open

days are allowed for completing the first round. Friday will be devoted to the second round. Saturday to the semi-finals and Sunday to the finals in all flights and for consolations.

As early as players are eliminated in the first round, they are urged to start consolation matches.

Missing from the field are two well known stars whose presence will be missed in City Open competition. Joe Dick Slaughter, Country Club ace, suffered a serious eye injury that keeps him on the sidelines this week. Alfred Holton, former champion, decided in favor of the Ruidoso, N. M., invitation tournament and left for the mountain resort town yesterday. Also missing is John Edmisson, the defending champion, who no longer resides in Lubbock.

'Glacier Priest' Off To Arctic

Off at last on the Arctic trip for which his last 10 expeditions have been merely preparations, Father Bernard R. Hubbard, famed "Glacier Priest," is pictured above with his sturdy aides just before sailing from Seattle on the Coast Guard cutter Northland. After spending five months in the Bering sea with the Coast Guard, the Hubbard party will set up a base at King Island and remain there until July, 1938. Accompanying the explorer-priest are, left to right, Edgar Levin, field manager; Mageik and Wolf, canine veterans of previous Hubbard expeditions; Kenneth Chisholm, assistant field manager, and Bernard Stanley, 17, the priest's nephew, who is making his debut as an explorer.

Young Men And Women On NYA Rolls To Take Part In Courses; Leave Thursday

Thirty young men and women chosen from NYA rolls are scheduled to leave here Thursday morning for agricultural colleges for six-week courses in farm practices, according to announcement of A. V. Bullock, district NYA supervisor.

Fourteen boys will go to North Texas Agricultural college at Arlington and 16 girls to John Tarleton Agricultural college at Stephenville. The trip will be made by bus.

Delegates Are Listed

Boys to make the trip are: Cecil J. Lamb, James W Bradley, Wyman A. Jones, W. Stinson Reynolds, Harvey A. Hagens, Leslie Harrington, Clyde Savell, Aron W. Luman, and Windell Parker all of Lubbock county; Roy Coleman of Floyd county; J. C. Thompson of Lamb county; Charlie B. Lamb of Hockley county, and Howard Etheredge and Don Wilbur Clements of Scurry county.

Girls selected for the course were: Ludie May Chapman of Lubbock; Charlie Fay Bowles of Dawson; Ruby Dee Wright, Alice Lowrie Gladys Mae Cooper, and Pauline Knight, all of Crosby; Viola Smith of Stonewall; Marie Bradley, Lillie Belle Powell, Cleta Mae McCain, and W. Lorene Allen, all of Motley; Jewell Owens, and Corene Flannagan, both of Dickens; Lois and Hazel Thomas of Hockley; and Rose Mary Ryals of Floyd county.

Others Aiding At Home

More youths from counties other than Lubbock would have been selected if they had not found private employment or had not been assisting with farm work at present, said Bullock. Need for immediate cultivation of crops prevented many youths interested in agriculture from making application, he said.

Selections were made by NYA officials through cooperation with county and home demonstration agents, county welfare workers, and other agencies, it was pointed out. A number of applications from youths wishing to take the course were received at Bullock's office.

When at the colleges they will work on campus improvement projects. The six weeks' term opens July 15. The quota for this district was announced at Austin by J. C. Kellam, Texas NYA director, after the work project had been approved.

To Be Instructed

Those taking the course will be able to earn enough money to pay for their lodging, board, and necessary medical service and have about $5 a month for personal use, officials said. In their spare time they will be given instruction in agriculture by the regular teaching staff of the colleges.

The project is state-wide. Two hundred white farm boys will go to Texas A. and M., 150 white boys to N.T.A.C., 150 white girls to John Tarleton, and 40 negro boys to Prairie View college.

Transportation for the group from this district will be provided for youths without cost from Lubbock to the college.

Boys, in their spare time, will be taught animal husbandry, agricultural engineering, agronomy, dairy husbandry, horticulture, and poultry husbandry. Girls will be given instruction in poultry husbandry, dairying, home gardening, fruit growing, rural home management, and health and hygiene.

Since high school graduation is not needed for admission to the training courses offered, no college credit will be allowed for work done, Bullock said.

Lack of housing space to accommodate such a group of NYA youths prevented a similar course at Texas Technological college, pointed out authorities of the agency and the college.

Two Naval Reserve Men Dead As Their Plane Crashes

SAN PEDRO, Calif., July 14 (AP)—The U. S. fleet radio reported that two naval reserve men died when their plane crashed during navy gunnery exercises off Santa Barbara island.

The victims were Cadet Edwin Higgins of Seattle, Wash., and Julian Stogner of Hamlet, N. C. They were in a plane catapulted from the deck of the battleship Mississippi. Higgins was the pilot.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Examining Trial For Woman Is Scheduled On July 22

POST, July 14 (Special) — Examining trial for Cloe Johnson, charged with murder in connection with her husband's death early Sunday in his charred farm shack near here will be conducted July 22.

Counsel for the pretty 21-year-old widow of Bob Johnson agreed on the date with County Attorney Joe Moss and other officials, said Sheriff Jim Power. The trial will be before County Judge Ira Weakley, before whom a court of inquiry seeking to determine facts underlying the 21-year-old farmer-grocery clerk's death was held Monday.

The woman was sleeping with her husband when the place caught fire, and told authorities she escaped without attempting to awaken her mate.

Opening Contests In Rodeo Are Staged

COLEMAN, July 14 (AP) — Six thousand persons last night jammed Hufford field for opening contests in Coleman's second annual three-day rodeo.

Feature event was the first appearance of Juan Salinas of Encinal, Tex., and Tom Taylor of Sonora in a matched roping contest.

Salinas, a 200-pound Mexican-German, roped six calves with nine loops in a total elapsed time of 226.4 seconds. Taylor, the favorite, required 233.4 seconds to place his rope on half a dozen calves with ten loops.

