Heavy Rainfall Helps Wheat Crop, May Damage Cotton

Pampa Daily News

Moisture Reaches 3.85 Inches by 11

Residents of this section of the Panhandle were both eased and disgusted with the heavy downpour of rain st night and today.

By 11 a. m., 3.85 inches of rain had fallen in Pampa. The wheat farmers' crops in this vicinity were aided considerably by the rain, Ralph Thomas, county agent, said this morning.

"With this much rain, the false wireworms will harm the wheat fields no longer," he said.

Meanwhile, in the southern part of Gray County the farmers were not so pleased. The rain has damaged milo and will probably damage the cotton yet in the fields.

The present rain is the first of any consequence since the latter part of August.

The Associated Press weatherman held out fair weather for the Panhandle tomorrow—election day—but Pampans were in no mood to believe it in view of the continued rain here for about 36 hours. The weatherman went on to say today's clear skies and mild temperatures will continue for the next 24 hours.

Knox Kinard, superintendent of schools, reports the attendance at Pampa schools as not decreased appreciably. He said a few more than usual number of students were absent today because of the roads leading to Pampa.

The Sheriff's Department this morning described the county's unpaved roads as bad and dangerous with deep mud, virtually impassable. However, paved roads were still in condition and passable. The unpaved streets in Pampa also are muddy and should be avoided.

Amarillo received .77 of an inch up until 6:30 p. m. yesterday T. F. Bates of the U. S. Weather Bureau at English Field, said. He said winds which were strong and gusty most of the day, were clocked at 25 to 30 miles an hour, until arrival of the thunderstorm which started about 4 p.m. yesterday.

The Associated Press said Bonham received one of the heaviest fall last night with 1.2 inches. Other points getting moisture included Abilene .39, Lubbock .10, Big Spring .07, Beaumont .11 Dallas and Austin .01.

Between Hereford and Amarillo rainfall was heavy, a motorist reported. He said water was

4 INJURED IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

Four persons were injured in a nearly head-on collision on the slippery pavement of the Borger Highway about 8 a.m. today.

A 1941 Chevrolet coach, driven by a man whose name appeared on hospital records as E. C. Holt, was in collision with a 1937 Ford coach driven by a man who gave his name as J. H. Gallman.

Gallman was on his way to work at the Portland Gasoline plant with two other men, whose names were given as D. H. Hawthorn and H. L. Keese, and Holt was driving east alone when the collision occurred about 2 miles west of Pampa.

The four men, all of whom live in Pampa, were taken to Worley Hospital by Dunkel-Carmichael ambulances.

Gallman, Hawthorn, and Keese all suffered bruises and shock and all received leg injuries, but no leg fractures, their physician reported this morning. Gallman, especially, was suffering from considerable shock when he was admitted; Keese had several ribs broken; and Hawthorn received lacerations about the face and body that required several stitches, the physician said.

Holt received lacerations on his right knee and the ribs on his lower left side were injured, but no fractures could be detected on the X-ray, his physician said. He does not appear to have received any internal injuries.

Property Damage Ran High This Halloween, Says Chief

At least 10 stop signs were broken off and ruined, and $50 damage done to a business store sign by Malicious pranksters Saturday night, Chief of Police Louie Allen said this morning.

"No one objects to harmless pranks," Allen said, "but destruction of property and stunts that endanger lives will not be tolerated."

One group of youngsters filled a sack with paper and rubbish, set fire to it, and threw it up onto a porch. Luckily, a patrol car was in the vicinity, and the fire was put out before any damage was done.

Several streets in town were barricaded with telephone poles and garbage cans and a number of cars were pushed away from their parking places—one of which was found a half-mile away.

There were several cases reported in which children threw whole bricks against the sides of houses, chipping paint and damaging siding.

One of the patrol cars, making an emergency run, came very near to colliding with a street barricade of telephone poles. They were barely able to stop in time, Allen said.

"This is the first year in a long time that there has been such widespread and malicious destruction of property," Allen said. "Other years youngsters contented themselves with pranks that hurt no one, but this year they seemed to try to do as much damage as they could."

The stop signs will have to be completely replaced, Allen pointed out. The posts were broken off at the ground and the signs were broken beyond repair. New posts, new signs, and new concrete bases will have to be set up.

There were four patrol cars in operation Saturday night and all but two of the 26 men on duty worked 16 hours without rest in answering the 200 calls received. The two patrol cars, the chief's car, and Fire Chief Ernest

Hiway Work Is Assured

Delegations from Gray, Roberts and Ochiltree Counties appeared before the State Highway Commission in Austin Friday on behalf of the furthering of construction work on Highway 70, the Pampa to Perryton road.

All three of the county delegations asked the commission for additional contracts within their respective counties on Highway 70 during the coming fiscal year. The commission received the delegations with a courteous hearing and gave the groups unofficial assurance that additional construction could be expected during 1949.

Spokesmen for the groups included Judge Sherman White and Mayor C. A. Huff, Gray County; Max Boyer, Ochiltree County; and Willis Clark, Roberts County.

Those attending the hearing from Gray County included: Steve Matthews, city manager; Ray Evans, county engineer; Joe F. Key, president of the Chamber of Commerce; W. B. Weatherred, postmaster; Gene Fatheree, wholesale drugs; E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Chamber of Commerce; White and Huff.

Roberts County delegation included Commissioners Clark Ehman, Russell and King. Boyer was the only representative from Ochiltree County.

Capacity Crowds Attend ESA Tea, Style Showings

The Epsilon Sigma Alpha Style Show and Tea, held yesterday afternoon in the Schneider Hotel Dining Room in two performances, 2:30 and 5 p. m., was seen by a capacity crowd.

The theme of the show, "A Lady's Day," presented clothing appropriate for each event in the course of a woman's day. Sports, social and business clothing were shown. Children also had their part in the show, with school and party clothing for them featured.

Proceeds from the show will go to the Auricular Foundation, to support in bringing the facilities of the foundation with its scientific and practical approach in helping children, to the home cities.

Mrs. Parks Brumley was general chairman for the show and Alan Nicholas was director. Miss Thelma Henslee, director of speech at Pampa High School, and Cliff Thomas, KPDN announcer, narrated the story. Ken Bennett played the Solovox and Miss Helen Blocker sang three selections.

The ESA Sorority extended thanks to the merchants, Mrs. Lewis Tarpley for the loan of the Solovox, the Pampa Florist's Association, Ideal Food Stores, Garvey Motor Company, Smith's Studio, the models and the beauty operators who participated.

Mukden Lost To Chinese

NANKING —(AP)— Mukden was bombed today by Chinese government planes shortly after the Communists completed occupation of the city.

There were many bomb explosions, including several within two blocks of the United States consulate. Casualties and damage were not known.

The bombing gave point to the words of President Chiang Kai-Shek, who said today that China "must accept the lessons of defeat by the Communists and fight on."

There was no hint of surrender from the weary Chinese leader, whose government has been shaken to its foundation by the wholesale defeats of his troops in the last three weeks.

Chiang declared: "We have had reverses in the Manchuria but the Communists are not yet in a postion to directly menace North China."

American authorities meanwhile instructed U. S. citizens to prepare to leave North China.

Authoritative sources here said the Communists had occupied Mukden completely at 3 p.m. (1

Truman and Dewey Make Last Appeals

PAWLING, N. Y. —(AP)—Republican presidential nominee, Thomas E. Dewey, travels back to New York City today to cast his vote in tomorrow's election.

Refreshed after a quiet Sunday at his farm home here, Dewey has only one more scheduled engagement before he votes in Manhattan.

Tonight he will urge the nation's voters to turn out in force for the election. He will speak for five minutes during an hour-long national broadcast starting at 8 p. m. (CST) sponsored by the Republican Party.

Dewey and his family will get election returns tomorrow night at their New York hotel, their legal residence.

Dewey came to Pawling immediately after formally closing his campaign Saturday night in New York's Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 22,000 persons jammed the garden to hear him pledge that if he is elected his administration will be dedicated primarily to winning the peace.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. —(AP)— President Truman strode again today the streets where he played as a boy as he waited with the homefolks for the nation to vote tomorrow.

It was 7 a.m. in Independence when he left his home for a brisk, 20-minute walk around the old neighborhood, accompanied by two Secret Service agents.

He drove later to nearby Kansas City where he had breakfast with the Red Cross of Constantine in the first of a round of Masonic engagements.

After that he rested at his suite in the Hotel Muehlebach before going to the Kansas City Club for lunch.

Mr. Truman makes a final appeal to the American people tonight, for the heavy vote on which he pinned his hope for another term in the White House.

He closes his case with the nationwide broadcast at 9:30 p.m. (CST) from the living room of his big white frame home here. Sen. Alben W. Barkley, his vice presidential running mate will talk on the same program from Paducah, Ky.

The 64-year-old Chief Executive sent out word he will vote tomorrow in Independence's Memorial Hall and then drive over to nearby Grandview, Mo., for a visit with his brother, J. Vivian Truman, and his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman and a walk about the family farm.

Then, said his press secretary, Charles G. Ross, the President will retire early Tuesday night, waiting until Wednesday morning to learn the results of the election.

In final campaign addresses the President predicted a 60 million vote turnout and a Democratic victory he said will leave the pollsters "red-faced."

