Armed Forces, Too, Decline Population

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 28.—Rural areas are bearing the brunt of a population decline in the 12th congressional district conforming to the 17th congressional district, according to first preliminary figures released by District Surveyor J. C. Shipman.

Shipman announced the Nolan, Texas, and Stephens, Callahan, Oklahoma, and Comanche—have an increase. Only one, Comanche, showed a gain over the 1930 population.

Shipman pointed to Fisher as an example of the rural population decline in this district. Although populations of Nolan, with 2,027 residents compared with 1,632 in 1930, and Stephens, with 905 as compared with 801, increased, the county population declined in the 10-year census.

The trend was similar—but not definite—in Nolan. Both precincts of population, Sweetwater and Roccoe, lost residents, their combined loss totaled 572—against 1,972 for the county. Likewise, Breckenridge's loss of 1,739 accounted for more than half of Stephens' drop of 225.

Shipman is required by law to file census headquarters reports to the best of his knowledge and belief why any city or county increased or decreased in more than ten per cent in population. Yes, he released the following figures for Fisher's loss, with comment it applies to most of the other counties in his district: "This county has been in an area over which a severe drought has prevailed for several years; therefore, quite a few farmers have been forced to leave the farm and get other employment upon which to live through dry years."

Second: The advent and progress of mechanized farming methods also been a factor in reducing the number of farms in the district. With the modern implements now used for farming, one man can cultivate twice as much land as one man could only a few years ago. In instances where a farm had a tenant five or ten years ago, said owner now cultivates all of his land.

McNary Named AS WILLKIE'S RUNNING MATE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 28.—The Republican National Convention met again this afternoon, and quickly nominated Senator Charles McNary of Oregon as Wendell Willkie's vice presidential running mate. McNary's nomination was virtually assured after a conference between the Republican leaders and the presidential nominee this morning.

Willkie, nominated on the sixth ballot by the Republicans, announced today that his speech of acceptance of the nomination would be made from the steps of the Elwood, Indiana High School, where he received his early education.

Earlier Willkie had announced that he would resign the presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in order to conduct his campaign. He said that he had rather many small contributions to his campaign expenses would be made, rather than large ones from a few individuals and firms.

The Republican candidate said that he would be glad to confer with President Roosevelt regarding foreign affairs. President Roosevelt had indicated in a press conference that he would also be glad to confer with Willkie, though no invitation had been formally extended.

Senator McNary said, before his nomination that he would accept the nomination "if forced to."

Uncle Charlie Sheppard is now home among his friends in Eastland after several weeks confinement in the City-County Hospital in Ranger.

Heading for the White House? The Willkies of Indiana

Wendell Lewis Willkie

Edith Wilk Willkie

Six years ago Democrat Wendell Lewis Willkie began a fight against the New Deal to "salvage" utilities of powerful Commonwealth and Southern, threatened by the TVA experiment. . . . In 1929 he won that fight, emerged with $78,000,000 for the properties the government had originally offered to buy for $55,000,000. . . . He also emerged as one of the ablest champions of business—and a Republican. . . . Today this big, handsome former Indiana lawyer is a candidate for President on a program calculated to free business of excessive governmental control. . . . Willkie calls himself a liberal, says that a true liberal's function is "to strive to make men free."

Willkie was born 48 years ago in Elwood, Ind. . . . His parents both were lawyers and he early developed a taste for the law, too, helped his father prepare a case at 16. . . . In high school and college he was outstanding as a debater. . . . Willkie was one of the first to enlist in 1917, served with the 325th Field Artillery. . . . In 1919 the youthful attorney began practice at Fort Wayne, Ind., then in Akron, O. . . . His brilliant work as a utility counsel brought him to New York in 1929 and four years later, at 41, he became president of the $1,128,501,000 Commonwealth and Southern system. . . . Willkie married Edith Wilk, the town librarian at Elwood, Ind., just before he left for France. . . . The Willkies have one child, Phillip Herman, a senior at Princeton and recently voted "the most likely to succeed" in his class. . . .

All State Departments Working On Plans To Aid In Defense Program

AUSTIN, Tex.—War defense interlocking activities of all state departments. From the extensive plans being made in the office of the Adjutant General for participation of the National Guard of Texas in August defense maneuvers to the business of the most unilitary branches of the state government, defense plans are being made.

In co-operation with national plans an organization is already effected to put into force the national draft in the event of a declaration of war. This work has been handled through the adjutant general's department as well as arrangements to recruit the National Guard to added strength in case of need.

Many of the state agencies are looking forward to after-war conditions and making plans or giving advice about that period. A hasty review of the department activities shows that practically all have been affected in some way by the outbreak of war in Europe and the efforts being made to combat any spread of hostilities to the Americas.