The two ropers, appearing nightly, are to rope 18 calves in their contest.

Travis Hays of Santa Anna led the wild cow milkers with a time of 40.4 seconds. Best times in calf roping were those of Steve Parks of Snyder, 21.2 seconds; Amye Gamblin of Comanche, Okla., 22 flat; and J. R. Phillips of Marble Falls, 26.2 seconds.

Mutt Ray of Killeen, Tex., was kicked in the head when he was bucked off by a steer, but he revived and his injury was believed trivial. Also hurt was Joe Hood, likewise from Killeen. He was knocked unconscious by a steer in the chute but was revived and rode the animal a few minutes later.

Pot-holes which may have served as bath tubs for Nuchus Indians years ago have been found in Yosemite National park.

Hot Weather is Here—Beware of Biliousness!

Have you ever noticed that in very hot weather your organs of digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Perhaps you may have sick headache, nausea and dizziness or blind spells on suddenly rising. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious and your bowel actions sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the more common symptoms or warnings of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. Don't neglect them. Take Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that give you the effects of calomel and salts, combined. You will be delighted with the prompt relief they afford. Trial package ten cents, family pkg. twenty-five cts. At drug stores. (Adv.)

NO parlor pink reformer is Mrs. Creighton Burnham, head of the Oklahoma State Training school for girls at Tecumseh. She's merely a woman with common sense and she's putting her common sense to work in her official capacity as superintendent of the reform institution.

Under Mrs. Burnham's administration, "honor girls" among the reformatory's inmates are to have some social life. The "honor girls" are, of course, those who do their work willingly and well and who further evidence a desire to cooperate with authorities. First of the school's social functions—it's to be a combination dance, fudge-making and games-playing party — is set for Friday night of this week.

Instead of having to drive her charges to make them behave and instead of trying to pound reform into them, Mrs. Burnham wisely has hung up a prize for the right-doers. And reformatory girls are no different from their sisters on the outside when it comes to enjoying parties "with the boys invited, too." As a result, The Plainsman wouldn't be surprised if Mrs. Burnham sets a new high in reformatory administration.

No doubt there are certain segments of the Oklahoma citizenry who are looking with holy horror toward Mrs. Burnham's new methods at Tecumseh.

Probably some of the taxpayers—real and imaginary — are having fits over the prospects of a few rays of sunshine being permitted to trickle through into the humdrum life of the training school and doubtless there are those who decry the fact that Mrs. Burnham is even letting her charges make economical party dresses and experiment with powder and rouge in preparation for Friday night's big event.

But we'll string along with Mrs. Burnham — at least until her ideas are found to be as clumsy and as inefficient as those along which our American reformatories have been misoperated over the generations.

PERHAPS you overlooked the little two-paragraph item on Page 1 of yesterday's Evening Journal in which Lieutenant-Governor Walter Woodul told the people of Texas—via the Associated Press—that he has no intention of offering for the governorship next summer, "regardless of what may or may not come to pass." The lieutenant-governor then reiterated his political plans, previously told to friends over the state, that he would be a candidate for attorney-general when the proper time comes.

It wasn't a big story as far as what was said in it.

But it was a big story, politically speaking, since it could make for something very unusual in the annuals of Texas office-seeking.

Here's why.

For some time now the yarn has been circulated over the state that Governor Allred would not fill out his second term but, instead, would accept some fabled federal appointment such as a federal judgeship, or as a cabinet or sub-cabinet officer.

Although the governor has logically and definitely kept silent about the rumors, many a politically-minded citizen, who knew Walter Woodul had written friends last January that he would be an attorney-general candidate in 1938, wondered what Walter would do if, between now and campaign time, the governor resigned and the governorship tumbled into his lap. Very interested in this possibility—if it could be called a possibility—were Attorney-General Bill McCraw and Railroad Commissioner Ernest Thompson, who are the outstanding prospects for next year's gubernatorial derby.

Most observers took the position that since the attorney-general's office is best known as a political stepping-stone, Lieutenant-Governor Woodul, as governor after the Allred resignation, would change his mind and run, in 1938, to hold the top job rather than for attorney-general.

"Whoever," they asked, "ever heard of a governor stepping down to run for attorney-general? It just isn't done."

IN Austin last February, The Plainsman asked Lieutenant-Governor Woodul, "off the record", just what he would do if he succeeded to the governorship via an Allred resignation before beginning his active campaign for attorney-general.

Walter answered the question in the very words he used in the news story of yesterday. He said he'd be a candidate for attorney-general in spite of anything and everything.

Personally, The Plainsman has never put a bit of credence in the rumors regarding an Allred resignation and acceptance of a big federal job.

We don't think the governor ever had any such idea.

Lieutenant-Governor Woodul's public statement of yesterday indicates all the more that the talk about the governor's retiring before his term runs out is stuff and nonsense.

And we hope it is, since the governor is doing all right at a mighty tough job.

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon's Lazy Nine ranch house and barn burn, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch and court Kay. But she hates him and is determined to keep her ranch. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, stirs the outfit to cut its own timber and rebuild without pay. Hastings' cowhand, Scrap Johnson, molests Kay, but Ted rescues her and whips Scrap. When Hastings appears, Scrap takes his horse and gun and makes his get-away. Hastings pursues and at the central divide pass finds both Ted and Scrap wounded after a gun duel. He schemes his revenge.

Chapter 21
A Fight For Life

Bending down, Josh Hastings loosened the fingers of the hand that still gripped the gun Kay had given to Ted. He held it gingerly with his bandanna, so that no touch of incriminating fingerprints could possibly get on it, and slowly drew it from the loosened grip.

Suddenly and without any warning, he felt Ted's dark eyes upon him. Then, as suddenly again, the lids dropped, and the body he was bending over seemed as inert and lifeless as before.

