Reagan talks to Soviet minister about Danilooff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, stepping into day-long arms control talks and summit preparations, summoned Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze Friday to "convey the strength of his feelings" about spy charges against an American reporter.

The president intervened as the case of Nicholas Danilooff of U.S. News & World Report dominated 6½ hours of discussions at the White House and the State Department.

"We are negotiating very serious issues," Shevardnadze said when the meetings ended. Later, after a dinner at the State Department he said of Soviet suggestions for improving relations, "There are good proposals, there are good thoughts in them."

But he said it was unlikely the talks would result in setting a date for a summit meeting here between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"In principle we consider that possible," he said, but not during his talks with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, which continue on Saturday, Shevardnadze added.

A White House statement said Reagan had called the visiting Soviet minister to the Oval Office "to convey the strength of his feelings about the continued refusal of the Soviet authorities to allow Nicholas Danilooff to return home."

Shevardnadze, who also met for nearly six hours with Shultz, raised hopes of a solution. "There is a possibility of resolving it," he said.

But he was immediately challenged by a U.S. official who said, "We did not resolve that issue."

The official, in a briefing under rules that gave him anonymity, said the two sides were "tackling" arms control, human rights, regional conflicts and other issues, in addition to the Danilooff case.

But he said Danilooff's case "dominated" the discussions, which the official described as "serious."

Shevardnadze brought Reagan a message from Gorbachev during their 45-minute meeting. Its contents were not divulged in the two-sentence statement issued by the White House.

But Radio Moscow, in an English-language report, said Gorbachev dealt with arms control issues and hopes for a summit meeting with Reagan.

"The United States is implementing all its military programs and doesn't appear to want agreement," the broadcast said.

Gorbachev did not rule out a summit. But he said it should be devoted to imposing a freeze on all nuclear weapons tests and on scrapping U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe, according to the account.

White reaffirms his call for fee on imported crude

Speakers agree national energy policy needed

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND

DALLAS — The short-term outlook for oil and gas drilling contractors is bleak, with little hope for improvement unless a national energy policy can be implemented. Such was the consensus of speakers at the annual meeting of the International Association of Drilling Contractors in Dallas this week.

However, speakers and listeners alike were searching hard for small rays of sunshine in an otherwise cloudy forecast.

DALLAS — Texas Governor Mark White reaffirmed his call for a fee on imported crude oil, and urged President Reagan to authorize one immediately, without waiting for further congressional studies or action.

Speaking to the International Association of Drilling Contractors meeting here, White said, "There is an import fee on imported oil today; it's about $50 a barrel. All the president has to do is sign his name to a declaration saying it is in the national security interest that we have an import fee and set one."

And it would "stop the decline in the drilling and exploration, and stop the shutting in of oil wells all across this country," White said.

White also called for an end to partisan politics over what he calls "a national security, energy independence issue."

He said he supports Texas Sen. Phil Gramm's plan for a floor under domestic oil prices, and said that an executive action by Reagan is the one way an import fee could be implemented without being blocked in Congress by senators and representatives from the northeast, as has been theorized by Gramm and others.

White called the inability to enact a temporary import fee and create an national energy policy over the past 30 plus years "a pox on both parties."

He cited a Republican veto of natural gas deregulation in 1962, a Republican administration's failure to remove crude oil price regulations in the early 1970s, and Democratic President Jimmy Carter's implementation of the Windfall Profits Tax in the late 1970s all as evidence of the bipartisan blame for the current woes of the energy industry.

White said he expects action from the Reagan administration on the import fee issue, but not until after the November elections.

Aquino seeks relief for 'masses of Filipinos still in poverty'

NEW YORK (AP) — Philippine President Corason Aquino, taking her inspiration from the Statue of Liberty, came to New York on Friday seeking relief for "masses of Filipinos still huddled in poverty."

Mrs. Aquino, fresh from a successful four-day visit to Washington, was hailed at City Hall as a champion of freedom and then was off to a private luncheon with bankers who hold a substantial share of the Philippines' $26 billion foreign debt.

She told the bankers — including the chairmen of Chemical, Manufacturer's Hanover, Chemical and Chase Manhattan banks — that her people were willing to accept sacrifices, and called upon them to agree to an "appropriate restructuring program" for the debt.

Later, delivering a lecture in the Time magazine distinguished speakers series at New York University, Mrs. Aquino praised the international news media for its coverage of the Marcos regime and its overthrow. She asked that coverage of her government adhere to the same standards.

Citing the courage of the Philippine people in the revolution, she said, "Give them the benefit of the doubt...Do not turn a cynical eye on them."

At City Hall, Mayor Edward I. Koch praised Mrs. Aquino for her "indomitable will, courage and foresight" and welcomed her "home" to New York. She attended college at Mount St. Vincent in the Bronx, graduating in 1953.

"I speak for 7½ million New Yorkers when I say that we are very proud of what President Aquino has accomplished since her graduation," Koch said. The remark drew chuckles from Mrs. Aquino and an audience of diplomats and local officials seated in the City Council chambers.

Koch presented Mrs. Aquino the city's Eleanor Roosevelt Human Rights Award. She was the third recipient of the award, following singer Marian Anderson and Soviet emigre Anatoly Shcharansky.

In accepting the award, Mrs. Aquino spoke of the Statue of Liberty's centennial in July, comparing it to the bloodless revolution in which she ousted former President Ferdinand Marcos in February.

"That celebration...had no fireworks, and I thank God for that," she said of Marcos' overthrow. "You and I — and here I speak for the Filipino people — sure know how to celebrate freedom. From opposite ends of the earth, we made 1986 the year of liberty."

Referring to the Statue of Liberty, she said: "Your lady holds the torch in her hand, and scans the horizon in search of freedom. We hold the torch that shines as bright in our hearts as we seek ways and means to make...freedom more meaningful for masses of Filipinos still huddled in poverty."

Gov. Mario M. Cuomo and Cardinal John J. O'Connor joined Koch in greeting Mrs. Aquino, who entered the council chambers to the chants of "Cory! Cory! Cory!" that she now hears everywhere.

Outside, about 600 supporters listened to the ceremony over loudspeakers in City Hall Park, which was festooned with balloons of bright yellow, the symbolic color of Mrs. Aquino's crusade.

About 30 anti-Aquino demonstrators protested across the street, accusing Mrs. Aquino of siding with the Communists who are seeking to overthrow her government.

Both Cuomo and Koch congratulated Mrs. Aquino on the response to her speech Thursday before a joint session of Congress. Immediately following the speech, the House of Representatives approved an additional $200 million in aid to the Philippines. The measure is expected to encounter rougher going in the Senate.

"They have never done that since the world was created," Koch, a former congressman, said of the House action.

Cuomo agreed, but added that while Congress was acting, "I could just see Cory, behind the charm and the poise and the elegance, saying to herself, 'Yes, but will they do it again?'"

Cuomo's remark, greeted by laughter, pointed to the serious financial problems faced by Mrs. Aquino's government. In her congressional speech, Mrs. Aquino spoke of the economic "slavery" of the $26 billion debt.

Mrs. Aquino will be in Boston today and back in New York on Sunday.

Senate budget plan barely fulfills Gramm-Rudman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early today approved an election-year budget plan that contained enough accounting tricks and sales of government assets to minimally meet the deficit limits of the Gramm-Rudman law.

Although a parade of senators blasted the measure and said it contained little in real savings, the chamber approved the package by a 88-7 vote after a long day of debate Friday.

The bill was "a perverted, phony, unrealistic approach" to the budget problem, Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., said in a typical comment.

"I just don't think any senator should vote for this bill believing we have fulfilled the spirit of the budget act," said Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo. "We're just digging ourselves in deeper for next year."

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, admitted the bill he helped write was "not even close to a good solution."

Instead of raising taxes or cutting spending, the bill would shift around payments, sell some of Uncle Sam's properties and charge new fees for users of government services to produce a quick cash fix of about $13.3 billion.

The measure was carefully designed to avoid a veto by President Reagan, who has opposed tax increases and cuts in military spending, and to avoid a pre-election cut in popular domestic programs.

The goal was to avoid a risky confrontation with the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law, which requires a vote on imposing across-the-board spending cuts if the fiscal 1987 deficit estimate exceeds a $144 billion target by more than $10 billion.

The measure was sweetened with provisions including guarantees that Social Security recipients get cost-of-living increases in January and that farmers get advances on their crop payments — provisions already included in other legislation.

An amendment was added on the floor to protect the Social Security trust fund from disinvestment during government credit crisis, and to protect federal civilian and military pension increases from Gramm-Rudman cuts. Those matters were also pending in other legislation, but attachment to the budget bill might speed enactment.

The bill dumped a proposed increase in the cigarette tax — a favor for tobacco-state senators facing re-election this year.

Among the deficit-cutting provisions were:

— Selling the Conrail freight railroad for an estimated $2.1 billion.

— Raising penalties on income tax evaders and hiring more Internal Revenue Service agents to bring in a total of $3.4 billion.

— Selling a variety of government loan portfolios, including those of the Export-Import Bank, Rural Development Insurance Fund and Small Business Administration.

— Raising fees from the Federal Energy Regulatory Administration, Nuclear Regulatory Commission and Environmental Protection Agency.

— Imposing new charges for users of government services including the Coast Guard.

— Limiting cost increases in the Medicare program and bringing all state and local government employees into the Medicare system.

— Making accounting changes to speed collections of a variety of federal taxes, to bring in more money during fiscal 1987.

— Changing the date of a federal revenue sharing payment to local governments from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30, to shift the $680 million cost onto this year's deficit from fiscal 1987, which begins Oct. 1.

— Requiring banks to pay a premium to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. on their deposits in their foreign branches.

Senate, House and White House budget writers drafted the outlines of the plan together.

He accused "militarist circles making profits on the arms race" of trying to frustrate U.S.-Soviet talks, Radio Moscow said.

The highest-level superpower talks in 10 months were held under the shadow of Daniloff's indictment on espionage charges.

It apparently distracted from arrangements Shevardnadze and Shultz were to make on a summit. A senior U.S. official said Thursday "We do not expect dates to be set."

Shevardnadze's meeting with Reagan was attended also by Shultz, White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan, and Vice Adm. John Poin-dexter, the president's assistant for national security.

"All I can say is that the president was serious, he was frank," Regan told reporters afterward. "He was quite candid in telling the foreign minister that we viewed the Daniloff matter with a great deal of seriousness here."

"Hopefully, they're now assured that we all view it with seriousness and that this is not something that we have trumped up," he said.

Responding to the White House summons, Shevardnadze quietly left the State Department, where he had talked for nearly three hours with Shultz, and met with the president unannounced.

Later, Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, said Shultz had proposed that Reagan see Shevardnadze and that "the president wished to express his views directly" about Daniloff.

Daniloff was arrested Aug. 30, held and questioned in Lefortovo prison for two weeks and then released last Friday to the custody of U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman. Daniloff is prohibited from leaving the country, despite a personal appeal from Reagan to Gorbachev.

Although the Reagan administration insisted there was no "equivalence" involved, Daniloff's release from prison coincided with the pretrial release in New York of Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet physicist assigned to the United Nations, who was arrested on charges of spying in this country. Zakharov was released to the custody of the Soviet Embassy.

It was not clear if the letter delivered by Shevardnadze made any reference to the Daniloff case. Reagan has protested Daniloff's innocence, as has the reporter.

Gorbachev, in a speech Thursday, described Daniloff as "a spy caught red-handed."

Shevardnadze drove up in a black limousine to the State Department for his morning meeting with Shultz. U.S. and Soviet flags fluttered from the front fenders.

But he left for the White House — without a police escort — from a side garage. There were no flags mounted on his car.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said Shultz and Shevardnadze conversed "one-on-one" during their morning and afternoon sessions. Other members of the U.S. delegation, including Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne Ridgeway and Assistant Secretary of Defense

Richard Perle, waited in a reception room a floor above.

"I think we should meet more often," the Soviet foreign minister remarked in Russian while photographers recorded the start of the afternoon talks.

The White House did not permit photographs of the Reagan-Shevardnadze meeting.

Speakes cautioned reporters against assuming that the Reagan-Shevardnadze meeting heralded progress in the Soviet foreign minister's earlier session with Shultz.

"If I was you, I'd make no interpretation because you don't know," Speakes said. "There should be none at this time."

At the State Department, meanwhile, spokesman Kalb said "I have no way of offering you any characterization or interpretation of the talks."

While the Daniloff matter was at the top of the U.S. agenda, Shevardnadze intended to press the United States on the U.S.-ordered expulsion of 25 Soviet diplomats at the United Nations. Moscow has labeled that move as illegal.

Before Daniloff's arrest, the purpose of the meeting with Shultz had been to prepare an agenda for the summit Reagan and Gorbachev agreed last November to hold here this year.

Two British Rail express trains collide

STAFFORD, England (AP) — Two express trains packed with weekend commuters collided during the rush hour Friday in central England. Police said one of the locomotive engineers was killed and 60 passengers were injured.

They said an earlier report that a passenger also was killed in the accident was incorrect.

State-run British Rail said about 400 people were aboard the trains that were speeding through Staffordshire at about 100 mph. One was heading north from London to Liverpool, the other south from Manchester to London.

One of the trains delivered a "glancing blow" to the other at a junction about six miles from Stafford, a railroad spokesman said.

"It is a miracle more people were not killed," said police superintendent Bernard Bryan, who lives nearby and was one of the first on the scene.

The railroad initially said the express trains hit head-on and that as many as 100 people were hurt. But it later lowered the casualty count and changed its version of the accident. It said 36 people were hurt seriously. British Rail spokesman Ian Tompkins said the accident occurred at a point where the southbound train crossed the northbound train's tracks, and 11 cars overturned.

Bryan said rescue teams arrived within minutes, and local residents comforted the injured, giving them tea and sandwiches.

One survivor, British Broadcasting Corp. reporter Colin Philpott, said passengers "felt a shuddering before the crash, as if the train was suddenly slowing down."

"Then there was a more severe shudder, and we stopped," Philpott said. "We clambered out and saw some coaches pointing into the air. We reckoned at least six coaches had been concertinaed into each other."

