Clayton's loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Former GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams may have to absorb the $8 million-plus loans he made to his campaign.

Political observers say it will be tough for Williams to raise any money to pay off the debt because he isn't viewed as a viable future candidate.

"Under the circumstances, Clayton Williams can view that as an investment in his political education," said Jack Rains, a Houston lawyer who opposed Williams in the Republican primary.

Wall anniversary

BERLIN (AP) — Germans mixed joy with sadness Friday in marking one year since the Berlin Wall opened and the anniversary of the night a Nazi rampage against Jews signaled the coming of the Holocaust and war.

"Berliners came together again," said the inscription on a monument — a four-foot-square section of the wall — unveiled at one of the border crossings where thousands of East Germans streamed across a year earlier in jubilation and bewilderment.

In East Berlin, about 3,000 members of the city's Jewish community attended a commemoration of the 1938 Crystal Night pogrom, named for the sound of breaking glass as Nazi thugs wrecked synagogues, Jewish homes and businesses.

The ceremony was the first held in East Berlin.

China crusade

HONG KONG (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Friday that anxiety over Hong Kong's future would prompt more citizens to become Christians during his crusade's series of meetings there, which begin this month.

Graham

"I'm coming here at a particularly critical time, for in 1997 you will experience dramatic change in your administration and sovereignty," Graham said at a news conference.

Hong Kong will revert to Chinese rule in 1997. Beijing has promised to maintain Hong Kong's system of free enterprise for 50 years after the communist country takes control, but many people say they don't believe that promise.

Wounded American freed

■ Three U.S. citizens are among the 174 Westerners who arrived in Frankfurt, Germany, Friday, on a flight arranged by former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

By George Boehmer

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt arrived here Friday from Baghdad with three Americans and 171 other Westerners whose freedom he sought in talks with Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein.

One of the Americans, Miles Hoffman, 33, of Columbus, Ga., shot in the arm Sept. 5 by Iraqi forces in Kuwait, was immediately taken off the plane and taken to the U.S. Air Force Regional Hospital in Wiesbaden, Germany, for a checkup, Air Force spokesman Capt. Tom Gilroy said.

A second American, Don Swanke, 66, of Westlake Village, Calif., also was taken to the U.S. hospital in Wiesbaden, 25 miles west of Frankfurt, for a precautionary checkup, Gilroy said. Swanke lost 33 pounds during his captivity.

Army soldier from Fort Bliss found dead in Saudi Arabia

IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — A U.S. Army soldier taking part in Operation Desert Shield has been found dead, apparently of natural causes, in a shower, military officials said Friday.

The soldier was identified as Sgt. James Wilcher, 25, by officials at Fort Bliss, Texas, where he had been stationed earlier. They said he was found dead Thursday after dinner.

A preliminary investigation showed no evidence of foul play, the Pentagon said.

"It is suspected that he died of natural causes. However, the exact cause of death is not known at this time. Medical help was immediately available and all attempts to revive him were unsuccessful," the Fort Bliss news release stated.

The soldier was assigned to the 118th Ordnance Detachment of the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, which was sent to Saudi Arabia from Fort Bliss in El Paso.

Forty-five U.S. servicemen have died during the Saudi operation to counter Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, 43 in accidents, one by suicide and Thursday's fatality.

FERC head bemoans bureaucracy

■ Former Midlander Martin Allday tells oil and gas producers that environmental regulations are keeping pipelines carrying clean-burning natural gas out of markets with severe air pollution.

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Environmental bureaucracy is proving a major obstacle in the nation's move to clean up its air, Martin Allday, chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), said Friday in Midland.

Allday told oil and gas producers it is ironic that efforts to build pipelines to bring clean-burning natural gas into markets with severe air pollution problems are being unnecessarily delayed by layers of endless and needless environmental certification.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association (PBPA), Allday said that before a natural gas pipeline can be approved, environmental surveys by federal, state and local agencies must be conducted. "FERC must get clearance from all of these agencies before it can issue a certificate. We do our work, then we must wait on them, and some of them don't move too fast."

The former Midland oil and gas attorney said reform of the environmental certification system is needed for the U.S. to meet its future energy and environmental needs.

He explained that blanket certification, "one stop" environmental certification by FERC, and working in tandem with other agencies are possible remedies to the problem.

"The voice of reason also needs to be brought back into the environmental process," said Allday, who acknowledged that there were too many needless procedures involved in environmental reviews.

He also acknowledged that an executive order may be required to get some badly needed pipelines past the environmental review process.

FERC has drawn criticism in recent years because of long delays in U.S. pipeline certification. About 2,000 applications to build new pipelines are now on file with FERC and delays of two to three years are not uncommon.

Energy on front burner now, says deputy secretary

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait has put energy on the front burner, which provides the oil and gas industry its best opportunity in decades to improve its position, said Deputy Secretary of Energy Henson Moore.

In a speech to the Permian Basin Petroleum Association (PBPA) Friday, Moore said passage of incentives for the oil and gas industry in the tax compromise last week was the first positive steps taken to assist the oil industry in 36 years.

"I checked the record," said Moore. "The last time a bill was passed that assisted the oil industry was 1954. Since that time the oil industry has been working to keep Congress from doing things to them."

Moore, who grew up in an oil field camp at Hackberry, La., said the Department of Energy is not an enemy of the oil industry, but an advocate for the energy industry. He said the department intends to speak out for the industry and welcomes comment.

The former Louisiana congressman noted the National Energy Strategy (NES) also will contain key provisions that should benefit the industry. Among them are research programs, technological expansion programs

Vietnam War Memorial replica coming to Midland

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

■ Related photo/2A

A 240-foot replica of the Vietnam War Memorial will be on display at Resthaven Cemetery for three days in January, said John Philbeck at a news conference Friday.

"A lot of people may not have the opportunity to visit the wall in Washington ... this replica will duplicate, I hope, the emotion and true feeling of the wall in Washington," said Philbeck, who is coordinating the display in Midland.

Philbeck also is president of the Vietnam Veteran's Memorial project that will be constructed near Midland International Airport.

The replica will be open to the public Jan. 18, 19, and 20 and will be lighted during its entire stay.

Visitors will be able to make rubbed impressions of names on the wall as is practiced on the original, Philbeck said.

The replica has 58,175 names engraved as does the original and is made of a "faux granite" material with a texture similar to Black Indian granite of the wall in Washington. Both walls inscriptions were photo-stencil etched.

At 240 feet with 96 panels (each just over 7½ feet high), the replica is about half the size of the original at 493.5 feet long with 140 panels, tapering from 8-inch to 121 inch panels in height.

The building of the replica was approved by Jan Scruggs, the driving force behind the Washington wall, Philbeck said.

Constructed by Service International Corp., which is financing the transport expenses, the replica will make its debut on Dec. 14 in Phoenix, Ariz. before coming to Midland.

The replica will then move to San Antonio and on to more than 100 cities throughout the country.

Another traveling replica was displayed in Big Spring last year, Philbeck said.

CNN story on Lee, Permian doesn't upset MISD officials

Staff Report

Midland Independent School District officials had no qualms Friday over a CNN news story depicting football enthusiasm at Lee and Odessa Permian high schools.

The story included clips from the Lee Rebel-Permian Panther football matchup earlier this year, interviews with Lee High School staff members and footage from pep rallies, band practices and a variety of events surrounding "the Big Game."

LHS Principal Jack Fryar said the story, which ran several times during the day Friday, did not place the school in a negative light.

"I thought it was an interesting story," Fryar said. "I can't think of a good adjective.

"It's kind of exciting when you're a little town in West Texas to be national news. I wish we could make national news for the academic program sometimes."

Fryar said the story accurately showed that although football was a mainstay cog in the West Texas culture, academics took precedence.

Lee High head football coach Earl Miller said he hadn't seen the report, "but I heard some comments on it," after his Rebel team edged the San Angelo Central Bobcats Friday night to lock up a share of the District 4-5A crown.

CNN showed interviews with LHS teacher Marilyn Clement, Assistant Principal Bobby Dunn and Miller.

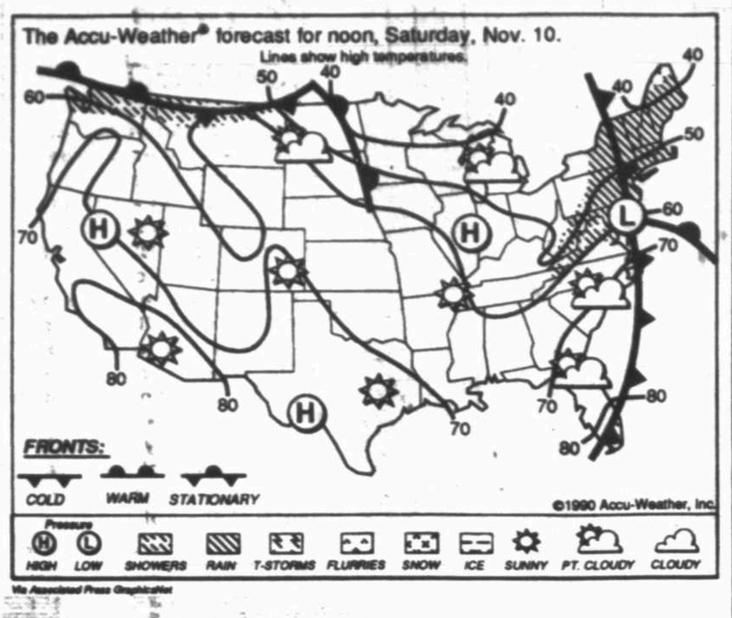

Superintendent Joe Baressi said he did not see the CNN report.

Ricardo Torres, executive director of secondary operations, said he thought the story was fair.

"I thought it basically was well done," Torres said. "It wasn't a bad little blurb."

Shooting

Staff Report

McCAMEY — A husband walked into his estranged wife's beauty shop and shot her with a pistol before turning the gun on himself, Upton County sheriff's officials said.

Dorothy Barriga, age unavailable, was in stable condition in McCamey Hospital after being shot once in the back by a .25-caliber automatic pistol about 12:50 p.m., authorities said.

Her husband, Jose Barriga, 38, was pronounced dead at the scene after shooting himself in the head, police said.

Officials said Barriga walked into the beauty shop, which his wife owned, and was involved in a scuffle with her before the shooting started. Mrs. Barriga's mother was the only other person in the shop at the time.

Police said they were uncertain what led to the incident.

Accident

A Midland man was slightly injured in a two-vehicle accident Friday, Midland police reported.

The man, who suffered minor cuts, abrasions and bruises, was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital, police said. His name was not ailable.

The 9:40 p.m. accident occurred when a 1988 Pontiac Grand Prix traveling west on Golf Course Road collided with a 1982 Ford F150 pickup truck at the Upland Street intersection, officials said.

A Midland woman driving the truck failed to yield the right of way when she pulled out from the Upland Street southbound lane into the intersection, police said. The woman's name also was unavailable.

Robbery

ODESSA — A masked robber got away with an undetermined amount of cash from a convenience store early Monday morning, police said.

According to reports, a man entered the 7-Eleven, 600 S. Grandview Ave., about 6:10 a.m. and asked the clerk for change for a dollar. The man, who had his back to the clerk, turned around after the register was opened.

The man pointed a small blue steel revolver at the clerk and demanded money from both registers, to which the clerk complied.

The suspect was described as a black male, 5 feet 6 inches tall and about 160 pounds. He was wearing an orange ski mask, green coat, a gray sweat shirt and blue jeans.

An oversize, 13,000-pound truck named "Bear Foot" crushes a row of Volvo automobiles during a promotional stunt Friday in Philadelphia.

Monster truck cheered as it crushes Volvos

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hardly a fair contest, maybe, but hot rod enthusiasts cheered a measure of revenge Friday for a 13,000-pound "monster truck" that squashed a row of Volvos.

Some in the crowd figured the little guy deserved getting bashed this time, the response of the U.S. Hot Rod Association to a Volvo television commercial that has been pulled from the air.

"I loved it. It was great. They had it coming to them," said Billie Burns, who brought three children ages 4, 2 and 8 months from nearby Folcroft to the exhibition in the parking lot of the Spectrum sports arena. The trucks had arrived for a weekend competition at the Spectrum.

She was not impressed with the way the Volvos held up briefly before succumbing to "Bearfoot" and its 1,000-pound tires.

"They were stomped," she said with a grin.

In Pittsburgh, however, another monster truck had big trouble with a Volvo. "Big Boss" and its 800-pound tires got stuck on a 1975 green Volvo in the parking lot of Civic Arena.

Burns, like some other spectators, said they came to see Volvo's comeuppance for an ad in which a Volvo appeared to be the only car left relatively intact in a line of autos run over by Bearfoot.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox challenged the ad and the company pulled it this week, saying that unknown to Volvo, the Volvo in the line of cars had been reinforced.

Friday, Bearfoot and two other monster trucks, Predator and Black Stallion, took turns getting their own licks in as TV crews and a small crowd watched.

"We don't have a knock against Volvo," Hot Rod Association spokesman Steve Greenberg said. "We're doing this in good-natured fun. It is tongue-in-cheek."

"There is a reputation to uphold here," he added, citing questions caused by the ad about the power of the monster trucks, which he said draw 4 million fans a year to events around the country.

The junked Volvos in Philadelphia were no match over the long haul. But the trucks needed a few swipes to get the job done. The roar of the trucks drowned the crowd's cheers with each pass.

The white-and-blue Predator crushed a line of five cars — a Pontiac, three Chevys and a Volvo in the middle. The roof of the Volvo wagon held up enough that it might have protected passengers.

Then Black Stallion took one run at a line of six Volvos, breaking them in for four runs by Bearfoot. One on the end gave the trucks particular trouble before giving way. Bearfoot finally finished it by coming at an angle to smash another that had roof supports still standing, coming to rest on the crushed car.

Bearfoot driver Todd Blaeser said he was surprised by how well the Volvos held up. Usually, he said, a line of cars would be finished off in two or three runs.

Asked if Volvo had passed the test, he looked at the pile of six crushed cars with the metallic blue truck on top of it and said, "It doesn't look like it, does it?"

"We've run into Volvos that have stood out in a pile of cars as being tougher," said Blaeser, 23, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Volvo spokesman Robert Austin watched the car stomping on television from his office, and said while the Volvos "didn't come out unscathed," they appeared to hold up well compared with other cars.

At one point, the Predator got stuck on the Volvo on its third pass over the five cars.

"It was apparent that the Volvo was standing up to the full weight of the truck. So I would leave it to the public to draw their own conclusions," Austin said.

RELEASE: Families thank Willy Brandt

(From 1A)

The airport rang out with the cheers of the hundreds on hand for the arrival of the former hostages as the German jetliner touched down.

Relatives who hadn't seen each other since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 wept and embraced as they emerged from the plane. Some held signs reading, "Thank you, Mr. Brandt." Others departed the plane carrying children; one woman hugged Brandt.

"Good riddance," Hoffman told TV cameras at the airplane boarding counter in Baghdad as he clutched onto his U.S. passport and boarding documents. His arm was in a cast and he seemed to be in pain.

Swanke and his wife, Brenda Swanke, were presented to reporters by U.S. authorities.

The captives, including 120 Germans, had been ordered freed by Saddam after he met with Brandt.

At least two other Americans were held back earlier when Iraqi officials told the U.S. Embassy their papers were not in order. It was unclear if they would be allowed to leave later.

Also on the plane were nationals from Britain, Italy, Switzerland, Finland, Holland, Portugal, Belgium, Norway and Luxembourg, the German carrier Lufthansa said. Earlier reports of a Canadian aboard could not be confirmed.

The airline's manifest only listed nationalities, not names.

Brandt said upon his departure that he had discussed with Saddam efforts to achieve a durable and solid settlement for the problems of The Middle East.

At the Baghdad airport, Brandt told a news conference he was carrying proposals for settling the 3-month-old gulf crisis.

"I need a weekend to go through my notes and put together what I have," Brandt said, refusing to elaborate.

Brandt said he would consult with European leaders next week on the outcome of his talks with Hussein.

He said he was impressed with Saddam, adding, "I have reasons to be most grateful to Saddam Hussein and the government, not only for their hospitality, but also because there is a prospect of peace."

Foreign Minister Tarik Aziz, who accompanied Brandt to the airport, criticized Bush administration plans announced Thursday to send another 200,000 troops to the Persian Gulf.

"Bush should send diplomats, not more troops, and he should start a dialogue," the foreign minister said when reporters asked him for a reaction to the U.S. move.

"If he wants to scare Iraq he already has enough troops. The decision to send troops will not be helpful. It is not going to find a solution," Aziz said.

Americans are among foreign hostages held at strategic sites as "human shields" to deter attack by U.S.-led multinational forces stationed in the gulf.

Swanke, who was working as a construction engineer at Kuwait University at the time of the invasion, "We were worried for a hundred days."

"I was worried but I was not afraid," Mrs. Swanke added. She held onto her husband's arm as they embarked on German-bound plane.

Swanke said that on Sept. 5, "they (Iraqi troops) kicked our door down," and the couple were taken to the Regency Hotel in Kuwait.

From there they were taken to Baghdad, he said, "where we stayed in a hotel for a week."

He said the couple were then taken to Mosul, a town about 240 miles north of Baghdad, and kept in a house.

and tax credits. He said a 15 percent tax credit for enhanced recovery should stimulate activity and result in the recovery of thousands of barrels of additional oil. "A major concern of DOE is keeping marginal wells from being plugged," he said.

Moore said past neglect had made the 1990s the decade of the environment, and that the environment would also be a major part of the NES. "Most of us consider ourselves environmentalists today," he said.

Moore said that funds had been approved for major research projects in the Permian Basin and that efforts for that program were already underway, under the direction of Michael McElwrath, a former Midland attorney.

Deputy Secretary of Energy Henson Moore

Moore said if the U.S. does nothing about conservation or domestic oil production the nation will be importing 80 percent of its oil by 2030, and consumption will be down only 2 percent.

Current incentives proposed by DOE could raise production 320,000 barrels per day by 2030, Moore said.

"The tax package is not enough to turn the industry around, but it is something to help until things get better," said Moore, who reminded the PBPA audience that the president had paid a political price to keep the incentive in.

In terms of supply and demand, Moore said the nation is in good shape after losing 4.3 million barrels per day since the invasion of Kuwait. "We have made all of that up and are now 200,000 barrels to the good."

He said the loss of oil production in Saudi Arabia would pose a critical problem for the nation, that it would be impossible to make up over 9 million barrels per day and that Strategic Petroleum Reserves would last only 90 days.

Moore, who holds a master's degree in political science, praised the strategic reserve, saying that a recent 200,000 barrel draw-down test indicated that both the hardware and software of the oil storage plan worked.