Josh Hastings doubted the evidence of his own senses. But with his heart pounding suffocatingly in his ears at the memory of that strangely seeing look from those dark eyes, he held himself rigidly still.

The weird beauty of the scene was entirely lost on him, but something of the eery quality of that mysterious spot from which waters eventually flowed to the Atlantic and the Pacific made his breath come quicker and raised a momentary panic in him.

He stared at Ted Gaynor's white face, watching for any further sign of life, but it lay still as death in the moonlight.

His breath coming more normally again, and cursing himself for a fool, Hastings lifted up Ted's gun. Then he walked half way back toward Scrap Johnson, took careful aim and fired.

The shot reverberated from the rocky walls of the pass behind him, intensified by the preceding silence, so that it sounded like the blast of a cannon.

Scrap Johnson's body gave a convulsive jerk, horrible to see. A dark spot stood out on his temple, and slowly spread like a thirsty stain.

Ted Gaynor continued to lay utterly quiet. He could not have been more remote from this scene of violence had he been as dead as the man who had just been murdered.

Dropping the gun from which he had fired the fatal shot, Josh Hastings knelt down and deliberately crawled back to the spot where Ted Gaynor lay.

Rising to his feet, he looked back critically over the trail he had beaten through the grass. He could see Ted's gun gleaming where he had let it fall and a cruel smile twisted his lips.

He had framed Ted Gaynor, dead or alive. Whoever discovered the two bodies would find it impossible to escape the implication of that dropped gun. At one stroke, he had been able not only to get complete revenge on Scrap, but to wipe Ted Gaynor from his path forever.

No matter what Kay might have thought of Ted, she was not the kind to let her thoughts linger over a proved murderer. From now on, he felt sure the way with Kay should be clear sailing.

Walking slowly over to his horse, Josh Hastings swung into the saddle, and headed back toward the pass.

Burning Thirst And Pain

The moon hung low in the western sky, and moonlight and dawn were mingling in a cold gray light, before Ted Gaynor opened his eyes again.

For a long interval he lay staring straight ahead, his eyes darkened with pain. Gradually the gentle trickle of the water penetrated to his consciousness, and he became suddenly aware of his burning throat, and the fever that blazed through him.

He tried to pull himself over to the water, but fell back with a groan at the intolerable pain in his chest.

A wild look came into his eyes, and he muttered incoherently. Slumping down again by the water that was so near and yet so far, he seemed on the point of giving up. But with a mighty effort, he roused himself and rolled over so that he was able to reach the edge of the stream.

Sucking in a great gulp of the life-giving drink, his mind cleared for a moment. He remembered distinctly where he was and what had happened in his third encounter with Scrap Johnson, on his way over to the Clear Water basin to collect his family.

Ted had dismounted to get a drink at the head waters of the pass. Just as he was in the act of quenching his thirst, he heard a rasping challenge behind him. Whirling about and drawing at the same time, he had seen Scrap Johnson standing a short distance away.

The next instant there had been the roar and blaze of two guns. Scrap Johnson's bullet had reached its mark first, while Ted's went wild. From that point, memory registered nothing but a blank void shot through with excruciating pain and horror-filled nightmares. Doubtless Scrap Johnson had decided to ride on, and leave him here to die.

All details of the night blurred into delirium, as the pain in his chest swept over him again. But while the delirium persisted, he did not completely lose consciousness.

Through the delirium ran a subconscious will to live, a determination to pull through for Kay's sake. She needed him. He mustn't fail her!

By a gigantic effort, and propelled by this insistent inner force, Ted pulled himself up to his hands and knees and began slowly and painfully to drag his aching body along the rocky edge of the stream.

Two thoughts possessed him above all others. He mustn't lose the trail of the water. He must stay by it, so that he could quench the thirst that burned in him. And he mustn't let himself relax and lie down. Once he did that, he would never get up again.

Gradually the dawn lightened into day. Dull clouds scudded across the sky and no sun appeared to glisten on the headwaters of the Bitter Root and Clear Water rivers. Ted had managed to drag himself 500 yards or more through the scrub pines that dotted the southeastern slope of the divide.

At the point of exhaustion, but still animated by that mysterious will to live that functions without any conscious control, he pushed on to a small clearing that appeared

LET THE PEOPLE DO THE VOTING!

We hear plenty about the Supreme court fight, about the Wagner act and many another sensational piece of legislation, but there's one pending bill up there in Washington that in The Journal's opinion is worth much more than just a passing glance. We refer to a constitutional amendment drafted by Representative Louis Ludlow, Indiana Democrat, which would provide for a national referendum before the United States can enter any war.

For two and one-half years the bill has been slumbering peacefully in the House Judiciary committee. Now Mr. Ludlow is circulating a petition to force a vote on the measure, and there is a chance that he may succeed.

It is not hard to think of pretty sound reasons for supporting such an amendment. It is the plain people who do the fighting in a war, who pay the bills and endure the privations that a war makes necessary. Why should not they themselves—through their own votes, and not through their congressional delegates—be permitted to say whether the country should go to war?

In his proposed amendment, we are constrained to remark that we believe Congressman Ludlow "has something there". Whether Congress will do anything about it, or not, remains to be seen. Some of the boys are pretty jealous of the powers they have and don't care to lose any of them, no matter how right the principle.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 — The true story of how Robert Taylor was discovered, as told by E. E. Clive, is not quite like the yarn that is incorporated in most of the life stories you have read.

His studio and the Taylor biographers always have related simply that Ben Piazza, a talent-seeking executive, saw Taylor in a college theatrical performance and signed him up.

The facts are that Taylor, fresh out of Pomona College, went to Clive four years ago and begged for a part in one of the English comedies which Clive then was producing at the Hollywood Playhouse.

After a tryout Taylor was hired and given the role of a movie actor—a member of a film troupe making some scenes in the castle of an impoverished duke. Since other members of the stock company were English, Taylor thought up the name of John Stanhope for himself, and that's how he was billed in the program.