A Texas board to assist in national aviation defense has been set up as an unsalaried agency for gathering data and furnishing it to government agencies in connection with the national plan for building a huge air fleet and training the pilots it will require.

Two sessions of this committee already have been held here and its investigations are being carried on constantly.

State police have augmented the usual force of Rangers along the Rio Grande. They have set up a series of contact points with ranchers and others along the international border to be appraised of any outbreaks. Instructions have gone to all the state police to make investigations of any fifth column activities, reporting them to the F. B. I. or other official sources.

PEACE RUMOR IS SPIKED BY CHAMBERLAIN

Rumanian Government To Resist Hungarian or Bulgarian Land Grab Attempt.

The Red Army of Soviet Russia today occupied Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina in another revision of the European frontiers, on the 21st anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

By airplanes and motorized units, Russia moved swiftly but peacefully into the occupied territory, which comprises about one-sixth of Rumania in which 4,000,000 people live, and which boosted gains since the war started to 343,000 square miles and 14,000,000 population.

The Russian invaders met with no resistance and the occupation was peaceful. The soldiers were armed with maps, which they showed to the people, outlining the borders which Russia was to preserve, and the territory the Soviet would occupy.

The Nazis said that the Russian action was taken in connection with a desire for a new era in Europe, correcting injustices of the Versailles treaty.

Meanwhile the re-organized military government of Rumania asserted that it would fight any Hungarian or Bulgarian land grab attempts, but the decisions were apparently settled in Berlin and Rome by the axis powers.

20,231 Miles of Terraces Built In State During Year

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—A final compilation of soil-building practices completed under the 1939 AAA Program in Texas shows that on 18,297 farms, 20,231 miles of standard terraces were constructed; on 206,696 farms, 2,397,253 acres of green manure and cover crops were planted; on 77,437 farms, soil-depleting crops were interplanted with summer legumes on 852,290 acres; on 61,619 farms, 4,909,232 acres of intertilled crops were farmed on the contour.

Under the AAA program farmers can earn a specified amount of payments, varying according to the size of the farm, for adopting soil building practices. The maximum payment available is computed on a basis of the acreage of cropland, commercial orchards and perennial vegetables, non-crop open pasture land, restoration land, and acreage planted to forest trees.

Payments earned for soil-building work are in addition to payments for planting within acreage allotments, George Slaughter, chairman of the state committee pointed out, but compliance with the other provisions of the program is necessary before the farmer can earn soil-building payments.

No figures are yet available on improvement work done under the Range Conservation Program for 1939.

Stanley Hackney New Assistant In Ranger Wood Shop

Stanley Hackney, formerly of Electra, has been added to the Ranger NYA staff in the position of assistant supervisor of the wood shop.

The assistant supervisor has had technical training in the University of Oklahoma and practical experience in several planing mills, including one owned by his father.

The Shadow Deepens

The City of Light has become the City of Darkness. Paris in the hands of the invading Nazis is largely intact in its physical aspect.

Perhaps even the light which caused Paris to be called affectionately "La Ville Lumiere," the City of Light, may be switched on again after all the blackouts, for the French and British will scarcely bomb Paris, even though it be occupied by the invader.

But the light which really made Paris worthy of its name has been blanketed for the time being by darkness.

From darkness, light can never come. And darkness began to fall over Germany in 1933 when a philosophy became dominant there which said that man was a servant, not a master, that he existed not for the full and free development of himself and the enjoyment of his own life, but as a human ant with no other thought or object than to build ever higher and broader the ant-hill which the King Ant had decreed to be the be-all and the end-all of life.

When the night comes, man trims the wicks and lights the lamps. In modern life, he pushes a button and floods his rooms with instant light.

This is our talk. Until the morning comes, and light returns again to the earth as it has always done, we must light extra lamps in our house, and trim the wicks, inspect the wiring, that they may burn steadily until day comes.

The City of Light is darkened. But it will not always be so. We are justified in our firm faith that after even the darkest night comes day again. Until then, let us keep resolutely burning every light that we have power to kindle.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS . . .

By BOYCE HOUSE

Imagine writing a general book about Texas and not giving a line to O. Henry, Brann the Iconoclast, Big-Foot Wallace, Adobe Walls, Cynthia Ann Parker, the Lost Bowie Mine, the trail of the Indian chiefs at Jacksboro, the camels, the Texas Navy—just a bare mention of the King Ranch; nothing on Captain Bill McDanold, in fact only two paragraphs on the Texas Rangers; a scant mention of Sam Houston; only a satiric account of the battle of the Alamo; an utterly inadequate treatment on oil, the State's greatest industry; nothing on the State University's oil millions, nothing on Ranger, the biggest boom in history; almost nothing on cotton.

