10 dead in Memorial weekend flood

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — With hundreds of people left homeless and 11 people drowned or missing after a record rainfall sent 6-foot walls of water crashing through city streets, residents were warned to be alert today for more flash flooding.

"We don't need people dying in their cars again," said Yvonne Rehg, a spokeswoman at the city's emergency center.

The flooding early Sunday claimed at least 10 lives and other bodies may be found as streams recede, Deputy Chief Herb Hartz said Sunday. The American Red Cross reported five people hospitalized and 78 others treated for injuries.

The flood came exactly one month after a spate of tornadoes killed nine people outside this eastern Oklahoma city.

Witnesses said the flood came in waves as high as 10 feet. Most of the victims died when their cars or mobile homes were swept into creeks or drainage ditches, and a 57-year-old woman who lived in a trailer park remained unaccounted for Sunday night, Hartz said.

Eight bridges and numerous streets remained closed by high water late Sunday, and an aerial survey revealed "six or seven major pockets" of flood damage, said Mayor Terry Young, a former television weatherman.

Emergency workers and the National Guard reported evacuating 2,100 families, but Young said that was "a very conservative figure." The estimate of 200 mobile homes destroyed "likely will go up as well," he said.

Gov. George Nigh asked President Reagan for $3.7 million in federal disaster aid for Tulsa and Rogers counties, but that too was an estimate, said John Reid, Nigh's press aide. The total damage will probably amount to "many millions" of dollars, Reid said.

Floodwaters had receded from many streets by Sunday evening, but the National Weather Service warned that several streams and rivers continued to overflow.

Stab victim found

Twenty-seven-year-old Isael Benitez of Snyder was listed in serious condition Monday morning at Lubbock General Hospital, the apparent victim of a stabbing incident here Sunday night.

City police reported a suspect in the case, but no arrest had been made as of noon Monday.

Benitez was found by a passing motorist beside U.S. Hwy. 84 north of Snyder around 11:45 p.m. Sunday.

Approximately 15 minutes earlier, patroling police officers had been advised of an argument between two men riding in a 1981 Pontiac Bonneville, a vehicle registered to Benitez.

Minutes later, officers found the Pontiac apparently abandoned. It was parked approximately

U.S. remembers, honors war dead

By The Associated Press

Thousands of veterans and tourists paid hushed respects to the Unknown Soldier of Vietnam, while a son of the Union joined a tribute to Confederate soldiers in Boston by urging that the old disagreement "be forgotten" as the nation observed Memorial Day.

For millions of Americans, the long weekend meant the unofficial start of summer.

In California Sunday, temperatures climbed over 100, and fun-seekers jammed the beaches.

Elsewhere, in Colorado, three ski areas were still open today.

While in Nebraska, not even rain and a stiff, chill wind could dampen spirits at several state parks which officials reported to be surprisingly full over the weekend.

By 4 a.m. today, 209 deaths were reported in accidents on the nation's highways. The National Safety Council has estimated that 400 to 500 people could die in traffic over the three-day holiday.

Dozens of parades were planned nationwide today, although the march in Rochester, N.Y., was to go on without several veterans' groups that pulled out after a women's peace group was barred.

In the midst of the revelry, New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean issued a reminder to citizens that Memorial Day meant more than going "to a park for a picnic or taking advantage of a department store sale."

"The millions of men and women ... who answered the call to defend freedom — yours and mine — have made this holiday both possible and enjoyable," said Kean. "It is to them and the memory of those who laid down their lives that this day is dedicated."

In Washington, the silver casket of the Unknown Soldier of Vietnam lay in the Capitol Rotunda, atop a bier hastily built after President Abraham Lincoln's assassination in 1865. The casket was to be taken by horse-drawn caisson this afternoon to Arlington National Cemetery, to be buried in the Tomb of the Unknowns.

For the 10th year, a little-known New England chapter of the Sons of Confederate Veterans laid flowers at a granite monument honoring 13 Civil War prisoners from the South who died on George's Island in Boston Harbor. Joining them was Union-capped Eugene Russell, 78, a member of the Sons of Union Veterans.

Hundreds of World War II veterans traveled overseas this year for ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of D-Day in Normandy.

McPherson moves...

Councilman to be named

Snyder city council members will now have to appoint a replacement for Councilman Gale McPherson, whose resignation from the governing body became official Friday.

