Sprayberry loses office in sentencing

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Midland Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry, who was returned to office by 94 percent of the voters in 1984, was removed from office by a district judge today after accepting a sentence of four years probation for attempting to sexually assault his secretary.

Sprayberry, 45, was convicted in Abilene last week of trying to force 36-year-old Wanda Niblett to perform oral sex while they were riding in his car on April 26, 1984.

Almost two years to the day after that incident, he stood in Midland's 238th District courtroom and reluctantly gave his assent to a deal worked out this morning by special prosecutor Andy Shuval and defense attorney John W. Smith.

Sprayberry was sentenced to three years in state prison, but Judge James H. Clack suspended the sentence, gave him four years probation and ordered him to pay $2,000 in restitution to Midland County.

Attempted sexual assault is a third-degree felony with a penalty range of two to 10 years in prison and an optional fine up to $5,000.

Sprayberry agreed to withdraw his motion for a mistrial based on jury misconduct in Abilene. He also waived his right to appeal.

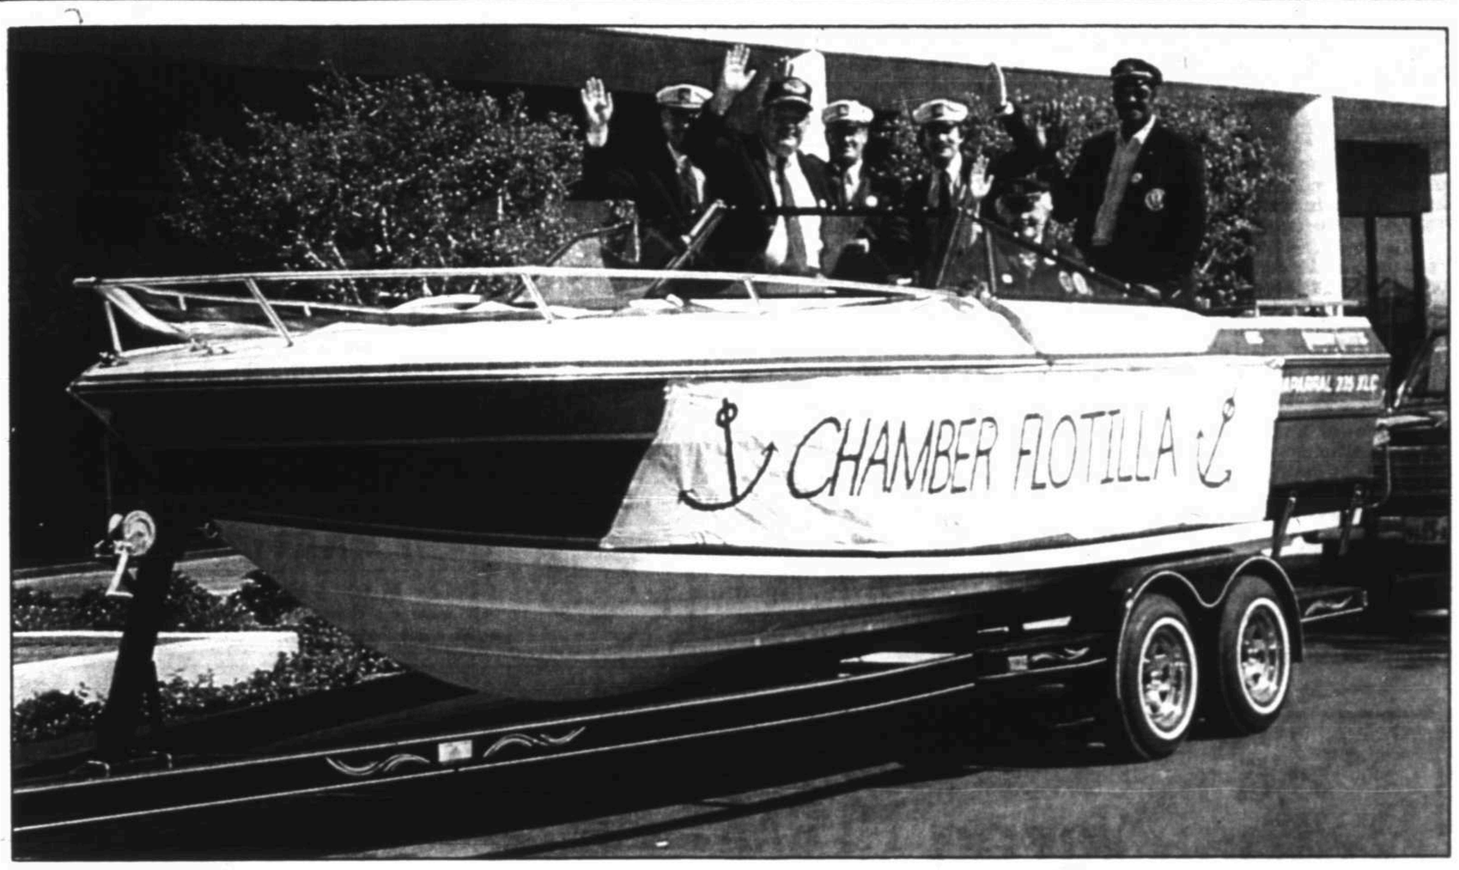

"This case is closed," said Clack, who was expected to sign the judgement formally removing Sprayberry from office early this afternoon.

"It creates a vacancy in the office which must be filled by the county commissioners," said County Attorney Mark Dettman this morning.

Dettman said whomever the commissioners appoint to replace Sprayberry "is supposed to run in the next general election," but that since the primary is next week, it might be too late for Precinct 1, Place 1 JP candidates to file for the November 1986 election.

Sprayberry left the courtroom without commenting this morning.

The chamber is seeking new members and a "Victory Celebration" is slated for 5-7 p.m. next Thursday at ClayDesta National Bank Atrium. At that time, totals will be tallied and the winning salesmen will be recognized.

White was wrong, Clements claims

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White intentionally misled the public about the taxes raised to support public school reforms, former Gov. Bill Clements — who added a few misstatements of his own — charged Thursday.

"He said two things in regard to that bill which were completely wrong and misled the public, and it was a matter of disinformation, and I'm sure it was done intentionally," Clements, now seeking the Republican nomination to return to office, told reporters Thursday morning.

"He said first of all that House Bill 72 would not under any circumstances increase anyone's tax. Well that's just nonsense obviously. The second thing he said after he was tagged on that issue and he admitted that that was a misstatement and he shouldn't have said it, he then said that that total tax result on House Bill 72 would be for education on one hand and highways on the other, and he never acknowledged that there was about $700 million in there that was going to general revenue and was a general tax bill."

One hour later, White refuted the charges with little comment. "Let me just say that he's incorrect in his assessment," the governor said at his weekly news conference.

In attempting to defuse teacher opposition to the school reforms, White has taken pains to point out that Clements signed a 1981 bill — House Bill 246 — that instituted a new statewide curriculum and has produced much of the paperwork now overwhelming many teachers. Clements said he is not concerned about the paperwork — including massive lesson plans and countless new forms — that bill generated.

"The more that Mark White will talk about House Bill 246 the better I like it," Clements said. "That was the first significant reform of public education in Texas since the Gilmer-Aiken bills of 1949."

Reagan begins Far East summit trip

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Reagan embarked today on the longest trip of his presidency, a 22,300-mile journey to the Far East that will climax in Tokyo with a seven-nation summit meeting set up to discuss economics but likely to be dominated by the specter of terrorism.

Reagan, in brief remarks as he left from Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington, said he is going to Asia "to reaffirm and renew our economic, strategic and political ties."

"It is a journey we are very excited about," Reagan said, mentioning talks he will have in Indonesia and Japan but making no reference to terrorism, whose importance on the agenda was evident from a new sign at the base gate.

"Terrorist Condition," it said. "Threatcon Alpha. Actual."

The sign, which went up following the U.S. bombing raid against Libya early last week, indicates actual counter-terrorism measures are in effect and that they are not part of a test but that the level of alert — Alpha — is relatively low.

Reiterating the theme the White House has sought to set for the trip, Reagan repeated its "Winds of Freedom" slogan, saying, "They are brisk and bracing winds, sweeping out the old and, I believe, ushering in a new era of freedom, an era in which democracy is once again recognized as the new idea."

Classroom Crisis?

Discipline questioned

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Republican gubernatorial candidate Kent Hance likes to tell a story about the Aldine High School student caught selling marijuana on campus.

As Hance tells it, the changes in school discipline that came with the massive 1984 public school reforms have made it impossible for Aldine officials to suspend or expel the youngster. For Hance, the story is an excellent dig at Gov. Mark White, a chance to show that White's reform package isn't quite as perfect as the governor makes it out to be.

"Get the people who are in the trenches, carrying out the day-to-day reforms and ask them what works and what doesn't," Hance told an audience in New Braunfels last month.

AUSTIN — The third-grade teachers sat around the small table in the coffee lounge in Beaumont's Amelia Elementary School laughing — to keep from crying — about the latest form from the office.

This time they had to answer to a computer printout of their classroom inventories. The printout showed one teacher with 134 student desks, four teacher desks and five clocks. FIVE CLOCKS. Another had but four desks for her 25 students and none for herself. It's typical, they said.

"Tons and tons and tons of material comes for me to work," one of them said. "It's like I'm supposed to throw out the 28 children. It's always got to be done yesterday. I've got all these cute little kids sitting there, and they're No. 1."

David Whytlaw quit teaching math at Midland's Lee High School in 1982 to start his own business. Three years later, realizing he was more cut out for the classroom than the business world, he returned.

"I thought there was a lot of paperwork when I quit," he said. "It has at least tripled since that time. Lesson plans are necessary, but not the volumes which seem to be required.... Now I must document everything — parent contacts, absences, tardies, discipline problems. All of this takes time away from my teaching."

Steve Levine heads up the Reporter-Telegram's Austin Bureau staff.

At Silsbee High School, English teacher Bill Gilchriest can't keep up. Every six weeks he has 85 report cards to fill out. One week later there are flunk slips to the parents of students who failed his class. Three weeks after that come the mid-term updates. Then it's report card time again.

"Frankly I just can't do it," Gilchriest said. "I've never gotten mine out on time."

The paperwork keeps Gilchriest busy during his one-hour daily break, so that means he has to grade papers at home. "I don't get paid enough to do three or four hours a night at home, so consequently, I don't assign as much."

A third-grade teacher at Nye Elementary School in Laredo said she grades 6,000 student papers every six weeks. Then she tackles the "office's paperwork."

Observers like Education Commissioner William Kirby blame administrators' overzealous implementation of House Bill 246 — the 1981 law that mandated a new statewide curriculum and documentation that districts are teaching that curriculum — for most of the paperwork nightmare.

Soon after he took office in late 1984, Kirby sent a letter to all districts, showing them how they could cut back on the extensive lesson plans many were asking their teachers to prepare. He has prepared "another epistle...to the people out in the field" full of tips on how to reduce the grading sheet paperwork load.

Some supervisors complained that only the paperwork could give them the evidence they need to show the state that they are teaching the new curriculum correctly. In response, lawmakers in 1985 drafted a bill that would have threatened the certificate of administrators who pile on the paperwork. That bill got caught in a House-Senate battle and never became law.

But Kirby has another plan. "We are ordering our accreditation teams as they go out to look very carefully at the paperwork problem, and to just as readily write up a district for going too far and doing too much as they do for doing too little."

Louisiana boy honored for rescuing canoeist

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 14-year-old Louisiana boy who battled his way through rapids to save a drowning canoeist has earned a spot on the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission's honor roll.

The Bright Side

D. Robert Young Jr., who was recognized for his heroism Thursday, was canoeing with his family and friends in Buffalo River near St. Joe, Ark., on May 26, 1985, when his boat overturned.

Velma Messer, 37, a non-swimmer, was among those who went overboard.

"He knew she was drowning and that he had to get over there to her," his mother, Marcia Young, 41, said from the family's Forest Hill, La., home.

Young held Mrs. Messer's head above water and struggled to pull her to shore. His father then helped him bring her to safety. The teen-ager and Mrs. Messer have since become fast friends, according to Mrs. Young.

STATE

Policies caused farmers to fail, Hightower says

AMARILLO (AP) — Policies in Washington have caused the state to lose 16,000 Texas farmers and ranchers last year, state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Hightower, speaking before the chamber Thursday, accused Washington of setting "artificially" low prices for commodities.

"We lost 16,000 productive farmers and ranchers last year, not because of bad management on their part, not because of bad weather, not because of bad luck, but as a direct result of deliberate agriculture policies coming out of Washington, D.C., for about the last 30 years," Hightower said.

A study by the Independent Bankers Association showed that of the 22 leading agriculture areas in Texas, only six are in break-even situations, Hightower said.

Hightower said that Texas needs to concentrate on marketing, helping farmers sell as directly as possible to the ultimate buyer at a price that allows them to make a profit. He said 34 farmers' markets have been established in the last three years, and 45 should be complete at the end of this year.

Hightower also pushed for long-range planning and diversification of crops, including establishing wine vineyards.

"There was one wine in 1975 in Breckenridge. Today, there's 18 wineries and another four are going online this year. We're going to be second to California in quantity and surpass them in quality," he said.

Texas' second concentration, said Hightower, should be on processing of Texas commodities in Texas. Currently raw goods are shipped out to be processed then shipped back in to be sold to Texans.

Hightower praised the efforts of wheat farmers from Dawn who, with the help of the Texas Agriculture Commission, are establishing a flour mill.

"We need to be investing in people at a grass roots level," he said. "It's not trickle down economics; it's percolate up economics."

Also speaking Thursday was U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, who said a cupful of cuts in the military, a freeze in entitlement programs and at least a dash of higher taxes is the only realistic recipe for cooking up a balanced federal budget.

"It is impossible to balance the budget without cutting defense, without cutting entitlements, without raising taxes," he said. "We need to cut spending as deep as we can everywhere we can find 218 votes (a majority in the House of Representatives)."

To fix the problems, some type of cuts must be found in the Defense Department and such entitlement programs as Social Security, Stenholm said. Together the two areas comprise more than 50 percent of the federal budget.

Similarly, he said, freezing entitlements not only is necessary but defensible, even though it is political suicidal to push for those kinds of changes.

Stenholm pointed out that although the elderly make up only 11 percent of the nation's population, they take 51 percent of the social services spending.

'Big D' for Dallasites often means divorce

DALLAS (AP) — The "D" in Big D may stand for divorce, at least according to a new book dubbing the city tops in broken marriages.

The Book of World City Rankings lists Dallas as the No. 1 city with 8.4 divorces per 1,000 people. Lowest of the 105 cities listed is Rio de Janeiro with .2 divorces per 1,000 people.

The top five divorce cities are Dallas, followed by Phoenix, Houston, Washington and Leningrad, Soviet Union, according to the book.

John Tepper Marlin, co-author of the book, said Wednesday that Dallas and other Southwest cities have nurtured a vibrant and businesslike image. But he said the image often contrasts with hopes of a smooth social life.

"If business there runs so smoothly, then some may also have a similarly high expectation of their private affairs. Often that isn't realistic," he said.

Marlin said the Dallas divorce ranking is drawn from 1980 U.S. Census figures and from 1979 totals from the National Center for Health Statistics. During that year, metropolitan Dallas, with a population of 1.5 million, accounted for 13,129 divorces, he said.

"These things tend to be consistent," he said.

In 1985, Dallas County granted 13,314 divorces, records show. Nationally, the average was about 5 divorces per 1,000 people, according to federal statistics.

Marlin and the two other writers, Immanuel Ness and Stephen T. Collins, used statistics from the Council on Municipal Performance, a private group in New York that collects and evaluates information on cities and their management.

According to the book, other firsts were St. Louis with the most homicides; Washington, D.C. with the most telephones; and Bogota, Colombia with the most expensive furnishing costs.

State District Judge Frances Harris said the state's no-fault divorce laws and changes in society's views have led to the rising rate of failed marriages.

Senate considers nixing tax deductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, which has shown little support for any tax overhaul that reduces deductions, is considering a new plan — one that would repeal all itemized deductions, including interest on a home mortgage.

The new proposal, presented Thursday by Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., would have a maximum individual tax rate of 25 percent, half the present top rate. But it would end the preferential treatment for Individual Retirement Accounts and capital gains.

The plan was presented to the Finance Committee at a closed session that was called to breathe some life into the foundering tax-overhaul issue, which President Reagan says is the top domestic initiative of his second term.

Sources familiar with the meeting said Packwood did not seek committee support for the new plan but simply put it on the table for consideration as one option.

"It was received politely," said one member who attended.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said the earlier Packwood plan "appears to be headed down a dead-end street. I'm willing to explore the possibilities of the chairman's new proposal."

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, offered a similar assessment. 'I'm for anything that will produce tax reform," he said.

Packwood talked to reporters only in passing, saying the closed-door discussion had produced an interesting reaction. "It certainly is worth pursuing more," he said.

Several members left the meeting expressing optimism that the panel will be able to agree on a tax bill this year. "My sense is that people want to proceed," said Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J.

Nevertheless, there was no indication that the closed session removed any of the reluctance the committee has shown toward reducing or eliminating several deductions and exemptions to pay for lower tax rates.

The new proposal would go further in eliminating deductions than would any other seriously considered by Congress this year or last. It is similar to one originally proposed by the Treasury Department in November 1984 — a plan that Reagan and the House rejected as politically unrealistic.

Here, according to several sources familiar with the latest proposal, are key elements:

Habib reportedly seeks Nicaragua compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential envoy Philip Habib continued a 12-nation tour of Latin America today amid reports in Washington he is seeking a compromise on Nicaragua that would halt U.S. aid to the Contras in exchange for guarantees that Nicaragua won't threaten its neighbors.

"I think Ambassador Habib is deeply committed to trying to resolve this situation peacefully," said Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan., one of several lawmakers to receive a letter from Habib outlining the terms for terminating aid to the Contra rebels.

Those terms, Slattery and several other legislators said, should meet Nicaragua's demand that the United States cut off aid to the Contras before Nicaragua will sign a peace accord sponsored by the Contadora group of nations on June 6.

It isn't known whether President Reagan would go along. As recently as Wednesday, Reagan pledged his full support to the Contras, whom he calls "freedom-fighters." And he didn't even mention the Contadora negotiations in his nationwide address on March 16 calling for more military aid for the Contras.

But in his April 11 letter, Habib said the administration interprets existing Contadora proposals "as requiring a cessation of support to irregular forces and-or insurrectional movements from the date of signature."

The United States would "support and abide by a comprehensive, verifiable and simultaneous implementation" of an agreement fulfilling the Contadora's objectives, Habib's letter said, as long as Nicaragua also supports and abides by such an agreement.

Habib sent the letter to Reps. Slattery, Michael Barnes, D-Md., and Bill Richardson, D-N.M., at their request following a meeting they held with him in early April. The meeting took place after the three congressmen had returned from observing a Contadora meeting in Panama City, where Nicaragua refused to go along with a peace plan until the United States agreed to stop aiding the Contras.

"I think it creates a historic opportunity for us to end the Contra war," Slattery said in an interview. "I think this is the first time Mr. Habib has set forth under what precise conditions the United States would terminate aid to the Contras. The Nicaraguans have said in the past they will sign the treaty when aid terminates. ... It basically throws the ball into Nicaragua's court."

Chemical burns, hazing incidents leads to fraternity disbanding

ST. PETER, Minn. (AP) — A fraternity that used a chemical to burn its insignia on the backs of several pledges has been disbanded and the college is looking into whether any students should be disciplined, an official said.

The Lutheran Church of America-affiliated Gustavus Adolphus College sorority and fraternity affairs board agreed Tuesday to pull the charter of Phi Alpha, said Dean of Students Bruce Gray. The fraternity is banned from the school at least until next year.

At least six students were treated Saturday for chemical burns from silver nitrate, Gray said. They are all back in class now.

The liberal arts college has 2,200 students.

Khadafy labels Americans 'subhuman'

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy told Soviet journalists that Americans and their NATO allies are uncivilized and subhuman.

In an interview shown late Thursday on Libyan television, Khadafy said, "It seems they are a species in between pigs and humans. They have not developed to the level of normal humans."

The state-run JANA news agency claimed today the CIA planted the bomb that damaged a British Airways office in London on Thursday. But the Daily Telegraph newspaper in London said Scotland Yard was working on the theory that Libyans or their agents were responsible. The newspaper did not identify its sources.

No one was injured in the blast, but a passer-by was treated for shock.

Libyan Information Minister Mohammed Sharefeddin said Wednesday that the CIA and Israeli secret service were planning sabotage in Europe to discredit Libya — a claim that White House spokesman Larry Speakes dismissed as absurd.

Meanwhile, JANA and Libyan television said today that Khadafy has sent an important message to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. They did not disclose the contents of the message.

Khadafy has made a show of strengthening Libya's ties with Moscow following the U.S. bombing raids on Tripoli and Benghazi on April 15.

Tass confirmed today that one Soviet cruiser was in Tripoli "on a business visit from the country of friends." JANA said earlier this week that three Soviet cruisers were visiting Libyan ports, but the Tass report made no mention of other Soviet ships in Libya.

There was no indication when Khadafy's 20-minute interview with Soviet journalists was filmed. Parts of it were reported by Tass on Wednesday from Moscow, but Tass did not mention Khadafy's opinion of Westerners.

Khadafy, 44, claimed the United States intended to kill him with its air raids, and called for establishment of an international front to destroy "imperialism and neo-Nazism."

He praised Gorbachev's proposal to withdraw the U.S. and Soviet fleets from the Mediterranean, and thanked the Soviet media for denouncing the raid.

The Reagan administration has denied trying to kill Khadafy, saying the bombers aimed at military targets and terrorist training centers.

President Reagan has said he ordered the raid to retaliate for alleged Libyan involvement in terrorist attacks on Americans, especially the April 5 bombing of a West Berlin nightclub in which a U.S. soldier and a Turkish woman were killed.

Western journalists in Tripoli have not seen Khadafy since the raid, but he has appeared on Libyan television several times. He said in a speech shortly after the raid that Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher should be tried as war criminals.

Mrs. Thatcher backed the U.S. attack by allowing 18 U.S. F-111 fighter-bombers to fly from British bases, but other NATO allies criticized the raid.

Since the bombings, most of the Western allies have agreed on a series of diplomatic sanctions against Libya, and several countries have ordered Libyans to leave.

Khadafy told the Soviet journalists that members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, led by the United States, were uncivilized.

"Bombers attack a family, a house and children to murder them, strategic bombers, hundreds of aircraft for hitting a house," he said. "As long as they are of such a nature, there is no hope of reaching an understanding with imperialists."

Libyan officials say 37 people died in the raids, including Khadafy's adopted baby daughter Hana, and that two of Khadafy's young sons were injured.

Libyan students barred from aircraft work in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain today barred more than 300 Libyan aviation students from working on aircraft for security reasons and said they would be expected to leave the country when their student visas expire.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Parliament in a written statement that the Libyan aviation students would not be allowed to complete their courses.

Twenty-two other Libyan students who were rounded up earlier this week as suspected subversives were scheduled to leave Britain today on a Libyan Arab Airlines flight, the Home Office said.

The new order affects about 16 Libyans studying to be pilots and about 320 who are studying aircraft maintenance.

"I don't think it right and I don't think the public would understand it if we allowed Libyans to train on civilian aircraft which ... may be going into service the day after they have finished with them," Transport Secretary Nicholas Ridley told the British Broadcasting Corp. "There is always a risk there."

