FRITZ SURRENDERS TO OFFICERS

Officer's Gun Fells Two Bandits After Addington Bank Raid

ONE MAN SHOT DEAD, OTHER IS HURT IN FIRING

Pair Takes $629 From Addington Bank In Daylight Job

MONEY RECOVERED

Shower of Bullets Misses Cashier; Wounded Man Held at Waurika

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Oct. 26.—Stopped by a fusillade of bullets, one bandit was killed and another seriously wounded after they had descended upon the First National bank of Addington, Okla., near here, early this afternoon and dashed from the institution with $629 in cash they had scooped from the counter.

The pair was halted on the edge of the city by fire from the gun of W. A. Fowler, Jefferson county deputy sheriff, who pursued the bandits in his car after they had made a getaway in a waiting automobile. In their flight from the bank, several shots were fired at I. C. McGinnis, cashier, and other officials of the bank, none of whom, however, was injured.

The man held told Sheriff Frank Driscoll here tonight that his name is Floyd Pruett, of Ardmore, Okla., and that his slain companion was Claude Coffee, who, he thought, lived in Fort Worth, Texas. Sheriff Driscoll said he had located Coffee's father in Mineral Wells, Texas. Coffee was about 26 years old, the sheriff said.

All of the loot obtained by the men was recovered and returned to the bank, Sheriff Driscoll said.

Pruett was brought here shortly after the shooting and lodged in jail. He suffered wounds in the arm and head, but is expected to recover. Coffee's body is being held at Addington.

THREE HELD FOR LOOTING TOWN

FENTRESS, Texas, Oct. 26. (AP)—Three men whom Guadoulupe county officers said were identified in San Antonio today as ex-convicts wanted in Denver, Colo., and other points, were in the Guadoulupe county jail at Seguin tonight, held for investigation in connection with the wholesale sacking of Fentress early today.

No charges had been filed.

They were taken to San Antonio for finger print and photograph identification by Deputy Sheriff Faegert of Guadoulupe county, and returned to Seguin during the afternoon. Faegert and Deputy G. T. Palmer arrested them on the outskirts of Seguin and disarmed them of a brace of "six shooters" each and a shotgun.

Three masked men broke into the Fentress State bank, stripped three stores and a garage and finally bound a nightwatchman while they hauled off a safe from the postoffice. Approximately $150 in cash and supplies were in the safe. Vaults at the bank and store safes resisted the obviously unskilled effort of the looters, who, failing to get cash, appropriated guns, ammunition, flashlights, pocket knives, silks and miscellaneous goods, valued at several hundred dollars.

GARY, Ind., Oct. 26. (INS)—Five bandits held up the Glen Park State bank here this afternoon and escaped with $8,000 in cash and $33,000 in city improvement bonds.

BORAH HOT FOR FARM SESSION

Star Campaigner Thinks Special Meet Needed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (UP)—A movement to call an extra session of congress to dispose of the farm relief question was started tonight by Senator Borah, Idaho Republican.

In a formal statement, Borah declared he was in favor of an extra session immediately unless some assurance was given that farm relief problems would be settled in the coming short session of congress.

The Idaho senator, one of the main campaigners for the Republican party, had lunch and conferred with Herbert Hoover today. He issued his statement after returning to his office.

"I would like to see the session called at once," Borah said, "and, first, pass a tariff bill with a special view of increasing duties upon farm products; second, pass a marketing bill establishing a more satisfactory marketing system so as to enable the farmers to market their products without being put to the enormous expense which is now necessarily incurred—a bill of this nature is now pending in the senate.

"Third, create a farm board with ample authority and with ample revolving fund to assist the farmer in marketing his surplus in accordance with sound business principles.

"I think there are three propositions in the question of farm relief which can be covered by a special session so as to enable the farmer to get the benefit of the legislation for next year's crops.

"As I see it we ought to have a better marketing system and we ought to have a farm board with authority and with funds to cooperate in disposing of the surplus.

"The campaign has developed this question and these issues so that there need not be any unnecessary delay and agriculture would get the benefit of it for the coming year. There is every reason for a special session and to my mind no sound reason against it."

FINANCE KINGS FURNISH MONEY FOR CAMPAIGN

Presidential Race Takes On Aspect of 'Battle Of The Billions'

G. O. P. COFFERS FULL

Both Parties Boast Huge Array of Rich Men Giving Help

By EDWARD L. RODDAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (US)—The financing of the presidential campaign today was a "battle of millionaires" unprecedented in the nation's political history, with the Republicans thus far holding a slight lead on the Democrats in the amounts contributed.

The list of contributors to both major parties, on file here at the house of representatives, included the names of virtually every millionaire and "billionaire" whose name looms big in the financial doings of the United States.

Industrial Kings

The Rockefellers, Edsel Ford, the Mellons of Pittsburgh, the Guggenheims of New York, Alfred I. DuPont, Harvey Firestone—these are among the 53,217 contributors whom Treasurer Nutt of the national committee revealed today as donators to the Hoover-Curtis fund.

On the Democratic side of the ledger are such names to conjure with as Pierre DuPont, John J. Raskob, Owen Young, Thomas Fortune Ryan, the Goelets of Newport and New York, Bernard Baruch, and Thomas F. Kenney, one of Gov. Al Smith's "bosom friends," who has earned a tidy fortune of probably $40,000,000.

These are names of men common ly reputed to be the richest in the United States and, therefore, in world history. Another interesting feature of the financial side of the campaign is the fact that there will be no congressional investigation of campaign funds—at least not until the election is over, although both house and senate appointed committees for that purpose.

Amounts Reduced

The terrific outcry against "slush funds", however, apparently has had the effect of reducing the amounts which otherwise might have been contributed by some of the financial giants. The largest single contribution thus far was $60,000 to the Smith fund by Thomas Fortune Ryan. The bulk of big donations to the G. O. P. have been for $25,000. In past presidential campaigns, contributions of $100,000 and over were not unknown.

In his statement today, Nutt re-

Toussaint Freed By Pardon, Woman Here Believes

Wichitan Visits Prison and Is Told Prisoner Was Given Liberty By Gov. Ferguson

Belief that Henry Toussaint, artist and former Wichita Falls architect and engineer who was given a life sentence for the murder of his father here in 1921, may have been out of prison several months or that he might possibly have been pardoned by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, was expressed in Wichita Falls Friday night by Mrs. W. R. Stout, 2206 Buchanan street.

Quoting a friend whose name she would not divulge, Mrs. Stout said that the friend was passing through Huntsville about a month ago and decided to stop at the prison and visit Toussaint as she knew a number of people in Wichita Falls that he knew.

She was told at the warden's office, according to Mrs. Stout, that Toussaint had been pardoned by Mrs. Ferguson, former governor of Texas, and was at liberty.

Sees Man's Cell

The woman was taken through the prison as are many visitors, and among other things she saw was the cell Toussaint formerly occupied and many of his drawings and paintings.

On the walls of his cell was a large painting of Mrs. Ferguson. Other paintings are said to adorn the prison chapel.

Mrs. Stout said she had not heard from Toussaint in any way and that she had only heard of his absence from the prison through her friend.

Reported Escaped

Toussaint was reported from Houston Friday as having escaped from the Darrington prison farm southeast of Houston. He was said at the farm to have escaped a week ago.

He had been a trusty assigned to surveying work. No details of the escape were given.

Toussaint and his father were the architects on the Buchanan street fire station here, and had been building contractors here.

In a statement made to the police, young Toussaint described the trouble between himself and his father that led to the shooting.

The two were constructing the Buchanan street fire station at the time. The younger Toussaint said

7-Year-Old Boy Held As Kidnaper of Baby

ALLIANCE, Nebr., Oct. 26. (UP)—Medical authorities will examine Raymond Babcock, 7, to determine what mental affliction or twist of mind caused him to kidnap a two-months old girl and then seek an axe with which to behead the infant, officials announced today.

Parents of the baby, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Colerick, found it before Raymond had an opportunity to carry out his confessed intention.

Raymond could not explain to police his reason for kidnaping the baby Thursday but admitted he had undressed her, left her in a patch of weeds on a vacant lot and had gone in search of an axe.

GRAND JURY SHOWS SPEED

Indictments Voted Four Hours After Raid

Officers of the sheriff's department and members of the Wichita county grand jury showed how speedily the law can operate Friday afternoon, when only four hours was required after a "tip" was scented for the apprehension of the prisoners, examination of witnesses and the voting of two indictments in the case.

Jury Dismissed

In addition, the grand jury cleared up all remaining cases, returned 12 other indictments, and was dismissed by E. G. Thornton, judge of the 30th district court.

The case that made the record was that of Jim Duncan and A. J. Adams. Both were arrested shortly after noon by Sheriff W. G. Brailey and his deputies, who were accompanied on a raid on a Front street restaurant by Dick Kenley, district attorney. One quart, three pints and an eight-ounce bottle of alleged whiskey were seized. Witnesses were taken from the spot, the prisoners quizzed by the grand jurors and lodged in jail, where later they were informed they had been charged with possession of liquor. A separate bill charging sale was returned against Duncan. Bond was set in each case at $1,000 by Judge Thornton.

In another series of indictments, Jim Stouard, John W. Stouard and Allan Kate were charged with theft over $50. The three men, who are in jail, are alleged to have stolen a chest of tools belonging to P. F. Butler, carpenter, last October 17.

12 Indictments

Eight other indictments, against men as yet unapprehended, were returned by the jurors in the final report. Included in the list of charges were four alleging possession of liquor, one forgery, two theft over $50 and one statutory charge.

The grand jurors, as they were dismissed by Judge Thornton, were complimented on the speedy and efficient manner in which they had disposed of cases presented at this term. They were also complimented by District Attorney Dick Kenley who said about 241 witnesses had been grilled by the investigators, who, during the October term, returned about 50 indictments. John W. Bradley was foreman of the grand jury.

HASKELL YOUTH UPSETS ROAD SHOOTING CASE

Carroll Bledsoe Tells Of Hearing Man Relate Firing Shots

ALIBI IS DEFENSE

Edward Smith, Wounded Near Weinert, Also Takes Stand

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Texas, Oct. 26.—Carroll Bledsoe, Haskell county youth, testified today that he heard George C. Calvert, alias Blackie McGowan, say on the night of July 28, 1928, he had shot at an automobile on the highway near Weinert, but he had thought he was shooting at a man who had helped him in a bank robbery and who had taken all of the loot.

The testimony of Bledsoe, a surprise witness, was the high spot of Calvert's trial which opened in district court here today. Calvert is charged with assault with intent to kill in connection with the shooting of Edward Smith of San Benito, Texas, on July 28, near Weinert.

Shooting on Road

Smith was in an automobile with three companions when a Hudson car was passed and some words were exchanged about "hogging the road." Shots were fired from the Hudson car and Smith was wounded.

Calvert, Otis Knight of Abilene, Velma Williams of Oklahoma, an Indian girl, and a third man were later arrested.

Velma Williams and Knight testified today that they were in the car with the defendant on July 28, going from Wink, Texas, to Oklahoma. They swore that Calvert fired into another car near Weinert. The state closed its case with their testimony.

Smith on Stand

Smith, showing visible signs of his wounding, was placed on the stand to prove that he had been shot while riding in an automobile near Weinert on the night of July 28.

In an attempt to prove an alibi, the defense placed four alibi witnesses from Fort Worth on the stand. They said that to the best of their memory, Calvert was at a Fort Worth garage to have repair work done on July 28.

Calvert took the stand after he had plead not guilty and stated that he was never in Haskell county or Wink in his life.

The case is being tried before Judge Bruce W. Bryant. District Attorney Clyde Grissom is prosecuting the case.

Arguments began at 3 o'clock and the case was left in the hands of the jury at 5:30 o'clock.

The jury retired at 10 o'clock Friday night without having reached a verdict.

BRIDGE FUND NEAR GOAL

"Up to Indiana Avenue," Says Harrell

Whether the three-way bridge approaching the Wichita river from Scott, Lamar and Indiana avenues will be built is dependent upon subscription of their portion of the fund by landowners of Indiana avenue, according to a report of the bridge committee made Friday afternoon in the office of J. T. Harrell, chairman.

Construction of the bridge was approved at a recent meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce. A committee of landowners on the three streets was appointed to solicit a $35,000 fund toward construction of the bridge. Landowners will ask the county commissioners court to appropriate the remainder of the $75,000 to finance the building of the bridge.

Landowners on Indiana street were apportioned $9,000 of the $35,000 building fund. A second report of the committee will be called soon, Mr. Harrell said.

FUGITIVE GIVES UP TO POSSE AFTER CHASE

Accused Slayer Sends Man To Tell Pursuers His Terms

OFFICERS SECRETIVE

Authorities Refuse to Give Whereabouts of Prisoner; Pair Buried

ABILENE, Oct. 26. (AP)—Bill Fritz, overseas veteran, charged with murder in the slaying of Dudley W. Hamilton and his son, Earle, Haskell county farmers, denied in the county jail here tonight that he fired the shots that killed the two men as they stood in the yard of their home Wednesday night.

Fritz, who surrendered to George Flourney, Haskell marshal, late today, admitted he witnessed the shooting. He declared he was accompanied to the Hamilton home by three companions, whose identity he refused to divulge.

The accused man told of two days and nights spent in cotton fields southwest of Judd, Haskell county community. Several times he said, possemen passed within 10 feet of him.

Realizing that he could not escape, Fritz said he went today to the home of John Epley, a farmer and friend, and asked that he call Marshal Flourney. When Flourney reached Epley's home he placed Fritz beneath the rumble seat of his automobile and brought him here.

OFFICERS KEEP DETAILS SECRET

Special to The Record News.

ROCHESTER, Texas, Oct. 26.—Emerging from dense brakes in the Brazos river bottoms in which he had been hiding for nearly two days, Bill Fritz, 25, charged with the murder last Wednesday night of D. W. Hamilton and his son, Earle, surrendered to a posse of officers at Judd, 10 miles west of here, early this morning.

His surrender, according to reports received here, was veiled in utmost secrecy owing to the tense feeling that has arisen since the slayings. Officers tonight would reveal no details of the surrender further than to say that Fritz had sent an envoy to inform posses hunting him that he would surrender if he were placed in the custody of City Marshall George Flournoy of Stamford, and if officers would rush him out of Haskell county, and guarantee protection to him en route.

Terms Agreed

Word was sent back, officers said, that they would agree to the terms, and Fritz appeared this morning on the streets of Judd, which were placed under heavy guard.

