The Junior class of the high school will present a three act farce at the high school auditorium Friday night, and one of the high lights of the play is in the climax where the "Incubator Husband" gets a black eye. ### School Projects Near Completion With Repainting

The projects at the local schools neared completion this week with the repainting of the football stadium fences and the completion of the new dressing rooms in the high school building. The project which called for the complete cleanup of the ground, the building of tennis courts, and remodeling of the stadium have been under way since early fall. The softball stadium was increased by a tier of seats on the eastern side of the gridiron. This will make possible the seating of an additional 500 fans during the next football season. The steel and wooden section was built along the same style as the original stands. With the bi-district winners playing several important games at home next year, the stadium will be needed. It is possible that the team will open here with Nocona next season.

Tennis Courts
The tennis courts were completed in time to start the practice for the interscholastic league competition. The students have been working over time to practice since approval by the government.

As this project neared completion materials were exhausted and the senior class of the high school furnished cement to complete the project. The entire stadium is receiving a coat of heavy green paint. The school is furnishing the paint and WPA labor. By the opening of the season the neatest and most complete plant of the area will be presented to the public.

Inside the building the dressing rooms for the athletic teams have been enlarged and remodeled completely. The teams will have room for showers and a dressing room never before offered to the teams.

The old football dressing room will be used by the track and basketball players. The newly expanded rooms will be for football players only.

The rooms include lockers which allow the airing of the practice suits, equipment shute, medicine cabinet, rubdown tables, benches.

Gammil-Lax Co. Gives Free Show

The Gammil-Lax Implement company, agents for Allis-Chalmers tractors and machines, will present a free show Saturday, March 6, at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. at the show rooms of the company. The picture shows will be given in connection with the exhibition presented by the FFA live stock and poultry show at the building.

The show consists of several reels showing soil erosion, seeding, soil building, cultivating, and harvesting. Plenty of seats are available and all free. Everybody, and especially the farmers are invited to attend.

Track Candidates Start Grind For County Contests

18 Members Report To Coach Hill For Interscholastic Events

TRAINING STARTED MONDAY

Coach Hill reported that he had about 18 men working for the county interscholastic league track and field events which will be held at the Iowa Park Stadium March 26. The boys reported Monday for the first warmup session of the season, and the preliminary exercises started the conditioning process.

The team this year will make the annual challenge to the supremacy of the Electra school squad in Wichita county. For several years the Tigers have dominated both the county and district.

Philips Oil Test Reported Plugged

Reports this week that the Philips-Moore test near Randlett had been plugged during the past week and abandoned as a dry hole. The test was at slightly over 200 feet when the announcement was made. Whether the abandonment was final or not was not announced at the time of the action.

The well was the second drilled by the Philips petroleum company in that district. It was located at section 6, 5, 12, N. E. 4 SW 40 on the D. J. Moore farm south west of Randlett. It was located one half mile east of the original Philips-Warren test.

Saturday Night Tax Deadline

City Manager Ross Reagan announced this week that Saturday night would be the deadline for the payment of the first quarter of the city tax. After that date any tax account, which has not been started will become entirely delinquent. Those taking advantage of the extended payments may pay the first fourth at this time and the other portion each quarter. However, the failure to meet any quarterly payment will make the remainder of the tax due delinquent. The citizens of the city have been urged by Mr. Reagan to take advantage of the deferred payment plan as soon as possible.

Cousin Edith backed into her first husband's car and smashed a fender, but he was pretty nice about it. He didn't talk as mean as he would have talked if she had still been his wife.

Farmers And All Chicken Raisers Invited To Show

Culling Of Chickens And Baby Chicks Disease Films To Be Presented

OPEN TO PUBLIC 6

M. S. Dean and Jess Johnson, teachers in the local high school opened the presentation of a series of shows on farm subjects at the high school last Monday night. Next Monday the culling of chickens and the treatment of diseases of baby chicks will feature the two films that will be shown.

Mr. Dean announced Wednesday that every person interested in the raising of chickens was invited to attend the shows. The films were prepared by the experts of the government, and give the most scientific discussion of the subjects available at the present time.

Want to Marry

Read the want ad section today.

Young people who are contemplating marrying in the near future should read the want ad section of this week's paper. The local theatre is looking for just such a young couple, and wish to invite them to have the ceremony performed on the stage of the theatre in the near future.

The ad is as follows:
WANTED Couple to get married! If you plan to get married or know of some couple who are planning to be married soon, get in touch with the manager of the Palace Theatre. He has a proposition that is sure to interest you!

Comedy Romance At Palace Sat Nite

Lilting music, rollicking laughter and glowing romance combine to make "Sing Me a Love Song" a Cosmopolitan production released through First National, which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Palace Saturday night, one of the most entertaining musical comedies of the year.

There is an all star cast headed by James Melton, the radio singer, Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert, Za Su Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Nat Pendleton.

The story by Harry Sauber deals with the colorful adventures of a wealthy and somewhat irresponsible youth who goes to work incognito in his own department store to find out why the wheels aren't going around as they should. In doing so he falls in love with one of his clerks gets himself and her tangled up in a series of innocent misadventures, which land both in jail. Melton's rich melodious voice will be heard in six songs altogether, three of them written by that famous song team of Harry Warren and Al Dubin, especially for the picture; one written by Jacques Wolfe, while the other two are old timers.

Hugh Herbert, as a wealthy kleptomaniac, Allen Jenkins, as an elevator operator in love with Za Su Pitts, also a clerk and chum of Miss Ellis, Nat Pendleton, a belligerent chauffeur, Walter Catlett, pompous floor walker and Hobart Cavanaugh, furnish most of the comedy.

One of the men spoke: I dug this hole where I was told to and began to put the dirt back like I was supposed to. But all the dirt won't go back in. What'll I do? For a long while the supervisor pondered the problem. Then: I have it! There's only one thing to do. You'll have to dig the hole deeper.

Burk Students To Try For Honor At Iowa Park Events

Teachers and Pupils Drilling For Interscholastic Contests

SET FOR MARCH 25

Students and teachers of the Burkburnett grade school and high school were drilling this week for entry into the events of the interscholastic league meet to be held the last week in March at Iowa Park. Every department of the school has started the process of choosing the students to represent the local schools at the annual contests.

The organization of the league present the various departments of the school in play and contest form. Everything from Arithmetic art appreciation enters into the league events.

Last year the students from the local school won high honors at the meet held in Burkburnett, and an attempt will be made to repeat even a greater part of the event first places this season.

It has been estimated that approximately 350 of the students will participate in the contests from the local school. The single events such as debate, oratory, play, and similar literary events require very few students. However, choral singing, track and field events, art appreciation, music memory and similar groups call for a large number of students.

The softball contests which are to be held later will attract several hundred more students from the county schools. Burkburnett will be represented by teams at that event.

In track and field the boys have been drilling all week for the honors. Every year Electra makes a habit of winning the events, and the 18 boys out this year are making an attempt to end the domination of the Tigers at the meet.

Firemen Make Run Number Two Thurs.

Members of the Burkburnett fire department made the second run of the week Thursday afternoon about 5:30 when a certain blew into the stove in the property of Jack Brumley. A small rent house in the rear of Mr. Brumley's home was the scene of the small blaze. Little damage was done before members of the department arrived with a hand pump. Previously this week the firemen had made a run to the Doyle addition where two houses were destroyed.

Lions Club

Miss Mildred Mae Teeters sang two songs accompanied by Miss Lois Winchell as the features of the Lions club program Tuesday night. Both entertainers are from Grandfield. They were introduced by Ross Reagan, program chairman. The speakers were Superintendent Phillip Cumming of the Floydada public schools and Mr. Hutchins, principal of the grade school. These speakers were visitors in Burkburnett on their way to the superintendent's meeting.

Public Sale To Be Held At Krenek Farm

F. J. Krenek announced Thursday that he would hold a public sale at his farm on the Stewart location one mile west and two miles north of the community of Randlett, Friday, March 5. The sale will start promptly at 10 a. m. Horses, mules, chickens, implements, feed stuff and other farm products will be sold. E. O. ### AN OLD TIMER

G. W. Wigham, one of Burk's first citizens, recalling experiences of early days while here on a short visit Wednesday.

Mr. G. W. Wigham Recalls History Burk's Beginning

Builder of First Bridge Tells Experiences Of Starting Structure

VISITOR WITH WIFE

Standing on the Red river bridge near Burkburnett Wednesday, G. W. Wigham, builder of the first bridge near this city and pioneer resident of the area said, "We used to cross this river on corn cobs." The audience of several friends were astounded because there are times when the Red takes a wild notion to flood and at such times it could not be crossed in a fair sized steamboat.

However, Mr. Wigham did several things first in Burkburnett and area. He established the first gin, built the first bridge this side of Denison, bought the first lot in the town lot sale, led the fight for the building of the first school, actually plotted the first subdivision, the Wigham addition.

First Gin

It was in connection with the first gin that Mr. Wigham provided the corn cob and shuck crossing near Burkburnett. During 1907 and 1908 the gin purchased 200,000 bushels of corn. The cobs and shucks from this corn was thrown into the sandy ford across the bed of river to make it possible for wagons to cross. The deep sand prevented the normal pulling of a loaded wagon.

While visiting his brother in law and sister Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Goins Wednesday the resident of Panhandle, Texas, recalled many interesting things that happened during the early history of the community. Mr. Wigham is a rancher in the Panhandle district at the present.

In 1919 a spring flood made the previous crossing impractical. The railway bridge had been used for a few wagons, but the bed of that bridge burned out, and the railroad company refused to build the floor back.

With the backing of the community Mr. Wigham started the bridge. Citizens donated $3,000 to the enterprise. After five months struggle with the uncertain moods of the river the wooden toll structure was completed.

Celebration

The celebration that followed for three days has been called the biggest party ever held in Burkburnett by all old timers. The people on both sides of the river were given free passage for three days, and a prolonged picnic was held. Speakers and entertainers from all over Northern Texas and Southern Oklahoma attended. The Indians came in flocks to watch and play. Among the speakers were Judge A. H.

Clubs And City To Cooperate To Make Camp'gn Complete

Citizens Reminded of Law Requiring Property To Be Kept In Good Condition

PAINTING URGED

Business Houses Take Lead In Complete Renovation Of Property

The annual cleanup drive will start in Burkburnett next Monday morning, and every citizen in the city has been requested by the clubs and the city government to start with complete cleanup of all property.

The Chamber of Commerce and the city will not haul the trash free this year, but have asked each property owner to have premises cleaned. Those desiring been asked to call the city hall the services of a trash hauler have 180 or the chamber of commerce 101. Their names will be listed for immediate attention.

Painting Planned

Several business houses have recently started remodeling and painting of property. In addition to those mentioned in recent issues, the Burk Gas Co., the Cornett Ice Co. and the Pure Ice Cream Co. have started painting and remodeling. Other business places plan renovations in the near future.

At the home Garden clubs and civic organizations have started a campaign for beautification of the property. The city is rapidly becoming garden and tree conscious. Many beautiful homes have been improved. The unsightly oil pits on the school premises have been removed during the winter.

Committee

The civic affairs committee is directing the campaign. The members of the committee are A. H. Lohofener, chairman, Leo Dudley, H. S. Grace, J. S. Mills, Dr. I. D. Russel, A. B. Sandler, and John H. Cooper.

In addition to trash and other unsightly junk to be removed the committee has urged the property owners to clear all places where weeds have grown, and is as far as possible to prevent the spring rains collecting unhealthful pools.

Football Boys To Entertain Members Burk Bulldog Club

Fans To Be Guests At Feed Thursday Night At Rotary Club Rooms

FANS RECOGNIZED

Members of the Burkburnett Bulldog club will be guests of the football team at the banquet Thursday night in the Rotary club rooms. The members of the team will provide the food and entertainment. Among the features will be speeches by various members of the team, and the music provided by the string band of the team.

The Bulldog club is an association organized for the purpose of promoting the interest of athletics in the local high school. These members have provided a central organization for the working out of problems associated with sporting events and especially with the football season.

Coach Volney Hill and assistant Polk Robison have prepared the preliminaries of food and similar items, but the boys have arranged the entire program. Tolly McKown, captain and star of the team has charge of the program features.

European Powers Agree on Blockade of Spain to Insulate the War—Farm Tenant Program—Supreme Court Controversy Grows.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

SO FAR as the international non-intervention committee can do it, the war in Spain is now insulated. Representatives of 26 European nations agreed that no more volunteers for either side in the civil conflict should be permitted to enter the Iberian peninsula, effective at midnight February 20; and they laid plans for a complete blockade by land and sea that would prevent the importation of any more men or war munitions. Only Portugal dissented, objecting to establishment of frontier guards on her territory; Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Russia ignored the Portuguese protests and went ahead with the blockade plans, which are to be put into effect by March 6.