He added that it was highly unlikely the oil fields in Saudi Arabia would be crippled by a conflict in the Middle East.

"There is no way their ground forces can get to the oil fields. Their air force is not strong enough and their missiles are not very effective."

He said the nation could weather the winter well, provided it is not excessively harsh. "If it is harsh, we may have some shortages," he said. He also noted that there may be shortages of propane this winter.

FERC: Allday streamlining procedures

(From 1A)

Said George Yates, an independent oil and gas producer from Roswell, N.M., and an expert on natural gas: "The delay dilemma is like being told by doctors that they have a cure for AIDS, then being told in the same breath that it may be 10 years before it passes bureaucratic approval." He said that clean-burning natural gas was the miracle cure for the disease of air pollution.

Yates, a vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, also has been critical of FERC's quick certification of the Iroquois Pipeline from Canada, saying the difference in rate structures between the U.S. and Canada created an uneven playing field for U.S. producers.

Allday said he was moving as quickly as possible to streamline procedures at FERC, noting that reform of rate structures is another item on his agenda. He also said excessive litigation was a roadblock at the agency.

"About one third of the docket at the Federal Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., is FERC-related," he noted. "It is hard to pass a rule that pleases natural gas producers, pipelines, distributors and customers. The minute you pass a rule, one side or the other will take you to the courthouse."

Allday was appointed chairman by his longtime friend President George Bush last year, and has been praised by friends and foes alike as capable of streamlining the process at FERC.

"Martin Allday is not a bureaucrat at heart," said Nicolas Bush, president of the Natural Gas Supply Association.

Allday told the breakfast gathering that since the invasion of Kuwait and the threat to U.S. energy supplies it was more critical than ever for FERC to streamline and "keep the gas flowing."

He said the mission of FERC is to keep the market competitive, make sure enough pipelines are built to put natural gas into markets where it is needed and to make sure natural gas is transported fairly at a reasonable price.

"We need to meet market needs when they happen — not 10 years after the fact," he said.

"You may not always agree with me, but be assured that I will never forget where I came from," said Allday.

Justice Department questioning 15 state district judges' elections

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department's questioning of elections of state judges in 15 new district courts around the state will be challenged, the Texas attorney general's office says.

The Justice Department, in a letter to Texas election officials on Monday, challenged Tuesday's voting for judges in 15 state district courts that were created by the 1989 Legislature. It said the elections may violate the federal Voting Rights Act.

Assistant Attorney General John Dunne of the Justice Department's civil rights division, said 13 of the 15 new courts have the same geographic jurisdictions as previously existing judgeships.

Mark Toohey, a spokesman for Texas Secretary of State George Bayoud, said Thursday that the state sought Justice Department clearance for the 15 elections last February. Under the Voting Rights Act, elections changes must be OK'd by the federal agency, he said.

After supplying additional information requested by federal officials, Toohey said, "We got notice of their objection on Nov. 5, the day before the election."

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox, said the state would challenge the Justice Department in federal court in Washington.

Dusek said the Justice Department is raising the same question about possible racial discrimination in these at-large judicial elections as were raised in an earlier, major federal lawsuit against Texas' court elections.

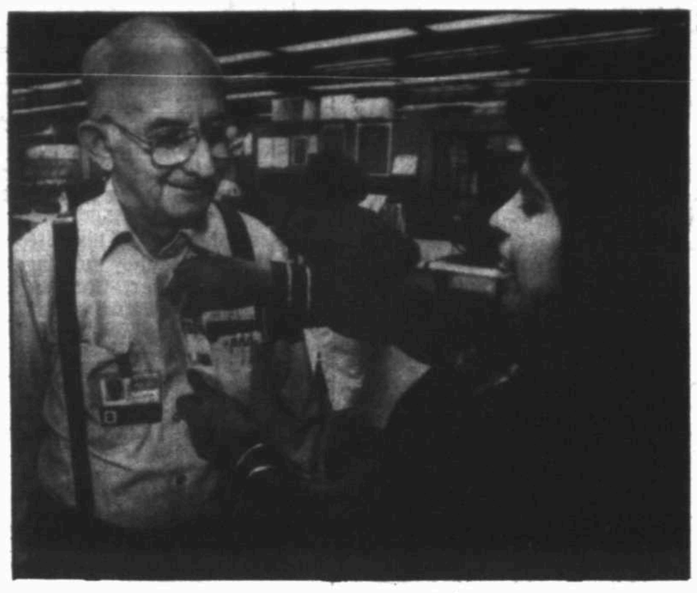

In that case, the at-large election system was challenged by opponents who contend it dilutes the voting strength of minorities.

Although U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled against the state's at-large system, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans sided with Texas. The case currently is on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, Dusek said.

"It appears that the Justice Department is trying to overrule the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals," Dusek said Thursday. "We're going to file something in Washington, in federal court, in order to challenge the Justice Department.

"The winners (of Tuesday's elections) stay on the bench unless a federal court says otherwise. But that court would have to be aware that this whole question of how we elect our judges is before the Supreme Court," he said.

The judges in the 15 new courts were appointed by Gov. Bill Clements after the 1989 Legislature created them. As with any appointed judge, the 15 new district judges were to serve until the next election, which was Tuesday, at which time they had to stand for election.

Thirty-seven-year U.S. Postal Service employee Bill Proctor was among those receiving a ribbon recognizing his service in the military. USPS Affirmative Action Advisory Committee member Penny Segura pinned the ribbon on Proctor, a window clerk at the downtown post office. Representative says protests taking toll on garment industry

EL PASO (AP) — Demonstrations and protests staged by a group of garment workers this year are taking a toll on El Paso's garment industry, a manufacturer's representative said.

"For a few unscrupulous contractors, every subcontractor is suffering a bad name," said Trish Winstead, who represents the El Paso Manufacturers Association.

Members of La Mujer Obrera, The Working Woman, have drawn national attention to El Paso's garment industry through protests and a week-long Labor Day hunger strike. The advocacy group is set up to assist Hispanic working women stage the protests on behalf of workers who claim they are owed thousands of dollars in unpaid wages.

"I feel La Mujer Obrera is inadvertently having a negative impact on the industry as a whole," and that affects 15,000 garment workers, Ms. Winstead said.

Ms. Winstead wants the protestors to give a commission set up by the City Council time to work with both employers and employees.

But Cindy Arnold, a La Mujer Obrera member, said the commission set up months ago has not done anything and progress has been stalled because some of the commission's members don't agree with her group.

But city Rep. David Chew, who created the commission in May, said that's not the case.

"The commission hasn't started working because it hasn't started," Chew said.

Chew said the commission "won't be a panacea to the group, but it can help the industry as a whole."

Paris' pink house will be restored to former elegance

PARIS, Texas (AP) — On the Texas Register of Historic Places, it is known as the Lightfoot House.

But to everyone living in Paris, a simple reference to "the pink house" is enough.

Doug and Pat Hines, veteran restorers of old homes, are the latest owners of the Victorian house at 746 S. Church St. They have made it their goal to return the house to its former glory.

Mrs. Hines remembers the pink house as it was years ago, when she used to visit her grandmother in the northeast Texas town.

"We would come over here on weekends to see her and every time we passed this house I admired it," she said.

"Even when you and I were dating back in the '50s," she said to her husband, "this was a showplace, kind of a dream house."

The two-story pink Victorian structure was built in 1876 by Judge William Henry Lightfoot, an attorney who married the daughter of Gen. Sam Bell Maxey. The 43-year-old Lightfoot married the 18-year-old Dara Bell Maxey on Nov. 3, 1874, and built the house as their home.

Originally, Mrs. Hines said, "Lumber was hauled in from Jefferson and the house was built with square nails and wide-board pine floors which are pegged."

The house, with its Eastlake detailing, is typical of post-Civil War Victorian architecture, she said. The double veranda features incised brackets, lacy spindle work along the cornice line and a turned balustrade.

The elaborately carved bargeboards and the trifaceted bay windows with bracketed hoods are other architectural embellishments in the Eastlake Victorian style.

The house became a Texas Historical Landmark in 1965 and received the Ruth Lester Historical Award in 1967.

The Hineses, who bought the house in 1989, are beginning an extensive restoration. They recently replaced a rotting front porch, and the house is being repainted its famous pink color. The original tin roof, as well as the antique iron fence, also will be painted.

But Hines says the house is well-preserved.

"One of the reasons is they used cypress lumber on the siding, and it will last much longer than yellow pine siding," he said.

Inside, a curved, solid walnut staircase dominates the entryway. The formal living and dining areas feature two marble fireplaces ensconced with Waterford crystal "gasoliers." Old crystal chandeliers, with original gaslight fixtures now converted to electricity, grace the high ceilings.

The Hineses hope to begin interior restoration work next year.

"We restored one old house in Louisiana and it was really quite a chore...this one has so many possibilities," Mrs. Hines said.

"I want to make it Victorian-looking inside," she said. "I'm going with the floral in the wallpaper and I'm using pinks and mauves, real soft, not the real cluttered Victorian look. I just want to make it look like it probably looked in 1876."

Their favorite room, the one the Hineses spend the most time in, is a den on the northwest side of the house.

"It was originally a porch; it even had a well on the porch," said Mrs. Hines. "They called it the Well Room; and this is where we stay."

With all its luxurious aspects, the historic house has only one drawback; the cold floors. "We're going to insulate under the house to take care of that," said Mrs. Hines. They also plan to get an old central air conditioning and heating unit, already installed, working again.

Other projects in store for the house include a modern kitchen, removal of an upstairs fireplace and the removal of an outbuilding.

It's a lot to do for two professionals. Hines, a Paris native, travels for a Fort Smith, Ark., company, and his wife teaches school in Greenville.

"When we're through with the carpentry, I will make an English garden out there," said Mrs. Hines. "At one time there was, and some of the plants are still out there. I'm going to get out there and clear it out."

The house next door was sold and is being moved to make way for a detached garage.

"It will be sitting back, so it won't take anything away from the look," said Mrs. Hines.

The Hineses take seriously the job of keeping up one of Paris' landmarks.

"Someone told me if we painted it any other color besides pink, people would get lost," Hines said, "because they use it for directions, like 'Go to the pink house and turn left."

Speculation over redistricting fuels political fires

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Reps. Chuck Schumer and Stephen Solarz won re-election with 80 percent of the vote, but they might already be thinking about their next jobs.

Redistricting could put them out of work in 1992.

The once-a-decade debate now begins to get personal: 19 House districts need to be erased in 13 states that lost population in the 1980s.

In the big-ego, ambition-filled world of politics, that won't be easy.

The decisions will be made next year, in most cases by state legislatures. If history is any guide, members of Congress who could be affected by the plans will have considerable input, in person and through contributions to state lawmakers who draft the plans.

"The thing we fear most is being thrown into a district with another colleague," Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said last year. "We are at the tender mercy of those whose agendas are not necessarily our own."

In most states losing seats, including all losing more than one, power of redistricting is shared between Democrats and Republicans. That generally means the losses, or at least the risk of losses, will be shared, too.

Because available census data — ostensibly the guide for redistricting — is preliminary and the process so complex, it's difficult to say with any certainty who will be squeezed out or forced into a race with another incumbent. And retirements or bids for other office would affect the outcome.

Here is a state-by-state look at early speculation among consultants for both parties:

—New York (-3): A Republican district upstate likely will be eliminated, probably Rep. Bill Paxon's. And two districts in New York City are vulnerable, leading to speculation that Brooklyn districts represented by Schumer and Solarz could be merged.

'The thing we fear most is being thrown into a district with another colleague.'

— Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Illinois

But the possibilities are nearly endless in the 20-district city.

Queens Democrat James Scheuer will be 72 in 1992 and could retire or be squeezed out. Democrats Schumer or Solarz might challenge Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato.

If retirements, ambition or other developments don't make the third cut clear, Republican Bill Green and Democrat Ted Weiss might find themselves in the same district.

—Pennsylvania (-2): The Pittsburgh and Philadelphia areas each will lose a seat. Several members of the delegation are in their mid-60s, so retirements are possible.

Otherwise, Democrat Joseph Kolter's district might be carved up in the west and a Republican incumbent, perhaps Curt Weldon, pitted against a Democratic incumbent, maybe Thomas Foglietta, in the Philadelphia suburbs.

—Ohio (-2): A Cleveland-area Democrat, maybe Edward Feighan, and a downstate Republican are vulnerable. Republicans Clarence Miller and Chalmers Wylie could retire.

—Illinois (-2): The Chicago-area seat to be lost is likely to be Dan Rostenkowski or Sidney Yates.

If Rostenkowski retires in 1992, he's eligible to keep $1 million in campaign money. And Yates, who will have been in Congress for 42 years, will be 83 and could call it quits.

The other seat will come from Republican country in the north.

—Michigan (-2): Republican William Broomfield will be 70 in two years and might retire. If not, he could end up in a race against fellow Republican Carl Pursell.

The other seat likely will come from the Democratic Detroit area.

—Massachusetts (-1): Unless Republican Silvio Conte or Democrat Joe Early retires, a Democrat will be squeezed, perhaps into a race against Rep. Joseph Kennedy.

The prime candidates are Chester Atkins and Ed Markey, both of whom have enemies in the state legislature. Controversial Barney Frank is another possibility.

—New Jersey (-1): Democrats control the pen, so newly elected Republican Rep. Richard Zimmer could be in trouble. But his won't be the easiest district to draw out.

—Kentucky (-1): Democrats will draw the lines. Republican Rep. Larry Hopkins looks like the odd man out, forced either to run against a GOP colleague or for another office if he wants to stay in politics.

—West Virginia (-1): Democrats control the process but all four House members are Democrats. One will be squeezed out, probably either Alan Mollohan and Harley Staggers.

—Louisiana (-1): Democrats control the process, which likely means bad news for one of the delegation's four Republicans.

—Kansas (-1): Democrat Jim Slattery was the odds-on favorite to go until Democrats took the governor's office and state House from GOP hands.

—Iowa (-1): Republicans have a say, but the population losses in the western part of the state might force GOP Reps. Jim Ross Lightfoot and Fred Grandy into the same district anyway.

—Montana (-1): The state goes from two seats to one, forcing Democrat Pat Williams against Republican Ron Marlenee unless one bows out.

Mavericks cultivate that image

NEW YORK (AP) — You know those people who seem to say and do whatever they want and ignore what others think? A new study says most of them actually pay more attention to the rest of us than they let on.

Researchers caught some of these social mavericks in the act of altering their stated beliefs when they thought other people considered them too conformist.

In short, they chose to appear independent rather than really be independent.

That process may be unconscious and it is certainly not devious, said psychologist Barry Schlenker of the University of Florida in Gainesville.

"Whenever we're in the presence of others, we wittingly or unwittingly find it in our interest to describe ourselves in particular ways to create a good impression, an impression that we desire to create," Schlenker said.

"Self-presentation is part and parcel of everyday life. ... There's nothing evil about it," said Schlenker.

Other psychologists disagree, he said. They say that while some people tailor their words and deeds to make an impression, others are more autonomous, acting on their inner beliefs and tuning out the opinions of others.

Schlenker and colleague Michael Weigold put this apparent independence to the test. They report the results in October's issue of the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

They studied 94 University of Florida students who had scored high or low on a test that measures, in part, independent-mindedness.

First, the students completed an opinion questionnaire that ranked how strongly they agreed or disagreed with particular statements about such topics as religion and affirmative action. They also completed a questionnaire about personal interests.

In a later session, they were randomly split into two groups and told they were about to meet another student. One group was told that this person considered them conformist because of their answers on the personal interest questionnaire. The other students were told they had been judged independent.

Then the students were handed another opinion questionnaire, which duplicated some items of the first one. They were told that its asterisk markings indicated which responses were given by most other students.

In fact, this was bogus. For half the students, chosen randomly, the markings made it seem that their own opinions largely followed campus norms. For the others, their opinions were made to look quite different.

The students were then asked to fill in this questionaire, and told that the person they were about to meet would scrutinize it.

As a result, some students faced this situation:

You consider yourself independent, but you're about to meet somebody who thinks you're a conformist. Now you find out he's right. If you fill out this new questionnaire honestly you'll affirm that offensive judgment, but you can look autonomous again if you shade the truth a little.

As a group, people with that dilemma changed their expressed opinions away from those they thought were conformist.