The students were scattered around the country at five aircraft maintenance schools and three main private flying schools, said department spokesman Stephen Cantrell. The order also was being circulated to smaller flying schools and private flying clubs, he said.

By barring the Libyans from working on airplanes or being in airports, the order will prevent them from completing their courses of study and means they will have to leave when their six-month student visas expire in a few months, Cantrell said.

Ridley said the move made the students' departure from Britain inevitable unless they could show the Home Office grounds for being allowed to stay.

He told the BBC he doubted "the public would understand if Libyan pilots were ... able to go to any part of the country they chose. I fear reluctantly this must be done for security reasons."

In a separate written statement to Parliament on Thursday night, Mrs. Thatcher accused Libya of involvement in terrorist acts in Britain since 1980.

She listed bombings in London and Manchester in March 1984 in which 20 Britons were injured, the killing of a policewoman by gunfire from inside the Libyan embassy in April 1984 and the supply of arms to the outlawed Irish Republican Army last year.

The government already had banned Libyan student pilots from flying solo after one of them allegedly said he would form suicide squads to attack American interests. There were fears that Libyans would hit U.S. air bases in Britain or other targets.

That student pilot, Adel Masaoud, 23, was among the 22 Libyans who were being expelled today. Twenty others in the group, identified only as students at universities in Scotland, Wales and England, were detained Tuesday and one Libyan man was detained Wednesday night.

The government said the 22 had sponsored "student revolutionary activity" in this country and that their expulsion was necessary for public safety.

TRIP

Asked whether he had any concern about possible terrorist attacks directed against him or Mrs. Reagan, he said, "I'm superstitious. I won't even mention it."

As he left the White House for the helicopter ride to Andrews, hundreds of White House employees gathered on the South Lawn to wave and cheer.

With him were Secretary of State George Shultz, national security adviser John Poindexter, White House chief of staff Donald Regan and presidential spokesman Larry Speakes.

Vice President George Bush and members of Reagan's Cabinet were on hand for the sendoff, marked by the playing of "Stars and Stripes Forever" by a military band on a White House balcony.

With a schedule designed to give the 75-year-old president time to adjust to the 13-hour time difference, Reagan will take a week to reach Tokyo with rest stops in Hawaii and the Indonesian island of Bali. He returns to the United States via Anchorage, Alaska, on May 7 at the end of the 12-day journey.

At the start of his third presidential trip to Asia, Reagan goes first to Los Angeles, where he will rendezvous with his wife, Nancy, who stopped in Phoenix to visit her aged mother. After a private overnight stop, they fly to Honolulu, where they will stay at a private estate for two nights and are not scheduled to make any public appearances after the president's brief remarks upon arrival at Hickam Air Force Base.

Reagan is expected to telephone deposed Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos while in Hawaii. He also is scheduled to receive a briefing on U.S. military operations in the Pacific and receive a courtesy call by Gov. George Ariyoshi.

The Reagans then set out for Bali, a trip that will take more than 14 hours in the air, broken only by a refueling stop in Guam.

During their visit to Bali, a volcanic resort island just south of the equator, the Reagans embark on separate schedules.

Reagan will meet Salvador Laurel, the new Philippines vice president and foreign minister. Laurel will be the first official of the new government to meet with the president.

HEROES

"They were friends before, but now they're real, real close," she said. "We have a pool and he's told her she has to come down this summer to learn to swim."

The teen-ager was the youngest of 16 people from 10 states and Canada honored for risking their lives to save others. The honorees were awarded a bronze medal and $2,500. Three of the 16 died in the rescue attempts.

The non-profit commission has honored 6,985 Americans and Canadians since it was founded by industrialist Andrew Carnegie in 1904.

Among the latest recipients is Edward F. Person, 31, a farmer from Moultonborough, N.H., who said he didn't think think twice when he rushed to help a state police officer struggling with a prisoner over her gun.

"It's just something that had to be done," he said. "Maybe it's a little different here than other parts of the country. But out here, when somebody's in trouble, you give them a hand. You think about the consequences later. Luckily, nobody got hurt."

Person said he had just returned to his vegetable and poultry farm Aug. 14, 1984, when he saw a police car pull off the road and heard cries for help. He rushed over and found Trooper Kathleen M. Harte struggling with a prisoner.

Person leaned into the car and put his hands over the trooper's gun to keep it from going off. Harte broke free, and both she and Person fled to safety.

The prisoner escaped in the car, but was tracked down two days later and committed suicide.

Also recognized Thursday were:

— Mary Elizabeth Brayboy, 44, of Baton Rouge, La., who prevented two co-workers from being shot by an enraged employee at their office in Carville, La., on March 29, 1984.

— Kerry E. Cochran, 30, of Parkersburg, W.Va., who rescued a truck driver from his burning rig near Knightstown, Ind., on Feb. 20, 1985.

— Gloria Duncan, 27, of Fort St. James, British Columbia, who saved a woman from being stabbed to death along a rural road near Pinchi, British Columbia, on May 14, 1984.

— Bertha Flores, 30, a temporary worker at a home for adolescent girls in Brawley, Calif., who helped two residents escape when fire engulfed the home on Feb. 15, 1984. The Calexico, Calif., resident died while attempting to rescue her 5-month-old son, Victor, from the building. The infant also died.

American embassy officer injured in Yemen shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American communications officer at the U.S. Embassy in North Yemen was shot today by an unidentified gunman as the worker was driving home from church, the State Department said.

Department spokesman Joseph Reap said the life of the worker, whose name was not released, "does not appear to be in danger."

Reap said the man was shot from a passing car and was hit by two of three bullets.

But the worker walked to his home and summoned assistance.

The worker was then taken to a hospital in the North Yemeni capital of Sana'a and was operated on. He was reported to be in stable condition.

The spokesman said no one had claimed responsibility for the attack.

Reap said the response from the Yemeni authorities, "in terms of both medical assistance and for the security for Americans in Sana'a, has been excellent."

Church services in the Arab world normally are held on Fridays.

Last week, a communications officer at the U.S. Embassy in the Sudan was shot. He was flown to Saudi Arabia for treatment and was reported in stable condition.

DISCIPLINE

White says Hance is just playing politics, trying to confuse the issue.

"I can clear it up for them real fast," the governor said. "Go look at the criminal law. If you've got a violation on your campus, all you have to do is call the police and say, 'Here, arrest this one and get him out of here.'

"It doesn't help in this regard to have a Kent Hance who doesn't know it from thunder to be out there saying something happened that didn't."

M.B. Donaldson, assistant superintendent at Aldine ISD north of Houston, says Hance took a generalized complaint and turned it into a specific incident. But the complaint holds true.

"We cannot expel a student caught selling drugs in school," Donaldson said. "Last year we expelled kids for selling drugs, no question about it."

The education reform bill established a strict pattern for dealing with discipline problems.

The first step for students found incorrigible — those whose "continued presence in the regular classroom...presents a clear, present and continuing danger of physicial harm" or who have "engaged in serious or persistent misbehavior that threatens to impair the educational efficiency of the school" — is an alternative education program. That may be in-school suspension, a special classroom, transfer to another school or home-based instruction.

Marvin Durden, principal at Odom Middle School in Beaumont, said he routinely has one or two disruptive students spending their class time in his office. "Suspension is really the last resort," Durden said. "What am I going to do with the kid?"

The law allows expulsion only for students who assault teachers or others on school property or for those whom the board finds continue their incorrigible conduct even in the alternative education programs.

Education Commissioner William Kirby said the State Board of Education has tried to provide districts with some alternatives within the scope of the law. "You've got a very rigid law," he said.

The drafters of that portion of the school reform bill say the new discipline management plan was intended to force schools to "try to keep the students in the academic environment as long as possible."

"We thought at the time it took into account the best interests of the students and the administrators," said Sally Haenelt, chief clerk of the Senate Education Committee.

Kirby said the elimination of the short-term suspension created the greatest problem. "Just by a child knowing that threat is there, they'll be reluctant to misbehave," he said.

Both the House and the Senate passed bills during the 1985 legislative session that reinstated the six-day suspension for incorrigible students. The bills also extended the expulsion option for those who use or sell drugs or alcohol or who carry a weapon on school property.

The two chambers could not come to agreement, however, on portions of the bills dealing with other education topics, and the bills died on the last day of the session. Those political squabbles don't do much for the morale of teachers like Richard Atmar, who teaches freshman English at Silsbee High School.

"The only way we can get a disruptive student out of our classes is if he physically assaults us," Atmar said.

SPRAYBERRY

"There's always a time to fight and a time to run, and we backed off on this one," said Smith. "He didn't want to give up, but good sense prevailed."

The prosecution agreed to drop five pending misdemeanor charges against Sprayberry, and not to bring any new charges against him. Shuval said he had told the defense he had been considering charging Sprayberry with misapplication of funds and campaign-law violations.

"A convicted felon has been removed from office," said Shuval, who gave particular credit to C.J. Havrda and other officers from the Midland office of the Texas Rangers.

Sprayberry, a Republican, was first elected in 1980. He took an unpaid leave of absence after being indicted in November.

His first attempted-sexual-assault trial ended Feb. 20 with a hung jury, and the retrial was moved to Abilene.

Clack heard the trial for Midland's 238th District Judge Vann Culp, and Shuval, of Austin, was handling the prosecution in place of Dettman and Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre.

CLEMENTS

"So I like talking about that bill, I'm proud of that bill."

HB 246 ordered the State Board of Education to put a uniform curriculum into place by the 1984-1985 school year. In his defense of the bill Thursday, Clements mistakenly said it also strengthened standards for teacher certification and "addressed the issue of discipline in the classroom." The bill dealt only with curriculum issues.

White said his recent discussions with teachers — including a Wednesday-night session in Midland — led him to believe that they "seemed to think that Bill Clements was responsible for the paperwork problems."

When asked if the bill's benefits outweigh the increased paperwork, the governor said, "There was curriculum strengthening there and I supported that portion of it, hopefully we can get it done without turning the positives into a great negative."

PAPER

Gov. Mark White, the target of many teachers' discontent because of the teacher tests and other school law changes in House Bill 72, stresses over and over that Gov. Bill Clements, his predecessor and likely opponent in the November elections, signed HB 246. Because both bills took effect in September 1984, White says, he gets blamed for the problems of both.

"On that one single issue, he's probably correct," said Jeri Stone, executive director of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association and a frequent White critic. "But Governor White has had some opportunities to make some changes in those areas, which he has declined.... I don't know that he's absolutely blameless."

Reminded that he didn't help unclog the anti-paperwork bill last year, White said, "I'm sorry. There's a lot of paperwork reducation that can occur, though, at the local level."

Overreaction, either by local administrators or the State Board of Education, led to another teacher complaint over HB 246, said House Public Education Committee Chairman Bill Haley of Center, the bill's author.

"The intent of that was to make the curriculum flexible so that the State Board of Education and the Texas Education Agency and local school districts would be able to alter the curriculum to fit the times," Haley said. "The idea was to get it back to where the teacher would have the time to do the reading skills and the writing skills and the math skills, at the early grades especially."

At the receiving end, teachers are finding the new curriculum anything but flexible. "The state has mandated just how many minutes must be spent on each subject each day," said Doris Billingsley, a fourth-grade teacher at Thunderbird Elementary School in Plainview.

"If we aren't finished with our reading, we drop it and dash into science, etc. Many children feel frustrated because they never seem to feel caught up on their work."

The state board has defined "essential elements" for each course in the curriculum. Teachers must ensure that they are providing instruction in the essential elements and must test their students to make certain that they are mastering them. Those rigid rules, teachers say, make unreasonable demands on students' abilities and hamper their own creativity.

"It is not possible for everyone to master all these elements," said Nancy Wall, a journalism and speech teacher at South San Antonio High School. "There is no room for failure, and that's unrealistic."

"You just can't teach like you used to teach," said one of the third-grade teachers in the Amelia coffee lounge. "If a kid comes in with a bee or a moth or a snake, you might as well bury it. There's no such thing as a 'teachable moment' anymore. You can't be creative."

House Public Education Committee Chairman Haley said the state board may have exagerated the Legislature's plans.

"It was never intended that they be so rigid at the practicing level that they wouldn't have time to do other things," he said. "In some instances, there may be legitimate complaints about the fact that they are so structured. It may very definitely be overstructured."

NATION IN BRIEF

FBI agent discharged

SOUTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The FBI agent who killed two robbery suspects even though his arm was shattered by a rifle went home from the hospital Thursday to the cheers of nurses and lab technicians.

Pawning nets thief trouble

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When a man plunked down a citizen's band radio on the counter and asked what it was worth, pawn shop employee Ron Zollinger had a pretty good idea — he'd already bought it once.

Anthony Smiley walked into Jessup's pawn shop Thursday afternoon and tried to sell the radio, which he noted was in fine shape and had a built in AM-FM receiver, according to Zollinger and police.

Zollinger, a loan appraiser for Jessup's, recognized the radio and asked the clerk to stall Smiley while he went and checked his van across the street.

Sure enough, his CB radio was missing.

Smiley fled on foot when he saw Zollinger go to the van, police said, but was spotted immediately by a police officer and arrested.

Smiley, 27, was charged with burglary of a conveyance, grand theft and dealing in stolen property. He was being held Thursday night at the Volusia County Correctional Facility on bonds totaling $3,000.

Time capsule paved over

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man returning to his old elementary school in hopes of digging up a Bicentennial time capsule his class buried 10 years ago has been stymied by officials who don't want him breaking up their new pavement.

Jeffrey Stern, a 19-year-old mechanic, was nine when he contributed an eagle trinket to the capsule at Nevada Avenue Elementary School in Canoga Park, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

"I got it off one of the gas lamps outside the apartment over on Independence Avenue, where we lived," Stern said. "I always planned to come back 10 years later and see what else was in there."

But when he made it back Tuesday, hoping to find the capsule in the school garden, he found it paved over and made into a playground.

Burial fee reinstated

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — County commissioners have rejected an official's decision to withhold a $75 burial fee from a soldier's family because he died in last December's Canadian air crash rather than on active duty in wartime.

Westmoreland County Commissioner Richard Vidmer said the county veterans affairs director's "previous judgment, made on technical, literal grounds of the county code missed the spirit and intent of the payment."

The commissioners voted Tuesday to reinstate the burial fee to the family of Michael Shipley, 27, one of the 248 American military personnel killed in the crash of an Arrow Air charter plane in Gander, Newfoundland.

Marilyn Shipley, mother of the 27-year-old soldier, said,

"I thank the commissioners from the bottom of my heart because it's an honor to my son," said Marilyn Shipley, of North Huntingdon.

Plane lands on interstate

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Lloyd Hawken was about three miles shy of an airport runway when a dry fuel tank forced him to set his two-seater aircraft down on the freeway instead, authorities said.

Phone price cuts planned by long-distance companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — AT&T, MCI and GTE-Sprint are planning dramatic reductions in long-distance rates June 1.

For people making out-of-state calls from home, AT&T calculated its average long-distance bill will go down 8.9 percent.

The $1.5 billion AT&T cut, which must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission, triggered plans for the new round of price restructuring in the hotly competitive long-distance arena.

AT&T's competitors were studying the plan but said they would keep their prices competitive.

Because of its size — the government estimates AT&T still has about 80 percent of the interstate long-distance business — the phone giant must submit its price structure for government approval. The smaller companies can change their prices at will.

Under the AT&T proposal, the cost of daytime state-to-state calls would drop by 11.4 percent. The price of weeknight calls before 11 p.m. local time would drop by the same percentage. Smaller reductions — 2.7 percent — are planned for calls after 11 p.m. and on weekends until 5 p.m. Sunday.

The reductions would not affect rates on calls made within states.

The changes would come the same day the FCC doubles a $1 charge residential customers pay for the line that connects them to the telephone central office.

Animal rights activists arrested at university

SAN FRANCISCO - Dozens of animal rights activists around the San Francisco Bay Area were arrested Thursday when they attempted to enter university research laboratories where animals are used for experiments.

The actions were part of a nationally coordinated effort to focus attention on alleged abuses and inhumane treatment of animals used in medical research.

The "April 24 Coalition," composed of at least eight animal welfare organizations with 250,000 members nationwide, had sent letters to 61 university presidents with a list of four demands.

The presidents were advised that protesters would try to enter research labs if they did not negotiate.

Some universities responded, but declined to negotiate.

Vital state races

Among the nominees to be determined in May's Democrat and Republican Primary elections are those for Attorney General, Texas Agriculture Commissioner and a seat on the Texas Railroad Commission.

After meetings with most of the candidates in all those races spanning the past four months, background checks of the individual candidates and talks with local oil industry representatives and those in the legal community, the Reporter-Telegram recommends to voters the following candidates:

Attorney General

Republican: Roy Barrera Jr. of San Antonio gets overall good marks from attorneys in Midland. Now serving as judge of 144th District Court in San Antonio, he was appointed in 1981 as one of only nine state district court judges in Texas to be given the authority to authorize the use of wiretapping as a law enforcement tool in felony drug investigations. Barrera obviously is well-qualified to serve Texas in the capacity as chief law enforcement officer and should be nominated.

Agriculture Commissioner

Democrat: Incumbent Jim Hightower has brought a degree of controversy to the office since 1982. But in light of current market conditions and the dilemma facing the agriculture industry, he appears to be the best qualified candidate. Hightower has concentrated on farming techniques and utilization of equipment technology that are essential to making Texas agribusinessmen the best prepared to compete in the world marketplace. That is a must in the rapidly-changing agriculture industry of today.

Republican: No recommendation.

Railroad Commissioner

Democrat: John Sharp. This is an extremely important position for the foreseeable future and Sharp, a state senator from Victoria, appears to be the best qualified of this party's candidates to represent the state in this post. In his two terms in the state house and as a state senator, Sharp worked closely with the Railroad Commission on many of its regulatory functions including protection of underground water supplies, rivers, streams and lakes and such vital oil and gas industry concerns as enhancing both production and conservation. He also has experience in the other responsibilities he would face on the commission, including authorship of the 1985 Rail Safety Act.

Republican: Ed Emmett. Emmett has been cited as an outstanding member of the Texas Legislature and now serves as chairman of the House Committee on Energy. He also served four terms as a member of the House Committee on Transportation. But even more than that, he promises to bring to the Railroad Commission a new outlook with an emphasis on revitalizing Texas' energy industry, the interstate trucking industry and improving overall safety with an eye turned to the impact on the state's vital natural resources.

LETTERS

Looking for the best!

You may remember Walt Disney's production of "Pollyanna" based on the book by Eleanor Porter. It's the story of a young girl who plays "The Glad Game" whenever she encounters a bad situation. The rules are simple, you look for something good in every situation.

For some reason Pollyanna behavior has been redefined and now is generally taken to mean: Yes, you look for the good, but in doing so, you overlook the seriousness of a situation or choose to ignore the situation altogether, like an ostrich with its head buried in the sand.

In the many upbeat articles the Midland Reporter-Telegram has published recently, practically everyone who professes a positive outlook to our situation in Midland includes a postscript such as "I'm not a Pollyanna" or "This is not to suggest that we should become Pollyannas who ignore the problems of life as though they do not exist."

Pollyanna did not ignore bad situations. According to Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, "Pollyanna is one characterized by irrepressible optimism and a tendency to find good in everything." It says nothing about "overlooking" or "ignoring" the bad, but simply finding good in everything.

A Pollyanna looks at a stopped watch and knows it's right two times each day. There's no denial that the watch needs repair.

When the economy is good, God's in His heaven and all's right with the world. All it takes is a charted course to sail through calm waters. But when the ship flounders in rough seas, it takes courage, conviction and a Pollyanna character to face the future with an optimistic attitude and positive determination that you will succeed ultimately — maybe not unscathed — but a better person for accepting the challenge.

The challenge has been issued and those who are willing to project their personal best will be the ultimate winners.

There is a little Pollyanna in all of us — don't deny it or ignore it — project it! Expect the best and you get the best, look for the good and the good will find you!

Aspin shows lobbying works for Army

WASHINGTON — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the hard-working chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, generally rules on Pentagon matters with the impartial wisdom of King Solomon.

Jack Anderson

But when a Wisconsin company was in danger of losing a lucrative Army contract, Aspin intervened and, emulating the biblical monarch in his most famous ruling, suggested that the baby be cut in two. And unlike the harlot in the Old Testament story, the Army agreed to have its contract cut in twain. And it was done.

In acquiescing to the chairman's urging, the Army overrode three detailed studies. Here's what happened:

The Army wanted an economical replacement for magnesium batteries, which don't work well in subzero weather and conk out altogether at 40 below. The answer seemed to be lithium batteries, which perform well in the cold, are more powerful and last longer. Lithium batteries cost more than magnesium batteries, but the Army figured it was worth it, and last year decided to switch.

The General Accounting Office, though not sure about the Army's cost figures, concluded that "the operational advantages of the lithium battery justify the Army's decision to move from magnesium to lithium batteries."

A study by the Army's communications/electronic command predicted that the conversion to lithium would save $1.5 million over the next five years. The lithium contracts may total $50 million in the first year.

A third study, by a chemistry professor, two Navy scientists and two outside consultants, said: "The Army's program to concentrate on lithium batteries is reasonable." The experts found that the need for more power at lower temperatures "can realistically be met only with lithium batteries."

Finally, the Pentagon inspector general is scheduled to report on the matter shortly. Sources told us the report will say the lithium batteries are better but more expensive, and that some batteries made of lithium and some made of magnesium may be preferable until a cheaper, second-generation lithium battery can be developed.

Against the formidable array of expert opinion, the magnesium battery had only one thing going for it: Ray-O-Vac. The firm is the sole contractor for the Army's magnesium batteries and has its headquarters in Madison and five other plants at various locations in Aspin's home state. As it turned out, this was enough.

Ray-O-Vac primed the powerful committee chairman with information and Aspin set out to change the Army's mind. Correspondence obtained by our associate Les Whitten includes a letter from Aspin to Assistant Army Secretary Jay Sculley last Sept. 18 saying: "It might make more sense to abandon the idea of a universal battery." Instead, Aspin suggested, the Army could buy lithium batteries for "specialized needs and a larger quantity of cheaper magnesium batteries."

Aspin added pointedly; "I would appreciate your personal attention on this matter."

The Army didn't take the hint, so Aspin wrote Sculley again on Nov. 8 to inform him that "private industry" had provided technical data that contradicted the GAO report, the mainstay of the pro-lithium case. The same day, the congressman also wrote the Army's auditor general to express concern.

The generals finally saw the light, and decided to buy both magnesium and lithium batteries at least this year and probably much longer.

Footnote: An Aspin spokesman defended the Army's switch and Aspin's role in it. The fact that a Wisconsin corporate constituent of the chairman benefitted was irrelevant, he said, adding: "The system saw the logic and reversed itself."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Diplomatic sources were astounded by recent reports from Colombia, where a rebel chieftain set some kind of record for paranoia and counterproductive brutality. Known only as Delgado, but nicknamed "Monster of the Andes," the guerrilla leader became convinced that his underground faction, the Ricardo Franco Front, had been infiltrated by government spies. Delgado's solution was to execute 134 of his followers in cold blood. The victims included a pregnant woman and a 10-year-old child. Delgado boasted to journalists of his slaughter, which a baffled State Department source said virtually wiped out the rebel group.