McPherson, a engineer with Chevron's SACROC operating unit here, has been transferred to Denver.

Under the city's charter, the council must now appoint a replacement for him. This council member will serve until next April, when he will be required to run for the seat if he continues to serve.

McPherson won reelection to his council post in the spring of 1983. He was serving his second two-year term.

The next regularly scheduled council meeting is June 11. City Manager John Gayle said Monday the current indication is an appointment may not be made until a second meeting date June 18, however.

Missing vehicle prompts arrest

A suspect was arrested by Sweetwater police Saturday in that city some four hours after a Snyder man reported his vehicle was missing.

Taken into custody was Jesse Delao, age 18. Local authorities were advised of his arrest at 2:21 a.m. Sunday.

The vehicle he was driving was identified as one reported stolen from Snyder around 9:47 p.m. Saturday.

Max Horsley had contacted police at that time and reported that his 1980 Ford pickup had been taken from his residence at 2611 Ave. K.

Sweetwater police say Delao was also charged with DWI Saturday.

Drive aiming for 500

The third blood drive for 1984 is planned Tuesday and local supporters are hoping to reach the year's 500th donor.

If this mark is reached, the 500th donor will receive from The Shack Restaurant a gift certificate good for a free meal.

The drive is scheduled from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Scurry County Senior Center. An appeal has been made for "O" negative blood, drive sponsors note.

As with past drives here, every fifth donor will receive a free six-pack of Dr. Pepper and every donor will receive a coupon good for a free Whataburger.

The first drive of 1984 yielded 143 donors and the second an all time record of 179 donors. This means some 178 donors are needed to reach 500 Tuesday.

If 500 is not reached, the gift certificate will be carried over for the next drive.

Q. — How many runoff races are on the June 2 ballot?

A. — There are four to include the local race for district attorney of the 132nd Judicial District. Two appeals court judgeships are in runoff races plus the hotly contested race between Kent Hance and Lloyd Doggett for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by John Tower.

13 latest death count figure

By The Associated Press

At least 13 people have died on Texas highways during the Memorial Day weekend, including three in a four-car accident near Sabinal that also left eight people injured.

The count began at 6 p.m. Friday and continues through midnight tonight.

Shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday, a westbound Volkswagen and an eastbound Corvette collided head-on on U.S. 90, two miles east of Sabinal, Medina County sheriff's communication officer John Franklin said.

Jetfighter drops fuel tank

LINZ, West Germany (AP) — A fuel tank from a Dutch air force F-16 fighter dropped onto a house in this Rhine River town, setting the building ablaze, and the plane apparently crashed nearby, police reported.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Firefighters from the town near Bonn rushed to the scene to fight the blaze, donning masks against fumes, police said. The site was close to a hospital.

A helicopter sighted wreckage from the plane, but the fate of the crew wasn't immediately known, police said.

Hijackers beaten to death

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli military commission has determined that two Arabs who hijacked a bus were beaten to death after Israeli troops stormed the vehicle to rescue hostages, a Defense Ministry statement said today.

The statement said some security forces personnel "may have broken the law" and that a separate investigation will be held to determine if they would be prosecuted.

Weekend thefts reported here included a missing purse and the theft of some $700 worth of fishing equipment.

The purse theft was reported by Eunice Wood Saturday at 10:17 a.m. She said it was taken sometime between noon and 5 p.m. Friday at Gray's Style Shop on the Snyder square.

The purse was said to contain an undetermined amount of cash in both a coin purse and a billfold. In addition, two uncashed pay checks and two checkbooks were said missing.

The fishing equipment was reported stolen Sunday at 10:49 a.m. by Ted Tutor, 308 Ave. U.

Items said stolen included two Bass Pro Shop rods; a Shimano spin cast reel; a Shimano bait cast reel; and two briefcase style Plano Rebel tackle boxes.

Pilot, 4 passengers injured in crash

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A pilot and four passengers escaped serious injury when a helicopter flying at a low altitude crashed while flying near about 25,000 people at Memorial Day weekend boat races.

Another man was treated for minor burns suffered as he helped pull the victims from the wreckage Sunday afternoon.

One of those aboard the helicopter was Ronnie Wagner, one of the promoters of the boating event, Stroh's Spring National Drag Boat Races at Braunig Lake in south Bexar County.