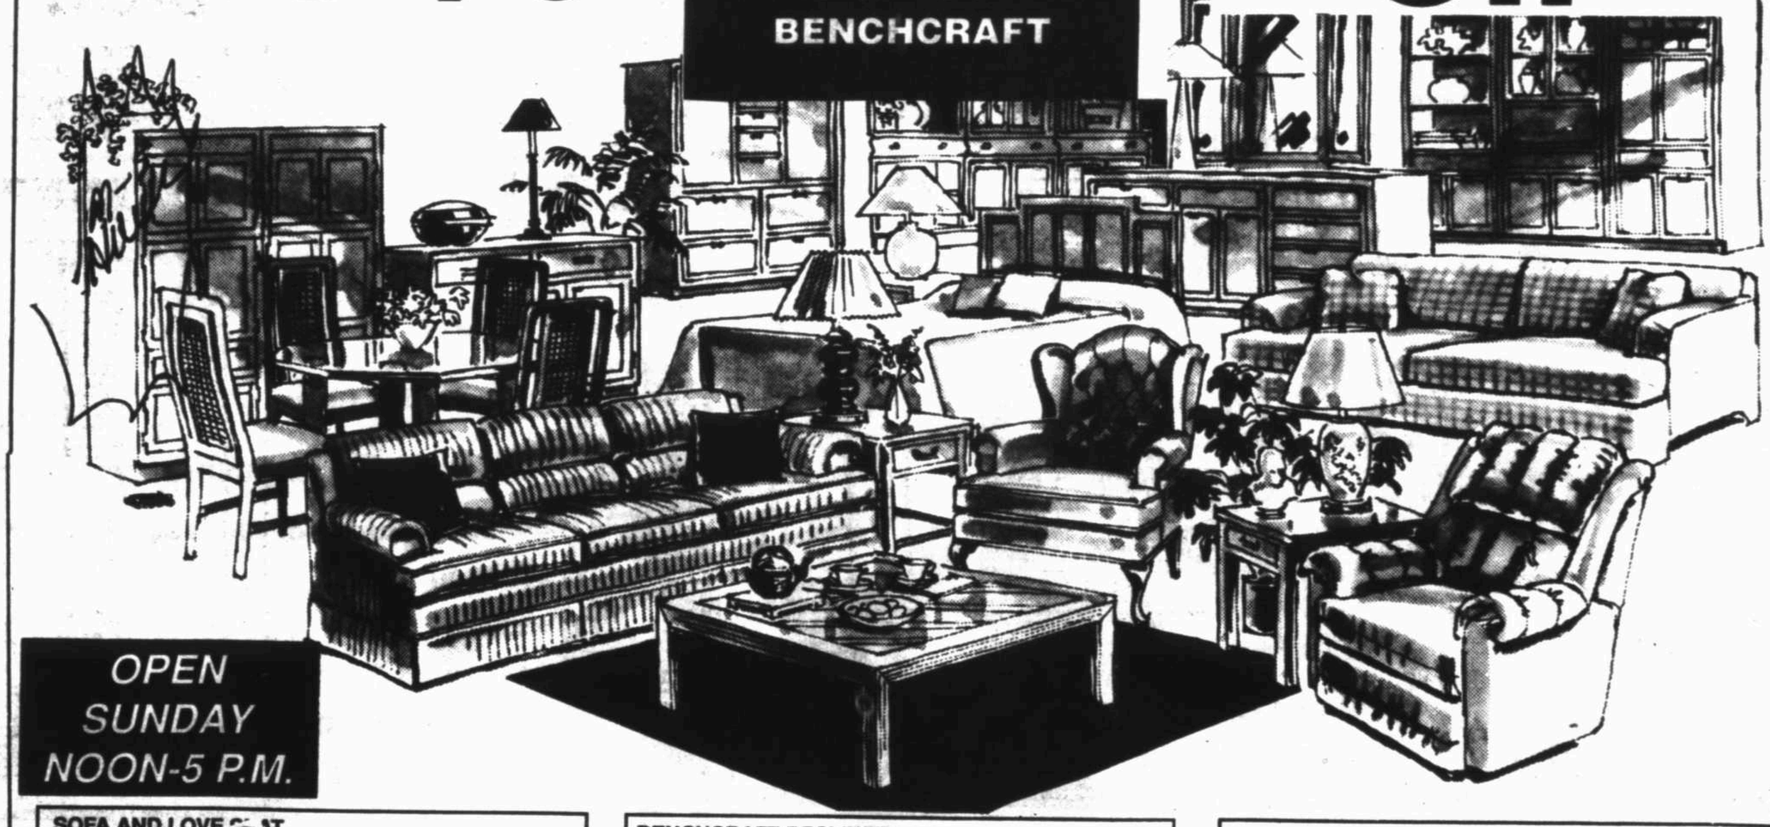

"If by expressing their real attitudes it made them look dependent, they misrepresented their attitudes to re-establish an image of autonomy," Schlenker said.

Plane crew grounded after landing at wrong airport

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A crew for Continental Express was grounded Friday as airline and federal authorities try to sort out why they set the turboprop plane down at private airfield, several miles from Jackson's larger commercial airport.

Continental Express Flight 2682 left Houston at 9:52 p.m. Thursday, more than an hour later than scheduled because of weather conditions.

The flight ended at Hawkins Field in west Jackson about 11:35 p.m. But Hawkins, a private airfield, is about 7 miles west of the Jackson International Airport in Rankin County where the flight was to land.

The 33 passengers were let off the plane after about an hour's wait and taken to the Jackson International Airport. There were no injuries.

"This didn't look right," said passenger Greg Robinson of Jackson, recalling what he saw when the plane was approaching the airstrip for a landing. "It wasn't big enough to be the Jackson airport.

"After we sat on the runway, the pilot said there was a problem at the Jackson International Airport and we would not be going there. That's when I said this looks like Hawkins Field," Robinson said.

Robinson said the flight had been a rough one after the delay in Houston. He said earlier scheduled flights to Jackson on Thursday were delayed or cancelled by heavy storms in the Houston area.

STATE

"I overheard him (the pilot) say (while unloading baggage) that he might not be working for the company this morning," Robinson said.

Jacques Lonchambon, an operations inspector with the Federal Aviation Administration in Houston, said the FAA and the airline were investigating the incident.

"My understanding is that the pilot is not flying anymore. The company has taken some action," Lonchambon said. "This sort of thing is unfortunate. It happens once in a while."

Lonchambon said the FAA will interview the crew of the plane and "other action against the pilot is possible."

The FAA said the crew was flying into the Jackson area for the first time.

Continental Airlines spokeswoman Peggy Mahoney said a new crew and plane was flown into Jackson to continue service Friday.

"We are looking into it," she said. She confirmed that the crew was grounded.

The tower at Jackson International Airport was closed at the time.

Dirk Vanderleest, executive director of the Jackson Airport Authority, said Friday that the FAA tower at the airport is open from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. every day. After 11 p.m., he said the Memphis, Tenn., tower takes over flights into Jackson.

He said the reduced hours were the results of federal budget restraints.

"The Memphis center takes over in accordance with FAA regulations," Vanderleest said. "The traffic goes in and out all the time without any problems."

Vanderleest said landings are wrong airports are not usual.

"If you get a new crew to the area, and you are the last plane out and you run across two airports, this can happen," he said.

Lonchambon said that the tower was closed is not an issue.

"The fact that the tower was closed does not mean they could not go into the airport," he said.

Mahoney said the plane was a ATR-42 turboprop that can carry 46 passengers and a crew of two pilots and a flight attendant.

Williams may have to absorb $8 million in loans

HOUSTON (AP) — Former GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams may have to absorb the $8 million-plus loans he made to his campaign.

Political observers say it will be tough for Williams to raise any money to pay off the debt because he isn't viewed as a viable future candidate.

"Under the circumstances, Clayton Williams can view that as an investment in his political education," said Jack Rains, a Houston lawyer who opposed Williams in the Republican primary.

Attempts by The Associated Press to reach Williams for comment Friday were unsuccessful. A spokesman at his Houston office did not immediately return telephone calls.

Williams, who lost the gubernatorial bid to Democrat Ann Richards on Tuesday, loaned nearly $8 million to his campaign war chest of about $20 million through Oct. 27, according to campaign finance reports. Reports due in January will show if he made another infusion before Election Day.

After an election, a candidate can keep his or her campaign organization active as a business concern to pay outstanding bills, including borrowing from the candidate.

GOP consultant Karl Rove of Austin said Williams might have convinced supporters to pay back the loans if he emerged from the governor's race victorious.

"But I don't think he does (have a political future)," Rove said, because Williams is widely thought to have snatched defeat from the jaws of victory with a series of offensive jokes and other verbal pratfalls.

"I believe he'd be hard-pressed to convince either financial backers or primary voters that he would be the most viable nominee for state office," he said.

Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle agreed.

"You don't recoup much if you're the loser, especially if you lose that way," he said.

Williams also would be unable to get credit for the loans on his federal income taxes, officials said. Days before the election, Williams disclosed that he paid no taxes in 1986 because he made no income that year what with the state's depressed economy.

Austin Tax Accountant Irby Ford said a write-off is not allowed "because you're working to obtain a new job." Ford is in a position to know because he spent $12,000 of his own money in a failed bid for state comptroller last spring.

But some observers said there would be little sympathy for the multimillionaire rancher-oilman-turned-politician.

"It's not like Clayton Williams is a poor guy who went out and borrowed $8 million and doesn't have the resources to pay it back," said George Strong, a Houston Democratic political consultant.

Hundreds of motorists stopped on I-40

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Texas authorities joined police from California to North Carolina in a 24-hour traffic safety crackdown along Interstate 40 that ended early Friday.

The effort was the first involving every state crossed by the more than 2,500 miles of Interstate 40, authorities said.

In Texas, Operation 24-40 involved the entire 178 miles of the highway across the Panhandle.

Throughout the period, a trooper was posted every 10 miles, said Amarillo Highway Patrol spokesman Jerry Burgtorf.

During the crackdown, 785 vehicles were stopped and 307 citations were issued for speeding. Texas troopers also reported four drunken driving violations and assisted 11 motorists.

Burgtorf said 216 miscellaneous traffic citations were issued, and one accident was investigated.

Four criminal charges were filed, including two involving drugs and the seizure of $800, he said. In addition, one person was arrested as a fugitive, and 5 pounds of cocaine were seized, Burgtorf said.

Icy roads were reported in several of the eight states involved in the crackdown.

The effort was dubbed "Operation 24-40," for the number of hours and the interstate number.

Morales sued for slander by bar owner

HOUSTON (AP) — The owner of a topless nightclub sued Attorney General-elect Dan Morales for $6 million on Friday, saying Morales linked him to the club's past with drugs and prostitutes in a campaign news release.

Jerry Payne, a Houston lawyer who took over the Caligula XXI nightclub in 1988 when its previous owners couldn't pay $600,000 in legal fees, said Morales hurt Payne's reputation as an attorney and wrongfully suggested he owned the club when it was fined for ties to drugs and prostitution.

On Nov. 2, Morales, who defeated state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, issued a news release linking Brown to Payne and the Caligula nightclub.

Brown helped Payne get continuances before the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission in a protracted set of hearings for a renewal of the bar's liquor license, Payne said Friday.

"Buster Brown has been less than honest about his connection with this bar which exploits women and has been tied to prostitution and narcotics," the news release said. "Mr. Brown appears to be for law and order until an opportunity to represent guys like Payne and bars like Caligula XXI lines his pockets."

It added that Payne "admitted that the violations occurred and agreed to pay a $9,000 fine."

Investigators sift wreckage

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Federal investigators were sifting Friday through wreckage of a twin-engine plane that crashed while attempting to land at an East Texas airport, killing all five people aboard.

The National Transportation Safety Board was trying to determine what caused the plane to dive into a wooded area on approach to A.L. Magnum Airport on Thursday.

The Piper Aerostar crashed about 6 p.m. eight miles west of Nacogdoches, near Lake Nacogdoches, during a strong thunderstorm, said Pat Denham, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Public Safety office in nearby Lufkin.

The DPS identified the victims as Jim Grisham, the pilot, Tim Owens and Joe Siedschlag, all of Hot Springs, Ark., Mary Angel, 36, and her 8-year-old son Thomas, both of Peachtree City, Ga.

Ages of the three men were not included on the crash report, the DPS said.

The craft was flying low when it went down, said a witness, Claude Perkins, 45.

"It came from the northeast," said Perkins, 45. "All of a sudden it made a sharp turn and came back. I don't know why they turned and came back."

STATE IN BRIEF

Swap valued at $271 million

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc. could pay $271.6 million for a Texas grocery retail and distribution company, according to documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The purchase of McLane Co. Inc. of Temple, Texas, would entail a stock swap for the 96-year-old firm, according to the documents.

The purchase was announced a month ago, but a price was not revealed until SEC documents were filed Wednesday.

McLane is a privately held company that supplies 12,500 types of grocery and non-grocery items to some 26,000 retail customers. McLane has been a major supplier of Wal-Mart, the discount-store chain based in Bentonville.

Wal-Mart will pay 917.66 shares of Wal-Mart stock for each of the 10,812 shares of McLane stock, the paperwork showed. Wal-Mart's closing price Thursday was $27.37½ a share, making the deal worth $271,606,630.31.

McLane shareholders could opt to sell the stock back to Wal-Mart at $26.50 a share.

Colonia lawsuit won

AUSTIN (AP) — A realty company has been ordered to pay $1.2 million for road and sewer improvements in a Webb County colonia, state Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday.

Mattox said a Webb County state district judge has ordered D&A Realty Inc. to place the money into a trust fund to pave roads, install curbs and gutters and construct a sewer system at El Cenizo colonia.

The colonia was recently incorporated into Webb County.

Mattox said the settlement and permanent injunction were filed against D&A Realty; Steven Schoyen; Cecil McDonald; Standard Realty Investors, Ltd.; SRI, Inc.; and Martha Cadena doing business as Cadena Management.

The lawsuit claims that the defendants began selling lots in El Cenizo, five miles south of Laredo, in 1983.

The lots ranged in price from $6,000 to $11,000, and the defendants advertised that the area would have a drinking water system, sewer and paved roads. But none of those amenities was provided, Mattox said.

Bank fraud charged

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities Friday arrested three men who allegedly attempted to take out a $1.5 million loan using fraudulent letters of credit.

FBI agents arrested John Waite, 35, and Patrick Grey, age unavailable, without incident in Los Angeles as they attempted to secure a $1.5 million loan from Bank One, officials said.

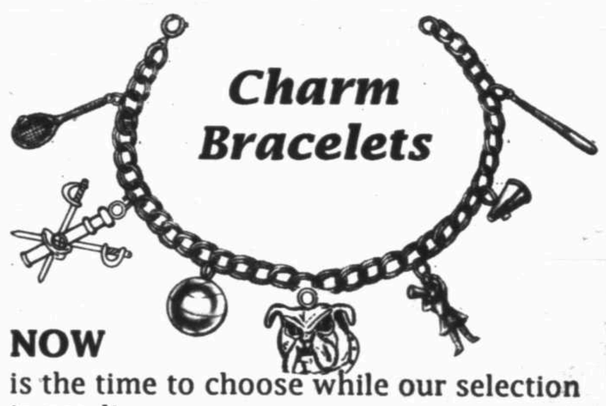

Robert Markle, 36, an alleged accomplice, was arrested later at his home in Arlington.

The three are charged with attempting to defraud a federally insured financial institution.

Officials said Waite first approached the bank in September 1989 to request a $750,000 loan on behalf of his company, Applied Communications Technologies and J.M.B Production Company in Greenfield, Wis.

Brain-life standard suggested for abortion

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A philosopher proposes applying the same legal standard to abortions as is widely used in determining if a person is dead — is the subject's brain active?

A model law proposed at an international conference in Iowa City, called the Uniform Determination of Life Protection Act, would permit abortion of a fetus until the 70th day, or 10th week, after conception.

Hans-Martin Sass of the Kennedy Institute of Ethics said that after the 70th day the fetus should be a protected human life because it then begins developing a brain capable of determining individual characteristics and thought processes.

"The absence of brain-specific cells in early embryonal development could be understood as the absence of brain-life," he said. In that case, "abortion of inanimate life must be legally protected."

Sass, senior research fellow at the Washington, D.C.-based Kennedy Institute and professor of philosophy at Georgetown University proposed the act at a University of Iowa symposium that ended Wednesday. He also is co-director of the Center for Medical Ethics in Bocum, Germany.

About 60 medical, ethics and legal experts from 15 countries attended the four-day symposium to examine when life actually begins.

The proposed act essentially describes protected human life as starting when the brain begins to function and ending at death, when the person is declared brain-dead. That life could be called brain-life, Sass said.

Advances in technology forced doctors to consider the value of human life when organs such as the heart stop functioning, an event that previously would have meant death, Sass said. Because of that, a Uniform Determination of Death Act was created to define when a person is brain-dead; many state statutes are based on that model.

"In strong contrast to the consensus regarding the end of life, we do not have a uniform understanding regarding the beginning of human life, which has to be morally recognized and legally protected," Sass told symposium participants.

He rejected claims that aborting a fetus before its brain develops unfairly destroys that fetus' potential for becoming a specific human being.

Rebs share 4-5A title

■ For the fourth time in five seasons, Midland Lee advances to the post-season tournament and a first date with Plainview next Saturday in Lubbock.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — District 4-5A championships don't come easy, but the Midland Lee Rebels won a share of the district title here Friday night with a wild 36-32 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats in a battle of two playoff bound teams.

It was the fourth time in the last five years that Lee has won or shared the title. Odessa High had a 14-0 win over Abilene High Friday as both OHS and Lee finish 4-5A play with identical 5-1 records.

"This is a real tribute to my coaches for winning the title four of the last five years. This is something very special to me because we have taken our lumps and I'm awful proud of these coaches. It's hard to win four championships in this league," said Lee coach Earl Miller.

And the championship share didn't come easily in this one as the "Playoff Bowl" saw the two teams march up and down the field of play.

"You couldn't see a better game than this," said San Angelo coach Dan Gandy, who saw his team finish with a 2-8 record only a year ago before launching a playoff team. "Our kids are down because they lost, but this one won't hurt long when they realize that we are going on to the playoffs next week and played Lee a great football game."

Lee didn't put this one away until the final minute of play when cornerback Mike Lambert intercepted a Shea Morenz pass.

"I played bad the whole game and I was glad to do something to help the team and redeem myself," said Lambert. "He (Morenz) is a very good passer and we had some trouble controlling him."

Morenz ended the game completing 18 of 37 passes for 214 yards and a touchdown.

"You have to give San Angelo credit," said Miller. "They do well at our weakness. After all, we are playing four juniors in the secondary. They gave us a great effort, but they are juniors and it's tough against a great passing team."

But if San Angelo was striking in the air, Lee got the win on the ground as Reggie Webb had a career night with 191 yards rushing and four touchdowns, halting fans' speculation that the Rebel offense was going in the wrong direction the last two games.

"We've got it going again," said Webb. "We've been working on it."

All-State lineman Justin Firkins added, "This helps a whole lot because we've got our confidence back on offense and we're ready for the playoffs."

Quarterback Derrick Turner, who had 78 yards rushing, said, "The team got together and decided to play four full quarters and play like the Lee Rebels of old."

Ironically, two Turner fumbles on handoffs up the middle to Jovan Tellez helped San Angelo climb back into the game after Lee vaulted to a 28-17 lead in the third period.

"We had a mixup between me and the fullback, but we got together and corrected it," said Turner.

Lee led 21-17 at the half following a forced Morenz fumble by Lee's Mike Loftis and the recovery by Erinco Columbus at the Bobcat 28-yard line 40 seconds left in the half. Lee scored with Webb getting the final two just 35 seconds later.

Lee then came out in the second half by driving 71 yards in 11 plays with Webb again getting the final three yards for a 28-17 lead. But Lee fumbled away

Chaps find 100-point heaven again

■ In Friday's second round of the Chaparral Classic, Midland College comes from a double-digit deficit to hand Angelina its second straight loss.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Midland College eclipsed the century mark for the second night in a row, but this time the Chaparrals needed triple the digits as they fought off a 14-point first-half deficit and plowed to a 107-98 win over Angelina College in the second round of the Midland Classic.