OOZE NEWS: The Pentagon is secretly working on a substance it hopes will thwart any burglar, no matter how skillful. We're told it's a thick, slimy glop that will be released to ooze over any lock being tampered with, presumably causing the burglar to give up in disgust.

Jackson rainbow's glare makes Demos squint

WASHINGTON — Despite the private vows of Democratic power brokers not to be bullied by the Rev. Jesse Jackson in another presidential campaign, his assault on the Libyan bombing raid brought no censure from party leaders.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

At the founding convention here last weekend of his National Rainbow Coalition, Jackson charged that the Reagan administration "practices terrorism." Instead of making immediately clear that such rhetoric is not mainstream Democratic opinion, party leaders were blinded by the Rainbow's glare.

Jackson displayed himself in Washington last week as better organized, more in control and potentially stronger than he was four years ago. But his words continue to mimic Third World-style radicalism, and Democratic notables see him blocking their efforts to move to the center.

What is remarkable, according to insiders who know, is that the self-assured, confident Jackson really believes he can be elected president. Consequently, Democratic politicians look down the road at a mirthless struggle against Jackson that could extend beyond the nominating convention to a ruinous independent candidacy.

Until recently, Democratic politicians wishfully wrote off Jackson as a one-campaign phenomenon. That view has been privately shared by prominent blacks, including one national civil rights leader who told us "the brothers and sisters this time won't be so passionate for Jesse."

But in truth, Jackson looks more formidable than in 1984, when his late-starting campaign never got organized or properly financed. The black politicians who dodged Jackson in 1984 by embracing Walter F. Mondale see no similar safe harbor for 1988, with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy out of the race.

Rep. Mickey Leland of Texas, Congressional Black Caucus chairman, opposed Jackson last time but hosted a reception for him last week. Birmingham's Mayor Richard Arrington, another Mondale booster, attended the Rainbow convention. Monolithic black support raises the prospect of a Jackson-dominated mega-Tuesday on March 8, 1988, across the South if no strong Southern or border-state candidate emerges from New Hampshire a week earlier.

Just as party leaders are moving back toward the center, they have on their hands a charismatic figure intuitively taking positions outside the mainstream. Breakfasting with newsmen last week on the morning of the Libyan air strike, he called for negotiations with Col. Moammer Khadafy after decrying the drop in oil prices.

Last weekend's injection of high-profile white in Jackson's Rainbow — notably labor leaders William Winpisinger and Kenneth T. Blaylock, plus farm protesters whose trip here was paid for by the unions — was supposed to enhance credibility. Instead, it exaggerated the leftish tilt.

Machinists President Winpisinger is a familiar maverick who long has called for solidarity with Soviet and Cuban labor and who snipes at AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland's anti-communist foreign policy. Blaylock, head of the hard-pressed American Federation of Government Employees, led off the foreign policy attack against Kirkland at the last AFL-CIO convention and has provided office space in Washington to a far-left Salvadoran union. Missouri farm activist Roger Allison comes out of the insurgent American Agricultural Movement.

That is a potentially lethal party profile to be shown the nation, in the opinion of major contributors who gathered privately in Washington a few days before the Rainbow convention. Jesse Jackson was the major subject of conversation, with one Texan asserting he was poison for the invalid Democratic Party in his state. One East Coast businessman felt it essential to negotiate with Jackson and scheduled an appointment with him last week to get started.

But he was alone. Telling Jesse he's going to be secretary of HHS won't have much affect on him," one power broker told us. Based on the 1984 experience, the consensus among the money men was to distance the party from Jackson — holding him to a rhetorical political standard no lower than anybody else. That would mean instantaneous rebuttal when he accuses the Reagan administration of terrorism.

Democratic politicians talk, invariably off the record, about the imperative of speaking out about Jackson. "The first candidate who tells him to kiss off," one party insider told us, "will get the (presidential) nomination." A chance to do that came after the Rev. Jackson's invective about the Libyan bombing. Once again, the chance was missed.

CHARLEY REESE

VP Bush in unenviable position for '88 run

Conventional wisdom says Vice President George Bush is the front runner for the Republican presidential nomination. Maybe so, but it seems to me he is in a loser's box.

Charley Reese

Bush has two choices: he can either be disloyal and ungrateful by opposing Reagan's policies or he can run on Reagan's record. The trouble with the latter is that President Reagan's popularity is not based on his record. It's based on him, and Bush isn't Reagan.

Reagan himself probably couldn't win solely on his record. In cold terms that record consists of unbalanced budgets, a $2 trillion public debt, probably no tax reform, the worst economic recession since the Great Depression, defense procurement scandals, no arms control agreements, record trade deficits, persistent high unemployment, a disastrous adventure into Lebanon, and so forth.

That is not really as bad it sounds, but the Democrats will make it sound even worse. The point is that people love Ronald Reagan, including apparently the Democrats who gave him Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale as opponents. Reagan makes people feel good and comfortable.

Bush, unfortunately for him, has no such reservoir of good will. He does not make people feel good and comfortable. He makes them feel uncomfortable. People who know him tell me that he is very likeable, but the public impression he gives is either whiny or strident.

There is a parallel between Bush and Richard Nixon. Nixon, as Dwight Eisenhower's vice president, was the political errand boy of a national hero. Eisenhower, like Reagan, was more popular than his policies, though historians have recently recognized there was more substance to Eisenhower than his contemporaries realized.

The point is that while Eisenhower could not, even if he had been so inclined, transfer his personal popularity to Nixon, he did strap Nixon with the burden of defending his administration. A new face on the national scene, Sen. John F. Kennedy, whipped Nixon in 1960.

Bush will face the same problem. Reagan cannot transfer his personal popularity to Bush but Bush will be strapped with the burden of defending eight years of Reagan administration policies. If the Democrats are smart, and there is no guarantee that they will be, Bush will also have to campaign against a new, young face who will be free, as Bush will not, to point out the Reagan failures and offer new solutions.

If Republicans are smart, and there is no guarantee they will be, they will jettison Bush and offer a new, young face who would not be forced to defend the status quo. Any Republican other than Bush could pick and choose which of Reagan's policies to defend and which to disclaim.

Republicans could have done that in 1976 by nominating Reagan rather than re-nominating Gerald Ford. They might have saved the country from the Carter presidency, which is surely on the Top Ten List of national disasters.

The people who have the most weight in the political parties, however, tend to be people whose main concern is clinging to their privileged positions or ideologies. Eastern Establishment Republicans, who have always preferred Democrats to conservative Republicans, will back Bush to the hilt. Given a choice, they would much prefer to see Democrats in the White House than to see conservatives consolidate their position in the GOP.

There are, of course, too many unforeseen variables between now and the 1988 election to make any predictions. Other than pols and journalists, hardly anybody is thinking of the 1988 presidential race.

I just wanted to point out that Bush is not in the rosy position that occasional polls, which measure mainly name recognition at this point, will indicate.

Except when a president dies in office, the vice presidency is a pretty slippery stepping stone to that one higher office.

Hitler comparison draws ire

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Vernon Walters, irked by criticism in the Security Council of the U.S. attack on Libya, angrily told the Cuban representative that his nation had shaky credentials to preach about terrorism.

Cuba's foreign minister, Elsidoro Malmierca Peoli, had spoken Thursday as the Council reopened debate on the April 15 bombing raid to allow a delegation from the non-aligned movement to express its views.

The Cuban said that, like Hitler, President Reagan had launched an undeclared war and, like the leader of Nazi Germany, had engaged in racist propaganda.

Walters, his voice shaking with rage, noted that "hundreds of thousands of Americans lost their lives fighting Hitler." He called the comparison with Hitlerism disgusting.

The U.S. ambassador said that since Fidel Castro had come to power in Cuba in 1959, the United States had received as refugees 10 percent of the Cuban population "fleeing the terror and repression of his government, and (the Cuban foreign minister) presumes to come here and give us lessons about what is terrorism."

In an apparent reference to India, whose foreign minister Bali Ram Bahgat also spoke to condemn the raid, Walters said:

"It has been astonishing for me to hear my country denounced before this council by some countries which have sought and received active cooperation from the United States in dealing with their own problems involving terrorism and have not shrunk from using extreme force themselves to deal with this problem."

Walters apparently was referring to Indian army attacks on Sikh extremists.

Bahgat had criticized three permanent members of the Council, the United States, Britain and France, for vetoing a resolution condemning the U.S. raid on Libya.

"Nothing can justify the use of massive force or an armed attack against a sovereign state in contravention of the purposes of the U.N. Charter," he said.

WORLD

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Raif Dizdarevic said the non-aligned delegation of foreign ministers had visited Libya before coming to New York and "we saw the moving scenes of death, wounded and mutilated."

"All this makes the Security Council more duty bound to fulfill its responsibilities," he said.

Other speakers were delegates from Congo and Ghana.

An informed diplomatic source said the non-aligned ministers were pushing for the U.N. secretary-general to choose a special representative to mediate between the United States and Libya.

Bombing blamed on Libyan agents

LONDON (AP) — Authorities think Libya or its agents might be responsible for the bomb blast that damaged a British Airways office on one of London's busiest streets, news reports said today.

Government officials have said publicly there is no evidence linking Libya with the bombing early Thursday. An anarchist group and a Scottish separatist group have claimed responsibility for the blast.

The explosion and a subsequent fire severely damaged the ground-floor British Airways office, and could be heard across the city. A woman was treated for shock, but there were no injuries.

American Airlines and American Express both have counters in the Oxford Street building. But Scotland Yard spokesman Philip Powell said the British airline appeared to be the target of the bombers.

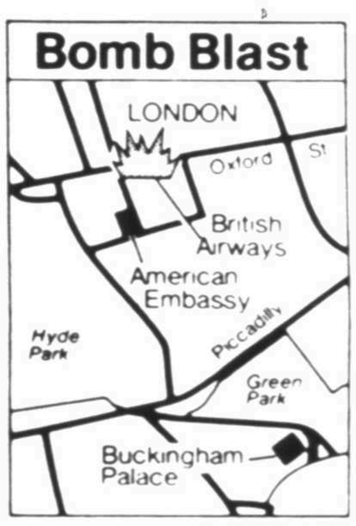

The Daily Telegraph newspaper said today that police scientists had concluded that Arabs were responsible for the explosion. It said Scotland Yard anti-terrorism experts were working on the theory that the bomb was planted by Libyans or their agents as a warning to Britain.

Libya has vowed revenge against Britain and the United States for the U.S. air raid April 15 on Libyan cities. Britain approved the use of U.S. planes based in England for the raid.

The London Times said that because of the U.S. air raid on Libya, suspicion was strong that Arab terrorists were involved.

Libya issued a warning a few hours before Thursday's bombing that Israeli or U.S. intelligence agents might stage a terrorist attack in Europe as an excuse for further military action against Libya.

The Times quoted unidentified British sources as saying the Libyan warning was absurd, and that they suspected the London bombing may have been "a crude and transparent propaganda effort."

AP Lasergraphic

A map indicates the location of a British Airways office in London where a bomb exploded early Thursday severely damaging the office in a six-story building near the U.S. Embassy on one of London's main shopping streets. No injuries were reported.

But Giles Shaw, Home Office minister of state, told the House of Commons Thursday night no evidence had been found to connect Libya with the bombing. Cmdr. George Churchill-Coleman, head of the Yard's anti-terrorist squad, stressed that any suggestion of Arab involvement in the bombing was speculation.

Press Association, the domestic news agency, said it received two calls claiming responsibility — from the Scottish National Liberation Army, campaigning for Scottish independence, and the Angry Brigade, a revolutionary anarchist group.

The news agency said the Angry Brigade claimed to have planted the bomb "in retaliation for Britain's involvement in the American bombing of Libya."

Scotland Yard said police and news media had received calls from people claiming responsibility for the blast, but refused to disclose any names.

"We are checking all of them out. There are no clear indications yet of who is responsible," said a Scotland Yard spokeswoman.

News reports said the bomb was hidden among bags of garbage outside the airline office. Oxford Street was closed for seven hours while police combed the area for other devices.

STATE

A low-pressure system over west Texas triggered widely scattered thundershowers in the eastern Panhandle and North Central South Plains today and forecasters expected the precipitation to continue into the weekend.

A high-pressure ridge also influenced Texas weather, the National Weather Service said. Skies were clear over parts of North, East and Southeast Texas and mostly cloudy from San Antonio across the Rio Grande plains.

Skies were fair to partly cloudy across the rest of the state, the weather service said.

Winds were south to southeast at 5 to 15 mph across most of the state and northeasterly over the Big Bend.

Early-morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s except for readings in the 40s over the mountainous southwest. Extremes ranged from 41 degrees at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 70 degrees at Laredo on the Rio Grande Plains.

Some isolated thunderstorms were expected in the Panhandle with widely scattered thunderstorms over much Northwest Texas this evening. Otherwise, it should be partly cloudy and warm through Saturday.

Highs will be in the 80s and 90s, the weather service said.

Other readings at 5 a.m. included 63 degrees at Abilene, Waco, Wichita Falls and Corpus Christi; 64 at Brownsville, El Paso, Amarillo and San Angelo; 62 at San Antonio and Lubbock; and 60 at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and Midland.

Rain was scattered across New England today and Washington's Cascades had snow while showers and thunderstorms ranged across the west central Plains and southern Rockies.

West Texas Deserves an Attorney General Who is TOUGH on Crime & TOUGH on Criminals. West Texas Needs
Ed Walsh

Ed Walsh understands West Texas values. Ed and his family have been ranching in Williamson County for 80 years. Ed and his wife, Lori, and their children, Kristopher, Jessica, and Jamie reside in Round Rock, Texas.

Ed Walsh is a prosecutor. Walsh has argued over eighty felony jury trails, putting hardened criminals in prison or on death row. He won seventy six cases, or ninety-five percent of the time.

Walsh has fought in court for the rights of victims and won. All three killers Walsh prosecuted for capital murder were sentenced to death. One of them was Henry Lee Lucas, the serial killer suspected in over 100 murders nationwide. Lucas sits on death row today because of Walsh's effective arguments againt Lucas in trial.

There are three Republican lawyers running for Attorney General. Each one of them has had prosecuting experience. But only one was recognized by the Texans War On Drugs Committee in 1983 as "Outstanding Prosecutor": Ed Walsh. And only one was a good enough prosecutor to be named "Outstanding District Attorney" by the Texas Bar in 1984: Ed Walsh. That makes Ed Walsh the most qualified Republican candidate for Attorney General.

On May 3, vote for the Republican who is tough on crime and tough on criminals. . . Ed Walsh.

OC forgets past, looks to future

By ERIC SCHURER

The password around the Odessa College campus this week among administrators, officials and players seems to be "Forget the past." And after a hectic week of allegations, "no comments," and ultimately resignations, it is easy to see why.

Basketball coach Archie Myers resigned Tuesday after a disagreement between Myers and OC officials regarding appropriations of athletic funds. The controversy arose early this week when it was revealed that on three occasions Myers had asked his players to sign over to him meal checks issued during holiday breaks.

"I think it would be better to put all that in the past and go out and try to win the conference next year," said OC freshman Eric Price, two days after OC basketball coach Archie Myers turned in his resignation.

No coach has yet been named to succeed Myers, the head coach for two years and an assistant at OC before that, but applicants are already lining up for the job.

Peete leads with 65

Houston Open

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Calvin Peete, one of the tour's most consistent players, and Wayne Grady, erratic this year to say the least, came into the Houston Open as forces pulling in opposite directions.

However, the two arrived at the same point at the end of Thursday's first round with course-record, 7-under-par 65s and a two-stroke lead in the $500,000 PGA tournament.

Peete, the No. 2 money-winner with two tour victories this year, has been a model of consistency.

He leads the tour in scoring average and hitting greens in regulation and is second in driving accurary and putting.

"Calvin and Byron Nelson are like 'which side of the pipeline do you hit,'" Tom Watson said comparing Peete's consistency with one of golf's all-time greats. "The rest of us worry about which side of the rough we hit."

Grady, meanwhile, has suffered through a miserable start this season.

He missed the cut in nine of 12 tournaments — three times by disqualification — and has not finished higher than a tie for 57th.

But his game suddenly fell into place Thursday.

"It doesn't take too much to get it turned around, but I'd get my hopes up 30 times a day and then something would go wrong," Grady said. "But today, I got it going and kept it going.

"Maybe this is what I've veen waiting for."

Mike Hulbert shot a 67 to hold down second place, while five golfers — Nick Faldo, Rod Curl, Jay Haas, Bruce Lietzke and Billy Pierot — were another shot back.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Cathy Kratzert birdied the last four holes on her way to an opening round 67 and a one-shot lead over four other golfers in the LPGA's S&H Classic. Midland Angels Manager Joe Maddon, left, expresses an opinion....to deaf ears.

Angels get faces dirty

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

If to err is human, the Midland Angels showed just how human they are in a 4-3 loss to Beaumont in Texas League action Thursday night.

And just when we thought the 1986 Angels were going to be invincible, too. But four errors, including two in the fatal ninth inning, reduced the Angels to the level of the mere mortal, evening the five game series at one game apiece.

"We made some mistakes that hurt us," Angel manager Joe Maddon said.

It didn't take much of a rally to halt Midland's five-game winning streak, in fact it didn't even take a hit, but the ninth inning run was enough to pull Beaumont within one game of the first place Angels.

All the Golden Gators did was string together a pair of walks, a stolen base and errors by Mark McLemore and Jeff Schaffer to make a loser of reliever Terry Clark, 1-1. The ninth inning run put the finishing touches on the Gator's comeback from a 3-0 deficit. It was Beaumont's fourth one-run win of the season over Midland.

"IT'S ONE of those disappointing games because we really did have a chance to win it," admitted Maddon. "We've just not been able to generate much offense against (Beaumont) this season."

The Angels' late-inning miscues gave a hard-earned win to Beaumont starter Joe Bitker who battled the Midland hitters all night. Bitker spread nine hits around while striking out seven to even his record at 2-2. Submarining reliever Rusty Ford came on in the ninth to earn his sixth save of the young season.

Bitker was in trouble early as Midland put up solo runs in the second, third and fourth innings and seemed ready pull away.

Three straight Midland hits had Bitker on the ropes in the fourth, but Beaumont erased a pair of Midland baserunners to squelch a possible big inning.

Jeff Hotchkiss, getting his second straight start at third base, opened the inning by reaching on an error by shortstop Mike DeButch. One out later, Mike Madril pounded a double to deep center field but Hotchkiss was an easy out at the plate on a fine relay throw by DeButch.

Madril scored on Schaffer's single to right, but after Mark McLemore followed with another single, Schaffer was gunned down at third by catcher Sandy Alomar.

"WE WERE just being aggressive," Maddon said. "Hotchkiss was going because I sent him. I thought the shortstop, with the wind blowing like it was, would have a tough throw."

Bitker, for one, was glad to see the Angels running. It helped take his mind off the ground balls that were skipping through the slick infield.

"They run a lot, they don't hold too many runners up," Bitker said. "Sometimes that will help you, sometimes it won't. Tonight it helped me out."

Bitker was in control the rest of the way, shutting out the Angels on only three more hits until Ford came on in the ninth.

And Ford, a native of Lufkin in the eastern part of the state, closed the door, allowing a harmless single in the final inning. It was the sixth time in nine Gator wins that Ford has gotten the late-inning call from first-year manager Steve Smith.

"He's our main man out in the pen," admitted Smith, who came to the Gators from Reno in the California League. "We bring him in late when we have the lead and put him in there to get his saves. We have a good enough bullpen that we don't have to bring him in in the sixth or seventh. He goes one or two innings at the most. If he gets his sinker ball in there it's tough to lift up."

Mets stretch streak to six straight

Associated Press

George Foster's two-out single in the 10th inning drove home Wally Backman from second base Thursday night, and the New York Mets extended their winning streak to six games with a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The loss marked the first time the Cardinals had dropped a regular-season game in which they led going into the ninth inning since the final contest of 1984, a span of 90 such games.

The Mets tied the game in the ninth on Howard Johnson's two-run homer with one out off Todd Worrell, 0-1.

Backman led off the 10th with a walk and stole second. Worrell retired Keith Hernandez and Gary Carter, and intentionally walked Darryl Strawberry. Foster then lined his game-winning single to left.

"We may go the rest of this year without losing another one. That's some record, though," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said.

Foster had dropped a fly ball in the eighth inning for a two-base error that allowed St. Louis to score a run and take a 4-2 lead. But Foster sparked the Mets' comeback in the ninth with a leadoff double.

The Mets pulled within 3-2 in the eighth on a double by Len Dykstra and Gary Carter's single, but St. Louis scored in its half of the eighth as Herr doubled and came home when left fielder Foster dropped Clark's fly ball for a two-base error.

Strawberry's first home run of the season put the Mets ahead 1-0 in the second against Bob Forsch.

Baseball Roundup

Cubs 7, Expos 5

Rick Sutcliffe won his first game of the season and hit a three-run homer, leading Chicago past Montreal.

Sutcliffe, 1-3, pitched 6 1-3 innings and gave up four runs on seven hits. He connected for the third regular-season homer of his career in the sixth, capping a four-run sixth.

Jerry Mumphrey also homered for Chicago, while Hubie Brooks and Dann Bilardello hit home runs for the Expos.

Phillies 4, Pirates 2

Mike Schmidt hit two home runs and a sacrifice fly, driving in all of Philadelphia's runs and backing the five-hit pitching of Shane Rawley.

Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Rick Rhoden, and connected for his fourth home run of the season in the ninth.

Tony Pena homered for Pittsburgh.

Reds 3, Astros 0

Mario Soto pitched a three-hitter and Cincinnati broke its four-game losing streak by beating Houston.

Soto, 2-1, struck out five and walked three.

Nick Esasky hit a solo home run, his third of the year, in the fourth inning off Mike Madden, 1-1. The homer was Cincinnati's 12th of the year, one in each game, and left the Reds one short of the major-league team record for home runs in consecutive games at the start of a season. The Chicago Cubs set that mark in 1984.

Dodgers 6, Braves 3

Mike Marshall and Greg Brock hit home runs, and Orel Hershiser pitched five innings to even his record at 2-2.

Los Angeles played its first errorless game of the season. The Dodgers made 29 errors in their first 16 games.

Mariners 3, A's 1

Alvin Davis and Ken Phelps hit home runs, the only two hits allowed by Oakland's Jose Rijo in 8 1-3 innings, as Seattle beat the Athletics.

Davis connected for a two-run homer in the fourth inning, and Phelps' solo shot in the ninth finished Rijo.

Rijo struck out 14 and came within two of the major-league record for most strikeouts in two consecutive games. Rijo fanned 16 against Seattle in his last start in eight-plus innings.

Yankees 2, Indians 1

Ron Guidry scattered 10 hits and Bobby Meacham scored the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning on Cleveland first baseman Pat Tabler's error.

Guidry, 3-0, struck out four and walked none. He became the first New York starter to pitch more than 7 1-3 innings this season.

With the score tied 1-1, Meacham led off the fifth with a walk, stole second and scored when Tabler misplayed Don Mattingly's routine grounder with two outs.

Oilers climb out of flaming hole to tie series

Associated Press

The Edmonton Oilers have climbed out of a hole in their NHL playoff series with the Calgary Flames and apparently have their feet on the ground again.

