City officials here and local board members of the Colorado River Municipal Water District have reported a number of inquiries recently about the possibility of water rationing.

The CRMWD officials assure that there are no plans whatever to ration water to cities this calendar year, although surface supplies of the district are very low.

Snyder, Big Spring and Odessa actually have first call on water supplies of the district because they are the member cities. Oilfield repressuring units had their water allotments from the district cut in half over a week ago and the water district now is working on a project to supply them from salt water wells.

Lake J. B. Thomas is at its lowest level since its earliest days as a full-fledged lake, and Lake E. V. Spence has not made a big catch of water so far. However, the two reservoirs have enough water to supply cities for several more months, especially when the lake water is supplemented by supplies from wells.

The water district can produce from its own well fields in Martin County to help supply consumers on the west end of the district, and it has custody of wells in both Big Spring and Snyder which can be produced when needed.

So, the CRMWD sees no call for water artioning for city users the remainder of this year. If the lakes fail to get a good catch in the next six months, 1971 could be a different story.

A publicity blurb from the World Book Encyclopedia prompts a timely question on the approach of Independence Day.

Excepting Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and of course John Hancock, how many of the men who signed the Declaration of Independence can you name?

There were 56 of them in all and most of them would be considered intellectuals by most any standards, although Franklin was an elementary school dropout. A majority of the others attended Harvard, Princeton or William and Mary, the three recognized seats of learning in their day. Their average age was 44, and they were lawyers, farmers, merchants, clergymen and various combinations of those professions.

They had one overriding characteristic in common — all were patriots.

Ritz-Craft Plant Top Brass Named

ARGOS, Ind. — Larry J. Ritzenthaler, president of Ritz-Craft, Inc., a subsidiary of The Wickes Corporation, Saturday announced the appointment of four top executives for the company's plant being built at Snyder.

Thomas M. Saltsgiver, earlier named assistant general manager, has been promoted to general manager of the Snyder plant. Saltsgiver will have overall responsibility for all the plant operations, Ritzenthaler said. He has been with Ritz-Craft for 15 years and moves to Snyder from Mifflinburg, Pa., where he was sales manager for the Ritz-Craft plant there.

Lloyd Palmer, named plant superintendent, will head up all production in the Snyder plant which will be Ritz-Craft's largest manufacturing facility. Production is expected to run to 15 mobile homes per day on two side-by-side production lines. The plant will have 15 production stations and a frame shop within the facility. Palmer has been with the company since 1963 in production supervision. He is originally from Jackson, Mich., and has lived in Elkhart, Ind., for the past several years.

Mark Dunlap, a native of Argos, Ind., and a Ritz-Craft employee since 1961, has been named purchasing agent for "Ritz-Craft of Texas" as the plant is officially called. Dunlap has worked in production and purchasing positions in Ritz-Craft's Argos plant. In his new position he will work both with local vendors and with the Wickes mobile homes national purchasing program, Ritzenthales said.

Robert Ragland has been appointed sales manager for the Snyder plant. The facility will produce mobile homes as large as 14 feet wide and 70 feet long and will market them throughout the Southwest. Ragland was in sales with Redman Industries of Grand Island, Neb., before joining Ritz-Craft last spring. Earlier, he served in the sales departments of Western Mobile Homes, Denver, Colo.; Central Industries, Steeley, Colo.; and Champion Homes, York, Neb. Ragland grew up and attended school in Akron, Ohio.

Ritzenthaler said, "We have unbounded confidence in the abilities of these carefully-chosen men to establish Ritz-Craft of Texas in the finest traditions of our company. All of them have many years of experience in the mobile homes field and we are pleased to have them at the helm of this newest and largest Ritz-Craft facility. They will have the full cooperation of our corporate staff as plant procedures are set up and production begins. We expect Ritz-Craft of Texas to be in operation by mid-summer."

The 70,000 square foot plant, located in Snyder's Industrial Park, is being built at a cost of half a million dollars and will be Ritz-Craft's eighth plant.

Ritz-Craft corporate headquarters are in Argos, Ind. Other plants are located at Shamokin, Pa.; Mifflinburg, Pa.; Maxton, N. C.; Sarasota, Fla.; Vivian, La.; and Neligh, Neb.

Hickel Plans Environmental Inspections

RACHEL CARSON NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE, Me. (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel announced today he would make a series of "environmental inspections" around the nation, starting in July.

"The Interior Department can do even more to improve the quality of our environment," he declared. "Because of this, I intend to take a hard look at the progress being made within Interior's vast jurisdiction."

Hickel's remarks were prepared for the dedication of this seacoast refuge, aimed at helping preserve dozens of species of songbirds, small animals and marine life.

Hickel said his investigations would begin early next month with stops at the Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks.

"I will investigate such environmental and pollution problems as over-crowding—the pollution of the spirit that can destroy even our great national parks if we allow them to become just parking lots in the woods."

Hickel paid high tribute to the late Rachel Carson, for whom the refuge is named. Miss Carson, author of "Silent Spring" and once an Interior employe, died of cancer in 1964.

Jailing Devlin Causes Rioting

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protestants, Catholics and British troops battled in the streets of three Northern Ireland cities Friday night in riots touched off by the jailing of civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin.

The violence began after Miss Devlin, 23, the youngest member of the British House of Commons, lost her last appeal and began a six-month sentence on charges of helping incite the Catholic-Protestant riots in Northern Ireland last year.

More than 1,000 Protestants and Catholics were involved in Friday night's disturbances in Londonderry, Armagh, and Belfast, the capital of predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland.

The rioting in Londonderry lasted five hours. Fourteen persons were arrested and 22 soldiers were injured, three requiring hospitalization.

Eight soldiers were injured in Belfast, four seriously. Two men were injured in two hours of disturbances in Armagh, where Miss Devlin went to begin her sentence in the women's jail.

The trouble in Belfast began when a Protestant procession ran into a rival march of Catholics protesting Miss Devlin's arrest. British troops firing tear gas separated the Protestant and Catholic crowds.

Police in Londonderry also fired tear gas grenades.

In London, about 70 Irish men and women marched to the Home Office to protest Miss Devlin's jail sentence. Police made six arrests.

Miss Devlin, leader of the Catholic minority in predominately Protestant Londonderry, was scheduled to address 2,000 residents of the city's Bogside district before being taken to jail.

But 60 policemen intercepted her car and took her directly to Armagh.

When she reached the heavily guarded jail, demonstrators outside shouted, "God bless you Bernadette, you are a saint."

She rolled down a window of the car and replied: "Thank you for turning up, but please don't cause any trouble."

Israel Invades Golan Heights

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli forces invaded Syria's Golan Heights Friday and fought Syrian troops in an all-day battle that the Damascus government called "the heaviest, longest and fiercest" since the 1967 Middle East war.

Syria said 45 of its soldiers were killed and 75 wounded. The military command in Tel Aviv said 10 Israeli troops were killed and 27 wounded.

Israel launched the attack because Syria was "on the verge" of staging a border war of attrition, an Israeli officer told a news conference. The officer said the raid was intended to persuade the Syrians "to think again, instead of gliding into such a war."

The Tel Aviv spokesman said Israeli forces overran six Syrian outposts, destroyed fortifications in them, knocked at least 10 tanks out of action, downed four MIGs and took 37 prisoners. The Israelis lost one fighter jet, the spokesman said.

The Damascus spokesman called the outcome of the battle "a severe lesson to Israel" and said the Syrian forces destroyed 35 Israeli tanks, 32 halftracks, three observation posts, two radar stations, 11 gun batteries, one rocket unit and seven jets.

"Our air and land forces are now giving the Israelis a taste of their crushing power," a military spokesman in Damascus said. "By now the Israelis and the U.S. imperialists who back them must have realized that June 5, 1967, will never be repeated."

The fighting along the cease-fire line broke out Wednesday when Syrian tanks and artillery mounted a heavy attack against Israeli posts on the Golan Heights. Israel struck back Thursday with an air attack on army camps near Damascus and a broad artillery and tank drive all along the 50-mile front.

On another front, an Israeli spokesman said an Egyptian MIG17 was shot down when it and several other planes struck at an Israeli position on the Suez Canal. Two Israeli soldiers were wounded, the spokesman said.

Cairo said Egyptian planes and artillery pounded Israeli canal positions, "scoring direct hits." The Egyptian command also said Israeli planes "raided our positions along the canal, but caused no damage or casualties."

A Jordanian military spokesman said an Israeli patrol tried to cross the Jordan River Friday night but was driven back after a 15-minute fight. The spokesman said there were no Jordanian military casualties, but two civilians were wounded. He said Jordanian forces reported the Israelis suffered some casualties.

The military command in Tel Aviv said Arab gunners in Jordan fired a number of rockets at the Israeli frontier town of Beit Shean. He said there were no casualties and no damage.

Jordanians Study New Government

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordanian Foreign Minister Abdel Noneim Rifai is holding consultations on forming a new government at King Hussein's request, Cabinet officials said today.

Rifai began his mission, officials said, after the government headed by Prime Minister Bahjat Talhouni said it wanted to resign.

If Rifai is successful in forming a government, he is expected to establish closer ties with Palestinian guerrilla groups. Sources said most of the persons he is consulting are Palestinians, some of them former Cabinet ministers.

Fighting between guerrillas and Jordanian army troops plunged the country into near civil war two weeks ago. Speculation that Talhouni's government would resign began soon afterward.

A new government may be formed in time to talk with the four-man committee set up by the Arab summit in Tripoli last weekend to handle disputes between Jordan and the guerrillas. The committee was due to arrive in Amman today.

Rifai, a graduate of the American University of Beirut, has had a long and distinguished career as a diplomat and was Jordan's chief delegate at the United Nations from 1959 to 1966.

He became foreign minister in 1968, served as prime minister for six months last year, and is deputy prime minister in the present government.

Nixon Decides "Second Phase"

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, as a follow-up to deployment of U.S troops in Cambodia, now has decided upon what aides term "the second phase"—renewed effort at peace talks.

Administration sources, in discussing the decision early today, declined to spell out the steps to be taken, however.

Flanked by diplomatic and military experts, Nixon was host Friday to 38 newspaper and broadcast industry executives at hours-long briefings at the Western White House.

One of the briefers told the group that the intervention into Cambodia by American troops was phase one of an operation that will now be followed up with a new attempt to get the Paris peace talks off dead center.

All the briefers made claims that the Cambodian move, which provoked renewed protest from war critics on the home front, was successful and ensured fulfillment of Nixon's promise to withdraw an additional 150,000 American fighting men from South Vietnam by next April.

Left open was the question of future U.S. military intervention into Cambodia—particularly bombing raids—aimed at interdicting the major east-west highway toward South Vietnam from the apparently newly-established Communist sanctuaries in the more remote regions of Cambodia.

The office of Herbert G. Klein, communications director for the Nixon administration, issued the invitations to 15 broadcast industry representatives and 23 newspaper publishers and editors.

The Western White House said Friday the substance of the briefings would be made available to all news media as of 6 a.m. EDT next Thursday—the morning after President Nixon is to answer foreign policy questions during a live hour-long television interview by representatives of the three major networks.

No representatives of the wire services or weekly news magazines were invited to the briefing sessions, which included a lunch hosted by the President at his seaside mansion.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Richard Moreno, chief juvenile officer probation officer for Bexar County, has said that possession of marijuana should be a misdemeanor for the first offense.

Moreno, speaking at a week-long seminar on minority problems, added that peddling and pushing drugs "is something else."

Good — Adverse — Neutral

Hubby's behavior is off base!

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a girl friend and everybody knows it because he moved out of the house and has gone to live with her. My problem is that my husband has the nerve to bring his girl friend to all the Little League baseball games to watch our son play.