The play, "M' Lord the Duke," opened brightly enough, and the following evening, Taylor sought out Clive and excitedly announced that he had been offered a movie contract by a man named Ben Piazza.

"How much?" asked Clive.

"Thirty-five dollars a week," said Taylor.

"If that's all he thinks of you," said the English actor, "you'd better turn it down. Tell him you want more dramatic training. Tell him I'm going to take this company to New York. Tell him you think you're going to get a better part and a lot more money."

For three days after that, Taylor avoided his boss. The latter knew what was up. He cornered the young man and accused him: "You signed that movie contract, didn't you?"

Taylor admitted that he had.

"But I got more dough," he added. "A lot more dough. I'll get $50 a week."

When he tells the story, Clive shakes his head in simulated sorrow and says: ". . . and now look where he is as the result of not taking my advice."

Waggish Wagerer

It's told about a certain movie executive, a man whose life's passion is gambling. He wants to bet on everything automobile licenses, the number of blonds passing a corner in 10 minutes, gross receipts of pictures, horse races, football games, tomorrow's weather. His first response to almost any statement is "How much do you want to bet?" Anyway:

A friend was killed in an automobile accident. The movie man rode to the emergency hospital, learned his friend's fate, and reluctantly went to the victim's home to break the news. A woman answered the door. He asked, "Are you the Widow Schmaltz?"

"I'm Mrs. Schmaltz," she said. "But I'm not a widow."

"No?" he said. "How much do you want to bet?"

All Accounts Squared

An eastern banker who's on the board of directors of a motion picture company visited Hollywood recently and was being shown around the lot by a minor actor. When the tour was finished, the money-man said, "I've enjoyed this very much. It's been 10 years since I was in a movie studio."

"You've got nothing on me," sighed the actor. "It's been 10 years since I was in a bank."

Talent Cornered

It's true that Hollywood has just about cornered the supply of entertainment talent. At least two scouts, one of them representing a group of Broadway producers, are in town to recruit actors and actresses for the stage.

And Irving Hoffman, commuting columnist for The Hollywood Reporter, movie trade paper, writes sadly of his departure from the Gold Coast:

"We're packing the white pants and all other Hollywood insignia for a return to Broadway. And we pause to wonder why. Wonder why we leave a feast for a famine. In all truth, Broadway has moved west. What's left on the Hudson is a shucked cocoon. The butterfly has flown.

"We'll go east and wander along "Swing Street" and other alleys of the Deserted Village. The friends we'll see, the folk we'll meet, will be Hollywood visitors wondering audibly why they came."

How About Some More Medals?

It's A Deep, Dark Secret, But New Deal Aim In Court Battle Is Cloture, Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 14—The administration's chief handicaps in the court fight have been a lack of fighting generals in the Senate and a superfluity of pollyannas in the top ranks, not omitting the President.

Dutcher

Some of the generals now have begun to show fight and the fury of their sudden onslaught on behalf of the Hatch compromise which would mean at least three Roosevelt appointments of Supreme Court justices by January, temporarily set the opposition back on its heels.

But it remains to be seen whether New Deal strategists are again suffering from over-optimism.

The actual objective of present tactics, although you won't find anyone admitting this, is a cloture, requiring a two-third vote, which would place a limit on Senate debate and thus kill off the anticipated filibuster.

There is a rather general feeling now that the proposed filibuster will not last long, although this may prove to be wishful thinking.

After A Couple Weeks

Senator Joe Robinson and other pro-administration leaders are proceeding on the theory—or at least the hope—that they can get a cloture after the opposition talks two or three weeks, since the administration claims only a small majority for the compromise plan, this would mean that eight or ten senators opposed to the plan would have to agree to vote to end a filibuster.

Opposition leaders don't believe that can be achieved, but the heat will be terrific in more ways than one. The administration believes that sufficient opposing senators can be persuaded to absent themselves or to take the position that the issue should come to a vote, and that they consequently will vote for cloture.

The latter position is one by which a senator can more easily square himself with elements in his constituency which demand he stand by the President, than one in which he stands against cloture and thus helps block all other legislation.

Every effort is being made by Robinson's forces to isolate a dozen or more members as men disloyal to their party and the President, including most of the seven who signed the stinging adverse report of the judiciary committee on the original six-justice bill, and other bitter opponents such as Wheeler of Montana.

The attempt is being made to hold them up as political pariahs, as "traitors" working in secret with Republicans, and as ungrateful, ambitious men seeking to humiliate a party idol who is the friend of the people. The implied threat is that the President and his friends in this fight are ready for a "purge" of "disloyal Democrats," which is exactly in line with what Roosevelt has been saying privately for weeks.

The intent is to frighten the milder Democratic opponents and, at the same time, rouse Roosevelt's popular support and capitalize it for all it's worth. Likewise the administration leadership seeks to enforce the Senate rules as rigidly as possible, both to hamper the proposed filibuster itself and to spread the idea that it is doomed from the start.

All this is designed to break down the resistance of a few senators whose capitulation would mean success for cloture.

May Have Been Error

Opposition startegy has been fully disclosed in announcements of elaborate tactics for filibuster. To what extent these boasts have themselves been threats to frighten Roosevelt and others into a sense of defeat is not yet clear.

It may be that the threats have been a strategic error such as sometimes is made by giving away plans to the enemy, and it may be that opposition leaders claimed a partially fictitious strength. The pot will have to boil for a while before you can tell how much is corned beef and how much cabbage. That goes for boasts and hopes of both sides.

There is a chance that the administration will try to shove a bill through the House which would give the President somewhat more of a victory than is represented by the Robinson-Hatch-Logan bill in the Senate—to which Roosevelt hasn't yet publicly committed himself. The chance at this writing isn't very fat, but it shouldn't be discounted entirely.