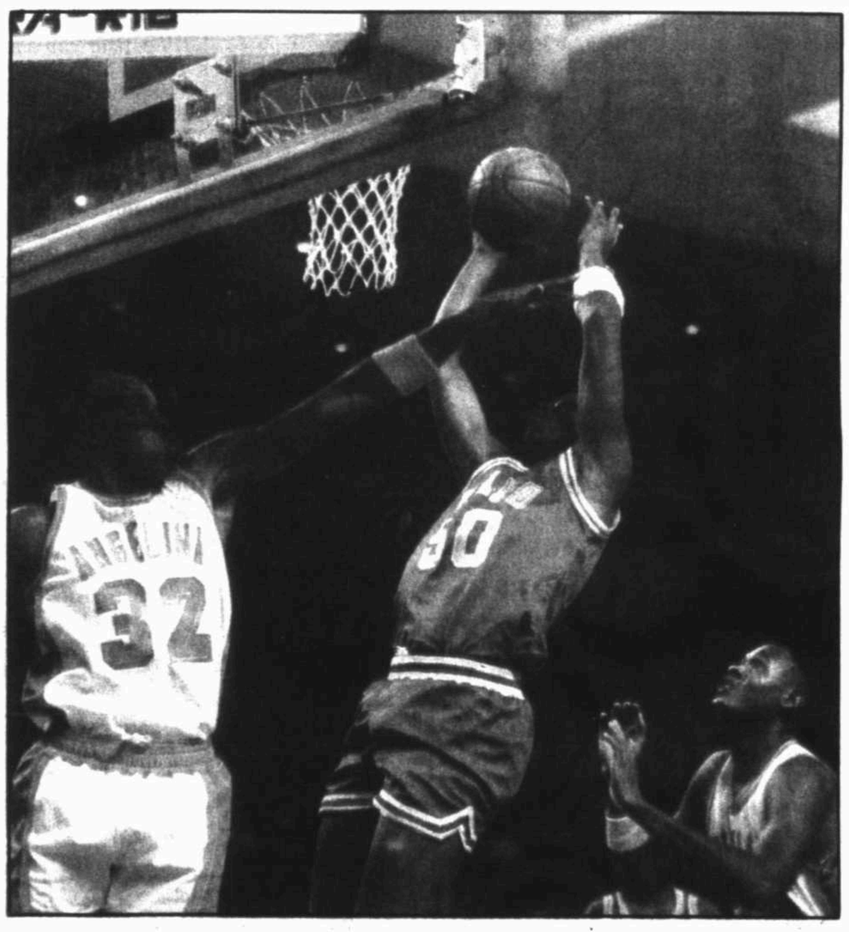

In Friday's other games, Western Texas College got by Murray State 108-96, and Howard College dismantled Jacksonville College 111-88.

MC's victory lifted the Chaps to 2-1 in the early going of the 1990-91 campaign, and it came despite the 35-point effort of Angelina sophomore Joel Davis. Davis, who was 15-of-23 from the field (65.2%) was the only Road Runner to hit better than 50-percent of his shots, and though the Chaps shot just 49.4 percent from the field, it was enough to win.

"We had some fine runs on defense," conceded MC head coach Reggie Franklin, whose charges fell behind 32-18 with 9:56 to play in the first half. "We had a gone one just before the half, and that kind of sparked our second half.

"We still have to be more patient on offense, but our problem has been that we could only get one pre-season scrimmage — everybody was booked — and we're working our bugs out during these games right here."

Those bugs started to disappear when Domasque Moore picked Rodney Dykes' pocket and turned it into two points with 13 seconds left in the first half. The play capped a five-point run by the Chaps that closed the score to 51-48.

Beverly Shilling/Reporter-Telegram

And MC wasted no time taking its first lead since an early 14-13 edge when Carroll Boudreaux, who led the Chaps with 26, tipped in an offensive board to lift MC ahead, 52-51.

The Chaps stretched the lead slowly but surely until Charlie Criane scored four unanswered baskets from within the paint to push MC to a 77-70 advantage.

The Road Runners never got closer than within four points of the Chaps, and when a jumper by Tom Doze glanced off the glass and went through, MC had its second-straight 100-point game.

Paul Johnson scored 33 points and Dominick Byrd added 20 as the Western Texas College Westerners defeated the Murray State College Aggies 108-96 in a second-round game at the Midland Classic Friday.

The Westerners held a narrow 56-52 halftime lead, but they stretched it easily as Murray State managed to sink just 12-of-21 free throws in the second half and holding the Aggies' leading scorer, Joe Weatherspoon, to just nine second-half points.

Weatherspoon finished the game with 21, while teammate Tori Pearl contributed 18.

The Aggies, who opened the tourney with a 106-79 loss to Midland College Thursday, round out the tourney witn a 5 p.m. meeting today with Howard College.

Unique equation helps Steers win

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

ANDREWS — To most people, a nickel and dime add up to 15 cents.

But in Steer Math, that same quantity equals victory — and another district championship.

Big Spring quarterback Gerald Cobos completed 10 of 12 short passes for 140 yards and one touchdown as the Steers "nickel-and-dimed" the Andrews Mustang defense en route to a 10-8 win in District 3-4A action here Friday.

The Steers clinched at least a tie for the 3-4A championship with Friday's win. But since the Steers, 7-1-1 overall and 5-0 in district action, have already defeated 5-1 Sweetwater, Coach David Thompson's team will go into the Class 4A area playoffs as the top seed from 3-4A irregardless of the outcome in next week's regular season finale against Monahans.

Friday's loss eliminated Andrews, 5-4 and 3-2, from playoff contention.

After a lackluster performance last week against Pecos, Cobos completed only one pass in the first quarter as the Steers tried to establish the prowess of tailback Jermaine Miller, who passed the 1,000-yard mark on his first carry of the second half and led all rushers with 113 yards on 25 carries.

But Andrews went to an eight-man front, much as Pecos had the previous week, and Cobos got adequate enough protection to dump passes over the onrushing Mustangs.

"I was just reading the defense," Cobos said. "There was usually double coverage on Neal (Mayfield), and that left one of the other receivers open."

While Mayfield caught three passes for 65 yards, Cobos utilized several other receivers Friday, most notably split end Nick Roberson, who caught four passes for 47 yards.

Andrews moved the ball well in the first quarter, but the hosts' second possession stalled on the Steer 24-yard-line and Eric Perucca's 40-yard field goal attempt was about a yard short of the crossbar. Perucca would later miss on a 50-yard attempt in the second quarter.

Raughton changes Lady Bulldog pace

With Gibson back in the fold, MHS looking for renewed success

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Jim Raughton is tired of girls athletics getting the short end of the stick. Now, he has the chance to change what he doesn't like.

Raughton

Raughton spent the last four years under MHS head boys' basketball coach Jack Stephenson's tutelage. Now, however, it's a different story.

Raughton replaced Jane Young as Midland High girls' coach in the spring of this year and he says changes will be forthcoming. Not because of any one or anything, but he feels girls athletics need to be moved up a notch on the ladder.

"I don't want these girls to take a backseat to anyone," Raughton said. "We'd like to come to the front.

"The main thing is to develop a new attitude among the girls. I want them to realize that this isn't intramurals. This isn't the YMCA. We play for the state championship just like the boys do."

Midland High has a mountain to climb. The Lady Bulldogs, with the help of returning Honorable Mention All-District 4-5A post Sally Gibson, will work hard to improve on last year's 1-10 overall, 8-18 district mark.

"I want them to compete," Raughton said. "Most importantly, every time we take the floor I want them to play to win. Not just pass the time and give the girls something to do."

Raughton will install a more up-tempto method of play at Midland High, forcing opponents to keep up with the Lady 'Dogs.

He doesn't want anyone under the impression that Midland High's game will be centered around the play of Gibson. Although she will undoubtedly be an integral cog in the Bulldog machine, there are others who will make important contributions.

"I think I can get a lot out of these girls," Raughton said. "They're showing definite signs of improvement.

"Offensively, the main thing I'm going to say is with the people we have on the floor, we're going to be able to run and score points. We're going to have to be able to adjust and change according to what the defenses make us do."

A halfcourt offense will still be utilized, but not to the extent it was during Young's tenure. How often the Lady Bulldogs play the slow, deliberate game will depend on the opposition.

"Getting up and down the floor, that's what people want to see," Raughton said. "And if we're in ball games, people will come out and see us."

Raughton is hoping to retain all 16 players on his current roster, suggesting that some may be lost for various, unspecified reasons.

Raughton said he'll stretch the defense and apply pressure with both front and back court if able. "We want to adjust," he said. "We don't want to get beat going up and down the floor. If we can stretch and enjoy some success with it, we'll stretch."

As for the district matchups, Raughton likes Permian, Abilene and San Angelo.

"Everybody looks to Permian to be the preseason favorite," Raughton said. "The Permian coaches say Abilene High. Abilene High says go with San Angelo. Those three would be the pick. Lee's got some great talent. (Lee head coach) Shirley (Stephenson) is going to do a good job."

If the roster holds up under preseason stress, the Lady 'Dogs will include the following players:

■ Sally Gibson, 5-11 Jr. We'll use Raughton's words to size her up: "On the inside, she's a threat. We'll make sure we get her the ball in our offensive game plan. It'll be easy for us to enjoy success if Sally is enjoying success."

■ Angie Johnson, 5-3 Sr. Another probable starter, Johnson's leadership is an asset. Can score facing the basket, especially on 15-foot jumpers.

■ Kenya Dunson, 5-4 Jr. One of the better shooters for the Lady Bulldogs, Dunson has a strong release and should be an offensive factor at a guard position.

■ Ashley Chase, 5-9 Jr. A returning starter, she is probably the best shooter the Lady 'Dogs possess. Also has more knowledge of the game than most players her age.

■ Donna Eaden, 5-7 Jr. Most improved player this fall. "She's become a strong threat on both ends of the floor," Raughton said. "She'll probably start because of her athletic ability." Eaden may as well be the strongest player on the squad and will be counted on for her rebounding ability also.

■ Stephanie Spencer, 5-3 Jr. Quickness and ability to see the floor well are standout attributes, but Spencer can also be an above average ball handler. Raughton lists Spencer as another probable starter.

■ Tarshina Belcher, 5-7 Jr. Spent most of last season on the junior varsity, but Raughton points out she has "improved tremendously. She's easy to get along with and has developed an improved shot." A possible starter, her ball handling has improved.

■ Evelina Montez, 5-5 Sr. Just started practicing due to volleyball season. Most of her shooting will be done from the perimeter.

■ Charlotte Scharbauer, 5-5 Soph. Inexperience a factor, but handles the ball well for a sophomore.

■ Cynthia Redic, 5-4 Jr. Can play inside, but strong suit is ability to shoot well from 15 feet.

■ Jackie Perez, 5-8 Soph. Raughton says Perez has a great deal of potential, "one who seems to be at the right place at the right time." Not afraid to play inside with back to the basket, she is developing a nice turn-around jump shot.

■ Ann-Marie Dodd, 5-6 Sr. A transfer from Lee, she's had knee and toe injuries during the preseason but should be ready come gametime. Raughton refers to her as a "gutsy" player.

■ Cynthia Wilkerson, 5-7 Jr. If family tie have anything to do with her abilities, it's in the bag. Wilkerson's uncle is Charles Johnson, a former MHS standout and All-American at Midland College. She can run, jump and has above average quickness.

■ Jennifer Pirkle, 5-7 Jr. Just off volleyball team, if her workouts are an indication, Raughton says, she'll be a success.

Schedule, experience pluses for Rebs

Eight veteran players return for treat of month-long homestand

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

If nothing else, the Midland Lee Lady Rebel basketball team has two things going for it:

1) An advantageous non-district schedule and,

2) Experience.

Stephenson

That's not to say the Lady Rebs don't have anything else going for them, though.

But at first glance, the schedule and the returning lettermen in the lineup will help the Lady Rebs improve on last season's horrid 6-21 overall finish.

Lee opens the 1990-91 season Tuesday night against Lubbock Monterey's Lady Plainsmen, ranked in the Class 5A Top 10 after last year's loss to Duncanville in the state semifinals.

Following the home opener, the Lady Rebs travel to Del Rio for the Lady Rams' three-day tournament and then return to Rebel Gym for an extended stay of a month. During that span, the Lady Rebs host Lamesa (Nov. 19), Hobbs, N.M. (Nov. 20), Carlsbad, N.M. (Nov. 26), Andrews (Dec. 4), Denver City (Dec. 7), Big Spring (Dec. 11), and Abilene High (Dec. 14) to open District 4-5A play.

Lee has just one road trip during the month long period — to Del Rio.

As for their returning experience, the Lady Rebels are loaded. Eight girls with varsity experience return. Tiffany Grafa (5-08, Jr. forward) is the only regular starter back; Lachette Crisp (5-06, Jr. guard) and Alicia Furrow (5-11, Jr. post) saw spot starting duty last season.

How vaulable can Grafa be to the Lady Rebs?

"I told Tiffany last year we've only had about three players in Lee history that started their sophomore seasons," head coach Shirley Stephenson said. "She's a good shooter and a smart passer. And she's nice to have around."

After a 2-10 campaign in District 4-5A action last season, it is vital that the Lady Rebs show their opponents that they are to be competitive this season, according to Stephenson.

"It's hard to jump out and say something because too much can happen," Stephenson said. "Things do look encouraging, though. If we can be competitive, certain things will fall into place."

Saving some of the firepower for game's end would seem to be an option what with the eight experienced girls returning.

The Rebels also have depth in the front court, a luxury they haven't too often been afforded down through the years until now. Stephenson's roster boasts of six post players, three with experience.

"We're going to run and press," Stephenson said.

Joining Grafa in the Lady Rebel lineup will be:

■ Alicia Furrow, 5-11 Jr., 1L. Will provide point production from the post area. Has improved her shots over the off-season.

■ Lachette Crisp, 5-6 Jr., 1L. Back after starting several games last season, Crisp's strong point is her ball handling and her versatility. Stephenson said Crisp can play on the wing, at guard or even draw some point duty.

■ Lesa Cochran, 5-8 Jr., 1L. Cochran will be looked at to provide some defense for the Lady Rebs. Like Crisp, Cochran can also play virtually any position on the floor.

■ Michelle Stewart, 5-6 Jr., 1L. Will be looked to to handle a point guard position because of ball handling abilities.

■ Tracy Pierce, 5-7 Sr., 1L. Despite her size, Pierce will be one of the Lady Rebs' players on the post. "She's learned to take a lot of contact and she's developed some moves in the lane which enable her to take some power shots," Stephenson said of her.

■ Allison Lowe, 5-7 Sr., 1L. Quickness and defensive prowess are Lowe's strong suits. A high jumper on Lee's track squad, Lowe's vertical leap will be counted on to make some plays under the basket. She is also working on improving her outside shooting.

■ Debbie Kuntz, 5-7 Jr., 1L. A transfer player from Hobbs, N.M., she'll face her old teammates when Lee meets Hobbs on Nov. 20. Kuntz was on the varsity squad at Hobbs and should be able to utilize her ball-handling skills here as well.

■ Heather Coplen, 5-1 Sr., JV. Size works against her but Coplen makes up for her lack of it with quickness and aggressive play on the perimeter.

■ Terri Honeywell, 5-4 Sr., JV. Will be counted on for point production from the point position. Playing underneath the basket, though, doesn't intimidate Honeywell.

■ Tyra Goodley, 5-5 Sr., JV. Athleticism is an attribute, and her ability to shoot left-handed, Goodley also has a reliable good jumper.

■ Ranee Franklin, 5-8 Jr., JV. Inside shooting's a plus for Franklin, who Stephenson describes as a "very strong player. She's not only strong but she handles the ball well, also." Stephenson said that Franklin reminds her of Monica Ramirez, Lee's inside force from 1987-89.

■ Tekeira Strambler, 5-8 Soph. Having just come off the volleyball squad, Strambler's 5-7½ size is deceiving. "She plays a lot taller," Stephenson said.

■ Kim Blackburn, 6-0 Soph. Provides size, but also lacks experience. Her poise, though, could make up for that.

Horns, UH in big show

Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns face their 60 minutes of truth on Saturday.

Humiliated for three consecutive seasons by the Houston Cougars, the Longhorns take them on in a nationally televised game that could put a burnt orange hue on the Cotton Bowl where Texas hasn't played since 1983.

The Cougars have won the last three games by a composite score of 173-64.

Third-ranked Houston, which isn't eligible for the Cotton Bowl because of NCAA infractions during the Bill Yeoman era, was a field goal favorite over the 'Horns in the 6:37 p.m. game in Memorial Stadium that will be televised by ESPN.

Texas is the only Southwest Conference team eligible for the title without a league loss.

In other games, Baylor tries to stay in the title chase when its hosts hapless Arkansas on homecoming in a 12:07 p.m. (Raycom TV) matchup.

STEERS: Hosts fall just short

(From 1B)

The Steers then took the ball 76 yards in 12 plays to draw first blood on Mayfield's 27-yard field goal with 10:35 left in the half.

Both teams moved the ball well for the rest of the half, but to no avail.

Big Spring seemingly put it all together in the third quarter, scoring its only touchdown on a 22-yard pass play from Cobos to fullback Roman Ortega after a 66-yard drive on the opening possession of the half — and holding Andrews to eight total yards.

At that point, with a 10-0 lead and a red-hot defense, Thompson thought his team had it in the bag.

"I thought we were in control," the coach said.

He was wrong.

With the Mustangs facing elimination, Andrews junior Al Gonzales drove the Mustangs 77 yards on the hosts' first possession of the fourth quarter. Gonzales, who missed most of the season with a knee injury, replaced a dog-tired Kevin Nichols and immediately asserted himself with some gutsy option runs, while fullback Corey Wilson gained ample yardage on trap plays.

Andrews got down to the Steer 8, but cornerback Roberson and free safety Freddie Rodriquez broke up consecutive passes in the end zone to give Big Spring the ball on down with 2:02 left.

But the hosts got another chance when Miller fumbled on the next play and Oscar Bueno recovered on the Steer 13. Gonzales, who rushed for 42 yards in the fourth quarter, ran the ball down to the 1 on three consecutive option runs before right halfback Zach Miller bulled into the end zone with 1:07 left. Bueno added two points on a reverse.

Andrews got another break when Big Spring was called for an illegal formation after Rodriquez covered an onside kick attempt by Perucca. But Abel Hilario covered Perucca's next attempt and Cobos fell on the ball three times to set the victory celebration in motion.

While Big Spring prepares for its playoff schedule at home against Monahans, Andrews plays out the string at San Angelo Lake View next Friday.

Athens sues over flip

AUSTIN (AP) — The Athens school district sued the University Interscholastic League on Friday in an attempt to stop a scheduled coin flip that may be used to break a tie among Athens, Corsicana and Chappell Hill football teams.

A 2 p.m. hearing was scheduled before a state district judge in Austin on the lawsuit.

After a week-long dispute over tie-breaking procedures, the coin toss among the three teams was set for Friday night, the Athens Daily Review reported.

The three teams are tied for first place in District 17-4A with 3-1 records.

The suit for a declaratory judgment was filed in 167th state district court by attorneys for the Athens ISD, a spokeswoman for the Travis County district clerk's office confirmed.

The newspaper said papers in the lawsuit urge Judge Mace Thurman to stop the coin flip because it is arbitrary and unfair.