Fritz was hurriedly taken out of town in a southerly direction, and officers tonight would not reveal his whereabouts. It was rumored, however, that he was placed in the Abilene jail for safe keeping.

Hamilton and his son were shot to death in front of their home here late Wednesday night. After Mrs. Hamilton had told officers that Fritz had called at their home and asked to talk to her husband and son, Fritz was charged with the dual slaying in complaints filed by Clyde Grissom, district attorney. Fritz, it was revealed, is under indictment for liquor violations, and the shooting is thought to have followed testimony given by the younger Hamilton to a recent grand jury which indicted Fritz.

Services Held

Meanwhile, as officers had in their custody the man who has eluded several worn posses, about 2,500 people from Rochester and surrounding communities gathered at the city auditorium here this afternoon to pay last respects to the slain pair.

Impressive funeral services were held, with Dr. J. S. Ligon, pastor of the Church of Christ, officiating. He was assisted by the Rev. J. E. Harrell, pastor of the First Methodist church, and the Rev. D. L. Heath, pastor of the First Baptist church. Floral wreaths were banked about the biers of the father and son in profusion. Interment was in the local cemetery.

DENTON, Texas, Oct. 26. (AP)—Governor Moody's decision to speak Saturday night at Dallas in reply to an address delivered there a week ago by Senator William E. Borah was assailed here today by Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist university, at the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

"When Governor Moody comes to Dallas to defend Al Smith he will do so in support of the whisky gang that has fought him all along and in defiance of the group that has given him all the support he ever has had," Dr. Selecman declared. He promised to discuss the matter further at tomorrow's session.

C.-C. STUDIES COLLEGE PLAN

Four Year Course Urged By Cantwell

Visions of enlarging the Wichita Falls Junior college into a four-year university to embrace not only students from Wichita Falls but also from the surrounding territory were pictured by members of the business council of the chamber of commerce at the weekly meeting Friday at the Kemp hotel.

Cantwell Speaks

It was decided by the council that committees be appointed by Luther Hoffman, chairman of the council, to investigate the advisability of enlarging the scope of the Junior college so that in the near future the city might attract students from several nearby counties and supply the present needs for educational advantages in this section of the state.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of city schools, was the principal speaker on the movement, presenting to the council the need of properly financing the Junior college in order that it might weather a present crisis. In giving a survey of the educational needs of the northwestern part of the state, he emphasized the possibilities of the college in supplying a nucleus for an institution to fulfill that need, and solicited the cooperation of the chamber of commerce toward carrying out the program he outlined.

Wichita Falls has 20 counties of virgin territory, counties which are at the present time sending only a nominal percentage of students to anly college or university. Doctor Cantwell stressed the fact that the city might with ease become the educational center of this part of the state.

Approve Plan

Oher members of the council to comment upon the wisdom of such an enlargement plan were Dr. F. R. Collard, C. H. Clark and N. H. Martin.

The chairman of the council called attention to suggestions presented at the last meeting of the council for the establishment of an equalization board for state taxes and for quarterly or semi-annual division of tax payments.

Dr. Cantwell recommended the two educational amendments to be voted on at the coming election.

The program of the meeting was thrown open by the chairman to suggestions for improving the city or the chamber of commerce.

Toussaint Free Months, Is Belief

that he and his father had quarreled over his mother's death and also over the young man's wife. The son said he and his wife were separated and that he had planned to take her back, but that his father objected. This was given as one of the major causes of the trouble.

Told of Shooting

The statement recounted how, on the night of Sunday, Feb. 6, 1921, he had followed his father to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bruno, Avenue K and Polk street, where the elder Toussaint was visiting and how he tampered with the wires of his father's automobile while his father was inside the house.

Waiting about 150 feet from the Bruno residence, he finally saw his father emerge, try to start his car, and finally abandon it to walk, the statement said. The young man said he waited until his father was near when he fired twice, saw his father fall, and walked to his home at 2413 Ninth street.

He slept at home that night, went to the contracting job early in the morning and then to the offices of Voelcker and Dixon, architects, where he was told his father had been killed and that the body was at Merkel undertaking parlors.

He told the police later in the day where to find his father's watch and the gun with which the shooting was done buried in an alley behind 1510 Taylor street.

The elder Toussaint was a former Washington, D. C., hotel operator and, according to answers to telegraphic inquiries at that time, had another son, Rudolph Toussaint, living there.

Henry J. Toussaint was 33 years old at the time of the shooting.

Escaped Jail Here

Toussaint was first sentenced to death in July, 1922, by a jury which returned its verdict in 40 minutes after receiving the case. In November, 1922, the Texas court of criminal appeals reversed this finding and ordered a new trial. Shortly after this, Toussaint escaped from the Wichita county jail by using a key fashioned from a spoon to open four doors between his cell and freedom. Later recaptured, Toussaint was given a second trial and drew a verdict of life imprisonment at Anson, Jones county.

The elder Toussaint had arrived in Wichita Falls from Washington only a few months before the shooting. Mrs. Toussaint later divorced the convicted man and has since remarried, now residing in Scranton, Pa.

One of Toussaint's first acts after reaching the state prison was to paint the mural design for the Huntsville state penitentiary stage depicting the life of Christ.

Publisher's Wife Arrested After She Protests Jailing of Atheist

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 26. (UP)—Mrs. Marcet Haldemann-Julius, wife of the Kansas publisher, was arrested here today for picketing in protest to the arrest of Charles Smith, New York atheist.

Smith, convicted and sentenced to jail on charges of distributing literature "calculated to disturb the peace," is on the tenth day of a hunger strike in his cell.

Mrs. Haldemann-Julius, who was charged with advertising without a permit, was released 30 minutes after her arrest, and resumed the picketing.

She carried a banner bearing the inscription, "Why Does the State of Arkansas Deny the Right of Free Speech?" and "Why Shouldn't Smith Say 'God Is a Ghost'?"

Smith's trial, his sentence and hunger strike had caused wide attention. He was arrested following a campaign he conducted here against a proposed referendum preventing the teaching of evolution in Arkansas schools.

He was denied the right to testify under the Arkansas law which forbids testimony of an atheist.

SMITH PREPARES FOR PENNSYLVANIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith spent nearly all of today getting ready for the Democratic invasion he will lead tomorrow into the neighboring state of Pennsylvania which, with 38 votes, ranks second only to New York in the electoral college.

The governor has not disclosed the subject he will discuss tomorrow night in Philadelphia, where he will make his only personal appeal to the voters of the normally Republican Keystone state. He will leave here at 1:30 p. m. for Camden, New Jersey, where he will detrain and after a motor parade through the city move across the Delaware river into Philadelphia.

The Democratic candidate for a few minutes today took time from work on his Philadelphia address for a press conference. He appeared in the best of spirits and showed no signs of fatigue from two days campaigning in southern New England.

He Sees Trend

He was reminded by the correspondents that on leaving Boston he had predicted that Massachusetts would be lined up under the Democratic banner, and then asked:

"How do you feel in regard to Rhode Island and Connecticut?"

"I feel all right about it," he answered. "I think all three states are all right."

"Do you get the feeling there has been somewhat of a trend toward you in the last few days or in the last few weeks?" one correspondent inquired.

"I certainly think after Monday night there has been a decided change," he replied. "I think the Republican candidate hurt his cause with his Madison Square speech."

HOOVER TOLD OF LABOR SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (US)—Herbert Hoover received assurances today from labor leaders of a mass movement in organized labor to his support. Railroad workers were said to be leading the procession to him.

Far from disturbed by the sledgehammer drive of Governor Smith in the Northeastern battle zone, Hoover spent the day receiving optimistic reports from his effective political organization throughout the country.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho lunched with the nominee, giving him a report of the political situation as he found it in his swings across the country. It was an optimistic report that Borah made. He was especially gratified by the trend of events in the "Solid South."

An overwhelming majority of the members of the railroad brotherhoods will support Hoover, he was told by Frederick H. Fljosdal of Detroit, president of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, and Arthur J. Lovell of Washington, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

BURGLARS RAID SEVEN HOMES

No Arrests Reported In Robbery Wave

Burglars renewed their "work" Thursday night after police had believed they were "laying off" for a time when reports received at police headquarters Friday revealed that seven Wichita Falls homes had been entered by theives Thursday night.

Thursday night's burglaries like most of those that have happened so frequently in the city during the last few days, brought little loot.

Busy Season

The activities of the burglars Thursday night swelled the fast increasing list of knob-knocks and house robberies to six broken safes and nine house burglaries since the coming of Wichita Falls first snap of winter weather last Sunday night.

No suspects had been arrested and no charges against burglars were filed Friday, according to James E. Glenn, night chief of police.

The home of V. E. Tims, 2005 Elizabeth, was reported as having suffered the greatest loss of the seven houses which were entered. Articles that were stolen from the Tims home included a Gladstone bag, two pistols, 12 shirts and numerous small articles of clothing.

George Garrett, deputy sheriff, reported that his trousers were missing from his home at 1918 Sixth street Friday morning when he awoke. The missing trousers were later located in Garrett's front yard. Small change had been taken from them while papers from the pockets were scattered over the yard.

Two Attempts on Home

The burglars failed to leave the trousers of G. Q. Parker, of 1901 Sixth street, which contained several dollars and a watch. Seven dollars in cash were reported missing from the home of S. D. Doyle, 1600 Fifth street while prowlers had attempted to enter the home of Mrs. B. O. Brown, of 1908 Sixth street, both Wednesday and Thursday nights police were told.

A residence near Brook avenue and Eleventh street was entered and several dollars taken while another house in the same neighborhood was reported to have been entered.

A 1925 model Paige automobile owned by James Biggs, president and general manager of the Biggs and company supply house, was reported to have been stolen Friday night at 7:15 o'clock. The car was parked in front of the Strand theater.

W. R. Snap's new Chevrolet coupe which he had just purchased from the Acuff Motor company at Iowa Park and which still carried the dealer's license tag, disappeared from in front of the home of Ed Lee, 2113 Ninth street, Friday evening. Police have been asked to assist in the search.

SILVER GIVEN LIGHT TASKS

Bandit, Saved by Governor, Works in Laundry

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 26. (AP)—J. R. (Bob) Silver, whose death sentence for participation in the robbery and fatal shooting of Roscoe C. Wilson, Majestic theater treasurer in Fort Worth, Jan. 31, 1927, was commuted Thursday to life imprisonment, has been assigned to light work in the penitentiary laundry here.

Warden E. F. Harrell said that he intended keeping the Fort Worth prisoner in the main penitentiary plant indefinitely. Decision to assign him to the laundry at the outset, Harrell explained, was due to the fact that Silver's physical condition is bad.

W. A. Stone, charged with Silver with the crime and given a 99-year sentence, is confined at the Eastham prison farm.

"Silver will pay doubly for his crime," Warden Harrell said. "He already has gone through most of the tortures that apply in a death case. Now he will be confined for life at hard labor.

"His chance for escape will be small."

Silver said he had nerved himself to walk the 20 steps from his death cell to the electric chair, shortly after midnight Thursday, make a talk to the guards and other witnesses in the death chamber and "take his punishment."

Fur-Lined Hats New Paris Winter Feature

PARIS, Oct. 26. (AP)—Facings of shaved furs are featured by some milliners on hats for late winter. Lambskin in beige and gray is the foremost fur for the purpose, but some closely clipped rabbit is also used on the under side of hats of silk velour.

The topside of the fur-lined hats is untrimmed except for a simple binding of satin around the bottom of the crown, or a silver or gold cord. The brims are cut longer at the sides than at front and back.

One mount carried Mlle. Dorange the entire distance. One riding costume and a rain coat comprised the baggage she carried on her ride.

Burlau Advises Simplicity For Childrens' Wear

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (AP)—Simplification of children's clothing is being taught by the division of textiles and clothing of the home economics bureau.

Government experts point out that too many pieces in a pattern make extra work, both in cutting and sewing and often in ironing. Plain, simple designs are best, they say, especially those with kimono or raglan sleeves which give room for growth.

Experiments are under way at the children's research bureau to determine what effect different types of clothing have on posture, freedom of movement and happiness of disposition.

"Many parents and relatives have the mistaken idea that children's clothes, in order to be attractive, must be elaborately trimmed," says Miss Maude Campbell, assistant specialist in clothing. "Such frills detract from the child and are likely to make her conscious of herself and her clothes. The most effective and satisfying designs are the most simple. If becoming colors and simple fabrics are chosen, these simple designs are right for any occasion."

Lame Moire Given Approval of Designers

PARIS, Oct. 26. (AP)—One of the unusual fabrics, although not an entirely new one, which French designers are using more and more for evening coats and dresses is lame moire.

In shades of violet and wine red with a dull gold thread the lame with a watermark in it appears in some of Paris' most important style collections. Usually the dresses are made with circular skirts, which are long in back, or tiered skirts of irregular lengths.

One designer has several lame moire dresses which barely clear the heels in back. The extreme length is broken in front by a narrow slot which permits the knee-length front skirt Paris still seems to consider essential.

Women Surpass Men In Zeal For Flying

CROYDON, London, Oct. 26. (AP)—More women are traveling by airplane than men on the famous route from London to Paris and return. Within the last four years more than 40,000 women have flown in Imperial Airways machines.

On the Air Union line this year 54 per cent of the passengers were women, compared with 42 per cent last year. Twenty business women from the United States chartered an airplane recently to go to Paris. The largest party of women numbered 41; they were accommodated in several machines.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (US)—"Just think," says a telephone operator, in a newspaper today, "there are only 23 wrong numbers out of every 1,000, and many of those are the customer's fault."

But if you are always one of the 23, day after day, and week after week, and month after month, how can you take great joy in knowing that the other 977 are getting right numbers? Just think it would cost, at 6 cents per call, $60 to prove the girl is right, and even then you could still be one of the 23 when the arrangement came to an end.

Three women have started across the country in a car to find husbands. The only way they differ from other women, is that they advertise that they are hunting husbands. The element of surprise is entirely eliminated.

They are trying to catch them with this bait:

"We want men of 45 who do not smoke or drink except semi-occasionally.

"We want men with $10,000, and $5,000 of tht must be in cash. Not for us, but to educate a little brother.

"We want good natured, honorable men.

"They must not be subject to fits of philandering.

"They must be absolutely truthful."

Men who want to be rigidly disciplined, who want to have all the joys of life extracted, and to pay well for the privilege of such a life, and who would get a great kick out of educating a strange woman's little brother, step right up. Here is a swell chance.

Fourteen women were arrested in Salt Lake City for gambling in a tea room. A horse racing pool was the attraction. The women were from 25 to 60 years old.