The decisions were reached after France delivered a virtual ultimatum to her fellow committee members to end their bickering and warned Italy she would not stand for "open invasion of Spain." The French were quick to place guards at all strategic points along the Franco-Spanish frontier.

The international naval patrols presumably will not have authority to stop vessels suspected of carrying arms and men to Spain, but will report ship movements to the committee for action and will place observers on the vessels to check cargoes.

Supposing this blockade to be successful, it may well be that the Spanish civil war will die of inanition. Then may be brought about that which the international committee seeks—international mediation between the insurgents and the loyalist government.

For the present both sides are renewing their efforts for decisive victory. The fascists, still driving hard at the "life line" that connects Madrid and Valencia, are attacking the capital itself again. Their airplanes made two night bombing assaults on the city and its environs, killing a number of persons; and their artillery constantly shells the highways to Valencia.

The loyalist government, at its temporary seat in Valencia, took a new mandate of absolute power from all Popular Front parties and mobilized all available military power to oppose the insurgent forces. All military classes of the last five years were drafted for immediate war service.

PRIME MINISTER STANLEY BALDWIN'S government of Great Britain is asking for $7,500,000,000 to finance its "war plan in time of peace," and is meeting with determined opposition from the Liberals, Laborites and others in parliament. These especially object to the plan for enlargement of the nation's land, sea and air forces by a $2,000,000,000 loan and increased taxation.

Sec'y of Navy Swanson Commenting on the British naval construction program, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations of the American navy, served notice that any foreign nations expanding their navies beyond the standards of recent treaties might expect that the United States would match their construction. He said it was his understanding that this nation was definitely committed to the maintenance of a "navy second to none." To maintain that principle, he declared, it would become necessary for the United States to build new ships if other powers did.

The present United States building program calls for start of construction this year on two new capital ships. Great Britain already has laid the keels of two new craft and the program announced in London calls for the start, after April 1, of construction of a third new vessel. When Britain lays a third keel, then this government is likely to start similar construction.

In a special message to congress President Roosevelt urged legislation to "improve the present intolerable condition" of 3,000,000 farm tenants, presenting this four-point program:

1. Action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience.
  2. Modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy.
  3. The retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming and assistance to the families living thereon in finding homes on good land.
  4. Cooperation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system.
- Congressional leaders promised immediate action, and Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee said the Jones-Bankhead $500,000,000 farm tenant bill now before congress would be made the basis for the new legislation.

The President's farm tenancy committee, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, recommended that congress make available "a definite sum each year for a number of years" for a land-purchase program, but mentioned no definite figure. Wallace said, however, he thought Jones' proposal for $50,000,000 annual appropriation for ten years is "reasonable."

THOUGH President Roosevelt persisted in his intention to force through congress his measure to "reform" the federal judiciary, law-makers who have been his warm supporters are coming out one by one in hot opposition to his plan to pack the Supreme court.

Senator Clark studied the scheme carefully before issuing their statements. The announcements of these men was scarcely offset by a radio address by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, dutifully defending the President's plan.

Senator Clark said he was entirely in accord with the minor proposals in Mr. Roosevelt's scheme, but was totally unable to agree with the provisions for packing the Supreme court.

Then came Senator Wheeler, stalwart radical, with a statement which it was reported he made public over the protests of the White House. He said in part: "I am, always have been, and will continue to be opposed to the usurpation of legislative functions by the courts; I am, have been, and will be opposed to usurpation of legislative and judicial functions by the executive branch of the government."

"There is nothing democratic, progressive, or fundamentally sound in the proposal advanced by the administration."

Attorney General Cummings advanced these two reasons for supporting the President's proposal:

New blood should be injected into the judiciary in order that the Constitution shall be construed in keeping with the changing needs produced by new complexities of national life.

The congestion of dockets in the federal courts is largely due to the inability of aged and infirm judges to perform their share of the work.

Investigation has shown, however, that the second reason is unsound.

Commenting on Mr. Cummings' speech, Senator Glass of Virginia said: "I think it indicates that the country is in infinitely greater need of an attorney general than of additional judges on the Supreme court or of judicial wet nurses for six of the present members of the court."

Senator Minton of Indiana defended the plan in a radio address but probably did it more harm than good, for he frankly admitted the purpose of the administration is to change the personnel and views of the Supreme court, in order that President Roosevelt's New Deal program will be held constitutional.

Other senators who came out against the President's plan were Nye of North Dakota, radical Republican; Dene of Washington, Democrat; Burke of Nebraska, Democrat; and Van Nuys of Indiana, Democrat. On the other side were McAdoo of California; Thomas of Utah and La Follette of Wisconsin.

Senators Bone and Wheeler introduced a resolution for a constitutional amendment that would give congress the power to override Supreme court decisions by a two-thirds vote of both houses, but only after a national election involving congressional seats has intervened so that the people have had a chance to speak on the issue.

The American Federation of Labor and Labor's Nonpartisan league declared their support of the court packing scheme, and the National Grange expressed its opposition. Legislatures of many states adopted resolutions for or against the plan, most of them being in opposition.

Mr. Roosevelt received several groups of senators, some of whom are among those opposing the packing of the Supreme court, and reiterated his intention to push his plan through congress without modification. He said the people had voted for a New Deal and were going to get it.

Real Story of Flood Disaster Is Found Behind the Headlines

Humor, Pathos, Heroism, Suffering Are All Part of Central Valley Saga.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

STATISTICS about the great flood, the havoc it has wreaked and the misery which lies in its wake are staggering in themselves, merely as statistics. But they do not begin to tell the real story of what it is like to be actually face to face with disaster.

More than a million homeless! Four or five hundred dead—really more than that, it is certain! Hundreds of millions of dollars damage! Great cities threatened with disease! Food and drinking water running short!

Awe-inspiring, indeed, are these headlines. But they are too general to do justice to the spectacle. The way to understand what they really mean is to get down in the flood zone, or in the adjacent areas where the refugees have been rushed to safety. There in the countless individual cases which may be seen first-hand are stories of pathos, suffering, humor, selfishness, generosity and heroism that no statistics could measure.

Heroism? Everybody's a hero down here. Heroes are a nickel apiece, and most of them are nameless.

Policeman Saves 300. They are of many kinds. Picking a few out of the hat:

There is the parachute jumper who was determined to rush badly needed medical serums, food and lamps to Paducah, Ky., one of the cities hardest hit. Leaving Louisville he planned to drop the food if possible where the marooned might reach it, then to carry the serum down by parachute. He got it there.

Nobody remembers who the Louisville policeman was who kept 300 women and children marooned in a school from going hungry. He swam three-quarters of a mile through ice-cold waters to seek assistance. At the end of his swim he had to break into a store, climb up some shelves and struggle with a water-logged telephone.

Rescuers rowed like fury to remove three expectant mothers who were marooned in the same place. Their bathing average was only .667, for only two of the women reached the hospital in time. The third gave birth to a son in a rowboat tossing on the angry waves.

Throughout the emergency period the short wave radio operators were heroes. When all other means of communication failed they often "came through." In one instance they were credited with saving the lives of 400 in a single spot. The victims were marooned on the second floor of a California (Ohio) schoolhouse. Police got reports via short wave that water was pushing up the floor. After hours of struggle they succeeded in removing the trapped persons.

Rescue Animals, Too.

Regular commercial broadcasting stations were heroes, too. WHAS and WAVE in Louisville did noble work in carrying bulletins and instructions to victims and rescue crews. When these two stations were forced off the air by plant failures due to the flood, other stations carried their bulletins, of great importance to coast guard boats, police squads and national guard units—when these bulletins did not interfere with commercially sponsored broadcasts.

Human nature being what it is, some persons in the flood area parade their wealth before the eyes of envying neighbors. But wealth is no longer measured by money, it's measured by boots. Those that have them love to turn them so that the yellow linings will be noticeable for blocks. Those who haven't say the darn things are too hot and heavy anyway.

Some persons become equal to the occasion in unusual ways. Take, for instance, Ida Webb and Virgil O.

But WSM in Nashville cancelled all programs, at a great loss in revenue, to carry the Louisville bulletins. Yet WSM is WHAS' chief competitor.

Heroism was not confined to the saving of human life. Rescue crews often risked their own lives to save dogs, cats and other animals who were floating on debris. One man in a rowboat lost his oars in rescuing a dog from a floating crate. A little while later, the dog, apparently disgusted with an oarsman who couldn't hang onto his oars, leaped out of the boat and swam ashore.

Some animals did not fare so well. Those in the Cincinnati zoo were starving until the Detroit zoological park sent two tons of horse meat. All other meat had to be reserved for human beings.

Humanity is for the most part generous at heart. When the Red Cross made it known that $10,000,000 was needed at once, the response was quick and sympathetic. Even those who were caught in the catastrophe wanted to help. One young mother, poorly clothed, said in a shelter house at Sharpsburg, Pa., "I wish I had something to give those poor people. I know what it's like. Last year the nice dining room furniture I got for a wedding gift got smashed to bits. Just little pieces it was when I went home."

They're Not All Generous.

One little girl, obviously from an impoverished family, stopped at a relief station and laid a freshly-baked loaf of home-made bread on the counter. "Mama sent it," she said. Another little girl, Mary Lynn Eisner, nine, of Cassville, Wis., won the $10 bank night prize in the theater drive. She would have liked a new doll or two, but she sent the whole ten to the Red Cross disaster relief fund.

Homeless, this tiny refugee can still smile for mother.

Some flood victims were not so generous or heroic. In Lawrenceburg, Ind., three tiny babies were found in a deserted house. They were cared for at an emergency hospital while authorities searched for their parents. In Cincinnati a "flapper" in gay orange ski trousers and a leather jacket was heard to

Then it was discovered that they had neglected to provide diapers for babies. A rush call to merchants produced 600.

There were other changes in the order of commerce. One building had been a laundry, with many trucks operating from it day by day. Now it is a repair shop for outboard motors, with the tiny craft entering the building through the back door.

There is humor here, too, for even a flood is not without its ironies and its paradoxes. For instance, one of the chief desires of most refugees from the high water is a bath. On the other hand, there is the case of the sharecropper who was being cared for in a Poplar Bluff, Mo., camp, where the doctor in charge had ordered all 800 refugees to take a bath. "Say," the sharecropper protested, "this thing's gettin' serious."

Fat Lady Gets a Lift.

In the jail at Parkersburg, W. Va., 63 prisoners didn't mind the flood very much. They were eating fancy "vittles" they couldn't even call by name, supplied by the city's foremost hotel.

In Cincinnati, rescue crews heard that a woman had been marooned, and set out to get her. They had to chop away part of her house to take her out; she weighed 400 pounds. In Louisville a rescue party took a woman from a flooded house and rowed her three blocks to safety. Then she wanted to be rowed back. She had left two dollars in the home, she said. "Not even for two bucks," they said.

Sights to be seen from the rescue boats were not all dismal. There was the truck mired in a ditch beside a flooded highway near Cairo. It was loaded with wax feminine figures clothed in filmy lingerie. A sign hung on one of the models read: "For sale—cheap." Just visible above 20 feet of water in Cincinnati's Third street was the sign, a little weather beaten: "This lot for sale or lease. No interruption from high water."

But perhaps the supreme irony was uncovered by Red Cross relief workers when they opened a package some "charitable" person had consigned to the flood sufferers. It contained six swimming suits.

Kagle, each twenty, of West Hickman, Ky. Rescued from their flooded homes in the Kentucky lowlands, they lost no time in marrying as soon as they reached dry ground in Union City, Tenn. Immediately after the ceremony they joined other sufferers in a refugee camp.

Parrot Speaks His Mind.

Flood victims were the favored guests of their more fortunate brethren. Travelers disembarking from first class accommodations on trains arriving at the Indianapolis terminal from the flood area were forced to carry their own bags. "Red caps" fought to carry the baggage of refugees in the coaches, even though they knew there was hardly a chance for a tip. Refugees had precious little baggage to carry, however.

The type of hand packages being carried by the fleeing hordes was indicated by the piles of belongings found between the rows of some 6,000 cots in the Louisville army, where refugees had spent the night. Mixed in with a pile of sodden blankets were a broken doll, a kitchen pan and a parrot in a badly bent cage speaking slightly warped language. Refugees were wearily searching for their own belongings while trucks waited outside to carry them to places of greater safety.

You can't think of everything in an emergency like flood. Red Cross workers who were caring for refugees brought to Columbus from Portsmouth believed they had remembered everything necessary.

Young girl in white dress.