I quit going to the games because I don't enjoy them when he is there laughing it up with her. Furthermore, it upsets our son when he sees his father there with the woman who broke up our home.

I called my husband and told him that if he brings that girl to the game again I will take our son off the league. Do you think I would be wrong to do this? THE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. You should ask your husband to please quit bringing the woman, not because it upsets YOU, but because it upsets the boy. If he insists upon bringing her, shame on HIM. But it's not fair to your son to take him off the league because his father is a boob.

DEAR ABBY: In one of your recent columns you attempted to quote the seventh verse of chapter eight in John's Gospel, and this is what you wrote: "He who is without sin, let him cast the first stone."

I think you owe the Lord Jesus an apology because you have given the public the idea that Jesus sanctioned this woman's punishment, and this He did not do, for the verse reads correctly: "He that is without sin among you, LET HIM FIRST CAST A STONE at her."

This changes the entire meaning. And since The Book of Revelation tells us in Chapter 22, verses 18 and 19, we have no right to "take away from" or "add to" His holy word, I cannot understand why I repeatedly hear people misquote John 8:7. For your public's sake, and for Christ's sake, please make the correction. "CAUGHT YOU"

DEAR CAUGHT: Indeed, you "caught me." I stand corrected.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a mother who said, "Mother's day is for the birds. Mothers break their necks to make their children happy, and when they grow up, they break their mothers' hearts with word and deed."

Your answer hit me right between the eyes. You said, "So many mothers make the same mistake. They think the most important thing in raising children is to make them 'happy.' It's not. If you raise your children to be dependable, industrious, honest, and considerate of others, they will make themselves happy."

No truer words were ever written. I knocked myself out trying to make my son happy. I gave him everything he wanted, but he is very unhappy. He's never satisfied with anything very long. He's lazy, selfish, and inconsiderate. He does have some good traits, but they don't show themselves very often. He is past 17, and I hope and pray it's not too late for him to straighten himself out.

I was mostly to blame. I tried too hard to make him happy. I should have tried to make him more self-sufficient, considerate, and dependable.

Thanks for pointing this out, Abby. Maybe some younger mothers will see it and take it to heart while their children are young enough to benefit from it. MEADVILLE, PA.

Copter Pilot Found Guilty Of Rape

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A young army helicopter pilot was found guilty Friday of the Dec. 17 rape-stabbing of a school teacher who has since married.

The jury of seven men and five women returned the guilty verdict after eight hours of deliberation for Army Warrant Officer Barry Gray, 20, who attacked the 23-year-old woman in her apartment.

In final testimony Thursday the state presented rebuttal testimony in an attempt to discredit the findings of a former Army psychiatrist, who said Gray was insane at the time of the attack.

Sentencing was set for Saturday.

Boy Writes Two Books Before Death

By JOHN FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

MELBOURNE (AP) — Michael Daniell set out to be an author. He wrote two books, "It Pays to Be Wealthy" and "The Island of The Blind Hippopotamie."

He was working on his third book when he died in a hospital here—at the age of 9.

Michael, whose first book was published in March, fought bravely for his life many times. But it was a losing battle. He had cystic fibrosis—a glandular disease—from birth.

Auburn-haired and brown-eyed, Michael was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Daniell, of suburban South Yarra.

At the age of 6, Michael already had held an exhibition of his paintings, two of which were bought by Dame Zara Bate, widow of Australia's late Prime Minister Harold Holt.

Michael, who averaged only short spells at school because of his illness, was always concerned about people who had to spend their lives in hospitals.

"All those poor sick people and they haven't done anything with their lives," he once confided to his father.

When his first book was published he commented: "There, now I have done something with my life and I'm only 9."

The story, with Michael's unusual spellings like "skreimed" for screamed, and "shaw" for sure were left untouched by his publishers.

Doctors told Michael's parents only his wish to live kept him alive.

Said Mrs. Daniell: "Mickey was determined he was not going to die. He would tell me so. In between his bad illnesses he was a happy little boy."

Action Set On Water Regulations

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Water Quality Board is prepared for final action on strict regulations to preserve the quality of water in the Edwards Underground resrvoir.

The new regulations for the buffer and recharge zones for the underground limestone aquifier, which is the sole water source for San Antonio and Bexar County, are needed because of the growth of metropolitan San Antonio and accompanying pollution.

Fritillary Will Be Saved

WILTSHIRE, England (AP) — Fritillary will be saved from extinction in England.

Fritillary, if you are'nt a fritillary enthusiast, is a wild plant seven inches tall when full grown, with purple bell-shaped flowers. For centuries, fritillary have flowered in English meadows—that is, until modern early hay cutting became a common practice.

The mowers cut down fritillary before it could seed.

Now the Wiltshire Trust for Nature Conservation plans to pay $7,200 for a seven-acre field full of fritillary and bar everyone except fritillary lovers and fritillary experts from entering.

US To Continue Air Operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will continue fighting an air war in Cambodia after American troops leave next week, according to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

The Pentagon chief told newsmen Friday the primary purpose of the continued air operations would be attacks on enemy supply lines with "an ancillary benefit" for Cambodia ground troops.

"I would be less than frank or candid if I didn't say there would be side effects on the troops on the ground," Laird said in indicating the possibility of U.S. air support for local combat troops.

Laird's remarks followed by one day a statement by Secretary of State William P. Rogers that the possibility should not be closed out of air support of Cambodia forces by U.S. war planes.

The Defense official also was speaking the day Senate's foes of President Nixon's Southeast Asia policy claimed a unanimous vote restating congressional war making powers had restored the teeth to a proposal to limit future U.S. action in Cambodia.

"It brings back into proper equilibrium the purpose of the Church-Cooper amendment," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, cosponsor of the key antiwar proposal that has been the focal point of seven weeks debate over Cambodia.

Church commented after the Senate voted 73 to 0 to approve a surprise amendment by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

The Javits proposal inserted into the amendment of Church and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., a phrase stating that Congress retains full constitutional power to declare war and regulate the armed forces.

Despite the lack of opposition the vote appeared at the least to be a psychological victory for administration opponents. They had feared earlier amendments restating presidential powers as commander-in-chief would serve as a mandate for President Nixon to move again into Cambodia or anywhere he chose.

"We were writing a blank check," said Javits after introducing his amendment.

He added that in view of the approval of language concerning presidential authority, "We ought quickly to balance it off by saying we're not giving anything up."

Administration supporters went along with the amendment, saying it did nothing more than restate what already is in the Constitution and which the Senate could not change anyway.

"If we were to vote against this amendment as I read it, we would be voting against the Constitution," said Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan.

Although the over-all effect of the amendment was uncertain, Church said it served to restore his proposal to its original purpose "to say to the President that he could not spend public money in a way Congress prohibits."

Reds Propose Security Conference

BUDAPEST (AP) — The Communist Warsaw Pact governments, in a memorandum handed to Western governments by Hungarian diplomats, have proposed the early preparation of a European East-West security conference, with the United States and Canada also attending.

At such a conference, the document said, an organization could be set up to deal with questions of European security and cooperation, including the mutual reduction of troops stationed on foreign territory.

The nemorandum was issued by the Warsaw Pact governments' during a foreign ministers' conference in Budapest June 21-22 and was published today. It said the Warsaw Pact nations noted during recent East-West talks that "the views of the countries concerned have moved closer to each other about the European security conference," which has been proposed by the Soviet Union.

"It is desirable that the interested countries participate directly in every state of the preparation of the European security conference," the memorandum said.

"It is generally understood that the convening of the conference must not be tied to any preliminary conditions.

"A favorable response has been evoked by the Finnish government's initiative to make Helsinki the venue of the conference."

The memorandum proposed these items for inclusion on a conference agenda:

—The Establishment of security in Europe and the renunciation of force, or the threat of using force, in relations between the European countries.

India's Cabinet Is Reshuffled

By FRANK N. HAWKINS Jr.
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, with an eye toward elections scheduled in 1972, moved to strengthen her hand today with a major Cabinet shakeup that involved all the major portfolios.

The key moves included the transfer of Home Minister Y.B. Chavan to finance, leaving Mrs. Ghandhi herself with the critical home ministry portfolio; the promotion of Congress party President Jagivan Ram from food minister to defense minister, and the shift of Swaran Singh from defense to foreign affairs minister.

The way for the Cabinet changes was cleared when Foreign Minister Dinesh Singh accepted a demotion to industrial development minister Friday.

It was the first Cabinet shakeup since February 1969.

There were only three resignations in the shakeup, and all were junior ministers. But they included the internationally known demographer who headed India's family planning program for three years, Dr. Sripati Chandrasekhar. He lost his seat in the upper house of Parliament in April.

One hurdle in Mrs. Ghandhi's plans for the Cabinet reshuffle had been Home Minister Chavan, who was reluctant to leave his important post. After several long meetings, Mrs. Gandhi convinced Chavan, a trusted advisor and a committed Socialist, to take over the finance portfolio. She had held the portfolio since last July, when she sacked Desai.

Mrs. Gandhi apparently considered Chavan the only person she could trust to carry out her Socialist reforms such as the expected nationalization of the insurance industry.

The shift left Mrs. Gandhi with the home ministry portfolio and control of India's Central Intelligence Bureau and Central Bureau of Investigation.

It also left her directly responsible for carrying out the government's campaign against militant Communist groups.

Dubcek Is Problem To Communist

PRAGUE (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, now an ex-Communist, remains very much a problem to the Czechoslovak Communist party.

The party has assumed the task of finding Dubcek a suitable post where, it hopes, he will fade from a popular idol to a forgotten man.

One informant said Josef Lenart, head of the Slovak brahch of the party, was assigned to place Dubcek where he would enjoy minimum public exposure.

The Central Committee announced Friday after a two-day session that it had confirmed the expulsion of Dubcek from the party he had served for 30 years and headed at the time of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in August 1968.

Dismissal of Dubcek, 48, from his remaining official jobs, ambassador to Turkey and member of Parliament, was also confirmed.

The former leader of Czechoslovakia's brief experiment to create communism "with a human face" had been reported headed for a desk job at a factory near Trencin in Slovakia, where he had once worked.

But it was realized later that a factory job would be unsuitable because he would become a magnet for the workers, a source said. In Slovakia even more than in Bohemia, Dubcek is still beloved and his picture is found pasted to factory workbenches.

Speculation continued whether Dubcek would be tried for his 1968 policies of curbing the power of the police and of the Communist party itself. Dubcek appears to be safe from trial so long as his successor, Gustav Husak, remains party chief.

Without naming Dubcek, Husak told the Central Committee meeting, "We emphasize that we shall not take the road of artificially fabricating so-called political trials . . ."

O'Brien Critical Of His Father

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence F. O'Brien III, 24-year-old son of the Democratic national chairman and a Vietnam war veteran, says he thinks his father should be less sharply critical of President Nixon's Southeast Asia policy.

"I think I've convinced my father that gradual withdrawal is the best option in a bad, bad situation," the younger O'Brien said in an interview Thursday in the New York Post.

"The President is feeling his way, and I'm not sure he can do much else."

MRS. JERRY LEE CLINE (Craft Photo)

Miss Spires Weds Jerry Lee Cline

Miss Susan K. Spires became the bride of Jerry Lee Cline Thursday night, June 25, in the ranch home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Spires, Jr., Clairemont Road. The Rev. W. F. Ferguson, retired Baptist minister of Lubbock, who performed the ceremony of Miss Spires' parents in 1949, read the vows for the young couple.