Red Devils shut down Stockton

By Charlie Dowd
MRT Correspondent

RANKIN — It must be great to be the coach's son. As quarterback, you get to run, throw and lead your offense to scores. On defense, you get to make loads of tackles from your linebacker position with an occasional sack to liven things up. When it's time for special teams play you handle punts, kickoffs and placekicking.

Sound exciting? It's just another day at the office for Rankin's junior quarterback Kirk Kennedy. He did all of the above and more as the Red Devils rolled to an impressive 45-6 win over Fort Davis, clinching their third straight district championship in the process.

Rankin did not get rolling until their second possesion as they took over on Fort Davis' 47 after a fumble recovery on the Indians first play from scrimmage. The Devils embarked on a grinding 10 play drive as they did not attempt one pass en route to their first score. Kevin Braden, converted from his usual spot on the line, punched it in from the one. Braden was called into service in the backfield due to a number of injuries suffered by the Devils.

Kennedy and his mates clicked again early in the second quarter as Kennedy finished the drive with a 20 yard run. Fort Davis countered with their own touchdown in the quarter as the teams went to half with Rankin leading 13-7. The Indians were turned back just before the halftime gun when Francisco Gonzales intercepted Greg Gartrell's pass in the end zone.

Rankin blew the game wide open in the third period. Kennedy took off on a 71 yard touchdown jaunt to open the scoring and the rout was on. On the ensuing kickoff, the Indian's Cesar Castaneda coughed up the football after a very nice 30 yard runback. The Devils recovered and were in business at Fort Davis' 47.

Kennedy wasted little time as he hit wideout James Watson for 34 yards on first down, setting up Gabe Hyatt's 13 yard touchdown on the very next play. The Devils had struck for two touchdowns within a span of 47 seconds. What had been a tight defensive quickly became practice time for the second squad.

Kennedy wasted little time again as the fourth quarter began. He and Joey Valera connected on a 68 touchdown pass to push the Rankin lead to 39-6. The Rankin second team offense closed out the scoring late in the fourth quarter as freshman Roy Abalos gave fans a glimpse of the future as he weaved his way to a 17 yard score.

While Rankin was putting on a show offensively, the defense was just as impressive. That man Kennedy was all over the field with numerous tackles, sacks and presures from his left outside linebacker spot. The Devils simply shut Fort Davis down in the second half.

Kennedy's offensive numbers were equally impressive. He ran for 167 yards on 13 carries. Through the air he accounted for 226 of Rankin's 241 passing yards. He kept the Fort Davis defense off balance all night with his play action fakes. Had Kennedy been more accurate with some of his first half passes he could have easily topped the 300 yard mark passing.

Lest Kirk Kennedy get too big for his britches, he did have one black mark against him this evening. The normally reliable Rankin kicking game missed on five PAT's.

Coach Troy Kennedy's Red Devils have an off week to prepare for their first area playoff game. Their oppenent is undetermined thusfar. The Devils can use the break in order to rest back Arnaldo Ramos whose absence Friday due to injury forced the Devils out of their usual veer and into an I formation.

Bearkats improve to 8-1 behind Scott's passing

Staff Report

ROBY — The Garden City Bearkats scored 21 first quarter points — a total that would eventually prove to be enough for the winning margin — and defeated Robty 42-20 to ensure themselves a first place finish in District 9-1A.

Garden City was led by the marksmanship passing of Shae Scott who completed 16-of-20 passes for 261 yards.

The Bearkats upped their record to 8-1 overall, 5-0 in league play; Roby fell to 5-4, 2-3.

James Soles scored first for Garden City on a two yard run. Jody Bradford's kick put the 'Kats up 7-0 before Roby came right back with a 54-yard touchdown run from Joe Rivas. Roby brought it to a one-point game with the touchdown, but the extra point failed and Roby would never draw as close the remainder of the evening.

Scott found Bearkat receiver Alan Hoelscher on a 17 yard scoring pass and Soles scored from 10 yards out as Garden City took a 21-6 lead.

Roby, though, would score again before halftime on a four-yard run from David Scott.

Soles had two additional rushing touchdowns in the second half and Scott threw for another touchdown pass in the final 24 minutes to keep the 'Kats out in front.

Tarpley blows out knee

DALLAS (AP) — Roy Tarpley of the Dallas Mavericks sustained a partial dislocation of the right kneecap Friday night and team officials said he will be sidelined for at least two weeks.

Tarpley was carried off the court with a knee injury with 18 seconds left in the first quarter of the Dallas-Orlando game Friday night. The Mavericks won 111-99.

A team official said the forward's right kneecap was knocked out of place, and doctors were able to push it back.

The injury occurred as Tarpley, leading the Mavericks with 24 points and 12.3 rebounds per game, made a fast-break layup. When he landed, his knee buckled inward and he went down in extreme pain.

A stretcher was brought onto the court to carry Tarpley into the dressing room for examination.

Tarpley left the game with six points and six rebounds.

Maleeva-Fragniere faces Graf

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere, who has lost all 13 previous meetings, will be seeking her first victory over Steffi Graf today in the New England Virginia Slims semifinals.

Maleeva-Fragniere earned her place against the most dominating player in women's tennis by knocking out upstart Mercedes Paz on Friday, only hours after Paz had muscled in among the seeded players in the week-long chase for $350,000 in prize money.

Maleeva-Fragniere was pleased with her victory, but would make no prediction about her latest encounter with Graf, the No. 1 women's player.

Graf has been beating Maleeva-Fragniere regularly since 1985, including three wins this year.

"I have improved my net play," Maleeva-Fragniere said. "If I have the opportunity, I'm not afraid to take chances," she added, possibly tipping off a portion of her strategy for the afternoon semi-final.

Panthers crush Cougars

Staff Report

ODESSA — Stormy Case threw three touchdown passes and six different Panthers had TDs as Odessa Permian closed out its season with a 49-0 win over Abilene Cooper.

The Panthers, who have been banned from postseason play, finished the season with a 4-1-1 record in District 4-5A

Josh Sumner provided Permian's first points with a four-yard run in the first quarter. After Malcolm Hamilton's 45-yard run upped the score to 14-0, Case got hit arm moving.

The young quarterback hit scoring strikes of 11, 4 and 16 yards.

Hamilton ran for a second TD, and Lonnie Jones also scored for Permian, going in on an 11-yard dash.

Snyder downs Lamesa, 28-13, gains playoff spot

Staff Report

LAMESA — The Snyder Tigers used a potent running attack to run past Lamesa, 28-13, and a share of the District 2-4A championship.

Paul Anderson opened the Snyder scoring on a 70-yard kickoff return late in the first quarter. Mark King followed that up with a 23 yard touchdown run.

Anderson scored again just before the half on a 9-yard scamper.

Bronchos blank AHS; share title

Staff Report

ABILENE — Brad Givens blasted for touchdown runs of two and five yards, and Odessa High finished its regular season with a 14-0 shutout over Abilene High and a share of the District 4-5A championship.

Givens scored in both the second and third quarters, and he finished the night with 117 yards on 17 carries as OHS moved to 5-1 in 4-5A, the same as Midland Lee, a team the Bronchos have defeated.

Odessa High will face either Amarillo Palo Duro or Lubbock Coronado in the large school division of the Class 5A playoffs next week. The Bronchos will face Palo Duro if the Dons can upset Amarillo High in their regular season finale today.

The Bronchos held Abilene High to just 77 rushing yards while gathering 271 of their own. Fullback Eric Nunez ran for 62 yards on 12 carries and quarterback Ira Young had 57 yards on 19 carries for OHS.

REBS: Lee meets a new 'Dog

From 1C

the next two drives and San Angelo got a touchdown out of one of them to cut the margin to 28-23, but Lee answered with a 31-yard Webb TD for a 36-23 margin. It was a margin San Angelo could only dent as Lambert was there at the end.

And now it's the playoffs for the eighth consecutive year for Lee. The Rebels will face Plainview at 8 p.m. next Saturday in Lubbock's Jones Stadium while San Angelo will square off against Amarillo High at 8 p.m. Friday at Jones Stadium.

"Both teams excelled tonight," said Miller. "We got our kids back to where they were before the break. We felt like we were playing for the district championship here tonight because we felt like San Angelo probably should have beaten Permian last week. We lost our intensity after the open date, but we had it tonight. Our kids were in the game.

"I guess Odessa High is now going to have be asked what is wrong with them since they scored only 14 points against Abilene High."

Frank Rubino, one of Manuel Noriega's attorneys, speaks to reporters in Miami this week concerning a broadcast ban on taped conversations between Noriega and his lawyers.

Tape ban extended

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge extended a ban against broadcast of taped conversations between Manuel Noriega and his attorneys, but Cable News Network apparently defied the order Friday by playing another recording.

In the tape, Noriega discussed two potential government witnesses with his defense team, and speculated on the prosecutors' strategy.

CNN President Tom Johnson defended the broadcast, calling the judge's order "unconstitutional prior restraint."

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler had told CNN's attorneys only minutes before the broadcast that he would hold the network in contempt of court if the tapes were played, but did not act immediately.

Noriega's attorneys, meanwhile, accused the U.S. State Department and the Panamanian government of President Guillermo Endara of being the source of the tapes leaked to CNN.

"We believe the State Department had obtained copies of the tapes, and gave them to the Endara government," said Noriega's lead attorney Frank Rubino. "A high-placed person in the Endara government then provided them" to CNN.

A State Department spokesman said the agency was aware of Rubino's comments, but had no immediate reaction.

Judge kills 22 Keating charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge on Friday ordered the dismissal of more than half the securities fraud charges against Lincoln Savings and Loan mogul Charles H. Keating Jr. unless prosecutors can amend them to his satisfaction.

Defense attorneys had urged Superior Court Judge Lance Ito to dismiss all 42 counts, contending in a dismissal motion that they were flawed by vagueness and technical problems.

Ito agreed that 22 of the 42 counts were flawed. But he gave prosecutors until Nov. 19 to submit a revised indictment.

"The court will sustain the demurrer, with leave to amend," Ito said.

The next hearing in the case was set for Dec. 3.

Keating, the former head of American Continental Corp., was jailed for 33 days on a 42-count indictment. He posted a reduced bond of $300,000 last month.

American Continental controlled the Irvine-based Lincoln Savings and Loan Association. Experts have estimated Lincoln's failure may cost taxpayers $2 billion, making it the costliest thrift failure yet.

Keating and three of his executives are accused of deceiving investors about the safety of $250 million in now-worthless "junk bonds" sold at Lincoln branches. Many elderly bond buyers lost their life savings.

If convicted, the defendants each could receive a maximum prison term of 10 years.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys disagreed over how severe a blow the government suffered in its case. It is the first criminal prosecution stemming from the collapse of American Continental.

Abbe Lowell, a lawyer for former American Continental President Judy J. Wischer, said he believed well-meaning prosecutors had been caught up in a frenzied search for scapegoats to the nation's savings and loan debacle.

"I think in this case unfortunately the district attorney cut too many corners," Lowell said.

He said he did not believe the grand jury indictment could be amended to make the 22 counts acceptable.

But prosecutors characterized the problems as technical and said they believed the charges ultimately would stand. Deputy District Attorney William Hodgman said he would address some of Ito's concerns by being more specific about charges, probably by adding additional counts.

On other counts, prosecutors will make their charges less specific in order to address technical problems, said Deputy District Attorney Paul Turley.

Twenty of the counts in question allege that Keating and his executives sold American Continental "junk bonds" without properly registering them with state and federal authorities. The interest rates on the bonds were higher than for insured certificates of deposit, reflecting their riskiness.

The sales occurred at branches of Lincoln. The bonds became worthless when American Continental filed for bankruptcy protection and regulators seized Lincoln in spring 1989.

Another count that Ito jeopardized alleges the defendants published advertising for a bond sale without properly filing a copy of the ad with the state Department of Corporations. The final count Ito questioned as flawed alleges they lied to the department.

As for the other 20 charges, Ito said: "I find there is rational basis in the grand jury transcripts" to support them.

Those 20 allege that bonds were sold to Lincoln Savings investors by means of untrue statements or omissions of material facts.

Stephen C. Neal, Keating's attorney, said the defense would challenge whatever charges survive at later hearings on grounds of insufficient evidence to support them.

President vetoes "orphan drug" legislation

By Rita Beamish
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Friday vetoed a bill intended to block drug companies from reaping windfall profits through monopolistic marketing of drugs that treat rare diseases.

The bill applies to "orphan drugs" used against diseases that affect fewer than 200,000 people. It was designed to foster more competition by eliminating the 7-year exclusive marketing rights granted under current law to companies that develop such drugs.

"I have serious concerns about the effect that (the bill) would have upon the incentive of drug companies to develop orphan drugs," Bush said in a statement.

The White House contends that taking away the exclusivity benefit actually would decrease the willingness of firms to come up with orphan drugs because of the expense involved in the research and development.

The legislation Bush vetoed would have amended the 1983 Orphan Drug Act that established the 7-year marketing monopoly as an incentive for companies to develop drugs that don't promise as large a profit as drugs that are used against more widely prevalent diseases.

"I believe we must not endanger the success of this program, which is due in large measure to the existence of the 'market exclusivity' provision in the Orphan Drug Act," Bush said. "Weakening the current 7-year period is the basis of the economic incentive to attract drug firms to invest in orphan drugs."

Critics, however, complain the current law has resulted in excessively high prices for some drugs, including those used to treat AIDS, and millions of dollars in profits by the drug firms.

Bush also objected to changing the current law's provision that allows orphan drug status to diseases that affect more than 200,000 people when there is no reasonable expectation that the cost of developing the drug will be recovered from sales.

The new legislation would have cut off a drug's orphan drug status as soon as the number of people who need the drug exceeded 200,000.

Bush said he was "extremely concerned ... that individuals with rare disease may suffer because of changes that this bill would make in the incentives to develop new drug treatments."

The legislation, whose chief architect was Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., was supported by AIDS activists and other advocacy groups.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturing Association opposed the legislation, but said it was not recommending that Bush veto it.

The PMA contended the current act was working well to stimulate development of drugs that otherwise would not be of interest to manufacturers.

"Only six of the 45 orphan drug approvals since 1983 are for populations greater than 50,000. Many of these drugs would not be available without the incentives offered by the Orphan Drug Act," the organization said in a position paper on the legislation.

There was no immediate comment from the PMA on Bush's veto, said spokesman Mark Grayson.

The Food and Drug Administration has granted so-called orphan status to more than 375 drugs, more than 40 of which have reached the market. Critics have been concerned that some of these drugs were producing monopolistic windfalls for the drug companies that marketed them.

Some of the diseases that orphan drugs have been developed to treat include Huntington's disease, Tourette's syndrome, narcolepsy and muscular dystrophy.

On a separate matter, Bush on Friday signed a bill requiring food manufacturers to put more nutrition information on the labels.

That We Might Be Free

Some were young, having never before left the security of home. Others were older, raising families and engaged in established occupations. Yet, each had a common denominator. All of those brave men and women put a halt to their lives as they knew them, left familiarity behind, and traveled to foreign shores, risking their lives to protect our concept of democracy. Inevitably, many died for this noble cause.

Each time we cast our ballot . . . every Sabbath as we worship in the church or synagogue of our choice . . . those instances when we might express a political opinion without fear or reprisal, let us remember the months and years sacrificed by our veterans as they defended and still defend the rights which we enjoy today.

As Veteran's Day approaches, may we honor the selfless men and women who have paid with a portion of their lives that ours might be free.

Phoenix convention plan proceeds despited vote

NEW YORK (AP) — The Episcopal Church is going ahead with plans to hold its triennial General Convention in Phoenix despite Arizona voters' rejection of two ballot measures that would have established a Martin Luther King Day.

National Football League Commissioner Paul Tagliabue this week recommended that the 1993 Super Bowl be moved in protest from Phoenix, but Episcopal Presiding Bishop Edmond Browning said more good can be done by staying.

"The Episcopal Church will go to Phoenix. While we cannot ignore or condone the results of the referendum, I believe that by working with people of good faith who are in Arizona, we can come and together make a vigorous witness for the dignity of all God's people, and against the evils of racism," Browning said.

But the head of a lobbying group for South African sanctions that received its start with a grant from a black Episcopal Church leader said the church's decision was "unfortunate."

"The Episcopal Church should be in the front lines here and it is terribly regrettable to find the church lagging behind the NFL," said Randall Robinson, head of TransAfrica in Washington, D.C.

Up to 9,000 people are expected to attend the 1990 General Convention July 11-20 in Phoenix, church News Director James Solheim said.

David Radcliffe, president of Phoenix & Valley of the Sun Convention and Visitors Bureau, said he knows of at least four groups that have canceled reservations for conventions or stays at hotels since the propositions failed in Tuesday's election.

Norman Braman, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles and chairman of the Super Bowl site selection committee, said he expected that the NFL commissioner's recommendation to move the game would be approved.

> 'The Episcopal Church should be in the front lines here and it is terribly regrettable to find the church lagging behind the NFL.'
>
> — Randall Robinson, Head of TransAfrica in Washington, D.C.

"I think it would be an affront to our public and our players if the game is played in Phoenix," Braman said.

Browning said in his statement that he was "terribly disappointed" by the decision to reject the King holiday.

Browning, spiritual leader of the nearly 2.5 million-member denomination, noted that he had lobbied the Arizona Legislature for a King holiday, but had said at the time "I was not issuing threats about not coming to Arizona."

"I came to say that I believed that they were confronting a moral issue of deep significance, and that is racism," Browning said. "Dr. King brought to us a message of what this country could be if we were able to find racial equality. Observing a holiday in his name goes deeper than honoring him. It reminds us of who we must be as a non-racist society."

Arizona Bishop Joseph T. Heistand said he will continue to struggle for the passage of a Martin Luther King Civil Rights Day.

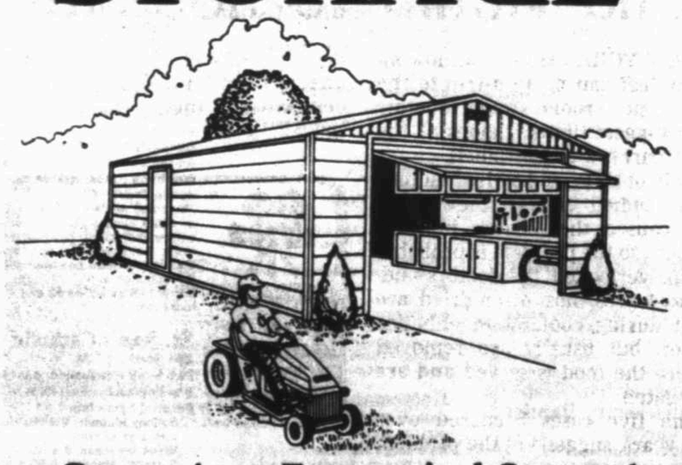

"I don't believe the majority of citizens of Arizona are racist; I believe they stand for justice and civil rights for all people," he said.