But her poverty had been relieved by a gentleman of the Duc de Chartres' household, who had come to England in search for a playmate for his Grace's children. According to Mme. de Genlis' story, Pamela had been bought from Mary Simms, an apprentice, for 25 guineas.

A third version of Pamela's parentage was, however, given in the marriage record printed in the Masonic Magazine the month after her wedding. This describes the contracting couple as "The Hon. Lord Edward Fitz Gerald, Knight of the Shire for County Kildare," and "Mme. Pamela Caper, daughter of His Royal Highness, the ci-devant Duke of Orleans."

A fourth clue was given by Moore in his "Life of Lord Edward Fitz Gerald." It states that "Pamela was the adopted, or, as it may be said without scruple, the actual daughter of Mme. de Genlis by the Duc d'Orleans."

Which story was true? "Life seems to me more like a beautiful dream than reality. We are so happy that I sometimes ask myself fearfully, will it, can it last?" wrote Pamela to Mme. de Genlis.

Became a Politician.

Coming events had forecast their shadows in Pamela's fears. Lord Edward's ambition led him into the vortex of Irish politics. He became the ruling spirit of the Society of United Irishmen. He played the same card that Sir Roger Casement played. Crossing the channel he arranged for a French invasion of Ireland, but was betrayed. With a price of 1,000 pounds upon his head, he went into hiding, contriving now and then to steal into Pamela's lodgings and spend a happy hour with her. But the night after he had returned from one of these visits with her his hiding place was surrounded. Dagger in hand, he flung himself upon his captors but was overpowered.

Pamela sold all of her bridal presents to bribe his jailers. Vainly she begged to be allowed to share his captivity. But she was ordered to leave Ireland immediately, and but a few days after her tearful departure Lord Edward died, not at the hand of the executioner but from a wound inflicted by one of his captors. She

MYSTERIES THE WORLD HAS NEVER SOLVED

PAMELA —Who Was She? —By MADOC OWENS

THERE was high glee in the nursery of the Palais Royale, home of the Duc de Chartres, that near kinsman of the king, who later became the Duc d'Orleans. A beautiful child, a vision of loveliness and grace, a golden-haired, blue-eyed, mischievous, sprightly girl had been brought from England to be the playmate of the palace's royal youngsters. Her name was Pamela.

Pamela was born to be loved. The royal children of the household of Chartres, their governess, the amiable Mme. de Genlis; His Grace, the Duc; princes, princesses and even their Majesties themselves, loved her from the first. She was one of the loveliest creatures ever known to man. And her loveliness increased as she reached maturity.

But who was she? No one cared save women who were envious of her charms, and their wagging tongues found few listeners. There was not a princeling in all France who would not have wed her, if he could.

But a young Lochinvar was to come out of the West and win Pamela. It was at the opera, in Paris, while she sat in the box of the Duc de Chartres, one night upon the eve of the French Revolution, that the Irish Lord Edward Fitz Gerald, son of the Duke of Leinster, first feasted eyes on this charming belle. He was handsome, brave and young—still in his twenties. It was a case of mutual love at first sight. And despite the opposition of Pamela's devoted governess, now her duenna, Mme. de Genlis, the young couple were wedded at Tournay the following December.

Daughter of "Mary Simms."

In the marriage contract, still preserved at Tournay, the bride was described as "Stephanie Caroline Anne Simms, known as 'Pamela,' native of London, daughter of William Berkeley and Mary Simms."

In later years her devoted Mme. de Genlis maintained that her fair charge had been the daughter not of William Berkeley, but of one Seymour, an Englishman of good family, who had run off to New Foundland with Mary Simms, a Hampshire girl of humble birth, on whose account he had suffered disownment after their marriage and who had soon died, leaving her to work for her living.

Sold for 25 Guineas.

But her poverty had been relieved by a gentleman of the Duc de Chartres' household, who had come to England in search for a playmate for his Grace's children. According to Mme. de Genlis' story, Pamela had been bought from Mary Simms, an apprentice, for 25 guineas.

A third version of Pamela's parentage was, however, given in the marriage record printed in the Masonic Magazine the month after her wedding. This describes the contracting couple as "The Hon. Lord Edward Fitz Gerald, Knight of the Shire for County Kildare," and "Mme. Pamela Caper, daughter of His Royal Highness, the ci-devant Duke of Orleans."

A fourth clue was given by Moore in his "Life of Lord Edward Fitz Gerald." It states that "Pamela was the adopted, or, as it may be said without scruple, the actual daughter of Mme. de Genlis by the Duc d'Orleans."

Which story was true? "Life seems to me more like a beautiful dream than reality. We are so happy that I sometimes ask myself fearfully, will it, can it last?" wrote Pamela to Mme. de Genlis.

Became a Politician.

Coming events had forecast their shadows in Pamela's fears. Lord Edward's ambition led him into the vortex of Irish politics. He became the ruling spirit of the Society of United Irishmen. He played the same card that Sir Roger Casement played. Crossing the channel he arranged for a French invasion of Ireland, but was betrayed. With a price of 1,000 pounds upon his head, he went into hiding, contriving now and then to steal into Pamela's lodgings and spend a happy hour with her. But the night after he had returned from one of these visits with her his hiding place was surrounded. Dagger in hand, he flung himself upon his captors but was overpowered.

Pamela sold all of her bridal presents to bribe his jailers. Vainly she begged to be allowed to share his captivity. But she was ordered to leave Ireland immediately, and but a few days after her tearful departure Lord Edward died, not at the hand of the executioner but from a wound inflicted by one of his captors. She could not return to the Duc de Chartres, that royal gentleman had his head by the guillotine. At numerous wanderings and to herself from poverty in later years she married one Pitcairn, in Edinburgh, but he left her in want, she endured until Britain released and allowed her the money due from her beloved Lord Edward.

Spent Last Days in Paris. This enabled her to spend her declining days in comfort in Paris where just before her death, at the age of fifty-seven, she was described as having been "still admired and sought after; brilliant in social spirituelle and remarkable for her lines of fancy and playfulness of imagination."

Tourists who visit the famous cemetery of Montmartre come to a modest tombstone, flanked by monuments erected to the memory of personages whose pedigrees are given at great length. This simple stone bears not a date, only the word: "Pamela."

Historians ask, "Who was she? And so does the world. But no one knows."

What Became of FATHER GAPON?

IN POLTAVA, southern Russia, there lived a poor peasant lad, George Gapon. Although his actual knowledge of the world lay within the boundaries of the fields wherein he earned his daily pittance, his soul demanded expansion.

He read what books he could get and gained such a reputation among his neighbors for scholarship that his parents saved enough to send him to the University of Kazan. Here he joined a student body of Socialists and their propaganda coming revealed to the authorities Gapon was expelled. He next entered a theological school, but his views were too liberal for the priesthood. He was next heard of as an evangelistic free lance, working among the poor of the slums. He became a leader in the labor movement and organized social organizations among the poor.

Although exhorting them to sentiment against the aristocracy, he was careful to absolve the Czar from personal responsibility for their misery. He always preached the doctrine of peace, advocating the pen rather than the sword as the best weapon for defeating the enemy. Predicting that the Czar would right their wrongs if he could ever be personally acquainted with them, he organized his thousands of followers in a monastic procession composed of men, women and children, students, laborers and disgruntled people of all classes.

Led Into Trap.

Gapon, in the garb of a Russian priest, took his place at the head of this vast horde, which bore the name of a monster petition addressed to the czar. The police were unaccountably docile while the procession was forming and seemed, in fact, to encourage its organization. But before Gapon's army had reached the palace it found itself caught in a trap. Armed Cossacks surrounded it on all sides and fired mercilessly into the throng of screaming women and children. And thus occurred the massacre of "Red Sunday."

Although other leaders of the movement were arrested, Gapon managed to make an escape, which many of his followers believed to have been the result of divine protection. Reaching Switzerland, he soon got down to the active work of engineering secret revolutionary funds purposed to overthrow the Russian monarch. As soon as the excitement caused by "Red Sunday" had subsided he returned to St. Petersburg in disguise.

Father Gapon Vanishes.

Some time in the following April (1906) "Father" Gapon mysteriously disappeared. Through all the slums of St. Petersburg he was sought by the excited disciples that he was a government spy who had purposely led the people into the trap on "Red Sunday"—had condemned him and that he had been carried to a Finland village and there lynched. But Gapon's disciples declared that this rumor had been inspired by the government. As a matter of fact a body was found hanging in a house in Finland, but the face had been mutilated beyond identification.

According to many of the revolutionists Gapon was finally trapped by the government and was spirited away to some fortress prison, there to be subjected to an unknown fate.

A third theory is that the Green church resented Gapon's assuming the robes of one of its priests and had him locked up in a monastery far away from his native land.

THE GARDEN MURDER CASE By S.S. VAN DINE

Copyright S.S. Van Dine W.N.U. Service

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county, are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message...

Garden meditated for several moments. He looked off into space and puffed steadily on his pipe. "I am trying to remember," he said...

past Markham and nodded pleasantly to Heath. "Sorry to make you all this trouble, Sergeant."

"That's all right, Mr. Vance." Heath held out his hand in solemn good-nature. "Glad I was in when the chief called. What's it all about, and where do we go from here?"

"There's nothing to tell about that old catch-all. It's neither mysterious nor formidable. And it's really not a vault at all. Several years ago the pater found that he had accumulated a lot of private papers and experimental data that he didn't want casual callers messing in.

"Anyone so inclined," replied Garden. "But who in the name of Heaven, would want to go in there?" "Really, y' know, I haven't the slightest notion," Vance returned.

"The key is a mere matter of form. It hangs conveniently on a small nail at the side of the door." "Accordingly," mused Vance, "the vault is readily accessible to anyone in the household who cares to enter it."

"I haven't left my post, Mr. Vance," she said quietly. "I understand my duty."

"Thank you, Miss Beeton," he said. He came back into the den, and closing the door, addressed Garden again.

"Now that we have disposed temporarily of the theatrical queen," he smiled sardoniously—"suppose we continue with our little chat."

"Queer girl, Madge; always acting like a tragedienne—but I don't think she's ever really been on the stage."

"You heard her tell me she was particularly fond of Swift," remarked Vance. "Just what did she mean by that?"

"There's one more rather important matter that you can clear up for me—it may have a definite bearing on the situation. Can the garden be entered from the fire exit opening on the roof?"

"Yes, by George!" The other sat up with alacrity. "There's a gate in the east fence of the garden, just beside the privet hedge, which leads upon the terrace on which the fire exit of the building opens."

"Don't you keep the gate locked?" Vance was studying the tip of his cigarette with close attention.

"The fire regulations don't permit that. We merely have an old-fashioned barn-door lift-latch on it."

"Well, what's the trouble, Vance?" Markham demanded brusquely. "I phoned Heath, as you requested, and brought him up with me."

"It's a bad business," Vance returned. "Same like I told you. I'm afraid you're in for some difficulties. It's no ordinary crime. Everything I've been able to learn so far contradicts everything else."

Worthy of Your Pride!

MOTHER, between you and me Sis is getting to be a little show-off. Last night when Dick called, there she sat, big as life, right in the middle of things chirping about the new dress you made her: how you used a remnant left over from one of your dresses, and got it finished in one afternoon—she even had Dick feel the material.

Well, Elsie, you can't blame the child's appreciating herself in a new dress. How about ourselves? Didn't you say your jumper was the talk of the Tennis Club meeting yesterday? And haven't I been spending more time before the mirror since I made my new "Stylish Stout" model? I actually feel like a new person in it—imagine me being vain in my age!

Oh, Mother, you're not vain and you're as young as any of us. You just were lucky to find a particularly flattering style for your figure. That soft jabot makes you look lovely and the whole thing is so slenderizing. But only an expert like you could make such a dress.

I'm going to make another blouse for my jumper soon, Mother. I always admired that white pique shirt of Dick's, so I think I'll try it for my blouse, since the pattern is a lot like a man's shirt in design.

The Patterns. Pattern 1229 comes in sizes 14 to 20; 32 to 42 bust. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for the jumper and 1 1/2 yards for the blouse. Pattern 1847 is available in sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39-inch material.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS
Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

There is many a day when dinner has been served—and the dishes stacked ready for washing—that the spectacle of four or five pots or pans staring up in dreary after-dinner dress, makes the modern homemaker wish she were living in the age of paper pots and pans. A gloomy ending to what probably was a perfect meal.

One-dish meals are rising in popularity with homemakers who know the cooking freedom and perfection of the modern electric range.

And so it is that one-dish meals are rising in popularity. When pork chops, rice, and tomatoes can reach savory, attractive goodness in just one skillet, why use three pans? So thinks the modern homemaker. One brilliant young man holding down the fort of nursemaid, on one occasion, had the right idea when he tried heating 5 separate items for the baby's dinner in a muffin pan. While he confessed that the "kid wouldn't eat it—she wanted a cookie instead," all good homemakers will agree that he was on the right track.