Mrs. Russell Lee Loveall of Odessa is mother of the groom. His father is Roger Lee Cline of Lakewood, Calif.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Novis Rodgers at the organ. Miss Jane Proctor was soloist. Their corsages were gardenias. The improvised altar was between two large columns in the formal living room. Over beam and columns were entwined with ivy. Cathedral tapers in tall smilax entwined standards formed a background for a centered arrangement of pink and yellow peonies and asters on a Roman architectural pedestal, flanked by low urns of woodwardia. On either side of the columns were candle trees of woodwardia and wild smilax. Garden urns of spring flowers were on low pedestals.

Mr. Spires presented his daughter in marriage. Attendants were her sister, Miss Cindy Ann Spires, maid of honor, and her cousin, Miss Kiki Sue Adams, Plains, Kansas. Lee Roy Spires III, brother, was best man. Horace Greely Adams IV, Plains, Kansas, was groomsman. Ushers were Billy Bowden, Rodney Gray, and Delbert Hirst.

The bride wore a gown fashioned of shell white silk organza and imported lace, veiled over peau de soie. It featured an empire bodice, high cameo collar, flounce sleeves, and a pyramid skirt. The chapel length bridal veil of English net edged by a wide border of peau d' ange lace encrusted with crystal beads was attached to a matching calot. She wore a diamond necklace worn by her mother and grandmother, Mrs. L. R. Spires, Sr., Toularosa, New Mexico, and El Paso. She carried a lace handkerchief carried by her mother, aunt, Mrs. H. G. Adams II, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. John Keller. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of pastel rosebuds with baby breath and stephanotis.

Attendants' gowns of silk organza turquoise textured linen were A-line, designed with ring collar, appliqued with cotton lace. The trim was repeated on the wide cuffs of the bishop sleeves. They wore sprays of turquoise organza bows as headpieces and carried nosegays of mini yellow rosebuds centered with a votive candle.

Mother of the bride chose an original gown of turquoise accordian pleated chiffon with a wide bead encrusted band, forming an empire waist. The groom's mother wore a pink chiffon with jeweled belt. The full skirt was knife pleated. Her corsage was pink mini rosebuds with moss trim. Maternal grandmother chose a mint green pouf silk. Corsage was pink camillias.

Mr. and Mrs. Cline attended school in Snyder. Mrs. Cline spent two years at Hockaday in Dallas. They will live in Lubbock where they will pursue their education at Texas Tech University.

They will be at home at the Shenandoah Apartments - Apt. 12, 4400 Avenue X after July 3.

Reception was hosted at the home. The bride's table was laid with a white organdy cloth. An arrangement of red rosebuds and white baby breath in a silver bowl centered the table. Smilax entwined candelabra were on either side. A four tiered wedding cake was served with punch. Champagne fountain was surrounded by smilax and spring flowers. Buffet held fingertip food. Mrs. H. G. Adams III greeted guests. She was wearing lime green chiffon dress with full skirt and all over beaded top.

Mr. and Mrs. Cline are on a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N. M. She chose for her going away costume a brown linen dress with brown linen eyelet embroidered coat. Accessories were white. She wore a white rosebud with baby breath corsage.

Milk Takes Spotlight

COLLEGE STATION — June is Dairy Month and time to call attention to the fine quality of our national milk supply, reminds Gwendolyne Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

"Milk is protected all the way from the cow to you, then the responsibility is yours," Mrs. Clyatt said. "Keep milk covered, and in the coldest part of the refrigerator."

This is also a good time to try new and different milk products, she added.

"Warmer weather is accompanied by less demand for the less tender cuts of beef requiring the moist-heat method of cooking," Mrs. Clyatt noted. "This is one reason why the forequarter cuts are reasonably priced, making chuck roasts and steaks economical busy."

A few of the quick-cooking beef steaks, ground beef and liver are also marked at lower than usual prices in some markets.

"In the pork department, Boston butt roasts, shoulder steaks, ham, picnics and bacon are generally the best choice, pricewise," Mrs. Clyatt said.

Some of the good quality vegetables now available are potatoes, several varieties of squash, corn, carrots, cabbage, mustard greens, and collards, she said. Others include cucumbers, green onions, radishes and head lettuce, Mrs. Clyatt added.

"Bell peppers are more plentiful and prices are lower," the specialist said. "Oranges, apples, bananas, pineapples, strawberries, avocados, honeydew melons, cantaloupes and watermelons are in good supply and prices are attractive."

Peaches and plums are in greater supply and prices are a bit lower, Mrs. Clyatt said.

FLOWERS AND NATIONS

Most countries in the world have through legislation or other action adopted a flower or plant as a national emblem.

The official flower of the United States is the Golden Rod, which many people look upon as a weed — nevertheless, it is a flower and a prolific one, even though it is the flower of the fields and roadsides.

England chose the rose, and our Canadian neighbors proudly display the maple leaf.

We proudly display ALL flowers in our shop, because we know that different people love different flowers. We can send an arrangement or a bouquet. Call XXX-XXXX, we are as close as your telephone.

Sentimental Tale On Homesteaders

THE CALLAHANS' GAMBLE. By Francis H. Ames. Doubleday. $5.95.

The scene is Montana in the early years of this century—a place where homesteaders and ranchers endure the fierce winters and the dry, hot summers.

The hero and narrator of the tale is Tom Conway, a gangly 18-year-old whose chief interest in life is his golden mare Filly, until he discovers a young filly of a girl named Joan.

Homesteader Pa Conway, after six years of declining crops, is deeply in debt. Young Tom wants his father to supplement his farming by raising thoroughbred cattle, but there seems no way to get started.

Pa, with his quick Irish temper, is the comic figure of the novel, and in one episode nearly starts a riot at the county fair over crooked judging in the cake-baking contest. At the same fair Tom wins a thrilling horse race with his Filly.

A crisis arises when a hailstorm wipes out the Conway crops with the mortgage in the hands of an enemy the family seems doomed to lose the farm. But a nearby rancher hires the Conways to drive a herd of cattle in from Wyoming, and will pay them off in cattle. Tom and Pa are aided by their friend Shagnasty, a red-haired giant who once was a trapper throughout the territory of the drive.

The county fair, the horse race, the struggle to save the [illegible] these are the traditional ingredients of an old fashioned novel that you rarely find any more. And of course there's a happy ending just when all seems lost. But that's all right. It's a pleasure to read a quaint old sentimental tale like this one, and Ames has done a fine job of telling it.

Censorship Is Defied

HOUSE ARREST. By Helen Vlachos. Gambit. $6.95.

Mrs. Vlachos became editor and publisher of the influential morning newspaper Kathimerini in Athens in 1951 when her father died, and in 1962 launched an afternoon counterpart, Messimvrini.

When a junta of colonels staged a coup and overthrew Greece's democratic government on April 21, 1967, Mrs. Vlachos adamantly refused to continue publishing. Her position was that under the junta's censorship she not only would be told what was taboo, but also would be forced to print the dictatorship's "lies."

The shutdown made the junta uncomfortable because the public was protesting the failure of Kathimerini to appear. The colonels and their colleagues tried several times to force her to resume publishing, but she stood fast.

Meanwhile she talked freely, especially to foreign journalists. After an Italian paper had printed a particularly blunt interview with her, she and her husband were placed under house arrest on Oct. 4, 1967. At first Mrs. Vlachos had no intention of escaping, but changed her mind the following December, after King Constantine's abortive coup. She fled to London, where she still lives in exile.

Her book combines a review of Greek politics, the nature of the dictatorship and a memoir about many prominent Greek personalities, including the royal family and the shipowning clans.

The author had always been pro-American, but she makes quite clear her disappointment over the United States' recognition of the junta.

Bees Stay Busy

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — At least 50 cultivated farm crops require the services of the tiny honeybee, University of Kentucky horticulturists say.

One bee, say the horticulturists, can pollinate hundreds of flowers a day, and can "airlift a payload almost as heavy as its body weight" in pollen.

Rig Activity Has Hit New Slump

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Another sharp downward trend has developed for domestic oil and gas drilling operations.

The new slump terminated a brief comeback after drilling activity dropped to a 27-year low in late March.

Only 960 rotary drilling rigs were in operation June 22, compared with 1,043 three weeks earlier. The latest total was 21.5 per cent below the 1,224 total for the comparable 1969 date.

Warren L. Baker, executive vice president of the American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors says prospects for active rigs catching up with 1969 and 1968 levels are very slim.

"A very large increase in rig activity must occur immediately to prevent 1970 from having the smallest number of active rigs since 1943," Baker said.

"Rig activity in 1969 topped the 1,200 mark by mid-June."

The rate of 1970 activity has climbed above the 1,000 mark in only five of the past 17 weeks. The number of active rigs dropped no lower than 1,014 in 1969, 1,016 in 1968, and 1,019 in 1967.

From a high of 1,389 rigs making hole in late December, 1970, activity dropped to a low of 915 rigs March 30 and then recorded minor increases in seven of the next eight weeks to reach the June 1 total of 1,043 before lapsing into the current downward trend.

"It is customary for rig activity to drop from a seasonal high in December to a seasonal low in March each year but the decline in 1970 was unusually severe," Baker said.

Through May 18, the industry had recorded a 1970 average of only 1,023 active rigs, compared with 1,118 and 1,091 for the same periods in 1969 and 1968.

While rather pessimistic about the 1970 year-end average, Baker said July, August and September will offer the best opportunities for improvement in that only minor increases were recorded in those months last year.

Annual averages for active rigs have declined in nine of the 14 years since an all-time high of 2,687 was set in 1955.

Baker says that as a matter of self protection it is time that U.S. consumers and political leaders initiate steps to revitalize incentives to drill for domestic oil and gas so as to insure adequate supplies regardless of political developments elsewhere in the world.

The nation's proved crude oil reserves dropped last year to the lowest level in 15 years and natural gas reserves dropped to a seven-year low.

"At the end of 1969, crude oil reserves were only 9.3 times greater than current annual production in contrast with being 12.8 times larger in 1960," Baker said.

"The ratio of natural gas reserves to production dipped from 21.1 in 1960 to 13.3 in 1969. These frightening and dangerous trends constitute warnings U.S. customers face a shortage of oil and gas, the fuels which supply 75 per cent of the nation's vast and growing energy requirements.

Only 9,240 wildcat wells were drilled in the search for new oil and gas reserves in 1969, compared with 11,704 in 1960 and 16,207 in 1956.

"Large decreases in proved reserves are the natural result of a drastic decline in oil and gas exploratory efforts at a time when consumption has mushroomed," Baker said.

Texas Building Increases

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas building gained in May but construction activity statewide is below the level of previous years, the Bureau of Business Research reports.

Total Texas construction was up 14 per cent over April and two per cent over May, 1969.

Residential construction for January through May 1970, averages 20 per cent below the level for the same period of 1969, the report said. "Unless an upsurge in authorization for residential building develops during the remainder of the year, the value of new residential construction in Texas may not reach much more over $900 million, bringing a drop of about $40 million from 1969 and a decline of over $100 million from 1968.

"This is not conducive to an optimistic outlook for homeseekers in Texas major cities," the report of the University of Texas bureau said.

Non-residential construction is holding up better than residential, the report said, being up four per cent for five months and down only slightly from May, 1969.

"The average can be expected to surge upward later this year when anticipated authorizations for several large new office projects in Houston and Dallas are granted," said the report.

Among the metropolitan statistical areas only Laredo, Lubbock, Odessa, Sherman-Denison, Waco and Wichita Falls reported increases in the number of dwelling units authorized for the first five months of the year.

Abilene was down 86 per cent for the period, Austin and Galveston-Texas City both 46; Houston and Midland each down 48 and Texarkana down 68 per cent. Corpus Christi was down four per cent and Dallas down three per cent.