Witnesses said the helicopter crashed at 3:27 p.m. as the pilot was flying around the lake with Wagner, Wagner's 7-year-old son and two other passengers.

The official cause of the crash was undetermined last night but Bexar County sheriff's investigator Bill White told the San Antonio Light that the pilot may have lost control when the aircraft flew into a pocket of "dead" air at a height between 30 and 50 feet.

The helicopter went into a spin, hit the ground and flipped over, White said.

Injured were the pilot, Arnulfo Martinez Jr., 43, of San Antonio; and passengers Wagner, 32, of Bulverde; his son, Toby Wagner; George Gill, 11; and Sam Arzpe, 33, of San Antonio.

The injured were taken to Southeast Baptist Hospital for X-rays. A hospital spokesman said they complained of back, chest and rib pains.

The elder Wagner was was admitted for further observation, she said.

Martinez was transferred to Northeast Baptist Hospital from Southeast Baptist and admitted for further X-rays of his back, the spokesman said.

Also treated at Southeast Baptist was Michael Puzon, 28, who suffered burns on his feet and smoke inhalation when he joined rescue efforts.

Several of those watching the boat races said they saw the helicopter drop along the perimeter of the crowd.

"The whole back section wasn't spinning," said witness David McCord.

Ohio student outsmarted competitors

DALLAS (AP) — Four Ohio students have outbuzzed the competition in the National Academic Championships, solving such bafflers as the geological classification of slate and the name of the English Navy's commander in 1588.

The Wheelersburg High School team managed to out-think teen-agers from 51 schools around the nation to win the championship.

Dallas Baptist College was the financial sponsor for the week-long brain power test, and WFAA-TV in Dallas broadcast the final heat Sunday.

"I had no idea we'd do it," glowed Bridgit Boggs, a 17-year-old from Wheelersburg who earlier identified the reason for the characters' flight in Boccaccio's Decameron.

Miss Boggs burst into tears when the final buzzer sounded and gave the team's mascot — a stuffed dog named Lively — a real bear hug.

The students might be an intimidating group if they weren't so modest.

"We pick up a lot of this stuff at school," allowed Deborah Mauskopf, a member of the second-place Charles E. Jordan High School team from Durham, N.C.

Miss Mauskopf, who correctly quoted an 18th-century speech from memory, said she practiced with trivia books and questions at school.

"I find it really challenging," 16-year-old Mike Flynn told the Dallas Morning News.

Flynn, a member of the third-place team from Quincy High School in Quincy, Ill., added that "you learn a lot during the preparation."

Nation honors serviceman

WASHINGTON (AP) — With solemn Memorial Day pomp and pageantry, a serviceman who lost his life and his name in the Vietnam War receives America's highest military award and burial in a place of honor among the nation's war dead.

President Reagan planned to attend today's funeral of the unknown serviceman at Arlington National Cemetery.

Reagan was to give a Medal of Honor, the nation's top award for military valor, before the burial in the Tomb of the Unknowns in the midst of the cemetery where 189,000 former servicemen and their families are buried.

The only serviceman not identified among the 58,012 Americans who died during the Southeast Asian war was to be interred between the unidentified dead from World War II and the Korean War. That spot is at the foot of the 79-ton marble tomb covering the remains of the unknown soldier of World War I.

The silver casket had lain in state for the past three days in the vaulting Rotunda of the Capitol, an honor accorded only 24 other people, including the three previous unknowns.

It was to be taken this afternoon to Arlington, three miles away, by a horse-drawn caisson.

Thousands of people passed through the Capitol to pay their respects. Speaking in hushed tones, they passed quietly in two lines on either side of the red ropes around the coffin, which lay atop a bier built hastily after the April 1865 assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

Among the visitors were hundreds of Vietnam veterans.

"I came all the way from my home in Detroit to see this," said Mike Perry, a former Marine who was wearing the medals he won in Vietnam.

"It's long overdue," said Perry. "It's nice to see all these people. When we came back, nobody was proud of us. But I feel proud today."

John Hammett, a former Army infantryman from Newcastle, Pa., said, "I'm glad he came home finally. It may have been someone I served with, or under."

But Hammett and Ed Sklenchar, a Marine Vietnam veteran who is also from Newcastle, cautioned that the funeral "shouldn't be a symbolic ending."

