PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Mazeroski's home run in the ninth inning today gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a sensational 10-8 victory over the New York Yankees and their first World Series championship in 35 years.

Jap Leftists Mourn Death Of Leader

TOKYO (AP)—A flag-waving, lantern-carrying crowd of 17,000 students and white-collar workers shuffled through the streets of Tokyo tonight in a massive demonstration of mourning for their assassinated idol, Inejiro Asanuma, chairman of the Socialist party.

The 34-hour parade was generally orderly. There was a spurt of violence when 50 leftist students, members of the Zenkyu-koren association, broke away to storm the gates of Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's official residence.

Shouting abusive language, they threw rocks and used flag-staffs to poke at the 1,000 policemen forming a cordon at the gate. Six policemen were hurt, none seriously.

The demonstration, second since Asanuma was stabbed to death Wednesday, was kept within bounds by police. It rained and appeared to be one of sorrow rather than deep anger.

Ikeda, who was at his private home three miles away earlier in the day had denounced the use of violence and warned he would act against it whether it came from the right or the left.

Rogers Says Mediators Lifted Bans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers said today that Justice Department mediation had opened chain store lunch counters to Negroes in 90 Southern and border state cities since June 1.

Rogers issued a 3,000-word review of Republican administration civil rights actions in a report ranging from proposed legislation through litigation to the mediation method.

He announced on Aug. 10, after scores of lunch counter "sit-ins" in Southern cities, that he had been calling in executives of variety chains to enlist their help in ending the demonstrations.

He said that store managements, "in conjunction with local authorities and other interested groups," had quietly brought about desegregation of lunch counters in 60 communities.

The same program has been carried out in 21 additional communities, he reported today, bringing the total to 90.

Rogers said that an entire 1961 civil rights act was conceived and drafted by his department and that, "with minor exceptions," the same was true of the 1960 act.

"Both acts were thought of, proposed by, and passed with the vigorous support of the administration," Rogers said. "They provide meaningful and effective methods of dealing with civil rights problems."

Nixon Enters Third Debate With Far More Confidence

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon goes into the third round of his big television debate today, and this time he appears far more confident than he was for the other two.

This is the debate in which the candidates will be at far-appeal physically as they are on the issues.

Sen. John F. Kennedy is in New York; Nixon is here. Because of the four-hour time difference, Nixon begins answering questions at 3 p.m. Los Angeles time. He'll spend the morning getting ready for the debate, and he has nothing else on his formal schedule.

Nixon has never said publicly how he thinks he did on each of the other two meetings. But then, he never had to.

After the first debate when, due partly to bad make-up and lighting, Nixon looked pale and haggard, even his friends glumly conceded he ran second. And reporters traveling with him noticed that he never referred to the debate at all.

After the second meeting, when Nixon looked much better and his friends were insisting he won, the story was different.

In almost every speech since then he has reminded his audiences of some point he made, or at least thinks he has made, against Kennedy.

It was a remarkable change from the first get-together, when he obviously wished to forget the whole thing.

One question that may be settled tonight: Will the candidates be rougher on each other when they're separated by a whole continent and don't have to throw their charges directly in the other's faces?

Cuba Executes 13 'Plotters'

HAVANA (AP)—A young man group on the northeast coast of Oriente province last week. A military appeals court quickly rejected defense attorneys' appeals from the death penalty.

The American, first to be executed by the Castro regime, was Anthony Zarba of Somerville, Mass. He went before a firing squad in Santiago with seven Cuban companions. Havana radio stations reported five other Cubans were executed in Santa Clara.

Zarba and his companions had been convicted only hours before by a revolutionary military court of staging a Castro-style invasion to set up a guerrilla front in Cuba.

The eight prisoners were led before four different firing squads near Santiago, two at a time. The reports of the first rifles cracked down the San Juan Valley firing range at 4:50 a.m.

Havana radio stations said another firing squad in the provincial capital of Santa Clara, in central Cuba, executed five insurgents captured in the Escambray Mountains. Two were reported to have been rebel leaders.

Radio VOZ in Havana said the firing squads were composed of militiamen. The duty officer at Santa Clara military headquarters said he had no immediate information on executions there, but the government-controlled stations usually are well informed.

Zarba, a 27-year-old adventurer who landed on the northeast coast of Cuba with a small party of invaders last week, was the first U.S. citizen to die before a Castro firing squad. Another American, Alan Robert Nye of Whiting, Ind., was given a death sentence last year for plotting to kill Castro, but the sentence was suspended when he was expelled from the country.

The U.S. embassy appealed to Castro's government Wednesday night for a stay of execution and clemency for Zarba, but that throw invaders last week was the first U.S. citizen to die before a Castro firing squad. Man Jailed Twice On Same Charge

DETROIT (AP)—Within two and a half hours Jesse Hall went to jail twice on the same driving charge Wednesday.