Coming on down to the current scene, this remarkable book (remarkable chiefly for what it leaves out) has not even the names of Anson Carter, Vice President Garner, Sam Rayburn, Martin Dies, Maury Maverick, Dr. George W. Truett nor Sam Baugh, Davey O'Brien, Mary (My Heart Belongs to Daddy) Martin; nothing about the Fort Worth Casa Manana, the Fat Stock Show rodeo nor Oil Rip, the Eastland horned frog.

There are just 16 pages on the cattle country, though the author himself says, "This is what the average American has in mind when he thinks of Texas." But there are 3,000 words about a bunch of band boys handling an old man roughly in San Antonio; a page and a half on the funeral of Kentucky gambler in Nevada and a page on the death of a Missouri outlaw in Minneapolis. The name of the book? "Saddle in the Sky" by J. H. Plenn.

"The day we celebrate" is marked by numerous big affairs over the State, such as the Stamford Cowboy Reunion, a re-enactment in Jacksboro of the famous trial of the Indian chiefs, and the July Jubilee in Brady.

The plight of the candidate for office is depicted in these beautiful stanzas from Harry Koch's Quannah Tribune-Chief: Oh! pity the poor politician Who would in campaigning engage He surely must be a magician In order to crash the front page; He may be a new incarnation Of Houston or Crockett or Hogg, But cannot explain this relation Will be lost in the midst of a fog.

As Churchill and Reynaud and Goering The newspaper headlines control, No chance have the voters adoring To learn how he'll handle the dole;

While legions of war commentators Crowd the air with opinions so choice, The man who could lead legislators Can ne'er treat the folk to his voice.

Whenever he's ready to mention His plans for retrieving the state, The President grabs all attention By warning of Liberty's fate; The day he has shrewdly selected His "willing to serve" to announce Another blitzkrieg is projected More jackals are ready to pounce.

He may be Democracy's savior, He may be all wisdom itself, But dictators' warlike behavior Keeps shoving him back on the shelf; He's up against tough competition No wonder he's livid with rage; Oh! pity the poor politician Who would in campaigning engage.

A friend is a feller that you don't have to pretend with, as my grandpa ust to say.

Preserve Spirituals And Outlaw Swing Is Society's Aim

AUSTIN, Tex.—Setting about to preserve the old negro spiritual in its original form, the Citizens National Benevolent Association is taking steps to outlaw modern swing from the Southern classics. Austin is famous over the state for its negro singers—the Ebenezer Choir being one notable example.

M. P. Graham, negro leader, is the guiding light behind the move to build a Southern conservatory of music in Austin, whose chief function will be to keep alive old negro songs. Many of the best negro spirituals are unwritten and it is feared that they may die with the extinction of the old generation of southern negroes.

The present objective of the organization, Graham said, is to raise money for the erection of a building which will house the music school. This will be used for conventions of negro singers from all over the state and the south. Graham said that a music publishing house had agreed to printing some books for the school.

SERIAL STORY

Ticket to Hollywood

BY W. H. PEARS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Searching for a ticket, Francie goes to the studio, meets Mr. Koon again. While she waits in Koon's office a brash young man comes in, openly admires her Francie is cold, haughty. The young man rushes her into Koon's office, orders the agent to introduce them properly. "This is Jerry Finney," Koon announces.

CHAPTER X "COCKTAILS." Jerry Finney ordered. Then, smiling at Francie: "They make a nice martini in here. Okay?"

Francie wanted to refuse, but she couldn't find words. Her head was still spinning from the suddenness of his invitation. Under the table she found a pin and prodded herself. It was no dream. She was actually sitting in the Tan Hat restaurant lunching with Jerry Finney!

The cocktails arrived, pale and icy. Jerry lifted his drink, gold-flecked eyes bold as they met Francie's. "Here's to your success."

Francie raised her glass, cautiously touching the liquor with the tip of her tongue. It burned like lyc. She pretended to drink, then quickly set down the cocktail.

"But I told you I couldn't be on the program," she protested weakly. "I'm going to give my ticket to Gusty."

"The home-town boy?" Jerry snorted. "Don't be silly, Francie. That lad's only trying to hog all the good angles. Come on, drink up."

"No, no, thanks," Francie quavered. "It's very nice, but I . . ."

Jerry said in confidential tones: "You know, Francie, you've got something. I don't usually risk taking strange girls to lunch, but you're different. The minute I laid eyes on you I said to myself, 'There's the loveliest girl in the world.'"

"Oh, Mr. Finney . . ."

"Mister Finney!" Jerry mocked. "Well . . . Jerry then."

"We're going to see a lot of each other, Francie."

Francie said shyly, "Oh, Jerry, I, well, it's like a dream being here with you. It—it all happened so quickly I can hardly realize it."

Jerry accepted this adulation with a modest gesture that said all women felt pretty much that way about Finney.