Sklenchar said, "there are still a lot of guys missing. I hope this doesn't mean they will be forgotten."

Search Minnesota town for more pipe bombs

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP) — Officers combed parks and buildings for explosives after a rock thrown by a passer-by touched off a hidden pipe bomb that was "identical" to six bombs found earlier in Wisconsin, police said.

The 6-inch bomb that went off Sunday morning caused no injuries, but police were treating it "as a serious matter," said police Chief Wally Abrahamson. "We consider this to be a warning," he said.

About 20 officers spent Sunday searching parks along the St. Croix River and about 50 buildings, but no other bombs were found, Abrahamson said. Police asked residents and visitors to avoid any suspicious-looking packages or other objects they might find.

The search by Stillwater police, police from two neighboring towns, Washington County sheriff's officers and agents of the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was to continue today, the chief said.

"We're using plain-clothed officers to avoid any panic," he added.

The discovery of the bomb in this town of 10,500, about 25 miles northeast of Minneapolis-St. Paul, came less than two days after six pipe bombs were found in La Crosse, Wis., 160 miles away. One of the six exploded without incident Friday, and the others were detonated by an Army bomb squad.

Abrahamson would not release details of a note found with the Stillwater bomb, but he did say it was signed "Gay Strike Force." Badly spelled, handwritten notes found with the La Crosse bombs claimed they were the work of the "North Central Gay Strike Force Against Public and Police Oppression."

"The bombs and letters found with them are identical," said Abrahamson.

The Stillwater bomb went off when a man who was out walking along railroad tracks near the river noticed some freshly cut limbs and a string in the brush, the chief said.

"His curiosity got the best of him and he threw a rock into the brush. It hit a string, or trip wire, and it (the bomb) was set off" about 15 feet away, Abrahamson said. The man asked not to be identified, he said.

"If the bomb had been pointed the other direction, he could have been injured," he said. "These are very vicious devices."

Paul Harvey

It seemed a good idea 25 years ago to provide "decent housing" for slum dwellers.

So public money was allocated to build modern high-rise apartment buildings over what had been tar-paper shacks.

What went wrong?

Urbanologist Pierre de Vise calls these public housing facilities "the worst institutional source of envrionmental blight in the nation."

Chicago has huge public housing facilities where transplanted poverty is worse off than before.

Huge buildings in which elevators seldom run. Those that do are frequently used as toilets. Or tenants are required to pay tribute to young gangsters if they want to ride.

Crime of all kinds abounds. Mr. de Vise says six of Chicago's public housing facilities are among the 16 worst in the United States.

Chicago's Mayor Harold Washington proposes the usual politicians' response to take people out of the slums without first taking the slums out of the people.

If numbers bore you, heed these anyway. It's your money.

The Census Bureau reports 7 million Americans living below the "poverty level" income of $9,826 per year.

That suggests if we would give each poor family $10,000 we could eliminate poverty in America.

It would cost taxpayers $70 billion to do it — but surely it would be worth that — to eliminate poverty.

If we wanted to be a bit more generous than that we could give each poor family $12,000 a year.

That would cost us $84 billion.

If we want really to be generous we could give each poor family $15,000 a year in cash.

That would cost us taxpayers $105 billion a year.

It would not really cost that much because most poor families have at least some income.

But just think, we could lift everybody out of poverty — give all poor people $15,000 a year in cash if we were willing to spend $105 billion a year for that purpose.

You're not willing? Oh, yes, you are!

Economist Walter Williams has figured out that our nation's poverty agencies — HHS and HUD and all federal, state and local social welfare — all these agencies are now spending on poor people a total of $500 billion per year!

For about one-fifth that expenditure we could make them all rich!

Here's a simple trick for putting mascara on neatly: Lay a mirror flat on the table top and look down at it; then apply mascara. If you're really wobbly, fold a small tissue, then slip it under your lower lashes as you stroke on mascara — any smudges will hit the tissue.

'Berlin Warning' has a rousing finish

THE BERLIN WARNING. By Nicholas Guild. Putnam. 349 Pages. $16.95.

Nicholas Guild's new thriller, "The Berlin Warning," is a bit wordy for this sort of novel, but it manages to build up enough momentum to carry the reader through to a rousing finish.

The time is late 1941. The United States still hasn't entered World War II, and the Nazis want things to stay just that way. So, Hitler sends President Roosevelt a note warning that the Japanese plan to attack Pearl Harbor.

