Pope, 'distinctly better', begins therapy

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II began a limited form of physical therapy today, moving his arms and legs and receiving massages, hospital sources said. They said his condition was serious but stable, and his doctors said the outlook for recovery from terrorist bullet wounds was "distinctly better."

The Italian news agency ANSA quoted a hospital report saying the pope woke up repeatedly during the night with "piercing" pains. But the latest hospital bulletin said the pontiff "rested peacefully." Asked to comment, Dr. Luigi Candia, director of the hospital, said, "The Holy Father is having pains but they are not abnormal pains."

"In the second night, the Holy Father has rested peacefully. There is persistence of slight temperature. Principal clinical signs and lab results are within the normal limits in relation to the second day after the (surgical) intervention. The outlook is distinctly better. The pope continued prudent and favorable evolution of the post-operative process," the medical bulletin said.

Candia said the pope's temperature was the equivalent of 99.14 degrees Fahrenheit — less than a full degree above normal. He confirmed that the doctors are still watching the pope's gunshot wounds for signs of infection, which they say is the greatest danger he faces.

Vatican spokesman the Rev. Romeo Panciroli visited the pope and told reporters the pontiff said he knows "that everybody in the world is wishing him well."

Hundreds of well-wishers packed into the hospital's small chapel, filled with flowers sent from all over Italy and Europe, for continuous Masses and prayers.

The pontiff sat up in bed Thursday, talked with visitors and took Holy Communion. A cardinal said the pope felt "a sympathetic pardon" toward his would-be assassin.

Mehmet Ali Agca, the 23-year-old Turk charged with shooting the pope during his weekly audience in St. Peter's Square Wednesday, acted alone or was part of a conspiracy.

Italian press reports quoted his interrogators as saying Agca told them he acted alone.

One of the top magistrates investigating the shooting was quoted by an Italian newspaper as saying investigators are convinced the attack was part of some kind of an international plot.

"As far as we're concerned, documents prove that Mehmet Ali Agca didn't act alone. He is a killer enlisted by an international group with subversive aims," state prosecutor Luciano Infelisi was quoted as saying by the Turin daily La Stampa. The report did not elaborate, but some Italian newspapers suggested that the gunman may have sought to destabilize the world situation.

The Polish-born pope, a robust sports-loving man who turns 61 on Monday, was feeling well enough Thursday to receive a few visitors by his bedside, take Communion and listen to Mass.

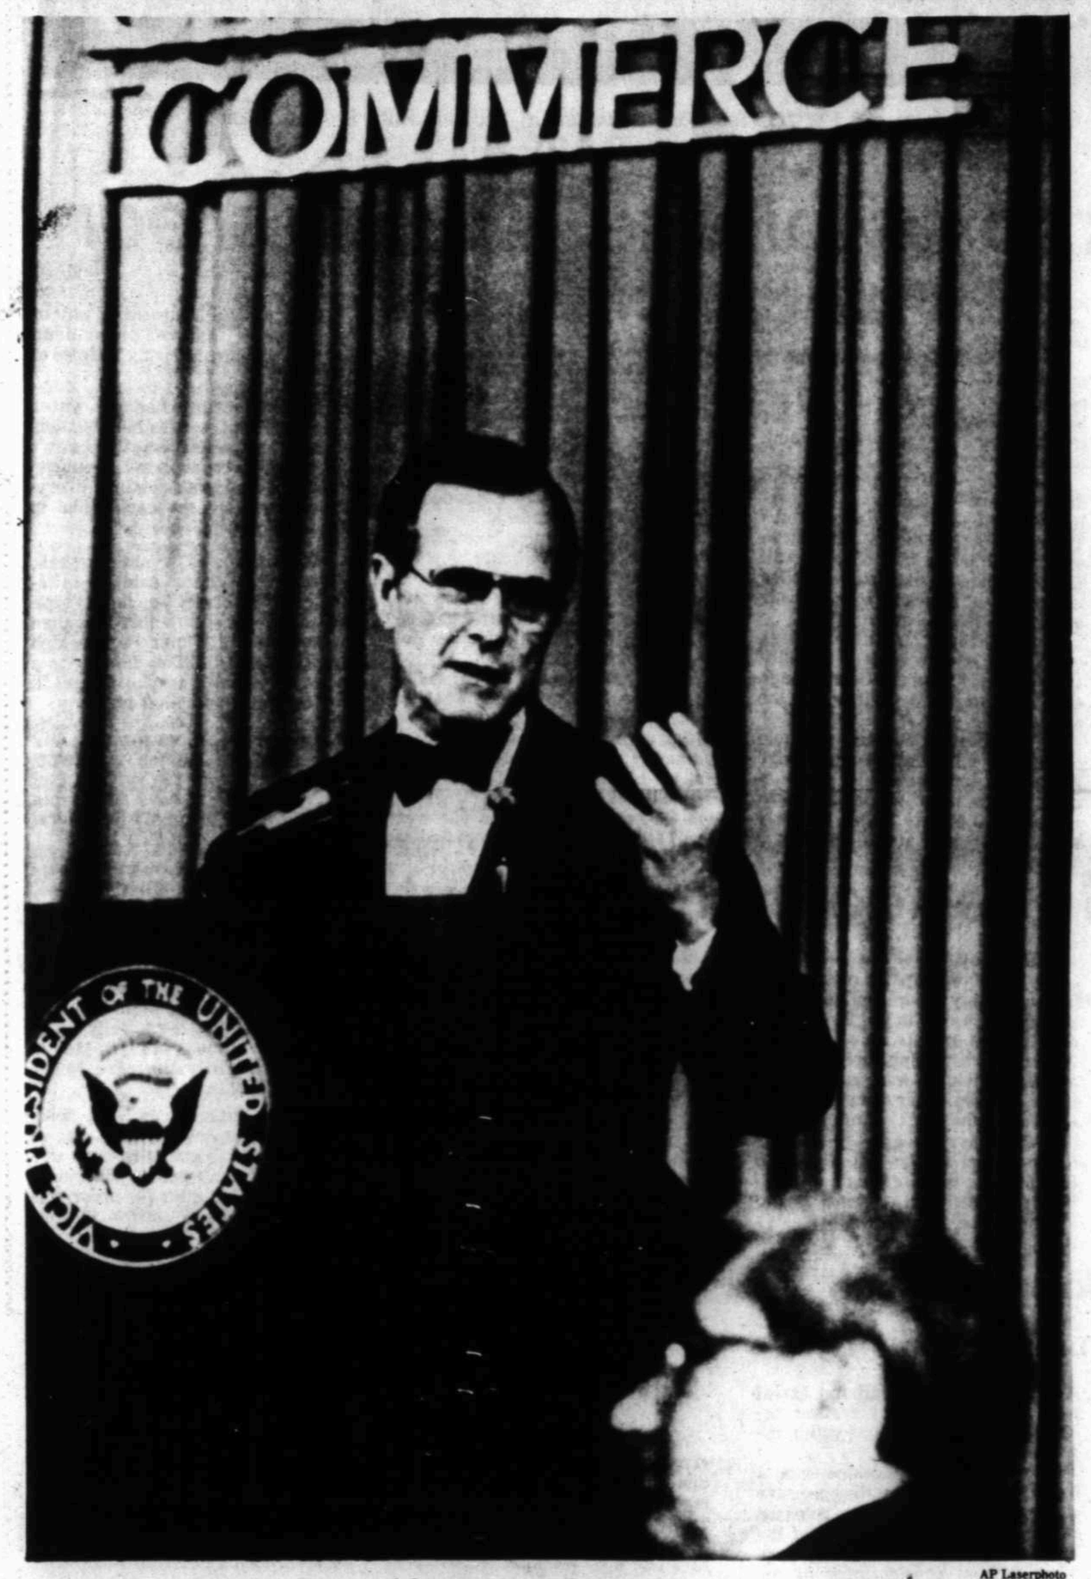

To a world still stunned by the first-ever papal shooting, doctors issued a "guarded" assessment saying John Paul was making an "excellent recovery." But they declined to forecast when he would be completely well.

Begin tells Habib he'll continue talks

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — After a crucial meeting today with U.S. Envoy Philip C. Habib, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin promised to continue diplomatic "efforts to find a peaceful solution" to the Syrian missile crisis, but gave no indication a solution might be in sight.

In Beirut, meanwhile, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam was quoted as saying his country was "ready to do battle if Begin translates his threats to deeds.

"The missiles will not be removed under Israeli or any other press," Khaddam was quoted as saying in Syrian newspapers. "We reject the concept that Israel has any right to dictate security regulations in Lebanon or to control its skies."

Israel has demanded it removed the batteries of Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles Syria sent into Lebanon last month, and has threatened to wipe them out if Syria refuses.

Begin, speaking to reporters after his second meeting with Habib in 12 hours, conceded that Syria still rejected Israel's demand, but said "The United States and Israel are of the same opinion that the status quo ante must be restored.

Habib declined to speak to reporters and it was not known what his next move would be.

In Khaddam's interview he disclosed that the oil-rich Arab nations have cut off the $15 million a month they pay to Syria to fund its peacekeeping operations in Lebanon. But it was not clear whether that cut off was aimed at pressuring the Syrians out of Lebanon.

Lebanese police said, meanwhile, that fighting between Syrians and Christians in Beirut overnight injured 24 people. The rightist Christian Voice of Lebanon Radio said four people were killed and 22 wounded by Syrian shelling in the Christian city of Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut, but the report could not be independently confirmed.

Israeli news reports said the Soviet Union was moving warships into the eastern Mediterranean, and the United States was responding by moving part of its Sixth Fleet in the same direction. The reports called the moves a mutual show of force as the tension mounted along the Israel-Lebanese border. There was no confirmation from Moscow or Washington.

"Admittedly, time is running out," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters in Washington Thursday.

He called the situation "extremely delicate...with the most dangerous overtones," and said the possibilities of the United States being able to bring about a state of normalcy in Lebanon were "a long shot."

However, Haig said he remains hopeful, adding, "We're going to continue to try so long as our efforts will make a constructive contribution."

Habib dashed from Beirut to Damascus on Thursday for hurried talks with President Hafez Assad after Syrian missiles in eastern Lebanon brought down a pilotless Israeli reconnaissance plane. Then he went back to Tel Aviv for a 90-minute meeting with Begin at the Israeli Defense Ministry.

Second hunger striker buried with IRA honors

BELLAGHY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police and troops ringed this village today while the IRA gave a military funeral to hunger striker Francis Hughes. An estimated 10,000 mourners packed country lanes and fields in a steady drizzle and an army helicopter hovered above the funeral procession.

In Belfast, thousands of other mourners turned out for the funerals of three persons — a Protestant milkman, a 14-year-old Roman Catholic girl and an Irish nationalist guerrilla — killed in rioting since the deaths of Hughes last Tuesday and fellow hunger striker Bobby Sands a week earlier.

Overnight, IRA gunmen fired a Soviet-made rocket through the roof of a passing police car in Roman Catholic west Belfast, killing one officer and wounding three others in a sharp escalation of violence surrounding the IRA's prison death fast.

Police sealed off to vehicles this mixed Protestant-Catholic village 40 miles northwest of Belfast, and ordered the funeral procession to take a back route from the Hughes' family home to the parish church some 1½ miles away.

In drizzle and wind, three masked Irish Republican Army men, wearing camouflage uniforms, black berets and dark glasses, fired the traditional IRA three-volley salute over Hughes' coffin at the front gate of the family farm.

The body of Hughes, 25, who died in the Maze Prison after a 59-day fast, had been taken in a hearse down the 50-yard driveway from his home following a two-day wake.

An army helicopter clattered overhead as thousands of mourners fell in behind the coffin, flanked by a six-man IRA honor guard, moved off to St. Mary's Parish church for a requiem Mass and burial in the churchyard, near where Hughes, the ninth of 10 children, was born.

Six IRA women, wearing black leather coats, formed up behind the honor guard.

The coffin, draped with the green, white and orange Irish flag, and with IRA uniform black beret and gloves atop, was carried by six pallbearers. They were headed by Hughes' father, Paddy Joe Hughes, a 73-year-old farmer, and several of his brothers.

Shops in the village of some 800 persons were shuttered. Black flags fluttered from many homes.

Because of the security cordon, many mourners, who poured in by bus and car, had to walk several miles to the Hughes home.

Some 50 women mourners near the head of the procession carried wreathes, some H-shaped in reference to the H-shaped blocks at the Maze where Hughes starved himself to death to back IRA demands that Britain grant political status to jailed Irish nationalist guerrillas.

Since Sands began fasting on March 1, 20 people have died in sectarian violence.

Congressmen take little, give a lot on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The spending plan headed for congressional approval ignores President Reagan's proposed cuts in Social Security, but slashes the federal government's planned deficit for fiscal 1982 even deeper than the president had asked. In all, Congress gave Reagan practically everything he wanted.

Formal approval by wide margins is expected next week for the compromise guideline, which calls for total spending of $695.4 billion. The wording of the resolution was agreed to Thursday night by House and Senate negotiators.

Then will come the tougher test of cutting individual programs to fit the outline, which leaves room for the deep spending and tax cuts proposed by the president.

Reagan's original $695.2 billion budget proposal called for a $45 billion deficit, while the compromise plan predicts a 1982 deficit of $37.6 billion.

The budget target follows Reagan's economic policy by envisioning large cuts in spending for social programs and accelerated defense spending while leaving room for the 30 percent, three-year tax personal income tax cuts that Reagan says will revitalize the economy.

The compromise also envisions Reagan's vow of a balanced budget in 1984, projecting a surplus of slightly more than $1 billion that year — assuming several billion dollars in future cuts yet to be identified.

Several Democrats criticized the forecasts of strong economic growth and interest rates of 10.5 percent, which were used to arrive at the deficit figure.

"I personally hate to see us play games, charades or mirrors with this important part of the budget" said Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., the House Budget Committee chairman.

The Senate on Thursday approved, 92-1, Reagan's request to spend a record $136.5 billion on a military buildup to match what the administration says the Soviet Union is doing. The package now goes to the House, where the Armed Services Committee has approved a smaller version.

"Now, wherever I go, people are going to be afraid to do business with me because they don't know if the press is going to come in."

Reagan's son to resign over controversial letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Reagan, saying he is "tired of having to explain" his actions, plans to resign from a company for which he wrote a letter soliciting contracts from U.S. military bases and mentioning his father, the president.

White House officials, insisting there was nothing improper in the letter, said President Reagan has asked the White House counsel to advise Michael and other members of the first family on avoiding "even the appearance of impropriety" in future business dealings.

The March 24 letter in which Michael Reagan referred to his father was written on behalf of Dana Ingalls Profile, a private military equipment supplier in Burbank, Calif., and sent to officials at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

"I know that, with my father's leadership at the White House, this countries Armed Services are going to be rebuilt and strengthened," the letter said. "We at Dana Ingalls Profile want to be involved in that process."

In an interview Thursday with NBC News at his home in the San Fernando Valley, Michael Reagan said he would resign today as a vice president for marketing sales for the company, a job he had held since Feb. 27.

"Now, wherever I go, people are going to be afraid to do business with me because they don't know if the press is going to come in," he said. "I'm going to resign" today.

He said would begin searching immediately for another job. "I'm afraid to go help somebody do business or try and make a living."

Michael said he was "tired of having to explain" his job of talking to buyers and requesting permission to give quotes on business. "All we want to do is get on the approved suppliers list like hundreds of other companies," he said.

Officials of the U.S. Justice Department, Office of Federal Procurement Policy, Defense Department and Office of Government Ethics have said the letter apparently did not violate federal conflict-of-interest laws.

New sinkholes pierce Florida's ear

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Dominick Cipollone's garden has disappeared and a Tampa homeowner's driveway was swallowed up as five new sinkholes developed in central Florida, where drought is making the ground give way.

Cipollone knew something was wrong Thursday when he went out to water his garden and couldn't find it. Where vegetables and wine grapes once flourished, a crater gaped.

"What a shock," said Cipollone, 76, who lives not far from a huge sinkhole that has swallowed a house and cars in Winter Park. "Most of my garden was gone — and a pear tree and a 50-foot oak," Cipollone said.

The sinkhole opened up between Cipollone's house and that of his neighbor, John McLellan, swallowing a chain-link fence. As Cipollone and McLellan moved belongings from their homes Thursday, the elderly Cipollone bemoaned the loss of his tomatoes, "ready-to-pick" peppers, corn and grapes. He makes wine from the grapes.

"That's what I do, I pass my time in my yard," he said. "I don't have a hobby except gardening. If I don't get back in there and water, my fruit trees and other vegetables are going to die."

The crater — estimated at 50 feet in diameter and 40 feet deep — developed during the predawn hours Thursday in a residential area north of Winter Park, where officials still were watching a sinkhole that opened last week, estimated at 400 feet wide and almost 100 feet deep.

"This is exactly the same geological event except that it's a lot smaller," said Seminole County Engineer Bill Bush after surveying the new cave-in.

A third central Florida sinkhole opened up Thursday in an orange grove area in Auburndale, about 45 miles southwest of Orlando. It was reported as 60 feet wide, but only about 5 feet deep and nibbling at a roadway. Traffic was blocked, but no houses were threatened.

Meanwhile, a hole about 20 feet wide and 15 feet deep was growing larger in a barren field north of Lakeland, and soil engineers planned a trip to Windermere to assess a sinkhole that began growing in the sandy soil on the edge of Lake Bessie and spread into the backyard of a home. The 75-foot wide crater had expanded to within 10 feet of a sundeck.

Today, another gaping hole opened in the front lawn of a home north of Tampa. The hole was reported to be about 10 or 12 feet wide and deep and about 6 feet from the home's garage — making it impossible for the homeowner to back his car out.

But one man who lost his car to the big Winter Park sinkhole went to work Thursday to get it back. After getting permission from the city government, two tow-truck operators crawled into the hole and put a sling around the 1979 Porsche 982 owned by Bob Govern, who said the car was worth $40,000. The car was pulled to safety.

No one has been injured in any of the incidents, natural phenomena common to central Florida in times of drought.

Sinkholes occur when the water table drops and cavities in the underground limestone formations can't support the above-ground pressure. The earth collapses, pulling everything down until the cavity fills in with earth and debris.

Geology engineer Bryant Marshall, a private consultant, said the Altamonte Springs crater was more "typical" of the size seen in this area than the huge one in Winter Park, which caused about $2 million damage to a house, six vehicles, two businesses, a municipal pool and other property.

In Winter Park, meanwhile, city officials and businessmen were angry about reports from the state capital that their sinkhole was not a big enough disaster to qualify for federal aid.

South Florida residents told to cut water use

MIAMI (AP) — Water district officials ordered South Florida residents to slash their water use by 25 percent and warned of cuts of up to 50 percent as the region's worst drought in 10 years tightened its grip.

Just hours after the severe water order was issued, rain began to fall in parts of Miami, but officials say the ground is so parched, that it will take much rain to replenish the ground water reserves.

The rainy season normally starts in mid-May or June. Forecasters said the chance of rain today was 30 per cent in Miami.

The restrictions are the most severe in Dade County, where violators could be fined or thrown in jail for up to 60 days if they operate an ornamental fountain, fill a wading pool that lacks a filter system or wash a sidewalk, under a special emergency ordinance ordered by the county commission.

Jack Maloy, executive director of the South Florida Water Management District, chastised officials of Palm Beach and Broward Counties for not having emergency ordinances like Dade County.

"I know of no case where a utility can comply with a 25 percent order without an effective ordinance," said Maloy.

"Citizens of South Florida must realize the gravity of the situation and take measures to reduce their water use," Gov. Bob Graham said in a statement issued in Tallahassee.

Under the 25 percent cutback order, effective immediately, hospitals and providers of other essential services, along with industrial plants, are subject to only a 10 percent reduction in water use.

Residents of the eight-county district, already banned from washing cars and sprinkling lawns daily under a 10-percent cutback ordered May 6, are expected to experience lower water pressure.

Overhead irrigation in farm fields and plant nurseries and irrigation at facilities such as golf courses is restrited to night-time hours, spokesman Larry Nunn said after the order was announced at district offices in West Palm Beach.

Thunderstorm douses Tall City

Midlanders were greeted as they awoke early Friday by a thunderstorm which doused the city in a strong shower and left streets flooding.

The thunderstorm moved into the area shortly before 7 a.m., forcing motorists to use headlights for the next hour. By presstime the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport had recorded an unofficial 0.14 in precipitation, and additional rainfall was accumulating in parts of the Tall City.

Skies had been mostly clear Thursday afternoon, as the mercury edged only to the 74-degree mark, far below the record 100 set in 1960.

The NWS expects partly cloudy conditions to reign tonight and Saturday, with a chance of more showers and thunderstorms. A 30 per cent probability of rain was set for tonight and a 20 per cent chance for Saturday.

The early morning thundershowers raised the yearly precipitation total above the 5-inch mark.

Hance cuts federal spending

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, cut $1.4 billion in federal spending with proposals he pushed through a House subcommittee today.

One Hance amendment eliminated the "national trigger" on unemployment benefits during action in the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Public Assistance. The action was part of President Reagan's recommended reductions in the federal budget.

"This is one law which needed to be repealed," Hance said. "It has been a waste of taxpayers money that has continued far too long."

Hance is in his second term as the congressman from the 19th District, which runs from Midland to north of Lubbock.

Under current law, unemployed individuals are entitled to 26 weeks of unemployment benefits plus an additional 13 weeks of extended benefits if the state unemployment level exceeds a certain amount. If the national unemployment level exceeds a certain rate then a "national trigger" requires that all unemployed individuals receive extended benefits regardless of the unemployment rate in the individual state. The maximum payment in Texas in $126 per week, but exceeds $200 in some states.

"When the national trigger is in effect, an unemployed individual in Texas is entitled to 13 additional weeks even if unemployment in Texas is not a serious problem. My amendment eliminates this unwarranted waste of tax dollars nationwide."

Another amendment raised the unemployment rate that individual states had to reach before extended benefits were mandated. The committee also tightened requirements for unemployment benefits in other areas, following the recommended proposals of President Reagan.

Chamber panel endorses position to keep county within 19th district

The Executive Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce unanimously endorsed Thursday a motion reiterating the chamber's previously adopted position that Midland County should be a part of the 19th Congressional District. This action was taken as a result of recent reports that the State Legislature was considering removing Midland County from the 19th District.

The Midland Chamber believes it is vitally important for the Permian Basin region's community of interest to be represented in one Congressional District to the maximum extent possible. The chamber further believes this can best be done within the 19th District.

In re-expressing its desire to be a part of the 19th District, the executive committee made it clear in a released statement that "this position of the Midland Chamber of Commerce is taken without consideration of the individual congressmen in whose district Midland County may be placed. The necessity of having a compact district with common interests is the chamber's only concern."

Warrants issued on two men after off-duty officer injured

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of two Midland men in connection with an incident early this morning that resulted in minor injuries to an off-duty police officer.

According to police, officer Joe Strange was working security at Cowboys Lounge, 3920 W. Wall St., and had asked two men to leave shortly after 1 a.m. The men then attempted to run over the officer with their pickup as they departed.

Strange pursued the men in a borrowed vehicle to an address in the 4700 block of Commanche Street, where he found the pickup abandoned. The truck was impounded and the house searched, but the suspects had disappeared. Charges of aggravated assault on a police officer are pending against the men. Strange suffered injuries to his arm, according to a report.

In theft and burglary complaints during the past 24 hours, Frankie Heairren of 1111 W. College Ave. told officers someone entered her residence through the back door and took $25-30 in cash and a ladies ring worth $1,000.

Two rings valued at $1,050 were reported taken from the Joe Gulf residence, 908 E. Texas Ave., while Bob Winker of 4433 Leddy St. said stereo equipment worth $350 was taken after someone entered the home through a bedroom window.

A clerk at Midland Lamp and Shade House, 1611 W. Wall St., told police three men distracted her shortly before 11 a.m. Thursday and took $206 from the cash register.

Two gold rings and a gold watch were reported missing from 4722 Dengar Ave. Thursday, and Floyd Wigly of 1003 S. Midkiff Road said an eight-horsepower engine and a tool box were taken from his vehicle.

A 6-year-old boy escaped serious injury after he was struck by a car in the 1000 block of West Carter Street about 4 p.m. Thursday.

Released from Midland Memorial Hospital following treatment for minor cuts and abrasions was Robert Griffith of 1710 Griffin St. Police said he was walking west along the curb on Carter when he suddenly turned and stepped in front of an eastbound car driven by Nancy Kay of Route 4, Midland.

Californian pleads innocent to federal marijuana charges

A 35-year-old San Diego, Calif., pilot and aircraft rebuilder has pleaded innocent to federal charges that he flew a stolen twin-engine Piper Navajo, allegedly loaded with marijuana, from California to Texas in mid-December.

The man, James Eugene Kelley, was released from custody on Thursday after Odessa attorney Warren Burnett posted a $25,000 cash bond for the defendant's release. U.S. Magistrate J. Michael Cunningham of Midland had reduced the bail from $50,000 to $25,000 in a hearing in the George Mahon Federal Building here minutes earlier.

Kelley is also under state indictment for possession of marijuana in Crane, where the aircraft reportedly had made an unplanned landing.

He had been held in the Crane County Jail for possession of marijuana since he was extradited from California on a bench warrant in mid-April. He had been accused by sealed indictment on April 6 for the federal offense. Kelley was bailed out of the Crane County Jail Thursday afternoon after his bail was reduced from $100,000 to $10,000.

In the federal indictment, Kelley was accused of flying the stolen aircraft across state lines on Dec. 18.

But he was indicted in Crane County for possession of marijuana sometime after the aircraft was forced to land at the Crane County Airport. The pilot fled, but the marijuana was confiscated by lawmen and the aircraft was picked up by a representative of the insurance company carrying a policy on the aircraft.

Crane County Sheriff Raymond Weatherby, who investigated the case, on Thursday declined to say how many pounds of marijuana lawmen took from the aircraft.

Florida forest fires threaten Alligator Alley

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — A main highway across the Florida Everglades remained closed early today as forest fires that have blackened some 40,000 acres of federal preserve land threatened the route known as Alligator Alley.

The Florida Highway Patrol closed the Alley to traffic about 8:30 p.m. Thursday because heavy smoke was reducing visibility. An FHP spokeswoman said the road would remain closed through the night and would not reopen until driving conditions were safe.

Firefighting crews from the National Park Service continued to battle the blazes on the 350,000-acre Big Cypress Preserve with ground and aerial equipment.

No injuries or structure damage have been reported from the fires, which began last Friday, said park service spokesman Pat Tolle.

A portion of the fire was burning about five miles south of the roadway Thursday night, sending smoke billowing into the air, and creating a haze across parts of South Florida.

Officials estimated that flames from the largest of two fires had burned about 30,000 acres and a second smaller blaze had scorched about 15,000 acres.

Tolle said the haze made it difficult for aircraft surveyors to get an accurate estimate of the size of the fire.

Tolle told the Fort Myers News Press that the fire five miles south of the Alley threatened about 20 buildings near the Cypress Lane area. He said Division of Forestry crews were beginning to "backburn" the blaze — light a blaze in the path of the oncoming fire — to protect the buildings.