But Robinson, who addressed an Episcopal gathering of social justice leaders this summer, said he supported a boycott to protect against the erosion of civil rights in the nation.

Having hit bottom, Detroit is fighting back

■ Detroit — "The Motor City," "Motown" — was a legend of the manufacturing world, a beehive that spawned wealthy suburbs such as Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe. But today its decrepit center decays under the blows of poverty and crime. Yet there is fight left in this Great Lakes city, which may become the free trade link to Canada.

By A.J. Dickerson
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT — At least a third of this city's population has left since 1960 and a third of those who remain are on welfare.

There is bad news everywhere. The per-capita homicide rate is among the nation's highest, 60 per 100,000 people in 1989. In the last decade, it has had the biggest population loss of all the nation's top 15 cities.

A federal grand jury is probing the police force's use of a secret fund; the debt-haunted school system's students test below the national average.

Adding insult to injury, the Motor City and its suburbs lost 43 percent of their auto dealers in the past 11 years, down from 51 to 29, including the suburbs of Highland Park and Hamtramck.

Some experts say that Detroit, a 70-percent black island surrounded by mostly white suburbs, now faces the flight of middle-class blacks.

That defection is partly blamed for a preliminary 1990 census count showing the city's population about 30,000 people below 1 million, costing Detroit money, prestige and a congressional seat.

There has been a steady decline from a population of 1.67 million in 1960 to 1.51 million in 1970 to 1.2 million in 1980.

The city, considered the country's sixth-largest until last year, would drop to ninth if the contested 1990 count stands.

Detroit is the quintessential big, industrial Northeast and Midwest city, says Mark Neithercut of the Michigan Metropolitan Information Center.

"IT IS CLEARLY in decline," he says. "The same thing is happening in Baltimore. But it's greater here."

Wilbur Rich, a political scientist at Detroit's Wayne State University and the author of a biography on five-term Mayor Coleman Young, says the flight is a double tragedy.

"Why Detroit? It had so much going for it," Rich says. "It was one of the few places where a black could make a decent wage, buy a house that wasn't attached. Living in Detroit meant success.

"We don't attract people anymore. People get on a bus now to leave."

Not all Detroiters are packing up. Some, perhaps personified by the 4-ton outstretched bronze fist of boxer Joe Louis that graces the median along Jefferson Avenue downtown, are fighting back.

"I think Detroit has reached its lowest number of population. It'll start to come back," says Paul Hubbard, president of New Detroit Inc., an advocacy and community-action group founded after riots in 1967 left 43 dead.

Detroit has what suburbs need: workers, a water system, and recent tony, waterfront housing developments. They are luring people back, which may in turn draw back businesses, he says.

The new U.S.-Canadian free-trade pact could make Detroit the Midwest's major port, he says, "if we take advantage of it. We're headed in the right direction."

NEW DETROIT is pushing free trade, which could be its biggest success, Hubbard says. To date, major triumphs include breaking up gangs that sprang up in the 1970s and nurturing more than 100 citizens groups that fix up neighborhoods or drive out the drug dealers who lurk in Detroit's thousands of abandoned houses.

There's been a resurgence of community groups rebuilding neighborhoods in the past three years, says David Dasher of the non-profit Michigan Avenue Community Organization, founded in 1975 to battle blight. It renovated and resold 22 homes in the past three years, trying for a 10-percent profit to plow into the next project.

His group's west-side neighborhood "is holding its own, which is no small accomplishment. As long as people care, there's a chance."

Mayor Young thinks the most pressing need is jobs, to counter Detroit's high unemployment rate. Hubbard and Rich believe a better school system is essential.

"We're putting more emphasis on preschool to break that welfare cycle," Hubbard says. "That's what the school system has to do. I don't think they understood that until recently."

The 262-school, 172,000-student system was so indebted that the state considered taking over last year to balance its budget. Bond issues, approved by voters last fall, eased that, while making city residents' total tax bill the highest of any Michigan city, Cupidore says.

BEFORE THE referendum passed, comedian Jay Leno, on national television, poked fun at the system's $1 million how-to-be-more-frugal study. Until 1988, school board members were driven to meetings by chauffeurs.

It isn't just money. An April attendance report showed that only 21 schools had 90 percent to 94 percent attendance each day. A dress code took effect this fall, a measure to curb violence such as the shooting of an Osborn High School student over his $135 jacket, and the slaying of a Kettering High School student who was stripped of his coat and $70 sneakers.

Mayoral spokesman Bob Berg says racism is part of the city's trouble. "The city's about 70 percent black; the suburbs are white," he says.

"There are people who brag about not coming downtown in years. They say it's not racial. But it is."

Detroit's black population soared from 28.9 percent to 63.1 percent between 1960 and 1980, census data shows. Detroit's 1980 black population was the largest among the nation's 10 major cities.

The racial divide between Detroit and its suburbs is deepening, as it is in Chicago, Baltimore and Gary, Ind., according to the University of Michigan's 38th Detroit Area Study, its most recent.

"THE SOCIAL segregation is astonishing," says Steven Rosenstone of the Ann Arbor school's Center for Political Studies. Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties are 92.2 percent white, compared with 75.1 percent black in Detroit. Detroit's 20.6 percent unemployment includes people who have given up looking for jobs. A third of Detroiters surveyed lacked access to a car in good condition, meaning "blacks cannot get out to the better-paying jobs."

"I think things are going to get worse before it gets better," Rosenstone says.

What Detroit needs is jobs, says Berg, explaining Mayor Young's sometimes controversial strategies — knocking down a neighborhood for a Chrysler Corp. plant, plans to demolish another neighborhood to expand the airport and to exploit the free trade pact, encouraging more riverfront development such as the downtown Renaissance Center complex.

Detroit is lifting itself from the doldrums of population decay, auto industry slumps and a bad image, say Hubbard and Berg.

During last October's Devil's Night, about 30,000 residents from an array of community groups patrolled the streets to dampen the annual arson spree.

The Detroit Civic Center hosted 14 percent more business in 1989 over 1988, an increase to 8.4 million visitors. A survey of 24 major metropolitan areas by national accounting firm Grant Thornton found Detroit's economy advanced in the 1989 fourth quarter to its highest in five years.

THE RACIAL CONTROVERSY over a white woman heading the council of a mostly black city ended with Maryann Mahaffey's election last fall to council president.

The Detroit Pistons, who play their home games 30 miles north of downtown, won their second straight NBA champsionship.

Ten years from now, Detroit "will be more of an information and service industry for manufacturing. We'll be more of a convention industry," Hubbard says, stressing the need to shift from the cyclical auto industry that has dominated and determined much of Detroit's past.

And the city might just make it over the 1-million mark in the census count, Neithercut says.

Berg says there are easily 30,000 Detroiters missed by the count.

"I think all this is going to turn around. I think the movement to the suburbs will collapse. You can't have a rotten core in the doughnut," Rich says. "The same economic forces working on the city will work on them.

"People in the suburbs will realize they don't want those overpriced homes and they'll reclaim the city," Rich says.

"Detroit is not going to be the Bangladesh of the Midwest."

Detroit's Dilemma

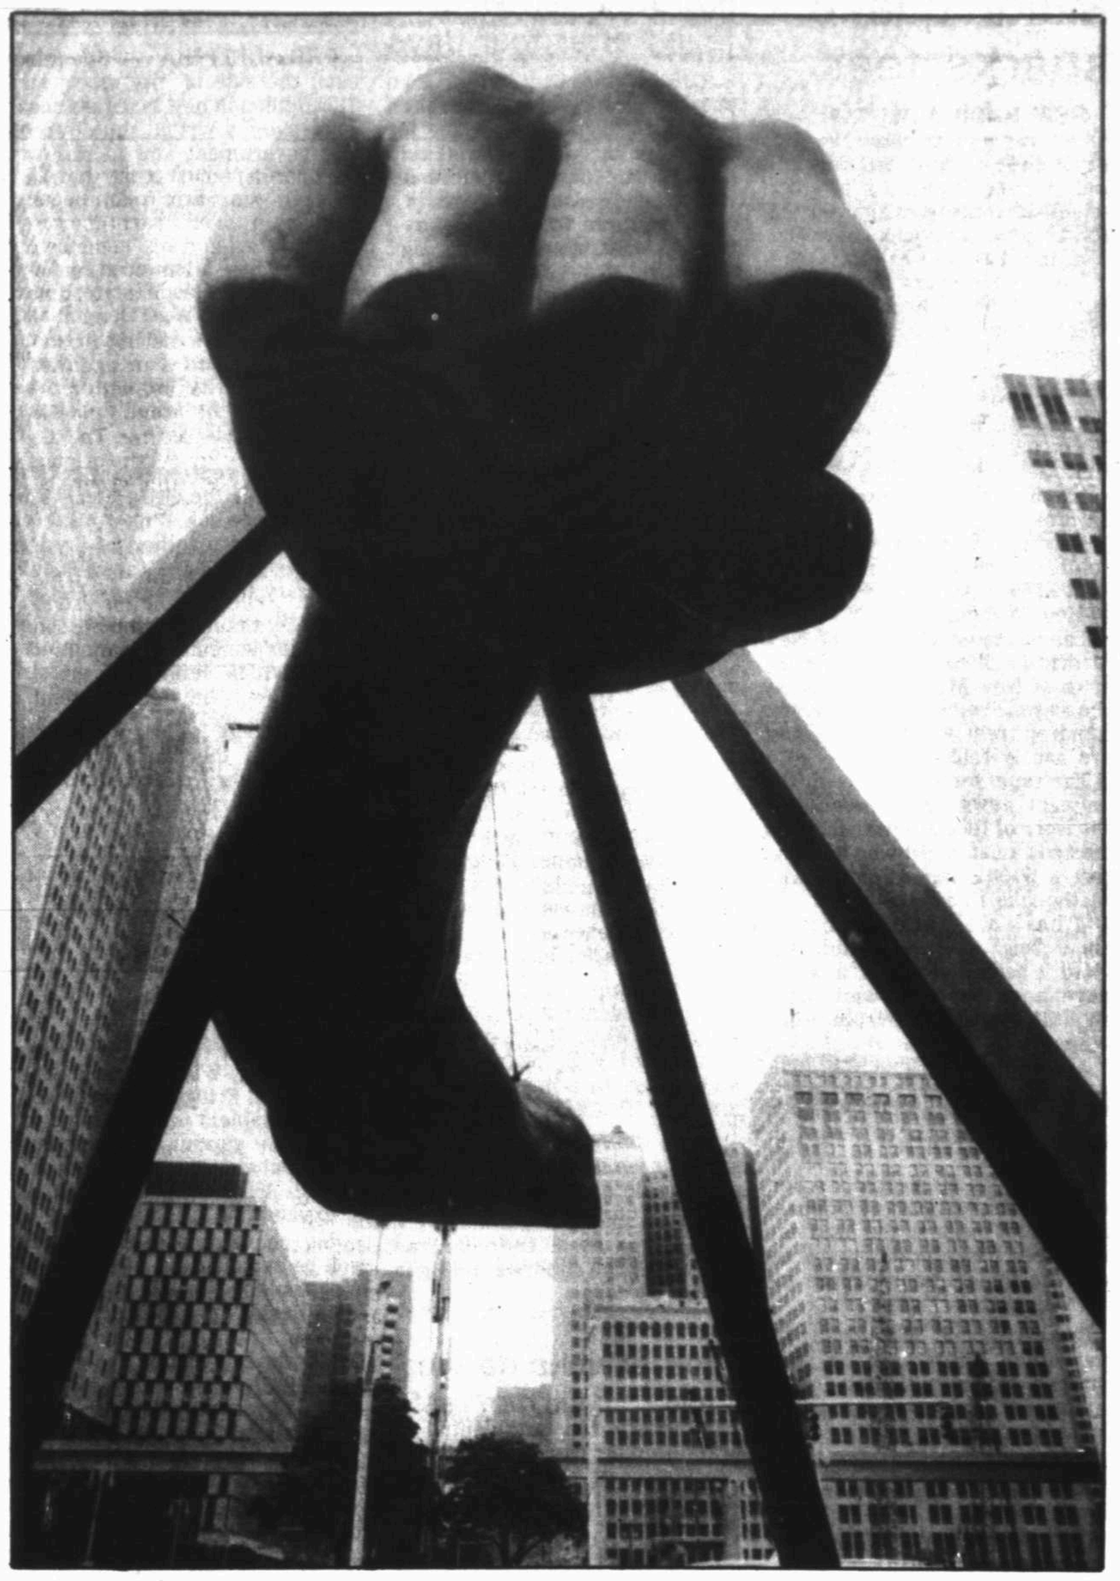

- The preliminary 1990 census count shows Detroit's population as 970,000; if the count stands, Detroit would become America's ninth-largest city, down from sixth-largest.
- At least a third of the city's population has left since 1960.
- The city has lost 19% of its population in the last decade, the largest drop among the nation's top 15 cities.
- A third of the people who live in Detroit are on welfare.
- The per-capita homicide rate is among the nation's highest.
- Predominantly-black Detroit's unemployment rate is 20.6%, compared with 6.2% for the mostly white suburbs.

Lodged bay leaves may send victim to hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Swallowing a bay leaf can mean a trip to the emergency room, warn doctors who suggest that packages of the herb carry warning labels.

Only one of five bay leaf victims they studied clearly knew what had caused the distress in their throats, so the problem is probably often overlooked, the doctors said.

Bay leaves, most often dried, are used during cooking to enhance flavor, but usually are removed before the food is served and are not eaten.

The five cases occurred over two years, suggesting the problem is common, said a report from Evanston Hospital in Illinois in a recent issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

Minor quake sparks fear

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — A minor earthquake near New Madrid shook some homes and heightened concerns about a scientist's controversial projection for a major earthquake here Dec. 3, authorities said Friday.

The tremor Thursday night was felt in at least three states, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

The quake occurred about 9:40 p.m. Thursday and measured 3.6 on the Richter scale, said Russ Needham, a geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

Needham said the quake was centered about five miles northwest of New Madrid, in southeast Missouri's Bootheel.

The quake occurred in the New Madrid Fault zone, named for the town of New Madrid. Experts say the seismic zone produces several hundred tremors a year, but most are hardly felt.

The fault zone has been in the national news lately because of the work of Iben Browning, a New Mexico climatologist who has forecast a 50-50 chance for a major earthquake there about Dec. 3.

"That's why you're hearing about this one," Needham said. "Had it been a year ago, it would have been reported and that's about it. Now it puts everyone in a dither."

Station clerk perishes while customers fill up

GREENFIELD, Wis. (AP) — Service station attendant Michael Hicke, shot twice in the head, lay unnoticed for several hours while some customers pumped free gas for themselves.

Brothers Emil Wisniewski, 18, and Anton Wisniewski, 25, were charged Friday with first-degree intentional homicide and armed robbery in Hicke's death.

Hicke's body was discovered in the station's car wash section about 35 yards from the gas pumps about 7 a.m. Sunday by a customer searching for the attendant.

Police believe five other customers pumped a total of about $40 in gas without paying between midnight and 7 a.m., during the hours after Hicke was believed to have been shot, Detective Dirk Wichgers said.

One of the five left the money in a tray in the attendant's booth and another returned the following day to pay, said station owner Edward F. McMahon.

Injured crash victims found after four days

PORTAL, Ariz. (AP) — Two brothers who suffered broken bones in a plane crash hiked for four days through the wet, cold Chiricahua Mountains before being rescued, authorities said.

Robert Rowe, 52, hampered by a broken wrist, nose and ribs, and Carl Rowe, 37, who suffered a broken foot and wrist, hiked 14 to 16 miles through rugged terrain before finding a road and hailing a ride to safety Thursday.

Devorie Griffiths, co-owner of the Portal store and cafe in this small town near the New Mexico state line, said the two men were caked with dried blood when they hobbled into the store about 9 a.m.

"They were pretty cut up but they appeared to be in pretty good spirits. They were glad to be out of there," she said. "It's a miracle they are alive."

The Rowes were flown by helicopter to Tucson Medical Center, where they were listed in satisfactory condition today.

Girl drowns in bathtub

UNIVERSITY PLACE, Wash. (AP) — A 14-month-old girl who got up in the middle of the night to play with her sister drowned in the bathtub while her parents slept, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Investigators believe Heather Mayhak and her 2-year-old sister wanted to wash up after covering themselves with peanut butter and spaghetti sometime before 2:45 a.m. Thursday.

"They were playing house," said Curt Benson of the Pierce County sheriff's department.

Benson said the parents were sleeping in their bedroom and didn't hear the children playing in the living room.

Tape exhibits delayed

YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — The new Nixon presidential library said Friday it is delaying two Watergate tape exhibits so it can display Dwight Eisenhower paintings and first lady gowns.

The decision was strictly a financial one, said library director John Taylor, who denied that the move represents a reluctance to feature the scandal that forced Richard M. Nixon's 1974 resignation as president.

"We have a concise and compelling Watergate story. I feel confident it is all right to transfer my attentions elsewhere," Taylor said.

Some scholars questioned the library's postponement of exhibits featuring two tape recordings from March 1973.

Philly officials present recovery plan

By Ted Duncombe
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Spending cuts, the sale of city assets and $125 million in new taxes are needed to avoid a virtual shutdown of city government and to raise its rock-bottom bond rating, state and local Democratic leaders said Friday.

The plan — announced by Mayor W. Wilson Goode, state House Speaker Robert W. O'Donnell and other officials — also would set up an independent control board whose authority would be triggered if the city failed to balance future budgets.

"The plan represents the critical first step for the city's fiscal recovery," Goode said. "As a result of this coming together of leadership, we now have the elements necessary to solve our problems."

No City Council members or Republicans joined in the announcement, which left many details sketchy.

Gov. Robert P. Casey in Harrisburg called the plan "an important first step." He pledged full support of a recommendation for an immediate sale of temporary loan notes to avert a cash crisis.

"It also seems clear that the other recommendations made today do not enjoy the same broad consensus as the note sale," Casey added. "I encourage all participants to continue their discussions with elected officials of both parties in a further effort to narrow differences and arrive at consensus."

House Minority Leader Matthew Ryan, a Republican from suburban Delaware County, scoffed at such provisions in the plan as a $50 million increase in state aid.

The plan was drafted behind closed doors in the last two months by Democratic state and city officials after Wall Street snubbed the city's attempt to float $375 million in temporary loan notes.

The failed note issue resulted in the severe cash crunch that would deplete city coffers during December if nothing is done.