If the Americans can stop the Japanese before they act, Hitler reasons, they will not enter the war on England's side. The British learn of the note and go all out to stop it. They want America in the war because they are not sure they can continue holding off Hitler by themselves.

The British hire a man named Steadman to get Hitler's note and destroy it without reading it before it gets to Roosevelt.

Steadman does, but then finds himself in a bit of a bind. He has the note but is trapped in Nazi-dominated Europe. The Nazis are hunting him, as are the British now because they have found out he read the note and plans to get the warning to America.

Safety for Steadman lies in Portugal. But that's a long way from the heart of Nazi Germany which is where Steadman happens to be. He gives it his best, though, and what with Nazis and British both after him there's plenty of chasing about and enough violence to satisfy even the most jaded reader of thrillers.

Jim: "Here's a match point hand that gave Mike Lawrence a lot of problems. He sat East and elected to pass as dealer. South opened with a weak two-spade bid, and West and North passed."

Oswald: "I can see Mike's problems. If he doubles, his partner is likely to bid three diamonds. If he bids three clubs, he is going to lose the heart suit. So Mike elected to pass."

Jim: "Everyone passed and West opened the king of diamonds. Dummy's ace was played and Mike signaled with the nine. A spade was played from dummy to declarer's king and West's ace. Now West led his queen of diamonds and continued with the eight, which Mike ruffed."

Oswald: "Mike read the eight as a suit preference for hearts. He led his king of hearts and West played the 10. Mike thought a while and decided that West held the heart queen. So he led a low heart to West's queen. A heart was returned to Mike's ace, with everybody following.

"Now it was Mike's last turn to think. South's bid had shown six spades. South had shown up with three hearts and three diamonds, so he couldn't have more than one club. Mike decided it had to be the ace. So he led his fourth heart and West was able to make his spade jack to set declarer two tricks."

Jim: "It was worth only 12 out of 13 match points. One West declarer got to three diamonds and managed to make it by playing South for the singleton ace of clubs."

Waxahachie shopping mall destroyed by fire

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — A fire in a major shopping center that raged for nearly four hours destroyed 15 businessess, including the city's only bakery and two major restaurants, and caused up to $5 million in damages, fire officials said.

The fire at the Northgate Center, which started just before midnight Saturday, was put out at 3:30 a.m. by 66 firefighters from Waxahachie and five other fire departments from nearby cities.

No injuries were reported.

Gone with the blaze were the bookeeping department of the First National Bank, including all records of deposits made last Thursday and Friday, the town's largest paint store, a drug store, an art shop, a printing press, five clothing stores and offices of the Ellis County Committee on Aging.

The cause of the fire was under investigation by the Waxahachie fire marshal's office and agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Waxahachie firefighters were aided by units from Dallas, Ennis, Midlothian, Palmer and Italy, firefighter Dwaine Williams said. About 80 firefighters were on the scene at the height of the blaze, said Williams.

Wendell Presley, Waxahachie fire marshall and fire chief, set damages at $3.5 million and $5 million. He said the cause of the blaze, or exactly where it had started had not been determined late Sunday.

"There's not even any speculation at this time," Presley said. "It started in the back of the mall and spread fast."

Hiatal hernia surgery

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column on hiatal hernias I didn't see any mention of the operation I had. The operation has only been done in the past five years. Instead of cutting into the chest my doctor went below the diaphragm and pulled the stomach down, out of the tear and put a plastic collar around the tube to prevent the stomach from pushing back up into the torn area again.

After suffering with this trouble for 30 to 40 years I've had complete relief from the gas pains and no longer find it necessary to take any antacids. I can eat any food I wish with no aftereffects.

DEAR READER — Yes, this form of surgery was reported a few years ago and is being tried in selected patients by a number of surgeons. I must add that there's not complete agreement on the value of the operation even though many patients express complete satisfaction with the procedure as you have done.

A hiatal hernia occurs because the normal hole in the diaphragm where the esophagus (food tube) passes through to join the stomach is enlarged. This permits a part of the stomach to slide through the enlarged hole into the chest cavity. When this occurs, it can cause symptoms. In between times, when the stomach rests normally inside the abdomen, there are no symptoms.