"That was a sweet victory — one of the most important we've ever had," Oilers center Wayne Gretzky said after a 7-4 victory Thursday night over Calgary tied their Smythe Division final at two games apiece. In the only other game, St. Louis beat Toronto 7-4 to tie their Norris series at 2-2.

The Flames were trying to take an unexpected 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, but could not achieve the pace that carried them to two earlier triumphs over the two-time Stanley Cup champions.

"Tonight we stuck our nose in a little more," said Gretzky, who scored three goals."

In Stanley Cup action tonight, the New York Rangers play at the Washington Capitals in the Patrick Division final and the Hartford Whalers face Montreal in the Adams. Both series are tied 2-2.

Ultimate Walter Mitty tries hand at wheel

"We're going through!" The commander's voice was like thin ice breaking. He wore his full-dress uniform, with the heavily braided white cap pulled down rakishly over one cold gray eye.

"We can't make it, sir. It's spoiling for a hurricane, if you ask me."

"I'm not asking you, Lieutenant Berg," said the commander. "Throw on the power lights! Rev her up to 8,500! We're going through!"

"The pounding of the cylinders increased: ta-pocketa-pocketa-pocketa-pocketa-pocketa." – from "The Secret Life Of Walter Mitty."

It is said that George Plimpton is the ultimate Walter Mitty. He isn't. Walter Mitty only dreamed about it. Plimpton does it.

Still, James Thurber would have loved George Plimpton. Lots of guys daydream about staring down the barrel at home plate and seeing Willie Mays or Frank Robinson there, guessing a fastball and wind up and throw him the curve instead. Plimpton didn't imagine it. Plimpton did it.

"I looked in at Robinson. I thought, 'Well, why not? Now's the time to unleash the curve ball, the hook. And perhaps if the hook works, I'll chance the change of pace and maybe even the knuckler.'"

"I WORKED my fingers around the seam until I had the ball held properly for the curve. Robinson, the victim, was standing easily in the batter's box. I pumped my arm twice and swung into the windup. As I came through, I failed to snap my wrist sufficiently and my hook got away from me in majestic style – sailing far over Robinson and Catcher Elston Howard's heads to the wire screen behind home plate.

"If it had hit a foot or so higher, the ball would have caught in the netting of the screen and run up into the press box. It was such an extraordinarily wild pitch that I felt I had to make some comment; what I'd done was too undignified to pass unnoticed, and so once again I hurried off the mound calling out 'Sorry! Sorry!'

"Howard and Robinson gazed out at me, both startled, I think, perhaps even awed by the strange trajectory of the pitch which was wild enough to suggest I had suddenly decided to throw the ball to someone in the stands." – From "Out Of My League"

Plimpton not only pitched in Yankee Stadium, he quarterbacked in the NFL for "Paper Lion," tended goal in the NHL, got into the ring with Archie Moore, drove in the Baja 1000 and brought the ball upcourt for the Boston Celtics.

He played in the Crosby with Sam Snead. He was the daring old man on the flying trapeze for the Clyde Beatty circus. He ran with the bulls at Pamplona – Hemingway himself pushed him out there –and he did standup comedy at Caesar's Palace.

HE DID everything everyone else did but marry Zsa Zsa Gabor. When Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, the New Yorker ran a cartoon showing him opening his mail and saying, "Letter from George Plimpton. He wants to be President for a day."

Archie Moore broke his nose. The Detroit Lions almost broke his leg. No one broke his zeal to find out.

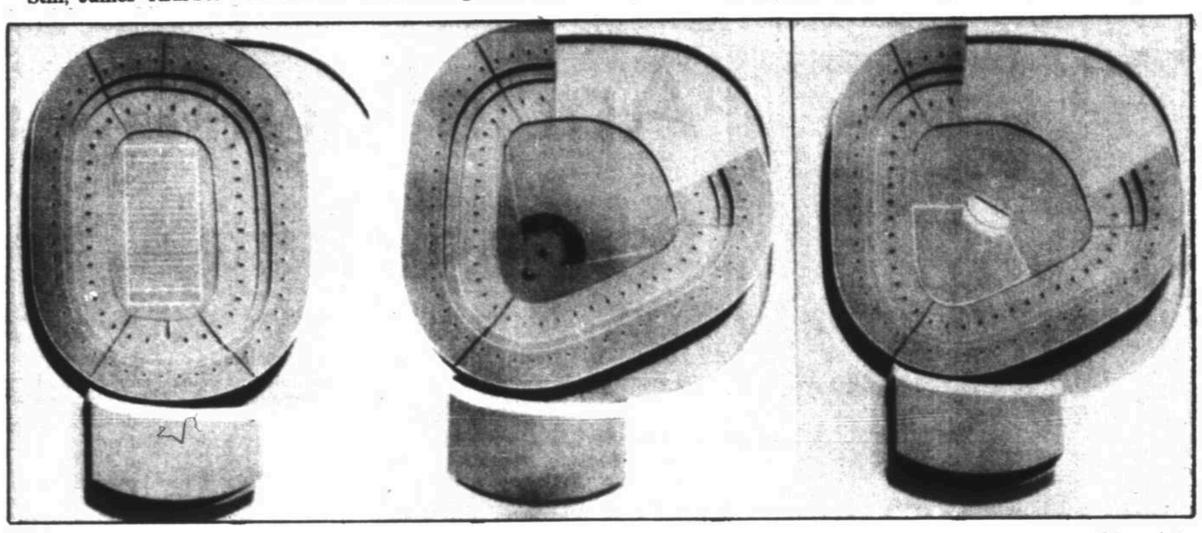

George Plimpton was not a frustrated jock. He was a reporter who figured that he could not write "accurately or vividly" about a sport unless he experienced it first-hand. "Participatory journalism," he called it.

IT HAD been tried before. Paul Gallico, the author, in the days when he was a sports columnist, had climbed into the ring with Jack Dempsey – Dempsey bloodied him – and had driven a bobsled down a run at the Winter Olympics, where he crashed.

But Plimpton became a surrogate for Everyman USA. Long before the fantasy camps in baseball or businessman clinics in basketball or 10K races in city streets, Plimpton had figuratively vaulted over the stadium railings and onto the playing fields with America's mythic sports figures.

He wasn't Walter Mitty but he stood for the Walter Mittys of the world. Alan Alda played him in a movie and George joked that one day he wanted to play Alan Alda in his life story.

Proposed Chicago Stadium

A new 50,000 seat, open air, natural turf to be built on the Chicago River near the Loop will be be adjustable for both football and baseball viewing, unlike most modern day multi purpose caverns.

Burke-Harney in front

AUSTIN (AP) — Jack Burke Jr. and Paul Harney are the first-round leaders in the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf, a field that includes all-time greats such as Arnold Palmer, Sam Snead and Gary Player.

Burke and Harney put together a 9-under par 61 Thursday to build a two-stroke lead over Orville Moody and Bruce Crampton in the better ball senior event.

Twenty-eight teams are competing for $500,000 in the 72-hole tournament on the 6,584-yard Onion Creek Club course.

At 64, a stroke behind Moody and Crampton, were the teams of Jack Fleck and Fred Hawkins, and Doug Sanders and Christy O'Connor.

Burke, whose career highlight was a 1956 win at the Masters, makes the Legends of Golf his only stop on the PGA Seniors Tour. He summed up Thursday's round with one word: "Miracles."

"It's hard to shoot 9-under out there," he said.

Harney got the duo off to a quick start, earning birdies on the second and third holes by rolling in putts of 20- and 30-feet.

"Nicklaus is the only man I've seen hole more putts than you," Burke told his partner

Moody and Crampton used a couple of hot streaks to pull into second place.

Legends

Moody connected for birdies on holes seven, eight and nine.

"I had a no-hitter for 13 holes," Crampton said. "Orville did all the work."

But Crampton cranked up his game on the closing holes, connecting for birdies on Nos. 14, 16 and 17. Mooody birdied 15.

Fleck and Hawkins bogeyed 14 when they both three-putted.

Sanders said teammate O'Connor's long game was on target Thursday.

"He drove the ball superbly. He looked like a machine. He didn't look like a man in his 50s, much less his 60s," Sanders said.

"We shot 6-under and that's not a fluke. I see no reason why we shouldn't continue," he added.

At 5-under par were the teams of Kel Nagle and Bob Charles, Miller Barber and Bob Goalby, Lee Elder and Chi Chi Rodriguez and defending champs Don January and Gene Littler.

Longtime rivals Player and Palmer teamed up for the first time Thursday, finishing at even par 70, better than only three teams.

Confident Dunston bubbles with old time optimism

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — Shawon Dunston, the one-time Midland Cub, is his bubbly old self again, eager to play baseball — unlike last season, when he was sent down to the minor leagues after a bad start and thought he'd been dumped at the end of the world.

"I don't have anything to prove anymore," said Dunston, whose failure in his rookie season with the Chicago Cubs came after a tremendous build-up. "If I make an error, that's okay. If I strike out, that's OK, too.

"I'm more relaxed, I'm wanted by my teammates. They know I can play and I don't have to prove anything to them."

Last season was different.

After a good spring training, Dunston recalled, "I wanted to do good right away. It didn't work out that way. Everything went the other way. I started doubting myself. It was tough."

Dunston was the Cubs' opening-day shortstop last season, having beaten out veteran Larry Bowa for the job. But he struggled offensively and defensively and in mid-May was sent to Iowa.

"I was hurt," he said. "I had never failed in baseball before. I thought it was the end of the world. I wanted to get back right away and after a month down there, I didn't want to play anymore. I forgot I was only 22 years old."

But his parents understood, Dunston said.

"They told me 'You're only 22; you'll be back up.' So I started playing again. I guess the Cubs knew what they were doing."

He was recalled in August and finished strong enough to boost his average to .260 and raise hopes for this season. Bowa was released late in the season and now is managing in the minors.

Dunston, the No. 1 selection in the June 1982 draft, was grabbed by the Cubs ahead of Dwight Gooden, the New York Mets' pitching sensation.

"I had forgotten about being the No. 1 draft pick until Dwight Gooden started doing so good and people kept reminding me. But I'm proud I was No. 1 and I'm proud the Cubs are sticking with me," Dunston said.

Cubs Manager Jim Frey said two things make the difference this year.

"No. 1, the competition from Bowa put extra heat on him. I think he felt it," Frey said.

"No. 2, he has had a year's experience in the big leagues and he's a year older. It has made him realize he can play in the major leagues."

"I liked Larry Bowa and he liked me," Dunston said. "He taught me a few things. I can understand, he was around for 15 years and didn't want to give up his job."

Frey also said he believes Dunston's potential is unlimited.

"When he came out of high school, he was one of the nation's finest offensive players. He could run, he could throw, he had all-around physical ability. Now, you have to say the same things about him.

"If he settles down, he can be a first rate shortstop and a good hitter," said Frey. "And if he progresses, he can become a first-class power hitter because of his legs and his strength."

Dunston went into Thursday's game with a .289 batting average — second best on the Cubs — along with three home runs and a new attitude.

"This year I know how to handle pressure," he said. "If I strikeout, it's no big deal. If I make an error, it's no big deal. I know I can play and stay in the major leagues."

In Thursday's only other NBA playoff action, Denver beat Portland 116-112 to take the series in five games. The Nuggets next play the Houston Rockets on Saturday in a Western Conference semifinal.

The 76ers, who rallied to win the previous two games, overcame a nine-point deficit in the fourth quarter and took a 111-109 lead with 1:31 remaining.

But after a blocked shot by Cliff Robinson, Jeff Ruland scored to make it 111-111. Ruland was fouled on the play, but missed his ensuing foul shot. Bradley grabbed the rebound and threw the ball off the shins of Philadelphia's Charles Barkley. Washington retained possesion out of bounds and Malone scored the tiebreaking basket.

"The first thing I did was look for my teammates," said Bradley, whose last-second three-point shot won Game 1. "I didn't see anyone, so the only thing left was to bounce if off Charles, and Charles is a big target."

NBA Playoffs

After Bradley scored on one of two free throws to make it 114-111, Barkley missed a three-point try, Robinson rebounded and was fouled. Robinson missed both free throws with eight seconds remaining, but he wrested the ball from Julius Erving and sank an insurance basket.

Both Robinson with 31 points and Malone with 32, posted playoff career-high totals for the Bullets.

Guard Maurice Cheeks led Philadelphia with 30 points, Erving added 25 and Barkley 22.

Nuggets 116, Trail Blazers 112

At Portland, Alex English hit the decisive basket with 1:10 remaining and Lafayette Lever scored 30 points for Denver.

Portland tied the score at 110-110 on Jim Paxson's three-pointer with 1:23 to go, but English put the Nuggets on top for good at 112-110 with a rebound basket.

Clyde Drexler was called for an offensive foul on Portland's next possession. Two free throws apiece by English and Mike Evans sealed the Nuggets' victory.

Friday's Games

Both Detroit and Utah will have the home court advantage when their first-round, best-of-five series NBA playoff series resume Friday night.

Dallas Coach Dick Motta was still upset Thursday that his players were called for traveling violations six times Wednesday night at Salt Lake City.

"We had a lot of whistle turnovers and we're not a turnover team," Motta said.

Rookie Karl Malone's basket with 50 seconds left Wednesday night gave Utah a 100-98 victory and kept the Jazz alive against the Mavericks, who lead the series 2-1.

ANGELS

"I've been fortunate that they've given me the ball in the right situations," said Ford, an alum of Texas Wesleyan.

The submarining Ford seems to have a knack for getting the ball in the right situations, however, landing 24 saves at Charleston (Class A South Atlantic League) in his first full season in organized ball.

ANGEL DUST: The Angels and Gators continue their series tonight with as 7 p.m. game...Phil Venturino gets the call for Midland...McLemore was two-for-two in stolen base attempts, giving him 14 on the year. He has been caught once...

Maddon shuffled Billie Merrifield over to first base to give Sap Randall a rest in the field. Merriefield, who played third all last season, spent most of spring training at first base...

Frazier signs with CMS

WAYNESBURG, Mo.— Eddie Frazier, 6-6, 235-pound center-forward from Midland College, was signed to by Coach Jim Woolridge to bolster the rebounding of Central Missouri State. CMS was last in the Missouri Intercollegiate AA in rebounding last year.

Frazier led Midland in rebounding with 6.7 per game and 11.9 points while shooting 59.6 from the field.

Frazier was a three-year starter at English High in Boston and earned all-city honors as a junior and senior. English was 85-3 during his three season and Midland has been 64-7 in two seasons with Frazier.

The Mules were 17-10 last season, the first under Woolridge, and finished second in the MIAA, behind Southeast Missouri, the eventual NCAA II runnerup.

On A Streak

Jeff Bloom, Tufts University, has thrown no hitter in his last three starts. The lanky 6-3 sophomore from Dix, N.Y., says he feels a little pressure because it has been so long since he gave up a hit.

Pitcher responds to teacher's challenge

LA GRANGE (AP) — Ricky Trlicek's algebra teacher challenged him to throw a no-hitter against Smithville, and the junior righthander did just that, winning 5-0.

But the odds may have been with the teacher, because Trlicek now has thrown three no-hitters in a row, running his string of hitless innings to 19. Yet over that stretch, his record was 2-1 because he was a 1-0 loser to Pflugerville 10 days ago.

"I've never been around anybody like Ricky," said Bill Savell, in his first year as coach at La Grange. "He starts off every game planning to pitch a no-hitter. After he gives up his first hit, he aims for a shutout and if the other team scores, then he does everything he can to win."

Trlicek has a 6-2 record, and has struck out 70, walked 25 and allowed 20 hits in 50 innings this season. His earned run average is 0.84.

The 6-foot-2, 180-pounder began his no-hit string with a 10-0 five-inning victory over Fayetteville three weeks ago. After losing to Pflugerville, he came back to strike out 12 Smithville batters.

"He was talking about another no-hitter going into the Smithville game, and his algebra teacher challenged him to get one," said Savell. "Ricky won't pitch again until we face Pflugerville May 6, but I'm sure he'll go aiming for another no-hitter."

WHY FINESSE?

Both vulnerable. West deals

	NORTH ♠ Q 7 5 4 ♡ Q 6 5 ◇ 10 8 7 6 ♣ 10 2
WEST ♠ A 3 2 ♡ K 2 ◇ A Q J 9 5 3 ♣ J 9		EAST ♠ 6 ♡ 10 9 8 4 3 ◇ 2 ♣ 8 7 6 5 4 3
	SOUTH ♠ K J 10 9 8 ♡ A J 7 ◇ K 4 ♣ A K Q

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	Pass	Dble
3 ◇	Pass	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠

The auction will often reveal the location of key cards. It's silly to ignore the information you have been given.

South was too strong for any action other than a double at his first turn. West tried to make life difficult for his opponents with his jump to three diamonds, but South had too much to be shut out. Four trumps to the queen and a ruffing value in clubs were ample for a raise on this auction—the queen of hearts was there to sway doubters.

Since he did not want to give declarer help in any suit, West elected to lead a low trump, won in the closed hand. A trump was continued. West won the ace and exited with his remaining trump, taken by the queen.

Obviously, the bidding marked West for both the ace of diamonds and king of hearts. Therefore, it would have been futile for declarer to either lead to the king of diamonds or take a heart finesse. The way to make his contract was via an end play.

Declarer cleared the clubs, then cashed the ace of hearts in case West had started with a singleton king. He was not particularly upset when it did not fall, for the opening bidder was surely marked with six diamonds and he had already shown up with three spades and two clubs. His only unknown card had to be the king of hearts.

Suiting his count to the situaiton, declarer exited with a heart. West was in with the king and had no way out. His forced diamond return promoted South's king to the fulfilling trick. Declarer was able to hold his losers to one trick in each suit except for clubs.

Robertson prepares for flight

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Cliff Robertson says he's getting ready to fly a glider over Mount Everest.

Robertson, in an interview in this Sunday's "Parade" magazine, said he and Prince Alvaro de Bourbon are planning a two-man trip in a glider over Mount Everest. De Bourbon is a cousin of King Juan Carlos of Spain.

"We're both pilots," said Robertson. "The king of Spain spoke to the king of Nepal about it, and we got the OK.... I've been to Milan to check out the safety aspects and the structural integrity, and if he can get corporate sponsorship from an environmentally conscious company, we'll go."

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Spurred by Emmy-winning television stars Danny DeVito and Rhea Perlman, the California Legislature has proclaimed this week "California Week of the Young Child."

DeVito

Perlman

The couple received resolutions Thursday from the state Senate and Assembly as honorary co-chairs of Care for the Children, a group seeking support for more child care programs from both business and government.

At a news conference following the legislative ceremonies, DeVito, who won an Emmy Award for his role as dispatcher Louie DePalma in "Taxi," described the stress he and Perlman went through arranging child care while they were both in weekly television shows. They are the parents of two young children.

"It's not just poor people, not just minority people, not just single people," he said. "Today there are lots of women in the work force. We need for them to go to work and have a free mind, not have to go to the phone every 15 minutes."

"There's a severe, growing shortage of child care across California and across the country," added Perlman, who won her Emmy as waitress Carla Tortelli in "Cheers."

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Commodores bassist Ron Lapread plans to channel profits from a new record to needy children and teen-agers in Alabama, saying he hopes to reduce the number of "manufactured criminals."

Lapread appeared at a news conference Thursday with welfare Commissioner Gwendolyn Williams to promote the release of the recording titled "Let's Keep The Music Playing."

Backup performers on the record include several employees in the state Department of Pensions and Security.

Lapread said he hopes sales of the record and accompanying T-shirts, posters and a possible video will raise money for programs for children and teens whose needs may not be covered by the state welfare agency.

"We have in this state a lot of kids who came from homes with one parent or no parents," he said. "After they reach the age of 16 or 17 they do things to get attention and some of these things can get them into trouble down the line."

The Commodores have recorded such hits as "Night Shift," "Brickhouse" and "Machine Gun."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan announced Thursday he will present the nation's highest civilian award to Dr. Albert Sabin, discoverer of the oral polio vaccine, retired Gen. Matthew Ridgway and actress Helen Hayes.

In all, seven people will receive the Presidential Medal of Freedom at a White House ceremony on May 12.

Others who will be cited are journalist Vermont Royster, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.; Earl H. "Red" Blaik, former head football coach at Dartmouth and the U.S. Military Academy; and Walter H. Annenberg, former ambassador to Britain and a friend of the president.

Sabin will be recognized for his contributions in education and science, while Miss Hayes will be recognized for her work in the arts and entertainment.

Ridgway will be recognized as a distinguished war hero and contributions to U.S. security and national interests. The onetime supreme allied commander in Europe and commander of U.S. forces in Korea retired as Army chief of staff in 1955.

A year later, he complained that politics were influencing military decisions at the Pentagon. Later, he voiced public skepticism of the Nixon administration's plan to wind down the Vietnam war, and in 1971 called for the withdrawal of all American troops.

Goldwater will be cited for contributions in public service and national interests of the United States. In 1964, Reagan delivered the nominating speech for Goldwater at the Republican National Convention, and the speech helped propel Reagan into politics.

Blaik will be recognized for his contributions to education and public service, while Royster will be cited for contributions in journalism and communications.

Annenberg will be cited for contributions in education, public service, philanthropy and as a pioneer in the use of television for educational purposes.

Roethlisberger

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Roethlisberger, who gained national attention when he bought a fleet of Rolls-Royces from the Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, died Wednesday. He was 40.

Rajneesh pleaded guilty to immigration fraud charges in November and was ordered out of the country. After his departure, the commune disbanded and the bulk of the cars were sold to Roethlisberger in December. The 85 Rolls-Royces were unloaded from the auto carriers at his Carrollton auto dealership. He had traveled to Oregon to approve a deal of between $5 million and $7 million for the cars. The cars were put on display in the partners' Dallas showroom of European Auto Group. Less than half of the original 85 remain.

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Eddie Bauer, who pioneered the goose-down garment industry and founded an outdoor equipment company, has died at age 86.

Bauer died April 18 following a brief illness. His death came just 15 days after his wife of 57 years, Christine, died of cancer at 82.

The company bearing his name has 41 retail outlets in the United States and Canada and two million mail-order customers. He unconditionally guaranteed his products, a practice followed by General Mills, which bought the business in 1968 when he retired.

An avid fisherman and camper, Bauer was issued a patent in 1936 for quilted down jackets and goose-down sleeping bags. In 1963 he supplied goose-down equipment to the American Mount Everest expedition. Bauer also supplied goose-down flight suits to U.S. pilots during World War II.

"When we first turned them in, I went ahead and did it," said Dwayne Scott, one of several players willing to discuss the meal money situation.

"I just thought it was part of the program," Price said.

But when Myers asked the players a second time to turn over meal checks to him at the Christmas break, some players began to question the practice.

"The second time I got kind of suspicious and started to check into it — check around and ask questions," said Scott, who will attend Western Illinois next season.

The inquiries the Wrangler players made ended up on the desk of Athletic Director Barry Rodenhaver, according to Price. The players apparently did not confront Myers with their questions, or assistant coach Fletcher Cockrell.

Although National Junior College officials agreed that it was not against regulations for Myers to ask for the money back, the use of the holiday meal funds led to a disagreement between the athletic department and Myers. That disagreement ultimately led to Myers' resignation.

"We were shocked," admitted Price. "We looked up to (Myers) like a big brother and he let us down."