One-Step Cookery

The new Hotpoint range is encouraging one-step cookery processes in several ways. The flexibility of the new flat hi-speed calrod cooking unit makes it possible to cook well-rounded "skillet" dinners with little effort. Such is the case with this delicious pork chop and rice combination. The chops brown quickly on the speedy high heat and then, with the addition of the uncooked rice and other ingredients and with a twist of the switch to low heat, this meal cooks, unattended, until done.

Whole complete meals can be cooked in the economy thrift cooker as well as in the electric oven and smokeless broiler. So it seems that modern cookery believes in doing things in a concentrated way, all of which means more time and more freedom for the homemaker and more fuel and money saved.

And now, for the makings of that grand Southern dish:

Skillet Dinner (Serves 4)

- 4 pork chops (1 inch thick)
- 1/2 cup rice (uncooked)
- 1 (No. 2 can tomatoes)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper

Brown pork chops in a large skillet on the surface unit of the electric range with the unit switched to High. Add rice, tomatoes, and seasonings and cover closely. Turn switch to Low heat and cook approximately 1 1/2 hours.

Marion Davies and Clark Gable Are Coming To Palace

Two of the foremost stars of the silver screen, Marion Davies and Clark Gable are brought together in "Cain and Mabel," a Cosmopolitan production replete with popular music, comedy, romance, spectacular feature numbers and the sizzling action of the fight arena, which will have its local premiere at the Palace Theatre on Friday and Saturday, as a Warner Bros. release.

Besides the glittering background of the theatre, with its beautiful pagentry and its revelation of back stage life, and the thrill of a championship battle in the squared circle, there are two mammoth specialty numbers, one of which is said to eclipse in magnitude and splendor anything of its kind ever presented on the screen.

This is the "Thousand Love Songs" number in which Miss Davies leads one hundred and sixty of Hollywood's most beautiful girls through intricate dance routines and spectacular scenes. Miss Davies has the role of the young waitress who springs to stardom almost overnight. In her rise to fame she inadvertently interferes with the career of a young prize fighter who aspires to become world's champion, the latter part played by Clark Gable.

The two come to hate each other cordially, but a truce is established by the actress' press agent who convinces the brilliant idea of announcing a romance between the two in order to further their popularity with the public.

Roscoe Karns plays the part of a newspaper man turned press agent to the rising young musical comedy star, while Allen Jenkins is the satirically comical prize fight trainer to Clark Gable. Walter Catlett is a theatrical producer who sponsors Miss Davies' shows and David Carlyle her leading man, who is a rival of Gable's for her love.

Mr. and Mrs. Vick Helms and son, visited relatives and friends in Willis Point last week-end. They also made a tour of the East Texas oil fields before returning home Monday morning.

Crop and Feed Loans Available

Col. P. G. Murphy, director of the emergency crop and feed loan section of the Farm Credit Administration has announced that the emergency crop and feed loans which Congress authorized for 1937 will be available by the end of the week. The opening date for these loans to farmers is earlier by several weeks than in previous years and the loans will be disbursed in plenty of time for early spring crops. Although $400 is the maximum loan this year to any one farmer, in each case a loan will be made only for the amount actually necessary to grow crops or maintain livestock until pasturage or forage crops are available; the interest rate is 4% per annum.

Treasury-Post Office Appropriation Bill

The House Friday afternoon finally passed the Treasury-Post Office Appropriations bill, H. R. 4720, which was debated Tuesday Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. This measure carries a total appropriation of nearly $3,300,000,000, the largest for the two government establishments in history. It provides $1,501,930,151 direct appropriations to finance the two departments for the next fiscal year and $1,468,404,470 for public debt purposes. The Trans Atlantic airmail project calls for an appropriation of $750,000. Under tentative plan there will be four round trips a week between Southampton, England and New York. The bill also carries appropriations for such agencies as the Coast Guard, Federal Alcohol Administration, the Internal Revenue Bureau, Secret Service and Public Health Service. $500,000,000 goes as an old age pension account reserve. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Farm Tenacy

The President sent to Congress last Tuesday, a message asking for aid for farm tenants. With his message he transmitted the report of the special farm tenacy committee which he appointed last fall. The farm tenacy committee headed by secretary of agriculture, Mr. Wallace, and composed of Government experts and heads of different farm or organizations, recommend the establishment of a new government agency to be known as the Farm Security Administration to purchase and improve farms to be sold to farmers on easy credit long-term contracts. The president recommended four types of action.

To enable the farm tenants to become farm owners, financing the necessary transaction over a 40-year period.

Lending government money, in small sums to enable tenants, share-croppers and farm laborers to attain greater security.

Retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming and assistance to the families living in finding homes on good land.

Cooperation between state and local agencies of Government to improve the general leasing system.

President Roosevelt sent his "The time has come to take permanent steps to protect farmers and consumers against disasters of both types."

Rev. A. B. Fiala, recently chosen to serve as minister at the Presbyterian church, spoke to the members at the church last Sunday night on the subject of "Loyalty." The Rev. Mr. Fiala will make his home in Burkburnett for a while. According to the speaker Loyalty is the dominating theme in religion. Conflicting loyalties have brought on the keenest strife and the bloodiest struggles in the history of mankind. History is not a repetition of cycles but an upward spiral. The lifting thrust comes from the spirit of God in the hearts of men. A developing world makes the future potent with thrills of the unexplored. True leaders of men listen to the voice of the unseen and are open to readjustment with the progress of time and thereby hold the loyalty of their followers. Supreme loyalty is in the strong spending themselves in lifting the weak. Will of God implies a plan a destiny. Wisdom and love are verbs not nouns. In this exciting drama of life the promoter behind the scenes is the spirit of God. Only those who tune in and repeat the lines will survive for the final scene—the climax—the reign of God on earth. Services next Sunday are Sunday school 10 a. m., preaching services, 7:30 on "Cooperation."

It is anticipated the new plant will be in operation about June first.

WHERE'S MR. DUNCAN

Where are we without a Superintendent? Has he been kidnapped? That's what we are wondering. We can't seem to find him anywhere. After searching every room, and waste paper can still not be found. Listen everybody and I'll let you in on a secret! We have located Mr. Duncan! He is in New Orleans attending a superintendent's convention. He left last Friday on Dallas on a special train carrying a few more superintendents to keep him company. The convention will be over here Mr. Duncan is—stop your crying, he will be back Friday or Saturday. Talks are going to be given nationally known lecturers. Between times he is going to be in the historical part of New Orleans. Now that you know where Mr. Duncan is—stop your crying, he will be back to start the week off right next Monday morning.

FOR APPEARANCE AND OTHERWISE

Something should be done about these cars parked every day in front of the building. Of course you say, but what? Well, here is our suggestion: park as many as possible along the rails, and the remainder along the curbs. Now, there are more reasons for the appearance of the building and grounds to make this desirable. One of these is emergency. In any emergency which may arise, an accident, a sudden illness, or such, it would be practically impossible to get a car out if there were 2 or three parked right behind it and no possible way to get to them. Then, these cars that are parked in front of the doors—i—this building should ever really and truly catch fire, these cars would be a major hindrance in quick evacuation of the building. Of course, there has never been any law made in regard to the parking arrangement in front of our building, but we think it would be a good idea, in fact an excellent idea if there were some rules which would add to rather than detract from the beauty and the safety of our building.

It is quite surprising to a good many people that there has never been a serious accident, such as a collision, or the hitting of a child in the mad scramble to get away from the building at noontime, but there is always that possibility that such may happen, and to apply that old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine", we advise some rule or suggestion at least to the pupils who drive their cars to school which will benefit them as well as the pupils who must walk.

During the past season the girls worked hard and with interest. They are losing only one player and she has been a good one. Mildred Milford who was captain of the team, graduates this year. They are replacing her with several freshmen girls who with a lot of coaching and practice will make some real volleyball players for Burk Burnett. Interest in volleyball is increasing and there is no reason why Burk Burnett should not have a winning team. The girls are going to have spring training in volleyball and are planning to have a real volleyball team another year. Playing volleyball is a good way to pass leisure time. All girls should know how to play volleyball. There is nothing more enlightening than a good stretch. A good game of volleyball will really produce some good stretches. If older people would play volleyball it would add years to their life. It is an economical game since balls, courts and nets are easy to obtain.

The baseball girls have sent for their suits and are expecting them in a few days. Their uniforms will be a jersey and knicker of a bright orange. Across the front of the jersey will be the letters B. H. S. The following girls are on the team: Frances Alexander, Frankie Alexander, Mary Helen Bundy, Janet Bragg, Billie Mae Dudley, Jane Duvall, Maxine Giblow, Gracie Bell Jones, Marcella Logan, Doris Frances Magers, Earleen Reed, Tressie Todd, Frances McCreary, and Jeraldine Morris.

THOSE HOWDY SENIORS

Hark! All harassed and despairing teachers—Mr. Johnson has at last devised a great plan—one which he claims is guaranteed to keep rowdy pupils in home rooms in order. Now, first he separated all those seriously or otherwise affected with what some people call chronic love-sickness from their respective objects of affection; and then separated all those great old pals who get together the morning after the game or show the night before and discuss all its points. He has even gone so far as to make one of our loyal seniors stand up in front of the class for 10 whole minutes; and if this doesn't work, he has still another plan, a still greater plan. He says if it is necessary he will arrange the seating so there will be an empty seat in front, behind, and on either side of every member in the class. In other words he will isolate each of us. But, really Mr. Johnson isn't really so bad as you would gather from the epistle, in fact we think he is quite a nice old fellow now that he has broken down and agreed to let us talk just a little bit; if we won't talk loud enough for those in the office and at the other end of the hall to hear us. Thank you, Mr. Johnson.

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS

Miss Tanner's third period class is telling stories. Not the kind of originals that a girl tells to her mother when she gets in at three o'clock in the morning, but stories that people like O. Henry, Washington Irving and Hawthorne have written. Beginning Wednesday by the story tellers will give short talks on the authors of their stories. Five students chose O. Henry stories and those five will get together and decide who is going to talk about what. Each pupil will have one phase of the author's life to talk about. So if you like to hear the biographies of your favorite author come to visit our speech class.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish 1-A class met Friday for their club meeting. The roll was called by J. W. Thompson, to which each pupil answered in Spanish by the expression "There is not a rose without a thorn." The class then learned the song "Adonde ha ido, mi Perro" which in English is "O Where has my little dog gone." Mr. Duncan visited the club. Before the Spanish club adjourned they heard the rest of the story of "Dust of Mexico."

BOOK NOOK

On behalf of the student body the librarian wishes to express appreciation to Mr. John Farr for the Dallas Morning News which he donates to the library daily. With the addition of the Dallas paper, the library now receives three daily newspapers. The other two being the Wichita Falls Post and the Wichita Falls Record News. The library also receives the local weekly paper, The Burk Burnett Star as well as several weekly publications from various colleges throughout the state. All of these newspapers are gifts to the school and are very welcome aids to reference work. They are kept on file in the library and may be referred to whenever the need for them arises.

TRACK NEWS

About 18 boys reported to coach Hill for the track team Monday afternoon. They all seem to be ready to go and we should win a lot of track and field events at Iowa Park this year. The school is furnishing all track shoes. They have about 14 pairs. There are a lot of good sprinters out, and they ran some 100 yard dashes and 440 yard dashes Monday afternoon. Monday was the first day, but the boys are working out every day and we hope they bring back many ribbons from the meet. These are the ones taking part in track: Marshall Teal, Tollie McKown, Tom Spray, Buck Willet, D. R. Peevey, Richard Johnson, Carl Cook, Tommy Harms, John Blair, Murray Evans J. T. McPherson, Dorace Hageman, Keith Aldridge.

OUR NEW TEACHER

From Baylor University comes our newest teacher, Mr. W. B. Teal. Mr. Teal was a graduate from Baylor in August 1936, where he received a major in Bible and minor in English. His high school days were spent in Electra High school where he was graduated in 1932. After spending one year at Simmons University he went to Baylor.

I think Mr. Teal is quite use to reporters. While in college he says that a reporter cornered him on his way to school, and by the way he rode a bicycle, too, and asked to put a long article in the paper about him. I won't tell everything he did but one of the most interesting was the statement that he was not married. Now I find Mr. Teal quite interesting and friendly. He remarked that he liked our school very much and also the faculty and student body. He has one of those likable dispositions and growing personalities. We are glad to have him in our schools and hope that he enjoys being here each day he spends in our class rooms.

He is a grade school teacher taking the place of Miss Parnell and has one class in High school. There's one more word, Welcome!