The sphincter mechanism at the top of the stomach that normally closes it may be defective. This allows the contents inside the stomach to leak backward into the lower esophagus. The acid material or even other chemicals may then burn or irritate the lower esophagus causing symptoms.

The donut-shaped device used in your operation is filled with silicone and fits like a collar around the esophagus, just below the diaphragm. Ideally it is large enough to prevent the stomach from herniating through the enlarged hole. But even if the whole device slips through the diaphragm the device still helps prevent the backward leaking that causes symptoms.

Not everyone who has a hiatal hernia has enough difficulty to justify surgery. Many people are asymptomatic despite the hernia. Others may have esophageal reflux, the backward leaking, even if they don't have a hiatal hernia. So an improvement in lifestyle is usually the first step in managing such problems.

These measures are discussed in the Health Letter 4-8, Hiatal Hernia: Esophageal Reflux, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — If a person has herpes, can she cook for the family without infecting them?

What are the dos and don'ts? My doctor says do the normal things, but no sex when you have an outbreak. I want to be sure about this disease.

DEAR READER — First, be sure you have herpes. From your letter you must mean genital herpes, not other forms.

To spread genital herpes, live viruses present from the lesions (sores) of the infected person have to enter a break in the skin of the person who becomes infected. Friction is one way to break the skin barrier, which is why sex is such an effective way to transmit genital herpes. Just getting the viruses on the skin will not infect a person. So, of course, you can cook and do everything any normal person would do. Avoiding sex when you have a breakout is important.

Dear Abby

Lupus Victim Seeks Support She Didn't Get From Doctors

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 By Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old mother of two who was recently diagnosed as having a disease I had never heard of before. It's called lupus. When I look back, I realize I've had it since I was 14. That summer, while vacationing at the beach, a rash broke out on my face, covering my nose and surrounding my eyes. When I got home, I was so exhausted I couldn't even get dressed for dinner.

A local doctor treated me for poison ivy and said the exhaustion was from sunstroke. After that, whenever I went out in the sun that same rash appeared, so I knew it couldn't be poison ivy.

Meanwhile my joints ached, and I got these terrible attacks of nausea, dizziness and pains in my lungs, stomach and chest. I went to numerous doctors who sent me to numerous specialists who took numerous tests, but no one could tell me what was wrong with me. One doctor said I was anemic and would "grow out of it"; another said I had syphilis; another said it was arthritis; another said I had emotional problems and sent me to a psychiatrist.

Finally, an internist told me I had lupus. At least now my family knows I wasn't faking. Although there is no cure for it, I'm taking medication, which helps when I get these episodes.

What I need most is someone to talk to. Is there a support group for lupus? If not, I'd like to start one.

LUPUS VICTIM IN SEATTLE

DEAR LUPUS VICTIM: Contact the Lupus Foundation of America. Through its literature I have learned that there are about 500,000 known lupus victims in the United States, and probably twice that number who don't even know they have it. Most victims are women in their 20s and 30s.

Lupus affects more people than does muscular dystrophy, cystic fibrosis, rheumatic fever or leukemia, but it has been misdiagnosed, misunderstood and ignored for years. It's especially frustrating because most lupus sufferers "look" so well between episodes that no one can believe that their energy level is so low they can hardly breathe or drag themselves out of bed.

It's enormously comforting to know that you are not alone. I urge you, and other interested parties—including doctors and others in the health care field—to write to the Lupus Foundation of America, 11921 A Olive Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

You will be sent up-to-date information on the foundation's treatment and research findings, as well as a list of nearly 200 support groups throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. This is a non-profit health organization, so please enclose a dollar for its material and a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I've been entertained by the discussion in your column concerning whether "How are you?" is a question or a greeting.

I call it a greeting. (No one really wants to hear about your aches and pains.)

A couple of years ago I decided that that greeting deserved a more charming response than "Fine," so since then I've been saying, "The better for your asking. Thank you."

THE REV. JOSEPH A. KREMER,
MELROSE, MINN.

Farming has its hazards

MARSHFIELD, Wis. (AP) — What occupation can make you deaf and give you heart disease, lung disease, cancer and bad knees?

The same occupation famous for its fresh air and strenuous outdoor exercise: farming.

There are other hazards too. Don't forget animal diseases, rabies, deadly silo gases and accidents that can lead to lost limbs.