Bernard Lucas of Manchester said he was in the last coach of the Manchester-bound train.

"People in our carriage were flung onto the floor by the impact of the collision," Lucas said. "The driver's cab of our train was well stuck through the other train and many coaches were derailed."

Said British Rail general manager Cyril Bleasdale: "It is quite clear that one train ran into the other, and we shall be holding an inquiry to find out exactly what happened. Until were killed when a passenger train hit a van at a crossing in Humber side, eastern England.

Surplus drilling equipment seen as major concern

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

DALLAS — One of the major concerns of drilling contractors meeting in Dallas this week is the surplus drilling equipment flooding onto the market.

John Cassidy Jr. of Stroud, Okla., is acting as a one-man sponge absorbing equipment at virtually every auction around the oilpatch. Cassidy was on hand for the International Association of Drilling Contractors luncheon meeting Friday to explain his outlook and the philosophy behind picking up bargain rigs and components in a depressed drilling market.

Cassidy says that the current equipment market at auction offers deep enough discount prices to economically carry the equipment until there is a turnaround.

He expects the global surplus production capacity to be absorbed through increased demand and declining domestic production within four years. Once that happens, Cassidy expects drilling activity to pick up sufficiently to stimulate demand for equipment.

Used and reconditioned equipment will be used to meet the revitalized demand because of the current mergers, consolidations and bankruptcies occurring in the manufacturing sector.

Cassidy blamed short-sighted, short-term political actions in Washington D.C. for the deterioration of domestic manufacturers' competitive stance.

When the turnaround does occur, "I believe that no American manufacturer will be able to mass produce the needed equipment," because of the irreparable damage being done today, Cassidy said.

Among the areas of potential shortages are expendable parts and short-lived equipment used on rigs, he noted. Contractors face the prospect of "losing an economic war for want of horseshoe nails," Cassidy said, alluding to cavalry battles in the Old West.

The economic damage to U.S. industry includes government-imposed compliance costs and production taxes which add 35 to 45 percent to the selling cost of all domestic goods. These financial burdens keep American companies from competing in a shrunken market for oilfield equipment, Cassidy says.

"Some have called me an opportunist. I don't know whether it's meant as a compliment or an insult. I think of myself as a businessman trying to stay alive," he added.

Asked by an audience member how many available rigs could actually be reactivated if needed, Cassidy theorized that it would be hard to achieve even the 1,900-rig level of a year ago.

He attributes that to the high number of rigs auctioned piecemeal. "Once one of those rigs scatters, it will never be reassembled for work."

Of the approximately 1,200 rigs sold at auction since 1982, Cassidy estimates that fewer than 150 have been sold whole.

Another questioner asked if foreign investors are evident at oilfield auctions around the country. He replied that there is an increasing, but not yet substantial number of European and Middle Eastern investors at most auctions.

Cassidy explains the investment philosophy behind it saying "in many cases you can't buy and sell goods at the same time, and if you're not selling you've got to buy at big discounts."

"Experience tells me that this is the time to buy and neither the industry nor my company gains much if I dump equipment back on the market. But, I don't expect to stop buying until prices start going up."

Movement in the administration position is already seen moving toward consideration of a fee, and White House officials now support further study of the impact of the fee.

White quoted an Associated Press report of Reagan's comments to "undertake a high-level review of energy-related national security concerns."

White said he believes that politicians on both sides of the aisle underestimate the ability of the American people to understand the relationship between reliance of imported oil from politically unstable sources, national security and economic prosperity.

He recalled the comments of one Texas voter on oil import fees. "I'd rather pay a few more cents per gallon for gas out of my paycheck than a few fewer cents out of my unemployment check."

an oil import fee can be instituted to make domestic oil competitive with imports, Hefner says the tide of increasing imports, currently at 41 percent, can be turned.

In addition to increasing volumes of imports, the source of them is shifting as well. "In 1985, Saudi Arabia was No. 6 on the list of leading import sources, behind our friends such as Mexico. Today, they are No. 1."

"A national energy policy could knock unstable Middle East source back down the list," Hefner concluded.

BUDGET

"We're about to pull the ultimate scam. Everybody's included," said Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, a member of the House Budget Committee.

However, both the House and Senate were working to find additional savings. The latest Senate estimate was that $14.5 billion was needed, and lawmakers said they expected to find a way to fill the gap before final House-Senate action.

A House version released Friday claimed savings of $15.5 billion, but lawmakers said the plan was still being revised.

"We're fine-tuning the smoke and mirrors proportions," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif.

The tentative House version included a $1 billion across-the-board cut, evenly divided between domestic and military spending. Lawmakers said that was added to make sure the bill was adequate and to please liberals who wanted some of the savings to come from the Pentagon.

James C. Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the Reagan administration viewed military and foreign aid spending as untouchable and the president was advised to veto a bill with that approach.

POLICY

"The only thing worse than being in oil these days is being a derived demand industry depending on oil," noted Thomas Cruickshank, chief executive officer of Halliburton Co. "It is best to prepare for a period of hardship for the foreseeable future," said the man who was elected to the top spot at the Duncan, Okla.-based petroleum service company in 1983.

"Survival is the key. It's no problem adjusting to a pleasant surprise, but you can't depend on them," explained Cruickshank, who is also a past president of the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

If an unexpected improvement does happen, it will most likely be in natural gas, he proposed. Gas deliverability disruptions could come as early as this winter, if the weather is severe, Cruickshank told the 300 contractors. Geographic confinement of the gas market and physical limitations on import volumes of Canadian gas imports could hasten a relative improvement in the gas outlook.

The inability of producers to "turn on shut-in wells and produce up to the previous deliverability," could contribute to gas service disruptions, noted IADC president Ned Simes.

Simes, who is also president of Diamond M Drilling Co., Houston, provided other "wee indicators" of slight improvements for drillers by the end of 1986.

"The fact that the Interior Department was not allowed to extend offshore leases, as was sought by some large producers could mean that a number of wells could be drilled in order to hold those leases," said the offshore contractor.

"The possibility of a degree of price stability from the tentative OPEC accord could help as well. So could year-end budgetary considerations, spending up the full allotment of e&p funds to ensure not having further cuts," Simes projected.

"I'm not saying it could be a boom, or even a mini-boom, just a little upturn in activity by year-end."

Guest speaker Ray Hefner, chairman of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, likened producers' plight to the little Dutch boy with his finger in the dyke shouting warnings of the impending flood of foreign oil threatening America's energy security.

Hefner noted that he was heartened by a recent meeting with President Reagan, Vice President George Bush and several other top administration officials. The administration's most recent pledge of support to the domestic petroleum industry is "not just lip service" but a real

ClayDesta Communications lays off 50 salespersons

From Staff Reports

ClayDesta Communications, in a corporate reshuffling, has dismissed 50 salespersons for poor performance and laid off 16 administrative workers in a streamlining effort.

"We took a month and evaluated the company," said Midland businessman Clayton W. Williams Jr. "A fact of business is things aren't always pleasant," he said of the dismissals. "It's not easy running a business, especially in tough times. We're just trying to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative."

He also noted that the company shifted personnel to areas such as accounting, auditing and billing.

Spokeswoman Julie Faubel emphasized that the company is looking to replace the salespersons. "We have very sophisticated products and we need top-notch salesmen who can handle the products."

Ms. Faubel noted that, "In the last two years, we grew so fast, branched out across the state and hired almost 400 people in a short amount of time. Now that we have offices across the state, we're not growing as fast." She pointed out that "when you have 50 customers or 1,000 customers, it's easy to double business. We now have in excess of 81,000 customers, and it's hard to double 81,000." She said the company is still growing at the rate of 10 percent a month. "This is a normal step for a growth company like ours — to evaluate and plan for the future."

ClayDesta Communications serves 90 percent of the markets in Texas, and has offices in Midland, Lubbock, San Antonio, Bryan-College Station, Amarillo, Dallas, Waco, San Angelo, Abilene, Houston and Austin.

Ex-city employee charged with indecency with child

From Staff Reports

A former city employee, who was arrested and charged Friday with indecency with a child, is also out on a county bond for taking money from parking meters, Midland police report.

Ronnie Ferrell Stone, 3208 Thomas, was arrested on a warrant around 12:30 p.m. Friday at the Silverado Apartments, 2613 N. Midland Drive.

Stone was working for a local asphalt company on a parking lot at the time of his arrest, said Det. Sgt. B.G. Johnson.

Stone, a 33-year-old former city traffic division employee, is being held in the city jail on a $15,000 bond.

He was arrested for an incident reported Sept. 12 during which he allegedly fondled a 4-year-old Midland girl, Johnson said. The incident was witnessed by two boys under 12, Johnson said.

Johnson said he could not comment on whether Stone had been arrested before on similar charges of indecency with a child.

On Sept. 2 Stone was arrested for the burglary of a coin-operated machine and criminal mischief under $200. He was released on bond Sept. 3.

Stone allegedly used a key to open parking meters, but it was not known how he had gotten the key, said Det. Sgt. Chris Becker.

Some citizens saw Stone emptying a meter in the 500th block of West Ohio Avenue on Aug. 28, Becker said.

Traffic Engineer Fred McGary said Stone had worked for the city for about three years and was the foreman of a paint truck crew before he was fired after his arrest on Sept. 2.

Midlander reports theft of flat-bed trailer

From Staff Reports

A Midland man reported the theft of an $800 flat-bed trailer, according to sheriff's reports.

Jack Cunningham, P.O. Box 6802, Odessa, told sheriff's officers the trailer was taken sometime between Wednesday and Friday.

The trailer was parked in front of his residence about one-half mile north of County Road 60 on Farm to Market 1788, sheriff's reports said.

Witness gets immunity in murder investigation

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A witness in the investigation of Patrolman Stephen Smith's slaying has accepted a judge's offer of immunity, claiming he feared a stay in the Bexar County Jail would cost him his life at the hands of renegade police officers.

The witness' lawyer said his client may be able to shed light on the motive behind Smith's shooting death Aug. 18.

William Joseph Brown Jr., 32, who the San Antonio Express-News reported Friday may have knowledge of possible vigilante activities within the police department, was granted "use immunity" on Thursday by District Judge Pat Priest.

"My client decided it was not worth going to jail to defend the San Antonio Police Department," said Alan R. Manka, the lawyer representing Brown.

"He has information that will make some police officers fear for their jobs and their security, and he's afraid they may try to get back at him," Manka said.

Manka and Brown declined to say how many officers were involved.

Police Capt. James Despres said detectives have determined that no other officers were involved in the three homicides and five acts of criminal mischief now linked to Smith.

A grand jury this week was investigating the shooting of Smith, who authorities have said was killed by fellow police officer Farrell Tucker.

The Express-News reported that Brown invoked the Fifth Amendment guarantee against making self-incriminating statements in an appearance before the grand jury Thursday.

Brown, his lawyer, special prosecutor Sid Harle and Department of Public Safety legal counsel Gerald Carruth left the grand jury room and went before Judge Priest to discuss granting immunity.

After listening to Harle and assistant district attorney Charles Strauss, Priest offered Brown "use immunity," meaning testimony given to the grand jury can't later be used in a criminal prosecution against the man who made the statements.

Brown testified in secret for nearly four hours. Manka said Brown was "explaining a lot of questions."

Manka said that if an indictment were issued by the grand jury, Brown most likely would testify again and could provide a motive in the death of Smith.

"He may be able to supply the motive, they've been looking for," Manka said.

After he testified, Brown told reporters, "I got my immunity. I got to tell them what I know, and I think I helped them out."

Brown said that a "big burden" was off his chest, but he still feared for his life. Manka said Texas Rangers who originally convinced Brown to travel to San Antonio three weeks ago would continue to stay with him while he is in the city.

Bishop praises anti-apartheid stand

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Christendom is united in opposing South Africa's apartheid policies, says the chief bishop of America's 2.8 million Episcopalians.

The Most Rev. Edmond Lee Browning, installed last January as primate of the church, said unity was forcefully demonstrated Sept. 7 by the huge ecumenical gathering for the enthronement of his friend, the Most Rev. Desmond Tutu, as archbishop of Cape Town.

"The representation there of other parts of the Anglican Communion and other Christian bodies for me, lifted up the solidarity of the majority of the Christian world against the situation in South Africa," Browning said.

The bishop is in San Antonio this week for the annual interim meeting of the Episcopal House of Bishops, which officially convenes today and continues next week.

Browning, a Corpus Christi native and the first native of the San Antonio-based Diocese of West Texas to head the Episcopal Church, said South Africa's policy of racial segregation is a terrible sin.

"In Crossroads (a township near Cape Town), 80,000 people live in absolute squalor. Never in my life, and I've been to a lot of places all over the world, have I seen such a scene of the demeaning of human life," he said.

In addition to the South Africa crisis, the bishops will discuss the election of women as bishops, officials said.

White plans appeal of prison order

TYLER (AP) — Gov. Mark White said Friday the state will immediately appeal a federal judge's order blocking the planned transfer of 300 prison inmates to a National Guard barracks near Mineral Wells.

The decision came shortly after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler issued a permanent injunction barring the state from making the transfer, and also from transferring 95 inmates to a Galveston prison hospital to avoid overcrowding of the state's corrections facilities.

A week ago, Justice issued a temporary restraining order blocking the transfers. During a hearing Tuesday he extended that order for 10 days or until a permanent injunction was issued.

In Austin, White said the state believes the barracks at the Fort Wolters guard facility is adequate for the temporary housing of low-risk inmates. He said he hoped the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals would OK the transfer.

"The state is filing an immediate appeal. We hope the 5th Circuit Court will allow the Texas Department of Corrections to take the steps necessary to increase capacity of our prisons to protect the public safety and enforce our laws," White said.

"We're going to do everything we can to make sure we have adequate space for convicts sent to prison for violating our laws," he said.

Justice on Friday said his permanent injunction would stand until the state reports that all conditions in an agreement to limit prison overcrowding have been met at the Fort Wolters and Galveston facilities.

TDC officials also had sought permission to relocate 95 inmates at the Galveston prison hospital to avoid triggering early release of prisoners and to comply with prison population limits ordered by Justice in a settlement of a prison reform lawsuit brought by inmates.