He was locked up for driving without a license. And police put his car in a parking lot.

To his surprise the same policeman saw him driving the same car again later. His wife had posted $25 bond for his release. Hall said he thought that entitled him to drive. But the judge didn't agree. They put him back in jail.

Red Chief Demands Spy Flight Apology

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today denounced U.S. spy plane flights as actually a step beyond the brink of war. He demanded a U.S. apology before the General Assembly.

Khrushchev's demand came immediately after the General Assembly set the stage for a full debate on colonialism by accepting unanimously a Soviet resolution on freeing all colonial areas. It was certain, however, that this meeting of the United Nations would also be discussed.

Khrushchev, demanding an apology for incidents like the T-2 spy plane flight of last May, said if the U.S. government "will not wish to show good will and will not condemn the practice of sending its spy planes to the Soviet Union and other countries, the United Nations should in all strictness condemn such aggressive actions on the part of one of the biggest powers against other countries."

Such acts, he said, could have the "most grave consequences for the peace."

"Such a policy of the U.S.A., said Khrushchev, "should be condemned and stopped so that such provocative incidents would not lead the world to the brink of war. The American aggressive flights are actually a step beyond this brink."

Khrushchev spoke calmly, from a prepared text.

His address came after the assembly swiftly disposed of his proposal for discussion of immediate freedom for colonial and dependent areas, adopting it by acclamation after the United States supported it.

Unveiling U.S. strategy, Delegate Francis O. Wilcox suddenly announced the U.S. support, taking some of the steam from the Soviet proposition.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev immediately took the floor to say he welcomed the U.S. decision, but he promptly accused the Americans of plotting to "wiggle out" of any definite result on the issue.

The U.S. move obviously deprived the Soviet resolution of much of its propaganda steam, by arraying Americans with New African and other underdeveloped nations against the idea of colonialism.

Wilcox announced the stand after one of the Soviet Union's closest supporters in Africa, the president of Guinea, chided the Communists for their demonstrations Wednesday night which broke up extension courses set a U.N. discussion of colonialism in wild disorder. Khrushchev banged a desk with his shoe and had referred to a fellow delegate as a "jerk" and "stogie."

Khrushchev, whose shoe-waving demonstration played a large part in the Wednesday night turmoil, joined in applause for the American announcement.

Three Mice Ride Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Three mice named Sally, Amy and Moe rocketed 700 miles into space today and the Atlas nose cone they rode in was recovered from the South Atlantic, 5,000 miles away. It was not known immediately whether the mice survived.

The Air Force announced the Atlas successfully delivered the 14-ton cone to an intended impact area north of Ascension Island. The announcement said the ocean range vessel Coastal Crusader fished the cone from the sea.

It reported "the condition of the three mice will not be determined until a representative of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division and of the School of Aviation Medicine opens the life cell, which contains a stored oxygen system."

The representatives were aboard the recovery ship, but there was no indication how long it would be before they would open the chamber containing the mice.

The black mice made the radiation ride in a miniature model of a man-in-space cabin. The experiment took the small travelers into the dangerous Van Allen radiation belt at speeds up to 18,000 miles an hour, was another step toward manned space travel.

The 12-foot tall cone also carried a group of radiation study instruments.

The Atlas roared away from this test center at 4:35 a.m. (EST). The cone plunked on target 25 minutes later and within 20 minutes was sighted by the Coastal Crusader.

The ship pulled alongside the cone at 5:32 a.m. Skindivers attached cables to the heavy package, which was kept aloft by a balloon-like device that popped out of the cone and inflated. The delicate job of hoisting the cone aboard was completed at 6:08 a.m. The cone was reported in good condition.

The Air Force emphasized the main purposes of the flight were to test the new cone and general performance of the Conquest-made missile. The mice and other experiments were placed aboard because there was extra room in the area of the cone which in wartime could be occupied by a nuclear warhead.

This was the third test for the cone, designated RVX-2A. The previous two sank after successful Atlas flights because of failure of recovery gear.

All three mice are 12 weeks old. They rode in separate compartments in a 16-inch long, 6-inch diameter cylinder which was air-tight to give the tiny passengers a self-contained, sealed environment.

Their initials—S.A.M.—stand for the School of Aviation Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, Tex. The school, which is conducting extensive research of biomedical problems of space flight, also provided monkeys Sam and Miss Sam for rocket flights several months ago.

Dr. H. C. Clamman, the school's director of space medicine, described the mouse-carrying cylinder as "a small forerunner of a model of a man-in-space capsule." It was half-filled with oxygen containers and electronic devices to simulate an earth-like environment which may be necessary for manned-space travel.

"This experiment is a step toward finding how to send human beings into space. It will help establish guidelines for the type of chamber we need to safely carry man into space," Clamman said.