The report said Laredo led in percentage increases of new one-family units; Odessa led in duplexes and Lubbock was far out in front in the new apartment units.

Marianne Taking Irish Peer Home

LONDON (AP) — Marianne Faithfull, the 23-year-old divorcee who used to be Mick Jagger's girlfriend, says she is taking an Irish peer home to see her mother, but that reports they will wed are not necessarily so.

The peer, Lord Rossmore, 39, had said in Dublin, "We hope to get married some time in the future." His mother, Lady Rossmore, commented: "It's about time he got married."

The actress-singer broke up with Jagger, leader of the Rolling Stones, while they were making a movie together last year in Australia. Her two-year marriage to artist John Dunbar ended in divorce in 1967. They are parents of a son, Nicholas.

Charges Dropped Against Unruh

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The district attorney's office has dropped charges of marijuana possession against 18-year-old Randall Unruh, son of California's Democratic candidate for governor.

There was insufficient evidence to prosecute young Unruh, Deputy Dist. Atty. Marvin Kaye said Thursday.

The youth was arrested with two companions last Sunday after sheriff's deputies said they saw a small bag tossed from their auto. On investigation, the deputies said, the bag was found to contain marijuana.

Charges were also dropped against one of young Unruh's companions. Prosecution still is pending against the third passenger in the car, Kaye said.

The late trainer Hirsch Jacobs tried to win the Belmont Stakes four times without success since 1949. This year his son John saddled High Echelon to win the one-mile-and-a-half classic.

Volpe Commends "Hard-Hats"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, a one-time hod carrier who made a fortune as a highway contractor, has commended "hard-hat" workers for patriotism but warned them against any more violence.

"We must not let isolated acts of violence mar the outpouring of patriotism shown by construction workers," he said Thursday in a letter to L. P. Gavin, president of the Associated General Contractors of America.

A Junior Editors Quiz About ELEPHANTS

QUESTION: Is it true that elephants are afraid of mice?

ANSWER: This is one of the four ideas people often have about elephants, the others being: (1) that an elephant never forgets (3) that an African elephant can never be trained and (4) that elephants go to a special burying ground to die. Let's check on all four. (1) Elephants do have good memories, but it's not true they never forget. To be trained, an elephant has to be bound and put on short rations, yet he soon forgets this hard treatment. (3) It is true the African elephant is larger and wilder than his Indian cousin, but he CAN be trained. To prove this the world famous Jumbo, ridden by thousands of children, was an African elephant. (4) This is the most persistant rumor about elephants. Many naturalists and hunters have searched the places where elephants live for signs of elephant graveyards. But since none has been found, this is considered just another legend. Finally (2) keepers in zoos report that elephants pay no attention to mice.

STALIN LIVES AGAIN — A member of the San Francisco Bay Area Council on Soviet Jewry, dressed up to look like the late Josef Stalin, stands with other sign carrying members of the group in front of the San Francisco Opera House as delegates arrive for the 25th anniversary of the United Nations Friday afternoon.

Banquet Climaxes The UN's Anniversary

By WILLIAM OATIS
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant says the international organization should become "all embracing" by admitting Red China and "divided countries" such as North and South Vietnam.

He made the proposal Friday night at a black-tie banquet of U.N. officials and delegates ending a two-day celebration of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the U.N. charter here.

"Having the People's Republic of China in mind, I recommend that the United Nations be made universal," Thant said. "The absence of the People's Republic of China and of the divided countries has given the United Nations a great deal of artificiality."

Other U.N. non members include North and South Vietnam, North and South Korea, and East and West Germany.

The secretary general often has said that the absence of Communist China and North Vietnam prevents the United Nations from working effectively for peace in Indochina.

In his dinner speech, Thant said, "The simple people in the street, those whose sons are dying in far-away countries, cannot understand why the United Nations is not seized with the most burning issue of 1970, the war in Indochina."

Universality was one of his main points in a program he proposed to pull the United Nations out of "a crisis of confidence" in which, he said, "disillusionment has undoubtedly reached a new pitch."

His other proposals:

—Make a "radical change from present power politics to a policy of collective responsibility, towards mankind" abandoning "blind acceptance of the sacrosanct concept of national interest."

—"Resolve with new determination and will, the dangerously deteriorating situation in the Middle East" by helping the Israelis and Arabs reach a settlement.

—"Look more inquisitively into the obstacle of ideologies," because "ideologies are perfect only in theory" and for effective government they must "enrich each other with what has proved good."

—"Look anew at ... vast unsolved worldwide problems such as economic and social development, justice and human rights," on which "much more needs to be done."

—"Diagnose, monitor and face together the new collective challenges and dangers which arise from a rapidly mushrooming scientific and technological civilization accompanied by unprecedented mass phenomena."

If governments do not do that, Thant said "the world will rapidly deteriorate behind their backs and above their heads."

About 70 persons picketed peacefully across the street from the Fairmont Hotel during the dinner. A few held signs protesting the Indochina war, but most protested the Soviet Union's policy on Jewish immigration, carrying signs saying "Let Our People Go."

Fifteen U.N. and California notables spoke at an afternoon commemorative meeting in the War Memorial Opera House scene of the U.N. organizing conference April 24-June 26, 1945.

Harry S. Truman, who as president attended that conference, sent a message from Independence, Mo., saying the United Nations "is deserving of our continued support."

It "has not always lived up to our highest hopes," Truman said. "It has nevertheless managed to make substantial contributions to peacekeeping."

Comfort Kits Are Needed In Peru

WACO, Tex. (AP)—The Heart O' Texas Area Chapter of the Red Cross has received word from national Red Cross headquarters that comfort kits are "urgently needed" for victims of the May 31 Peru earthquake.

Three-hundred bags, each containing several practical articles, have been requested for the local chapter.

Insurance Plan To Be Written For Galveston

AUSTIN (AP) — An insurance industry committee will be named in about two weeks to write a plan for mandatory sharing of windstorm and hurricane risks in Galveston.

State Insurance Board Chairman Ned Price said the committee would be appointed following a two-hour hearing Friday on meeting Galveston's insurance needs.

The plan will be submitted to the legislature in January, price said.

The board said fewer than 30 companies write property insurance in Galveston, and most have imposed "very restrictive acceptance rules."

Extended coverage insurance, which protects against losses from natural catastrophies such as hurricanes, is the big problem area, Price said.

Price said the problem is "more acute in Galveston but is developing gradually along the entire coastal area."

Rep. Menton Murray of Hallingen told the board, "When you work out a solution for Galveston, let's make it for the (entire) Gulf coast."

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association offered the proposal for mandatory risk pooling [illegible] companies writing fire and extended coverage insurance in Texas would have to write a certain proportion of Galveston policies. A company's share of the Galveston risks would be in proportion to its share of all fire and extended coverage premiums collected in Texas.

Leo Jordan, for State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., and Charles Ferguson, president of Balboa Insurance Co., said they favored voluntary risk sharing over mandatory.

August Bueschel of Dallas, president of the Texas Association of Fire and Casualty Companies, said members of his association with which he had spoken" are in favor of a mandatory pool."

Price said it appeared that "the consensus is that a mandatory underwriting pool approach should be taken." There was no dissent.

"Time is of essence as far [illegible] you don't think so you should sit in my office and get the phone calls I get every day, not just from insurors but from insureds," Price said.

Graham Preaches In Rain

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Graham, huddled under a raincoat in a downpour at Shea Stadium, told his audience: "Only three or four times have I seen an audience sit through a rain like this."

The evangelist, who launched a New York crusade Wednesday, told his Friday night audience that he'd come prepared to cancel the service because of the weather, "but I couldn't do it after I heard that hundreds of persons had come."

More than 7,000 braved the rain to sit in the 55,000-seat stadium to listen to the Baptist preacher in a unique crusade—the first one in which he has revisited a major American city winin a year.

Because of the weather, Dr. Graham cut his usual 45-minute sermon to 15 and scrapped the traditional invitation to audience members to come forward and bear witness to their faith. Instead, he asked them to raise their hands.

The choir, normally numbering 3,500 to 5,000, was reduced to 600 by the weather.

Instant Forest Being Installed

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (AP) — A large instant forest is being installed on an 11-acre site as landscaping for a $4.5-million apartment complex.

Max A. Matz, chief landscape architect for the Chicago Park District, heads a firm that created the plan that calls for planting 13,416 trees, bushes and flowers on a portion of the land. Nine acres will be left free of growth to give the area an open-land appearance.

Many of the trees—honey locusts, pin oaks, sugar maples and Maraine ash—average 30 to 35 feet in height.

Owl Takes Bait

UNION CITY, Tenn. (AP) — Tom Meyer, of Louisville, Ky., was at Reelfoot Lake the other day trying to prove owls really don't see too well in the daytime.

Tom cast a surface lure, when not a fish but an owl took the bait. The usually nocturnal bird missed on his first strike, but came back for more and scored on his second attempt, taking the lure into a tree.

Before the owl could enjoy what turned out to be a a surprisingly tough meal, Tom reeled in bird and all but had to pry the owl's talons lose to regain the plug.

The owl flew away, angry, but unharmed.

QUESTIONS SURROUND SWC FOOTBALLERS

What Can Texas Do For Encore?

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

The University of Texas, defending national collegiate football champion, is on the horns of a dilemma in preparing for the [illegible] that is on for an encore.

With only one place to go, down, the Longhorns [illegible] to be one of the more intriguing questions of the 1970 Southwest Conference football season, which already is approaching the countdown stages.

But it is by no means the only question. Other issues seeking answers include:

—Can the University of Arkansas, with quarterback Bill Montgomery in his senior season, finally step from beneath the shadow of Texas?

—Can SMU's rubber-armed quarterback Chuck Hixson win his second national [illegible] in three seasons?

—Can Baylor [illegible] 11-games in a row after an 0-10 season [illegible]?

—[illegible] to the "Tech Option" and its [illegible] head coach?

—Can Baylor's Ed Marsh repeat as the national punting champion?

And SWC fans won't have as long to wait for their answers as in years past. All SWC schools except Texas and Rice have moved to an 11-game schedule as approved by the NCAA.

Baylor kicks the show off on Sept. 11 against Missouri in St. Louis, which not only opens the SWC run but the entire major college schedule.

The following night, Stanford is at Arkansas, Oklahoma is at Methodist, Wichita [illegible] A&M, UT-Arlington is at Texas Christian and Tulane is at Texas Tech.

The Longhorns open the next weekend in Austin against California and Rice hosts Virginia Military Institute.

While Baylor helps kickoff the 1970 season, Texas and Arkansas will close it out Dec. 5 in a nationally televised match from Austin.

Many of the stars who performed feats of wonder a year ago will return for more glory. Twelve members of the Associated Press All-Opponent team [illegible] seven on offense and five on defense, are returning.

The number includes three AP All-America selections, all from Texas. Fullback Steve Worster was a second team All-American along with defensive end Bill [illegible] running back Jim Bertelsen made the third team as a sophomore.

Other offensive all conference returnees include wise receivers Gary HAmmond of SMU and Cotton Speyrer of Texas; tackle Bobby Wuench of Texas; Hixson, runningback Bill Burnett of Arkansas.

Other All-SWC defenders returning are defensive backs Dave Elmendorf of A&M and Pat Curry of SMU, tackle Rick Kersey of Arkansas and Marsh, punter.

Hammond was the 1969 Offensive Sophomore of the Year. Rodrigo Barnes of Rice, the Defensive Player of the Year, was declared scholastically ineligible following the spring semester.

Texas' Darrell Royal still "dancing with them that brung us," says the Horns could finish 6-4 or 7-3 (a losing season at Texas) if injuries crop up.