Justice's ruling also prohibits the TDC from calculating the number of beds in the two facilities to determine the overall prison population.

Under the Texas Prison Management Act of 1983, when the prison population reaches 95 percent of the TDC system's capacity, officials must release inmates through early parole to meet the limit.

As of midnight Thursday, there were 38,356 inmates, or 94.04 percent of capacity, said TDC spokesman David Nunnelee.

"TDC's population has been over 94 percent for a year," Justice wrote. "Yet, TDC has not requested funds for current administration of the Texas Prison Management Act."

In a statement accompanying Friday's order, Justice said the prison system's current capacity is 40,568 inmates.

Earlier this week, counting the beds at Fort Wolters and the prison hospital provided the latitude TDC officials needed to avoid going over the prison population cap.

TDC officials earlier signed an agreement ending the battle over a long-standing prison suit.

The agreement limited the number of inmates that can be housed in the state's existing prison units to a maximum capacity of 34,210 in a two-step process for 1987 and 1989. It also set minimum space requirements for new cells, asked prison officials to provide out-of-cell time and make other changes to ease crowding problems.

Inmates' attorney William Bennett Turner asked Justice this summer to hold the state in contempt of court because he said it was not living up to the agreement to limit population.

On Friday, in Justice's response to a motion by prisoners' attorneys for a permanent injunction, Justice wrote that TDC would have transferred the minimum custody inmates to the National Guard armory except for his temporary order.

"Modification of the Crowding Stipulation to permit TDC to house inmates at the proposed sites would thwart the operation of a rational state law specifically designed to redress prison overcrowding," Justice ruled.

"Absent a constitutional infirmity, no federal court should adopt such a practice, especially when the means of avoiding state law would subject inmates to conditions falling below the minimum standards agreed to by the parties," he wrote.

Convicted child abuser faces life in prison

GALVESTON (AP) — A Galveston man convicted in the death of a 2-year-old boy faces a possible maximum sentence of life in prison as the punishment phase of his trial began Friday, prosecutors said.

Dennis Joseph Florio, 22, was found guilty Thursday of injury to a child by omission of adequate care, which contributed to the death of David McComb last June.

Prosecutors said Florio was the live-in boyfriend of the child's mother, Cheryl McComb, 20, who also was indicted in the child's death but was given a probation sentence in exchange for her testimony.

A jury in State District Judge Henry G. Dalehite's court heard two days of testimony and deliberated three hours before convicting Florio.

The jury must now decide on Florio's punishment which could range from five years to life in prison.

Florio has remained jailed in lieu of $100,000, raised from $25,000 after he fled to Wyoming last year.

After the verdict, prosecutor Mike Clark described the case as "the most vicious case of child abuse I've seen. I hope I never have to try another like it."

WHAT IS PREVENTIVE MEDICINE TODAY?

1. It is much more than the prevention of contagious diseases!
2. It is involved in treating the patient as well as the disease, it is much easier to treat the patient before the disease occurs.
3. It is improving the immune system to make it competent through dietary control, lifestyle programs, exercise programs, relief from mental stress, and early detection of disease & malignancy.
4. A competent immune system that can be maintained will avoid most of the degenerative diseases, allergic and auto immune diseases, and many forms of cancer.
5. Lifespan can be increased along with a better quality lifestyle.
6. Lengthy illnesses and pro-longed hospitalization can be avoided.

STATE IN BRIEF

Men held in connection with seven abductions

DONNA (AP) — Authorities were holding three suspects claiming to be Mexico Judicial Police in connection with the abductions of two women and five children, officials said.

The men were arrested on aggravated kidnapping warrants in connection with the Sept. 11 kidnappings of the women and their children, said David Wells, spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

The women and children were released the following day unharmed and drove back to their home, where they called police and told them they had been abducted, Wells said.

Officials arrested the men Thursday in a rural Cameron County home and also confiscated a pistol at the home, he said.

Wells identified the men as Juan Cantu, Daniel Cantu and Mario Garcia, all believed to be from Mexico. He did not have ages on the men. He said two other men named in warrants are still at large.

The victims were identified as Irma Tijerina and her child and Maria del Carmon Rodriguez, 32, and her four children ranging in ages from 6 to 13.

Man charged with murder

DALLAS (AP) — Police are holding a Dallas man after stopping him for speeding and discovering a woman shot to death in the front seat of his car.

The man was arrested in the slaying of 25-year-old Sherry Roberts and is being held on an investigative charge of murder, homicide investigator Jim Gallagher said.

An officer on routine patrol who stopped the man's car early Thursday said the man was speeding and driving erratically through a south Dallas neighborhood.

When the officer saw the woman lying in the front seat, the man told him, "I was taking her to the hospital," Gallagher said.

The man could not or would not tell police how or where the woman was shot, Gallagher said.

TDC inmate stabbed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — An inmate at the Texas Department of Corrections Darrington Unit stabbed his cellmate with a makeshift icepick, prison officials said Friday.

Romulo Zepedea, 31, received three superficial wounds to the upper left chest while in his cell in an administrative segregation section, prison spokesman David Nunnelee said.

Following the 2:45 a.m. stabbing, Zepedea, serving 15 years for murder with a deadly weapon from Nueces County, was treated at the unit's infirmary before being transferred to the TDC Hospital in Galveston where he was listed in fair condition, Nunnelee said.

Nunnelee said Zepedea's cellmate, a 22-year-old serving 15 years for forgery by passing and burglary of a habitation from Bee County, stabbed him for an undetermined reason.

The weapon used was a makeshift icepick with a six-inch piece of thin metal, he said.

Virus-bearing bugs found

BAY CITY (AP) — Mosquitoes containing the St. Louis encephalitis virus have been detected in Bay City and two other monitoring sites in Matagorda County, county health department officials say.

The virus marks the first time mosquitoes containing the virus have been found in the coastal county, health official, Clyde McKinney, told The Bay City Tribune Friday.

The culex mosquitoes carrying the virus were caught by the county health department Aug. 25 and sent to the state health department in Austin for testing, McKinney said.

Two other mosquito samples have been taken since then, but the testing results are not yet available, he said.

However, County Health Director Dr. Gordon C. Daugherty cautioned residents not to overreact.

Although SLE is a serious illness, Daugherty said, it "isn't like the black death or something. There's no need to be alarmed."

Fire breaks out in jail

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials Friday were trying to determine what caused an early morning fire at the Harris County Jail that sent a dozen inmates and deputies to a local hospital.

A deputy on duty at the jail heard loud noises and spotted the smoke coming from an occupied five-man cell about 2:20 a.m., jail spokeswoman Rachel Gilbert said.

The inmates were immediately evacuated and deputies put out the fire with fire extinguishers, she said. The fire was contained to the one cell block on the tenth floor, she said.

The five inmates and seven deputies were treated for smoke inhalation and assorted injuries at Ben Taub Hospital and were listed in stable condition, spokesman Mark Frides said Friday. He would not identify the injured men.

Ms. Gilbert said there were no damage estimates.

Vanity plate fees lowered

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White Friday announced he had signed into law a bill that will lower the price of personalized license plates to $40.

Lawmakers in 1985 raised the fee for the plates from $25 to $75. Sales of the plates dropped by 97,000 as a result of the increased fee.

Bill sponsor Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, said dropping the fee to $40 would increase sales and raise more money for the state.

The $40 fee, charged in addition to the annual vehicle registration fee, goes into effect Jan. 1.

Hundreds of Germans want to teach in Texas

Associated Press

Telephone calls poured into the West Berlin ministry of education Friday after it announced that the state of Texas plans to hire hundreds of West German teachers for its schools starting in 1987.

"The telephone hasn't stopped ringing since 7:30 this morning," ministry spokesman Guenter Spanier said.

Spanier said that between 200 and 300 teachers from all over West Germany had called to say they were interested in the offer.

The calls came after the ministry released a statement late Thursday to the news media in Berlin detailing Texas' plans to fill teacher vacancies in the state.

"The state of Texas will hire hundreds of teachers over the next several years," the statement said.

It added that Texas needed more teachers to work in their schools "to improve its teaching situation."

But in Austin, Texas, a spokeswoman for the Texas Education Agency said it only approved an exchange program for 30 West German teachers to come to Texas to work in various school districts this year.

A similar number of Texas teachers will go to West Germany next summer, according to spokeswoman Terri Anderson.

Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby announced several months ago that German teachers would be hired as part of a plan to shore up the teaching corps. Now, however, state education officials say there is no significant shortage of teachers.

In a front page article Friday, the major West German daily newspaper Die Welt announced Texas' plans to hire German teachers, quoting the ministry's statement.

According to the statement, the teachers hired must be fluent in English and have successfully completed West Germany's required teachers' examinations.

West Berlin's Minister of Education, Hanna-Renate Laurien, has coordinated with Texas school officials the guidelines for the planned hiring program, the announcement said.

Last year, the state of Georgia hired several dozen West German teachers to fill vacancies in that southern state.

Most of the teachers who returned on vacation or were interviewed later said the experience was worth it, but the American school system took some getting used to.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Education in Bonn said there are more than 30,000 teachers in West Germany registered as unemployed.

East Texas blueberries bringing western half of U.S. to 'doorstep'

ATHENS (AP) — Blueberries have long been considered largely a northern crop, grown profitably in Michigan and New England.

But it so happens that blueberries, depending on soil and water conditions, thrive in almost any area where pine trees are found.

That means that an East Texas area roughly extending from the Red River to just north of Beaumont could be suitable for blueberry production, said Don Cawthon, president of Fincastle Nursery and Farms outside Athens.

Fincastle produces berries for "pick-your-own" customers and has had as many as eight producers interested in fall plantings on blocks of 50 acres or more, Cawthon said.

"Basically, the western half of the United States is at our doorsteps," he said.

The growing season for blueberries begins two to three weeks earlier here than in the Northeast and North, and Texas is the westernmost state suitable for growing them.

Blueberries have been part of the Texas Department of Agriculture's promotional push for diversification in agriculture. The department estimates that the state needs about 4,600 producing acres of berries to satisfy the present demand for the fruit in Texas and other states in the Southwest, about 10 times what is now used in blueberry production.

"As far as East Texas is concerned, I think it's going to be the most important new crop in a century," said Larry D. Strange, an administrator in the agricultural development program of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Strange recently completed a study that concluded that the fruit could bring gross annual income of $27.9 million, roughly equivalent to that of the pecan crop.

Because of the costs involved in getting into production, it usually takes producers five years to break even on the crop.

Extensive research and testing is required to make sure that water and soil conditions are right. The plants, although "not fussy," require care in planting and expert management throughout production, according to Bart and Brent Ramage, brothers who operate Ramage Farms near Hooks in northeastern Texas.

Brent Ramage, 31, is the first president of the Texas Blueberry Growers Association.

"This is not going to save a farm. But it will fit into a long-term farm strategy," said Bart, 33.

The Ramages sold about $20,000 worth of berries to the Kroger Co. in June.

Claiborne says he was framed by former FBI agent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judge Harry E. Claiborne told his impeachment trial Friday he did not cheat on his taxes, and that he was framed by federal agents who displayed pictures on their walls portraying him as dim-witted.

Claiborne

Taking the stand for the first time since the trial started Monday, Claiborne, chief U.S. district judge for Nevada, told senators he was the victim of a vendetta by a former FBI supervisor who "was a very ambitious man and came into Las Vegas with the idea, in his words, of planting the American flag in the Nevada desert."

"I think his idea of doing that was to get rid of a lot of people, and unfortunately for me, I was foremost in his ambitious path," the imprisoned judge said of former FBI agent Joseph Yablonsky, who was in charge of the Las Vegas office.

Claiborne, 69, was convicted in 1984 on charges of evading taxes on his 1979 and 1980 federal income tax returns. From the moment he took the stand, he appeared relaxed and folksy, and his firm voice never wavered under questioning from defense lawyer Oscar Goodman.

Claiborne said that in 1980 he provided Joseph Wright, then his accountant for three decades, with the proper information on legal fees earned before his judgeship — fees the government claimed he purposefully failed to report.

Claiborne said he signed a blank return, and did not learn until much later that he was under investigation for not reporting all the fees and failing to pay taxes on the unreported amount.

"Did you ever see the completed 1979 return before it was filed?" Goodman asked.

"No," Claiborne responded.

Q. Did Wright discuss the return with you.

A. No.

Q. Did you know your legal fees went unreported.

A. No.

In 1981, Claiborne said, he switched to another tax preparation firm, headed by Jerry Watson, who previously testified that he in turn handed the work to an employee, Charlotte Travaglia.

The judge testified that he was shocked to learn from Watson that he told a grand jury the firm never received the judge's legal fee income for 1980. Claiborne said he had, indeed, given the figures to Watson.

"I said you have just indicted me," Claiborne said, and testified he immediately drove Watson to his home and showed him the figures.

Watson has told the 12-member impeachment panel that he then notified the grand jury he wanted to change his testimony.

Claiborne also said he went to Mrs. Travaglia's home after his indictment while "searching for the truth." He recalled asking her, "What the hell did you do to my income tax return?"

Mrs. Travaglia, Claiborne said, told him the same story she gave to the impeachment panel: she perceived her job as preparing only preliminary estimates. During prior testimony, Watson and Mrs. Travaglia each said the other was responsible for any errors in the return.

While Mrs. Travaglia said she believed the return was wrong, Claiborne said Watson told him, "This return is right."

Claiborne said he received a refund on his 1980 return of $44,256, more than twice the amount he was expecting. But he said Watson suggested he cash the check, and he did so at a casino.

Claiborne said all this took place during a vicious feud between the federal judges in Nevada and the Justice Department's organized crime strike force.

"The lawyers hit Las Vegas in a very arrogant way," Claiborne said. "The judges didn't like it."

Claiborne said one of his fellow judges "found out they had caricatures on their bulletin boards" that depicted the colleague "as a clown" and Claiborne as "a blank" with derogatory writing underneath.

Federal marshals were ordered to seize the drawings and "that's when the trouble started" between the judges and the strike force, Claiborne said.

"It was not a good atmosphere," he testified.