Strapped to Amy like a saddle was an instrument package weighing one-fourth of an ounce to record information on heart beat, respiration and other reactions throughout most of the flight—during 10 minutes of which the mice were to be in a weightless state. It may take several days to analyze this data.

Sally and Moe were not instrumented.

The Van Allen radiation belt starts about 300 miles above the earth and extends out several thousand miles. This potentially deadly belt is considered a dangerous barrier to manned-space flight.

If the mice are returned alive, they will be examined for effects of radiation. This will be determined by the graying of the hair, indicating radiation has penetrated the hair glands and affected pigmentation.

The mice also will be mated, among themselves and with other mice, to study genetic effects.

Extension Courses Set

The deadline for enrolling for extension courses from Texas Tech is fast approaching with 11 classes needing to begin by Tuesday, Oct. 18, to allow sufficient time for completion by mid-February, Snyder school officials announced today.

The classes have been tentatively scheduled for Tuesday night but can be changed if the need arises.

One of two classes are available, No. 432 - Personnel Testing or No. 436 - Personality Development. These classes are especially desirable for graduates or undergraduates, especially for those interested in securing their teaching certificates.

All information may receive further interest by calling 3-5401 and are urged to do so immediately.

The Air Force emphasized the main purposes of the flight were to test the new cone and general performance of the Conquest-made missile. The mice and other experiments were placed aboard because there was extra room in the area of the cone which in wartime could be occupied by a nuclear warhead.

This was the third test for the cone, designated RVX-2A. The previous two sank after successful Atlas flights because of failure of recovery gear.

All three mice are 12 weeks old. They rode in separate compartments in a 16-inch long, 6-inch diameter cylinder which was air-tight to give the tiny passengers

Competition Proves Tough For Pianists

By W. G. ROGERS
 Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK AP—The Leventritt competition for pianists has once more lived up to its reputation for being the toughest trial of a kind to face young musicians in this country.

There were three finalists in the 21st annual run-off of this international competition Wednesday night in Carnegie Hall, but the distinguished jury decided that none of them quite merited the award. The award, perhaps best known for having gone to Van Cliburn, the Moscow competition winner in 1958, an award carrying a cash prize of $10,000 and solo appearances with numerous orchestras.

In the two-decade history of this competition, a first award has been given only 14 times.

Some in the audience on this occasion walked out with an air of disappointment. They had been told it was very generous of their applause of very superior piano playing by Kenneth Amada, 26, native of Orange, N.J.; Bela Szilagyi, 26, of this city; and Michel Bricard, 23, born in Belgium.

French parents and now living in Mexico.

Leonard Bernstein, announcing regretfully the jury's decision that the competition was intended to find great talents, but that the talents who are fully equipped to assume the responsibilities of a professional career.

On this larger basis no award was made.

The contestants will receive, however, some cash. Leventritt gold medals were presented them by jury chairman Abram Chasins.

Milton Katims conducted the Symphony of the Air to accompany the aspirants in Rethoven, Brahms and Rachmaninoff concertos.

New York Is Hit Again By Bomb Blast

NEW YORK AP—A home-made bomb exploded in a subway station Wednesday, shattering train windows and knocking over dozens of victims.

At least 34 persons were injured, some seriously. It was the third device to explode in 11 days in the Times Square area.

The explosion and a puff of black smoke touched off a momentary panic as the bomb exploded inside a photo-taking machine near a Times Square Grand Central Terminal shuttle train which was just leaving.

The blast, which also destroyed a special clothing locker, was felt at street level and some windows rattled in adjacent buildings.

Witnesses said they saw two youths, their faces powdered-black, race from the blast scene. Transit Authority Inspector Patrick J. O'Connell, 49, said he overheard one of the pair say, "we got too close. I lost my hat," and the other reply, "I lost my hat too."

Two hats were found near the blast scene.

Two youths picked up for questioning shortly after the explosion were questioned and released.

In being previous long explosions, eyewitnesses told of two youths fleeing from the scene. Last Sunday, in Bryant Park adjacent to the Public Library at 42nd Street and Fifth Avenue, a bomb went off but no one was injured. The first blast on Sunday, Oct. 2, in which seven persons were injured, came from shrubbery in Duffy Square near the northern end of Times Square.