Poll Shows HST Favored By Students

WHITE DEER — (Special) — According to a poll taken by members of the American history class of the White Deer High School, Wednesday, White Deer voters will follow the traditional pattern of a Democratic majority in next Tuesday's presidential election.

The tally, including more than 150 votes showed 68 percent for Truman; 27 percent for Dewey; 3 percent for Thurmond; and 2 percent for Wallace.

This poll was the climax of a project which has been underway since the beginning of the school term. Under the direction of the instructor, Mrs. B. R. Weaks, the class first studied the devices of propaganada, then took up an analysis of the basic principles of each of the major parties.

Listening to radio addresses, reading reports of the political campaign in various newspapers, securing as much information as was available at the headquarters of the different parties in Amarillo and Pampa, and even attending the political rally at which Harold E. Stassen spoke in Amarillo, the students sifted out the major elements of propaganda and listed the basic policies of each party.

One student was then selected to serve as chairman of each party and explained the issues to the student body in the form of a panel discussion in assembly on Tuesday. Linda Burba served as moderator; Vivian Barrett represented the Democratic Party; Tom Horn, the Republican Party; Dorothy Barnett, the Progressive Party; and Sammy Milligan, the States' Rights Party.

Texas GOP Party Fights For Senate

By The Associated Press

Texas Republicans, hungry for their first U. S. Senate seat in modern political history, put on their big pre-election push today.

Their nominee, Jack Porter of Houston, scheduled an early-morning radio address and tonight will stage a big "victory rally" in Houston. Climax of the election-eve rally will be a 17-station radio broadcast.

In contrast to the Republicans' fight to the finish line Lyndon Johnson planned a comparatively quiet day at his home in Austin. He did, however, schedule a radio broadcast during the day.

Tomorrow the Democratic nominee and Mrs. Johnson will go to Johnson City to vote. They will return to Austin tomorrow night to hear election returns.

By "spot" announcements and broadcasts over the radio, by newspaper advertising and last-minute button-holing of voters, hard to elect their first U. S. senator since the days of reconstruction.

Supporters of Johnson and the Truman-Barkley ticket, through less active, were still campaigning in the same fashion.

Lloyd Wheelock, Porter's state campaign manager, predicted the Houston oilman would swamp "the so-called Democratic nominee" by landslide proportions.

50 Million Votes Are Anticipated

By the Associated Press

Harry S. Truman and Thomas Edmund Dewey came to the fork in the presidential trail today.

Tomorrow the people will beckon one of them on.

The Democrat who holds the White House lease and the Republican who holds high hopes of breaking it planned only the customary get out and vote appeals for tonight's windup to a long and exhausting campaign.

Depending on how those pleas are heeded—and the weather—upwards of 50 million citizens will visit the polls. They will decide, among other things, which party will control the next Congress — and especially the Senate.

For Dewey it is a second try—and the first time the Republican Party has left its banner in the hands of a defeated candidate. The New York Governor lost a popular vote decision to "the champ" in 1944. But Franklin Delano Roosevelt's fourth term victory in the electoral college was a whopping 432 to 99.

For Truman it is an uphill race to win in his own right the mantle that fell upon him—as he put it—with "the whole weight of the moon and stars and all the planets" when Roosevelt died April 12, 1945. From the heights of popularity in the months that followed Truman had to put down rebellion in his own party last summer. He was not completely successful.

But the President stoutly disputes the poll takers who show Dewey far in the lead. Even without the votes he will lose in the South to States' Rights Democrat J. Strom Thurmond and elsewhere to Progressive Party Candidate Henry Wallace, Truman insisted in his campaign windup that he is going to win.

"The North, the South, the East and the West are falling in line," he declared at St. Louis Saturday night.

Dewey too was confident. He spoke of "the eve of victory" as he closed out his campaign in New York's Madison Square Garden.

While the presidency is the big issue tomorrow, the Senate battle commands nearly as much attention.

The Republicans, who smashed 14 years of Democratic rule of Congress in the 1946 off-year elections, now hold the upper hand in the Senate by only a 51 to 45 vote margin.

Thirty-two seats are at stake. And in 11 pivotal states the races are so close that politicians do not rule out the possibility of an unprecedented 48 to 48 tie.

Such a result would leave the deciding vote on party line issues up to the vice president—California's Gov. Earl Warren if Dewey wins or Kentucky's Senator Alben W. Barkley if Truman retains the White House.

In addition 432 House seats 32 governorships hundreds of state and local offices and scores of referenda issues will be settled Republican Maine elected a senator, governor and three House members in September.

In many respects the presidential race has been one of sharp contrasts. Truman's St. Louis speech was his 271st in a "give 'em hell" campaign.

Dewey delivered exactly 101 fewer talks, most of them keyed to the theme of "peace and unity.

In his finale, for instance, he said a Republican victory would mean "an America in which we can have both social progress and individual freedom: an America with security and opportunity for all."

"We will wage the peace patiently and firmly, with intense labor and a new devotion," he said. His formula for dealing with Russia: "lead from strength and not from weakness."

Back and forth across the country, Dewey tore into what he called the confusion and despair of the Truman administration. He said it had blundered at home

Each Candidate Thinks He'll Win

By The Associated Press

Election eve—as usual—finds the major presidential candidates confident of victory.

President Truman, speaking in St. Louis Saturday night, said the people, through the Democratic Party, "are going to win this election."

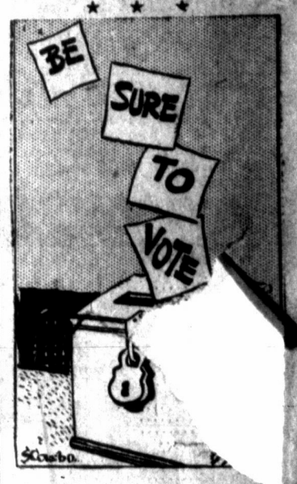

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, told a New York City audience it was the "eve of victory" for the GOP.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, States' Rights candidate, predicted his ticket will receive "millions of votes" and prevent either Truman or Dewey from enacting an anti-job discrimination law.

Henry Wallace, describing the 1948 campaign as only one battle in a long war, says that regardless of the outcome his Progressive Party will fight on.

Chemists Study Smothering Fog Which Took Lives of 20

DONORA, Pa. —(AP)— Chemists studied their test tubes today looking for the cause of the mysterious malady which took the lives of 20 elderly people in 36 hours.

The malady struck this Monongahela River industrial town of 13,500 late last Friday as a smothering mixture of fog and smoke lay low over the valley the third straight day.

Old-time residents couldn't recall ever seeing such a dense smog, as the combination of fog and smoke is known, but it caused no ill effects until early Saturday morning.

Then the town's eight doctors were besieged by calls from asthma and cardiac sufferers. Before midnight 14 men and four women had died.

Nearby hospitals were jammed with people finding it hard to breathe. An emergency aid station was set up and hurried calls went out for oxygen equipment.

A doctor estimated the town's medical men treated between 400 and 500 cases.

The fog lifted yesterday and the number of sufferers eased off but there were two more deaths. At least 32 people remained in hospitals, two of them critical.

The State Department of Health sent in a team of chemists headed by Dr. Joseph Shilen of the Industrial Hygiene Bureau.

The Donora Zinc Works of the American Steel and Wire Company closed and plant Superintendent M.M. Neale said they would remain so until it was determined whether the fumes and smoke given off by the smelter furnaces had anything to do with the conditions.

The mysterious death-dealing smog was no respecter of age although the deaths were confined to people in their middle fifties and older. One doctor said he treated a baby of four and one-half months and a woman of 85.

Rudolph Schwerha, member of the Donora Board of Health, said so far as he knew all those who died had previously been under a physician's care. He added:

"The deaths seem to have hit people who were suffering from cardiac or asthmatic conditions. There's no doubt that smog was the cause."

A doctor said all sufferers "complained of pains in the chest and had a difficult time breathing."

He said all the victims died of heart failure brought on by an overworked heart due to lack of oxygen.

Dr. I. Hope Alexander, Pittsburgh health director, said most of the deaths had occurred within two or three blocks of the zinc smelter plant, which he said emitted acid fumes.

"The gas is of a very toxic variety and had been escaping for years," Dr. Alexander explained, "but because fog had not tied it down, it didn't cause any illness."

Every Sector Has Candidate For All-American Backfield

NEW YORK —(AP)— If picking the national college football champion this year is tough—with every sector offering a candidate—selection of the all-America backfield promises to be tougher.

There have been no individual standouts of the Johnny Lujack and Bob Chappuis stripe of last year. As the season moves down the backstretch, a wide open scramble looms for individual honors.

A number of athletes strengthened their bids with outstanding performances over the weekend as the nation's nine unbeaten and untied powers kept their records unsullied.

The present campaign, in fact, hasn't had such a one-day rash of backfield heroics.

Doak Walker, Southern Methodist's Sophomore member of last year's honor quartet, hit his stride against Texas. Stan Heath, Nevada's passing wizard, went on an aerial rampage to write a new collegiate record.

Emil Sitko emerged as the new spearhead of Notre Dame's Irish while glittering exploits were turned in also by Jack Jensen of California, Norm Van Brocklin of Regon, Church Ortmann of Michigan, Francis (Red) Bagnell of Penn, and Army's crack touchdown tandem, Gil Stephenson and Bobby Jack Stuart.