Trinity Project Gets Approval

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, July 14—Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and members of its traffic committee Tuesday afternoon gave their indorsement to the project for canalization of the Trinity river from Fort Worth to the Gulf of Mexico.

Vote on the proposal was taken after an all-day discussion of the question as related to the West Texas area. The discussion was preceded by the submission of the traffic committee's report on the project, which concluded by setting forth three points favoring the canal and three against the project.

Followed Other Regions

Action of the West Texas body gave the project the indorsement of all three regional chambers in the state, the South Texas and East Texas chambers of commerce having previously acted favorably on the canal.

Opposition to the project was led by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, represented by Wilburn Page president, and Dudley Foy, manager; M. C. Burton, Amarillo, represented the Panhandle and Santa Fe Railroad, and C. H. Newman, Wichita Falls.

Economic and industrial benefits to the project, would result from the improvement of the river as a waterway for barge traffic, Theodore Brent, New Orleans, economic consultant of the Trinity River Canal association; John M. Pouts, association manager, and Amon Carter, chairman of the association's executive committee, said.

Bandeen For Project

D. A. Bandeen, Stamford, manager of the West Texas chamber, said he was convinced the canal would bring benefits and industrial development generally to the West Texas area and recommended the approval of the project.

Newman previously had expressed the opinion that the West Texas chamber either should "oppose the project in toto or remain noncommittal." Foy, who arrived after the session got under way, expressed the fear that completion of the waterway would cause jobbers and manufacturers now located in West Texas towns to move nearer the navigable stream.

Newman insisted that the waterway to Dallas and Fort Worth would have the effect of "destroying our $2,000,000 milling investment at Wichita Falls."

Barter declared that "Fort Worth is trying to develop West Texas, not fight Wichita Falls."

Renters Of U. S. May Receive Some Aid

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — President Roosevelt said today he had asked government departments concerned with housing matters to make a detailed survey of the nations housing problem, treating rentals as well as home ownership.

He told his press conference after conferring with representatives of nine government agencies that building of new houses was lagging seriously behind at present due principally to increases in construction costs.

Saying that more than 50 per cent of the wage earning population of the country lives in rented homes and that the administration has done virtually nothing to lower rentals, the chief executive said that this problem now must be taken up seriously for the first time.

One of the specific problems on which he asked his conferees to study and report was the suggestion of the creation of a limited dividend corporation financed by savings of renters.

Wichita Falls Newsboy With Leg In Cast Hitchhikes 150 Miles To Thank Governor

AUSTIN, July 14 (AP) — A Wichita Falls newsboy hitchhiked nearly 150 miles today with his leg in a cast to thank Governor Allred, himself a former newsboy, for aid in obtaining an operation on the limb.

The youth, 20-year-old Charles Pfeifer, jr., came from the crippled children's hospital at Marlin. Badly crippled for 18 years as a consequence of an infantile paralysis attack, he enlisted the governor's help in getting him hospitalization under the auspices of the vocational rehabilitation work.

The youth told Allred that "it means everything to know that I'll soon have a leg almost as good as new."

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 14. (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 7 to 8 lower owing to easier Liverpool cables and spot house selling. Jly 12.32; Oct 12.37; Dec 12.28; Jan 12.30, Mch 12.35; May 12.37.

Early selling orders were attributed principally to Bombay account.

In addition to continued nervousness over conditions in China, sentiment was influenced by favorable southern weather advices. Selling tapered off after the initial selling orders had been taken by the trade, locals and commission houses.

Buying, believed to be for Shanghai account, then appeared and accounted for partial recoveries. October sold up from 12.35 to 12.42 and shortly after the first half hour was quoted at 12.40, when prices generally were 4 to 7 points net lower.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, July 14. (AP)—Cotton opened steady but 5 to 9 points lower in response to unfavorable Liverpool cables and the execution of some overnight selling orders.

Early weather and crop reports were extremely favorable and induced some liquidation and realizing by recent buyers. Trading was quiet.

Oct opened at 12.40, Dec. at 12.40, Jan. at 12.40, Mch at 12.44 and May at 12.45.

Referring to the court bill as "this thing that is splitting the country wide open," Sumners told the house:

Makes No Apologies

"The judiciary committee has kept this thing out of the house and it makes no apologies for it."

Many members, both Democrats and Republicans, applauded the Texan, author of the recently-enacted bill to let supreme court justices retire at 70 if they wish.

Rep. Golden (D-Calif) asked Sumners if he was advocating a sit down strike on the legislation.

"It would be a good thing to sit down on this issue and get to work on other legislation," replied the judiciary committee chairman.

Cruelty Of Mental Nature To Be Charged In Moody Suit

RENO, Nev., July 14 (AP)—Cruelty of a mental nature probably will be charged "when and if" Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, former first lady of tennis, files a suit for divorce, her attorney, Robert M. Price, said today.

Mrs. Moody arrived earlier this week at Lake Tahoe, Nev., but said she would make "no direct statement" concerning her plans to divorce Frederick Moody jr., San Francisco broker.

The former Helen Wills admitted through Price, however, that she intended to seek a divorce. She was married to Moody in 1929.

pasture to protect the plane.

The Soviet trio left Moscow at 3:22 a. m. Monday, (4:22 p. m. P. S. T. Sunday).

Ahead Of Schedule

Favorable winds kept the plane ahead of schedule, and last night it became known definitely the objective would be "beyond Oakland."

As originally announced by the Kremlin, the flight was to be from Moscow to San Francisco or beyond.

The purpose of the flight, as announced by Pilot Gumoff, was to "confirm again the possibility of regular communications intercontinentally by way of the north pole."

Held By Frenchmen

The previous long distance nonstop record of 5,637 miles, from New York to Syria, was established by the Frenchmen, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, in 1933.

They told army officers from March field that they had flown down to San Diego but were unable to land due to the fog. They retraced their course northward searching for March field.

They had no maps. The mountain range between San Diego and March field was confusing to them.