Edward Colby, director of the Lubbock Municipal Airport, Wednesday called "present conditions inadequate in his area. Apples Head Fruit List In Markets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Apple lovers will find plenty of this fruit now in Texas markets. Supplies of most varieties are abundant and wholesale prices are modest, the USDA Marketing Service reported this week. Also claiming best-buy honors this week on the basis of price and availability are Tokay grapes, cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, lettuce, greens and green onions, onions, lemons, peppers, round red potatoes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes. Grapefruit and oranges from South Texas began arriving in early-season abundance this week. Wholesale prices are lower and quality is generally well received. Cucumbers and squash are slightly lower than a week ago. Prices on snap beans, broccoli, sweet corn, lima and radishes are higher. Onions and potatoes have a higher tendency. Shipments of peaches and nectarines are slowing at end-of-season prices. Smooth, light-green avocados are beginning to replace dark-skinned varieties as the season changes. Prices are higher. Texas pumpkins are becoming plentiful in most areas of the state. Persimmons and papayas from California are available in light supply, as are persian and casahuate melons. Dairy and meat counters are featuring a wide assortment of high-protein foods at reasonable prices. Cheese is plentiful. Beef, lamb, chicken and turkey also are available in volume at budget prices.

Other Lubbock residents appearing at the hearing were Vernon Thompson, city commissioner; Robert Reedy, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Ross Hammond, chamber industrial manager; and Robert Reinhardt, C. J. Hollingsworth, Gale Brown and Frank Junell.

The manager of the transportation division of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, Frank Keeler, recommended new air service for his city which would provide immediate connections to Lubbock, Abilene, Midland-Odessa, Hobart, Amarillo, Borger and points beyond.

Expanded commercial air service is important to the economic development of the Pueblo area, said Charles Thomson, manager of the Pueblo Chamber of Commerce. The delegation from Pueblo asked for more air service to Albuquerque and Denver and non-stop flights to Amarillo and one-stop service to Oklahoma City.

A Plainview group headed by City Attorney Joe Sharp requested adequate and improved air service to get to points of major interest without layovers in Lubbock or Amarillo. They asked for two roundtrip flights daily providing connections to Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin and Houston.

Charlie Young, general manager of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, said "The problem now is how we can't get out of Plainview on a one-day trip and return without spending the night in Amarillo or Lubbock."

Others appearing from Plainview were Dr. Charles Matthews, superintendent of schools; Mayor M. B. Hood; Dr. Thomas Long-necker, head of the Plains Research Foundation; and businessmen B. O. Cooper, M. G. Smith, Arch Keys and John Aldridge.

Program On Indian Music Is Presented

The Altrurian Club met Friday afternoon in the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Mrs. Arthur Blanchard as hostess. The highlight for the day "A Tribute to Friendship" was given by Mrs. Alvie Dolan.
Mrs. Hugh Taylor presided over the business after which the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Blanchard, the program chairman.
The program consisted of two parts: First, Indian Arts and Crafts was presented by Mrs. Blanchard. An introduction of the subject, consisting of a generalization upon varieties and uses of the arts and crafts of the numerous Indian tribes of North America. The subject was then narrowed in to an account of one tribe, the Tewa Indians of San Ildefonso, N. M., and one potter, Maria Martinez, of that tribe.
"This Indian woman, through an accidental freak in the firing, produced black pottery. Through the perfection of this, the dexterity of her hands in the molding and shaping, her husband's artistry in decorating the pottery, has won wide acclaim."
"She has been the guest of President Eisenhower, and has many awards from world fairs. Maria is still living, but her pottery has disappeared from dealers' shelves, but remain a memorial to her hard work and patience in collections and museums."

The second portion of the program was received enthusiastically when Mrs. W. M. Pilcher, a guest, brought a brief history of Indian music, with several recordings for illustration.
She told that the Indian music was part of all their activities; their play, their wars, their religion. This information came from the Music Division of Indian Affairs, and was provided by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Washington, D. C.
The topic was Tribal Music, with sub topics as follows: Rhythm, instruments and melody. The following recordings were taken from the Music Album of Indian recordings. The melodies were produced by the use of five notes on a flute, accompanied by drums.
"Love with Tears," "Chayenne," "Pueblo Lullaby," and "Shuffling Feet." Sioux: "Winnabago Love Song" and "The Sunrise Call" Zuni.
The delightful, interesting and informative program was enjoyed by 22 members and one other guest, Mrs. Ben G. Barnett of San Diego, Calif.

TRAVIS 8TH HOME, TOO

Vengeful Lamar 9th To Engage Sweetwater Here

And the fighting continues, with no capitulation in sight, as five of Snyder's six junior high elevens go to it "hammer and tongs" both at home and away tonight.

Travis 8th, undefeated in three outings, will uncoil the home front action on the junior high field when they take on Big Spring Goliath at 6:30. Then the nightcap will feature the wrecking crew of Lamar 9th, victorious in three of four attempts, as they clash with Sweetwater in a grudge battle of sorts.

It was Sweetwater who put the skids under the Texans by 22-14 for the "sole Texas" defeat of the campaign, so the locals presumably will have "blood in their eyes" when they take the field against the young Mustangs. Kick-off in that clash has been set at 8 o'clock.

Lamar 8th will be out to protect its unblemished record in Sweetwater tonight, having won all three of its games as played thus far. That tilt will get underway at 7:30, and will be preceded by Lamar 7th (1-2) in its game of 6 o'clock against the Sweetwater 7th grade aggregation.