Firefighters spotted the first fire Friday and two more fires were sighted Monday from the air. Two of the fires connected, forming the 30,000 acre blaze. A fourth fire was spotted Thursday burning about 10 miles east of Carnestown, Tolle said.

Demo troops desert sinking ship

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Manatt's troops are deserting in droves. His generals surrender before the fighting begins. The opposition claims to have won the hearts and minds of the people.

When the Los Angeles lawyer and banker took over the remains of the Democratic National Committee last February, the outlook was bleak. Three months earlier, the party suffered its worst defeat since the 1920s. Ronald Reagan was riding high. The Republicans were tasting power in the Senate and hungering for more.

Then things started getting worse.

Reagan presented a budget-cutting program that Democratic leaders were convinced would prompt cries of outrage from around the nation. Instead, party conservatives joined forces with House Republicans to give Reagan a working majority in the last outpost of Democratic control in the capital.

Yet Manatt fights on and claims that help is on its way. The Democratic chairman insists the tide will turn as soon as the American people accept his argument that the Reagan program is hurting the poor and middle classes and benefitting only the wealthy.

He can take some comfort from signs that the president's tax cut program will encounter the kind of serious opposition in Congress that never materialized on the budget cuts.

Meanwhile, Manatt is in the uncomfortable spot of leading a party that appears surrounded, outgunned, outmanned and unable, so far, to offer the sort of credible alternative that might turn the tide.

Democrats once felt secure in the belief that whatever their problems they were the party of the New Deal and the Great Society. But the 1980 elections left many Democrats feeling their traditions had been rejected and their survival depended most on the Republicans being proven wrong.

Manatt rarely misses a chance to chide the Republican president for alleged betrayals of the working people, the poor and the elderly.

When the administration disclosed it was considering scaling back some increases in Social Security benefits, Manatt was quick to say the president "took out a large pair of scissors today and cut a tremendous hole in the safety net that he promised all Americans."

As partisan political rhetoric, it had a good ring to it. It was characteristic of the sort of statements Manatt has issued as the administration has unveiled various aspects of its program.

But there's little if any sign that Manatt has succeeded in firing up his own troops, not to mention the population at large.

The Democratic Party executive committee met the day after 63 Democrats joined Republicans to provide a solid majority for the Reagan budget blueprint in the House.

Manatt called it a sad day for America. But neither he nor any of the other Democrats at that meeting could think of a way to deal with the members of their own party who had supported the president.

"We lacked discipline. We lacked leadership in the House," complained Ms. Jerry English, a committee member from Summit, N.J.

"What is the party's position on those Democrats who voted for the Reagan budget?" asked Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind.

Given the nature of the Democratic Party, the answer was obvious. The party has no position. Discipline has never been a characteristic of its broad coalition of often diverse interests.

Use of child restraints your decision

By SUE ALFORD
Midland College Traffic Division

One of my greatest concerns as far as traffic safety goes is the issue of restraint devices...whether seat belts, shoulder belt or special child restraint. Though I think the information available on seat belts shows the odds are with one's use of them, that use is a decision each informed, reasonable person must make for himself.

However, infants and young children are not in a position to make informed, reasonable decisions. When it comes to child restraints, it's your child's life but it's your decision.

First, let's describe just what a child restraint is. A child restraint is an infant carrier or child seat designed specifically for use in motor vehicles to absorb and cushion shock in the event of an accident of emergency manuever. These restraints have internal seat belt systems and-or shields and then are secured to a vehicle by use of the vehicle's seat belts.

There are several important ideas to remember about the use of child restraints: They reduce the chance of injury or death in automobile accidents by 70 to 90 percent and children are predictably better behaved while riding in them.

So, how do we go about deciding which child restraint devices are best for us. Each of us must answer that question for ourself after considering:

—Is it dynamically-tested or crash-tested.
—Will it hold the child comfortably and securely.
—Is it padded, free of sharp, hard edges.
—Will it fit in your car seats and-or seat belts.
—And, will you use it correctly, even if the directions seem tedious.

With all that to consider, please don't get discouraged and decide not to use a child restraint. The little inconvenience involved is well worth affording greater protection for children. And with that decision, then don't waiver under the child's objections. Just as none of us is going to skip our children's immunizations because the kids don't like shots, so should we not use child restraints whenever our kids protest.

That's child restraints in a nutshell. Because you care, invest in or rent or borrow a child restraint and use it for every trip. If you need more information, call Midland College Traffic Safety Planning.

Khadafy accuses U.S. of promoting world-wide terror

NEW YORK (AP) — Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy has accused the United States of promoting international terrorism, but says he will not cut off oil shipments at this time to retaliate for the expulsion of his diplomats from Washington.

Khadafy, whose "support for international terrorism" was cited by the U.S. State Department as one of the reasons for the expulsion of some 70 Libyan diplomats Thursday, said he is "absolutely" against terrorism and seeks better relations with the United States.

In an interview on the Public Broadcasting System's MacNeil-Lehrer Report Thursday night, Khadafy accused the United States of promoting terrorism by providing military aid to repressive regimes and restricting grain sales to foreign countries.

"Hijicking airplanes and seizing honest people to be victims of this action ... is terrorism," Khadafy said. "But it is very small in comparison with the big action of terrorism which America is doing now."

Khadafy was interviewed via satellite from Tripoli, Libya.

He said he had no immediate plans to halt oil shipments to the United States in retaliation for the expulsion of Libyan diplomats, although he hinted such action was possible in the future.

Libya is the U.S.'s third largest supplier of imported oil.

In the wide-ranging interview, conducted in English, he denied any Libyan involvement in the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics in 1972 as well as giving any military aid to the Irish Republican Army, the Red Brigades in Italy or leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

But he voiced support for Palestinian guerrillas and IRA militants as having "a just cause."

"The existence of Britain in this place (Northern Ireland) is colonization," he said.

Khadafy said he wants "a normal relation with the United States" and his country will not become a "staging area" for Soviet activities in Africa, despite recent purchases of Soviet arms and close relations with Moscow.

Iran 'threw away' chance

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Iran "threw away" a chance to be a leading political force in the Middle East when it allowed militants to take Americans captive in Iran, says former hostage Richard Morefield.

Morefield, a former senior State Department officer at the American Embassy in Tehran, told an Associated Press convention he did not desire revenge against Iran for the 14 months he and 51 other Americans were held hostage.

Soviets denounce U.S. seizure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, finding nothing of strategic value in equipment seized from a Soviet jetliner, will give the cargo back but won't apologize for taking it, the chief of the Customs Service says.

"I feel it was handled in a professional way, well within our rights," William T. Archey said of the raid Tuesday night at nearby Dulles International Airport, which touched off a roar of protest from Moscow.

The raid was staged when a tipster told the Customs Service the Soviets were trying to spirit out American-made products of military value, possibly radar equipment.

But after two days of investigation — amid a drumbeat of protest from the Kremlin — Archey said all the cargo was legally exportable and the only violations were technical mistakes in accompanying paperwork.

The Soviets denounced the incident as "criminal" and "barbarous" and as proof "that terror and banditism have been elevated in the United States to the status of official policy." They said they may demand reparations.

"In terms of a substantive violation of the law, it does not appear there was one," Archey told a crowded news conference after reading a six-page statement giving a minute-by-minute account of Customs agents' behavior in the Aeroflot jetliner.

He said the cargo would be released when the documents are corrected.

One by one, Archey denied Soviet allegations about the raid — that 35 Customs and FBI agents had threatened the airline crew, tampered with the cockpit equipment, thus endangering the plane's safety, and ripped open luggage, including some with diplomatic immunity, stealing some items.

Customs agents, accompanied by FBI men, seized boxes containing devices for measuring radiation, several electronic modules and circuit boards, and a radio receiver used as an aviation navigation aid. All were legally exportable, Archey said, but he denied the agents opened luggage or diplomatic pouches.

He said the agents acted routinely, professionally, courteously and competently.

54 believed trapped by volcano

HONOLULU (AP) — A volcano erupted on the remote Northern Marianas island of Pagan, blasting ash 40,000 feet into the air and oozing lava toward the only village, where the island's 54 residents were thought to have ducked into caves, United States authorities said.

Rescue vessels were speeding today to the island, a U.S. territory, to rescue the inhabitants.

The island's only shortwave radio operator said Mount Pagan, one of two volcanoes on the island, erupted shortly after 7:15 p.m. EDT Thursday. The operator then abandoned his radio and has not been heard from since.

The crew of an Air Force B-52 bomber diverted to the Pagan, an American territory, reported seeing a red lava flow oozing toward the and an ash cloud climbing to 40,000 feet.

Think tank says Soviets in dilemma

LONDON (AP) — Events in Poland pose a "profound dilemma" for the Soviet Union and the success of military intervention would be extremely uncertain, a prestigious independent "think tank" said today.

The International Institute for Strategic Studies, in its annual report on major defense trends, said the independent trade unions "could herald the beginning of political pluralism in the East European part of the Soviet empire — and perhaps in the Soviet Union herself."

The London-based research organization suggests that if Soviet tanks rolled into Poland to halt the social and political reforms, they might face fierce opposition.

"Would the Polish armed forces, who had carefully fashioned a nationalistic image for themselves, resist a Soviet military move?" the report asks.

DEATHS

Herman Matteson

Services for Herman L. Matteson, 74, of 104 E. Oak Ave., will be Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Dellwood Baptist Church, with the Rev. Wiley Dorman officiating. Graveside services and burial will be later in Henderson.

He died Thursday night in a Midland hospital.

Born Dec. 29, 1906, in Rusk, Matteson spent his early life in Reklaw. He moved to Midland in 1933. Prior to moving to Midland, Matteson spent the early part of his life as a farmer. He has been with several different service stations and worked as a cab service in Midland since that time. He retired in 1973. He was a member of Dellwood Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Beulah Matteson; three daughters, Dorothy Evelyn McQuerry of Midland, Carol Henson of Big Spring and Barbara Budemer of Georgetown, La.; and two brothers, Perry Wood Matteson of El Paso and Ernest Matteson of Jefferson.

The family has asked that memorials be directed to the Allison Permian Basis Cancer Therapy Center or Midland Christian School.

Reagan to meet with South African

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, although calling South Africa's racial policies "repugnant," nevertheless is trying to establish a cooperative relationship with its white minority government as a way to peacefully settle the Namibia dispute.

Reagan planned to meet today with South African Foreign Minister R. F. Botha, whose government has been receiving mixed signals about American policies since Reagan took office.

In early March, Reagan suggested that four years of U.S. hostility toward South Africa under former President Carter would end. He stressed South Africa's long-standing role as a supporter of American foreign policies and as a supplier of strategic minerals to the United States.

Since then, the administration, faced with criticism both at home and in black Africa, has gone to some lengths to deny any tilt toward South Africa's white minority government.

On several occasions, Reagan himself has declared that he finds South Africa's racial policies "repugnant."

Nonetheless, the administration has concluded that the establishment of a cooperative relationship with South Africa is essential if there is to be a peaceful settlement.

Prayers for the pope

As the shockwaves caused by the shooting Wednesday of Pope John Paul II swept throughout the world, the emotions which probably engulfed most people were typical ones — the ones experienced earlier this year when President Ronald Reagan was shot in Washington, D.C.

It is even more difficult to rationalize the motives that drove the young Turkish terrorist to St. Peter's Square to end the pope's life. When mankind is capable of understanding the minds of terrorists, perhaps he will be able to control terrorism.

Why would anyone want to kill someone like Pope John Paul II, whose only message to the world has been one of love and peace? It obviously was and will remain a senseless act, one without justification.

Doubtless if Pope John Paul II was able to do so now he would tell the world's people to forgive his attacker. He would stress the importance of love and of peace in overcoming the violence that today threatens the world and all the people in it.

Only through love and peace can mankind bring an end to acts of senseless violence like the ones that brushed both himself and President Reagan, Pope John Paul II likely would say. And with his words we would realize mankinds' own shortcomings and pray for the wisdom to understand his meaning and to bring about the kind of world in which violence would be nonexistent.

The prayers of people throughout the world will be with the pope for a speedy and complete recovery. We hope there also will be prayers for an end to violence and senseless acts of crime, and a beginning of a world of love and peace.

Bucking the trend

The response around the world to economic problems has been generally a turn to more conservative leadership — to governmental austerity.

But in France, Francois Maurice Mitterrand won the presidency on the Socialist Party ticket. In his third bid for the top political job, he proposed economic remedies that critics charge will perpetuate inflation. He wants to raise the minimum wage and create 250,000 public jobs. He will seek to nationalize private French banks, the insurance business and other key industries.

The outlook for Mitterrand's program, however, is not bright. To implement his proposals, he will need to win a majority of support in elections to the National Assembly, which he has pledged to call.

The downfall of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing resulted in part simply from the voters' desire for a change, from unhappiness with unemployment and inflation.

And it is unlikely that the relationship of France with the United States and the rest of Europe will be altered significantly.

The goals of France are more in tune with those of its conventional allies than with those of radical regimes. The French course for the next seven years should run parallel with that of the global community with which it shares the major interests.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, May 15, the 135th day of 1981. There are 230 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 15, 1940, the Netherlands surrendered to Germany during World War II.

On this date:

In 1571, Moscow was burned by the Tartars.

In 1973, the House Appropriations Committee voted unanimously to cut off all funds for bombing operations in Cambodia.

CHARLEY REESE

Our survival as individuals will assure nation's survival

Charley Reese

I hate to tell you this but the government of the United States does not know what it is going to do if deterence fails and there is a nuclear war. So far as I can determine there is no plan, or if there is one it is buried away in a file cabinet somewhere.

This is evidence of gross incompetence, if not insanity. Even the worst scenarios of a nuclear war claim that 100 million or so Americans will survive. What will they do? Commit suicide? Wander around in the streets?

Granted, nuclear war is unpleasant to think about. Granted, we all hope and pray it never occurs. Nevertheless, any rational person must admit that it is possible. If it is impossible, then both we and the Soviet Union have wasted a tremendous amount of money and other resources building nuclear weapons.

Therefore, since it is possible, then it is certainly the responsibility of the government to plan on that eventuality. The Soviet Union, Switzerland, and Israel, to name three that I know of, have made extensive plans. In their thinking, the world will not come to an end, like the end of a motion picture, when the button is pushed. Our government has acted as if it will, but, of course, it won't.

There are several reasons for this failure to plan. One, of course, is that it is unpleasant, perhaps not even politically a good thing for politicians to impress upon their constituents the full range of consequences of their policies. Our politicians have shown an amazing inclination to avoid facing anything unpleasant, almost to a pathological degree. Perhaps if they cannot face the relatively mild unpleasantness of balancing the budget, it is no surprise that they cannot face the consequences of a nuclear war.

Secondly, there is that school of fantasy, once known as word magic, which says that planning to survive a war makes a war more likely. I suppose such people, mostly leftists, never jog or pay any attention to their diet. Certainly, using their logic, planning to be healthy is sure to make you more likely to get sick.

Thirdly, there was Robert Strange McNamara, who will one day be viewed as one of the most stupid men ever to achieve public notice. McNamara, former Ford executive, was made secretary of defense by President Kennedy, probably on the recommendation of the Council on Foreign Relations. He sponsored several idiocies. One was the substitution of systems analysis for strategic thinking, as if war were so precise a science that it could be entirely quantified and computerized. Another was the concept of Mutual Assured Destruction (MAD), appropriately. This was the theory that civilian populations would be hostages to the politicians of each country. Thus, McNamara dreamed up a rationalization for the total absence of strategic and civil defense.

That's why, my friends, we don't have any. There are fewer than 400 aging fighter interceptors scattered about North America, mostly in reserve or guard units. There are no anti-aircraft missiles, no anti-ballistic missiles, and no civil defense shelter, education programs, evacuation plans, emergency food, or medical supplies.

The Reagan Administration may eventually get around to this problem. There are certainly members of it who are both aware of the problem and eager to correct it. You have to remember, however, that any administration is a conglomerate of interests, some of them competing, some so specialized they have no appreciation of any problems outside their narrow interests.

Because the press focuses so much attention on the person of the President, we like to fantasize that he is some Horatio Hornblower of a commander-in-chief, acutely aware of every problem facing the nation, and working 18 hours a day to personally solve them.

We haven't actually had a president like that for a very long time. It's no longer possible. The government has grown to such a gigantic size and the bureaucracy and attendant special interests have become so entrenched that our commanders-in-chief are more juggler than commander, more salesman than executive.

Your best bet is to harrass your Congressmen and Senators. You can do this by simply sending them a postcard on which you ask, "What plans have you made for my survival in the event of a nuclear war? Please forward immediately."

Secondly, you had better make your own plans. There a number of sound books on the market, thanks to the survivalist movement. You will be surprised, not pleasantly, but surprised, to learn that survival planning is not as difficult as you might imagine. For one thing, if you determine you are in a primary target city, your planning is very simple. It boils down to getting out before the bomb goes off or not worrying about it. Fortunately, however, the area of assured total destruction is relatively small.

I am not trying to write a survival manual, however, or even depress anybody. The point I want to make is simply that there will be life after the bomb and so we ought to make some plans, not only for survival as individuals, but for survival as a nation. It may not be a cheerful task but it is rational.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nixon ex-presidency irks Customs Service

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In his forced retirement, Richard Nixon continues to cling to the lordly style of his imperial presidency. His disdain for legal formalities the rest of us must observe led recently to his private aircraft being chased through the Caribbean skies like a dope smuggler — which is precisely what the two pursuing Customs Service pilots thought the Nixon plane might be.

Here's what happened, according to an internal Treasury Department memo seen by my associate Jack Mitchell:

At 3:45 on the afternoon of Feb. 13, Customs officials in Florida "observed a radar target approximately 100 miles east of Key West, and commenced a radar track," the memo states.

The unidentified flying object was in fact a seaplane carrying Nixon and his pal Bebe Rebozo, with Secret Service bodyguards, back to the United States from a visit to Cat Cay, an island in the Bahamas. But the government radar trackers had no way of knowing this.

"The suspect aircraft neither communicated with the FAA Flight Service Station nor displayed a transponder code," the Treasury report continues. "Two Customs Service aircraft were launched to intercept the target."

The Customs officials had good reason for concern: Southern Florida and its keys are rife with drug traffic. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of narcotics are smuggled into the area in small aircraft. So the Customs pilots stuck close to the suspicious seaplane.

Eleven minutes after the Customs planes scrambled for the pursuit, "the suspect aircraft landed at Ocean Reef airport" in North Key Largo, the memo reports. The first pursuit plane landed five minutes later — a little too late.

"The passengers from the seaplane had departed in a vehicle," the memo continues, "and were identified as former President Richard Nixon, his friend Bebe Rebozo and Secret Service agents. None of the Nixon party, Secret Service agents or aircraft crew cleared Customs upon their arrival in the United States."

The Customs Service bureaucrats were properly outraged. Everyone entering the United States — even a serving president — is required by law to make at least a formal passage through Customs control. The officials were even more incensed when told by the Secret Service that Nixon and Rebozo had been making the trip from the Bahamas into Florida "about once every four months for the past four years and did not usually clear Customs."

As it turned out, after investigation, the Nixon party had been given a rare VIP clearance by phone from the Customs Service office in Key West. In return for this special favor, the Key West office had instructed that the pilot of Nixon's plane submit flight and customs information in writing — and in advance.

But Nixon's pilot never did send the required documents, and that, according to the officials in Key West, is why Customs had no idea what the plane was, or who was on it, when it showed up on the radar screen.

A high-ranking Customs official conceded that the mixup was "partly our fault." It was, he said, "a breakdown in communications," which has subsequently been cleared up. If it hadn't been for that communications breakdown, the official said, "we would have issued a multi-penalty" citation for customs violation.

A Secret Service spokesman insisted that "we followed proper procedures." Henceforth, though, Nixon's periodic arrivals in Florida from the Bahamas will be heralded by the necessary paperwork.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The plight of those who are involved in auto accidents with foreign diplomats was shockingly illustrated a few years ago when a Washington area woman was crippled for life in a collision with the car of a diplomat, who claimed immunity to avoid financial responsibility for the victim's ruinous medical expenses. The situation isn't much better now. The State Department makes foreign diplomats carry the minimum liability insurance required in the jurisdiction in which their vehicles are registered. But any damage above these sometimes inadequate minimums could be evaded by claiming diplomatic immunity. So Foggy Bottom is considering a requirement that the diplomats carry more than the bare minimum.

— Big Oil moguls are already rubbing their hands in glee over their friend in a crucial high place — Interior Secretary James Watt. A confidential letter to the Energy Department from Peter Lawson-Johnson, president of Anglo Energy Drilling Co., gloats that Watt "is quite receptive to the leasing of federal lands for energy development and will therefore ease up on federal land-use restrictions and regulations."

— The Internal Revenue Service often deserves the bad press it gets over high-handed seizure of delinquent taxpayers' property. But a recent case was a bum rap, the IRS says. It involved breaking into a locked car and dragging the two owners out so the car could be seized in payment of delinquent taxes. What was overlooked in the reports of the incident, though, was the fact that the couple, Stephen and Mona Oliver, were not in the car when the IRS agents found it in a parking lot. The Olivers, members of a tax protest group, showed up later and were allowed to get back in the car to get personal possessions from it. That's when they locked themselves in and the revenooers broke a window and dragged them out. The IRS now has a new regulation: No one will be allowed into a vehicle being seized — even to retrieve life-saving medicine.

INSIDE REPORT:

Tax-cut politics bridging the Republican Party's gap

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

TRENTON, N.J. — The end of 70 years of internal Republican strife seemed in sight when Thomas H. Kean, a blue-blood pillar of the Eastern Republican establishment, appeared at a New Jersey statehouse press conference flanked by two tigers of the Republican right: Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and Jeffrey Bell.

Bell, a longtime Reaganite and Senate nominee here in 1978, supports Kean's front-running campaign for the Republican governor nomination. Kemp was in Trenton to endorse Kean's tax-cutting package. Seated alongside them was Rep. James Courter, an aggressive conservative who is Kean's state chairman. In the audience was Washington-based, right-wing political consultant Roger Stone, who directs Kean's strategy.

What's a nice liberal Republican like Tom Kean doing with all these ferocious warriors of the right? The answer: They are tied together by a common thread: supply-side economics, bridging political and cultural differences that have divided the GOP since the great schism of 1912 and were widened still more by Barry Goldwater's coup in 1964.

Closing the party's gap here and elsewhere is based almost solely on tax-cut ideology first preached by Kemp six years ago. Kean transformed the nature of the June 2 primary to a debate on tax reduction and attracted conservative support because his program is compatible with President Reagan's. Thus, hopes for not only Republican success but party unity depend on the fate of the tax-reduction movement.

Kean is the embodiment of the liberal Republican aristocracy that provokes the party's populist right. An ancestor served in the Continental Congress, and he is the fifth generation of Keans in New Jersey. His grandfather was a U.S. senator, and his father served 20 years in the House. In a state where a majority of Republican county chairmen are Italo-Americans, Kean's upper-class accent sounds more like New England than Jersey.

Kean was national youth director for William Scranton's futile campaign for the 1964 presidential nomination, and eight years later became Mr. Environment in the New Jersey legislature as the 36-year-old speaker of the Assembly. In 1978, he vainly fought for liberal Sen. Clifford Case against Jeff Bell's Republican primary challenge.

Defeated for the 1977 nomination for governor, Kean knew he must expand his base or perish. He sought out Bell for support and hired Stone, who had impressed Kean with his tenacity in organizing the state for Reagan in 1980. Together, they determined to break out of a Republican contest to be toughest against crime and for capital punishment and instead to go all out on supply-side issues.

The program was drafted by Professor Mark Miles of Rutgers University, co-author with supply-side guru Arthur Laffer of a new economics textbook. The three-year plan would cut the state business income tax in half, eliminate the business property tax and slash the state sales tax by 20 percent. The intent: to increase tax revenue by bringing business back to New Jersey.

"A disaster!" cried Mayor Pat Kramer of Paterson, supported by the remnants of the state party's liberal leadership. Kramer, along with millionaire businessman Bo Sullivan, is Kean's principal challenger. While other Republican candidates hurriedly ground out alternative tax schemes, Kramer insisted on budget reductions first. He thus plays George Bush to Kean's Ronald Reagan — albeit a patrician, non-conservative Reagan.

It was a close enough impersonation to bring Kemp here to defend Kean's tax program. New Jersey conservative activist Harlan Schliker, supporting State Sen. James Wallwork as the authentic candidate of the right, tried to dissuade Kemp and even asked White House political aide Lyn Nofziger to keep Kemp out (Nofziger replied he wanted no part of it).

Present as Kemp praised Kean in the State Assembly chambers was yet another symbol of Republican peacemaking: political consultant John Deardourff, a former Nelson Rockefeller aide who in 1978 advised his California client running for governor to oppose the Proposition 13 tax cut. In 1981, he has designed Kean's television commercials that stress tax reduction for growth.

Deardourff and Kemp have been at odds for so long that before attending the statehouse news conference, Deardourff offered to stay away. When it was over, Kemp sought out Deardourff, shook hands and said: "John, its good to be on the same side." What was the origin for the rift? "Something about Kemp undercutting Rockefeller and working with Nixon back in '72," Deardourff replied. "I can't quite remember."

Ending half-remembered feuds derives from Kean's belief that Kemp and Bell, pressing for economic growth with tax rate cuts, follow the old Republican moderate tradition of optimistic faith in progress. Whether or not the tax issue nominates Kean, it has temporarily bridged real cultural, political and ideological differences between Tom Kean and Jack Kemp. The resulting common purpose is the hope of the Republican Party.

Rights groups alarmed over Peru anti-terrorist law

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Human rights and opposition political groups are questioning the constitutionality of a tough anti-terrorism law decreed by Peru's civilian government, which took office last July after 12 years of military dictatorship.

Using emergency powers while Congress was in recess, the government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry decreed an anti-terrorism law in Marh which defins terrorism as a crime and establishes its penalties.

Human rights organizations and opposition politicians say the law is unconstitutional and threatens the basic freedoms of press, speech and free association.

The government defends the law as necessary to combat terrorism concentrated in the southern Andes, the same region where guerrilla actions plagued Belaunde's first government, which ended in a military takeover in 1968.

In recent months the terrorism has crept into major cities along the coast, including this capital of more than 5 million people

Theterrorists hae blown u power and comunicatios towers, dealled trans, thrown qurter-stics of dynamite at government offices and police stations, burned and bombed schools, hoisted revolutionary flags in public plazas and seized radio stations to broadcast revolutionary statements.

Although only a handful of people have been hurt, a policeman was killed in April when he was machine-gunned while guarding a power line tower near the mountain town of Huancavelica.

There have been 700 acts of terrorism by official count, including 400 dyanmitings.

Belaunde and his interior minister, Jose Maria de la Jara, took a soft line at first, blaming the dynamitings on a small, Maoist-Communist group called the Sendero Luminoso (Lighted Path).

Then a few months later, De la Jara doubled the police force fighting terrorism and sent a special counter-insurgency battalion to the mountains.

The law decreed in March establishes maximum penalties of 20 years in prison and a fine the equivalent of $8,000 for anyone convicted of terrorism.