HOME ECO. 1-B

The Home Eco. class had a Valentine party last Friday afternoon in which refreshments, sandwiches, potatoe chips, cake and hot chocolate were served to the entire class. After the refreshments Valentines were given out by our hostess Emma Ruth. Officers for Home Eco. 1-B were elected Wednesday, Feb. 7. They are: Hostess, LaVerne Shiver. Department Artist, Emma Ruth Gill. Typist, Rosa Mae Goble. Reporter, Norma Peacock. Nurse, Lorene Rose. Book Case, Virginia Noe. Foods Library, Dorothy Wallace and Georgia Parker. Bulletin Board, Rhea Chambers. Ventilation, Tressie Todd. Machines, Dorothy Moore. Floors, Hester Bussey. Tables, Georgia Spillers. Decoration, Lois Ross. Lockers, Glenna Gill. Entertainment, Doris Lee. Chairs, Mildred Skipwith.

JAMES SPEARMAN

James Spearman was born at a very young and tender age and it was so long ago that he just can't remember, but anyway it was about the time the war was over. At the present he is very tall and has dark hair.

He likes to come to school when he is in the mood for it, but he is not in that kind of mood very often. He also likes to smoke these base balls cigarettes, you know, they the hot on the ground but he jacks them up just the same. He says that when he gets married that his wife is going to do what he says but we don't know whether he will find that kind or not.

When he finishes school (if he ever finishes) he plans to be a fruit grower in Alaska.

JUNIOR JOTTINGS

Since the general clamor recently has been for gossip in the Growl, here goes: Rike must have been the cause of the disagreeable look Tommy wore Friday and some of the things Derby said about him. The Carroll Goode is either just wasting time or he isn't very ambitious. Your reporter has been having no end of trouble finding scandle for this column. Some people say that what ever is told to author of this department comes out backwards. We will let you be the judge of that.

Wednesday night very unusual things happened in the somber corridors of BHS. After play practice, a geometry-getting, fun-having session was held in the commercial rooms. About three of those big pretty triangles you've seen so many of lately were constructed, while Marilyn's car was parked by an open window so folks could listen to the Hit Parade. By the way, plenty of money and you ranked something. Regardless of how brief it was the gathering was a lot of fun. From nine thirty to ten in groups of one to four, Barbara, Hodges, Bill, Pauline, Polly, Jack, Rike, Derby, Marilyn, Louvain and Clark toddled off to their homes and told Mamma and Poppa what they had done.

For real singing and chorus harmony, listen to the sextet seated on rows A and B, seats 1 to 4 the right side, in assemblies. Their favorite and best number is "Down by the Old Mill Stream" but they have a special arrangement on rounds that is really nice to hear. Listen to the Junior sextet next assembly.

Since the writer of next week's article, "Why See Her Incubator Husband," accidentally omitted Hodge's name from the column, we wish to say here that if you've never seen the imperturbable Mary Emma nervous, that's a good reason you ought to see our play. She actually faints, and the rest of the time she flutters and flits about the stage moaning about her murmur. What is a murmur anyway? If you think you have a nervous disorder, come to see "Her Incubator Husband." If you act like Hodges does in the play, go to see your doctor.

Of the Juniors that rank high in court circles, we wish to present Sir Russell Cope, esq., born in Burk Burnett, Texas, Feb. 25, 1922. At the age of nine he moved with his Poppa and Mamma and big sister Ordette to Bowie where he went to school until he reached the second half of the seventh grade. At that important stage in his life, he took a deep breath and silently said, "This is mine own, my native land," and returned to the city of his birth. A conqueror in Bowie he skipped off with the seventh grade valedictory of 1934. Russell now wears a second year Ad Astra pin around and has hopes of getting a solid gold one someday. In the seventh grade he entered baseball and arithmetic for county meet; the next year he played baseball, last year he added tennis to that, which he is doing this year. As a baseball pitcher, he has a reputation for being able to drive a nail at fifty feet, and they say he plays tennis as he does baseball. His tennis career started sometime last year when expert Bill Amyx offered to show him how to play the game. Instructor Amyx gave him three lessons and after that student Cope became teacher. This year he and his ex-instructor have aspirations of winning the district title. Who knows, we may have an Elsworth Vines among us.

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Assembly was held Thursday morning with Mr. Kembre in charge of the program. Grace Preston announced the program as follows: Pauline Browning gave a reading on Bookkeeping. The student body sang two songs "Row, Row, Row your boat" and "Down by the old Mill Stream." A play was given, "No Salesmen Admitted." Tommy Harms, Chris Millikin, Van Buren Cross and Doris Ruth Barnes took part in the play. The play was written true to life - being a typical scene from typing class then in later years - a large office with Tommy manager, Chris the secretary and Van Buren, the traveling salesman. Assembly closed with announcements on the Junior play, and incidentally, come and see it Feb. 26 (tonight) and announcements on county meet.

"HER INCUBATOR HUSBAND"

"Her Incubator Husband," having hatched and reared full maturity is to make its initial appearance before the public tonight. If you want a good laugh you'll find it watching Billy and Hodges cavorting around the stage looking studious and nervous respectively. If your heart is just bubbling over with sympathy for the oppressed and depressed, you will have a nice chance to spoil some of it tonight on poor little Barbara and Derby. How would you like to have been engaged to a bespeckled patentologist before you were born, or to have your husband philandering around with another woman. If you have been having trouble with stubborn off-spring you might get a few good pointers on their care from Pauline, who is Barbara's mother. Maybe none of that appeals to you. Maybe you are the kind of person that likes to watch people who are in trouble, then come along to our play and watch Clark look, act, and be puzzled. No matter what you want, no matter what you are looking for, I have a sneaking notion that you will find that, or almost that in "Her Incubator Husband."

P. S.—If you aren't looking for a good play or good acting, but you like to look at new and beautiful things, come to see "Her Incubator Husband" anyway, for it is the first program of any sort to be presented in the auditorium with the handsome new scenery as a back ground. Also we would like to mention this. Here to fore there has been a tradition in the school that the cast of all the plays should write their names and the name of their play on the back of the scenery for the benefit and information of posterity. The cast of "Her Incubator Husband" wishes to start a new tradition, a tradition of honor that will be of more use to posterity than such information, a tradition of not writing on the scenery.

NEW STAGE SCENERY

If you come out Friday night to see "Her Incubator Husband," you will have the opportunity of seeing the new stage scenery to be presented to the school by the seniors of '34. This class left a sum of money in a trust fund to be used toward correcting the acoustics of the auditorium. As no other classes or organizations have seen fit to add to this fund, a few of the seniors of '34 who are still in the city advised with Miss Billingslea, their sponsor at that time, in regard to spending the money, and following her suggestion, they decided to use it to secure new stage scenery. Under the able direction of Mr. Scott Williamson the boys of the Manual Training Department have built the scenery. Mr. Williamson and the boys have worked at nights for the past two weeks in order to get the set ready for the Junior play. The class of '34 and also the present Junior class wish to express their appreciation to Mr. Williamson and the boys for what they have done, and they also desire to thank Miss Pauline Miller for her valuable advice in regard to painting the set.

A DARE

Dare to be different! Dare to be new! Dare to expose what God placed in you! Show the old world you are not afraid. Show the Great Power your debt is paid. Don't be cast in the molds of men, Shape your own soul and future then You can be yourself, if your different You In front of the world, whatever you do. Those you know of ancient ages, Those names inscribed on history's pages Are men who were not like the rest: They were themselves, themselves at their best. Don't let life, as it marches by, Dull your edge and dim your eye: Don't let it wear what is really you. Dare to be different! Dare to be new.

MILDRED MILFORD

Away back yonder, in fact back in 1920, a little blond haired girl was born on March 24. This little girl was called Mildred Milford or "Millie" for short. But that little girl decided that she didn't want to be a baby all her life so she started growing and so she grew and grew until now she is about five feet and four inches. Millie is the captain of the volleyball ball team this year and she has certainly done a good job of it. She is also going out for tennis in the interscholastic league meet and it looks like she might do pretty well in it and is also going out for typing. Millie likes to go out to Fairview for some reason or other and our guess is that the reason is the owner of that Fairview Jr. wristlet she is wearing. Her favorite subjects are physical Education, Home Economics, and Typing. When she finishes school she plans to take it easy for a change.

FUTURE FARMER NEWS

The future farmer boys' this past week have been arousing enthusiasm over the motion picture show that is starting Monday, Feb. 22, at the High school. These films are furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington D. C. entirely free with the exception of the freight on the films. These shows are to be shown every Monday night at the High school. There are no charges for admission and every body is invited. There is a different topic every Monday night. Some of the coming features are "Wind Erosion and Control, Brooding and Rearing Chicks, Producing Quality Chicks, The Turkey Business" and others. These should last about 45 minutes and are shown with the purpose of helping the people who attend. Large crowds are expected to attend every Monday night. Mr. M. S. Dean the vocational agriculture advisor in the High school has charge of the shows, and he will answer questions concerning these topics and will probably lecture on each topic after the show.

ETIQUETTE

Etiquette is now being studied and it is my deduction, my dear Watson, that if a few more dear students of Burk Burnett High school, besides the Speech class, would study the various divisions of etiquette, this school would be a lot quieter and more pleasing to come to. After the study of etiquette is finished, more modern short stories will be told.

Agriculture Boys Plan Exhibition Here On March 6

Class Project To Be Prepared For Big Show At Local Event

ENTRIES PROMISED

Members of the vocational agricultural class of the Burkburnett high school will present an exhibition of the projects that the boys have adopted during the past year at the Gammill and Lax Implement company on Main St. March 6. The show will demonstrate the work that the members of the school have done under the direction of M. S. Dean, instructor, and will prepare the exhibits for the fat stock show at Fort Worth where several entries will be made.

Among the interesting features of the exhibit will be the hogs sponsored by Carl "Piggy" Cook. The pride of the Cook farm will be there in all their grunts and glory, and the pigs will be groomed for the fat stock show.

The entries at the exhibition will be confined to the members of the class. The excellent work that has been done by the class will be demonstrated at the show. During the past three years the boys have proved the efficiency of the class in various projects that have ranged from chicken care to terracing and pruning. Almost every department of farm contacted and how they are to be normal and emergency life has come under the specific care of the class.

The experiment of a local agriculture class which was undertaken only three years ago has proved to be the most profitable vocational endeavor of the school and community.

Burkburnett Club To Aid In Clean-Up

Members of the Burkburnett Garden club meeting in the home of Mrs. W. P. Sims Wednesday afternoon heard a discussion of the cleanup drive given by Mrs. M. W. Majors as one of the features of an excellent program. Other parts of the program were a talk by M. S. Dean, director of vocational agriculture, on pruning and insect control, and a discussion of landscaping by Mrs. A. B. Sandler.

Mrs. Carl Morrison presided at the business session. Announcement was made of the course in flower shows to be held in Dallas March 2 and 3. Mrs. F. A. Hill and Mrs. Charles Hall were accepted as members. Mrs. Dudley Ellis' resignation was accepted.

Those present at the meeting were: Mesdames W. D. Utts, F. A. Hill, R. W. Wallace, J. L. Caffee, George Kimbell, J. C. Adams, Charles Hall, J. M. Pogue, M. W. Majors, R. C. Tevis, Ross Reagan, Paul Browning, A. B. Sandler, and W. P. Sims, hostess.

Cooper Motor Co. To Distribute Ford Almanacs

Brimful of useful facts and information and a large amount of other material of human interest, the Ford Home Almanac for 1937 goes to the homes of the United States this week, distributed free by dealers of the Ford Motor Company, according to S. A. M. Cooper, of the Cooper Motor Co.

Readers of the booklet will find that, in addition to the time of sunrise and set, adjusted to each latitude; moon phases, eclipses and the usual other information given in Almanacs, the Ford Home Almanac is replete with interesting reading material dealing with ancient and modern prophecies, some of which shaped the destiny of different countries; sea mysteries and generations of research have not solved and other miscellany.

There are also short articles dealing with the views of Henry Ford on various subjects, as well as an article showing in detail what he has done with the $13,000,000,000 which the public has paid for Ford cars and trucks since the Ford Motor Co. began business in 1903. Most interesting are the facts, of this vast sum, the Ford Motor Company retained for itself but 6.4 cents out of every dollar, spending the remainder, totaling nearly $12,500,000,000 for wages, taxes and materials.

While such information about one of the modern world's greatest industries will be found interesting by students, teachers, and economists, the housewife and mother will also find the little book handy because of the reliable information it brings for first aid treatments in many different kinds of emergencies, hints for the kitchen and care of the garden and a well planned garden chart. The motorists planning a trip to any part of the United States will find in the Almanac a chart giving accurate mileage between important cities.