Bowl Tickets Available Here

A block of thirty Cotton Bowl tickets has been made available recently for Scurry County competition, and they will be offered on a "first come first serve" basis to those fans desiring to purchase them.

The tickets were forwarded by the Cotton Bowl Committee, and are all situated together, so that the fans from each city so contacted may sit together at the game, which will be played on January 2 due to New Year's falling on Sunday.

Priced at $5.50, they will be offered until either depletion or Thursday, October 20, at which time any unused tickets are to be returned to the Bowl Committee for pooling with the remainder of the other tabs for the annual classic.

For purchase of the tickets or additional information concerning them, fans may contact any of the following individuals: Mal Stevenson, 3-501; Charlie Blakey, 3-5612; and Herb Feather, 3-5486.

Black Hawks In Top Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Chicago Black Hawks were in first place in the National Hockey League today, thanks to Glenn Hall's shutout goal tending and the power of Bobby Hull, the league's defending scoring champion.

The Black Hawks blanked the hapless Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night 3-0 for their third straight victory. They have one tie on their record—a 1-1 affair with the New York Rangers in Chicago's opening game.

Hall made 25 saves Wednesday night as Hull got one goal—the fifth in four games—and two assists. Dollard St. Laurent and Murray Balfour made the other goals.

The Hawks hold a one-point lead over the defending champion Montreal Canadiens, who edged out the New York Rangers Tuesday night.

With the shoe situation taken care of, the Longhorns turned to work against the Arkansas defense.

Arkansas felt some better with ace halfback Lance Alworth back at practice although the talented runner may not be able to start against Texas. Alworth has a bruised knee.

Baylor sharpened its offense for an invasion of Lubbock and a crack at Texas Tech. The Bears will help Tech dedicate its enlarged stadium but aren't expected to be so polite when the game starts. A crowd of 35,000—Tech's largest in history—is anticipated.

Both Rice and Southern Methodist, who meet at Dallas Saturday night, had some handicapping injuries. Rice lost the services of guard Rufus King, out with a knee injury. SMU won't have Pat Neill, veteran wingman, who is out with a leg infection.

Against Arkansas Saturday Kristynik will be able to do all those things—the trainers preferred him to a football shoe—with the toe cut out.

U. S. Is Not Comml To Defend Quemoy A Matsui

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Quemoy and Matsui have become a top issue this week in the presidential campaign. They promise to hold the spotlight in the third Kennedy-Nixon debate. What and where are they? Why are they important? James Marlow, AP's news analyst, provides the background in this interpretive article.

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The presidential candidates are blowing up a storm over what each would do about two small islands—Quemoy and Matsui—off the Red China coast.

Should they or shouldn't they be left out of the area which this country would defend against the Red Chinese? Sen. John F. Kennedy says yes—in order to avoid being dragged into a war over them. Vice President Richard M. Nixon says no—but he didn't say he'd go to war to defend them.

The islands became a campaign issue last week in the Nixon-Kennedy TV debate. Those islands, close to the China mainland, are claimed by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa, which is 110 miles from the mainland.

But the Red Chinese on the mainland claim them, too. Chiang keeps a lot of his troops on them. The Reds have been bombarding them for years. Sooner or later, as Red China gets stronger, it will probably try to take them by invasion.

This country, by treaty with Chiang, is bound to defend Formosa from Red attack. It is not bound to defend Quemoy and Matsui. And President Eisenhower has always avoided saying this country would go to war to defend them.

But, on the other hand, he has never said this country wouldn't go to war to defend them. This apparently has been intended to keep the Red Chinese guessing on what they could expect if they did attack.

Whether or not the islands would be defended has always been tied to this question, which has never been publicly or fully answered. Are they really necessary to the defense of Formosa itself?

Kennedy said that as president he would try to persuade Chiang to pull his forces back from the offshore islands. Why? Because, he said, he sees no sense in this country's being dragged into a war over two islands which are "not strategically defensible."

But he said: He would not let the Red Chinese force the evacuation of the islands under the threat of force.

Nixon conceded the two islands are unimportant—he, even said, "are not too important"—but he said he wouldn't let the Red Chinese have them. Why? "Because it is a matter of principle,"

Kennedy was actually echoing the views of some other Democrats in past years. Nixon was echoing Eisenhower, even to the extent of using some of the same words the President has used in the past.

Wednesday night Kennedy accused Nixon of being "irresponsible" in insisting upon holding on to those "unimportant, indefensible" islands.

Wednesday night Nixon likened Kennedy's willingness to give them up to the Western allies' concessions at Munich before World War II.