It is the law's broad definition of a terrorist that has alarmed human rights activists and government opponents.

Under the law, one is a terrorist if convicted of any of the following:

—Provoking fear or terror among the general population.

—Destroying public or private buildings, highways, communications facilities or pipelines.

—Committing acts which endanger the life, health or the possessions of other people.

—Making, acquiring or storing firearms, explosives or their ingredients.

—Adversely affecting international relations or the security of the state.

—Forming part of a band of three or more people who utilize terrorism to accomplish their objectives.

—Using the news media to incite people to terrorism.

—Speaking out publicly in favor of an act of terrorism or a terrorist.

The National Human Rights Commission has begun a campaign to collect 50,000 signatures on a petition requesting the national legislature to repeal the law, which the commission describes as unconstitutional and a threat to basic human rights.

Most of the public opposition has come from Marxist politicians and publications, although Vice President Javier Alva Orlandini said he favored eliminating the reference to news-media terrorism.

No political organization has claimed responsibility for the terrorist acts and the dynamitings have been condemned by extreme leftist and rightist groups.

The government blames the Lighted Path, a small group of students and professors operating out of the university in Ayacucho, but their complicity in the violence has not been proven.

The independent, but generally pro-government newspaper La Prensa of Lima suggested that drug traffickers were paying peasants to carry out the terrorism to divert police attention from drug activities.

Police sources said a majority of the peasants detained in the Andes claim they were paid to set their dynamite charges, but deny knowing the identity or motives of those who paid them.

Pope shooting stops nation in tracks

By Mike Qualls
Hearst Special News Service

Washington — "Not again."

That was the phrase on everyone's lips here yesterday as the nation's capital, only just recovering from the trauma of the attempt to kill President Reagan six weeks ago, was stopped in its tracks again by news of the shooting of Pope John Paul II in Rome.

Thousands of persons, both Catholics and members of other faiths, flocked to churches here to pray for the man who had told Washingtonians when he was here last year that "love is stronger than danger."

There was reaction from official Washington — Reagan called the assassination attempt "shocking," Vice President George Bush sadly termed it "madness" and Secretary of State Alexander Haig, a lifelong Catholic who had an audience with the Pope earlier this month in Rome, angrily branded the shooting a "cowardly and outrageous attack."

But there also was reaction, ranging from outrage to resignation, from lesser known Washingtonians who help make up the faceless horde that keeps the wheels of government moving here.

While many residents went to church to pray, others crowded around television sets in offices, restaurants and bars to catch snatches of news about the shooting and the pope's condition.

Everywhere there was a curious lack of conversation as people listened to the news in silence with what seemed to be almost a resignation to the inevitability of such attacks in today's violent world.

"The world's gone crazy," murmured one man in a restaurant near the White House.

"So what else is new," replied his companion as a network newsman read a dispatch from Rome saying that the pope had been wounded five times.

But there also was anger.

That was best summed up by a janitor in a central Washington office building who paused over his broom and glared at a reporter who asked him what he thought of the attack.

"I think they ought to left the b-----d who did it dead in the street," he growled and went back to his sweeping.

Others exhibited amazement and sadness.

One man on the street outside the White House could not understand why anyone would shoot the pope "who is regarded as a symbol of peace.

A woman outside St. Matthews Cathedral, the principle landmark of the Catholic Church in Washington, said she had come to "pray...to heal our society."

Reagan heard of the attempted assassination shortly before noon when presidential counsellor Edwin Meese burst into his office with the news.

A stunned Reagan's first reaction was to say, "I'll pray for him."

After ordering his staff to keep him informed of developments, the president then telephoned Terence Cardinal Cooke in New York to express his concern and prayers for the 60-year-old Polish-born pontiff. The cardinal promised to relay Reagan's words to the Vatican.

Later, the White House cabled a message from Reagan to the pope, which stated: "I have just received the shocking news of the attack on you. All Americans join me in hopes and prayers for your speedy recovery for the injuries you have suffered in the attack. Our prayers are with you."

Haig, who was one of several prominent governments who attended a special mass for the pope late yesterday at St. Matthews Cathedral, sent a separate message to the pope, saying: "I was deeply shocked at the news of the cowardly and outrageous attack on your life today. Please be assured that all Americans are praying fervently that God will grant you the most speedy and complete recovery."

In a meeting with reporters here after the shooting in Rome, Bush appeared both angry and frustrated as he termed the rise in terrorism and attempts on the life of world leaders as "madness."

"We've got to find some way to do something about it," said the vice president, who, when asked how, sadly conceded, "I don't know."

Murder no stranger to Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican is guardian of Christ's legacy of love, but violence is no stranger to its ancient halls. The 23-year-old Turk accused of shooting Pope John Paul II joins a long line of schemers, rivals and lunatics who have tried to kill a pope.

The danger has subsided over the past century with the decline of the Vatican's influence in European politics. But in the first millenium, the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, papal murder was not unheard of as an instrument of diplomacy.

One of the best known cases was that of Boniface VIII, whose attempts to subjugate Philip the Fair of France to the clergy became a titanic struggle between church and state.

In 1303, Philip made Boniface an offer: renounce the papacy or die. Boniface chose death, and only at the last minute was murder prevented. Boniface's angry subjects drove Philip's men away, but the experience destroyed the proud pontiff's spirit and he died a few weeks later.

Boniface's successor, Benedict XI, refused to pardon the late pope's assailants. He died after one year on the Throne of St. Peter, in what the history books call "mysterious circumstances." He had just eaten some dried figs.

As one historical account of papal misfortunes notes, "this was a period of poisonings carried out mostly with mixtures of herbs."

A ninth-century pope, Formosus, managed to live out his days in peace. But after his death his enemies, the Spoletos, came to power in Rome. Bent on vengeance, they dug up his body, displayed it in public and threw it into the Tiber River.

Another unfortunate pontiff was John X, who was smothered to death in 928 on the orders of the infamous schemer Marozia so that her son could succeed him as Pope John XI.

Pope Lucius II was struck by a stone during an assault on his stronghold in Rome and died a week later.

At least three popes are believed to have been poisoned during the Renaissance. But for the next 200 years there were no recorded assassination attempts.

The next victim may have been Pius VIII, who died on Nov. 30, 1830 of a sudden illness. The College of Cardinals ordered an autopsy, suspecting poison, but the result was never made known.

Pius VII, his predecessor, was kidnapped and forced to attend Napoleon's coronation in Paris. And Pius IX had to flee for his life disguised as a simple monk when the shortlived Republic of Rome was set up amid the revolutionary fervor of 1848. But popekilling was by now a thing of the past.

Pope Paul VI had stones thrown at him by a mob in Sardinia in 1970. The same year, an embittered Bolivian painter stabbed him in the chest as he disembarked from a plane in Manila. That would-be assassin, Benjamin Mendoza, said he did it "to save the world from witchcraft."

Paul survived the attack, and not until after his death in 1978 was it known that he had even been injured.

Last week, speaking to the Swiss Guards who protect the pope in the Vatican, Pope John Paul II said: "We pray to the Lord that he should keep violence and fanaticism far from the walls of the Vatican."

Seven days later, a young man identified by police as an escaped Turkish terrorist shot the pope as he was greeting the faithful in St. Peter's Square.

Doctors, son-in-law give different reports of Ann Odre's condition

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The shooting of Ann Odre during an assassination attemt on Pope Pau II left the woman in "very grave condition," her son-in-law says. But doctors in Italy say the 58-year-old widow is listed in "stable" condition.

"She's in very, very grave condition," Dr. Thomas Kenjarski, a dentist, said Thursday. "The bullet went through one of her lungs and the diaphragm and creased the pancreas, spleen and some of her intestine.

"She has been bleeding internally and has two drainage tubes to remove blood," he said.

Kenjarski said he was receiving reports about his mother-in-law from his wife, Joanne, who flew to Rome after the Wednesday shooting to be with her mother in Santo Spirito Hospital.

Mrs. Odre, widowed for six years, left May 4 with other Buffalo women on a pilgrimage to shrines in Europe.

She and another tour patron, Margaret Griffin, were standing on chairs in St. Peter's Square to try to get a better look at the pontiff as he rode by only 30 feet away when shots rang out.

"I was taking pictures of the pope when I heard three shots," Mrs. Griffin said in a telephone interview. "I thought they were firecrackers, but the next thing I knew I saw the pope was shot, and I saw him fall right before my eyes."

She said Mrs. Odre then called out, "Help me, I'm shot."

Mrs. Griffin rode to the hospital with Mrs. Odre, who pleaded, "Don't leave me. Stay with me."

On Thursday, doctors in Rome reported that Mrs. Odre was in "stable" condition but not out of danger. They said the bullet damaged her pancreas and spleen.

The doctors said another woman who was hit in the gunfire — Rose Hall, 20, who once lived in Shirley, Mass., and now lives in West Germany — was in good condition.

Kenjarski said his wife was "very upset" when she arrived in Rome and found her mother in worse condition than they had been led to believe — a problem he blamed on a "communications gap."

Meanwhile, the Most Rev. Edward Head, bishop of the Buffalo Diocese, celebrated a special Mass on Thursday, leading more than 700 attending in prayers on behalf of the pope and Mrs. Odre.

Events of day pope was shot

By ROBERT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In his frescoed private study, Pope John Paul II took a last glance at the eight-page speech he had prepared for the faithful that Wednesday afternoon.

In a room in the Pensione Isa, a seedy hotel 16 blocks away on the Via Cicerone, a young man put a shabby gray jacket on his wiry frame, shoved a 9mm pistol in his pocket and walked down three flights of stairs and into the sunny streets of Rome, police sources said.

It was 10:30 a.m. The young man was Mehmet Ali Agca, a 23-year-old escaped terrorist who had left his native Turkey a month before with a forged passport and a plan to kill the pope, police said.

The pope had no official appointments that day. He lunched at 1:00 p.m. and at 4:30 he put on the white robes he always wore for his weekly public audience in St. Peter's Square. With him were his private secretary, the Rev. Stanislaw Dziwisz, and his manservant Angelo Gugel.

Below the window of the pontiff's apartments, where he stands to give his Sunday blessing, 15,000 tourists and pilgrims were assembling in the square.

At 4:30, the young man in the gray coat asked the Rev. Martino Siciliani of Perugia to point out the spot where the pontiff would drive onto the square. He spoke fluent English, Siciliani recalled.

The Italian priest obligingly pointed to the Arco delle Campane — Archway of the Bells — from which the pope would ride forth in his open white jeep.

The young man stationed himself 10 feet from one of the white, wooden barricades that lined the route to be taken by the pope. In front of him were Ann Odre of Buffalo, N.Y., who was waving an American flag, and Rose Hall, the wife of a Protestant minister serving U.S. troops in West Germany.

At 4:50, the pope and his aides Dziwisz and Gugel left the study and went downstairs. Latecomers were hurrying into the piazza to catch a glimpse of the pontiff.

A cheer went up at 5 p.m sharp when the pope rode into the square from under the Arco delle Campane on the southern side of the entrance to St. Peter's Basilica — the left-hand side to someone facing the church.

John Paul was standing in the back seat with Dziwisz. Gugel was in the front with the driver. As the open car slowly moved through the crowd, the beaming pope reached out to shake hands and caress the heads of those who pushed to touch him. A mild breeze ruffled his white hair. Mothers held up babies for a papal kiss. Children clutched pink and blue balloons.

At 5:10, the jeep finished its first circuit of the square and began its second, carrying the pontiff to the velvet throne from which he would speak. The throne was on a raised platform in front of the church, between the larger-than-life statues of Saints Peter and Paul.

The jeep finished its second circuit at 5:17 and had just made its final turn at the northwest corner of the piazza — on the right-hand side of the church.

The crowd was cheering, clapping, singing — a Wednesday just like any Wednesday with the pope in St. Peter's Square.

Then the young man pulled out his pistol and raised it over the head of a tourist snapping a photo. The tall, broadchested pontiff, his hands outstretched to the crowd, was an easy target.

The gunman fired. A look of surprise crossed John Paul's face. Another shot. The pontiff groaned and slumped back into the left-hand side of the back seat. Blood stained his white robes. The attacker fired at least one more shot, then pushed his way through the crowd, trying to escape.

Mrs. Odre fell to the pavement with a bullet in her chest. Another bullet fractured Mrs. Hall's right elbow.

A dreadful hush fell over St. Peter's Square. Then people began shouting and shoving to escape. Several monks raced across the piazza, robes fluttering. "They've shot the pope, they've shot the pope," the monks cried.

Soviet, Romanian head toward linkup

AP Laserphoto

Soyuz 40 mission commander Leonid Popov, right, and Romanian "cosmonaut-researcher" Dumitru Prunariu, train recently for their mission at the Gargarin Training Center in the Soviet Union. The flight marks the ninth between a Soviet and one from another country.

MOSCOW (AP) — The first Romanian in space and a record-holding Soviet cosmonaut soared today toward a rendezvous with the Salyut 6 space station in the first Soviet launching since the U.S. space shuttle landed last month.

The crew of Romanian Dumitru Prunariu, 28, and veteran Soviet spacecraft commander Leonid Popov, 36, was expected to link their Soyuz 40 space capsule late today or early Saturday with the Salyut 6 lab, where Soviet cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalyonok and Viktor Savinykh have been working since March 14.

Prunariu, 28, carried a sample of Romanian earth into orbit with him. Popov and fellow Soviet cosmonaut Valery Ryumin set a world space endurance record of 185 days last year.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the cosmonauts were in good condition after their launch Thursday from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Soviet central Asia. The flight marks the end of the first phase of the "Intercosmos" space series, organized by the Soviet Union and its Communist allies.

Since March 1978, Soviet spacemen have gone aloft with cosmonauts from Czechoslovakia, Mongolia, Vietnam, Cuba, East Germany, Poland and Bulgaria.

Soviet authorities have offered no explanation for the order in which the cosmonauts have been launched. Some Western analysts believe Romania came last because the independent-minded foreign policy of Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu — including opposition to the 1968 Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia — has sometimes antagonized Soviet officials.

Waiting to take part in joint flights with the Soviet Union, now that the initial Intercosmos flights are completed, are cosmonauts from two countries outside the Soviet bloc, France and India.

Prunariu, a senior lieutenant in the Romanian air force and formerly an aviation engineer, has been in cosmonaut training since 1978.

There was no indication how long Prunariu and Popov would remain aboard the Salyut 6 station. Similar missions have lasted about a week.

The United States conducted the first launch in its space shuttle program in April, the first time any country has launched a reuseable spacecraft.

Soviet authorities claim the spacecraft used by their cosmonauts so far are economically justified, even though they are used only once.

Japan gives different account of sub collision

By JASON HYLAND
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has asked the United States to explain discrepancies between a U.S. and Japanese reports on the April 9 collision between a U.S. nuclear-powered submarine and a Japanese freighter, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said today.

Japan's Maritime Safety Agency report, delivered Thursday to the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo, summarized statements by the 13 Japanese survivors of the 2,340-ton Nissho Maru, which sank after colliding with the 6,800-ton USS George Washington in bad weather in the East China Sea, 110 miles southwest of the Japanese coast.

The freighter sank 15 minutes after the collision and its captain and chief engineer were killed. There were no American casualties reported. The U.S. Navy said the Polaris-missile-firing submarine suffered no damage to its nuclear reactor or its weapon systems.

American officials had no immediate comment on the Japanese report, a copy of which was made available to The Associated Press.

The Japanese and U.S. reports differ on the site of the accident, the appearance of the freighter after the collision and other key points about the incident. The collision caused a public uproar here because the submarine crew failed to attempt a rescue and the Navy did not report its involvement until a full day later.

The U.S. Navy has accepted liability in the incident.

The submarine's commander, Robert D. Woehl, said in the U.S. account that based on his brief observation of the ship and his evaluation of the "physical jolt experienced aboard the George Washington" he decided the Nissho Maru "had not been seriously damaged."

But Japanese crewmen said that shortly after seeing what looked like a "large merchant ship's smokestack" at the surface of the water, there was a "crashing" sound and water began to rush into the engine room through a 3-foot hole in the hull. The captain ordered a distress flag hoisted, according to the Maritime Safety Agency report.

"I thought (the submarine) would rescue us because it did not submerge for a while," said a Japanese crewmen who reported seeing the George Washington after the collision.

A P3-C patrol plane on maneuvers with the submarine was soon sent to check the scene of the accident and saw three ships, "none in distress," according to the U.S. Navy's preliminary findings, which were given to Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito in New York on May 6.

After boarding a raft, nine Japanese crewmen reported seeing the aircraft at a low altitude — one said he saw the pilot's seat and another made a detailed sketch of a plane later. The plane circled "like it was watching us," before the Nissho Maru sunk, according to the accounts.

Maritime Safety Agency official Takashi Noro said last week in a telephone interview that if the ship was still above water it is "unlikely" the advanced anti-submarine plane did not sight it.

Noro said the agency requested U.S. "clarification" and also asked why the Japanese crewmen placed the scene of the accident 3.5 nautical miles from the site listed in the U.S. Navy report.

Rally turns to violence

ORGAS, W.Va. (AP) — Screaming "scabs, scabs!" and "Burn the pillbox!" about 300 striking miners attending what started as a peaceful unity rally stormed a coal company, torching a guardhouse and pickup and smashing windows.

As the fires burned out, the miners and their families returned to a nearby field for a "celebration." They drank soft drinks and beer and joined with a band in singing "Praise the Lord." No arrests or injuries were reported, but damage to the mine site was estimated at $100,000.

The United Mine Workers' rally in southern West Virginia began quietly enough Thursday with a prayer for unity and strength in the strike's seventh week.

But the demonstration soon turned violent when miners, most of them from Charleston, W.Va.-based District 17, marched the half mile from their rally to property where the Elk Run Coal Co. is constructing a new mine.

The miners smashed windows, overturned two trucks and heaved rocks through the door of the company's guardhouse. Some of the men set one of the overturned trucks and the one-room guardhouse ablaze, destroying the truck and gutting the interior of the building.

Two vehicles involved in an accident that occurred about 5 p.m. Thursday on Rankin Highway near Interstate 20 rest at the side of the highway. The 1980 Ford pickup, left, was driven by Joe Weatherly, 50, of Lenorah. According to police reports, he attempted to make a U-turn while going south on the Rankin Highway. Also going south on the same highway was the 1977 Chevrolet truck driven by Michael Vollmers, 35, of Route 7, Midland. The two collided. Weatherly was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital and released. Vollmers was not injured.

Truman battling pneumonia

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former first lady Bess Truman is making progress in her battle against pneumonia, but she remains in serious condition today, her doctor says.

The 96-year-old widow of President Harry S. Truman has been hospitalized since May 6, when she broke her hip after a fall out of bed.

Following surgery May 7 at Research Medical Center, she developed problems with her kidneys and blood pressure and came down with pneumonia Tuesday.

Mrs. Truman is receiving a variety of medications, including antibiotics, diuretics and nutrients through two tubes in her chest, and Graham said doctors were monitoring her urinary output.

The hospital said earlier her blood pressure had stabilized.

Automakers will get no more help

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration plans no more special help for U.S. automakers, even though a rollback of Japanese imports is unlikely to be much help for the struggling industry, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis says.

"I think at this point, really, the ball is in Detroit's court," Lewis said in an interview this week.

Four months ago, Lewis called the plight of the domestic industry "the single most pressing problem" his department faces.

DEAR ABBY

Impotent man seeks power of suggestion

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 34 and have been married for seven months. Both my wife and I are still virgins because I am impotent. I have gone to my family doctor and he set up an appointment with a psychologist. My wife and I saw this psychologist for six weeks, then we quit going because it was too expensive and we weren't getting anywhere.

I read in your column that tight shorts could cut down on a man's fertility. Is it possible that this loss of fertility could carry over to impotence?

A friend suggested I see a hypnotist. Does that make sense to you? Please help me, Abby, because my wife seems to think the problem is mine to solve. I can't go to my minister because I know him too well. Thanks. — IMPOTENT

DEAR IMPOTENT: One's fertility (or lack of it) has nothing to do with one's potency. Hypnosis can be a valuable therapeutic tool, but make absolutely certain that the hypnotist is competent and well-trained. If hypnosis fails, see a qualified sex therapist.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I'm a 25-year-old newly wed woman who is against stag parties because I know they include strippers who are usually hookers. My husband (I'll call him Duffy) has been invited to a stag that's being given for a co-worker. He's not a particularly close friend — just a guy he works with.

Abby, I know what goes on at such parties. The girls undress for the men, dance with them, drink with them and a whole lot worse! I have told Duffy that I don't want him to go, but he says he has to go. He says he won't DO anything, he will just go and watch.

Abby, in your opinion, should Duffy go to this stag or respect my wishes and stay home? — DUFFY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If Duffy wants to go, he should go. It's your right to go where you want to go or stay away for your own reasons, but no one has the right to impose his (or her) wishes on another adult.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I decided to write to you about a disagreement we've had. My sister is going to the Cleveland Clinic next week for surgery. Her home is in Canada, but the clinic is only 65 miles from our home. I want to be near my sister, so I plan to stay at a motel near the clinic. My sister's husband plans to stay at the same motel, so to cut expenses we thought we'd share a room with twin beds.

I have known this brother-in-law for 13 years and we are very good friends. There is absolutely NO physical attraction between us, never was, and never will be.

My husband is having a king-sized fit! He says he trusts me, and he trusts my brother-in-law, but he doesn't want us sharing a room. My sister doesn't see anything wrong with it.

What do you think? Hurry your answer. — PLAIN DEALER READER

DEAR READER: I don't see anything wrong with it either, but unless your husband is comfortable with that arrangement, don't double up with your brother-in-law. It could be a very expensive way to save money.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: One of the nicest gifts you can give someone who lives with a shut-in is a little time off. Call and tell the person who must spend 24 hours a day living with a shut-in that you would like to take over for an afternoon, an evening, or even a hour, so he (or she) can get out. What a lovely present that would be! Few realize that the companion (usually a relative) is as much a shut-in as the shut-in is.

(You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Speaker urges students to get their classmates involved

HONOLULU (AP) — Perhaps it was her youth that made the remarks of a petite television news reporter so appealing to an assembled group of high-school student leaders.

It hadn't been so long ago, only six years, that KGMB reporter Elisa Yadao had been on the other side of the podium, listening to words of encouragement from someone else concerned with ways of dealing with society's problems.

More than 200 student leaders from public and private schools gave Ms. Yadao a standing ovation for the talk she delivered at the annual three-day Hawaii State Student Conference.

She told tomorrow's leaders their work would begin with those students who did not attend the conference, "who don't care what you do here."

"Remember the students who are not here, the students who will probably never come to a conference or participate," Ms. Yadao said. "All too often they are forgotten. They find negative ways of making their voices heard. They resort to truancy, violence and vandalism. It hurts you, and it hurts them.

"It's left to you to seek them out. You know they are not going to come to you. If you let them go, you're not a leader."

To support her argument, Ms. Yadao noted that only 11 percent of the student body at the University of Hawaii participated in recent student elections.

She cautioned the student leaders not to become frustrated when dealing with the state legislature, the board of education and other state agencies because "the ways of government are very, very slow."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Try this great beer biscuit recipe

DEAR HELOISE:

You and my morning coffee go together — along with those beer biscuits — if I could find my copy of the recipe you printed.

Could you please run it again? I promise I will hang onto this one — Mrs. E.J. Gilly

Dear heart, all you need is 4 cups of biscuit mix, 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 (12-ounce) can of beer. (If you only need a few biscuits, cut the recipe in half). The beer should be at room temperature before using.

Mix and bake the biscuits as you normally do when using a prepared mix. If you make your own biscuits from scratch, do so as usual, but use the beer in place of any liquid called for in the recipe. Don't forget to add sugar in the amount called for above.

For those of you who perhaps haven't tried these beer biscuits, grab your scissors and clip this column before the paper goes into the trash. I think you and your family will enjoy them as much as Mrs. Gilly does.

They are a cinch to make and will turn a plain meal into something special morning, noon or night! — Hugs, Heloise

A FOIL TRICK

Dear Heloise: A 36 percent increase in our rural electric rates finally got me in gear to write you about my experience last summer....

We visited our son and family in Alaska. So we could sleep better in the long daylight hours there, they covered our bedroom window with alumninum foil.

After arriving home, I decided to use the same idea to keep out the hot sun on the sunny side of the house.

It worked even better than I had hoped for and we didn't have to turn on our air conditioner all summer. (In hotter climates, I'm sure this would not be true.)

The foil is not that objectionable-looking from either the inside or outside. — Arlene Schneider

GARLIC PRESS

Dear Heloise: To keep particles of garlic out of the press, try my method:

Cut a small, double thickness of your wonderful nylon net (I use white) and just place it in the press. Go ahead and squeeze the garlic as you usually do.

When finished, you will find the particles of garlic on the net, not in the press. The net may then be washed, ready for use the next time. — Jim Botts

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: As a new bride, I did dumb things too.

When cooking some rice for just the two of us, I put a whole pound into the boiling water. When it started to cook, I had every available pan full!

My husband claims — after all these years — we are still eating some of that rice! And he surely enjoys telling this one on me...— P.M.

CAST COVERUP

Dear Heloise: At the time my son was to be in a school program, the cast on his broken arm was quite dirty.

I cut the foot part off a knee-length white stocking, then used the leg part to cover the entire cast.

It looked so nice I did the same thing to another one, so I could wash one while he was wearing the other.

His classmates thought this was real cool! — Mrs. Jean Copeland

Some kids might like these covers cut from an old pair of knee-length sport socks — a pair which has their school colors. At least, they would be in the spirit of things. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: When waiting for something or someone, start a job you can't finish — such as writing a long letter or cleaning out dresser drawers, etc.

The time goes by all too quickly and you have the satisfaction of having accomplished something, even if it's only partially done... — Diane Rodgers

LAUNDERING LACES

Dear Heloise: Shoe laces can be washed in the machine without getting all tangled up or lost. Just slip them through the buttonhole of some garment and tie in a loose knot. — Mrs. Carl Bates

THREE'S TOO MANY

Dear Heloise: With three active boys, matching socks on daundry can be a real headache as each boy wears a different size, but all wear the same type.

To speed up the sorting, I marked the middle size pair with a dot of red fingernail polish. It's easier to spot the smaller and larger size socks after picking out the middle size that's clearly marked.

Now if I could just end up with an even number... — Doris

TOP IT OFF

Dear Heloise: I'd often wondered why most dustpans have a hollow handle.

One day I figured it out all by myself. It's made to fit over the broom handle, I guess, 'cause it fits perfectly perched on top. No more stooping over to pick it up. — Martha

RIBBON TRICK

Dear Heloise: When you don't have a matching ribbon for a child's hair, check your sewing basket. Chances are you will have some leftover seam binding in the color you are looking for.

My little girl has had "ribbons" in many colors because I had many cards of seam binding with only a small amount left on each one. - Dianne Carr

Ingenuity save your day? Write Heloise care of this newspaper and tell her all about it. She can't answer your letter personally but, sure as necessity is the mother of invention, she'll share the most ingenious ideas with her readers.