Services Held For Billy Sirmons

Last rites were held for Billy Sirmon, one year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sirmon of Burkburnett, from the Owens & Brumley chapel, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The child died Friday at a Wichita Falls hospital after a brief illness of pneumonia. The burial was in the Burkburnett cemetery. Survivors are the parents, three brothers and four sisters. Orma, W. A. Jr. and David, Ruby, Juanita, Oleta, and Marie. Services were conducted by Rev. R. B. Fox, assisted by Rev. Willis Nichols.

Hardin Demo Club Studies Cleaning

Members of the Hardin Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. Fred Brookman Wednesday afternoon for a session of demonstrations led by Miss Leta Bennet county home demonstration agent in "Methods of Home Canning." Miss Bennet gave methods for removal of stains, and each member gave a laundry hint. Miss Bennet added other hints for efficiency in laundry.

The second part of the demonstration was on cleaning with gasoline and soap and water for silks, woolens, and felt hats. The council report was made, and the membership contest brought to a close. The winner will be announced later. The business session revealed that the club was 100 percent in the educational fund for this year. The interesting program was directed by Mrs. M. R. Hewell.

Mrs. Bennet and Mrs. Fred Minick spoke of the good neighbor survey that is being conducted. The type of people to be reached was disclosed.

Four new members were: Mesdames Robert Dunn, Taylor Davis, T. C. Powell, and R. W. Keith. Visitors present were Mesdames Artie Whitesides, Edith Goodlett, E. A. Birkham, Lelia Westbrook, J. C. Muller, F. M. Milford, J. H. Bentley, Hugh Jones, M. R. Hewell, Fred Minick, J. W. Ashmon, G. W. Ferguson, S. E. Askins, J. J. Blackstone, J. L. Smith, R. W. Keith, Bill Stapp, Fred Brookman, and Misses Leta Bennet, Clara Kiesling and Millie Kiesling.

Freshmen Class Of Hi-School At Party

Members of the Freshmen class of the Fairview high school were guests at a party at the home of Miss Winnette Buzbee last Tuesday night. GOLDEN TEXT—A New Commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another, even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. John 13: 34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A New Commandment.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Man's Way.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What the New Commandment Means.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Measure of Christ's Love.

In the last week of our Lord's ministry on earth many important events took place, but we pass most of them in our present series of studies. The incident related in our lesson of today is of interest in and of itself, but it is of peculiar significance because it introduces a marvelously instructive discourse of our Lord.

Whatever had prompted their inquiry, we are delighted to note that the Greeks came with an earnest desire to see Jesus.

I. Seeking Jesus (12: 20-22).

A man has progressed far on the road to blessing when he makes known his desire to see Jesus. Coming to him means coming to the One who has the words of eternal life.

Note that the disciples were wise enough to bring the men to Jesus. The true function of every Christian worker is to bring men to him. On the back of the pulpit in one of America's greatest churches, directly where the preacher can see them as he arises to preach, are the words of our lesson, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Little wonder that a strong and true gospel is preached in that church.

II. Finding the Cross (vv. 23-33).

The reply of our Lord to the Greeks and to the disciples who brought them to him, seems a bit singular at first glance. Did he not wish to receive them? They had probably come to see the great religious leader, the King of the Jews—why does he talk about death—why is his soul troubled?

The words of our Lord are clear. Men do not need an example, a leader, a teacher, they need a Saviour. It is as a sacrifice for sin that Christ will draw all men unto himself (v. 32).

We need to relearn that lesson. Leaders of the church are earnestly seeking the explanation of the rapid decline in the influence of the Christian church. It is a good sign that some are beginning to realize that the difficulty is in the realm of the spiritual. The barrenness of so-called modern theology has become apparent to its leaders and they have begun to talk about a "spiritual revival." But unfortunately we soon find that they use the expression to stand for something entirely different from a real scriptural revival. "The voice is Jacob's voice but the hands are the hands of Esau" (Gen. 27: 22).

Let us make no mistake about it, a real revival will center in the cross and will manifest itself in the denial of self for the glory of God, both of which truths are emphasized in this passage.

One cannot forego mention of the fact that the last part of verse 26, "If any man serve me, him will my Father honor," was the motto of the late Dr. James M. Gray, whose life gloriously exemplified the truth of the passage. God is willing and ready to do as much for you and for me. Shall we not serve him with all our hearts?

III. Loving One Another (John 13: 34, 35).

When these words were uttered our Lord was two days further in the last week before he was crucified. He was alone with his disciples in the upper room. What message does he have for them in that solemn hour? That they should love one another. That is a message that needs renewed emphasis in our day. The strife which fills the world has almost engulfed the church, and there is bitterness and strife where love should reign.

Let us observe carefully that it is as his disciples that they are able to love one another. There are two erroneous extremes to be avoided. First, we have the out and out conservative, who proclaims his belief in the Bible as God's Word, who is anxious that he be absolutely correct in doctrine, a really saved man, and who then becomes the kind of "fighting" fundamentalist who dimly fails God in the testimony referred to in these verses. On the other hand we have the liberal who has abandoned the scriptural basis of his great love for his brethren. Love is no substitute for regeneration, and regeneration is no excuse for lack of love.

Giving and Taking Orders

He who will not accept orders has no right to give them; he who will not serve has no right to command; he who cannot keep silence has no right to speak.—Hubbard

Newest Silk Prints Go Pictorial

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS a sure antidote to winter gloom, as a reviver of crest-fallen spirits, as an unfailing means of buoying one up with that grand and glorious feeling that spring is nigh we recommend that you go stepping in a brand new silk print frock, the gayest, the brightest, the most animated in its patterning and coloring you can find to wear under your somber fur coat.

Hurry up if you want to secure the choicest, the most distinctive and outstanding from among the hundreds and thousands of prints now on display. Seriously it is this word of advice offered for it is a fact the new silk prints are that intriguing and alluring we have known it to be a fact that certain particularly attractive patterns are unpacked, priced and displayed in the morning and by nightfall they are sold, not even a remnant left to tell the tale.

The new silks look new—distinctively new! Those that unmistakably bear a new-season stamp follow along unique lines of thought. They are more than mere dress media in that they have gone pictorial, illustrative, interpretative. They portray ideas, they entertain, they amuse. Some of the better high-class silk prints even go by name as an artist would entitle a picture which makes them all the more interesting. There is, for example, a clever looking new silk print called "film modes." The French love of American films inspired Schiaparelli to design this amusing print with the names of famous stars printed on colorful scrolls simulating cinema film. The attractive daytime frock centered in the illustration herewith is made of this star-stenciled silk print, the color scheme being peacock blue and coral on black. The beret topping this costume is worn far back on the head in latest approved manner, so as to show a perfectly groomed hair-dress with latest style-correct off-face movement.

The silk for the dress shown to the left by the same artist designer registers as "subway of Paris," and its motif carries out the idea quite realistically. This silk tunes perfectly to the gay young dress pictured to the left in the trio. The dashing cavalier hat is a resort fashion such as bespeaks a coming springtime vogue. The turn-up-aside silhouette is exploited in several Paris collections.

Strawberries, fresh strawberries! At any leading silk department where smartest silk prints are flaunting their fascinating colors and breathtaking patternings ask for "fresh strawberries," and the knowing salesperson will bring out a perfectly charming silk crepe print such as is used for the making of the winsome dress shown to the right in the group. Appliques of the strawberries on net introduce an ornate accent in the bodice. The strawberry corsage is dyed to match the color of the berries in the print.

Others among the new and novel pictorial prints now so fashionable are enlivened with animated figures, such as golf players teeing off, or "doggie" silks with frolicsome Scotch terriers performing tricks, galloping horses, quaint undersea fish, butterflies on the wing and other motifs too numerous to itemize. Most unusual and of high-style importance are the new landscape prints; marine scenes, too, grace these silks. It is indeed a versatile story of romance, history, music and what not that the smartest prints of the season are telling.

First-choice silks for immediate wear play up vivid splashes of striking florals in breathtaking colors against black or some other preferred dark background. The wide-spaced flower motifs look newest, these in huge single flowers or in wide-set bouquets. A new and lovely silk prints artful bouquets in gay colors. In Paris black and white prints are acclaimed.

EASY-MADE DRESS
 By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If you are feeling that make-it-yourself urge which the displays of lovely, crisp, fresh-looking spring materials always brings to the woman who can sew, here is just the type dress that will start the home-sewing program off with a flourish. Almost boyish in its neat, trim lines this make-it-yourself dress of dubonnet nubcord, a sporting modern cotton fabric with no hidden tendency to shrink, since it has been sanforized—shrunk in the finishing of the cloth, offers plenty of reward in chic to the home dress-maker. It has a zipper neck closing and inverted pleats in sleeves, center back and pockets. A smooth black leather belt adds to the effect of tailored smartness.

Tiny Watches Are Fitted to the Latest in Gloves

Small jeweled watches are being worn everywhere but on the wrist these days. Some of the new tailored suits with heavy cuffs have a small detachable watch encased over the left wrist.

Many of the new cigaret cases have small watches fitted on the outside, while purses and gloves that are fitted with watches have been shown for several months.

New Slipper Styles

Open, airy types of slippers in striking colors, sandalizes oxfords and wrapped-around-the-foot effects will highlight the style picture this spring. In materials, cloth is first on the list.

By VIRGINIA VALE

IT HAS always been difficult to get permission to visit studios in Hollywood. From now on, popular comedians like the Marx Brothers, Jack Benny, and Burns and Allen hope to make it impossible. In fact, if there were any way that they could make pictures without having a flock of carpenters, electricians, property men, and extras around, they would be heartily in favor of adopting it.

Thieves on the set are the reason for all this uproar. It would be bad enough if the thieves merely lifted jewelry, or furs, but these thieves steal ideas whose worth cannot be estimated unless you can think in staggeringly big figures. When comedians and their gag men are finally worked out a funny situation and filmed it, two months may elapse before it is shown on the screen. But almost at once comedians elsewhere introduce their funny situation. Obviously, someone from the studio told them about it—but who?

It is always gratifying to see a real trouper win out over all odds. That is why everyone is rejoicing over Alice Faye's hit in "On the Avenue."

When Irving Berlin moved into the Twentieth Century-Fox studio with a knockout musical score under his arm, the studio officials said, "We've got something big here." So, they decided to build up a marvelous cast with players borrowed from other studios. They got Dick Powell from Warner's and Madeleine Carroll from Walter Wanger Productions for the leading roles. And then their own Alice Faye in a secondary role walked off with all honors that weren't taken by the crazy antics of their own Ritz Brothers.

A long time ago Paramount bought a story called "Easy Money" for Carole Lombard, but she has never got around to make it. Meanwhile the studio officials have been impressed by the bounding popularity of Jean Arthur and decided she would do nicely in the leading role.

For months Cary Grant has gone around saying that if his Paramount contract would only come to an end, he would never sign another with anybody. He would just make pictures when he felt like it, and spend the rest of his time lying on the beach at Santa Monica or taking leisurely trips to England. But after watching his work in the new Grace Moore picture, Columbia officials decided they must have him under contract. No one has ever been known to win an argument with Jack Cohn, the grand mogul of Columbia Pictures, so Cary signed the contract he offered.

Back in New York all the young stage players and all the dramatic school students go to see Greta Garbo in "Camille" over and over. Two girls who are living on a tiny budget that permits eating only now and then and never riding on a street car or bus, had gone every day for six days and seen the picture at least 14 times. They were broke and hungry, but they felt they just had to see it again. So, they screwed up their courage and told the manager of the Capitol theater how much they were learning from watching her, and he arranged to let them in free.

Deanna Durbin, the fourteen-year-old sensation of Eddie Cantor's radio program and Universal's "Three Smart Girls" thinks New Yorkers aren't very good mathematicians. She realized her lifelong ambition of climbing the stairs inside the Statue of Liberty on her first visit to New York a few weeks ago. But the sign at the foot of the steep, winding stairs said there were 161 steps, and Deanna counted 165. Determinedly she dragged her weary feet up the steps again, only to find that she was right the first time.

ODDS AND ENDS... Clark Gable's birthday on the "Parnell" set was a hilarious occasion. Fellow-players gave him a cake inscribed to the greatest actor in the world—Robert Taylor... Joan Crawford has brushed out her curls, wears her hair very straight and plain and uses colorless nail polish. Judy Garland made a tremendous hit singing at a food benefit, and will get some big film roles now.

Division of Time—
 Quiet Pleasures to Punctuate the Rush of Life Are Sought

THE rush of life that leaves persons no time for deliberation, nor the pursuit of happiness in their own special ways, has seemed to reach its apex. Already there is a trend toward leisurely living, the sort that claims the right to dispose of hours not occupied in business or housekeeping, in ways of personal choice rather than of group determining.