Myers, a former assistant at Midland College, has declined comment on the situation, but a prepared statement read Tuesday by his lawyer Marc May, said, in part:

"This resignation is not to be construed as an admission of misappropriation of funds. There has been a disagreement between Odessa College and Mr. Myers concerning expenditure of funds. As a result, Mr. Myers feels the college has lost confidence in him... and is in his best interests to resign."

Price and seven other freshman in the Wrangler basketball program this year, will wait patiently while OC officials whittle down the applicant list for Myers' successor.

"We've had an overwhelming amount of calls about the job the past two days," said athletic director Barry Rodenhaver before taking his OC golf team to Hobbs, N.M. for the WJCAC and Region V competition this weekend.

"I have no preconceived idea of who the next coach will be. I'm in the dark about it."

Cowboys file suit

DALLAS (AP) — Two current and two former Dallas Cowboys filed suit, claiming agent Joe Courrege defrauded them of about $200,000.

Team members Bill Bates and Jeff Rohrer and former Cowboys Steve Wilson and Anthony Dickerson claimed in a suit filed in state district court Thursday that Courrege used fictitious names, bogus corporations and land-flip schemes to defraud them of money they invested in 14 Dallas County rental properties.

They asked for either triple damages under the Deceptive Trade Practice Act or for exemplary damages in an amount to be fixed by a judge or jury.

Three of the players claim that Courrege gained their confidence by stressing his Christian beliefs and by convincing them that he had a special relationship with the Cowboys front office.

The players, except for Rohrer, said in the petition that Courrege led them to believe that they "could expect to be treated fairly because of the fact that defendant Courrege was a deeply religious man who believed in Christian principles" and that Courrege "claimed he enjoyed relationships and-or friendships not enjoyed by other player representatives with the management of the Dallas Cowboys football organization."

Courrege, contacted Thursday night at his office in Sachse, a community northeast of here, said, "There's no truth to any of this. It surprises me.

"I've always had a good relationship with the Cowboys front office, and my Christian beliefs are true and factual. I haven't defrauded anyone."

WEST TEXAS OUTDOORS

Dow Scott places fifth in Castle Gap tourney

Dow Scott, Jr., took fifth place in the Castle Gap Bass Busters Invitational Tournament while another High Sky Bass Club member, John Nobles, took ninth.

Others placing high from the HSBC were Steve Hill, 10th; Jack Furrh, 14th; Lowell Wade, 17th and Bob Knox, 19th...

The HSBC invitational is scheduled May 17-18 at Lake Amistad with headquarters at Anglers Lodge and the next club meeting is 7:30 p.m. May 27 at the club meeting of the 1st City National Bank.....Lake Spence will be the site of the monthly tournament June 14-15....

In the HSBC March tournament, Bud Baker took the heavy stringer with 10.58 pounds and a four fish stringer for 4.29 pounds. Fred Nobles was second with one fish for 4.29 pounds and Dean Armstrong had one fish for 3.55. Jeanie Armstrong was the women's winner with five fish for 4.93 pounds. Virginia Wade's 2.19 was good for second and Lue Kirby took third with two fish at 1.89 pounds.

In the Youth Division, Sheryl Moreland was first with 4.86 pounds....

Steve Hill won the April tournament with seven fish for 11.61 pounds, beating out John Nobles and Richard Kleinhans, tied for second at 11.34. Vickie Denton was the women's winner, catching the only fish, a 1.59 pounder. In the Youth Division, Richard Kleinhans won with 2.63, Matthew Nobles was second with 1.55 and Melissa Kleinhans third with .67. Dow Scott won the Big Bass Calcutta with a 5.78 black....

HIGH WINDS and sharp temperature variances effected the fishing, but failed to scare off any anglers at either Lake Spence or Thomas. And despite the elements, the striped bass record at Spence almost toppled when Sam Kramer, Sweetwater, landed a 30 pounder, just four ounces off the record set by Eddie Lewis, Ballinger, in 1985, and just one ounce less than one caught by Jerry Stanaford, Midland.

Crappie continued to bite at Thomas and some walleye catches were turned in with some black bass.

Stripers were hitting top-water lures at Spence and crappie were taking minnows on jigs at Thomas. Black Bass fishing was best in the shallows.

Sam Froman, Big Spring, landed a 26-pound yellow at Thomas and Rod Essery, Snyder, took a 23 3/4 pound striper at Spence....

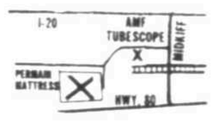

Richard Moore, Midland, took a five-pound five ounce black bass; Gene McQueen, Midland, several catfish, white bass and a few crappie; Glen and Doris Cothrun, Midland, landed a 44-pound yellow cat.

CBS finds little consolation in final week win

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, which lost its prime-time crown to NBC after winning six straight seasons, found small consolation in winning the final week of the 1985-86 regular season.

"Last week we had our best week of the season," said David Poltrack, CBS' vice president for research. "Unfortunately it was a little late."

NBC also slipped to its only weekly third-place performance, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed Tuesday.

Bill Rubens, NBC's vice president of research, noted that NBC had 14½ hours of repeats to ABC's 9½ and CBS' nine. A rerun of NBC's movie "Ordinary People" finished a distant third to "Dream West" and ABC's movie "Superman III" on Sunday night.

Led by a strong Sunday night that included third-rated "60 Minutes" and No. 8 "Dream West," which was the conclusion of a three-part miniseries, CBS won the final week of the 30-week, prime-time season with an average rating of 16.3 to ABC's 14.2 and NBC's 14.0.

A rating measures, on average, the percentage of the nation's 85.9 million homes with television that are tuned in to a broadcast.

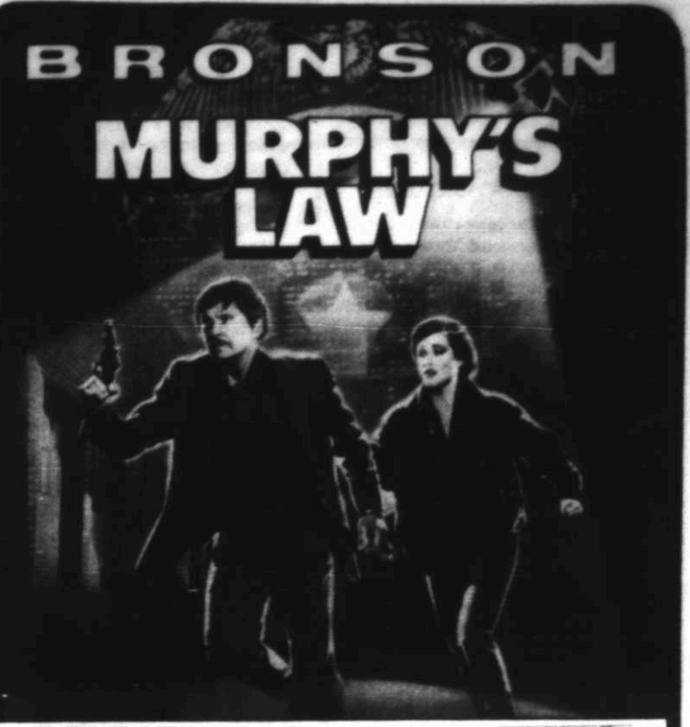

For the week of April 14-20, "The Cosby Show," once again, was first with 34.4 rating.

WORLD in brief

Cease-fire in doubt

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The defense minister said today that a guerrillas ambush in which eight soldiers and two journalists were killed had shattered the government's effort to arrange a cease-fire with communist insurgents.

Juan Ponce Enrile, the defense minister, made the statement in a talk with reporters a few hours after Reuters photographer Wilfredo "Willie" Vicoy died in a hospital of bullet wounds received in Thursday's ambush in Cagayan province, 210 miles north of Manila.

Another journalist, Pete Mabazza, provincial correspondent of the Manila Bulletin, died along with Col. Alberto Sudiacal and seven other soldiers during the ambush on an isolated road, the Defense Ministry said.

The attackers were believed to be members of the communist New People's Army.

"It was an unfortunate event because it shatters the call of our lady president for reconciliation," Enrile said, referring to attempts by President Corazon Aquino to contact the communist rebels for talks on a cease-fire.

Grenada trial continues

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — General Hospital matron Angela Grant gave a graphic account of the bloodshed and panic at army headquarters on Oct. 19, 1983, in testimony Thursday in the Maurice Bishop murder trial.

Ms. Grant was the first witness to take the stand as the prosecution began what it promised would be a reconstruction of events leading to the slaying of the prime minister, three of his Cabinet ministers and seven supporters in a power grab by more radical elements in his leftist New Jewel Movement.

The coup was followed six days later by the U.S.-led invasion of the island nation. Bishop himself had seized power in a coup that ousted elected Prime Minister Eric Gairy. In new elections after the U.S. invasion, Gairy's party lost to that of Herbert Blaize.

The trial of 18 former military and government officials opened Monday in the Grenada Supreme Court.

Swazis honor new king

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — Thousands of barefoot Swazis massed outside Mbabane today as a British-educated student prince underwent secret mystic rituals to become their king.

Crown Prince Makhosetive, clad in traditional feathers, beads and skins, began the hours of mysterious rites at midmorning at Lusaseni, a new royal village built for him outside Mbabane.

Makhosetive, who turned 18 last week, returned from his exclusive British boarding school, Sherborne, for the ceremonies, his schooling still unfinished.

He was to emerge today with a new regal name to accept the reverence accorded the ruler of this nation of 600,000 on South Africa's border.

Director shot in head

LYON, France (AP) — The regional director of the American firm Black and Decker was shot in twice the head today by an unknown gunman, and died later in a hospital, police and hospital officials said.

He was identified as 43-year-old Kenneth Marston, a Briton.

Marston had just left his home in a suburb of this southern French city when he was attacked, police said.

No further information was available.

Woman kills self, family

TORONTO (AP) — A cancer victim who committed suicide by letting her car run in a closed garage accidentally killed her husband and son at the same time when the carbon monoxide poison seeped into the family house, police said Thursday.

The bodies of Anthony Sherratt, 61, and his 36-year-old retarded son, Steven Claude, were found Thursday in the cottage in suburban Etobicoke, where the family had lived for 20 years, police said. Phyllis Sherratt's body was in the garage, where the car had run out of fuel.

Police said the carbon monoxide fumes from the car had seeped into the attached house, overcoming the husband and son.

A neighbor, Muriel Campbell, said Mrs. Sherratt had been undergoing chemotherapy treatments for a rare form of cancer.

Police went to the home after the son's employer said they had been unable to reach him. He had been absent from work for several days.

Wine merchants arrested

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Authorities arrested two wine merchants and were seeking a third Thursday in connection with the tainted wine scandal in Italy that has left 23 people dead, the prosecutor's office announced.

The warrants, issued by Prosecutor Alberto Nobili, charge the trio with illegally adulterating the wine by adding excessive amounts of methanol, or wood alcohol.

Methanol, if consumed in large quantities, can cause blindness, coma and even death.

The arrested were identified as Antonio Palermo, 57, who runs a wine bottling company near Varese, and Walter Nalin, 59, co-owner of a wine company near Padua. The other owner, Giuseppe Volpi, was arrested 10 days ago.

The latest arrests brought to 16 the number jailed in the case. At least seven others were being sought, police said.

Some of those arrested have been charged with second-degree murder.

Personal computers taking Poland by storm

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Personal computers have become the rage in Poland, with an approving government apparently taking the risk of losing its control over the spread of information.

The transmission of computer data over telephone lines is illegal without permission in Poland but the restriction is difficult to enforce.

Computer experts and science writers estimate that 500,000 computers are in private hands and the number is growing.

Computerization got a boost by February's Communist Party Congress in Moscow when Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev called for accelerated technological development throughout Eastern Europe.

"The example comes from above," wrote the editors of Komputer, a computer magazine whose first issue came out in April. The editors said Gorbachev supported the "climate ... of the '80s — i.e., personal computers."

But for Ryszard Kajkowski and Jerzy Dworzecki, both 35, the computer age began four years ago when they bought an Apple II computer with $1,000 earned working a summer in West Germany.

Setting up in the basement of Kajkowski's house, they wrote computer programs and marketed them under their own private company, Computer Studio Kajkowscy.

Today they also own an IBM-PC computer, employ 30 people in an office that encompasses the entire house and are in the process of forming two subsidiary companies that will double their work force. They market dozens of programs and produce 50 IBM-PC compatible computers a year from components bought in Taiwan.

The company's domestic sales have swelled by 500 percent each year of its existence and in 1985 it recorded a pre-tax profit of $176,000, a sizable sum in Poland.

"We are leading the way in development of microcomputer software in Poland," Dworzecki said during a break at the first international computer fair ever held in Poland. The fair drew 28 Polish and foreign firms and 10,000 visitors to the Victoria Hotel in Warsaw the three days it ran in April. Attendance was double the organizers' expectations, and many people lined up for hours to get in.

But as Communist nations like Poland seek to modernize with computers, they have to deal with the many changes computerization can bring to societies that have been so closely controlled over the years.

"We still don't know how introducing computers into a given social system changes the rules of the game," said one Polish journalist, speaking only on condition of anonymity. "We have no idea where we are going, but the decision has been made to go."

Said one Communist Party official, also on an anonymous basis, "To prepare our youth for the future we must understand that education must not involve politics but preparations for the technological revolution that is leaving Poland further and further behind."

Most of the home computers owned in Poland are of the inexpensive, low-performance variety bought used or at reduced prices from the West. Poland's fledging

Dollar mixed

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rallied against the Japanese yen but was mixed against other currencies today after a strong opening in Europe. Gold was also was mixed.

Dealers said the early upsurge in Europe was due to market sentiment that the dollar had fallen too far and too fast in recent days, but they believed its long-term weakness would continue.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar came out of a week-long tumble to post-World War II lows and gained nearly 2.5 yen to close at 170.25 yen. Later, in London, it fell back to 169.50 yen.

The rebound followed Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe's remark to Japan's parliament that "all means should be used" to prevent the yen strengthening further, and his disclosure that President Ronald Reagan and Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone would meet separately at next month's Tokyo summit of the Western industrial powers to discuss yen-dollar fluctuations.

The yen has gained about 30 percent against the dollar since the Western industrial powers decided last September on action to depress the dollar and boost U.S. export

Dealers in Frankfurt said the dollar was being supported by technical trading and month-end corporate demand for dollars.

"The market was worried that the dollar's drop was overdone and was becoming dangerous," one dealer said. "There have been clear indications, such as the open market interventions by the Bank of Japan, that the central banks are concerned about the rapidity of the dollar's decline. This has made everyone cautious."

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.534, slightly down from $1.536 Thursday.

Dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Thursday:

—2.192 West German marks, down from 2.2045

—1.8328 Swiss francs, down from 1.8425

—7.0175 French francs, down from 7.02

—2.4925 Dutch guilders, up from 2.4857

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $344.45 a troy ounce, compared with late Thursday's $344. At midmorning the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $344.30.

In Zurich, the bid price was $344.75, up from $344.50 late Thursday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell $1.92 to close at a bid $344.08.

In New York Thursday, gold fell 90 cents to close at $345.10.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.08 a troy ounce, down from Thursday's $5.11.

Congressional report supports oil import tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A levy on imported oil would reduce fuel imports, help the domestic petroleum industry and add billions of dollars annually to federal coffers, a congressional report said.

The Congressional Budget Office paper, released Thursday, became potent ammunition for congressional supporters of imposing a fee on imported oil.

"By raising the price of oil imports, an oil import tariff would encourage all activities that could substitute for oil imports: domestic oil production, production of substitutes for oil, conservation of oil and substitution of other fuels for oil," the report said.

"It would therefore lead to the greatest possible reduction in oil imports ... and provide the most assistance to domestic producers," it said.

The report also said that with oil prices at $13 per barrel, the various tax options could reduce the projected budget deficit in the next fiscal year from $8.9 billion for an import fee to $25.4 billion for an excise tax. At a price of $23 per barrel, the deficit reductions would range from $8.1 billion to $22.1 billion.

"We cannot overlook the opportunity offered by the rapidly falling oil prices," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee. "This may be a once-in-a-century chance to simultaneously improve our fiscal condition, put part of the burden of the tax on foreigners and alleviate positively our energy predicament and our dependence."

The non-partisan CBO report was ordered by Domenici and Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the senior Democrat on the Budget Committee.

The congressional economists estimated that at roughly the current oil price of $13 per barrel, "Imports would decline by 900,000 barrels per day under a tariff, by 500,000 barrels per day under an excise tax, by 100,000 barrels per day under a motor fuels tax, by 300,000 barrels per day under an energy tax and by less than 100,000 barrels per day under a combination import tariff-motor fuels tax."

"At oil prices of $23 per barrel," the report said, "1987 U.S. oil imports would decline by roughly 400,000 barrels per day under an oil import tariff, by around 300,000 barrels per day under an oil excise tax, by perhaps 100,000 barrels per day under a motor fuels tax, by 100,000 barrels per day under an energy tax and by 100,000 barrels per day under a combination of an import tariff and a motor fuels tax."

Net U.S. imports of oil are about 4.3 million barrels a day. A barrel equals 42 gallons.

The report assumed an import tariff of $5 per barrel, an excise tax of $5 per barrel, a motor fuels tax of 12 cents per gallon, an ad valorem (invoice value) energy tax of 5 percent and a combination tax of $2.50 on imported oil and 6 cents per gallon on motor fuels.

The import fee has failed to generate much support. For example, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, has said within the past month that there are no more than five votes on the 20-member panel in favor of the fee.

Earlier this year, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said President Reagan was keeping the door open on consideration of an oil import fee as a way to reduce budget deficits. However, Reagan later slammed the door, saying he would not accept such a levy, or any other general tax increase.

Nonetheless, Domenici and others in Congress continue to push the idea as a way to shrink government red ink. The Senate is now considering a bipartisan budget blueprint drawn up by Domenici's committee that calls for $18.7 billion in unspecified tax increases.

Realtors face challenges

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Realtors from around the West Texas area were in Midland Thursday, attending the Region 6 meeting of the Texas Association of Realtors at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center.

Conrad Bering Jr., president of the TAR, warned of two challenges before the real estate profession. The first is a direct result of the plunge in oil prices. "They say that when the government is in session, watch your pocketbook. This next year, more than ever, we must watch our pocketbooks and those of the people we represent."

He noted that one state candidate has already called for a state income tax, and that realtors have been working to prevent a transfer tax. Bering observed that, recently, the State Comptroller called, requesting information on the number of transfers in 1985, and what percentage were commercial and what percentage were residential. "Could there be a proposal to levy a tax on one or the other?" he asked. He said that realtors have also been working to avoid having the state sales tax broadened to include services, such as realtor's commissions. "Rest assured, this will be on the table in the 1987 session."

The second great challenge for realtors is clarifying the agency relationship, Bering told the audience. Buyers believe a realtor is his realtor, "and can you blame them?" he pointed out. However, the broker represents the seller, because the seller pays the broker's commission. And agents, showing the property through the Multiple Listing service, are sub-agents of that seller. "The selling realtor must make clear that his duty is to the seller while being fair to the buyer."

"Problems arise when the agency relationship is misunderstood. The public generally is unaware of this relationship, and the responsibility

Texas banks closed

Associated Press

First National Bank of Irving and First National Bank of Bandera have become the fifth and sixth Texas banks closed this year, federal banking officials said.

The banks — the 36th and 37th closed nationally in 1986 — were declared insolvent Thursday by the deputy comptroller of the currency in Washington.

The First National Bank of Irving will reopen today as City National Bank of Irving, a newly chartered subsidiary of United City Corp. in Plano, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation officials said.

The First National Bank of Bandera will reopen today as Bandera Bank, said Julie Amberson, an FDIC spokeswoman.

Depositors of both failed banks automatically will become depositors of the assuming banks, subject to the approval of the appropriate court, officials said.

City National Bank of Irving, a Dallas suburb, will assume about $33.5 million in 7,500 deposit accounts and have agreed to pay the FDIC the purchase premium of $1.61 million, the FDIC spokeswoman said. It also will buy some of the failed bank's loans and other assets for $25.1 million.

"Rapid growth over the past few years combined with poor lending practices and ineffective supervision resulted in massive deterioration in the overall quality of the bank's loan portfolio," said Dale Underwood of the comptroller's office.

According to Underwood, the bank had assets of approximately $35 million, deposits of $35.2 million and primary capital of $502,000 on March 31.

Frank Vance, another spokesman for the comptroller's office, said the bank in Bandera, about 40 miles northwest of San Antonio, had experienced a deterioration of its loan portfolio over the past several years.

Pennzoil chairman doubts settlement with Texaco

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil Co.'s chairman says he does not believe Texaco Inc. has been sincere in its efforts to negotiate a settlement of a $10.5 billion judgment handed down against it.

"I am fairly discouraged as to a settlement," said J. Hugh Liedtke, Pennzoil chairman and chief executive officer. He also said he knows of no future meetings planned between Texaco and Pennzoil to discuss a settlement.

"I fear that (Texaco) really has no interest in trying to settle, only to make a record that they have tried," Liedtke said Thursday after Pennzoil's annual shareholders meeting. "It may be that they are going to try and tough it out as long as they can."

About 800 people attended Thursday's meeting during which Pennzoil announced earnings of $42.3 million for the first quarter of 1986. Earnings dropped 26 percent drop from net income of $57.4 million reported in the same quarter in 1985, officials said.

Pennzoil officials attributed the drop mostly to the slump in oil prices.

"Unfortunately, it appears that average oil and gas prices will be even lower during the second quarter," said Richard J. Howe, Pennzoil president.

Pennzoil chairman J. Hugh Liedtke discusses the annual shareholder's meeting at a press conference in Houston.

Earnings per common share were 93 cents for the year's first quarter, compared to $1.20 for the 1985 first quarter, Howe said. Operating income was $112.6 million, compared to $139.8 posted for the first quarter in 1985.

"However, last year's first quarter earnings included a gain of 21 cents per share from the sale of securities, so our operating results were relatively close to last year's," Howe said.

Howe said Pennzoil officials believe world prices on crude oil will approach $20-a-barrel later this year.

"We expect natural gas prices, on the other hand, to weaken even further this summer due to various market and governmental forces, coupled with the normal summertime slump in demand," he said.

In discussing the Texaco-Pennzoil case, Liedtke accused Texaco of unleashing a media blitz consisting of "half-truths, innuendos and, in some cases, extremely insulting and abusive charges."

Texaco officials in White Plains, N.Y. refuted Liedtke's statements.

"As reported to us, we believe that Mr. Liedtke's statements are a mischaracterization of Texaco's actions and its positions," Texaco spokeswoman Anita Larson said Thursday. "For example, Texaco's well-documented appeal concerns the failure of a specific trial court to correctly apply both Texas and New York law."

In November, a jury ruled Texaco wrongfully interfered in a merger agreement between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. when it acquired Getty. Texas State Judge Solomon Casseb Jr. affirmed the multibillion-dollar award in December, adding $600 million in interest and saying more interest would accumulate at the rate of 10 percent annually.

About a month ago, representatives of both companies met in New York to discuss the possibility of settling the case, but Liedtke said Texaco offered nothing substantial during the meeting.

Administration supports gas legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary John Herrington praised a Democratic bill sponsored by a Texas liberal aimed at removing restrictions on the use of natural gas and oil as a boiler fuel.

Herrington on Thursday said a measure introduced by Rep. John Bryant was "a good first step" toward comprehensive gas legislation. The Energy Department has introduced a broader bill containing a section similar to Bryant's proposal.