The Democrats urged a three-pronged attack:

— The city would issue $250 million to $300 million in temporary loan notes with backing from Merrill Lynch, local banks, the state treasury and the city's pension fund. The money would allow the city to continue operating and be repaid with tax receipts due in the spring.

— It would eliminate a $229 million deficit, expected by July 1, by raising $140 million through deficit financing bonds and $90 million by selling city-owned assets, which were not specified.

— The city's budget would erase a projected $279 million deficit for fiscal 1992 through new taxes, higher state and federal aid and lower court costs.

The officials urged approval of a 1 percent sales tax they said would raise $100 million, an unspecified $25 million tax and $9 million from mandatory withholding of the existing city wage tax for city residents who work in the suburbs.

The officials said they had backing from three Philadelphia congressmen for a $33 million increase in federal aid.

Hyman C. Grossman, managing director at Standard & Poor's Corp., said the plan needed Republican backing to clear the GOP-controlled state Senate.

"Without that, there's nothing to comment on," he said.

Mentally ill woman may face exploitation

By Robert Imrie
Associated Press Writer

OSHKOSH, Wis. — Friends and doctors said Friday they were worried that tabloid television and international exposure surrounding the sexual assault of a young woman with 46 personalities will lead to exploitation of the victim.

"My concern is she may very well be exploited by everybody as she has been before," said Dr. Inam Haque, a psychiatrist at Winnebago County Mental Health Clinic who has treated the woman since 1986.

The 27-year-old woman, whose name has been withheld by the media to protect her identity as a rape victim, told the Oshkosh Northwestern she was elated by Thursday's verdict.

"We did it," she said. "Anybody like us, myself and the insiders (her other personalities) will be able to get protection now."

A Winnebago County jury on Thursday convicted Mark A. Peterson, 29, of Oshkosh of second-degree sexual assault. He faces up to 10 years in prison when he is sentenced next month.

The jury found the unemployed grocery store bagger, who is married, knew the woman was mentally ill and manipulated one of her personalities — a naive 20-year-old woman who didn't know what intercourse was — to have sex with him two days after he met her.

Wisconsin law forbids sexual contact with mentally ill people who can't understand the consequences of their actions.

The victim said her real self only learned of the June 11 assault because a 6-year-old personality was "peeking."

Peterson maintained after the verdict he did not know the woman was mentally ill and was the victim of an overzealous prosecutor. He promised to appeal.

The woman's testimony, which often involved her closing her eyes and bowing her head as she switched personalities, dramatized a rare psychiatric diagnosis called multiple personality disorder.

Ruth Reeves, a neighbor and friend, said the woman would retain a lawyer to help her handle the publicity and requests for interviews. "It appears that everybody wants a piece of the action," she said.

The television show "Inside Edition" announced Friday it plans to air an interview with the woman next week, showing footage of the woman switching personalities.

Inside Edition reporter Janet Tamaro said the show decided to use the interview after consulting with the woman, her mother, Mrs. Reeves and counselors about the consequences of revealing her identity.

"We were willing to do it any way all of them were willing to do it — any way they wanted," Ms. Tamaro said. "We really left it up to them to decide."

District Attorney Joe Paulus, who prosecuted the case, said he worries the woman may be exploited. He said he had nothing to do with arranging her interviews with tabloid televisions shows.

"She still functions in the community. She is capable of making everyday decisions on her own. She has got to make her own decisions in life," he said.

The illness often results from childhood abuse that forces the sufferer to create multiple personalities to avoid confronting reality, experts say.

In an interview with the Appleton Post-Crescent, the woman said she held no grudges against people who doubt her mental illness. At one point this year, she estimated she had 86 personalities, but many have merged together, she said.

The woman, born in South Korea, said she believes her father was an American, probably a GI. She was taken to an orphanage shortly after birth.

"I had no maternal or paternal care of any kind," she told the paper. "I was not touched or picked up, except to be changed or fed. I was a very angry, lonely, sad baby."

The Wall: A Year After the Fall

AP/T. Dean Caple

Anniversary of wall's fall celebrated

BERLIN (AP) — Germans mixed joy with sadness Friday in marking one year since the Berlin Wall opened and the anniversary of the night a Nazi rampage against Jews signaled the coming of the Holocaust and war.

"Berliners came together again," said the inscription on a monument — a four-foot-square section of the wall — unveiled at one of the border crossings where thousands of East Germans streamed across a year earlier in jubilation and bewilderment.

In East Berlin, about 3,000 members of the city's Jewish community attended a commemoration of the 1938 Crystal Night pogrom, named for the sound of breaking glass as Nazi thugs wrecked synagogues, Jewish homes and businesses.

The ceremony was the first held in East Berlin.

Heinz Galinski, leader of the Central Council of German Jews, said the significance of the wall's opening a year earlier "remains a half-truth if it conceals the earlier imprinted meaning of the date."

"And half-truths are not a good foundation for building a healthy future," he said.

Galinski said Germans have never acknowledged fully the events that started on Nov. 9, 1938. Six million Jews had died by the time World War II ended in 1945 and Germany lay in ruins.

West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper, unveiling the wall monument at Bornholmer Bridge, also referred to the memory of Crystal Night, but concentrated on the recent past and the future.

"For Germans, Nov. 9, 1989 was the happiest day in the postwar era. Those who witnessed it will never forget," said the Social Democrat, recalling the end to the wall.

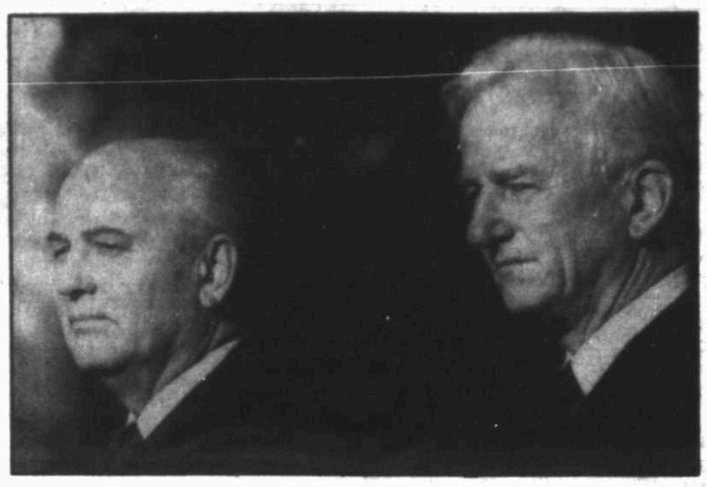

Momper will share the mayoralty with his East Berlin counterpart, Tino Swierzina, until Dec. 2, when Germany holds elections for parliament and other offices. The two Germanys united Oct. 3.

Moper said the government of united Germany belongs in Berlin, not in Bonn, he said.

The Bundesrat, the upper house of Germany's parliament, met in Berlin on Friday for the first time in 31 years, joined by newly elected representatives from the five eastern states created when East Germany joined the West.

The rapid pace toward unification also thrust the nation into a host of new economic and social problems. Facing the lawmakers are questions such as rising unemployment in former East Germany and claims on property by Germans who fled to West Berlin before the wall was erected in 1962.

Momper thanked other East Bloc reformers for helping inspire East Germans, and gave special thanks to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, who arrived in Bonn Friday to a hero's welcome.

Soviet President Mickhail Gorbachev, left, and German President Richard Von Weizsaacker listed to the national anthem at the Presidental residence, Friday, upon Gorbachev's arrival in Bonn on the first anniversary of the fall of the Berlin wall. It is Gorbachev's first visit to the united Germany.

Later Friday, Gorbachev and Chancellor Helmut Kohl signed a 20-year treaty of friendship and cooperation.

Wally Kape, a 68-year-old woman living in an apartment on the east side of the bridge where Momper spoke, said a friend had called her last Nov. 9 saying the wall had opened suddenly.

"I couldn't believe it. I looked out my window and saw thousands of people crossing the bridge, and they were still there at 5 in the morning."

The subject of who deserves credit for the spontaneous opening of the wall is still a point of debate.

"It was the thousands of East Berliners who gathered at the border crossing and demanded to be let through," Momper said.

Germany, Soviets pledge non-aggression

BONN, Germany (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed an historic non-aggression treaty with united Germany on Friday and won praise from German leaders for his role in the peaceful fall of the Berlin Wall.

Gorbachev's first visit to united Germany coincided with the one-year anniversary of the opening of the wall and came just five weeks after East Germany, Moscow's longtime Warsaw Pact ally, merged into the new Germany.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Gorbachev stressed the importance of the changes that have allowed closer ties between Bonn and Moscow as they signed the broad agreement that is to serve as the basis of future relations.

But the Soviet Union's huge internal troubles were also part of talks between the two leaders.

After a state dinner for Gorbachev late Friday, the head of Daimler-Benz, Germany's largest company, said emergency deliveries of food and clothing to the Soviet Union may be needed this winter.

"Everyone is awaiting a very difficult, terrible and hard winter," Daimler-Benz chief Edzard Reuter said of the situation in the Soviet Union. "There must be immediate help."

In the treaty, initialed in Moscow on Sept. 13, both nations pledged not to attack the other and to honor the borders of all European nations.

"We are closing the book on the painful past and clearing the way for a new beginning," Kohl said in a speech at the signing ceremony.

After a short-lived alliance, Germany attacked the Soviet Union at the start of World War II. About 26 million Soviets were killed.

The new non-aggression treaty, one of three signed Friday, replaces agreements that once linked the Soviet Union to West Germany and East Germany. Moscow's ties to East Germany long hindered better relations with Bonn.

"I have you to thank Mr. President, for the decisive contribution so that Germany, our fatherland, could unify on Oct. 3 in peace and freedom and in agreement with all its neighbors," Kohl said at a joint news conference with Gorbachev.

President Richard von Weizsaecker said the fall of the Berlin Wall, which paved the way for unity, "would not have been possible" without Gorbachev's political reforms.

Earlier in the day, Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, stopped to chat with a crowd waiting for him outside the government's Villa Hammerschmidt palace next to the Rhine River. But the crowds were far smaller than those that swarmed around the Soviet leader during his triumphant visit to Bonn in June 1989.

Still, some Germans exuded enthusiam for Gorbachev and his achievements.

"We cannot forget we have Gorbachev to thank for unification," said Helmut Bittner of Leverkusen.

"It's in our interest that the Soviet Union remains stable. How would anyone feel if we woke up tomorrow and a general had taken Gorbachev's place?" Bittner added.

He was in a crowd of several hundred standing in near-freezing air in front of Linz's city hall waiting for Gorbachev's wife to arrive on her own side trip.

The dramatic retreat of Communism and the dismantling of the Iron Curtain the past year has radically altered relations between the Soviet Union and Germany.

Gorbachev relinquished Moscow's powerful role in German affairs this summer when he agreed to a unified Germany's membership in NATO.

Germany's Western European allies have reacted skeptically to the growing relationship between Germany and the Soviet Union, remembering the devastating consequences of cooperation between Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin.

Gorbachev is to visit Kohl's home state of Rhineland-Palatinate on Saturday before returning to Moscow.

Baltic states want independence noted

MOSCOW (AP) — The presidents of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania on Friday asked countries planning to sign the most comprehensive arms control treaty in history not to legitimize the Soviet Union's claim to the Baltic states.

They also said at a summit in Vilnius, the Lithuanian capital, that their states should be separately identified in the Conventional Forces in Europe treaty.

The accord covers weapons and troops in Europe from the Atlantic Ocean to the Ural Mountains in the Soviet Union and is to be the centerpiece for a 34-nation summit Nov. 19-21 in Paris.

The treaty covers deployment of tanks, anti-aircraft artillery and other non-nuclear arms in four European zones, including the Baltics.

The three presidents said treaty signatories should explicitly state that Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia were never legally incorporated into the Soviet Union.

Presidents Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania, Arnold Ruutel of Estonia and Anatoly Gorbunov of Latvia asked signatories to "refrain from legitimizing the presence of or any additions to the Soviet armed forces on their (the Baltics') territory."

"Silence on this issue might be construed by the Soviet Union as tacit recognition of the forcible incorporation of the Baltic States into the Soviet Union,."

In an appeal reported by Baltic news services, the leaders said the Baltics should be separately identified in the treaty so they could control its implementation on their territory.

Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia together have a population of 8 million people. The three states are in various stages of drives to break out of the Soviet Union, which annexed them in 1940 .

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Lucrative agreements and new partnerships are vital to your business success. Talk up your ideas with influential people before the Christmas holidays. Finalizing contracts can wait until after Jan. 1. Make profitable investments next April. Travel for business or pleasure whenever you can. A permanent romantic commitment is possible by late summer of '91. Postpone changing jobs until this time next year.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Roy Scheider, dancer Ann Reinking, actress MacKenzie Phillips, actor Richard Burton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Marital quarrels can flare up suddenly — and fade away just as quickly. A shopping trip could lead to your spending more money than you can afford. Some may be celebrating this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A charming new romantic interest could bowl you over. Do not make too many plans for the future — this person could turn out to be quite superficial. Take a wait-and-see approach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Although the gossip you hear about a friend will upset you, there is not much you can do about it. Be faithful to your high ideals, however. Do not underestimate your abilities!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your relatives could be particularly pushy today. You will have to be firm if you want to avoid getting involved in something you do not enjoy. Focus on fashion; buy some new clothes!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The emphasis now is on change. You may want to switch jobs, lovers or even move to a new town. Keep track of your spending to avoid being overdrawn at the bank.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Decide early how you are going to spend the day, and follow through. You will have to keep a promise, whether you want to or not. Tell your partner what is bothering you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Try to keep your temper in check if you run into irritating delays this morning. Avoid tangling with your mate over a financial matter. Revise both your budget and spending habits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Refuse to spend the day parked in front of the TV set — there is a beautiful world out there, full of exciting opportunities. Accept a last-minute invitation this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your confusion about the future will be reduced once your mate makes an important decision. Entertain at home this evening to save money. A night on the town could prove too expensive.

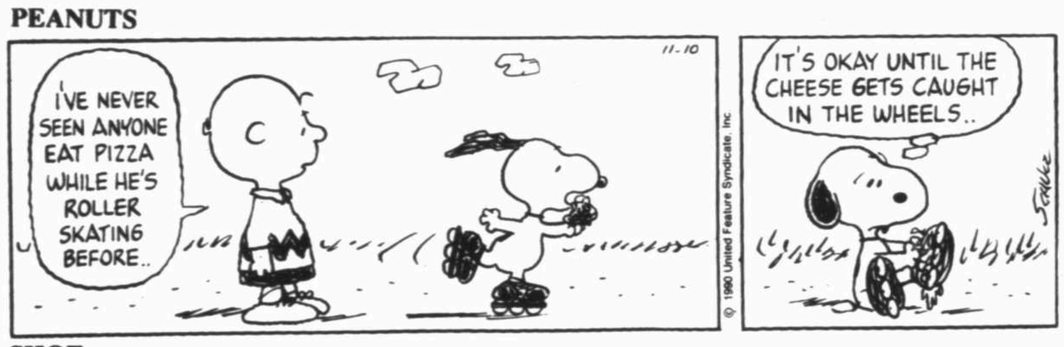

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pay closer attention to your finances today. Ask yourself if you can really afford that big purchase you have been contemplating. Singles should avoid going out with strangers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone you have been wanting to meet is finally introduced to you — but chances are you will be disappointed if you talk together. Play a waiting game in romance. Avoid revealing too much.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can unearth some real buys for your home today. Sign contracts this morning and get business out of the way. Do a favor for a friend who will repay you.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have great regard for the truth and will find it difficult to put up with hypocrites. Energetic and resourceful, they usually love school. Count on them to ask their teachers some very perceptive questions! Happy-go-lucky on the surface, these Scorpios can be secret worriers. They have a strong fear of rejection and will go to great lengths to please those they like. Gently encourage these youngsters to put their ideals ahead of their desire for popularity.

Miss World sips champagne

LONDON (AP) — Miss United States Gina Marie Tolleson spent Friday enjoying a champagne breakfast and attention from the media after being crowned Miss World. She said she hopes to be home by Thanksgiving.

Tolleson

Tolleson, 21, won the 40th annual Miss World beauty contest Thursday night and pocketed prizes including $19,000 in cash and a work contract worth $59,000.

The University of Georgia sophomore told reporters she would use the money to pay for a Jeep Cherokee she recently bought, do a little shopping and "just sit on" the rest.

First, she said, she would get some sleep.

"I'm just resting the rest of the day, catching up on my beauty sleep which I desperately need."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The second phase of humorist Art Buchwald's trial against Paramount Pictures won't include as evidence an independent examination of the studio's finances, a judge has ruled.

Buchwald

Superior Court Judge Harvey Schneider ruled in January that Paramount used a Buchwald story as the basis for the 1986 Eddie Murphy film "Coming to America."

Schneider surprised both sides Thursday by abandoning his plans for an independent auditor.

The second phase of the trial will examine the contract between Paramount and Buchwald to determine if it represented a fair deal. The third phase will determine the amount of money Buchwald should receive.

CHICAGO (AP) — Actor Albert Finney will star in the American premiere of the play "Another Time" when the Steppenwolf Theatre unveils its new $8 million home, the theater group says.

Finney, who appeared in London in the Chicago company's production of "Orphans," is a member of Steppenwolf's advisory board. He also starred in the London production of "Another Time' during its eight-month run there.

The new 500-seat theater is scheduled to open April 14.

"Another Time," by Ronald Harwood, is a drama of conflict within a South African family.

Harwood will direct the Steppenwolf production and Finney will play a dual role. In the first act, he plays the family's father. In the second, he plays a grown son 35 years later.

TORONTO (AP) — Americans have something to learn from Canada's health care system, Walter Cronkite says.

Cronkite

In a documentary to be broadcast next month on U.S. public television, the former CBS news anchorman examines what's good and what's bad with health care in Canada.

The documentary, "Borderline Medicine," is expected to add to the already heated health care debate in the United States, said Roger Weisberg, producer and director of the documentary.

NEW YORK (AP) — This is sweeps time on television, when sex, violence, intrigue, bad taste, bizarre behavior and unhealthy relationships dominate the TV airwaves.

No, it's not "Geraldo." ABC promises to reveal the killer of Laura Palmer in Saturday night's episode of "Twin Peaks," the most written-about, least-watched nighttime soap opera on television.

You remember Twin Peaks, the broody little Pacific Northwest lumber town where absolutely nothing is ever quite what it seems. An FBI agent and the sheriff are tracking the killer of homecoming queen Laura Palmer.

The sweeps, which come up four times a year, are when viewership is closely measured, so that your local network affiliate can set its advertising rates.