"I think, though, we have just as good a chance as last year's team did," Royal said. "I've always said you have to have a strong senior class to have a good team and we have a good [illegible]."

On Eddie Phillips, the heir apparent to James Street's quarterback position, Royal said: "As far as technizuqes, he's on par with James Street. All Eddie needs to do is get off and quarterback a winning game or two. The players have confidence in him."

Arkansas' Frank Broyles is returning 13 of his top 22 players but says he was disappointed with the newcomers in spring training.

"We were disappointed in the spring that our young players who we had hoped would fill the gaps in our offensive line did not make satisfactory progress," Broyles said. "Half our offense is gone from last season, and that along with punting appear to be our main problems."

Included in the Razorbacks' graduation casualties were first team All-American center Rodney Brand and second team offensive guard Jerry Dossey.

Bo Hagen enters his second season as Baylor head coach still looking for a winner. "Our major weaknesses as I saw them in the spring are lack of overall speed and the lack of depth all around. Just how well we will do this year is going to depend largely on how lucky we are with the injuries."

The Rice Owls, with one of their best teams in recent years, has suffered a pair of blows, even before fall drills begin. In addition to losing Barnes on grades, the Owls have lost fullback Tony Conley for his senior campaign. Conley decided not to return, following a knee operation.

"We are frank to say this will be our best team at Rice in many years," Owl coach Bo Hagen said. "... we now have the experience plus size and speed and reasonable depth to compete with another typical tough Rice Schedule."

All-Star Ballot Listings Are Embarrassing

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

It's fun this year filling out the "baseball fans' official ballot" for the All-Star game to be played July 14 in Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium. But it's going to be more fun when Commissioner Bowie Kuhn asks for a tally on the write-in votes.

We absolutely guarantee this will be the last year of the computer ballot for All-Star games. How we got ours is a story. We didn't even have to buy a razor blade, much less a razor. It didn't come from the commissioner's office.

Our ballot came from the minor leagues. To be more precise it arrived June 12 from the National Association of Baseball Writers' office in Columbus, Ohio, thanks to president Bill Deekens of the Richmond, Va., News-Leader.

Sports Illustrated says the computer method of voting, first used this spring, will be remembered as "Bowie's boo-boo" or "Bowie's baby."

It is somewhat surprising that Denny McLain, suspended by the commissioner for 75 games, is missing from the ballot. Oops, pitchers aren't eligible. They are picked by managers Gil Hodges of the National League team and Earl Weaver of the American Leaguers.

But on the ballots are a few names that we feel do not belong. There's Cleveland's Ken Harrelson who hasn't played a game all spring. There's 1st. Louis' Mike Shannon who was out with nephritis and played only 13 games up to June 12 when the ballot arrived.

Also on the blue-inked 7½-by-3¼-inch card is Chicago Cub catcher Randy Hundley who has been sidelined all spring. Ditto Philly catcher Tim McCarver, on the disabled list.

There are 98 names on the ballots. Not bad considering there are 24 major league teams. But how did the commissioner's office forget Rico Carty who hit .342 for Atlanta last year and has been over .400 most of this spring?

And how did they skip Al Kaline? Detroit's fine team man has played in 14 All-Star games and is certain to be a Hall of Famer five years after retirement.

In February, baseball tried to become unsnarled from its computers by asking 24 managers for the nominations. Ted Williams and Bill Rigney declined. They know about broken legs, trades and slumps.

Or was baseball saying: Put a man on the ballot but don't let him get hurt, don't trade him and keep him out of a slump. Cleveland's Duke Sims is listed as a catcher but he's been an outfielder all spring.

And the ballot contains the name's of some solid .200 hitters, some of whom wouldn't be around in the days of eight-team leagues.

In the American League, 13 of the 48 players on the ballot were hitting below .250 on June 7. Two of them were under .200. Are these All-Star eligibles, or is it proper to name nominees five months beft4e game time?

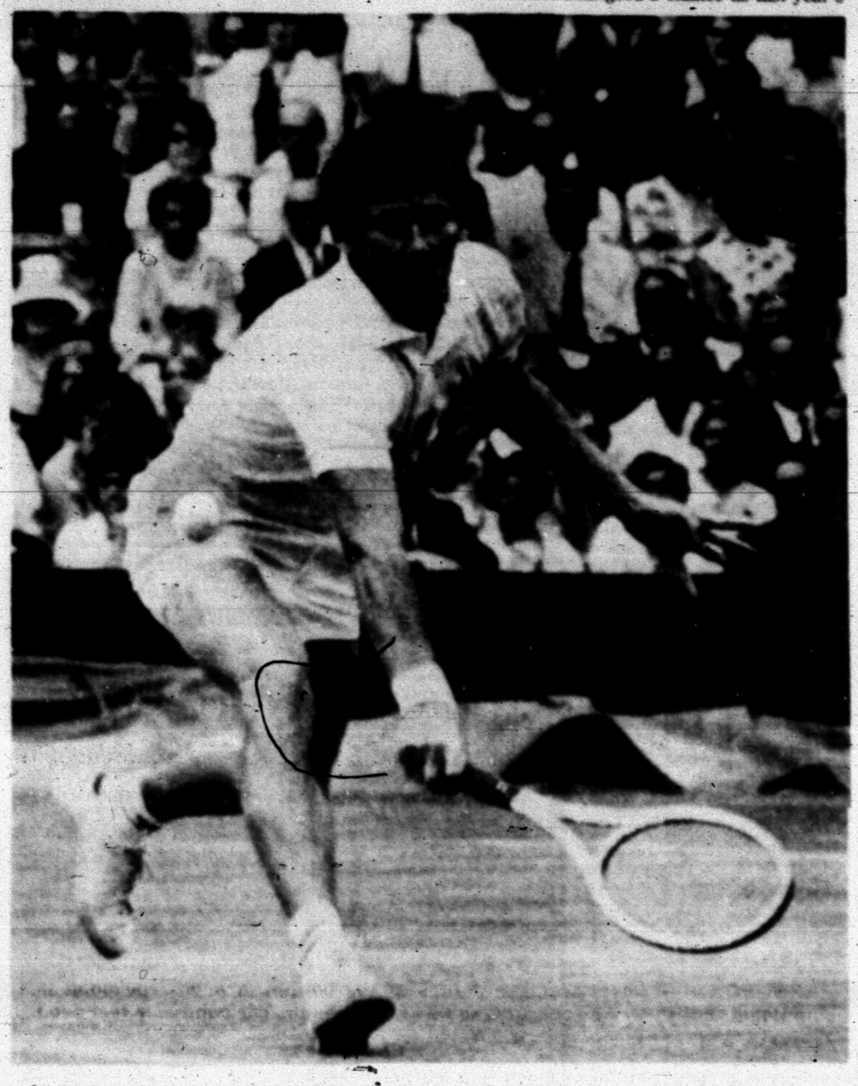

In the National League, 14 of 48 players nominated are below .250, including underweight Met catcher Jerry Grote who was hitting .156 on June 14 following a May virus attack that put him out three weeks.

The ballots are supposed to be mailed to a small town called Rosemount, Minn. They are unique.

When you punch out the box for the write-in vote you activate the computer and also put to work many human fingers. These ballots must be hand tabulated.

We picked 16 men, eight in each league, on our All-Star ballot. And on our write-in space we named 16 others. Some of them, such as Brooks Robinson, Al Kaline, Willie McCovey, Bud Harrelson, Rico Carty and Art Shamsky belong.

So Bowie baby, start counting. You have only 16 days between the day the ballot boxes close and the night they play that game in Cincinnati.

BASELINE BACKHAND — Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., reaches low to make return to Australia's John Newcombe during their singles match in the All-England Championships at Wimbledon, England, Friday. Newcombe, seeded No. 2, needed 2½ hours of play to eliminate Ralston, 14-12, 9-7, 6-2. (AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

Two Swings And Frank Forgets Aching Back

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

With two swipes of the bat, Frank Robinson's aching back was all but forgotten, but not by the Washington Senators, who will remember the Baltimore slugger only as a pain in the neck.

Robinson, the Orioles' 34-year-old superstar, cracked consecutive grand slam home runs Friday night, leading Baltimore to a 12-2 trouncing of the Senators. He became the seventh player to hit two or more in a game.

The 6-foot-1, 190-pounder drilled his blasts in the fifth and sixth innings off righthander Joe Coleman and lefty Joe Grzenda, upping his season total to 14 roundtrippers and giving him 44 runs batted in with the eight Friday night. He is also hitting .332.

A .305 lifetime hitter in 14 major league seasons, the only player ever to win the Most Valuable Player Award in both leagues, injured his back making a catch in Boston Thursday night and was a questionable starter.

"My back is sore, but I could play," he said. His first homer was to right centerfield. "Coleman threw it outside," Robby said. And his next against Grzenda went into the upper stands in left center field. "Grzenda put it right down the middle."

In other American League games, California edged Kansas City 6-5, Detroit whipped Cleveland 7-1, Chicago stopped Minnesota 4-2, Milwaukee overcame Oakland in 15 innings 3-2, and the Boston Red Sox at New York Yankees game was postponed by rain.

In the National League, Montreal nipped New York 6-5, St. Louis blanked Philadelphia 7-0, Cincinnati tipped Houston 3-2, Los Angeles sailed over San Diego 4-1 and San Francisco beat Atlanta 4-1. The Chicago at Pittsburgh contest was called by rain.

Robinson said he wasn't trying for the second homer because, "I've found out the hard way that when you think about hitting a home run you don't get one. I was just trying to get a hit."

The last player to hit a pair of grand slam homers in one game was Jim Northrup of Detroit, who accomplished the feat on June 24, 1968.

Don Buford ripped a solo homer and drove in three other Oriole runs with four hits while Dave McNally eased to his 11th victory, tossing a seven-hitter. Both Senator runs came on a pair of homers by Rick Reichardt, as Washington lost for the eighth time in their last nine games.

Joe Azcue drilled four hits, including a two-run homer and the Angels produced a triple play in their narrow triumph.

Azcue triggered a four-run sixth inning rally with his homer and in the previous inning California came up with the AL's first triple play of the year after Kansas City put the first two men on and Steve Kealey came on to relieve starter Rudy May.

Amos Otis grounded to Chico Ruiz at third. Ruiz stepped on third, threw to second baseman Sandy Alomar for the second out and the relay to first nipped Otis.

Alomar also connected for a sixth-inning single, running his consecutive game hitting streak to 21—the longest in the AL since Lennie Green of the Twins hit in 24 straight back in 1961. Bob Oliver cracked a homer for the Royals.

Willie Horton drove in five runs with a pair of homers and a single and Joe Niekro hurled a four-hitter in Detroit's victory over the Indians. Horton, who leads the league in RBI, has 61.

Clutch relief pitching from Jerry Crider, protected starter Bob Miller's victory and the White Sox cracked three sacrifice flies in their triumph, which lowered the Twins West Division lead to only two games over the Angels. Rich Reese had a homer for the Twins.

Dave May's run-scoring single in the 15th inning snapped a 2-2 tie which had existed since the fifth. Sal Bando had a two-run homer in the fourth for the A's only runs while Russ Snyder's solo blast in the fifth tied the game at 2-2.

Rotan Edges Clippers, 7-6

The Snyder Clippers were in Rotan Friday night in a Senior Teenage League game. Rotan defeated the Clippers 7-6. Jackie Murray and Bobby Schrader shared mound chores for the Clippers.

The Clippers managed seven hits with Bruce Almond and Joe Wilson clubbing two singles each, Wesley Bishop batting a home run in the fourth, Butch Buchanan doubling, and Kenny Patrick getting a single.