Bryant's bill, sponsored by 19 Democrats and one Republican, would repeal those parts of the Fuel Use Act that make it difficult for factories and utilities to burn oil and natural gas in new boilers. The bill would leave certain environmental requirements undisturbed that apply to boilers switching from oil or gas to coal.

Earlier this week, President Reagan assured governors from energy-producing states that, although he opposed increased import taxes to protect domestic energy producers from falling international prices, he would push other measures to help the industry, including an end of the fuel restrictions.

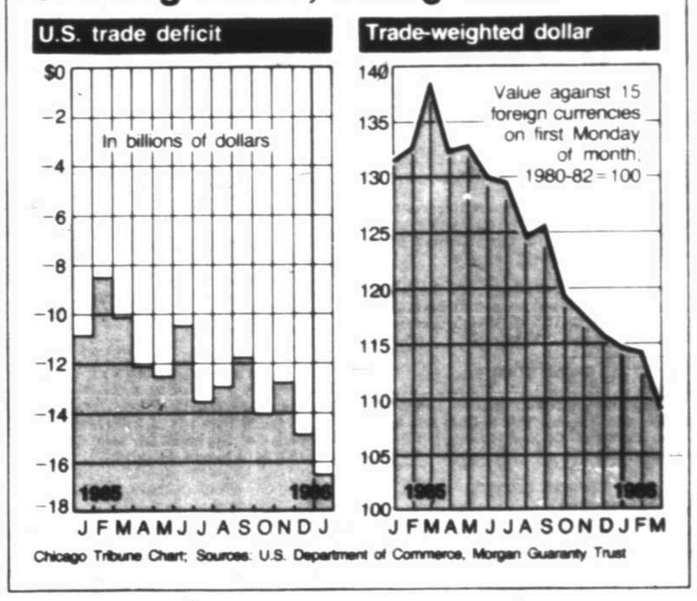

An aide to Bryant, Barbara Crapa, said she had been told that the Energy Department was approving only 40 percent to 60 percent of applications for waivers from the fuel requirements of the act.

The bill is aimed at "getting oil and gas back into the (boiler) marketplace. It is not a quick fix; it is a long-term relief" aimed at "giving industry encouragement to seek supplies," she said.

Democratic staff members of the fossil and synthetic fuels subcommittee of the Energy and Commerce Committee have worked for 10 to 12 weeks on several bills to help domestic producers and Bryant's was "first out of the chute because it's do-able," she said.

The bill is expected to get priority handling and Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., the subcommittee chairman, is expected to schedule a combined hearing and markup session next week, she said.

Growing deficit, falling dollar

Chicago Tribune Chart; Sources: U.S. Department of Commerce, Morgan Guaranty Trust

A lower valued dollar could help reduce growing U.S. trade deficits.

Lower dollar good news for manufacturing firms

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar which skidded to new lows against the Japanese yen this week, could help the growing U.S. trade deficit. Economists said the latest plunge would give an extra boost to American manufacturers while costing consumers money.

Japan's central bank, concerned that the dollar's fall is hurting Japanese exporters, reportedly tried but failed to prop up the dollar by buying roughly $1 billion on the open market.

A lower dollar helps U.S. companies compete with the Japanese at home and abroad. But it makes American consumers have to pay more for Japanese imports such as cars and electronic equipment.

In Washington, President Reagan said he expects to talk to major U.S. trading partners at a summit in Tokyo May 4-6 about some method of stabilizing world currencies. Reagan said he would discuss whether an international monetary conference would be helpful.

Economists and traders said the dollar fell Monday partly because of expectations that the Federal Reserve would make another cut in the discount rate, the interest fee it charges on loans to financial institutions.

A discount-rate cut is seen as a way for the Fed to ease credit conditions and stimulate the sluggish U.S. economy. A cut tends to push down other interest rates, making dollar-denominated investments less attractive and decreasing the world's desire to own dollars.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Pipeline spills thousands of gallons of crude

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — A pipeline ruptured Thursday, shooting thousands of gallons of crude oil 60 feet in the air along a commercial strip as authorities feared it could reach the nearby Fox River.

There were no injuries in the spill, no health threat, and damage appeared small, said Greg Durham of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency in Springfield.

Police, fire and environmental crews arrived at the scene after the 34-inch pipeline burst in the Chicago suburb Thursday morning, and an independent contractor, Petro Chem Corp., dispatched 25 tank trucks to the site to help with the cleanup, Durham said.

The pipeline carries light crude oil to refineries in the area and the rupture apparently was caused when heavy equipment was driven over the line, which runs just below the road surface, Durham said.

Capsule maker to close New Jersey plant

TROY, Mich. (AP) — R.P. Scherer Corp. said Thursday it will close its capsule manufacturing plant in New Jersey because Johnson & Johnson quit buying the product after a death attributed to a poisoned Tylenol capsule.

Most of 106 workers at the Somerset, N.J., plant will lose their jobs, said Douglas White, a Scherer spokesman.

Scherer said 25 percent of the plant's production had been sold to Johnson & Johnson, which makes Tylenol pain-relief capsules.

The decision will end Scherer's domestic manufacture of two-piece hard-shell capsules, the company said.

Scherer will continue to make hard-shell capsules in Ontario, West Germany, Argentina, Brazil and Hong Kong.

Steel company to close plant, lay off workers

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Asarco will close one of its plants and lay off from 20 to 40 more workers, said officials of the steel company, citing the high cost of electrical power in this border city as one of the reasons for the decision.

The plant processed antimony, a trace metal used in fire-retardant clothing. The metal will be processed at another Asarco plant begining May 2, Hank Schlieper, Asarco's El Paso plant manager, said Wednesday.

Power purchased from El Paso Electric Co. costs about 20 percent more than comparable industrial operations in the Southwest, he said.

Eight months ago, Asarco shut down smelting operations in El Paso and laid off 250 workers. Later in 1985, the company further reduced its work force by another 55 people.

Burlington textile plant to close this summer

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Burlington Industries' textile plant here will close this summer after 96 years, company officials said.

The mill — Sherman's third oldest industry behind the Sherman Oil Mill and Washington Iron Works — employs 550 people and has an annual payroll of approximately $8 million.

Plant manager Willis Hastings delivered news of the closing to employees during an emotional meeting Wednesday.

Hastings said an unrestricted flow of cheaper imported textiles led to the closing.

A remote chance exists that another textile business might buy the plant and continue operations, Hastings said.

The factory began operations in 1891 as the Sherman Seamless Bag Mill and changed owners several times over the years.

Panhandle Eastern reports lower first quarter earnings

HOUSTON — (SWN) — Panhandle Eastern Corp. reported to stockholders at its 57th annual meeting here today that net income for the first quarter declined 24 percent.

For the quarter, consolidated net income was $38.4 Million, equal to 86 cents per share of common stock. These results compare with net income of $50.8 million and $1.16 per share for the first quarter last year.

In his remarks to stockholders, Robert D. Hunsucker, president and CEO, attributed the lower earnings to two primary factors:

- the recent severe drop in crude oil prices which adversely affected the earnings of subsidiary Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (Anadarko); and,
- reduced margins in the rates of Trunkline Gas Co., one of the Company's two interstate pipelines.

At the same time, Hunsucker said the company's transmission group performed quite well, considering the reduced Trunkline margins and warmer than normal weather in the market area. Pipeline throughput in the first quarter was 209 billion cubic feet (Bcf), as compared with 210 Bcf a year ago.

Hunsucker said the reduced Trunkline margins being employed as a competitive necessity, depressed net income by approximately $10 Million more in the first quarter than was the case a year ago.

Hunsucker also announced that Anadarko has reduced its capital expenditure budget for 1986 from $172 million to $120 million. This 30-percent reduction recognizes the impact on Anadarko's cash flow of the recent sharp decline in oil prices.

The following table shows comparative consolidated financial results, stated in thousands, except per share amounts:

Diamond Shamrock reports loss

DALLAS (AP) — Diamond Shamrock Corp. reported Tuesday a first quarter loss of $10 million, or 12 cents per share, which the company said reflected the rapid fall in oil prices, forcing it to devalue its inventory of refined crude.

The loss compared with earnings of $59.1 million, or 44 cents per share, in the first quarter of 1985.

Quarterly sales of $950.3 million were essentially unchanged from $954.7 million for the similiar period a year ago.

William Bricker, chairman and chief executive officer, said the loss came from a devaluation of the company's inventory of about $82 million in refined crude, partially offset by some $22 million in oil reserves.

"Rather than spreading the inventory adjustments through upcoming quarters, we are taking the charge now," Bricker said.

He said that in January, the company's posted price for West Texas Intermediate was $27.75 per barrel but had dropped to $13.50 per barrel by the quarter's end.

"When crude oil prices stabilize, refining and wholesale margins should equal or exceed last year's strong performance," Bricker said.

He pointed to a 16 percent increase in Diamond Shamrock's sales of total refined products. The first quarter, he said, is a bellwether since it usually is the weakest.

The chemical sector's earnings were up, Bricker said.

Diamond Shamrock, which launched a major restructuring last year, is an integrated oil and gas company.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

TAE to restructure oil and gas bank debt

Texas American Energy Co. and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Texas American Oil Corp., have reached an agreement in principle with the lending banks for the restructuring of the oil and gas bank debt.

On April 15, the Company's lending banks informed the Company that the redetermined borrowing base under TAO's Revolving Line of Credit is $12.8 million through October 1, 1986. At the same time, the Company and its lending banks reached an agreement, subject to the execution of definitive agreements, to restructure the outstanding balance on the Revolving Line of Credit to recude the outstanding balance to $12.8 million. As part of the overall restructuring, the lending banks have agreed to loan $8.5 million to the Company under a term note. The proceeds from the term note financing will be utilized to reduce the Company's advance to TAO will satisfy the obligation to TAO of approximately $6.5 million which has been outstanding since 1980 as an intercompany account and will result in TAO owing the Company approximately $2 million.

API head opposes Senate excise tax proposal

WASHINGTON — The president of the American Petroleum Institute told the Senate Finance Committee that the elimination of the deductivility of excise taxes as part of tax reform is a particularly bad idea proposed at a particularly bad time.

Charles J. DiBona said the proposal would have severe impact on the petroleum industry — already the most highly taxes of all major industries — during a depressed period that threatens the industry's viability to the U.S. economy and national security.

Conoco announces Norwegian test results

HOUSTON — Conoco has announced test results from a successful delineation well drilled in the Heidrun oil field offshore Norway.

Conoco Norway, Inc. said the Block 6507/7 No. 5 well flowed at a maximum rate of 6,000 barrels of oil and 3.02 million cubic feet of natural gas a day through two parallel one-inch chokes. Drilled in 1,089 feet of water to a depth of 8,646 feet, the well tested in two intervals of Jurassic age.

Harken reports income, increase in reserves

Harken Oil & Gas, Inc. reports net income of $204,000 for the year ended December 31, 1985 as compared to a net loss of $6,337,000 for the year ended December 31, 1984. In 1985, Harken reduced its bank debt by approximately $11 million, or 76 percent primarily from the application of proceeds of equity placements, assets sales and overall company operations.

Quanex seeks SEC approval of bond program

HOUSTON (SWN) — Quanex Corp. announced that it has filed supplemental materials with the Securities & Exchange Commission that would increase from 1/4 percent to 1/2 percent the consideration offered for approval of an amendment to the debt service coverage ratio requirement in the indenture for its 14-3/4 percent senior mortgage bonds due 1999. If approved, this amendment would result in an annual rate of interest on the bonds of 15-1/4 percent. The company believes that this increase is necessary to obtain bondholder approval. As previously announced, consent solicitation materials were sent to bondholders in connection with this amendment. Supplemental material relating to the interest rate increase will be mailed in a few days. Consents are being solicited only pursuant to such material.

Pennzoil income drops in first quarter of '86

HOUSTON — (SWN) Pennzoil Co. reported 1986 first quarter net income of $42.3 million, down 26 percent from $57.4 million earned during the same quarter in 1985. Earnings per common share amounted to 93 cents versus $1.20 per share in 1985.

Sales for the first quarter of 1986 amounted to $511 million versus $578 million for the comparable 1985 period.

Chairman J. Hugh Liedtke said the company's petroleum manufacturing and marketing division realized a significant increase in operating income, reflecting higher motor oil sales volumes and improved margins.

However, this gain was offset by significantly lower prices for oil and natural gas and lower gas volumes. Also, last year's first quarter results included a gain of 21 cents per share on the sale of securities.

Operating income for the sulphur division was approximately equal with comparable 1985 levels.

Valero sees 'negative impact' of oil prices

SAN ANTONIO — (SWN) Valero Energy Corp. reported preliminary first quarter results reflecting the negative impact which severely declining crude oil prices have had on its operations. Final earnings will be reported after the Securities and Exchange Commission announces its guidelines concerning valuation of oil and gas properties.

The company reported a preliminary net loss of $42.9 million, or $1.82 per share. This included a pre-tax write-down to market prices of $35.4 million for refinery inventories and a non-cash pre-tax write-down of $26.1 million for investments in oil and gas properties. The oil and gas property write-down is based upon the company's projection of year-end crude oil prices. The pre-tax write down would be $10.3 million greater if it were based on quarter-end prices. Also included was a pre-tax provision of $7.5 million to write off the investment in the company's coal operation. In the first quarter of 1985, the company reported net income of $6.9 million, or 21 cents per share.

Union Texas completes Pakistan gas discovery

HOUSTON — (SWN) Union Texas Petroleum announced that a recently completed well in the Badin area of southeast Pakistan confirms the discovery of gas reserves the company discovered in its Turk No. 1 well in mid-1985. Union Texas is operator of a group which includes Occidental Petroleum Corp. and Oil & Gas Development Corp., a Pakistani government-owned company.

Located about 85 miles east of Karachi, the confirmation well, called the Turk No. 2, tested at a rate of 19.5 million cubic feet of natural gas daily (MMcfd). The natural gas flowed through a 56/64-inch choke with 14,021 psi flowing tubing pressure from perforations between 6,032 and 6,055 feet. The Turk No. 2 well is located about one-half mile from the discovery well.

Completed in June 1985, the Turk No. 1 discovery well flowed at an average rate of 10 MMcfd of natural gas and 1,700 barrels of oil daily.

Union Texas has a 30 percent interest in the two wells. The remaining interest is held by Occidental Petroleum with 30 percent and Oil & Gas Development Corp. with 40 percent.

FOCUS on BUSINESS

John "Buffalo" Chester, a cowboy from Dike, Texas, makes a call on a Southwestern Bell coin phone while out on the trail with the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train.

Phone on the range

When wagon trains rolled across Texas years ago, making camp wherever sundown caught them, mobile telephones and fiber optic cable were light years away.

The wagon riders didn't imagine that some day technology would enable their descendants to talk to relatives and friends while out on the trail.

Today, another wagon train is making its way across the Lone Star State to celebrate the state's 150th birthday. The wagon train will be making its stop in Midland on May 2.

Riders on the Texas Sequescentennial Wagon Train can speak to those they have temporarily left behind, Southwestern Bell Telephone is providing mobile coin phones at remote campsites along the trail as it winds through the state.

According to a Southwestern Bell spokesman, "The wagon train will make stops at 60 locations in Southwestern Bell territory as well as locations served by other local telephone companies who will also provide coin phones. So far, both the temporary phones are getting extensive use."

"Most people have become so dependent on the telephone for business and for pleasure that it would be hard to travel for six months without speaking to relatives and friends back home. We're glad we've been able to assist in making the trip easier."

SBA honorees

The Small Business Administration has honored a Texas couple as Small Business Persons of the Year by the Lubbock office.

Raymond and Virginia Fuller, owners of Fuller Foods, Inc., Colorado City, will be honored and recognized as a part of Colorado City's Small Business Week activities during the week of May 18 to 24. National Small Business Week is proclaimed each year by the President to honor the Nation's 15 million small businesses.

Fuller Foods began in 1949 in a 1600 square foot building with three employees and a sales volume of $3,000 per week. Due in great part to the had work and dedication of the Fuller's, their business grew and prospered. In November, 1985, the Fullers and their employees held a "grand opening" for their new 23,000 square foot supermarket. The store exceeds all standards of supermarkets in cities ten times the size of Colorado City.

Your number please

Imagine answering a telephone 1,000 times a day, every day — with each call lasting about 19 seconds.

The Directory Assistance operators who answer calls to 1-411 in Texas don't just imagine it, they do it — with the help of high speed computers and their friendly voices.

More than 2100 Southwestern Bell Telephone operators answer calls to Directory Assistance in Texas. The operators handle 1.6 million calls a day, or 30 million calls per month. That's an average of 1,000 calls per day, per operator.

REALTORS

rests with us to make them aware of this relationship." He noted that, under Texas law, a broker's license is subject to suspension or revocation if he fails to make the relationship clear.

Bering said that a realtor can act as a dual agent, representing both the buyer and the seller "as long as it is done with the proper disclosure and the informed consent of all the parties involved.

He pointed out that once a realtor answers questions from the buyer such as 'how much do you think he'll take?' or 'what have some of the other offers been?' that realtor has traded his fiduciary duties from the seller to the buyer. "Make sure the buyer knows where your loyalties lie. Get acknowledgement in writing, if necessary."

"This is an important area fraught with exposures, and we can protect ourselves by full disclosure of the agency relationship," he continued.

There is a disclosure form available for realtors to use, on a voluntary basis. However, according to Mark Hanna, the TAR's legal counsel, not all brokers will use this form, which could have a chilling effect on prospective buyers and put the brokers who use the form at a competitive disadvantage. He suggested that, at the TAR convention in El Paso in June, members consider asking the Texas Real Estate Commission to make the form mandatory. "This will put the agency dilemma to bed in the state of Texas."

BANKS

"The bank was unable to remedy its problems and losses and finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in insolvency," he said.

Ms. Amberson said the bank had assets of $14.6 million and desposits of only $14.1 million when it was closed Thursday.

A newly chartered subsidiary of Bandera Bancshares, Inc. of Dallas, organized Bandera Bank for the takeover.

Unemployed fill up on gas give-aways

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The ranks of the unemployed may have had to wait as long as an hour in line, but when they drove away from Dunkles Chevron in Midland and Odessa's E.E. Hensley & Son Gulf Station on Thursday, their gas tanks were full of free gasoline.

The stations each gave away 2,500 gallons of free gasoline to the unemployed in Midland-Odessa from 10 a.m. to noon Thursday during an event sponsored by the stations, Chevron/Gulf and KUFO radio.

The gas give-away was the brainchild of KUFO vice president Charles Campbell, who said "a light went off in my head" when an unemployed man at the recent "Love Ya Midland" pep rally told him that he missed a job interview because he didn't have any money for gas.

"I contacted the people at Chevron and they loved the idea. They just loved it," he said.

Between 500 and 600 people were expected to fill their tanks with the maximum $10 worth of gasoline. Campbell said Midland organizers serviced about 137 cars in an hour and a half.

Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins, mayor-elect Carroll Thomas, members of the Midland Angels baseball team and presidents of both city's chambers of commerce were among the local celebrities pumping gas. Rainbow Baking Co. gave away free loaves of bread and soft drinks also were passed out to customers.

"What this is doing is showing the spirit of West Texas by reaching out and helping each other," Midland Chamber of Commerce president Joan Baskin said as she washed car windshields.

Unemployed oilfield worker Juan Gonzales pulled his pickup to the pump, noting "I don't have any money for gas for my truck, so I think this is great."

Organizers said people filling up with gas did not have to prove they were unemployed. Names and addresses of people receiving gasoline, however, were recorded to form an unemployment clearing house list. Organizers will try to match those names with potential employers.

"This is not a one-shot deal. We're trying to help people," Campbell said.

Chevron public affairs manager Nancy Carroll said she was overwhelmed by the turnout. "We were a little hesitant at first. We weren't sure how this was going to turn out, but we're real pleased," she said.

Gramm-Rudman cuts slight at local level

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

The effects of Gramm-Rudman are being felt slightly at the local level, according to a financial report presented during Thursday's monthly meeting of the Midland Memorial Hospital's Board of Trustees.

"Effective March..., the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget legislation did result in a one percent decrease in each calculated DRG payment," said Vice President of Finance Ron Peterson.

The DRG, or Diagnosis Related Group, is a list of more than 400 medical conditions for which Medicare reimburses participating hospitals a pre-set amount. Peterson explained that a certain amount of the budget cuts mandated by Gramm-Rudman come from the Department of Health and Human Services which oversees Medicare.

According to Peterson's monthly financial report, total Medicare revenues for the year-to-date of $7.1 million are "slightly under budget" of $7.2 million. The total number of days spent in the hospital by Medicare patients for the same period exceeded the budget by 8.6 percent and by 11 percent for the previous year, Peterson added.

"We're seeing more effects of Medicare coming into play," said Peterson to the trustees. "For example, we're seeing what was the short stay admissions being eliminated all together."

While the loss would amount to "about $50,000 to $70,000" for the fiscal year, he indicated there was no need for action immediately.

"Our review of Medicare claims paid and the resulting contractual allowance requirement indicates that a change is not needed at this time," he said.

For the most part, however, the March financial picture for the hospital were better than the previous month, indicated the report.

"March financial results were improved over the previous month," said Peterson. "Revenue of $4,204,881 exceeded budget by $34,985. Operating expenses of $3.3 million were $27,673 in excess of budget."

The report showed an operating "excess" of $238,981 which exceeded budget by $26,803. The total hospital excess of $256,897 exceeded budget by $20,379.

During the following Midland County Hospital District's monthly meeting of directors, the presidency of the board changed hands as Tevis Herd, long-time MCHD board member, relinquished his seat to incoming member Margaret Purvis, and his presidency to Dr. Walter Parks, who was elected during the meeting.

Frank Cahoon was elected vice president of the board and Pat Estes was re-elected as secretary.

A MMH administrative assistant, Linda Rogers, was appointed by board members as an assistant secretary to fill in during Ms. Estes' absence.

Routine partial construction-related payments approved by the board included $108,000 to Area Builders, $10,285 for architectural fees for renovation of the new hyperbaric oxygen area, $107,838 as reimbursement to MMH for purchase of equipment and $86,731 for other capital expenditures.

Other payments included $101,379 as reimbursement to MMH for indigent care and more than $8,000 for legal fees.

Bids approved by board members included $19,150 for EKG machines, $4,960 for anesthesia equipment, $19,345 for three new critical care unit beds and $4,190 for a word processor.

Emergency orders were also approved for the purchase of controlled medical cabinets to meet Medicare inspection requirements and for additional equipment for the new HBO area.

New computer provides 'up to the minute care'

By RAMONA NYE

Relatives crowd outside the Midland Memorial Hospital Critical Care Unit as they wait for visiting hours to start.

Inside the critical care unit, a new computer and 12 monitors are in operation. The new monitors have been in operation since November when the Abell-Hanger Foundation donated the system to replace 10-year-old equipment.

The system provides critical care patients with "up to the minute" technology, said Robin Hair, head nurse with the critical care unit.

The system continuously monitors a patient's heart rate, pattern and beat. Along with saving nurses time from figuring out cardiac calculations and medications, the system also provides fine tuning detection of abnormal heart beats or arrhythmias.

"The ability to detect arrhythmia has improved quite significantly," Ms. Hair said.

For example, if patients coughed the old equipment would send off false alarms that they were having an abnormal heart beat, she said. The new equipment breaks arrhythmias into three tiers that allow nurses and physicians to distinguish serious arryhthmias from normal arrhythmias, she said.