Francie put food in her mouth, chewed and swallowed; tasted nothing. Presently Jerry looked at his watch and apologized: "I'm terribly sorry, Francie, but I have an appointment. I'll run you back to the hotel."

Jerry's scarlet roadster glittered with chromium. On either door was a gold crest with J. F. in big raised letters. When they stopped for a traffic signal, everyone turned to look. Engulfed in the leather bucket seat, Francie felt like a queen. She threw her head back and laughed into the sunny, blue sky. Life! She was drinking deeply from an overflowing goblet.

"I can't stop," Jerry said contemptuously as they swept up to the hotel, "or the yokels'll be swarming for autographs. Like to do the Miracle Mile tonight?"

Francie had heard enough about the Miracle Mile to know it required an evening dress. "Can't we just get acquainted?"

"At 9, then," he said.

"About 9," Francie whispered, ecstatically.

Aunt Hat bubbled over at Francie's miraculous conquest. John Weston accepted the news dolefully.

"This Finney may be all right, but I'd like to know more about him."

"Oh, Pops," Francie danced about the room, cheeks aflame. "He's gorgeous and a perfect gentleman. And—and just think, Pops, with all the girls in Hollywood mad about him, he picked me!"

"Hmm, I don't know what to say, Francie."

Aunt Hat cut in sharply, "John Weston, are you going to deprive the child of—"

"I'll decide this, Hat. You may go, Francie, but be back by 11."

AT 8:30 Francie was pacing the veranda. At 10 Jerry's roadster raced into the driveway. "I'm late, Francie, but my valet took the night off, and I had trouble dressing."

He wore a white mess jacket. Francie thought he was the handsomest man she'd ever seen. They drove along Wilshire Boulevard past the glitter of the Miracle Mile.

"We might have a drink and a dance at one of the smaller spots," Jerry observed with a doubtful glance at Francie's dress.

"Francie thought up a quick 'I—'d rather wait till my true love arrives, Jerry. It has all my evening clothes in it."

He yawned. "I'm fed up on that stuff anyway. I'd rather make love to you, Francie."

Jerry parked by the ocean, spangled with moonlight, and put his arms around Francie. He was not awkward and shy like Gusty. He held her tight and kissed her until she was breathless. It was marvelous. Francie kept telling herself, "It was thrilling. But she was a little relieved when he released her."

"We'd better go back now,"

Jerry. My . . . my aunt isn't well, and I should be in by 11."

"By 11! Say, we don't start things out here till then."

Francie said absently, "Please don't be angry."

On the hotel veranda Francie made rash promises: "I'll have an evening dress by tomorrow night, Jerry. And—and I won't have to be in so early. That is, if you . . ."

Jerry kissed her roughly. "You're a sweet little package, Francie. I'll be around."

RELENTLESS pressure applied to Mr. Weston all next day changed the curfew hour to midnight. Aunt Hat, insisting that she would need it for the broadcast anyway, bought Francie a new formal. She danced that night under soft lights. She saw several famous personages of the screen. She had her favorite number played by a noted orchestra leader.

She returned to the hotel giddy with the glamor of it all and positive that Jerry Finney was in love with her. Elspeth City and Gusty were in the far distant past.

The following day Jerry was having a program conference with Koon. He asked Francie to meet him in the morning at the office. As she emerged, clinging to Jerry's arm, she heard a familiar voice arguing with the receptionist:

"Now, look, I'm a friend of Mr. Koon. Here, I'll show you the ticket he gave me."

Francie dug her fingers into Jerry's arm. She saw a shabby boy standing by the gate. His clothing was wrinkled and dirty, his hair windblown. He was fumbling for his wallet.

"Gusty," Francie whispered, but he hadn't seen her.

"Never mind that, sonny," the receptionist said, "Mr. Koon wouldn't see you if you had a passport to paradise!"

As Gusty put the wallet back Francie took a step toward him. Jerry Finney laughed. He said, "don't see why they let him bump up here."

Francie stopped in her tracks if she spoke to Gusty now, why would Jerry think of her? Gusty did look like a bum. Oh, what should she do? She couldn't walk a fool of herself before smooth handsome Jerry. She just couldn't!

Gusty had turned now and was staring at her, open-mouthed. Francie said brokenly, "I—don't see why they let such persons up either," and she walked by Gusty, averting her head.