Today, in the modern ways of living, time is divided into two units, one of which is work, the other diversion rather than play. As soon as work is over, or can be interrupted, the time is given over to diversion. Some persons work most of the time and some persons spend most of their time in diversions. The division of hours between these two things is uneven, but however divided, no waking time is left.

Spare Time.

While each of us should work part of our time, it is the matter of how we spend the rest of our time that is now coming under special consideration. There is a growing discontent that seems to bode good. Why should any of us be bound to do in time which is our own, what this or that group is doing because at the moment it is the popular thing? Can we have no evenings to ourselves?

Home Diversions.

Shall the rare pleasures of home be invaded? Or shall we decide to spend some quiet evenings in reading favorite books or delving into those new ones we realize would be liked? Shall we have time to devote to needlecraft, to music, to studying some language,

Texas Now Receives $5.39 For Every Oil Tax Dollar Collected In 1922

The degree to which Texas has benefitted from oil developments is shown by the fact that current revenues in taxation from this industry yield $5.39 for every dollar collected from this source in 1922, according to studies just completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

The accompanying chart shows that the State has obtained in oil tax revenue a relatively greater appreciation in monetary returns than has been recorded by the oil industry of the State itself. In terms of the 1922 dollar, oil taxes have increased of $5.39 while the oil production dollar is now worth $2.47 in comparison with values in 1922.

WIGHAM—

Carrigan of Wichita Falls. Mr. Wigham is one of the oldest residents of the district. He came to Wichita Falls in 1888 where he made his home until the town was opened here in 1907. At Wichita Falls Mr. Wigham helped establish the first gin and managed the cotton seed oil mill for several years.

Town Lot Sale

When he came here to purchase the first town lot in 1907 he found seven hundred buyers ready for the sale. The headquarters were at the First National Bank which had been previously established. He was a native of Missouri, but has lived in Texas 65 years.

After the town lot sale a school meeting was called in a wooden shack. The fight for a school bond followed and carried 40 to 2. J. G. Hardin, Burkburnett philanthropist was appointed overseer of the construction. The building costing $30,000, is still. According to Mr. Wigham, Mr. Hardin offered half of the funds necessary to build the school.

Drouth Bad

In 1911 the drouth was so bad that the bank offered 10 dollars for one meal of roast-in-ears, and found no takers. That year Mr. Wigham was elected alderman and served for three years. In 1913 he built the first light plant. That year the tragic accident which took the life of one workman burned the plant to the ground, and for six months the city was without lights and power. The accident occurred when the superintendent of the plant attempted to start a gasoline engine at the plant. An explosion followed.

The charter was sold to the city and later to the Wichita Falls light company. The company built high line to Burkburnett.

The normal crops in the early days were cotton and corn. Comparatively little wheat was produced here. The cotton crop reached about 800 bales and sold most of the time for nine cents or less.

Before leaving Mr. Wigham promised that he would be back to help Burkburnett celebrate its 30th anniversary next June.

Fire Department Makes First Run In Ninety Days To Monday Fire

IS THIS THE SPRING FEVER? GIRLS TAKE UP FOOTBALL

The girls have become weary of the routine recreation and have decided to give the boys some commonsense at the Central Ward school. At least you can't say they are offside. They are Lora McCormick, Floyd Gons, Clara Gist, Sue Abbot, Dorothy Smith, Juanita Gorton (with the ball) Wanda Boydson, Othello Cryer, Ma Coats, Francis Dudley, Juanita Bruner, Ruth Nelson and Dorothy Harper.

THE BOYS START KNITTING

Since the girls have decided that they need some recreation, the boys decided that they will follow a similar program. They start knitting. While the girls stood and sneered "sissy" at the youngsters, they ignored all objections and went right on with needles clicking in high rhythm. The boys said that they had played football all fall and didn't get a sweater so they decided to knit one. At least it is a reasonable excuse. The boys are: Ed Richard, William Howard Willis, Elmer (Mut) Garret, and Preston and Harry Carrol Well, (standing.)

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN CABARET IN HILARIOUS NEW JANE WITHERS HIT

Uncle Tom's cabin is a cabaret now and Old Man River's truckin' along in Jane Withers' new jubilee of julep time, "Can This Be Dixie?" comes to the Palace Theatre Sunday and Monday to the hilarious laughter and delight of a packed audience.

The fun really shines all the time in this new Twentieth Century-Fox song hit as "Ginger" Jane starts dancing, with lovers romancing and all the darkies prancing to Harlemized hits.

Especially notable is the expert cast which supports the starlet. Prominent in the principal roles are Slim Somerville, Helen Wood, Thomas Beck, Sara Haden, Claude Gillingwater, Donald Cook and others.

The opening of the picture finds Slim and his niece, Jane, driving along a cotton field on a Southern plantation, in a dilapidated car to which is attached a trailer serving both as sleeping accommodations by night and the stage for a medicine show by day. They have enticed the darkies from the field to watch their show when Claude Gillingwater, owner of the plantation arrives on the scene just in time to prevent the sheriff from arresting Slim and Jane for peddling without a license.

The plantation is heavily mortgaged to Donald Cook, who is using this to try and force Gillingwater's granddaughter, Helen Wood, to marry him. Helen dislikes Cook and this feeling is accentuated when she meets Thomas Beck, young northern lawyer, who visits the plantation with a prospective buyer. Helen and Beck fall in love at first sight, but Cook and his mortgage stand between them.

All Gillingwater's hopes are centered in his racehorse, Stonewall Jackson, the favorite to win the $50,000 Derby. Cook has the sheriff attach the horse. Jane persuades Slim to make out a check drawn on the "Bank of England" in supposed payment of the horse, which releases him for the race.

In order to get money to make the check good Jane takes the plantation darkies to New York and they win a prize on a famous radio amateur program. In the meantime Cook demands payment for the bad check and, in despair, Helen agrees to marry him. Just as the wedding ceremony is about to be performed Jane rushes in with money to redeem the check, and Helen marries Beck instead.

From then on the story becomes increasingly hilarious, culminating when Jane persuades the Colonel to turn the plantation into a night club.

Chev Deliveries Soon To Begin

(Special to the Star)

DETROIT, FEB. 23—W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, announced this week that every consideration will be given to the thousands of customers who have demonstrated their loyalty to Chevrolet by leaving their orders with dealers in spite of the fact that they did not know when they could get delivery.

In a communication to Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers, Mr. Holler requested them to extend his thanks to the thousands of purchasers who were willing to await resumption of production for delivery of their cars. He also assured dealers that new orders for Chevrolets will receive immediate attention and that deliveries will be made with the utmost rapidity.

"It is a source of deep gratification to me and to everyone in Chevrolet to notice the fine spirit of cooperation exhibited by the public," Mr. Holler declared. "We have received hundreds of letters here in Detroit from customers assuring us their willingness to take delivery as soon as we could obtain the materials which would permit us to resume production."

"Production now has been resumed, and shipments of new cars will shortly be under way. We expect to be producing at capacity within a few days in order to reward the loyalty and patience of the public with deliveries of new cars with all the speed of which we are capable."

Mr. Holler pointed out that in November and December Chevrolet enjoyed two of the most successful months in its history producing and delivering more than 200,000 of the new 1937 models.

New sales records have been consistently set up ever since the announcement of the new models last November, the sales chief recalled.

"We will bend every effort toward returning to a high peak of business as quickly as possible," Mr. Holler declared. "In the meantime, the many thousands of orders from Chevrolet customers, which we have not been able to fill during the recent stoppage of production, will be filled as soon as normality can be restored to the assembly lines."

Oil Stove Fire Destroys $1,000 Property Here

Firemen Fight Stiff Western Breeze In Local Blaze

INSURANCE LOW

A fire starting from the explosion of an oil stove at the home of Mrs. Estelle Pribble and B. C. Taylor caused damage estimated by officials at about $1,000 in the Doyle Addition Monday at noon. According to Mrs. Taylor the flames started when the oil stove of Mrs. Pribble exploded to throw flames over the home. The fire was the first call of the department in about 90 days.

The firemen strung hose for about one fourth of one mile only to reach the scene after the second house, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. S. D. McCaferty and family had started burning. In the face of a stiff western wind the firemen fought to save the third house which had started burning in spots.

For their efficiency in saving the third place the firemen received praise this week. Although the house, owned by A. D. Doyle of Burk Burnett, were outside of the city limits, the entire force reported for the fire.

Local insurance companies reported that the entire property had been destroyed including all furnishings. The houses carried insurance of about $100 each.

County Auditor's Report

The report released by Jim Jones, county auditor, indicates that the salary fund completed this year with a net deficit of $44,785.38. In summary of the report, Mr. Jones suggest that there is little possibility of an increase in the status of the county treasury under the present salary bill. The overdraft in the recapitulation of the general fund was slightly over $55,000.

Recently the county court made an attempt to readjust the county setup to secure economy. The changes could not be made without impairment of efficiency of the county government. The report does indicate that something must be done immediately. Whether it is a change in the Salary Bill, or reorganization of county departments, or just what, we do not know.

Thanks

One of the best press boxes in the entire district 10-B decorated the Bulldog stadium, but it was so slow that the reporters and broadcasters could see very little of the action taking place on each end of the football field. Since last season closed the WPA and school authorities have been busy making changes that will give Burkburnett the best football plant in the area.

The part appreciated by the new men will be that press box which has been elevated to a high spot on the top of the new stands at the Eastern side of the field. A brief visit at the stadium this week revealed that it would be possible for the reporters to move off of the side lines next year and still keep track of all the details of the game. Thanks.

Anti-Lynching Bill

The slowness and uncertainty of justice meted out by the courts of the nation often prompts people to take the matter into their own hands and execute a swift and often unjust sentence upon an accused person. Even sane and sound men sometimes are disgusted with the administration of law.

However, the mob spirit is born of cowardice. It is fostered by hatred and injustice. It lives and grows rapidly on prejudice. And rarely is lynching any more than the most degrading activity in which men can indulge.

Attendance at any athletic contest where feelings run high illustrates how unreasonable a mass of people can be. Driven by the fever of the occasion, crowds in stadiums can indulge in some silly behavior. Lynching is a product of the same tendency on the part of a mass of people to allow prejudice to exceed a sense of justice.

Usually decisive action on the part of officials can avert lynching because a mob is just about as cowardly as it is silly.

The federal government may not be justified in taking the authority in the anti-lynching bill before the national congress, but some more decisive action should be taken. Those opposed to the bill state that it is an invasion of state rights. Of course these same people do not stop to think that a mob filled with hatred, and sometimes liquor executing without trial or hearing a man does not think of the constitutional guarantee of a fair trial.

So whether it is the task of the federal government or of some other unit, definite attempts to control such crimes must be made.

Progress

One encouraging thing about the Spanish conflict is that the insults and incidents which would have caused a war 20 years ago between the nations involved were passed after a few demands of apology and explanation. The capture of the Russians, the German's holding of a Spanish vessel, open participation by citizens of other nations, deaths of various nationals, all have provided excuses which could have been used to start armies marching.

Whether the hesitation is a conviction on the part of the nations that war is no longer profitable, or merely expression of the fear that the nations have that they are not prepared for war is hard to determine, but whatever is the cause it represents progress.

When the nations were ready in 1914 the trival incident of the death of an unimportant ruler was used as the starting point for a war that several nations already wished to fight.

Yet these same nations that have been noisily shaking the saber during the last few months have passed many more reasonable excuses.

An analysis of each nation points at definite reasons why each hesitates. Russia is ready to fight, but has huge problems of dividing the army between a German invasion on the west and a Japanese invasion on the East. France is torn with internal strife. Italy is still having a hard time finding means to pay for the Ethiopian fiasco. Germany has a hard enough time feeding its people. England is holding desperately to a tenuous empire that might be torn asunder by conflict.

Rail Pension Act
 Since the enactment of the railway pension act, the government and the 26 billion railroad industry have been in courts of every nature disputing the legality of the act. So far the rail road companies have been the winners in the court battles. Under the special act, a portion of the social security laws, the levy of 3 1/2 percent tax on payroll and company was supposed to provide a pension of 125 dollars per month for the railway employees. In spite of the fact that the supreme court threw out the taxing provisions of the act, the payment to railway employees was declared legal, and the government still pays 3,500 retired pensioners. The conference between the board representing the government and their railroad companies has been going on for two months.

Withdrawn Suits
 The most hopeful announcement is the possibility that the industry will withdraw the suits that are now in the court and compromise with the government for the payments. The decision would save litigation and expenses to both parties. The 1935 act declared invalid affected 1,000,000 men, and these men will lose the special pension if the compromise is not reached. The method of settling a dispute between the government and industry will set a precedent that may save court tests in many future cases.