Even before Claiborne took the stand, the Senate panel was considering a request by some senators to expand the scope of the impeachment trial to focus on defense allegations of a government vendetta against Claiborne. Five senators on the panel said they were deeply troubled by the allegations.

Although the panel has not ruled on the request, Goodman, during his questioning of witnesses prior to Claiborne's testimony, succeeded in getting aspects of the vendetta on the trial record.

Claiborne earlier this year became the 13th federal official to be impeached. The impeachment articles parallel the judge's 1984 conviction for evading taxes on $106,651 in income paid him in 1979 and 1980.

Following the impeachment process directed by the Constitution, the House sent the case to the Senate for trial to see whether the judge should be removed from his lifetime job.

Although present at the trial, Claiborne is serving a two-year prison term while still earning his $78,700 salary.

Goodman also managed to inject part of his vendetta theory into the proceedings while questioning Internal Revenue Service agents Donald Skelton and Leo Halper.

Veteran says 'fight's not over' to bring POWs, MIAs back home

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A Medal of Honor winner said "the fight's not over" as he and other war veterans and supporters Friday ended a 37-day vigil in a bamboo cage for those American soldiers missing in action.

About 39 people, including veterans of three wars, their family members and friends, spent time alone in the cage in the past 37 days.

The vigils, which began Aug. 13, ended on National POW-MIA Recognition Day.

In a lakefront ceremony, veterans in uniform and their friends and families lit candles and released 37 balloons, one for every Wisconsin native still unaccounted for in the Vietnam War. The occasion was National POW-MIA Day.

"My son has been missing for 20 years, but I can't quite give up hope," said William Arnold of West Allis, whose son, William Tamm Arnold, was last seen Nov. 18, 1967.

"What if, by some remote chance, he did come back, and I had said, 'You are dead,'" Arnold asked. "I just can't give up hope until we know more."

The cage is said to be a replica of the ones used to hold up to four prisoners.

Gary Wetzel, the last person to enter the cage, called on President Reagan and members of Congress to continue the fight to bring home those who died and any who may still be held in Southeast Asia.

"The fight's not over," Wetzel said.

"We've got to keep looking forward, keep asking questions, keep getting answers."

"Sometime, somewhere, somehow, some day, someone will emerge and ask the question 'Why?'" said Wetzel, who was awarded the Medal of Honor in Vietnam. "That's why we cannot forget."

The Defense Department lists 2,436 men as missing in Southeast Asia.

People who spent time in the cage said reactions from visitors were generally positive.

"This has gotten national attention," said Jim Haase, a firefighter. "It's good, and it's positive."

The cage, 4 feet high and 8 feet wide, was tucked under an overhanging floor of the Milwaukee County War Memorial Center, facing Lake Michigan but protected from the rain and westerly winds.

Each person occupied the cage alone, usually from 6 p.m. one day until 6 p.m. the next.

Al Guerrero, 48, said he took no solid foods during the 24-hour period, only water and coffee, and that most of the others had followed the same regimen.

Wetzel said Wisconsin Vietnam Vets Chapter 1, the sponsoring organization, had collected more than 3,000 signatures on a "Petition to Hanoi" from the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia. It urges the return of any servicemen or civilians still in that country and information on the remains of those still missing.

Veterans and supporters will stage a similar vigil for 90 days, beginning Friday at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., Wetzel said.

Veterans and supporters will stage a similar vigil for 90 days, beginning Friday at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., Wetzel said.

Man who helped disabled wife commit suicide cleared of murder

WESTMINSTER, Calif. (AP) — A stroke victim who helped his disabled wife end her life but forgot to carry out his end of their double-suicide pact was cleared of a murder charge Friday and pleaded guilty to a lesser crime.

Jay McFadden's sobs and cries punctuated the brief court hearing in which he acknowledged assisting in the suicide of his 61-year-old wife, Gladys, crippled by multiple sclerosis.

"As a human being, I'm relieved," said Orange County Deputy District Attorney Jeffrey L.S. Robinson, who moved to drop the murder charge. He said his office would recommend probation.

"Everyone in the district attorney's office felt a great deal of compassion for Mr. McFadden," Robinson said.

The couple's daughter, Kathy Ciccarelli, said she was overjoyed at the outcome and hoped the case would work in favor of changing laws regarding mercy killings.

"Mercy killings are happening in the thousands," she said. "If we could change the laws and legalize euthanasia in this country, my mother's and father's situation would not have gotten to the point it did."

Robinson said the dismissal was supported by evidence that Mrs.

McFadden probably fired the gun that killed her. The evidence was backed up by a doctor who said McFadden, 63, lacks the mental ability to commit a murder.

"Mr. McFadden is basically nothing more than a child in his actions," the prosecutor said he had concluded from medical reports.

McFadden's attorney, Deputy Public Defender Carol Lavacot, said she was convinced that McFadden was incapable of killing his wife of 37 years and would also be unable to kill himself.

The white-haired defendant remained seated after being brought into the courtroom and answered "yes" as the prosecutor asked if he understood his rights.

"In reference to this charge of aiding and abetting a suicide, do you plead guilty in this case?" Robinson asked.

McFadden's lips trembled and his eyes filled with tears.

"Yes," he said, bowing his head. Then he began to sob.

"The defendant acknowledges that on January 19 he intentionally aided and abetted Gladys McFadden in committing suicide," Robinson declared.

McFadden's sobs then turned to loud wails in the hushed courtroom. Mrs. Ciccarelli said her mother, who couldn't move because of her disease, had wanted to die for at least a year and perhaps longer.

"They (her parents) talked about this all the time," she said.

The couple had spent three days recording their suicide pact and goodbyes into a tape recorder, Mrs. Ciccarelli said. But when they attempted suicide by sleeping pills Jan. 18, it didn't work, so they recorded another message and got McFadden's pistol.

According to the scenario reconstructed by Ms. Lavacot, McFadden held the gun to his wife's head and she pulled the trigger.

Then, because a stroke had destroyed portions of his memory, he forgot what to do next, the attorney said. He dropped the gun and called the 911 emergency number in a panic. Police arrived and arrested him.

Municipal Court Judge Alan McKone ordered McFadden to appear in Superior Court on Sept. 29, where he will enter his plea again and be sentenced. The maximum sentence is three years in prison.

Mrs. Ciccarelli said her father would continue to live with two of his sons and is already undergoing physical therapy.

"We hope we can all get our lives back together and my father can lead a productive life," she said.

Stun gun allegedly used on children, police say

DALY CITY, Calif. (AP) — Ten children, including four babies, were punished with shocks from a 50,000-volt stun gun at a day care center, police alleged Friday.

But authorities may be unable to file felony charges against the couple running the center because the unlawful use of a stun gun is a misdemeanor in California unless it is used on a police officer, said juvenile officer Dennis Pinnatore.

"No one thought this would ever be used on children," said the officer.

Some of the children allegedly were stunned when they talked during nap time, and the babies allegedly were shocked on their feet when they became troublesome, Pinnatore said.

"One child said it was like putting your finger in a light socket," according to Pinnatore.

Deputy District Attorney Elaine Tipton reviewed the case with pediatricians and stun gun experts to help decide what charge could be filed against Max Santiago, 69, and his wife, Frances, 49.

This is a fairly new area of the law, she said, noting prosecutors pursuing felony charges would have to prove the children suffered physical harm.

The couple could not be reached for comment because they had no listed number and did not answer when reporters went to their door.

Pinnatore said they had run the licensed day care center since 1970 without incident. A complaint charging them with running an unlicensed day care center was filed on Wednesday, but officials said that charge could be dropped, since it appeared a license renewal had been approved.

The home was licensed for six children, but the couple was caring for 13 children, including their four grandchildren, he said.

After receiving a tip from parents, police interviewed the children separately and several said they were "electrocuted" with a stun gun, Pinnatore said.

The kids said the stun gun was even used on the feet of little babies, said the detective. No stun gun was found at the home, but "some kids freaked out when we showed (one) to them," he said.

He said the children seemed "horrified, but they didn't want to make their parents angry with them. Most of all, they were afraid no one would believe them and they didn't want to be 'electrocuted' again."

Conditions forecast for 8 PM Saturday

Sunny weather in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders will have to start the sprinklers up again with less than a 20 percent chance of rain predicted for this weekend by the National Weather Service.

Today will be mostly sunny with a slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be near 90 and winds will be southwest at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with less than a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be in the upper 60s.

Sunday will be partly cloudy with a slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be near 90.

Friday's high of 88 degrees was 17 degrees cooler than the record high of 105 degrees set in 1930. The overnight low of 62 degrees was 20 degrees warmer than the record low of 42 degrees set in 1971.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms dotted East Texas and most of South Texas Friday afternoon, while other areas had mostly cloudy skies and warm temperatures.

The forecast calls for scattered showers today, especially over southeast and eastern Texas. Temperatures will continue to be warm and nights mild, the National Weather Service said.

In North Texas, skies will be increasingly cloudy in central and west portions today.

West Texas will continue mostly fair and warm with isolated thunderstorms through Sunday.

In South Texas, skies will be cloudy through Sunday with scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms, more numerous to the southeast and along the Coastal Plains into the lower Rio Grande Valley. Locally heavy rain is possible.

NATION

Heavy rains ended Friday in southeastern South Dakota and western Iowa, where rivers and streams remained at or near flood stage, while scattered showers and thunderstorms reached much of rest of the nation.

Flood watches were posted in south-central Iowa, where Shannon City got 6 1/2 inches of rain in the 24 hours ending at 3 p.m. EDT, and for South Dakota's Big Sioux, Vermillion and James river basins.

The record 8.42 inches of rain recorded so far this month in Sioux Falls, S.D., is an inch shy of its record for any month, while nearly 13 inches of rain has fallen 6 miles southeast of the city.

Texas temperatures

In North Texas, scattered showers and thunderstorms mainly eastern half today. Highs upper 80s and lower 90s. Lows in the 70s.

In South Texas, cloudy through Sunday with scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms, more numerous in South-east Texas and along the coastal plains into the lower Rio Grande Valley. Lows near 80. Highs in the 80s and 90s.

In West Texas, fair and warm through Sunday with widely scattered late afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Lows in the 60s. Highs in the 80s and 90s.

Bulldogs show versatility in 36-0 romp

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

For the first time in many a year, Midland High is more than a one-dimensional team.

The Bulldogs can play offense — as the 36 points they posted shows — and they can play defense — as seen by their second shutout in three weeks.

And, they take pride in the performance of both units.

After their 36-0 victory over Lubbock Coronado Friday night at Memorial Stadium, Bulldog defensive back Tyrone Oliver was smiling when he pointed out the No. 1 defensive rating his team has posted so far this season.

Against the Mustangs, the Bulldogs did nothing to hurt that status, allowing only 106 yards rushing and no completed passes. In fact, the Bulldog defense was so dominant that Coronado managed only seven total first half yards.

"I know this is the first time I've ever coached two shutouts in my first three games of a season and I don't remember ever having a team so dominate in the first half," said MHS head coach Doug McCutchen.

"Tonight, I think this was a total team effort. We had a lot of second teamers in (the fourth quarter) and we still held on for the shutout. A lot of second teamers were on offense and we went down to score and ran a lot of time off the clock."

Offensively, the domination was no less severe. Under the guidance of quarterback Jaime Madrid, the Bulldogs rolled for 222 rushing yards and another 104 through the air. Madrid, who scored one of the five MHS touchdowns, hit 6-of-8 passes for two more touchdowns and no interceptions.

AFTER MISSING his first pass attempt of the game, Madrid completed two of his next three as the Bulldogs drove 99 yards for a touchdown. His second miss was his last.

The first completion came from the four, a 30-yarder to tight end Clyde Govan to give the Bulldogs some breathing room at their own 34. Ten plays later Madrid hit split end Michael Ball streaking down the right sideline.

The pass was so perfect Ball never broke stride as he caught it at the 30 and sailed untouched into the end zone. Richard Triplett kicked the extra point and the rout was on.

In the second quarter, the Bulldogs took advantage of Madrid's interception of Jason Greenwood's pass for a five-play, 39-yard drive. Anthony Adkison capped the drive on a one-yard plunge. Triplett missed the PAT.

Three plays after the ensuing kick-off, the Bulldog defense held the Mustangs at the 29 and forced a punt, which sailed over punter Jack Melton's head and came to rest at the Bulldog 3.

Melton, who was first player to reach the ball, scooped it up and dived across the goal line to give up the safety, saving a probable third MHS touchdown. But, not for long.

Melton's free kick, a punt, covered only 32 yards and the Bulldogs mounted their final first half drive from the 46. After seven plays, Madrid scored from the 10.

Tyrone Oliver added a touchdown in the third quarter on a one-yard pass from Madrid and Tommy Yorkman the final score in the fourth on a three-yard run.

"I HAVE to hand all my success to the offensive line tonight. I didn't get pressured one bit the whole game," said Madrid. "Tyrone and Anthony were also back there throwing blocks to spring me."

And, about the 40-yard pass he threw to Ball, Madrid said, "Oh, Mike, he runs patterns perfect. He makes it look like it isn't a pass until the ball is thrown. He's really improved since the first game."

"Michael made two real clutch catches, one for the touchdown and one across the middle for a first down to keep a drive going," said McCutchen. "Jaime threw perfect passes. We had excellent blocking on the play action pass (the 40-yarder). The linemen blocked the defense's hands down and Jaime hit Michael in full stride."

In junior varsity action Thursday night, the Bullpups opened the season with a come-from-behind 12-9 victory over Pecos. Chris Johnson caught a 65-yard pass from Russell Page in the third quarter to cut Pecos' lead to 9-6 and Guy Giesecke scored on a 25-yard run for the winner in the fourth.

Tampa Bay Buccaneers Coach Leeman Bennett said Steve Young will start at quarterback Sunday against the Detroit Lions.

Miami Dolphins fullback Woody Bennett missed meetings and practice Friday to protest the lack of progress in the renegotiation of his contract. "There have been guys in the league that just started playing that make more money than me," said Bennett. Michael Robbie, Dolphin GM, said, "He's under contract and we expect him to honor that contract."