Next they will be arresting them in the alleys, shooting craps.

A slim, white haired lady on a Fifth avenue bus in New York; elegant, she was, and jovial, and quite pretty. She unfolded a thin lavender wool sweater and leaned over to remark: "I was too warm with this on, but riding its a bit cold. I think I'll drape it over my shoulders, outside my coat. It don't matter what you do these days anyway," and the dear thing giggled. "All the women wear things hanging down on one side or the other."

"I'm 85," she said proudly. "I've been at Atlantic City for the past year, and the things I saw there! It was such fun."

And she didn't say, "my, my, it was awful." She just laughed merrily as if she loved life and everything in it. As if she understood how manners and customs change, and how she thought it was bully that they did. It will be a shame when she can no longer be here to watch the procession.

Everybody on the bus was interested in her.

If only women could grow old gracefully, cheerfully, intelligently as she did, instead of trying to fool themselves with a bottle of hair dye and a flame red dress!

George M. Cohan says the proper treatment for neglectful or inefficient wives is "the hat trick." Put on your hat and take a long walk and the domestic crisis will pass, sezze.

That is what Judge William N. Gemmill used to advise in his domestic court. Sometimes it worked, but he found a great many women who would wait for weeks and weeks to have the last word.

Prospective Bride Jilts Sweetie And Elopes With Physician

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 27. (AP)—Nuptial plans for Miss Margaret McKelvey and Robert Carson, Tulsa, Okla., broker, were abruptly halted here today when Miss McKelvey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McKelvey received a telegram from her stating she had eloped with a New York physician.

The marriage of Miss McKelvey to Carson had been set for Nov. 1. Wedding invitations had been printed and bridesmaids and other attendants selected.

The telegram which Miss McKelvey sent from Zanesville, Ohio, to her family did not give the name of the man with whom she said she had eloped, merely stating that he was a New York physician and that she had known him for some time.

Boy Who Chased 'Villain' Over Stop Sign Freed

FORT WORTH, Oct. 26. (UP)—A boy 18 years old "pursued the villain," was arrested for passing a boulevard stop and was finally dismissed in police court by Judge Cullen Bailey.

The boy's sister, 14 years old, had gone to a dance with an older boy. The "date" promised to have her home at a certain time. He didn't get her there, so "brother" set out after her.

"I saw that by running past a stop line I could catch them," the boy told Judge Bailey. "I took the chance, judge, in an effort to get my sister and relieve the folks at home of worry."

"Dismissed; next case," Bailey ordered.

Chicago Debs Act As Chorus Girls InCharityShow

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (AP)—Once each year Chicago's debutantes, sub-debs and post-debs know what it is to be show girls.

This year many of them made up the "million dollar" chorus of the Service club's annual musical comedy for charity. Others had the leading roles.

For more than a month each fall the Service club girls spend six to eight hours a day practicing dance steps, memorizing lines and songs, repeating over and over kicks, shuffles, gestures and lyrics. A professional dancing instructor, occasionally from the schools of the masters who provide Broadway's choruses, trains the girls.

A program of the plays reads like pages of the social register. Last year the play brought $5000 into the club's coffers, which open only to needs of charity.

The Service club, now with a membership of 160, originated with members of a Sunday school class 32 years ago. All of them attended the defunct Dearborn seminary, an exclusive school for girls.

Among those organizers was Mrs. Frank Shaw, whose daughter, Miss Louise Tyler, now is president.

Giant Pecan Tree Yields 1,000 Pounds Yearly

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Oct. 26. (UP)—A native pecan tree on the G. O. Breeding farm in the cross timbers east of here has the reputation of sometimes producing a thousand pounds of pecans in one season. The tree is unusually big, having a spread of 65 feet by actual measurement. This year it bids fair to make a profitable yield.

The nuts are large and well formed for native pecans and are well marked, making an attractive product for the retail market. The kernels are big and fine flavored.

Mr. Breeding, who is a pecan fancier and who is doing much to promote the industry in this section, says he plans to name this pecan the Western Stewart and to sell buds from the tree to other farmers on account of the unusually large size of the nuts as a native product.

Change in Wave of Wichita Falls Radio to Improve Service Here

Beginning Armistice Day, Nov. 11, KGKO, local broadcasting station, will be placed on a much better wave length and will be enabled to get programs from stations at much greater distances than at present, according to R. E. Shepherd, publicity director.

The local station has been placed in the 570 kilocycles group which is 526 meters, in the list just announced by the federal radio commission which has completed a classification by frequencies measured in kilocycles.

No other Texas station has been placed on the same wave length with KGKO, and only 10 other stations in the United States have been thus classified, the nearest being in Asheville, N. C. Other stations in the 570 kilocycles group are in the following states: New York, California, Washington, Maine, Wisconsin and Ohio.

KGKO is at present in the same wave length with five other stations in Texas, and with 28 others in the United States. Interference with the other stations in the state of the same wave length will be eliminated when the new classification is put into operation, Mr. Shepherd explained.

STRAIGHT TALK FOR MOTHERS

Dorothy Dix Advises On Shirking Job

Shall This Young Woman Leave Her Husband to Please Her Mother?—Curing Sensation Hunter. Straight Talk to Mother Who Would Shirk Her Job.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am married to a man whom I love dearly and who loves me, and is good and kind and considerate to me. But my mother hates him and is trying in every way to make me leave him and come back to her. She says that I will never be happy with him, but I would if she would just let me alone. She says that if I will come to her she will take care of my baby so that I can go to work in an office and have my own money to spend and be able to go and come as I please. And she says that if I don't leave my husband she won't have anything more to do with me.

I don't want to give up my home and my husband. Must I do so to please my mother. MRS. T.

Answer: I should say not. Your first duty is to your husband and, as long as h eis good and kind to you, you have no just cause for leaving him. Nor have you a right to deprive your baby of a father's love and care.

Furthermore, if you leave the husband you love just to please your mother, you will be a most unhappy woman and bitterly regret it. Mother love isn't going to take the place of a husband's love, and you will find mighty little pep in mother's society compared to the companionship of your husband. More than that, no woman who has been at the head of her own house is ever satisfied to slip back into the sub-servient place of a daughter who has no authority in the household and must do as she is bidden.

And to your surprise you will find that if you give in to your mother and do as she wants you to do, she will not be overjoyed to have you at home. As soon as she has accomplished her purpose of breaking up your home and separating you from your husband, she will begin to pity herself for having you thrown back on her hands and for having to take care of the baby, and she will make things very unpleasant for you. It was only the prodigal son for whom the fatted calf was killed. When the prodigal daughter returns home there isn't so much as a veal cutlet cooked up for her.

Your mother is one of the bossy, rule-or-ruin women, who are bound to dominate every one with whom they come in contact, no matter how much trouble they bring about. Unfortunately, the type is not rare, and from this class is recruited the multitudes of mother-in-laws who make the lives of their own children, and of their children's husbands and wives, a burden by their tyrannies, and who bring about more divorces than all other causes combined.

A mother is justified in trying to keep her daughter from marrying a man of whom she disapproves if she is convinced that he has serious defects of character, but after the girl is married to the man of her choice it is the mother's duty to keep silent concerning his faults and to try to make her daughter satisfied with her bargain.

No woman who really loves her daughter and desires her happiness will ever criticize her husband to her. She will praise rather than blame him, and she will urge her daughter to keep her home together instead of trying to break it up. I strongly advise you to tell your mother that you will not leave your husband and to implore her not to make trouble between you. She is certainly taking a bitter way to wreak her spite on your husband when she is willing to sacrifice you and your child to her enmity.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: My sister, who is 17, often expresses the desire to go out and get drunk in order to see how it feels. I have tried to reason with her about it, as she says she is going to do it very soon, but to no avail. I am afraid harm will come to her, as she runs with a bad gang. Shall I tell my father? SISTER.

Answer: I am afraid that telling your father wouldn't do very much good. He will forbid her to do it, and that would probably make her all the more determined to do it. She would get an extra kick out of it on account of its being a bit more dangerous, hence a greater adventure.

Why don't you tell her that, if she is so anxious to find out how it feels to be drunk, she had better try her experiment at home, where she will at least have privacy and not furnish a spectacle for the derision of the mob. For there is no other sight on earth so utterly disgusting as that of an intoxicated woman staggering around with babbling maudin inanities, crying, or laughing, or swearing, with all self-control lost.

I think that if your sister will stage her drunken orgy at home, she will find few compensating thrills in it, and when she wakes up the next morning with a splitting headache and a dark brown taste in her mouth she will be ready to sign the blue-ribbon pledge. And her cure will be complete if you show her some snapshots of just how she looked when she was drunk. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a woman of 30 and have five children, the youngest three years of age. I do not love my husband and I am very unhappy, although my husband is kind to me and is a good provider and I have a nice home. Do you think I would be doing an injustice to my children if I left them for a while and went to work at a job? I am in love with a man who loves me. Would you advise me to get a divorce and marry him?
THIRTEEN YEARS MARRIED.

Answer: My dear lady, when a woman has five children she is bound by five cords that she cannot break. Nothing short of the death of the whole five can sever her bonds. Suppose you just try to face your life squarely and see it as it is, instead of as you would like it to be. Let's begin with the man you say you are in love with. You want to leave your husband and go to him. Suppose you did get a divorce.

Do you believe that he would marry you, that he would take upon himself the burden of your five children? Ask him, and he will settle that question for you in a minute. It costs a lot to maintain even a wife in these days, and no man is going to starve and deny himself all of his little luxuries and pleasures in order to support a breed of some other man's children.

The widow—grass or sod—with five children hasn't the ghost of a chance to get married. So don't delude yourself on that subject any longer.

And do you think you'd be happy if you abandoned your children? Would any man's love make up to you for them? Would there be a minute of the day or night when their little, wistful faces would not rise up to haunt you, when you would not hear their forlorn little voices calling out for "Mother." I tell you, woman, if you have a heart in your bosom you can't do it.

And as for leaving your children and going out to work, that's out of the question, too. You can't do that, because they need you every hour of every day. There is nobody that can understudy for a mother. Motherhood is your job. Stick to it.

Find your happiness in your children, but whether you are happy or miserable, do your duty to your children. That's what counts in a mother's life. DOROTHY DIX.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

Now that everybody has a fur coat, the question is what to wear until it's time to shake out the mothballs. A separate coat will do, but an ensemble is the real answer. It's a complete costume, completely satisfying. The short-jacket suit is newest—Cherie is trying one of black velvet, flared and trimming with krimmer.

This suit has a jacket not quite so short, but still not long. Both skirt and coat are widely flared and looked even more billowing because of the wide bands of red fox with which the coat is trimmed. The coat is a soft-textured wool, the blouse is of honey-beige satin. Dina will wear this until snow flies and after.

All the fashion authorities say so and it must be true—the short coat is newer. But long coats won't go out of style while the north winds blows. The coat to the left, worn by Dina with an air, is of grey green velours trimmed with grey fox. The dress at the top, left, goes with it—a plain skirt of the wool fabric and a tuck-in blouse of silk crepe. Cherie's coat is of woolen stuff, to., and is also trimmed with fox. But her ensemble is of gray-green and has a gray-green flat crepe frock. The lower sketch shows it and how the skirt flares and the cape collar ripples. Both coats have a princess silhouette.

Court Rule Gives Each Parent Two Of Their Children

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 26. (UP)—The four children of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ferguson today were divided between the two parents by Judge Tom Chambers of district court.

A daughter, 7, and a son, 15, went to Mrs. Ferguson, two 9 and 1, went to Ferguson.

The couple were separated and the children divided between the two when Ferguson and his wife testified to fighting every night this week. Ferguson exhibited scratches alleged to have been inflicted by his wife.

Judge Chambers, with tears in his eyes when he ordered the division of the children, said:

"It's the biggest tragedy ever to come before me. You may not believe it, but I've prayed earnestly for guidance in making a proper decision here. I think it's an outrage these people can't live together instead of fighting over trivial matters. But they won't and there's nothing I can do."

Mrs. Ferguson earlier in the week was denied a divorce by Judge Chambers. Ferguson was offered a divorce but he refused to accept it. Mrs. Ferguson had asserted that should she get a divorce she would take her children to dances with her.

A restraining order was put upon each of the parents. For either to interfere with the other will mean a decree of divorce for the offended party, Judge Chambers said.

Ferguson was ordered to pay Mrs. Ferguson $30 a month for maintenance of the two children under her care.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Dat ole debbil sea will be less mirrorlike soon that it has been through this last gone summer of unprecedented ocean travel. Staterooms will be occupied by their tenants more than for a number of months.

This thought came to be while being shown over a ship plying between New York and a Scottish port. I was in tow of a courteous purser, who introduced me to every man available who might point out points of interest on the vessel.

One to whom I was introduced was the chef, who, in turn, introduced cooks of various nationalities. The chef explained the mechanical contrivances his ship possessed for the welfare and delight of the passengers. I marveled that food for so many people could be prepared in so compact a space as that galley.

"And what about rough days at sea?" I asked. "Do you prepare the same amount of food as if every one were well and hungry?"

"Indeed, not," replied the chef.

"That would be an unpardonable waste. We take a good look around the decks and size up the crowd and prepare the food accordingly. Of course, we always allow a good margin, and there is always enough for everybody at the tables. You see, we are practiced in this and we know how to estimate rather closely by the number of passengers we see smiling on the decks."

Desk sergeants at Peekskill police headquarters receive many odd requests for police assistance, but veterans were astonished at the one that came in the other day.

In a language with a foreign accent a woman said: "A cat just had kittens on my front stoop. Will you take care of them."

A call stating that a dog had just bitten a child, that a burglar was in the vicinity or that the garbage man had failed to collect would have resulted in some action, but the police could find no paragraphs in local rules and regulations specifying that in cases of emergency uninformed members of the force should play nurse maid for kittens born on front stoops.

When the Grant, crack ship of the United States army transport service, sailed from Brooklyn the other day for Panama, San Francisco, Honolulu and the Philippines, she carried a crack passenger list. There were many brides of officers starting on long tours of foreign service.

Two brides who had known each other as "town girls" at Columbus, Ga., near which is Fort Benning, were thrown together in a stateroom, such was the crowded condition of the transport.

"Now, Jane," said the more recently married of the two, "I've never been at sea before, so you take the upper berth and let me have the lower."

The other bride, somewhat longer married and whose husband, also a lieutenant, was a few files ahead of the lieutenant husband of the other girl, assumed a haughty posture.