Jets Edge Reds, 1-0

The Snyder Jets eased by the Colorado City Reds 1 to 0 in one Senior Teenage League game in Towle Park Friday night.

The Jets clubbed three hits, singles by Stewart Sims in the third, David Merritt in the fifth, and Jim Province in the seventh.

Ronnie Lewis, pitching for the Jets, allowed five hits, all singles, by Steve Vest, Gene Self, Dwayne Nix, Tommy Gulker, and Frank Moline.

Qualifying Is Marred

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (AP) — Qualifying sessions for Sunday's Candian American Challenge Cup race at nearby Le Circuit were marred Friday when Gary Wilson, a Kansas Rancher, suffered severe burns in a pit accident.

The 31-year old native of Towanda was reported doing fine in a hospital after suffering second degree burns to his face when an oil pan he was welding caught fire.

Early reports indicated he might lose an eye but a nurse at the hospital said there was no danger of that.

Rico Carty Top 'Write-In'

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROSEMOUNT, Minn. (AP) — Rico Carty, by a landslide, will be the No. 1 write-in candidate in Major League baseball's balloting for the All-star game.

But what about hockey great Bobby Hull making sliding catches in the National League outfield?

Or the famous comic strip pair of Charlie Brown and Snoopy hamming it up as American League starters? And Phil Cavaretta, a famous Chicago Cub of 20 years ago, at first base?

Those are among some of the write—in votes.

The Adams-Burke Co., furiously tabulating the votes from around the nation for the July 14 classic in Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium, says no to any zany write-ins.

"We've had just about everybody and everything on the write-in ballots," said Millie Weers, program supervisor.

"We've even had a couple of bat boys nominated."

"By the time we're finished," said Paul Hines, Adams-Burke promotions manager, "every player in both leagues will get votes. When we counted the first box from the ballparks, from Milwaukee, we practically had every Brewer getting a vote. And they're in last place."

Hines said, however, that not many ballots have been disqualified by the Minnesota firm as it heads for a July 6 deadline—the date Commissioner Bowie Kuhn wants final results in his office. He begins announcing the starting lineups July 7.

The voting deadline is Sunday.

"It's been quite unusual that any ballots are disqualified," Hines said. "We're not concerned if one guy sends in 10 ballots But we are looking at large amounts of ballots from any one particular area.... if they over vote for their own team."

The vote was returned to the fans this year. The players had voted for the All—Star teams after Cincinnati fans stuffed the ballot boxes and elected six Reds to the starting lineup in the 1950s.

Computers tabulate most of the punchcard votes mailed to the Minnesota firm, which also handles sweepstakes contests, and consumer refund gimmicks.

Any ballots with write-in selections and folded or mutilated cards are counted by hand.

Carty, the Atlanta Braves slugging outfielder, was the only write-in candidate in either league appeared headed for a starting position in this week's totals announced by Kuhn's office.

Adams-Burke expects to have a staff of almost 20 working late into the night all next week to meet the July 6 deadline.

Texas Sections Badly In Need Of Moisture

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Dry weather complaints have been louder as the Texas sun bears down, John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says almost every section could use rain.

The dry weather also is letting farmers put in full work days in the field. Hay making is a top activity, and the grain harvest is well along in some sections and complete in others, the director said.

District agents reported:

Most of the Panhandle needs moisture and ranges are below average. The wheat harvest is half through in the north plains. Dryland grain sorghum is about 65 per cent planted in the southeast. Potato harvesting is starting around Dimmit, and cotton is around 60 per cent planted in the southeast.

Cotton and grain sorghum made rapid growth in the South Plains (Lubbock). Thrip damage is decreasing. Some hail-damaged cotton is being replanted to soybeans and there are a few areas of dryland cotton and sorghums still unplanted due to dry seed beds. Winds hurt young cotton and sorghum in certain regions. Vegetables, such as carrots and potatoes, are making a good showing. Livestock are good, and the market is steady to good.

The whole Vernon district is too dry. The wheat harvest is complete. Cotton planting is about finished, farmers are busy with hay and potato harvesting and sorghum and guar planting.

In North Central Texas, 13 of 19 counties are short on moisture. Some crops are suffering. Grain harvesting is about done. Yields are good; wheat in particular. Cotton and sorghum are in good condition but need moisture. Hay baling is active. Ranges are only fair, and livestock are in fairly good shape.

Northeast Texas is short to very short on moisture. Wheat harvesting is nearly finished. Oat yields are average with some being baled for hay. Other hay crops are in their first and second cutting. Rain will be needed for a third. Cotton and corn are growing well but need rain. Sorghum is heading. Tomatoes are ready to move. Melons a progressing. Sweet poatoes are being planted. Pastures are average to below, and livestock are going to market at slightly higher prices.

In Far West Texas, ranges and dryland crops need rain badly. Livestock conditions are generally good. Irrigated crops are late, and the grain harvest is about complete.

The hot sun is taking its toll around San Angelo. Most grain fields have produced average to good yields. Cotton and sorghums are up to a good stand. Livestock and ranges are holding up, but rain will be needed soon. Some lambs and calves are moving to market. Sheep shearing is on in the south.

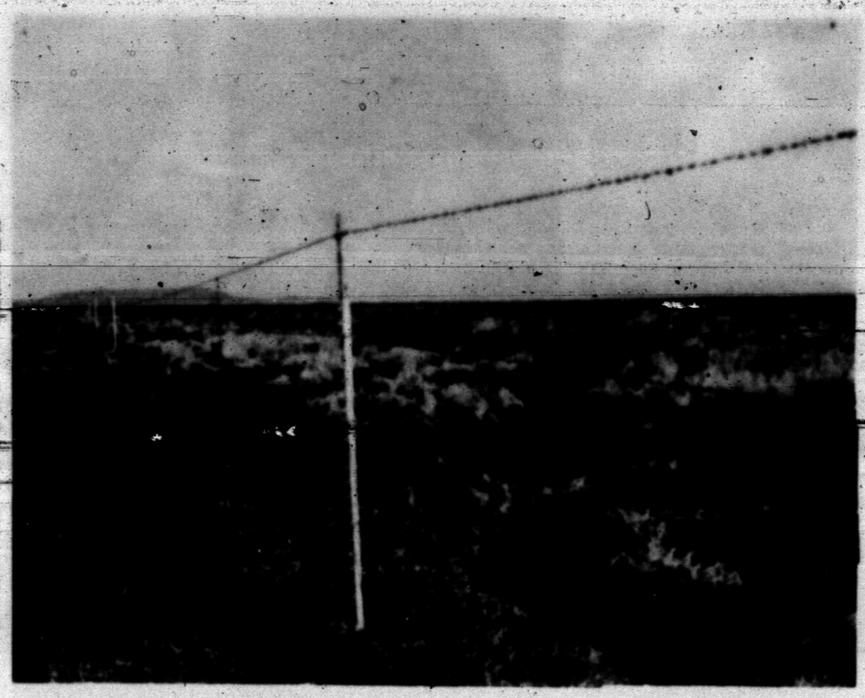

The Stephenville region is hot and dry. Grain is producing good yields. Good quality hay is being baled. More than 80 per cent of the peanuts are planted, and some have been damaged by blowing sands. Livestock conditions are good.

Moisture is short to very short in Deep East Texas. Most wheat has been harvested as hay. Cotton is making fair to good progress, but corn needs rain badly. Pastures are below average to average. Livestock are holding up and marketing is good.

It's the same story in South Central Texas, where rain could greatly help crops and pastures. Cotton is squaring, sorghum is booting, and hay and vegetable harvesting is active. Livestock are in good shape.

Moisture is short along the upper Gulf Coast and inland. A good oat crop has been harvested, cotton is squaring, corn is in the dough stage, and sorghum is booting and heading. Rice is excellent. Rain would help hay fields. Pastures are good but need rain. Cattle conditions are favorable, and the market is normal.

Moisture is short in the Winter Garden area around Carrizo Springs and adequate in the rest of South Texas. Onions, Cantaloupes, melons, peaches, tomatoes and cucumbers are being harvested. Pastures and livestock are in good shape.

SUSPENSION FENCING — Rich Anderson recently completed 11 miles of cross fencing five miles south of Gail in the Great Plains Conservation Program. Suspension fences such as this are constructed by setting line posts 100 feet apart and then putting six stays between posts. The stays do not touch the ground and this allows fence to be suspended between posts. A 13,000-acre pasture was made into four pastures by this fencing. A four-pasture, rotation-deferred grazing system will be put into operation as a result of the fencing. This system is one of the best ways to improve rangeland and increase grazing.

FARM POND — Doyle Wemken stands at the bottom of a pit-type pond he completed on the place he operates south of Hermleigh. The pond is 16 feet deep. Pond was constructed under the Great Plains Conservation Program and will help to get better distribution of grazing.

70th Birthday Tributes Planned For Satchmo

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis Daniel Armstrong, perhaps the greatest jazz trumpeter America has ever had, certainly the best known, is cutting another year.

As 70th birthday tributes are planned in Los Angeles and Newport in July and New York next fall, Armstrong says: "you've got to appreciate them. They're digging old Pops." When he talks about himself, he says Pops; when he writes an autograph, it's Satchmo—from an early nickname, Satchelmouth.

About the birthday, Armstrong says: "I'm glad I've got another one in my race through life." The race began the Fourth of July, 1900, in New Orleans. Where else?

Spend an afternoon with Armstrong in the house in Queens he's owned since 1943 and you're with a man in comfortable shirt, pants, socks and Mets baseball cap, a man who enjoys. He likes his neighborhood, knows the people in it, puts pictures taken with his barber and neighbors in his scrapbook, along with telegrams from presidents.

Armstrong was sick 18 months ago, trouble with kidneys and liver, and while getting better at home, he has been cataloging his tape collection in a looseleaf notebook. "Forty years of tape. My whole life's up there."

Armstrong is of two minds about picking up the trumpet and going back to performing.

"I'm happy in my house, taking care of my tapes and relaxing. If I get woozly, I just take a nap. Why should I be going somewhere just to be going? I did one-nighters and I didn't know what this house looked like. Fifty-four years I went through that—I'm not beating my brains out no more.

"I've gone back to work after I've been sick too many times when I had no business going to work. That's been the ruin of a lot of cats.

"I play every day before I eat my supper, keep the lips up, you know. And I put this special salve on my lips, that's made for me by a trombone player in Germany. My lips are all right, good shape. I could practice with a band two weeks and go back to work.

"But it's a different thing out on that stage, a different story than warming up at home. It is force.

Playing his old tapes brings back memories. And so does looking at the tape boxes, because on nearly all of them he has pasted a picture or two.

"Look how skinny I was in this old picture. My hair is just the way they're wearing them today. Mau Mau."

"Here's Velma Middleton," he continued. "She killed them when she sang. I'll never find another one like her. The way we worked together the 15 years before she died, in 1960.

"Edmond Hall, probably playing Dardanella."

"That's Joe Oliver's wife, Stella. She did so much for me when I was a kid. He'd take me there and we'd eat red beans and rice together. She was a good cook. I saw her when I went to New Orleans the last time. I got off the bus and there she was."

Armstrong was last in New Orleans in 1965 for the dedication of a jazz museum which has three of his horns—the first one he ever played, the one on which he learned to play and the first one he owned.

"You know, Dixieland is never going to go out. Kids like it, the phrasing and the notes. You can't do that with new-fangled music. How you going to thrive on it? You can make a million dollars with it, but how can you live with it the rest of your life?"

A picture of a bust of Sidney Bechet, in France. "They've got streets that cross in Paris, Satchmo and Bechet. The French dug us.