Here's a little background: After the Red Chinese drove Chiang from the mainland in 1949, he fled to Formosa with his forces. This country had little interest in Chiang or Formosa at the time.

lands, which are close to Formosa, plus a string of islands which lie close to the mainland, were more than 100 miles from Formosa. These included Quemoy and Matsui and 100 miles up the coast, the island of Ichang and the Tachen Islands.

In 1955 the Reds captured Ichang and this government persuaded Chiang to abandon the Tachen because they were not essential to Formosa's defense. At that time Eisenhower didn't mention any principle being involved in letting the Reds have Ichang and the Tachen.

Later, however, he said the American people would stand by a "principle" in not letting Quemoy and Matsui go. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said they might be important in the defense of Formosa. He didn't, however, say they were.

the Snyder (Texas) Daily News, Thurs., Oct. 13, 1960

This country, meanwhile, signed a defense pact with Chiang, pledging to defend Formosa and the Pescadores. There was no pledge to defend Quemoy and Matsui. But the door was left open on this by saying this country would also defend other "territories" it considered necessary.

Dulles said he thought surrendering the islands to Red China would not aid the cause of peace. Still, through the years the Eisenhower administration has avoided saying it would defend Quemoy and Matsui unless they were considered necessary to Formosa's protection.

In Suit Over Crash

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—C. A. Bankhead's ram wandered onto a road some 18 months ago and caused one car to swerve into another in a head-on collision. The Livermore sheepman agreed to pay $80,000 damages Wednesday.

Dr. Norman A. Lusier, 68, Bethel dentist, driver of the car that swerved, also agreed to pay $60,000 to Edward O. Schoenwald, 51, and his wife, Sylvia, 45, of San Jose, both badly injured. The Schoenwalds had asked $200,000 damages from Bankhead and Dr. Lusier.

Dallas Board
Stands Firm

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas School Board stood firm Wednesday night in its decision not to hire a Negro teacher whose husband bought a home in a white neighborhood.

Five persons from the N. W. Harlike School where Mrs. Harold L. Fagan taught were at the meeting. They did not file a protest with the board.

A 2½-page statement by the board said teachers "have the same right enjoyed by every citizen to think and believe what they choose."

However, the statement said, "A teacher who is emotionally disturbed by personal conflict is not a good teacher, and the children he or she serves are inevitably caught up in such conflict."

The board said Mrs. Fagan was not fired. Her contract which expired in June 1960 was not renewed.

The board "does not feel that Mrs. Fagan has been treated unfairly in this matter," the statement said.

Tonight's Debate On Split-Screen

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy are again tonight in a continental split—in their third television radio debate on presidential campaign issues.

The split-screen, hour-long transcontinental show, starting at 8:30 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time) will find the GOP standard bearer, Nixon, in an American Broadcasting Co. Hollywood studio and the Democratic aspirant, Kennedy, in an ABC studio in New York City.

On TV, the program will be shown at later hours in more distant time zones. However, radio station networks all will carry the debate at the same time.

The candidates will appear in identical TV studio settings. A combination podium and desk will allow each man to stand or sit as he chooses. Studio lighting will be duplicated at each end of the network, and both candidates have been asked to wear the same shade of attire.

ABC, assigning more than 20 technicians to the program, calls it the most complicated telecast in TV history.

In the two previous debates the candidates have faced each other in the same studio. The first was handled by CBS from Chicago, the second by NBC in Washington.

Campaign tours prevent them from debating face-to-face this time. The moderator will be ABC's news commentator Bill Shafter. Members of the panel will be Roscoe Drummond, New York Herald Tribune; Douglas S. Cate, "Reporter" magazine; Charles Van Dine, Washington correspondent for CBS news; and Frank McGee, NBC news correspondent.

Shafter and the panelists will be in the New York studio. The last of the four debates is set for Oct. 21.

But the three networks have agreed to hold a fifth debate the week before the November election.

Kennedy and Nixon have not yet agreed on this proposal. WPIX-TV, New York, and WTTW-TV, Chicago, on Wednesday offered free time for a face-to-face debate between the vice presidential candidates, Democrat S. Lyndon B. Johnson and Republican Henry Cabot Lodge.

The stations suggested the meet in New York Oct. 15, or Chicago about Oct. 22, and that the one-hour program be made available to other stations wishing to carry it.

A Lovers' Fair is held in Belgium, on the 1st Thursday of January. It features a giant cat "Bellichsman" who acts as a mack.

4 Escapees Recaptured

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—Five men escaped from the Robertson County jail late Wednesday night by sawing through the bars on their cell. Police captured four of them in a car at Bryan 90 minutes later.

Captured at Bryan, 25 miles south of this Central Texas town, were Wayne Womac, 39, of California; Tommy Joe Montgomery, 19, San Angelo; Bobby Stanford, 18, Dublin; and Fred Sim, 35, Houston. Montgomery and Womac were serving terms for robbery, Stanford for forgery and Sim for theft.