Meanwhile, a new appraisal of the nation's top teams was in order even though all advanced in unbroken phalanx.

Michigan's Wolverines, ranked first for two weeks running, puffed past a hard-to-convince Illinois, 28-20, while two of the South's unblemished giants, North Carolina and Georgia Tech, had their hands full with a couple of neighborhood foes.

North Carolina, with Charlie Justice heaving two touchdown passes, topped Tennessee, 14-7, with one Vol scoring run nullified by a penalty. Tech rallied in the last half to vanquish Duke, 19-7.

California's Golden Bears, bidding for a Rose Bowl spot, edged past Southern Cal, 13-7.

The other four major unbeaten, untied teams to see action—Notre Dame, Army, Pennsylvania and Nevada turned in smashing, one-sided victories. Clemson, the ninth member of the perfect list, played Friday, beating Boston College.

The Irish, stretching their unbeaten string to 24 games, overpowered winless Navy, 41-7. Emil Sitko ripped off runs of 55, 23 and 43 yards.

Stephenson and Stuart, scoring twice each, led Army to a 49-7 rout of Virginia Tech. Penn throttled Washington & Lee, 40-7, with Bagnell tossing three touchdown passes. Nevada crushed Oklahoma City University, 79-13.

Nevada's Heath, leading passer in the country, threw five touchdown passes and completed eight others for a total of 327 yards. He boosted his season's passing yardage to 1,615 yards for a college record.

Southern Methodist, tripped earlier this season by Missouri, plunged back into the middle of the national picture by subduing Texas, 21-6. The victory probably landed the Mustangs in the Cotton Bowl. Walker scored two touchdowns and three extra points.

Oregon, still in a position to get the Rose Bowl bid, squeezed out a 14-13 verdict over non-conference St. Mary's.

The Wildcats of Northwestern became a favorite to represent the Big Nine at Pasadena by humbling Ohio State, 21-7. Minnesota obligingly knocked off Indiana, which had lost only one game in the conference, 30-7.

The headline games this week are at Philadelphia where Penn risks its clean slate against once-tied Penn State and at Norman, Okla., where Oklahoma and Missouri clash in a joust that may decide the Big Seven conference crown.

Other results Saturday included:

East-Penn State 32, Colgate 13; Boston 12, Syracuse 7; Brown 20, Rutgers 6; Cornell 20, Columbia 13; Dartmouth 41, Yale 14; Harvard 20, Holy Cross 13; Princeton 55, Virginia 14.

South—Georgia 35, Alabama 0; Florida 39, Furman 14; Mississippi 49, Louisiana State 19; Tulane 9, Mississippi State 0; VMI 33, Davidson 6; William & Mary 14, Richmond 6; Wake Forest 34, North Carolina State 13.

Midwest—Iowa 19, Wisconsin 13; Kansas 13, Oklahoma A & M 7; Kentucky 28, Cincinnati 7; Missouri 49, Kansas State 7; Oklahoma 33, Iowa State 6; Purdue 14, Marquette 9; Tulsa 14, Wichita 14; UCLA 27, Nebraska 15.

Far West—Stanford 20, Washington 0; Utah 14, Colorado 12; Washington State 19, Idaho 14; Michigan State 46, Oregon State 21.

Redskins Scalp Yanks 59-21 With Sam Baugh's Passes

NEW YORK —(AP)— Berlin has its wall but the National Football League still has the air arm —Sammy Baugh, the ex-TCU great.

Baugh, the air general of the Washington Redskins, has added another passing record to his collection that includes four lifetime marks.

The veteran quarterback gained 446 yards through the air yesterday as he pitched the Redskins to a 59-21 victory over the Boston Yanks.

Baugh completed 17 of 24 attempts and hurled four touchdown passes in surpassing the former mark of 433 yards in a single game set by Sid Lickman of the Chicago Bears on Nov. 14, 1943, against the New York Giants.

The field day enabled Baugh to increase his record lifetime totals in attempts to 2,214; completions to 1,275; yards gained by passing to 16,397 and touchdown passes to 136. The 'Skins also set a new team mark for yards gained by passing, gaining 501 yards to break the previous mark of 488 set by the Bears.

By winning, the Washington team stayed a half game behind the Eastern Division pace-setting Philadelphia Eagles. The Eagles crushed the Pittsburgh Steelers, 34-7.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Bears and the defending champion Chicago Cardinals remained tied for the Western Division lead. The Bears breezed to a 35-14 victory over the Giants and the Cards turned back the Rams, 27-22. In the other national League game, the Detroit Lions upset the Green Bay Packers, 24-20.

The two powers of the All-America Conference, the San Francisco 49ers and the defending champion Cleveland Browns, were idle. The 49ers have won nine straight games without a setback and lead the Browns in the Western race by a half game. The Browns are unbeaten in eight outings.

Three games were played in the All-America Conference. In the "big" game the Buffalo Bills downed the Baltimore Colts, 35-17, to tie the Colts for first place in the Eastern Division. The Los Angeles Dons blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers, 17-0, and the New York Yankees trounced the Chicago Rockets, 42-7, in the other games.

in., of the Lions Club, this group again presented their panel discussion and participated in a lively question and answer period.

Following the poll of the qualified voters on Wednesday, the class polled the student body and faculty with results almost identical to those derived from the city-wide poll, 63.2 percent voting for Truman; 32 percent for Dewey; 3 percent for Thurmond; and .8 percent for Wallace.

In the American history class itself, however, the results of a class poll were quite different, Dewey taking the lead with 77 percent; Truman following with 23 percent; Thurmond, 0; and Wallace, 0. Questioned as to whether they were influenced by their parents and particularly by their teacher, the students replied emphatically, "No. We studied the issues and voted according to our own conclusions"!

Winborn's car were all in use. The new radio recently installed in Winborn's car was a big help, Allen said. Every regular man on the police force was on duty and all off-duty firemen were pressed into service both Saturday and Sunday night.

Special thanks are due to P. C. Wynn and Billy Ballinger, the two Highway Patrolmen stationed here, for their help Saturday night, Allen said. They were a big help in tracking down the many youngsters picked up and turned over to the juvenile authorities.

Although nearly the same number of special patrolmen, in addition to the regular force, was on duty last night, the rain helped lighten their work by keeping many of the pranksters at home, Allen said.

Newcomer Winner in Match With McEuin Saturday Night

A newcomer to Pampa's wrestling ring, Vic Weber of New York City, slipped out of the veteran Billy McEuin's punishing arm locks to take his match in 36 minutes at the Sportatorium Saturday night.

In the one-hour main event, bearded Benny Truedell, also making his first local appearance, lost to Hollywood's Dick Trout in 32 minutes.

McEuin and Weber were very closely matched in weight and in speed. Both weighed in at 181 pounds, and Weber was every bit as speedy as "Tiger" Billy. "Tiger" is a nickname aptly bestowed on McEuin several years ago when he first started professional wrestling as a lightweight.

McEuin very shortly found Weber's weakness and thereafter applied hammerlock after hammerlock that the Brooklyner found considerable difficulty in breaking. The hammerlock paid off in the first fall, which McEuin took in 20 minutes with a lock and arm stomp.

At the start of the second fall, Weber applied a leg stretch, but soon lost the advantage when Billy slapped on another hammerlock. After more than five minutes of punishment, Weber slipped out of the arm lock and applied a double arm back stretch, called a surf board, to take the fall in eight minutes.

It was the same thing all over again when they returned for the third fall; McEuin worked on Weber's arm with a hammerlock. Weber's arms were well limbered before the end of the match after McEuin had worked indiscriminately on first one, then the other.

Weber managed to work loose from the hammerlock and into a Boston crab that gave him the fall and the match in eight minutes.

Although he was making his debut, Benny Truedell, bearded Canadian bear, promptly establishes himself as one of the local ring's more vicious villians. He punched, pulled hair, held to his opponent's trunks, and used the ropes for additional leverage.

Trout held his own, however, by applying a frontal arm lock. Each time Benny would try to pull hair, Trout would punch, and thereby keep things pretty even.

After losing the first fall in 14 minutes to the Canadian's back breaker, Trout took, the next two and the match with his favorite airplane spins. He flung Benny into the ropes, stooped over and caught the Canadian across his back on the rebound, and then whirled his opponent into complete dizziness. He used the same hold in taking the second and third falls in 10 and eight minutes each.

Rod Fenton, who lost to Trout in a tag match here a week ago, was referee; Homer Anderson was timekeeper, and Paul Lefebvre was announcer.

10 Undefeated Teams Rema In Texas Schoolboy Footbal

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

The Texas schoolboy football campaign speeds into November with only 10 undefeated teams and with district championships being decided all along the line in the City Conference and Class AA.

Only one unbeaten team was kicked out last week but three of them were tied.

South Park of Beaumont was tumbled, 20-19, by Port Neches. Milby (Houston) was tied by John Reagan (Houston) 13-13. Alice was tied by Harlingen, 0-0, and Arlington Heights (Fort Worth) was battled to a 6-6 deadlock by Paschal (Fort Worth).