4-H Club Girls of County Are Doing Outstanding Work

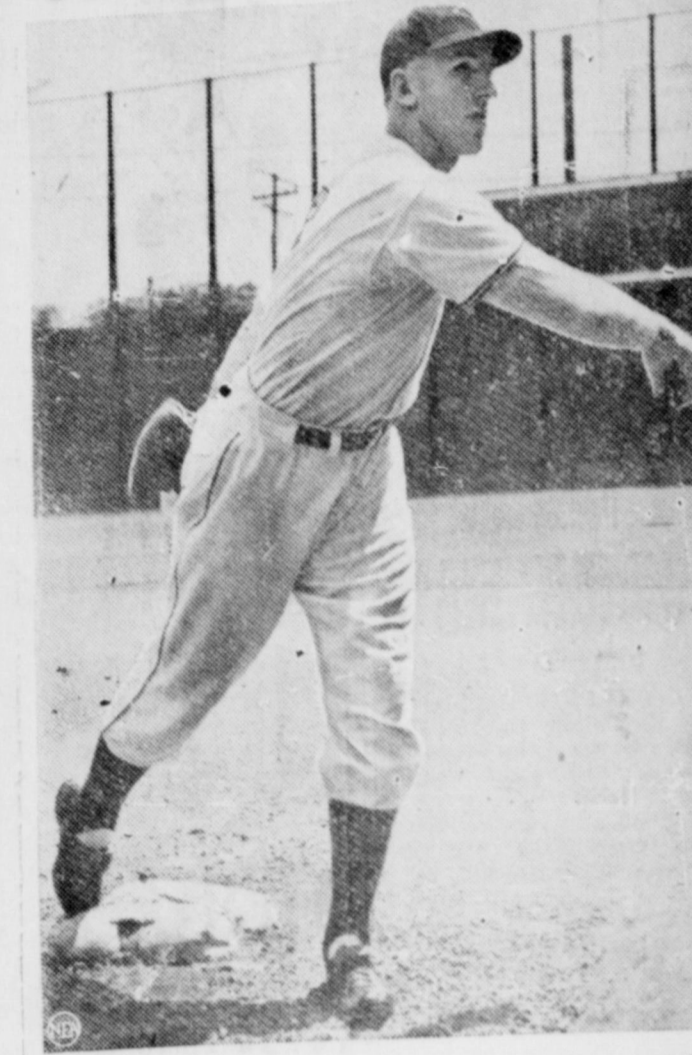

This is the first year that Eastland County 4-H Club girls have worked on a bedroom demonstration and everyone is proud of the outstanding results of the club girls.

Wanda Myrick of the Alameda 4-H Club selected a back room in their home to make her a bedroom for her very own and has improved it so much that now it is one of the most attractive rooms in the house. Previously the woodwork, floors and walls were dark and with only a little expense Wanda refined the room in a light color scheme. Her bed was refinished and an attractive dressing table was made. Wanda is very proud of her room.

Ima Louise Little of the Flat-wood Club made a most attractive candlewick bedspread for her bed. She has completed all of her bedroom goals for the year. She has a spring cover for her bed; a mattress cover and pad for protection to the mattress and covers to protect the pillows. Ima Louise has not only an attractive bed but a comfortable one as well. Lee Otha Kirk of the New Hope Club has made her old bedroom look like new. Her bed has been made comfortable and a new spread for the bed and new draperies for the windows added. A closet was built into the room and all furniture polished. Marie Rhyne of the Carbon Club is a new member, but has done wonders for her bedroom. She is the bedroom demonstrator for her club and has refinished her room in cream and rose. She has made an ideal bedroom for any girl. Phyllis Donaldson, the Kokomo 4-H Club demonstrator has completely renovated her bedroom. A closet has been made from a refrigerator crate. This was varnished, rods and racks added which not only makes a good closet for clothes but is an attractive piece of furniture for the room. New bedspreads, draperies and dressing table has been added. By painting the walls an off white, polishing the floors, adding a dressing table and making over a bed, Mary Evelyn and Neita Kathryn Putty of the Desdemona 4-H Club have made a most attractive bedroom. The bed was a tall iron bedstead. The foot and head end was reversed and the tall head cut off. After being repainted this made a most attractive bed. A dressing table was made from two crates. A board was shaped and nailed on the tops of the crates and a ruffled drape was placed around this. Curtains, bedspread and dressing table are of rose. Veda Faye Ramsower of the Morton Valley 4-H Club has improved her bedroom to show her club how an ideal bedroom should look. Her color scheme is orchid and cream. When in full operation each company will employ 100 persons with an annual payroll of approximately $150,000.

200 Plants Have Started In This Section In a Year

Industrialization of the Southwest is indicated in the fact that during the past year more than 200 industrial and manufacturing plants have been established in the Texas and Oklahoma territory served by the Lone Star Gas System, according to a survey by the organization's industrial departments. Abundance of raw materials and natural gas have brought many of the new industries to this part of the country.

Products of the new plants are soap, yeast, beverages, batteries, furniture, roofing products, clothing, hats, foods, meats, ice machinery ice cream, etc. Towns in which the new business have been established include Bonham, Sweetwater, Cisco, Electra, Garland, Wichita Falls, McKinney, West, Weinert, Greenville, Midlothian, Dallas, Fort Worth, and a number of other towns of the 300 served by Lone Star in Texas and Oklahoma.