"It makes our work a lot easier," Ms. Hair said.

Physical fitness 'not just bulging muscles'

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

The folks who dream up ways to fit computers ever more intimately into our daily lives have done it again, this time at the local YMCA.

They've mounted computer screens on the exercise machines.

"Physical fitness is not just bulging muscles anymore," said Rowland Wong, Central YMCA director. "It's having a healthy heart, lifestyle and happy attitude."

And part of having a healthy heart is knowing just how much exercise to get — thus the need for computerized cardiovascular exercise equipment — found in YMCA's latest addition, the $25,000 Cardiovascular Center.

"When someone comes in we try to determine their cardiovascular 'risk' factor," said Wong. "We take a blood sample to determine cholesterol and triglyceride levels and then counsel them on the type of program they should undergo."

The CV center includes a simulated stair-climbing device, a Nordic skiing machine, treadmill, large-screen television which, in the future, will feature music videos, standard rowing machines and bicycle aerobic machines.

"There's a real camaraderie here. At lunch, it's like a steam room in here," said Wong. "It's really gone over well since it opened two weeks ago."

One of the more popular devices found in the former women's Nautilus room, is the "Lifecycle" — a computerized marvel that somehow simulates a bicycle ride, including going up a steep hill and coasting down the other side.

"It's got 12 different levels of difficulty," said Wong. "It has computerized variable resistance."

The bicycler programs in the length of time he wishes to ride and the machine then proceeds to simulate the journey. A green computer screen in front of the user indicates a "hill profile" which describes visually what is happening physically.

One member indicated she liked to use the machines for another reason.

"It lets you know how many calories you're burning off," said Cordy Ritchie, as she worked out on the "stair master," an endless loop of escalator-like stairs that go several speeds.

Directly in front of Ms. Ritchie was another computer screen which revealed not only the amount of calories being burned off, but how many flights of stairs had been climbed (48 floors equal one mile), how many steps per minute, how many watts (or the amount of power being generated by the user) and the "MET" rate.

"The MET is used to determine the metabolic rate," said Wong. "One MET equals the basic metabolic requirement at rest."

The computer screen also reveals, by way of a special finger attachment, the user's blood pressure.

The treadmill, too, is no simple device.

"It's an isokinetic resistance treadmill," said Wong, of the machine which automatically stops when the user stops, unlike many automatic treadmills which require the user to keep pace with the machine.

Wong obviously is proud of the new YMCA addition, which is located in a glassed-in area directly off the main entrance.

"This is part of a program we've dreamed of since 1981," he said. "It's the last phase of our cardiovascular development program."

Two Midland men indicted for 1982 robbery, murder

Chambers

Two Midland men were being held in county jail this morning on bonds totaling $100,000 apiece after being indicted Wednesday for the 1982 murder and robbery of Wylie Wilson.

The two are suspected of being involved in the June 9, 1982, murder, for which another Midland man last month was sentenced to life in prison.

Their arrests followed an investigation by the Midland County District Attorney's Office, according to District Attorney Al Schorre.

James Robert Chambers, 25, was arrested about 1:20 this morning in an apartment at Quail Hollow Apartments, 3001 N. Midland Drive, according to J.D. Luckie, an investigator for the Midland County District Attorney's Office.

Jackie Dorn, 31, was arrested about 1:20 p.m. Thursday outside the Safari Club on Illinois Avenue in southeast Midland, Luckie said.

On March 20, 25-year-old Elroy McKee was sentenced to life in prison for the murder and robbery of Wilson, a furniture salesman whose body was found in an open field in rural Midland on June 10, 1982.

Wilson had been bludgeoned to death with a blunt instrument which was never recovered by investigators.

After the Midland County Sheriff's Office re-opened the case last August with the help of Texas Ranger C.J. Havrda, McKee and his fraternal-twin brother, Leroy McKee, were arrested. Chambers was also arrested at the time, but was later released.

Elroy McKee remains in county jail pending his attorney's motion for a new trial, and Leroy McKee is still awaiting trial.

The four are being held separately, Luckie said this morning.

Testimony at Elroy McKee's trial indicated that four men had been involved in the murder, and investigators eventually found witnesses to identify Dorn and Chambers from photographs as also having been involved, Luckie said.

With help from the Sheriff's Office, the Texas Rangers and the Midland Police Department, "We were able to make the arrests," he said.

These arrests probably close the three-year-old case, Luckie said.

Freeway changed course of El Paso motel

By DAVID LANDIS

EL PASO (AP) — Yellowed newspaper clippings tell the tale of the boom years of the Del Camino Motor Hotel, back before they built a freeway that whizzed all the travelers from one Holiday Inn to another.

1947: "50 cottages will be added at Del Camino."

1948: "EP courts to be world's largest."

1950: "Additional 50 cottages to be added to Del Camino Courts."

1953: "Del Camino adds 28 new units."

And so it continued until later that decade, when articles chronicling the Del Camino's expansion began to be replaced by news of the new freeway.

"There's a lot of history behind this place, but I don't know it all," says Kaisser Farah, who bought the Del Camino as an investment in 1980.

"This is not my field really. I'm an investor, not a hotel-motel manager. I don't like the hotel business — too much hustle."

Even so, sentiment wins out, and Farah shows a visitor the little window through the wall plaster in the restaurant that reveals the original adobe bricks, 22 inches thick.

AP Laserphoto

Tile art, an outdoor garden/courtyard and Spanish-style roofing make Del Camino Motel in El Paso distinct.

At its peak, the Del Camino had 287 rooms on both sides of tree-lined Alameda Avenue — or, as it was known then, U.S. Highway 80, the eastern pipeline into El Paso. Now, 100 or so rooms are left in clusters of Spanish-style cottages on only one side of the street.

Rooms may have been cheaper back then, but $23 plus tax still isn't bad. The planter boxes are well-maintained, and the rosebushes are blooming.

"It's still the best Mexican food in town," says Ramon Lerma, who should know. He's been working there 34 years.

The travelers are fewer in number, Farah says, "But they love the place. It's not just another motel."

S.G. Gonzalez built a restaurant on Alameda in 1928 and named it after another famous restaurant he owned in Juarez, the Central Cafe. Next door he built a three-story Spanish mansion with an elevator, where he lived.

He later changed the restaurant's name to Cafe del Camino Real, and in 1938 sold it and the mansion to W.A. "Bull" Adams, who was in the cattle business. There was a little motel on the property with 30 rooms.

The city limits then were where the streetcar line ended at Concepcion Street.

Court may rule on students' protests

AUSTIN (AP) — A court may have to officially decide whether anyone at the University of Texas has been denied the right of free speech during recent anti-apartheid protests, but UT officials insist the rules protect that right rather than infringe upon it.

The officials say campus rules limiting rallies on the West Mall and providing for two "free speech areas" are non-discriminatory and reasonable regulations for demonstrations.

Students who have protested the rules, as well as attorneys who have volunteered to represent the students, say the rules are unreasonable infringements of free speech.

They also argue that recent arrests of protesters are an illegal way of breaking up a demonstration.

UT police have arrested 228 people, including about 200 students, in three West Mall rallies this month.

No charges have been filed, but UT officials say they may try to file charges of disruptive conduct. Students are also subject to UT disciplinary proceedings.

The West Mall rules have never been tested in court, but similar rules limiting the time and place of demonstrations at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos were upheld by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1970.

The court found that SWT had not used the rules to stop a demonstration because of its subject matter, and that the rules were "a valid exercise of the University's right to adopt and enforce reasonable, non-discriminatory regulations as to the time, place and manner of student expressions and demonstrations."

Brian East, an Austin lawyer who is coordinating the work of about 15 attorneys who have volunteered to represent arrested UT students, said he was not thoroughly familiar with the San Marcos case but there could easily be differences of fact and legal issues between the two campuses.

The UT rules were devised in 1968-69 by a faculty-student committee that revised all campus rules on student services and activities. Gerhard Fonken, who was chairman of that committee and is now executive vice president and provost of UT, said the rules were a response to the nationwide student protests of the 1960s as well as to the growth in UT student organizations of all types.

Ector County, Odessa runoff elections slated

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — When the votes are counted Saturday Odessa will have a new mayor, a new City Council member to represent the southside, two new Ector County Independent School District trustees and one new OC board member.

Ballots in the runoff elections are to be counted by the Ector County Data Processing Center, with totals accumulated by workers at the Ector County School Administration Building. The data processing center sustained heavy smoke damage when a fire broke out in the extension service offices next door in the same building early last Sunday. However, Tom Pace, county fiscal services director, said data processing director Joe Franell has indicated he expects no trouble in counting the ballots Saturday.

In the runoff election for mayor, longtime Odessa businessman Don Carter, 57, is pitting his 35 years of business experience against 32-year-old Lorraine Bonner, who spent seven years as ECISD public information director before resigning to open her own public relations firm about six months ago.

In a last minute development this week, two of three unsuccessful candidates in the April 5 mayoral race, Dave Cox and Ernest Cole, publicly endorsed former opponent Carter. In a newspaper advertisement, Cox, a 55-year-old furniture store owner, stated he "supports Don Carter because he has the leadership, ability and experience that Odessa must have."

Cox indicated he agreed to endorse Carter because the area's economic troubles require "someone who has had business experience, or primarily, any kind of experience." According to Cox, Ms. Bonner's business experience is only a few months old.

Ms. Bonner contends she does feel threatened by the support of Cox and Cole for Carter, that voters will "vote how they see fit."

In the runoff race for the southside District 1 council seat being vacated by Thomas Perkins, former District 1 Council member Margaret Burton, 48, faces Jaime Rodriguez, 29.

Ms. Burton, until recently director of the Odessa Rape Crisis Center, served one term from 1980 to 1983. Rodriguez, an inventory control supervisor for a local trucking firm, is making his first bid for elective office.

Four candidates are vying for two positions as ECISD trustees. Jim Spencer, 60, a former ECISD principal who now operates a construction firm, faces 41-year-old Olen Arnold, owner of Arnold Enterprises, in the race for the school board Position 1 slot.

In the race for Position 2, 39-year-old real estate appraiser Judy Bridges faces Amoco production engineer George "Buddy" West, 49.

The runoff race for Position 2 on the Odessa College Board of Trustees finds 24-year-old Sandra Shaw, an ECISD speech therapist, facing Richard Hoffman, who operates Hoffman Marketing.

Odessa police seek robbery suspects

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Police continue to seek three suspects allegedly involved in two robberies Thursday.

About 7:25 p.m., what Odessa police spokesman John McAhon described as "a female Mutt & Jeff team" entered the O.G. Wilson store in the Permian Mall and made off with an 18 karat gold "President's model" Rolex wristwatch valued at $7,500.

According to McAhon, one of the female suspects distracted a clerk while the other took the watch.

The clerk described one of the women as a Hispanic, about 5-feet 4-inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds in her mid-20s to early 30s with dark brown hair. The second suspect was described as an Anglo woman, about 6-feet tall, weighing approximately 170 pounds in her mid-20s, with blond hair.

About 11:30 a.m. Thursday, a suspect described as a Hispanic male in his late teens or early 20s entered the Starlite Grocery, produced a black, Luger-type handgun and cleaned out the store's cash register, escaping with $108.49, according to McAhon.

The 46-year-old clerk, Jean N. McKim, was forced into her car by the gunman and made to drive her car to an unknown location where the gunman fled without harming her.

Ms. McKim described the suspect as having collar-length dark hair, wearing a gray welder's cap, a blue plaid shirt over a light-colored T-shirt, Levis and tennis shoes.

Funeral director saves infant

ABILENE (AP) — A funeral director used an emergency technique to help save an infant's life after the mother stopped at his offices, authorities say.

Dennis Cooper, funeral director at Elliott-Hamil Funeral Home, said the frightened mother brought her child to his offices on Wednesday.

"You wonder about stopping at a funeral home," Cooper said, "but it is a safe place to stop in case of such an emergency."

A spokeswoman for Hendrick Medical Center said a 1-year-old child was admitted at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday and released two hours later.

Cooper said most funeral directors also have worked in medical field. Cooper said he has had a number of years of ambulance experience.

He said he was working near the front door when he heard a woman enter the funeral home.

"She was screaming that she needed help," Cooper said. "She handed me this little baby; he was blue and convulsing at the time."

He said the woman was apparently driving by the funeral home when the baby started convulsing or choking, and she "just pulled in."

"His eyes had rolled in back of his head, and he was twitching and convulsing," Cooper told the Abilene Reporter-News.

"I was scared to death, but I knew it was no time to panic, but to take action," he said.

Cooper placed the infant on the floor and tried to clear his airway and make sure he was breathing.

He said his tilted his head back and started cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Copper said that the infant started breathing in 20 or 30 seconds.

Midlander missing from prison

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — An inmate from the Federal Correctional Institution was reported missing from a work detail along with a government van, authorities said Thursday.

Art Espinoza, executive assistant, said Greg Douglas Buckley, 25, escaped from a work detail assigned to an electrical shop outside the grounds. He was reported missing at 10 a.m. Wednesday along with a 1976 white Dodge government van. He is not believed to be armed.

Buckley, a native of Midland, Texas, was serving a four-year, six-month term for transporting a stolen car across a state line after his arrest and conviction in Denver.

Funds will repair about 10 houses

From Staff Reports

The average cost of rehabilitating homes through a Community Development Block Grant will be $6,135, the city rehabilitation inspector told Housing Authority commissioners Thursday.

About $75,000 in CDBG funds will be used to rehabilitate 10 or 11 homes in Midland this year. The CDBG funds were $25,000 short of the 1985 grant of $100,000.

The Human Relations Council received 55 applications from low income residents seeking help on repairing and renovating their homes, said Bob Jones, director of the council.

Twelve of the 55 applications have been approved, Jones said. Repairs to the homes will include interior and exterior work, roofing, wall repair, plumbing and painting.

The commissioners also heard that Langtry Village construction is on schedule and should be completed in June, said commissioner secretary Fred Kester.

However, applications for apartments are not being accepted yet, Kester said.

The 85-unit Langtry Village complex for the city's low income elderly will provide inexpensive housing based on the residents' income.

Patients were getting "top care" with the old monitoring equipment, but the new equipment frees nurses to spend more bedside time with patients, she said.

Along with heart attack patients, other critical care residents suffer from severe lung diseases, neurological problems or are undergoing extensive surgery, Ms. Hair said. However, all patients have their hearts automatically monitored.

"We've picked that parameter as the most significant. Usually when you have a multi-system failure, your heart is going to be involved in one way or another," she said.

The system also provides nurses and physicians with a continuous display of pulmonary function measurements, a record of drug administration, hemodynamic calculations, the ability to make records immediately accessible, sensors to measure blood gases and blood pressure displays.

Democrats set monthly meeting

From Staff Reports

The Midland County Young Democrats will hold their monthly meeting next Tuesday at 5 p.m. at the Midland County Democratic Headquarters, 2305 N. Big Spring.

Candidates seeking the office of Midland County Democratic Party chairman will speak at the meeting. Incumbent Janet Massey is being challenged by Robert Pollard for the post.

Also, the Young Democrats will conduct a mock precinct meeting to demonstrate how the precinct meetings, which are scheduled for May 3, can be organized.

Anyone interested in the discussion or joining the Young Democrats is invited to attend the meeting.

Giddings was driving a 1981 GMC pickup on Highway 80 when he turned north onto County Road 1162. His pickup collided with a 1973 Oldsmobile driven by John McMurray of Big Spring, who was heading west on the north service road. According to DPS reports, McMurray failed to yield the right of way at a stop sign.

Several hours later, at 1:20 this morning, a 42-year-old Midland woman and a 59-year-old Gardendale woman were injured after a 1985 Dodge Ram Charger collided with a 1985 Lincoln on U.S. 385 in Ector County.

Helen Rankin, 1009 Ainslee, was listed in stable condition in Odessa Medical Center Hospital with a fractured ankle, and Rose Woodall was listed in stable condition in Odessa Woman's and Children's Hospital, according to hospital reports.

Ms. Woodall's passenger, 58-year-old William Fausatt, of 2822 Metz in Midland, was treated for minor injuries and released, according to a Medical Center Hospital spokeswoman.

According to DPS reports, the accident occurred when Ms. Rankin, driving the Ram Charger south on U.S. 385, turned east at Yukon and crossed in front of the Lincoln driven by Ms. Woodall, which was heading north on U.S. 385.

El Paso paper says photographer beaten while in Mexico

EL PASO (AP) — A newspaper editor is filing complaints with officials on both sides of the border after a photographer said he was beaten by an alleged drug trafficker and his cronies in Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

Al Gutierrez, 34, who freelances for the El Paso Herald-Post, said Thursday he was held for 12 hours in Juarez by a man wanted on a 4-year-old federal warrant for conspiracy to smuggle marijuana into the United States through El Paso.

The man also threatened to kill Herald-Post reporter Terrence Poppa, who wrote a series of articles April 16 about drug operations along the border, Guteirrez said.

Gutierrez suffered cuts and bruises and wore a neck brace Thursday.

Herald-Post editor Jay Ambrose said he was in the process of filing complaints with the U.S. Department of State, FBI, the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City, the mayor of Juarez and the governor of the state of Chihuahua.

"Our concern is these people threatened the life of our reporter and they have a way of carrying out their threats," said Ambrose. "They play rough. We're outraged that any newsman...should be beaten. And he is a guy just going to get a photograph.

"He's scared to death, as I would be."

The U.S. Consulate in Juarez had not been contacted about the incident as of Thursday afternoon, said deputy consul Mike Hogan. Consul Mike Hancock was not immediately available, Hogan said.

"In point of actual fact, there's very little we can do, except talk to the (Juarez) prosecutor and police," said Hogan.

Gutierrez said he went across the river to Juarez Wednesday to shoot a picture of a hotel named in the newspaper series for the Seattle Times, which had obtained the Herald-Post's series through the Scripps-Howard news service.

He decided to photograph the inside of the hotel and sought permission from the manager.

Y.O. Ranch 'heads 'em up'

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — Cowboys and cowgirls will hit the dusty trail Saturday in the annual Y.O. Ranch Longhorn Trail Drive.

"It's a hard, rough ride," said Debbie Gunn, ranch assistant guest manager.

Nevertheless, about 130 riders were expected to don their spurs, cowboy boots and hats, saddle up and ride in the weekend trail drive.

The event is held each year in remembrance of the history of the Y.O. Ranch.

The sprawling 55,000-acre Hill Country Ranch was founded by Capt. Charles Schreiner more than 100 years ago.

Schreiner used to drive 300,000 head of longhorn up the Western Trail to Dodge City, Kan.

"That's basically how he amassed his fortune and the family has been celebrating it for the past 10 years," she said.

Rural communities grappling with economic death, magazine says

AGRICULTURE

Today, countless rural communities are grappling with the specter of a slow economic death, reports Successful Farming magazine.

According to Ken Farrell, Resources for the Future, rural America is in the "throes of major economic change, where existing national and local policies prove inadequate in protecting a population dependent on natural resources for a livelihood."

Small businesses need an industry to bring people to town. Without a healthy agriculture, one-fifth of nonfarm businesses in rural communities are under severe financial stress, a Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City report states.

According to a USDA report, there are about 700 counties (average popualtion of 12,000), on the western edge of the Corn Belt and in the Great Plains which rely on agriculture. The report concludes, "These ag-dependent counties haven't participated fully in the reshaping of the rural economy to a more diversified base."

Fortunately for Osceola, Iowa, its leaders recognized the specter of a slow economic death at the threshhold of the 1970s. The Clarke County Development Corp. was launched while other communities were blindsided by the prosperity of the agricultural boom.

About 330 businesses and individuals capitalized the corporation with $10 shares. The $80,000 raised purchased an 87-acre farm on the town's edge which became the Osceola Industrial Park. The water board installed 10-inch water lines and the city council worked with the board of supervisors to pave streets.

Sixteen years later, the development corporation, a nonprofit organization, has located 13 industries. In 1977, 68 acres were purchased and a federal grant helped construct streets, a water tower and sewer. Jimmy Dean Co. is planning a $9 million expansion here, and Campbell Soups will build a mushroom farm in 1987.

But the impact on Osceola stretches beyond its industrial park horizon. For instance, in the period from 1970 to 1984:

— The tax base increased to $74,320 from $12,420.

— City tax revenue paid by industry shot up to 23 percent from 2.8 percent.

— Residential property taxes dropped by 14 percent.

— The work force rose to 4,450, from 3,150.

— Osceola's population of 3,124 grew to 3,750.

— Clarke County population increased to 8,612 from 7,581.

— Retail sales jumped to $29 million from $10.5 million.

Today, more than 90 percent of Osceola's streets are paved, and there are no empty storefronts.

On the surface, Osceola's profile is similar to other rural communities: an available work force which exhibits low absenteeism and high productivity. Its location, about 45 miles south of Des Moines, is a plus.

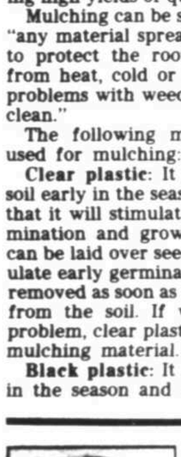

Jimmy Dean Co. surveyed 38 communities in four states before selecting Osceola. Furnas Electric considered 28 sites in seven states.

It helps Osceola to have very competitive gas and electric rates.

How Osceola arrived at its enviable position several years ahead of the current near-crisis is a story of "shakers and movers, negotiators and communicators and supporters," says Bob Toland, the development corporation president.

Working closely with the Iowa Development Commission, the corporation's 15-member board meets once monthly. But its four officers talk on the phone almost every day.

Persistence is the key, according to Successful Farming. Although 13 industries have located in Osceola, over 200 prospects have been contacted.

Mulching one of real keys to successful gardening

Mulching is one of the real keys to successful vegetable gardening in Texas. When properly done, mulching can go a long way toward insuring high yields of quality vegetables.

Mulching can be simply defined as "any material spread on the garden to protect the roots of the plants from heat, cold or drought, reduce problems with weeds and keep fruit clean."

The following materials can be used for mulching:

Clear plastic: It helps warm the soil early in the season. A problem is that it will stimulate weed seed germination and growth. Clear plastic can be laid over seeded rows to stimulate early germination. It should be removed as soon as seedlings emerge from the soil. If weeds are not a problem, clear plastic is an excellent mulching material.

Black plastic: It warms soil early in the season and also reduces the weed population. Adequate soil moisture should be available when black plastic is applied. Cut holes through the plastic after it is applied over the bed to allow for seeding or transplanting.

Paper: Various types of paper can be used as mulches, with newspaper being the most common. Several sheets of newspaper laid flat over the surface of the garden row works well as a mulch. However, this will reduce the temperature of the garden soil. Paper mulch used early in the spring when the soil is cold will delay the maturity of many garden vegatables. Paper can be used to greater advantage if applied after crops are growing and soil has warmed up.

Organic mulches: Organic mulches are by far the most common. They are most beneficial in the summer, reducing soil temperature and saving soil moisture. Organic mulches should not be used too early in the spring as they will slow plant maturity.

Mulches or organic matter will help prevent soil crusting, help control weeds, prevent erosion and lessen fruit rot as well as save moisture and reduce summer temperatures. After the soil warms, apply organic mulches at a depth of one to two inches thick around growing plants.