Unbeaten and untied today are Port Arthur, Waco, Henderson, Sweetwater and Amarillo. Undefeated but once tied are Alice, Arlington Heights, Baytown, Lamar (Houston) and Milby.

There appears little likelihood of any of the unbeaten teams taking a tumble this week except possibly Sweetwater, which meets Odessa in the showdown game of District 3 of Class AA. The winner of this game will be a favorite for the district title.

Sweetwater whammed Abilene, 28-6, last week, which was a touchdown better than Odessa trimmed the Eagles.

District 4 of the City Conference will be in the balance Saturday night when Thomas Jefferson tackles Alamo Heights. These are the last undefeated teams in San Antonio district play.

Amarillo plays at Borger Friday in an important District 1 clash in Class AA. They are two of three teams undefeated in conference strife. Pampa, the other one, plays Lubbock Saturday.

District 6 matches its only unbeaten teams with Highland Park (Dallas) playing at McKinney Friday while District 12 sends Galveston to Freeport in a similar battle. Galveston, Freeport and Baytown are unbeaten in conference warfare. Baytown plays Galena Park this week.

District 13 features the clash of Austin and Kerrville, the last undefeated teams, and the contest expected to determine the champion.

Right now the state championship outlook in the City Conference is quite scrambled. Arlington Heights had been one of the top favorites but lost a key man through injury. Since then Arlington Heights has been just another team. The tie with oft-beaten Paschal showed that.

Alamo Heights might well be the favorite since its victory over Brackenridge (San Antonio) but more will be known about it after the game this week with and fumbled abroad.

Truman jabbed alternately at and as out to do a "hatchet job" on the Roosevelt New Deal.

Because the New Yorker's "victory special" followed his own campaign train into city after city, Truman called Dewey his "shadow" and accused him of both "double talk" and "crafty silence."

But the President's bitterest words were directed against the Republican-dominated 80th Congress. "Do nothing," "good for nothing" and "idiot" were some of the things he called it.

Dewey's 16,000-mile campaign trail omitted the South, but other GOP speakers made repeated forays into that once Democratic stronghold—now split by the President's civil rights program rights for Negroes.

One Southern state — Alabama —will not even have Truman's name on the ballot.

But Trucan went to North Carolina with a plea for the South to stick with him lest it get "another ride in a Hoover cart"—the depression era vehicle he recalled as a mule-drawn jalopy.

The big hope of the States' Rights Democrats is to capture enough electoral votes to keep either Truman or Dewey from getting a majority. That would throw the contest into the House of Representatives, where each state would cast a single vote.

We'll Vote for Man--Not Platform

Historians will probably say that 140 million people had emerged from World War II without any real vision — remembering that period following the first big war when it was believed there would be no more.

And they will say that, out of what little tranquility men could have while figuring out how to meet the bills coming in each month, there emerged a new and frenzied groping for something that would exclude the possibility of the atomic bomb. That would be the fall of 1948, the historians would note.

Perhaps today we are too close to the firing to assess the social upheaval of our time. Yet, we may look more closely than at first and see that what is happening is likely had to happen. We were predoomed to this period of confusion, and there was no escape from it.

The fact that six or eight minor candidates have cropped up and mouthed most ridiculously for the presidency, is testimony to the fact that we are confusel. Each man who has stepped to the rostrum and offered himself to the people's service in the White House has believed that he was predestined to be the nation's savior. At least generosity would prompt us to give each man the benefit of the doubt.

There have been those who think they can save us from the sham and duplicity of communism; others have lontended—at least inferred—that communism is not so bad after all, that we can get along with it if we so will.

Some good shibboleths have been borne—"civil rights," "states' rights," "return to the American way," "era of the common man." All these, it will be proven sooner or later, were false banners under which the men assumed the part of the demagogue. They are all high-sounding, bound to tempt this group and that.

But the majority of the people have flocked to the side of the two major candidates. This is by tradition, prejudice, ignorance, indifference, and motley other curses that drag men down. It is also by necessity.

When one looks closely, there is not so much difference in the two major candidates. They are called Democrat and Republican. The land had become addicted to the "social security" of the New Deal; and it proved time and time again —for sixteen years—to be the winning formula. Hence, it was assumed, if not bodily, in great substance by the Republican Party. Because it had been proven the winning formula. A majority of the people had been hoodwinked, and why should they not be hoodwinked by the Republicans?

It is not the same Republican Party that it once was. Thomas Dewey, who stands probably as the better administrator and with the lustre of a "new president," has adopted about as many of the Roosevelt innovations as he could without appearing too obviously "me too-ish."

When we vote tomorrow, we will be voting for a man—not for a platform that is different. They are not different. The thing about it is most people—according to the polls—think that Dewey can do a better job of doing the same thing. And that job is hand-feeding the people.

Bid For A Smile

SPELLING BEE
(This Week)

We once knew a man who got a parking ticket and tried to convince the judge that he'd been confused by the police sign. Some joker had made it read: "No Barking on This Side of the Street." The judge was unimpressed, fined him $5.

Elmer comes in from Durham, N. C., about a motorist who objected to a parking fine because the sign read: "No Stopping Here." He claimed "stopping" was a mining term that meant right here. This time the judge sentenced the charge ordered the police to brush up on their spelling.

Fair Enough -- by Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK — Slowly but irresistibly the ghastly truth is dawning that Franklin D. Roosevelt betrayed the United States and built up the enemy who is now making it necessary for this nation to spend its way into bankruptcy feeding and organizing Western Europe so that Western Europe will serve as a battle-line in the coming Roosevelt memorial war. It is useless to pretend that our government, even the Truman government, does not foresee and expect that war. Otherwise we would have no reason to draft soldiers and to resume, as we have, the production of war materials under government procurement contracts. Who else threatens us?

Strangely, Governor Dewey has failed to state the facts of this terrible situation in his campaign speeches. He may feel that it would be bad politics to do so because Americans are supposed to be sentimental and some might turn on him for speaking ill of a man who died so recently. There is no hard and fast rule fixing the time limit, but a decent interval is respected by common consent in most cases. Roosevelt's politicial heirs have enjoyed a benefit from this false decency and the people have suffered detriment because Roosevelt's terrible guilt and the inevitability of the Russian war are the only issues of the campaign which are worthwhile. The silly, mischievous prattle of President Truman is mere diversion. State's rights, precious and essential to the preservation of the internal design of our government, are mere quibbles. They will not matter in such a war for such a war will throw us into panic and anarchy at first and then will bring us a dictatorship so that we may slay traitorous enemy agents in New York and keep order and prevent featherbedding all over.

Neither Dewey nor Truman has even mentioned the one awful thing that terrifies every American who had hoped when Second World War was done to be allowed to go back to the peaceful enjoyment of life in a country of such abundance and comfort as the world never saw before. Truman is afraid to mention the subject of war. First he had to consider the danger of hastening Russia's attack, which he is no more able to "time" than anyone else. Second, he knew that Roosevelt's guilt would be dragged out the minute he dared make an issue of the causes of the situation with Russia.

Roosevelt's guilty encouragement of the Communist penetration of our government as revealed by the Committee of un-American Activities, is to the benefit of the Kremlin, of course. So are the confusion, the instability and inefficiency which afflict our commerce and industry, all caused by Communists in Roosevelt's totalitarian union rackets. This sabotage has been caused either directly through their own agents or by stuipid, old-line union bosses of the AF of L., who are morally and intellectually unfit for any positions of power. All this is according to the great Communist plan to cripple us.

Benjamin Gitlow, who in his day occupied every important post in the American Communist Party, the first of our famous backslid bolos, is one of the best authorities on this Roosevelt submission. His authority cannot be doubted, and he has now written his second book on the peril. He seems to be trying to make amends. It is too bad he had them to make.

"Three events," says Gitlow in this new book, "The Whole of Their Lives," "one in the U. S. political field, the other in the economic field, the third in the international field of diplomacy, established the American Communist movement as a factor in the political, social and economic affairs of the country.

"American communism owes its rise to prominence to the election of Roosevelt in 1932, to the organization of the Committee of Industrial Organization in 1935, to the recognition of the Soviet Union by the United States in 1933.

"Though Roosevelt's New Deal program and organization ranks first in immediate importance to the growth of communism in the United States, the organization of the CIO from the Communist standpoint is much more basic and of lasting importance to the movement, even though the organization of the CIO without Roosevelt's blessing would never have taken place. The recognition of the Soviet Union facilitated Soviet and Comintern (International Communist conspiracy) penetration of the United States. It opened wide the doors for the infiltration of the government by Communists and their satellites drawn from a growing army of fellow-travelers."

On the subject of Roosevelt's flippant, all-wise betrayal of the United States and of Western Christendom of Teheran and Yalta, Gitlow writes only as all other authorities and students of these frightful misdeeds have written. Not even Roosevelt's defenders have dared try to justify his conduct or mitigate his guilt. Truman just ignores it. Dewey has been willing to do the same out of a false and historically bad consideration for the crocodile feelings of Roosevelt idolators. Dewey should have argued these tragic truths all the way so that the issues would be clear on the day when he finds it necessary to take up the Russian challenge.