"You forget, Mary," she said, "that I outrank you."

Mary's husband told her apologetically that Jane was right and that if Jane wanted the lower berth she must have it.

A HOPELESS WISH

I scan my life, and sorely wish
That I had been a bird or fish
It's better far to swim the sea,
Or soar the ozone, tranquilly,
And never worry of the day,
You have that stack of bills to pay.

Oh, love's estate means naught to fish;
I doubt if they can even wish
For some fair lady friend to share
Their burden of domestic care.
And even though he end his day
By biting lures that I display,
He's hooked just once—then dinner chimes,
While I've been hooked a hundred times!
His worldly cares, not mine, are past,
If I should swallow him at last.
The lucky fish has naught at stake;
'Tis I, not he, gets stomach ache.

An American Factory in England

SIR WILLIAM JOYNSON-HICKS, British home secretary, recently remarked that the best means of securing world peace is "the cordial interlocking of commercial relations."

The Firestone Rubber company the other day opened a big factory at Hounslow, near London. At first glance this intrusion into Britain's industrial realm would hardly seem like a welcome step in the British Isles. But the factory employs 2000 British workmen, at very respectable wages. And, in a country as beset by unemployment as Great Britain, that means something.

That is what Sir William meant by a "cordial interlocking of commercial relations." The closer the ties of business are, the closer the friendship will be. When two countries are making each other prosperous there is little danger of trouble between them.

Silencing the Riveter

A BULLETIN from the American Institute of Steel Construction announces that steel fabricators of the United States and Canada are studying methods of eliminating noise in steel construction work, and will meet to discuss the matter next month at Biloxi, Miss.

We innocent bystanders can wish them success. The riveting machine is an efficient machine, but not a pretty one. Its eternal clangor is one of the features of our civilization with which we could easily dispense. If the steel fabricators find that the new method of silently welding steel frames together—tried recently on a new office building in Ohio with apparent success—is feasible, they will earn the thanks of all of us.

A City, or An Ant-Hill?

THESE pictures of the future that sociologists, engineers and other prophets give us now and then are not always very attractive.

New York, it is said, will have a population of 20,000,000; Chicago and Detroit and Philadelphia will not be far behind, and smaller cities will grow proportionately. Streets will be built in three levels; skyscrapers taller than anything we now dream of will line them. Moving sidewalks, glorified rapid transit subway systems, airplane landing fields on downtown roofs, apartment houses that will cover three or four blocks—all of these things, we are told, will be the order of the day.

It doesn't sound quite right. In such a city the everlasting whirring of wheels might well drown out all the gentler sounds, such as the rustling of leaves in the wind and patter of spring rains on a shingled roof. People are not so amicable and neighborly that 20,000,000 of them ever ought to be gathered together in one place. A city with triple-decked streets sounds like an enlarged ant hill, terrifying and inhuman.

But, after all, it probably won't be as bad as we think.

We get along fairly well in the cities of today. We are used to them; they don't seem especially dismaying to us; we can find our way about among the enormous crowds, the rivers of traffic, the shuttling street cars. Yet a city of 1928 would have seemed like a madman's dream if anyone could have described it to our ancestors a century ago.

Picture the middle western towns of 1828 that were to become the great manufacturing and commercial centers of today. Detroit, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Buffalo, St. Paul—they were no more like what they are today than Polynesia is like Manhattan. They were quiet and peaceful. Most of their streets were unpaved. Few buildings were more than four stories high. Horse-drawn street cars lumbered lazily along the main avenues. Nearly every man's house had a lawn and garden, enclosed by a neat fence.

If the citizens of 1828 could have foreseen what those cities were to be like a century later they would have thanked God, devoutly, that they would not live to see it.

Well, the change has come. The peaceful quiet of a century ago is gone forever. And we who grew up in modern noise and bustle would not go back to the old days if we could.

Probably it will be the same in the future. We are more adaptable than we think. We have an astonishing talent for living among machinery and noise. From our present viewpoint, the future city of 20,000,000 looks terrifying; but when we come to live in it we probably will forget that we ever knew anything else.

MEMPHIS CHURCH DUE CREDIT

With the announcement in the last issue of The Democrat that within the near future the First Baptist church would erect a three story Sunday school annex, some idea of the growth and affluence of this denomination may be gained. During the several years Rev. E. T. VOTERS AT LEAST INTERESTED

The present presidential campaign is one that is likely to be long remembered, regardless of the outcome. From every state in the union come reports indicating a record vote for next month. In New York the number of registrations exceeds that of four years ago by more than half a million.

Figures announced from other states show a similar trend. Another factor that will help to swell the total vote is that for the first time in a generation a real campaign is being waged in the South.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because the latter was connected with a self-defense killing out West, and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mysteries. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by Martin Lamont, western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. John Ballinger, well-known doctor. Then a mysterious lady, Viola Gray, visits him and Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by Freddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the dying man's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner and is discovered by Littleby, who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes. Trapped together they can find no way out of the secret room. Meantime, Lieutenant Shane finds Miss Gray in "The Room Under the Stairs" at the old Forrester home and shares her discovery of an important piece of paper. Together they set out for Littleby's house. Trapped together Dean and Shirley are nearly suffocated by a gaseous cloud that descends on them in the secret room, but a sudden ring at their telephone shows that Littleby is willing to make terms. Appealing to his chivalry, the lawyer forces Dean to suicide to save the girl.

Back to Life

Dean returned to consciousness with a confused medley of noises in his brain, and on his forehead a vaguely delicious sensation of a shy caress.

His eyes fluttered open. There was a light in the room. The diabolical fumes were gone. A face was bending over him—an enraptured face, full of a queer blend of terror and tenderness.

He stroked his forehead, letting his fingers linger just over the left temple, the seat of a tantalizing remote and yet wondrously exquisite sensation.

"I'm — still — alive," he observed, dazedly.

"Yes, thank God!" murmured the girl, passionately. "But for a time I thought you—you—" she paused on a note of shuddering dread. "But you were only stunned. My hand slipped and I—I shot you."

Dean closed his eyes. Again his hand moved over the left side of his forehead.

"Then shoot me again. But I forget. Didn't Littleby say something about there being only one bullet? Blast the old skinflint for being so stingy with his ammunition. Lee?"

"Yes—dear."

"Couldn't we just pretend that you had shot me again and that you were — well, that you were doing whatever your heart moves you to do to a man after you've shot him."

"Be sensible," she admonished, severely; but he reopened his eyes just in time to see a faint blush tinging her white face. "There is an ugly scratch in the back of your head. I mopped it with my handkerchief till the flow of blood stopped; but you really ought to have a doctor."

"Doctor?" Dean laughed; then sat upright, though it cost him a painful effort. "Lee, tell me everything that happened, and don't leave out a single thing. Remember—not a single thing."

She colored slightly and looked aside. "Well, I heard everything Littleby told you. I could scarcely believe my ears; it sounded so outrageous. All at once an inspiration came to me. I took the pistol from the drawer, where Littleby said it would be, meaning to fire it into the ceiling. I reasoned he would hear the shot and conclude that you had obeyed his instructions."

Dean nodded as if impatient for her to reach the more important points in her recital.

"I don't know whether it was my hand or foot that slipped; but, anyhow, I knew at once that something terrible had happened. You screamed; then dropped to the floor, dragging the telephone with you, and I think I screamed, too."

"Good," said Dean casually. "It must have been realistic enough to fool even a shrewd old sinner like Littleby. We couldn't have faked it as convincingly as that. What else?"

"Nothing, except that soon afterward those dreadful fumes stopped, and then the light came on again."

"Go on."

"But there isn't anything more, except that I was terribly frightened for a while. I knew it was all my fault and—"

"I can imagine that part of it—remorse, self-reproaches galore and all that sort of thing. Lee?"

"Ye-es."

"Can you look me in the eyes and say that you have told me everything?"

She regarded him soberly, with just the faintest twinkle in her eyes. "There's a pitcher of water on the table back there," she said matter-of-factly. "I'm going to bathe your wound."

Dean uttered a mock groan, then struggled to his feet and sat down in a chair, yielding himself to her ministrations."

"Lee," he said, "you're an angel!"

"No, nothing of the sort. Angels dont shoot defenseless men."

"But, as it turned out, it was the best thing that could have happened, even from a crass practical point of view. . . ."

"I wonder," she said soberly, "if you would have done what Littleby told you to do? I think you were capable of it, just to save me."

"Thanks, but halos are an antiquated fashion in headgear. I didn't have anything quite so romantic in mind. You see, I had strong doubts that Littleby would fulfill his part of the bargain even if I carried out mine. That being the case, nothing would have been gained by indulging in a bit of mock heroics. Anyhow, I thought I would try something else first."

"Yes?" she said, wondering, while with a touch light as a caress she bathed the bruised portion of his head.

"Littleby said something about two pieces of glass," he explained. "He wants them badly, but doesn't know where to find them, and nobody but myself can tell him where they are. I thought I might dicker with him for a while about those glass pieces—engage in the time-honored pursuit of stalling, in other words. But your way was better. Let's see that pistol."

She picked it up from the floor and handed it to him. He examined it gravely, peeping with a frown through the now empty cartridge chambers.

"No good," he declared, tossing the weapon from him. "If Littleby should come here, as I think he will, I'll have to go at him with my fists. It will be the most useful work they ever did. But wait — we'll treat him to a surprise. Dead men are not supposed to move. Tell me exactly what sort of position I was in."

"After you fell?"

"When you kissed me?" Dean grinned brazenly.

She gave him a scandalized glance, but told him what he wanted to know.

"That's all arranged then," said Dean, leaning back comfortably. "At first sign of Littleby's approach I shall assume the highly dignified position of a corpse. As for you, Lee, you will have to do a bit of acting. Think you can do it?"

"I'll try," she said hopefully.

Dean himself was not so hopeful. He had no doubt that Littleby meant to dispose of the girl, just as he thought he had already disposed of himself. What if, instead of appearing in the room in person, he should turn on the deadly arselene? It was a dread possibility, but his face did not betray his misgivings. Instead he busied his mind with the likelihood that the lawyer would pay Miss Lamont a visit, possibly with a view to arranging some kind of a compromise. He would probably come armed, and in that event it would be best to take him by surprise, just as Dean had already planned.

"You are not particularly fond of Littleby—eh, Lee?" he asked suddenly.

"Certainly not!" she declared, a hard note in her voice.

"You don't mind if I muss him up a little?"

"If you get too rough, I can look the other way."

He regarded her keenly. She was smiling vaguely, but something blazed in her eyes.

"Isn't it true,' he asked, "that, no matter how rough I get with him, I'll only be repaying him in a small way for his treatment of you?"

She nodded—a slight, emphatic gesture that said far more than words could.

"It wasn't Littleby himself," she said tensely. "Littleby never did me any physical harm. He always sent some one—some one whose face I couldn't see, for the light always went out before he entered. I scarcely heard anything at all. I merely saw the lights go out, and then I would feel somebody's fingers twining round my throat till I almost choked. It was dreadful, Tommie. And the strange part of it was that their sole object seemed to be to terrify me. I feel like screaming whenever I think of that clammy touch at my throat."

"The low-down curs!" muttered Dean hotly, feeling suddenly a deeper hatred toward Littleby. "And you think their only object was to frighten you?"

"That's the impression I got."

"But why?"

She shook her head uncertainly. "They also told me of dreadful things that would happen to father if I tried to oppose them in any way. There was nothing definite in what they said; only vague threats. That's why I had to pretend to treat Littleby with respect whenever I saw him. Oh, how I loathe that man!"

Dean scarcely heard the last. He sprang from his chair, his face aglow with grim excitement.

"Tell me, Lee!" he exclaimed. "When this man tried to terrify you —this man who always appeared in the dark—do you happen to know whether the telephone receiver was off the hook each time?"

She started sharply at the question. "How was I to know? I couldn't tell in the dark. But it's strange—very. This man — this monster—was always dragging me toward the telephone. I wondered at it, but it never occurred to me till now that——" She paused, a ghastly glow of comprehension sweeping over her face. "Tommie I believe you are thinking exactly what I am thinking!"

They stared at each other for a moment, then Dean's eyes became fixed on the opposite wall. An optical message flashed between them, and then he dropped to the floor, rolled over a few times, flung out an arm, let his head droop to one side and lay rigid.

A moment later approaching footfalls told him that Littleby had entered the room.

The Tempter's Snare

As if startled by the sudden intrusion, the girl sprang aside with a little cry.

"Don't be alarmed," said Littleby, beaming on her. "These mysterious entrances and exits are a hobby of mine. Sit down there, my dear, with your back to—that." He cast a brief glance at the still, crumpled form at the other side of the room. "You have had a trying night. Can you compose yourself for a few minutes? I have something to tell you."

Silently, with an air of strong aversion she sat down, avoiding Littleby's soothing gaze.

"I am sure you have regretted the hasty words you spoke at our last meeting," murmured the lawyer. "I didn't take offense, knowing you would soon realize how unjust you had been. Just a case of hysterics—that was all. I quite understood."

"You didn't understand at all," Miss Lamont corrected him. "And you needn't make apologies for me. I meant every word I said, and I mean it now. The only difference is that in the meantime you have added still another murder to your record.'

The lawyer's brows went up. "My dear child, you are raving. You surely don't mean to insinuate that I am in any way responsible for what this unfortunate man has done."

"I heard every word you told him over the telephone. He killed himself to save me."

Littleby smiled indulgently. "I wonder if you realize how that would sound if you were to repeat it to a third, unprejudiced person. How would a hard-boiled police official take it, for instance? Or a judge or a jury? And where is your proof? You have none—not a scrap of proof. People would merely construe your statements as the hallucinations of a young woman whose mind has been unbalanced. They might go farther even and make certain embarrassing inquiries. The average person is always ready to suspect the worst. You would be asked to explain how it came about that you were found alone in a room with the body of a young man beside you. The harder you tried to clear yourself, the deeper you would sink. There would be all sorts of nasty insinuations from the press, from the police, from the man in the street. Just think how it would look."

With a shudder of loathing, the girl edged farther back in the chair.

"Scandal, my dear, is a nasty thing," remarked Littleby, sententiously. "Once it touches you, you are contaminated for life. You are still very young, and it would hurt me deeply to see your future ruined, all the more so since you are the daughter of a man who was my best friend. Take my advice and be sensible."

"What do you advise?" asked the girl in a tone indicating that the lawyer's black prognostications had taken effect.