Still at large was Avis Miller, 35, a Negro, from Hearne, serving time for robbery. Sheriff Howard Stegall said other prisoners informed him just before midnight that the men had escaped about 11:30 p.m.

Officers at Bryan said a service station manager spotted a car that fit the description of one police had put out a bulletin about. He called police headquarters and stopped the car on a highway leading to Houston. The men gave up without a fight.

DRASTIC SORT OF AN EYE OPENER

Both Candidates Overlook One Enticing Slab Of Pie

By INEZ ROBB

So far, both major Presidential candidates have promised palpitating voters such a wide assortment of pie in the sky that, no matter who wins, we should all have acute indigestion indefinitely.

However, both candidates have overlooked a slab of pie that would be irresistible to New York's Seventh Avenue, i.e., the dress industry, more affectionately known as the rag biz.

The candidate who will promise to subsidize the American couture, as the French government subsidizes French high style, will not only win the rag biz vote — more importantly, he will enable American designers to compete on even terms with their French counterparts.

Of course, Seventh Avenue is too sensible to expect a government subsidy. Still, it can dream out loud, as courtesier Larry Aldrich does occasionally. Aldrich is the new president of the New York Couture Group, which is the equivalent of the French couture's ritzy Chambre Syndicale. And on occasion he and other designers cannot help but envy the Chambre, subsidized alike by the French government and the French manufacturers of textile.

The French, because of these subsidies, can afford to do experimental stuff that would ruin us," Aldrich said recently, with reference to American designers.

"That is one of the reasons New York couturiers still borrow more from Paris than Paris borrows from us. Most of us can't afford to risk ruin with either a fashion or a price tag that's too high.

"But in the past 25 years Seventh Avenue has had a tremendous impact on Paris," he continued. "Seventh Avenue excels in converting fashion trends — some of them pretty baroque — into basic simplicity. The basic of true elegance and good taste in clothes, as in everything else, is simplicity and cleanliness of line.

"That is America's contribution to world-wide fashion. It has seeped back to Paris. In the past quarter century, French fashion has grown much more simple because of the trend from the United States.

"One of the wonders of the world is that this national simplicity plus mass production has enabled American women with taste,

Truman Talk Nettles GOP

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican officials Wednesday asked Democratic Party leaders to repudiate what they called "the crude and slanderous remarks of Harry Truman."

A telegram, sent to Gerald Mann, state campaign manager for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket, referred to the San Antonio speech by the former president. It was signed by Albert Fay, national Republican committeeman, Mrs. Flo Kampmann, national committee woman, Thad Hutchison, state chairman and Paul Ledrick, state campaign manager.

The wire said: "The moral bankruptcy of the Texas presidential campaign is clearly demonstrated when it calls upon an anti-Texas Harry Truman in a desperate effort to obscure the issues and to clamp a brass collar of blind party loyalty on the fair-minded and fair-thinking Texas citizen."

Some Boring Remarks At Any Party

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks everybody gets tired of hearing at cocktail parties.

"We must get together again real soon."

"Honey, I did not start a conversation with that strange blonde. She came up and started talking to me. Anyway, what's so strange about her? I think she's kinda nice."

"Martins always make me want to take off my shoes. What do they do to you?"

"I hate to say it, but I think the host is watering the bourbon again."

"My business? I'm in insurance, and since you brought the subject up, let me ask you —"

"I simply loathe cocktail parties, don't you?"

"Where have you been all my life, baby?"

"Well, to make a long story short, I three-putted that green, made the next par four hole in six, and then —"

"I forget how the punch line goes, but it's really a very funny joke."

"Some people find me a dreadful bore, but others say I'm quite lovable."

"When this shindig breaks up, let's all go over to your house and keep the party going."

"I don't think existentialism is something you believe of don't believe. To me it's something you either live or don't live."

"Darling, haven't you put on a few pounds since the last time I saw you?"

"Oh, no! Don't tell me you're off on another diet! I can't stand it."

Essentially, Proust's outlook on life was tragic-comic, a sort of devil-may-care Puritanism distorted by his lack of faith in bourgeois gods. Would you bring me another of those, please?"

"I may forget a name but I never forget a face."

"So I told the boss right to his face, 'J.P., this company isn't big enough for the both of us, so...'"

"Yeah, I had the 24-hour virus, too, but in my case it only lasted 23 hours. My doctor thought maybe daylight saving time had something to do with it."

"If he tells that story just one more time, I'll scream, right here and now."

"That fellow over there must be in bad shape. He's been talking to his own wife for a full hour — and the only way I can explain it is that he doesn't recognize her."

"Then you strain off the fat, pour in the skimmed milk, put it in the oven and —"

"We never have any trouble with our baby sister. I've given her $5 a week. She does the dishes, helps clean the house — but, of course, since she's my wife's mother."