Lee remains unbeaten with 20-0 victory

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

EL PASO — The Midland Lee Rebels ran their 1986 winning streak to 3-0 here Friday night with a 20-0 victory over the El Paso Eastwood Troopers, but Reb coach Earl Miller saw little to be pleased with.

"Offensively, we didn't do anything right," said Miller. "We didn't execute and we didn't block anybody. This game set us back about a year and we've got Midland High next week."

"We get a shutout and I don't think we even played good enough to win on defense. I told the kids that people have been telling them that they are a pretty good football team, but I don't think we are even close to being good at this point in time."

Lee carried a 14-0 lead into the half and then settled for a fourth quarter touchdown with just over three minutes left in the game. It was an unimpressive showing at best.

The Rebs had their moments, but misfired passes, 85 yards in penalties and failure to convert in key situations were the negatives.

The Rebels looked as if they had a long bus ride early in the first half as the Troopers tried to show this wasn't just another El Paso team against a District 4-5A opponent.

The two teams fought to a scoreless first period before Lee cranked up drives of 51 and 39 yards for a 14-0 lead at the half.

Eastwood had been successful at thwarting Lee drives in the first period with help from the referees, who called 112 yards in penalties in the first half alone.

But when the Reb offense shook off the cob webs generated by 300 miles of travel, Eastwood began to wilt.

JOE WOODARD'S 16-yard run set up Lee's first touchdown where Rodney Johnson gave a good fake to his fullback before covering the final four yards for the score with 4:49 left in the half.

Fullback Waymond Goodley set up Lee's second TD with a 20-yard run to the Trooper one and Woodward when skyward over the Lee offensive front for the final yard and Jeff Connolly added his second conversion for a 14-0 lead with 1:34 left in the half.

Eastwood fought a bad case of field position in the first half, with its best start from its own 28. It's though to move against any Rebel team when you have to travel that far for a score.

Despite the early doldrums, Lee dominated the first half, outtrusting Eastwood by a 153-66 margin. Neither team was sharp in the passing game as Johnson hit only one of six in the first half for nine yards while Chris Cavazos of the Troopers couldn't complete a pass in his first seven tries in his first start since starter David Artega went down with a knee injury last week.

Can SWC bounce back?

Can Texas Tech come back from last week's holocaust at Miami when a Hurricane blew away the Red Raiders, 61-11?

For that matter can the Southwest Conference come back from a less than a memorable weekend which saw Texas A&M's national championship raft sink into the bayous of Louisiana and Stanford turn out the lights on Texas in Austin?

With the Aggies idle and the Longhorns at Missouri, it's up to Baylor to uphold the SWC's honor when it hosts USC. This was the game that made the Bears a year ago when they went to the coast and beat the Trojans, which didn't make the Rose Bowl, but knocked off the team that did go.

In Waco, despite Baylor's success over the years, they don't take their football too seriously. At midweek, the game still wasn't a sellout, which makes one wonder why Grant Taff bothered. He could have signed up North Texas State and avoided the risk. Of more immediate concern to West Texans is the psychological state of Texas Tech, a program rebuilding under a new coach. The Miami thing could be a mortal blow. But kept in its proper context, Vinnie Testaverde can do that to an opponent. How Tech bounces back is vital to the future.

Last week we were 8-2 in the college ranks...this week in the SWC...

New Mexico plus 7 over Texas Tech—After what the Lobos did against BYU last week, I'm surprised the Raiders are the favorite. Is there something I don't know?

USC plus 5 1/2 over Baylor—The Bears have played up to ranking yet and this one should be close, therefore the points are enticing.

TCU minus 23 over Kansas State—Northern Iowa shutout the Wildcats last week and, judging by what happened at Tulane, it's going to take a lot of points to keep up with the Horned Frogs.

Arizona State minus 3 over SMU—Mustangs don't have much luck against Arizona schools and this one is at Tempe.

Tulsa plus 14 over Arkansas—Why do they put games like this on the board? If Frank Broyles were coaching, this would be a safe bet. He wouldn't let it get out of hand. Tulsa is too good a friend.

Boston College plus 11 1/2 over Penn State—No doubt about who will win. It's just a question of how much.

Texas minus 5 1/2 over Missouri—Last year that wasn't enough, but Horns, I hope, have something to prove this time.

Michigan State plus 1 1/2 over Notre Dame—Neighborhood scrap. Coin came up tails.

Florida plus 1 over Alabama—It's at Gainesville not Tuscaloosa.

West Virginia plus 4 1/2 Maryland—Any team that can beat East Carolina like that...

The pros (last week 4-5). We'll give 'em one more week to straighten up their act.

Bengals plus 4 1/2 over Browns—Geez, how can they make a team like the Browns the favorite.

Atlanta plus 9 1/2 over Cowboys—Presuming Landry won't turn Herschel and Tony loose at the same time.

Steelers plus 5 over Vikings—Neither one of these teams can beat any one by five.

Giants plus 3 1/2 over Raiders—Raiders must play this one without Marc Wilson. Is that good or bad?

New England minus 1/2 over Seattle—It's listed as 5/8s, but I'm not giving anybody that many points.

Denver 3 1/2 over Eagles—Maybe they'll count all of the Broncos' touchdowns this week.

Flores' optimism sounds a little like desperation

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Coach Tom Flores states the Los Angeles Raiders' position quite succinctly:

"We're going to win this week," he says, pausing. "...We've got to win this week."

Losers of their first two for the first time since 1964, the NFL's winningest team of the past two decades, the Raiders could be 0-3 after Sunday's game. It's not that the Raiders have been bad; it's that the schedule has been brutal—a 2-point loss in Denver and a 4-point loss in Washington.

The brutality continues in the second week of a East meets West round-robin. The opponent this week is the New York Giants, who last week made the NFL's most potent offense, San Diego's, look like the Pottsville Firebirds.

The oddsmakers rate the teams even, making the Raiders a 3½-point favorite, which is home-field advantage. But expect a lot of Giants fans at the Coliseum—L.A. is New York West.

A guess: The Raiders will win because Al ("Commitment to Excellence") Davis won't let them lose and, because even if the Giants fail to 1-2, they've got New Orleans, St. Louis and Philadelphia coming up.

Or, if you want esoteric information, the Giants are historically bad on grass—0-2 last year. So ...

RAIDERS 17-13.
WASHINGTON (plus 2½) at San Diego

The other half of the round-robin, won by the East in the East last week. Make it the West sweeps in the West, with Dan Fouts' wounded pride a major factor.

The Lee defense showed a few early cracks as Chuy Estrada rushed for 27 yards and Ruben Granada for 36. But DeJuan Norris, Steve Brenner and John Bradley came up with big plays and a hard pass rush.

Unfortunately, the Rebs didn't pick up the momentum in the second half as Eastwood chucked Cavaos for untested Mat Howard at quarterback and he dominated the ball, passing for 138 yards. He couldn't get the ball in the end zone as three interceptions by Anthony Pertile, Bradley and Jimmy Fennell helped squish scoring drives.

Matt Stephens and Brenner came up with some key defensive plays to aid the shutout in the second half.

But the key offensive play came from Durian Jenkins, who reverted back to 1985 for the old halfback option pass to dig the final grave for the Troopers.

Jenkins hit Freddy Dawson with a 33-yard halfback option pass to the Eastwood four and Jenkins covered the final four for the final score.

"I hope I get to do a lot more passing before the season is over," said Jenkins. "It's just an option play. I can run if the receiver is covered, but I thought I could hit Dawson and he made a good catch."

But Lee was hoping it wouldn't take trickery to get into the cross-town battle with Midland High next week at Memorial Stadium.

Woodard ended up with 80 yards rushing to lead all rushers while Goodley had 58 and Jenkins 57. Granada's 43 was tops for Eastwood, but the Troopers put the ball in the air 36 times, completing only 12 for 138 yards. Eastwood may have found a quarterback to replace Artega in the strong-armed Howard.

Edberg gains net semifinals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Top-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden defeated unseeded Derrick Rostagno of Brentwood, Calif., 6-0, 7-5 in quarterfinal play Friday in the $315,000 Volvo Tennis-Los Angeles Tournament, while second-seeded Brad Gilbert of Piedmont, Calif., defeated Australia's Pat Cash 6-2, 6-2.

In a third quarterfinal match, Sweden's Peter Lundgren defeated Jaime Yzaga of Peru 6-0, 4-6, 6-2. Both players are unseeded in the tournament. Lundgren will now meet Edberg in one of the semifinal matches Saturday.

"I play Edberg so many times, I think I beat him one time many years ago," said Lundgren, who's ranked 52nd in the world. "Now the pressure is on him."

Late Friday, sixth-seeded John McEnroe of Cove Neck, N.Y., was scheduled to play unseeded David Pate of Las Vegas in the final quarterfinal match. The winner will face Gilbert in the other semifinal match Saturday at the Los Angeles Tennis Center at UCLA.

Edberg dominated the first set with Rostagno, defeating him in just 23 minutes. But in the second set, Rostagno jumped to a 3-0 lead.

Beeman, Braden lead Devils past Plowboys

From Staff Reports

ROSCOE—Rankin's Red Devils made it two in a row after an opening game loss, beating Roscoe's Plowboys, 25-6, here Friday night.

Rankin scored in every period with Chris Beeman crashing in from five and one yard out at 6:03 of the first and 10:29 of the second. Roscoe made it 12-6 at half with a nine-yard touchdown pass from Quarterback Sammy Herrera to Lee McFaul.

Doug Braden gave the Devils some breathing room with a 29-yard jaunt with 6:07 left in the third period. Quarterback Bruce Hooker's 34-yard scamper with 3:53 left in the game finished off the scoring.

Braden went over the century mark rushing with 107 yards in nine carries, a 10.9 average per carry. For Roscoe, Billy Williams gained 55 yards in 14 carries.

Rankin's domination is reflected in the first downs. In total offense, Rankin amassed 315 yards.

The Devils suffered an opening game loss at the hands of Iraan, 16-7.

The Red Devils host Grandfalls next week in their final step before opening District 6-2A play.

Charges dropped against ring champ

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Assault charges were dropped Friday against former featherweight boxing champion Bobby Chacon because of insufficient evidence, Butte County authorities said.

Deputy District Attorney Mike Ramsey said he talked Thursday with Renee Vincent, whom Chacon was accused of striking last May, and she is standing by the story she told at the preliminary hearing.

Walker faces old friends

IRVING (AP)—Herschel Walker, once Georgia's favorite football son, will be trying to help defeat the state's professional football team on Sunday.

Walker, who played 10 years of high school and college football in Georgia, has ignited the Dallas Cowboys to a 2-0 NFL record.

Odds makers rated them a 10-point favorite over the unbeaten Atlanta Falcons.

Walker says meeting Atlanta won't be that special to him.

"When I played at the University of Georgia I never really gave the Falcons that much thought," Walker says. "I don't believe the Falcons cared that much for me."

Walker, a Heisman Trophy winner at Georgia, helped the Bulldogs to a national title, then signed with the New Jersey Generals of the USFL after his junior year. That left some hurt feelings.

"I had to do what was best for my family," says Walker, who came out of Wrightsville, Ga., to become a Georgia All-American and the shining star of the USFL.

"When I was with the Generals I didn't have much time to think about the Falcons," Walker says.

Walker has played tailback and flanker in the Cowboys' offense, scoring three touchdowns. He also is expected to be used at fullback.

Odessa wins; Cooper in upset

San Angelo 56,
Dunbar 7

From Staff Reports

SAN ANGELO — Bronza Moore scored on runs of 12 and 1 yards as San Angelo remained undefeated with a 56-7 win over Fort Worth Dunbar here Friday night.

The night's long run was Larry Hook's 62-yard punt return while Dunbar didn't score until the Bobcats had a 56-0 lead. Vic Bailey pass took a 26-yard pass from Todd Lawson for Fort Worth's lone score.

The Bobcats don't open District 4-5A for another two weeks. Next week they will host Hobbs, N.M.

LUBBOCK — Roderick Brown took a nine-yard pass from quarterback Scotty Pugh in the final period to propel Abilene Cooper to a 17-13 come-from-behind win over Lubbock Monterey Friday night. The win was the Cougars' first in three starts and Monterey is still looking for its first victory.

Cooper took a 10-9 first half lead on a 37-yard field goal by Jeff Ireland and Pugh's four-yard run.

Monterey struck twice in the third period on a one-yard run by Brian Pierce and a 52-yard Max Stephenson to Randy Payne pass.

The Cougars play Odessa High for their District 4-5A opener next Friday.

Abilene 27

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — The Eagles rallied from two touchdowns behind in the final quarter, only to see a two-point try that would have won the game foiled in the closing minutes as Eastern Hills hung on, 28-27.

Abilene's Junior Bell scored on runs of three and one-yard in the fourth period, but it was not enough. Charlie Llewellyn threw a pair of touchdown passes and Ronald Reese ran for two for Eastern Hills.

AHS jumped out to a 14-0 lead in the first period behind the running and passing of Jon Davis. Davis ran in the first score from three yards, then threw a 19-yard touchdown to James Amos for the second.

The Eagles draw Odessa Permian for their District 4-5A opener next week.

Odessa 14,

From Staff Reports

HOBBS, N.M. — Odessa High had its hands full before scoring twice in the last half for a 14-0 win over Hobbs, N.M., here Friday night in a final tuneup before the opening of District 4-5A play.

A fumbled pass attempt in the end zone, recovered by Bronco tackle Lewis Silva with 7:49 left in the third period, gave OHS a 7-0 lead and Quarterback Allen Spencer went in from five yards out on an option play to make it 14-0 going into the final period.

Disaster dogged OHS from the start. The Red Hossees fumbled the opening kickoff inside their 30, got the ball back and then had to hold off Hobbs at the one-yard line.

It was late in the half before OHS penetrated Eagle terrain.

In the fourth period, Odessa's lone threat came on a missed 27-yard field goal attempt.

The win gives Odessa 2-1 record after an opening game loss to Palo Duro.

The Broncos take on Abilene Cooper as District 4-5A play begins next week.