"You are going to be reasonable? That's splendid!" Littleby beamed on her approvingly. "I would advise, in the first place, that you abandon all plans of returning to Wichita to teach school. Wichita is a dull place, and school teaching a trying profession. There are so many interesting things one can do at your age. All you have to do is to say the word, and life in all its glamour lies open before you. You may travel, have a private yacht, a place on Fifth Avenue, an old chateau in one of those romantic spots along the Riviera. I can make you rich. Anything you wish is within your reach. Isn't that better than Wichita and a stuffy classroom?"

"It is very attractive," admitted Miss Lamont in a tone which might have meant that she was vacillating a trifle. "What else do you advise?"

"My next suggestion has to do with the immediate present. Something must be done to avert a scandal. We mustn't give evil-minded people a chance to construe things their own sordid way. Two courses are open to you. If you adopt the first, you will tell what in your present hysterical condition you believe to be the truth. If you do, you will be laughed at—or worse. If you choose the second course, you will gloss over certain unpleasant details, interpreting them so that you will not be placed in a compromising position. You understand, my dear?"

"I think I do."

Littleby raised his brows for an instant, as if vaguely suspicious of a double meaning, but the guileless expression of her pale face reassured him.

"Splendid!" he ejaculated. "You will chose the second course, naturally. As a matter of fact, I anticipated your choice, and I am prepared to make certain suggestions in regard to the explanations you will make. I have put them in the form of a statement which you may sign if you approve of it. Would you care to glance it over?"

She extended her hand, and Littleby drew a folded paper from an inside pocket. He watched her with a faint smile of satisfaction as she read. He permitted himself a sigh of relief, as if already approaching the happy conclusion of a task which he had approached with misgivings.

With a little frown and a shake of her head, Miss Lamont looked up from the paper.

"But this is all a pack of lies," she objected.

"A lie, my dear, is nothing but the bright side of truth. Why tell things that people will either doubt or sneer at, when it is so easy to present the situation in a plausible and agreeable form?"

Miss Lamont appeared to consider. "But what about him?" she asked, inclining her head in the direction where Dean lay. "How are you going to explain—that?"

"Oh, no explanation is necessary there. Dean will simply disappear. The secret of this room is almost as safe as the secret of that little room under the stairs in the house on Hudson street. It isn't likely that any one except myself will set foot within this room in years. Moreover, a steady current of arselene for five or six hours will remove every trace. Great thing, arselene! It has so many different uses. Well, my dear?"

A shiver shook the girl; then she drew herself erect. Her eyes, with a flame in their depths, looked steadily into his. She tore the paper into bits.

"Thank you for making everything so clear, Mr. Littleby," she said in a tone of withering scorn. "I wouldn't have listened to you for a moment, but I wished to see how far you would go. I understand. You spared my life only because you thought I could be persuaded to tell a few convenient lies. I was more useful to you alive than dead. Otherwise you would have murdered me with no more scruple than you murdered the others."

The lawyer gave her a blank look, as if her sudden change of front had been too abrupt for his mind to follow. Then a sultry flash came into his eyes; his lips curled unpleasantly.

"Oh, just as you prefer," he said indifferently. "I was hoping extreme measures wouldn't be necessary. I see I was wrong. I shall leave you now, but—" With a shrug he turned and walked away from her, then flung back over his shoulder: "As I remarked a moment ago, arselene is a great thing. You will soon discover—"

The words ended in a gasp. Sounds of a hurried movement had come from the other side of the room. Littleby, turning suddenly, stood as if transformed into a pillar. His mouth sagged, his eyes protruded, his face turned ashen.

"Not yet, Littleby," cried Dean, leaping forward.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Ringworm

It has been estimated that practically one-half of the adult population of the United States has had ringworm sometime during life. This is a popular name for several diseases of the skin caused by small vegetable fungi or molds.

All forms of ringworm are very contagious and are easily transmitted from one person to another. These diseases are frequently found on cats, dogs, cattle and birds, and are sometimes conveyed, by handling, to humans.

The ringworm of the foot is a frequent occurrence wherever people use common dressing and bathing rooms. Infected premises should be thoroughly scrubbed with some powerful disinfecting agent. Ringworm of the body is easily cured by the use of a cleansing diet to clear up the condition of acidosis which is always present and painting the infected area night and morning with a solution of silver nitrate, iodine or mercurochrome.

Ringworm of the body usually begins with a small patch which spreads out in a circle, with a red, scaly margin. The skin toward the center of the patch may have partly recovered and appear normal. This gives the disease its characteristic ring-like form.

Persons with thin, light hair are much more susceptible to ringworm of the scalp than are brunettes. This form of the disease usually only occurs to children under the age of 14, and is frequently carried from one child to another by combs, brushes, and hats.

Ringworm of the beard, or barber's itch, is frequently conveyed by means of the common lather brush used in barber shops. Many boards of health now insist on a thorough sterilization of all brushes and utensils used in barber shops. This ringworm of the beard produces great irritation, and each hair is surrounded by a small capsule of pus.

The fingernails are sometimes attacked by ringworm parasites and become discolored, thin and brittle. When this parasite attacks scalp, beard and nails, it is much harder to eradicate than when the body is attacked, and a course of many months or years of treatment may be necessary. The hair should be cut short and the affected area treated carefully.

Only those children who have been fed on improper combinations develop ringworm. In the rare cases where close physical contact with another child suffering from ringworm produces the disease, the ringworm on the child with healthy blood usually quickly disappears.

Unless the systemic condition is removed by diet, the disease although cured in one place, will usually reappear in another.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cold Hands and Feet

Question—Mrs. I. A. asks: "Could you please tell me what causes cold hands and feet? My hands and feet are cold in even the warmest part of the summer. Is there a cure for this?"

Answer—You undoubtedly suffer from defective circulation. I would advise you to take additional exercise, especially systematic calisthenic exercises for all of the muscles of the body. This, of course, increases the flow of blood to the extremities, and should overcome your tendency to cold hands and feet.

Orange Juice Before Breakfast

Question—Mrs. B. V. writes: "My child who is just of school age likes orange juice every morning. Is it best to put a little sugar and water into it, and how long should she have it before milk and cereal?"

Answer—It is all right to take pure orange juice a half hour before breakfast, but no sugar or water should be added. Use only whole grain cereal and season it with cream—and again, no sugar!

Tapeworm and Obesity

Question—Mrs. F. C. H. asks: "Is it possible for a person weighing 218 pounds to have a tapeworm? I have noticed for some time worms in the stool and recently passed one 14 inches long. It was flat and white in color, and was in sections about one inch apart. Can you advise me about this?"

Answer—It is possible for a person who is overweight to have a tapeworm. If you eat enough you can feed both yourself and the tapeworm. Any druggist will be able to recommend a tapeworm remedy for you. After you get rid of the worm, be careful about using meats which are imperfectly cooked.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE — "FAMOUS FIRST LADIES"

During the Jackson regime, Washington was the battleground of the "ladies' war," in which the wives of cabinet officers and other high officials snubbed Jackson's protege, Peggy O'Neill Eaton, wife of the secretary of war. Mrs. Eaton had often served Jackson and senators and legislators in her father's tavern in Washington, and it was whispered she was "tavern-raised."

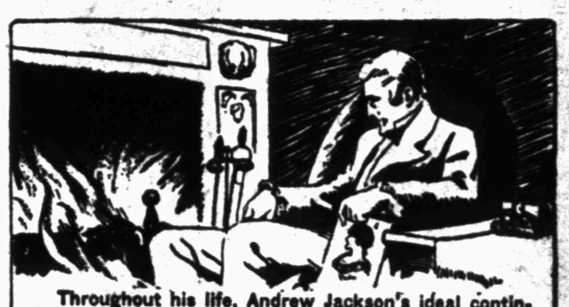

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-28.

Rachel Jackson had died after getting ready to move into the White House with her husband. Jackson's niece, Mrs. Donelson, was mistress of the mansion.

Society snubbed Mrs. Eaton, but the chivalrous Jackson defended her, even to the point of sending Mrs. Donelson home because the niece refused to visit her.

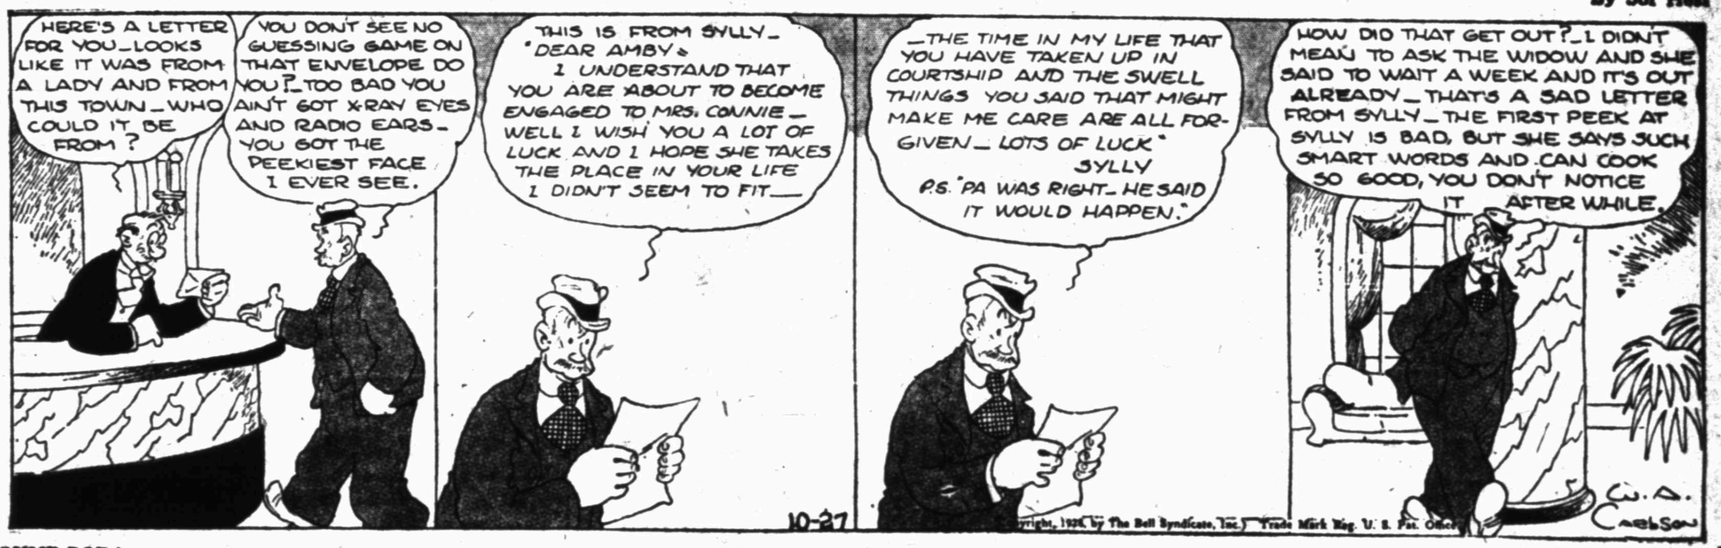

Throughout his life, Andrew Jackson's ideal continued to be the wife who had died in the hour of his greatest success—Rachel. Often he visited her grave—it seemed as if her spirit hovered over the White House, so close had been their interests and their love when she lived. In his great heart she remained forever the inspiration.

LUBBOCK'S DRIVING ATTACK DEFEATS ELECTRA BY 13 TO 6

TIGERS FAIL TO DISPLAY PUNCH

Losers Outplay Westerners In Second Half

By GORDON FULCHER
(Staff Correspondent)

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 24.—Staging a terrific offensive drive through the first half of the game the Lubbock high school Westerners defeated the Electra high school Tigers 13 to 6 in an Interscholastic league game here this afternoon.

The Westerners took the lead from the first kickoff of the game and played in the Tiger's territory almost wholly during the first half. Both teams scored their points in the first half, though threats were numerous during the latter half of the contest.

Tides changed with the opening of the second half, with the Tigers roundly out-playing the Westerners through the remainder of the game. Several times the home team was in position to score in the last half but fumbles and tough breaks left the Lubbock goal line uncrossed in the second half.

Lubbock scored its first touchdown with a straight march down the field from the opening kickoff. The Westerners pulled a short kickoff on the opening play of the game with Pierce, Lubbock quarterback, booting the ball to Price, center, on Electra's 40-yard line.

Lubbock Scores

After Smith had tried the Tiger line for three straight times Pierce reeled off 12 yards and a first down on the Tigers' 28-yard line. Again the Electra line held and on the fourth down Pierce hurled a pass to Castleberry that netted a first down on Electra's 18-yard strip.

Pierce got loose on a cutback through right tackle on the next play and after a vain try at the line by Lawson a lateral pass from Pierce to Smith around right end scored a touchdown three minutes after the opening whistle. Pierce failed to make the extra point from placement.

After an exchange of punts Electra accounted for its touchdown shortly after the middle of the first period. A fumble punt by Pierce on his own 31-yard line started the Electra drive for the score. Two tries at the Lubbock line by White failed to gain and after an incomplete pass Culpepper hurled the oval to Cloninger for an 18-yard gain, placing the ball on Lubbock's 10-yard line.

Cloninger plunged the line for eight yards on the next play, and picked up another yard at center on the succeeding play. Crass plunged the ball over on the next play but failed to score the extra point from placement.

Lubbock Tallies Again

After the see-sawing up and down the field through the remainder of the quarter and during the first few minutes of the second period Lubbock scored its second touchdown about the middle of the period on a march from Electra's 49-yard line.

Line plunges by Pierce, Smith and Lawson placed the ball on the Tiger's 23-yard line. Smith heaved a pass to Smith for 22 yards carrying the ball to Electra's one-yard mark. Lawson failed at the line and on the next play a Lubbock back fumbled across the goal line and Frizzel recovered the ball for a touchdown. The Westerners were given the extra point when Electra was off sides on the play.

Lubbock played havoc with Electra's passing attack, batting down and breaking up 14 of Electra's 18 attempts while the Tigers held the advantage in the first downs, scoring 10 to 6 for Lubbock.

Cloninger and Culpepper were the outstanding stars of the Electra backfield while Pierce and Smith proved themselves superior ball-carriers in the Lubbock attack.

Captain Barton played a whale of a game in the Lubbock line until he was removed in the second quarter with an injured shoulder. Frizzel Price and Rich also showed up exceptionally well in the Westerner's line while Whitesides and Brown were the outstanding Electra forwards. Lineups:

2 CONFERENCE CLASHES TODAY

Aggies Meet Arkansas And Texas Plays Rice

DALLAS, Oct. 26 (AP).—On a far-flung battle front extending from the Arkansas hills to the Gulf coast, Southwest conference gridiron mentors were mustering their forces tonight for two encounters within their ranks and a trio of skirmishes with lesser known but potentially powerful foes.