"We just take jazz for granted here. They live it in Europe. They can tell you more things you did on a record than you know yourself.

"Now, this is the band I started in 1947, Big Sid Catlett, Jack Teagarden, Barney Bigard, Arvell Shaw, Dick Kerry. That was the band my manager Joe Glaser decided to go to from the big band. He decided I should go back to the way I started out, like a rabbit in a briar patch.

"This is in Ghana. They all came out to the airport.

"Music is music," he continued. "You can sit in with the boys and play 'Muskrat Ramble' same in Sweden as you would in New Orleans. There are big bands and small bands that don't sound any different from our bands. There ain't a band that plays nothing I can't sit in with with the greatest of ease in Jakarta, the way we played in New Orleans. They got good ears."

Armstrong, with his bag, toothy smile, the gravel-voiced tremolo when he ends a line by saying, "Yes-s-s," his popularity with white jazz audiences, has been called an Uncle Tom by some. Nothing more infuriates the impresario of the annual Newport Jazz Festival, George Wein.

"Louie is not an Uncle Tom and never has been. He has been his own man all his life. I remember several years back, he took a swipe at President Eisenhower. Nobody who ever thought like an Uncle Tom would ever say such a thing."

That was in 1957, when Armstrong turned down a State Department-sponsored tour of Russia by saying, "The way they are treating my people in the South, the government can go to hell."

Wein says, "Louie communicates. He's a comedian, sure, and a singer, a showman. But he just happens to be one of the greatest artists jazz has produced."

Armstrong has dieted and lost 100 pounds and given up drinking. He washes his eyes with witch hazel every day, puts the salve on his lips and practices the horn.

Now it's late afternoon and time for the daily horn practice. Out comes the gold-plated trumpet bought by Joe Glaser, who said before his death that he and Louie were as close as brothers.

Into the bathroom and Armstrong runs hot water in the bathtub into the bell, then cold water. "You can't buy a solid gold trumpet. You got to have brass in it, to get the sound. Now I blow the water out. Now she is ready for action. I exercise my slides; see, they don't stick."

He starts blowing; it's the start of the daily practice session. Water drops glisten on the shining golden horn. High, bright notes soar to the ceiling.

"I could play two hours right now, and go to work tonight."

The Miami Dolphins will play their last three NFL games on the road next fall. They are December games in Boston, New York (against the Jets) and Buffalo.

Bush Says Aid Needed For Poor

AUSTIN (AP) — U. S. Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., said Saturday he recently toured poor neighborhoods in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and found "the living conditions there will not do."

He sent a telegram to the national convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), which met in McAllen. The wire was released by his U. S. Senate campaign headquarters here.

"I recently toured several low income neighborhoods in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The living conditions will not do. There is much which needs to be done to help our fellow citizens pull themselves above the bare subsistence living in which many are trapped. The economic status of the farm workers must be improved," Bush said.

He said more jobs should be brought into rural area "rather than force the rural population to move into the already overcrowded cities in search of jobs which may not exist."

$600,000 Awarded Pilot's Family

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The family of a helicopter pilot who was killed in a crash was awarded a total of $600,000 in damages Friday by an El Paso County district court.

Mrs. Gina L. Anderson received $500,000 and each of her four children $25,000.

Maj. Robert L. Anderson, 33, was killed in November 1965 when a helicopter he was flying crashed in Erath County.

Spiro Signs Campaign Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Code of Fair Campaign Practices was signed Friday by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in behalf of Republicans and by House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts for Democrats.

The code, drawn up by a 20-year-old citizens' committee, condemns appeals to racial or religious prejudice, use of unfounded allegations, and "scurrilous attacks on any candidate or his personal or family life."

Donald B. Straus, president of the American Arbitration Association, announced an agreement with the citizens' committee to establish a procedure for prompt arbitration of charges of improper campaigning.

San Antonio Drug Problem Serious

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A second consecutive grand jury in two months has issued a special report that the narcotics problem in the area poses a special threat to Bexar County citizens.

The report said the crime potential of the estimated 3,000 known addicts in Bexar County is "almost unbelievable" because the addicts require as much as $50 a day to support their habit.

Bus Riders Must Have Exact Fare

DALLAS (AP)—It'll take the exact amount of fare to ride city buses in Dallas starting Aug. 9.

Manager Wilson Driggs of the Dallas Transit System said Friday the use of locked fare boxes will begin then, and drivers no longer will carry money to make change.

Passengers lacking the exact fare, however, will be given as change special receipts redeemable within three working days at a transit office.

The change is being made in an effort to discourage armed robberies aboard the buses.

Mail Swamps Draft Boards

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts by antiwar groups to bog down the draft with a flood of paperwork apparently is having a relatively serious impact on the Selective Service System.

National draft headquarters sent a letter Friday to local boards acknowledging the problem of mounting mail and authorizing them to ignore letters from persons with only a passing interest in the draft.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr said in the letter much of the mail is "part of an effort, apparently intended to 'bog down' the Selective Service System in a morass of paperwork."

No estimate of what officials call junk mail has been made, but spokesmen concede its impact. They said one trick of those involved in the campaign is to submit bulky documents, books and other material for filing in a registrant's dossier.

"Local boards need not respond to letters from nonregistrants or other persons who cannot be identified as having more than a general interest in the operation of Selective Service," Tarr wrote state directors.

Selective Service is distributing 100,000 check-an-answer postcards and has another 100,000 if needed. Another 500,000 are to be printed next week.

The postcard carries boxes where local draft officials may check one of three standard replies: A simple acknowledgment that a letter has been received; a notation that it has been filed, or a reference to draft regulations.

Tarr advised state directors to use the postcards "in order to ensure the continuous operation of the system and allow it to fulfill its primary function of meeting calls for manpower ...

"Care must be taken to see that correspondence raising legitimate specific questions as to the registrant's status is answered in the regular way, even though some delay may be occasioned in responding," the letter said.

Bentsen Speaks To Spanish

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP)—Lloyd Bentsen, Democratic U. S. Senate nominee, said Saturday the Nixon administration should do more to use the talents of Spanish-surnamed Americans.

He spoke at the national convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"Here is a resource for American foreign policy that has been scarcely tapped. There are obvious advantages in having qualifiedSpanish-speaking American ambassadors in Central and South American—and we need not limit them to this hemisphere.

"There should be special emphasis placed on recruiting qualified Spanish-speaking men and women for diplomatic service. President Johnson proved its benefit for the United States in our relations with other countries.

"It is well for Anglo-Americans to remind ourselves that the Spanish-speaking American was an American long before this land became the United States.

"This American embodies traditions, language and culture which predate our own by hundreds of years.

"Yet this American, despite his history, has been in many respects a neglected American.

"He continues to face severe handicaps in language, jobs, education, health and housing opportunities."

Book Reviewers Read And Tell

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: Perhaps I'm dreaming but I'd like to review books for audiences, for pay if possible. My husband says I'm a real talker. — I.M., LOS ANGELES

Yes, this is one career — or hobby — to approach with an open mouth. But an OFT book reviewer must be literate as well as loquacious. Although it seems easy and attractive to book lovers, platform reviewing is a difficult art.

THE OFT-SPOKEN fully qualified oral reviewer is versed in literary values in order to interpret a book's value . . . is aided by a knowledge of history to use as illustrative reference . . . has writing skill — or a mind and memory which permits coherent mental organization of material . . . and is entertaining while educating. Her (or his) goal is to stimulate listeners to read the book being reviewed, and to offer her interpretation of it.

OTHER STYLISTS. Some "reviewers" are really story tellers — who do not review in any sense of the word — performing before audiences who like dramatic readings of best sellers. Others give book reports and book talks (synopses with little interpretation), particularly for library staffs.

AUDIENCES typically are women's organizations, church groups, service clubs, fraternal orders and guests at library programs. Businesses such as department stores, banks and hotels use book reviews to attract customers. Radio and television stations air book review programs. Fashions in club programs change; reviews may be in demand one year and travelogues the next.

LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT. A few well-established professionals earn a living reviewing books, but for most, the pay is too low for the hard work involved. Many local reviewers get about $15 per review; others are in the $20-35 bracket; better-known local reviewers charge about $50-100. You can give the same review any number of times because a professional varies the presentation to fit the audience.

BREAKING IN. I know of no formal courses in oral book reviewing currently available, but check with your local school board to be sure. Some reviewers tutor pupils, and public speaking courses would help. Listen to a variety of book reviewers to get an idea of varying styles — and then develop your own. Be sure your library knows about you since many issue lists of reviewers to club program chairmen. Do your first reviews free in clubs where you are known, and if you're good, word will spread. You could also prepare a one-page promotional flyer and mail it to organizations. Most experts with whom I checked say an hour's plenty long for a review, and 45 to 50 minutes is better. Men's groups may only want 20-30 minutes at noon meetings.

BEST BOOK: "Book Reviewing for an Audience, a practical guide in techniques for lecture and broadcast" by well-known reviewer and teacher Evelyn Oppenheimer. $3.50. Available in libraries, bookstores, or from publisher: Chilton Co., 401 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19106. Contains much from college courses in subject Miss Oppenheimer has taught at U. of Texas and U. of California.

Younger Farmers Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — One concern of agricultural leaders is how to get younger blood flowing in the veins of U.S. farmers without literally making transfusions available to all those over 55 or 60, an Agriculture Department official facetiously remarked recently.

New efforts by the Farm Credit System through land bank associations and other cooperative lending agencies are being made to help more farmers in the 30-35 age group, but the job of doctoring up graying farm heads is formidable.

A recent Bureau of Census report, for example, shows a striking decrease over the past decade in the proportion of children on farms. At the same time more farmers are nearing ages where rocking chairs and Social Security are attractive.

"For example," the report said, "in 1960 children under 14 years old comprised 32 per cent of all farm people. But by 1969 this proportion had dropped to 26 per cent ...

"Consequently, the farm population, which historically has had a high proportion of young children, now has a slightly lower proportion than that of 28 per cent in the nonfarm population."

Meanwhile—as cities got more children and farms fewer —the share of farmers 55 years of age and older rose from 18 per cent in 1960 to 23 per cent last year, the report said.

The Census Bureau report said there was an average of 10.3 million persons living on farms last year, or about only one in 20 of the U.S. population.

"Girl Talk" Provides Betsy Palmer With Her Own Salon

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television—Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Salons had been out of style for a long time when Betsy Palmer was growing up in Chicago, but she always believed, half ruefully, that she would have enjoyed living in Napoleonic France like Madame Recamier.

Thus, when about a year ago Betsy took over the hostess assignment on the popular syndicated "Girl Talk," she telephoned an old friend.

"I've got my salon!" she said.

Television talk shows may indeed be the modern equivalent of another day's gatherings for heavy conversation and light refreshment, even the substitute for the after dinner sessions of Victorian days featuring port wine, cigars and man talk.

"Girl Talk" was launched eight years ago as a vehicle for Virginia Graham, a blonde bundle of vitality with a quick wit, earthy humor and penchant for one-liners. The girl-talk ranged from the frivolous to the sober—the fine art of man-catching to preventive medicine—with the opinions and the conversation coming mainly from the distaff side.

Today, Betsy and her producer, Monte Morgan, believe that the show's whole character and emphasis have changed. Miss Graham left the program in a stormy disagreement with the management. The dispute is still unresolved and ringed in law suits.

Betsy, who had been a frequent guest on the show, was asked to take over, first to, as she puts it, "keep the seat warm for Virginia," and later, on a permanent basis.

Morgan picks most of the guests, reading the papers for possible candidates, talking to agents and press agents and scanning newly published books.