Transatlantic
 When the congress passed the postoffice appropriation bill last week there was a portion included in the bill that provided $750,000 for the establishment of transatlantic mail service via the air. Only a few years ago the sailing of the air across the pond was a stunt. It was considered extremely fortunate for any aviator to make the hop.

This bill will not foster stunt flying. It will aim at reducing the transoceanic trips to a business like basis. The men who will establish the route will not have quite so much romance and danger. Every provision will be made for their safety and every service at their disposal. The stunts of yesterday will be forgotten with their romance and adventure. So it is that the trail blazers always pave the adventurous way with a daring that challenges the hardy and the brave. Business men follow up to profit.

P. W. A. Extended
 President Roosevelt asked congress to extend the PWA for two years at the Friday session. For two more years it will be necessary for the government to supervise the employment of thousands of men. However, it was apparent from the smaller appropriations that the government is expecting the local communities and other governmental units to take the place of the federal government in the support of the unemployed, especially the unemployable.

Industrial Spy
 The investigation in Washington which has uncovered the activities of the industrialists in sending spies into the ranks of the laboring men to secure information is a valuable revelation. The American public will have less sympathy for the companies who have been guilty of such things. Both labor and industry have not been completely legal and above board in this struggle but in a desperate fight like this one such tactics are expected.

Military Rites For Former Burk Driller

Funeral services for Charles M. Mixon, 47, Wichita Falls oil driller, and world war veteran, will be held from the Lamar Avenue Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Rev. S. F. Martin pastor, officiating.

Pallbearers were J. P. Phillips, J. C. Webb, Theodore King, Harve Williamson, Carl McDonald and J. B. Bakovris, all of whom are world war veterans.

Full military services at the grave were conducted by the Pat Carrigan post No. 120, American legion of Wichita Falls, of which Mixon was a member.

Burial was in Riverside cemetery under the direction of Owens & Brumley Funeral home.

Mixon died in a Wichita Falls hospital Saturday morning at 9:15 o'clock from a heart attack suffered at his home Thursday morning.

He resided in Burkburnett during the oil boom days, moving to Wichita Falls in 1923. He was wounded overseas while in action during the world war as a member of the 36th division. He had been engaged in the drilling business and was well known among oil men in this area.

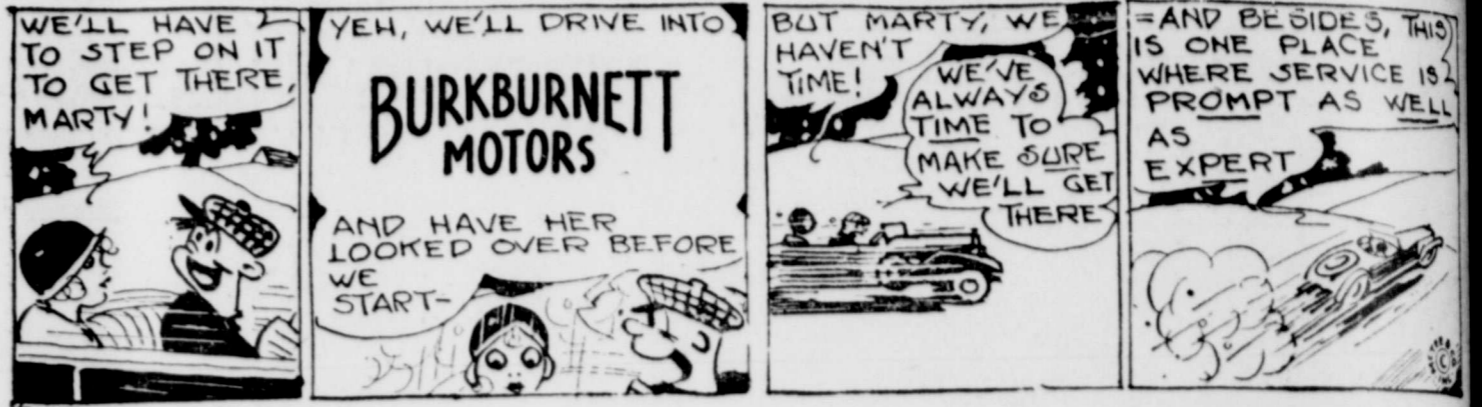

Survivors include the widow; his mother, Mrs. Irene Mixon of Wichita Falls; one sister, Mrs. D. C. McMullin of Hobbs, N. M.; two brothers, J. A. Mixon of Bryan, Texas, and M. L. Mixon of Longview; four nieces and two nephews.

Feb. 21, 1937.

Well folks, at last all of us are getting where we can get our breath. For over ten days now its been just nip and tuck to breathe, see or hear for the great vast of dust, dirt and sand, but at this writing its calmed down and is some what warmer, but still no rain and one in sight but its hoped by every one that a good rain or two will come before its too late.

Mrs. Martha Nails received a letter Friday from Millborn in Eastern Okla., stating that her married sister was very sick and for Mrs. Nails to come at once. So she and Tobe Hardin and her son Charlie left Saturday morning at 2 a. m. for Millborne to be at the bed side of her sick sister. Its hoped by Mrs. Nail's host of friends when she arrives at her sister's home that she will be much better. If she isn't dangerously ill they expect to motor oack home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. James Self, who is farming west of the Big Rabbit Creek school house had the misfortune to lose one of his best work horses last Thursday afternoon. Tobe Hardin was working the horse at the time he took sick. Tobe and Mr. Self's son doctored the animal and did everything that could be done to save it, but it was all in vain. The animal was valued at $150.00.

Miss Nettie Broomfield who has been making her home with the Owens family since last August is nursing a lady friend of hers up near Faxon, Okla. She has been gone over three weeks. She came back home Saturday evening and then departed to take up her nursing job.

W. H. Martin motored up near Lawton last Saturday. W. H. after leaving Lawton on business he then motored down to Burkburnett arriving late in the evening.

Hawkeye called on his old friend Clarence LeBarre Friday morning to see how Clarence was getting along. He found him looking fine and feeling lots better but isn't able to do much farm work.

Clarence and Ed LaBarre and brother Teddy have been wintering down in New Orleans, La. this winter and has just arrived back home the first of last week. Teddie stated to Hawkeye that he believed that it rained every day while he was in New Orleans, he came back home looking fine and is as fat as a fatening hog.

Saturday was one Saturday that Hawkeye was unable to get over to Burkburnett to mingle with his many friends as he had no way of getting over to the city. But he is going to try to get to Burkburnett the first of the week, as he has some business to transact.

The wheat and barley a well as some fall oats are looking good in spite of the awful dust storms, and no rains or snow. Two good big rains would almost insure a good wheat and barley crop.

This Sabbath afternoon is almost like mid-summer, as there isn't any wind or dust or dirt and sand blowing and its moderated several degrees since 6 A. M. this morning. Ice froze Saturday night along the edge of water in Big Rabbit Creek.

Those little cold snaps like Saturday night is just fine on all fruits, as it will hold them back from budding out too early like they did last spring. One big freeze came last year in March about the 10 or 12th. It just killed nearly all of the fruit.

Mrs. Ed Owens who has almost been down with the flu and bad cough for over two weeks is feeling some better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Woods' eldest daughter and her little sister also one of her brothers called on Mrs. Ed Owens Saturday afternoon and visited with Mrs. Ed Owens.

HAWKEYE.

DISTRICT CHAMPS

For the first time in the history of the Fairview school it won the district championship in basketball. It was not exactly an easy accomplishment either, since no one but the Fairview fans seemed to have any faith in the team, or wanted to see them win. Even tho they have won 19 straight victories, sports writers and commentators at large, still contend that it is luck or something and refuse to give these basketball players the credit for winning their games. Heres hoping that this said luck continues to stay with them through the State meet.

The Fairview team competed with winners from eight counties and Wichita Falls and Vernon. They played their opening game with Holliday, Archer Co., at 7 o'clock Friday night and it proved to be one of the toughest games of the meet and one of the showiest. It was one of the toughest since the Holliday Eagles were seeking revenge for a previous defeat from the Bears, and it was one of the showiest in that the Holliday team was bedecked in bright red satin suits and the Fairview team was dressed in white satin trimmed in royal blue. After the score changed several times, was tied, then after a seemingly prolonged last quarter, the final whistle blew with the score Fairview 24, Holliday 21.

Friday morning at 10:40 the Bears met the powerful much-alibied Wichita Falls Coyotes in a "slowed up" game, both teams playing a defensive game; after an agonizing thirty-two minutes, the Bears proved to be the most defensive, the game ending with the scores; Fairview 20—Wichita Falls 13.

The final game Saturday night was a pitched battle from the moment of the first whistle with the Bears doing the pitching against five Vernon players and two referees. Of all the men on the court, the carrot-topped referee from Vernon did some of the most defensive playing with every trick he knew he tried to keep the Fairview Bears from scoring, and he continued these tactics religiously throughout the game, but the grim determination of the Bears was too much for him, they won the game anyway, the score being Fairview 28, Vernon 22 at the end of the game. Thus the Bears copped the district basketball championship.

FAIRVIEW BEARS ON TO REGIONAL MEET

Just two games between us and Austin boys, let's win those games if we possibly can and represent Wichita county in the state meet this year. These were the challenging words of coach Watkins to his district champions in Basketball Monday morning.

Fairview meets Polytechnic High school of Fort Worth in the opening game of the regional meet at Denton Friday night, Feb. 26, at 7:15. Immediately following the game Woodrow Wilson High school of Dallas and Waco High school play. The winners of these two games play the final of the Regional meet Saturday night at 7:30 and the winner of this game will enter the State basketball meet at Austin the following week-end.

Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco are the other three cities represented at this Regional meet. We wonder if they will wonder where this city of Thrift is and why they have never heard of it before.

"Silence Please"—March 5, 1937

WHAT? NO TROPHY

Did you ever hear of a district championship basketball team being presented a piece of paper for the winning trophy? Sure, you did not but listen and ye shall hear, the Fairview Bears were presented the piece of cardboard upon which the playing brackets were printed in beautiful black ink, and this is to take the place of the usual silver loving cup that is presented annually to the District basketball meet in Wichita Falls.

Don't you know that if Wichita Falls or Vernon had won this title that they would have been presented the biggest loving cup that money could buy? Sure you do. These two schools don't ever have to enter county competition they go straight to the district while all other schools have to battle their way through a double Round Robin and a county tournament before they can enter the district. Then when these two big schools don't win their alibi is that they play football.

Well out of a thousand students wouldn't you think Wichita Falls and Vernon might possibly be able to find enough boys to have a winning football, basketball, track polo, boxing and what have you team if Fairview can have a winning team out of 80 students. Just because Fairview is practically situated on the banks of Red river and 18 miles from Wichita Falls and have only between 80 or 90 high school students is that any reason why they shouldn't be presented a trophy the same as a big school if they win it. However we don't play for trophies.

FAIRVIEW VOLLEY BALL TEAM ADVANCE TO FINALS

The Fairview volley ball girls emerged second best in the county after having all the dope against them when they entered. These girls entered the county tournament determined to make their opponents play ball if they defeated them and they certainly did accomplish their purpose.

They played their opening game with Burkburnett Thursday night at 9 o'clock and came out the victors after playing three hard games. Winning this game put them in the semi-final game with Valley View Friday night.

The semi-final game Friday night was a battle from beginning to end. The Valley View girls seemed to have had some determination of their own and the Fairview team had to turn on the steam full blast, but they did it and won the game putting themselves with the Iowa Park in the finals.

The Hawkettes proved to be too much for the Bearcats since they had almost played themselves out in the semi-finals. They did put up a gallant fight though even if the favored Iowa Parkers did win two straight games from them.

Congratulations, Mr. Brand, to you and your team for the fine showing they made in the county meet. We are proud of you!

It is with much regret that we lost so many of this fine team by graduation. Margaret Lee Bogy, Carrie Ruth Stonecipher, Mildred Morrison, Lenora Podberger, have played their last volley ball game for Fairview since they graduate in the spring. They have played faithfully for their school and deserve much praise for their efforts to bring victory to school.

We are glad to see the other members of the team next year and we hope they will very capably carry on school colors to make those returning area boys Virginia Dare Bayne, Spencer, Troy Northrup, McCall, Pearl Zink, and Wilma Edwards.

"D-298"—"Silence Please" March 5, 1937.

Intermediate

The intermediate members of the First Baptist church met Monday, Feb. 22 for a regular weekly meeting. The organization opened the meeting with the song "The Morning Star" and the roll call. The roll was read and the minutes read and approved. The next item was the reading of the new program. The series of lessons for the month of March were read and the torch bearers were announced.