Except at Southern Methodist university, which has attained its physical peak for the first time since meeting Army three weeks ago, bandages and liniment have been used freely of late. If reports from seven training camps can be taken at face value, every squad but the Mustangs will take the field tomorrow with one or more of its members sitting on the bench, their places filled with reserves imbued with the spirit of winning bigger and better glories for their alma mater.

Mid-season finds Texas A. & M. facing Arkansas in the Porkers' home-coming game at Fayetteville and Texas meeting the lowly Rice Owls at Houston. These are the only conference tilts listed on the grid calendar, but except for the Aggie-Razorback melee, more colorful contests are to be found in the S. M. U.-Trinity, T. C. U.-Texas Tech and Baylor-St. Edwards pairings.

Aggies-Porkers Tossup

The game at Fayetteville, a toss-up, will eliminate definitely one or the other participant from conference championship consideration. Arkansas was drubbed last week by Texas university and A. & M. fell victim of Texas Christian's bruising offense and lost 6 to 0.

If Texas cared to, the Longhorns probably could have a field day at the expense of the light and inexperienced Owls, but Coach Littlefield will probably instruct his team to use nothing but straight football and let a comfortable margin of victory suffice.

The Trinity Tigers likely will face a second string S. M. U. lineup at Dallas, for Coach Morrison is risking no injuries to his prima donna performers with the Texas game, regarded by him as the turning point of the season, a week away.

From West Texas a stalwart band of Texas Tech Matadors stormed Fort Worth today for their annual clash with the Horned Frogs, who have risen from humble positions to a place with the conference elite in five brief weeks. The Christians' goal line has been uncrossed this year, but at least one of Tech's rugged backs stands an opportunity of planting his cleated foot behind the uprights some time during the 60 minutes of play.

Frogs Should Win

The Matadors lost to Texas university, 12 to 0, two weeks ago, but probably are not powerful enough to overwhelm Coach Matty Bell's great team.

Baylor university, which shattered Centenary's record of 14 victories last week, gained enough prestige in the victory to make it a favorite over St. Edwards.

Among the athletes listed as hors du combat are Gardner, 265-pound Arkansas tackle, and Dale, a back on the same team. Lambert, veteran end, may not play the entire game on account of an injured hand.

Varnell is the Aggie casualty and Capt. Pete Jones of Baylor is in a hospital. Higgins and Rees, both of varsity caliber at Texas, are out and Spud Braden, Rice's best quarterback, has an injured hip.

T. C. U. coaches are singing no song because of hurts to Virgil Roberts, a 190-pound back, which will keep him out of the game for two weeks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The first Tuesday after the first rent day in November is almost upon us.

On that gigantic date we will vote to see what becomes of the next president. There will be a gnashing of pencils on unprotected ballots and a wailing of late returns from the outlying districts.

One queer feature about national elections is that they make gamblers out of rubber-tired citizens who wouldn't ordinarily bet a dime that the Statue of Liberty sleeps outdoors at nights.

An old-timer still lives in our town who said he wouldn't shave his beard until Bryan was elected caddy master of these United golf links.

He lost the bet, but he still has the beard.

Bryan was never elected but the beard never knew it. It's 15 feet long now. The government tried to buy it for a moose reserve.

Along about 1894, if you happened to be jigging up the main street on November the five you could have spotted a gentleman busily engaged in manicuring his nose on a traffic detour.

He hadn't bet his sox on Cleveland because they didn't wear 'em in those pioneer days.

But he had wagered that if Henry Clay lost to Stephen Douglas he would roll a peanut with his nose from West Olney to Upper Darby.

So he tanked on his hands and knees for the full distance with his nose portraying St. George, the fearless, and the peanut playing the dragon.

And after he had completed the distance, had made grapefruit out of his knees, hamburgered his hands and wore his nose right down to the hub, civilization had lost in order that a peanut might be victorious.

And there was the old-timer who bet that he would eat a gumshoe if Blaine didn't win. He ate the gumshoe. It was a debt of honor.

There may be something honorable about an old rubber boot. We have seen some very distinguished ear muffs.

Then the town loafer carried another bum piggy-back from the hay market to the postoffice. The town hokey had bet against Roosevelt and lost. He thought his candidate would sweep all the precincts but he didn't even carry a bum.

They didn't bet money in the old days. But they were sure prodigal with their acrobatics.

SALIENT FACTS

Place: City Park, Vernon.
Time: 3 p. m. Saturday.
Officials: Head (Austin college), refree; Esslinger (Oklahoma A. & M.), umpire; Wilhite (Oklahoma Teachers), linesman; Frnka (Austin college), field judge.

With one conference victory behind them, the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes journey to Vernon Saturday afternoon to engage the Vernon high school Lions in the second conference game of the season.

For the first time this season the Coyotes will probably take to the air, with Morris Lee doing the greater part of the passing and Kenneth Mills heading the list of pass receivers. Injuries to three first-string linemen will weaken the offensive strength of the wall considerably for the usual line plunging and off-tackle attack of the team.

Jud Bell, guard, and Clarence Bains, end, will not be able to play on account of injuries, while Jack West, husky tackle, is ineligible for the fray on account of studies. Chick Holden, a promising young tackle who has been absent from the lineup for the past three games with injuries, is again in shape and will replace West, while Howard Scott, a letter guard, will take over Bell's position.

Bob Carstarphen, a scrapping little end, will no doubt fill Bains' vacancy on one flank with Pete Powell, letterman and defensive ace, holding down the other wing.

This week's backfield will be the same that started the first conference game at Electra Saturday, with Morris Lee at quarterback, Davis and Elliott at halves and Mills at fullback. Dick Hambrick, a flashy little halfback, is fully recovered from early season injuries and will no doubt see considerable service as will Jack Carstarphen, a reserve back.

Pep at the high school and among supporters over the city has reached its highest peak this week. The girls' pep squad arrayed themselves in their new uniforms Friday at the school to stage a rally. The entire pep squad of 135 members, the high school band and 50 per cent of the teachers and student body plan to attend the game while scores of people not connected with the school will also make the trip.

Crowell made 15 first downs to four by Knox City. Crowell completed 11 out of 24 passes and had four intercepted; Knox City completed four out of 11 tosses.

Stars for Crowell were Lanier and Spears.

Prep Eligibility Rule Clarified

Participation in One Sport Counts as Full Year

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (AP)—Where an Interscholastic league high school athlete participates in one sport during a year, that year counts against his total eligibility time as though he had played all sports, the state executive committee of the league ruled today at a meeting at Texas university.

In other words, if an athlete plays only basket ball during one of his four years of eligibility as a league athlete, he cannot claim eligibility in football, for instance, in four other years. If he misses playing football a year, his maximum eligibility time for that sport is three years.

It is no new ruling, but merely a construction of rules already in effect.

The question was raised by E. C. Marshall, class A high school and as decided, denies the eligibility of Truxton Shaw, Athens high school fullback. His eligibility was not directly before the committee but is before a district committee to which the ruling will be forwarded.

Shaw played basket ball for three consecutive seasons ending early in 1926, was out of school during the 1926-27 term, and played both football and basket ball during last term. Since he has participated four separate years, not counting his year of non-attendance, in a high school sport, he will be ineligible for football this season.

BURK LOSES TO MEGARGEL, 6-0

Rue's 85-Yard Run On Enemy Pass Wins Game

(By Staff Correspondent)

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 26.—Burkburnett's last hopes of a district championship sailed away on the wings of a 6 to 0 defeat sustained here today at the hands of Megargel High school. Both were contenders for top honors in the northern part of class B district No. 3 of the Interscholastic league, and the victory probably meant the half-district title to the Archer county team. Megargel has won four consecutive starts, is yet to be scored on and has only one game remaining to be played.

Rue, fleet halfback of the Bluebirds, intercepted a Burkburnett pass on his 15-yard line late in the second period and raced 85 yards to a touchdown. The score not only won the game for Megargel, but erased Burkburnett's most dangerous threat during the afternoon. The Bulldogs had advanced the ball from mid-field on a straight line plunging, with a pass or two mixed in, and seemed well on the way to a touchdown, when the Megargel back speared the ball and raced down the sideline. It was a beautiful run that left the Bulldog defense in the lurch.

Burk Gains More

Neither team could produce an effective attack and both relied largely on battering down the opposing lines. Burkburnett, however, gained far more ground than the winners and registered nine first downs to five for Megargel. Both team's passing games were ineffective, the Bulldogs gaining only 10 yards through the air and Megargel only seven.

Smith proved the most consistent ground gainer for the Burkburnett eleven, with Green, Griffin and Alexander turning in occasional spurts that ran up the total of first downs but seldom threatened the enemy's goal line.

Burk Line Strong

Megargel's attack was nipped in the bud time and again by the Burkburnett forward wall, with Rue and Taylor, mainsprings of the running offensive, seldom able to gain. Captain Cross played a whale of a game in the line, as did J. Cross at end and co-captain Vance in the Burkburnett forward wall. Lineup:

Megargel (6)	Position	Burkburnett (0)
J. Cross	Left End	Willingham
C. Cross (c)	Center	Vance
Colgan	Right Guard	Hunt
Kunkel	Right Tackle	Jarrel
Ribble	Right End	Maloney
Bradshaw	Quarterback	Taylor
Colgan	Left Half	Alexander
Rue	Right Half	Smith
Taylor	Fullback	Garland

Score by periods:

Megargel scoring touchdowns: Rue. Officials: Lindsey (Baylor), referee; Mayes (Minnesota), umpire; Hardegree (Megargel), linesman.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THERE'S GOING to be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth on the part of some of these football teams who boast proud records, within 12 hours from the time this colyum is read. A host of major collegiate games involving sectional titles or of international flavor are scheduled this afternoon. Fortunate and powerful indeed will be the elevens who escape defeat.

◆ ◆ ◆

This is, however, rather an off-day in the Southwestern conference. Only two conference games are scheduled and the favorites are clearly defined. Texas should beat Rice handily at Houston and Texas Aggies are held stronger than Arkansas. The Farmers, however, doubtless will encounter formidable opposition. Baylor meets St. Edward's, T. C. U. faces Texas Tech and S. M. U. meets Trinity. The conference teams should win under wraps.

◆ ◆ ◆

THERE ARE THREE outstanding games today in the Missouri valley region. Nebraska and Missouri, two of the foremost elevens of the Middle West, clash at Lincoln. If you can figure that one out you are a better prognosticator than I am. Oklahoma and Kansas State both of whom have shown power, meet at Norman. Another case of a tossup. Kansas probably will beat Iowa State.

◆ ◆ ◆

INTERESTING GAMES are carded in the South. Georgia Tech, conqueror last week of Notre Dame, engages North Carolina. The Tornado should win. Tulane will extend Georgia. Tennessee, following its victory last Saturday over Alabama, is favored over Washington and Lee. Alabama should trim Sewanee without great difficulty. Virginia Military looms stronger than Maryland.

◆ ◆ ◆

YALE AND ARMY. There's the greatest battle of the day, both in its bearing on the eastern and possibly the national title, and in its color. These mighty, unbeaten elevens should provide one of the season's outstanding games. Yale holds the edge. The Blue has not been seriously extended this campaign, and while the opposition they have encountered has not been as formidable as that met by Army, Georgia and Brown are good football teams. S. M. U. fought the Cadets to a standstill. Army showed power in beating Harvard last week, 15-0, but also exhibited some traces of loose football. However, the football-wise Army veterans will play their best game against old Eli. A victory either way by a close score will result.

◆ ◆ ◆

There are other notable games in the East between teams of traditional rivalry. Dartmouth's unbeaten machine meets Harvard. The Green is favored over the Crimson but not without a strenuous fight. Navy, beaten three times this year, probably will lose to a strong Pennsylvania club. Carnegie Tech holds a slight edge over Pittsburgh in their "city championship" engagement. A pair of gloomy coaches, Bob Roper of Princeton and Gil Dobie of Cornell, will send their charges into action in a noteworthy meeting in which the Tigers probably will win.

◆ ◆ ◆

AMHERST and Wesleyan engage in the first of the "little three" titular contests. Brown plays Tufts. Columbia should beat Williams. Fordham and Washington and Jefferson rate about even. So do West Virginia and Lafayette. New York university's unbeaten team is choice to trim Colgate. Penn State may rally from its loss to Pennsylvania, in which fumbles played an important part, to outscore Syracuse.

◆ ◆ ◆

ALL BIG TEN elevens engage in conference tilts today. The outstanding battle of the Middle West and second only in importance of the day is the meeting of Minnesota and Iowa. Toss a coin to pick the winner. It will be an affair between two tremendously strong driving machines with powerful defenses, and led by great individual stars, the Hawkeyes by Mayes McClain, the Oklahoma Indian and the Gophers by Bronko Nagurksi.

◆ ◆ ◆

"STAGG FEARS Purdue," a perennial cry at Chicago, even when the Boilermakers were in the football doldrums, has meaning today. "Pest" Welch is figured to lead Purdue to victory over the Maroons in a game in which there probably will be little scoring. The 1927 champion Illini should trounce Northwestern. Indiana gave Illinois a battle last week. I wouldn't be surprised if they beat Ohio State today. Wisconsin, held 19-19 by Purdue last week, looms stronger than Michigan, which is the weakest Wolverine team within memory. Notre Dame should beat Drake. Marquette and Holy Cross play an intersectional affair at Worcester.

◆ ◆ ◆

Except for the Oregon Aggie-Washington melee, in which the former is favorite, there are no outstanding games in the Far West. Stanford and Southern California have nothing more than practice affairs with Fresno and Occidental, respectively.

WRIGLEY HERO OF IOWA PARK

Scores All Points to Beat Seymour, 14 to 12

SEYMOUR, Texas, Oct. 26.—The playing of Wrigley brought victory today to the Iowa Park High school football team. Wrigley scored two touchdowns and kicked both goals for points after touchdown to enable the Hawks to defeat Seymour, 14 to 12. Failure to score points after touchdown cost Seymour a tie.

Iowa Park scored its touchdowns in the first quarter. Seymour rallied to count in the second and third periods. Iowa Park counted its second marker when the ball was fumbled by Seymour on the Iowa Park kickoff and recovered by a Hawk back of the local's goal line.

Walker and Gorman, who scored the touchdowns, and Hoosier, the most consistent ground gainers, were stars for Seymour.