Betsy, too, scouts guests. And like all the other talk shows, they both try to find fresh faces, new ideas and avoid as much as possible those eager travelers on the talk circuits who repeat like broken records and are interested only in plugging their latest film, show, record or book.

"Some guests can always be depended upon and are popular," she said, "but we don't want them to be overexposed."

Betsy likes to get her teeth into a good, sober discussion and while she'll go along smilingly with light chatter, she has opinions and expresses them on subjects that range from Vietnam to child care.

"Sometimes we'll have three good guests and then I try to bring them all into the conversation—those are the days when I really hope that some time we can take the show to one hour; a half-hour is really too short," she said.

She is one who really listens to what her guests are saying.

"The cameras and the studio audience are out there but I don't pay much attention to them. I sit so I can concentrate on my guests."

Betsy—whose billing evolved in the early 1950s when there was already a Patricia or Pat Palmer on the Actors' Equity roster and she used her middle name—first attracted attention during the days of live TV drama and later as a regular on NBC's "Today" show.

"I learned to listen to (Dave) Garroway on 'Today'," she recalled. "If you listened to him, you could tell where the talk would go. It was his handling that produced the best shows."

She also learned how not to play hostess over years of appearing as a guest. Then, of course, there were those 11 years of listening and deducing on "I've Got a Secret."

Psychologist Says Poor Needs Pets

By JEANNINE YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A psychologist says welfare families should get extra money so they can have pets, which he called important to the mental health of children and the elderly.

The very young and the very old need dogs and cats to relate to when it is difficult to relate to humans, Dr. Boris M. Levinson told the American Veterinary Medical Association convention Friday.

"Pets are a crucially important mental hygiene, helping the disturbed child get rid of his pent-up emotions," he said.

"They provide someone who still loves you when you get home, even if you got a bad report card or if you're a lousy baseball player."

Levinson, professor at New York's Yeshiva University, urged the 2,500 veterinarians to ask their state and local agencies to give welfare recipient money for pets.

He also urged outlawing regulations prohibiting pets in rental units.

Levinson said he reached his conclusion after many years of treating disturbed children.

He stressed in an interview that many children who need attention from pets come from families who cannot afford to take pet money out of food allowances.

Ten million children in the United States "have some aberrations in their behavior," Levinson said. "Pets could prevent many of the conditions leading to emotional disorders."

Storm Hits Train Near Del Rio

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — A tornado knocked 16 cars of a Southern Pacific freight train off the track Friday evening, piling some of the wrecked cars three deep.

Engineer F. K. Spair reported by radio that the twister spun across a field before hitting his train in open country 22 miles east of here about 6:10 p.m.

Spair and the other three crewmen on board escaped injury.

A dispatcher, in radio contact with Spair as the storm struck, said the engineer advised, "We've come across a hard wind and it's rocking the train."

After about 15 minutes Spair radioed that 16 of the freight's 129 cars were scattered along the right-of-way.

Railroad officials said there were four cars loaded with explosive chemicals among those off the track, but there was no leakage or fire. They said automatic equipment braked the train and its four engines to a halt moments after the twister hit.

"There was a field of grain sorghum beside the track and the stalks were knocked flat, just like a mower had passed through the field," Del Rio newsman Charles Cook reported.

The freight train was en route from El Paso to St. Louis.

Emergency crewmen still labored today to reopen the railroad track.

Utility poles paralleling the track were knocked down, cutting off normal communications in this area for several hours.

Bentsen Picks Aldrete To Join Staff

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP)—Lloyd Bentsen announced Saturday he has picked Cristobal P. Aldrete, administrative assistant to Democratic Congressman Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo, as deputy state chairman for Bentsen's U. S. Senate campaign.

"I am most pleased to announce that Chris is joining our campaign staff. His wide experience in political affairs and his long service to Spanish-speaking Americans will be a valuable asset in the coming months," Bentsen said.

Aldrete received his law degree in 1951 from South Texas College of Law in Houston. He has been Val Verde County attorney and Del Rio City attorney, city commissioner and mayor pro tem.

He has been on Kazen's staff since Feb. 1, 1969. He was national executive director of the "Viva Humphrey" campaign in 1968 and served as regional administrator for community action programs in the Southwestern Office of the Office of Economic Opportunity in Austin.

Statue Stands For Independence

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — There is a man atop Rhode Island's State House—"the independent man." The 14-foot man originally was to have been Roger Williams, founder of Providence, but the architect vetoed the idea on the grounds that no one knew what he had looked like. But they did know Williams stood for independence.

Schiltz Adds 6 Storage Tanks

LONGVIEW Tex. (AP) — The Schlitz Brewing Co. of Longview has announced a completion date of late summer for six new grain storage tanks.

The tanks, which have a capacity of over 500,000 pounds each, have increased the storage capacity at the plant by one-third.

Mice Auditioned For Circus Act

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — Auditions for potential circus performers are being organized by an entertainment agency manager here, but only mice need apply.

Manager Robert Frost is seeking 50 new players for his 30 sq. ft. mouse circus.

He has more than 40 troupers at the moment but has a "more-the-merrier" policy.

"Some of them just hop around a bit, and there's the occasional loafer," he said. "So it pays to have a lot."

Pat's Relief Mission To Peru Gains Momentum

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon's earthquake relief mission to Peru is gaining momentum with new appeals for funds and the loading of tons of supplies today.

A C135 Air Force cargo plane has been added and will fly behind the First Lady's presidential jet plane with an extra seven tons of relief goods.

The two planes were ready to be loaded this afternoon at El Toro Marine Air Station near the Western White House.

A 7:30 a.m. departure from there Sunday is set for Mrs. Nixon on 4,180-mile nonstop flight to Lima on Peru's Pacific Coast.

The 20,000-pound cargo of "priority needs" will include tents, blankets and warm clothing. A special donation of 350 blankets came from members of the President's official family, including his Cabinet. They were collected during the past two days since Mrs. Nixon's mission was announced.

The Western White House issued a last-minute appeal for funds for the 800,000 homeless and 100,000 injured victims of the earthquake disaster.

Presidential counselor Robert H. Finch, coordinator of U.S. relief aid to Peru, sent telegrams Friday asking mayors of six U.S. cities which have Sister City programs with Peru to raise money to be delivered by Mrs. Nixon.

"In this time of national need you may want to contribute to the relief and rehabilitation to those who are closest to you in that country," Finch wired the mayors of Pensacola, Fla., Sioux City, Iowa, Santa Barbara, Calif., Flint, Mich. Charlotte, N.C. and Vancouver, Wash. They are part of the Sister City projects launched with Latin-American cities during president Eisenhower's administration to promote inter-American relations. They are linked respectively, with the Peruvian cities of Chimbote, Callo, Cusco, Trujillo and Arequipa. Vancouver and Charlotte work jointly with Arequipa.

Chimbote is an industrial port city of 80,000 near Huaylas Canyon, where the main force of the earthquake was concentrated in the Andes Mountains. It is one spot Mrs. Nixon has announced she will visit on her three-day trip.

The earthquake, which struck May 31, took a toll estimated at 60,000 lives.

The White House said Friday, "In human cost, the disaster is greater than any recorded in recent times in the Western Hemisphere." It was compared to a 1936 disaster in India where 60,000 lives were lost.

Nixon Attends Niece's Wedding

NEWPORT BEACH, CALIF. (AP) — President Nixon puts aside official duties today to attend the wedding of his 26-year old niece, Lawrene Mae Nixon.

The presence of the President, his wife Pat, and daughter, Tricia, among the 800 guests has created an aura of excitement in this coastal community.

The Nixon are driving here from the Western White House of San Clemente, some 20 miles south, for the half-hour wedding ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The dark-haired young bride, a school teacher, is the daughter of Nixon's younger brother, F. Donald Nixon, 50. The bridegroom, a fourth-generation Californian is Thomas Edmer Anfinson, a 28-year-old accountant from South Gate, a Los Angeles suburb.

They met nine years ago at a surfing beach near what is now the Western White House.

Alaskan Oil Picture Not Quite So Bright

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the fever of the black gold rush swept the frigid Alaskan tundra two years ago, it carried hope and expectation to a chronically impoverished state. But now, for many Alaskans, hope has turned to fear, expectation to distrust, and instead of Midas wealth they face financial disaster.

In the early days of the great Alaskan oil boom, the people heard petroleum company planners speak of the state's North Slope as the richest oil field ever discovered in the hemisphere, maybe in the whole world.

They listened to plans for sucking the oil from beneath the Arctic ice and sending it surging south through the most ambitious pipeline Americans ever devised.

They heard that giant tankers would carry the oil to the "lower 48" states which were desperate for the cargo and would be a willing and lucrative market.

They heard talk of million-dollar contracts and billion-dollar returns tossed about casually, like nickel chips in a pick-up poker game.

And the people of Alaska wanted their share of the pot.

Alaskans and Alaska businesses drained their bank accounts and borrowed to the limits of their credit to buy and build themselves into a position where they could accept the contracts and fill the orders the oil boom was expected to produce.

The state's construction companies alone reportedly borrowed $20 million to purchase heavy equipment for use in building the 800-mile pipeline and the road that would run nearly half its length.

When the equipment was in place, the shelves stocked, the warehouses filled, Alaska opened for business. But nobody showed up to buy.

The black gold rush was caught, if only temporarily, in a dense Washington legal thicket, and extrication promised to be a long process.

Stevens Village, a speck of a native community on the Yukon River, brought suit claiming the proposed pipeline route crossed land that rightfully belonged to its people. A federal judge in Washington issued a temporary injunction to keep the pipeline away from those lands.

Three conservation groups, in a second suit, offered the courts testimony from experts who described the horrors that could result if the pipeline ever broke: a vast toll in wildlife destruction and wilderness and watershed pollution.

They noted that the oil companies wanted to bury their pipeline in permafrost, particles of soil and rock suspended in ice that never melts. But, the conservationists said, hot oil flowing through the pipe would melt the ice, causing the pipeline to sag, sway and probably break. With 500,000 gallons of oil in every mile of pipe, they said, the potential enormity of any spill was indescribable.

Danger of breakage from earthquake was even greater, they contended. The pipeline route crossed three seismic zones, one more active and more violent than the infamous San Andreas Fault in California.

A severe spill at the pipeline's southern terminus, the center of a disastrous 1964 quake, could pollute ocean and beaches as far south as California, destroying for all time the northwest's huge salmon and shellfish industries, they claimed.

In response to the conservationists' suit, the federal court granted a preliminary injunction against issuance of a permit to build the pipeline road, effectively-stopping the pipeline as well.

Even without the two court injunctions, the project has run into trouble. It came, to the surprise of many, from Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel, a man who became a millionnaire in Alaska and later served as governor of that state.

Hickel issued statement after statement assuring that the pipeline could and would be built eventually. But he emphasized that he would not permit the project to begin until he was certain that it could be done safely and without infringement on lands claimed by Alaska's natives.

Corpus Christi Monopolizes Discoveries

AUSTIN (AP) — Wildcatters made nine gas discoveries in the Corpus Christi District the past week, accounting for virtually all the exploration success in Texas, the Railroad Commission said Saturday.

The commission said 11 gas and four oil strikes were reported.

The other two gas discoveries were in San Antonio Districts 1 and 2. Two oil fields were located in the Houston District, with one each in the San Angelo and San Antonio No. 1 districts.

A total of 92 oil and 25 gas wells were completed during the week, bringing year totals to 2,555 oil and 971 gas well completions. The figures compare with 2,432 oil and 1,242 gas wells drilled by this time a year ago.

The commission said 175 wells were plugged, including 47 dry holes.

After Nov. 8, when they visit the Buffalo Bills, the Cincinnati Bengals will play four of their last six NFL games at home.