They did not know just where they were when the gasoline tank began to leak.

A welcome pasture was seen near here and the big Soviet plane's nose was pointed down and a safe landing was made.

Explanation Of Theory Given

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Bernard M. Baruch, in his recent commencement address at Union college, said the government should not "try to regulate everything," but would continue its regulatory activities to what he called the "uneconomic areas" of our national life. He was asked, in an interview, to explain what regulations he would apply, and when they should be applied.

* * *

By R. H. HIPPELHEUSER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 14—There are two kinds of "uneconomic areas." In common usage, the expression would apply to distressed areas; to a "dust bowl," or to communities in which mines have been worked, abandoned by industries, the populace left stranded without means of livelihood.

In talking of "uneconomic areas"—a phrase of his own, used to describe the "peaks and valleys"—Bernard M. Baruch has a second meaning.

Is Old, Old System

"It would be a time," Baruch said "when prices get so low that in order to survive, the producer has to cut his price and then his competitors do likewise. Wages are cut and it goes on and on, with widespread destruction to producers and wage earners. This is the old, old system of the survival of the fittest."

"This is economic war and, like nations at war, nobody ever wins—everybody loses. There as a degradation of all concerned because of lessening wages and a loss of capital values.

Two Things Set In Motion

"It is true that lower prices carry out the law of supply and demand with the effect that when prices get lower, two things are set in motion—first, with lower prices, production lessens, and second, consumption increases. In that way, balance is eventually achieved. Such an excessively low period, when nobody gets anything and labor is sweated, I call an 'uneconomic area.'

Before such a period is finally reached, with its uneconomic losses and sufferings, Baruch believes the government should step in with a minimum wage and a maximum hour, and with provisions for producers to get together temporarily on such restrictions of production as are necessary.

Should Be No Arbitrary Effort

Baruch said there should be no arbitrary effort to hold up prices.

"Let us suppose the price of wheat is $1.15 and it started downward. I would not put the government operations into action until the price of wheat went to a point where the farmers began to be distressed by wheat selling at below the cost of production—say at 70 cents or whatever the cost figures show. Then the government should step in and commerce to buy wheat or lend money on the crop. There is no need for wheat at the cost of production or lower. It will go back to a dollar and more later anyway, so why let it go down to a point where people will be ruined and society gets no benefits.

Suffering Will Be Lessened

"If the downward spiral is cushioned by purchases and loans, not at fixed prices but on the day when, the social and financial suffering will be lessened and often avoided. The natural laws would be softened, but would still be in effect. This is what is supposed to take place naturally, but when it occurs in a limited time, disaster comes.

"Let us see what would happen in cotton. Let us say the price of cotton is 12 cents a pound. Suppose it starts down, because of a big crop or for some other reason. Some agency would buy or lend money on a part of the crop, but not on the whole crop, at say 9 or 10 cents. If the prices still went downward, the agency could buy or lend more at 8 1-2 cents and so on down. I prefer lending. If the government did this, we would not have any sudden break impoverishing the South, demoralizing mills and sweating labor.

"The consumers would know they would have to act because the government would act if they did not. They would know there would be no wide open break downward from 10 to 9 cents and would have to buy without holding out for such a break.

Wells Man Is Held On Charge Of Attempted Mail Extortion

TYLER, July 14 (AP)—Troy J. Grimes of Wells, Tex., was held in jail here today after failure to make $1,000 bond fixed after a hearing before United States Commissioner Ed L. Taylor on a charge of attempted extortion by mail.

Grimes was arrested at Lufkin on a charge filed by Postoffice Inspector H. W. Robertson of Beaumont in connection with a letter mailed at Wells demanding $300. The letter, postal authorities said, accused another person of an unlawful act and demanded the $300 for silence.

Beauty Operators Forced To Listen To Many Wild Stories Of Customers

By EVA ROB WATKINS

Women let down their hair figuratively, as well as literally, in beauty parlors.

There—in an atmosphere indicative of one part confessional cloister and one part a broadcast chamber—their talk runs the audible gamut of all that is or is not fancied.

They Tell All

What do they tell beauty operators? What don't they? The boy friend and men in general. Landladies. Clothing. Babies. Love (a subject conrtibuted to by those in love and those waiting around for an affair of the heart).

Since many come into the beauty shops to "get the works" for a special date, they can't resist letting someone in on their excitement.

"I have learned to fix an itnerested expression on my face, go on thinking my own thoughts, and say 'un-huh' at regular intervals," said one shop operator.

"But you would never guess how I met him. It really was quite a coincidence—." And so begins a story that will last the duration of a "set." One operator said grimly that "such people" were "sure of an audience that wouldnt' walk out on them or they would never get the story told."

Imagination Used

"And Henry, you know he's my husband, Henry said I'd have to take the dress back first thing in the morning." Imaginations run riot. Wives conjure up pictures of wife-beating husbands for the benefit the of operator, who wouldn't recognize the mild, bespectacled man on the street the next day as the husband of the woman whose brows she plucked, and who likely was wearing the very dress she had to "take back."

Booths are thin. Recently one righteously indignant woman was telling just what she would say "the very next time I see her. If she thinks she can get away with stuff like that—"

An operator entered the booth to whisper that the person under fire was in the next booth. The "tip" was effective.

Operations come in for their share of the conversation. But what "burns operators up" is that these women wait until they get under a roaring dryer to scream bloody details at each other.

Two General Classes

A few operators are convinced that people fall into two general classes—"the roomers and the landladies."

"So we just used her ole iron, soon as she was gone. When we got through we had to put it in the refrigerator to get it cool before she got back."

On the other hand—"They rinse out clothes. I'm not fussing about that. Every girl has to. But they let them drip—and right on the rug."

A beauty shop is an ideal place for a confab of the "purl-two-knit-two sisters." Many bring their knitting with them.