Dear Mr. McCollam: We have this square grand piano made by Steinway in 1876. We would like to know who the original owner was and its value. — B.L.O., Glendale, Calif.

Dear B.L.O.: How could anyone possibly know who the original owner was? If you have the time (which I don't) to write to Steinway and give them the serial number, they might be able to tell you who the dealer was that it was shipped to in 1876 (if they keep records that far back). If the dealer is still in existence, he can tell you who bought the piano (if he keeps records that far back).

The value would be in the $2,500 to $3,500 range.

Dear Mr. McCollam: This cheese dish has an insignia inside the cover as shown. I would like to know when and where it was made and its value. The painting of the birds and tree are natural colors and the edge of the lid and the dish are gold. — Y.G., Pelham, N.H.

Dear Y.G.: This is Royal Bonn china and was made in the late 19th century. The mark is that of the F.A. Mehlem factory in Bonn, Germany. It was in use from 1836 on. The date 1755 is the date of the founding of the pottery at Bonn.

Kids help others deal with alcohol abuse

By BARBARA REINHOLD-HARVEY

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — Sometimes the best help a junior high-school student can receive comes not from a teacher or parent but from a senior high-school student.

That theory, "kids helping kids," is the idea behind a new Alcohol Awareness Program developed by a St. Mary's Springs High School student for elementary and junior high-school students.

The program was developed by Jeff Weinshrott, an 18-year-old Springs senior, with help from the Rev. John O'Brien, St. Mary's Springs chaplain.

The program is aimed at students in fifth through eighth grades, with the goal of helping students learn the dangers of alcohol before they develop a drinking problem.

"The purpose is to make the kids aware of alcohol and its abuses. It pertains to drugs, too, because alcohol is a drug," Jeff said.

Jeff got the idea for the program after discussing alcohol abuse in a religion class. He found volunteers for the program among his friends and by soliciting applications for positions through school announcements.

The students receive no pay or academic credit for the project, although they are excused from attending classes at times when they are presenting the program at local Catholic parish schools.

"I don't think any of the students care whether they get credit for it," Jeff said. "They are just enjoying it. The reward we get out of it is that if we get across to one kid and get help for him, it makes us feel good."

Other students involved expressed similar feelings.

"I think kids should be aware of what will happen later on in life," added volunteer Paul Jordan, a junior. "I know I had trouble dealing with whether or not to drink, and I think I made the right decision."

The students try not to give a negative slant to the program, because they believe this can "turn kids off" to the message they are trying to deliver.

"A point we try to get across is that drinking is not necessarily bad. In m oderation, it is OK. It becomes a problem when it is done to excess," Jeff said .

A typical presentation begins with a movie on alcohol abuse and a question-and-answer session. Small group discussions with Springs students as group leader s follow.

Bob Magner, chemical dependency counselor at the Mental Health Center, and Orlaine Gabert, executive director of Linden Center, are present for each program and follow group discussions with talks on alcohol abuse from their professional perspectives.

"We give them the facts and then discuss the old tales about black coffee and cold showers for hangovers. We don't try to put across a lot of different things," Jeff said.

"The younger kids really answer surprisingly well to the questions," Paul said. "It is surprising how much they already know. They still are confused on a lot of the stuff dealing with alcohol and drugs and we are trying to clear up some of their questions.

"I think students have more confidence in another student," Jeff pointed out. "A lot of studies have shown, too, that kids in lower grades often follow the example of students in higher grades."

The informal atmosphere at all Alcohol Awareness presentations makes the younger students feel more confident

Cleaning out cupboards stately business at mansions

By LINDA FRANKLIN
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Bette Bogart begins her business week cleaning out the cupboards in someone else's home.

"By Thursday night, I feel like I'm opening a new store," the vivacious Little Rock businesswoman says.

She moves from house to house, selling everything from sterling silver and crystal goblets to horsehair petticoats from the 1950s.

The business is estate sales or house sales, an alternative to auctions. Mrs. Bogart has been in the business for several years.

Heirs to family estates or people who've decided to move into smaller quarters turn the house keys over to her and she liquidates their possessions.

"I tell them to take what they want and forget the rest," Mrs. Bogart says. She advises them to stay away on sale days because of the trauma of seeing their possessions carted away by strangers.

If they remember something they want to keep, they call her and she puts it away. She calls them if she runs across something that is more valuable than the owners might realize, like glassware and china pieces.

"It depends on the mark on it," Mrs. Bogart says. For example, she found a cream and sugar set with the mark "R.S. Prussia" on it in one of her sales. "This one was listed for $125. Most would have been $10."

Mrs. Bogart uses antique books to get an idea of the value of some of the items she sells. She also checks with friends who are familiar with glass and china to see if she has any hidden treasures.

Unlike many businesses, Mrs. Bogart's is not feeling the economic pinch. Through the first three months of 1981, she conducted five sales. That compared with one during the same period in 1980.

For her hectic week's work, Mrs. Bogart usually charges a 25 percent commission. If she helps someone with a smaller sale that involves only a few hours work, Mrs. Bogart charges a flat fee.

She admits it isn't a get-rich-quick business. After she paid her expenses from one sale, Mrs. Bogart had made $125.

Mrs. Bogart says it's easy to empty a house of belongings in two days. The prices range from a nickel for an old apron or glass to hundreds of dollars for antique dining room suites and mint-condition secretaries.

Sometimes she can sell more than that. She still shakes her head and smiles when she thinks about the coffeemaker that didn't get plugged in at the start of one sale.

The price was 50 cents.

Tomatoes are a good sidekick for fish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Whenever we have the luck to come on a good version of Sole Duglere, we are reminded of how much tomatoes benefit fish fillets. The dish itself was created in the 1850s for the Cafe Anglais in Paris, considered one of the glorious French restaurants of its day. Adolphe Duglere, a co-owner of the Anglais and in command of its kitchen, invented the dish that bears his name. Sole Duglere has a lovely creamy sauce to which tomato adds its color and flavor.

The following recipe comes from "Cooking Fish and Shellfish" by Ruth A. Spear (Doubleday), a book whose praises we have sung before.

FILLETS OF SOLE DUGLERE

1 shallot, chopped
6 peppercorns
½ bay leaf
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 cup dry white wine
Salt and freshly ground white pepper
2 medium ripe tomatoes, blanched and peeled, or 3 canned peeled tomatoes
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup heavy cream
Dash of cayenne pepper
Lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Make a stock by combining in a saucepan the fishbones, broken into 2 or 3 pieces, the shallot, peppercorns, bay leaf, salt, 1 cup of water, and wine. Bring to a boil, lower heat, and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Strain.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, Butter a 12-inch oval rangetop and ovenproof dish. Cut the fillets in half lengthwise (you will now have 8 pieces). Score them slightly on the milky side, season with salt and pepper, fold in half, scored side inside with the pointed end on top. Arrange in the prepared dish, add the stock, bring to a simmer on top of the stove, cover with buttered foil, and poach in the preheated oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

Cut the tomatoes into quarters, pick out the seeds with the tip of a pointed knife, and cut each quarter into 3 lengthwise strips. Set aside.

When the fish is done, drain the cooking liquid into a 3-quart saucepan, replace the foil cover, and keep the fish warm while you prepare the sauce.

Bring the poaching liquid to a boil and cook rapidly over high heat until reduced to about 1 cup. Add any liquid that has collected in the fish dish during this time.

Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in another saucepan, stir in the flour, and cook for 2 to 3 minutes without letting the mixture become more than pale blond in color. Remove from heat and whisk in the poaching liquid, stirring until smooth and thick. Return to heat, bring to a boil, and cook, stirring, for 2 minutes (the sauce will be very thick). Once more stir in any liquid that has collected in the fish dish, then stir in the cream. Season to taste with salt, pepper, a dash of cayenne, and a few drops of lemon juice. Swirl in the remaining tablespoon of butter, then fold in the tomatoes and parsley, spoon over the fish, and serve at once. Serves 6 to 8 as a first course, 4 as a main course.

Cookbook reaches golden anniversary

NEW YORK (AP) — First published privately as a group of recipes Irma S. Rombauer had compiled for a St. Louis, Mo., church cooking course, the "Joy of Cooking" marks its 50th anniversary this year.

The 500 recipes in the original edition, published in 1931, have evolved into a modern compendium of more than 4,500 recipes and 1,000 illustrations.

The book has always been a family affair, passing from Mrs. Rombauer to her daughter Marion Rombauer Becker and husband, John. Now Mrs. Rombauer's grandsons, Ethan and Mark Becker, are in charge. Ethan is a graduate of the Paris Cordon Bleu cooking school.

Diabetic seeks advice on effective weight control

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Dear Shirley: I enjoy your column very much, and I learn a lot from it, so I hope you will help me with my problem.

I am a 58-year-old diabetic. I am 5-foot-5 and weigh 206 pounds. I have always battled the bulge, but since becoming a diabetic over 10 years ago, weight loss has been impossible, never mind keeping it off.

I know that losing weight would benefit me greatly in many ways, but how do I do it? I would appreciate any help you can give me. — S.S.

Dear S.S.: I understand your dilemma and frustration which is shared by many other diabetics. I have recently received a flood of mail on this subject.

Generally, the diabetic who fails to lose weight effectively is not too different from anyone else who wants to lose weight — but doesn't. The best diet for permanent weight reduction, diabetic or not, is high in nutrition, controlled in calories, and adequate in protein, complex carbohydrates, and fat.

The emphasis is on the word - CHANGE. You must learn to change the way you have been feeding your body — which is obviously wrong for you — or you would not be overweight. These changes must be forever, or you will keep repeating the failure pattern, just as you have been doing.

I believe in eating breakfast, lunch, and dinner, with controlled snacks between meals, if desired. They often help in keeping blood sugar levels on a more even keel. Many borderline diabetics find that when they lose the weight, they no longer have the problem. Being overweight usually aggravates diabetics.

If you will follow my home study program, you will learn the kinds and quantities of foods that will reduce your weight, increase your nutrition, and help get the diabetes under control. You may not require as much insulin as your weight goes down.

Remember that reducing one's weight is a personal thing that only you can do. Stay under the watchful care of your doctor to regulate your insulin and guide your progress. As people grow older they often find weight reduction slower because they usually are not as active as when they were younger.

Don't be impatient. If you only lose one pound per week, this time next year, you will have lost 52 pounds!

Dear Shirley: I love ice cream, but I know it is very high in calories and fat so I try not to eat it very often.

Can you tell me the calories in sherbet and frozen custards compared to ice cream? Do any of them have cholesterol? — E.G.

Dear E.G.: Ice cream has 200 calories, 4 grams of protein, 21 grams of carbohydrate, 11 grams of fat, and 45 mg. of cholesterol for 100 gram serving.

Sherbet has 135 calories, 1 gram of protein, 31 grams of carbohydrate, 1 gram of fat, and little or no cholesterol per 100 gram serving.

System eases packing, unpacking dilemna

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — With statistics showing that people will average 13 moves in their lifetime, learning to prepare and pack properly can ease what might otherwise be a difficult experience.

"Being in control of the moving process begins with planning," says Tim Walker, public-information director of U-Haul Moving and Storage, with headquarters in Phoenix.

"If you organize the details of the packing job as soon as you know your moving date, the actual physical implementation of your plans will seem almost painless," adds Walker, who suggests including the following in your plan:

—A timetable in which you designate dates for packing the contents of each room. By spreading the task over several days or weeks, you won't become exhausted as you might by trying to pack everything in one or two days.

—A method for inventorying your boxes and their contents. You can either list the contents on the side of each box or assign each box a number and describe its contents in a notebook beside that number.

—A work space where you can gather all the necessary materials for packing.

—A "packing kit" including wide carton-sealing tape; felt-tip markers for labeling boxes; notebook for inventorying contents of boxes; heavy-duty plastic bags of all sizes; filler, wrapping and padding materials including blank newsprint (the ink on newspapers can rub off), tissue paper, plastic dry cleaner's bags, paper towels, foam padding that can be cut to needed size and blanket-style furniture pads; mattress bags, available in four sizes to protect your mattresses and box springs; and packing boxes.

Packing boxes are available from do-it-yourself moving centers, van lines, liquor stores and supermarkets. Boxes from the first two sources are strong and made for moving. Others may require seam reinforcement.

Special-purpose boxes include extra-strength book boxes, wardrobe cartons with hanger bars and double-wall "dish pak" cartons.

The following suggestions for packing are offered by U-Haul:

—Place two to three inches of crumpled paper under and over the packed items to serve as a cushion.

—Wrap each item individually. Use enough sheets of paper to form a cushioning pack.

—Pack each box firmly, but experts do not recommend putting more than 50 pounds in a box to be carried by a man or 25 pounds in a box to be carried by a woman.

—Do not pack heavier items such as irons, toasters, pots and pans with more fragile items such as dishes or glasses.

—Wrap heaviest items first and place them in the bottom of the box. Place lighter things on top.

—Put component screw, bolts, and nuts in an envelope and attach it to the item to which it belongs.

—Fill any empty spaces with crumpled paper.

—Inventory the contents of each box and add instructions such as "Fragile" and "This Side Up."

—Keep items that will be unpacked in the same room in the same boxes. In large, dark letters, print on the side of the box the room in which it will be unpacked.

—Use plastic bags for bedding nd some kinds of clothes. Their fluid shape will fit into those strange packing corners you're bound to have.

—Use drawers as boxes filled with their usual contents (only if non-breakable).

—Use furniture pads on all furniture and appliances before moving them from the room. This will prevent marring and scratching.

—Pack your cleaning utensils together because your new home will probably need a scrubdown before you unpack. Make this one of the last boxes you load so that you can get to it first.

At your new home, unpack first what you'll need to use first. Take your time about unpacking the rest, but set a definite goal for each day. This way, you won't wear yourself out, and you'll complete the task in a reasonable amount of time.

Make the unpacking process as pleasant as possible with a few comforts and indulgences:

—Unpack your stereo first. Music will soothe your nerves and make the work go much faster.

—Keep some snacks nearby. Milk, tea, fruit, cheese and crackers will restore your energy.

—Put a favorite print or piece of furniture where it was in your former home. Your favorite easy chair next to the fireplace, for example, may give you a feeling of familiarity that says "home."

Yugoslavia has rather unique system of government

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

BELGRADE -- An Iraqi oil man, in this capital city of Yugoslavia to sell precious fuel to the communist-led government, posed an interesting question as we shared a cup of tremendously strong Turkish coffee.

"It's an interesting and unique system these people have here," he said. "But, are they really socialists? They certainly aren't in the Marxist sense."

It is a rather unique system of government. It is led by the six-man Communist Party presidency that succeeded their beloved Marshal Josip Broz Tito, when he died a year ago at 88. It provides for no freedom of the press or speech -- at least when such freedom includes even the slightest criticism of the government.

However, once that right so precious to Americans is disposed of, Yugoslavia represents a relatively free society, particularly as compared to life in the Soviet Union and its satellites.

Contrary to the hardship endured by the people of Poland, Yugoslavia's stores throughout the six republics and two autonomous provinces are filled with food, clothing and other merchandise, and they are filled with shoppers laying out large amounts of dinars with the same enthusiasm enjoyed by Americans bargain hunting in supermarkets, department and specialty stores.

The women are well, if not lavishly, dressed, and their garb frequently represents imports from fashionable Western Europe manufacturers, according to a New York fashion writer who was part of this reporter's news group. Yugoslav women must own more shoes than any of the communist bloc, aligned or non-aligned, because shoe shops are everywhere, and crowded with patrons.

The people, men, women and children, step off briskly in the cities -- 180 degrees contrary to the slow, uninspired and discouraging gait I encountered here in both 1951 and '54, soon after Tito told Soviet boss Josef Stalin to go to hell. Men, as well as women, are well dressed, and they wear neckties -- officially taboo in the old days.

In the countryside, the farming is brisk and new one-family brick houses are springing up everywhere.

The farmers, perhaps, have the best of the Yugoslav life. Eighty percent of the farms are privately owned, relatively free of government commune-type controls.

In 1951, I did not see a single privately owned automobile on Belgrade's or Zagreb's main streets. Today there are freeways and there are traffic jams -- and wild drivers. Most of them are driving Italian Fiats and the fact that gasoline goes for $3.20 a gallon doesn't seem to keep them off the highways.

There are only 3 million Communist Party members in this nation of about 24 million, and party membership includes extra job privileges and opportunities in only government and some basic industry positions (steel, shipbuilding and a few others).

"Nobody asks me if I'm a party member -- I'm not -- and I don't ask my friends," a Dubrovnik friend told me. "At any rate, being in the party wouldn't help me in my job."

Business operations in many cases operate under a government-directed system of what optimistically is called "self-management," or employee ownership. Wages depend on profit and they vary seasonally in some businesses. Profits beyond these for wages are supposed to be shared -- but seldom are.

"Profits beyond wages, under our 'point' system," my friend said, "go for schools, highways and other national public improvements."

How about taxes? "Oh, we pay 50 percent, taken out of our pay each month. The farmers and others who have their own little businesses must file tax returns and pay on an annual basis."

Whose side are the Yugoslavs on? They insist they are completely non-aligned regarding either Moscow or Washington, but they tell more nasty jokes about the Russians, particularly boss Leonid Brezhnev, and they are particularly proud that Tito "went it alone" in 1948, a tough time to break with the Kremlin.

Tito is still much in the minds of all Yugoslavs, and the government makes sure of that. At the start and end of every day's radio and television programs, an announcer intones these words: "Tito, we promise we will never leave your way."

During one of my Sundays in Belgrade there were many thousands lined up for several blocks, awaiting their turn to pass by Tito's grave, many of them brought from the countryside by a fleet of 167 buses. And, Pavle Lukac, one of the planners for the 1984 Winter Olympics to be held in Sarajevo, said, with tears in his eyes, "I lived my life with Tito and this means my parent has died. We go forward but in a way we're children without parents."

Tito and communist atheism notwithstanding, Yugoslav's churches -- Orthodox, Moslem temples and mostly Roman Catholic -- are filling up again.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Breast cancer rare in young women

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 22 years of age and, as far as I know, in good health. What are the chances of my having breast cancer? — Suzy

Dear Suzy: Obviously, I can only respond to your question in generalities. Breast cancer is rare in young women. The American Cancer Society estimates that there were about 150 cases of breast cancer in the United States in 1980 among girls and women 15 to 25 years of age.

If you are at all concerned that you may have a tumor, why not check with your physician? Ignoring a disease is not a very effective form of treatment.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father is being treated for lung cancer. Although he has had to be hospitalized on occasion, he is able to spend most of his time at home. I and my children go over there very often to give my mother some practical help and emotional support. What I'm wondering about is whether cancer is contagious, and whether I'm subjecting my children to any unnecessary danger by permitting them to spend so much time with my father. — Mrs. T.M.

Dear Mrs. M.: Cancer is not contagious. It cannot be spread from one person to another by kissing, coughing, sneezing, or in any similar fashion.

If cancer were contagious, it would seem that doctors, nurses, and other health professionals who work with cancer patients would have a higher-than-average incidence of the disease; yet, such is not the case. Fear of contagion is no reason to keep your children away from your father.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine had his spleen removed following an automobile accident, and I'm wondering about the significance of this. Is the spleen like the appendix — an unnecessary organ — or does it serve some purpose? If it is of some value, can you describe what that is? — Frank

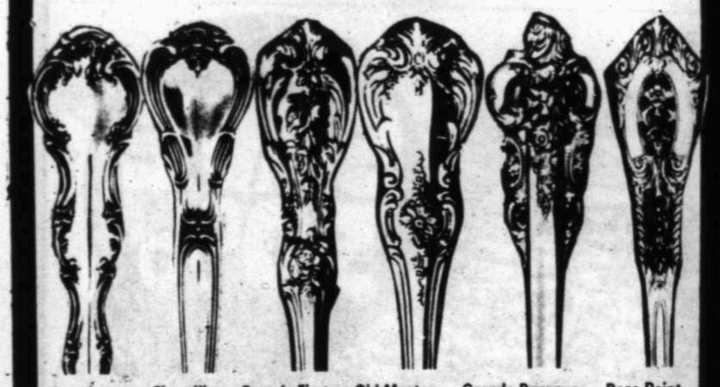

Dear Frank: The spleen plays a role in fighting infection and, as such, is a more important organ than the appendix. In fact, there recently has been increased emphasis on trying to reserve the spleen in accident victims.

At one time it was believed that a child whose spleen was removed became more susceptible to infection, but that this was not true of an adult. This attitude changed as physicians came to realize that the loss of the spleen made even a healthy adult more prone to infection. As a result, while splenectomy (the surgical removal of the spleen) cannot always be avoided, greater efforts in this direction are now being made. Fortunately, the spleen is capable of healing.

I am not suggesting that everyone who undergoes splenectomy is going to suffer serious infection; I have seen patie ts who remained in good health for years following the loss of their spleen. What I am suggesting is that the organ serves an important function, and surgeons are increasing their efforts to save it when it is found to be damaged.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

This aerial view of a street in Emberson, Texas shows the damage caused by a tornado that struck this small northeast Texas community Wednesday night. Sherriff's deputies are estimating damages to run as high as $2 million.

Emberson residents clean up town damaged by tornado

EMBERSON, Texas (AP) — Good neighbors are making it easier for residents of this East Texas town to recover from a tornado that caused an estimated $2 million damage, a sheriff's deputy says.

Chief Deputy Ted Gibson of the Lamar County sheriff's department said Thursday night that friends and family are taking care of the homeless in the wake of the Wednesday storm that injured 30 people and leveled 22 buildings.

"The Red Cross offered to put them in motels, and didn't have any takers," Gibson said.

He said an insurance adjuster told the sheriff's office that he estimated homes suffered about $900,000 damage and that total property losses was $2 million.

Among the buildings destroyed was a Baptist church where 19 worshipers were attending a prayer service.

"Sightseers have been the biggest problem," Gibson said Thursday night. He said traffic poured into town when area roads were reopened about 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

"They were actually bumper-to-bumper. It looked like the LBJ Freeway at five o'clock," Gibson said, referring to the interstate loop around Dallas.

Some residents never saw a funnel cloud, just a wall of debris coming at them, as the twister went through the tiny town in three minutes.

"Emberson is just gone. It just got Emberson. There's no doubt about it," said sheriff's deputy John Williams after the twister, 300 to 500 yards wide, ripped through the town.

"It was so big, I never really saw a funnel, just a wall of debris coming at me," said resident Doug Winn.

Eight people were admitted to hospitals in nearby Paris, but none of their injuries were considered serious, spokesmen said.

Most of the injuries were "a lot of broken bones and shrapnel wounds from the whirling debris," Williams said.

The tornado left a two-mile-long trail of destruction, destroying two buildings in nearby Sumner before slamming into Emberson.

The front steps, a few pews and a sign were all that remained of Emberson Baptist Church.

Jerry Perryman said he was on the church's front steps when he saw the funnel approaching and shouted a warning to the congregation inside. The church-goers poured out the door to take refuge in a ditch.

One home was blown 30 yards into a ditch, where it disintegrated.

"Thank God, all the people are accounted for," Williams said. "Nobody is missing — not even any little boys who might have been out smoking behind the barn."

Jack B. Armstrong said he, his wife and daughter escaped injury by climbing into a bathtub and pulling a mattress on top of them.

"It blew a lot of stuff through our windows — somebody's dryer is in our bedroom," he said.

"We heard it coming and got into a hallway," said Mrs. Troy Keeling, who stood dazed in front of the ruins of her home Thursday.

Child deaths donation fund disbands

ATLANTA (AP) — Under pressure from a group of mothers, a foundation that has distributed more than $118,000 to families of 27 slain young blacks is disbanding, a spokeswoman says.

Marie Fletcher, chairwoman of the Foundation Children's and Families' Fund, said $85,000 in $2,200 checks was distributed to the families Thursday. Earlier this year, $33,429 was handed out to the families by the group, which is sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Council.

She said officials of the foundation hope to collect some more money for a beefed-up summer recreation program for youths before closing down at the end of this month. She said a little money will be left in the account for emergencies.

"We're asking any donor who would still like to send money to send it to the Foundation for Atlanta Children," Ms. Fletcher said.

The Rev. John Sharp, co-chairman of the foundation, said the foundation is being shut down because of conflicts with a committee organized by mothers of some of the slain youths.

The mothers complained when city officials asked the SCLC group in early March to coordinate contributions to the families. The mothers said their own committee, called the Committee to Stop Children's Murders, should handle the donations.

Camille Bell, who heads the mothers' group, has declined to release an audit of donations made to her committee until other fundraisers, including the city, open their financial records.

Meanwhile, city officials said donations totaling almost $1 million have come in.

Challenge considered in abortion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge has taken under advisement a challenge to a Utah law requiring a husband be notified when his wife seeks an abortion.

U.S. District Judge David Winder heard arguments Thursday in the suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of an unidentified woman, who testified her husband would beat her if he knew she wants an abortion.

The woman's suit seeks a court order allowing her to have an abortion over the weekend without her husband's knowledge, and seeks to have the law declared unconstitutional.

The 1974 law makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a year in jail if the physician fails to notify the husband.

Deputy Utah Attorney General Paul Tinker said the case hinges on the woman's marital status. He said the law is constitutional because it does not prevent the woman from getting an abortion — it only requires that her husband be told of it.

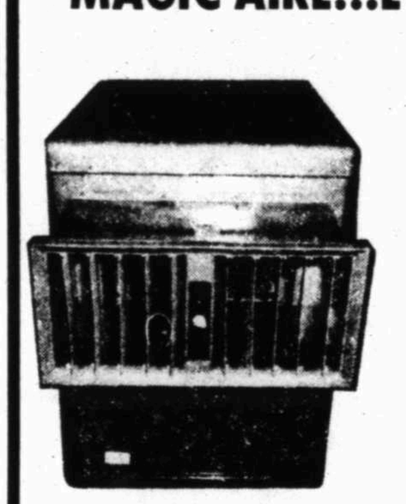

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that states can not deny women the right to have abortions.

Tinker said neither the state nor the woman's husband can control her decision to have an abortion.

The woman, identified only as "SW," said she is separated from her husband and is seeking a divorce. She said her husband beats her, and she fears a beating if he learns of her abortion plans.

The club is preparing for its annual Taco Fiesta which will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in Dellwood Mall and will feature tacos, frijoles and drink. Tickets are $2.50 per person. Proceeds go to needy families, crippled children and sight conservation.

Entrapment hearing set for Williams

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — A hearing to consider possible governmental misconduct and entrapment during the Abscam investigations of New Jersey Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. and Alexander Feinberg has been scheduled for June 22, court officials say.

Williams and Feinberg, a 72-year-old lawyer from Cherry Hill, N.J., were convicted May 1 of bribery, conspiracy and conflict of interest charges stemming from the Abscam probe.

During the undercover operation, FBI agents posed as favor-seeking Arab sheiks or their frontmen.

Earlier this year Pratt conducted several weeks of hearings for seven people convicted of Abscam offenses, including four members of the House.

Order against Klan satisfies Viets

HOUSTON (AP) — Vietnamese refugee shrimpers who said the Ku Klux Klan tried to force them off the water with armed patrols and boat-burnings were heading for the shrimping grounds today shielded from Klan harassment by a court order.