Camera Reveals Force of Sneeze

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—A man with a head cold ah-h-h-choos at the rate of two miles a minute or 150 feet a second, Prof. Marshall W. Jenkinson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology discovered through high speed photography of sneezers in action.

A sneeze, according to the professor, is a spasm in which micro-beating droplets from the nose are sprayed into the air at "muzzle" velocities as high as two-miles a minute.

A study of the sneeze photographs revealed each sneeze contains thousands of droplets of various sizes, the smallest being about one hundred and fiftieth of an inch in diameter.

The smallest droplets evaporate, leaving minute germ-laden particles floating in the air.

Prof. Jenkinson's study was concerned with the "mechanics" of sneezing and droplet production and he hopes to use the knowledge gained to determine what extent the sneeze can be responsible for the spread of respiratory diseases.

Prior to Prof. Jenkinson's research, little was known of the characteristics of the sneeze. The photography of the sneeze was made possible through a technique developed by Prof. Harold E. Edgerton of M.I.T.

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

FRANCIE danced lightly over the rest of the day, her head in the clouds. Gusty Gair, after a few hours of remorse, had become a shadowy figure outside the shimmering fringe of her dream world. At times he tried to push through and tantalize her conscience, but Francie fought off the intrusions.

CHAPTER XI

Francie clutched her hands. She felt as if Jerry had stabbed her in the heart. And then, remembering the starched shirts in the glass booth, she understood. A page boy tapped her shoulder. "Francie Weston?" She nodded, heart pounding. "Your father's back here and wants to see you."

Francie plucked at Jerry's coat. With her lips she formed, "Hello, Jerry." He turned with a frown, nodded briefly, then moved away from her. Francie clenched her hands. She felt as if Jerry had stabbed her in the heart. And then, remembering the starched shirts in the glass booth, she understood.

"Oh, no!" Francie's eyes were wide. "He—he isn't going to..."

"They were taking an X-ray when I left."

"How—what happened?" Momentarily Francie had forgotten the broadcast, forgotten Jerry—everything but Gusty Gair.

"Gusty was conscious a few minutes," Mr. Weston said. "Gusty was stranded 100 miles from Hollywood. He got enough money on his trumpet to finish the trip, but he arrived broke. Well, somehow the young idiot got inside of a studio. They were ready to shoot an automobile smash-up, and the stunt man hadn't appeared. Gusty bluffed himself into the job and just about broke his neck ramming a stone wall."

"Gusty did that?" Francie's eyes sparkled with tears.

Mr. Weston said, "You see, Francie, he was trying to stick it out until the broadcast. He had to have money to rent another trumpet."

Francie's cheeks burned. She looked at the floor. "I—I tried to find him."

"Let's be honest, Francie. You were busy with young Finney."

"B-but, Pops, Gusty can't play now. Why shouldn't I have my chance?"

"If you want it, Francie."

THE PAY OFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON, NEA SERVICE Sports Editor

CLEVELAND—It might be well for Judge Landis to look at the Cleveland situation.

It's dangerous when ball players put their heads together and which is what an even dozen Indians did when they were Bradley seeking the scalp of Manager Oscar Vitt.

If they could get their heads together in such a vicious conspiracy, they might agree on some other conspiracy.

Eight players sat down in Chicago in the fall of 1919 and drew up a world series.

It having been made plain that the Cleveland club is in a bad way, Commissioner Landis should ascertain who first suggested the conspiracy against Vitt, and why.

The public is entitled to the facts and other things, should be told why the other 13 members of the club had no part in the procedure.

Vitt, the first man responsible for the Indians, and to the malcontents owed allegiance, knew nothing of the charges until several hours after they were made.

Three competent baseball writers traveled with the club on the 12-day eastern trip. None of them knew of the conspiracy until several hours after it was made, although the 12 disgruntled players marched straight from the train to President Bradley's office.

The squawks not only went over the head of their manager, but also that of the club's general manager, Cyril C. Spang.

Cy Spang and Vitt have been squabbling for two years and the ugliness of conditions.

The row between the men running the club has resulted in a development of factions.

Summing up the accusations against Vitt, the most serious seems to be that he upset the poor dears in his wild desire. Since when has there been anything wrong with that?

As Vitt says: "What do those fellows want? A man doesn't care whether they win or lose?"

"There is more behind this than appears on the surface. There were men on the committee for whom I care much as any one possibly could."

VITT refers to Rolly Hensley and Kenny Keltner, who were particularly bad having a part in the rebellion.

Vitt strung along with Hensley... helped straighten out a number of other managers had fallen over a long time.

It was suspected Keltner would be ridden rough shod for his ill-advised application for unemployment compensation.