"Your dress looks familiar. Haven't we met somewhere before?"

"What does my wife need with a maid? She's got me, hasn't she?"

"Okay, I've had one for the road. Now, where's the road?"

whether she has a lot of money or a little, to be the best dressed this side of the moon.

Regardless of the merits of French and Italian fashions, Aldrich believes they get twice as much space in American newspapers and magazines as American design.

"French fashion especially has the eyes and ears of the international press," he said. "If American designers want their fair share of this publicity, we shall have to do two things. First, we must strengthen our position as creative artists. And second, we must bolster New York as a fashion center."

As the new president of the New York Couture Group, Aldrich is considering a number of ways and means to implement both goals. Since Aldrich went into the rag biz for himself in 1927, Seventh Avenue has been good to him and he would like to return the compliment.

It is the avenue — has enabled him through the years to assemble one of the finest privately owned collections of modern art in the nation. The walls of his New York apartment, his Connecticut country place and his Seventh Avenue office overflow with canvases by Bonnard, Braque, de Kooning, Raoul Dufy, Gauguin, Kandinsky, Manet, Modigliani, Renoir, Utrillo, Matisse, Picasso, et al.

In many ways, Aldrich is an optimist. He believes that girls will be girls, and that, eventually, skinny girls in short-skirts and fat women in stretch pants will see the light, stop making spectacles of themselves and go back to skirts. But his optimism stops short of government supports to maintain parity between the Rue de la Paix and Seventh Avenue.

Defector To Start Over

NEW YORK (AP)—The Estonian seaman who jumped ship from Soviet Premier Khrushchev's liner Baltika has been granted political asylum and turned loose to make a new life for himself.

The defector, Victor Jaanimets, 29, was in seclusion today thinking things out.

John Richardson Jr., president of the International Rescue Committee, said: "For a few days, Mr. Jaanimets, in accordance with his own wishes, will have time to rest without being disturbed and to consider his future to choose his home and to take advantage of job opportunities, and to begin to become an independent American citizen."

Jaanimets apparently will have no difficulty in finding a home and a job as a machinist—his choice. Offers are pouring in to the International Rescue Committee and to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Federal officials slashed through red tape to give the seaman the freedom he sought when he went AWOL from the Baltika while on shore leave Monday.

P. A. Esperdy, district director of the immigration service, announced late Wednesday that the seaman had been cleared as a "non-subversive political refugee."

Esperdy said the International Rescue Committee, which aids refugees, had been selected as sponsor for Jaanimets to "look after his welfare and get him settled."

"I'm nervous," Jaanimets told newsmen. "I didn't know how this would end, but now I feel much better. I wish to thank all the persons who helped me—all the American people."

Esperdy said the seaman will be "under the protection" of the immigration service, but no special police guard or protection is planned.

The Baltika, which brought Khrushchev and a retinue of Soviet bloc leaders to the United Nations session, will sail from her East River pier Friday. Khrushchev, who arrived here Sept. 18, will go home by plane tonight.

Khrushchev tried to make light of Jaanimets' defection.

At a sidewalk news conference outside the Soviet U.N. delegation's headquarters, the Soviet Premier said Wednesday: "He either lost his way or he wanted to stay. If, he does, it's all right with me."

"If he had approached me—I was on the same ship—I would have furnished him with some money for the first period until he finds a job."

Sea Cucumber To Help Navy Repel Sharks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy hopes research on a poison given off by the "sea cucumber" fish will lead to an improved shark repellent, it was reported today.

The sea cucumber, a marine creature related to the rear-fish that gets its name from its cucumber shape, secretes a toxic substance called "holothurin" to protect itself from its natural enemies.

The chemical is under investigation, spokesmen for the Office of Naval Research told a reporter, not only as a possible shark repellent but also as something that may prove of value in medicine.

They talked about it in amplifying on a brief report on the research in the current issue of Naval Research Reviews.

They stressed, however, that it remains to be determined whether the chemical is safe for use in man as a medicine—or as a shark repellent that could be released by skin divers and others in the water.

Basic research on the chemical is being carried on by scientists of the New York Zoological Society, Mt. Sinai Hospital, N.Y., and the Naval Medical Research Institute at Bethesda, Md., all under the sponsorship of ONR.

Dr. Ross Nigrelli of the New York Zoological Society already has reported to ONR that animal experiments show the material increases the clotting time of blood, and has stopped the growth of tumors in white mice.

Hunter Mistakes Father For Deer

DONNELLY, Idaho (AP)—A policeman shot and killed his father while hunting when he mistook him for a deer, according to Valley County Sheriff Morton Logue.

Noel McKean, 25, of Weiser, told Logue he had wounded a deer three miles west of Donnelly Wednesday. Then he said he saw a movement in the heavy brush, thought it was the deer, fired and killed his father, Guy McKean. Noel is one of 10 children.