Oilers meet Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Houston Oilers and Kansas City Chiefs will kick off Sunday in a match-up of two old rivals who hope to be improved from last season.

A crowd of about 50,000 is expected for the 3 p.m. kickoff.

Both teams are 1-1. The Chiefs won their home opener against Cincinnati, then lost at Seattle last week 23-17, although a last-second touchdown made the score closer than the game actually was.

The Oilers, under new head coach Jerry Gilmore, were unbeaten in the exhibition season and opened the regular season with a 31-3 whipping of the Green Bay Packers. But at home last Sunday against Cleveland, Houston dropped a 23-20 decision as quarterback Warren Moon threw three interceptions. Moon did not have one pass intercepted in the exhibition season.

Bufs run wild over Rangers

LANCE STEWART
Sports Correspondent

STANTON — It looks as though Stanton Buffalo coach Dale Ruth has something to smile about as he looks forward to a new District 6-2A season. His Buffs trounced the Greenwood Rangers 18-7 Friday night.

After all, with two backs like Greg Barnhill and James Vidal running, what high school football coach wouldn't have reason to be optimistic?

Barnhill turned out 126 yards before he was taken out in the second quarter, and in his own words, "Their front line never laid a hand on me before I hyper-extended my knee."

He broke for touchdown runs of 65 and 48 yards before leaving the game.

Vidal, although not quite as flashy as Barnhill, was the backbone of the Buff offensive attack. He scored the third of Stanton's three TDs, and came through in almost every crucial moment for the necessary yards to turn the tide.

From the start of the game there seemed to be no stopping the fired-up Buffs as Barnhill almost broke the opening kickoff for six. He turned the trick only 17 seconds into the game on a 65-yard run, making it a 6-0 game.

Although literally run over by their opponents, Greenwood answered with its only substantial drive of the night. Quarterback Glen Teal busted a 35-yarder to tie the game, and a Chad Cottrell extra point gave the Rangers their only lead of the night.

That was the only sign of daylight the Rangers would see the remainder of the night, however, as the beefy Ranger line once again failed to hold Barnhill. His 48 yard run tacked on an additional six points with less than two minutes left in the first quarter.

What was left of the first half was simply the two teams spinning their wheels.

On a single drive, the Rangers were sacked once, were called for two penalties at crucial points, an incomplete pass, and another called back on a questionable offensive pass interference call.

Despite all of this they still managed to get the ball to the Buff 19 but failed a 36-yard field-goal attempt.

The Rangers' inability to score was not from a lack of effort on the part of quarterback Teal.

Teal scored Greenwood's only touchdown of the night, but was sacked four times, and had several passes dropped.

The final thorn in Greenwood's side was the loss of their leading rusher Steve Popham in the first quarter. The Teal/Popham combination was the only offensive weapon they could boast going into the game, and this loss could hurt them in their coming weeks of 3A play. Popham could be missed for two or three games.

Although Greenwood did post some impressive stats — such as Jerry Rodriguez's come-through performance — it was never enough to pull out a victory.

The Buff's final score came on a third quarter James Vidal 5-yard run.

So the Greenwood Rangers went home with an 0-3 record and a few bumps and bruises, while Stanton takes its 3-0 record on the road to Plains next week.

Teammates battle steals show

ESTORIL, Portugal (AP) — The battle between teammates Nigel Mansell and Nelson Piquet for the 1986 World Drivers Championship is overshadowing the Williams' team domination of the world title for race car constructors.

At this Sunday's Portuguese Grand Prix, a Williams-Honda will only have to place fourth to sew up the coveted Constructors Championship for the third time — with two races still to run.

On form, that should not be hard. Only once this year has the team failed to finish a car in the points, in Austria. There have been two 1-2 finishes, and four races have seen Williams first and third.

The team took successive Constructors titles in 1980 and 1981 after being second in 1979, its first year as a leading contender.

The title is more than just prestigious. Though the prize money share-out in Grand Prix racing is a closely guarded secret, the championship certainly is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars and a major boost to finding sponsors to meet the $10 million-plus annual budget of a top team.

Restaurant moved to New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - For 44 years, it served the likes of de Gaulle, Bardot, Picasso, Chaplin and Chevalier as they dined 562 feet over the Champ de Mars in Paris.

Five years and 11,000 pieces later, Le Restaurant de la Tour Eiffel is rising above the oaks that line fashionable St. Charles Avenue in New Orleans.

After all, if you can pluck London Bridge from the Thames and plant it over a lake in Arizona, why not transport the famous Paris restaurant to an American city with ancestry that is solidly French?

If you're going to do something like that, you had better make sure you can get some mileage out of it," says John Onorio, 37, a New Orleans hotelier and partner in the project.

"We don't have to take people on a two-hour bus ride from the nearest town. They're already here, and there are lots of other things to do," he said.

There is a striking sentence on a church calendar in a little village in England which reads: "Those people who expect salvation at the eleventh hour often die at 10:30!" I might add that those who wait to give their witness sometimes wait too long.

Don't wait too long for either.

Good Marriages

Some years ago a young woman, struggling with her marriage and the demands of family life, asked me, "Do you really think there are any good marriages and healthy families today?"

After more than three decades counseling people with marriage and family problems—and being married 30 years—I have some observations if not conclusions.

If you mean by GOOD MARRIAGES and FAMILIES that there are no cross words, disagreements, and verbal fights: no, I don't know of any.

If you mean families in which there are no misgivings (at times) about having married each other, about having had children, or wanting to run from it all: no, I know of none.

If you mean families in which the mates and children have never wanted to change each other, make each other over, and felt at times like hurting one another: no, I know of no good marriages and families.

But if you mean by GOOD FAMILIES those who are creative tensions, heartaches that bring them closer, disagreements that are realistically dealt with, yes, I know of many.

If you mean by GOOD FAMILIES those who are pulling together in the same direction without losing individually and willing to allow each other to develop their own special gifts even though risks are involved, yes, I know of many.

Free Church of God in Christ in Jesus Name

Water of salvation falls on leathery faces of an arid land

EDITOR'S NOTE — For nearly a century, ranchers and cowboys, farmers and townfolk have been gathering each summer in the arid West to preach and to pray. The cowboy camp meeting has changed little. No phones, no showers, "nothin' but mesquite and rattlesnakes," says organizer Darrell Farmer.

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON

MESA REDONDA, N.M. (AP) — The preacher pacing the tent's red dirt floor tells the story of the Samaritan woman at the well. "Why, she was shackled up with some guy she wasn't even married to. She would have made a Hollywood movie star deluxe. And Jesus offered her living water!"

His congregation is intent. Scattered through the crowd are murmurs of "Amen!" and "Praise the Lord!"

This is the Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting — three days of preaching, praying and hymn-singing for people who live so far out in the country it's hard for them to get to church.

Ranchers and cowboys and their families, farmers and some townfolk have come from eastern New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle and western Oklahoma — even, this year, from Kansas.

The faces are sunburned and leathery, the smiles are wide beneath sun-narrowed eyes, the handshakes for newcomers are strong and warm. The praying and preaching are heavy duty, and so is the hoarawing — Southwestern for kidding.

The camp is on the Bowe-Farmer ranch about 13 miles south of Tucumcari and about 40 miles west of the Texas border.

The preacher is the second speaker to use the story of the woman at the well. Leading a prayer meeting and speaking in a clear country tenor, C.L. Bowe, one of the ranch owners, has already told it this way:

"She was an outcast. She'd been married five times — five! — and she was living with number six. And yet she wasn't married. She was a reject. But nobody is a reject from Jesus. Jesus said, 'I'll give you living water.'"

Water as a metaphor for salvation is never lost on stockmen, especially in this arid country, which has known hard times and hard cases.

Mesa Redonda is a landmark of the Old West, a high tableland scarred by canyons, where rustlers and robbers rode and an ambush settled a feud.

The camp meeting at its base is one of nine interdenominational revivals held every summer by an association called Ranchmen's Camp Meetings in the Southwest.

The granddaddy of all cowboy camp meetings, still going strong, began in 1890 in Stillman's Canyon west of Fort Davis, Texas.

Fifty years later, Joe M. Evans, a cowboy who loved those Texas meetings, started another one at Nogal Mesa near Carrizozo, N.M. From it grew the circuit that includes Mesa Redonda and camps near Lenapah, Okla., Gruver and Canadian, Texas; Des Moines, N.M.; Kiowa and Cortez, Colo., and Willcox, Ariz.

Mesa Redonda is called "the camp that started on a pigging string."

That's because Darrell Farmer went to Clovis to see a calf-roping contest.

Farmer, a cowman and consulting veterinarian, attended a sunrise service in the roping arena. A Clovis preacher did sleight-of-hand with scissors and a pigging string — the cord cowboys use for tying a roped calf's feet — to show how God restores lives that are in pieces.

Farmer sought out the preacher, the Rev. Bill King. Two years later, in 1978, they had worked up the first Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting on the ranch where Farmer is partners with C.L. Bowe.

Nearly 400 people attend night services and, with some coming and going, total enrollment is more than 800. About 150 campers stay for the full meeting. Others drive back and forth as they can while tending jobs and livestock.

The camp sits among cedars, mesquite and cholla at the mouth of a canyon that slashes down from the red sandstone mesa's top 875 feet above the plain.

Mesa Redonda means round table in Spanish. The six-mile tableland of grass, pinon and cedar marks a pause in the short-grass prairie under a sky that reaches forever.

Legend says that somewhere up on the mesa is $64,000 in gold buried by train robbers. People smile at the irony that the treasure they seek now is a different kind.

Three white poles stand on a low hill at the edge of the campground. They fly the national and state flags

Rancher C.L. Bowe leads a prayer meeting under the "prayer tree," a desert willow, at the Mesa Redonda, N.M., Cowboy Camp Meeting, on the ranch of which Bowe is part owner. The meeting is one of the interdenominational revivals held every summer by the Ranchmen's Camp Meetings in the Southwest.

and the Christian flag — a white banner with a red cross on a blue field.

Les Hight, a 74-year-old cowboy whose shoulders are hunched but whose spirit is unbent, had the idea for the flags. His grin is wide as an accordion keyboard when he tells how it is his job to raise them.

The only other permanent structure is a metal roof over a pole frame, used as shelter for cooking and eating. Portable toilets are brought in. Water is hauled from Tucumcari. Darrell Farmer insists the camp will stay primitive. He is a compact man of 55 who moves and talks fast. Farmer has two university degrees, but the herd healer stomps on grammar to underscore his points about the camp.

"The year we started this," he says, "an old friend of mine from an older camp meeting came up here and we didn't have a pole barn or nothin' except some old tents, and he said to me then, he said, 'Doc, you got something going here that we don't have any more. Keep it thataway.'"

"We ain't got no phones. We don't have no showers. We don't have nothin' but mesquite and rattlesnakes. It's just like it was 50 or 100 years ago."

Well, just about.

In the old days, the men built brush arbor tabernacles — pole frames roofed with brush — for the preaching. Now they pitch the big open-sided tent.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Pam and Jim King

Calvary Assembly of God to begin evangelic series

Calvary Assembly of God Church will hold a series of evangelic services beginning Sunday at 7 p.m. Services will continue Monday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Evangelists for the services are Jim and Pam King. The Rev. King received his B.A. in Bible in 1976 and since that time has preached to congregations throughout North America.

The Kings speak before various groups including youth camps and revival crusades. They live in Bartlesville, Okla. and a son and daughter.

The public is invited to attend the services at the church, located at 908 S. Johnston.

Fall program launched

A new program series for the fall season, designed to reach all age groups, was launched Wednesday night at the First Presbyterian Church. The series will continue each Wednesday through Nov. 19. The programs begin at 6:30 p.m., following dinner sessions at 5:30.

Adults may select from four programs: "Prayer: A Return to the Basics," conducted by Sally Green; "Help for Families of the Aging," led by Roe Berta Davis; Peggy Armstrong and Sue Rose; "Active Parenting," taught by David Koch; and "Teachings from the Gospel of Luke," presented by Bill Morrow.

Children's Choirs — Celestial, Cherub, Carol, Elementary and Junior Girls and Junior Boys — will meet at 6:30 p.m. Chancel Choir rehearsals, under the direction of Thomas Roberts, are scheduled at 7:30.

The program schedule has been arranged by a committee headed by Frances Carlton.

An expanded Sunday school program, with 60 volunteer teachers and staff members involved, also is underway. A nursery and classes for all ages are included in the program. A new feature this season is the Coffee Fellowship Time, scheduled at 9 a.m. each Sunday, with classes beginning at 9:30.

Regular Sunday worship services are scheduled at 11 a.m. in the sanctuary. The Rev. Russell Ritchel is the senior minister. The church is located at 800 W. Texas. Services are broadcast over radio station KURS.

Author to speak in area

Bob Buess will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International today at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the Midland Hilton. Dinner will be 6:30 p.m. at a cost of $7 per person.

Bob Buess also will be the guest speaker Sunday at the Midland Four-square Church at the 10:45 a.m. service.

Buess is the author of Christian books such as "Favor the Road to Success," "The Law of the Spirit," "Deliverance from the Bondage of Fear," "The Implanted Word," and "The Pendulum Swings."

As a graduate of Baylor University, Buess has a Baptist background.

"Bob has been used world-wide to motivate people to successful living," said a spokesman of the church. "Everywhere, people are liberated from insecurity and poor self-image."

The Foursquare Church is located at 415 Alta Ave. The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

The last "Wednesday Night Alive" film series of James Dodson's "Focus on the Family" will be "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women." It will be shown at St. Mark's United Methodist Church.

The food buffet will begin at 5:30 p.m., followed by the film at 6:15 on Wednesday.

There will be entertainment for children of all ages.

Reservations should be made by calling the church office at 683-3336.

Unitarians to offer class

"Building Your Own Theology," a 10-week class which invites participants to examine their own religious experiences and compare them to traditional theological doctrines, will be offered at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland, 3301 Neely. The class will begin Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

In connection with the class, the Rev. Tim Jensen, pastor, will preach an eight-week series of sermons on the purposes and principals of the Unitarian Universalist Association.

The public is invited to attend either program. For more information, call the church at 694-4308.