It was Vitt who stifled the razzing by staunchly supporting the third baseman, and pointing to the poor taste of those who were more important than that and Vitt's capabilities as a player.

But more important than that and Vitt's capabilities as a player until it was time to strike.

There is no place for conniving in baseball.

work must be obtained from farmers before the plan can be considered, and that agreement must be reached among the employing farmers as to the congeniality of the tenant who will fit into the neighborhood.

Farm bureau officials, who sponsor the plan, said that farmers will be spared the time and effort of driving to the county seat every time they need labor, and that they would be dealing with a known quantity in the person of a workman whose ability they trust and who is "in every sense a neighbor."

A list of recommendations has gone to the Public Roads Bureau for allocation of Federal road grants to the state on military roads rather than on the roads that had been planned as a part of a peace-time program.

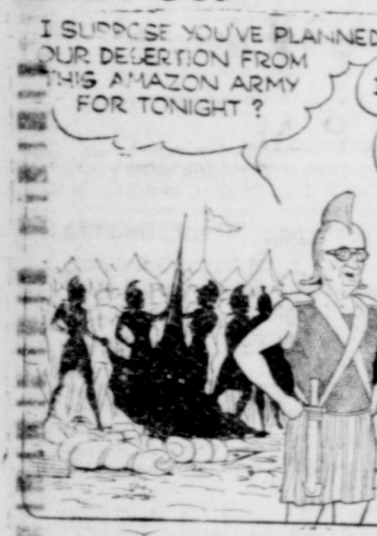

The State University has offered its facilities to the Navy Departments for use as desired, suggesting that laboratories and skilled workers be useful in war time.

MODEL SUBSISTENCE PLAN TO AID FARMERS AND PARE RELIEF

By Robert Speer

United Press Staff Correspondent SPIRIT LAKE, Ia.—The "Dickinson county plan" to solve with one stroke its relief problem and its farm labor shortage, has progressed for 10 years to dispossessed approval by officials of the Farm Security Administration.

The plan was evolved by Dickinson social workers, business men, civic clubs, farm bureau and labor groups. It calls for the return to the land of farmers dispossessed by mechanized farming and mortgage foreclosures, and forced to move to the towns.

The plan provides for the acquisition by the FSA of small subsistence plots of ground scattered at strategic points throughout the county. These would be leased for 10 years to dispossessed farmers, who would then become "community hired hands."

Relief Local Surveyed C. W. Deatherage, Dickinson county surplus commodities clerk, conducted a survey several months ago and found that nearly three-fourths of the county relief load consisted of farmers who had lost their land and moved to town.

They know no trade and could obtain work only as laborers, a field overcrowded already. They were forced to live in hovels and their children went barefoot and were poorly fed.

"I decided the only solution to the problem was to get these people back on farms where they belonged and where they would be happy," Deatherage said.

Deatherage canvassed farmers in the county and obtained pledges that they would go to the county employment office for help when they needed hired hands. Previously they had hired temporary labor from the floating population of migratory workers and hoboes.

Labor Unions Back Plan "This took some of the relief load off the county," Deatherage said, "but it was not enough. So we evolved this other plan through meetings with civic groups such as Rotary and the Commercial club, and obtained the endorsement of farm groups and labor unions."

Powers Race To Develop Powerful Explosive That May Dwarf TNT

By United Press

SEATTLE, Wash.—A race among nations for use of a chemical substance so powerful that a pound might be equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT, was described by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, famous physicist and holder of a Nobel prize.

The substance is U235, he said, a recently discovered source of enormous energy will be developed, probably within five years.

The German government took all U235 experimentation six months ago, excluding all German scientists from the laboratory, Dr. Compton stated.

One of the leading students of the cosmic ray, Dr. Compton estimated that about 10 pounds of Uranium 235 when the right conditions come—might blast a crater 100 feet of several hundred square miles in area.

Boy Scouts Catch Fish Without Any Fishing Equipment

PORT ARTHUR, Tex.—Without hooks, lines and bait four Boy Scouts and their scoutmaster caught 28 trout ranging in size from 10 inches to 14 inches long.

This year would have sounded like a fish story had it not come from the scouts themselves whose code of honor has something to say about truthfulness.

At any rate, Scoutmaster Clem Wall, Gilbert Hebest, Don Carton, Bill Nacol and Geneth Webb tell the following story.

The group was camping on Village Creek and pulled their boat up a small stream feeding the creek.