A federal judge told the Klan there could be no show of arms, no armed boat patrols and no parades of robed Klansmen beside Galveston Bay when a 60-day restricted shrimping season opens today.

But the leader of the Texas Klan called the injunction a "victory" and planned a cross-burning on private property in the Galveston Bay area Saturday night.

"Twenty-five (Vietnamese) boats will go out Friday," said Nguyen Van Nam, who with other immigrants filed a lawsuit accusing the Klan and a group of Texas fishermen of trying to run them off the bay.

"I am satisfied. I think it's OK. I think it was better to fight this disupte in court rather than fight on the water," the former South Vietnamese army colonel said. He invited other Vietnamese fishermen to a mid-morning "blessing of the fleet" ceremony today in a small Catholic church near the water, where net-shrouded Vietnamese boats were docked side by side at a wharf known as "Saigon Harbor."

The Texas fishermen and the Klan had claimed the Vietnamese were overfishing the shrimp. But the defendants in the case denied intimidating the Vietnamese.

The injunction, issued Thursday by U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald, prohibits Klan members from parading in robes in groups of two or more before the immigrants or placing gunmen in view of the refugees with the intent of intimidating them.

Ms. McDonald told Jody Collins, a shrimper named in the lawsuit, "I understand the frustrations you have encountered in trying to solve the problem, but the Vietnamese fishermen are here and they have a right to be here." She said it was wrong "to invite the forces of violence to help."

Ms. McDonald did not rule on a request by the Vietnamese for federal marshals or stepped-up Coast Guard patrols to protect them in the crowded bay. Three Vietnamese shrimp boats have been burned.

Some of the American shrimpers said they wouldn't be working today anyway.

They said they usually don't work during the first two weeks of the season because the bay is crowded with part-time shrimpers "and they'll be running all over each other." The Americans hold their blessing-of-the-fleet ceremony Aug. 6, one week before the unrestricted shrimping season begins. During restricted seasons there are limits on the type of shrimp and the type of net allowed.

Hospital may be up for sale

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A state investigation into 27 questionable deaths in the emergency rooms of two small hospitals has spread to four more hospitals, including one in nearby Chino where a 28th death is being investigated, authorities said.

The San Bernardino County coroner's office won Los Angeles court approval Thursday for exhumation of the 28th person, Estel Lee Jones, 62, who died at Chino Community Hospital in late March.

Also, Los Angeles District Attorney's investigators Thursday studied medical records in two more hospitals, St. Vincent Medical Center in Los Angeles and Centinela Hospital Medical Center in Inglewood.

In addition, investigators armed with search warrants went to Brotman Memorial Hospital in Culver City to review records.

At a news conference Thursday in San Bernardino, Robert Diaz, a nurse who has been questioned in the deaths, said he has no idea "why they are focusing on me."

He has filed a $100 million suit against the Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris and San Gorgonio Pass Hospital in Banning, several doctors and four Riverside County officials, saying he tried to bring several of the deaths to the attention of officials at the Perris facility. Twenty-five of the deaths occurred in the Perris hospital and two were at the Banning facility.

Frogs' spring love no bull

CHICAGO (AP) — In spring, a young frog's fancy turns to croaks, ribbits and bellows, says naturalist Roger Tucker who takes people out to eavesdrop on amphibians' amorous goings-on.

At the Ryerson conservation area north of Chicago, a group of 60 curiosity seekers will sit Friday night on old logs near the shallow part of a pond and listen to the noise.

Many think the noise beats rock music as bullfrogs, American toads, chorus frogs, leopard frogs, green frogs and spring peepers sound their mating calls.

Tucker, who calls his tours "frog walks," charges up to 50 cents per person for the trip to frog loveland.

The price includes a 45-minute slide lecture which explains that frogs produce love songs by filling their throat sacs with air and massaging their vocal cords with the air bubble.

"There are all kinds of sounds, not just a croak or ribbit, ribbit," said Tucker.

"Most frogs mate only in the spring and only the bullfrog keeps croaking through summer," he said.

"Basically, frogs only make noise for mating purposes not for their own entertainment, and when the urge is gone, they turn off the sound effects, Tucker said. "They mate only about once a year.

"The frog walk is part of an interpretative ecology program of the Lake County Forest Preserve," he said. "We want to get people to understand frogs' lifestyles, why and how they make noise."

There really isn't much sex in frog love. The male does all of the noise making to attract the female to a shallow part of the pool.

"Then he squeezes her until the eggs come out, and then he fertilizes the eggs," said Tucker. "All this time the female remains silent."

Each specie has its own love call, said Tucker. The bullfrog bellows, sometimes so loud he can be heard a half-mile away on a quiet night.

The American toad has a high-pitch shrill. The tiny chorus frogs make a sound, in unison, like running your finger down a plastic comb.

The leopard frog sounds like a balloon being twisted. The green frog strikes a nice note — like a string of a banjo being plunked. And the spring peeper sounds like a cheeping chick.

Atlanta starts project to free the freeways

ATLANTA (AP) — A city that considers itself the transportation hub of the South is strangling on its own expressway traffic. But after years of maddening traffic jams, something is finally being done.

Huge earth movers are churning up the Atlanta landscape, big pile drivers are hammering steel beams into the earth, bulldozers are ripping creeks out of age-old beds and bending them to new channels in a project called "Freeing the Freeways."

With an ultimate price tag of $1.4 billion and a target completion date of 1986, the project is the largest interstate program ever undertaken in the southeastern United States and one of the 10 largest in the nation, federal highway-builders say. zThe goal is to modernize an expressway system whose core was designed in 1946 and which has long since proven inadequate for traffic loads. Jammed now with 153,000 vehicles per day, the expressway's traffic load is expected to rise to 240,000 vhicles per day by the year 2000.

"It is terrible punishment to drive the expressway daily during rush hour," said Georgia Transportation Commissioner Tom Moreland. "We had gotten it in our minds we had to live with the freeways as they are. But with this project, we can make it comfortable and pleasant again to drive the freeway system."

The system has been strained by the development Atlanta's suburbs, whose population was swollen by white, middle class families who fled from the city. Workers from the suburbs clog the highway system during rush hour.

Only about one-fourth of the highway project has been funded so far, with some phases of the overall program still under design or in right-of-way acquisition stages.

Work is well along, however, on the downtown core of the expressway system and on one of its spokes — Interstate 85 — on the city's north side.

The core, known locally as the downtown connector, receives traffic from two major interstates — I-75, which runs north-south across Georgia from Tennessee to Florida, and I-85, a northeast-southwest artery stretching from Alabama to South Carolina.

The two interstates merge for a combined journey through the downtown section with its bottlenecks, treacherous curves and lack of acceleration lanes.

All that will change when reconstruction work is completed, Moreland said in a recent interview.

Instead of three northbound and three southbound lanes on the downtown connector, there will be five through-lanes in each direction, one of those in each direction dedicated to high-occupancy vehicles like buses and van pools.

In addition, "auxiliary" lanes on either side of the artery will serve as acceleration lanes, and allow short-trippers to drive from one expressway entrance to the next exit without having to enter the traffic flow.

Workers will also straighten curves and reduce grades as they add new lanes to the expressway.

Senate approves Snelson's core curriculum legislation

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Tuesday gave final approval to a bill by Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland, that would delete specific courses from statutes setting out public school curriculum and establish a basic core curriculum.

House Bill 246, sponsored in the Senate by Snelson, establishes 11 basic curriculum areas and authorizes the state board of education to set the specific requirements for courses in those subjects.

The 11 subject areas include English, other languages, math, science, health, physical educaion, fine arts social studies, economics, vocational education and Texas and U.S. history.

Opponents of the measure had contended that the bill gives too much authority to the education board, but Snelson said local school districts still will have authority to select the curriculum they will offer from within the core curriculum requirements established by the board.

Several amendments were added to the bill, without objection by Snelson, that would require an emphasis on the free enterprise system when teaching economics and would allow parents to decide whether their children should be shown materials dealing with sex education.

Snelson was able to defeat an amendment propose by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, that would have placed the education board in an advisory capacity and given local school boards more control over curriculum. Snelson argued that the amendment would have destroyed the "continuity" between programs offered by schools across the state.

Midland students attend state Mock Trial Competition

Four Midland Independent School District high school government students along with 34 high school teams from across the state participated in the Statewide Mock Trial Competition in Dallas recently.

In this competition, they attempted to answer the questions of who is telling the truth, and who is right and who is wrong, according to Bertha Starks, coordinator of law-focused education for MISD, and secretary of the State Board of Law-Focused Education, Inc.

Attorneys and judges served as adjudicators of the competition. Scholarships, funded by the Meadows Foundation, were awarded to the four top teams.

Midland students chosen to compete at the state level were Vee Ann Atnip and Walter "Ben" Glenn from Midland High School and Jon Franke and Eric Fryar of Lee High School.

Recommendation due in early June on General Telephone's rate hike

AUSTIN — Public Utility Commission Hearings Examiner Bob Gillespie should have a recommendation by the first week of June on the proposed 23 percent rate increase sought by General Telephone Co. of the Southwest.

Attorneys, accountants and engineers from General, the PUC and opponents of the increase, have concluded arguments before Gillespie, who now must wade through the evidence and testimony to arrive at a recommendation for the three-member commission, which will make the final decision.

General's 23 percent request amounts to a $44.57 million increase in annual revenues. The PUC staff has recommended only an $860,951, or 0.4 percent, hike. Interveners in the case were the Texas Municipal League, the Texas Association of Telephone Answering Services and the cities of Paducah, Post, Grand Prairie and Texarkana.

Both the PUC staff and the interveners cited General's poor service record over the past few years as a major reason to deny any substantial increase. The PUC staff has recommended continuing a $4 million annual penalty for General imposed at its last rate request hearing.

Heart Association hosting marathon in Midland mall

The American Heart Association is sponsoring a "Live to Dance/Dance to Live 1981" dance marathon in Midland Park Mall from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Dance instructors from the Midland Fitness Center will be participating. The instructors are Betty Cerf, Brenda Tilly, Allison Clendenen, Carol Jochum, Deborah Christensen, Sally Hernandez, Tricia Davidson and Ann Fields.

The money collected from the marathon will be used to fund the American Heart Association's distribution of promotional information to the general public concerning health, exercise and heart disease.

Judge sentences tax rebel

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge has given tax rebel John B. Kotmair Jr. a two-year prison term, saying he needed to send a message to others who might be thinking of not filing their federal income taxes.

U.S. District Judge James R. Miller Jr. imposed the sentence Thursday and fined Kotmair $10,000 for failing to file income tax returns for two years.

The maximum penalty would have been two years in prison and a $20,000 fine, prosecutors said.

Kotmair is the founder of the Committee of Correspondents — a 7-year-old organization which claims that the collection of income taxes is unconstitutional. He vowed to carry on his fight even if he is imprisoned.

"I'll write a book if I go there and do even better," said Kotmair after the sentencing. His lawyer filed an immediate appeal.

The 46-year-old, self-employed building contractor from Westminster, Md., was convicted April 15 of failing to file returns on about $80,000 he earned in 1974 and 1975. Prosecutors alleged he also failed to file returns in subsequent years.

Pointing out that Kotmair had placed himself at the forefront of the tax protest movement, the judge said he felt obligated to impose a sentence that would send a message to would-be followers.

"I think there is no choice but to impose a significant sentence, to deter others from . . . flouting the law," Miller said.

Outside the courthouse Thursday, supporters representing tax-protest movements from various parts of the country protested his prosectuion, as they had during his three-week trial.

During his trial, Kotmair claimed the protection of 10 amendments to the Constitution — including the Fifth amendment, which protects against self-incrimination.

Laguna files Ector final

Laguna Petroleum Corporation of Midland has completed the No. 1 Parker Estate in the Tom Roberts (Clear Fork oil) field of Ector County, 11 southwest of Goldsmith.

The well is potentialed to pump 68 barrels of 35.7 gravity oil plus 133 barrels of water per day from perforations made from 5,434 to 5,896 feet which had been fractured with 14,000 gallons.

Total depth of the project is 6,095 feet with a 5 1/2 inch casing set at 6,095 feet and plugged back to 5,914 feet.

Drilling topped the Yates at 2,714 feet; the San Andres, 4,226 feet; the Glorietta, 5,262 feet, and the Clear Fork at 5,368 feet from a ground level elevation of 3,177 feet.

Exxon to resume studies on credit card status

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Exxon Corp. plans to resume studies that could determine the future status of credit cards at its service stations.

Clifton C. Garvin Jr., chairman of the world's largest oil company, and Randall Meyer, of Exxon o. USA, te domestic affiliate, indicated Thursday they would like to get out of the credit card business.

At a news conference, Garvin and Meyer fielded several questions about the future of credit cards but the direct answer did not come until Garvin was asked specifically if he could like to get out of the credit card business.

"I would think the answer is 'Yes'," he said.

Both had said earlier credit card costs are high and that petroleum credit cards are different from most other.

"They are different in that the dealers pay no costs," Meyer said.

"The companies pay the costs," Garvin added.

Meyer said price controls disrupted earlier tests of customer reaction to cash discounts but, with prices now decontrolled, Exxon will pursue the studies.

"The cost of credit has to be borne by the consumer and it is possible because some would prefer to pay cash so as not to help pay the costs of those who want credit," Meyer said.

"If the customers would prefer cash, then we'd be happy," Garvin said.

The news conference followed Exxon's annual meeting during which shareholders, without discussion, approved a board recommendation for a 2-for-1 stock split. The resolution authorized boosting the number of corporate shares from 500 million to 1 billion.

By overwhelming majorities, however, the shareholders rejected several resolutions Garvin and the board also opposed.

The resolutions ranged from placing restrictions on Exxon investments in Chile to placing restrictions on future grants to educational institutions that hire communists or obstruct activities of the CIA.

Garvin told the shareholders Exxon experienced an actual loss in its refining and marketing functions while reporting a 16.9 percent decline in earnings the first quarter.

Even so, he added, it Was Exxon's second best quarter ever.

Garvin said consumer demand for petroleum products has declined substantially in the face of rising crude prices by some oil exporting countries.

"The resulting supply-demand imbalance has made it very difficult for the oil industry to recover its increasing costs," he said. "This is true in various markets, but especially in the United States and Europe."

Garvin said that to some extent the drop in demand can be attributed to faltering economic performances, a situation that should change as economies revive.

He said it is too soon to judge how much energy conservation is motivated by higher prices.

"But whatever problems current excess oil stocks may pose for us in the oil industry, the encouraging thing is that it confirms, once again, that the market really does work when given the chance," he said.

Reports reveal an earlier radioactive leak in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Atomic Power Co., already under fire for failing to report a series of recent radioactive spills at its Tsuruga nuclear facility, disclosed today it had never reported a similar overflow six years ago that exposed 37 workers to radioactive contamination.

The company announced for the first time today that an estimated 13 tons of radioactive water had overflowed at the 357,000-kilowatt facility in Fukui state, 190 miles west of Tokyo, on Jan. 10, 1975. It also said it let the radioactive spillage sit for six months before it was cleaned up.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry, which control's Japan's nuclear industry, learned of the 1975 incident during its investigation of four other spills, including one on March 8 that exposed 56 workers to 16 tons of radioactive waste, a company spokesman said.

The ministry discovered the spills in April during an investigation of high levels of radioactivity in seaweed samples taken from a nearby bay.

Company President Shunichi Suzuki and Board Chairman Tomiichiro Shirosawa said Thursday they would both resign over the incidents. The board will consider the offers at its June meeting, the spokesman said.

He said the 1975 spill occurred before the ministry issued instructions in May, 1977 that minor radioactive spills should be reported. It was discovered when an employee noticed the water-level meter of one of the three waste water storage tanks registered zero, indicating that waste water had leaked, the spokesman said.

ENERGY

The company then let the spilled sludge sit until June 16, the spokesman said, giving no explanation for the delay. Finally, 37 workers cleaned up the spill over a 12-day period, during which they were exposed to cumulative radioactivity of about 432 millirems, he said.

Japan's nuclear power plants, in consultation with workers' unions, have set an unofficial "radiation control allowance" of 100 millirems a day. Government-set levels are 3 rems over a three-month period or 5 rems a year on condition the worker has not been exposed to radiation previously.

One thousand millirems equals one rem, a unit of any ionizing radiation that will produce the same amount of biological damage to human tissue as one dosage of X-ray.

The ministry has ordered the Japan Atomic Power Co. to investigate the 1975 overflow, but has not scheduled an independent inquiry. The disclosure of the series of accidents have generated considerable controversy in a country often described as having a "nuclear allergy" because of the World War II atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Despite that "allergy," Japan has 21 operating nuclear power plants.

Field test announced in Loving

Durham Inc. of Midland has announced plans to drill a 4,400-foot field test in the Verjo (Delaware) field of Loving County, eight miles northwest of Mentone.

Designated the No. 1 Mesquit, the site is 660 feet from the north line and 467 feet from the west line of section 42, block 54, T-2, of the T&P survey.

Drillsite is 1,000 feet east of the No. 1 May E. Williams, dry and abandoned at 4,190 feet, February 5, 1961 and 1,000 feet southwest of a lone oil producer, the No. 1 Lindley, a Delaware discovery, in the Verjo field.

Runnels, Coke file Dist. 7-C activities

A discovery, confirmer and wildcat filed in District 7-C of the Texas Railroad Commission for Coke and Runnels counties.

Three gas discoveries, one oil discovery and a location have been sited in Chaves, Eddy and Lea counties of New Mexico.

CHAVES COUNTY

Depco Inc. of Midland has completed the No. 1 White Ranch Unit 25 miles east of Dexter in Chaves County, New Mexico as an Atoka gas discovery from perforations made from 9,312 to 9,326 feet.

The well flowed 7,731,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a 32/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,488 pounds per square inch.

Calculated absolute open flow was 23,312,000 cubic feet per day with a gas to oil ratio of 9,312 to 1 and a shut-in wellhead pressure of 3,058 pounds per square inch. Total depth is 9,866 feet with a 4 1/2 inch casing set a 9,587 feet.

Location is 2 1/2 miles southwest of an Atoka and Mississippian gas production in the Mescalero field.

Wellsite is in section 8, township 13 south, range 30 east.

Also in Chaves County, one mile southwest of Hagerman, Southland Royalty Company of Midland, will drill a 7,300-foot new field wildcat.

Designated the No. 1 Huber "16" State, location is 1,980 feet from the south and east lines of section 16, township 14 south, range 26 east.

EDDY COUNTY

Inexco Oil Co. of Midland has finaled the No. 1 Southland Royalty State as a Wolfcamp gas discovery fom perforations made from 9,413 to 9,419 feet in Eddy County, seven miles southwest of White City.

The well flowed 2,200,000 cubic feet of gas per day, plus 22 barrels of 62 gravity condesate and seven barrels of water through a 13/64 inch choke.

Gas to ratio was 78,571 to 1 nd a flowing tubing pressure measured a 1,920 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 11,750 feet with a five inch liner set at 11,749 feet.

The well is 3 1/2 miles east of Morrow gas production in the Washington Ranch field and 4 1/2 miles southwest of Superior Oil Company's No. 1 Meander Federal, and unnamed Wolfcamp gas discovery, completed earlier this year for a flow of 3,704,000 cubic feet of gas from perforations made from 9,390 to 9,398 feet.

Also in Eddy County, 17 miles southeast of Malaga, Adams Exploration Co. of Midland has completed the No. 1-Y SRC State was completed as another Wolfcamp discovery.

Producing from perforations made from 11,105 to 12,158 feet, the well flowed 492,000 cubic feet of gas and six barrels of oil in 24 hours through a 16/64 inch choke.

Gas to oil ratio was 82,000 to 1 and a flowing tubing pressure was 800 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 12,262 feet with a five-inch liner set at 12,262 feet.

LEA COUNTY

Grace Petroleum Corp. of Midland as completed the No. 1 West Tonto Federal Communitized as a lower Morrow gas discovery, 17 miles southwest of Buckeye in Lea County from perforations made from 13,502 to 13,526 feet.

The well flowed 1,916,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a 26/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 802 pounds per square inch.

Calculated absolute open flow was 2,020,000 cubic feet per day with a shut in well head pressure of 3,799 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 13,700 feet with a 5 1/2 inch casing set at 13,700 feet.

Location is in section 24, township 19 south, range 32 east and is two miles southeat of a Morrow gas production in Lusk, East field.

Also in Lea County, five miles east of Gladiola, D.H. Hunt, et al of Midland has completed a Wolfcamp oil discovery with the No. 1 Field State.

The well pumped 82 barrels of oil and 24 barrels of water in 24 hours from perforations made fom 9,510 to 9,520 feet. Gas to oil ratio was 561 to 1 and the gravity of the oil was not reported.

Location is section 21, township 12 south, range 38 east and is 1 3/4 miles north of a 9,594-foot Wolfcamp oil production in the Bronco, West field.

Rig collapse kills one

THROCKMORTON, Texas (AP) — An oil drilling rig collapsed Wednesday evening near this central Texas town, killing one man and injuring several others.

A guideline on the rig broke and the rig fell onto several vehicles, said Throckmorton County Sheriff Jerry Schrimsher.

Among the injured was Dickson's brother, Joe, who was reported in critical condition at Wichita General Hospital in Wichita Falls.

Other workers received cuts and bruises, but none was hospitalized.

Activities reported for District 7-C

Search continues for way to fund U.S. oil reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attempt to circumvent spending ceilings to appropriate money for the nation's strategic petroleum reserve has failed in the House, forcing congressmen to continue their search for an alternative way of raising funds for the reserve.

The House voted 260-152 Wednesday to strike $3 billion in 1982 oil purchase money from a 1981 supplemental appropriations bill after congressmen complained that it would shatter approved spending ceilings.

Rep. James R. Jones, the House Budget Committee chairman, led the effort to drop the $3 billion from the bill, although he said favors filling the reserve through direct appropriations.

"But that is an issue to be decided at a later time," the Oklahoma Democrat added. "All we're trying to do is be consistent."

The decision forces House committees to resume their search for alternative ways to raise the billions of dollars required to fill the 750 million-barrel reserve.

On Tuesday, the Senate Energy Committee approved a $21.9 billion, five-year plan to finance oil purchases by borrowing money through Treasury bills and notes.

The House action came during debate on a bill intended to adjust spending levels during the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. It includes extra money for some areas in government, plus proposals to cancel or delay spending as part of President Reagan's program to trim the federal budget.

For the strategic reserve, the bill includes $1.3 billion for extra spending this year to offset the higher cost of oil resulting from decontrol of oil prices.

But the House Appropriations subcommittee on the interior, chaired by Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., unsuccessfully tried to include in the bill the reserve's full 1982 appropriation — $3.88 billion. The 1982 spending ceiling adopted last week was based on private financing for $3 billion of that cost rather than direct appropriations.

$2500 PER MONTH PLUS

Manager Trainees need to fill $95,000 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $30,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is 45,000 due to additional sales commissions: 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:
Please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification:

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or our of town work.)
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extra ordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer candidates to us.

4x4 BY DATSUN

For working, for playing. On the road, or off the road. Our new Datsun 4X4 trucks are something special, with more power than ever before.

The revolutionary 2.2-liter NAPS-Z engine actually gets over 13 percent more torque from less gas than last year's engine. Put that into a rugged, comfortable Datsun 4X4 and you've got the kind of truck you've always wanted. Test drive it today.

4X4 Standard Equipment:
• 2.2-liter NAPS-Z 4-cylinder engine • Power-assisted front disc brakes • Independent front suspension • 4-speed manual transmission (5-speed overdrive on King Cab®) • Bright T-type tie-down hooks • Center console • and lots more, all at no extra cost.

MORE POWER THAN EVER BEFORE

SAVE MONEY BUY NOW!

It will only cost more to wait to buy that NEW home even if interest rates drop. Construction costs are currently going up more than 10 percent a year. A house that costs more to buy will have higher payments even with lower interest. Plus, by buying now you will have money in your pocket, through the same appreciation in value, when you sell! Celtics sit on top of the world

HOUSTON (AP) - The proud Boston Celtics, sick and tired of Moses Malone's bad-mouthing, silenced him and the Houston Rockets on their homecourt 102-91 Thursday night to earn their record 14th National Basketball Association title the hard way, and, the sweetest.

"We were supposed to win, but making them lose in The Summit made it all that much sweeter," said Larry Bird, who devastated the Rockets with his biggest offensive explosion of the six-game series.

WRINGING CHAMPAGNE out of his green Celtic shirt, Bird nodded toward the Houston dressing room and said: "Moses Malone knows we are the champions now ... all he did was just get us fired up."

Several hundred feet down the hall Malone admitted: "They are the world champions ... you have to give them respect."

Bird said, "If Malone had been quiet from the start, maybe the Rockets could have given us a better game."

What Malone had said was that he could get four other guys from his hometown of Petersburg, Va., and beat the Celtics.

Bird scored 27 points, collected 13 rebounds and doled out five assists as the Celtics went to him in the clutch. His three-pointer from the corner with 1:34 to play gave Boston a 95-89 lead and buried Houston's comeback hopes.

"The coach (Bill Fitch) kept calling my play and I knew I could make it," said Bird, who had been in a shooting slump. "They came to me every time down the stretch."

"I didn't hesitate on the three-point shot. I knew it was there. Everytime I shot I felt like it was going in."

BOSTON BUILT a 17-point lead before Houston scored 13 straight points early in the fourth quarter. Then Bird settled the issue, giving the Celtics the title and approximately $25,000 per player in four games to two.

It was Boston's first world title since 1976. Red Auerbach, president and general manager, puffed on his familiar cigar and said, "This team ranks right up there with any we've had in regards to character. They never bitched and moaned. They never yelled at each other."

With champagne dripping off his nose, Auerbach grinned, "We finally got off that 13 didn't we?"

Auerbach was coach for nine of Boston's world titles and has served in an executive capacity during the other five championship years.

"This is what you dream about," said Mangurian, laughing at Bird who was trying to get smoke out of Auerbach's damp cigar. "Sweet is the word for this."

FITCH SAID the Celtics had worked hard for two years to make this night possible.

"Now we can have our first off night in two years," said Fitch. "Bird was great tonight. We shot well and played great defense. We had to play good. Houston has a lot of talent to conquer."

The Celtics shot 55 percent from the field — their highest of the series — to just 41 percent for the Rockets, who were led by Robert Reid's 27 points. Malone had 23 points and 16 rebounds.

Forward Cedric (Cornbread) Maxwell, who had 19 points and five rebounds, was named the series MVP by a sports magazine.

"The best thing about tonight was winning in Houston," said Maxwell. "If we had won in Boston we wouldn't have gotten out of The Garden until the next day. It was great beating Houston on their homecourt."

Bird said, "We wanted the championship bad ... we worked harder than anybody all year long ... we deserved everything we got."

THE CELTICS have doubled the number of NBA titles over the franchise which is in second place, the old Minneapolis Lakers who are now in Los Angeles.

The loss ended a story-book season for the Rockets, who were less than a .500 team in regular season and then knocked off Los Angeles, San Antonio and Kansas City to earn a shot at the Celtics.