Methodist women meet

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall, will host the Big Spring District Annual Meeting of United Methodist Women on Sunday. Registration will be at 2 p.m. and the meeting will open at 2:30 p.m.

District president, Mrs. Viola Trice of Lamesa, will preside over the meeting. Program speaker will be Mrs. Joyce Cooper, a deaconess and a teacher in the McCurdy School at Espanola, N.M. A business session will include election of officers and approval of the 1987 budget.

Persons nominated for a two-year term are Vice President, Mrs. Peggy Ratliff of Colorado City; Treasurer, Mrs. Sue Ann Born of Big Spring; Mission Coordinator of Supportive Community, Mrs. Nancy Womack of Colorado City; Mission Coordinator of Christian Global Concerns, Mrs. Flo Hansen of Midland; Historian, Mrs. Frances Walker of Midland; Chairperson, Committee on Membership, Mrs. Ethelynn Mitchell of Lamesa; Chairperson, Committee on Nominations, Mrs. Lola Fae Bennett of Lorraine; Committee on Nominations members, Mrs. Cardelia Adams, Midland (1988), Mrs. Mac Williams, Andrews (1989), and Mrs. Janey Pinkerton, Denver City (1989).

The guest speaker, Mrs. Cooper, was commissioned a deaconess of the United Methodist Church in 1974. She attended the 13 International Conference of the World Federation of Deaconesses Association in Manila, Philippines, in 1979. En route, she traveled with other U.S. deaconesses to Greece, India, Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand, and Japan, seeing mission work.

In 1980, she toured Israel, Jordan, Egypt and Syria while taking a history religion course of the Middle East.

The Big Spring District includes United Methodist Women in the churches in Andrews, Big Spring, Coahoma, Colorado City, Denver City, Lamesa, Lorraine, Midland, O'Donnell, Seagraves, Seminole, Snyder and Stanton.

A nursery will be provided at the Hollowell church. The Rev. Hadley Edwards is the host pastor.

Midlander to serve mission

Thomas Allen Denton, 19, has been called to serve a two-year mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He will serve in the Oakland, California, Mission.

Denton will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, Oct. 1. There he will receive 20 days of training before going to Oakland. All missionaries receive training at the M.T.C. prior to their missions. Approximately 400 missionaries each week are prepared for their missions there. There are presently 30,000 missionaries in 78 countries and territories worldwide, according to a church spokesman.

Like all missionaries for the LDS Church, Denton will receive no pay for his service. He will be supported entirely by his own savings and money donated by his family. He will spend 60-70 hours each week teaching people the gospel of Jesus Christ.

He is the son of Ralph and Carol Denton. He is a 1985 graduate of Lee High School. Having attended Texas Tech during the fall semester of 1985 and Ricks Junior College in Rexburg, Idaho, during the spring semester of 1986, Denton plans to resume his education after completing his mission work.

An 11-year Midland resident and former football player for Lee High, Denton says, "I am looking forward to serving the Lord in the Oakland Mission. I am very thankful for this chance and I am sure that it will be an uplifting experience. I feel it will be a great benefit to me throughout my life."

Youths plan fund raisers

The Youth Ministries Program of St. Luke's United Methodist Church is sponsoring two events this weekend. Today, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., there will be a free carwash. The department also invites the public to a performance of the Esteem Machine scheduled for Sunday at 7 p.m.

Pledges and donations made during the carwash will be used to help support the Youth Service Fund, a mission offering of the United Methodist Youth, youth activities at St. Luke's and community projects.

The Esteem Machine is a teen drama troupe sponsored by Planned Parenthood. The group presents skits which deal with issues that confront teens today such as drug abuse, alcohol abuse, pre-marital sex, parent/teen relationships, peer pressure, unwanted pregnancies, suicide, etc.

St. Luke's United Methodist Church is located at 3011 W. Kansas.

Skits, songs to be staged

St. Mark's U.M.Y.F. — United Methodist Youth Fellowship — is sponsoring a presentation of the Esteem Machine at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, Sept. 28 at 6:45 p.m. This performance is for youth, their friends, and any adults who would like to see this teen repertory company.

The Esteem Machine consists of 14-18 teen volunteers who educate while entertaining with skits and songs dealing with teen issues — stress, divorce, drug abuse, teen drinking, suicide, sexuality, etc.

There will be pizza for the Esteem Machine and any visiting youth for a $1 donation at 6 p.m. in the fellowship hall.

For reservations or more information, call St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 683-3339. The public is invited.

Police issue nationwide alert for bombing suspects

PARIS (AP) — Police issued a nationwide alert Friday for nine suspects in a series of bloody bombings that has traumatized the French capital and led opposition political parties to rally around the conservative government.

Photographs of five men and four women wanted for questioning in the attacks were distributed to all police offices. They were described as dangerous and possibly armed.

Leaders of France's major political parties met with Premier Jacques Chirac and called for national unity in fighting terrorism.

President Francois Mitterrand returned from a four-day official visit to Indonesia and immediately met with Chirac, Interior Minister Charles Pasqua and Security Minister Robert Pandraud to discuss the attacks. None of the officials issued any statement after the meeting.

Five bombs have exploded in Paris since Sept. 8, killing eight people and injuring 164.

A group calling itself the Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle East Political Prisoners claimed responsibility for the first four. The Partisans of Right and Freedom claimed all five, including the last one Wednesday at the Tati clothing and textiles store.

Police, however, are concentrating their efforts on the first group and believe it is linked to the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Factions, whose reputed leader, Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, is jailed in France.

The Committee of Solidarity is seeking Abdallah's release. He has served two years of a four-year term for possession of weapons and false papers and is awaiting trial on charges of complicity in the 1982 murders of an American military attaché and an Israeli diplomat.

Abdallah, a Maronite Catholic, has declared his support for Palestinian guerrillas. He has been linked to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, headed by George Habash, also a Christian.

The nine people sought by police are believed to be members of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Factions.

Four are Abdallah's brothers: Joseph, 38, Emile, 28, Maurice, 23, and Robert, 20. The fifth man is Salim el-Khoury, 31, who has been sought in France in connection with the 1985 kidnapping of a Frenchman in Tripoli, Lebanon. The Frenchman eventually was released.

The four women are Fayrouz Fayeh Daher, 18, Ferial Daher, 25, Jacqueline Esber, 27, and Caroline Esber el-Bitar, all Lebanese. Police said Miss Esber is suspected in the same kidnapping as Khoury and in the 1982 murder of the Israeli diplomat, Yacov Barsimantov.

Police said they did not know if the two Miss Dahers were related.

The four Abdallah brothers were reported to be in Lebanon, but police believe they somehow are linked to the attacks. They say witnesses have identified Robert Abdallah in connection with a cafeteria bombing and Emile Abdallah and Khoury in connection with the Tati attack.

Chirac met one by one Friday with the country's main political leaders.

Jean Lecanuet, whose centrist Union for French Democracy is a coalition partner with Chirac's conservative Rally for the Republic party, said: "The government has, on the essential, the agreement of all the political parties." Communist Party leader Georges Marchais told reporters the premier assured him that freedom and democracy would be protected despite the need for tough anti-terrorist measures.

"We understand and approve all the initiatives that have been taken or must be taken to bring the terrorist plans to a halt," he said.

Before the latest wave of bombings, the government already had passed a new security law giving police wider powers to conduct identity checks and searches and lengthening the time suspects can be held without charges.

Since the bombings, the government has instituted temporary measures to beef up police patrols in Paris, use troops to help control the borders and require most foreigner visitors to obtain visas.

Socialist Party first secretary Lionel Jospin said his party wanted "to be in solidarity in the fight against terrorism," and that he favored firmness as long as it remained within the law.

Jean-Marie Le Pen of the extreme right National Front said his party's call for a crackdown on crime and immigration had been proved right.

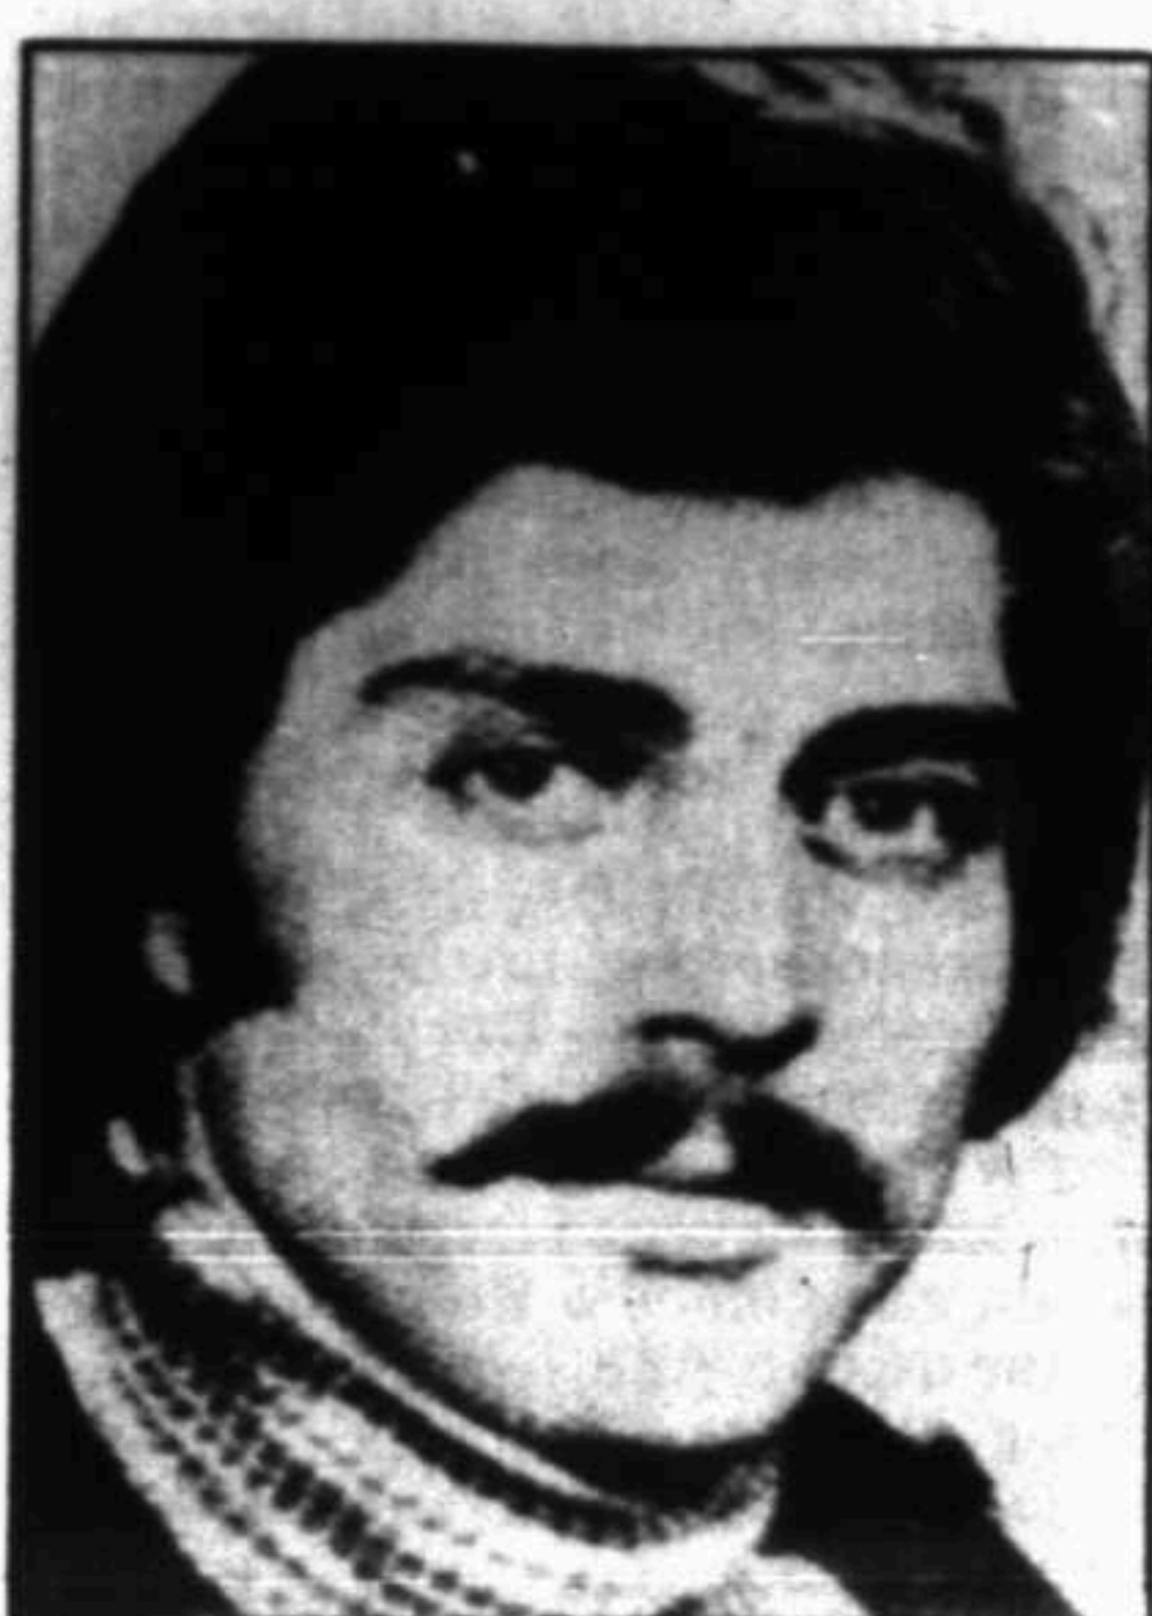

"I told the leader of the government that he must bring the population into the anti-terrorist struggle and permit the most courageous citizens to show they will not be intimidated by this kind of menace," Le Pen said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb voiced U.S. support for the Chirac's "firm resolve to halt this violence."

"It's important not to give in to blackmail," Kalb said.

Terrorism continued to preoccupy the media and the public Friday, as police were swamped with calls reporting suspicious people or objects.