Seymour made 12 first downs to three by Iowa Park.

Lamesa Trounces Midland, 25 to 0

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, Oct. 26.—The Lamesa Tornadoes again defended an uncrossed goal this season here Friday afternoon when they dubbed the Midland Colts, 25 to 0. The fast backs of the Lamesa club were too much for the strong Midland team.

Although Midland outweighed the Lamesa squad the Tornadoes scored almost at will with the smartest plays yet introduced in the class B conference in this district for the season.

Midland was strongest on offensive and in particular forward passing completing five passes during the game.

Grandfield Captures Hard Game From Ryan

RYAN, Okla., Oct. 26.—Grandfield defeated Ryan today in a hard-fought game on the local gridiron, 12 to 7. Lawson of Grandfield and Picketts and Kirkpatrick of Ryan featured.

Archer City Is Victor Over Henrietta, 20-0

Special to The Record News

ARCHER CITY, Oct. 26.—Archer City flashed power on offense and a strong defense to defeat Henrietta today, 20 to 0. Lewis scored two touchdowns and Haygood one by straight football.

WORKMEN HURT ON DECREASE

Report to Governor Shows Accident Decline

AUSTIN, Oct. 26.—The death of 417 workmen the past year and 514 the 1926-27 state year, and accidents during the two year period totaling 235,354, in which fatal or non-fatal accidents occurred, were recorded in the biennial report of the state industrial accident board, filed with Gov. Dan Moody today.

The number of workmen protected by the state compensation law administered by the accident board, grew form 922,446 in 1927 to 1,081,702 in 1028.

Despite the large increase in the number of firms carrying compensation insurance and the number of workmen insured, a decrease of 100 victims of fatal accidents within a year was recorded by the board.

Members of the industrial accident board are Judge James W. Swayne of Fort Worth, chairman; Mrs. Espa Stanford of Austin and J. M. Pitillo of Waco. E. B. Barnes, formerly of Snyder, is secretary.

The biennial report called attention to the fact that minors are excluded from benefits of the workmen's compensation law, and that "many insist that this provision of the law should be remedied, to permit this class of employees, who have been illegally employed, to receive compensation, and there are said to be sound reasons why this should be done."

"Employers of labor are becoming more and more solicitous of the welfare of their employees," the report said, "and their continued cooperation," in looking after compensation claims until disposed of, "is to be most earnestly desired.

"We could suggest no better remedy to check the enormous increase in the annual toll of dead and injured in industrial pursuits in this state than an intensive education campaign carried on among employers of labor, and perhaps under the supervision of this department."

Total compensation in death claims paid for the first year of the report was $1,149,490; for injuries, $3,908,442; surgical and medical treatment, $2,280,450; for the second year, deaths, $1,296,615; injuries $3,893,579; surgical and medical treatment, $2,340,619.

Knew He Had Made No Mistake

Sherman Man Had Not Seen a Well Day for Eight or Ten Years Until He Took Orgatone.

"Since I have taken Orgatone I can go to the table and eat a meal without suffering afterwards with my stomach, something I haven't been able to do for eight or ten years," was the statement made in an interview the other day by W. M. Reeder, 514 East Cherry Street, Sherman, Texas.

"I was bothered with stomach trouble, extreme nervousness and a general weakened condition," continued Mr. Reeder. "At times my stomach was so sore I could hardly stand to touch it. On account of this soreness I could scarcely bend over to tie my shoes. Why, if I ever rode in a car or rocked in a chair you could hear the water sloshing in my stomach. I was certainly in a bad shape.

"After meals I would be bloated and would belch up sour undigested food. I suffered from bad headaches and would be so dizzy I could hardly walk. My nerves were so upset I could scarcely feed myself.

"A short time ago I began reading in the local paper about so many people getting such wonderful results from this new medicine, Orgatone, that I decided to try it. I know that I had spent at least $150 on other medicines to no avail but some way this appealed to me. I could tell I had made no mistake by the time I had taken a half bottle. It proved to be just what I had been needing. I began to improve in every way. I can eat anything now without any ill effects. I am going to continue with the treatment as it is the finest thing I have ever found.

"I wouldn't turn it down for money and have told many friends about it, fellows at the mill where I work knew my condition, and I have shown them what Orgatone does."

Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily.—Adv.

Approximately 20 boys and girls attended the meeting held Friday morning. Lewis Haynes, vice-president of the club, spoke a few words on the making of boys. Edwin Sutton, president, announced that the club members had better start in their feather collections for their arrow tips sometime soon, as the supply will run low after Thanksgiving.

A demonstration of arrow making was given by the president. He explained the different types of arrows, such as hunting, fishing and shooting. Plans for a demonstration and drawing of bows will be submitted to the new members at the next meeting, which will be held Monday of next week.

Dailey Predicts Scores on KGKO

The "mike" instead of the customary typewriter was the medium by which Larry Dailly discussed football Friday night. The sports editor of The Record News gave a talk on important collegiate games scheduled for Saturday over KGKO.

Dailey detailed the outstanding games in all sections of the country and predicted the winners, though he hedged on some of them, which he charactérized as "tossups." He said that those pessimistic coaches, Dobie of Cornell and Roper of Princeton, have so many men injured that they can't put 11 men on the field today. But that's what was said of the Yankees, he recalled.

Dailey will give his sports talk every Friday night over station KGKO, which, as far as is known, is the only such feature broadcast by a southwestern radio station.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today under continued Southern selling and liquidation, promoted by reports of favorable weather in the South, reiterated talk of an easy spot basis, and the continued heavy movement of cotton into sight. December contracts, after firming up from 19.17 to 19.33, sold off to 19.08 or 85 points below the recent high level and closed at 19.12, compared with 19.32 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 18 to 23 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 6 to 8 points, and soon showed net losses of 12 to 15 points under a continuation of the recent selling movement, which was promoted by the favorable weather map and overnight selling orders from the South. There was considerable trading buying, which absorbed these initial offerings, and prices rallied back to about or a shade above yesterday's closing quotations during the middle of the morning on covering. The demand slackened around the 19¼ cent level for March contracts, however, and prices eased again during the afternoon, when there was further liquidation coupled with local and Southern selling. March sold off to 19.05 or 22 points net lower, with the general list showing net losses of 20 to 23 points in the late trading. The close was within 2 or 3 points of the lowest.

The favorable weather reported in the South was supposed to be expediting the harvesting of cotton and its movement to the gins or to the market, and also came in for some comment on the ground that it might promote the development of late cotton.

Exports today 29,042 making 1,955,207 so far this season. Port receipts 87,707. U. S. port stocks 2,010,699.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26. (AP)—Despite more favorable weekly statistics and reports of a better spot demand, cotton prices declined approximately $1 a bale under selling promoted by fair weather in the belt and liquidation by the long interest. At the lowest December sold at 18.51, but the option rallied a few points in final trading and closed at 18.55, or 19 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net declines of 17 to 20 points.

Liverpool cables were lower than due at the start and first trades showed losses of 2 to 5 points. There was some liquidation after the start and December declined further to 18.58, January to 18.61 and March 18.60, or 15 to 16 points under the previous close.

Near noon the decline met some trade buying and covering probably prompted by the smaller movement of the crop into sight and the larger mill takings. There was also some talk of a better demand for spot cotton at interior markets. On the improvement, prices traded to levels 8 points above the lows, but the gain was soon lost on a renewal of liquidation.

The marekt was on the downgrade for most of the afternoon session making new lows in final trading when December reached 18.51, and March 18.53, or 22 to 23 points down from yesterday's close. Some additional covering in final trading carried the market 2 to 4 points above the lowest and January closed at 18.58 and March 18.55.

Activity By Professionals Main Cause of Big Sales and Poor Prices

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (US)—Stocks sold off again today as professional operations touched off stop loss orders in recent pool pets and brought the total turnover up to 4,600,000 shares with the tape more than a half hour late.

"Pre-election scare," "Durant selling" and other factors enhanced nervousness but the main reason for the weakness was the holding off of the powerful bull leaders.

Professionals only needed the sign of absence of resistance in Chrysler to go after others so that selling spread quickly through the industrials.

Some recovery at the close made up part of the losses but Chrysler was down 5 5-8 for the day, General Motors 4, steel 3, nickel 3, while losses of one and two points were numerous.

Banks called more loans and put the call rate up to 8 per cent from a renewal of 7 1-2 per cent. Oils and coppers were given good support but the rails remained irregular in quiet trading.

Loans Blamed

The smash at recent industrial pool pets was blamed on the increase of $107,000,000 in brokers' loans but in reality was due to the disinclination of powerful operators to resume aggressive activity until just before election.

This group, headed by Mid-Western industrial magnates, have been taking big profits in many of their favorites for several weeks. They have, therefore, written down the cost of their original holdings therein to a level that relieves them of all worry. Furthermore, their financial position is such that they can rally the market whenever they see fit. They are not opposed to what they call a "stabilizing reaction" at this time for it will make it easier for them to stage the "election celebration" they have in mind. So they again prove there is no "new era" in so far as pools leaving their following high and dry is concerned.

Briggs Shows Weakness

"Pool is out and gone to the races" was one answer to the query as to the weakness in Briggs. It is typical of the attitude of others who have placed their stock with "involuntary investors." In so far as Briggs is concerned, it is learned that the pool passed on a good part of its stock. Some members of the group now want the balance distributed while others want the pool held intact. Following the Hudson, Studebaker and other pool breakups, such happenings as in Briggs adds to nervousness and helps professional bearish operations when technical conditions warrant price setbacks.

Unsettlement elsewhere held the oils and copper back but the character of support given Standard oils, Sinclair and other independents indicated that further constructive operations were planned. In connection with Sinclair, it was pointed out that "cutten is a long pull players." Some of the same interests who were in Montgomery Ward and others, it was learned further, concluded arrangements for operation in consolidated railways or Cuba preferred. The company has earned dividends during all the unsettlement in the sugar condition, and with bankers working for stabilization of the sugar industry looks ahead to larger revenues. Combustion and other Durant favorites failed to get much help from knowledge that he was arriving from Europe.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Further price gains were scored on fat lambs at several points around the 11-market circuit and firm values were maintained at other centers; choice native lambs in Chicago reached 14.00 and 13.75 was paid for dry fed westerns; the supply estimated at 41,200 was 15,000 short of last Friday and the corresponding day a year ago.

A slight reaction took place in the hog market with steady to 15 cents higher values prevailing at most points; the days top, of 9.25 was paid both at Chicago and St. Louis; total offerings were around 70,600 as compared with 74,546 a week ago and 57,165 the same day last year.

Cattle prices were unchanged with the supply around the loop uncovering no native grain feds showing a high degree of finish; the week-end trade on stocker and feeder classes was slow and the holdover at most markets will be relatively large; eastern dressed beef markets have had a healthier tone this week which should stimulate the good steer and yearling trade next week unless receipts are burdensome; trade interests expect another liberal run of stock steers and calves the forthcoming week but it is doubtful if the supply will exceed that of this week; aggregate receipts were estimated at 15,600, a decrease of 3,300 from a week ago and a year ago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 22,000, strong to 15c higher; packing sows $8.10@8.50; pigs $8.00@8.50.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (US)—Grains closed irregularly today, but generally higher. The futures that were lower at the end showed only insignificant losses. Although the action of the markets was slow most of the session there seemed to be plenty of power underneath the surface.

At the finish wheat was up ⅛c to ⅝c; corn was unchanged to ⅛c lower; oats were off ⅛c to ¼c; rye was ⅜c to ⅝c higher.

Wheat developed strength at the start. It opened slightly higher than the previous close and was strong during most of the period, although often the market turned very dull. Prices worked up through the offers, but eased off at the close leaving the market in what seemed like a sound position.

The local attitude toward wheat remained about as bearish as ever. Before the market opened there were numerous predictions that a big break was due, but nothing like a break even threatened throughout the session.

Corn, although it did not advance much at any time, was the focus of a good deal of interest. Local professionals are intensely bearish. They allow themselves, apparently, to be influenced by the increasing receipts and the decline in cash premiums.

That these two incidents to the present corn situation may be in fact decidedly bullish was pointed out here today. The strength of the market supports this contention.

I was told today that if the buying for export continues on the present scale this country will ship abroad over 100,000,000 bushels of corn between now and next July.

When it is recalled that our exports of corn from July, 1927, to July, 1928, were only a little over 18,000,000 bushels, it is evident what effect such big exportation might have on the market.

In the cash market wheat was steady to 2c up; corn was 1c to 7c off; oats were unchanged; rye was ½c up; barley was steady to 1c off.

ELLENBERGER TO BE TACKLED

Cook County Test Hits Lime 500 Feet High

Benson Brothers No. 1 Daugherty, located in Bushell-Garner survey, abstract 396, Cooke county, is drilling at 1400 feet into the Ellenberger lime.

The well, which is about two and one-half miles west of Valley View, topped the lime at 1022 feet, or about 500 feet higher than it has been encountered in the other tests heretofore drilled in the vicinity. The test will be interesting to the operators in the North Texas field on account of its effort to drill through thickness of this lime formation in this section, several of the larger companies having given financial aid for its completion.

Stock dividends of 70½ cents a share in first preferred and $1.41 in second preferred have been paid this year. Net profits in 1927 were $1,234,701 as compared with $866,615 in 1926. Oil Tax Payment Plans Closed

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (AP)—Negotiations under an agreed settlement by which the states gets $121,549.07 in its suit against the Oriental Oil company and other concerns for gasoline taxes claimed by the state as due from April 1923, sales, were completed today, Assistant Attorney General R. M. Tilley announced.

Judgment was entered in district court. The sum mentioned and $69,571.21 which the oil companies got under the agreed mode of settlement, had been held in trust, pending outcome of another suit involving questions pertinent to the Oriental case, in which about 5,000 concerns and individuals intervened.

The 1923 one-cent gas tax was in effect only one month. The attorney general's department contended that it was a "turnover tax" due from both wholesalers and retailers.

LAWS FOR OIL CURB LIKELY

Legislature Will Consider Proration Problem

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Oct. 26.—Definite statutory recognition is expected to be given by the 41st legislature to the policy of oil proration, which has been in effect in Texas fields this year olny as a cooperative measure between the state and the producers.

The proration is governed under the railroad commission's general authority to prohibit the waste of oil, and has been made on the basis of excessive wastage in the production and storage of oil for the lagging market, rather than on the ground of enormous economic waste in competitive production of oil not required by the market.

Losses on account of sales prices were definitely excluded by the railroad commission from consideration in its hearing on proration of the Winkler field and the Yates pool during the past few months.