To a man, shop owners are glad Wallie Warfield is fading out of the picture conversationally. They frankly "nearly went nuts" listening to what Mrs. Tom, Dick and Harry would have done in Wallie's place.

Complete relaxation is the cause of all the "hair letting down," say beauty operators. When the English writer, J. B. Priestly, in his "Midnight on the Desert" remarked, "it is bad business being a woman anywhere, but in America it must be hell, because they never relax," he apparently did not speak from the experience of a visit to a typical American beauty shop.

Texas Girl Dies At Missionary Post

RICHMOND, Va., July 14 (AP)—The Southern Baptist Foreign Mission board today announced the death of Miss Lucille Reagen, veteran missionary, from yellow fever at Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa. Word of her death came here by cable.

Miss Reagen, a native of Coleman, Tex., was appointed to missionary work in Africa June 1921, and had served on that continent for 16 years, the board said.

She was a graduate of Simmons college, Baylor university in Texas, and the Southwest Baptist Training school for young women at Fort Worth.

Father Fires At Attacker Of Daughter But Misses Victim

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP) — Henry Hundreiser, 37, walked calmly into the Summerdale police station early today and fired four shots at John Ardelean, 17, held on charges of raping, beating and stabbing his nine-year-old daughter.

The shots missed although fired at a distance of three feet.

The girl is recovering from 33 wounds. She was stabbed 17 times in the chest with an ice pick, and there were seven head cuts, requiring 25 stitches. She was also stabbed and slashed on the back and arms with a pair of pruning shears.

Two New Mexico Prisoners Make Escape On Tuesday

SANTA FE, N. M., July 14 (AP) — Two New Mexico state penitentiary convicts escaped from the prison clay pits near Santa Fe in a truck late Tuesday and state police and prison guards quickly spread with bloodhounds into the mountains north of the city.

The prisoners were Art Wood, 21, and Larid Betts.

Details of the escape and whether the men were armed were not disclosed by prison officials.

Prison officials said Wood was sentenced from Bernalillo county last January 5 to a term of from one to one and a half years for assault with a deadly weapon. Betts was serving a two to five year sentence for criminal assault.

More than 800,000 members are enrolled in the Itinerant Workers' Union, Hoboes of America.

Last Survivor Of Notorious Dalton Gang Dies Tuesday

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, July 14—Emmett Dalton, 69, last survivor of the notorious Dalton gang that terrorized the Middle West in the early nineties, died at his home Tuesday after a long illness.

Dalton was shot 23 times and escaped lynching in a wild battle with officers and citizens of Coffeyville, Kan., October 5, 1892. In that pitched battle his older brothers, Bob and Grat, and Dick Broadwell and Bill Powers, were shot to death.

After his recovery, Dalton was given a life sentence for bank robbery, served 14 1-2 years and was pardoned. He came to California 17 years ago, joined a church, and started a campaign for prison reform. He became a real estate dealer and contractor, wrote a book "When The Daltons Rode," engaged in film work, both as a scenario writer and actor.

"Murders are never committed in cold blood," Dalton once told the late Gov. James Rolph of California. "They are always the result of the moment's passion and the killers are all crazy." Dalton also told the governor he believed 60 per cent of testimony in murder trials was perjured.

After Dalton's release from prison he married Julia Johnson of Bartlesville, Okla. She survives him.

Demo Leader Dies Today

Kentucky.

Robinson, for the past 15 years Democratic leader in the senate, has been one of the outstanding political figures in Washington.

After attending the University of Arkansas and the Virginia law school, Robinson began reading law in a small lawyer's office back in 1892. Two years later, he was elected to the general assembly of his home state.

Becomes Chief Career

While serving in the legislature, Robinson continued to practice law and has, off and on, since. But public office became his chief career when he was elected to congress in 1902, during the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt.

After serving in the house 10 years, Robinson retired to become governor of Arkansas. He only stayed in the governor's office a few weeks, however, because a vacancy appeared in the senate and he was quickly chosen to fill it.

Robinson was only serving his second term in the senate when he became the recognized leader of the opposition to ratification of the Washington arms treaty. This projected him into position to be chosen Democratic leader in 1922 when Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, retired from that post.

Was New Deal Chieftain

When the Democrats gained control of the senate along with the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Robinson became majority leader. As such, he has been the New Deal's legislative chieftain, and steered through congress the mass of new laws initiated by President Roosevelt.

Even before he became senate leader, Robinson had become recognized nationally in the Democratic party. He was chairman of the party convention in 1920 which selected Roosevelt as vice-presidential candidate.

Eight years later the Democratic convention chose him as vice-presidential candidate to run on the ticket with Governor "Al" Smith, of New York. Because of that, he had been chosen as the official administration spokesman for replies to Smith's attacks on the New Deal.

Again in 1936, when Roosevelt was renominated at Philadelphia, Robinson was the convention's permanent chairman.

Conservative At Heart

In his capacity as majority leader during the New Deal, Robinson supported the administration's program from beginning to end. Critics have contended that he was abandoning his principles in doing so, because he was a conservative at heart.

But others have contended that Robinson's career displayed a consistent streak of liberalism. From his early house days he supported child labor and anti-trust legislation as well as other measures characterized as "liberal."

He was without doubt one of the senate's most popular members, despite a violent temper which on occasion caused him difficulties. Away from work, Robinson was one of the most genial of men. He was famous for his story telling. His chief recreations were hunting and fishing.

Summarizing Sunday Sermon For Thirteen Mondays Set As Penalty For Driver

South Plains Scouts To Arrive Tonight

More than 50 South Plains Boy Scouts and adult leaders sped this afternoon over the last lap of a journey of more than 5,000 miles homeward bound from their national jamboree at Washington D. C. and a trip through New York state.

They are scheduled to arrive aboard the Santa Fe at 10 o'clock tonight.