In 1916, right down to election, Woodrow Wilson's people were shouting that he had kept us out of war. We went into the war the month after his second inauguration. Dewey has made no such implied promises to keep us out of war but he would have served us more honestly had he told us the truth and made Truman and all of us face the truth. Instead he is letting young men and women make rosy plans for marriage and all of us stumble, doped and dreamy, into this disaster, possibly within weeks after his inauguration.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— "You'll pardon my appearance," Abe Burrows said, "I've just been on a television show and I'm still distorted."

Like everybody else in Hollywood, Abe Burrows, the former parlor entertainer who brought his satirical songs to radio, is getting into television. "I'm going back to the parlor." But first he's going to Chicago and New York for night club appearances until radio, picture and television deals jell.

I asked him if he had anything witty to say about Hollywood's economy wave. "Yes," said Abe, "I'm part of it."

Pat Knight and Cornel Wilde will be united on the screen at Columbia as a result of "The Lovers."

Jack Benny dropped into the drug store at the Beverly Wilshire for a cigar and a comb-and-brush set caught his eye until he read the price tag—$250. "At that price," said Jack, "it would cost me $10 a hair."

Warner Brothers will try to film the real story of "Murder, from the Johnston office which has been agin it for years.

Hugh Wedlock, the writer, was taking a steam bath at Frankie Van's health club and when he climbed up on the table for his rubdown, Van said "It's going to rain tomorrow." "How do you know?" asked Wedlock. Van answered: "I can feel it in your bones."

PEACE OF MIND

One of Eddie Cantor's favorite Ziegfeld stories is about the great showman ordering a complete new wardrobe for the "Whoopee" cast before the New York opening. "But what's wrong with the costumes we've been using?" said Cantor. "Can't they be cleaned?" "They can be cleaned," said Flo, "but they'd lose their sheen." "But nobody would know it," protested Eddie. "I would," said Flo, "and I wouldn't be able to sleep."

There's a deal cooking for a remake of "Stage Door." . . .Jerry Colonna's agents are predicting he'll make a fortune in television. Jerry should be seen to be appreciated. . . . Confusion: The pocketbook edition of "The Chair for Martin Rome" carries a cover explanation that the novel was filmed under the title, "The Law and Martin Rome." That's what happened, but now the picture is being released as "The Cry of the City."

When Monty Wooly heard Frank Morgan was set to do a radio serial of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," he sent him a lock of his beard and a note: "You may be able to play the role without me, but not without my beard."

Alfred Hitchcock's great experiment—filming "Rope" as a stage play—is interesting but dull. It's reminiscent of those early day talkies and definite proof again that movies have to move. "Rope" doesn't.

ELECTION NOTES

The consensus of the experts is that President Truman is certain of no more than nine states, with less than 100 electoral votes. In other words, that he will do no better than Dewey did in 1944. My guess is that the race will not be so one-sided, but that Truman will not go above 160 electoral votes, or 160 short of winning.

Governor Dewey will be the first candidate to win the Presidency after losing in his first attempt. An apparent exception was Cleveland in 1892, after losing in 1888. However, Cleveland had run his first heat in 1884. W. J. Bryan ran three times, and got his best vote in his first race. Henry Clay was a candidate five times.

The expectation of a total popular vote of 60,000,000, which would help Truman, is not justified. With the prevailing public apathy, it is probable that no more than 55,000,000 will vote. 40,000,000 will not bother. Both the major parties are hard up for money. The Democratic doughboys think it hopeless; and Republicans, useless.

Presidential support of the Bernadotte Plan, which would reduce the area of the State of Israel to half that previously agreed to by the Assembly of the United Nations, and by his own administration, has hurt Mr. Truman. In the same category can be placed his proposal to send Chief Justice Vinson to Russia, over the heads, apparently, of our Ambassador and Secretary of State. This was universally considered a body blow to the prestige of the United Nations, as was Mr Truman's unilateral plan to go into Greece two years ago.

The President has made a game fight against odds, which is something the American people admire in anyone. However, his attack on Congress as the worst in history, is hard to reconcile with his constant reminder that prosperity is at an all-time peak.

Nor can his pointing with pride to prosperous times be made to jibe with his assertion that the Republicans have "driven a pitchfork" into the back of the farmers. The real pitchfork was his statement two years ago (again, just before election) that he had given "long and serious consideration" to sending United States marshals out on the farms and ranges to seize cattle for slaughter, and pay the owners a dictated price.

In appealing for labor votes, the President is confronted with his own record when he proposed to draft strikers into the army and subject them to martial law.

The G.O.P. national chairman, Congressman Hugh D. Scott, is the grandson of a Confederate soldier at Gettysburg. This is a small item, perhaps, but, as Disraeli once said, "nothing is unimportant in politics." Southern newspapers, for the first time in history, are declaring for Dewey. The prospects for a permanent two-party system in the South are brighter than ever before. This may not be logical, as the G.O.P. platform parallels Mr. Truman in the civil rights issue. Nevertheless, Dewey has played the same card smartly which Truman played clumsily.

The Wallace campaign suffers from termites. Governor Thurmond will get more electoral votes than any third party since the Bull Moose days.

The chief issue between Dewey and Truman is the Taft-Hartley Law, which Truman would repeal, and which Dewey and the country accept. Other than that, the prospect is that the main change after inauguration will be administrative and not legislative. Dewey is for price supports to farmers, increased minimum wage, broadened social security, etc. Both candidates endorse peace and prosperity.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

Once each week this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering reader's questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent directly to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest place, Chevy Chase, Maryland.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—R.C. of Chicago wants to know whether it is true that military men now exert greater influence in shaping our foreign policy than they did under previous administrations. He would also like to know the reason for the shift of control from civilians to what he calls "the brass."

Answer: There is no doubt that military thinking dominates our conduct of foreign afairs. However, it is not due to the fact that so many generals and admirals hold key posts in our doplomatic establishment — Marshall, Leahy, Clay, Walter Bedell Smith, etc., or that President Truman has always been partial to a uniform. Nor do I believe that Thomas E. Dewey, should he become president, would depart from present policy.

CHANGED — Conditions have changed from the days when the existence of such strong and stable nations as the U.S., England, France, Germany, Japan and Russia provided a balance of power that generally deterred ony power or group of powers rfom precipitating a conflict. In those days old-fashioned diplomacy served to maintain the peace for long years.

When Japan began to run amok on the Chinese mainland in the early thirties, we tried to stop her by sending notes and refusing to ecognize her right to land conquered by force. Eventually we placed embargoes on such war necessities as scrap and oil. But we never gave great sums or arms to Chihna.

ALLIANCE — When Mussolini and then Hitler began their expansion, we tried to strengthen European nations by reducing their World War I debt, by declaring moratoriums on other loans and by granting trade advantages. But we never set up a Marshall Plan for rebuilding their industries, commerce, agriculture and finances.

As was inevitable when we proposed this progarm, we are now considering a hard-and-fast, defensive-offensive, military alliance with Canada, Britain and the Western European nations.

A military man as well as a diplomat, Mr. Marshall concluded that it was senseless to make those nations economically strong unless they were also militarily powerful. Otherwise, they would become Russian assets in event of war.

PREPARATION — In a way we are returning to the "big-stick" policies practiced by Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt in the years after our victory over Spain first made the U.S. an acknowledged world power. Or to the olden days when we cleaned out the Barbary pirates that had been seizing our ships and imprisoning the crews.

The blitzkrieg type of warfare and the atom bomb are also responsible for the admixture of militerism and diplomacy. We will never again have two or three years of preparation, as we did after 1914 and 1939, because of the avowed weakness of our erstwhile allies in Europe.

ENCIRCLING — Strategists in the Pentagon Building now debate whether our fighting frontier shall be the Rhine River or the Pyrenees Mountains. No matter which line they eventually select —and it will undoubtedly be the Rhine, in deference to Anglo-French demands—it becomes essential to our own survival that friendly nations in that area be prepared to hold off a hostile power until we can bring our weight to bear against the enemy. And the only country which can finance and arm them is the United States.

It is also necessary that we enlist, if possible, all anti-Communist peoples in preparation for a possible struggle. That accounts for the fact that, after formation of the North Atlantic alliance now under discussion at London and Paris, we shall seek the support of the Scandinavian countries, Portugal, possibly Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Iran, China, Japan and Southern Korea thereby encircling Russia completely.

SCHEME — Many of these proposals have been advanced formally or informally, from time to time. A longer term for representatives might make for better legislation, as the present two-year period does not give a new member much time to learn his job before he has to begin to think about reelection.

The suggestion that ex-presidents become members of the Senate has been mentioned as a substitute for the pensioning plan. As a rule, however, it has been proposed that he should not possess the right to vote. He should be a sort of advisory statesman.

I doubt if any scheme for reducing the membership would ever prevail. Few members would support a constitutional amendment that would wipe out their jobs.

With the exception that I urged a salary of $25,000 for both House and Senate members, I advocated almost these same ideas in a September, 1933, article in The Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

It would be a tragic error if, because of misunderstanding, the patience of others should be mistaken for weakness.
—Secretary of State Marshall, on the Berlin crisis.

Well, I see that a noted English doctor says worry causes baldness and tells about a man who kept on losing his hair while he had to live with his mother-in-law. When he finally got a home of his own his hair quit falling out and so did he and his mother-in-law.