The headquarters of the Agence France-Presse news agency was evacuated for nearly an hour after a caller told police a bomb would explode in 45 minutes. No bomb was found.

Miners asked to stop work to mourn dead men

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The country's largest black miners' union asked its 250,000 members on Friday to stop work for one day to mourn 177 miners killed a mile underground in a gold mine fire this week.

The National Union of Mineworkers also charged that the owners of Kinross Gold Mine had refused to let mining experts from Britain, West Germany and Sweden visit the scene of Tuesday's fire at Evander, 62 miles southeast of Johannesburg.

However, Carl Netscher, senior director of General Mining Union Corp.'s mining division, said he knew of no such request. He said it would be considered if and when received.

Union General Secretary Cyril Ramaphosa told reporters the foreign experts could check union claims that safety irregularities contributed to the disaster, the worst in South Africa's gold mining industry.

Ramaphosa said, "We feel Gencor is going to remove as much evidence as they possibly can. We and our members will never know the true cause of the accident."

He said the Chamber of Mines, the industry association, had been asked to approve the one-day work stoppage Oct. 1 at all gold and coal mines, which employ more than 600,000 workers. Of the 177 miners who died at Kinross, 172 were black and five were white.

In addition, 235 miners were injured and one man was missing.

If the chamber refused, Ramaphosa said, mine union members would strike for the day without permission. He said other unions in the 500,000-member Congress of South African Trade Unions would be asked to join the action.

Ramaphosa also said his union would hold strike votes among members over the next two weeks following the breakdown earlier Friday of four-month-long wage talks with the Chamber of Mines. He said a nationwide strike in the gold and coal industries would begin soon thereafter if approved.

Mining accounts for more than half of South Africa's foreign income, and a lengthy strike could be devastating. However, the union's attempted strike at selected gold mines fizzled last year in the face of threats of mass dismissal.

Derek L. Keys, Gencor's executive chairman, declined a news conference Friday to respond to Ramaphosa's charge that the disaster might have been averted but for purported safety shortcomings.

"I am awaiting the verdict of the inquiry," Keys said.

Con Fauconner, head of mining and medical services, said that Kinross had fallen from five to three stars in industry safety ratings and that one problem area involved planned inspections of operations, including fire control.

Company officials said they did not know if a polyurethane foam sealant, suspected of pouring out fatal fumes during the Kinross fire, underwent safety tests before being used.

Executives said the foam was installed six years ago on a tiny fraction of the mine's 190 miles of tunnels, and had not been used since.

The foam was fire-retardant but not fireproof, Fauconner said. He said Gencor mines usually used a concrete-like, non-flammable material called gunnite to line tunnels to protect against seepage and corrosion.

He said he did not know why the foam was used for the nearly 2,000-foot-long section of tunnel where a welding accident sparked the fire Tuesday.

Fauconner said the source of the fumes in the blaze had not yet been identified with certainty. He and others refused comment on reports that the welders had no fire extinguisher, saying that would form part of the inquiry.

Gencor officials said all foam in the mine was being removed.

Netscher said some work had resumed in the No. 2 shaft where the fire occurred, but that workers who objected to working there could labor elsewhere.

Keys also announced a $900,000 fund for victims of the fire, to augment lump-sum settlements under industry agreements.

"We owe it to the dead to see to it that their dependents suffer in no further way than in the irreparable personal loss for which there is no human remedy," Keys said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soldiers warned against going to Stuttgart disco

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. military said Friday it has warned soldiers and their families to stay away from a downtown discotheque because of a telephone threat that an American would be kidnapped there.

Leaflets distributed by the U.S. Army in Stuttgart say that "effective Thursday (Sept. 18), military people are encouraged to stay away from the Maddox disco until further notice."

The military's unofficial Stars and Stripes newspaper said Friday that a man called a U.S. Army unit in Stuttgart threatening in both English and German to kidnap an American from the discotheque this weekend.

Helmut Krumbacher, a spokesman for the state prosecutor's office in Karlsruhe, said police thought the threat might have come from a disgruntled employee who had been sacked from the discotheque.

Three people, including two American servicemen, died and 229 were injured when a bomb exploded in a Berlin disco April 5. The United States bombed Libya April 15 after the Reagan administration blamed Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi for backing that attack.

Soviet soldier sentenced

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A human rights group said Friday that a young Soviet soldier who deserted in Afghanistan and later left the United States to return home has been sentenced to 12 years in a labor camp.

The International Association for Human Rights, a Frankfurt-based group which has contacts with Soviet emigres, said 22-year-old Nikolai Ryzhkov was convicted of high treason and sentenced several months ago.

He is serving his term in a camp for political prisoners in Barashevo, in the Soviet republic of Moldavia, they said.

Ryzhkov deserted in June 1983 and went to the United States. He asked to return home in January 1985 and the official Soviet news agency Tass said at the time Ryzhkov was going back voluntarily.

The human rights group said Anatoly Dobrynin, then the Soviet ambassador in Washington and now a top foreign policy official for the Communist Party, personally guaranteed Ryzhkov he would not be prosecuted.

Fake policemen arrested

ROME (AP) — The would-be robbers thought they had a good gimmick when they pretended they were policemen. But the intended victims were real policemen.

Two men wielding pistols and claiming to be policemen accosted three men at 2 a.m. at the Baths of Diocletian. Crowded with tourists during the day, the ancient Roman baths swarm with prostitutes and drug dealers at night.

The trio turned out to be police detectives investigating the murder of a prostitute.

The detectives disarmed the mask-wearers. The pistols were toys. "Unfortunately, we chose the wrong people," police quoted one of the arrested men as saying. They were charged with attempted robbery and impersonating police officers.

Refugees return home

MEXICO CITY (AP) — About 7,000 Guatemalan refugees have returned to their country, according to the coordinator of the Mexican Commission for Aid to Refugees.

The official, Oscar Gonzalez, told local reporters that 5,400 of that number left Mexico on their own without completing immigration forms and without the supervision of the U.N. Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees.

That would leave 39,000 Guatemalans living in refugee camps in southern Mexico. Most are Indian peasants from their country's northwestern highlands who crossed the border into Mexico while the Guatemalan military carried out an anti-insurgency "scorched earth" campaign in the early 1980s.

Guatemala returned to civilian rule in January, with elected President Vinicio Cerezo of the centrist Christian Democratic Party.

Energy ministers meet

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Energy and Mines Minister Alfredo del Mazo and his Venezuelan counterpart, Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, held a second day of private talks Friday on how to stabilize world petroleum prices.

The meeting of Latin America's two biggest oil producers is focusing on production and price strategies likely to be discussed at OPEC's Oct. 6 session, del Mazo said.

Both nations cut their exports in August by 10 percent daily after OPEC decided to reduce world exports by 3.5 million barrels a day in hopes of shoring up prices that fell sharply in the past year.

By Jeane Dixon
Sunday, September 21, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Take heart from the fact that talent always rises to the top. This could be your year to excel! Be more daring. Introduce new ideas in social situations. You need to keep a close eye on spending. Curb extravagance. The apple of your eye will not put up with constant nitpicking. Try to be less critical. A career in marketing could hold special appeal. A long-cherished dream comes true.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: English novelist-historian H.G. Wells, playwright Melvin Van Peebles, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Danny Cox, "Dallas" star Larry Hagman, Chicago anchor Bill Kurtis, Maine author Stephen King, comic actor Bill Murray, poet-comedian Henry Gibson, the San Antonio Spurs' Artis Gilmore, Georgia politician Hamilton Jordan and comedienne Fannie Flagg.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You could be attracted to a younger romantic partner. Change those things in your personal life that drag you down. Let others have their say at a family gathering.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): New social options make this an exciting day. A telephone call brings pleasing news. Eliminate the distractions that rob you of time alone with mate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Today's events underline the importance of good communication within the family circle. Accept the fact that you are more dependent on someone than you are willing to admit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): To preserve your romantic relationship you and mate must learn to deal with practical issues. A good time to buy new clothes. Your skill as a chef puts you in the limelight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not try to force family members into making a decision now. You may be failing in love for the very first time. A period of quiet meditation will invigorate you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Maintain a positive attitude and a relationship will turn around. Make a special effort to get out and socialize more. Invite new friends over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New friends brighten your social life. Romance is part of the picture. A good book proves more entertaining than television. Stop worrying about things you cannot change.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You continue to be interested in the spiritual side of life. Enroll in a course that will require you to spend time outdoors. Romance takes a turn for the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Studying a foreign language could lead to a more profitable career. Experimental ideas attract your attention. Where romance is concerned, play the field.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A weekend social event will be a smashing success. You enjoy being in the spotlight. Turn to a loyal friend if you get into a jam. He or she will ask no questions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ideals will be tested. Stand up for your beliefs no matter what the consequences. Your determination and dedication will carry you to new heights. Travel adds an extra dimension to business.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A last-minute decision increases your chances for success. A newspaper article or TV show gives you a brilliant idea for earning extra cash. The romantic picture brightens.

Ector DA expects defendant to ask for change of venue

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The Ector County District Attorney Friday said he expects the attorney of a 37-year-old woman alleged to have taken part in sexual acts with two young boys and a teen-aged girl to seek a change of venue Monday.

Mary Arlene Heath is slated to go to trial on the charges Sept. 30, but District Attorney Eric Augesen said he expects the woman's attorney, Allen Stroder, to ask 70th District Court Judge Gene Ater to transfer the case to another jurisdiction because of publicity surrounding the trial of her 39-year-old husband on similar charges.

Wednesday, Ater declared a mistrial in the punishment phase of the trial of Jimmy Bart Heath after some members of the jury said they had either seen television reports or newspaper stories about the trial. Tuesday, jurors had found Heath guilty of the aggravated sexual assault of a child.

Augesen said Heath will be retried on the charge involving a 10-year-old boy, as well as the other charges pending against him.

The incidents for which Heath and his wife were indicted are alleged to have occurred between July 1985 and May 1986. The Heaths, of 1916 N. Tom Green, were arrested May 6 by Ector County sheriff's deputies, who testified they confiscated photographs of people engaging in sexual acts. The pictures found by sheriff's deputies included a 14-year-old girl, testimony revealed. Deputies also confiscated guns, drug paraphernalia and suspected methamphetamine at the time of their arrest.

Augesen said he disagreed with the judge's action in the case. He said he believed the case would have stood up on appeal if jurors, who freely admitted seeing news reports about the trial, were questioned and each stated that they did not believe this knowledge would affect their decision in the case, that they could base their decisions strictly on testimony presented in court.

Heath's attorney, Ruff Ahders, blamed media reporters for the mistrial and said reports jurors read and viewed were one-sided and inaccurate.

Public can learn about coding of medical records

From Staff Reports

A fall workshop of the Texas Medical Records Association District II-B today will give the public an opportunity to learn the proper coding methods used by medical personnel.

Kim Graves, R.R.A., assistant director of medical records at Physicians and Surgeons Hospital, said the CPT-4 coding should be familiar to not only medical records personnel but also to employees in physicians' offices, insurance companies, home health care agencies and hospital business offices.

The workshop is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the medical staff conference room at Midland Memorial Hospital. Ms. Graves is president of District II-B, which includes Midland, Odessa, Iraan and Big Spring.

The workshop will give persons a chance to meet medical records personnel and to learn the coding required by insurance carriers, said Ms. Graves.

"It would be helpful for these people to become acquainted with medical records personnel. They can use us as a local reference point and then there will be times when they will need to know how to do the coding themselves," she said.

Speakers and their topics include: Carol Valles, A.R.T., El Paso, Texas Medical Records Association, Update; Stephen L. Wiesenfeld, M.D., Midland, Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease; Ann Maddox, R.R.A., Lubbock, director of the Medical Records Technology Program at South Plains College, CPT-4, introduction and update; Robert Reid, administrator of Glenwood, a psychiatric facility; and Elissa Hall, M.D., Midland, Alzheimer's Disease.

Man who assaulted elderly woman gets 99-year sentence

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 70th District Court jury Friday set at 99 years in prison the punishment for a 42-year-old man convicted Thursday for the February aggravated sexual assault of an elderly woman.

Jurors took only 45 minutes Thursday to find L.D. Douglas, 1112 Golder Ave., guilty of the Feb. 15 rape of the 67-year-old woman.

Ector County District Attorney Eric Augesen, who prosecuted the case, said, Douglas faces a minimum of 25 years in prison and because the jury found the crime was aggravated he will not be eligible for parole until he has served not less than 20 years in prison.

The elderly woman testified the man she identified as Douglas came to her back door, asked for a glass of water and she let him into the kitchen. She stated that when he finished drinking the water, he placed the glass in the sink, then forced her into a bedroom and raped her. The woman also stated she struck her head on a nightstand when he forced her down on the bed.

Douglas was arrested on a charge of aggravated sexual assault after the woman identified him from pictures shown her by investigating officers.

Testimony showed the man took a total of $36 from the woman, who has lived alone since her husband died about four years ago.

Augesen Friday afternoon said the sentencing of Douglas to a 99-year sentence raised his total of successful aggravated sexual assault convictions to 16 since he has been in office.

Student nurses will be washing cars to raise funds for Houston trip

From Staff Reports

The student nurses of Midland College will be having a car wash today to raise funds for a school trip to Houston in the spring.

The purpose of the trip is to tour M.D. Anderson hospital, St. Lukes, Herman Hospital, Ben Taub and TIRR. The trip will allow the local nurses to witness first hand operations and procedures used in major Texas hospitals.

Several local businesses and citizens are making contributions so the car wash can be free to the public.

There will be two locations: The Exxon station at Wadley and Garfield and the Kent station at 3310 W. Wall Street. The car washes will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at both locations.

The nurses cited the following businesses and individuals for their support: Linda Caraway, Terri and David Copeland, Cleppers Automotive, Mr. Toms, Al and Joe's Meat Market, Village Barber Shop, Shear Talent Barber Hair Designs, Mr. Ruebens, Remodeling by Lance Friday, We Care and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earl.

Raffle tickets will also be available for $1 donation, for Dallas Cowboy tickets, (donated by Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Payne) and a 20-pound Thanksgiving turkey.

The raffle will be held in November.