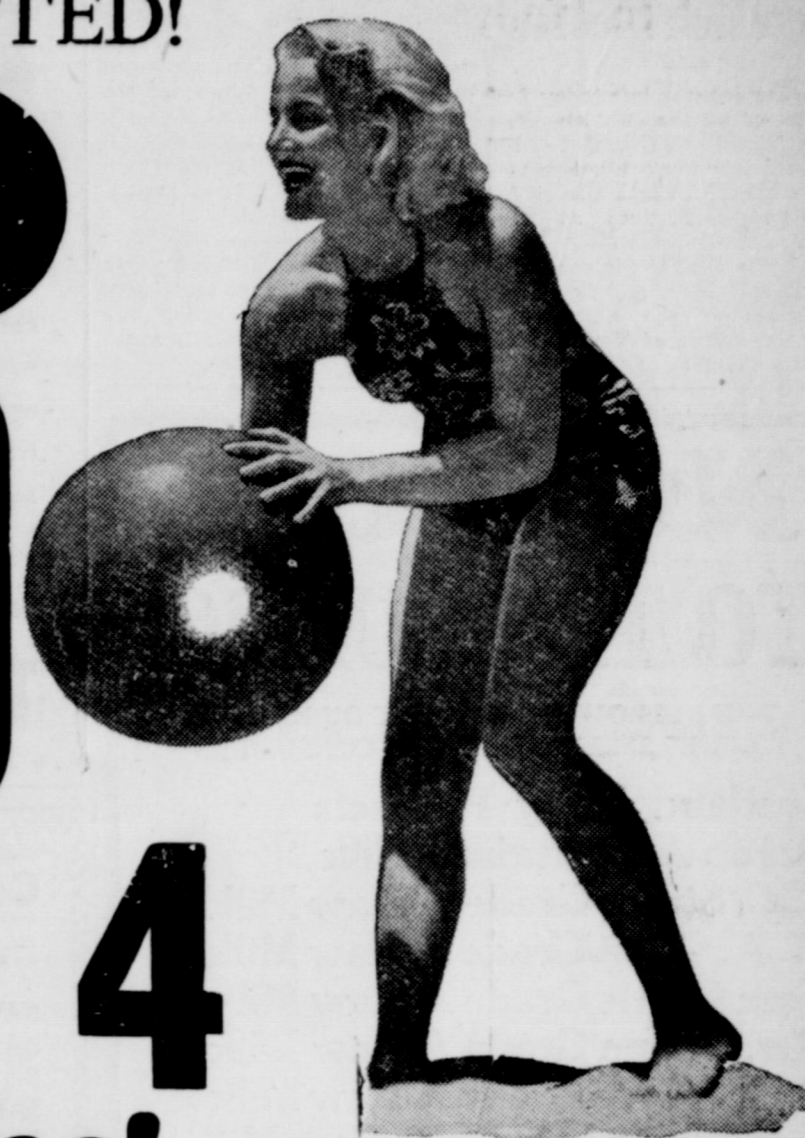

It swung backwards and across the stream, cornering a large school of trout. The fish attempted to get back into the stream from shallow water, jumping over and into the boat and up on the bank.

El Morocco Is Opened Wednesday

Wednesday evening ushered in the formal opening of the El Morocco Club owned and operated by Antoine Toti, on the Cisco-Eastland Highway west of the city.

Patrons from every section of the county were on hand to participate in the arranged program which was pleasing and entertaining.

The event was opened by short addresses by Hall Walker, mayor of Ranger; C. W. Hoffmann, mayor of Eastland, and M. H. Kelly, city manager of Eastland, after which the floor show got under way with Sandy Sandifer and his orchestra from Fort Worth furnishing the music intermingled with dance numbers by Miss Idre-na Harrison and Miss Hilda Mack of Fort Worth, and special song numbers.

The El Morocco Club is one of the most beautiful and attractive entertainment and dining places in this section and Mr. and Mrs. Toti state that each evening there will be special events to make it interesting and entertaining for all those who come to visit their club. Plenty of parking space is provided and the dining and dance hall is thoroughly air conditioned. All kinds of foods are served to patrons with tables arranged conveniently throughout the building.

CITY MILK INSPECTOR

There was a time

—when old-fashioned heating methods blistered your face while your back shivered.

But now . . .

with natural gas service, winter can be just another pleasant, healthful season in the modern home.

A timely reminder

Make your plans now for winter heating ahead of the usual fall rush

DO you remember the old days? Old-fashioned methods of heating . . . children wore heavy underwear and long stockings in order to keep warm . . . members of the family "huddled" in one or two rooms during cold weather . . . mother went shivering about the house with a shawl around her shoulders . . . someone was always "catching cold"—Remember? There is a direct relationship between your family's health during winter months and the way you heat your home. Sudden changes of temperature during the treacherous months of cold weather are dangerous. If you follow the old-fashioned practice of "huddling" in one or two rooms while the rest of the house remains unheated—YOU ARE TAKING CHANCES WITH YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH. Plan now to have adequate heat and healthful temperatures in every room in the home this winter. It's the modern way to fight the "common cold."

The cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year. Don't give a "common cold" an even break!