This is interesting to know, but I don't think it's going to do much good. I can imagine what will happen when people appeal to landlords that they will lose their hair if they don't get a good apartment. Why, when my brother took up the matter with his landlord, he was told to go away and lose the rest of his head, too.

Besides, when you get right down to it, I'm not any too sure that this English doctor's theory about baldness is entirely sound. Cecil B. DeMille has always been able to afford a nice house and just look at him!

Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

One of the ways to develop profitable ideas is to combine two or more ideas that no one thought of combining before. Often, you come out with a really sizzling product that sets you on the road to success.

Paul L. Hexter was, and is, a photographer. He is also a chemist. When he went to work for the Arco Company in Cleveland, Ohio, he began to combine his knowledge of photography and chemistry. The result was new products in the paint field.

One of the first was the Arco Color Machine, by means of which it was possible, for the first time, for paint jobbers and body shops to accurately match thousands of standard automotive shades by the blending of lacquers or enamels from 16 basic colors.

In 1940 his knowledge of both photography and paint chemistry helped Arco develop infra-red reflecting paints, widely used for camouflage throughout the war period.

When he came out of the war, Hexter began working on another new idea. Few people knew how to properly use a brush or spraying machine to paint their autos. But everyone was familiar with the use of a polishing pad or cloth.

Within two years he had developed "Pad O'Paint" which could be applied by any automobile owner with a patented hand pad. The paint itself compares favorably with the finest grade of automobile paint used by car manufacturers.

It takes imagination to see the possibilities of putting things together to make new combinations. Paul Hexter's imagination won citations by General K. B. Wolfe and Brigadier General F. O. Carrol, for his work done during the war in developing new methods of camouflage during the war.

After the war his imagination saw 12 million car owners who needed new paint jobs but didn't want to spend the money to have it done and were unable to do the job themselves. How could these 12 million people be served? Pad O' Paint was the answer.

Don't be afraid to use your imagination. Let it run free. Don't keep it chained to the ordinary and and accustomed way of doing things. If Hexter had continued to think of painting in terms of

The Loves of Carmen

By SOPHIE KERR

Copyright, 1948, IEA SERVICE, INC.

Serialization of screenplay from a novel by Prosper Merimee

THE STORY: Don Jose, young officer in a fashionable Spanish regiment, falls victim to the charms of the bewitching gypsy, Carmen. He kills his commanding officer in a sword-fight over her and is forced to flee to a mountain hide-out, where he joins the band of gypsy rogues who are Carmen's associates. Jose's last illusion is shattered when he learns that Garcia, the leader, is Carmen's husband. Riding through the mountain fastnesses, the band is attacked by uniformed constabulary. They take to cover as shooting starts.

CARMEN crawled over beside Jose, her eyes shining with excitement. He reached out and pulled her closer under the protection of the rock and himself, angry because of his fear for her. "Keep down, you little fool!"

"When I am killed it won't be by a stranger, Don Jose. That much I know." Carmen's tone was flip.

He turned back to the fight, and as fast as he fired Carmen reloaded his pistols. Once she tugged at his sleeve and pointed at Garcia's back twenty yards away. He looked at her blankly.

Carmen was bland and wide-eyed, saying, "If Garcia got himself killed, we couldn't help that, could we?"

"I hate him. But I shoot no comrade in the back."

Carmen was first amazed, then angrily scornful. "You're a weakling," she said. "Always afraid of being dishonorable. You are like the dwarf who believed himself tall because he could spit so far."

Jose ignored her. She went back to loading the guns, sulky, pouting.

A shout went up from the constabulary. "The sergeant's been killed." The information was relayed, disastrously. The soldiers began to withdraw as best they could and Garcia called to his men to get out fast. They ran to the horses, Carmen at Don Jose's side.

Only Remondado could not run. He lay against a rock, wounded and helpless. He tried to rise but his legs would not support him. Don Jose knelt at his side. "Wait here," he said. "I'll bring your mule to you."

Garcia stopped him, glancing with annoyance at Remondado. "Let's go, Jose."

Jose remonstrated. "You don't understand. Remondado isn't dead—he's only hurt."

Garcia's expression changed. "He's still alive! I didn't know that." He came over beside Remondado. "Well, we can't leave him here—that's for sure—"

Don Jose nodded and went toward the horses but he was caught up by Garcia's continued speech, "—to be recognized as one of our band."

Jose screamed Garcia's name as the leader raised his gun and fired it point blank into Remondado's face. Garcia put his gun away, coolly, saying, "It would take a smart man to recognize him now."

Jose was stunned with horror at the brutality. He looked toward Garcia, then back to Remondado and his expression changed to sick incredulity when he saw Carmen carefully but deliberately removing the brace of chickens Remondado had been holding in his hand.

There was nothing to do but go with the others.

THE bandits, Don Jose as much one of them now as any of the others, huddled around the fire in a temporary hiding place. Great, jagged rocks stood on end protecting the fire and the men around it. Pablo greedily counted his share of the tobacco money which Garcia had just portioned out to him. Dancaire was quietly absorbed in his habitual game of solitaire. Don Jose sat apart, working on a piece of saddle leather with a knife. Carmen's voice was heard in the darkness, singing a gay, carefree gypsy tune.

Garcia handed Dancaire his share of the money and walked over to Don Jose. He shook his head delightedly. "That girl is crazy, taking a bath in that ice water! Listen to her." Then he paused, squinting down at Don Jose, who looked off in the direction of the voice, a closed, haunted look on his face. Garcia spoke again, this time in a soft, insinuating way. "I didn't say look at her—I said listen to her."

Startled out of his reverie, Don Jose turned on the big man furiously. "I can't see her from here."

"You can see her in your imagination," Garcia taunted him. "And that is what you are doing, seeing her in your mind. I can tell from your face."

Don Jose cut savagely at the leather in his hand.

Garcia laughed and offered the bundle of money, saying in mock sympathy, "I'm afraid you will have to be content with just sharing my money with me, Navarro."

Don Jose looked up at him, his eyes sick with loathing and contempt. "I have no wish to share anything with you, Garcia." He went back to his work. "Keep your dirty money."

Garcia straightened slowly and stuffed the money into his pocket, grunting, "He doesn't want my money. Just what did you have in mind, Navarro, that you do want in payment for the work you do here? Is there anything else that belongs to me that you were thinking about?"

Jose replied in a voice biting with insult, "Anything that belongs to you would be as dirty and evil as you are, Garcia. No one would want it."

Garcia exploded with loud laughter. "I'll tell her, man!" he shouted as he walked away. "I'll tell her!" Half way to the fire he turned and said, still hugely amused, "But watch yourself. She'll probably carve out your white liver and serve it to me for breakfast."

"Are you such a coward you have to get a woman to do your carving for you, Garcia?" Don Jose flung at him.

Garcia's eyes glistened. "Coward?" he rasped.

THOSE WHO WON'T VOTE ..... by Upton Close

These American citizens who will not go to the polls tomorrow could score the greatest upset in the history of American elections if they but knew their strength. They could elect any man they chose, even a write-in, to the highest office in the land, not only by a plurality but possibly by a majority over the entire field of ten candidates for that office.

For almost exactly half the 93,000,000 adult citizens of this country will not exercise their right and responsibility of voting tomorrow. This estimate is based on a United Press survey, and the history of recent presidential elections supports the findings.

The heaviest vote ever cast was in 1940 when the people were alarmed lest the country be taken into a European war and were demanding (and getting) assurances from both Roosevelt and Willkie that we would be kept out of the war.

The vote was just over 49,000,000.

This year the total is expected to climb to or below 47,000,000. It could easily drop below the halfway mark of 46,500,000.

The non-voting bloc of 46,000,000, to 47,000,00 is by far the largest and potentially the most powerful of all blocs. If some master psychologist or strategist could find a way to unite this bloc and get it up out of its chair and make it walk over to the precinct polls and vote for him—he would be the King Fish.

Presidential candidates and their strategists know this, and tear their hair searching for a push bottom which will jolt the disinterested voter into the ballot boothes.

YOUR VOTE NEEDED

Henry Wallace and Harry Truman may be expected to score the highest percentage of their potential supporters, because they have directed their appeal to the highly inflammable, excited, crusading left wingers. These people are regimented and easily turned out in almost a solid bloc.

Nobody knows just exactly who the stay-at-homes are, just how many would vote for whom, if they all were marched to the polls. But it is logical to suppose that few of them demand abandonment of the American system, few of them feel very strongly in favor of the Marxist, Communist, New Deal program, or they would get out and vote for it.

It must be supposed then that the preponderant majority of the millions of non-voters are reasonably satisfied with the traditional American system and if they voted at all would vote for a candidate who offered the least change in the system.

This logic leads to the conclusion that Strom Thurmond, campaigning on the time-honored, Constitution supported states' rights platform, calling for few changes in the American system of government and economy (pre-New Deal), would gain by a hundred percent turn out.

Likewise, Mr. Thomas Dewey, who advocates less change than any other of the major four except Thurmond, and whose name is far better known, would gain tremendously.

The significant thing is this: that the voters who will stay away from the polls tomorrow will aid the radical left wingers.