"The data dispel the myth that farmers are a happy, healthy group who never get sick and don't have a (health) worry in the world," said Dr. Edward Horvath, who maintains that of all the vocations in America, farming is the most neglected by those whose job it is to improve occupational health and safety.

Horvath is trying to remedy that situation as medical director of the National Farm Medicine Center, which was created in 1981 as part of the Marshfield Clinic and treats nearly 2,000 patients a day. The clinic and the center make up one of the largest medical and research complexes in the nation seving a primarily rural population.

In addition to conducting research, the clinic seeks to bring more attention to the occupational diseases and dangers of farming.

Farmers don't enjoy the protection of state and federal occupational health rules that protect their urban counterparts from hazardous chemicals and cancer-causing agents.

Horvath said a study of 62,000 deaths of Iowa men ages 20 to 64 found 9 percent fewer deaths among farmers than among non-farmers between 1964 to 1970 and 7 percent fewer deaths among farmers than among non-farmers from 1971 to 1978.

But the same study also said farmers are twice as likely to die from work-related incidents as their urban counterparts.

Horvath said the findings showed there were about 32 work-related deaths per 100,000 among farmers in each year of the study, compared to about 15 work-related deaths per 100,000 among city folks.

Treating farmers is more difficult than treating other professionals, Horvath said, because farmers often put their work ahead of their health. They have no large company to depend on for benefits and no insurance that would pay them for missing a work day.

That and farmers' traditional independence mean many don't seek attention until they are very ill, he said.

A laser — the word is an acronym for "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation" — is an intensely coherent and concentrated light source capable of incredible precision and power.

Eye surgeons manipulate lasers as bloodless scalpels to make extremely delicate incisions, or to cauterize blood vessels, while leaving tissue unaffected only a few cell widths away. To vaporize tumors or to melt and rebond torn nerves of blood vessels, surgeons use the unseen radiation of carbon dioxide lasers.

Steam-era train plans to stop during its trip

DALLAS (AP) — The Daylight dawns, almost, when it shushes into a station amid its shrouds of steam.

The crowds are seldom far away, busily applauding the memento of an era that dissipated like the steam more than 30 years ago.

The train left Oregon May 5, en route to New Orleans to represent Portland at the World's Fair. The Pacific Northwest Chapter of the National railway Historical Society is sponsoring the trip.

Seeing the old train in its renovated glory is fun for old timers. The sleek 1930s-vintage locomotive sparks memories of the old runs and the old days.

But it's fun for new-timers, too.

"In San Antonio, as in a lot of places, people applauded when we arrived," said Oregon train buff Irv Ewen. "She's quite a sight to see when she's under way. That thick plume of steam trailing behind, her colors gleaming."

Svelte as a bullet, its signature red, and its orange silver and black finish gleaming in the sun, the Daylight is a reminder of a time when how one traveled mattered more than how fast.

Now, more than 30 years after her retirement, the Daylight is taking one more ride.

On Thursday morning in San Antonio, about 150 fans stood by as the Daylight pulled out of the vintage Southern Pacific station. After a few days in Dallas, the train is scheduled to pull out for Houston on Thursday and arrive in New Orleans Saturday.

To help pay for the trip, organizers are selling tickets, Ewen said. Eight people paid $535 to travel the entire 7,000-mile round trip behind a steam engine.

But most of the Daylight's 416-seat capacity has been filled by short-hoppers along the way.

Plan to sell wild horses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam, saddled with 2,000 unwanted wild horses that are practically eating him out of house and home, is cutting their price and may let you have one for $25.

There's a catch: The horses will be old and probably hard to break.

About 6,000 wild horses and burros are rounded up in 10 Western states every year by the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management to preserve the open range for cattle grazing.

Since 1978, it has been offering the animals for adoption, and some 48,000 have found new homes that way.

But the bureau found that when it raised the horse adoption fee from $25 to $200 two years ago, the less desirable horses were passed over. A $50 increase in the $25 fee for burros did not hurt the demand for that animal.

The horse fee was lowered to $125 a year ago, but the inventory of unsold horses kept growing.

Now the bureau has 2,000 animals, almost all of them horses, that are costing the government $4,000 to $5,000 to feed every day.

These horses used to be destroyed, but the bureau stopped doing that after animal protection groups filed legal protests in court. Now, the bureau says, fewer than 100 ill or injured horses are killed every year.