Raley Only Casualty

Telegrams received at Scout headquarters Tuesday and by various parents said, in substance, that "everything's fine," and that the trip has passed without unhappy incident of any kind. The only casualty among the 69 boys and leaders who made the trip from South Plains council was Bedford Raley, Eagle Scout, who underwent an operation after an acute attack of appendicitis the day the jamboree opened. Young Raley made such speedy recovery that, to the surprise even of surgeons who attended him, he was able to make the side trip with Scouts at the end of the National encampment.

Various outings the boys have attended have kept them occupied for a period of approximately three weeks starting with a three-day practice jamboree at Camp Post from which the start to Washington was made. There, another three-day practice camp preceded the opening of the jamboree June 30. Following the breakup there, the boys started home via New York City, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

Among cards and messages received from them Tuesday were several addressed from the tower of Empire State building in New York City, the world's tallest man-made structure.

Lightning Bolts Shatter Old Proverb; Strike Same Place

TIFFIN, O., July 14 (AP)—Lightning bolts shattered the old proverb today and struck twice "in the same place."

That place strangely, was the home of A. D. German, goverment weather observer.

German said the first bolt shattered part of the roof, and the second demolished a radio, stunning the observer and his wife.

Texas' Tenancy Has Improved

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 14 — Agriculture, education, and health authorities of Texas believe farm tenant conditions in the state are improving.

State officials, with few dissenting opinions, credit federal aid programs of vocational education, PWA and WPA work in farm sanitation, Resettlement projects, and Rural Electrification with giving impetus to a gradual improvement.

The tenant class in Texas for half a century preceding 1930 grew from roughly two-fifths to three-fifths of the total of those engaged in agriculture. In 1880 there were 65,400 out of 174,000 farmers. In 1930 there were 174,000 tenants among 495,000 farmers.

Decreased Since 1930

From 1930 to 1935, however, the number of tenants decreased 15,500 while the total number of farmers increased 5,800 and farm owners increased 21,400.

Explanations offered for the decrease which occurred in the peak years of the depression included:

(1) Tenants, forced out by landowners who received money for allowing the tenants' fields to lie idle, moved to the city on relief rolls;

(2) Federal loans permitted many of the better class tenants to buy land; and

Moved Back To Farms

3) Land-owners' city dwelling children, finding themselves without means of support and too proud to go on relief rolls, moved back to the farms and were "given" tracts to cultivate.

C. E. Baughman, chief clerk in the department of agriculture, said "I think the AAA program did more harm than good. Tenants were driven from the farm."

Ralph W. Moore, master of the Texas Grange and member of the Rural Electrification administration, disagreed with Baughman. "If they hadn't resettled some of those tenants, they would still be on relief rolls," he said.

Sanitary Conditions Improved

Public health officials said sanitary conditions generally among tenants were below ordinarily safe standards, the average tenant having only a fairly safe water supply and poor to fair sewage disposal facilities. On the whole, however, they said conditions had shown a marked improvement over the past 20 years.

Building of pit privies with WPA and PWA aid helped many. These were constructed with government labor, the owner or tenant furnishing the material.

Pellagra, hookworm, malaria, and dysentery were said by health officials to top the list of diseases among tenants and these officials regarded their prevalency high.

All authorities agreed the tenant class had the highest birth rate and the poorest educational and health facilities of any in the nation.

Railroad Asks Local Agent To Do Something About Girl's Stopping Passenger Trains

(By The Associated Press)

CARMI, Ill., July 14—Its local agent has received a communication from the Louisville and Nashville railroad, asking him to keep 19-year-old Maxine Bayley from stopping passenger trains.

Engineer Orlie Clabourn claimed he halted his train recently near here after three girls driving alongside on a graveled road had waved frantically at him for several miles. He waved back for a while, but finally decided it must be something important.

The train stopped and the baggageman opened the door just in time to meet Miss Bayley.

"Can I mail this letter on your train, please?" she asked.

unexpectedly through the trees. At the far end of it he could see a tumbled down and apparently deserted shack. Making for it, in a blind instinct to reach shelter, Ted struggled over to this goal, muttering in incoherent delirious phrases.

Shelter At Last

As he approached, there was a slight movement behind the shuttered window. The next minute, a feminine figure appeared in the broken down doorway.

For a terrified second, the girl on the threshold and the exhausted and delirious man stared at each other. The girl clutched the sagging wooden frame of the door. Her brown eyes were wide, and her dark hair seemed in sharp contrast to her face, which showed up without an ounce of color in her startled surprise of the moment.

The amazement in her look gradually changed to concern as she took in Ted's desperate plight, and with a cry of pity she ran over to him and stooped down to try to help him.

With a convulsive effort, Ted struggled to straighten up, but with a groan he sank back unconscious.

Her first terrified surprise over, the girl proved herself equal to the emergency facing her. She could not have been more than 18, but she had a wiry strength in her tall slender frame.

Half carrying, half dragging Ted, she managed to get him to the door of the shack. The sky had gradually darkened with heavy clouds that piled up in the east and threatened a sudden downpour.

After one glance at the lowering sky, the girl darted inside the tiny enclosure and quickly made up the cot on which she evidently had spent the night.

Then, with one last mighty effort, she pulled Ted inside and managed to lift him onto the cot just as the first heavy drops of the storm splashed on the roof of the shack.

Panting from her exertion, she leaned back a moment against the wall, and studied the face of the man she had brought in.

Evidently reassured by what she saw she dropped to her knees with a murmur of pity, and examined his wound. Her fingers worked with a gentle expertness.

Rising to her feet, she took a basin and filled it with water. Then she pulled a clean cloth from the drawer of a rude wash-stand in one corner and deftly proceeded to wash Ted's wound.

The rain, gathering with the swift intensity of mountain storms, beat a wild tattoo on the roof, and gusts of wind shook the tiny shelter to its foundations. But the girl was obvious to the elements outside as she bent, with absorbed attention, to her battle with life and death.

Kay is disappointed when Ted fails to arrive tomorrow.