All Christmas Problems Are Easily Remedied by the Brooks Electric Company

If light fixtures or wiring checkups are your needs, Brooks Electric Company is among the shops best qualified to assist you. Regardless of what your Christmas problems are, the [illegible]oo, can be solved right in the little building pictured [illegible].

If your house is old and still has the original light fixtures, then it's time to get a new arrangement. If you want the latest style, the best grouping possible and want the lights to be easy on your eyes—Brooks Electric, 1101 Alcock, can fill your needs.

New light fixtures are not enough, however. Older houses are just as badly in need of wiring checkups, followed by wiring modernization. Again—Brooks Electric Company is the place to contact—either by gonig there or by phoning 27. All of the company's servicemen are members of the Electrical Workers Union. Brooks Electric is the only electrical shop in Pampa that has each employe licensed to do his assigned job.

The fareman of the company, Jack Chisholm, has been with Brooks since its beginning, four years ago. Joe Blaylock is the only other employe with the same record.

J. W. Brooks, Jr., brother of the owner, is included with the employes who have spent some time with the company. Dee Love, with six years of electrical experience, has spent the past three years with Brooks. Bill Sims has been employed there for the past year-and-a-half. Newcomers include Melvin Armstrong and Emil Stuebgen, who is in charge of the plant's appliances. Also the bookkeeper Mrs. Jake Baker, has been there for the past four months.

Universal major appliances, including washing machines, mangles, stoves and mixers, ideal gifts for women are to be found at Brooks.

The company still has quite a stock of Christmas-tree lights and cords, in both parallel and series sets. Though the lights are plentiful now, it will not be long until they will be entirely gone if the 1947 Christmas season repeats itself.

Brooks' gift department also looks out for the kiddies. A large stock of Lionel trains and accessories are now in the shop. Far-sighted parents will make haste to get one of the electric trains for Junior, since they are in the same class as the Christmas-tree lights—going fast.

Gifts from the company will be gift-wrapped for Christmas. Other Christmas gifts that may be purchased at Brooks Electric include: Sunbeam irons, General Electric toastmasters, combination record and radio players, Dolly Madison electric freezers, tricycles, lamps, door chimes, waffle irons, dutch ovens, electric blankets and many other electrical appliances.

If you're one who repeatedly says "I'll just have to remember to get an extension cord. I simply can't go on without one"—make a special trip to Brooks. There you will find all lengths or cords to fit every need. While on electrical appliances, there are enough different kinds of fixtures at Brooks to satisfy any possible need. The wallpaper protectors which fit around light switches are still other items no home should be without.

A member of the Church of Christ, Mr. Brooks is one of the directors of Kiwanis Club and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce. A very likable fellow, he lives at 529 N. Nelson with his wife, Gladys, and family. His eldest daughter, Meridith Ann, is eleven years old and goes to Junior High. His son, Richard, is six, and his younger daughter, Kay Lynn, two.

The Brooks have lived in Pampa for the past 15 years. Mr. Brooks formerly came from Wichita, Kans. Before starting his electrical company, he was an employe of Cabot. He now owns his own home, the building his business is in and the business itself. All in all, there are approximately 50 persons dependent on the Brooks Electric Company.

Business Jumps At Ricketts Jewelry Store

Pat Ricketts, owner of the Ricketts Jewelry Store, 318 1-2 W. Foster, has had many new customers at his new location during the past two months.

Pat specializes in watch repairing. He owns one of the two Watchmasters in Pampa. His Watchmaster is on the order of a doctor's stethoscope. The electronic instrument prints a record telling just how much too fast or too slow a watch is running. Using his Watchmaster, Pat is able to tell in just 30 seconds what needs to be done to the watch to remedy it. Then it takes only a matter of minutes until he is able to hand the watch back to the owner as good as new.

Pat has been in the watch repair business for the past 20 years. However, besides watch repairing, Pampans are able to get jewelry of all types, electrical appliances, dishes, Rogers and Holmes & Edwards silverware, diamonds, watchbands and many other items that a good jewelry store can not afford to be without.

Lefors Club Has 'Citizenship' Topic

LEFORS — During the business meeting of the Lefors Art and Civic Club, it was voted that each member would correspond with club women in foreign countries.

Mrs. Bob Brown, president, had charge of the meeting held in the home of Mrs. Bill Smith Thursday evening.

Mrs. Bill Watson, program leader, introduced the subject of the evening, "Citizenship." Mrs. Ray Carruth spoke on "Services owed to the tax payer by the County Government;" Mrs. Earl Atkinson spoke on "Citizenship Training in the Home." She said that character building by spiritual guidance is important in molding the future citizens of tomorrow.

Mrs. L. R. Spence spoke on "The Citizenship and Citizenship Training in the School and P-TA" saying that the rights of every man must be safeguarded by right thinking people. To help this we must be informed voters—know who and what we are voting for, she said.

A refreshment plate was served to those already mentioned and to Mesdames Ray Boyd, Bill Osburn, Clyde Rodecape, Ray Jordan, John Brewer, Bud Cumberledge, Elvis Mathis, R. H. Barron, Eldon Carter, Scott Hall and Mary Reynolds.

TEEN TALK

AP Newsfeatures

Have you a gripe against the movies?

It seems even the most faithful teen-age movie fans manage to find a few things wrong with movieland's cinema offerings.

Here are teen-agers' ten pet movie peeves as revealed in a nation-wide polling of 7,500 youngsters recently completed by a Hollywood studio.

The boby-soxers oppose:

1. Turning a female sad sack into a raving beauty just by yanking off her horn-rimmed glasses.
2. Virile-type heroes who run the emotional gamut by clenching or unclenching their fists.
3. Using near-decrepit men as the grand passion of a sweet young thing.
4. Having every embryo violin genius eke out a living, on the side, as a pugilist.
5. Heroines who emerge from earthquakes, tidal waves and other disasters with wardrobe unruffled, and tresses unmussed.
6. Portraying school youngsters as speaking only jive jargon.
7. Showing every jam session participant as a swooner.
8. Depicting the average co-ed as nursing a secret crush for the football team captain, or the handsome young English teacher.
9. Unseen, 100 piece orchestra which rends the air when a singer, alone in a jungle wilderness, bursts into song.
10. Cooey gals who, when their lover boy asks the question, pop their eyes and murmur—"What do YOU think?"

Eagle Lion executives conducted the survey to shape preproduction plans for "Mickey," the story of a teen-ager. The picture stars 16-year-old Lois Butler, who was plucked from John Marshall high school classroom in Los Angeles for the role.

There is a feminine version of the Woody Woodpecker haircut now being worn by the boys.

Forum Club Meets At White Deer

Mrs. Biggs Horn entertained members of the Twentieth Century Forum Club in her home in White Deer, Tuesday afternoon.

Roll call was answered with each member telling the latest book she had read.

As program leader, Mrs. Bruce Pratt gave a review of "Pioneer Preacher" by Opal Leigh Berryman.

Mrs. Horn served refreshments to Mesdames: Ed. Weiss, Eben D. Warner, Aubrey L. Steele, R. P. Rossman, Walter Rogers, J. B. McCrery, John Ketler, Frank Kelley, Dick Hughes, J. R. Holloway, E. L. Green, Gene Fatheree, E. J. Dunnigan, Roy Bourland.

Whereas the beau brummels wear their hair brushed up from the ears to form a topknot on top like Woody's, the girls form their topknot out of curls. If the topknot slips forward, advice is to be non-chalant, actually you'll look more woodpecker-ish with a slipping topknot, experts say.

SAVE WORK

If you fold straight pieces straight as they come from the washline and place them flat and smooth in the basket to keep them in shape and as unwrinkled as possible, you will save extra work in ironing.

SALMON FILLING

Canned salmon, used for a sandwich filling or for a canape spread, benefits from a dash of sugar added along with the salad dressing and other seasonings.

CREAM SAUCE

A tablespoon of prepared mustard may be added to two cups of cream sauce when the sauce is to be used for cooked vegetables; dust with paprika before serving.

DUMPLINGS

Dumplings are an inexpensive stretcher for stewed chicken; sprinkle well with chopped fresh parsley just before serving.

SUNSHINE SAYS . . .

Present information as to cost and value makes it quite clear that the entire community would save expense and serve its nutritional needs best, if as much as one quart of whole milk were used for each member of the population daily.

Why We All Should Vote For JACK PORTER For the U. S. SENATE:

1. Governor Thomas E. Dewey will be the next President of the United States—on that point believe everyone agrees. With Jack Porter representing Texas in the U. S. Senate, he can do more for you and me and all other Texans working with a Republican President than can a New Deal Senator.
2. Jack Porter is opposed to the so-called Civil Rights program of both major parties and will fight to prevent any such Federal legislation being enacted.
3. Jack Porter is against controls and regimentation, socialized medicine and any other form of socialization of our country.
4. Jack Porter will fight to protect the oil-rich Tidelands for the school children of Texas. The Democratic Party is pledged to take them away. The loss of these lands would mean higher taxes for every person in Texas, and deprive the Texas school children of the finest school system in the United States.
5. When we send Jack Porter to the U. S. Senate, Texas will be saved the humiliation of having a lot of "dirty linen" dragged out for public review by a Senatorial Investigation Committee of Congress.
6. Jack Porter will have no stigma or suspicion of fraud attached to his name when he goes to Washington as our Senator.
7. Jack Porter, born on a Parker County farm, is a true Texan who believes in our free institutions and will fight to keep them free.
8. Jack Porter is bitterly opposed to Communism and will aid our next President, Thomas E. Dewey, in throwing them off the Federal payroll.
9. Jack Porter will be seated when he is elected.