With such organic materials as sawdust, leaves and rice hulls, it will usually be necessary to increase the amount of garden fertilizer by about one-fourth to compensate for nutrients used by microorganisms during the breakdown process. At the end of the season, organic mulches should be turned under to help improve the soil's physical condition.

Scientists trying to halt spread of gypsy moths

BROOMALL, Pa. (AP) — Gypsy moth eggs that produce sterile males will be dropped in seven states this year by scientists trying to halt the spread of the leaf-devouring insects.

The method, called "induced inherited sterility," was tested in Maryland, Vermont, Washington and Ohio last year, according to the Northeastern Forest Experiment Station of the U.S. Forest Service.

"Because of the success of last year's tests, large-scale aerial application of the partially sterile eggs will be conducted in Vermont and West Virginia," the station said in a statement this week.

Smaller applications will be aimed at wiping out isolated moth populations in Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Washington and Oregon.

The program started when eggs were released in one small area of Maryland, said Forest Service spokeswoman Diane Whetstone.

In the new method, scientists breed partially sterilized male gypsy moths with females. The resulting eggs are released in infested areas, hatch, and the adults that grow from them are normal, but sterile. When wild gypsy moths mate with them, the eggs will not hatch.

Integrated pest management has helped cotton farmers

Integrated pest management programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have reached into many areas of crop and livestock production, but a major emphasis has been in cotton and the successes have been numerous.

The extension service has been a partner with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Pest Management Association and cotton organizations in implementing IPM technology.

The service has helped prevent the westward spread of the destructive boll weevil into the High Plains, a major cotton-growing region. This has been accomplished with a fall spraying program before the weevil reaches the diapause state in which it overwinters. A continuous program since 1964, the effort has resulted in a savings of some $1.9 billion due to reduced insecticide treatments by farmers and increased yields.

Bollworm management strategies in the High Plains also have paid handsome dividends over the years. The bollworm problem has cost producers as much as $30 million annually in control costs and yield losses, but emphasis on field scouting and improved use of insecticides as advocated by the extension service have turned the tide. The strategy has provided an annual savings in cotton yield of some 32 pounds per acre over the region valued at about $7.5 million.

In the Rolling Plains where the boll weevil has plagued cotton growers for years, the extension service devised a management strategy in 1972 centered around a delayed uniform planting date. All cotton farmers in the region are encouraged to plant around May 20 (a month later than normal) so that female weevils emerging from overwintering sites by mid-June do not find cotton squares for laying their eggs. Since only a small percentage of the female weevils survive until cotton squares become available, damaging populations seldom develop until late in the growing season. This has kept insecticide use to a minimum and has generally allowed beneficial insects to keep bollworms and tobacco budworms under control.

The delayed uniform planting stratefy has resulted in a 25-pound per acre yield increase and a reduction in insecticide, seed and labor costs, leading to an increased annual return of $21.36 per acre — an economic impact on the Rolling Plains region of some $192 million.

In far West Texas, where pink bollworms have been a nemesis to the cotton producer, extension entomologists and agents have initiated pest management programs focusing on more efficient control techniques while improving environmental quality.

Educational efforts in that region have emphasized the need for farmers to destroy crop residue early to reduce overwintering populations of bollworms. During the growing season, field scouting, phermone traps and a computer prediction model are all used to determine the need for insecticide applications. Extension staff has encouraged the adoption of a new application technique which has reduced per acre insecticide use 10-fold. In El Paso County alone, this effort saved cotton growers some $750,000 last year. Total savings in crop loss and pesticide application cost over a seven-county area are estimated at $1.7 million for 1985.

Boll weevils nearly estimated the cotton crop in the Rio Grande Valley in 1980. Since that time extension efforts have focused on encouraging farmers to destroy cotton stalks early to reduce food and habitats for overwintering weevils. This led to a net reduction of eight pesticide savings last year. At the same time cotton yields have increased 370 pounds per acre. Overall, farmers have realized an increase in gross income of $270 per acre for a total regional impact of some $31 million.

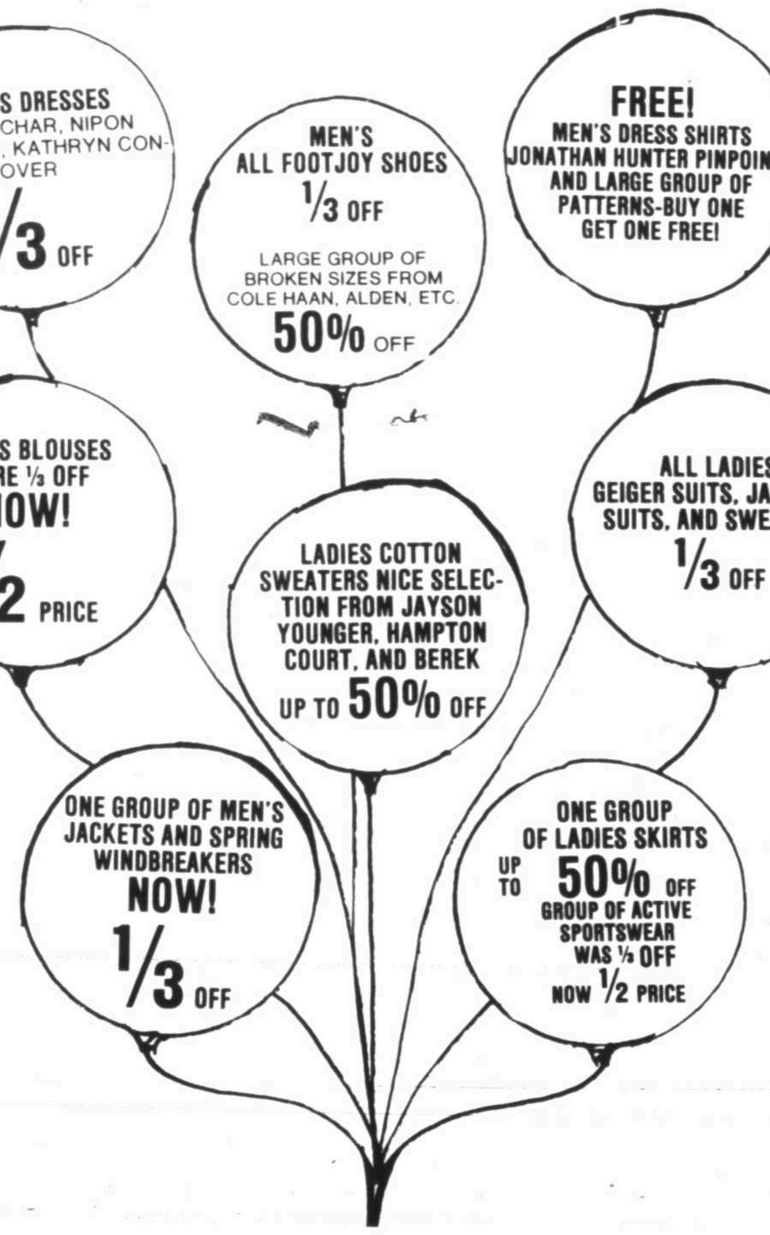

Pest management efforts have helped cotton make a comeback in the Coastal Bend area. Extension IPM programs have emphasized use of short-season varieties and cost-effective pest control that have boosted cotton yields by 200 pounds per acre and decreased insect control by about $15 per acre. In one year, savings in insect control costs alone on 17,000 acres amounted to $2.55 million.

"These educational programs in cotton pest management have meant a lot to the Texas cotton industry," points out Zerle L. Carpenter, extension service director. "However, such programs will be effected by decreased resources should additional budget cuts at the state level and proposed reductions at the federal level take place. While the extension service will continue to focus its efforts on high quality educational programs aimed at meeting the needs of clientele, budget restraints will definitely limit the scope of these programs," Carpenter adds.

This report of a successful educational effort clearly demonstrates that public funding for extension is an investment which returns economic benefits in excess of funds committed to the extension system, Carpenter notes.

Richard Minzenmayer is Midland County Extension Agent for Entomology.

Farmers hogs killed after eating tainted feed

POTTERSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Don Proffitt watched trailers full of hogs being driven to a 180-foot-long trench on his farm one day last week, but he didn't have the heart to watch the activities.

The hogs were his and were being killed by injections and buried on his south-central Missouri farm because they had been given feed contaminated by heptachlor, the pesticide that has contaminated more than 100 dairy herds in Arkansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

A court order last month required Proffitt to quarantine his animals until they could be cleaned up or rid of the toxic chemicals. The alternative was to destroy the herd of 1,500 to 1,600 hogs.

"I never had any hope the hogs could be cleaned up," said Proffitt, whose brother, Dean, the chairman of the Missouri Milk Board, is one of eight Missouri dairymen whose herd is under quarantine.

Don Proffitt said he had tests run on the animals just in case they showed signs of improvement, but it became evident last week that there was no other solution.

Raising parents difficult job

By ERMA BOMBECK

Sometimes, the older parents get, the harder it is to raise them. They are so headstrong and independent. They won't let their kids run their lives, make decisions for them or carry out the plans their children make for them.

A woman from Newport Beach, Calif., wrote that her mother wanted to see the musical "Cats" so bad her teeth hurt. When her birthday rolled around her daughter said she was going to get her tickets for it. Her mother was furious. "That's too much money to see a play. If you buy the tickets, I won't go."

The daughter retaliated with a threat. She said, "Okay, when you cork off, I'll turn all that money you've saved into dollar bills and throw them in with you." Her mother shot back, "Fat chance! I'm going to be put into a drawer and your father is going to be buried at sea!"

I empathize. I want to give my parents everything and they won't have it. A few years ago, I wanted to give them a Jacuzzi. It would have been a wonderful gift for their aching muscles. You'd have thought I was buying them their own ocean. They did not need a Jacuzzi. They did not want a Jacuzzi. My father said five years ago, he couldn't even pronounce it.

This wasn't the way I had envisioned things would be. I had always figured the day would come when I would take my place as all wise, knowing and omnipotent and my parents would look to me for leadership and guidance, as I had looked to them. I gathered them about me and said as patiently as I could, "Look, do you remember when I was a little girl and someone would give me a cookie and you would prod me and say, 'What do you say, Erma Lou?' I would say, 'Thank you.' You told me that people were trying to be nice and you don't argue, you just accept it with gratitude."

My mother looked at me for a minute and said, "Do you remember a girl back in Ohio who married this young man and they didn't have a pot to cook in and a baby was on the way and the car stalled a lot and they never took vacations and her husband worked two jobs? Both sets of parents wanted so desperately to give them things, but they didn't. They sat there and watched them struggle."

"Why did they do that?" I asked.

"The way the girl explained it to the two families the struggle was a part of their lives and they had to know they could do it with each other. Besides, she said they had everything they could possibly have to be happy."

Mother put her hand over mine. "You were so wise then. What happened?"

Sometimes as a leader, I feel I still need work.

ASK DR. RUTH

Past forgotten

By DR. RUTH WESTHEIMER

Q. An old friend from California has moved near here and I'm afraid she'll blab about our wild old times back when we were young and single. She bases her style on shocking frankness. I'm a mom, wife, PTA prez and pretty uptight right about now. Can I duck this old bosom buddy?

A. I think you should take your fears seriously. That red light that goes on in your head is a useful signal. Don't start up this old relationship, which you have outgrown. If you had a lively youth, you have a right to be discreet about it now. It isn't just hypocrisy — people do grow and change and take on new responsibilities, and if you were to talk a lot about what a harum-scarum kid you once were, that would be silly and inappropriate. Also boring.

If you do meet her now and then, and she does talk about the past, just ignore it. If you beg her not to talk about it, you give her a tremendous power over you. Without responding, you can imply very clearly that you are not interested in raking over the past with her. If you remain cool and dignified and uninterested, anything she tells other people will do her more harm than it does you.

Q. Are women attracted to men dumber than themselves? I ask because for 20 years girls and women have said, "You're so intelligent." And I have learned that this means they aren't sexually attracted to me.

A. Twenty years is too long to examine this subject abstractly or intellectually. Get your own live woman! Look for a woman who is a good, stimulating companion. I don't mean unattractive, but your idea of attractiveness to women may be like Groucho Marx when he said he wouldn't belong to a club that would admit him. I have the feeling that when you hook up with a woman, it will be a wonderful relationship.

Q. For 12 years my husband has gone to strip joints two or three times a week, spent hundreds on skin magazines and X-rated movie tickets. He says he thinks about sex constantly and wonders why I don't. I give him sex and do some kinky things with him, but it's not enough. He wants me to expose myself and him, too, in bars. What can I do?

A. See a social worker tomorrow. Get on the phone now and make the appointment. Some magazines and fantasy building sights are one thing; wanting to get you both arrested is something else. And if you think you have to put up with it, you need help urgently.

Women's lack of economic gains studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite gains in the labor market and anti-discrimination legislation, women in 1983 were no better off economically than they were in 1959 — mainly because they hold prime responsibility for children, a study released recently said.

The study, by Stanford University economics professor Victor Fuchs, said women's income doubled over the quarter century, but their average hourly pay was still 50 percent less than men's.

Fuchs, reporting in the weekly journal Science, said women also lost ground in other areas. They had less leisure, while men had more; because of the increase in the divorce rate, women were more dependent on their own income; and women's share of financial responsiblity for children rose.

"As long as parents are responsible for children and this responsibility is borne disproportionately by women, sex differences in the labor market are likely to persist," he wrote.

The study, based on census data and population surveys, said women comprised 54 percent of the labor force in 1982, compared with 34 percent in 1959.

Women's wages showed a striking increase, from $4,139 in 1959 to $9,026 in 1983, because of an increase in hours worked and in actual pay. Both figures were given in 1983 dollars. The ratio of their earnings compared to men's also doubled.

However, the study found "the average man still earns almost 50 per cent more per hour than does the average woman of the same race, age and education."

This, Fuchs wrote, could be blamed on motherhood, which induced some women to leave the market at an age when men were making important career moves. Other women who stayed in the market accepted lower wages in exchange for flexible or shorter hours.

Working mothers vulnerable to pain

NEW YORK (AP) — Working mothers are more vulnerable to pain than anyone else in America's labor force, according to a nationwide study of pain and its effect on Americans, which showed that working mothers who juggle career and family suffer the greatest stress.

Of the 550 million work days that will be lost this year because of pain, most will be lost by women, according to the Nuprin Pain Report. A higher number of working mothers in the study reported recurring headaches and stomach aches, premenstrual, menstrual and dental pain than their homemaker counterparts who are not employed outside the home.

DEAR ABBY

Teen-agers don't always get second chance

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My grandson, Randy, who just turned 16, called and asked for an article he knew I had saved when it appeared in your column in the Chicago Tribune many years ago. He just enrolled in driver's education at his high school and that piece had made such a profound impression on him that he wanted a copy to reread from time to time.

It was titled, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." I remember it well because it affected me in the same way, so I clipped it. Unfortunately, I cannot find it.

Will you please run it again? I am sure there are many young people who have never read it. And those who have might need to be reminded of the grim message it carries to young people who will be driving automobiles for the first time.

You may use my name. — MARGIT NELSON, SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR MARGIT: With pleasure:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off — going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remembered was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and I felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please — somebody — wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

DEAR ABBY: May I sit in your chair and pass on a bit of hard-learned advice?

When a couple decide to marry for a second — or third — time, start fresh.

Do not move into "his" house, or "her" house. Sell both houses and start over together in a new house that will be YOUR house. There will be fewer memories, fewer quarrels and fewer hurt feelings. I know. — LEARNED TOO LATE

DEAR LEARNED: How generous of you to take pen in hand to give others the benefit of your mistake. I am reminded of a saying I heard a long time ago: "If we could sell our experience for what it cost us, we'd all be millionaires."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old security guard. I live with my parents. (I'm not married.)

I have a seizure disorder, which is kept under control with medication, but that's not my problem. This is: In my work, I have to carry a pistol. I have a release from my doctor to be a security guard and to carry a pistol, but my father won't let me carry a pistol. He is afraid I might hurt myself. I explained that I had an OK from my doctor, and if I don't carry a pistol, I could lose my job. Please tell me how to handle this problem. — LIKES MY JOB

DEAR LIKES: Explain to your father that your job requires you to carry a pistol, that you are competent to handle it and are very careful, so there's no need to worry.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. Women prove worth in business world

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — To make it in the business world, women should not try to emulate men but should consider that being a woman is an advantage, says a senior personnel assistant here.

"If we try to be men," she says, "we can only be assured of being second-class men. We need to be ourselves to prove our worth."

Royal family begins mourning period

AP Laserphoto

Mrs. Wallis Spencer, left, is pictured prior to her 1927 divorce from U.S. Navy pilot Earl Spencer. She next wed Ernest Simpson and joined in the social whirl of his native England. Above, the couple, background, attends the races at Aintree with King Edward VIII. In a scandal that took Great Britain by storm, Mrs. Simpson divorced her second husband and Edward abdicated the British throne so they could marry. They were wed June 3, 1937, at Chateau de Cande, Monts., France, below.

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and the royal family begin five days of official mourning today for the Duchess of Windsor, the American divorcee who was shunned for decades at court because a king gave up his throne for her love.

The duchess, for whom Edward VIII abdicated in 1936, died Thursday at her home near Paris at the age of 89. She will be buried Tuesday alongside her husband, as he had insisted.

The gravesite, in the British royal family's cemetery in Windsor Great Park, is yards from the mausoleum where Queen Victoria is interred.

Buckingham Palace said the body of the former Wallis Warfield Simpson will likely be flown in an aircraft of the Queen's Flight to England, a country she said she detested because its establishment so soundly rejected her.

"I shall hate it to my grave," she said in a brief return visit in 1951.

The queen, daughter of Edward's younger brother, King George VI, and her family will wear black for five days.

But the palace said Elizabeth had decided against the full and lengthy ritual of court mourning that would have entailed the cancellation of all engagements, and had opted instead for a period of family mourning to last until the duchess' funeral.

Flags will fly at half-staff in Britain on Tuesday.

Although the British monarchy made peace with the Pennsylvania-born duchess in recent years, her death revived passions and unhappy memories for some Britons, and dominated today's headlines.

"In some respects they were treated meanly," said The Times of London in an editorial on the duchess and her husband, who took the title Duke of Windsor after he abdicated. "It was unkind and arguably improper ... to deny the duchess the title of royal highness which the duke so strongly wanted her to have."

But the Conservative Daily Telegraph wrote, "The (abdication) crisis was caused, not by an obdurate establishment, but by the character of the king. It was compounded by the nature of the duchess of Windsor, more intelligent than the king yet drawn, step by step and knowingly, in the wrong direction."

The Daily Mirror, which supports the opposition Labor Party, wrote, "Young people today would find it difficult to understand the passions and enmities which the abdication crisis aroused. It is better now to let those passions die with the duchess and remember only the love affair."

The Duke of Windsor died in Paris in 1972 at the age of 77, and his body was brought back to England.

It was at his lying-in-state that Queen Elizabeth II, the Duchess of Windsor and Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, all in black mourning veils, were seen in public together for the only time.

It was duchess's wish that her funeral be private, and there will be no lying-in-state or public involvement in the service.

The Daily Telegraph reported that "in a final gesture of reconciliation, the queen and other senior members of the royal family, including the (85-year-old) queen mother, who has remained the fiercest critic of the marriage, will attend the funeral."

Mourning for the queen and her immediate family would normally have been officially declared on Thursday but was delayed until today, when Spain's King Juan Carlos concludes a state visit.

The queen adhered to her planned schedule on Thursday, attending an evening banquet given by Juan Carlos. Buckingham Palace, which announced the death of the duchess "with deep regret," said it would have been inappropriate to interrupt a state visit.

Times have changed since 1936 'scandal'

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

LONDON — Fifty years of bitter royal estrangement ended Thursday when Buckingham Palace announced, "with deep regret," the death in Paris of the Duchess of Windsor.

The palace said that the body of the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, for whom King Edward VIII gave up the throne in 1936, would be transported here Sunday on an air force jet and met on arrival by a member of the royal family. The private funeral, which most of the royal family is expected to attend, will take place Tuesday at St. George's Chapel, in Windsor Castle.

Although she and her husband were denied the right to live here together after their marriage, they will lie together in English soil in the royal cemetery at Frogmore, on the Castle grounds, where the duke was buried 14 years ago, near the mausoleum housing the remains of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert.

The duchess' burial on royal ground, however, was less a gesture of magnanimity by the duke's relatives than the product of a deal he struck in 1965 with his niece, Queen Elizabeth II. He had purchased a double plot in Baltimore, the duchess' home town, he told Elizabeth, and if she could not guarantee to their joint interment in England, when the time came both would be buried in the United States.

The perceived scandal this would have caused — an English king buried in a commoner's plot in another land — is a small indication of the depth of royal ignominy and disgrace felt at the time of their romance, his abdication and their subsequent marriage.

There is some reason to believe that the royal family, in keeping with the transformation of Western culture over the past five decades, has become more tolerant.

In the years since King Edward, the then-Prince of Wales, shocked Britain's monarchy and its political leadership by launching a romance with a woman who had been once divorced and was still married to her second husband, the House of Windsor has been forced to accept modern mores.

Thus the traditions that in 1952 broke up a romance between the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret, and Capt. Peter Townsend, by 1978 had mellowed to the point that Margaret herself divorced her husband, Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

Although the current heir to the throne, Elizabeth's son Prince Charles, was without major reported blemish when he married Diana Spencer in 1981, his younger brother, Prince Andrew, has been involved in a series of well-publicized romances with starlets and other "unsuitable" women.

Even Andrew's fiance, Sarah Ferguson, is considered a woman with "a past" that includes at least two other men with whom she is reported to have been long-intimate.

One of the reasons "modern" royal behavior is more acceptable these days is because it is increasingly difficult to hide. Although the romantic endeavors of the 1930s Prince of Wales were widespread and well-known to his family and London society even before Mrs. Simpson appeared, the British public had no inkling of his activities.

The romance with "Queen Wally," as she was known in the American press after the Prince became King on the death of his father, was publicized around the world. But the British media adhered to a pact of silence until literally days before the abdication itself. Then, the story broke only because of the constitutional crisis engendered by his unacceptable decision to marry her against the wishes of the government as well as his family.

Such discretion seems laughable today, as the tabloid "popular press" devotes much of its space to explicit details of the real and imagined off-duty exploits of the royal family. Published photographs of a pregnant and bikini-clad Princess of Wales several years ago caused much less of a stir here than an internationally distributed picture of a fully dressed Mrs. Simpson placing her hand on the wrist of then-King Edward VIII in the summer of 1936.

Today, a popular weekly television show, "Spitting Image," features life-sized puppets of the royals, usually doing something vulgar or embarrassing, posed everywhere from the breakfast table to the bedroom.

There is no doubt that if the royal romance of the 1930s were to repeat itself today, it would be no secret here. But while its denouement would likely come much more quickly under public scrutiny, it would probably end the same.

What has become tolerated, albeit still subject to disapproval, for the likes of Princess Margaret and Prince Andrew, becomes intolerable when the monarch, the constitutional ruler of the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth, is involved.

Although the British public of all classes may sympathize with the Queen over the actions of her children, and even laugh at them, it still expects the ruler herself to be above reproach, adhering to the system of values that befit the head of the Church of England.

Even in the extremely unlikely event that the Queen were to lapse, there is still the Queen Mother, the redoubtable Queen Mary, to hold high the torch of tradition.