A law likely will be urged to make arbitrary proration orders effective, regardless of the the degree of agreement reached among operators in a given field, when the public concern in curtailing production is deemed of sufficient import.

Much of Texas oil is produced on state-owned lands, from which the university and the public school funds receive royalties. That oil when produced on a low market deprives the state of much of the royalty values; and overproduction of oil in the state from other fields likewise depresses the royalty returns from oil produced when the market cannot take it at full value.

STATE NEEDS PLANT EXPERTS

Diseased Plants Offer Big Problem to Inspectors

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (AP)—The responsibility of the state department of agriculture in guarding against the dissemination of diseased nursery stock is a source of considerable worry to J. M. Del Curto, state plant pathologist.

There are approximately 2,000 nurseries in the state which need an annual inspection for detection of diseased stock and state-supervised treatment to protect the general public from infested trees and plants. The state has on its payroll only five full-time inspectors.

It is recalled that a few years ago when there were about 200 nurseries in Texas, a force of inspectors twice the size of the present one was employed. The legislature, however, in its desire to keep state expenses to a minimum, has not seen fit to vote enough money to increase the number of inspectors.

With interest in the nursery industry growing and nurserymen seeing the necessity of close supervision with a view to keeping infection to a minimum, Del Curto is confident the day is not far off when the staff of inspectors will be increased to an adequate number.

At the present time Texas needs between 15 and 20 inspectors, a negligible number when compared to the probable 200 maintained by California, Del Curto stated. Texas is fast becoming a rival of those two states in supporting nurseries, he said.

A nursery inspector must be well posted on diseases of trees and plants, because they are susceptible to probably more ailments than the human body. There are hundreds of pests which attack trees and it is no small responsibility for the state to detect and combat these.

At sites of large nurseries the state department of agriculture usually appoints the local inspector to observe shipments of trees which come from time to time after the annual nursery inspection has been made.

City Keeps Watch For Meter Dodgers

Water meters and connections over the entire city are inspected regularly, and trying to "pipe" the water around the meter or otherwise get the water from the city are apt to be blocked and the offender discovered most unexpectedly, according to Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department.

The statement was made following the levying of a $10 fine in corporation court Friday morning against a man who failed to pay his water bill, according to Dr. Douglass, and who then "piped" the water around the meter after the water was cut off by the city.

AL HAS ODDS IN OLD KENTUCKY

Smith Expected to Win 'by Nose' in Blue Grass State

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 26. (UP)—As might be expected the presidential election in old Kentucky is turning out to be a hoss hace.

Smith has the odds and may win by a nose. It will be no more than that however and Republicans have no reason to mark Kentucky's 13 electoral votes off completely.

Smith has lost considerably because of religion and prohibition but still the situation favors him slightly.

First the Democratic organization is intact. Not a single regular in the organization has bolted. The Democrats have about 12,000 men precinct workers for election day. Ninety per cent of this is their old permanent organization. All are trained election day workers who know just what to do and how. In addition the Democrats have some 6,000 women workers ready to help at the polls.

The "jocky club crowd" is with the Democrats this time. That means money and political influence in Kentucky. The "jockey club crowd" is credited with having elected a Republican governor at the last state election. It wields a mean block of votes and it is behind Smith this time.

Also the coal operators support is claimed by the Democrats. George J. Anderson, head of the Consolidated Coal company, a Rockefeller corporation, with large holdings in Kentucky has just declared for Smith. The coal district of eastern Kentucky is angry with the administration for the interstate commerce commission's decision in the Lake cargo case which placed Kentucky coal at a disadvantage of 25 cents a ton in freight rates as against Pennsylvania coal. Democrats charge the Republicans packed the commission and forced it to favor Pennsylvania as against Democratic Kentucky.

One commissioner was rejected by the senate for reappointment chiefly by the Democrats, because he switched his vote against Kentucky, presumably under White House—or Mellon—pressure, the Democrats charge.

On the Republican side there is the intense activity of the dry women and the churches which is bound to take many votes away from Smith.

The state anti-saloon league head is now touring the state with Dr. John Roach Straton. Also the statistics are in favor of the Republicans. Harding lost the state only by 4,000 votes in 1920; Coolidge carried it by 24,000 in 1924.

Though Davis and LaFolette had a greater combined vote, in view of this narrow margin, the Democrats cannot afford to lose many votes. They claim to be making inroads on the negro vote but in the showdown the percentage probably will be small.

Rep. Robison, in charge of Republican activity, predicts a Hoover majority of 50,000. Democrats claim Smith will carry the state by 25,000. Both are guesses and indicate neither side is very confident.

John W. Davis spoke here this week. Babe Ruth, wearing a brown derby came here with Lou Gehrig for an exhibition game and probably made more votes for Smith than the average stump speaker who is drawing good expense money from the Democratic campaign chest. He appeared at a Smith rally and got a tremendous hand.

Hoover will pass through Kentucky on his way to California and this may be expected to help his cause somewhat.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is fighting hard for Smith and is warning Democrats that if the south fails to stand by Smith now it may mean the end of the Democratic party.

"Do southern Hoover Democrats believe for an instant that if they reject Smith for no better reason than that he is a Catholic or is not a standpat prohibitionist, the Democrats of the north will have anything more to do with them?" The Courier-Journal asks editorially.

"And without the Democrats of the north, there could be sent to the electoral college in 1932 hardly enough Democrats to hold a wake over the Democratic party.'

Largest Peanut Mill At Dublin

TYLER, Texas, Oct. 26. (UP)—Woldert Peanut Products company, auxiliary concern of the Alex Woldert company of Tyler, has opened during the past month at Dublin, Texas, what is said to be the largest peanut mill in operation in the state.

Located in a rich peanut production belt, the plant is considered one of the leading manufacturing plants in that section of the state. Adjoining the mill proper are several warehouses capable of storing 175,000 bushels of peanuts. The mill started operation late in September and not only shells peanuts but will manufacture stock feed.

Besides this mill, the Woldert industries operate and own peanut mills in Hugo, Okla., pecan shelleries at Tyler and Shreveport, and have maintained a sale office in Chicago for the past 25 years. Head offices of the company are located at Tyler, the home of Alex Woldert, president and general manager of the Woldert Allied industries.

LONGWORTH CONFIDENT

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (INS)—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house, in his first visit here since the presidential campaign swung into "high," predicted today that Herbert Hoover will carry all of the eastern states with the possible exception of Massachusetts, which he considered doubtful.

AUSTRALIA AND U. S. CONVERSE

General Electric Station in Unusual Test

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 26. (INS)—A radio conversation between officials of the General Electric company's broadcasting station WGY and station ZME at Snyder, Australia, was carried on for a brief period today.

So plainly did the voice of C. M. Farmer, announcer at the Sydney station, come through the 10,000 miles of space, that it was rebroadcast by WGY so that radio fans in this country could hear him.

The test was made in a farmhouse near Scotia, N. Y., by station W-2XAF, the General Electric company's experimental station. Short wave broadcasting was used by both the American and the Australian stations.

Martin P. Rice, manager of the Schenectady station, opened the conversation with Australia.

"Good morning, Mr. Farmer. Can you hear me?" Rice said.

"Good morning, Mr. Rice. I can hear you very plainly," came back the voice from the other side of the world.

After a brief conversation, Rice introduced Mayor Henry C. Fagal of Schenectady, who extended the city's greetings to far away Australia.

The test was made by the Schenectady station on a wavelength of 31.4 meters, while the Sydney station used 28.5 meters.

BLUE GAS FOR GRAF

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 26. (AP)—Preparing for the return of the Graf Zeppelin to Germany, Lieut.-Commander Zeno H. Today { At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Richard Dix and Ruth Elder in "Moran of the Marines." Topics of the Day. Paramount newsreel. Fables. Football short subject. Our Gang comedy.

STRAND: Last times of "King of Kings" with all-star cast. Two vitaphone short subjects. Pathe newsreel.

OLYMPIC: "The Crash" starring Milton Sills and Thelma Todd. Series 12 of "Beauty Pariors." Fox newsreel.

MISSION: Hoot Gibson in "Clearing the Trail." Comedy. Chapter six of "Mark of the Frog." Mullen's Musical Maids on the vaudeville bill.

GARDEN: Cheyenne Bill in "Tundering Thompson." Last chapter of "King of the Jungle." Comedy.

GEM: Buddy Roosevelt in "Trail Riders." Chapter two of "Yellow Cameo." Comedy.

Ruth Elder is making her first screen appearance when she will be starred with Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines," at the Majestic theater beginning Saturday.

Ruth Elder (one hardly knows what to call her except by her full name) has attained a great popularity because she almost succeeded in her attempt to make an airy trip across the Atlantic. But she is pretty to look at, and no woman needs complete attainments when she has beauty. Movie fans of the city will probably welcome the opportunity of seeing Ruth in the new picture.

The pretty aviatrix acts as if she had been in the movies all her life and goes through the paces like a veteran.

And Richard Dix should not be forgotten even for a new star—he is "called to arms" in the picture, and responds.

◇ ◇ ◇

The last showing of "Kings of Kings" at the Strand theater today will probably attract creditable crowds, for there are those who are doubtful of their ability to appreciate the production yet are skeptical of the wisdom of missing an opportunity of seeing one of the greatest pictures of all time.

◇ ◇ ◇

The first appearance of the well-known "blues" singer, Martha Withers, at the Mission theater Sunday is expected to bring a large attendance. She is clever at the piano, too. Miss Withers is to be presented in connection with the vaudeville bill "Marian Grey," to be staged Sunday by Mullen's Musical Maids.

Mother of Slain Man Indignant At Moody

FORT WORTH, Oct. 26. (UP)—Surprise and indignation at Governor Moody's commutation of Bob Silver's death sentence was expressed in an open letter to newspapers here today by Mrs. S. H. Wilson, mother of Roscoe Wilson, for whose murder Silver was sentenced to die.

Referring to the "eleventh hour" action, the mother asked:

"Are you really the man that Jim Ferguson said you were: 'A spineless mollycoddle'?"

Swiss and Italians Adjust Traffic Rules

GENEVA, Oct. 26. (UP)—The Swiss and Italian governments have reached an agreement on traffic regulations. The Italians will allow the crossing of the frontier by all persons bearing a regular passport, a frontier pass or a tourist card.

$10,000 OPIUM CARGO SEIZED

Chinese Steward Held at Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Oct. 26. (UP)—A Chinese steward in whose possession was found more than $10,000 worth of opium, was detained here today with the French steamer St. Andrew due to sail for Liverpool.

Seizure of 12½ pounds of opium was made while the steamer was going up the ship channel to Beaumont, according to A. A. Gunter, customs collector for this district. It was in the possession of the ship's Chinese steward, hidding among the stores of the ship's galley.

The man is liable to imprisonment of not more than two years and fine of not more than $5,000.

A fine of $5,000 will be levied against the ship, the customs collector said.

PECAN GROWERS TO HOLD MEET

First Institute to Convene In Brownwood

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Oct. 26. (UP)—Brownwood is to entertain growers of pecans this year, Nov. 15 and 16 by a pecan institute, the first to be held in Texas, and, it is believed, the first in the Southwest.

Already, Judge M. H. Gossett, president of the Federal Land bank of Houston, has accepted an invitation to speak on "The Loan Value of Pecans."

Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, with other members of that commercial body, will discuss the same subject and probably other phases of the pecan industry.

Wade has made a study of pecans and has been gathering data on the pecan industry for the past two years and is expected to help others with a discussion of pecan facts.

An increased production and a development of a better quality will be two of the most important phases of the Brownwood meeting in November, according to J. T. Stovall, member of the entertainment committee for the meeting, and combination vocational teacher at Brownwood High school and assistant at the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce.

Secretaries and treasurers of National Farm Loan associations within a radius of seventy-five miles of Brownwood have been invited by Judge Gossett of Houston to attend the institute here. Fifty are expected to attend, it has been learned.

Many prominent speakers in Texas and out, including Senator-elect Tom Connally, D. V. Shuhart of Oklahoma A. & M. college, Dean E. J. Kyle of Texas A. & M. college, Col. L. P. Downs of Temple, as well as several government pecan and experiment station men.

An auction sale on the last day of the institute will feature the meet. Auction of several different varieties of pecans will be made.

Prizes are to be given for the best exhibits of all varieties of pecans, according to Mr. Stovall.

Student Patents New Book Holder

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 26 (UP)—Last year S. Pflanzgraben, a student of Southern Methodist University here, suffered from eye trouble. An eye specialist recommended that he wear glasses.

Planzgraben took the advice of the specialist, but during his study periods he found that with a book resting at a certain angle he could read better with his glasses off. This presented him with a difficult problem. He could not read during class at the university without his glasses, as he couldn't fix the book at the proper angles.

He then went to work on plans for a device that would serve as a book holder and could be placed at any angle. After four or five months work he finished plans on one, had it constructed, and patented it under the name of E. Z. Vision.

His new device can now be used as a copyholder for typing or as a bookholder. Mr. Pflanzgraben said that money derived from his invention would be used to pay his way through school. A number of prominent educators have indorsed the device, which will be placed on the market soon.

West Texas Conference In Statement

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 26. (AP)—No support will be given by the West Texas Methodist conference to candidates for the presidency or any other public office who "attack our temperance legislation and seek to modify our constitutional protection from the devastating effects of alcohol."

This statement was contained in a paper submitted by a committee appointed by Bishop John M. Moore, to the annual session of the West Texas conference today. The committee was composed of the following: Dr. Paul B. Kern of the Travis Park Methodist church; Rev. Sterling Fisher, presiding elder of the San Antonio district; Rev. K. P. Barton, presiding elder of the Aus-Kennedy, and O. A. Mills of Uvalde.

The statement said "the present political situation presents an unusually significant challenge to Christian leadership of America. Ancient political systems and traditional party alignments are being re-examined in the light of a high moral purpose. Our country faces decisions, the result of which will penetrate into the remotest hamlet of our land and affect the personal and social life of rich and poor alike."

The conference was opened with a sermon by Bishop Moore, who spoke on "The Preacher and His Congregation."

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (AP)—Emil Enderlin of Gonzales, charged with the murder of H. L. Whitehead and refused a writ of habeas corpus by the district court, in an effort to obtain bail, has appealed to the court of criminal appeals.

The court handed down a decision dismissing the appeal of Raymond Bodosky of Grayson county, convicted of selling intoxicating liquor and given one year. The court stated that it was not shown by the record that appellant ever gave notice of appeal to the higher court.