Malone paid Boston a final tribute by saying "They came to play and they paid their dues and that's why they are the world champions."

Lee seeks an opponent

Midland Lee baseball coach Ernie Johnson flew to Dallas today to find out who his Rebels will play in the bi-district baseball best-of-three series.

Johnson was to meet with the winner of the Lewisville-Dennison District 6-5A playoff game. Lewisville won the first game and the two teams were to play two today if needed in their best-of-three series.

Johnson would prefer to play the 6-5A champions Tuesday in Midland and Friday on the opponents field.

Lori Breeding, a two-time all-district volleyball choice, was named as Midland Lee's top female athlete of the year Thursday night at the school's annual Spring Sports Banquet.

Brown, Breeding named Lee's best

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

In a sports year choked with highlights and standouts at Midland Lee, Keith Brown and Lori Breeding were picked as the best of the lot in the annual Spring Sports Banquet Thursday at the Lee cafeteria.

Brown and Miss Breeding were named as the top male and female athlete of the year at the school and both are deserving choices. Dr. Joe Smith, Lee principal, presented the awards.

Brown had few credentials to show, but he was selected anyway. Just to name a few of his accomplishments — three year football letterman, two years in track, all-district in football his junior and senior seasons, a two-way all-district choice his senior season at defensive tackle and offensive guard, All-South Plains, honorable mention All-America, chosen to play in the Coaches All-Star game this summer, headed to Oklahoma State on a football scholarship as a blue chip prospect, 5-5A shot put champion, third place at region, all-state choir and had some outside activities like industrial arts and junior engineering.

It is not known what he did with his spare time, but it was suggested that he might have spent it on the phone intimidating his opponents. It is well accepted, however, that he is one of the class acts to ever walk the halls at Lee.

And Miss Breeding had her own set of stars. She was a three-year volleyball starter and an all-district choice twice. She was a regional hurdles qualifier in her junior season in track and was an all-star softball player several times in the summers. Miss Breeding was also a Homecoming Dutchess and was named "Miss Integrity" at Lee this year.

And it was also a night to recognize many others. District team championships were won in baseball and swimming. A co-championship also came in girls basketball. It was a year to remember.

No special awards were given in baseball since the team will enter the bi-district playoffs Tuesday against the 6-5A winner, which is still to be determined. Their minds are still on the season and that's as it should be.

The Lee boys pulled off shocking surprises this season by winning both the district and regional swimming titles. Cleve Carrens, Ronnie Black and Bruce Quenzer all won district titles. Carrens won two. The 200 medley relay also won a district crown. Carrens and Jon Franke won regional titles and were named the most outstanding swimmers for the year. Lee has won the district swim title three times and have been regional champs twice. The girls were third in district.

The girls basketball team has won or shared the 5-5A crown four straight years and missed the playoffs for the first time this season when they lost to San Angelo in a district playoff battle. Lee lost only one regular season district game by two points. Gale Wilson established three career marks for others to shoot at. She had the most points in a game (38), most points in a season (466) and most points in a career (1159). Melinda Hohenberger and Miss Wilson were all-district choices and Yshun King was sophomore of the year.

Rozena McCabe and Suzanne McGaha also became the first three-sport lettermen for girls in the school's history. Miss McGaha was an honorable mention all-district choice this year in basketball.

The Lee track team didn't win the district team title, but they did win seven individual titles and six of them were records. Lee won both relays in record times. David Piccolo won the 300 hurdles for the second year in a row and was given the Fighting Heart award. Arthur Williams is unbeaten in the 200 meters heading into the state track meet Saturday, so his season isn't over. Robert Schooler won the 1600 for the second year in a row and was the new district 3200 meter champion. Brown, of course, won the shot put. Michael Goodley, who came out of nowhere to place second at district in the 800 meters, was named as the most improved runner.

The boy cagers didn't have a winning season, but some fine marks were established. Randy Pepper led the team in assists with 199, Kenneth Brown pulled down 388 rebounds to rank second on the all-time list, and Barry Blackwell led in free throw percentage with 76 per cent. James Forest won the Fighting Heart award. Lee lost five games by one point and most of the players return with high hopes for next season.

The girls golf team placed second in district and was only six strokes away from making their second straight trip to the state meet. They placed third in the region meet.

In gymnastics, Dana Dixon and Tod McDaniel gave the school another first by becoming the first Lee female and male to qualify for the state gymnastics meet. Risa Reddell was named as the most improved in gymnastics.

Those earning letters in every sport were introduced, but no special awards were given in tennis, girls track, golf or volleyball.

Midland wins at the old brawl park

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

It started out as a peaceful night in a West Texas ball park but soon developed into something resembling the weekly Saturday night brawl at the bar in what could be best described as a knockdown, kick out battle.

Almost lost in the emotions of the evening was the fact that lefthander Craig Lefferts, with ninth inning relief help, collaborated on a five-hit 7-0 shutout of the Tulsa Drillers at Cubs Stadium. It also gave Midland its first series victory of the season with three-out-of-four over the Oklahomans and tonight's 25-cent Beer Night game to go.

IT WAS never much of a game. The Cubs jumped in front in the third when Craig Kornfeld lined a single to center and then Mel Hall and Javier Fierro delivered singles to right and left, the latter plating the run.

In the fifth, Mike Diaz lashed a double off Mike Roberts and scored on Jack Upton's single to center. That, as it turned out, was more than Lefferts needed to win his fourth in seven decisions.

The fifth started off uneventfully enough, emotionally, at least, as Randy LaVigne led off with a double. Then there were two fly outs. Midland rightfielder Tom Grant then bit the dust as the ball hit his bat.

"When I saw the ball coming at me between the eyes, I got the feeling he might be throwing at me," Grant said later.

He dropped his bat and was out to the mound before anyone could intervene. Before anything damaging could occur both dugouts were out there with him.

This first scuffle was your typical baseball shoving match, but that wasn't the case in the ninth when several fights broke out and Midland Manager Roy Hartsfield even had to make a flying tackle to prevent trouble from breaking out again after a seven minute melee.

IN THE home eighth, LaVigne was hit in the ankle by a Jack Lazorko pitch and later Grant twice went into the dirt.

With Lefferts' arm tightening up, Hartsfield sent in Tim Milner to finish up and after retiring the first two batters, a close pitch and a pitch behind Mel Barrow resulted in the second brawl as Barrow started toward the mound with bat in hand.

"We had warned both teams earlier," said plate umpire Al Kaplan, "So we ejected both Barrow and Milner. We wanted to stop the brawl situation. Other than that I can't comment on anything until I turn in my report."

"With a 7-0 lead, the last thing we were thinking about was throwing at anybody. We just wanted to get the game over," Hartsfield said.

TULSA BROUGHT the best staff Earned Run Average in the Texas League into the series while Midland had the highest ERA, but from the results of the series, the Drillers must be doing it with mirrors. In four games, Tulsa has given up 33 runs.

Meanwhile, Midland not only had a shutout Thursday but could have had one Wednesday, if Joe McClain hadn't experienced a wild seventh inning when Tulsa scored three runs. Outside of that inning, Tulsa never got a runner to second base. And against Lefferts, only one got as far as second. That came when Lefferts, after two strikeouts, walked Pete O'Brien and Phil Klimas in the sixth. So in 16 of the last 18 innings, Tulsa hasn't gotten anyone beyond first base.

Lefferts pitched a four-hit shutout against San Antonio in his last Cubs Stadium start and now has a string of 20 scoreless innings in this park, known as a hitters' paradise, which is something to brag about.

However, with five hits and four walks, Tulsa could have caused trouble if it hadn't been for four double plays. Midland missed a fifth when the ball stuck momentarily in third baseman Carmello Martinez' glove on Don Scott's hot smash in the fifth.

Hall hoisted a solo homer over the scoreboard in left-center to ignite a three-run seventh in which Upton and Martinez both delivered run-producing singles. The burst came against Dave Crutcher, making his third appearance in the four games. The homer capped a three-hit night for Mel and was his fourth of the season.

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Saturday night is Commercial Bank's Dash for Cash Night with free tickets available at the bank...Hall is 9-for-20 in the series while Upton's bat has come alive with 9 hits in 16 trips and eighth rbi...

Williams, Beverley shoot for glory

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The run for state track glory begins today and ends Saturday in five divisions at Austin's Memorial Stadium, but the ears of Midland will be waiting on word from a star-studded sophomore and an unbeaten senior when Saturday's 5A division unfolds at 1 p.m.

Midland Lee's Arthur Williams, unbeaten and on a roll this year, will be looking for that bit of immortality in the 200 meters while Midland High sophomore James Beverley, whose high school career is still ahead of him, will be taking on the grownups in the 800 meters.

Williams is the 5-5A and Region I champion in the 200 meters. He has met every challenge this year, but he is not the favorite Saturday.

Lawrence Mitchell of Houston Dobie and Earl Thurmond of Houston Wheatley both have better qualifying times. Mitchell had a 21.31 and Thurmond a 21.36 in the same regional meet in Houston. Williams had a 21.6, but has turned a 21.2 this season. Fort Worth's Wyatt's Darrell Martin also posted a 21.6 in the region meet. Other entries are Horace Arkadie, Corpus Christi Ray, 21.7; Ansel Cole, San Antonio Jay, 21.9; Angelo Bryant, Killeen Ellison, 22.0; and Mark Tolivar, Dallas Roosevelt, 21.61.

Williams defeated Bryant two weeks ago in the Region I meet and literally blew him off the track. However, Williams has never faced any of the other state finalists in this event.

"Well, I don't know if Arthur will win it or not," said Lee track coach Sam Volpe. "There are seven other runners in the field and I guess they all have a chance, but Arthur has been working hard and has been looking good. He doesn't scare easily, but we will find out how fast he can go if he gets a good start."

Beverley's 1:53.3 this year in the 800 meters is the second fastest time ever posted by a sophomore in the state. However, he is a sophomore and will be the least experienced runner in the field. The experience he will gain from running in a class event like this could rapidly increase his incentive for the future.

"James has been looking very good in workouts," said MHS track coach Johnny Williams this week. "All we need to work on now is the mental aspect. However, we are thrilled at the chance to run him in the state meet as a sophomore. Not many kids ever get that type of experience early in their careers. It should help him a lot."

Beverley has lost only once this season and that came at the Region I meet when he lost to state favorite Carlos Quinones of Killeen, who turned a region record 1:52.8. Beverley had a 1:53.7, but has the advantage of having raced with one of the best. The bad news is that Quinones is only a junior.

Others in the 800 field will be Roland Rosales, San Antonio Burbank, 1:53.3; Ricky Perez, Edinburg, 1:53.6; Johnny Walker, Dallas Carter, 1:53.81; Bruce Lazarine, Mesquite, 1:54.23; Tyrone Nichols, Baytown Lee, 1:55.55; and Sammy Stumfessell, Houston Dobie, 1:56.01.

Titles will be decided today in the 3A and 4A divisions with finals at 7 p.m. Several area athletes will be gunning for crowns then.

Andrews Van Pearcy will be in the 400 meters, long jump and 1600 relay. Kirk Pearcy will be in the 1600 meter run. Odessa Ector will have Tony Gamble in the 1600 and 800. Ector's Greg Lyons will be in the 800.

The only area 3A entry is Crane's Roosevelt Fort in the long jump.

Saturday at 1 p.m. competition in A, 2A and 5A will be held.

The only other District 5-5A runner in the state meet is San Angelo's Arthur Hawkins in the 400 meters.

Rankin should have a strong team in the Class A competition. The Red Devils have both relays entered along with three individuals. Dennis Black is the 400 meter favorite, Terry Turner is in the 200 and Michael Peterson is in the shot put. Greenwood's Tommy Pyle will be in the high jump.

In the 2A division, Stanton's Lewis Henry will have chances at two state titles in the long jump and the 400 meters. Henry is favored in the 400 meters and is expected to battle in the long jump with Reagan County's Dennis Woodard, both being near 23 feet. Stanton will also have Roscoe Thomas in the pole vault and he is one of four vaulters that appear to have a shot at the title with 13-6.

Fernando Valenzuela whips Montreal again

By The Associated Press

Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers has made believers out of a lot of people in baseball — and nobody believes it more today than the Montreal Expos.

For the second time in 12 days, Valenzuela beat the Expos with some late-inning help from the explosive Dodger bats.

Earlier in May, Valenzuela whipped the Expos 6-1 in 10 innings as the Dodgers erupted for five runs in the 10th. Thursday night, the Dodgers pulled out another one for their nifty rookie, 3-2, on Pedro Guerrero's lead-off homer in the ninth.

Before Guerrero's dramatic homer off Steve Ratzer, Valenzuela had given up a game-tying, two-out solo homer to Andre Dawson in the top of the inning.

The 20-year-old sensation thus raised his record to 8-0 and equalled an accomplisment of Dave "Boo" Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox, who won his first eight decisions as a rookie starter in 1945.

Valenzuela, with his pitching arm in ice, faced a crush of reporters after the game at Dodger Stadium. Included in the crowd was Mexican movie star Cantinflas, who said he came from Mexico to watch his countryman pitch.

Valenzuela seemed to have no second thoughts about the pitch that Dawson hit for his homer.

"It didn't bother me at all because he hit my best pitch," Valenzuela said. "It was an excellent screwball and he just hit it out."

The homer was the second of the game by the Expos and only the second off Valenzuela in 892-3 innings. In the third inning after Valenzuela had retired the first seven batters, Chris Speier homered for a 1-0 Montreal lead.

"He hit a curveball that didn't break," said Valenzuela. "I won't pitch him any differently next time."

After Speier's homer, Valenzuela threw 19 straight strikes.

"I wasn't upset by the homer," the rookie said. "I knew I had to bear down more because we were behind."

After Speier's homer, the Dodgers came back to take a 2-1 lead on Steve Garvey's two-run single in the sixth. That Dodger lead stood until Dawson's homer.

Cardinals 7, Astros 6

George Hendrick's two-run double keyed a four-run ninth inning that lifted St. Louis over Houston. The Cardinals used three walks, one Houston error and two hits..

"What are the odds of scoring four runs off those guys?" the Cardinals' Keith Hernandez said of the Houston bullpen. "Nine times out of 10 they'll save the game for you. It's just one of those games. They've got the best bullpen in the major leagues."

Phillies 3, Giants 1

A dropped wind-blown fly ball by center fielder Bill North with two out in the eighth inning enabled Philadelphia to score the tying and winning runs against San Francisco.

Winner Dick Ruthven and loser Vida Blue were locked in a scoreless duel until the Giants broke through with a run in the seventh on Milt May's RBI single. But Mike Schmidt opened the Phillies' eighth with a single and took second on Manny Trillo's one-out single. After Garry Maddox struck out, Larry Bowa lofted a fly to right-center. North got under the ball but it glanced off his glove for a two-base error, scoring Schmidt and Trillo.

"The wind definitely was a factor," North said. "I was there and it (the ball) just took off. It's tough to make that kind of catch when there's a light sky. I just missed it."

Padres 10, Mets 6

Broderick Perkins continued his major league-leading batting pace with two hits, including a tie-breaking double that drove in the first of five eighth-inning runs, as San Diego beat New York.

Perkins, batting .417 and riding a 13-game hitting streak, doubled off Pete Falcone to score Gene Richards, who singled and was sacrificed to second.

The Padres added four more runs in the inning. Falcone balked Perkins to third and he scored on Joe Lefebvre's single. One out later, Juan Bonilla singled with Lefebvre scoring when catcher Alex Trevino dropped second baseman Doug Flynn's relay throw. Bonilla took second on the throw and scored when reliever Gary Lucas, who worked the final 22-3 innings, singled. Lucas went to second on the throw and scored on a single by Ozzie Smith.

"I swear I haven't had this much attention since I was a baby," said Perkins. "I know some day it's going to end, but right now I'm eating it up."

Reds 6, Cubs 1

Dave Concepcion supplied the timely hitting and Bruce Berenyi allowed six hits in 72-3 innings as Cincinnati defeated Chicago. Berenyi, 4-1, tied Tom Seaver as the winningest pitcher on the Reds' staff with late relief help from Joe Price and Tom Hume. Rick Reuschel, 1-4, worked six innings for the Cubs, allowing both Cincinnati runs.

Concepcion, off to the best start in his 12-year major league career with a National League-leading 29 RBI, moved the Reds' first run into scoring position with a first-inning single and drove in the game-winner with a fifth-inning single.

Pack's Dogbone passes early test

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The new look Midland High Bulldogs have been using spring training to learn both a new offense and a new defense, and head coach Pat Culpepper is taking a critical look at his players with a lot of scrimmage time.

Culpepper has switched from the I-Formation he used last year to the wishbone attack to fit the personell on hand better. He has also switched from the 27 defense to the eight man front.

"We feel that the changes will give us a chance to control the game better. We had to score too many points to win last year," Culpepper notes.

"The conversion to the wishbone has gone much better than expected. We thought we would have to bite the bullet for a while, but they seem to be picking it up," Culpepper says, but is cautious even about that statement. "It's like match play vs. medal play. In match play, you're playing against the guy next to you and in medal play, you're against the whole field. Spring training is like match play."

Culpepper says the switch to the eight-man front is not as drastic a change since the Bulldogs will still show an even front, but he explained the change. "We figured we can't go too far wrong since we couldn't stop the run with a seven man line last year. And we don't have a real strong middle linebacker this year, so why stick with the old defense. After all, it must be pretty good because national champion Georgia used a form of it last year."

Culpepper, who was an All-America linebacker at Texas in his college days, says he is spending 99 per cent of his time with the defense. He has turned over the offense to new assistant Bernie Hagins.

"Bernie is our Lee connection. Spike Dykes recommened Bernie to me when he became available and he is one of the finest coaches around. Spike didn't hurt us any with that move, I can tell you that. Bernie is running our offense and he has a lot of experience with and loves the wishbone," Culpepper related.

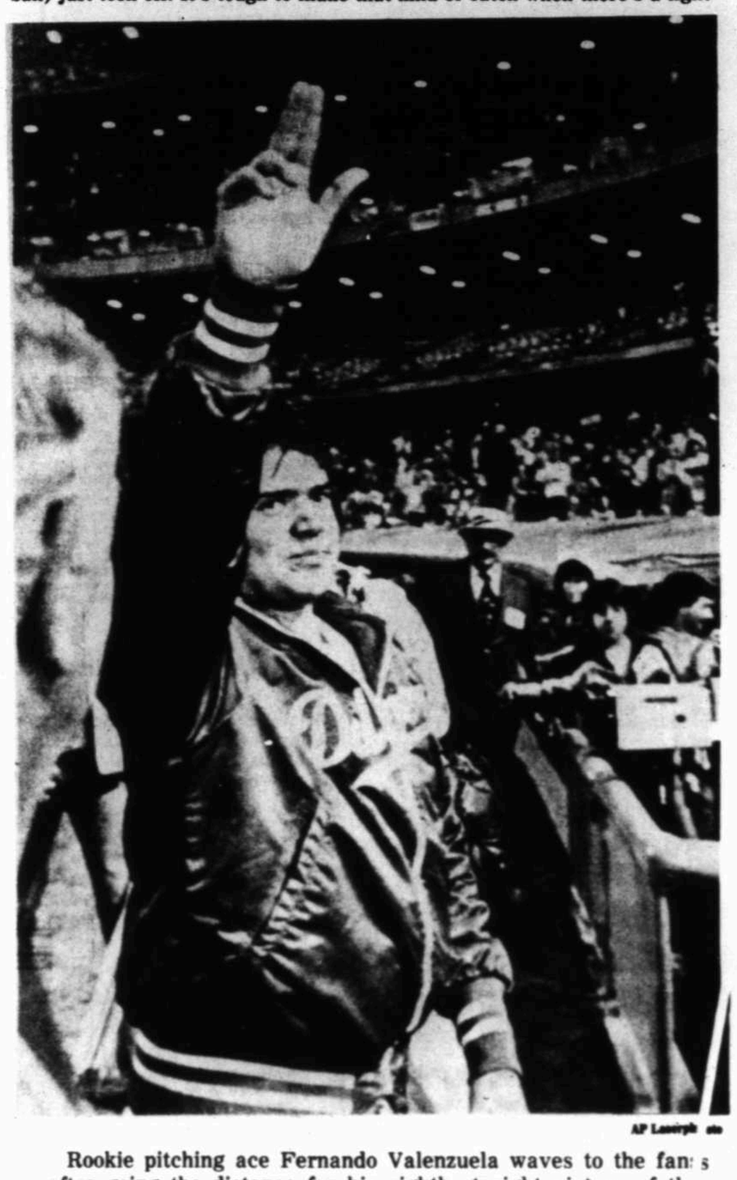

Culpepper is calling the wishbone the Dogbone, but added, "Now we just need to put a little meat on it."

"The first year.I ran the wishbone at Northern Illinois we made a mistake by not letting the defense stunt. When fall came, it was like Custer at Little Big Horn because our kids didn't know how to handle the pressure. This spring we are doing a lot of stunting and the kids are seeing the pressure they will face next fall."

Culpepper has been impressed this spring with Ricky Madrid and John Hibbitts at halfback. Both seem to be taking charge. Joe Gobel, who has trimmed down from the 250 pounds of last year to a sevelte 237, is quicker and still has a 6-6 frame. He has been impressive at defensive guard along with James Day. Day played some last year, but now appears to be ready to come to the front. Offensive linemen Matt Dill and Wally Klein have also been impressive.

Culpepper noted that several freshmen may make the team and play next fall, but declined to name any names at this early date.

The Bulldogs will end the spring session next Saturday when they hold the annual Bill Mims spring scrimmage at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Rookie pitching ace Fernando Valenzuela waves to the fans after going the distance for his eighth straight victory of the season against the Montreal Expos Thursday in Los Angeles.

Valenzuela beat drums on and on

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There he sat, this 20-year-old youth in a foreign land, surrounded by dozens of reporters firing questions in a foreign language. His valuable left elbow and shoulder were packed in ice, and he looked tired.

But, through an interpreter, Fernando Valenzuela said all the right things. Oh, his answers were replete with cliches, and while he had every right to be exhausted, he just sat there, patiently, answering the many queries.

"I'm glad to see all these people here and I'm happy to keep winning," said the 20-year-old left-hander from Sonora, Mexico Thursday night when asked about the mounting pressure. "It's not affecting me at all, in any way."

INDEED. He had just completed another day at the office, so to speak. Actually, Valenzuela worked at night, firing a three-hitter as Los Angeles Dodgers downed the Montreal Expos 3-2 before a sellout crowd of 53,906 at Dodger Stadium.

The Expos managed to put only four runners on base against Valenzuela, but the Dodgers needed a lead-off homer by Pedro Guerrero in the bottom of the ninth inning to give their incredible rookie his eighth victory in as many decisions this season.

Valenzuela, who has a 10-0 lifetime big league record because of two victories in relief late last season, thus equalled an accomplishment by Dave "Boo" Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox, who in 1945 won his first eight major league decisions as a starter.

The feat of eight victories in as many starts beginning a big league career is believed to be a record. No such achievement is listed in the record books and baseball historians have been researching to find out if any other rookie had such a start.

Even though they lost, the Expos accomplished a number of things against Valenzuela that hadn't been done before.

NOBODY HAD ever scored more than one earned run against the sensational southpaw, who has allowed four earned runs in 72 innings this season for an earned run average of 0.50.

In the Montreal third, after Valenzuela had retired the first seven Expos, light-hitting Chris Speier drilled a 1-2 pitch just inside the left field foul pole, about five rows deep into the stands.

The home run, which Valenzuela said came off "a curveball that didn't break," was the first allowed by the rookie after 83 big league innings, and it was the first homer for Speier in more than a year.

The Expos had only two other baserunners — Rodney Scott bunted for a hit leading off the seventh and Speier drew a two-out walk in the eighth — before Andre Dawson blasted his eighth homer of the year with two outs in the Monteal ninth tying the score.

"It didn't bother me at all because he hit my best pitch," said Valenzuela, who had seven strikeouts Thursday night. "It was an excellent screwball."

It didn't take long for Guerrero to break the tie. He belted the third pitch in the bottom of the ninth from Montreal reliever Steve Ratzer, 1-1, into the left field pavilion. It was the sixth homer of the season for Guerrero and his first at Dodger Stadium, where the largest regular-season crowd since Aug. 7, 1974 went crazy.

"I went to home plate thinking home run," said Guerrero. "Right after I hit it, I knew it was out. It was a sinker, inside andlow. The irst pitch, I swung real hard. That's why I missed it. On the homer, I swung real easy."

SO, THE Valenzuela beat goes on. When will it end?

"In baseball, you win some, you lose some," said Valenzuela. "I am winning, I hope I can keep winning, but I am prepared to take a defeat. I don't have any idea how far I will go but every time I go out there I go out to win."

"This was a very difficult game, very tough. The main thing is that the team won. That's the most important thing."

Valenzuela leads the big leagues in victories, earned run average, innings pitched (72), complete games (7), strikeouts (68), and shutouts (5). He has allowed just 43 hits and only 17 walks.

Speier's homer put Valenzuela behind for the first time this year. Montreal starter Bill Gullickson nursed the slim lead into the sixth inning, when the Dodgers scored twice to go ahead.

Davey Lopes led off with a single and, after Ken Landreaux popped out, Dusty Baker singled. A wild pitch moved the runners to second and third, and Steve Garvey followed with a looper just over the head of second baseman Scott, who was positioned on the edge of the infield grass as the Expos attempted to cut off the tying run.

It remained 2-1 until Dawson unloaded.

Valenzuela had two singles in three at-bats, making him 9-for-25 this season, a .360 average. He was due up fourth in the bottom of the ninth. Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda was asked how long he would have let the rookie continue on the mound.

"That's something you'll never know," said the manager. "That's a secret I'll take to my grave with me."

MONTREAL MANAGER Dick Williams, whose team has lost nine straight games at Dodger Stadium and 19 of its past 21 outings in Los Angeles, praised Valenzuela, and also had kind words for the 22-year-old Gullickson, who allowed seven hits in seven innings, walked none and struck out six.

"I'm glad our young man didn't get the loss because he pitched fine baseball.

Reb coach Dykes is cautiously pleased

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The Midland Lee Rebels have less than a week left for spring football training, but head coach Spike Dykes is cautiously pleased with what he has seen so far.

"Spring training has been encouraging. We have a lot of new faces in a lot of new places, but we seem to be getting better every day," Dykes stated. "We have not had a bad practice and the kids seem to be much more intense this spring than last. Maybe that's just because we know the kids better this year."

But Dykes likes to temper his optimism by saying, "It's hard to evaluate your progress in the spring because there are no strangers involved. You can't play any games. I've seen coaches who have gotten excited over spring training only to find out that their optimism was unfounded. You can look pretty good playing youself sometimes.

"However, I can't help but feel that we are improving some with the intensity and enthusiasm the kids have shown this spring."

Dykes feels that the quarterbacking situation may be the biggest improvement he has seen on his squad. "We are executing and throwing the ball much better this year and we have several kids that can play."