The network has extensively promoted "Twin Peaks." Its on-air promotion is tied to ads in TV Guide, The New York Times and other print outlets that declare: "Find out who killed Laura Palmer. Really."

Really?

"Yes," ABC spokeswoman Janice Gretemeyer said Wednesday. "I can assure viewers that on the Saturday night episode of 'Twin Peaks,' the killer of Laura Palmer will be revealed at last."

Well, OK, but this isn't the first time ABC has promised to deliver the goods. Last year, an ABC executive told reporters the killer would be revealed in the season finale. It was not revealed.

ABC says it showed us the killer in the series' two-hour season premiere on Sept. 30.

In the last five minutes, a shadowy sharp-featured, evil-seeming, gray-haired man named Bob, whom viewers have seen only through the characters' visions and dreams, was placed at the scene of the crime.

Bob was seen to strike vicious hammer-like blows on what presumably was Laura Palmer. That prompted one TV writer to suggest that Bob's bludgeoning was an attempt to administer CPR.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S. Embassy attack target

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Unidentified assailants fired two grenades early Saturday at the U.S. Embassy one day after American and Philippine panels ended talks on the future of six military bases.

There were no injuries in the attack, which took place at 6:50 a.m. when the embassy was closed. One grenade landed in Manila Bay behind the compound and exploded, embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager said. The other landed in front of the chancery building but did not explode, he said.

There was no claim of responsibility, though the attack was similar to one staged last December at an American residential area. That attack, which caused no injuries and minor damage, was blamed on Communist rebels.

At the end of talks Friday, there were reports the bases' future would be linked to U.S. aid to the Philippines.

The next meeting was set for December. Spokesmen for both sides predicted the talks would be completed by January.

"The discussions over the past two days were useful in widening the areas of consensus and narrowing the areas still to be discussed in more detail," U.S. spokesman Stanley Schrager told reporters.

Disease kills turtles

GEORGE TOWN, Cayman Islands (AP) — More than 100 turtles at the world's only known sea turtle farm have died in the past two months from a mysterious disease that has the farm's director baffled.

Since late September, more than a dozen breeding turtles and more than 100 infant turtles on this Caribbean island have died from the illness, said Dr. James Wood, director of the government-owned Cayman Turtle Farm.

He said he suspects a virus because the turtles have not responded to antibiotics.

Samples of turtle tissue were sent to the University of Florida School of Veterinary Medicine in Gainesville for study, Wood said.

The farm raises turtles for export to such countries as Japan, Singapore and the Philippines, where turtle meat is considered a delicacy.

Snake rampage reported

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A python killed a 30-year-old woman and swallowed her 5-year-old child in a remote mountain village, a newspaper reported Friday.

The newspaper, Kompas, said the dead woman was found after the 18-foot-long snake attacked her and her baby in Ranapanjang, a village 250 miles northwest of Jakarta.

After a two-day hunt, villagers found the snake Tuesday and split it open to retrieve the child's body, the newspaper said.

New leader seeks peace

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A socialist leader named Friday as India's new prime minister said his government faces a "grim and challenging" task to quell widespread unrest that helped topple his predecessor.

Chandra Shekhar, who led efforts to unseat V.P. Singh as prime minister, pledged that his government will seek "to create a society of equals" in a nation where thousands have died this year in battles over religious, ethnic and class differences.

The clashes were used to rally opposition against Singh, the first Indian prime minister to be ousted by Parliament. He lost a confidence vote Wednesday. The 63-year-old Chandra Shekhar is expected to be sworn in by President Ramaswamy Venkataraman on Saturday.

Feminist wins Ireland's presidential election

Mary Robinson, 46, with her son Aubrey at their Dublin home Friday, was elected president of Ireland Friday, election officials confirmed. Robinson, a lawyer who fought to legalize divorce and contraception, is the first woman president in the country's 68-year history.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Mary Robinson, a lawyer who had fought to legalize divorce and contraception, was elected president of Ireland today.

Mrs. Robinson, the first woman elected to the office, overtook former deputy Prime Minister and Defense Minister Brian Lenihan on the second round of counting, election officials said.

She finished with 52.8 percent of the vote, said Tim Sexton, who supervised the count.

In an interview minutes before the announcement, Mrs. Robinson noted that it was the anniversary of the opening of the Berlin Wall.

"And I think something has crumbled away in this election — the old preconceptions, the old political ways," said Mrs. Robinson, who in the past had battled church and state in campaigns to liberalize Irish society.

"I think the joy and the hope and the sense of moving forward in this election is quite tangible," she said.

She will be inaugurated Dec. 3, succeeding Patrick Hillery, who must retire after two seven-year terms in the largely ceremonial post.

Mrs. Robinson received 84.8 percent of the second-preference votes from supporters of Austin Currie, the Fine Gael party nominee who ran third.

In the first round of counting, Lenihan of the Fianna Fail party had 44.1 percent of the vote to 38.9 percent for Mrs. Robinson and Currie's 17 percent.

Since no one got a majority in the first round, the result turned on the second choices marked by Currie's supporters.

Mrs. Robinson was nominated by the leftist Labor Party and the Workers Party, but she belongs to neither. The two parties pulled a combined 14.7 percent of the vote in last year's parliamentary election. She is the first president since 1945 not a member of the majority Fianna Fail party.

It was Ireland's first contested presidential election in 17 years.

Mrs. Robinson, 46, served 20 years in the Irish Senate but found more success in the courts in pressing her causes of equality for women and minorities. As an advocate of legalized divorce and contraception, she was often at odds with much of the country and her own Roman Catholic Church.

Earlier today, Mrs. Robinson said she had been elated when it became clear that she was in position to win.

"I had this extraordinary sensation of just how important it was, particularly for women," she told reporters at her Dublin home.

"I quite literally wanted to go out and dance in the street. I almost had to be restrained. I know the joy that is there in so many people's hearts. They have told me how much this election means to them and I know why."

Anticipating her victory, The Irish Times said in an editorial today the election "marks the point at which a narrow and often cruel road, journeyed by a society often narrow and cruel, gives the first sign of broadening out."

Mrs. Robinson is a lecturer on European Community law at Trinity College, her alma mater.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Buildup in gulf means no early relief for GIs

■ Defense Secretary Dick Cheney highlights a fundamental shift in U.S. military goals — from defending Saudi oil fields to giving Saddam Hussein an ultimatum.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. buildup to a fighting force of 430,000 in the Persian Gulf will take up to two months, officials said Friday as details began emerging on President Bush's plans for matching Iraq man for man across the Kuwait border.

Bush was out of the public eye at Camp David, Md., but Defense Secretary Dick Cheney underscored the president's comments of a day earlier by emphasizing the U.S. forces' ability to attack and by making clear their deployment could be long term.

In addition to sending 200,000 or so fresh American troops to the gulf from Germany and the United States, Bush's decision means an abrupt end to plans for rotating thousands already there back home for a reprieve.

Like Bush, Cheney stressed that the new buildup was meant as a signal to Saddam Hussein that the United States was "preparing the forces necessary to undertake offensive operations, should that become necessary" to get Iraq out of Kuwait.

The Pentagon estimates that Iraq has about 430,000 troops in and around Kuwait.

Cheney's remarks, again underlining Bush's, highlighted a fundamental shift in stated U.S. military goals in the gulf, from defending Saudi oil fields to, in effect, giving Saddam an ultimatum: Either withdraw from Kuwait within weeks or face a massive U.S. attack.

The additional forces that Bush ordered to the gulf Thursday will give the United States the clear offensive potential it may lack now. The move also will mean a huge drain on U.S. military manpower and thus will kill plans for rotating fresh units to the gulf every six months to relieve weary soldiers.

Asked by a reporter whether the 230,000 U.S. forces now in the gulf and those soon to be en route will be there for the duration of the crisis, Cheney said, "That's correct."

Pentagon officials had been preparing a rotation plan that they said would improve troop morale, which has suffered in some cases from troops' uncertainty about how long they will be required to endure the gulf's harsh living conditions.

The additional troops ordered to the gulf by Bush will take about two months to get there with all their equipment, which includes a wide variety of the Pentagon's most sophisticated weaponry.

On the list: at least 1,000 M1-A1 main battle tanks, hundreds of Bradley Fighting Vehicles, and a large number of Apache attack helicopters, Hellfire tank-killing missiles and Tomahawk cruise missiles aboard ships.

In addition, the Navy said Friday it was sending the aircraft carriers USS Theodore Roosevelt, USS America and USS Ranger — plus their battle group components — to the gulf area.

Cheney, in a speech to the Conservative Leadership Conference, put more emphasis on the role of oil in the gulf crisis than had been heard from the administration in recent weeks. He said that by taking over Kuwait, Iraq had gained control of one-fifth of the world's known oil reserves, and that its stake would have been far higher if Saddam had captured the Saudi oil fields, too.

"That's not just marketplace clout; it's a strategic and political sledgehammer," he said. "There is no way the civilized world is about to give Saddam Hussein that kind of power over the very lifeline of the world's economy."

Members of Congress suggested Bush was signaling the nation to get ready for war. Lawmakers generally were cautiously supportive.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said Bush seemed to have broad but "very thin" support from the American people. "There's a great deal of uneasiness about all of this," he said. "They do not want American casualties. They feel that very, very strongly."

To step up the pressure of Saddam, Bush ordered the equivalent of 2½ heavy armored divisions to Saudi Arabia from U.S. Army bases in Germany, the 1st Infantry Division (Mechanized) from Fort Riley, Kan., and thousands of combat service personnel.

No official count of the additional forces has been provided by the Pentagon, but military sources speaking on condition of anonymity said the total — including large numbers of Navy and Marine Corps personnel — would approach 200,000.

Cheney, while not mentioning any specific numbers, said Friday that the Army contingent being sent from Germany represented one-half of all U.S. ground forces in Europe. That would mean at least 100,000 forces are going from Germany.

The 1st Infantry unit from Fort Riley would number more than 20,000 with its support forces.

Each of the Navy carriers includes a crew of about 5,500 and a contingent of about 80 aircraft.

The Navy also is sending the battleship USS Missouri and escort ships, plus a group of amphibious assault ships carrying roughly 5,000 sailors and marines.

The Marines, which have had about 45,000 forces in the gulf area since August, are more than doubling that total by dispatching the 2nd Marine Expeditionary Force from Camp LeJeune, N.C., the 5th Marine Expeditionary Brigade from Camp Pendleton, Calif., and a maritime prepositioning ship squadron from Norfolk, Va.

The Pentagon also is expected to call up thousands more reserves to provide support for the extra troop deployments. The Army announced Friday that it had alerted 13 National Guard and Army Reserve units in nine states to be prepared for a possible call-up.

On Thursday, Cheney announced that three combat reserve units of the Army National Guard had been activated. He said they would be put through a desert warfare training session at Fort Irwin, Calif., before he decides whether to send them to Saudi Arabia. They would total about 12,000 soldiers.

Navy Corpsman and X-ray technician Nancy Romei and her chief petty officer husband Christopher are both stationed in the Persian Gulf with Operation Desert Shield but haven't seen each other in more than three months.

Desert Shield couple married to each other and the Navy

ABOARD THE USS BIDDLE (AP) — Nancy and Christopher Romei are wedded to each other, and to the U.S. Navy. Like most military couples, their country comes first when duty calls.

Both are part of Operation Desert Shield, although they are 1,000 miles apart and haven't seen each other in more than three months. Romei didn't find out for sure his wife had been mobilized until he had been at sea for a month.

"This is our chosen profession. Being apart is just a fact of life. We just accept it and live with it," said Romei, 33, a chief petty officer aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Biddle on duty in the Red Sea.

His wife is a corpsman and X-ray technician at the Navy's Fleet Hospital No. 5, located on the eastern side of the Arabian peninsula.

"It's part of the contract," said Mrs. Romei, 38. "He always told me he was married to the Navy first. Besides, this (separation) won't last forever. It's just a little piece of life."

The Biddle was scheduled to leave Norfolk, Va., Aug. 7 as part of its regular tour of the Mediterranean Sea. It was diverted to the Red Sea to enforce U.N. sanctions against Iraq for its takeover of Kuwait, and Romei, a native of Leeds, Ala., went with it.

His wife, originally from Valparaiso, Ind., was stationed at a Navy hospital in Virginia Beach, Va. She got a call in the middle of the night saying she was being deployed in Saudi Arabia. All she could do was send her husband a letter.

When duty called, she was ready.

"The Navy trained me to do this job. It's time to produce for the Navy," Mrs. Romei said during a break from her duties.

The military has separated them before. They saw each other only nine days during a recent 18-month period.

But this time, they're both away from home. Mrs. Romei persuaded a friend to take power of attorney and pay the mortgage, take care of the monthly bills and tend to their two cars. They have no children or pets, but most of their houseplants became casualties of war.

"It was like pulling my hair out trying to find someone to do these things."

Unless things change dramatically, the couple will be apart for their 10th wedding anniversary on Jan. 22.

But Romei is more concerned about his wife's safety than about sentimental occasions.

"I'm not comfortable with her being there," Romei said. "I feel a lot safer because I'm on a warship. I'm designed to fight.

"Where she is, a leaker on a plane or a Scud missile could get through. If they (the Iraqis) thrust hard south, they could break through. I don't have any doubts about who will win ultimately, but ..."

The biggest worriers are their parents, however.

"They ask why. Why are we here? Is it for oil? Or is it for principle? And if it's for principle, why haven't we done anything?" Romei said.

Meanwhile, the couple had a common message for each other and their parents: "I love you."

Troops receive holiday tribute

Associated Press

Texas troops stationed in the Saudi Arabian desert will get a special tribute from home this Veterans Day with letters, packages and messages of good will for their part in Operation Desert Shield.

Meanwhile, Veterans Day celebrations in North Texas begin Saturday with an annual parade through downtown Garland.

Americans living in Saudi Arabia have already been supporting expatriate soldiers there. John McCain, a marine biologist, said many foreign residents also have invited some soldiers to their homes for hot showers, meals and phone calls to loved ones.

McCain, from Palo Pinto County, has been living in the Middle Eastern country and working at the Research Institute of King Fahd University of Petroleum and Minerals for 10 years.

He told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram he has adopted one unit of 12 Marines, who are operating a portable water desalinization plant near his home.

"The troops' conditions are slowly getting better, but they need so much," McCain said during a business trip to Fort Worth.

"The hardest thing for me about seeing the conditions is that I know these people. They are J.B., Lisa and Mike. It is not a foreign war to me and they are not just faceless soldiers."

The threat of war looms for soldiers from Fort Hood in Central Texas. And residents of many cities in the Lone Star State have not forgotten their mission or the danger surrounding it.

In Stephenville, balloons of red, white and blue will be released to recognize the troops in Desert Shield. Other multicolored balloons will symbolize veterans of other conflicts.

A "wall of honor" is going up in Bedford, and the tiny Hill County town of Covington is honoring a Grand Prairie reserve unit with a free barbecue dinner.

Donna Doumecq, state Americanism chairwoman for the ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said this is the 13th year that Garland will hold a parade in observance of Veterans Day, which is Sunday.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. at Williams Stadium. Matt Urban, a Medal of Honor recipient and the most decorated living veteran of World War II, is grand marshal.

Recently, a Texas-based soldier became the 43rd fatality of the Persian Gulf military operation. Spec. Steven Douglas Clark of the 1st Cavalry Division from Fort Hood died in an accident in Saudi Arabia.

The military released Clark's name Thursday, as President Bush detailed a massive addition of troops and weapons to the region. On Wednesday, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher warned that war is inevitable if the Iraqis don't withdraw from Kuwait soon.

American Legion Post No. 379 in Bedford wanted to do more than just tie yellow ribbons around trees. The town erected a 10- by 10-foot "Wall of Honor," a framework for the photos, names and addresses of Texans in the service.

"We want names from anywhere in the world, but basically, right now, our full thrust is on Operation Desert Shield," said David Earls, the post's executive officer.

U.N. rejects Iraqi protest of forces

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A U.N. panel rebuked Iraq on Friday by unanimously refusing to consider a resolution that would have denounced the U.S. military buildup in the Persian Gulf.

The Iraqi motion said the gulf crisis began Aug. 7, when U.S. forces began arriving in Saudi Arabia to counter Iraq's army. Iraq's draft did not even mention Kuwait, which it overran on Aug. 2 and has declared is its 19th province.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering called the Iraqi attempt to introduce the General Assembly resolution "ill-founded, tendentious and mendacious."

Pickering noted that Kuwait and Saudi Arabia invited Washington to send troops to defend them. The U.N. Charter's Article 51 allows nations to defend themselves against aggression either alone or with allies.

The Iraqis tried to introduce the motion in the assembly's General Committee, a 29-member panel with broad geographic representation. The committee assigns items to the agenda and considers requests for new resolutions.

Iraqi delegate Adnan Ahmed Mohammed said he had rewritten his speech to the committee since Thursday, when President Bush ordered 200,000 more U.S. troops be sent to the gulf to give the international force opposing Iraq an "adequate offensive military option."

The American move will nearly double the current U.S. strength. There are now 230,000 U.S. military personnel in the region. Allies from 26 other countries have sent about 70,000 of their own soldiers.

Iraq has deployed an estimated 430,000 soldiers in Kuwait and southern Iraq since invading its oil-rich neighbor in a dispute over land, oil and money.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said a new Security Council resolution authorizing the use of military force would make the U.S. military buildup legal under the U.N. Charter: "If it is in the context of Article 42, even though I would regret any recourse to force, it would be legitimate."

Diplomats in New York and U.S. officials in Washington have confirmed the United States has prepared a resolution that would authorize force under Article 42, but is waiting to introduce it until Secretary of State James A. Baker III has lined up enough support among U.S. allies on the Security Council.

Mohammed, the Iraqi delegate, said Bush and U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney "blew the horns of war" in announcing the dispatch of new Americans troops. He called it proof of the "aggressive schemes against Iraq and the Arab nation."

"Are we approaching a catastrophe? Are we expecting a tragedy to take place?" Mohammed asked.

He accused the United States of thwarting any attempts at an Arab diplomatic solution. He said Washington had ignored Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's Aug. 12 proposal that an Iraqi withdrawal be linked to establishment of a Palestinian homeland.

Thinking of leasing a new apartment?

Consider the comments of this Rental Expert.

Initially, I thought all rental agents were the same - they just wanted to lease apartments.

Yet, at Polo Park they really did try to help me find just the right apartment to suit my needs. Plus, they helped me get familiar with the area and made my move a pleasant experience.

But the final factor affecting my decision to lease my new apartment from Polo Park was the "We Care" Attitude of the entire staff and the service and attention I received personally. I really felt like my concerns were important and when it comes to making a decision about moving I feel thats important.