BUILDING NEWS

Junior Misses Like to Plan Their Rooms

The junior miss in your family needs a room of her own which she has the fun of planning herself. Hidden artistic qualities the family never suspected will crop out if she's given a chance to express herself decoratively. There's a big chunk of homemaking in every bobby soxer despite her chattering about movie stars and radio crooners.

If the young lady has grown up with the same bedroom furniture since her babyhood days, why not give her free rein to convert her room into a combination bed-sitting room? She will love the privacy such a room gives when her young friends come to visit. It's a perfect solution for getting the younger set out of the family living room, too.

Let her go as frilly or tailored as her taste runs. Encourage any originality she may have, however startling. Unless the furniture she now has is fine old mahogany, give her carte blanche to paint it, decorate it, make it over or cut it up. Only give advice when it is requested. You'll be surprised at the ingenuity she expresses. You might offer her the luxury of a shaggy wool carpet or rug in a gay, yummy color as the family's contribution to her "bachelor girl" apartment. It will prove a great help as a sound-absorber.

ATTIC VENTILATION

Attic ventilating fans should be large enough to change the air completely once every minute. Adequate ventilation is needed where mineral wool or any other type of insulation is used. If a fan is not used, cross - ventilation should be provided through two openings, each having one square foot of opening for each 576 square feet of space to be ventilated.

Home Owners Save Money Doing Own Repairing

Part of the pleasure of owning a home is planning and carrying out improvements and repairs oneself. A considerable amount of concrete repair turns up around the home each year and the owner can save money by doing this himself.

Working with concrete is simpler than many people realize. Only simple tools are needed: A mixing shovel; a six-foot rule, saw and hammer for erecting board forms; a level, wood float, edger, straight-edged board, rectangular steel trowel, a bucket and a bottomless measuring box 3x1x1 feet. The interior of the box is marked off at 4-inch intervals. Filled to the first line, it holds 1 cubic foot, to the second line 2 cubic feet, and when full to the top 3 cubic feet. Concrete can be mixed right on the ground, but it is better to use a platform made of rough lumber.

For small jobs, a good concrete mix is one sack of cement; 2 cubic feet of clean fine sand; 3 cubic feet of sharp gravel or finely crushed rock; and not over 6 gallons of water. This makes 4 cubic feet of concrete. For larger or smaller amounts, proportions are varied accordingly: Twice as much for 8 cubic feet; half as much for 2 cubic feet. One sack of cement contains 1 cubic foot.

All the dry materials are first thoroughly mixed, after which water is added slowly to a depression in the dry pile.

Concrete is of the right consistency when no free water shows, and spaces between pebbles fill when lightly trowled. It should be placed within 30 minutes after mixing. Work it in well with the edge of the shovel while being poured, then level off with a straight-edged board.

As the film of water disappears, smooth the surface with the wood float, and again as the concrete begins to stiffen. This gives a non-slip surface. For a smooth surface, go over it with the steel trowel after the second use of the wood float and when the surface is quite stiff. Edges of a walk are curved slightly by running the edging too along them when the concrete is stiff.

Dried Joists Needed for H'wood Floor

Building experts stress the importance of using adequately dried joist lumber and subflooring boards to prevent floor squeaks in a house.

They say that squeaks rarely originate in the hardwood finish flooring. This is due, they point out, to the fact that modern hardwood flooring, in addition to being air-dried for long periods before processing, is scientifically kilndried at the mill.

The squeaks which sometimes develop in floors often can be traced to the use of wet or "green" joist lumber or subflooring boards, although inadequate nailing frequently is responsible, the experts decalre.

They explain that "green" joists and subflooring boards eventually lose most of their moisture. In so doing they shrink and pull loose from the nailing. Weight placed on the floor then causes a slight movement and consequent squeak. Home builders can guard against this condition by making certain that properly dried lumber is employed.

Authorities on floor construction assert that while hardwood flooring is dried scientifically to prevent excessive expansion and shrinkage after it has been laid, ordinary precautions should be taken to protect it from dampness. Preferably, too, installation should be entrusted to skilled mechanics familiar with the approved methods.

In recommended practice the flooring is laid only after the plaster has died thoroughly and all work except the final interior trim has been completed. It is advisable to have the flooring delivered to the site four or five days before installation and piled loosely in the building. A temperature of about 70 degrees should be maintained in the structure. In this way the flooring, having been reduced to a low moisture content in kiln-drying, adjusts itself properly to the atmospheric conditions inside the house. The degree of shrinkage or expansion after installation is therefore so small that it does not affect the floor.

Inspect, Repair Storm Sashes Before Winter

Best practice when putting up storm sash is to take them out of storage a few days before installation for inspection, repair and painting, say spokesmen for the Construction Research Bureau of New York, clearing house for building information. Loose putty should be removed, panes re-puttied, and the sash painted. Painting every fall before installing for the winter will prolong their life. If the storm windows have warped, strips of flexible weatherstrip along the edge touching the window casing will close the crack. Storm windows, weatherstripping and mineral wool insulation will save as much as one-half the fuel during a heating season, according to the National Bureau of Standards.

Before storing screens for the winter, they should be cleaned with benzine to prevent corrosion from summer dirt and grease. If paint is in bad condition the screens should be painted before storing; otherwise wait until spring. Screens should be stored flat or suspended from racks on the basement ceiling to prevent warping.

Storage Wall in Garage Convenient

The nuisance and clutter of articles stored haphazardly in the garage can be eliminated. A storage cabinet along one wall of the garage provides neatly for bicycles sports and camping equipment lawn tools and other articles difficult to store elsewhere.

Two feet is a good depth for the storage wall, and it should be at least four feet high and run the full length of the garage. It should have shelves and compartments to fit the various articles and be equipped with doors for dust protection and to avoid unsightliness. If provided with an opening to the outside, it will be easier to store or remove articles.

WINDOW CORDS

Window cords will last longer and raising and lowering of windows will be easier if cords are dusted twice a year and rubbed with an oil-saturated cloth.

Wild turkeys roost in trees but build their nests on the ground. Being semi-aquatic, they are excellent swimmers and like to wade through swamps.

Mixture of Woods and Finishes Add Interest and Variety to Room

Don't be afraid to combine woods and finishes. Many interesting changes have taken place in wood finishes since the war and the results make it possible to combine various types of wood with pleasing results.

Walnut tones now range from a soft grey "bayleaf" brown to a deep, rich nut shade typical of beautiful American walnut.

Mahogany varies from light blond to dark cocoa. A single piece of light mahogany may be used as an accent note with a group.

Oak takes on new importance as new grains bring out the beauty of the wood. Ebony or black oak makes an exciting contrast to "limed" oak (white filler rubbed into the pores of the wood giving the wood a frosted effect.)

Cherry and maple go well together and the fruitwood finishes are a beautiful complement to maple.

Mixing of woods adds variety and interest to a room and is just as improtant in decorating as selecting the right pictures and accessories.

Use of Top Contractor Always Best

Whether a family about to build its own home employs an architect or deals directly with a general contractor is a question to be settled only by the family.

For a fee of 3 1-2 to 15 percent of the total cost of the house, an architect will provide plans and specifications; supervise every detail; work closely with owner and contractor; and watch for legal pitfalls.

In any case, there should be a written agreement between owner and contractor covering scope of the work, method and time of payment and time of completion. The contractor will furnish all material, award sub-contracts, and direct construction.

Every community has many competent general contractors who welcome investigation of their reputation, integrity and relations with labor and sub-contractors. From their experience, material dealers and lending agencies will recommend several such firms or individuals.

Two methods of payment are used: lump sum whereby the contractor agrees in his bid to build the house for a fixed sum including all costs and contractor's profits; (2) cost-plus whereby the contractor is paid actual cost of materials and labor, plus a fixed fee, usually 10 or 15 percent of total, for his overhead and profit.

Texas Building Drops 1 Percent

AUSTIN — September building permits in 49 Texas cities totaled $32,809,455, reflecting a 9-percent gain over August but a 1-percent decline from September 1947, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reported.

Leading the state for three consecutive months, Houston's building permits totaled $7,842,950. Dallas was second, with $6,867,985; San Antonio, Fort Worth, and Lubbock followed in that order.

Building permits more than doubled August levels in Texas City, Marshall, Jacksonville, Brownsville, Lubbock, and El Pas

Sharp declines from August occurred in Lockhart, Denton, Edinburg, Nacogdoches, Port Arthur and New Braunfels.

Cities doubling building permits from September, 1947, were Snyder, Lockhart, Childress, Lubbock, and Tyler. Substantial decreases were in Midland, Palestine, Brownwood, Bryan, Nacogdoches, and Gainesville.

More than 1 billion metal cans are used in an average year to pack meat in the United States.

REMOVE FIRE HAZARD

Danger of overheated and defective heating systems which cause 24 percent of all fires can be largely eliminated if the home is insulated with full-thick mineral wool because the insulation ends the necessity of forced firing.