Dykes has seniors and three juniors at quarterback this season. The seniors Bart Ryan, Chris Parker and Dondi Dominquez appear to have the best shot at starting. Parker has been playing baseball and will miss most of spring training. Ryan may have the edge. Juniors Paul Cox, Mike Mecurio and Teddy Strambler have also impressed Dykes.

"We have a good nucleus with which to work, but we were wiped out in the offensive and defensive lines," Dykes notes. "Naturally those are the areas of most concern, but we are showing improvement. We have a lot of competition at those positions and we need the youngsters to come through."

In the line, Dykes can count on Van Gravitt, who returns to center and is playing linebacker on defense. That helps the rebuilding. Alan Kyle, who had a lot of playing time last year, can help in the line.

Offensively, Dykes has rugged fullback Calvin Riggs returning after he was second in the 5-5A rushing wars last year. He can also play defense. Kenneth Brown is back at wide receiver and Kenneth Hardison is back at tight end. Kevin Sparks is another wide receiver who started last year.

Despite needing help in the defensive line, the Rebels have a good place to start with linebacker Terry Thompson, who may be the best middle man in the league this year. Ryan, Parker, Jesse Fennell and Brown all had secondary experience last year and should make that area a Reb strong point.

Lee will end the spring training grind Thursday with the annual Maroon-White game at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium. The scrimmage is open to the public.

In a twist for the spring game this year, Dykes has asked Ed Clements of KCRS to coach the Maroon squad while yours truly will coach for the White team. Much more will be said about this later.

Islanders take control of Cup finals

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars looked more like their usual selves Thursday night but, unfortunately for them, the New York Islanders looked a lot like their old selves and cranked out a 6-3 victory in Game 2 of the Stanley Cup Finals.

The North Stars had scrambled back from a two-goal deficit to tie the game 3-3, but the defending National Hockey League champion Islanders then exploded for three straight goals in an eight-minute span to go ahead 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

"We looked more like ourselves tonight, but obviously it wasn't enough," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "We were a lot more in this game than we were the other night. At 3-3, I felt very good about our chances to win."

After spotting Minnesota a 1-0 lead on a power play goal by rookie Dino Ciccarelli, his 13th of the playoffs, the Islanders forged a 3-1 advantage on goals by Mike Bossy, Bob Nystrom and Denis Potvin.

Minnesota bounced back, however, on Brad Palmer's lone second-period goal and Steve Payne's 14th goal of the playoffs just 30 seconds into the third period.

"You bet I was worried when they made it 3-3," admitted Butch Goring. "We stopped skating in the second period."

Potvin took the worry out of being close, however, with his second goal of the game and eighth of the playoffs on a power play at the eight-minute mark of the final period.

"That goal ignited the club and we took control," said Potvin, who recorded his 100th career playoff point. "We started to feel high on the bench when we got that power play."

Potvin now has 23 playoff points, just one shy of the National Hockey League record for defensemen set by Bobby Orr back in 1972. His eighth goal also leaves him just one short of the record held by Orr and Boston's Brad Park.

Potvin wasn't the only one to set record, though. Bryan Trottier's assist on New York's final goal gave him at least one point in 15 consecutive games, snapping Orr's 1972 mark.

"It's nice to have Orr's record," said Trottier. "I feel I'm being rewarded because the team is winning. You really appreciate it when all the guys congratulate each other."

Bossy, who scored the Islanders' first and last goals, scored on a power play at 4:33 of the first period to extend his own playoff record for power play goals in one season to nine.

Bossy notched his 15th goal of the playoffs at 16:22 of the third period, giving him 29 points in the playoffs, which tied Trottier's record set a year ago.

In contrast to Tuesday night's 6-3 defeat, when Minnesota did very little right, the North Stars looked sharp in rebounding from the 3-1 first-period deficit.

"The score wasn't what we were looking for, but we skated much better and moved the puck much better," said Sonmor. "We made some big strides over the first game."

"We didn't really get going until the third period," said Al Arbour, the Islanders' coach. "The North Stars were sharper than they were Tuesday and it took us a while to get our sharpness."

"The Islanders aren't going to let you have things your own way just because you decide you want to control the tempo," said Minnesota's Bobby Smith. "They tightened up and really forced the game in our end."

"After throwing our best at them we slowed down," said North Stars winger Brad Palmer. "We should have kept coming at them. When you get one you should go for two."

Late in the game, Trottier exchanged words and shoves with Minnesota goalie Don Beaupre, who had a brilliant game until the roof caved in in the third period.

And at 16:44, Minnesota's Brad Maxwell and Bob Bourne each received major penalties for fighting. Also, Ciccarelli and Gord Lane were each nailed with misconduct penalties.

"It's not a question of bad feelings between the two teams," said Minnesota defenseman Fred Barrett. "I've always enjoyed playing the Islanders because they don't rely on intimidation. Tonight it got a little rough around the edges but that's only due to the amount that's at stake. It's getting down to the bitter end."

Game 3 will be played at the Met Center in Bloomington, Minn., Sunday night with Game 4 scheduled for Tuesday evening. A fifth game, if necessary, will be back in New York on Thursday.

Special Effort is top qualifier

Special Effort sewed up a berth in the May 31 grand finale by flashing over the 350-yard course in the top qualifying time of 17.90 seconds. Nearly 180 two-year-olds took part in Thursday's slate of 18 trial races.

Special Effort won Thursday's third race by nearly five lengths -which is a long margin for a short 350-yard race. He went off as a heavy favorite and paid $3.60 to win.

SWC tourney opens today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Longhorns, ranked fifth in the nation and led by pitcher Tony Arnold's perfect record, open defense of their Southwest Conference baseball title on their home field today.

The Arkansas Rozorbacks, Houston Cougars, and Rice Owls will try to keep the Horns from making a 27th trip to the NCAA playoffs.

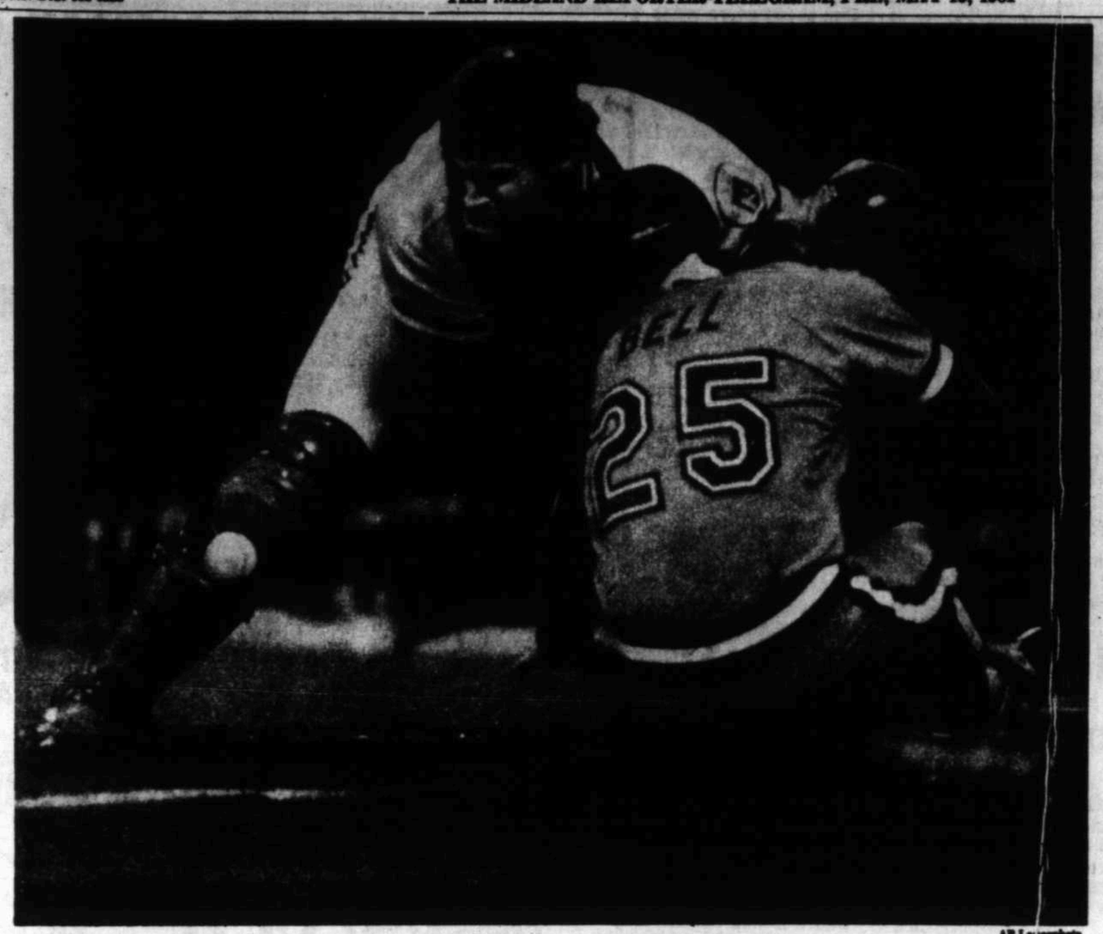

Arkansas and Houston open the double-elimination tournament at 1:30 p.m. Texas and Rice play at 7 p.m. Play continues Saturday and Sunday.

Texas, looking for a third straight conference crown, ended the regular season on top of the SWC with a 53-8-1 overall record. Arnold ran up a 15-0 season mark, including seven complete game wins in conference play. The junior walked only 14 batters in 110 innings.

Outfielder Larry Long, who transferred to UT last summer when SMU dropped baseball, led the Horns in hitting with a .361 average.

Rice, 34-21 overall and 11-10 in conference, beat UT once in three meetings this year. The fourth-place Owls' win over UT came behind pitcher Matt Williams, who had a 6-3 season record, and posted 76 strikeouts in 79 23 innings.

Arkansas, regular season SWC runnerup, features pitcher Scott Tabor, 6-2 and a 2.04 earned run average, and newcomer Billy Dees, who won the conference batting crown with a .407 average.

Angels win, but feel pain for Brewers

By The Associated Press

The California Angels know what the struggling Milwaukee Brewers are going through. In fact, they're responsible for a large part of the Brewers' slump.

"We were going through the same thing as Milwaukee is now," said Geoff Zahn, who pitched a five-hitter Thursday while Butch Hobson rapped a bases-loaded triple and Don Baylor drove in two runs with a homer and double as the Angels routed the Brewers 9-1. "We were struggling most of the season until lately. They're going through it now."

The victory was the Angels' fifth in a row — Milwaukee has been the victim three times — while the Brewers lost for the seventh time in their last eight.

Zahn had a career earned run average of 9.45 against the Brewers but the Angels are hot these days while Milwaukee can do little right.

"I haven't done well aginst them in the past, but it helps when you have that many runs," said Zahn, who was staked to a 6-0 lead after three innings. "All I had to do was try to keep the ball down, keep it in the ballpark and make them hit it on the ground."

The Brewers averted what would have been their sixth shutout of the season when Don Money homered in the sixth inning.

"I'm concerned," Milwaukee Manager Buck Rogers said. "We've got guys playing out of position because of injuries. But I never use injuries as an excuse for a slump."

"The Brewers and us are very similar — good-hitting clubs," said California's Brian Downing. "We weren't getting the leadoff man on base when we were struggling and they have to miss Paul Molitor and Robin Yount. But most of their guys have hit for half a dozen years, so you know they're going to come out of it."

Rangers 3, Royals 2

Pat Putnam lashed a tie-breaking solo home run off Paul Splittorff with one out in the eighth inning to hand Kansas City's defending AL champs their 17th loss in 24 games. Winner Doc Medich was lifted after Jamie Quirk opened the bottom of the ninth with a double but John Henry Johnson and Steve Comer kept the Royals from scoring.

Kansas City's George Brett, the AL's Most Valuable Player last season, suffered an ankle injury on a play at the plate in the fourth inning and struck a news photograher in the head with a crutch as he was leaving Royals Stadium. A club spokesman said Brett probably would be out a week with strained ligaments in his right ankle.

Yankees 9, A's 5

Dave Winfield drove in the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning and Reggie Jackson walloped an insurance three-run homer while relief ace Rich Gossage held Oakland scoreless on two hits over the final 21-3 innings, recording six strikeouts.

With the game tied 5-5, Barry Foote opened the New York eighth with a single off reliever Jeff Jones. Pinch runner Larry Milbourne beat the throw to second on Bucky Dent's sacrifice and a bunt single by Willie Randolph loaded the bases. Bobby Murcer, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning, tapped into a force at the plate before Winfield came through with his sacrifice fly and Jackson slammed his fifth home run of the season.

Orioles 10, Blue Jays 0

Mike Flanagan hurled a five-hitter in shutting Toronto out for the second time in two weeks and Wayne Krenchicki led a 17-hit attack by driving in three runs. It also was Baltimore's second shutout in as many nights against Toronto, coming on the heels of Scott McGregor's three-hitter Wednesday night.

Krenchicki doubled home two runs in the second inning and singled a run across in the fifth while Rick Dempsey and Eddie Murray hit solo home runs.

Red Sox 9, Twins 7

Dave Schmidt's first major league home run, a leadoff shot in the 11th inning, helped Boston beat the Twins after blowing an early 6-0 lead. Schmidt's homer was the fourth in Boston's 15-hit attack and came off reliever Don Cooper. The Red Sox, winning for the seventh time in their last eight games, added another run in the inning on walks to Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Rice plus Tony Perez' single, his fourth RBI.

Home runs by Perez, Carney Lansford and Dave Stapleton staked Boston to a 6-0 lead before Minnesota tied it with six runs in the sixth inning. Minnesota took a 7-6 lead in the seventh on Mickey Hatcher's RBI single but Lansford singled with one out in the Boston eighth, stole second and scored on Stapleton's two-out double to tie the score.

Floyd, Sullivan set Colonial pace

The swashbuckling Floyd forged a near-flawless 4-under-par 66 to earn a share of the lead entering today's second round of the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation.

"If you keep giving yourself chances, you'll win. The key is consistency. If I can get up in the top five week in and week out, my victories will come.

"No player out here is going to win every week. I had four double bogeys in Dallas last week and it's not often you can do that and still finish in the top six."

Floyd, twice a winner this year, bagged birdie putts of two, 18, 12, seven and eight feet and committed but one miscue — a 3-putt bogey at the treacherous fifth hole.

"In general," he said, "it was a nice, solid round of golf, and I'm tickled to death to have it under my belt."

Sullivan was slightly more erratic, collecting six birdies and two bogeys, and described his round as "nothing spectacular."

"I'm just enjoying myself. My philosophy is to just go out and have fun and if I play well, great, and if not, it's not the end of the world," said Sullivan.

"Today, everything just came out all right."

But he almost shot himself out of contention with a "mental lapse" on the back nine, bogeying three holes in a row.

He regrouped, birdied two of the last five holes and salvaged a par 70.

"I don't know where my mind was, but it wasn't on Colonial," he said.

"I don't want to do anything foolish and give the tournament away. I don't think you win tournaments on Thursday or Friday. I just want to be in position to win on Sunday."

Watson, the reigning Masters champion, dumped two shots in the water at the par-3 13th, took a horrendous eight and limped in with a 76.

"There aren't too many comments you can make on a round like that," he grumbled.

Although he missed the lead by a stroke, Zoeller almost tore the course apart en route to his 67.

"Fuzzy could have shot four or five shots lower," said his playing partner, Barry Jaeckel, who fired a 68 himself.

"He was in another league today. I just stood off to the side and watched in horror."

Zoeller said his 2-year-old daughter Sunny followed him all the way and provided some important advice.

SWC meet is wide open

DALLAS (AP) — The 66th annual Southwest Conference Track and Field championship is so wide open it's expected to go down to the final event on the two-day program — the 1600-meter relay Saturday afternoon.

Talent and balance are the words to describe the field this year in the meet beginning Friday at Morrison-Bell Track on the campus of Southern Methodist University.

The defending champion Texas Aggies, who lost 47½ points out of their 1980 total of 90½ will be hard-pressed to retain their championship.

It should be a wild, six-team race involving Arkansas, Houston, SMU, A&M, Texas and Baylor.

Arkansas, Houston and SMU have never won an outdoor SWC title.

Of course, Arkansas is the SWC Indoor champion, and SMU finished second to Texas-El Paso in the NCAA Indoor at Detroit.

SMU gets the SWC championship meet on its home track for the first time in 14 years.

fastest run by a collegiate team this year and Baylor, TCU, SMU and A&M aren't far behind. The SWC could have as many as four teams in the NCAA finals among the eight competing because of superior times.

And there's no bigger bounder than long jumper Carl Lewis, who recently jumped 28 feet 3 and 34 inches, the longest jump ever at sea level. A slight breeze just over the allowable two meters will keep the jump out of the record books.

Lewis won the NCAA last year with a leap of 27-4 34 and took the SWC crown with an effort of 26-9.

SMU's Keith Connor has the world's best ever indoor triple jump at 56-9 12 and will be competing in his specialty.

Michael Carter of SMU, the NCAA indoor and outdoor champion, hopes to add the SWC shot put title to his list of accomplishments. Carter came in second last year at Waco.

Baylor's Tood Harbour will be seeking his fourth 1500-meter title as will Leslie Kerr of A&M in the 400-meter run and A&M's Randy Hall in the pole vault.

Chaparral women nab third in national NJCAA finals

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — The Midland College women's golf team finished third here Thursday in the NJCAA national finals golf tournament with a three-day total of 979.

Palm Beach College took second with a 314-939 while MC followed with a 331-979. Temple posted a 332-985 and Broward Central had a 327-993.

Palm Beach's Julie Kintz won medalist honors with a three-day 220, a stroke average of 73.3. Dade's Mary Beth Zimmerman was runnerup in the medalist chase with a 223.

Wendy Swift led the MC women Thursday with a 77. Other MC members were Debroah Latham, 82; Cheryl Blunton, 86; Michelle Wilks, 86; and Debra Kargetta, 88.

Attorneys agree on makeup of jury in Raiders-NFL trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for both the Oakland Raiders and the National Football League have agreed on the makeup of a 10-member jury, paving the way for opening testimony in the trial to begin next Monday.

The jury selection process was shortened substantially Thursday when attorneys on both sides agreed to forego further questioning of prospective jurors and settled on seven women and three men who were acceptable to both the Raiders and the NFL.

The jury was to be sworn in today for the trial of the antitrust suit brought by the Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission against the NFL.

Brett hits photographer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City third baseman George Brett struck a news photographer in the head with a crutch as he was leaving Royals Stadium during Thursday night's game with the Texas Rangers.

Brett suffered an ankle injury in the fourth inning and was waiting at the clubhose elevator with teammate Clint Hurdle when the incident occured. Tom Gralish, a staff photograher for United Press International, and photographers from the Kansas City Times and The Associated Press were snapping pictures of Brett.

"Brett stuck out his crutch and hit me with a swipe up and caught my camera on the way down," said Gralish, who was not hurt.

"He said, 'Don't you have anything better to take pictures of?'

Unser is eager for Indy 500 trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "Dry the track off, and I'm ready," says two-time Indianapolis 500 winner Bobby Unser, eager for a break in the rainy weather and a chance to qualify his new Penske race car.

Only nine cars were able to qualify last Saturday because of rain, and Sunday's session was washed out entirely. Practice this week also has been curtailed, and a steady drizzle kept the Indianapolis Motor Speedway track closed all day Thursday.

"I've been ready for a long time," said Unser, one of five drivers yet to qualify who in practice have topped the tenatitve pole-position speed of 196.078 mph set by A.J. Foyt Saturday.

THE NATIONAL Weather Service forecast a 20 percent chance of rain today, tapering off in the afternoon and becoming partly sunny Saturday, the next-to-last scheduled session of time trials.

Unser, 47, has been practicing in his backup Penske PC-9B this week — when the weather allowed it — since his primary racer had already been set up for last weekend's qualifications. So, he says, he's been concentrating on getting the backup ready for the May 24 race, in case it's needed.

"We did some race testing with it," he said. "We've been trying to get the backup ready just as a good spare. We've had the extra time (because of the rain). My (primary) car is already set for qualifications, and I'd hate like hell to change anything on it now."

Judging by practice speeds, there doesn't seem to be much difference which car Unser drives. His top practice lap in the car he will drive in qualifications has been 199.510 mph, and the fast lap in the backup is 199.159.

Only two other drivers have gone faster — Rick Mears, Unser's Penske teammate and the 1979 Indy winner, clocked at 200.312 mph, and Danny Ongais, twice timed at 200 mph.

Unser said he isn't upset that his teammate has gone faster.

"We're only talking about a fraction of ... really, nothing," Bobby said. "He (Mears) should be fast. He's got a good car and a good engine. I'm not making excuses or saying I'll be faster in qualifications. But it's not a suicide thing for me, that's for sure."

Unser, seeking a starting spot in the Indy race for the 19th consecutive year, has won the pole position only once, in 1972, when he led 30 laps before a mechanical failure knocked him out of the race and gave him a 30th-place finish. He's started on the front row seven other times, including both years (1968 and 1975) he won the race.

Mears, 29, started from the pole en route to victory two years ago, then finished fifth last year.

SPEEDS HERE are significantly faster than last year, when Johnny Rutherford won the race after starting from the pole with a 192.256 mph average. Unser said a new rule by the U.S. Auto Club barring side skirts — which help create an aerodynamic downforce and virtually glue a car to the track — did not have the intended effect of slowing speeds to make the "little guys" more competitive with the big-money teams.

"The problem now is they've just about finished off the little guy. You can't hurt teams like Penske, because we'll figure out how to get the speed back," Unser said.

"We figured they were trying to cause us to lose roughly 50 percent (of the car's ground effects), so we tried to gain back, say, 25 percent (through technical innovations). Well, we filled that gap. We did it and then some," Unser continued. "The (Penske) car is better than it was last year. Because of the rule change and the innovative work we've done, we're further along with ground effects than we were last year.

"IT DIDN'T hurt us, but it hurt the little guys. If USAC had asked more people before deciding the rule, they could have helped the little guy more. All the rule did was hurt the conventional guys, the people without the (financial) means of doing innovative work."

When qualifications resume, Unser will be at most eighth in line for a chance to bump Foyt from the pole. All cars that were ready — and in line — to qualify last Saturday are guaranteed a shot at the pole position.

A third Penske teammate, rookie Bill Alsup, has already qualified at 193.154 mph, good enough for a tentative spot on the outside of the front row next to Rutherford. Unser's younger brother, three-time Indy winner Al Unser, also qualified last week, in the middle of the second row between Gordon Smiley and Pancho Carter.

Strike could be postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has talked with both sides about a complaint of unfair labor practices which could postpone the major league baseball strike set for May 29.

Daniel Silverman, the NLRB's regional director in New York, said fact-finders from his office interviewed representatives of the clubowners Thursday, a week after the complaint was filed in Washington by the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, and other representatives of the players were interviewed last Friday, Silverman added.

The players contend that the owners have failed to bargain by refusing to turn over financial data. The association says it needs the information to determine the validity of the owners' claim of financial hardships brought on by soaring free-agent salaries.

The complaint contains a request for a U.S. District Court injunction to postpone the strike, if the NLRB tells the owners to turn over the financial records.

"If that is the outcome, considering the time sequence, the owners would need time to compile the data and supply it to us, and we would need time to analyze it and bargain on it," Miller said Thursday.

He added, however, that postponing the strike deadline would not be easy.

When the players and owners narrowly averted a strike last May by agreeing to all points of a new basic contract expect free-agent compensation, the settlement gave the players the right to strike before June 1 of this year if the two sides failed to reach agreement on a compensation plan.

No agreement has been reached, and the owners last February unilaterally put into effect a program providing for compensation for the loss of "ranking" free agents, to be determined by a formula involving batting and pitching performance. The players announced 10 days later that they would strike May 29.

Stueckler sets dates for clinic

Stueckler's first session begins June 1 and runs through June 12, Monday through Friday. The second session will start June 15 and run through June 26.

The clinic will feature games, movies, fundamentals and drills.

The clinic will be held at the Lee gym and the clinic fee is $15. Time of the clinic daily will be 8 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. To register, contact coach Stueckler at 694-8379.

Judge splits tickets between Eagle fans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — When two Philadelphia Eagles football fans scrimmaged over season tickets, it took a Superior Court judge to call the final play.

Following a full-scale civil court trial, Judge L. Anthony Gibson has ruled real estate man Richard E. Barrish must turn over four of his eight 1981 season tickets to hardware store owner Matthew C. Karpinski.

The Mays Landing men, former football buddies, went to court following a bitter battle over eight season tickets to Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium they had shared since 1971.

The judge, annoyed the dispute reached his courtroom Wednesday, called the situation "a case with no winners."

"I'm really troubled by this lawsuit that seems to be simply an outgrowth of a quarrel between two friends who can't get along with one another any more," Gibson said.

According to trial testimony:

Karpinski and Barrish had been sharing eight season tickets since 1971.

It was Barrish who had traveled to Veterans Stadium to make the initial purchase in 1971 and he had put all the tickets in his name.

But Karpinski said he always believed four of the tickets were in his name because his checks for Barrish were made out to the Philadelphia Eagles Football Club.

The two friends recently had a falling out and Karpinski found himself without tickets. When 1981 Super Bowl tickets were sent out last winter, Barrish refused to turn any over Karpinski.

Pleasant Colony faces Preakness test

BALTIMORE (AP) — The sons of two Hall of Fame trainers, doing quite well in their own right, are taking a shot at Pleasant Colony in the Preakness.

Both colts are late closers who finished second to Buckland Farm's Pleasant Colony in their last starts.

Woodchopper, owned by Greentree Stable, was the runnerup by three-quarters of a length to Pleasant Colony in the May 2 Kentucky Derby. In his last start, the April 18 Wood Memorial, Pen-Y-Bryn Farm's Highland Blade finished three lengths behind Pleasant Colony.

The Derby winner, owned by Buckland Farm and trained by Johnny Campo, also is a come-from-behind colt. With Jorge Velasquez riding, Pleasant Colony has been established as the early line 5-2 favorite over 13 rivals for the 13-16 mile test, a 16th of a mile shorter than the Derby distance.

Woodchopper, the Louisiana Derby winner, was rated the second choice at 4-1. Highland Blade, winner of three of four starts this year including the Everglades, was listed at 8-1.

"It's a wonder he's alive," said Gaver, referring to the 21-horse stampede in the Derby. "He was trapped for most of the race. It was an alley fight."

Saturday, Woodchopper, a son of Hatchet Man-Musical Chairs, will go from the No.2 post position under Eddie Delahoussaye.

"I expect the Preakness will be run like the Derby," Gaver said. "I just hope there'll be an honest pace this time." The blazing early pace in the Derby killed off front-runners Top Avenger and Bold Ego.

Whiteley, whose father Frank won the Preakness with Tom Rolfe (1965) and Damascus (1967), is remembered for saddling Coastal, who stopped Spectacular Bid's Triple Crown chances in the 1979 Belmont Stakes.

"Myfather wo the Preakness twice with come-from-behind horses," said Whiteley. "My horse has been lightly raced but he acts like he has some class."

Highland Blade passed up the Derby because the trainer didn't think two weeks between the Wood and Derby was enough time to prepare the colt and because of the 20-horse limit (since over-ruled) based on earnings.

Jacinto Vasquez will ride Highand Blade, who will leave from the No. 12 post.

Pleasant Colony will go from the No. 13 post. But the outside position didn't faze Campo, who has been predicting Triple Crown for his colt since the Wood.

"What's the difference whether we go from No. 1 or No. 15?" said Campo with a shrug. "We got a race to run."

Other top contenders are J.D. Barton and Dr. Joseph Kidd's Bold Ego, who finished 10th in the Derby, and Harold Greene and Elizabeth Davis' Partez, third-place finisher in the Derby, 6-1.

Bold Ego, the Arkansas Derby winner ridden by Johnny Lively, will leave from post No. 8. Partez, Sandy Hawley up, will has the No. 7 post.

Completing the field are Pass the Tab, sixth in the Derby, 10-1; the Larry Barrera-trained entry of A Run and Flying Nashua, eighth in the Derby, and Illinois Derby winner Paristo, each 12-1; Double Sonic (11th in the Derby), and Thirty Eight Paces, each 20-1, and Top Avenger (19th in the Derby), Bare Knuckles and Escambia Bay, each 30-1.

For betting purposes, Top Avenger and Escambia Bay were placed in the mutuel field because there can be only 12 separate wagering interests.

If all go, the Preakness will be worth a record $271,800, with first place worth $201,800. Paristo was a $10,000 supplementary nomination.

All will carry 126 pounds.

ABC will present its Preakness program from 4-5 p.m. CDT. Post time is 4:38 p.m. CDT.

Martin wants motion pictures in movie theatres

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin prefers his motion pictures in movie theatres, and not on baseball fields, thank you.

So the Oakland A's manager will be filing an official protest of Thurdsday night's 9-5 loss against the New York Yankees because he saw cameras on the ground level, where he didn't think they ought to be.

"What are they doing there?" Martin asked. "They're not making a Mickey Mouse movie. Why they are there is obvious. They're trying to get our pitcher and probably our signs and see wether our second baseman and shortstop are moving on some pitches."

PARAMUS, N.J. (AP) — For at least three LPGA veterans, this weekend's Coca Cola Classic will be a battle to surpass Kathy Whitworth in the race to be the first woman golfer to reach $1 million in career earnings.

"Sentimentally, I hope to see Whitworth do it, but we all want to give her a battle," said JoAnne Carner, the second-highest money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Whitworth was the top-ranked LPGA golfer throughout much of the late 1960s and early 1970s, and is considered a pioneer of women's professional golf. She needs just $41,632 to reach the million-dollar mark, but the 41-year-old golfer hasn't been playing as sharply as her competitors.

This $125,000 Classic, which began today on a 54-hole, par-73 course, will decide whether 42-year-old Carner can retain her distinction as the second-highest money winner in LPGA history. Carner has earned $904,912, while Donna Caponi, enjoying a strong season, is quickly catching up, with $904,666.

Ranked fourth in all-time earnings, but still in contention for the plateau, is Jane Blalock, who needs $98,152 to become a golf millionaire. While all four are past their 35th birthdays, they are still among the strongest players on the LPGA circuit.

Last year, Caponi broke the $200,000 mark in yearly earnings, while Carner and Blalock each exceeded $100,000. All finished in the top 10 except Whitworth, who was 24th with $48,392.

Among the youngest players on the 1,161-yard Ridgewood Country Club course for the tournament is Beth Daniel, who last year had such a sensational performance that critics hailed her as the new Nancy Lopez-Melton.

But a slow start this season halted the plaudits and is forcing Daniel to carve out an identity of her own.

"I felt good. I felt flattered to be compared to Nancy," said Daniel.

"But I felt bad because I wanted to be known as Beth Daniel, not as somebody who could be as good as Nancy Lopez," said Daniel, who burst on the tour in 1979, finishing a year later with a No. 1 ranking and $328,000 in career earnings.

Reagan's imaginary bloopers excite TV critic

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I see that Ronald Reagan, the president, has refused to allow a collection of on-camera gaffes made by Ronald Reagan, the actor, to be included in a TV show featuring funny bloopers from television and the movies. This could be a political mistake.

The researchers for the NBC show, "TV's Censored Bloopers," found the Reagan booboos in the outtakes from two old Warner Bros. movies — "Voice of the Turtle" and "An Angel From Texas" — and an Army training film. "We knew we didn't have to have his permission to use them," said Lee Miller, the show's producer, "but out of respect for the president, we asked for it."

Officially, the President nixed the use of his bloopers because, according to assistant press secretary Mark Weinberg, "doing so would imply commercial endorsement" of the show.

"I think that with the prestige of his office, he doesn't want to be held up in any light that might be seen as ridicule," said Miller. "But we don't want to embarrass anybody, we feel strongly obligated to that. We didn't want to be party to anything that was embarrassing."

In another, Reagan was trying to zip Eleanor Parker's dress, but when he touched the zipper, the dress came off.

Embarrassing? Why, that's the sort of thing that might enhance a president's image. I rather like the idea of a chief executive who could, if he wanted to, remove a dress with a mere touch. At least, it's no less presidential than clowning around with Bonzo the chimp.

Besides, now that everyone knows a collection of Reagan bloopers exists ... well, it's only natural for the imagination to supply its own bloopers. It's like Richard Nixon's infamous 18-minute tape gap, which, as fancied in erasure is probably much more damning than it was in reality.

Indeed, try as I might to stifle the thoughts, imaginary Reagan bloopers keep appearing on that screen in my head. That Army training film, for example...

Ronald Reagan, in uniform, sits behind a desk giving his spiel on the armed forces to the camera. Every two minutes, an ambitious young officer behind the camera yells, "Cut!" Finally, Reagan pounds his fist to the table and demands, "Lt. Haig, who's in charge here?"

Or, I see Reagan in cowboy gear, hosting "Death Valley Days." As he reads the introduction, he keeps looking distractedly at the Joshua trees on the set. Finally, totally unnerved, he blurts, "Get those killers outta here!"

You can see that in not allowing the real bloopers to be used, Reagan might be damaging inadvertantly the presidential image.

The NBC show will be much less fun without the Reagan bloopers. On the other hand, the Reagan bloopers playing in my head make for some "Best Bet" stuff.

Children's programs may fall to planned budget cuts

BOSTON (AP) — Children's programs developed during the past decade are threatened by plans to cut the federal budget and censorship by groups such as the Moral Majority, says the president of Action for Children's Television.

"If the Reagan administration succeeds in its budget cuts, public broadcasting could cease to be an alternative, especially in children's programming," Peggy Charren said Tuesday.

"The anti-regulatory fever in Washington also is producing an atmosphere of 'anything goes,'" she said. "Just this week one of the networks announced it would add another 30-second commercial to Saturday morning shows starting this September."

The Moral Majority's threat to boycott products of sponsors who advertise on television shows it finds offensive also will discourage programmers from experimenting, said Ms. Charren, whose group formed 13 years ago in an effort to promote more diverse television shows for youngsters.

Ms. Charren admitted she herself finds many current shows offensive. "But I just don't watch them — I don't try to get them taken off the air. The Moral Majority is compiling a 'hit list,' and that's the kind of censorship we're ready to fight."

Fiddler's Contest planned

ODESSA — The Odessa Brand New Opree will conduct its fourth annual Fiddler's Contest at the Globe of the Great Southwest at 7 p.m. Saturday. Fiddlers from throughout West Texas and eastern New Mexico will be competing for prizes.

Age categories for the competition include under 19, 19-60 years old and over 60.

Fiddlers in the under 19 division will be awarded gift certificates for first, second, third and fourth places. Prize money for each of the older divisions is $100 for first, $50 for second, $25 for third and $15 for fourth. An additional $50 will be awarded the Grand Champion Fiddler. The top guitar picker accompanying the fiddlers will receive $50 with $35 going to the second place winner.

Each fiddler will be asked to play a waltz and either a breakdown or other fast tune. The contest is an independent contest and is not associated with any fiddler's association. All fiddlers are welcome to compete. There is no entry fee.

Registration takes place from 5 to 6:45 p.m. at the Globe. For more information call 1-332-1586.

Pickwick Players auditions set

Auditions to become a member of the summer Pickwick Players will be held at 1 p.m. May 30 in the Blakemore Room at Theatre Midland.

Students in the seventh through 12th grades are eligible and must prepare some demonstration of their theatrical talent or interest, such as a memorized poem, scene or other creative work.

Those accepted in the program may sign up for one or both production periods. The first Pickwick show will be presented July 9-11 and the second production is slated for August 6-8. Construction and rehearsal for the plays, along with special classes, will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Tuition for the summer is $120 for students whose parents are members of Midland Community Theatre and $150 for nonmembers. Fees for partial terms may be discussed with the children's theater director, Louis Moloney. For more information call the theater's business office at 682-2544.

Midlander Charles Dixon studies his lines during rehearsal before the public performances of "A Permian Symphony." In the background, the other narrator, Odessan Jane Ann Crum, also studies her lines. The symphony premiered in Midland and Odessa this week.

'A Permian Symphony' creates striking effect

"People are the poetry of a place.
They echo the spirits and ghosts that dwell the land and sky."

— Dr. Thomas Moore
The Human Presence
"A Permian Symphony"

Tuesday night marked the end of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale's 1980-81 season. The concert included Beethoven's 9th Symphony and the premiere of "A Permian Symphony."

It was an arresting evening.

The first half of the program included former Odessan John David Earnest's "A Permian Symphony," which was commissioned by the Midland-Odessa Symphony and supported in part by grants from the Texas Committee for the Humanities and the Atlantic Richfield Foundation.

The presentation involved an orchestra and two narrators, in this case, Midlander Charles Dixon and Odessan Jane Ann Crum. The text for the piece was written by Dr. Thomas Moore, professor of psychology and myth in the religious studies department at Southern Methodist University. The symphony was directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt.

Both Dixon and Ms. Crum did an excellent job of narrating. Their voices were clear and easily understood, and they presented the text in a dramatically effective manner.

"The piece is a concerto for two narrators and an orchestra," he said. "I think of this piece as a concert piece. It is a piece of concert theater, if there is such a word. It should be treated as theatrically as possible."

It would be difficult to describe it differently. Both parts work together to create a striking, albeit at times bombastic, effect. But it is doubtful whether the music or the text alone could stand on its own merits.

The music would certainly afford the connoisseur of classical works elementary listening. And the text, when read, states the obvious and uses the oldest, most often used metaphor around — the sexual one. So what's new?

"My body lies flat as Heaven stretches over me in the posture of love,
His fingers on my hands,
his toes touching my feet,
The space between us
a fragrant bed of love.
The flowering of human life is rooted

— Earth-Spirit's Lament

Moore spends three to four times as many words describing what he has done as he does doing it. Admittedly, the information used as his program notes was originally written to satisfy grant requirements which may account for its verbosity. Its reading offers some insights into the writer's mind. And it provides a format for what he says he's done which is helpful because without reading it, one would not know all the text was supposed to contain.

However, after reading the explanation of the project and then turning to the text one wonders — what happened? The feeling is slightly reminiscent of the story of the "Emperor's New Clothes," or as Shakespeare might state it, "Much Ado About Nothing."

The theme of the text revolves around the age-old battle of man verses nature — man conquering as opposed to living in harmony with Mother Earth.

The West Texas setting, which encompasses time back to the Permian Period (beginning of the Paleozoic Era about 230,000,000 years ago), focuses on the area's primary resource — oil. The overall message, from reading the written text and listening to the oral presentation, might be stated thus — drill in harmony and not in greed.

The reaction to the night's dramantic presentation seemed to be mixed, with some liking the words better than the music and vice-versa, while others liked both or neither.

It is interesting to note that one young man, when asked during intermission what he had gleaned from the presentation, said, after first qualifying his statement with "I'm not very good at listening to words," added, "It seemed to be saying drill deeper."

What was quite nice about the offering was that it was an original piece. It is a pleasure to see the Midland-Odessa Symphony support, and in this case originate, works by contemporary artists, thus providing symphony-goers with an opportunity to hear new material.

Beethoven's 9th Symphony presented after intermission was effectively done.

The voices of the chorale were augmented by those from the First Presbyterian Church Choir, Trinity Presbyterian Church Choir and the University of Texas Permian Singers. The four soloists were Roger Bryant, Carol Kaszar, Lorraine Manz and William Rhodes.

The enthusiasm with which the choirs and orchestra performed more than overcame the fact that they sounded slightly off key several times. This difficulty seemed minor when measured against the overall effect created on stage. The production certainly concluded the symphony and chorale's season on a dramantically upbeat note.

The immediate standing ovation, both in the balcony and downstairs, was spontaneous. It was a fitting tribute to those on stage as well as to all those who have worked this past year to make the symphony's season a memorable one.

Producer planning Sands show

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hollywood Deal takes a field trip...

Drew Cummings, a self-described "writer-producer-director," is going underground in Ireland in the next two weeks to research the life of Bobby Sands for a movie he's going to write (and possibly produce-direct, too).

Cummings will fly to Ireland, where he will meet a British journalist, who'll act as his intermediary to the underground Irish Republican Army. Cummings says he will be blindfolded and taken to a secret location in the nether reaches of the IRA underground network.

Cummings has done most of his writing-producing-directing in television's "reality" circus, most recently for CBS' late (and not much lamented) "That's My Line."

His two other current projects are also reality-oriented — a script about a Southern garbageman who was jailed for going through trash to find Christmas gifts for his kids, and the ongoing case of the surrogate mother who wants to keep her child.

Cummings said he hasn't yet made a deal with any TV network for the Bobby Sands story, although he sees it as a possible movie-of-the-week. TV movies have demonstrated a regrettable inclination toward biopics lately, although the case of Bobby Sands might be too volatile even for TV's reality-into-entertainment grinder. Nah, probably not.

"I'm looking forward to a lot of repercussions," says Cummings. "Publicity will not hurt. Possibly, I'll be stopped by authorities in Dublin."

With any luck.

Say, if you are stopped in Dublin, Drew, try to get to the Horseshoe Bar at the Shelbourne Hotel. And Mulligan's, just a few blocks over, where they draw the best pint of Guinness in Ireland. The barman puts a shamrock head on the stout that stays right there to the bottom of the glass.

"I'm a producer-director taking my life in my hands...

Cummings, 33, says he is "not taking sides on the story" of Bobby Sands and the Irish troubles. He insists he is not just working a cheap get-it-while-it's-hot exploitation of a sensitive subject, which TV is sometimes inclined to do (as in CBS' docudrama about the Jonestown suicide).

Chinese enjoying U.S. films

PEKING (AP) — The first American film festival in China moved on to Shanghai today after playing for one week to packed theaters that sometimes added extra showings.

Based on the number of showings in Peking, an estimated 500,000 Chinese have seen the five films sent over for the festival — the musical "Singing in the Rain," the animated fairy tale "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the social dramas "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," and "The Black Stallion," and the classic western "Shane."

Tickets cost 20 cents but seats were so hard to get that some theatergoers reported seeing tickets to "Shane" sold by scalpers for $1.35.

Printed schedules listed about 15 theaters, each with six showings a day, screening the American films, but some added extra late-night showings.

Birthday 'no party'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Henry Fonda may spend his 76th birthday Saturday in the hospital, where he's getting a review of his heart medicine and having his pacemaker checked.

Virginia Bohannon, spokeswoman for Cedars Sinai Medical Center here, revealed Thursday that Fonda has been in the hospital since May 4 and does not have a release date.

Fonda

Fonda, who got a pacemaker in 1974 and spent two days in April in a San Diego hospital for heart tests, was admitted to Cedars Sinai for "diagnostic evaluation of his long-term cardiac condition," Ms. Bohannon said. "The doctor just wants to see how he's doing."

Fonda spokesman Ray Strickland said doctors told the actor during the San Diego visit that "whatever medication they had given him (to aid the pacemaker) was reacting poorly." He would not elaborate.

Caan

Paul Block said Thursday that Caan "is in tremendous pain and sleeping only two hours a night."

Caan, injured last Friday, was not hospitalized and was allowed to remain at his second home on Turnberry Isle off the Florida coast, where he is under the care of an orthopedic specialist, Block said.

Caan, who had been deep-sea fishing for six days with a friend and his 4½-year-old son Scott, got on a motorcycle on the island of Eluthra in the Bahamas and began performing "doughnuts" — stunts which require rapid movement in tight circles, Block said.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace, now 61 and at work in the field of physical rehabilitation, says the ninth anniversary of the assassination attempt that left him crippled for life finds him "perfectly serene about the matter."

In an interview Thursday — the eve of the anniversary — Wallace said he has "no ill feelings toward the man that shot me. I've forgiven him and I hope he's asked forgiveness himself."

Arthur Bremer, a former busboy from Milwaukee, was convicted of shooting Wallace May 15, 1972, in Laurel, Md., while Wallace was campaigning for the presidency. Bremer was sentenced to 53 years in prison. He is up for parole consideration next year.

"The only feelings I would have would be that I'm still confined to a wheelchair and he'd be out on his feet, a free man," Wallace said of the parole possibility. "But that's up to the Maryland authorities."

Wallace left office in 1979 after three terms as governor. He is director of Rehabilitation Resources for the University of Alabama in Birmingham and works in downtown Montgomery.

NEW YORK (AP) — Finacier David Rockefeller says he turned down cabinet post offers from two presidents because Richard Nixon wanted him to "say yes in advance" and Jimmy Carter would have made him "the fall guy" in an economic disaster.

Both offered to make him secretary of the treasury, Rockefeller said in an interview to be published in Institutional Investor magazine.

"I was in Kuwait and had a telephone call from Al Haig," Nixon's chief of staff and now secretary of state, Rockefeller said. Haig said "the president had asked him to call me and to say he would like me to be secretary of the Treasury. George Shultz was then secretary."

But Rockefeller turned it down, he said, because Nixon "wanted to have me say yes in advance, which I simply wouldn't do."

When the Carter offer came, he "saw the country heading for an economic crisis. And for me, a Republican, a banker — coming from a wealthy family — to do the things I felt had to be done, I would have just been the fall guy. I couldn't have done an effective job and would have been destroyed."

Rockefeller retired last month as chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank.

Sun Air Service testifies

Austin Bureau

Officials of Sun Air Inc. Thursday told a Texas Aeronautics Commission hearings examiner that they would begin services as early as September for five cities, including Midland, if granted an air carrier certificate.

Sun Air has applied for a certificate of convenience and necessity to provide service to Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Dallas-Fort Worth, El Paso, Harlingen, Houston, Laredo, Lubbock, McAllen, Midland-Odessa, San Angelo, San Antonio and Wichita Falls.

During a hearing before TAC hearings examiner Tom Butler, officials of the Hurst-based corporation said they intend to begin service to Houston Hobby Airport, Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, San Antonio, Midland Regional Airport and Amarillo as early as September, and expand into other cities at a later date.

Sun Air proposes to have two flights daily to each point. The company plans to use DC-9 aircraft.

Butler should have his recommendation prepared within 60 days, and the TAC should make a final decision on the application within 180 days.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, May 16, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Among the celebrities sharing this birthday with you are Henry Fonda, James Arness and Liberace. Your willingness to compromise may be the deciding factor in how much career progress you make in the year ahead. You may have to cope with some radical changes which are inspired by a loved one. Romance is both exciting and a bit confusing. Make sure mate is in sympathy with your long-term goals. The financial picture shows steady improvement. An interest in history or antiques could lead to a profitable new hobby. A good conversationalist, you enjoy group activities, large gatherings. Work at developing your skills as a public speaker.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Something special may be added to an old friendship. You will have reason to celebrate this evening! Keep spending within resonable limits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Today's events give you a new awareness of the importance of taking care of yourself. New spiritual strength could be part of the picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Important new relationships grow out of today's activities. Romance is on the horizon even if you do not see it. Common goals are the key to happy marriage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can look forward to a weekend in which you can get out and about and pretty much do as you please. Give loved ones the attention and affection they crave.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Write letters to those who have moved away. They will appreciate receiving news about their old neighborhood. Remain calm when discussing money matters. Use diplomacy to get what you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can gain a lot from laying all of your cards on the table. Mate will respect your honesty and directness. Encourage children with their studies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You have mixed feelings as you enter a new romantic phase. Tell partner of your doubts. There is no reason why you should not enjoy a party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Try to keep health or diet resolutions. Improved posture could help you feel less tired. Singles find that their thoughts constantly turn to romance. Expand your social circle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21): Do not expect to receive support from every member of a weekend group. One or two persons may be in a contrary mood. Avoid bickering. Romance blooms in a beautiful setting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid taking on chores that will tax you physically. Instead spend time with youngsters. Staying close to home will give you more pleasure than traveling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friends play a large role in your activities. Several invitations may be part of the picture. Romance will be happy. Devote more attention to loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Control personal spending. Watch your step when making new investments. Friends may be misinformed on the risks involved.

Opening lead: King of ♡.

This hand could have come right out of a textbook on the play of hand. But, in fact, it was played by Ira Rubin of Paramus, N.J., during the Vanderbilt Team Championship at the recent Spring North American Championships, held in Detroit. The Rubin team was defeated in the final of this knockout competition by a team captained by B. Jay Becker, who at 77 is the oldest player ever to win this event.

Rubin's jump to three hearts at his second turn was an advance cue-bid showing specifically a void in the enemy suit. After North cue-bid the ace of clubs, Rubin used Blackwood to discover that the king of spades was missing, so he settled in the small slam.

West led the king of hearts. Declarer ruffed as East followed with the queen. The king and ace of trumps revealed the 3-1 break. Since the spade finesse would have to be taken, declarer ran the jack of spades to West's king. Back came another heart to East's jack; declarer ruffed again.

The careless play is to draw the outstanding trump in the hope that clubs would break 3-2, but Rubin is not the type of player who relies on the whims of fortune. If clubs were 4-1 and West had length in the suit, the contract was doomed. But if East held four clubs, the evil distribution could be neutralized. First, declarer cashed his high spades, discarding a club.

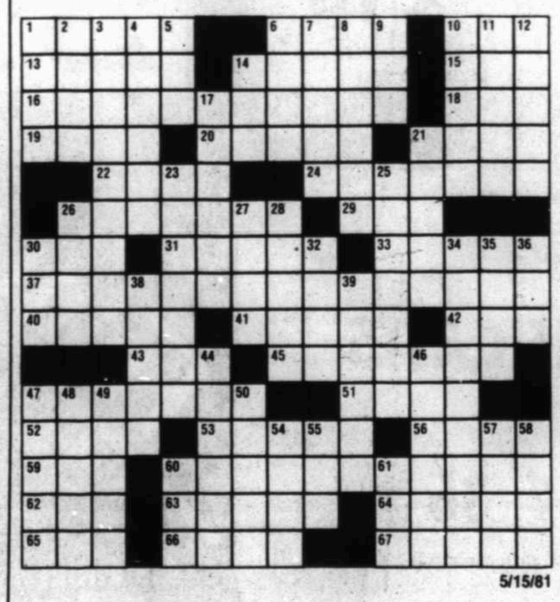

Next came the king and ace of clubs, and had both defenders followed, declarer would have drawn the last trump and claimed. But when West showed out on the second club, declarer's technique was rewarded. He cashed the queen of clubs and ruffed a club while East followed helplessly. Now declarer could return to his hand with a heart ruff to draw the last trump and his slam was home.

Texas House OKs tax district changes

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — After six hours of debate, the House of Representatives tentatively approved legislation designed to "fine tune" the Property Tax Code of 1979 under the guidance of the code's father, Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

Under a series of amendments, House members voted to provide for the election from single-member districts of officials of county-wide appraisal districts, charged with appraising all real property at current market values throughout the county.

Under Peveto's 1979 proposal, board members were appointed by the governing bodies of taxing entities within the county. By having the members elected, "We're giving the people the backbone of what it takes to control their own destiny," said Rep. Don Rains, D-San Marcos, author of the amendment.

Peveto condemned the amendment, saying the campaign slogan would be, "If you elect me, I'll put all the values back the way they were."

Conceding that his case against the amendment was lost, Peveto obtained adoption of an amendment to require that candidates for the board be elected officials from the taxing entities within the county.

Athens Rep. Elton Bomer, citing the problem on representation of small entities on the board, offered an amendment to increase the board from five up to nine members, at local option.

The House accepted that amendment and approved the package.

House members earlier had defeated legislation by Brownwood Rep. Lynn Nabors, which would have abolished appraisal boards altogether. Nabers had called the boards "monsters that are going to consume the whole state."

Under Naber's proposal, if taxing entities could not decide on which of them was best able to perform particular taxing functions, the responsibility for appraising would fall to the county, "an entity that is answerable to someone, i.e., the taxpayer," Nabers said.

Peveto complained that abolishing the appraisal boards would be equivalent to changing horses in midstream. The House agreed by an 89 to 56 margin. Peveto got to keep his horse, but House members decided to delay his arrival at the other side of the stream.

Rep. Jim Turner, a Crockett Democrat, gained approval of his amendment to allow, at local option, the deferment of tax increases which may occur under the Peveto bill for one year if the new appraisal method results in a 50 percent or more increase in the appraised value.

"Those people are entitled to be forewarned about how much of a tax increase they're going to have," Turner said.

Most new property will see a reduction in taxes under the 1979 code. However, owners of older property which has not been appraised in a number of years could see exorbitant jumps in their property taxes as a result of the property being assessed at 100 percent of market value.

Turner said his amendment is designed to ease substantial leaps in tax bills.

Under another amendment accepted by the House, counties would be allowed to delay implementation for one year of the 100 percent market value assessment, which is due by Jan 1, 1982. To receive a delay, half of the taxing entities within a county would have to agree on the need for postponement.

Reps. Tony Polumbo of Houston and James Nowlin of San Antonio offered the amendment to cover their respective counties which will not be ready for the new assessment in time. The original amendment covered only counties with a population over 500,000, but hostile members from small counties voted overwhelmingly to make the amendment apply statewide.

The second of two Big Spring caravans will be in Midland, Odessa and Stanton Saturday to promote Big Spring's centennial celebration.

The group is slated to arrive in Stanton at 9:45 a.m. and make a brief presentation at the courthouse. The group's next exhibition will be at the Midland Park Mall from 11 to 11:30 a.m. The Big Spring delegation's display will be at Odessa's Permian Mall from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Brochures and posters on the centennial festivities and plans will be distributed. The group will also be providing a variety of entertainment, including a barbershop quartet, square dancers and other music. Persons taking part in the caravan will be wearing old-fashioned centennial clothing.

MC to hold eighth commencement

Featured speaker for the event will be W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, Texas senator for the 25th District.

Mrs. Gerald Hickman will play both processional and recessional for the graduates. Midland College trustee Reagan H. Legg will pronounce the invocation. Following presentation of two numbers by the Midland College Chorale, conducted by Dr. Charles Lawson, graduates will be certified by Dr. Don Hunt, academic vice president, and by Dr. Al G. Langford, Midland College president. Diplomas will be awarded by Kenneth Peeler, vice president of the Midland College Board of Trustees.

Following the benediction by Dr. David Caffey, director of student activities, students will be honored, along with their families and friends, at a reception.
